Council wants to keep close eye on inmate care

By Gina McKee
gmckee@hometownnewsol.com

When it comes to healthcare for inmates at the Volusia County Jail, the County Council wants to stay involved and avoid pitfalls and past issues by taking the reins in hand, rather than simply relying upon a consultant.

"I'm not comfortable with turning this all over to yet another consultant to tell us what we should be doing. I think this decision stays at the council level," Vice Chair Deb Denys said during a regular meeting May 1.

Ms. Denys pulled the item off the consent agenda, a vote for which would have approved allowing a consulting firm to hear presentations from potential providers and then present the council with a recommendation on the consultant's top choice. To keep the government running efficiently, consultants are used for this purpose on multiple contracts and service providers due to the high number of bids received on each one, County Manager Jim Dinneen explained.

However, there also is a process in place for items of high profile, importance or impact when the council needs to be directly involved throughout the process, he added.

"The council has a right under Schedule D -- that is where we bring you qualified candidates onto the dais and you hear the presentations yourselves," Mr. Dinneen told council members. "We don't do that on everything, because you can't run things efficiently that way. But we will only bring qualified candidates before you, I think it's the top three, and they will present their information directly to you."

With lives on the line, and a sometimes confusing, multifaceted process to go through in providing inmates with healthcare services, consultant firms

School Board approves improved evaluation tool

By Gina McKee
gmckee@hometownnewsol.com

The Volusia County School Board unanimously approved a completely revamped evaluation to better measure and provide input to current and future superintendents.

"I wanted to make sure that as our board changes, that as our superintendent -- more than likely he will retire one day or go his own way -- so as that changes I wanted to make sure that the evaluation instrument can stand on its own," said Board Chair Linda Cuthbert, who worked closely on the document with Superintendent James Russell and Ted Doran, school board attorney. "We also wanted to make sure that (the board) understood that this is a living document. It can be tweaked. It's meant to be tweaked."

The need for an overhaul of the superintendent's evaluation became clear during last year's evaluation process, when categories were left open to interpretations, Mr. Doran said.

"There are a number of key components that weren't there last year. There are lots of instructions and definitions, which I think is one thing the board was running up against last year," he said. "A lot of people were defining certain things differently, and then the evaluation was coming out different, and that probably wasn't all that helpful."

The majority of last year's evaluation alternated between very broad elements and those with a more narrow focus, all of which were mixed in together, he said.

Author/teacher sees 'the love in everyone'

By Pat Young
For Hometown News

She comes from a family of educators, so it was only natural that New Smyrna Beach resident Rekia Beverly became a teacher, and then started writing books about teachers, from a teacher's perspective.

Ms. Beverly has taught kindergarten at Chisholm Elementary School in New Smyrna Beach for almost 10 years. The pleasant, smiling woman with the charisma of Mary Poppins has no children of her own. She said, "Her students are her kids." Sometimes they even call her "mom."

"Most of the time, books are about the children's perspective," Ms. Beverly said. "No one ever hears about the teacher."

So she started writing books from the teacher's point of view. The main character, Mrs. Ashbury, mirrors her own experience as a teacher.

Her first book was "Mrs. Ashbury's First Day at School." Her second book was "Mrs. Ashbury's Birthday," again reflecting her own experiences.

"I usually celebrate my birthday at school with the kids," Ms. Beverly said. "So, Mrs. Ashbury celebrates her birthday (at school), but accidentally burns her cupcakes while she is cooking them. She worries that the kids will be upset."

The kids are fine though, and sing 'Happy Birthday' to Mrs. Ashbury, even telling her "It's OK. We all make mistakes."

Her third book, "Mrs. Ashbury's Hero," is dedicated to a student, Nathan Grant, who lives in Port Orange. His mother, Jennifer Grant, is also a teacher at Chisholm Elementary. Nathan was diagnosed with leukemia when he was only two years old. He started kindergarten at Chisholm the same year Ms. Beverly started teaching, which gives them a "special bond," but, Ms. Beverly said, there is a lot more to that bond.

Nathan got up in front of the class to explain the port

Daytona Lagoon will make a big splash

By Diane M. Carey

Daytona Lagoon like many businesses and homes throughout Volusia County suffered damage from Hurricane Irma.

But shortly after the storm, the park at 601 Earl St. in Daytona Beach was up and running.

Still, there was one big hole.

"The most devastating damage was to our popular mat racer, Kraken's Conquest, on the north side of the park," General Manager Tyler Currie said. "The last half of the ride was picked up by the storm and was dropped onto the street just north of the park."

After months of working with Arihant, a slide manufacturer, the new slide came in recently and construction started.

"We are working on having the all new mat racer open early summer," Mr. Currie said.

A new tube slide also is getting installed, he said. "This slide will come off the same tower as the mat racer and will look like a giant pendulum. It should be an amazing water slide experience for our guests."

