Attorneys plan wrongful death suit

Grant puts Citrus sheriff's office on notice

A.B. SIDIBE
Staff Writer

INVERNESS — The attorney for the family of a young mother killed last year has put the sheriff's office on notice about an imminent wrongful death lawsuit and is lobbing more allegations at the agency and sheriff he accuses of exhibiting "total disregard for the law."

In a news conference at his law firm, attorney Bill Grant said the time has come for the Citrus County Sheriff's Office to turn over all the documents he's been requesting in the past year in the death of Jamie Seeger, 27.

He also wants the sheriff's office to turn over all evidence relating to the gun used in Seeger's killing — a gun Grant said belonged to multiple deputies in the sheriff's office before being used to kill Seeger.

He wants the investigation of the case transferred to an independent law enforcement agency.

And, on behalf of Seeger's mother, Wendy Moore, he announced his intention to sue the agency, claiming wrongful death in the Seeger case.

It's been almost a year since the former confidential informant was gunned down in the early hours of the morning on a street in a neighborhood near Crystal River.

In the subsequent months following Seeger's death on July 25, 2012, Grant has been involved in highly publicized wrangling with CCSO over access to records.

College of Central Florida has annual impact approaching $350M

PAT FAHERTY
Staff writer

While helping prepare students for the future, the College of Central Florida is an economic engine for the tri-county region.

With its main campus in Ocala, the Lecanto campus gives CF a large multifaceted role in Citrus County. There is also a location in Levy County and a strong online presence.

ECONOMIC IMPACT

Collectively, the college represents an economic impact on Citrus, Levy and Marion counties estimated at nearly $350 million annually with about 10,380 average-wage jobs.

The figure represents student spending, college operations and student productivity.

The sum and its components were measured by a study on CF's economic impact released in December. It analyzed the effectiveness of the investment of public and student dollars and the related economic growth.

ON THE NET

- College of Central Florida: www.cf.edu

During 2011 and 2012, CF served 15,470 students, including 3,156 from Citrus County. Most of the students — about 94 percent — are from the tri-county area.

The Lecanto campus has about 2,200 students each semester, with more than 1,000 students registered for the current summer term.

That year, CF had 434 full-time employees with an annual payroll of $31.2 million. There have been some staff reductions since, but approximately 90 percent of the employees live in the region.

Overall, CF spends about $34 million a year for goods and services with more than $12 million spent locally. The study found income generated by CF operations, plus the spending of non-local students, is about $41.4 million annually.

Meek: Budget closer to balance

CHRIS VAN ORMER
Staff writer

County Commission Chairman Joe Meek was hopeful Wednesday that the county could balance its budget without making cuts amounting to $1.4 million or raising the $1.4 million through a franchise fee.

Joe Meek county commission chairman.

After a special budget meeting Tuesday, the Citrus County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) was offered the choices of setting a millage rate of 8.1739 mills and still needing a source of $1.4 million or setting the millage at 8.3050 mills, which would balance the budget. The shortage was calculated based on Duke Energy claiming a property valuation of $900 million in 2013.

In 2012, the utility paid about $19 million of a $35 million tax bill.

Property Appraiser Geoff Greene is named in a lawsuit by Duke Energy regarding the utility's 2012 taxable value. The $900 million valuation was based on information in a letter from Alex Glenn, president of Duke Energy's utilities operations in Florida, to Greene, who has assessed the utility for 2013 at $3.47 billion.

The board on Tuesday instructed staff to consider cuts to services rather than impose a franchise fee, which would charge utilities for using the county's right of way. Commissioners said the charge to utilities would be passed on to customers.

Speaking Wednesday to the Chronicle editorial board, Meek said he had just been in contact with Keith Butler, vice president for tax with Duke Energy, and was optimistic that Duke might claim a higher valuation that would increase its property tax payment.

"There is some variable as to what Duke will pay," Meek said. "If they pay what they paid last year, or if they pay a little bit more, then that $1.4 million shortfall would be possibly less than that."

Meek said Duke Energy indicated it would pay $20.5 million in taxes. If so, next year's county budget could be close to balanced with a millage rate of 8.1739 that could be achieved with a 3-2 commission vote.

"But don't hold me to that because we're still calculating those numbers," Meek said.

Butler, according to Meek, said the utility had made some improvements to facilities.

"So their new good faith payment, what they feel their liability is, is $20.5 million," Meek said.

Meek said Greene just received a letter from Duke Energy in response to his request to discuss his new appraisal with the utility.

"It basically said: We are in receipt of it. We're reviewing it. We see large issues with it. At this time we see no need to sit down and talk with you," Meek said.

The letter to Greene from David W. Wright, director, property and non-income taxes, Duke Energy, stated: "While we appreciate your offer for an informal meeting, the information regarding the value of Progress Energy Florida's property is set forth in its 2013 Tangible Personal Property Returns. Therefore, a meeting would be unproductive at this time."

Regarding the 2013 appraisal report commissioned from Gerald Hartman — an accredited senior appraiser specializing in utilities, that Greene provided — Wright stated: "Based on our preliminary analysis, we have identified what appear to be significant errors in Mr. Hartman's methodology and conclusions."

Greene told the Chronicle on Wednesday that the response was disappointing, as he had offered to have an informal conference to resolve their differences about the 2012 and 2013 assessments.

Greene, however, continues to try to meet with Duke officials.

"Today, I sent congratulations to the new CEO, Ms. (Lynn) Good, and said we should talk," Greene said. "So I'm still, every day I can, extending the offer of a dialogue to try to resolve these issues."

Greene said he would like to discuss with Wright the alleged errors in his appraisal report.

"Really, all I'm trying to do is have a conversation," Greene said.

■ One feature of the new budget Meek said he didn't want to be "bashful" about is that it contains a 3 percent cost-of-living pay raise for county employees.

"The county staff has not had a pay increase for five years," Meek said.

The sheriff also budgeted the increase, Meek said. A meeting has been set for Friday with all the constitutional officers. Only Clerk of Court Angela Vick has said she did not want a 3 percent increase, Meek said. But, it would be discussed on Friday.

Countywide, the cost would be $900,000, Meek said.

Seeger was gunned down near the intersection of West Cyrus Street and Reynolds Avenue at 3 a.m. She was found sitting in the driver's seat, dead from gunshot wounds, according to investigators.

Grant has previously filed a Sunshine Law lawsuit against the agency, asking for records pertaining to Seeger's work as an informant prior to her death, and he recently sent letters to the State Attorney's Office requesting information about the gun used in Seeger's killing.

At Wednesday's news conference, Grant was flanked by his law partner Rick Dozier, Moore, Seeger's sister Terri Oulch, and his co-counsel in the upcoming wrongful death suit, Lance Block, who famously represented Rachel Hoffman's family. Hoffman was the Tallahassee police informant who was killed in 2008 during a bad drug deal. Hoffman inspired Rachel's Law. The law spells out several provisions for law enforcement agencies about how to use confidential informants and also provide for their safety.

Grant and Seeger's mother allege the sheriff's office ignored Seeger's worries and warnings about her safety and sent her on a possible drug buy that fateful morning. The sheriff's office has denied that allegation, saying though Seeger had been an informant for the agency, she was not an informant at the time of her death. The agency also denies the applicability of Rachel's Law to this case.

Block said from the information he has, the sheriff's office has dropped the ball in the case and may have violated provisions of Rachel's Law and that there is a clear case of conflict of interest.

"It's befuddling that six months ago three people were arrested for her murder and we are just now hearing about the gun," Block said. "It underscores the lack of transparency. The purpose of the news conference was to demonstrate that the public is being stonewalled and family is being stonewalled," he said after the press conference.

Seeger's mother also is pointing a finger at the agency, claiming a lack of transparency.

"It all comes back to the sheriff's department. There is more than they are telling us," Moore said.

Both Block and Moore would like to see an independent agency like the Florida Department of Law Enforcement step in.

While the sheriff's office declined comment regarding the news conference, citing that the case has yet to come to trial, officials provided the Chronicle with a timeline for the weapon used in the slaying.

According to CCSO, the gun was purchased for the agency in 2009 and two deputies used the gun from that time until it was traded in June of 2010. Another deputy purchased the traded-in gun shortly thereafter and gave it to a relative, according to the CCSO timeline.

However, the gun was reportedly stolen in May of 2012 during a rash of burglaries in the relative's neighborhood.

The gun was used in Seeger's killing in July of 2012; in November of 2012, the CCSO dive team fished out the gun from under the Howard Frankland Bridge in Tampa Bay.

Grant said the time that the gun was removed from under the bridge raises even more questions.

He said the defendants in the case, Marrio Williams, 27, of Dunnellon, Lawrence Vickers, 45, of Crystal River and Curtis Wilson, 30, of St. Petersburg were not arrested until December of 2012.

Grant said he is unsure who told the CCSO where to find the gun, "but don't let anyone tell you the defendants told them where to find the gun."

He said the sheriff's office refuses to turn over the names of the deputies who previously had the gun and the agency refuses to hand over "information in the death of Jamie Seeger that is righteously public information" — information Grant said Seeger's mother and husband have the right to know.

GUN TIMELINE

■ In February 2009, the Citrus County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) received a Glock model 22 .40 caliber No. MAA-400 from Lou's Police Supply in Miami. According to the sheriff's office, this is the history of that gun:

- On Feb. 19, 2009, this gun was received into the CCSO inventory.
- On April 6, 2009, the gun was issued to a CCSO deputy.
- On Feb. 2, 2010, the gun was received back into inventory (i.e., turned in by the deputy).
- On March 30, 2010, the gun was issued to a CCSO deputy.
- On May 26, 2010, the gun was received back into inventory (i.e., turned in by that deputy).
- On June 26, 2010, the gun was traded to OMB Guns (an approved Glock vendor).
- On June 26, 2010, the gun was purchased from OMB Guns by a CCSO deputy. The deputy at some point gave the gun to a relative.
- On May 21, 2012, the relative reported that the gun was stolen. (There was a rash of vehicle burglaries that occurred in the neighborhood in which at least six vehicles had items stolen).
- On Nov. 19, 2012, the weapon used in the Jamie Seeger homicide was recovered by the CCSO dive team in Hillsborough County off of the Howard Frankland Bridge. The gun was then traced back to the timeline above.

Council member bids farewell

NANCY KENNEDY
Staff writer

INVERNESS — Tuesday's Inverness City Council meeting ended with a sad farewell as Council President Linda Bega announced that fellow council member Marti Consuegra had resigned from her position.

Consuegra and her husband, George, are moving away from the area to travel in a fifth-wheel camper.

"Wherever the wheel stops, that'll be home," Consuegra said. "Inverness has been my home for 37 years … now we're living our dream."

Consuegra was elected to the council in 2006 and re-elected in 2010 for an additional four-year term.

"I'm sad to see you go," said Mayor Bob Plaisted. "You've been a good, good councilperson and we've appreciated your candidness."

Councilman Ken Hinkle, who sits next to Consuegra on the dais, said it will be quiet without her.

"You're outspoken, and that's what we need up here, people who speak their opinions and stand up for their beliefs. You are leaving Inverness a better place."

At its July 16 meeting, the city council will declare a vacancy and either select a qualified candidate by unanimous vote or call for a special election. Whoever is selected or elected will serve through the November 2014 election.

Marti Consuegra

"I don't see anything happening quickly, but I envision there is a good chance they will find common ground in support of an individual to fill the expired term," said City Manager Frank DiGiovanni.

In other council happenings:

■ Rob Wardlow, representing accounting firm Williams, McCranie, Wardlow & Cash, presented the annual audit report, giving the city of Inverness high marks. In comparing Inverness with other cities of its size, Wardlow said Inverness always trends "favorable."

"In this time of cities and governments cutting back, with the right planning, looking into the future, keeping money in reserve and not hitting taxpayers every time there's a mistake, we're still providing services," said Councilwoman Consuegra. "I want people to realize what a stable government they have in the city."

■ Council members voted to accept a bid of $84,800 from Energy Electric Inc. to install lighting fixtures along the 2,000-linear-foot Cooter Pond Park boardwalk and in Cooter Pond Park. The city has had the light fixtures on hand for a while, some of which use solar power, DiGiovanni said.

■ Those who use debit/credit cards or pay online for utility billing, permits, licenses and special event fees will pay a flat $3.95 service charge per transaction.

INVERNESS — Leading up to Superheroes Week at the Inverness Boys & Girls Club, the kids got to meet and ask questions of a hero in training, Airman First Class Brandon Watson.

