NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS

RC crowd ready to roar

Racers from as far away as California are in the lineup.

By TONY BRITT

Hitting the track at full throttle, remote control car racers from around the world are in Lake City this week showing off their skills and competing for a title.

Approximately 300 racers are in town as the Gateway RC Club hosts the 2018 ROAR (Remotely Operated Auto Racers) Fuel 1/8 Off-Road Nationals at Southside Raceway. The colorful, small gas-fueled race cars have already been buzzing around the track, whipping around curves, jumping humps, catching the air over trenches, kicking up dust and yielding smoke as they make their way around the track.

With television camera crews at both ends of the track, a truck with an electronic scoreboard listing lap times, speeds and top qualifiers, the scene looked like a miniature NASCAR venue, rather than just people enjoying their favorite hobby.

Brian Lewis, Southside Raceway event coordinator, spent most of the day making sure the track had no issues and the races were taking place as scheduled.

"It's going great so far," Lewis said. "The faster guys are qualifying together and there are really no slow guys here, but some guys are faster than others."

Thursday was the first day of seeding races where racers' best times on three consecutive laps in seven minutes earned them spots heading into championship racing competition.

Earlier in the week, Lewis and volunteer crews were working into the late night hours rebuilding and

Charges dropped in dog attack

9-year-old was mauled by six animals in '17.

By COREY ARWOOD

Wesley Green is pictured in the hospital after being treated for more than 30 puncture wounds left by his neighbor's dogs last September.

Charges were dropped against a man who owned 40 dogs, six of which according to authorities mauled a Columbia County 9-year-old and one later bit a handyman at the residence the dog owner was mandated to relocate to outside the county.

David Frank Bencivenga, 70 at the time of the incident, was less than two weeks away from his late June trial date when the State Attorney's Office published his notice of "nolle prosequi."

The paperwork officially dismissing the charges were released just before 5 p.m. Thursday. Points were provided in the document signed by Assistant State Attorney John Durrett, which provided grounds that the negligence charge had no basis for prosecution.

Bencivenga faced a charge of culpable negligence from the Sept. 9, 2017, attack of Wesley Green, the 9-year-old next door neighbor who was helping his parents ready for a hurricane at the time he was mauled by six of Bencivenga's 40 dogs, initial reports stated.

Bencivenga could not be reached for comment on Thursday.

According to state prosecutors in Florida's Third Judicial Circuit, "the discovery process has revealed this matter cannot satisfy 'culpable negligence' as it is defined in the State of Florida."

Bencivenga has gone through numerous procedures with county animal authorities due to the dogs.

After a definition of culpable negligence was provided, Durrett illustrated each of the points that he said disqualified the charge.

"Prior to the events of the day in question no concern had ever been voiced to Mr. Bencivenga regarding his canines being allowed to roam free or escaping confinement," the document said.

It said there was also no prior complaint regarding the containment of the dogs.

Initial reports of the incident state they escaped from Bencivenga's property by way of what a former prosecutor said was a "shabby" fence.

"Stories were recounted of times spent by the victim 'petting' many of the canines, and canines being provided by the Defendant to the victim's family," the document said.

Lastly the nolle prosequi stated all "emotion must be taken out of the equation" with regard to any prosecutorial effort.

"Clearly, anyone who has seen the young victim or interacted with him or his parents feels nothing but empathy for them and admiration for the restraint the mother was able to demonstrate in not taking it upon herself to inflict violence upon the canines or their handler in response to the injury suffered by the child," it said. "However, the tragic nature of the event and the trauma suffered by the child do not allow me to argue that on this one particular day, no different from any other, after roughly two years without issue that the Defendant acted with reckless disregard for human life."

Shortly after the attack the six dogs were confiscated by animal control, though with Bencivenga retaining legal ownership of the animals they could not be euthanized.

While in the custody of animal control, one of the six involved in the attack of the boy died, prompting their relocation to his custody.

At the time of Green's attack, he lived in a trailer on 265 NW Casey Glen. Reports from late December, 2017, state Bencivenga relocated to 13279 201st Road in Suwannee County with roughly 20 canines.

Michelle Sallie, the mother of the victim, was angry with the prosecutor's decision.

"We as a family are utterly disappointed and disgusted with the justice system in Lake City, FL," she told the Lake City Reporter by email. "They have not only failed getting justice for our son, they have failed the community on a far worse level. Columbia County can and needs to do better than this. As of now the citizens of Columbia County are not protected against incompetent pet owners. Yet, documented incompetent pet owners are apparently protected from upstanding citizens that abide by the law."

A Columbia County Sheriff's officer made multiple trips to the Super 8 Motel off SW State Road 47 Wednesday night due to complaints about Michael John Curtis, 56, according to his CCSO arrest report.

Around 7:30 that night the deputy made first contact with Curtis, "in reference to a white male who was intoxicated and yelling at people," the report said.

The deputy said Curtis was outside his room when he approached him, and informed he was there because of complaints from his neighbors.

"Michael stated that he was not yelling at anyone and that he was only talking to himself," the officer said. "I asked Michael why he was talking to himself, to which he stated because he had nobody else to talk to."

Curtis allegedly told CCSO he had drunk a few beers, but agreed to stay in his room the rest of the night.

Just after 10 p.m., the deputy was called back to the motel.

Room occupants told the officer shortly after he left the first time Curtis emerged from his room and was "outside yelling and cussing at people again."

"They explained Michael would exit his room and cuss at people who were not there," the report said.

The officer then talked to Curtis a second time.

"I asked Michael why he did not stay in his room as he agreed ... Michael only stated that he did not know," the report said. "After asking Michael how much he had to drink tonight, he indicated that he drank an 18 pack of beer."