The Lagoon also has added four arcade games to the mega-arcade as well as renovated the 18-hole, mini-golf course.

"We are also working on updating our birthday party rooms and putting in a bar area inside the Family Entertainment Center," Mr. Currie said.

After the hurricane, the first priority was to get the Family Entertainment Center (the dry part of the complex) cleaned up and open to visitors, which they did by the next Saturday.

Randy Barber/staff photographer

Daytona Lagoon is making hurricane repairs and adding new features to the park. The slide on the right is still a work in progress.

"Since we were fortunate enough to have power, we were able to open up our facilities for people to come in and charge their phones and also provide some fun for everyone who had been cooped up," Mr. Currie said. "On the water park side, safety is our number one priority. After all of the rides were inspected and cleared, we opened the water park the very next weekend, of course minus the mat racer. We would never have made it back open so quickly without all the hard work of our staff."

As the summer season begins, Wednesday night family nights in the water park will return, and Daytona Lagoon will debut dive-in movies at the wave pool every other Sunday night, starting Memorial Day weekend.

The entertainment complex was built in 1998 and named Adventure Landing. In 2005, it was sold and rebranded as Daytona Lagoon. At the end of 2015,United Parks bought the park and continued using the Daytona Lagoon brand.

It features year-round entertainment for guests of all ages, including a state-of-the-art arcade, go-karts, an 18-hole mini golf course, ropes course, laser tag, rock wall and island hopper.

The water park starts its season in March and runs until mid-October. The water park includes a wave pool, lazy river, multi-level children's area, two high-speed body slides, three tube slides, a raft ride and a mat racer. Amenities include cabanas, a full bar and food.

Mr. Currie, who has been in the amusement park industry since 1995, took over Daytona Lagoon last year.

"We are the perfect spot for corporate parties, special events and, of course, birthday parties. Quite simply, we are constantly seeking new ways to provide that great family experience," he said. "It's a great park just steps away from the 'Worlds' Most Famous Beach,' and the potential for growth opportunity in this area is amazing."

in his skin, saying "This is how I get my medicine. I'll look different. My hair may fall out."

Ms. Beverly wrote her third, very emotional book about Nathan and she asked him if he was all right with the book. His response was, "You're doing a great job." Nathan even did some of the illustrations for the book (enhanced by the editors).

Ms. Beverly said she wanted to give "a teacher's point of view, through a child's eyes." She is the epitome of Mrs. Ashbury, who is illustrated with heart-shaped glasses to "see the love in everyone."

The third book, "Mrs. Ashbury's Hero," may be her last for a little while. She wants to take "a little break." But she does plan another book, where Mrs. Ashbury overcomes her fears. "It teaches kids to overcome their fears," she said.

She is self-publishing her books, and has a website, mrsashburysworld.com.

Music soothes your mortal soul

LAND LINES
DAN SMITH

Summer always hits a bit early here in Central Florida.

The big special events that take advantage of our mild winters have mostly moved on, but now is the time for music.

On Saturday, The Friends of The Bandshell will kick off their summer concert series with a great tribute to Bruce Springsteen and the E street Band. That is bound to be a rocking good time.

If you have so far missed these concerts, you have missed out on a lot of fun. Each year, Dino and The Friends put together a stellar group of bands that are bound to impress.

I understand that some of you are turned off by cover bands, but let's face it, many of our old favorites are just that – old. Others, God bless 'em, are gone forever.

I don't know how they do it, but The Friends of the Bandshell brings nothing but quality acts to its stage each summer. It is an opportunity to relive the glory days of rock and roll. This year, you will see the Beatles on June 23 Fleetwood Mac, Journey, Foreigner, Queen, Billy Joel and so many more I don't have the space to list them.

A little north, the Ormond Beach Historical Society will stage its annual Key West Party. This is always a fun event with lots of good Jimmy Buffett tunes and island-style eats. Of course, cheeseburgers will have to be on the menu.

The evening will provide lots of laughs, as amateurs like yours truly try to croak out Buffett tunes for the karaoke mike. Come on out and join us and be a part of the many group sing-a-longs, or to just dance the night away.

The Key West Party will be at The Anderson Price Memorial Building (now with plenty parking in the rear) on June 2. The party will go from 6 to 10 p.m.

This year, our area has joined the national Parrothead movement with the big housing development west of town and the LandShark Bar and Grill on the beach. With that in mind, our Key West party is a great fit. For more information or tickets, call (386) 677-7005.

Another of my favorite places to hear some good music is down at JB's Fish Camp. That's right, a fish camp. JB's began as a place to buy bait and launch a boat more than 40 years ago. Now, it is one of those great old Florida waterfront bars that has become all too difficult to find.