Watson, 19, a Crystal River High School graduate, is home on leave before he's off into the wild, blue yonder for his duty station in England where he will serve as a crew chief airplane mechanic on an F-15 fighter jet.

"My dad was in the Coast Guard for seven years, but he always said he thought the Air Force was better," Watson said. "I used to race at the Citrus County Speedway, and that's what I loved growing up, always working out in the shop with my dad as a mechanic. I didn't know anything about airplanes, but I thought it would be a really cool job."

He told the kids about being nervous his first day, how as soon as you get off the bus the training instructors yell at you. He told about climbing a ladder backward during the obstacle course and swinging on a rope over water.

Watson described how he got up early, marched in formation, learned all about planes and how to take orders.

The kids were full of questions: Do you miss your family? ("All the time — that's the hardest part.") Do you sleep there? ("Yes, in a dorm that looks like hotel rooms.") Can you have pets? ("No, not in the dorm.") Did you ever shoot a machine gun? ("Yes.") When you go to England, will you get to see princesses? ("I hope so.") Do you have an indoor hot tub? (Laughed, then said, "No.")

Watson's sister, Rachele Watson, who works at the Boys & Girls Club, said her brother has overcome a lot to get to where he is now. At 15, he was riding a dirt bike and was hit and run over by a truck. Despite pins in his arm, he fought to be able to enlist at 17.

"He enlisted when he was still in high school," she said, "and he had to do boot camp training once a week in Brooksville. He had to prove that he could do it, and he did."

Civil Air Patrol cadet John Korycki, 17, was also at the club talking about serving in the CAP, which is a stepping stone to the U.S. Air Force and is open to kids and young adults, from ages 12 to 21.

Club director Donna McClimont said they like to bring in people to talk about their careers and opportunities, to give kids something to think about and aspire to.

"In July, we're going to have a Superheroes Week," she said. "We'll have Trooper Todd Cloud visit, we'll have a fire truck here, and even 'Caged Nation,' a (mixed martial arts) group."

More questions for Zimmerman jurors

Associated Press

SANFORD — Attorneys quizzed a whittled-down group of prospective jurors Wednesday in the Trayvon Martin case about whether they had fired guns, made judgments based on how people dressed or had been neighborhood watch volunteers like the teen's shooter.

The day began with a judge reading the formal second-degree murder charge against George Zimmerman, who shot the unarmed, 17-year-old Martin in February 2012. Zimmerman, 29, is pleading not guilty and says he acted in self-defense.

After the judge read the charge, prosecutor Bernie de la Rionda began a second round of more intensive, personal questioning with the 40 potential jurors, whose names are kept confidential. The final jury will be sequestered throughout the trial to protect jurors from outside influence.

Several candidates were involved with rescuing animals, and the pool included a competitive arm-wrestler, a competitive fisherman and a man who enters barbecue competitions. Seven potential jurors said they had previously been arrested. But they said that their cases had been dropped and that they thought they were treated fairly.

Fourteen candidates said they had been victims of crimes, including four involving violent crimes. A white woman in her 50s said it would be difficult for her to keep her experience with a violent crime out of the courtroom.

"It's always in my mind," she said.

Twenty-seven of the 40 potential jurors are white, seven are black, three are mixed race and three are Hispanic. Twenty-four are women and 16 are men.

Two from Citrus apply to PSC

PAT FAHERTY
Staff writer

Two Citrus County residents have applied for seats on the Florida Public Service Commission.

James S. Baumstark of Crystal River and Timothy C. Altenau of Beverly Hills are among 24 applicants for two seats on the five-member board.

The list includes current commission chairman Ronald A. Brise and current commissioner Arthur L. Graham, whose terms are set to expire at the end of the year.

Baumstark has been through the process before and recalled being a candidate in 2010. He made the short list of seven candidates for two open seats that was sent by the PSC nominating committee to then-Gov. Charlie Crist, but he was not selected.

Wednesday, he said the same people who had urged him to apply in 2010 had encouraged him again.

"I have unique qualifications that seem to fit well," he said. "I am very familiar with the T and D (transmission and distribution) side and have a set of capabilities that would work very well on the PSC."

He is retired naval officer with 28 years of experience in nuclear submarines. After the Navy, Baumstark spent 22 years in the utility industry, in which he is still involved.

He retired from Consolidated Edison of New York as vice president of central engineering. Prior to that he was director of engineering at the Crystal River nuclear plant.

He is currently chairman of the International Utility Working Group, a consortium of nine utilities from major urban areas of the world, working on new methods in power transmission and distribution.

"If I get the opportunity, I feel I will be able to offer them a lot," he said. "I will give it my best shot."

According to his application, Altenau is an attorney and nuclear engineer at the Crystal River nuclear plant. He declined comment.

The screening process by the nominating committee is expected to begin in July.

Madonna premieres 'MDNA' tour film

NEW YORK — Madonna said there were days she was exhausted during her recent "MDNA" world tour, but she decided to press on.

You won't see those rough behind-the-scenes moments in her new concert film, "The MDNA Tour," which premieres Saturday on Epix, a cable and online network. But you will see the 54-year-old pop icon performing for two hours on her lengthy tour.

Madonna said she had nights in which she would cry and say, "I don't want to do this."

She showed the film Tuesday in New York City in front of a feverish crowd of fans, her dancers, her tour team, socialites and members of the press.

Bob Dylan seeks noise waiver in Minn.

ST. PAUL, Minn. — American musical legend Bob Dylan is bringing his act back home, but first he needs a little help from St. Paul city leaders.

Dylan is set to perform at Midway Stadium in July as part of his "Americanarama" tour of minor league ballparks. An official with the St. Paul Saints has a variance pending before the city council for an outdoor concert noise waiver. It was to be decided at a hearing Wednesday evening.

The application is considered routine, but is necessary because the amplified sound will echo through the air late into the night, requiring city signoff and notification of neighbors.

Dylan's performance won't be far from Dinkytown, where he spent his college days. The musician was born in Duluth but grew up on the Iron Range.

Cher credits luck for her lengthy career

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. — Cher is no stranger to tabloid fodder.

The 67-year-old singer who has spent most of her life in the spotlight offered this advice to young artists on navigating the world of paparazzi attention: "You're screwed. That's my advice."

Looking ever the rock star in leather and studs, Cher took the stage Tuesday for the season finale of NBC's "The Voice." She performed "Woman's World," the first single off her upcoming album of the same name — her 26th album since she began recording in the 1960s.

Cher said reality singing competitions are simply a modern incarnation of classic star-makers like "The Ed Sullivan Show" and "Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts."

"It's just another vehicle, you know what I mean? Talent is talent," she said on the red carpet following the finale which crowned 16-year-old country singer Danielle Bradbery the winner.

Though Cher has topped the Billboard pop charts throughout the past six decades, she credits luck, not necessarily talent, for her incredible staying power.

"If you have an idea, you tell me because I haven't got a clue," she said of her secret to career longevity. "I believe that luck has a lot to do with it. There are lots of people who are more talented or whatever, but somehow this has been my path."

Liz's first wedding dress up for sale

LONDON — The gown Elizabeth Taylor wore at the first of her eight weddings is for sale. You'll need at least $47,000 to buy it and a tiny waist to wear it.

Christie's auction house is offering the seed pearl-encrusted satin dress — compete with waist-cinching built-in corset — designed by costume designer Helen Rose.

Taylor was 18 when she wore the gown to marry hotel heir Conrad "Nicky" Hilton Jr. in May 1950 — an event, studio MGM boasted, attended by "more stars than there are in heaven."

IMPACT

Isolating the rest of the impact — $308.3 million — is more complex. It involves student productivity and putting a dollar value on completed college credits to project income growth based on the added skills of CF students.

There is also an estimated savings in social costs not included in that figure. The study determined that added income attributed to the accumulation of CF credits in the workforce amounts to about $308.3 million each year.

Those totals make up the estimated annual $349.7 million impact, about 3.5 percent of the total regional economy.

FUNDING

Estimating CF's value to the region also required determining its funding by source. For 2010 and 2011, it received about $66.3 million in revenue. Tuition and fees comprised 16 percent, state government 39 percent, federal government 31 percent, and other sources, including donations, about 8 percent.

There is no local government funding, but state and local governments benefit from increased tax revenues and savings associated with avoided social costs.

WHAT IT MEANS

College President James Henningsen put the findings in perspective and elaborated on CF's mission.

He said the college has a clear regional role to "be a catalyst for improving the educational attainment level, the skills and qualifications of graduates as they prepare for the workforce."

One measure of that during the next five years is the baccalaureate attainment level.

"We're at a competitive regional disadvantage for economic development of our current businesses as well as the recruitment of new businesses," he said, "because the educational attainment level of our population is very low. It's low compared to the state and the state's lower than the national average."

He cited unemployment numbers as they relate to education levels. "Our goal is to help educate the population about the value of their degree," he said. "I tell students it's the best investment you'll make in your life."

To him, the beauty of CF is that it's a comprehensive college that can do everything from bachelor degrees to certificates or specialized job training.

"We do, do it all," he said. "It's difficult to afford that model, but we are working on being as efficient as we can."

Regarding regional economic development, Henningsen said CF does not lead it, but is a strong partner and a resource.

"It's something we're definitely going to be partnering with," he said.

Areas include developing entrepreneurial skills and small business development.

As for whether CF is appreciated: absolutely, he said. The value of the college is recognized by communities not just for its role in economic development, but for its cultural and social value, too.

"There is definitely knowledge out there in all three of our counties on the value of the college," he said.

While CF will emphasize its bachelor degrees, the president said it is not turning into a four-year college and will continue its open-door mission.

"It's a great access point for education and extremely cost-effective," he said. "Nobody can beat us on value when you look at price and quality of what you get."

Henningsen cited the $10,000 bachelor's degree.

"It's a deal," he said. "I hope we get a lot of students interested."

He said CF will be applying to the state this year to offer a Bachelor of Science degree in nursing that will be available to students at the Citrus campus. And with limited funds, they are evaluating current programs to determine whether they are still viable options for the community.

AT CITRUS CAMPUS

"We're very engaged with the community," said CF Vice President Vernon Lawter, who oversees the Citrus Campus. "We host community events for other agencies and institutions from all over the county.

"A lot of them are put on by our workforce partners, the chamber, Workforce Connection, the Economic Development Council and SCORE, which operates from our campus."

He said there is also an active student life at the campus, with 11 student clubs and organizations.

"Student life has really grown on campus," he said. "It's helped create a vibrant culture on campus for that college feel. We're a lot closer to having that now than a few years ago."

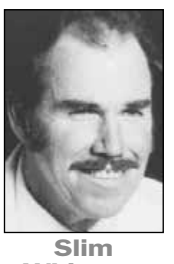
Family: Country singer Slim Whitman dies at 90

Associated Press

MIAMI — Country singer Slim Whitman, the high-pitched yodeler who sold millions of records through ever-present TV ads in the 1980s and whose song saved the world in the film comedy "Mars Attacks!," died Wednesday at a Florida hospital. He was 90.



Slim Whitman

Whitman died of heart failure at Orange Park Medical Center, his son-in-law Roy Beagle said.

Whitman's tenor falsetto and ebony mustache and sideburns became global trademarks — and an inspiration for countless jokes — thanks to the TV commercials that pitched his records.

But he was a serious musical influence on early rock, and in the British Isles, he was known as a pioneer of country music for popularizing the style there. Whitman also encouraged a teen Elvis Presley when he was the headliner on the bill and the young singer was making his professional debut.

Whitman recorded more than 65 albums and sold millions of records, including 4 million of "All My Best" that was marketed on TV.

His career spanned six decades, beginning in the late 1940s, but he achieved cult figure status in the 1980s. His visage as an ordinary guy singing romantic ballads struck a responsive chord with the public.

"All of a sudden, here comes a guy in a black and white suit, with a mustache and a receding hairline, playing a guitar and singing 'Rose Marie,'" Whitman told The Associated Press in 1991. "They hadn't seen that."

For most of the 1980s, he was consistent fodder for Johnny Carson's monologues on late night NBC-TV, and the butt of Slim Whitman look-alike contests.

"That TV ad is the reason I'm still here," he said. "It buys fuel for the boat.

"I almost didn't do them. I had seen those kinds of commercials and didn't like them. But it was one of the smartest things I ever did."

He yodeled throughout his career and had a three-octave singing range. Whitman said yodeling required rehearsal.

"It's like a prize fighter. He knows he has a fight coming up, so he gets in the gym and trains. So when I have a show coming up, I practice yodeling."

