A stinky situation that needs restoration

This old brick manhole pictured below, evaluated by the FRWA, is an example of the City of Madison's outdated wastewater collection system.

On Tuesday, Aug. 14, the Madison City Commission came together for their regularly scheduled monthly meeting. On the agenda, was the possible approval of a scope of work and budget for the Clean Water State Revolving Fund application. The Clean Water State Revolving Fund provides loans for the construction of municipal wastewater facilities.

In essence, the city's wastewater system is in critical condition. In a presentation conducted by representatives from the Florida Rural Water Association (FRWA), according to David Bolam, Principal Engineer at Saltus Engineering, Inc., and Sterling Carroll, Professional Engineer at the FRWA, out of 185 inspected manholes, 40 percent need rehabilitation as soon as possible, and 35 percent will need to be revitalized within the next five years. Out of the 25 lift stations inspected, four need replacement, seven need major rehabilitation, four need repairs, eight need maintenance and two need new generators.

The report showed that the City of Madison's wastewater collection system is extremely outdated, with brick manholes and clay sewer lines. Inflow and infiltration is a major problem. Cracks in the lines allow groundwater infiltration - sand and water enter, damaging the pumps and plant. This uses up the plant's capacity, wasting electricity.

According to the representatives, the Clean Water State Revolving Fund has two phases: planning and evaluation of the sewer system/engineering design and construction of the needed improvements. The FRWA will assist by getting the process started. They will begin the application with the request for inclusion, assist in hiring an engineer and prepare planning documents, among other duties. The Planning Phase of the SRF Application will cost a total of $106,000. Assuming 50 percent principal forgiveness, the city's share will be $56,000.

The City Commission voted unanimously to approve the scope of work and budget for the Clean Water State Revolving Fund application.

On Tuesday, Aug. 21, a host of concerned and angry citizens, met to discuss possible action concerning the Valdosta sewage spills that have plagued Madison County and other counties that border the Withlacoochee River. Valdosta, sitting just north of Madison County, has spilled their sewage into the valuable resource for many years, causing immense damage to the river and, subsequently, business and tourism in Madison County.

The biggest concern of Madison County residents is safety. The river is a popular recreation area, providing a serene space for locals and tourists to swim and paddle. In addition, many live near the river's banks and, consequently, drink the water. Pollution stemming from Valdosta's treatment plants is hazardous to the health of Madison County, among other counties. While Valdosta has made efforts to improve management of the sewer system, rebuilding the Withlacoochee Treatment Plant in 2016, citizens are still not satisfied. The ultimate goal is to have no sewage spill into the river and to protect the natural resource. However, despite Valdosta's efforts, the most

Charges dismissed; State Attorney declines to prosecute former probation officer

John Willoughby: Greene Publishing, Inc.

After a "No Information" was filed and signed, Jeff Siegmeister, State Attorney for the Third Judicial Circuit, has declined to move forward with prosecution of charges of grand theft and official misconduct against former probation officer Fountain Calvin Cone, Jr.

Fountain Calvin Cone, Jr.

On Friday, May 25, Cone turned himself in to the Hamilton County Jail and was arrested on charges of official misconduct and grand theft. The investigation, undertaken by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE), centered around alleged discrepancies in Taylor County, where Cone served as the misdemeanor probation officer, and funds not being properly turned over to longtime Taylor County Clerk of Court, Annie Mae Murphy.

School can be stressful for kids

School is back in session. It's often a time of great anticipation for kids of all ages. It seems like summer just started and we are now looking at a brand new school year. Adults often think a child's life is easy, but the reality is that childhood is full of stress and any change or transition can make life uneasy for your school-age child. Dr. Suzanna Smith, UF Extension Family Life Specialist, shares some insight about children and the stress they might experience going back to school, so I thought I would pass it on to you this week.

Diann Douglas

Usually, stress is greatest during the beginning days and weeks of the new school year. Parents play a very important role in helping children manage stress and get off to a good start in school. When school begins, it is a change of routine with new challenges. Whether it's kindergarten, middle school or high school, your child is on the brink of something big; anxious about leaving familiar comforts and starting something new.

Stress can be bad or good. We really can't go through life without some stress. It can be good when it motivates us to do our best or energizes us to try new things. Stress is bad when it becomes overwhelming and renders a person unable to deal with the pressures.