Go there any weekend for a great seafood lunch or dinner in the restaurant, and after you have eaten, grab a drink and walk out onto the deck or pier and listen to live music. Believe me, when the weather is good, JB's is a happening.

Each weekend, folks are lined up to rent a kayak to explore the beautiful Mosquito Lagoon that lies just to the west. Usually, good island-style music comes from the bandstand in the parking lot as pretty girls dance in their bikinis. For my money, JB's Fish Camp is a hidden gem that everyone needs to know about.

To get there, go east to A1A in New Smyrna Beach and drive seven miles south. The fish camp is just before the entry to Canaveral National Seashore. Call them at (386) 427-5747.

Well, there you have it. Those are some of the places I will visit to hear some great music this summer. Hope to see you there!

A Sound Choice with Florida State Hearing Aids

Touch. Taste. Sight. Smell. Sound. All important. The last one, sound, is what Florida State Hearing Aids specializes in.

Owner Julie Pruitt opened Florida State Hearing Aids Inc. in 2004 "in order to bring a more affordable and wider variety of hearing aids to my clientele," she said.

Ms Pruitt is assisted by Patient Care Coordinator Samantha Carpenter whose job is to schedule patients' appointments, pre-authorizations, billing, and assist with the cleaning and maintenance of hearing aids. She has been with Florida State Hearing Aids for six years, working an additional eight years with Ms Pruitt before that.
When asked what makes her business unique, Ms. Pruitt said, "My business gives individual one on one service to every client. You won't walk in two weeks after you purchase your hearing aids and get a random person that doesn't really care about you at all, they don't know you, they didn't test or fit you, and you feel left out in the cold.

"There is a lot of competition in the newspapers advertising low, low prices on hearing aids," she said. "The problem is in the small print. I don't do bait and switch ads. It is insulting to today's consumer."

FREE or discounted hearing aids for GEHA, APWU, Federal employees, Empire Plan, Epic and local insurances. We also work with Veteran Affairs and offer free programming for our Veterans.

Evaluation

The new evaluation, however, begins with the items that need a broad look and ends with those that need a more focused approach to properly evaluate, he said.

To form a more effective tool, Ms. Cuthbert, Mr. Russell, Mr. Doran and staff members took strong evaluation tools from other districts as well as the strongest pieces of their own instruments from previous years, and devised the new system, Ms. Cuthbert said.

"We wanted to make sure there was a stated purpose, procedures, that we had our competency descriptors, our categories -- we did collapse a couple," she said. "We put a few together and we added one."

The instrument also now has a legend, definitions, and expects supporting comments from both the evaluating board members as well as from the superintendent.

Expectations are clearly defined. For example, in the student achievement category, which has five stipulations in the new instrument, she said, based on what the superintendent submits, board members can select from commendable, reasonable progress towards performance indicators, and improvement expected. If improvement is expected, board members would then be expected to provide supporting comments, and the superintendent can make supporting comments as he addresses those "grades."

In addition to using other districts' evaluation instruments and previous years' Volusia County evaluations as guidelines and models, the tool is tailored specifically to fit the district it serves, Mr. Doran said.

"All of this mirrors the board's strategic plan," he said. "We used it every step of the way and incorporated it."

Airport begins taxiway project

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

Daytona Beach International Airport began a two-year project in April to rehabilitate several taxiways.

The $35 million project involves the rehabilitation of asphalt pavements on Taxiway November and portions of Taxiways Alpha and Papa.

In addition, several connectors will be modified, relocated or removed in accordance with Federal Aviation Administration standards.

Taxiway November, which is 75 feet wide and 10,500 feet long, is the primary air carrier taxiway; it runs parallel to the longest air carrier runway, 7L-25R.

At the end of May, Runway 7L-25R, which runs from east to west, will be closed for three to four weeks to accommodate construction near the runway. Airport neighbors may notice changes in flight patterns and an increase in north-south flight traffic throughout this period. All aircraft will use the north-south runway (16-34) or the east-west parallel runway (7R-25L) on the south side of the airfield. There will be several multi-day runway closures throughout the first year of construction.

The project is divided into four phases, with the first two lasting about one year. Halifax Paving is the contractor for the first two phases, and RS&H will provide inspection services and construction management. The project design was completed by Avcon.

The FAA is expected to fund 90 percent of the project, with the airport and Florida Department of Transportation splitting the remaining 10 percent.

According to the latest FDOT Statewide Aviation Economic Impact Study, the Daytona Beach airport provides a total economic impact of more than $1.1 billion to Volusia County while providing more than 11,316 local jobs.

For more information, call Jay Cassens, director of business development, at (386) 248-8037.

that specialize in healthcare don't know the county's needs, all the requirements, or necessarily what the county wants from a provider of this type, Vice Chair Denys said.

