Police support captain's wife in her battle against cancer

Capt. Rod Hicks of the Leesburg Police Department has been involved in intense SWAT Team operations, served in the first Gulf War, yet he looks to his wife as being the stronger of the two. "She is my hero," he said.

"I come from a long line of tough-guy stuff, and I have never seen a human as strong as her in being able to deal with a cancer diagnosis and do the things that she continues to do," Hicks said of Stephanie, his wife of 18 years, the mother of their three children, ages 13, 10 and 7, who juggles chemotherapy treatments for breast cancer with her college courses for a master's degree in social work at St. Leo University.

"I allow myself two days after a treatment to feel bad, and have a little self-pity, but that's it," said Stephanie, who values the encouragement and words of wisdom she has received from friends and cancer survivors.

"The support has been invaluable," she said. "It's important to surround yourself with supportive people."

Stephanie is bound to receive more encouragement at the Relay for Life of Leesburg and Lady Lake, a fami-

Lake detectives raid Internet cafés

Police said the raids were part of a three-month investigation on illegal gaming houses, sparked by complaints.

Law enforcement apparently hit the jackpot Thursday during a raid on illegal gaming houses in Lake County.

Five alleged area Internet cafes were raided, two by the Lake County Sheriff's Office.

Detectives with the sheriff's special investigations unit served search warrants at P.J.'s on County Road 561 in Astatula and The Grand on U.S. Highway 27 in Clermont — seizing almost 120 gaming machines and more than $12,000 while shutting the cafes down, according to Lt. John Herrell, sheriff spokesman.

Herrell said the raids were part of a three-month investigation on illegal gaming houses, sparked by complaints. But the raids fell on the same day as a statewide operation by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement that served a number of search warrants at Internet cafes through five counties in Florida, including The Hilltop in Clermont and Lucky Joe's and Lucky Stars in Leesburg.

Herrell said his department's two raids, which started just after 10 a.m. Thursday,

Argument may have preceded Fort Hood attack

LOPEZ

FORT HOOD, Texas — The soldier who killed three people at Fort Hood may have argued with another service member prior to the attack, and investigators believe his unstable mental health contributed to the rampage, authorities said Thursday.

The base's senior officer, Lt. Gen. Mark Milley, said there is a "strong possibility" that Spc. Ivan Lopez had a "verbal altercation" with another soldier or soldiers immediately before Wednesday's shooting, which unfolded on the same Army post that was the scene of an infamous 2009 mass shooting.

However, there's no indication that he targeted specific soldiers, Milley said.

Lopez never saw combat during a deployment to Iraq and had shown no apparent risk of violence before the shooting, officials said.

The 34-year-old truck driver from Puerto Rico seemed to have a clean record that showed no ties to extremist groups. But the Army secretary promised that investigators would keep all avenues open in their inquiry of the soldier whose rampage ended only after he fired a final bullet into his own head.

"We're not making any assumptions by that. We're going to keep an open mind and an open investigation. We will go where the facts lead us," Army Secretary John McHugh said, explaining that "possible extremist involvement is still being looked at very, very carefully."

Investigators are looking into Lopez's psychological background. He had sought help for depression, anxiety and other problems, military officials said.

"We have very strong evidence that he had a medical history that indicates unstable psychiatric or psychological condition," Milley said. "We believe that to be a fundamental underlying cause."

Scott & White Memorial Hospital in nearby Temple, Texas, was still caring for five of the 16 people who were wounded. Three were in serious condition, and two others were in good condition and could be discharged later Thursday.

Hospital officials had no information about patients being treated elsewhere, including at a base hospital. But because Scott & White is the area's only trauma center, the patients with the most serious injuries were probably taken there.

Investigators searched the soldier's home Thursday and questioned his wife, Fort Hood spokesman Chris Haug said.

Lopez apparently walked into a building Wednesday and began firing a .45-caliber semi-automatic pistol. He then got into a vehicle and continued firing before entering another building. He was eventually confronted by military police in a parking lot, according to Lt. Gen. Mark Milley, senior officer on the base.

As he came within 20 feet of a police officer, the gunman put his hands up but then reached under his jacket and pulled out his gun. The officer drew her own weapon, and the suspect put his gun to his head and pulled the trigger a final time, Milley said.

Lopez grew up in Guayanilla, a town of fewer than 10,000 people on the southwestern coast of Puerto Rico, with a mother who was a nurse at a public clinic and a father who did maintenance for an electric utility company.

Glidden Lopez Torres, who said he was a friend speaking for the family, said Lopez's mother died of a heart attack in November.

The soldier was upset that he was granted only a 24-hour leave to attend her funeral, which was delayed for nearly a week so he could be there, the spokesman said. The leave was then extended to two days.

Lopez joined the island's National Guard in 1999 and served on a yearlong peacekeeping mission in the mid-2000s. He enlisted with the Army in 2008, McHugh said.

Lopez saw no combat during a four-month deployment to Iraq as a truck driver in 2011. A review of his service record showed no Purple Heart, indicating he was never wounded, McHugh said. He arrived at Fort Hood in February from Fort Bliss, Texas.

He saw a psychiatrist last month and showed no "sign of any likely violence either to himself or others," McHugh said.

Suzie Miller, a 71-year-old retired property manager who lived in the same Killeen apartment complex as Lopez, said few people knew him and his wife well because they had just moved in a few weeks ago.

"I'd see him in his uniform heading out to the car every morning," Miller said. "He was friendly to me and a lot of us around here."

The shootings revived memories of the November 2009 shooting at Fort Hood, the deadliest attack on a domestic military installation in U.S. history. Thirteen people were killed and more than 30 were wounded.

Army psychiatrist Nidal Hasan was convicted last year in that assault, which he has said was to protect Islamic insurgents abroad from American aggression.

After that shooting, the military tightened base security nationwide.

David Letterman to retire in 2015

FRAZIER MOORE
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — David Letterman is retiring next year as host of "Late Show."

During a taping of Thursday's show, Letterman said he has informed CBS that he will step down in 2015, when his current contract expires.

He specified no end date, telling his audience he expects his exit will be in "at least a year or so, but sometime in the not too distant future — 2015, for the love of God — (band leader) Paul (Shaffer) and I will be wrapping things up."

Referring to CBS chairman Leslie Moonves as "the man who owns this network," Letterman said: "I phoned him just before the program, and I said 'Leslie, it's been great, you've been great, and the network has been great, but I'm retiring.'"

Along with his network, Letterman thanked "all of the people who have worked here, all of the people in the theater, all the people on the staff, everybody at home, thank you very much.

"What this means now," he cracked, "is that Paul and I can be married."

Letterman, who turns 67 next week, has the longest tenure of any late-night talk show host in U.S. television history, already marking 32 years since he created "Late Night" at NBC in 1982.

After losing the "Tonight Show" throne to rival candidate Jay Leno in 1993, he jumped to CBS to start "Late Show."

"For 21 years, David Letterman has graced our network's air in late night with wit, gravitas and brilliance unique in the history of our medium," said Moonves. "It's going to be tough to say goodbye. Fortunately, we won't have to do that for another year or so. Until then, we look forward to celebrating Dave's remarkable show and incredible talents."

Leno retired from "The Tonight Show" earlier this year, making way for "Late Night" host Jimmy Fallon to take over that NBC institution.

Leno held the ratings leadership for most of his two-decade duel with Letterman, but Dave remained the overwhelming critical favorite, pushing forward in a "Tonight Show" tradition forged by Johnny Carson and, before him, Jack Paar and Steve Allen.

"Late Show" won a prime-time Emmy in 1994. Letterman earned a Peabody Award in 1992 and was a Kennedy Center Honoree in 2012.

In an interview with Howard Stern in January, Letterman said that Leno's departure would have no impact on how much longer he might stay as host of "Late Show."

caught P.J.'s just opening. Detectives, assisted by the Astatula police, seized 33 gaming machines and more than $7,000.

At the raid at The Grand, detectives seized 85 gaming machines and more than $5,000 in front of several patrons.

"They weren't being discrete, they were operating right in the open," Herrell said.

No arrests were made in the Lake County busts, but detectives will be submitting their cases to the State Attorney's Office to determine possible charges, Herrell said.

Last April, Gov. Rick Scott signed a bill banning Internet cafés in the state because many were using what amounted to electronic slot machines and operators were giving just a tiny share of the profits to charities they claimed to represent.

According to a FDLE press release, its Illegal Gaming Task Force served search warrants Thursday in the five counties that targeted Internet cafés owned by Ivan Vega, of Lake Mary, and Peter Miller of Neptune Beach.

Vega was charged with keeping a gambling house, manufacture, sale, possession of coin operated devices, lottery, and plays at games of chance.

Fearing a resurgence of Internet cafés, Leesburg city commissioners recently passed an ordinance restricting what are now being called "gaming centers."

"Only months after the state closed them down, Internet cafés have reopened with new computer software that has supposedly changed them from a game of chance to a game of skill," Leesburg Community Development Director Bill Wiley said.

As part of the new city ordinance, gaming centers cannot have more than 10 games; they can only operate in certain zoning districts; they must be in stand-alone structures; they cannot be located near schools, churches or other gaming centers; they must have beefed-up security measures; and stricter background measures are now required for principals.

ly-friendly benefit fundraiser for the American Cancer Society, which will begin 2 p.m. Saturday at Leesburg High School. It will feature games, silent auction items, entertainment, food, an Iron Man contest, prizes and more. The event ends with a closing ceremony at 6 a.m. Sunday.

In Stephanie's honor, Rod is spearheading a Cops Against Cancer Team of 50 fellow police officers, family and friends, who will be participating in the relay with a SWAT truck and heavy gear.

"And we're selling doughnuts, because it's funny," said Rod, noting there will also be some maple doughnuts wrapped "in bacon" for another police pun. The doughnuts are being donated by Oscar's Donuts and Publix.

"We're also doing the Jail and Bail, so you can put a warrant on somebody for a dollar and they'll pick them and put them in (makeshift jail), so that will be fun," added Rod.

"They are doing phenomenal things and we told them we are glad Cops Against Cancer is out there because they are raising awareness," said Chuck Kirk, event chair of the Relay for Life of Leesburg and Lady Lake, which will feature 28 relay teams.

Top sponsors for the event are Leesburg Regional Medical Center, Crystal Clear Home Inspections, and Lake Medical Imaging and Breast Center.

"For those who participate in Relay for Life, spending a night walking around a track is a unique avenue to raise awareness about cancer," Kirk said. "The purpose of the event is to represent that cancer doesn't sleep. It also represents the conscious effort — day or night — that family and friends are right alongside them, every step of the way through their personal journey facing cancer."

Cops Against Cancer Team strives to raise more than $3,000 for the American Cancer Society, while Stephanie's goal is to stress the importance of early detection, through self-breast exams, mammograms, etc., in efforts to save more lives.

"I really want women and men, since men can also get breast cancer, but especially for women, I want them to make sure that they are doing what they should to detect early because that is the key – early detection," Stephanie said, proud that four of her friends scheduled mammograms after she was diagnosed Aug. 31.

"The more that we can research and have treatments, then hopefully, we won't need events like this (Relay for Life) one day."

roxanne.brown@dailycommercial.com

Advancement Via Individual Determination, or AVID, was a program developed in California in 1980 to help middle-achieving students improve. Since then, it has branched out to schools in 45 states and 16 countries.

East Ridge Middle School in Clermont is one of those, and its success rate has earned it the designation of a National Demonstration School, fit for coaching, training and guiding other schools. East Ridge was awarded the designation earlier this week by a national AVID validation team from California.

"Schools chosen as demonstration sites have proven their ability to successfully implement the AVID academic elective course and take the strategies school-wide to impact all students," AVID Chief Executive Officer Sandy Husk said.

East Ridge is only the eighth AVID school out of 461 in Florida to receive the designation, and the 141st out of 4,900 AVID schools worldwide.