The officer reported counting 13 empty containers in the room.

However, Curtis had a dog in the room, which led to animal control being called to take away his pet, the report said. He was placed in jail on $1,000 bond for disturbing the peace.

retailer, according to police.

A Lake City Police officer took the two Dixie County women to Columbia County Jail when she determined their stories didn't hold water and each resorted to finger pointing when questioned, according to the arrest report.

Danielle Lee Payne, 34, and Anne Marie Weise, 47, were released on $5,000 bond each Wednesday night with larceny shoplifting charges, jail booking records show.

Police were called by Walmart loss prevention personnel, who said they were notified that "an older female was attempting to push out a pool," said a statement from the store's loss prevention employee.

He told the officer that he had watched as Payne walked with the cart, while Weise pulled her car near the lawn and garden side exit.

"Ms. Payne then walks, pushes the shopping cart to the vehicle full of unpaid items and begins putting the items inside the vehicle," the store loss prevention team told police. "They then pushed the pool past all point of sale."

'Neither Ms. Weise nor Ms. Payne could get their story straight as to who knew that the items were not paid for,' an arrest report said.

By the time LCPD officer arrived the women were being held by store security.

However, they told her Payne was holed up in the women's restroom.

"I then went into the restroom looking for the female and found several females to be inside," the officer reported.

She asked security what the woman looked like, specifically, "...what kind of shoes the female was wearing." Her statement continued: "By the time he was able to give me the description of the female's shoes, she came walking out of the restroom and began walking towards ... the (exit)."

Weise reportedly told the arresting officer she had traveled from Old Town to Lake City for the pool, which was for her son who had recently had surgery.

She said she assumed Payne had paid for the items, and had no knowledge of stolen goods in Payne's purse.

However, Payne allegedly told LCPD "she had no idea what Ms. Weise was talking about."

"Neither Ms. Weise nor Ms. Payne could get their story straight as to who knew that the items were not paid for," it said.

According to the report Payne has three prior convictions for retail theft.

prepping the track for this week's competition.

"The track is nothing like what we wanted — it's really tamed down," he said. "Obviously, we wanted mega-jumps, for the track to be hard and technical, but this is a fun track to race on. It's really flowing and fast. People are going to see a lot of speed out here."

With recent afternoon rains, the track has been covered with a tarp to protect it from the rainfall, which is now producing another type of problem.

"Because we're tarping the track due to the rain, we're not really getting any moisture and it's actually drying out to fast," Lewis added. "We've got to make some revisions on how to handle the dust."

Lewis said that he has gotten a lot of positive feedback so far on the event.

"We had a great driver's social (Wednesday) night with a free dinner for everybody and they love the facility," he said. "Everybody keeps raving about the facility. Everything is going great and I haven't had any complaints so far."

Several of the competitors were impressed with the facility as well as the event. Orlando Lebron, affectionately known as "Gury" by the other racers, has been racing the RC vehicles for 15 years and traveled from Puerto Rico to take part in this week's races.

"It means a lot for me and my sponsor for me to be here so people can see their brand and for me to have some fun," he said.

Lebron said the Lake City RC racing atmosphere is similar to Puerto Rico with its track conditions and rainy weather.

"Right now it's practice and it seems the track is getting some grooves," he said, noting that racers were posting better speeds later in the day. "Let's see if the rains don't make the track bad. We're having some progress. My car performed like I wanted it to. It was perfect."

Adam Drake is from California and he was in the event's covered pavilion making adjustments to his racer, but was excited about taking part in the nationals.

"It's pretty cool to be here," he said, noting he's done pretty well in the practice rounds. "They put on, so far, a pretty amazing event. The facility is unbelievable. I like competing in the nationals just because of the competition. This is our biggest race aside from the world championship."

Kayla Espinel, 16, traveled from Orlando to compete in the race. As a female racer, she's a minority in this week's competition.

"It feels good to be here," she said, noting she's been racing for about two years. "There one other girl here and she's pretty good too."

She was excited about being in such a large race this early in her racing career.

"This is like the biggest race I've ever been to," she said. "I'm hoping I qualify for the world (racing competition). The track is pretty good and Florida is pretty hot, so the sun dries it up pretty quick. The track was really muddy two days ago, and it keeps coming back so we can race."

Practice rounds were held Wednesday, while the seeding rounds were held Thursday. The best three consecutive laps will seed the racers in the qualifying races set to begin on this morning. Main events are Saturday and Sunday.

2 hurt in Main Blvd. crash

By COREY ARWOOD
carwood@lakecityreporter.com

A sport utility vehicle and a compact car collided near a busy intersection in Lake City Thursday afternoon, sending at least two people to the hospital with varying degrees of injury, an officer said at the scene.

The wreck occurred around 2:45 p.m. before the intersection of Southwest St. Margaret St. and Southwest Main Blvd. in front of Avalon Healthcare and Rehabilitation Center.

Lake City Police Department directed traffic through the scene while the vehicles involved were being removed from the roadway.

An officer gave preliminary details of the incident while redirecting vehicle flow from the right hand traffic lane.

He said a blue Honda Civic with Pennsylvania plates and a white Chevrolet SUV with Florida plates were both traveling south on U.S. Highway 441. The four-door compact car was in the right lane and the SUV in the left, when the crash occurred. Further details are not clear.

The only occupant of the SUV was the driver, who was taken the hospital, while a woman in the Honda Civic was seriously injured and required extrication from the vehicle, he said. She was also transported to a hospital.

No names have been released yet, and the officer said the occupants of the car had only been Lake City residents for two days.