With too much stress, children may become anxious and fearful, creating problems with their physical and mental health, their relationships with their peers and their school performance. Physical symptoms of stress might be headaches, stomach aches or nightmares. Common behaviors might range from withdrawing from activities unusual, aggressiveness, crying or temper tantrums.

Supportive families and teachers can make the transition to school easier for children of all ages. There are several thing families can do to reduce stress, no matter the child's age.

Help children prepare for the change, children are less fearful when they know what to expect. Many schools now help parents and students get ready by offering open house and parent-teacher meetings. Go to the school for special programs and keep in touch with teachers on a regular basis.

At home, talk about school. Help your children talk about the day by asking simple questions. If you have a teenager, be there when they are ready to talk. Keep normal house routines, this helps them know what to expect of the day and evening.

Encourage your children to keep old friends and make new ones. For middle school students, starting with a friend makes the change easier. Children who are able to make new friends also do better adjusting to school.

Be positive. Help children see the upcoming changes as exciting and fun, but don't deny that a child feels uncertain. Thinking and being positive helps children and adults deal with stress better. Spend time together. Do things you enjoy and have fun; schedule regular family meetings to get ready for the week at school and work.

Help kids develop coping skills. Children who know how to solve problems are better able to handle the difficulties they are bound to face when they enter school. Parents can help their children think things through and learn to get help with needed tutoring.

Manage your own stress. Children often pick up on their parents' anxiety and this becomes another stressor, so stay calm. When under stress, children and parents need to try to stay calm, start by taking deep breaths. You can get through it and tell yourself and your child that things will be ok. Listen to your children and teenagers when they talk. Show your love and acceptance and avoid criticizing them.

Most children feel anxious during the first weeks of school. If these feelings continue and the child is having nightmares, headaches or stomachaches, or wants to come home during the day, there may be a more serious problem. Consult your family doctor for professional advice.

Parents need to watch out for signs of stress in their children and do what they can ahead of time to prevent it. Parents can also help their children manage stress by talking things over, thinking things through, relaxing and helping children build a strong network of caring friends.

John A. Stormer, a Cold War-era anti-communist and constitutionalist, author and pastor, whose widely-circulated book "None Dare Call It Treason," warned of Soviet subversion in America and helped catapult Barry Goldwater to the Republican presidential nomination in 1964, died July 10 in Troy, Mo. He was 90.

Mr. Stormer flooded the country with 7 million copies of his 75-cent self-published paperback.

With the Soviet Union already in open control of a quarter of the world's land mass, including Cuba, Mr. Stormer wrote: "The hidden tentacles of the communist conspiracy exert unmeasured influence over the rest of the world."

More broadly, he described what he saw as the gradual undermining of traditional values of American churches, schools and civic organizations and, ultimately, the government-a slow-cooked scheme of wealth redistribution, welfarism and nanny-state rules, sapping Americans of their sense of initiative and personal responsibility.

Opened Up the Campus

In one source, one book, helped generations of students circumvent the indoctrination being carried on by the politically correct on high school and college campuses.

Led to Reagan

Mr. Stormer and other Republicans claimed his book's power was lasting and helped fuel a rise of a new, more aggressive GOP conservatism that brought Ronald Reagan to the White House in 1961.

The Struggle

John Anderson Stormer, a plumber's son, was born in Altoona, Pa., on Feb. 9, 1928. He attended Pennsylvania State University in the late 1940s and then joined the Air Force during the Korean War and served as a historian.

He graduated in 1954 from San Jose State College (now University) in California and spent the next several years working for Volt-Age, an electrical industry magazine, rising to the editor and general manager. It was 1960 when he attended a conservative conference in Washington whose speakers included Goldwater and Walter Judd, a U.S. Representative from Minnesota known for his anti-Communism. He became a follower of the American missionary and early anti-communist activist George S. Benson.

The rumble of thunder was caused by this book by John Stormer.

A religious fundamentalist, Mr. Stormer joined the Heritage Baptist Church in Florissant, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis, and served as pastor for decades. He also headed the nearby Faith Christian School and spent a decade as president of the Missouri Association of Christian schools.

Using both the pulpit and articles featured in the "Christian Beacon," a weekly newspaper published by nationally known fundamentalist Carl McIntire, Mr. Stormer built a substantial public following. He was a fixture in Missouri's Republican Party, speaking frequently at political functions and conducting weekly Bible studies for members of the State legislatures.