Born Ottis Dewey Whitman Jr. in Tampa on Jan. 23, 1923, he worked as a young man in a meatpacking plant, at a shipyard and as a postman.

In 1952, Whitman had his first hit record, "Love Song of the Waterfall," which 25 years later became part of the soundtrack of the movie "Close Encounters of the Third Kind." Another Whitman hit from that year, "Indian Love Call," was used to humorous effect in the 1996 "Mars Attacks!" — his yodel causes the Martians' heads to explode.

Fed hints at stimulus slowdown; stocks sink

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Financial markets shuddered Wednesday after the Federal Reserve said it could start scaling back its huge economic stimulus program later this year and end it by the middle of next.

The sharp reaction in markets, especially in the 10-year Treasury note, showed just how much investors have come to depend on the Fed's easy money policies.

The yield on the 10-year Treasury rose to 2.35 percent, its highest in 15 months. The Dow Jones industrial average fell more than 200 points.

"Any whiff there's going to be reduction in the (Fed's) ammunition is met with selling," said James Camp, managing director of fixed income at Eagle Asset Management.

The Fed has been buying $85 billion worth of bonds each month to keep long-term rates low, and stimulate the economy. On Wednesday, the Fed sketched a brighter outlook for the economy and Chairman Ben Bernanke said the bank's purchases could slow.

Rates have already risen significantly since May 3, when the yield on the 10-year hit its lowest point of the year, 1.63 percent. Investors have been pushing up those rates in anticipation of the day when the central bank stops buying bonds.

If rates rise too fast, investors can get spooked.

"You want a nice, gradual rise," said Talley Leger, a strategist at Macro Vision Research. "But when it's furious and disorderly like today, it's too fast. It can have a negative impact on stocks."

A brighter outlook for the U.S. economy normally would convince people to buy stocks, not sell them. But Leger said investors have become hooked on Fed stimulus and sold.

"Markets are asking for expansion of already stimulative policies, and they're not getting it," he said. "It's like a drug supplier and an addict."

The stock market drifted lower for most of the day, ahead of a scheduled statement from the Fed and a press conference by Bernanke.

The Standard & Poor's 500 was down about half a percentage point shortly after the Fed released its statement. Then Bernanke took questions from reporters. In response to one he said that the Fed could scale back its bond purchases later this year, and the selling accelerated.

Bonds and stocks both slumped even though Bernanke said that the central bank would only cut back on its stimulus once the economy had improved sufficiently and was in no hurry to raise rates.

"There is going to be some nervousness as we adjust to a more normal economic environment," said Brad Sorensen, director of market and sector research at Charles Schwab. "Both the stock and bond markets are adjusting to a Federal Reserve that isn't going to have the spigots wide open."

The yield on the five-year Treasury note also rose sharply. It jumped to 1.23 percent from 1.06 percent late Tuesday. The 5-year yield also hit its lowest level of the year, 0.65 percent, on May 3.

The yield on the 30-year bond rose to 3.42 percent from 3.34 percent Wednesday.

An index measuring the dollar against six other currencies surged 1 percent. The dollar rose against the Japanese yen, the euro and other currencies as traders anticipated higher U.S. rates.

The S&P 500 index fell 22.88 points, or 1.4 percent, to 1,628.93.

Declines were led by high-dividend stocks like telecommunications and utilities, which are more sensitive to rising interest rates. Investors had bought these stocks for their dividend income when bond yields were at record low levels.

AT&T and Verizon, the stocks with the highest dividends in the Dow, fell the most in the index. Verizon slumped $1.50, or 2.9 percent, to $50.05 and AT&T fell 92 cents, or 2.5 percent, to $35.25.

Leading 3-D printer firms to merge in $403M deal

MINNEAPOLIS — Stratasys, a leading maker of 3-D printers, is buying another 3-D printer manufacturer, MakerBot, for $403 million in stock.

Stratasys Ltd. said Wednesday the acquisition will enable it to offer affordable desktop 3-D printers. MakerBot, whose machines are priced around $2,000 to $3,000 and are aimed at the "prosumer" market, sells direct to buyers over its website. In contrast, Stratasys makes machines priced $10,000 to $600,000 mostly to industrial clients through resellers.

MakerBot's owners will receive 4.76 million newly issued Stratasys shares and are eligible for another 2.38 million through the end of 2014 if certain performance targets are met. That could raise the purchase price by about $201 million based on Wednesday's closing stock price.

The merger is expected to be completed in the third quarter of this year.

Stratasys is based in Eden Prairie, Minn., and Rehovot, Israel. Its shares rose $2.40, or 2.8 percent, to $87 in after-hours trading. New York-based MakerBot is privately held.

MakerBot will keep its name, products and strategy as a unit of Stratasys. Stratasys said the purchase will add to its growth, but will reduce net income slightly in 2013 and add to it in 2014.

MakerBot also runs the website Thingiverse.com, which offers a large collection of downloadable digital designs for physical objects.

Microsoft changes Xbox One policies after outcry

NEW YORK — Microsoft is rolling back a much-criticized requirement that its upcoming Xbox One gaming console be regularly connected to the Internet and making clear there will be no limitations on sharing games.

Microsoft Corp. has been criticized for vague statements about whether it will allow Xbox One buyers to play secondhand software. Gamers also expressed distaste for a requirement the console be connected to the Internet once every 24 hours.

Don Mattrick, president of Microsoft's Interactive Entertainment business, said an Internet connection will no longer be required to play games on the Xbox One after its initial setup, and users can share and play games like they have on the Xbox 360.

Mattrick said the changes are in response to feedback received since unveiling plans for the console.

Car quality dinged by tech glitches, survey finds

DETROIT — Car buyers increasingly want high-tech features like voice recognition and navigation. But they're not very forgiving of the car company when those systems fail.

The top complaints in J.D. Power's closely-watched survey of new vehicle owners, released Wednesday, involved technologies that drivers are clamoring for. Voice recognition systems either didn't recognize commands or didn't work at all. Bluetooth systems had trouble connecting with drivers' phones.

The result: Just when automakers had reached their highest-ever levels of quality — as they did in J.D. Power's 2012 survey — technology glitches are dragging their scores down.

"I've had companies tell me they would rather develop a new car from the ground up than a new entertainment system," said Tom Mutchler, program manager of vehicle interface at Consumer Reports.

This year's survey questioned 83,442 owners and lessees of 2013 model year vehicles in their first 90 days of ownership. They were contacted at random through state registration data.

Porsche, GMC, Lexus, Infiniti and Chevrolet topped the rankings, with owners reporting fewer than 100 problems per 100 vehicles. The worst-performing brands were Scion, Fiat, Mitsubishi, Nissan and Mini. Their owners reported 135 problems or more.

Men's Wearhouse ousts founder, pitchman Zimmer

NEW YORK — Men's Wearhouse doesn't like the way its founder looks anymore.

The men's clothier said Wednesday it has fired the face of the company and its executive chairman, George Zimmer, 64, who appeared in many of its TV commercials with the slogan "You're going to like the way you look. I guarantee it."

The company announced the move in a terse statement that gave no reason for the abrupt firing of Zimmer, who built Men's Wearhouse Inc. from one small Texas store using a cigar box as a cash register to one of the North America's largest men's clothing sellers with 1,143 locations.

The firing appears to end the career of one of TV's most recognizable pitchmen. Zimmer's slogan became almost a cultural touchstone, and his natty but down-to-earth charm made dressing sharply feel more accessible to men.

Zimmer said in a written statement that over the past several months he and the company's board disagreed about the company's direction.

"Over the last 40 years, I have built The Men's Wearhouse into a multi-billion dollar company with amazing employees and loyal customers who value the products and service they receive at The Men's Wearhouse," he said in a statement. But he noted that "instead of fostering the kind of dialogue in the boardroom that has, in part, contributed to our success, the board has inappropriately chosen to silence my concerns by terminating me as an executive officer."

Ag alliance says don't overlook Extension Service

We're heading into county budget season, so it wasn't a surprise to hear the Citrus County Agriculture Alliance speak up recently on behalf of the county's Extension Service. This isn't the first time that the Ag Alliance has come out for extension, noting its current short staffing and apparent lack of community awareness of the range of services offered countywide.

Citrus County's Extension office is part of the University of Florida's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences (UF/IFAS). It's a federal/state/county partnership dedicated to developing and disseminating knowledge in agriculture, human and natural resources, and the life sciences, with a goal of sustaining and enhancing the quality of human life.

Nearly 100 years ago, the federal Smith-Lever Act established the Cooperative Extension Service, a partnership between land grant colleges nationwide (including UF) and the U.S. Department of Agriculture to provide scientific knowledge and expertise to the public through educational programs.

Extension offices are located in all 67 Florida counties. Here in Citrus, we have a very small staff. They make available university- and research-based programs and services in health/nutrition, food safety, financial management, water and energy efficiency, Florida-friendly Landscaping, 4-H for youth, and agribusiness, agriculture and commercial horticulture.

Agriculture is a $32.5 million industry in Citrus County; it includes livestock, dairy, citrus, grazing lands, forestry, fisheries, nurseries, blueberries, strawberries and vegetable crops. Extension serves the county's best interests by solidly supporting this vital, successful industry.

THE ISSUE:
It's county budget time — everything's on the table.

OUR OPINION:
The Extension Service deserves support.

Extension helped the county's Ag Alliance get on its feet and over the years has facilitated dozens of business meetings, quarterly educational workshops, trade shows and farm tours. Many residents also have been helped by practical information and guidance from extension's volunteer Master Gardeners. However, when the horticulture agent who managed these programs moved out of state, his position was not filled.

Agriculture isn't just for adults. A local favorite, the "Awesome Ag Day" summer youth education program, involves another important extension program: 4-H. The 4-H youth development clubs here are fortunate to have active adult support and a community foundation to help with funding. The 4-H agent recently left her job, but the position has not been filled.

Extension is a positive force in Citrus County, supporting one of our major industries and our youth, plus it promotes citizen education and engagement. We urge the Board of County Commissioners to fund it adequately.

= Hot Corner: BREAKFAST BUFFET =

Don't gorge

Interesting article in there about somebody wanting a breakfast buffet here in Citrus County. With the obesity rate such as it is, why would you want to sit there and gorge yourself on a breakfast buffet when you can order whatever you want off a menu? Obviously somebody wants to get more for their money than it's worth and I think this is part of the problem we have in the country today. People gorge themselves with food and then wonder why they have health problems.

Look in phone book

This is for the person who was inquiring about a breakfast buffet. Luigi's Restaurant in Homosassa Springs serves an excellent breakfast buffet at a very reasonable price. I'm sure there is more. This can easily be ascertained by opening a phone book and looking under the restaurant section and calling their phone numbers. But again, Luigi's in Homosassa has an excellent breakfast buffet.

Try Golden Corral

This is in reference to the buffet, breakfast buffet thing they had in Sound Off today. Today is Tuesday, June 11. I know that Golden Corral has breakfast buffets Saturday and Sunday. I hope this helps.

Misusing food stamps

In response to the (Sound Off) on the misuse of food stamps: For us to go out and buy lobster tails, birthday cakes for our kids or any of those other items from the grocery store, that is our luxury.

For you who go on vacations to far-off countries and Hawaii or wherever else you may go, or perhaps even your timeshares, if you didn't have all those luxuries, maybe you could afford your lobster tails.

Gas price differences

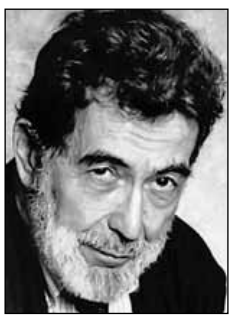
Yesterday, June 8, I had the opportunity to drive south on (U.S.) 19 through Hudson and New Port Richey and Palm Harbor.

I was shocked to see the gas prices at $3.24 a gallon and up here in Citrus County, we pay $3.45 to $4.55.

Could anybody please explain why there's a quarter difference in gas that's only 20 miles apart?

Obama tracking what you say and do

My Jewish parents had changed their lives — inner and outer — by coming to America. When their son was old enough to go to school, they were determined not to send him to the prestigious Hebrew school on the street next to where they lived in Boston.



Nat Hentoff
OTHER VOICES

No, the boy was to be more fully Americanized by taking a sizable walk to the William Lloyd Garrison public elementary school in the neighborhood.