Big time RC racing comes to town

Columbia County is taking another step forward in its quest to become the hub of sports tourism for North Florida, by way of the 2018 ROAR (Remotely Operated Auto Racers) Fuel 1/8 Off-Road Nationals at Southside Raceway this weekend.

Racers have come from as far away as California to participate. We've covered RC competition at Southside Raceway since its inception, but this event is a step above.

The prelims will be finished today, followed by the main events over the weekend.

The weather looks like it may hold, at least for a while, and admission to all events is free.

Can't beat that.

Check it out if you've got some free time this weekend.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1215, England's King John put his seal to Magna Carta ("the Great Charter") at Runnymede.

In 1520, Pope Leo X issued a papal bull in which he threatened to excommunicate Martin Luther if he did not recant his religious beliefs, a threat that was carried out the following January.

In 1775, the Second Continental Congress voted unanimously to appoint George Washington head of the Continental Army.

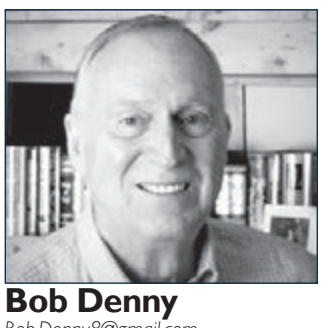
Celebrating Father's Day



Bob Denny
Bob.Denny8@gmail.com

All of us have, or have had, a father. I hope for your sake that he was a good, loving father. Whoever he was, I'm sure you could find some good traits and characteristics, or good things he has done for you.

These days, a holidays can slip through the cracks, with very little fanfare or celebration. I think that as modern life continues to change, we may be far apart, or too busy. People move around more. The phone and social media can help, but some of our schedules and routines are all over the map. What's worse, 50 percent of all marriages now end in divorce! That split can be a real problem.

Do you believe as I do: that a family can be a wonderful thing? There's love, support, and meaningful warm relationships possible. Don't let a good family go to waste! How can we make the most of that family we have, or could have? No matter who you are, or how far you're separated, it's not too late to strengthen those enduring family relationships you could have!

My marriage was one of those that ended in divorce, after 22 years of marriage. But I helped raise two fine sons, all the way through their teens. One of them teaches art, married a Scottish girl, and lives in Scotland. They have a fine son, who just started college there. My other son's career is television production, in Southern California. He has a happy marriage, and 3 young sons. I may not have been the best father, but I like to feel that I must have done something right: They both became wonderful people, and good fathers, who I'm so proud of!

Then, I married again. My "soul mate" and I have been together 32 years now. We moved to the mountains and sold resort properties for 4 years, then moved to Florida to help my aging dad survive the death of his wife after their 50 years together.

> My dad passed away 10 years ago. My sons may live far away, and visits are few and far between. But we stay in regular contact on the phone, and can see each other face-to-face, on Skype.

What can we do now, to stay in touch, and make the most of our family relationships? My dad passed away 10 years ago. My sons may live far away, and visits are few and far between. But we stay in regular contact on the phone, and can see each other face-to-face, on Skype. We correspond and send pictures on email and Facebook.

Yesterday I fantasized about the upcoming Father's Day, and lamented being so far apart. I thought about how families throughout history kept family relations alive, how they celebrated holidays, and Father's Day. What are some family traditions? How do you celebrate holidays like Father's Day?

When Paul and Brian were still kids, we had some good times, camping, surfing, volleyball, bike riding, scouts, soccer … but, some of my favorite times with the boys were when we spent Saturdays or Sundays watching silly, fun cartoons on TV, while we consumed breakfasts of cinnamon rolls and doughnuts, and milk. There were some great laughs! We even had an occasional food fight!

So, I called California, and I called Scotland, to suggest that we rekindle that celebration of Father's Day, as our own ongoing family tradition. They can celebrate Father's Day with their own kids, my grandchildren, and when the grandchildren grow up and have families, they might even celebrate Father's Day with their own kids! Who knows; donuts and sweet rolls might be a new and a lasting tradition, forever!

What family traditions do you celebrate? Or, what new traditions could you start with your family, now? Family ties can be some of your best and longest lasting memories. If it's not too late yet, someday it will be. Make the most of that support and love you can get from a family. Make the most of what you've got to work with. Share your family tradition ideas with me?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

What's next, banning assault autos?

To the Editor:

I have heard the government is going to ban assault weapons. I need help understanding what an assault weapon is.

Is an assault weapon a handgun, semi auto rifle, shotgun, kitchen knife or an automobile? All of these have been used to kill people or assault many people.

I think assault autos should be banned, as more people are killed by autos than the rest. Wait, it must be poor drivers not the car. Let's fix the laws on drivers so auto accidents won't happen.

We can not ban all assault weapons, we must fix the people behind the weapon of choice!

Thank you for your service, officers

To the Editor:

First of all, Officers, I want to thank you for your service! Each time I see one of you, or more, I always stop you, salute you, and thank you personally!

I feel safe going into a restaurant and seeing you, most of the time, sitting with your backs to the wall, so that you can see who or what is coming in the door! Just that one seemingly small act can save many lives in this day and time, since no place is truly safe.

I need to share something with our citizens that my dad taught us. He was O.S.S. in WW II, the fourth man to be accepted into Special Forces when it was organized! He did it all. When I think about his military service, even though he wasn't a Military Policeman, he actually was — just without the title. Many soldiers came back from Vietnam and told my mother that Dad was the reason they got back home safely. Dad's story is a book I need to write, but this one's about you! This is one about thanking YOU!

Daddy told us, "if you hear something outside, never look out of the window — someone might think you saw something that you didn't see! Just call the Police."

So many things,he taught us. I remember them all,but, I still use that one today. I highly recommend it!

In a public place, I will actually "head you off at the pass," so that I can thank you!