"That tells you the level of quality you are doing here at this school," said Cathy Simmons, the state director of AVID. "You're one of the elite guys, the

From painting to baking, local artists showcased their best work at the Lake County Fair in Eustis on Thursday. With hopes of winning awards and being recognized, each artist competes against some of the best in the county.

"We look for many things when choosing the winners," creative art director Marlene Bovee said. "If it's food, they look for taste and appearance. Handmade items are judged on their quality, appearance and workmanship."

With this in mind, artists choose their category to showcase up to three pieces.

"I'm happy the fair offers this opportunity because I can show off my work and hopefully meet new clients," said Laura Schoffner of Eustis. "The competition makes you push harder and gets your name out there." This is Schoffern's third year competing at the fair and she has sold her paintings to clients all over the country.

"It takes coats of paint to create the colors and texture of the painting. Some of my art can been seen in local hotels and soon the museum in Eustis." He was awarded second place in fine arts.

A local club also entered their group project in the miniature creative art category. In A Nut Shell Miniatures is a small business in downtown Mount Dora where people can learn the art of making and designing anything in miniature form. NASA officials will transform the campus of a Leesburg center into a hands-on field operation so kindergarten students to 12th-graders can experience an astronaut training course, a pop-rocket build/launch, hovercraft rides, planetarium presentations, asteroid retrieval, and more.

NASA Day at the Genesis Center is set 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at the Genesis Center, 1414 W. Main St., Leesburg. The event is open to the public and up to 500 youths are expected to attend.

"We have an education department at the Kennedy Space Center, where our mission is to engage and inspire children towards S.T.E.M. (science, technology, engineering and math) education," said Beth B. Smith of the space center's education division.

Smith reached out to the Genesis Center about providing NASA Day for its after-school program.

"It kind of evolved into 'Why just do this for a smaller group of students when we could do it on a Saturday and get more students involved,'" she said. "It's a little more bang for the buck, if you will. … I hope it inspires a child to get excited

A Grand Island man was charged Wednesday with capital sexual battery, sparked by an investigation into his alleged possession of child pornography, the Lake County Sheriff's Office reported Thursday.

Thomas Jason Hutcheson, 41, also was charged with 44 counts of possession of child pornography and 44 counts of distribution of child pornography. He remained in the Lake County jail Thursday in lieu of $440,000 bail.

Sgt. John Herrell, sheriff's spokesman, said the investigation into Hutcheson started in February. Detectives learned that images were uploaded from Hutcheson's home at 36525 Antone Drive in Grand Island as well as his place of employment in Tavares and a local bowling alley where Hutcheson was previously employed.

On Wednesday, they raided his home where detectives found "evidence." Herrell said Hutcheson admitted during a following interview to uploading numerous images of child porn to the Internet as well as committing sexual battery on a child under 12 years of age.

No details were available on the accusations behind the sexual battery charge.

NASA Day also provides an opportunity for adults to learn more about the John F. Kennedy Space Center's services.

"We inform adults of what is going on at Kennedy Space Center, because people don't know," Smith said. "They think that our doors are shut down here and they're not."

In addition to youths and parents learning about NASA's scientific tools and space activities in a fun way, students also will receive NASA mementoes when they complete their activities.

"NASA Day will allow students to get some exposure firsthand in the science, technology, engineering and math arena that is utilized at NASA, and it's also building a relationship with NASA," said Ken Scrubbs, executive director of Genesis Center. "We anticipate a great day for kids. One of the stations is where the kids can learn how to train to become an astronaut, and NASA is bringing hovercrafts that the kids can ride, and other hands-on activities for the kids."

The Leesburg event will mark the space center's first NASA Day in Lake County. Chief were recently recognized by the Florida Fire Chiefs' Association. Harrison was named 2013 Fire Rescue Cadet Advisor of the Year and Hanson the 2013 Paramedic of the Year.

The awards were issued earlier this year at the Florida Fire Chiefs' annual conference and exposition in Daytona Beach.

The 35-year-old Harrison became a volunteer firefighter at 18. He joined the Clermont Fire Department in 2006 and, as fire marshal, his duties include preliminary fire investigation, public education and inspections or buildings to make sure they meet fire codes.

But it was him taking charge of the department's Summer Cadet Academy that eventually garnered him attention from the Florida Fire Chiefs' Association. The program allows aspiring firefighters, paramedics and emergency medical technicians to get mentoring from department personnel.

However, the summer program was cancelled in 2012 and Harrison worked to revive it in 2013, which included him finding last-minute lodging and food for dozens of participants.

According to his nomination form, Harrison, along with his outstanding team of associate advisors, faced numerous challenges both before and during the implementation of the program last year, and Harrison was able to immediately recognize, mediate and overcome them.

"The numerous hours of planning and preparation that went into this event were showcased in the success of the weekend... ," stated his nomination form. "His dedication and commitment to providing quality and diverse cadet training makes him worthy of this recognition."

The 35-year-old Hanson has been a firefighter since 1999 and is a founding member of Sumter County Fire & EMS Division, where he supervises 13 people.

"It's very humbling to be recognized by your peers and I am thankful for the recognition," said Hanson, who added he also nominated one of the firefighters on his shift for the same paramedic award.

Hanson won the same award in 2009 after taking part in a few dramatic rescues that resulted in favorable outcomes. But in 2013, he championed for safer and more effective alternative medicines and worked to ensure his local community would have exceptional first-response services – among other achievements.

He also began working to help start a pilot program on EMT IV capabilities.

"I really just provide them with or help them research the school that is best suited for their learning style and situational expectations," said Hanson.

best of the best, and it takes leadership from students, teachers and principals."

Basically, AVID helps students by teaching, and reinforcing study and organizational skills. Instructors and tutors encourage them to take more challenging courses, not only for success in grade school, but with an eye toward college.

The validation team spent an entire day touring classrooms, and talking with students, teachers, mentors and tutors before making recommendations. The protocol was part of the last step in the validation process which, from start to finish, has taken about 18 months for the school to complete.

Lake County School Superintendent called the designation a "stellar accomplishment," while school board Member Debbie Stivender beamed with pride.

"How grateful we are and how proud we are of how dedicated to this you all were," Stivender said. "You just rock, that's all there is to it."

East Ridge, which joined AVID in 2009, had a grade passage rate last year of between 97-99 percent, said Kelly Cousineau, the school's original AVID coordinator.

"I've been fortunate in my career to be able to start and support a program I'm passionate about," she said. "I'm glad I was given the freedom to think AVID was the biggest and most important thing in the world when I first started, because to me, it was. I think I was able to help grow it because of that."

Cousineau, who now shares the duties of coordinator with Melody Clark, who heads the sixth-grade program, said it has taken a lot of commitment for the entire site team to meet every month and get vested in the program and see past barriers.

"Our successful, two-year journey required shared leadership, strong consistency and continuous innovation," she said of the validation process. "We were excited to celebrate with our district leaders, various school principals, staff, AVID Center friends, students, parents, and tutors. Now we have to keep it going. That's our goal."

Ukraine: Yanukovych ordered snipers to shoot

MARIA DANILOVA
Associated Press

KIEV, Ukraine — Ukraine's interim authorities on Thursday accused fugitive President Viktor Yanukovych of ordering snipers to open fire on protesters and getting help from Russian security agents to battle his own people, but they provided no evidence directly linking him to the bloodbath in Kiev that left more than 100 people dead.

Acting Interior Minister Arsen Avakov also accused his predecessor, who was in charge of police, of recruiting gangs of killers, kidnappers and thugs to terrorize and undermine the opposition during the monthslong protests.

The inquiry revealed by Kiev's new leadership examined the months of anti-government protests that culminated in the bloodshed that peaked on Feb. 20, just days before Yanukovych fled to Russia.

Speaking at a televised news conference, Avakov said police snipers shot at demonstrators near Kiev's Independence Square, also known as the Maidan, as they walked toward the government district. He said 17 people were killed by snipers positioned at the October Palace cultural center and that one sniper alone killed as many as eight people.

Security officials then moved to cover up and destroy evidence "to ensure that any investigations would be impossible," Avakov said. "Clothes were burned, weapons discarded and documents destroyed."

Ukrainian Security Service chief Valentyn Nalyvaichenko charged that Yanukovych himself ordered the killings.

"What was planned under the guise of an anti-terrorist operation, and which was in fact an operation of mass killing of people, took place under the immediate and direct leadership of former president Yanukovych," Nalyvaichenko said. He did not elaborate on where he got his information.

In an interview Wednesday with The Associated Press, Yanukovych firmly denied that he gave orders to shoot demonstrators, saying that members of his inner circle even criticized him for his reluctance to use force during the monthslong protests.

Nalyvaichenko also said there was evidence that Russia's FSB security service, the successor agency to the KGB, assisted in attempts to suppress the anti-government protests. He said FSB members were deployed at a Ukrainian security facility — 26 in December and six in January — and that they took part in planning and implementing anti-protest measures. He said the Russians even interrogated the Ukrainian security chief.

Nalyvaichenko contended that in late January, when peaceful protests turned into bloody street clashes with police, Russia sent planes to Kiev carrying explosives, arms and crowd control devices "to organize executions and the extermination of our protesters on the Maidan."

Russia's FSB swiftly dismissed the claims, telling the state news agency RIA Novosti on Thursday that the allegations should "rest on the conscience of the Ukrainian Security Service."

Malaysia vows: We will give plane families closure

EILEEN NG and NICK PERRY
Associated Press

PERTH, Australia — Leaders of the two countries heading multinational efforts to solve the mystery of Malaysia Airlines Flight 370 pledged Thursday that no effort would be spared to give the families of those on board the answers they need.

Malaysian Prime Minister Najib Razak flew to Australia for briefings on the search for the missing plane and talks with his Australian counterpart, Tony Abbott, whose country is overseeing the hunt in a huge and remote patch of the Indian Ocean.

"It is a very difficult search — the most difficult in human history. But as far as Australia is concerned, we are throwing everything we have at it," Abbott said.

No trace of the Boeing 777 has been found nearly four weeks after it vanished in the early hours of March 8 on a flight from Kuala Lumpur to Beijing with 239 people on board.

Ten planes and nine ships were involved in search operations Thursday, scouring the ocean far off Australia's southwest corner where investigators believe the plane may have ended up after unknown events occurred on board.

More resources will be committed to the wreckage hunt on Friday, with 14 planes and nine ships to search a 84,000 square mile expanse 1,100 miles northwest of Perth.

JACC described weather in the search area as fair, with visibility about 6 miles and cloud above the optimum search altitude of 1,000 feet.

Najib said everyone involved in the search is thinking of the families of victims who are waiting desperately for news.

Senate panel votes to release CIA torture report

BRADLEY KLAPPER and STEPHEN BRAUN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate Intelligence Committee voted Thursday to release parts of a hotly contested, secret report that harshly criticizes CIA terror interrogations after 9/11, and the White House said it would instruct intelligence officials to cooperate fully.

The result sets the stage for what could be the fullest public accounting of the Bush administration's record when it comes to waterboarding and other "enhanced interrogation techniques." The panel voted 11-3 to order the declassification of almost 500 pages of the 6,300-page review, which concludes the harsh methods employed at CIA-run prisons overseas were excessively cruel and ineffective in producing valuable intelligence.

Even some Republicans who agree with the spy agency that the findings are inaccurate voted in favor of declassification, saying it was important for the country to move on.

"The purpose of this review was to uncover the facts behind the secret program and the results, I think, were shocking," Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., the committee chairwoman, said. "The report exposes brutality that stands in sharp contrast to our values as a nation. It chronicles a stain on our history that must never be allowed to happen again. This is not what Americans do."

The intelligence committee and the CIA are embroiled in a bitter dispute related to the three-year study. Senators accuse the agency of spying on their investigation and deleting files. The CIA says Senate staffers illegally accessed information. The Justice Department is reviewing competing criminal referrals.

As a result of Thursday's vote, the CIA will start scanning the report's contents for any passages that could compromise national security. That has led to fears in the committee that a recalcitrant CIA might sanitize key elements of their investigation, and demands for President Barack Obama to ensure large parts of the report aren't blacked out.