They are no longer here, but I can imagine their hurt had they read this on the front page of the June 7 Wall Street Journal: "The National Security Agency's monitoring of Americans includes customer records from the three major phone networks as well as emails and Web searches, and the agency also has cataloged credit-card transactions" ("U.S. Collects Vast Data Trove," Siobhan Gorman, Evan Perez and Janet Hook).

I would also have shown them a startling story by U.S. reporter and constitutional lawyer Glenn Greenwald, who covers American civil liberties et al, for the British newspaper The Guardian. He found a top-secret Obama program run by the NSA that had direct access to the Internet systems of "Google, Facebook, Apple and other U.S. Internet giants" ("NSA Prism program taps in to user data of Apple, Google and others," Greenwald and Ewen MacAskill, June 6).

Included are huge quantities of personal information about us, such as "search history, the content of emails, file transfers and live chats."

The program is called PRISM.

Were they here, my parents might have asked, "What happened to America?"

"His name," I would tell them, "is Barack Obama."

Greenwald, also my Facebook friend, and MacAskill add that PRISM "facilitates extensive, in-depth surveillance on live communications and stored information. The law allows for the targeting of any customers of participating firms who live outside the U.S., or those Americans whose communications include people outside the U.S."

And, of course, "it also opens the possibility of communications made entirely within the U.S. being collected without warrants."

So you, readers, will know more about your ever-closer companion, PRISM. Barton Gellman and Laura Poitras write that "according to the slides and other supporting materials obtained by The (Washington) Post, 'NSA reporting increasingly relies on (the gigantic) PRISM' as its leading source of raw material, accounting for nearly 1 in 7 intelligence reports" ("U.S., British intelligence mining data from nine U.S. Internet companies in broad secret program," Gellman and Poitras, The Washington Post, June 6).

And, as our re-elected president has become the rule of law, that 1 in 7 number "is a remarkable figure in an agency that measures annual intake in the trillions of communications."

Oh, multiple news outlets have reported that "government officials declined to comment."

Very seldom am I part of a story I'm reporting on, but I may be one of the eventual "persons of interest" after reading this in Greenwald and MacAskill's report: "Disclosure of the PRISM program follows a leak to The Guardian ... of a top-secret court order compelling telecoms provider Verizon to turn over the telephone records of millions of U.S. customers."

Despite the huge volume of calls, it does appear that every one is being monitored. Since my phone calls have long been transmitted by Verizon, this makes me uneasy.

Citing Greenwald's reporting in The Guardian, Stephen Rex Brown writes in the New York Daily News that the court order "requires the carrier to hand over information regarding phone calls — which does not include actual conversations (as if we actually believe that) — on an 'ongoing, daily basis' to the FBI" ("Verizon is giving the feds phone records for all of its U.S. customers: report," Brown, New York Daily News, June 6).

Gee, the FBI has known my phone numbers well since the J. Edgar Hoover era. I'll never know, but I guess they'll find my suspicious "patterns" now on Verizon.

Under the court order, "the information is classed as 'metadata,' or transactional information, rather than communications, and so does not require individual warrants to access" ("NSA collecting phone records of millions of Verizon customers daily," Greenwald, The Guardian, June 5).

Furthermore, the Verizon court order is covered by "the so-called 'business records' provision of the Patriot Act ... That is the provision which (Sen. Ron) Wyden and (Sen. Mark) Udall have repeatedly cited when warning the public of what they believe is the Obama administration's extreme interpretation of the law to engage in excessive domestic surveillance."

Through the Freedom of Information Act, I have part of my FBI record, with decidedly negative comments on what I'd written about the long distances between the Patriot Act and the Constitution.

So what of those of either party who intend to hold on to our American identities against Obama? I suggest that we press those members of Congress who individually represent us to join Republican Sen. Rand Paul's introduction of the "Fourth Amendment Restoration Act of 2013," which, according to his Senate website, "ensures the constitutional protections of the Fourth Amendment are not violated by any government entity."

No matter, I would add, who the president is.

"The bill," says Paul, "restores our constitutional rights and declares that the Fourth Amendment shall not be construed to allow any agency of the United States government to search the phone records of Americans without a warrant based on probable cause" (www.paul.senate.gov).

Here, too, I would expand the act to protect more than just our phone records.

So the senator has introduced the legislation. But how many of you are outraged enough to do anything about what Obama is doing to you — besides spreading the word about Paul's bill? If so, please let me know what that will be.

LETTER to the Editor

Conflicting goals

I enjoyed Cal Thomas's column in the May 31, 2013, Chronicle. I agree 100 percent with his points but I don't call the actions of good Republicans gridlock. They are defending the Constitution and my freedoms. That's not gridlock; it's not caving in to thugs who would destroy the Constitution and the American way of life.

I call on the party to resist the calls of has-beens like Bob Dole and John McCain to remake the party to cater to the entitlement crowd. Marco Rubio has it wrong also. Listen to Rand Paul and Ted Cruz to see the path forward. The majority of our citizens are still motivated by the principles of individual initiative, self-control, personal responsibility, and entrepreneurial capitalism that Cal enumerates. We just need to do a better job of motivating our voters and of getting out the vote. There are still more of us than there are of them. We also have to control wholesale voter fraud.

The Democrats are the party of enslavement. They have run up record levels of debt buying their elections, and the people who will vote for them will never change their minds or their life styles. We need to hold their feet to the fire as their failed schemes unravel as Obamacare is getting ready to do, and count on the good sense of the majority of American citizens to not enslave their children and grandchildren to maintain a cushy standard of living for deadbeats who won't work. There have been more than enough reputable studies published that show we pay these people more to sit on their butts than the average working American makes working.

We have a Marxist president whose agenda is what he calls fairness. It's really the redistribution of wealth and an attempt to turn America into a communist country run by a gang of thugs like Eric Holder. It's time to tell him to honor his oath to "preserve, protect, and defend" the Constitution of the United States.

Some problems Cal lists, I don't know how to solve. The socialists made it a goal to control education, and they have taken it over from pre-K to the Ph.D. level. Most kids coming out of high school and college today are brainwashed to relax and let the government take care of them. Don't bother to study anything hard or productive or that you can make a living from.

We need more artists. How can a local women's club give out a dozen scholarships and half of them went to study political science? A recent article on the top 10 paying jobs in the country all had engineering as the second word in their title.

A similar article on the 10 worst-paying jobs in the country all had art in their title. If you want to do something creative, test and refine a guidance system for a ballistic missile like I did at age 22. Don't draw another picture of a flower like we've been doing for the past 60,000 years.

We lost the last election because the Obama political machine succeeded in uniting a coalition of selfish interests, but sooner or later their goals are going to come into conflict and I can't wait for that day.

Actor James Gandolfini dies in Italy

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — James Gandolfini, whose portrayal of a brutal, emotionally delicate mob boss in HBO's "The Sopranos" helped create one of TV's greatest drama series and turned the mobster stereotype on its head, died Wednesday in Italy. He was 51.

In a statement, the cable channel, and Gandolfini's managers Mark Armstrong and Nancy Sanders, said he died Wednesday while on holiday in Rome. No cause of death was given.

"Our hearts are shattered and we will miss him deeply. He and his family were part of our family for many years and we are all grieving," said Armstrong and Sanders.

HBO called the actor a "special man, a great talent, but more importantly a gentle and loving person who treated everyone, no matter their title or position, with equal respect." The channel expressed sympathy for his wife and children.

Gandolfini played mob boss Tony Soprano in the groundbreaking HBO series that aired from 1999 to 2007. His film credits included "Zero Dark Thirty" and "Killing Them Softly," and he amassed stage credits as well.

He shared a Broadway stage in 2009 with Jeff Daniels, Hope Davis and Marcia Gay Harden in a celebrated production of "God of Carnage," where he earned a Tony Award nomination for best actor. He had also been in "On the Waterfront" with David Morse and was an understudy in a revival of "A Streetcar Named Desire" in 1992 starring Alec Baldwin and Jessica Lange.

James Gandolfini was best known as mob boss Tony Soprano in the HBO cable television mob series, "The Sopranos."

Gandolfini's performance in "The Sopranos" was indelible and career-making, but he refused to be stereotyped as the bulky mobster who was a therapy patient, family man and cold-blooded killer.

After the David Chase series concluded with its breathtaking blackout ending, Gandolfini's varied film work included comedies such as "In the Loop," a political satire, and the heartwarming drama "Welcome to the Rileys," which costarred Kristen Stewart. He voiced the Wild Thing Carol in "Where the Wild Things Are."

In a December 2012 interview with The Associated Press, Gandolfini said he gravitated to acting as a release, a way to get rid of anger. "I don't know what exactly I was angry about," he said.

It attracts people from all walks of life and a wide range of ages, according to CF instructor and graduate Benjamin Tyre, a lieutenant with Marion County Fire Rescue.

He said the 13-month program has an 85 to 90 percent placement rate with graduates working in a variety of settings. But there is a large commitment to get there, he said, with hands-on training, lectures, labs and clinical hours in a hospital. Upon completion students can take the state exam.

"This class is as close to real as real can get," he said. "It's a full-time job. A student's work day can be 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. then 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. plus required studying.

"We have a lot of cutting-edge equipment," he said, describing a patient simulator that can breathe, exhibit a pulse and accept IVs and injections. "And there's a lot things we do trying to make it realistic."

He noted the job is also physically demanding, whether working with heavy patients or working while bouncing down a country road in the back of ambulance.

"The demand for our graduates has been increasing," he said. "When the economy went south the enrollment went through the roof — it's still strong."

IRS critics knock $70M in bonuses

WASHINGTON — Already reeling from a pair of scandals, the Internal Revenue Service is drawing new criticism over plans to hand out millions of dollars in employee bonuses.

The Obama administration has ordered agencies to cancel discretionary bonuses because of automatic spending cuts, but the IRS says it's merely following legal obligations under a union contract.

The agency is about to pay $70 million in employee bonuses, said Sen. Chuck Grassley of Iowa, a senior Republican on the Senate Finance Committee, which has jurisdiction over the IRS.

Grassley said his office has learned that the IRS was to execute an agreement with the employees' union Wednesday to pay the bonuses. Grassley said the bonuses should be canceled under an April directive from the White House budget office.

Eisenhower Memorial gets OK

WASHINGTON — A federal commission charged with building a national memorial honoring President Dwight D. Eisenhower voted unanimously Wednesday to approve architect Frank Gehry's design for a park near the National Mall, allowing the project to move forward over the objections of Eisenhower's family.

Gehry, whose Los Angeles-based firm was selected for the project in 2009, presented some changes to the Eisenhower Memorial Commission before the vote. He plans to add stone or bronze carvings in bas reliefs depicting Eisenhower's accomplishments as Army general and president. The carvings will accompany 9-foot-tall bronze statues of Eisenhower that Gehry added to the design last year.

Three at Annapolis face charges

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The U.S. Naval Academy on Wednesday charged three midshipmen — all current or former football players — with sexually assaulting a female student at an off-campus house in Annapolis more than a year ago.

The academy said in a news release the male midshipmen are being charged with two violations of the Uniform Code of Military Justice. One charge involves rape, sexual assault or other sexual misconduct. The other is for making a false official statement.

The academy did not identify the three male students, and it was not immediately clear if they have an attorney.

Two of the students were football players this past season, but they are not on the team anymore.

Immigration deal forming

Bipartisan group works to forge compromise legislation

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — After secretive talks, key senators expressed optimism Wednesday night that they were closing in on a bipartisan agreement to toughen the border security requirements in immigration legislation that also offers a path to citizenship to millions living in the country illegally.

Under the emerging compromise, the government would grant legal status to immigrants living in the United States unlawfully at the same time the additional security was being put into place. Green cards, which signify permanent residency status, would be withheld until the security steps were complete.

If agreed to, the change has the potential to give a powerful boost to the immigration bill that is at the top of President Barack Obama's second-term domestic agenda.

The developments came as Democrats who met with House Speaker John Boehner during the day quoted him as saying he expects the House to pass its own version of an immigration bill this summer and for Congress to have a final compromise by year's end. Boehner, R-Ohio, has already said the legislation that goes to the House in the next month or two will not include a pathway to citizenship for those in the United States illegally.

Precise details of the pending agreement in the Senate were unavailable, although the legislation already envisions more border agents; additional fencing along the U.S-Mexico border; surveillance drones; a requirement for employers to verify the legal status of potential workers; , as well as a biometric system to track foreigners who enter and leave the United States at air and seaports and by land.

The potential compromise came into focus one day after the Congressional Budget Office jolted lawmakers with an estimate saying that as drafted, the legislation would fail to prevent a steady increase in the future in the number of residents living in the United States illegally.