I pray that each of you will be safe on your mission of law enforcement, and that you will return safely to your family each and every single time you finish your shift. You risk your life for me every time you put your uniform on and show up for duty. I am in awe of you, all of you!

Christianity and public opinion

CHRISTIAN CONCEPTS

Gary King
garybkingcc@gmail.com

The Scriptures inform the Christian worldview in all matters.

I read a recent article published in the Orlando Sentinel titled, "Gay wedding cake case, and others, make Christianity look bad." The writer, James Coffin, "a member of the Christian clergy," whatever that means, wrote some things, and since this case is still making the rounds I should address a couple of his comments.

Coffin wrote, the "decision concerning Masterpiece Cakeshop v. Colorado Civil Rights Commission stopped short of actually saying that one person's religious conviction should trump another person's civil rights." He is right, the tension between religious freedom of one citizen and the civil rights of another citizen were not definitively decided in this case. We will see more like it.

This is why I wrote in my last column, "Evangelicals cannot have their cake and eat it too." In other words, if Evangelicals look to an earthly court for justice then they need to be prepared to live with whatever justice that court metes out.

Justice Kennedy foresaw this tension in his opinion in Obergefell v. Hodges when he wrote, "The First Amendment ensures that religious organizations and persons are given proper protection as they seek to teach the principles that are so fulfilling and so central to their lives and faiths, and to their own deep aspirations to continue the family structure they have long revered."

So we see here that Kennedy knew he was creating the tension we witness now between advocates of religious freedom and same-sex activists. This is why Kennedy in his decision in Obergefell v. Hodges reiterated the religious protections enshrined in the First Amendment.

The Colorado Civil Rights Commission ignored those protections when a same-sex couple discriminating against the deeply held religious beliefs of the cakeshop owner in a fit of intolerance, filed a complaint.

Coffin goes on to say that future cases of this nature will come and if the "case involves a Christian, Christianity, as a religion, will almost certainly lose considerable credibility in the eyes of the public."

In a culture that is hell-bent on ignoring everything God has to

Reflections ahead of Father's Day

Robert Bass
robertcbass@yahoo.com

As we celebrate Father's Day this weekend I would like to share with you why I love my dad Clifton Bass some of you all know his as "Cliff" from Occidental. A couple of springs ago when the Suwannee River was right just for fishing down from the Spirit of the Suwannee Music Park my dad wanted to show me a new way of cat fishing. I grew up fishing with him and my grandpa on this river so he had peaked my interest and I just wanted to go and spend time with him. This particular morning was a little chilly because of the slight breeze that was chilly. My dad was getting his little junior rod and reel ready, aka a snoopy rod! We were going to fish this day with basically snoopy rods for catfish on the

Fathers have an important role

HEART MATTERS

Angie Land

Teaching a child to do what is right at a young age makes it easier for them to choose right as they grow into adulthood.

Happy Father's Day to all the Dads out there!

Being an "on duty" Dad is no small task, but one that is vitally important. It is Dad's responsibility to provide for and protect their children until they are ready to do that for themselves. So, whether you are waiting up for your son to bring the car home in one piece or taking the keys because he missed curfew, your influence is absolutely necessary!

Psalm 127:3 says that "Sons (and daughters) are a heritage from the Lord, children a reward from him." Who doesn't agree with this verse while holding a sweet newborn in their arms? But as they grow up and begin to struggle against their parent's rules, it can be difficult to see them as a reward! Responding to a child's disobedience is frustrating and often leaves us wanting answers. The good news is that these are answers the Bible clearly gives. Hebrews 12:11 states: "No discipline seems pleasant at the time, but painful. Later on, however, it produces a harvest of righteousness and peace for those who have been trained by it."

The most obvious point in this verse is that discipline will not be fun. Not for the giver or the receiver, but it is necessary for training. This training marks the difference between discipline and punishment. Punishment focuses on what the child did wrong and making them pay for disobedience, while discipline focuses on training and teaching the child to choose what is right next time. The harvest that discipline produces is desirable in the life of every child: righteousness and peace. Righteousness is the ability to make wise choices that while difficult, keep us in right standing with God and others. Teaching a child to do what is right at a young age makes it easier for them to choose right as they grow into adulthood. Even in the midst of difficult circumstances, they will then experience the peace that comes from a clear conscious.

"Discipline your son, for in that there is hope; do not be a willing party to his death" (Proverbs

Charitable Foundation donates $50,000, Tampa programs benefit

From the Associated Press

BJ's Wholesale Club today announced a $50,000 donation from the BJ's Charitable Foundation to Feeding Tampa Bay, a Feeding America@ member food bank. BJ's donation will provide fresh, nutritious food to children across the region through Feeding Tampa's Hunger-Free Summer Mobile Pantry Program.

"BJ's is committed to nourishing our communities and helping families thrive, and we're excited to support Feeding Tampa Bay's Hunger-Free Summer Mobile Pantry Program," said Kirk Saville, executive director, BJ's Charitable Foundation. "Hunger-relief programs are crucial for children and families who lose access to school lunches in the summer. Through our partnership with Feeding America, we're helping to provide access to fresh, healthy food to families when school is out for the summer."

With BJ's $50,000 grant, Feeding Tampa Bay will increase the number of mobile food pantries it operates to 114, enabling the food bank to reach more children and expand its efforts to mitigate childhood hunger.

"Feeding Tampa Bay tries to reach more families and children each year through our mobile pantry program," said Thomas Mantz, executive director, Feeding Tampa Bay. "During the summer, child hunger spikes as students no longer receive their daily meals at school. With BJ's mgenerous support, we will be able to increase the number of healthy meals and snacks we distribute and increase our impact on child hunger this summer."