"I've been following this particular issue for years. It needs to be not just numbers-driven, because there's people associated with this, there are lives involved in this, there's interaction with other agencies and service providers. So there's a multiple network that we engage to provide services to the jail," she said. "This is no reflection on the consultant and their performance; they did a great job for us on our healthcare. But I don't know what the experience of this particular consultant on a project this big out at the jail. You can specialize in healthcare and be totally out of the arena on this one."

In addition, the county has had bad experiences in the past with inmate healthcare provider Corizon, which came to the council as the recommended choice two providers ago, Vice Chair Denys said.

"It's not just about numbers, it's not just about data out at the jail, which is why Corizon is no longer a service provider in Volusia County, because when we looked at that data and drilled down -- and there was an (Associated Press) news article about them, and Volusia County was part of that -- was their financial stability and some lawsuits they were involved with, not just in Volusia County but nationwide," Vice Chair Denys said.

With a more than $10 million in spending, these are big numbers that need to be budgeted efficiently, Councilwoman Heather Post said.

"The management side I think is something we need to look at, and I think there are some things that maybe we could be doing better in that area. But when we are talking about $1 million in transport and $9 in care, that's an extensive budget," Councilwoman Post said. "We need to reboot and make sure these things are done efficiently and make sure they are done correctly."

The decisions made here directly affect lives, Vice Chair Denys added.

"So when we look at these issues, it's not just the lowest provider with a bottom line on this, there's too much more involved with our inmates, our citizens, and the whole approach that we provide out at the jail," she said. "I want to keep this decision at a council level because there's too much at stake not to."

County seeks advisory board applicants

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

The Volusia County Council is seeking applicants for positions on 13 advisory boards that research and make recommendations on topics affecting the community.

Openings are available on the Affordable Housing Advisory Committee, Agri-Business Inter-Relationship Committee, Children and Families Advisory Board, Code Enforcement Board, Contractor Licensing and Construction Appeals, Daytona Beach Racing and Recreational Facilities Commission, ECHO Advisory Board, Volusia Growth Management Commission, Halifax Area Advertising Authority, Health Planning Council of Northeast Florida, Housing Finance Authority, Value Adjustment Board and Industrial Development Authority.

The advisory boards were established to give citizens input into what happens in their community and to advise the County Council on matters that affect residents and their county government. Applicants should have the expertise necessary to accomplish the board's objectives, a reputation for integrity and community service, and an interest or experience in the area of board service desired.

Members will be selected by the Volusia County Council. Applications and more information are available at volusia.org/advisory.

For information about the duties and responsibilities of advisory boards, contact Deputy Clerk Marcy Zimmerman at mzimmerman@volusia.org or (386) 736-5920, ext. 12398.

Wanted

Victim Monquavia F. Hamilton

Monquavia F. Hamilton, 25 (DOB: April 23, 1993) was shot and killed in her home at 2008 Dearing Ave., Deltona, on Monday, May 14.

A man performing work on the house discovered the victim in her home around 5:30 p.m. After finding the front door open, and calling by phone several times, the worker said he went inside to check if anyone was there. He found Ms. Hamilton deceased.

The investigation is active and, so far, indicates the victim was targeted in an isolated incident.

Anyone with information about this homicide is asked to contact the Volusia County Sheriff's Office at (386) 248-1777.

To submit anonymous tips to Crime Stoppers of Northeast Florida for a reward of up to $5,000, call 888-277-TIPS, via the website at westopcrime.com, or through the app available on the website.

The sun will always shine

I recently was in the hospital and then came home.

Things were up and down. I really needed to clean my gutters, but I could barely get out of bed. I went to my friend's house and asked my friend if he knew someone.

We were sitting in his carport when I noticed a lady cleaning the gutters next door. So, I jokingly asked her if she would clean my gutters. She said she would do it in a half hour. I couldn't believe it, but I went home.

Then, here she comes with her husband. He was a big guy carrying a 20-foot ladder. He was moving it around the house. They were as kind as can be. They cleaned all the gutters. When they were finished, I thanked Jackie. She introduced her husband, Ed, and told me he is blind.

This is an example that the sun will always shine. There are good folks out there who will always help you.

Test the particulates

Why won't Geosam fund the collection and testing of the airborne particulates from the fill they are using at Coastal Woods?

Are they afraid of what those tests would reveal?

With every breeze on a dry day, residents of Sugar Mill have their homes coated with this unknown substance. They have been breathing it for months.

The City Commission approved the development. Shouldn't they ensure the residents affected by it are safe?

In response to: "Who are these doctors?"

Frankly, I'm surprised that Hometown News didn't fact-check this before printing it.

When diagnostic tests are performed, especially within a hospital setting, there is always an interpretation performed. For example: A pathologist interprets biopsies, blood and tissue tests, a radiologist interprets an X-ray or scan, a cardiologist interprets an EKG, a pulmonologist interprets breathing function tests. These are all doctors, and they are not involved with your direct care, nor do they typically see patients.