Publisher

"I printed up 125 copies of the manuscript and actually mailed those to 87 people that I knew were concerned conservatives," he said. The rest was history.

In 1963, he founded his own publishing house, Liberty Bell Press, from which sprang "None Dare Call it Treason" and six other related books that followed over the next four decades, including "None Dare Call it Education: What's happening to Our Schools and Our Children?" (1998)

From the sunny side... Nosiness

Rick Patrick

I readily admit that I am a nosey person. Not really in a rude way, or at least I don't think I am rude. I chalk it up to a natural curiosity more than anything else. I actually find myself telling my co-workers, "It's okay to tell me to mind my own business." My wonderful co-workers are usually too polite to say that to me, although they may think it to themselves on occasion.

Personally, I think a certain level of "nosiness" is a good trait for a reporter. I even had the boss tell me earlier today, "Reporters are always the nosiest people." She said that in response to a question I had asked her. She didn't make her comment out of disappointment, it was more of a playful joking. That's one thing I love about my job. In addition to having an outlet for my natural nosiness, we all enjoy a good amount of playful joking. I think that makes any workplace much more pleasant.

Last weekend, I had a nice chuckle to myself during one of my bouts of nosiness. I was at a local over-priced lunch buffet (not in Madison, mind you) and I overheard someone talking about calling a youngster by her full name. This person said the response was "What have I done now?" I wanted to tell this gentleman that the way to interpret the youngsters response was not in terms of "What have I done?" because the young person knows good and well what they have done. The likely interpretation of that response is, "What have you just found out about?" I did not approach the gentleman about this because I did not want my eavesdropping to be so evident.

So, if you see me around town, I may be listening, but I do promise to be discreet in any response I may have.

was filed to conclude the prosecution in exchange for Cone's compliance with certain conditions outlined in the agreement. The conditions would prohibit Cone from seeking appointment or reappointment to any position requiring handling of public funds. The agreement also defines what amount shall be paid for investigative, state and county costs. As outlined in the "No Information" document, Cone is required to:

- Pay $1,500 to the Taylor County Clerk of Courts, as directed.
- Pay $50 state costs, to the State Attorney's Office, as directed.
- Pay $250 cost of investigation to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, as directed.
- Tender his resignation as probation officer in Hamilton and Madison Counties as a result of this prosecution. Cone shall not seek reappointment to these positions, shall not seek appointment as a probation officer in any county, and shall not seek any future position that would require handling of public funds.
- Waive his right to a speedy trial in this case to ensure long-term compliance with this agreement. Additionally, Cone shall waive his right to assert any statute of limitations defenses in this case.

The agreement continues to state that "The parties stipulate and agree that this agreement is a deferral of prosecution and not a contract of immunity." Should Cone fail to meet the conditions of the "No Information," the agreement shall be void and prosecution may then be instituted. The agreement was effectively signed by Cone; Sean S. Crisafulli, Cone's defense attorney; State Attorney Jeff Siegmeister; and Assistant State Attorney, John Durrett.

A "notice of agreement for conditional no information, filed by Durrett," notes that Cone has "entered into an agreement with the State of Florida to resolve this case." The notice of agreement also states that "This is not to be construed as an admission or judicial determination of guilt."

In the filing of the "No Information," Durrett states: "This cause came on to be heard before the State Attorney or one of the Assistant State Attorneys of the Third Judicial Circuit of Florida. After having examined the evidence and/or having taken testimony under oath or reviewed testimony and statements of the known witnesses in said cause, it appears the evidence in said cause does not warrant prosecution for the following reason: pursuant to satisfaction of the terms of the conditional dismissal agreement."

The filing continues to state that "the State Attorney declines to file an Information in said cause and said cause hereby stands dismissed."

Crisafulli, Cone's attorney, released a statement on Monday, Aug. 20, on behalf of Cone.

"Calvin Cone served the Third Judicial Circuit as a probation officer for twenty-six years in Hamilton, Madison and Taylor Counties," said Crisafulli. "During that time, Mr. Cone supervised thousands of probationers and personally handled over $16,000,000 in probation funds without issue. The allegations in this case arose shortly after it became known that Mr. Cone intended to run for an elected position. The Florida Department of Law Enforcement and the Office of the State Attorney conducted lengthy investigations into the facts and circumstances of this case, and at the conclusion of that investigation, all charges against Mr. Cone were dismissed."