Obama, said Sen. Mark Udall, D-Colo., should "hold onto the redaction pen himself."

White House press secretary Jay Carney on Thursday restated Obama's support for declassifying the document and said intelligence officials would be instructed to conduct the work quickly. CIA spokesman Dean Boyd said his agency would "carry out the review expeditiously," but suggested the process may be difficult.

MOUNT DORA

Mellow Mushroom restaurant to open Monday

AUSTIN FULLER | Staff Writer
austin.fuller@dailycommercial.com

Ken LaRoe, one of the owners of the new Mellow Mushroom pizza restaurant, said he was drawn to the restaurant franchise by its healthy and high-quality ingredients.

"We were really impressed with Mellow Mushroom," he said. "We became introduced to them in 2006, when the franchisee opened in Winter Park, and had been in dialogue with them ever since. For myself, its the fact that they use high-quality ingredients. It's definitely on the healthier end of the spectrum. That was attractive to me."

The restaurant is planned to open Monday at 18221 U.S. Highway 441 in Mount Dora, starting with 120 full- and part-time jobs, according to LaRoe.

"We think Mount Dora deserves, you know, something of that caliber and we just don't have anything of that caliber," LaRoe said. "One, we think it's gonna be a homerun and, two, we think it's gonna be fantastic for the community. Our plan is to basically be disruptive for the restaurant industry as far as human resources (are) concerned… We want it to be a real career not just a job."

He added the restaurant is actually in Eustis, but has a Mount Dora address because of postal service.

LaRoe, who is also the CEO and founder of First Green Bank, owns the new restaurant with his brother, Mike LaRoe, and Dr. David Weyn. Both Weyn and Mike LaRoe are also founding directors with First Green Bank.

The restaurant is 4,819 square feet with an additional covered outdoor patio seating area, LaRoe said. He added they are developing the 10-acre-parcel and all buildings on it will be required to be LEED certified.

LEED stands for Leadership in Energy & Environmental Design and "is a green building certification program that recognizes best-in-class building strategies and practices" the U.S. Green Building Council's website states.

BRETT LE BLANC / DAILY COMMERCIAL

The main bar of the Mellow Mushroom is ready for the restaurant's Monday grand opening in Mount Dora on Thursday.

"For the restaurant, it was super important to me because it's the first Mellow Mushroom to be LEED certified and we wanted to send the message," LaRoe said. "Also, in restaurants, it's very difficult to do because they use a lot of energy. Especially, pizza restaurants with those giant pizza ovens."

Evergreen Construction Management did the building's construction.

The company's president, Mark Starcher, agreed it was difficult to build a LEED-certified restaurant.

"There are a number of requirements dealing with energy efficiency and reduction of energy use, high levels of recycled content in the materials, no materials containing volatile organic compounds, the amount of daylight distributed to the entire building, air quality and the use of locally harvested materials," he said.

LaRoe said they have a high efficiency hood system to evacuate heat, as well as installing a pulper to pulp paper and food in order to compost the materials and a bottle crusher to make recycling more efficient.

"The food stuff is not going to the landfill nor is the paper," LaRoe said.

He added he is working on putting in an organic grocery store immediately next to the Mellow Mushroom and would also like to put in a boutique motel behind the restaurant.

"We're keeping all the old-growth trees and working the buildings in around it. So it'd be a really beautiful setting for a nice, boutique motel," LaRoe said.

The décor of the restaurant is based on LaRoe's now-closed family machine shop.

"It's awesome. Every Mellow is different and that's part of their corporate ethos," LaRoe said.

Mellow Mushroom is a pizza restaurant that also has calzones, hoagie sandwiches, salads, craft beer, and "munchies" such as bruschetta, a stuffed Portobello mushroom, hummus and spinach artichoke dip, an online menu shows.

Rents rise with apartment demand

ALEX VEIGA
Associated Press

These are good times for U.S. landlords. For many tenants, not so much.

With demand for apartments surging, rents are projected to rise for a fifth straight year. Even a pickup in apartment construction is unlikely to provide much relief anytime soon.

That bodes well for building owners and their investors. Yet the landlord-friendly trends will likely further strain the finances of many renters. That's especially true for the 50 percent of them who already spend more than one-third of their pay on rent.

A 6 percent rise in apartment rents between 2000 and 2012 has been exacerbated by a 13 percent drop in income among renters nationally over the same period, according to a report from search portal Apartment List, which used inflation-adjusted figures.

"That's what we call the affordability gap," says John Kobs, Apartment List's chief executive. "I don't see that improving in the near future."

The trend is straining the finances of tenants like Michael Strane, 39, who recently decided to move from his apartment in Pasadena, Calif., to cut his two-hour commute to work in half. His new apartment in the L.A. suburb of Whittier will cost him $1,045 a month, $200 more than he paid before.

"I'm actually paying more than I really feel comfortable paying right now," says Strane, a geologist.

Rental demand has risen in much of the United States vsince the housing market collapsed in 2007. A cascade of foreclosures forced many people out of their homes and into apartment leases.

Stocks fall back from record ahead of jobs report

STEVE ROTHWELL
AP Markets Writer

NEW YORK — Stocks dropped for the first time in five days Thursday, pulling back from an all-time high as traders refrained from making any big bets ahead of Friday's monthly job report.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell two points, or 0.1 percent, to 1,888. The index closed at an all-time high of 1,890 a day earlier. The Dow Jones industrial average dropped four points, or less than 0.1 percent, to 16,572. The Nasdaq composite fell 38 points, or 0.9 percent, to 4,237.Bond prices rose. The yield on the 10-year Treasury note fell to 2.79 percent.

Economists expect that the U.S. economy added 200,000 jobs in March, according to FactSet. That would be the biggest gain in hiring since November and would help build optimism about the outlook for growth.

The stock market rallied to a record Wednesday after some encouraging news on the economy this week.

The Market In Review

Today

Eye on jobs

The Labor Department delivers its latest jobs data today.

A survey of private U.S. companies this week by payroll processor ADP indicated employers added 191,000 jobs last month. Wall Street will be watching whether the government's job data show a similar pickup in jobs for March. Economists have forecast a gain of 195,000 jobs, which would be the biggest monthly increase since November.

Earnings acceleration?

Higher sales have helped boost CarMax's earnings in recent quarters.

Wall Street finds out today whether the trend enabled the company to increase its earnings and revenue in its fiscal fourth quarter. CarMax, which runs stores that mainly sell used cars and trucks, has benefited from strong growth in vehicle sales. CarMax also has financed more vehicles, driving revenue higher at its auto financing arm.

Jobless rate report

Economists anticipate that the nation's unemployment rate slipped back to a five-year low in March.

The jobless rate inched up to 6.7 percent in February from 6.6 percent the previous month, but for an encouraging reason: More people began seeking work and most did not immediately find jobs, kicking up the unemployment rate. The Labor Department reports last month's jobless rate data today.

U.S. shouldn't release spy to salvage talks with Middle East

The latest round of negotiations between Israel and the Palestinians is in deep trouble. But the Obama administration shouldn't try to salvage the talks by releasing Jonathan Pollard, the former naval intelligence analyst who is serving a life sentence for spying for Israel.

Pollard, 59, pleaded guilty to providing Israel with satellite photos and data on Soviet weapons and ship movements in the 1980s. Under federal sentencing rules, he will be eligible for parole in November 2015. Pollard may well have a case for clemency before then, based on good behavior and the argument long pressed by his supporters that his punishment was disproportionate compared to that meted out to other convicted spies. But successive presidents have been right to resist linking his release to diplomatic efforts to bring about an agreement between Israel and the Palestinians.

It's understandable that Secretary of State John F. Kerry and President Obama are frustrated. Originally Kerry had hoped for a "final status" agreement this spring; that was scaled back to merely a "framework" agreement by April 29. Even that more modest plan has been undermined in recent days by both sides. First, Israel reneged on a promise to release a fourth group of Palestinian prisoners by the end of March. Then Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas angered Israel by filing applications for Palestinian membership in 15 international agencies.

Kerry reportedly has been exploring a deal to revive the talks that would include Pollard's release before Passover, the release of additional Palestinian prisoners and a new commitment by Israel to exercise "restraint" in the expansion of West Bank settlements. Kerry should keep trying to reinvigorate the talks, but clemency for Pollard should be taken off the table.

For one thing, Obama would be setting an unseemly precedent by using his clemency powers to oblige a foreign country that enlisted a U.S. citizen to betray his country. Whether Pollard should be released from prison should remain a domestic matter.

For another, Pollard's release is unlikely to be pivotal. Israeli leaders may earnestly desire it, but it's doubtful that it would induce them to alter their substantive positions, such as their insistence that the Palestinians recognize Israel as a Jewish state, a gesture Palestinians fear would lock in second-class status for its Muslim and Christian inhabitants. If and when negotiations reach a decisive point, Israel will decide the terms are in its interest or it won't. Whether Pollard is a free man will be secondary.

Choice in schools creates fair competition, benefits students

Cal Thomas
TRIBUNE MEDIA SERVICES

When people speak of a legacy, they usually mean something other than what the late economist Milton Friedman and his wife, Rose, left behind, namely the Friedman Foundation for Educational Choice (edchoice.org).

The foundation has just released a small book entitled "The ABC's of School Choice: The comprehensive guide to every private school choice program in America."

The Friedman philosophy can be summed up in two sentences, which are posted on their web page: "School choice gives parents the freedom to choose their children's education, while encouraging healthy competition among schools to better serve families' needs. School choice lets parents use the public funds set aside for their children's education to choose the schools — public or private, near or far, religious or secular — that work best for them."

Choice, competition and what works best for them, not what works for unions and school administrators. Choice and competition work in business, politics and virtually every other area of life, but not in the monopolistic public education monstrosity where the lack of same limit educational achievement for many often robs children of a brighter future.

One other benefit to school choice was mentioned in a column written by Dr. Friedman on Sept. 28, 2000 for The Wall Street Journal. About school voucher programs, Dr. Friedman said: "They also demonstrate the inefficiency of government schools by providing a superior education at less than half the per pupil cost."

On more than one occasion Dr. Friedman has noted that modern public education remains based on a 19th-century model with children from different backgrounds brought together into a single melting pot. That doesn't work in the 21st century. In The Wall Street Journal column, Dr. Friedman wrote, "Free market competition can do for education what it has already done for other areas, such as agriculture, transportation, power, communication and most recently, computers and the Internet. Only a truly competitive educational industry can empower the ultimate consumers of educational services — parents and their children."

Choice and competition work in business, politics and virtually every other area of life, but not in the monopolistic public education monstrosity where the lack of same limit educational achievement for many often robs children of a brighter future.

The only counter arguments to this are based on everything besides what benefits the children.

In the "ABC's of School Choice" is listed the state of education choice from Alabama to Wisconsin. It's a mixed bag with some states offering vouchers and others alternatives such as Education Savings Accounts, tax-credit scholarships and individual tax credits/deductions.

These would be used at a parent's discretion for private schools — secular or religious, charter public schools, homeschooling, or online learning.

While Dr. Friedman acknowledged that school choice would benefit poor and minority students, he maintained that all boats would be raised because competition would force every school — public and private — to compete for "customers." When businesses compete for customers the quality of their products must improve in order for them to stay in business. Not so with the public school monopoly that gets taxpayer money with few requirements, except in a few states, that they improve their product.

Various studies have shown there is little difference so far between public and alternative schools when it comes to test scores, but these studies acknowledge that testing alone is not the only standard by which education success can be measured.

According to a 2006 report by the Public Policy Institute of California, which studied the San Diego Unified School District, "Black students were twice as likely as others to apply for an alternative school under one of four programs. And test scores were not the primary factor in influencing the decision to try an alternative school. Overall, the choice programs in San Diego are increasing the integration of whites and nonwhites, and decreasing very mildly the integration of students with low and high test scores."

Minority parents have shown strong interest in transferring their children from failing public schools into schools that are safer and the academics stronger.