During the school year, more than 22 million children receive free or reduced-price meals through the National School Lunch and Breakfast Programs. In the summer months, fewer than 4 million children receive free or reduced-priced meals through the USDA Summer Food Service Program. From mobile and school pantries to congregate meal sites in public areas like summer camps, the Feeding America network operates different program models to increase the number of meals provided to children over the summer.

Since 2009, BJ's has provided ongoing support to Feeding America through the BJ's Charitable Foundation and BJ's Feeding Communities@ program, helping local food banks successfully expand their programs to reach wider and more diverse audiences.

In addition to summer programming and capacity-building grants from the BJ's Charitable Foundation, BJ's has secured over 70 million pounds of donated food, including fresh produce, frozen meats and fish, baked goods and dairy items, and helped distribute 58 million meals to neighbors in need through the BJ's Feeding Communities@ program.

say about human sexuality, a Bible-believing Christian has already lost credibility. If Christianity had considerable credibility in this society we would not be arguing issues like this in court.

Coffin infers that Christianity should in some sense be affected by public opinion, but the Christian worldview never has nor ever will be framed by public opinion. The Scriptures inform the Christian worldview in all matters.

It hasn't been that long ago that public opinion said homosexuality was a mental illness, and now says same-sex marriages should be celebrated. That same public opinion seems to ignore the intolerant discrimination by the homosexual couple in this case that makes them look bad.

I remind us all that neither the court of public opinion or any earthly court has any jurisdiction here. The issue has already been ruled on by the real Supreme Court, "Neither fornicators…nor adulterers…nor homosexuals…will inherit the kingdom of God," First Corinthians 6:9-10.

19:18); "Discipline your son and he will give you peace; he will bring delight to your soul." (Proverbs 29:17)

As Fathers, you will grow weary at times trying to discipline your children, especially living in a culture that condemns this practice. It will be easier at the time to give in, but failing to correct a child allows disobedience. You may avoid a temporary battle, but will lose the war in building self-control and responsibility within the child. This allows them to travel a path that leads to the destruction of their relationships, reputations, health and possibly their lives. Avoid the desire to be "friends" with your children until after they are adults. This will come as a result of the respect gained though the hard work of being their Dad when they are young.

Consistent, loving discipline ultimately teaches our children how to discipline themselves and guard their hearts from the consequences of bad choices. This is the result we are looking for, because their hearts really do matter!

river. It must happen to all of us at some point in life where we realize that we will not always have our dad's around or even our grandfathers that I come to understand just how blessed I have been to have the dad and grandpa that I had growing up. The reason why this morning was so different was because a few years before he suffered with some medical problem leaving me to make a lot of the decisions during this time with my mother concerning replanting the pine trees.

During my dad's illness he wasn't able to make those decisions. Everything that he had taught me as his son, everything that his dad, my grandpa had taught him and me would now be put to the test. Would I honor my dad by fulfilling what was entrusted to me with integrity of heart? The Lord impressed these verses of Scripture on my heart: Honor your father and mother, that your days me be prolonged in the land which the Lord your God gives you. (Exodus 20:12) My dad had discussed with me what he wanted to do ahead of time. This guided my decision making a lot. Now would I honor my dad by following his wishes on the way he wanted it done.

My dad's medical condition was vastly improved by the time I was ready to plant a field of pine trees that fall and we got to finish the work together. I was able to show him everything that was done so that he wouldn't have any questions in his heart about what had happened. Being obedient to the Lord's command in Exodus 20:12 I was able to honor my parents and God at the same time.

I am blessed to have a dad who sacrificed his time to take me fishing and hunting as a young man growing up. Now I get to say thank you to my parents because they took my sister and I to Church on Sunday so that we could learn about Jesus and follow him. If you have never told your dad I love you please take the time to do so this weekend.

It will mean more than you know.

Ring to speak at First Baptist

From staff reports

David Ring will speak at First Baptist Church of Lake City on Sunday, June 17, Father's Day, at 6 p.m. in the church sanctuary. Parking is available.

Ring was born with cerebral palsy on October 28, 1953 in Jonesboro, Arkansas. After being orphaned at an early age, David was cast about from "pillar to post." Life seemed worse than hopeless to him until his relationship began with Jesus Christ, Who taught him self-respect and an acceptance of his physical challenges.

As a nationally known speaker since 1973, David shares his story with over 100,000 people each year at churches, conventions, schools and corporate events.

He has been featured on numerous occasions on "The Old Time Gospel Hour" with Rev. Jerry Fallwell, as well as other nationally televised programs.

David always focuses on an individual's need to overcome personal handicaps and adversities of life. As one who has not been stifled by his physical limitations, he clearly states his challenge to everyone, "I have Cerebral Palsy – what's your problem?"

To most, physical challenges of this magnitude would prove to be a tombstone. For David Ring, his coming of age was, and remains, a milestone.

FGC completes 2018 recruiting class ahead of its first season in 23 years.

ejackson@lakecityreporter.com

With 12 players officially signed and committed, Florida Gateway College men's basketball team completed its 2018 recruiting class this week. Kenny Brown Jr (Palmetto), Bryan O'Boyle (North Port), Alphonso Brown (Union County), Diamond Stone (Gainesville), Jermaine Graham (Manatee), Tay Cobb (Melbourne Central), Caleb Johnson (Central), Jaiden Lee (Miami Southridge), Nathaniel Henderson (Miami Norland), Elexpe Johnson (Wakulla), along with homegrown talent in Jamel Jackson (Columbia) and David Morse (Columbia).