Cone, who provided misdemeanor probation services for Madison County, resigned his position in Madison County on Friday, June 1. During a special meeting of the Madison County Board of County Commissioners later that day, the Commissioners voted to enter into a contract with East Coast Court Services, LLC. During the meeting on Friday, June 1, Madison County Clerk of Court Billy Washington stated that it did not appear the issues present in Taylor County have spilled over into Madison County.

Greene Publishing, Inc. briefly spoke with State Attorney Siegmeister who stated "what looked like theft was just really terrible record keeping."

Fed up

County Chamber of Commerce Executive Director, Phyllis Williams, Madison attorney, Bo Hardee, called the town meeting, with the intention of informing those present of his recent efforts to research a plan of action for this ongoing issue, perhaps involving a potential lawsuit. "You would have to sue them in Federal court," said Hardee. "I've met with DEP [the Department of Environmental Protection] on this, I've met with Suwannee River Water Management, I have met with Department of Health officials, I have met with one of the chiefs of staff for the Governor … basically what I was trying to do was see what was going to be the best way to stop this; whether it was on a government level, where someone could come in and help stop this, or if I had to sue them on behalf of homeowners and business owners in our community that have been affected."

Hardee went on to talk about Valdosta's efforts to thwart potential lawsuits in the past. "Whoever is behind this is very smart," said Hardee. "They are playing a game very well, in saying the right things to the right people." Hardee referenced an agreement the City of Valdosta made with the Georgia Division of Environmental Protection, making it difficult for Madison County or other entities to file a lawsuit.

County Commissioner, Rick Davis, was also in attendance. He informed the citizens that, in addition to Hardee's efforts to file a civil suit, the commission had been looking into options as well. "We've been patient, we've tried to be good neighbors, but we're past the patient part," said Davis. In a meeting with the Regional Planning Council last month, Davis recounted that when DEP was asked about the sewage spill situation, they claimed to be taking a "passive approach." This comment angered Davis, along with many others. "We need our state regulatory agencies to support us," said Davis. "I've asked Scott Koons [Executive Director, North Central Florida Regional Planning Council] to reach out to the boards of the county commissioners and city commissioners, specifically Hamilton County, Suwannee County and Lafayette County, to see if they would be willing to join with us in this endeavor, filing some type of injunction, some type of federal lawsuit …"

Representatives from Valdosta were in attendance at the town meeting, approaching the stage after Commissioner Davis spoke. Valdosta Utilities Director Darryl Muse explained what happened when approximately 300,000 gallons were reported to have spilled in June, due to three inches of rain causing an equipment malfunction. According to Muse, when the water spills from the plant, it flows into a holding pond. When that holding pond becomes too full, the water overflows into a second holding pond, both of which are on site. When that holding pond fills up, it flows into a retention pond, which is connected to state waters. "Once the water reaches the third pond, we have to report that entire spill, no matter how much got in there," said Muse. "Those two ponds that are on site are 150,000 gallons deep, so we calculated that we lost 333,000 gallons [total], so theoretically, only 33,000 gallons made it into the retention pond which, eventually, makes its way to the Withlacoochee, which is over a mile away."

The representatives stressed that spills have become less frequent in recent years, due to their continued efforts to prevent mishaps. They reported that in 2015 there were 26 spills, 2016 saw 50 spills, however 2017 saw only six spills, and, so far, 2018 has only seen four. "I would ensure every one of you, we are doing everything we can to eliminate these issues," said Scott Fowler, Environmental Manager.

A citizen spoke up, saying, "I mean no disrespect, but this has been going on for forty years. What is going to be done to help clean up the river? I mean, down here where we're at, even on the sandbar, when you go to pull up an anchor, it smells like sh. I'm glad everything's getting fixed, but it's already done the damage down here."

recent spill happened in June; one of four sewage spills that have already occurred in 2018.

With the help of the Madison

"I know there's people with issues upstream as well; we're not the only people who discharge to the Withlacoochee, but we seem to be the one that, you know, everyone is on all the time," said Fowler.

Later, Phyllis Williams, Chamber of Commerce Executive Director, mentioned the decrease in tourism due to waters being too polluted to swim in. "We're not the only one that discharges to there; we're one of the largest users, yes, but there are issues that have been had up stream before as well," said Fowler.