Parents want choice, students want choice. Only the unions and certain politicians stand in their way.

NEW YORK — Two wins for the national championship!

Montverde Academy backed up its No. 1 ranking Thursday with an 81-63 blowout of Weston Sagemont in the quarterfinals of the High School National Tournament at Christ the King High School in New York City.

Ben Simmons paced the Eagles (26-0) to the win with 25 points and 16 rebounds. Simmons, an LSU commit, was 11-for-14 from the field in 25 minutes.

Makinde London scored 13 points, while Justin Bibbs had 12 and D'Angelo Russell, who played in the McDonald's All-American Game in Chicago, scored 11 points.

Weston Sagemont, which finished the season 32-1, was led by Prince Ali with 25 points.

Huntington (W. Va.) Prep, the tournament's four seed, advanced to today's semifinal game against Montverde Academy with a 65-63 win against LaPorte (Ind.) La Lumiere, the No. 5 seed.

In today's first semifinal game, which is set for 2 p.m., No. 6 seed Mouth of Wilson (Va.) Oak Hill Academy will play No. 7 Henderson (Nev.) Findlay Prep. Mount of Wilson (Va.) Oak Hill Academy beat Charlotte (N.C.) Northside Christian Academy 69-60. Henderson (Nev.) Findlay Prep upset the tournament's No. 2 seed, Seattle Rainier Beach 67-59.

Both games today will be televised on ESPN2.

Saturday's National Championship game will be played at noon. The game will be played at Madison Square Garden and televised on ESPN.

Sharp-shooting Frazier a huge threat for No. 1 Gators

MARK LONG
Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Texas — It was 6:45 a.m. on a Saturday, more than four hours before tipoff against Mississippi, and Florida guard Michael Frazier II was in the visiting arena putting up shots.

About 400 of them.

By the time Frazier was done, he was soaked in sweat and reeking from the hourlong workout.

For him, this was the look, feel and smell of success.

Frazier's sharp-shooting prowess comes at a price. He's one of coach Billy Donovan's hardest workers, spending countless extra hours in the gym, and it's paying off big time for the top-seeded Gators (36-2).

Frazier set the school record for 3-pointers in a season with 117 and a Southeastern Conference record with 11 treys against South Carolina last month. And while Florida's four seniors are getting significant attention at the Final Four, Frazier is the one to watch against Connecticut on Saturday night.

"He's an outstanding weapon," UConn coach Kevin Ollie said Thursday. "He creates so many spacing challenges for us on the defensive end where we have to guard him. ... We're going to have to make sure we communicate and talk at a (high level), so we can make sure he gets covered. Then also in transition we have to get back and locate and identify where Michael Frazier is at all times."

Many teams have tried and failed.

NASCAR puts pressure of preserving tires on teams

JENNA FRYER
Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Texas — NASCAR will not regulate tire pressures at Texas Motor Speedway, and if drivers have tire failures during Sunday's race officials believe they won't be able to blame Goodyear.

Hoping to give more control over setups and strategy to race teams, NASCAR is refusing to get involved in monitoring whether teams choose to follow recommendations set each week by Goodyear.

There were multiple tire issues at California two weeks ago, and many drivers tried to blame the product Goodyear brought to the track. NASCAR insisted the issues were self-inflicted and a product of teams going far beyond the air pressure limits recommended by the manufacturer.

With a handful of drivers predicting similar problems this weekend at Texas, NASCAR vice president of competition Robin Pemberton said each team controls its own fate.

"We want to be open enough to give the teams opportunity to adjust and have different setups out there and be more aggressive or less aggressive whenever they see fit," Pemberton said Thursday. "We want the teams to be able to push the limit, and that's what we expect out of them. If a guy has a tire issue that is self-inflicted and gets out of the car and blames Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., that's a bad deal. That basically is what some of them tried to do at California."

Goodyear each week presents teams minimum pounds per square inch pressure recommendations based on both testing and data from previous tires. NASCAR has maintained the majority of failures at California occurred when teams decided to go below the recommended pressure.

"I think there are some guys that went too far at California and it cost them opportunities, and there are guys that were more calculated and didn't go overboard and capitalized,"

HUMBLE, Texas — Phil Mickelson is among the leaders after shooting a bogey-free 4-under par 68 in his opening round of the Houston Open, showing no effects of the muscle pull that forced him to withdraw from last week's Texas Open.

The five-time major winner, who practiced at Augusta National for two days this week in advance of the Masters, is three shots back of leaders Bill Haas and Charley Hoffman — both who shot 7-under 65.

Keegan Bradley and Matt Kuchar lead a group of five golfers at 6 under after Thursday's play. J.B. Holmes, Erik Compton and Jim Renner are also at 6 under.

Former world No. 1 Rory McIlroy, playing in the afternoon on the 7,441-yard Golf Club of Houston, finished with a 2-under 70.

the arc. The sophomore from Tampa, was a staggering 10 of 15 from 3-point range in the SEC tournament, including four treys that helped beat Kentucky in the title game.

The NCAA tournament hasn't been quite as smooth.

Albany used a triangle-and-two defense to limit Frazier's looks in the opening round and Dayton had similar success guarding him in the South Region final. Frazier had several 3s rim out against Pittsburgh and finished 2 of 9 from beyond the arc. His one solid tournament game came against UCLA, which left him wide open early and often.

Frazier has made 10 of 26 shots from 3-point range in four tournament games, creating some speculation he needs to find his stroke for the Gators to win it all.

"Would I like Michael Frazier to knock down five, six, seven 3s a game? That would be great for us," Donovan said. "But sometimes the defense has something to do with that. If they are taking him away, we need to understand what else is open.

"Sometimes that is the greatest sign of respect for a player is when they try to take you out of the game. Some teams tried to do that to Michael, but we've still been able to move on and advance by doing different things."

True, but there's no question that Frazier can change games with just a few of his smooth strokes.

Donovan calls him one of the purest shooters he's been around, ranking him right up there with Lee Humphrey (2004-07). Humphrey holds the NCAA tournament record with 47 3s, hitting clutch shots that helped the Gators win back-to-back national titles in 2006 and 2007.

Frazier is just as dangerous.

He and Humphrey have two of the most consistent releases Donovan has ever coached, and both know exactly what causes every miss.

Frazier credits his success to repetition.

"On a typical game day, 350, 400 shots I try to make just so that I have a good rhythm going into the game," Frazier said. "My favorite player in the NBA is Ray Allen, and he's a great worker. But ever since I was in high school, I always liked to get into the gym early and just get a nice lather, get a good warm-up just so I'm in rhythm.

"And if I feel my shot is off a little bit I can kind of go in there and fine-tune it before the game so I can be comfortable with my shot."

A preacher's son and one of six children, Frazier doesn't let many things bother him. But he has seemed uncharacteristically tense in recent weeks.

Frazier scoffed at the notion.

"When I make my mind up to do something, I'm going to give it my all," he said. "I don't really let distractions get in the way of what I'm trying to accomplish."

And that means getting in the gym for a few hundred extra shots.

Pemberton said. "So here we are coming to Texas, another fast race track, and there's concern that they will overuse the tires. But Goodyear is ahead of it and told them what it takes to fail and what it takes to succeed on left side tire pressures and it's up to teams to use them properly."

Goodyear this week presented teams a chart of recommended inflation pressures and times before a possible failure based on testing data. The manufacturer will use for the first time this season the multi-zone tread tire, which combines two distinct rubber compounds on the same right-side tire. The compound used on the outside 10 inches of the tread is designed for traction, and the compound on the inside two inches is designed for durability.

The inside compound is tougher to provide the tire a cushion for the heat and abuse it takes on certain tracks.

Goodyear used the multi-zone tire last year at Atlanta and Kansas to fairly positive feedback from drivers. Texas was a good fit because the track abuses tires and produces high speeds and loads — which both should be up this year with the current configuration of the cars.

The left side tires being used at Texas are the same as those used at the track the last two races. The right sides are the new multi-zone tires and were not track tested. Goodyear instead lab-tested the tires, attempting to replicate actual race conditions.

Goodyear director of race tire sales Greg Stucker said the lab verifies tire performance and validates pressure recommendations.

"Once we generate this data, confirming our recommendation and at which air pressures the tires need to be run, we share that information with the teams," Stucker said. "Teams have asked for some flexibility with how they set up their cars. This information is just another tool in their toolbox."

Four-time series champion Jeff Gordon questioned Goodyear's decision not to physically test the tires at Texas.

"I think we will see issues there. We saw issues there last year," Gordon said. "I think as a team we are already looking at things that we were doing last year that we can look at trying to improve as far as abusiveness on the tires for Texas. From what I understand, they didn't test in California, and I think that that was obviously a mistake because I think some of those things may have shown up in that test. Did they test in Texas? And if they didn't, then I hope they have a backup plan because I do think that we are going to have some issues there."

Pemberton said it is up to the teams to walk the fine line of pushing the limits Goodyear gives them in an effort to rise in what's shaping up to be a very competitive season.

"We want people to be aggressive. We've asked the tire manufacturer to bring better tires, we've got a better car this year than last year and we've opened up the window of opportunity with teams to either succeed or fail," Pemberton said. "All of those things coming together this year have brought us some great racing."

ARLINGTON, Texas — Wichita State coach Gregg Marshall is growing accustomed to being center stage at the Final Four. He just wishes his team was with him this time around.

After leading the Shockers to the national semifinals a year ago, Marshall deftly guided them through a perfect regular season, earning a No. 1 seed in the NCAA tournament. While they were done in by Kentucky in the third round, by then the votes had already been tabulated.

Marshall was the runaway winner of the AP coach of the year award.

He accepted his hardware during a news conference Thursday at AT&T Stadium, where the Wildcats will play Wisconsin and UConn will meet Florida in the national semifinals Saturday night.

"I'm truly honored," Marshall said. "It's amazing what our young guys and our program were able to accomplish this year, with the tremendous win streak and the run they took us all on. I've been coaching for a long time, but when you have a group like this, they make it really special."

Speaking of special, Creighton star Doug McDermott was a near-unanimous pick as the AP player of the year after a senior season that left him the fifth-leading scorer in Division I history.

McDermott received all but one vote from the 65-member panel that votes for the Top 25. Russ Smith of Louisville received the only dissenting vote.

"This is a huge honor," said McDermott, who was joined at the news conference by his father, Creighton coach Greg McDermott, along with his mother and sister.

"It's been a heck of a ride," McDermott said. "It has been a great four years."

The award ceremony was also a reunion for Marshall and McDermott, who became familiar with each other when Wichita State and Creighton tussled for Missouri Valley supremacy.

But when the Bluejays skipped to the Big East, it cleared the way for Marshall's Shockers to romp through a weakened league and have one of the finest seasons in Division I history.

Wichita State won its first 35 games, a record for a men's major college program, and became the first team to enter the NCAA tournament with a perfect record since UNLV in 1991. With his motto of "play angry," the Shockers embodied the intense nature of their blue-collar coach, who came up through tiny schools such as Randolph-Macon to reach the pinnacle of his sport.

Along the way, the Shockers captured their first Missouri Valley tournament title since 1987 and landed forward Cleanthony Early and point guard Fred VanVleet on the AP's All-America teams.

"I tell you what, they made it easy to coach," Marshall told AP. "You enjoy going to work every single day. Even with the loss to Kentucky, they never wavered. They wanted to be a special group, and they wanted to do things that have never been done."

That loss to the Wildcats still stings, though. The heavyweights from the SEC were given a No. 8 seed in the NCAA tournament, meaning Wichita State had to face them in the opening weekend, and the two teams waged a thrilling game that came down to VanVleet's missed shot at the buzzer.

"Ultimately, some point down the road, we'll look back on this season, and look back fondly," Marshall said, "but at this point, gosh, I wish we were still playing."

Marshall received 44 votes for coach of the year. Tony Bennett of Virginia got 13, followed by Florida's Billy Donovan with six and Michigan's John Beilein and SMU's Larry Brown with one each.