"This recruiting class is very unique," FGC coach Kevin Fields said. "100 percent of the players we went after had that 'it' factor, they challenged themselves beyond basketball, whether it be life challenges or accelerating in the class room. This group of players are already winners…I'm excited to be surrounded by student/athletes like this. FGC basketball hits this season with one goal in mind: compete for each other and everything else will take care of itself."

Kelley's commitment closed out the class as he signed on Wednesday. A former star player at perennial power LRHS, the 6-foot-6 swingman averaged a double-double his senior year and brings a winning mentality among other things to FGC's program.

The eclectic basketball group features experienced players like Morse and former Santa Fe big man Alfonso

Florida begins repeat bid with 'very talented' staff

Florida pitcher Brady Singers throws against Jacksonville on June 2 in the Gainesville Regional of the NCAA Tournment.

Gators have allowed 16 runs in six games heading into CWS.

GAINESVILLE — Brady Singer knew the hook was coming. He paused behind the mound with two outs in the seventh inning and waited for Florida coach Kevin O'Sullivan.

After a few words of encouragement from teammates, Singer handed the ball to O'Sullivan and headed to the dugout with a five-run lead. The Southeastern Conference pitcher of the year then received a long, loud, standing ovation as he exited the final home start of his college career. It was a special moment for the right-hander.

It's also become an annual occurrence for the Gators (47-19), who have established themselves as "Pitching U" while advancing to the College World Series for the fourth straight season and seventh time in nine years.

"Obviously, we're very talented," O'Sullivan said.

Florida's staff features two first-round draft picks — Singer and fellow starter Jackson Kowar — and All-American closer Michael Byrne. Throw in budding freshmen Jack Leftwich and Tommy Mace along with wild card Tyler Dyson, and the defending national champions might be as deep as anyone in the eight-team field.

Florida's pitching prowess will be on display when it begins play in Omaha, Nebraska against Texas Tech (44-18) on Sunday.

Johnson shares lead in a U.S. Open

Four players tied at 1-under on touch playing course.

By DOUG FERGUSON

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. — The return to a classic U.S. Open course brought back the kind of scoring that gave this major its reputation.

Dustin Johnson played some of his best golf Thursday and yet the world's No. 1 player barely beat par in the treacherous wind at Shinnecock Hills. Johnson holed a bunker shot for birdie, kept his mistakes to a minimum and joined Ian Poulter, Scott Piercy and Russell Henley at 1-under 69 for a share of the lead.

"You had to focus on every single shot you hit — putts, everything," Johnson said. "It was just difficult all day."

No need to tell that to Tiger Woods, Rory McIlroy,

Sandoval lifts Giants over Marlins in 16 innings

MIAMI (AP) — Pablo Sandoval's tie-breaking two-run single in the 16th inning lifted the San Francisco Giants past the Miami Marlins, 6-3, on Thursday.

Andrew McCutchen hit a two-run homer to continue his torrid month and Mac Williamson also homered for the Giants, who salvaged the final game of a four-game series and beat the Marlins for only the second time in the last 10 meetings.

Giants' starter Dereck Rodriguez pitched 6 2-3 innings, allowing two runs with his father and former Marlins' World Series championship catcher Pudge Rodriguez sitting behind home plate. Ty Blach (4-5) also pitched 6 2-3 innings for the Giants without allowing a run. He gave up seven hits, walked two, and struck out three. Sam Dyson came on for Blach to get the final out with two runners on for his first save of the season.

McCutchen started the 16th with a single, Brandon Crawford walked and Alen Hanson singled to load the bases of Elieser Hernandez (0-4). Sandoval's single to center made it 5-3, and Gorkys Hernandez added a sacrifice fly later in the inning. The runs were the first for the Giants since the second.

Miami had two runners on in the bottom of the 16th for Bryan Holaday, who flew out to end the game.

Russia gets its 1st win at the World Cup

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia ended a 16-year wait for victory in the tournament by routing Saudi Arabia 5-0 Thursday in Group A.

It was the host nation's first World Cup win since 2002, and it raises the hope that Russia can get past the group stage for the first time since the Soviet era.

Yuri Gazinsky initially put Russia ahead with a header from Alexander Golovin's cross when the Saudis failed to clear a corner in the 12th minute. Substitute Denis Cheryshev soon scored the first of his two goals. He chipped the ball over two Saudi defenders in the 43rd minute and shot over goalkeeper Abdullah Al Muaiouf's right side to make it 2-0. He later chipped the ball in for Russia's fourth goal in stoppage time.

After Cheryshev's first goal, Artyom Dzyuba made an instant impact off the bench to make it 3-0 in the 71st with a header from Golovin's cross. Golovin added the fifth from a free kick.

Former NFL TE Winslow Jr. arrested for rape

ENCINITAS, Calif. (AP) — Former NFL tight end Kellen Winslow Jr. has been arrested on charges of rape and other sex crimes on the day he was to appear in court on an unrelated burglary charge.

The San Diego Union-Tribune reports sheriff's deputies arrested Winslow on Thursday at his home in the San Diego suburb of Encinitas.

The 34-year-old Winslow was charged with two counts of rape, two counts of kidnapping with intent to commit rape and single counts of forcible sodomy, oral copulation and indecent exposure. He's free after posting $50,000 bail.

Winslow was due to appear in court Thursday after being charged with burglary following an incident last month at a mobile home park.

McGregor says he regrets Brooklyn melee

NEW YORK (AP) — Mixed martial arts star Conor McGregor expressed regret Thursday for a backstage melee at a Brooklyn arena that saw him caught on camera hurling a hand truck at a bus full of fighters, and he is negotiating a plea deal to resolve criminal charges in the case.

The Irish brawler, 29, and his friend, fellow fighter and co-defendant Cian Cowley, 25, remained free on bail after a court appearance that went quicker than a typical five-minute round in the UFC octagon. They each face up to seven years in prison on a top charge of felony criminal mischief, but a deal would almost certainly reduce or eliminate their time behind bars.