"I get that but here we're talking about the City of Valdosta and the recurring spills and pointing fingers at somebody else probably isn't the best thing," said Hardee.

Valdosta continued to assure the public that they are doing everything they can to prevent wastewater spills in the future.

The next night, on Wednesday, Aug. 22, the Madison County Board of County Commissioners met to continue the discussion on the continuing problems of the Withlacoochee River. Several members of the community expressed their ongoing anger that the problem of sewage spilling into the river from upstream in Valdosta, Ga. still continues.

Kim Albritton, from the Madison County Department of Health, addressed the commissioners with a timeline of events related to the sewage spills. In October of 2013, state officials approached Albritton about the problems of the Withlacoochee. In March of the next year, Albritton met with officials from the City of Valdosta. At that time, Albritton was informed of a five-year plan the City of Valdosta had in order to deal with the problem of wastewater treatment.

According to the City of Valdosta, since 1992, the City has received $179 million from Special Purpose Local Option Sales Tax (SPLOST) revenues. During that time, the City has spent $167 million on water/wastewater projects. Funding for these projects came from SPLOST, system revenues, bonds and Georgia Environmental Finance Authority (GEFA) loans. In a letter from Russell Simpson, with the Florida Department of Environmental Protection, addressed to a concerned Madison County citizen, Simpson states that the "City of Valdosta's Utilities Department is under a Consent Order with the Georgia Department of Natural Resources (GDNR) to resolve multiple discharge violations and requiring the construction of a new wastewater treatment plant as well as numerous other corrective actions." The City of Valdosta has completed several projects, with other projects due to be completed later this year, with the goal of dealing with the City's wastewater problems.

The number of reported sewage spills has decreased over the years, however, spills are continuing to occur. In February of 2017 a large spill affecting three Florida counties, including Madison County, occurred resulting in the Department of Health issuing health warnings about the water from the Withlacoochee. As stated previously, in June of this year a spill occurred. Most recently, on Tuesday, Aug. 14, a spill occurred affecting the Alapaha River. "My concern is [that] it's still going on," said Commissioner Wayne Vickers.

Commissioner Davis expressed his concern that the City of Valdosta is "not giving timely notice" when spills do occur. According to some of the citizens present at the meeting, the City of Valdosta does not release information regarding a spill until the spill is contained. It was the thought of some that such a delay could result in erroneous results in testing the water of the river for contaminants.

Koons spoke to the commissioners about the possibility of joining with other counties affected by the sewage spills in order to more effectively address the issues, and possibly take legal action. Commissioner Davis made a motion to join with other counties to pool resources to address the issue. The motion was passed unanimously. "I think we need to build a team to move forward," said Commissioner Ronnie Moore. Neighboring Hamilton County has also committed to join forces in order to face the issue. Koons said he would see if other counties are willing to commit resources to the issue.

Hometown Hero

Wayne Conger

After serving during the Vietnam conflict, Wayne Conger is now a resident of Madison County, a retired psychologist and a veteran of the United States Army. Conger was born and raised in Hialeah, Fl. and graduated from Hialeah High School in 1961. Conger continued his education for two years at Miami-Dade Community College until June of 1964 when he decided to join the US Army.

Conger was shipped to Ft. Jackson, SC for 10 weeks of basic training. Afterwards, Conger attended advanced individual training at Brooks Army Medical Center in San Antonio, Tx. where he learned clinical psychology and became a psychiatric social work specialist. Conger's first duty station was at Valley Forge General Hospital in Phoenixville, Pa. where he stayed from September of 1964 until March of 1965 when he received orders to go to Korea.

A part of the 2nd Medical Battalion in the 2nd Infantry Division, Conger served in Pobwoni, Korea for 13 months where he served all US armed forces personnel. Conger then was stationed at the Womack Army Hospital in Ft. Bragg, NC where he was discharged in 1967 as a Specialist Fifth Class.

Conger returned to school and graduated from Florida State University with a Bachelor's degree in 1969 and a Master's degree in 1971. Conger then graduated with his Doctorate degree in 1973. In 1981, he joined Psychology Associates of Tallahassee and had a private practice until his retirement in 2002.

Conger and his wife, Alicia, moved to Madison in 2013, and still works part-time with the Office of Disability Determination. Conger is a member of the Madison Rotary Club and has two children.