There wasn't nearly as much indecision in voting for McDermott, who led the Bluejays to a No. 3 seed in the NCAA tournament. And while their season ended in a loss to Baylor, it was only a blip on an otherwise remarkable career that left his proud pop feeling nostalgic.

"It's hard to believe on a lot of levels," Greg McDermott told AP. "As his father, I still see him as a little scrawny kid in a lot of ways."

One that blossomed into a dynamic, 6-foot-8 forward who led the nation in scoring at nearly 27 points per game and finished with a staggering 3,150 for his career.

Earlier this year, he was voted a first-team All-American, the first player since Patrick Ewing and Wayman Tisdale in 1985 to earn the nod three straight years.

"I knew Doug was going to be player of the year much sooner than I thought I could be coach of the year," Marshall said. "He can certainly play on any level and he proved that this year."

Women's Final Four loaded with stars on floor, bench

Connecticut head coach Geno Auriemma calls to his players during a 2013 women's regional semifinal basketball game against Maryland in Bridgeport, Conn. Notre Dame and Connecticut are on an unprecedented collision course to meet in the national championship game. First, the two unbeaten teams will have to win their national semifinal games before the historic matchup can take place.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The women's basketball Final Four features Hall of Fame coaches, star players, fabulous freshmen and of course for the first time ever — two undefeated teams.

Welcome to Music City, UConn, Notre Dame, Stanford, and Maryland.

The Huskies have been on season-long quest to repeat and win a record ninth national championship. While such a talented lineup returning, it wasn't a huge surprise UConn would have a chance to go unbeaten. The Irish's undefeated season was more unexpected. Especially with the loss of guard Skylar Diggins to graduation.

Still, the two teams are on course for an unprecedented national championship showdown, if they can get by Stanford and Maryland.

There will be a certain familiarity in the two national semifinal games as both are early season rematches, though the coaches say none of the teams are the same.

Probably the biggest change is in Notre Dame's lineup; senior forward Natalie Achonwa suffered a torn ACL in the regional final victory over Baylor.

The Irish will have had a few days to adjust to the loss of their leader when they face Maryland on Sunday night. The two teams met in January and the Irish were comfortably in charge of that game before the Terps rallied from a 22-point first-half deficit before losing by four.

"That may have been the turning point of the season for (Maryland freshman) Lexie Brown," Irish coach Muffet McGraw said. "I think she's really come into her own since that game."

UConn had a little easier time with Stanford back in November, cruising to a 19-point win.

Connecticut was victorious despite losing Kaleena Mosqueda-Lewis early in the second half to an elbow injury and star sophomore Breanna Stewart in foul trouble.

Here are five things to look for in the Final Four:

STAR POWER

There is no shortage of star players in the Final Four. Four of the five first-team All-Americans are still playing. Maryland's Alyssa Thomas has raised her game in the NCAA tournament while Stanford's Chiney Ogwumike has carried the Cardinal. UConn's Breanna Stewart had a record tournament as a freshman last season and has helped the Huskies win 44-straight games. Notre Dame may have the best backcourt in the country with Jewell Loyd and Kayla McBride. Both will be depended on to overcome the loss of Achonwa.

CHAMPIONSHIP COACHES

Some of the best coaches in the women's game will be roaming the sideline. Each of the four have won national championships with Auriemma leading the way with eight. Auriemma and Stanford's Tara VanDerveer are Hall of Famers and all four have been previously honored as AP Coach of the Year.

BACK AGAIN

Reaching the Final Four seems to have become an annual rite for UConn, Notre Dame and Stanford. The Huskies have been to the national semifinals seven straight years while the Irish have made four straight. Stanford had a run of five in a row snapped last season by Georgia, but the Cardinal are back again for the sixth time in seven years. Maryland is the newcomer, reaching the Final Four for the first time since 2006 — the year they won the national title.

FRESHMEN FOCUS

Lexie Brown has had an impressive tournament. The Maryland freshman scored 20 points, including hitting nine of 10 free throws, to get the Terps to the Final Four. She earned All-Regional honors. Notre Dame first-year player Taya Reimer has also played well, and will likely get more opportunities with Achonwa sidelined. Stanford's Lili Thompson is the team's third-leading scorer and is building a reputation as a fierce defender. She shut down Penn State's Maggie Lucas in the regional semifinals, then went toe-to-toe with Diamond DeShields of North Carolina in the regional final.

HISTORY IN THE MAKING

If UConn or Notre Dame does win the title it will mark the second time ever that all three NCAA divisions had teams post undefeated records in the same season. Bentley won the Division II title this season and FDU-Florham was the DIII champ. In 1995, Connecticut, North Dakota State and Capital were all unbeaten.

Wrigley Field set to open for 100th season

JAY COHEN
Associated Press

CHICAGO — The celebration for Wrigley Field's 100th anniversary begins with a visit from an old friend.

Ryne Sandberg brings his Philadelphia Phillies to Chicago to take on the Cubs today in the first game of the season at the iconic ballpark. It's Sandberg's second trip to his old stomping grounds since he became Philadelphia's manager last August.

"Wrigley Field's a special place to me and my career, so going back there, and to go back in this capacity, I'm very anxious and excited about that," Sandberg said.

Sandberg broke into the majors with Philadelphia in 1981 and got his first major league hit at Wrigley. It was the first of many at the Cubs' longtime home.

Sandberg was traded to Chicago that January, and went on to play 15 seasons for the Cubs. He finished his career with a .285 batting average, 282 homers and 1,061 RBIs. The second baseman had his No. 23 retired by the team in 2005, the same year he was enshrined in Cooperstown.

Nicknamed "Ryno," Sandberg remains popular among Cubs fans. After all, he was at his best in their favorite ballpark, batting .300 with 164 homers and 607 RBIs at Wrigley during his time with Chicago.

"It's the 100th year, anniversary of the stadium there, that'll be special," Sandberg said, looking forward to the second of three opening days for Philadelphia this season.

It's also a very special occasion for rookie Cubs manager Rick Renteria, who was hired in November and finally gets a chance to take a look at his office.

"I think we're all looking forward to making Wrigley Field our haven," he said Thursday.

It was a house of horrors last year, when Chicago had a National League-worst 31-50 home record. The home woes, plus a run of four straight losing seasons, also took a toll on attendance. The season total of 2,642,682 was the smallest for the Cubs since they drew 2,623,194 in 1998.

All those numbers played a role in the firing of Dale Sveum, who went 127-197 in two seasons with Chicago. The Cubs are hoping Renteria can get young hitters Anthony Rizzo and Starlin Castro back on track while laying a foundation for a successful transition to the majors for the top prospects in a loaded farm system.

"We're moving in the right direction with our mentality and attitude," Renteria said. "It's a long season."

Mets' Murphy, Collins defend paternity leave

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Daniel Murphy is proud he put fatherhood ahead of baseball, and New York Mets manager Terry Collins thinks criticism his second baseman received for taking paternity leave this week was unfair.

Murphy made his season debut Thursday, three days after the birth of son Noah. He called staying in Florida an extra day "the right decision to make" following wife Victoria's cesarean section and said "we felt the best thing for our family was for me to stay."

He learned Sunday that his wife's water broke, then traveled to Florida and missed Monday's 9-7 opening loss to Washington and Wednesday night's 5-1 defeat. He said his son was born at 12:02 p.m. Monday.

SETH WENIG / AP

New York Mets' Daniel Murphy during the seventh inning of Thursday's game against Washington Nationals at Citi Field in New York.

Major league rules allow up to three days of paternity leave, and WFAN broadcaster Mike Francesa said on the air Wednesday that Murphy should not have skipped the second game.

"One day I understand. And in the old days they didn't do that," Francesa said. "But one day, go see the baby be born and come back. You're a Major League Baseball player. You can hire a nurse to take care of the baby if your wife needs help."

A day later, Collins bristled after learning of the comments.

"If you're accusing Dan Murphy of not wanting to play — this guy played 161 games last year, wore himself out, played through all sorts of discomfort," he said. "You know, the man had his first child. He's allowed to be there. The rules state that he can be there, so he went. There's nothing against it. There's nothing wrong with it. You know, he missed two games. It's not like he's missed 10. You know, when you start attacking Dan Murphy's credibility, you need to look in the mirror a little bit."

Murphy said he received text messages about the criticism. He was applauded before his first at-bat, singled and scored the Mets' first run against the Nationals.

He said his son was named after the Biblical character Noah, not for Mets teammate Noah Syndergaard.

"People are going to say you named him after the monstrosity that throws like 1,000 miles an hour," Murphy said. "We didn't. Noah came from Noah's Ark. Peace and rest is what it means."

Baby Noah kept his parents awake at 3 a.m. Wednesday.

"We had our first panic session. It was dark. She tried to change a diaper, couldn't do it. I came in," he said. "It was just the three of us, 3 o'clock in the morning, all freaking out. He was the only one screaming. I wanted to."

This Date In Baseball

April 4

1974 — The Cincinnati Reds defeated the Atlanta Braves 7-6 in 11 innings before a crowd of 52,000 at Riverfront Stadium. In his first at-bat, Hank Aaron hit a three-run homer off Jack Billingham. It was his 714th, tying Babe Ruth's career record. The Braves had considered keeping Aaron on the bench for the season-opening series in Cincinnati so that he could attempt to tie the record four days later in Atlanta. But Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered the Braves to put Aaron into the lineup for at least two of the three games.

1988 — George Bell became the first player to hit three home runs on opening day, leading the Toronto Blue Jays past the Kansas City Royals 5-3. Bell, bitter throughout spring training with his move to designated hitter, homered three times in that role off Bret Saberhagen.

1994 — Chicago's Karl Rhodes hit three solo home runs off Dwight Gooden in a 12-8 loss to the New York Mets on opening day at Wrigley Field. Rhodes became the second player to homer three times in an opener.

1998 — Mark McGwire tied Willie Mays' National League record by hitting a home run in each of his first four games of the season. McGwire launched a towering three-run shot in the sixth inning of an 8-6 victory over the San Diego Padres.

1999 — America's pastime opened in Mexico for the first time. The Colorado Rockies beat the Chicago Cubs 8-2 in baseball's first season opener outside the United States and Canada.

2001 — Hideo Nomo became the fourth pitcher in major league history to throw a no-hitter in both leagues in Boston's 3-0 victory over Baltimore. Nomo, who threw the first no-hitter in Colorado's Coors Field on Sept. 17, 1996, for Los Angeles, walked three and struck out 11 in the first no-hitter in the 10-year history of Camden Yards. Nomo joined Cy Young, Jim Bunning and Nolan Ryan as the only pitchers with no-hitters in both leagues.

2003 — Sammy Sosa of the Chicago Cubs became the 18th player to hit 500 career homers, connecting for a solo shot in a 10-9 loss to Cincinnati. He became the fifth player to reach 500 homers before his 35th birthday. Babe Ruth, Hank Aaron, Willie Mays and Jimmie Foxx were the others.

2005 — Dmitri Young became the third player to hit three homers on opening day, and Jeremy Bonderman won as the youngest opening day starter in the major leagues since 1986 to lead Detroit over the Kansas City Royals 11-2.

2011 — Nelson Cruz of Texas became the third player in major league history to homer in the first four games of a season and the Rangers beat Seattle 6-4. Cruz joined Willie Mays (1971) and Mark McGwire (1998) as the only players to go deep in each of their first four games of a season.

Spring has sprung; it's time for spring cleaning

NINA GILFERT

FROM THE PORCH STEPS

One of those silly little jingles we learned as kids goes "Spring is sprung, the grass is riss, Where the heck the posies is." We don't have to count on the grass and the posies anymore to tell us it's spring cleaning time. All the grocery stores and home stores have advertisements for cleaning supplies, touting one over the other.

Some have scrubbing bubbles that eliminate all the work. Some have blue in them that turns white when the work has been done for you. I wonder if any of those miracle products would have washed away the grime layered on walls after a winter of heating the house with soft coal in my family's home in Pennsylvania?

Spring always makes me want to do something about both the inside and the outside of my house. I suppose this is something I inherited from my mother. Do you remember when every spring and fall were housecleaning time?