The estimate appeared to give added credibility to Republicans who have been pressing Democrats to toughen the border security provisions already written into the bill. Schumer and Sen. Bob Menendez, D-N.J., met at midday with Hoeven, and Republican Sens. Bob Corker of Tennessee and Lindsey Graham of South Carolina. The Democrats and Graham are part of the so-called bipartisan Gang of Eight that drafted the bill.

Taking a stand

Turkish soccer fans stand in a silent protest Wednesday in Kugulu Park in Ankara, Turkey. After weeks of sometimes-violent confrontation with police, Turkish protesters have found a new form of resistance: standing still and silent. Nonviolent 'standing man' protests sweep across Turkey

Associated Press

ANKARA, Turkey — Turkey's deputy prime minister gave a nod of approval on Wednesday to a new form of peaceful resistance that is spreading through Turkey.

Although police dispersed pockets of protesters who set up barricades in two Turkish cities overnight, the sometimes violent anti-government demonstrations have largely given way to a passive form of resistance, with people standing motionless.

Hundreds of demonstrators stood still for hours in squares on main streets in several cities, mimicking a lone protester who started the trend Monday on Istanbul's Taksim Square and has been dubbed the "standing man."

In the first direct government comment on the new style of protest, Deputy Prime Minister Bulent Arinc told reporters that such standing protests are peaceful and "pleasing to the eye." However, he also urged demonstrators to avoid obstructing traffic and endangering their own health.

"This is not an act of violence," Arinc said. "We cannot condemn it."

However, Hasan Kilic of the Istanbul Bar Association said as many as 68 people who have taken part in the widespread protests were in custody for alleged links to "terror" groups, while 33 people were being questioned by authorities and faced possible organized crime charges.

More than 3,000 people have been detained then released since the anti-government demonstrations began late last month, said the Human Rights Association.

On Monday night, police dispersed hundreds of standing protesters at Taksim Square, but are now allowing such demonstrations to continue unhindered.

But not everyone is in favor of them.

On Wednesday, eight people, wearing T-shirts that read: "man standing against the standing man" stood in front of "standing man" protesters in an apparent pro-government demonstration. They stayed for half an hour before departing Taksim in taxis.

Turkey's widespread anti-government protests erupted across Turkey on May 31, when riot police brutally cracked down on peaceful environmental activists who opposed plans to remove trees and develop Gezi Park, which lies next to Istanbul's famed Taksim Square.

The protesters also have expressed discontent with what they say is the gradual erosion of freedoms and secular values during Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan's 10 years in office.

Obama vows to cut nuke arsenal

Associated Press

BERLIN — Summoning the harsh history of this once-divided city, President Barack Obama on Wednesday cautioned the U.S. and Europe against "complacency" brought on by peace, pledging to cut America's deployed nuclear weapons by one-third if Cold War foe Russia does the same.

The president also declared that his far-reaching surveillance programs had saved lives on both sides of the Atlantic, as he sought to defend the controversial data-mining to skeptical Europeans.

Associated Press

President Barack Obama takes off his jacket due to warm weather Wednesday while he delivers a speech in front of the Brandenburg Gate in Berlin.

Speaking against the soaring backdrop of the Brandenburg Gate, Obama said that "bold reductions" to the U.S. and Russian nuclear forces were needed to move the two powers away from the war posture that continues to seed mistrust between their governments.

"We may not live in fear of nuclear annihilation, but as long as nuclear weapons exist, we are not truly safe," Obama said as he closed a three-day visit to Europe, his first trip to the continent since winning re-election.

The centerpiece of the president's visit was the afternoon speech at the Brandenburg Gate, where the Berlin Wall once stood, marking divisions between East and West Germany. Obama, standing behind a pane of bulletproof glass, spoke from the gate's East front, a location that would have been inaccessible to an American president in an earlier era.

Attackers hit Venezuela school

CARACAS, Venezuela — A group of masked assailants has attacked a leading university in the Venezuelan capital, torching two buses and seriously damaging its rectory building.

Amalio Belmonte is secretary-general of the Central University of Venezuela. He said about 20 people invaded the campus and shot firearms into the air Wednesday afternoon.

Belmonte said they set one bus on fire near the entrance to a study center and another outside the ground floor of the offices of the rectory.

Dotcom 'in tears' after files deleted

WELLINGTON, New Zealand — Megaupload founder Kim Dotcom said Thursday he was "in tears" after a European company deleted all the data it was hosting from his shuttered file-sharing site.

Netherlands-based LeaseWeb announced it had deleted all Megaupload files from 630 servers.

LeaseWeb said in a statement it hosted the data for more than a year at its own expense without receiving any requests to access it or retain it before deciding the time had come to use the servers for other purposes.

U.S. authorities shut down Megaupload last year and indicted Dotcom and other executives. Prosecutors accuse them of racketeering by facilitating massive copyright fraud.

New MERS virus spreads easily

LONDON — A mysterious new respiratory virus that originated in the Middle East spreads easily between people and appears more deadly than SARS, doctors reported Wednesday after investigating the biggest outbreak in Saudi Arabia.

More than 60 cases of what is now called MERS, including 38 deaths, have been recorded by the World Health Organization in the past year, mostly in Saudi Arabia. So far, illnesses haven't spread as quickly as SARS did in 2003, ultimately triggering a global outbreak that killed about 800 people.

US tries saving Taliban talks

KABUL, Afghanistan — Hopes dimmed for talks aimed at ending the Afghan war when an angry President Hamid Karzai on Wednesday suspended security negotiations with the U.S. and scuttled a peace delegation to the Taliban, sending American officials scrambling to preserve the possibility of dialogue with the militants.

U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry spoke with Karzai on the phone, telling him that his concerns were justified and that he would work to resolve the issue.

An American official, speaking anonymously said he still expects to have the first public meeting with Taliban representatives in the next few days in Qatar but that no exact meeting date has been set.

Tampa Bay salvages final game in Boston

Hellickson pitches six strong innings for Rays

Associated Press

BOSTON — Desmond Jennings homered, Jeremy Hellickson pitched six strong innings and the Tampa Bay Rays ended their drought at Fenway Park, beating the Red Sox 6-2 Wednesday night.

The Rays had scored a total of five runs in losing their first five games this season at the ballpark, including a doubleheader sweep on Tuesday during which they managed a pair of runs on 10 combined hits.

Jose Molina and Evan Longoria each had three of Tampa Bay's 15 hits and the Rays ended a three-game losing streak with their second win in eight games.

After going a combined 1 for 7 in his extended major league debut during Tuesday's doubleheader, top prospect Wil Myers delivered a two-run double during Tampa Bay's three-run seventh that broke the game open.

Rays pitchers retired 16 of the last 18 batters of the game, yielding one hit over the final five frames.

Jacoby Ellsbury and Jonny Gomes had two hits apiece for the Red Sox, who lost for the second time in five games, but still lead Baltimore by 1 1/2 games in the AL East.

Coming off one of his worst outings of the season, Hellickson (5-3) surrendered two runs on seven hits with four strikeouts and no walks. It was a vast improvement from Thursday, when he tied his career-high by allowing eight runs in a 10-1 loss to Kansas City.

Jennings hit his ninth homer with one out in the first, depositing Ryan Dempster's (4-8) sixth pitch of the game into the seats above the Green Monster in left field.

Tampa Bay's Jose Molina scores Wednesday on an RBI single by Ben Zobrist as Boston catcher Jarrod Saltalamacchia waits for the throw in the fifth inning in Boston.

NASCAR drivers among 800 at Leffler funeral

CORNELIUS, N.C. — Sprint Cup drivers Kasey Kahne, Brad Keselowski and Greg Biffle were among more than 800 people who attended the funeral service for NASCAR driver Jason Leffler on Wednesday.

Leffler was killed a week ago when his sprint car crashed into a wall at Bridgeport Speedway in New Jersey.

No coffin was present during the hour-long service for Leffler, who won two Nationwide Series races during his NASCAR career.

Also in attendance was team owner Chip Ganassi.

"I'm sure most people in here will say this is exactly how Jason wanted to go, and that makes it a little easier to handle," said Jeff Dickerson of Spire Sports and Entertainment, which represented Leffler. "But the fact of the matter is, he wasn't ready to go yet. He was having the time of his life racing these cars."

Jags owner: Team focused on four games in London

JACKSONVILLE — Jacksonville owner Shad Khan says the Jaguars are only focused on the one game a year the NFL wants his team to play in London the next four years.

However, NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell recently said the league could ask the Jaguars to play two games a year in London. Khan said Wednesday that he is "going to cross that bridge when we get to it."

Khan was on hand for the Jaguars announcement that the team and the city of Jacksonville would combine on a $63 million project to put new video scoreboards in each end zone for the 2014 season. Each would scoreboard would be 55 by 301 feet, making them the largest of their kind in the world.

Ramirez quits Taiwan baseball after 49 games

TAIPEI, Taiwan — Taiwan's Rhinos said slugger Manny Ramirez is leaving the team after 49 games because he misses his family in New York.

The Rhinos said it tried to keep the 12-time All-Star in Taiwan, including raising his monthly pay to almost $60,000 from $25,000.

Ramirez signed to play the March-to-November season with the Rhinos in Kaohsiung, southern Taiwan. The team's website said the 41-year-old will depart Taiwan on Friday.

Rhinos manager Lee Chia-fan wasn't aware of Ramirez's future plans.

Ramirez played 19 big-league seasons and was selected MVP of the 2004 World Series, when the Red Sox won their first title since 1918.

His last major league appearance was with the Tampa Bay Rays in 2011.

Winner take all

San Antonio Spurs guard Tony Parker, right, guards Miami Heat forward LeBron James on Tuesday during the second half of Game 6 of their NBA Finals series in Miami. The Heat won in overtime to force a Game 7 tonight back in Miami.

A title, and legacies, on the line tonight for Heat, Spurs

Associated Press

MIAMI — Game 7s do more than settle championships. They define legacies.

No matter what happens tonight, LeBron James and the Miami Heat, and Tim Duncan's San Antonio Spurs have already won NBA titles and secured a place in history.

Now is their opportunity to elevate it.

The truly memorable teams won the hard way, and that will be the case for the one celebrating at center court this time. It's either a Heat repeat, possible only after James led them back from what seemed certain elimination in the closing seconds of Game 6, or the Spurs shaking off as gut-wrenching a loss as a team can have to become just the fourth club to win a Game 7 of the NBA Finals on the road.

"As a competitor you love it, because you know you have an opportunity and it's up to you," Heat guard Ray Allen said. "We have a chance in our building to make something great. All of our legacies are tied to this moment, this game. It's something our kids will be able to talk about that they were a part of. Forever will remember these moments, so we want to not live and have any regrets."

Allen played in the game the last time the NBA's season went down to the very last day, the Boston Celtics fading at the finish and falling 83-79 to the Los Angeles Lakers in 2010. That made home teams 14-3 in finals Game 7s, with no road team winning since Washington beat Seattle in 1978.

Overcoming those odds, not to mention the NBA's winningest team, would make this more memorable than the Spurs' previous four titles, though this is a franchise that never dwells too much on the past or looks too far into the future.

All that matters is now.

"You know what, it's all about just winning the title. It's not about situation or what has led up to it," Duncan said. "It's a great story for everybody else, but we're here for one reason, one reason only: It's to try to win this game (Thursday). We have had a very good season thus far, and I think we just want to get to the game more than anything. We just want to see what happens and be able to leave everything out there."

The teams trudged back to the arena Wednesday, some 12 hours after the Heat pulled out a 103-100 overtime victory in Game 6 to even the series. The Spurs, five points ahead with 28 seconds left in regulation, had to fight off fatigue and heartbreak, insisting neither would linger into today.

By far the best game of this series, Game 6 immediately took its place among the best finishes in finals history, with everything from James' triple-double to Allen's tying 3-pointer with 5.2 seconds left in regulation.

It had close calls, debatable decisions, and the NBA's best player at his very best when his team needed him most.

Games 2-5 in the series had been ugly, but that one was a beauty.

Woods to rest elbow, skip AT&T National

Associated Press

Tiger Woods reacts after hitting during the U.S. Open on June 15 at Merion Golf Club in Ardmore, Pa. Woods said Wednesday doctors found a strain in his left elbow and advised he take a few weeks off for rest and treatment.

Associated Press

In little more than a month, Tiger Woods went from being tough to beat to having a tough time even playing.