The Bush Wealth Advantage

Our column, "The Bush Wealth Advantage" is our way of giving back to the community with all sorts of insights, relevant news, and practical wealth planning strategies.

Why the U.S. might be less affected by a Trade War

The nature of our economy could help it withstand the disruption.

A trade war does seem to be getting underway. Investors around the world see headwinds arising from newly enacted and planned tariffs, headwinds that could potentially exert a drag on global growth (and stock markets). How badly could these trade disputes hurt the American economy? Perhaps not as dramatically as some journalists and analysts warn.

Our business sector may be impacted most. Undeniably, tariffs on imported goods raise costs for manufacturers. Costlier imports may reduce business confidence, and less confidence implies less capital investment. The Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, which regularly surveys firms to learn their plans for the next six months, learned in July that businesses anticipate investing less and hiring fewer employees during the second half of the year. The survey's index for future activity fell in July for the fourth month in a row. (Perhaps the outlook is not quite as negative as the Philadelphia Fed reports: a recent National Federation of Independent Business survey indicates that most companies have relatively stable spending plans for the near term.)

Fortunately, the U.S. economy is domestically driven. Consumer spending is its anchor: household purchases make up about two-thirds of it. Our economy is fairly "closed" compared to the economies of some of our key trading partners and rivals. Last year, trade accounted for just 27 percent of our gross domestic product. In contrast, it represented 37 percent of gross domestic product for China, 64 percent of growth for Canada, 78 percent of GDP for Mexico, and 87 percent of GDP for Germany.

Our stock markets have held up well so far. The trade spat between the U.S. and China cast some gloom over Wall Street during the second-quarter earnings season, yet the S&P 500 neared an all-time peak in early August.

All this tariff talk has helped the dollar. Between Feb. 7 and Aug. 7, the U.S. Dollar Index rose 5.4 percent. A stronger greenback does potentially hurt U.S. exports and corporate earnings, and in the past, the impact has been felt notably in the energy, materials, and tech sectors.

As always, the future comes with question marks. No one can predict just how severe the impact from tariffs on our economy and other economies will be or how the narrative will play out. That said, it appears the U.S. may have a bit more economic insulation in the face of a trade war than other nations might have.

The staff of the new Pic-n-Sav Grocery Outlet were excited to welcome grocery shoppers after "cutting the ribbon" at the new store, located in the old Food Giant location.

Pic-n-Sav holds grand opening

ASK THE GUN MAN

Comfortable carrying a firearm

Mr. George, you don't know me, we have never met but I read everything you write. I received my CCW from Live Oak last week and I feel I want to carry. How much training do you think I would really need before I would feel comfortable in carrying? At what point in training should I actually begin to carry daily?

- Walter

Walter, I've discovered that middle age is when all the stuff you did when you were younger starts catching up with you. After a car wreck in Mississippi my back started, shall I say, aggravating me considerably? Well my conversation with the MRI technician turned towards firearms, and more specifically, her Glock 26 and her brand new concealed carry permit. She wasn't very happy with her firearm. It seems she preferred the slightly less recoil on her husband's larger G19 and didn't feel comfortable carrying her firearm yet. The only training she'd had was a brief one-on-one session with her husband's friend, who is a part-time instructor of some sort. She wanted training that would be relevant to her needs. She thought she needed more training; we spoke of where she may be able to get more training. We are lucky to have a couple of local training talents in Madison County. I sent her to a friend in our Sheriff's Dept. so she could talk to them and figure out her best course of action. Unfortunately for her, there were no specific dates; one must wait until there are 10 or more people waiting before classes are started and that class is for CCW only.

Unfortunately, most people think obtaining a handgun (and where required by law, a permit) is all they need to be protected. A competent defensive handgun shooter requires lessons from good teachers and lots and lots of practice.

Rick Patrick: Greene Publishing, Inc.

On Wednesday, Aug. 1, the many Madison residents who made their way to the old Food Giant grocery store location for the grand opening of the new Pic-n-Sav Grocery Outlet probably noticed something very familiar. They probably recognized the look of the store. They probably even recognized some familiar smiling faces. They probably noticed the same low-cost store brands as well as name brands up and down the grocery aisles. In fact, the biggest difference they probably noticed was the money they saved on their grocery bill that day.