My mother was fortunate to have three girls she could bully into beating rugs, scrubbing walls and stretching curtains. I can still smell the dust from beating the rugs and feel the nail pricks in my finger tips from stretching those darn lace curtains.

Our house was a little bungalow-style house with a half-story as a second floor. The second floor was divided into two large bedrooms with walk-in closets and cubby holes. This was our domain, my sisters and I.

Every year Mom tried to do something to dress up our rooms for us. After we cleaned the floors, walls and windows, she would put up fresh curtains and put down little throw rugs. She would also make us pick all the chewing gum off the headboard where we had stuck it when we went to bed. Yes, that old song about chewing gum on the bedpost is authentic.

One year Mom decided to paper our rooms. She had no instructions, nor had she ever papered anything before. Jean and I helped. It was an overall flower pattern and none of the flowers matched, but we loved it anyway.

Spring is once more upon us. You can tell because the azaleas are almost finished blooming and there are leaves all over the ground because in Florida the trees lose their leaves in the spring just before they get new ones. Also, we had to turn our clocks ahead.

When you are a retired senior citizen, things don't wear out like they used to. There are no children around to cause wear and tear on the carpet and furniture, so there is no excuse to buy anything new. You have to be very inventive to think of ways to change your décor. So that's what I have been doing. Hurray for spray paint. I no longer have the energy to paint a wall or refinish furniture the normal way, so I have become a spray paint artist.

So far this year, I have only painted a clock. I have been looking at this old brown clock on the wall over my television set for 10 years. It is ugly and adds nothing to the space it occupies. I tried to imagine what it would look like if I painted it green — a nice shiny apple green. I went to Home Depot and bought a can of apple-green enamel spray paint, took the clock down from the wall, covered its face with masking tape and took it out to my backyard. It is now a shiny green clock instead of an ugly brown one. I have to admit it takes some getting used to.

Last spring I painted a nude statue of a lady with no arms or head with a metallic black paint and she looks pretty good. I also painted a couple of ceramic fighting cocks pewter. They were very lively fellows before but I didn't really like the paint job I had done on them. They look great now.

Did you know you can paint over ceramics, plaster, metal, wood, cement and most anything else with spray paint? It comes in so many great colors.

One year I bought an old white chest of drawers for $10 and spray painted it dark red with gold drawer pulls and decorated it with gold palm trees. It makes a great hold-all for the dining room. It certainly brightens up its little corner.

Sometimes I spray paint stuff outside the house — patio chairs, flower pot stands, bird baths, benches. By the way, you can have flowers in hanging pots if you can no longer plant them in the ground. You can even paint the pots and the hangers if you're looking for something else to paint.

Ah yes, spring has sprung!

CALL TO DUTY

Carroll graduates from Nuclear Power School

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Cory J. Carroll has graduated from the U.S. Navy's Enlisted Nuclear Power School at Naval Nuclear Power Training Command in Goose Creek, S.C.

Nuclear Power School is a rigorous six-month course that trains officer and enlisted students in the science and engineering fundamental to the design, operation and maintenance of naval nuclear propulsion plants.

Graduates next undergo additional instruction at a prototype training unit before serving as an electronics technician, machinist's mate, or electrician's mate aboard a nuclear-powered submarine or surface warfare ship.

Carroll has served in the military for one year and is the son of Terri and Steuart Carroll of Bushnell. He is a 2009 graduate of South Sumter High School, in Bushnell.

Aughtman graduates as Warrant Officer

Army Warrant Officer 1, Nathan W. Aughtman has graduated from the Warrant Officer Candidate School at Fort Rucker, Ala.

The course is designed to certify warrant officers as technically and tactically competent to serve as warrant officers in designated career specialties.

The officer must successfully complete the course prior to being appointed to the rank of Warrant Officer 1. Primary focus of the school is military occupational specialty specific, augmented with common-core subjects as designated by a Task Site Selection Board and monitored by the Warrant Officer Career Center.

The course also prepares newly appointed officers for their first duty assignments and all subsequent assignments as warrant officers and chief warrant officers in the active Army, National Guard or Reserve.

Aughtman is the son of Denise Vigliano of Leesburg, and is a 1998 graduate of Edgewater High School, in Orlando.

Robison completes U.S. Navy basic training

Navy Seaman Apprentice Ashley L. Robison, daughter of David W. Robison of Lady Lake and Melanie L. Mellinger of Oxford, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command in Great Lakes, Ill., and was promoted to her current rank upon graduation.

Robison received the early promotion for outstanding performance during all phases of the training cycle, which included classroom study, practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, firefighting, water safety and survival, shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis was also placed on physical fitness.

The capstone event of boot camp is the Battle Stations exercise giving recruits the skills and confidence they need to succeed in the fleet.

Battle Stations is designed to galvanize the basic warrior attributes of sacrifice, dedication, teamwork and endurance in each recruit through the practical application of basic Navy skills and the core values of Honor, Courage and Commitment.

Robison is a 2013 graduate of The Villages Charter School in Oxford.

Chickens — a continual topic in Lake publications

Chickens have been in the local news lately. But this isn't the first time chickens have been featured in Lake County publications. An article in the July 1, 1928 edition of The Sandpiper featured chickens.

Recently, both the Board of Lake County Commissioners and the Leesburg City Commission approved ordinances allowing for the raising of chickens in urban areas. Previously, chickens were allowed in "low-density rural residential" districts.

But this is nothing compared to the headlines chickens made several decades ago.

"Gallons of ink and tons of paper have been used in the past few years explaining the advantages of Lake County as a poultry producing center," began F.S. Varney in his July 1, 1928 article in The Sandpiper simply entitled "Chickens."

"The majority of these articles have covered the subject very thoroughly, so thoroughly in fact, that it is practically useless to give any new phase on this important agricultural pursuit. Therefore, this article will, in all probability, be only a rehash of what has been said before, the only really new idea being the title."

Let's learn a little about the writer, because that's all a quick search yielded.

Floyd S. Varney was a young man when he died in 1928, the same year his story was published in The Sandpiper. It was the only story Varney wrote for the magazine.

Some of the chickens raised at McLean's Poultry Farm in Lady Lake.

"Gallons of ink and tons of paper have been used in the past few years explaining the advantages of Lake County as a poultry producing center. The majority of these articles have covered the subject very thoroughly, so thoroughly in fact, that it is practically useless to give any new phase on this important agricultural pursuit. Therefore, this article will, in all probability, be only a rehash of what has been said before, the only really new idea being the title."

F.S. Varney
Contributor to The Sandpiper

He was born in 1893, likely in the New England area. He was listed in the census of 1900 with his residence being Rutland, Vermont. In the 1920 census, he was living in Erie, N.Y.

Varney was given recognition for his poultry in the "History of Lake County," published in 1929 by William Kennedy.

"The late Floyd S. Varney won considerable publicity for Mount Dora and Lake County by showing his black Minorcas and Black Jersey Giants," wrote Ben Hargis in the portion about the poultry industry in Lake County.

Varney was also mentioned because he served as secretary of the Lake County Poultry Association.

Hargis knew a thing or two about chickens, and he wasn't afraid to write about it. He moved to Umatilla around 1920 from Cleveland, Tenn., and began raising high grade White Leghorns.

Up until that time, there was little pure-bred poultry stock in Lake County with the McLean brothers of Conant having the only poultry farm. It had about 2,000 head of White Leghorns producing fancy market eggs.

RICK REED
REFLECTIONS

Around the time Varney moved to Lake County, a Groveland man was making quite a sensation with a few Anconas.

From that time the poultry industry in Lake County took off, and there were many pure-bred poultry farms established.

"Since 1919 Lake County has been represented in practically every leading poultry show in the state, especially with the White Leghorns of Mr. Hargis," wrote Hargis. "For several years the Sandy Hook Poultry Farm at Umatilla also showed White Leghorns, but later dropped out."

Hargis put his poultry on display at the Florida State Fair for the first time in 1923. He won the largest and best display of all poultry there that year. Showing it was no fluke, he continued winning prizes at the state fair until his flock received the name of Florida's Best White Leghorns.

Apparently some people didn't think he deserved the notoriety.

"Many felt that the hens were bred for quality at the sacrifice of egg laying, so Mr. Hargis entered his flock in the First Georgia Egg-Laying Contest and his first pen averaged more than two hundred eggs each, with the lowest in the pen laying 171 eggs and the highest 246 — thereby proving that he had developed a real combination," wrote Hargis.

The Lake County Poultry Association was formed in 1923 with Hargis as president. He served in this office for the next five years and then stepped down with E.L. Kellogg of Mount Dora being elected president.

Apparently Hargis wasn't afraid to blow his own horn.

About stepping down as president he wrote, "He has served in this office continuously from that date (1923) for six terms and Mr. E.L. Kellogg, of Mount Dora, was elected president at the last election only after Mr. Hargis declined to be a candidate again."

About the association's effect on the poultry industry in Lake County he wrote, "This association, through the efforts of its president and secretaries — F.S. Varney, Mrs. May C. Handy and Dr. Charles Demko — have largely been responsible for the success of the poultry industry in Lake County.

The association has held an annual poultry show in Eustis for the past six years, and has done much to stimulate interest. The show has been financed for the past two years by the county chamber of commerce. New poultry farms are being established all the time and the outlook for the future of the poultry industry in Lake County is very bright."

Romantic night out comes at a cost for relationship

Dear Abby

JEANNE PHILLIPS

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I have been together for two years. We recently spent a romantic night at a hotel, complete with dinner, drinks — the whole shebang — that he organized.

I know he was a little stressed about money because he mentioned it. He asked if I could shell out some money, which I did, and when the bill came, he asked me if I could shell out some more.

I was a little upset because I wasn't planning on spending that much. He says he is going to pay me back some of it, and now I just feel bad. I told him I didn't enjoy being put in that situation and things got awkward quickly.

Now I am the one apologizing, and I feel like I ruined our night. Am I being a brat? — NEW YORK READER

DEAR N.Y. READER: I don't think so. If your boyfriend couldn't afford to pay for the romantic evening, he should have discussed it with you beforehand so you wouldn't be put on the spot.

DEAR ABBY: I work at an elementary school, and I help out during lunch, keeping order and making sure the kids are not too loud. Two of their moms work here. The kids are bullies and have no respect for adults whatsoever.

When I try to discipline them or give them a time out, they go to their moms and accuse me of targeting them because they are black. Then the moms come to me and complain and ask me why I'm "targeting" them.

This is causing me a lot of stress. I can't allow them to bully other kids, but at the same time I don't want trouble with the parents. How can I approach this situation without it getting more complicated? — SCHOOLYARD MOM IN FLORIDA

DEAR SCHOOLYARD MOM: Because these women are preventing you from effectively supervising the children, which is your job, you should address this problem with the principal of the school.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law watches my four kids so I can work outside the home. On the off chance that she can't, she tells me my brother-in-law will watch them. While I appreciate her gesture of trying to "cover her shift," my brother-in-law is irresponsible, suffers from severe depression and smokes pot.

I don't want to be rude, but I don't like her leaving my kids with him. Is there an OK way to tell her that, or do I need to stop being "overprotective" and suck it up? — MOMMY OF FOUR

DEAR MOMMY: It would not be rude to tell your mother-in-law that while you appreciate her watching your children, if for any reason she cannot do it, you would prefer to make your own arrangements for who will supervise them. If she asks you why, then be frank with her about your concerns — all of which are valid. That is not being overprotective; it is being conscientious.