Woods said Wednesday that soreness in his left elbow would keep him from defending his title next week in the AT&T National at Congressional, and that he would not compete again until the British Open next month at Muirfield.

This is the sixth straight year that injury has kept him from either playing a tournament or finishing one.

The culprit this time is a strain in his left elbow. The problem first became apparent during the opening round of the U.S. Open last week at Merion, when he was flexing his left wrist or dangling his arm behind his back after shots out of the thick, punishing rough.

"I was examined after I returned home from the U.S. Open, and the doctors determined I have a left elbow strain," Woods said on his website. "I have been advised to take a few weeks off, rest and undergo treatment. I'll be ready to go for the British Open, and I'm looking forward to playing at Muirfield."

His injury is a blow to the AT&T National, which benefits the Tiger Woods Foundation. This will be the third time since it began in 2007 that Woods has missed the tournament because of injury — knee surgery in 2008, his left Achilles tendon in 2011 and an elbow injury this year.

"Any time you have Tiger in the field, it certainly adds to it a lot," tournament director Greg McLaughlin said. "But we have a very nice field this year and we look forward to a great AT&T National."

Masters champion Adam Scott and U.S. Open champion Justin Rose are among those scheduled to play.

McLaughlin said Woods is to be at Congressional at least on Wednesday to take part in the opening ceremonies.

Davis' 2 HRs help Orioles blast Tigers 13-3

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Hanley Ramirez capped a six-hit day with a pair of RBI singles, Yasiel Puig homered to complete a dazzling debut in New York and the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Yankees 6-0 Wednesday for a split of their day-night doubleheader.

The Dodgers salvaged manager Don Mattingly's return to the Bronx after a 6-4 loss in the opener.

Chris Capuano (2-5) pitched three-hit ball for six innings in his comeback from the disabled list. The Dodgers rebounded from a sloppy loss to former teammate Hiroki Kuroda (7-5) in a matchup between injury-ravaged teams with $200 payrolls.

Kuroda shut down his former team into the seventh inning, Ichiro Suzuki homered and drove in three runs, and the Yankees spoiled Mattingly's return to the Bronx with a 6-4 victory over the sloppy Dodgers in the opener.

Lyle Overbay hit a two-run double against South Korean rookie Hyun-Jin Ryu (6-3) in the first game in New York between the old October rivals since Los Angeles clinched the 1981 World Series title with a victory in Game 6 at the original Yankee Stadium. The teams that have met in a record 11 World Series — eight won by the Yankees — never faced off in interleague play at the Stadium before this week.

American League Orioles 13, Tigers 3

DETROIT — Chris Davis cleared the fences twice, giving him a major-league leading 26 homers, to help the Baltimore Orioles beat the Detroit Tigers 13-3.

Davis hit a two-run homer and Taylor Teagarden followed with a three-run home run in Baltimore's six-run fourth. Against embattled reliever Jose Valverde, Davis hit another two-run shot for his second multihomer game of the season and the fifth of his career.

Chris Tillman (8-2) gave up three runs and seven hits over five-plus innings. He became the third pitcher in franchise history to win his first six decisions on the road, joining Jeff Ballard (1989) and Hoyt Wilhelm (1959).

Indians 6, Royals 3

CLEVELAND — Justin Masterson managed to hang around for 6 1/3 innings and win for the sixth time at home, leading the Cleveland Indians to a 6-3 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Masterson (9-5) sidestepped some early trouble without giving up any runs and improved to 6-1 with a 2.29 ERA in nine starts at Progressive Field. The right-hander struck out eight while allowing two runs and nine hits.

Michael Brantley hit a pair of solo homers for the up-and-down Indians, who moved within 3 1/2 games of first-place Detroit in the AL Central. Mike Aviles drove in two runs and Michael Bourn scored twice for Cleveland.

Twins 7, White Sox 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Justin Morneau homered for the first time in almost two months, a two-run shot that helped the Minnesota Twins to a 7-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Morneau's third homer of the season followed an RBI single by Josh Willingham in the sixth off Deunte Heath after White Sox ace Chris Sale's night ended after five shaky innings. Morneau last went deep on April 28. The 2006 AL MVP has three seasons of 30-plus homers.

Brian Dozier reached base four times for the Twins, including a three-run homer in the second against Sale (5-6).

Glen Perkins pitched a perfect ninth for the second game in a row, recording his 18th save in 20 tries, after Kevin Correia (6-4) pitched into the seventh.

National League Braves 5, Mets 3

ATLANTA — Chris Johnson homered for the first time in more than a month, Kris Medlen overcame a defensive blunder and the Atlanta Braves bounced back from a doubleheader sweep, beating the New York Mets 5-3.

Johnson hit a three-run homer in the fourth, his first time going deep since May 13. Jordan Schafer put the Braves ahead to stay with some gutsy baserunning in the fifth, scoring on a wild pitch that didn't even roll off the dirt around home plate.

Medlen (4-7) pitched seven-plus innings for his third win in four starts this month, even though he cost himself two unearned runs with an errant throw.

Shaun Marcum (0-9) took another loss, becoming just the third pitcher in Mets history to start a season dropping nine straight decisions.

Diamondbacks 3, Marlins 1

PHOENIX — Cody Ross hit a three-run, pinch-hit home run in the eighth inning to spoil an outstanding outing by Miami's young Jose Fernandez, and the Arizona Diamondbacks held off the Marlins 3-1.

Fernandez (4-4) retired 14 in a row before walking two of the three batters he faced in the eighth. He was relieved by left-hander Mike Dunn, who gave up the home run to Ross on a 1-2 pitch.

Arizona starter Trevor Cahill left after a line drive bruised his right hip in the first. Josh Collmenter allowed one hit in six innings of relief.

Justin Ruggiano homered off Heath Bell to start the ninth. Bell held on to get his 13th save in 15 tries.

Nationals 6, Phillies 2, 11 inn.

PHILADELPHIA — Ian Desmond hit a grand slam in the 11th inning and the Washington Nationals beat the Philadelphia Phillies 6-2, avoiding a three-game sweep.

Jayson Werth's RBI single with two outs in the ninth tied it off Jonathan Papelbon, who blew a save for the second time in three nights after starting the season 13 for 13.

Starters Kyle Kendrick and Gio Gonzalez both were outstanding, but wound up with no-decisions.

Kendrick allowed one run and two hits, striking out six in 7 2/3 innings. Gonzalez gave up two runs and two hits, tying a career-high with 11 strikeouts in seven innings. He didn't allow a hit after the second batter.

Giants 4, Padres 2

SAN FRANCISCO — Gregor Blanco had a pinch hit, two-run triple in the seventh inning, leading the San Francisco Giants to a 4-2 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Brandon Belt and Marco Scutaro also drove in runs as the Giants won their second straight following a three-game slide.

Will Venable and Jesus Guzman each hit home runs for the Padres, who have lost two straight after a seven-game winning streak.

Madison Bumgarner (7-4) won his third straight start after allowing two runs on three hits over seven innings.

Cardinals 4, Cubs 1

ST. LOUIS — Yadier Molina hit his fifth home run and Jake Westbrook pitched seven innings of two-hit ball in the St. Louis Cardinals' 4-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs 4-1.

Westbrook (3-2) worked around trouble almost the entire night in his second start since coming off the disabled list with a sore elbow. He gave up no earned runs, striking out two and walking three.

Edward Mujica pitched a perfect ninth inning for his 21st save in 21 attempts.

Edwin Jackson (3-9) was pulled after he hit Jon Jay following Molina's blast to left field. He pitched 5 1/3 innings, allowing four earned runs on six hits. He struck out one and walked two.

Interleague Blue Jays 5, Rockies 2

TORONTO — Adam Lind hit a three-run home run, Mark Buehrle won his second straight start and the Toronto Blue Jays earned their eighth consecutive victory, beating the Colorado Rockies 5-2 to complete a three-game sweep.

Carlos Gonzalez hit his NL-leading 21st home run, but the Rockies lost for the sixth time in eight games.

Buehrle (4-4) allowed two runs and eight hits in five innings. Casey Janssen finished for his 16th save in 17 chances.

Nadal seeded No. 5 for Wimbledon

Associated Press

If Rafael Nadal is going to win Wimbledon for a third time, he'll have to do it the hard way.

Fresh from winning his eighth French Open, Nadal is seeded only No. 5 at Wimbledon — setting up the possibility of a quarterfinal match against title contenders Roger Federer, Novak Djokovic or Andy Murray.

The All England Club released the seedings Wednesday for this year's grass-court Grand Slam, which starts Monday. The top five in the ATP rankings remain in their positions: Djokovic at No. 1, followed by Murray, Federer, David Ferrer and Nadal.

Nadal slipped down the rankings after being sidelined for about seven months with a left knee injury following his surprise loss to Lukas Rosol in the second round at Wimbledon last year.

The Spaniard has won seven of the nine tournaments he has entered in his comeback — including the French Open last month — but he still fell to No. 5 after Roland Garros behind the man he beat in the final — Ferrer.

Wimbledon's seeding order is determined using the ATP rankings and points are added for achievements in grass-court tournaments in the past 12 months.

The All England Club could have moved Nadal up to No. 4 ahead of Ferrer but decided to stick to the rankings.

The women's seedings follow the WTA rankings, with five-time Wimbledon champion Serena Williams at No. 1 and Victoria Azarenka at No. 2. Serena's sister, Venus Williams, withdrew Tuesday, citing a back injury.

While Nadal was losing to then-No. 100 Rosol in one of the biggest upsets in Wimbledon history last year, Ferrer reached the quarterfinals for the first time in 10 attempts before losing in four sets to Murray.

Although clay is Ferrer's best surface, he has twice won the Dutch grass-court title at Rosmalen. However, he lost his first-round match there this year to Xavier Malisse on Tuesday.

Nadal may have to beat all of the world's top three players if he is to add to his Wimbledon titles in 2008 and '10, two of his 12 Grand Slam championships. He will find out when the draw is held on Friday.

"I'd sign up to be in the quarterfinals against Rafa tomorrow if someone offered me that," Murray said in his column for the BBC website. "You could say if I get through that match, then the semifinal might not be as tough, but if you want to win the biggest tournaments you have to beat the best players in the world.

"It doesn't really matter where they are in the draw."

Jo-Wilfried Tsonga jumped one spot in the seedings to No. 6, with Tomas Berdych dropping a place to No. 7. Marin Cilic, runner-up at the Queen's Club tournament on Sunday, moves up to No. 10 from an ATP ranking of 12.

American player John Isner jumped from 21 to 18.

Serena Williams sorry for rape case comments

Serena Williams said she's reaching out to the family of the victim in the Steubenville rape case after the tennis star was quoted in a Rolling Stone article saying "she shouldn't have put herself in that position."

In a statement released through her agent Wednesday, Williams said: "What was written — what I supposedly said — is insensitive and hurtful, and I by no means would say or insinuate that she was at all to blame."

The comment was made in one paragraph of a lengthy story posted online Tuesday about Williams, a 16-time Grand Slam title winner who is ranked No. 1 heading into Wimbledon, which starts next week.

Two players from the Steubenville, Ohio, high school football team were convicted in March of raping a drunken 16-year-old girl.

Wambach needs three goals to break record

HARRISON, N.J. — Replacing Mia Hamm as the all-time leading goal scorer for the United State women's soccer team can't happen soon enough for Abby Wambach.

Thursday against South Korea at Red Bull Arena would be just fine for the 33-year-old Rochester, N.Y., native. Anything to get the record out of the way.

Wambach moved within two goals of Hamm's mark of 158 tallies Saturday, scoring on a penalty kick in a 4-1 win over South Korea in Foxborough, Mass. It gave her four goals in 10 games this year.

BOSTON — A Boston woman said her son was the man found dead in an industrial park about a mile from New England Patriot Aaron Hernandez's home in Massachusetts.

Ursula Ward said police told her the body was that of her son Odin Lloyd. He was a semi-pro football player for the Boston Bandits.

Police have been at Hernandez's home in North Attleborough for two days. Sports Illustrated cited an unidentified source in reporting that Hernandez was not believed to be a suspect in a possible homicide.

Hernandez's attorney said his client is not commenting for now.

Former Giants punter Dave Jennings dies at 61

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Former New York Giants punter and radio analyst Dave Jennings has died. He was 61.

The Giants announced that Jennings died at his home in Upper Saddle River on Wednesday morning. The team was informed of his death by his sister Susan Jennings and several close friends.

The most prolific punter in Giants history, Jennings had battled Parkinson's disease, a chronic degenerative neurological disorder, since 1996.