According to Pic-n-Sav Store Manager Saul Camacho, the new store sells their grocery products at cost and simply adds 10 percent at check-out. "This is something we have been working on for a long time. We want to help the community," said Camacho. "There are a lot of people in this community who may be living on a fixed income and they need to be able to stretch their food budget as much as they can. That's where we can help. We will make our money on volume, and that's why we have our prices so low." Even though the prices are low at the new Pic-n-Sav, the quality was not sacrificed. "We offer a 100 percent money-back guarantee on everything we sell." Camacho also said that items can also be purchased in bulk. Camacho said he hopes that Pic-N-Sav may be of help to local restaurants.

The new Pic-n-Sav Grocery Outlet is located on Base St., in the DeSoto Crossing Shopping Center in the old Food Giant location. They are open Monday through Saturday from 7 a.m. until 10 p.m. and from 7 a.m. until 9 p.m. on Sundays.

Madison County residents receive honorary membership

John Willoughby: Greene Publishing, Inc.

A handful of Madison County residents traveled to Perry on Monday, Aug. 20, for District Deputy Grand Master Stephen Murphy's official visit to his home lodge at Perry Lodge No. 123. Madison Lodge No. 11, as well as Greenville Lodge No. 28, were represented well.

During the meeting, Richard Terry, a member of Madison Lodge No. 11; and Roy Hibbs, Worshipful Master of Greenville Lodge No. 28, were presented with honorary memberships to Perry Lodge No. 123 for their dedicated service and travel with Murphy.

Both Hibbs and Terry serve as committee members with Murphy for the seventh Masonic district, which includes lodges in Live Oak, Branford, Ft. White, Wellborn, Day, Greenville, Madison, Perry, Mayo, Jasper, Old Town, Lake City and Cross City. Hibbs is the committeeman for the MH-100 and Let Your Pennies Make Good Cents program, both supporting the Masonic Home in St. Petersburg, Fl. Terry serves as the committeeman for perpetual membership.

Freemasonry has a long-standing role in the birth and traditions of America and the growth of Madison County. Dedicated to making "Good Men Better," the fraternity is committed to supporting all great causes, especially the poor and distressed, as well as the elderly and children. Locally, Madison and Greenville Lodge continue to support these concerns, while also supporting the charities of the Grand Lodge of the State of Florida.

Madison Lodge No. 11, located at 301 S Range St., in Madison, meets on the second and fourth Monday of each month, at 7:30 p.m. Greenville Lodge No. 28, located at 163 SW Church Ave., in Greenville, meets on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month, at 7:30 p.m. A deep fraternal bond exists between its members. It is the wholesome relationship of brotherly love, brought about through high principles exemplified in their daily lives, that make its members near and dear to each other.

Cowboys Gameday: A fresh new season

Rick Patrick: Greene Publishing, Inc.

The state championship trophies from last season are well enshrined in the trophy case at Madison County High School (MCHS). The accolades from last year, although well deserved, are in the past. The championship rings are now adorning the fingers of last season's players and coaches. That was last season; this is a new season. This team of young Cowboys is ready to make their own history in 2018. The opportunity for another history-making season is ahead. No Cowboy team has ever won back-to-back state titles. If this Cowboy team is going to make history this season, they will need to take some lessons from the past. Just as last season, this season's success will be determined one game at a time; starting tonight at Boot Hill Stadium.

The first stop on the Cowboys' trail to Orlando begins at home with a very familiar foe, the War Eagles of Wakulla High School. The Cowboys faced the War Eagles in Crawfordville last season, in a game the Cowboys fought back from a 27-6, fourth quarter deficit, to win with a last-second touchdown pass. The memories of that game will no doubt be on the minds of the War Eagles as they come into Boot Hill Stadium. The Cowboys also faced the War Eagles in this year's spring game. After the spring game, it was the War Eagles who would fly back to Crawfordville as victors with a 20-14 final score. The War Eagles are coming to Boot Hill as the state's number six ranked team in Class 5A. The War Eagles fell to Lincoln High School in their kickoff classic game, but MCHS Head Coach Mike Coe warns about reading too much into that loss for the War Eagles. "I told our guys, 'Don't pay too much attention to that Lincoln score. That is not the same Wakulla team that will be coming into Boot Hill. They are going to come in here ready to play. We are going to have to earn it,'" said Coe. Wakulla returns a talented quarterback and two very good linebackers from last season. "They are very well coached and very athletic," added Coe.