HOROSCOPES

Bigar's Stars

JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, April 4, 2014:

This year you are full of surprises. You will receive your fair share of them, too. Sometimes you feel as though a friend, relative or boss expects you to respond to him or her at the drop of a hat. You could feel manipulated as a result. Try working through this issue together. If you are single, you could attract someone who is a lot like you. Being too similar could become irritating, though, and as a result, you might decide to move on. If you are attached, you often find your sweetie putting on war paint. Learn to air out problems when they begin, and both of you will be happier. GEMINI makes you laugh.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Return calls and make important decisions that surround your plans. Someone you look up to could cause a problem. Realize what is happening: The other party feels threatened and does not want to be dominated. Listen carefully to a suggestion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A lot has been happening, and you keep gaining new insights. Use some of your intuitive ability with your interactions. Listen to feedback that is heading in your direction, and focus on the risks of taking action. You will make an excellent decision if you do.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're likely to attract someone who has a different point of view and a creative, unique approach. Go along with this person's suggestion. You have thought so much about a project that you easily could be blindsided and not see the obvious.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Know when to kick back and not push so hard. A partner and/or an associate could become unusually controlling. You know when to say "enough." Recognize your limits, and let others clearly know your boundaries.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have an opportunity to make a popular decision. Do not hesitate, and move forward. Keep others posted — that is, if you want to continue this kind of support and interaction. You are more direct and fiery than you realize.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Pressure seems to build quickly, and it could put you in an uncomfortable situation. Be aware of what others think, especially someone you need to answer to. Avoid overspending when trying to straighten out a problem.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Confirm plans. You might need to make a long-distance call or two. Someone might not be as responsive as you would like. Is this a pattern? You might want to resolve the issue or perhaps make an adjustment to your plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) A partner might be demanding, as he or she seems to need a lot from you. It's up to you to decide whether this is manipulation. Express your irritation without upsetting the applecart. Avoid being standoffish or withdrawn.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Others do whatever they need to do to get your attention. You could be shocked by what goes on. Be careful with your funds, as someone you deal with might not be on the up and up. A friend could be too assertive for your taste.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pace yourself, and establish some much-needed boundaries. What you do with a situation could impress others. Realize that you don't need to start a disagreement — you just need to support yourself in what you want. Be sensitive to the alternatives.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Be playful and forthright in what you do. Somehow, you will need to open up to the lighter side of life. You hear so many problems from so many people that you could start to feel down. Listen to what someone is sharing with you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You'll want to accomplish more; however, a loved one could be very distracting. Listen to news with an open mind and a more caring attitude. Do not fall prey to someone's manipulation. Honor a change.

BRIDGE

Bidding Quiz

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♥ | Dble | Pass | ? |

What would you bid with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠ AJ764 ♥ 853 ♦ K752 ♣ 9
2. ♠ 943 ♥ KJ2 ♦ J85 ♣ KJ96
3. ♠ Q82 ♥ J875 ♦ 732 ♣ 653
4. ♠ AJ7 ♥ QJ86 ♦ 842 ♣ K94
5. ♠ Q654 ♥ 7 ♦ KQ85 ♣ AQ32

1. Two spades. The most common way of identifying promising values when your partner doubles for takeout is by making a jump-response in your longest suit. It would be wrong to respond one spade with this hand and also make the same bid with, say:

♠ J642 ♥ 8532 ♦ Q7 ♣ 872

Your partner is not a mind reader and would have no way of knowing which hand you held if you responded one spade with both.

The given hand offers a strong potential for game with spades as trumps, and you should announce that prospect via an invitational jump-response. Partner can then pass or continue bidding, depending on the strength of his hand.

2. One notrump. Here you have more high-card points but less chance for game. The choices are two clubs, which could be based on a worthless hand; three clubs, which would show about nine to 11 points; and one notrump, promising seven to 10 points, a balanced hand and at least one heart stopper. This last choice describes your hand perfectly and is therefore the most sensible action.

3. One spade. This is an admittedly unpleasant situation, but you're not responsible for having been dealt a poor hand with no suit to bid. It would be dead wrong to pass, and equally wrong to bid one notrump with such meager values. You're not expected to enjoy bidding a three-card suit, but it's the best bid available.

4. Two notrump. This is an invitational bid, indicating 11 or 12 points, hearts well stopped and notrump distribution. If the deuce of diamonds were the queen, you'd bid three notrump.

5. Two hearts. This is obviously a game-going hand opposite a partner who has indicated opening-bid strength by his double. The trouble is that you don't know which of your three suits will provide the best play for game.

Rather than try to guess which game to bid, you should respond with a cuebid, asking partner to name his longest suit. You plan to raise directly to game in the suit of his choice.

Tomorrow: The battle for trump control.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, April 4, the 94th day of 2014. There are 271 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 4, 1968, civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., 39, was shot and killed while standing on a balcony of the Lorraine Motel in Memphis, Tenn. (James Earl Ray later pleaded guilty to assassinating King, then spent the rest of his life claiming he'd been the victim of a setup.)

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
Foreign-Trade Zones Board
(B-27-2014)

Proposed Foreign-Trade Zone – Lake County, Florida
Under Alternative Site Framework

An application has been submitted to the Foreign-Trade Zones (FTZ) Board by the City of Leesburg to establish a foreign-trade zone within Lake County, Florida, adjacent to the Leesburg Customs and Border Protection (CBP) user fee airport, under the alternative site framework (ASF) adopted by the FTZ Board (15 CFR Sec. 400.2(c)). The ASF is an option for grantees for the establishment or reorganization of zones and can permit significantly greater flexibility in the designation of new "subzones" or "usage-driven" FTZ sites for operators/users located within a grantee's "service area" in the context of the FTZ Board's standard 2,000-acre activation limit for a zone project. The application was submitted pursuant to the provisions of the Foreign-Trade Zones Act, as amended (19 U.S.C. 81a-81u), and the regulations of the Board (15 CFR part 400). It was formally docketed on March 21, 2014. The applicant is authorized to make the proposal under Florida Statutes, Title XIX, Chapter 288, Part III.

The applicant's proposed service area under the ASF would be Lake County, Florida. If approved, the applicant would be able to serve sites throughout the service area based on companies' needs for FTZ designation. The proposed service area is within and adjacent to the Leesburg CBP user fee airport.

The proposed zone would include two "magnet" sites: Proposed Site 1 (818 acres) – Leesburg International Airport, 8807 Airport Boulevard, Leesburg; and, Proposed Site 2 (662 acres) – Leesburg Industrial and Technology Park, located north of County Road 48, east of the Florida Turnpike, and north and south of County Road 470, Leesburg. The ASF allows for the possible exemption of one magnet site from the "sunset" time limits that generally apply to sites under the ASF, and the applicant proposes that Site 1 be so exempted.

The application indicates a need for zone services in the Lake County, Florida, area. Several firms have indicated an interest in using zone procedures for warehousing/distribution activities for a variety of products. Specific production approvals are not being sought at this time. Such requests would be made to the FTZ Board on a case-by-case basis.

In accordance with the FTZ Board's regulations, Camille Evans of the FTZ Staff is designated examiner to evaluate and analyze the facts and information presented in the application and case record and to report findings and recommendations to the FTZ Board.
Public comment is invited from interested parties. Submissions shall be addressed to the FTZ Board's Executive Secretary at the address below. The closing period for their receipt is May 27, 2014. Rebuttal comments in response to material submitted during the foregoing period may be submitted during the subsequent 15-day period to June 10, 2014.

A copy of the application will be available for public inspection at the Office of the Executive Secretary, Foreign-Trade Zones Board, Room 21013, U.S. Department of Commerce, 1401 Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20230-0002, and in the "Reading Room" section of the FTZ Board's website, which is accessible via www.trade.gov/ftz. For further information, contact Camille Evans at Camille.Evans@trade.gov or at (202) 482-2350.

Dated: March 21, 2014.
Andrew McGilvray,
Executive Secretary.

Simple tips for reducing jobsite theft

The old adage, "They'll steal anything that is not nailed down" is truer today than ever before, especially on construction jobsites.

Estimates are in the billions of dollars lost each year in materials and equipment stolen from jobsites across America. Don't be fooled — it is not the neighborhood kids stealing materials to build a clubhouse. Rather, it is people who are desperate for money that see an unprotected jobsite as their personal ATM.

Most people cannot relate to the cost of construction material like they do smartphones and electronics. However, consider that one stack of CDX pine plywood on a jobsite is worth about $1,200 and you will soon understand why jobsite theft has become epidemic.

Also consider how much the Great Recession and building bust has affected the construction industry. Many small builders and subcontractors are essentially walking bankruptcies. Many of them cannot pay their bills without a draw from a job, and an unprotected jobsite is their source of funding for a new job.

Then there is the common neighborhood thief. This is the guy who lives two houses down from the new home or remodel project, who believes he can take any of the material on the jobsite, because no one will ever miss $200 in 2x4s. Many neighborhood sheds have been built from the materials taken from surrounding jobsites.

The other thief is the scrapper. The scrapper thief will go to your jobsite to steal items that can be easily sold at the scrap yard, such as electrical wire, metal conduit and air conditioning components. This type of theft is the most devastating because the scrapper thief will destroy a $5,000 central air system to sell $150 in scrap metal.

If you are building a new home or doing an extensive remodel or addition, you must protect your jobsite fervently. Here are some security tips that can save thousands of dollars in jobsite theft:

• Post "no trespassing" signs on your jobsite and be prepared to enforce it.

• Have only authorized workers on your jobsite. Showing your project off to neighbors and passersby invites thieves.

• Even if you have to pay a little extra in delivery charges, don't have unprotected material lying around your jobsite — especially very expensive doors and windows. Only have on your site what will be installed that day.

• Secure your jobsite as quickly as you can by installing doors and windows so the project can be locked up. Choose wisely who you give a key to.

• Know what is on your jobsite and count it. Most project owners never know they have been ripped off because they have no idea what is on their site.

• If you have power, put up security lights.

• Conduct a background check on the people you hire by calling references. Many times homeowners unknowingly invite thieves to their jobsite.

• Don't leave tools on the job, not even a broom. Doing so is like hanging raw meat in front of a hungry dog.

• Post contact information on your jobsite in case of problems, and ask local law enforcement to patrol your site.

Jobsite thefts and ripoffs occur frequently because of one root cause: a project owner that is too trusting. Don't become a victim of jobsite theft — protect your jobsite.

Online room-sharing sites create boarders without borders

SUSAN FEYDER
Star Tribune

Teri Ross has been getting compliments on the guest room in her Minnetonka, Minn., townhouse for years — only now, they're coming from people she's never met before.

Ross is part of a growing network of homeowners who have discovered their inner innkeeper, using websites to market rooms in their homes to travelers much like a bed & breakfast.

The online vehicles include VRBO, FlipKey and the behemoth of the bunch, Airbnb. The business was founded six years ago by two young roommates who made their rent by charging people to sleep on air mattresses in their San Francisco loft and now boasts 600,000 listings in private homes in 34,000 cities worldwide.

Taking in boarders is nothing new, but offering space in your home to travelers, not just in tourist hot spots like New York or San Francisco, is a more recent phenomenon. It's another twist on the "sharing economy," in which people rent out something they're not using to somebody looking for a unique experience or a bargain. Other examples are DogVacay, which connects pet owners with pet sitters, and Lyft, a car-sharing business in which regular people use their own vehicles to chauffeur passengers.

Airbnb also has come under scrutiny in some cities, such as New York, where some hosts have illegally sublet apartments they don't own but merely rent. Hotel and B & B operators in Grand Rapids, Mich., unsuccessfully sought a ban of Airbnb and other services like it last year.

Ross said her neighbors in Minnetonka haven't objected, and in fact, have told her they're interested in doing it, too.

Ross signed up as an Airbnb host the day after seeing a story about the service on "Nightline" and booked her first guest five days later. "I was shocked that it happened so soon," she said.

JOEL KOYAMA / MCT

A growing number of homeowners are renting out rooms in their homes, much like B & Bs, to visitors from all over the world using online vehicles.

The recession saw more people renting out parts of their homes to make ends meet, but Ross and other Airbnb hosts say they're not driven by economic necessity. Ross says she uses the money to take ski trips around the country. Maria Verven, who runs a public relations firm out of her Golden Valley, Minn., home, says she has used her Airbnb earnings to help finance the startup of a second business.