They are considered legitimate charges for services rendered and are billed separately in addition to the test itself. This is allowed by Medicare as well as all private health insurers. This is not considered "taking advantage of" or defrauding Medicare.

Have some respect for other living creatures

We have a lot of wildlife here displaced by construction.

Please slow down on the roads and watch out for our little innocents. I had to bury a young painted turtle yesterday morning that had it's shell crushed by some motorist who was obviously not paying attention.

You can look at your cell phone all you want once you get to your destination. Get with the program and have a little respect for other living creatures who are just trying to get by.

Don't always keep your limit

Dan, you don't always need to catch your limit.

I have followed Dan's column and share his concern about the decline of the Indian River Lagoon. Many responsible fishermen realize the fish in the lagoon need a break and practice Catch, Photo & Release.

I wish Dan would join the many fisherman who no longer keep all the fish that they legally catch.

In response to: "Flagged discomfort"

I am not a supporter of the Confederate flag in any way; however I find your thinly veiled attempt to associate the Christian cross with the Confederate flag to be repugnant.

Your right to not be "uncomfortable" does not surpass anyone else's right to free speech. That is why the Founding Fathers placed as the First Amendment a limitation on the government's ability to limit free speech. "(The government) shall make no law … abridging the freedom of speech".

If the government cannot limit free speech, undoubtedly it cannot be your right to do so. Although you most certainly have the right to complain about it, no matter how misguided the argument.

Don't go there

You don't want inspections in Florida.

I moved from a state that had inspections. Although there were legitimate places that gave tickets, there were also crooked ones. You don't want that here.

In response to: "Flagged discomfort"

To the person whining about about the Confederate flag — get over it.

It's history, and you have a problem seeing the Christian cross? You're going to have a tough time handling life. Wow, how sad.

Children need individual attention in education

As we are coming to the end of another school year and quickly preparing for the next one, I often ponder the thought: What do parents look for when planning their child's education?

Are they focused on the developmental needs of the child, or do they rely on society to determine what is acceptable?

Many parents interested in our program inquire about the difference between Montessori and traditional education. The question leads me to describe the type of education I believe allows a child to fully develop.

The philosophies and methodologies used in traditional education are man-made guidelines that dictate what and when children should be taught without any regard for the strengths and weaknesses of the individual. Material is presented to the whole class on a fixed schedule, giving students little time to absorb and process the information.

This type of cookie cutter format can often set children up for failure. Are they truly learning or simply memorizing facts for temporary advancement?

The Montessori method engages the child during their sensitive period of development. The apparatus in the classroom foster hands-on learning through concrete experience before the child is presented with concepts in the abstract. The Montessori classroom has mixed age grouping that creates many opportunities for children on an emotional, social and academic level. When children are given the time to observe, converse and understand, a lasting love of learning is instilled.

So where do parents go from here? In my opinion, an alternative choice of a hybrid program blending the two methods and philosophies facilitates and stimulates a passion for knowledge and prepares the child for success in life. In the end, isn't that what we want for our children of the future?

Welcome to the workforce, graduates

VOLUSIA BUSINESS
CECIL G. BRUMLEY

As graduation season continues for Volusia County high schools and colleges, the outlook couldn't be brighter as the graduates enter the most abundant job market in 12 years.

Unemployment dropped in April to 3.5 percent in Volusia with about 8,800 workers unemployed out of a labor force of about 254,000. Help wanted signs are becoming as ubiquitous as open/close signs.

Granted Volusia only has the variety of jobs you'd expect from a county with a population of about 550,000 and the wage level is lower than larger markets, but then those larger markets are just a short distance away at Jacksonville and Orlando.

Volusia does have some unique job opportunities you don't find just anywhere, such as sports marketing and environmental science. If you've got an engineering or nursing degree, you'll find employers lining up to hire you. Don't want to go to college, but still want to make a good wage in a short amount of time? Check out the certificate programs at Daytona State College. Plus, DSC is adding new ones as it gets different demands from employers.

If you're just looking for any kind of job and aren't real particular, the retail and hospitality sectors are begging for workers as so many more retail shops, restaurants and hotels keep opening.

When an economy is doing this well, it's difficult not to be worried about a sudden downturn, but unlike the burst bubble that led to the Great Recession, there doesn't seem like there's anything disastrous about to happen. The current economy grew over a long period of time with strong underlying fundamentals. Unless something incredibly unforeseen happens, the graduates should experience good economic times for a while longer.

Daytona Beach International Airport is doing quite well. Passenger traffic was up 9.1 percent in April with 67,182 passengers compared to 61,606 passengers in April 2017. If this trend continues, it's inevitable the airport will get more than 10 daily flights.

