SUNSTROKES.

The Mutual Life was strictly in the campaign and maintained a literary bureau.

The report is current that Lake City will rule the next Legislature when it comes to the school question.

Piracy has nearly passed from the seas, but seems to have developed into life insurance companies on land.

The State military encampment at Orlando was a revelation to the entire people. The boys behaved so well that it has certainly surprised everybody.

A new telephone company will be organized. Its principal business will be floating bonds, and there will no doubt be plenty of water for the purpose.

No wonder the President gets the idea that he is the Czar. He is appealed to for everything and cheered and entertained in as royal style as any foreign potentate.

It is announced that Chicago girls are being sold into bondage in China. It was not known where they came from in China until they saw the large footprints in the sand, when it was decided they were from Chicago. The evidence was conclusive.

The people of Pensacola must expect cutting remarks made concerning them, when the doctors of that city make such consummate fools of themselves. All sympathize with them in their affliction, but some of the medical profession there are certainly subjects for Chattahoochee.

Mexico is to take a hand in the investigating problem. The price of corn, the principal diet of the poorer classes, has risen beyond reason, and the government suspects a trust. They had better import some of that Philippine whitewash before holding open sessions.

Susan B. Anthony should look over some of ex-President Cleveland's old papers, if she wants to find a bunch of adjectives to paralyse the whole woman suffrage outfit.

The business men of Gainesville should bear mind in that in order to reach the people of Alachua county you must advertise in The Twice-a-Week Sun.

Senator Patterson says the Philippine Islands are "a smoldering volcano." If you buy hand-me-downs you have to take them as they come.

Do the insurance companies come to the rescue in the city elections in New York? Little Mac had better look into the matter.

If Tampa can't have the President they will send him some of their cigars. Might better have visited the city.

Because Japan got the best of Russia, she is considered greater in every way than any other nation on earth.

POISON IN FORAGE FODDER.

The following is from the Experiment Station Bulletin, by Dr. C. F. Dawson, Station Veterinarian, and is of deep interest to all horse breeders or owners:

"Forage poisoning, otherwise known under the names cereiro-spinal-meningitis, grass-staggers, or blind-staggers, is a disease which occurs not only in Florida every summer but also over a large portion of the Central and Eastern parts of the United States. In Florida it seems to occur oftenest along the East Coast. As the name indicates, it is caused by poisonous plants, or more strictly speaking, by diseased forage, such as fermenting grains and hay, or by grasses which have matted together near the ground and become mouldy. Sour or mouldy silage has also produced the disease, as has also stagnant pond-water in which vegetation is decomposing. Mouldy or worm-eaten corn has also come in for its share of blame as a cause. It affects horses and mules of all ages alike.

"The symptoms are as variable as the cause, and according to their nature we recognize three types of the disease. In the first type, the most rapidly fatal, there occurs a weak, staggering gait, partial or complete paralysis of the throat, blindness, twitching of the muscles, and no fever, as a rule. The animal soon goes down, becomes delirious and goes through the movements of walking, trotting or running while on its side. This stage is soon succeeded by deep coma, and the animal quietly expires in a few hours from the onset of the disease. The second type is first manifested by slowness of chewing, partial inability to swallow, and weakness in the tail. There is no pain or fever. The breathing and pulse are about normal, and a slight constipation exists. In two or three days the animal recovers, or all the foregoing symptoms are increased in severity. The throat paralysis is complete, the gait uncertain, coma or sleep appears, the pulse is weak and slow, the breathing is labored. Delirium now develops, the animal goes down, the spine becomes rigid and there is cramping of the neck and jaws. Death occurs in about a week or ten days in these cases.

"In the third or mild type, the control of the limbs and tail is only slightly affected, and the ability to swallow is not lost. There is no fever, pain, or unconscious movements, and the animal shows improvement in four or five days, ultimately recovering.

"In some cases of the disease, spinal paralysis is the most prominent symptom, while in others it may be difficulty in swallowing that attracts most attention. In all cases, if sleepiness or coma remains absent for a week, the animal will likely recover; but some form of paralysis may show for awhile.

"According to the symptoms do we find departures from the normal condition in the brain and spinal cord. In mild cases there are no notable changes in the nervous system. In others we note considerable liquid in the brain and spinal cord cavities, and distention of the blood vessels. In the several cases the brain and spinal cord will appear softened, and even abscesses may be found.

"The object of this article is to call attention to the causes of this disease, so that owners will be more careful to provide their animals with pure food and drinking water."

"The sun is all very well," said an old Irishman, "but the moon is worth ten of it." "Why?" asked his friend. "Because the moon affords us light in the night when we want it, whereas the sun's with us in the daytime, when we have no occasion for it," was Pat's explanation.

Those people in Tennessee are too fussy. A Methodist minister was dared to kiss a lady, which he did and the church suspended him. No humanity about such folks.

FRANCE AND GERMANY.

The friendship of France and Germany will never be very warm, says The Cincinnati Enquirer. The two great countries may stand together on some important questions of foreign policy, and appear superficially to be on terms of sweetness and amiability, but the war of 1870 will be the dominant recollection. France will grit her teeth over the loss of Alsace and Lorraine, the humiliating incident to the invasion of Paris, and the payment of large indemnity. There are still black hangings on the Statue of Metz in the Place de la Concorde, in the French capital.

Wars rankle in the minds of the passing generations. Even after one hundred and twenty-five years, at a time when the United States and Great Britain are in the affectionate embrace brought on by interdependence of commercial interests, we cease not to glorify over the heroic achievements of the Revolutionary patriots, who so "worried the life" out of Great Britain that she finally consented to let us go free.

"War is disunion," Stephen A. Douglas was quoted as saying prior to our civil conflict. It turned out not to be so; but the memory of the great civil conflict is still green, and nobody can blame the veterans of either side for still thinking they were right. And, lo, does not some great man still think it necessary to go South occasionally and throw another bridge over the "bloody chasm."

France and Germany may preserve the peace, but they can never be real, downright, heart-to-heart friends. The animosity and memory of a hard fight is one of the hardest propositions civilization has to deal with.

The "Gainesville Spirit" still rages with unabated vigor in Florida's progressive inland city. At the recent bond election there were only 27 votes out of a total of 272 against the proposition to spend $115,000 for city improvements. The result is that Gainesville will have sewers, paved streets, electric lights and a hospital. Gainesville deserves all the prosperity that is coming its way.—St. Augustine Record.

CONSTIPATION

"For over nine years I suffered with chronic constipation and during this time I had to take an injection of warm water once every 24 hours before I could have an action on my bowels. Happily I tried Cascarets, and today I am a well man. During the nine years before I used Cascarets I suffered untold misery with internal piles. Thanks to you I am free from all that this morning. You can use this in behalf of suffering humanity." B. F. Fisher, Roanoke, Ill.