Jennings played for the Giants from 1974-84. He holds the franchise records for punts (931 — 405 more than second-place Sean Landeta) and yards (38,792). Jennings was selected to play in the Pro Bowl in 1978, '79, '80 and '82.

After leaving the Giants, Jennings punted for the Jets from 1985-87. He worked as a radio commentator for Jets games from 1988-2001.

In 2002, Jennings moved into the Giants radio booth. He was also a part of the Giants pregame and postgame shows. Jennings was replaced in the booth by Carl Banks after the 2007 season and left broadcasting the following year.

GAME 7

"I think — I know — that game will go down as one of the best finals games that's been seen," Heat guard Dwyane Wade said. "But I think this series will go down as being one of the most competitive, bizarre series that's been seen. So this is what you pay for to watch. You pay to watch two great teams battle to the very, very end, and that's what we'll do (Thursday). It will be to the very last second."

The Heat could become the NBA's first repeat champions since the Lakers in 2010. James and Chris Bosh moved to Miami to join Wade a few weeks later and they are in the finals for the third time in three chances.

But playing for titles is more expected than celebrated now in Miami, and a 66-win season that included a 27-game winning streak — and perhaps the whole Big Three era — goes down as a failure if the Heat fall today. Yet James said he doesn't need the victory to validate his decision to take his talents to South Beach.

"I mean, I need it because I want it and I only came here — my only goal is to win championships," he said. "I said it, this is what I came here for. This is what I wanted to be a part of this team for."

He, Wade and Bosh are going for No. 2, while San Antonio is getting a second shot at what would be a fourth together for Duncan, Tony Parker and Manu Ginobili. All their years together have given the Spurs' trio the belief they can bounce back from Tuesday's collapse.

The team went to dinner after the game, Duncan figuring that was better than guys sitting alone with their thoughts in their rooms. Parker and Boris Diaw discussed a similar situation with the French national team in the 2005 European championships, when they blew a late lead against Greece in the semifinals but then came back to beat Spain for the bronze medal.

"We just have to be positive and forget Game 6," Parker said. "It was a great opportunity, but that's life. It's basketball and everybody will be ready."

So will James, who was planning a relaxing night with family and friends Wednesday. He has the most at stake in the game, and when it's over he'll be either a two-time NBA Finals MVP or a two-time loser in a Heat uniform.

"I want to go down as one of the greatest. I want our team to go down as one of the greatest teams. And we have an opportunity to do that," James said. "Hasn't been many teams to win back-to-back championships. It's so hard. It's the hardest thing. I said last year it was the hardest thing I've ever done, winning my first. Last year don't even come close to what we've gone through in this postseason and in these finals.

"So I'll be there (Thursday) night. I'm going to give it my all."

The Spurs have never lost in the finals, but they've never faced a situation quite like this. They won a Game 7 for the 2005 championship, but that victory over Detroit was at home. The last five finals that went the distance all went to the home team.

Nighttime is the right time

Matthew Beck
FISHTALES

Recently I had the not-so-pleasant experience of climbing onto my roof to cross off a couple "honey do" tasks from an ever-increasing list. The work wasn't all that tough but the oppressive heat was.

As most know summer is relentless in Florida and it can make spending time outdoors arduous.

While wringing in sweat cleaning the skylights and gutters I couldn't help but wish I was bass fishing. But the thought also crossed my mind I would have to contend with the heat there, too.

Instead of suffering through temperatures in the mid-90's during the day anglers can choose fishing during the relatively cooler nighttime temperatures.

There are a few factors associated with night fishing for largemouth. This week we will cover a few of the basics and in two weeks we'll cover some of the area's best locations, lures for night fishing and a bit of bass biology.

The clear lakes and rivers in Central Florida make for perfect locations for night fishing. Clear water is a key to a productive night-fishing lake in Florida.

Locally, the Tsala Apopka Chain, Lake Rousseau and the Rainbow River (one of Rousseau's tributaries) are great places to explore after dark.

Be aware, a body of water takes on a whole new life after the moon rises. It looks, feels and fishes differently.

And the fish act differently too.

Bass have clearly adapted to creating havoc on unsuspecting critters on the water's surface. With a protruding lower jaw and bulging eyes situated on top of its head the largemouth bass has evolved into a premier, nocturnal predator of the freshwater.

A bass' strike zone, it's willingness to chase a meal down, is generally greater at night and they seem more willing to crash an artificial lure. By knowing this an angler can get away with heavier line and larger lures increasing chances at landing a trophy bass.

In the late 1980's I was very green in the ways of bass fishing — along with just about everything else.

Not long after moving here from college I learned from a couple old-school bass fishermen what night fishing is all about. These men were bass tournament veterans and knew nighttime gives up some of a lake's largest bass.

One July night in 1988 stands out. My friend and I set out for a night of fishing on Lake Hernando shortly before sunset and by the time the sun rose in the east we had caught more than 40 bass. Three of those fish were giants, including one topping 10 pounds. I was hooked.

Today, some 25 years later, I still carry one lesson I learned on that night long ago. It had nothing to do with the rod and reel I used, the type of line I cast or the lure I employed.

Of the 40-some bass caught that night all but four were caught during the forecast two-hour, "major feeding period."

My older, more experienced fishing partner explained I should start to pay attention to solunar tables to determine the major and minor feeding periods. I have seen the forecast feeding times prove themselves countless times. A quick internet search for solunar tables will get you started.

The effect the moon has on our world is dramatic, although we often don't notice. The moon not only moves the tides but it also inspires fish and game activity.

Another thing I learned through the years is there are better times of the month to fish than others.

I've experienced the two weeks leading up to the full moon is better for catching large bass where the two weeks after the full moon are better for smaller fish but larger numbers of them. This is true for daytime as well as night.

There are a couple of other important things you should keep in mind when launching your boat after dark.

Your boat's safety equipment is critical. Make sure your bow and stern lights are operational. Years ago I fished a night tournament on the Suwannee River and one of the competitors ran through the middle of an anchored house boat that wasn't properly lighted.

Tell somebody where you're going and keep a charged cell phone with you. On-the-water problems seem to be amplified at night and being able to reach a friend, loved one or 911 in the event of an emergency is peace of mind.

Another important tip to keep in mind is to know the body of water you are fishing. Things look drastically different at night. Knowing where you are will save you a lot of time, gas and aggravation trying to find your way back to the boat ramp. A GPS can solve this problem.

If you've not tried fishing at night, give it a try. Make sure your safety equipment is operational, pay attention to the moon phase and peak-feeding periods and know the water.

Enjoy the outdoors under the moon light.

Bonefish, tarpon released in future

TIGHT LINES

New regulations have come out of the June meeting of the Florida Fish & Wildlife Conservation Commission meeting, but the best news of all may be the Commission's decision to simplify some of the wording in existing and future regulations. As anyone who has tried to wade through the sometimes-convoluted and always-complicated rules knows, some simplification is overdue. If FWC will guarantee all regulations will be searchable, that would be a great start.

I recall being totally frustrated a few years ago, trying to locate a specific regulation concerning blue claw crabs, with no success. I even read through many pages to find a notation, and clipped and pasted the exact phrase into the "search" feature, only to come up empty. I was later told by someone far more knowledgeable about Windows and associated programs that the document I was searching was not actually a portable data file, but a photo of one, and that's why the search feature didn't work. Don't know how true that is, but no regulation should thwart any search by word or phrase.

As predicted here last fall, the snook season will reopen in Gulf waters Sept. 1. Limits will be one fish per person per day, with a slot limit of 28 to 33 inches. There will be closed seasons from Dec. 1 through February (because cold water makes them lethargic and easy prey for unethical anglers), and again from May 1 through Aug. 31, which is when snook generally spawn, statewide. The Atlantic snook season will also reopen on Sept. 1, with a slot size limit from 28 to 32 inches.

Also effective Sept. 1, bonefish and tarpon will become catch-and-release, hook-and-line only, with some modifications to the types of gear used to target tarpon specifically in Boca Grande Pass. All harvest of tarpon will be eliminated, with the exception that an angler may be in possession of a single tarpon when in pursuit of an IGFA record and in conjunction with a tarpon tag. Tags will be limited to one per person per year, except for charter boat captains, and will run for a calendar year instead of the current period of July through June.

Transport or shipment of tarpon will become limited to one fish per person, with a one-per-vessel limit. Temporary possession for the purpose of photographing and measuring, and scientific sampling, will be allowed, with the stipulation that tarpon 40 inches or greater in length must remain in the water. All these regulations will extend into federal waters.

With respect to bonefish, the tournament exemption permit is eliminated (it allowed tournament anglers with the proper permit to possess bonefish while transporting them to a tournament scale).

Tight Lines to you.

From blockbuster movie epics to little independent "sleeper" films, the world of make-believe is a welcome escape from the steamy days of summer.

Summertime is when many films are released that focus on fantasy, animation and adventure for both children and adults seeking escape from the tedious heat.

A trip to the theater is a refreshing interlude, but nowadays you can also rent DVD's from sources that offer thousands of films both classic and brand new to play on your television, tablet or phone.

And whether you opt for time out in a theater or on your own sofa or recliner, watching a favorite movie calls for tasty snacks – from hot buttered popcorn to soft drinks to something sweet for a finale.

Back in the day in the early 20th century, the public was introduced to motion pictures via silent films that relied on piano or organ accompaniment to enhance the viewing pleasure. Any food or beverage was sold at vendors outside the theater.

When sound became part of the movie world, there was a new emphasis on attracting patrons to theaters not only with good films, but also refreshments on the premises.

Caramel popcorn

INGREDIENTS:

- 16 cups freshly-popped popcorn
- 2 cups roasted, lightly salted Spanish peanuts
- 1/2 cup (1 stick) unsalted butter
- 3/4 cup packed brown sugar
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup
- 2 tablespoons molasses
- 1/2 teaspoon table salt
- 1 teaspoon pure vanilla
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- Sea salt, to taste

DIRECTIONS:

Preheat oven to 250 degrees. Transfer the popped corn to a large stock pot (or divide between 2 large mixing bowls), discarding any unpopped kernels. Add the peanuts and toss to combine,

Melt butter in a heavy saucepan over medium heat. Whisk in brown sugar, corn syrup, molasses, and salt. Increase heat to medium-high and bring to a gentle boil, stirring occasionally, until the temperature reads 250 degrees on a candy thermometer, about 5 to 8 minutes. Remove from the heat and stir in vanilla and baking soda. Working quickly, pour the hot caramel into the pot and gently toss until the popped corn and nuts are evenly coated. (Using your hands to gently combine the mixture is easier after the caramel has cooled just a bit. You can wear gloves if desired.)

Divide the popcorn mixture in half between 2 greased baking sheets, spreading into a thin, even layer. Bake, stirring every 15 minutes, for 50 minutes. Sprinkle Cracker Jack with a little sea salt and allow to cool in pans for 20 minutes. Separate the popcorn into individual pieces with your hands before serving. This is best eaten the day it's made but can be stored in an airtight container for up to 3 days.

OVER EASY

Easy summer recipe ideas

Very often when we are deciding what to fix for dinner or a snack during the summer months, an overriding concern is how to do that without heating up the kitchen. Keeping cool is the goal.

With that in mind, I've accumulated several tasty and interesting recipes to make summer cooking a bit easier. Even the baked items are done quickly. All in one crockpot meals are a boon during the hot and humid months where the only thing hot is what is simmering in the pot.

Before we get to the recipes here is cool tip for kids: During popsicle and ice cream bar season, poke the stick end through the center of a heavy duty paper or aluminum cupcake holder to catch all the drips and keep little (and big) hands clean.

Steak dinner in a crockpot

DIRECTIONS:

Place a thick 3/4-inch steak in crockpot. Pour a 1/2 cup A1 or Heinz 57 sauce over meat. Cover with a layer of foil. Add foil-wrapped potatoes and foil wrapped frozen corn cobs. Cook on low for 6 hours. Full steak dinner any night of the week. Can also be done with thick pork chops or chicken breasts and barbecue sauce. A whole meal in your slow cooker.

Easy fried pies

INGREDIENTS:

- 1 pack of flour tortillas
- Pie filling of your choice (apple, cherry or blueberry, for example)

DIRECTIONS:

Heat tortilla for about 10 seconds in microwave. Spoon a tablespoon or two of pie filling in the middle. Brush the outside edges of the tortilla with water. Fold over. Press edges together with a fork. Deep fry or pan fry. Drain on paper towels. Dust with confectioners sugar or sugar and cinnamon blend.