Herb Tousley, director of the Shenehon Center for Real Estate at the University of St. Thomas, believes the economy has recovered sufficiently so that people now are renting out

High-tech sales centers turn imagination into reality

INA PAIVA CORDLE
The Miami Herald

Step into a sales center at a new real estate project, and you enter a brightly lit, make-believe world of staggering views and designer interiors — often even before a shovel digs into the ground.

And forget a printed brochure. Today's marketing tools are all ultra-high-tech. Expect:

■ Tablet touch screens that allow buyers to stand on a vacant home site and see a floor plan unfold, complete with an outfitted kitchen and furniture layout.

■ A three-dimensional, animated film that takes the viewer on a walk through the marble-clad lobby and into the units of a condo tower yet to be built.

■ A 10-foot-tall light wall that mimics the exact waterfront view from a future apartment window.

Once relying on architectural drawings and floor plans, paint chips and cabinet designs, today's sales centers are now worthy of an Epcot exhibit — some even with Disney-esque holograms. From the wattage of the lights to the scents in the air, sales centers for new homes have evolved, orchestrating a feeling of not just what your new home will be, but who you will be once you buy it.

Nowhere is that more evident than in the galleries that hawk multimillion-dollar condominiums to the international jet set.

"Let's face it, we're selling the dream," said Edgardo Defortuna, president and chief executive of Fortune International, seated in the "experience room" in Jade Signature's glossy new sales center. A full-screen movie — available in five languages — shows three-dimensional animation, putting the viewer inside the futurist 192-unit tower. Designed by Herzog & de Meuron, the tower features pre-construction condos with prices ranging from $1.7 million to $26 million.

ABOVE: Staff Butler Raul Becerra greets visitors to the Ritz-Carlton Residences' sales center in Miami Beach, on March 21. BELOW: Stepping into the sales center of a real estate development is entering a brightly lit, make-believe world of staggering views and designer interiors — often even before a shovel digs into the ground.

"Nothing is really built yet, so we have to be able to show the customer who isn't used to imagining it or envisioning it," Defortuna said of the technology at the Sunny Isles Beach, Fla., sales center. Nearby, one full wall shows the ocean surf behind a full-scale outdoor terrace as the sound of crashing waves plays in the background.

Some condo sales centers, like Marina Palms Yacht Club & Residences in North Miami Beach, use Apple TV. The touch of a button on an iPad allows a buyer to zoom in on a condo unit and see the price, size, floor plan, location and view. It can all be propelled onto sales center screens.

"It takes selling pre-construction to the next level," Michael Internoscia, director of sales at Marina Palms, said as he demonstrated the system inside a conference room at the Marina Palms sales center. The development's two waterfront towers will have a total of 468 units, priced from $750,000 to $4.5 million.

Marina Palms, as well as Biscayne Beach in Miami, are among the developments using photos taken from helicopters to show buyers prospective views. Biscayne Beach has a 50-foot-long, 10-foot-tall light wall that mimics the view of apartments that will look out over Biscayne Bay and Miami Beach. The wall is made of LED lights projected onto printed fabric.

Video walls also tell the story at Echo Brickell, a Miami development by Property Markets Group. The 7-foot-wide array of 55-inch LCD panels at its sales center shows an ultra-high-definition video of the view from a condo at various times of day.

Similarly, Oceana Bal Harbour, a 28-story, 240-unit condo designed by Arquitectonica, offers a movie and a separate model room with four walls of screens. Unit details can be projected onto a wall in other, more private office settings.

"It allows you to feel what you are buying," said Ernesto Cohan, director of sales at Oceana Bal Harbour in Bal Harbour, Fla., where condos are priced from $2 million to $25 million. "These people are citizens of the world," Cohan said. "They want to know every single detail, and they will study a floor plan."

Renato Coelho da Fonseca Neto, from Sao Paulo, took in the high-tech offerings recently as he toured the sales center for Oceana, one of several South Florida projects he is considering for a vacation home. "I think it's cool," he said. "Everything is more advanced."

One Thousand Museum, designed by Zaha Hadid, takes the virtual experience a step further, with a 3-D hologram rendering of the future tower near downtown Miami. The sales gallery also features a Hadid-designed, 120-foot ceiling art installation. Futuristic furniture, wallpaper and even doorknobs are also designed by Hadid.

The Ritz-Carlton Residences Miami Beach has two holograms showing an animated creation of the project, embedded in a 36.6-foot-wide, 15.5-foot-tall exhibit wall. The holograms are alongside videos, photos and a diorama of the project, which will have 126 units priced from $2 million to $25 million.

"Our goal here is to create an experiential environment that is very cutting-edge," said Laurie Ingber, co-owner of Premier Sales Group, the project's exclusive sales agent.

rooms mostly for supplemental income. "The people who were doing it as a necessity either muddled through or lost their homes," he said.

Tousley also doesn't believe services like Airbnb could put much of a dent in the hotel and motel business. A recent Boston University study found that for every 1 percent increase in Airbnb's market, traditional hotel revenue slips 0.05 percent.

"There's not a huge market for this. It takes a certain kind of person who would want to do that, stay in someone else's home. Most people want something that's more conventional, with fewer uncertainties. But there's definitely a niche for it," Tousley said.

Like other Airbnb hosts, Steve Snider of Lakeville, Minn., said he enjoys meeting new people. Snider also has stayed in Airbnb-listed homes when traveling, signing up as a host to get a discount on a room he had booked in New York.

"I figured nobody's ever going to come to Lakeville," Snider said. He didn't even bother telling his wife he had signed up and was surprised a couple of months later when he started getting inquiries.

"I've learned that there are quite a few people interested in coming to Lakeville," Snider said. He's had guests from France, India and Germany and several people visiting Carleton and St. Olaf colleges.

Snider believes he has been an advocate for Lakeville's business community by directing guests to local shops and restaurants. After discovering that a couple of guests enjoyed playing musical instruments in her home, Verven recommended places where they could hear live music. "You play host but also concierge, helping people with the ins and outs of how to enjoy the Twin Cities area," she said.

Travelers find properties on Airbnb's website by plugging in a destination city. Listings don't give street addresses but have location descriptions and photos. Once a reservation is made, Airbnb takes its cut by charging a fee to both the host and guest.

Airbnb's security measures include having guests and hosts verify identities by connecting to their social networks, scanning official IDs such as drivers' licenses or confirming other personal details. The website allows guests and hosts to review each other.

Airbnb also lets hosts decline a reservation request. Ross said she does that if it conflicts with her work or travel schedule or she doesn't feel comfortable with a request, like one from a Canadian man who said he wanted her to help him find a job. "That's not the kind of renter I want in here," she said.

Homebuilder Lennar has attracted Chinese and Chinese-American buyers in Chino, Calif., such as Rebecca Chow and her family, from left, Ryan, Tiffan and Tommy, with a home-within-a-home concept with a second living room and "wok" kitchen designed to accommodate Chinese cooking.

The overflow from China's economic high tide is transforming the housing markets of suburban Los Angeles.

Affluent Chinese home buyers are driving prices past boom-era peaks, spawning a subset of property brokers and mortgage lenders that cater to their distinct needs — and even dictate design details in new subdivisions.

The strongest magnet is California's San Gabriel Valley, where the city of Monterey Park, became known as the "first suburban Chinatown" in the 1970s. Selling real estate there now requires familiarity with feng shui, the ancient Chinese principles of harmonious design.

"People are getting money out of mainland China and sticking it here," said Mel Wong, president of the West San Gabriel Valley Association of Realtors.

The trend has spilled over into other areas, including San Bernardino and Orange counties and even Las Vegas, with more acculturated Chinese-Americans seeking homes big enough to host lengthy visits from overseas relatives.

Chinese buyers bought 12 percent of all U.S. homes purchased by foreign citizens last year, up from 5 percent in 2007, according to the National Association of Realtors. More than half their home purchases were in California. And more than two-thirds of them paid cash, the trade group said.

The trend appears unlikely to unwind soon. More than 60 percent of China's wealthy have left or plan to leave the country, at least part time, and their No. 1 destination is the United States, according to the Hurun Report, a Shanghai publishing firm focused on recently minted millionaires and billionaires.

Despite dizzying ups and downs in U.S. home prices, the market can seem more stable than in China, where fears of a property bubble have added to the economic and political worries of the burgeoning middle and upper classes.

Motivations vary by location. Luxury estates in San Marino are bargains by Chinese standards; inexpensive Inland Empire homes are purchased as investments; top-shelf schools draw throngs to Irvine.

Eva Chen and her husband travel between their homes in Shanghai and Arcadia, Calif., where they purchased a property near Santa Anita Park in October. They scooped up the second home as an escape from pollution and a shot at better schools for their two infants.

Compared with housing prices in China, the $1.27 million Arcadia property didn't seem expensive.

"The Arcadia house is cheaper," Chen said.

But it's getting more expensive quickly. Heavy demand pushed the median home sales price past $1.32 million last quarter in Arcadia's 91007 ZIP code — 30.5 percent above its peak in 2007, during the housing bubble, according to researcher DataQuick.

Next door in the 91006 ZIP code, prices are up 23.7 percent. Other areas with prices exceeding their peaks include Walnut, Temple City, San Marino and parts of San Gabriel and East San Gabriel, all hubs for Chinese investment.

The Chinese buying spree sometimes borders on recklessness, said Dominic Ng, chairman of Pasadena, Calif.-based East West Bank, the largest Chinese-American bank. East West specializes in home loans for Chinese buyers with no U.S. credit histories, but often enormous down payments.

Unwary buyers accustomed to urban China's $1-million-plus luxury flats take "housing tours" and snap up homes east of Riverside or in Arizona without considering the cost of property taxes (China has none) or maintenance of homes with pools and yards.

"They look at the dinky little apartment in Shanghai or Beijing — you know, like one-fifth the size — and they say, 'This is affordable,' " said Ng, who fears prices will appreciate less than the buyers expect. "They are buying for speculative purposes."

Others want the prestige of a San Marino or Pasadena mansion, even if paying for it means working in China and rarely visiting. One of Ng's neighbors bought a Pasadena estate, then lived there for just two days out of the two years that followed.

"He was not renting it out," Ng said. "People have so much money, they just say, 'What the heck. It's a nice neighborhood. I might as well just buy one.' "

It's a story echoed by Patti Hahn of Arcadia, gesturing to the house next door, which sold for $2.45 million last year, up from $1.55 million in 2006, the last time it changed hands.

"No one lives there," Hahn said.

The buyers pay for twice-weekly maintenance work, she said. They live overseas but plan to start splitting time between the U.S. and China this year, said Johnny Lam, the buyers' agent.

Home builders have taken note of the surging interest from Chinese buyers, as well as Chinese-Americans who have lived in the U.S. for years but still favor neighborhoods and amenities that reflect their native culture.

At Lambert Ranch — an Irvine, Calif., development of $1-million-and-up homes that quickly sold out last year — Chinese benches and figurines decorated the downstairs of model homes. At one model, would-be buyers climbed stairs decorated with large photos of the Great Wall and a Chinese farmer cradling a basket of rice.

Downstairs, the New Home Co. houses were designed with separate master bedrooms and baths that sales staffers said were intended for relatives from foreign countries. The most expensive homes have detached studio apartments for visitors.

Builder Lennar Corp. took a similar strategy. It had initially created a home design in response to job losses from the recession — a small apartment, built within a house, so extended families could live together. But it has since modified the plans to accommodate the tastes of Asian families, who also often live with elder relatives.

The Lennar home that Tom and Rebecca Chow bought last year in Chino, Calif., area has not only this "home within a home" design, but also a second "wok" kitchen designed to accommodate Chinese cooking. The range has a 50,000 British thermal unit double burner for high-temperature recipes, a high-powered exhaust fan to carry off the smoke, and walls covered in white tile for easy cleanup of spatters.

The home is aligned to avoid feng shui miscues: You can't see the back door or a staircase from the front door, both of which are thought to create imbalance. Lennar sales representative Michael Lua also noted the sink and refrigerator in the main kitchen are not directly across from the oven and range, which would create friction between water and fire elements.