Just as you'd expect, Five Star Pizza is adding an outlet in the area, putting one in the Trails Shopping Center on North Nova Road in Ormond Beach. Eventually you'd expect the Jacksonville-based chain to cover the entire county.

When you're trying sell more than 6,000 houses, you'd better have something to help attract buyers. Check out the amenity center at Latitude Margaritaville at latitudemargaritaville.com/daytona-beach-community-plan. To borrow an often-heard ad slogan – it's huge!

Not many big commercial real estate deals lately. Must be the rain. Anyway, the biggest was Marcus & Millichap brokering an $88.4 million sale of the Tripointe Value-Add Portfolio, a six-property multifamily portfolio, including the 168-unit Mallards of Brandywine in Deland and Shadow Lakes, a 184-unit community in Ormond Beach. Also, local investors have bought the medical building and adjacent land on Palmetto Avenue in New Smyrna Beach, across from the hospital for $1.575 million.

Q. How do you know what to look for when Safety and Socialization become a concern?

A. Once safety is a concern there are many things to consider: Is your loved one taking their medication as prescribed? Are you sure? Is it timely? Are they eating a nutritional meal and drinking enough fluids? Are the things they use on a daily basis up on the counter tops and not under cabinets? Throw rugs; although they are decorative are they a fall risk? Safety first!

Isolation causes depression and stress which leads to illness. Is your loved one sleeping more than usual, not caring about their appearance? This can be a sign of depression. We all need a purpose. When your loved one is able to share their experiences and days with people their own age they seem to thrive and grow.

Our professional advisors can also help determine if isolation and safety are issues that may need addressing. We are passionate advocates for seniors and their needs by providing a complete senior living resource service.

What Should I Do about My 401(k)s?

PLAN STRONGER
DAVID D. HOLLAND

As many of you know, I have a weekly public television show on WDSC Channel 15.

One of the best things about doing the television program is working with the "crew" who help put the broadcast together each week. Even for a "smaller-budget" program like ours, the TV production team includes several people: a production manager, an assistant producer, a director, a floor director, a technical director, an audio person, three camera operators and a make-up artist!

Several members of the crew are in their 20s, and here's what's great – they are all inquisitive and eager to learn about their finances! Not only is the group highly skilled in their individual roles, but they are always anxious to interact with me and my guests between segments. I truly enjoy sharing my financial knowledge and advice with them. So, one morning, one of the camera operators asked me this question, and I thought it was a relevant topic for this week's column. I'll paraphrase her thoughts:

"I've got 401(k)s and IRAs from previous employers and they are just floating around in 'limbo' in a couple of different locations. What should I do? Should I leave them alone or is there something better I should be doing with them?"

Personally, I like the idea of consolidating those "orphaned" 401(k) accounts (or other pre-tax, employer-sponsored retirement plans) into one IRA. The reason is twofold: 1. A single IRA account will be much easier to manage. 2. More money in one account (instead of several) can open up additional investment choices to you.

What do I mean by that? Well, if you are investing in mutual funds, for example, there is usually a minimum investment to buy into the fund. Some have greater minimum investment requirements than others. More money means you have a larger pool of investment funds to choose from. You can think of it like a casino, where there are $5 tables, $10 tables, $50 tables and $100 tables. You can't play at a $100 table if you only have $5. I think it's better to be able to "play" at more tables, not fewer.

And, here is another suggestion. Should there be a year when you earn less money, and you have already consolidated your IRA, you might consider converting some of the IRA into a Roth IRA. You will have to pay taxes on the money you roll over into the Roth (since no taxes have been paid thus far), so you might not want do it when your salary is at its peak. One of the benefits of a Roth IRA is that, once you pay taxes, future growth and withdrawals are tax free, as long as you meet and comply with the IRS's rules.

That was a great question from the PlanStronger crew, and I'm sure there will be many more when we start our fifth season of production this summer! If you have an opportunity to watch, please tune in!

Stetson University faculty, staff, students, families and friends celebrated the graduation of 828 seniors and graduate students at two 2018 Commencement Ceremonies.

Stetson conferred degrees on 180 graduate students in the Edmunds Center May 10. Another 648 undergraduates received degrees at a ceremony May 12 in Spec Martin Memorial Stadium.

The speakers at each ceremony were students from the graduating class who are nominated by faculty or their peers. The speakers for the graduate class were Lucianna Chixaro Ramos, master of fine arts in creative writing, and Rachael Faircloth, executive master of business administration. For the undergraduates, the speakers were Lucas Ludwig Coura, bachelor of music in voice and music theory; and Kaitlyn Orien Silva Forsythe, bachelor of arts in digital arts.

During the undergraduate commencement ceremony, Provost Noel Painter presented awards to a student and members of the faculty.

• The Etter McTeer Turner Award for outstanding academic performance, leadership and community service was presented to Alexandra Overdijking, bachelor of business administration with double majors in accounting, and business systems and analytics.