Green chile taco pie

INGREDIENTS:

- 1 can (8 ounces) refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
- 1 pound lean ground beef
- 3/4 cup favorite salsa
- 2 tablespoons taco

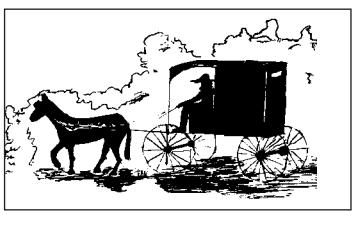
Wedding evokes creativity in baking



Lovina Eicher
THE AMISH COOK

Yesterday was the wedding of nephew Noah and Ruby in northern Indiana. They had a big wedding with lots of friends and family attending from various communities in Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Missouri, New York, Wisconsin, Kentucky, and possibly more states.

I went to help prepare for the wedding on Saturday. We cut up and cleaned 400 pounds of chicken and baked pecan pies. The rhubarb and blueberry pies were baked on Monday. More than 90 pies were baked for the wedding. On Monday, daughter Elizabeth and I finished sewing our dresses for the wedding. It sure was a relief to get those done.

The menu for the wedding noon meal was barbecue chicken, mashed potatoes, gravy, noodles, dressing, mixed vegetables, lettuce salad, cottage cheese salad, sliced cheese, homemade bread, butter and strawberry jam, date pudding, mixed fruit, white angel food cake, with strawberry topping and rhubarb, pecan and blueberry pies. For the evening meal they added ham, strawberries and ice cream to the menu. They had 16 couples paired to serve as table-waiters. Three couples were coffee servers. Daughter Elizabeth and Timothy were table-waiters.

Each of us cooks were assigned to different jobs. I had to help slice the loaves of bread and cut the cakes. When our job was finished, there were plenty of dishes to wash. We all had a turn to help serve at one of the meals – filling all the bowls for the table-waiters to pass out. I had to serve potatoes for supper. It was nice to see and visit with a lot of our aunts, uncles,and cousins who we don't often see.

The remaining part of the week will be spent cleaning everything for church services here again on Sunday. Our house was all cleaned very well before the first services so we will just have to re-clean where needed.

The boys are weeding the garden now. The weeds sure are starting to take over. We have been having some nice rains that we appreciate even more since the drought last year. The benches are still stacked up in the basement from the last church services. They will just have to be set again Friday or Saturday.

Daughter Elizabeth turned 19 on Friday. How the years have flown by! Sister Emma and Jacob have been married

SNACKS

Baby Ruths, Raisinets, Milk Duds and others made it into concession stands across the nation.

Sugar rationing during World War II impacted candy making and sales, but popcorn enjoyed a new status as the top snack and became the most beloved munchable during feature films, double features and newsreels.

The end of the war years in the 1940s saw a big return to candy variety when sugar was once again readily available. Sweetened soft drinks grew in popularity and some of the newer candies included Chuckles, Black Crows, Goobers, M&Ms, Junior Mints, Powerhouse and Butterfinger candy.

Long before multiplex theaters were built at the Crystal River Mall and in Inverness in the early 1990s, both cities were home to old fashioned movie houses, the Valerie Theatre In downtown Inverness and the Springs Theatre on Citrus Avenue in Crystal River.

The Valerie was built in the mid-1920s, according to the City of Inverness historic information on its website. It was owned by Mrs. P.G. Maddox and leased by Herbert Pittman of Clearwater when the "talkies" started replacing silent movies.

It was noted that "to compete with the Avalon Theatre on North Apopka Avenue, movie prices were cut to 10 cents for children and 25 cents for adults." Eventually, the city council approved permitting Sunday movies in an effort to spur the local economy.

There is an ongoing citizen effort to study the restoration and preservation of the Valerie Theatre.

The Springs Theatre in Crystal River fell into major disrepair during the 1980s and '90s and was eventually razed, thus leveling a host of movie memories for the older population of the city.

Almost everyone has memories of their childhood movie experiences, from watching cowboy heroes such as Roy Rogers, Gene Autry and Hopalong Cassidy, to sparkling technicolor musicals starring icons Doris Day, Cyd Charisse and Gene Kelly, to black and white film dramas with such stars as Jimmy Cagney and Humphrey Bogart.

In the 1940s and early 1950s, you could cough up less than a quarter and see a first-run film or double feature, several cartoons and a movie serial on a Saturday afternoon. A box of popcorn was about one thin dime and there were nickel candy bars.

Times have changed and so has the cost of of movies, but you can still enjoy delicious treats that go so well with watching white-knuckle adventures or tear-jerking dramas.

A menu board showing calorie counts hangs at a Starbucks in New York. The Seattle-based coffee chain says it will start posting calorie counts on menu boards nationwide next week, ahead of a federal regulation that would require it to do so.

Wake-up call: Starbucks to post calorie counts

CANDICE CHOI
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Starbucks has a new way to wake up its customers: showing the calories in its drinks.

The Seattle-based coffee chain says it will start posting calorie counts on menu boards nationwide next week, ahead of a federal regulation that would require it to do so.

Calorie counts on menus are already required in some parts of the country, including New York City.

But starting June 25, Starbucks Corp. says customers at its more than 11,000 U.S. locations will be able to see that there are 300 calories in a small caramel Frappuccino and 230 calories in a small Iced Caffe Mocha.

Pastry cases will also show calorie information, in case customers want to save some calories and opt for a Morning Bun (350 calories) instead of a blueberry scone (460 calories).

The move by Starbucks comes as the Food and Drug Administration irons out the details of a regulation that would require companies with more than 20 locations to post calorie information on their menus. Other chains including McDonald's Corp. have also moved ahead with posting the information, saying they're providing it to be more transparent rather than because they're being forced to.

In its announcement, Starbucks highlighted the various steps it has taken over the years to give customers choices, such as adding sugar-free syrup in 1997 and making 2 percent milk the standard for core beverages in North America in 2007.

The company notes that it already provides nutrition information on its website, through its iPhone app and with printed brochures in cafes. It also says there are numerous ways people can reduce the calories in their drinks, such as by asking for non-fat milk, sugar-free syrup or no whipped cream.

A representative for the company did not know what percentage of customers ask to have their drinks customized.

It's not clear how posted calorie counts affect what people choose to order. But in announcing its plans to post calorie information nationwide last year, the head of McDonald's USA at the time said that providing the information doesn't really change the company's overall menu mix.

For the first time, Citrus County Parks & Recreation is offering to take its "Movie in the Park" production to more communities.

Recently, the movie under the stars at Citrus Hills' Skyview Golf Club was a great success.

Smith said some visitors who attended the event must have been guests of the Citrus Hills members, because he has received phone calls from other communities inquiring about scheduling an outdoor event in their community.

Bridge

PHILLIP ALDER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Jim Rohn, a motivational speaker and author, said, "The few who do are the envy of the many who only watch."

At the bridge table, the few who watch are the envy of the many who look but do not take the next vital step.

The play theme in today's deal catches out many less experienced players. They do not watch their losers or then work out how to eliminate the one that they cannot afford.

South is in four spades. West leads the heart queen. How would a watchful declarer play?

North used a transfer bid. On the next round, he was borderline between rebidding two no-trump and three no-trump. He was swayed by the good spade-suit quality into jumping to game. (Do not commit your side to a high-level spade contract unless you know of at least an eight-card fit. Here, South might have only a doubleton spade.) South, despite his 4-3-3-3 distribution, corrected to the nine-card fit. Note that three no-trump would fail after a heart lead. Those missing aces are fatal.

An observant South will see four potential losers: one in each suit. It is impossible to do anything about the three aces, so declarer must work out how to avoid conceding a heart trick.

If South plays a trump at trick two, East should win and return a heart, condemning the contract. Instead, declarer must lead a club at trick two. Suppose West ducks this trick, takes the second club, and plays another heart. South wins and cashes his last club, discarding dummy's remaining heart. Now, finally, it is time to tackle trumps.

ANNIE'S MAILBOX

Dear Annie: Our oldest son, "Adam," lives two hours away with his wife, "Eve," and their three children. One child, "Hayden," is Eve's from a prior relationship. She married Adam when the boy was 3. The biological father is irresponsible and alcoholic but loves Hayden and sees him when he can.

Hayden is now 13 and a good student, and he works hard to please his parents. We love and cherish him and consider him our own grandson. But we are heartsick that Adam and Eve seem to single him out for unkind treatment. They take him to task constantly for minor infractions. They fling insults and belittling comments at him. He is scolded for the tone of his voice, his posture, mannerisms and nearly everything he says. His parents sometimes make him stand in a corner. It's humiliating for him. His siblings are not treated this way.

Hayden is basically a good and decent boy, and his parents seem to resent him. We are worried sick that if this treatment continues, he will rebel, and we won't like the consequences. Hayden deserves better. Is there anything we can do to help without offending my son? We once brought this up, and they resented our intrusion. We hesitate to take that road again. What can we do? — Worried Grandparents

Dear Grandparents: Belittling, insulting and humiliating one's child — at any age — is angry, inappropriate parenting. Since your son and his wife do not want your input, we suggest you offer to take Hayden for weekends or over the summer for a couple of weeks (or more) if you can manage it. He and his parents could use a break from one another. It isn't a substitute for better parenting, but it will help. You also can suggest to Hayden that he speak to you, his school counselor or favorite teacher whenever he needs to talk.

Dear Annie: We often have two delightful boys over to our house to play with our two sons. These boys are teenagers. We've known them for years. They are being home-schooled by their very caring mother.

For the first time, the four boys were playing a game that required writing answers and reading them. As I observed them, I could see that the two home- schoolers were having trouble both writing and reading. I finally asked what the problem was, and they said they had never been taught to write in script. These are smart boys, but I worry this could be a real handicap for them in life. Should I talk with their mother or just let it go? — Feeling Sorry in Vermont

Dear Vermont: Fewer and fewer students are learning to read or write in script. With all the keyboards around, penmanship is rarely taught, and script writing has become a lost art. Will it handicap them? Perhaps if they have to read a note from Grandma, but otherwise, it's unlikely. By the time they are looking for a full-time job, most of their peers will be in the same boat.

Dear Annie: I must take exception to one of your suggestions to "Perplexed," whose father insisted on hearing his voice every day. I think it is ridiculous to expect adult children to call their parents every day. I am a parent of a wonderful grown son and lovely daughter-in-law. I would NEVER expect them to call me every day. I would never be intrusive and barge in on them without calling first.

Why do we allow family members to treat each other inconsiderately and without respect when we wouldn't treat others this way? Parents need to respect that their child's spouse and children come first. The kids might want to call or be with their parents more if it is not such a burden. — Fran

Hi, my name is Cooper and I am a lovable indoor domestic short hair male cat. I am in search of a care giver who will provide me with food, water, and a safe environment where I can sleep and play the day away in exchange for attention and affection. I live with other cats in my foster home, but I prefer to be an only child. I'm a little shy at first, but I will warm up to you ... of course, cat treats help! If you think we would be a purrfect match I would enjoy meeting you. My English is a little rusty so if you would like to arrange a meeting you can call my care giver. 352-610-6122

FIRST PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE
City of Inverness
The City of Inverness is considering applying to the Florida Department of Economic Opportunity (DEO) for a Small Cities Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) of up to $700,000. These funds must be used for one of the following purposes:

1. To benefit low and moderate income persons;

2. To aid in the prevention or elimination of slums or blight; or

3. To meet other community development needs of recent origin having a particular urgency because existing conditions pose a serious and immediate threat to the health or welfare of the community and where other financial resources are not available to meet such needs.

The categories of activities for which these funds may be used are in the areas of housing, neighborhood revitalization, commercial revitalization, or economic development and include such improvement activities as acquisition of real property, loans to private-for-profit business, purchase of machinery and equipment, construction of infrastructure, rehabilitation of houses and commercial buildings, and energy conservation. Additional information regarding the range of activities that may be undertaken will be provided at the public hearing. For each activity that is proposed, at least 70% of the funds must benefit low and moderate income persons.

In developing an application for submission to DEO, the City of Inverness must plan to minimize displacement of persons as a result of planned CDBG activities. In addition, the City is required to develop a plan to assist displaced persons.

The City of Inverness will conduct a public hearing to receive citizen views concerning the community's economic and community development needs on July 2, 2010 at 5:30 p.m. The hearing will be held in the City Council Chambers at City Hall located at 212 West Main Street, Inverness, Florida 34450. For more information concerning this meeting, contact Dale Malm. Community Development Director at (352) 726-3401.