"I regret my actions that led me here today," McGregor said outside court afterward, a departure from his tone in the incident's immediate aftermath. "I understand the seriousness of this matter and I'm hopeful to get it resolved soon."

DEAR ABBY

Son lives in constant fear for unhappy mom's welfare

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law constantly talks to my husband about committing suicide because she's not happy with her life or her husband. My husband worries all the time and has offered to let her come stay with us for a while.

To me, this would be a nightmare. I can't be around her more than two or three days, and she has "hinted" that she would like to move in permanently with us. I have told my husband how I feel, but he's terrified she will follow through. How can I fix this? Should I tell her how I feel? – SCARED IN THE SOUTH

DEAR SCARED: If your mother-in-law moves in with you, it will probably spell the end of your marriage. She needs more help than you or her son is qualified to give. Explain this to your husband. His mother may suffer from chronic depression or be trying to manipulate her son through emotional blackmail. If he really wants to help his mother, he will make sure she is evaluated by a licensed mental health professional.

DEAR ABBY: We love being near the water, but my husband drags a chair behind our rental and sits in the sun in the alley without his shirt. This is an upscale neighborhood, and it's embarrassing to me, especially because he is in his 70s and not in shape to display his stomach.

The neighbors laugh it off, but I have told him how I feel and pleaded with him to walk a few steps to the beach and sit there shirtless. He said I hurt his feelings and embarrassed him by suggesting it. What more can I do to make him see how inappropriate it is? – BEACH BUNNY

DEAR BUNNY: Nothing! If he doesn't feel sunbathing in the back alley is inappropriate and the neighbors aren't offended, then the problem is you, not him. He may not want to sunbathe on the beach because he is self-conscious about his appearance, and your comments didn't help. Apologies are in order.

DEAR ABBY: I am a teetotaler. As frequently happens when a group of friends share a meal together at a restaurant, when the bill arrives, one of the party will suggest, "Why don't we just split it?" The rest of the group usually quickly agrees, but left out of the equation is the fact that the lone teetotaler did not participate in the round – or several rounds – of cocktails before dinner and ends up subsidizing the drinkers. If I squawk about it, I look cheap. If I don't, I feel taken advantage of. Please advise. – TICKED OFF TEETOTALER

DEAR T.O.T.: If you haven't squawked before, you should. The time to speak up would be when the get-together is being planned and you can talk to each of your friends privately. Suggest the booze bill and the food tab be separate, which would keep the math simple for everyone. Or, put enough in the till to cover your cost and the tip, and let them split the rest.

DEAR ABBY: My very best friend growing up was repeatedly raped by her father from around age 13. She told me when we were 17. I reported it to a policeman, but back then, they couldn't do anything unless she reported it. She refused in order to protect her mother.

Her mom is gone now, but dear old Dad is still hanging on. He lives in a retirement home known for supporting children and children's activities. (It's associated with one of the largest charitable groups for kids.) I worry a lot about this freak having an opportunity to molest other children, and it sickens me that when he does finally die, he will receive full honors from this group. I have thought about anonymously contacting the home and warning them. Should I? – UNCERTAIN IN THE EAST

DEAR UNCERTAIN: That information would carry far more weight if it came from his daughter. Encourage her to discuss what her father did with the director of the retirement home as well as a social worker. Her father should never be alone with a minor child again. If your friend refuses to do this, then yes, you should speak up.

DEAR ABBY: I love my grandchildren. My problem is, my daughter expects me to baby-sit at the snap of a finger regardless of what I have to do or what I have planned. Additionally, I never know how long I will be sitting. Sometimes, it can be up to 12 hours.

I receive no compensation because, in her words, "Grandmothers should not be paid." If I refuse, she accuses me of being a "bad" grandmother. If I ask to have one child for an overnight and a weekend day, I am refused. Her reason? "Because I said so!"

Would I be justified in asking for compensation? I live on a fixed income and could use the money. – BAD GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: If there are expenses incurred while you babysit your grandchildren, you should be compensated for them. However, I can see why your request for a salary for doing it would not be well-received. Because you need extra money, consider finding a part-time job. If you do, you will not only ease the strain on your budget, but also make yourself less available to your daughter "at the snap of a finger."

Lakewood Ranch's Jack Kelley (right) backs down a Mephis East player in the City of Palms Tournament on Dec. 15 in Fort Myers. Kelley signed with Florida Gateway College on Wednesday to fill out the team's 2018 recruiting class.

Brown. It also includes several dynamic guards in the 6'4" playmaker Cobb, sharpshooter O'Boyle and clutch performer Brown Jr.

Brown Jr. averaged 18 points and three rebounds for Palmetto this past season.

"He's phenomenal, he's one of the best players on the team, if not the best player," Fields said of Brown Jr. "He can kind of do it all, he's really good for us."

Fields, who will lead the Timberwolves in their first season since 1995, has been on the road since he was hired back in February. The former Sarasota Christian coach has spent the last few months on the recruiting trail, attending a slew of different showcases in hopes of bringing quality players to Lake City. New campus housing at FGC also played a large factor in solidifying the formidable 2018 class.

"The dorms are huge," Fields said. "I don't think half of this would happen without the dorms. These kids need a place stay, based on where I was pulling from. We got kids from Miami, as far as Key West, so definitely the dorms are huge."

FGC has yet to finalize its 2018-2019 schedule, but the squad is slated to play in at least 27 games, including four against D-II conference member Pasco-Hernando.

In their first season in 23 years, the Timberwolves take the floor as an independent, yet still will be eligible for the Region 10 playoff tournament (N.C.) next year.