• The Hand Awards for Distinguished Faculty Achievements went to Dr. Pamela Cappas-Toro, assistant professor of world languages for the Hand Award for Community Impact. The Hand Award for Research, Creative and Professional Activity went to Dr. Terence Farrell, professor of biology.

• The William Hugh McEniry Award for Excellence in Teaching was presented to Dr. Megan O'Neill, associate professor of English.

Stetson awarded an honorary doctorate to Gordon H. "Nick" Mueller, president and CEO emeritus of The National World War II Museum in New Orleans. Dr. Mueller earned a bachelor's degree in history at Stetson in 1961.

DSC women's golf wins 10th NJCAA championship

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

After four days of competition at the Longbow Golf Club in Mesa, Ariz., Daytona State College claimed their 10th title in 16 seasons at the NJCAA Women's Golf National Championships.

Under the direction of head coach Laura Brown, the Falcons scored 1,152 over four rounds to finish even par, besting their closest competition by 40 strokes. The score also set a new NJCAA national championship four-round event record, besting the prior low score of 1,176 posted by Redlands Community College in 2012.

Sophomore Jiwon Jeon (South Korea) and Grace St-Germain (Ontario, Canada) led the Falcons, posting the team's lowest scores at 280 (-8) each to finish in a tie for first place overall at the end of regulation play. The scores posted by Ms. Jeon and Ms. St-Germain are a new NJCAA record for low score during this championship event.

After completion of play, Ms. Jeon and Ms. St-Germain had to go head to head in a sudden death playoff to determine the tournament medalist. Both competitors birdied the first two playoff holes and then on the third hole Ms. Jeon birdied and Ms. St-Germain carded a par to push Jeon to the tournament medalist honors.

Sophomore Kendall Johnson (Plant City) carded a 77 and freshman Alison Crenshaw (Suwanee, Ga.) posted a final round 75 for the final round 287 team score.

All five Falcons finished the tournament by placing in the top 10 and all earning NJCAA All-American honors. Ms. Jeon won first place with her 280, while Ms. St-Germain finished in second with her 280 due to the playoff results. Freshman Hollie Muse (Liverpool, England) finished in fifth place at 297. Ms. Johnson finished in sixth place at 301, while Ms. Crenshaw finished in 10th place at 307.

Disappearing art of bridge fishing

FISHING WITH DAN
DAN SMITH

Early on, fishing in Florida was quite often a group endeavor.

We have all seen those old photos and post cards from the 1940s and '50s that showed people standing shoulder to shoulder while fishing from a bridge. It always looked like fun and now I am wondering what happened to that?

Sadly those days are gone, lost mostly because of fewer fish, fishermen and bridges where we might fish. Locally our days of fishing from bridges are rapidly becoming extinct.

Orange Avenue is the latest casualty. For years I fished that bridge and had lots of fine catches there. Now, once the new high rise span is completed, they will probably build a short pier beneath it, but it usually takes about 10 years for the place to recover and begin producing fish. Each time a bridge is rebuilt the nearby marine habitat is all but destroyed.

On a recent spring morning I decided to give bridge fishing a try and drove down to the Dunlawton Causeway. The low bridges on the west end still provide folks with a good platform. I arrived in the pre-dawn and was happy to see that traffic was slow.

With snook in mind, I began throwing a gray and white Rapala Twitchbait plug. The tide was roaring out, so I fished the south side. On each cast, I would throw right along the bridge and allow the bait to wash south with the flow. Before long I had a strong hit and landed a fat 15-inch bluefish. A good fight, but not the snook I sought.

In the following half hour, I caught three more blues. Next I drove south on U.S. 1 to try my luck at the three bridges of Spruce Creek. Back in the day, when you could actually fish from those bridges, I would catch nice snook and some trout.

On this morning, I heard fish striking in the dim light under the bridge and was able to pull out a feisty jack. A few casts later and I was hooked up once more and this time the jack won. It managed to rub my mono onto the pilings and that was the end of the Rapala. That was enough for me and I headed north to Main Street, the last fishable bridge in the greater Daytona Beach area.

When I arrived, I found a couple fellows fishing for sheep's head. After passing the time, I moved on to the bridge fenders on the northeast side and began getting light hits on my chartreuse jig. Finally I was able to land a nice little mangrove snapper. When the other fishermen came to see it, I gave one of them the snapper and would later add two more. As I left I vowed to come back another day with some dead shrimp and see how many mangroves I could get. I am never opposed to a good snapper dinner.

After a long drive, I was all the way up to High Bridge near the Flagler County line. That bridge has been productive for me for decades, but now it was full light and I knew that was not good. Almost all of the fish I have caught there came in the dim light of morning. Traditionally that span is known for snook and gator trout, but on this day a single ladyfish was all I could manage.