Fields says summer conditioning and open gym begins next month while official team practices won't start until October. The anticipation is building around town to see the one-time JUCO state champion program back in action. And it won't be much longer until the Timberwolves restore the roar in the Howard Center.

Their first game is at Florida College on Nov. 1 and first home game will be against Trinity College Nov. 3. Men's basketball and women's cross country are the latest two sports that have returned to FGC after reviving men's golf and volleyball in 2017.

Jordan Spieth and a long list of golf's bests who had their hopes crushed in gusts that approached 25 mph that made fairways look more narrow and the shin-high rough difficult to avoid.

In his return to the U.S. Open after a two-year absence, Woods opened a major with a triple bogey for the first time in 15 years. He added back-to-back double bogeys on the back nine and staggered to a 78.

Spieth waited until the second hole to make a triple bogey, blasted out of a bunker and over the 11th green, and then took three shots to get on the putting surface. McIlroy found trouble just about everywhere and shot 80, his highest first-round score in a major.

"It was pretty evident nobody was making any birdies in the morning — lots and lots of bogeys and 'others,'" Woods said. "My game plan was not to make any 'others,' and I made three of them. So didn't do very well there."

Piercy, the last man in the 156-man field as an alternate from qualifying, was so disgusted with his game in his final practice round that he walked off the course. He dropped only two shots, both on par 3s, and was the first to post a 69. Poulter also played in the morning, while Johnson and Henley played in the afternoon as the wind reached its full strength.

Henley was the only player to reach 3 under at any point, and he promptly gave that back with a double bogey on No. 10.

Jason Dufner opened with a 70, and even those at 1-over 71 felt as though they put in a hard day's work, a group that included Justin Rose and Henrik Stenson.

Phil Mickelson finished with a 77.

year. Florida gave up five runs in its five wins at TD Ameritrade Park in 2017, including two shutouts against TCU.

Pitching remains the backbone of O'Sullivan's team this time around. The Gators allowed nine runs in three regional victories and seven runs in a best-of-three super regional against Auburn.

Tigers coach Butch Thompson, whose team scored 40 times in three regional games the weekend before, summed up Florida's pitching performance in one word: "Elite."

"We did our best to try to match it," he added.

Few have.

Since O'Sullivan took over in Gainesville in 2007, the Gators have posted an ERA inside the top 30 nationally eight times. And that's against the ultra-tough Southeastern Conference and with powerhouse programs Florida State and Miami always on the schedule.

The mound commitment stems from O'Sullivan, a college catcher who learned early on how to handle pitchers and take care of arms.

At Florida, he's had 15 pitchers selected in the first four rounds of the MLB draft. Eight of those came in the last three years, including first-rounders A.J. Puk, Dane Dunning, Alex Faedo, Singer and Kowar.

Singer was selected 18th overall by Kansas City. Kowar went 33rd, also to the Royals.

The duo has been in Florida's weekend rotation the last two years and played key roles at the 2017 CWS.

Singer won both starts in Omaha, allowing four earned runs in 14 innings, and Kowar earned his first save in a 6-1 victory against LSU in the deciding game of the best-of-three championship series.

"They both pitched on the biggest stage and they should be able to pull from that experience last year," O'Sullivan said.

Singer is 12-1 with a 2.30 ERA in 15 starts this season. Kowar is 9-5 with a 3.24 ERA, but had his best outing in the super regional.

"The whole weekend gets started with Brady," O'Sullivan said. "I don't want to overstate it, but when you take him out of your rotation it just disrupts all rhythm and timing."

Singer missed three weeks with a strained left hamstring, and the Gators went into a funk. They lost six of seven games heading into the NCAA tournament.

What got them back on track? Pitching, of course.

Now, Florida needs five victories to repeat as champs.

It's been the goal all season, and it's finally within reach.

For this team, it's essentially 60 feet, 6 inches away — the distance between the mound and home plate.

"If we execute our pitches, we feel like we're good enough to get that done," Byrne said.

the exhale that everyone has been waiting for. I'm grateful for the opportunity. I didn't realize at the beginning of all of this how much was involved. Hearing those words that you got your seventh year is an indescribable feeling."

It's been a long, drawn-out process for Westbrook, who hasn't played since 2016 after tearing a knee ligament in August that year. She was finally healthy enough to play this past season, but the NCAA originally didn't grant her a sixth year of eligibility. Florida appealed in January, and the NCAA reconsidered its decision and allowed her to play.

"It was a rollercoaster of emotions," she said. "You cling to the little amount of hope you get. You keep going and fighting and never took no for an answer."

The Florida graduate discussed with the new Gators coaching staff, which came in before the 2018 season, that she was going to transfer if granted another year of eligibility. By the time the appeal came through, it was too late for her to transfer and play immediately.

After the season ended, the Gators put together another appeal to get the 5-foot-8 guard a seventh year and it was finally approved.

Westbrook received the good news Thursday morning from her attorney Jason Setchen, who worked with Florida to get the appeal done.

"It's exciting, you know you never want to come to that realization that you might be done with basketball," the 24-year-old said. "You want to play as much as you can."

Westbrook said that she had a few schools in mind where she wanted to play next year.

"Now that we got this waiver we'll explore all options," Westbrook said. "Hopefully, this will open the door for us to communicate with coaches and schools on a more professional level."

Westbrook wasn't sure how rare her case was to get a seventh year to play until she started doing research.

"The more research I did, the more I came up with nothing," she said. "That's when I realized this is a situation that doesn't happen ever. I wish I had someone to google when I was going through all this. Hopefully, if a player has to go through this situation again, they'll have more knowledge with the facts and it won't be as long a process for them."