On the ride home I thought about what I had just experienced. Four bridges and the only anglers I had seen were the pair at Main Street. The days of hundreds of fisher folk lined up on the bridges is gone. The fish are gone. The people are gone and for sure the bridges are practically gone.

Dan Smith has fished the waters of Volusia County for more than 40 years. Email questions and comments to fishwdan@att.net. His book, "I Swear the Snook Drowned," is available for purchase for $10.95 at (386) 441-7793.

find ways to include new people into your social circle.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

Capricorn, if life has been rushing by at a harried pace, you need to find a place of solace where you can sit and exhale. It's important to have this time to rest.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

Be conscious of how your actions and words affect others, Aquarius. Communication issues can affect relationships when misconstrued words are taken to heart.

PISCES - Feb 19/Mar 20

Pisces, procrastination is often a sign that a person is not interested in what he or she is doing. Find activities that truly motivate you.

Are you ready for hurricanes?

CHEF COSTA'S COOKING CORNER
COSTA MAGOULAS

I was a member of the Volusia County Emergency Management team that helped during hurricane emergencies for 15 years.

It's that time of year again and this hurricane season may be a little busy, so let's get ready. First, be sure to get the Hurricane Preparation Guide that is available each year; it provides great information.

Let's talk about how to get ready. My wife is great about getting ready for the storm season. She starts buying disaster food in March and April a little at a time. She follows all the sales and two for ones and we are ready by June.

How do you plan to cook without power? Do you have an outside grill? Great! Is it gas operated or charcoal? Make sure you have the fuel available to cook. I recommend everyone have a small gas cooktop as a backup. Chefs use them all the time for chef stations at catering parties. They are not expensive, about $20-$25, and operate on a small gas tank the size of a hair spray can. They are big enough to handle a large frying pan or pot.

You will be able to cook for days and cook almost anything. The local restaurant supply stores have them. I give them as gifts during Christmas. Look on the internet as well.

A coffee pot is important; one that isn't electric. People will be very upset without their coffee. Buy a French press coffee pot. Place ground coffee in the pot, then add hot water and let it steep a couple minutes. Press down the plunger top separating the grinds from the coffee. This makes great tasting coffee, and be sure you have ground coffee, not k-cups.

A good-sized ice chest is also helpful. Have a good supply of disposable plates, cups, plastic ware and paper towels. You also need trash bags and lots of water.

Here are some shopping ideas: Buy protein drinks; shop for the highest protein value you can find for high energy. Oatmeal variety packs are great because you just add water and heat. How about cereal with milk? Powdered milk is OK or try to find shelf-stable milk in cartons. Evaporated canned milk is milk that has the water taken out. Add a can of water to a can of evaporated milk and it will be regular milk.

Plastic portion cups of fruits are great; get a variety and get juice mixes. You should start stocking up on canned goods like vegetables, canned chicken, tuna, corned beef hash, and chili no beans (you'll thank me later). Also consider Spam, canned pasta with meatballs or meat ravioli. Think about getting canned soups, dry spaghetti, boxes of rice mixtures, and mac and cheese.

Make sure you have all the staples too like herbs, spices, sugar, cooking oil or sprays, chips, pita chips, and nachos. Did you know corn bread mix can be fried in a frying pan for bread?

Now let's think about the food in the refrigerator. After a few hours, the cooler will be too hot to keep food safely. Cook everything you can that is fresh. The freezer may last up to two or three days if you keep the door closed. Refrigerated eggs have been washed, so their protected cover is removed. Leaving them out is not a good idea. Do you know a local farmer? If you have farm fresh eggs from the farm that have not been washed, they can stay on the counter for many days. Soft cheese needs to be refrigerated; hard cheeses like Gouda and parmesan do not need to be refrigerated.

Finally, write a menu of meals and snacks for three to six days consumption. When you plan, everyone will be happier knowing what to expect. My recipe this week is: Step 1, begin today to stock up; Step 2, be prepared.

Man of many words

Randy Barber/staff photographer

Zach Zacharias, senior curator of history at the Museum of Arts & Sciences, in Daytona Beach gives a talk about the famously peculiar people in Florida's history at the Port Orange Regional Library on Friday, May 4. The Friends of the Library sponsored the free program.

Art Notes

Port Orange library plans youth art show

The Port Orange Regional Library is having a summer art show for children to celebrate how libraries and art rock.

Children in fifth grade and under may create an image that expresses how "Libraries Rock" on an 8.5-inch by 11-inch sheet of paper.

No other sizes will be accepted. Entry forms are available at the children's desk. Each child may submit one entry. Artwork should be turned in at the children's desk between May 28 and June 9.

Library staff will randomly select 22 images to go on display in the children's room from June 13 through Aug. 3. The rest of the images will be displayed in a binder in the children's room.

For more information, call the children's desk at (386) 322-5152, ext. 20939.