The Cowboys are coming into the game after a good week of practice. "The guys have had a couple of really good days [of practice]," said Coe. One positive aspect of the week's practice has been the work of some of the younger players. Pressure from younger players can often make experienced, veteran players work harder. "Sometimes guys get the idea that they are entrenched in their positions. I always tell them, 'They aren't entrenched, they can be benched,'" said Coe with a chuckle. The Cowboys are fairly healthy after the scrimmage game with Crestview on Friday, Aug. 17, with the exception of losing defensive back Rodderick Johnson, who went down with a broken fibula early in Friday's scrimmage. "He [Johnson] just got rolled up on. That kind of thing happens. It hurts because he's a really good kid and he's been working really hard and improving. He'll be out for about six weeks. It's unfortunate, but that's also part of the game. It's 'next man up' when that kind of thing happens," said Coe. Coe is hopeful that defensive end Devin Norwood will be ready to play this week after recovering from a right arm injury.

This game could well be the toughest game on the schedule for both teams. An early season victory against a quality opponent could pay large dividends at the end of the season when playoff match-ups are determined.

Coe is hoping for a large crowd to fill Boot Hill Stadium. "I can't brag on these young men enough, I mean they work and they do it willingly. They deserve to have fans cheering them on," said Coe. Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m. tonight at Boot Hill Stadium on the MCHS campus. There will be a $5 per vehicle parking fee collected by the MCHS Athletic Boosters, which will be used to make improvements to the athletic training facilities at MCHS.

Aucilla Christian Academy Warriors ground Eagles

Rick Patrick: Greene Publishing, Inc.

While most of Florida's high school football teams were holding their pre-season "Kickoff Classic" games on Friday, Aug. 17, the Aucilla Christian Academy Warriors were playing for keeps as they traveled to Albany, Ga. to face the Eagles of Sherwood Christian Academy. The Warriors managed to rack up 458 yards of total offense on their way to a dominating 42-22 victory over the Eagles.

Warrior sophomore quarterback, Brady Browning, had a 70 percent completion average, going 7-for-10 with 263 yards, two touchdowns and one interception through the air. Senior running back, Blake Wirick, had 156 yards rushing on 13 attempts for the Warriors.

On the defensive side of the ball, Evan Courtney had seven solo tackles and seven assists with one tackle-for-loss for the Warriors. Browning also picked one pass off and blocked a kick for the Warriors.

Browning was named the Offensive Player of the Game while Courtney was named the Defensive Player of the Game for the Warriors. The "Warrior of the Week" was Blake Wirick.

The Warriors will return home this Friday, Aug. 24, when they take on the Panthers of Pataula Charter Academy, from Edison, Ga. The Panthers are coming off a 54-14 home loss at the hands of Baconton Charter School. Kickoff is set for 7 p.m. at Aucilla Christian Academy.

Rod Irvine: Leader of the 12th Cowboy

Rick Patrick: Greene Publishing, Inc.

In College Station, Tx., home of the Texas A&M Aggies and in Seattle, Wa., home of the Seattle Seahawks, they boast about their "12th man." This proverbial "12th man" refers to the fact that a loud crowd can sometimes have an impact on the action on the field, just as the players on the field do. It is no secret among those who follow high school football that Madison County's Boot Hill Stadium has become legendary as a tough place for opposing teams to visit. One reason for that is Madison's own "12th man," the "12th Cowboy."

Leading the charge for that 12th Cowboy is Rod Irvine, who calls games for both football and baseball games on Boot Hill. Irvine, a paraprofessional at Madison County High School (MCHS), is no stranger to being behind a microphone. Irvine was a broadcast journalism major while at Florida A&M University (FAMU). While still a student at FAMU, Irvine worked at the college radio station WAMF (now WANM) doing play-by-play for football, baseball and basketball games as the original "Voice of FAMU." "Those were great times," recalls Irvine. "Traveling to games, staying in motels, being able to talk about the games, and the best part, getting paid for all that."

In 1989, Irvine moved to Madison from Ft. Lauderdale. Since coming to Madison, Irvine has entered into the ministry, in addition to his work with students at MCHS. Currently, Irvine has been a pastor at New Canaan Missionary Baptist Church, in Greenville for five years. He has over 30 years of experience in the ministry.

During games, Irvine has been known to whip up a crowd of football fans with the same enthusiasm he uses on his congregation on Sunday mornings. During a crucial moment during last season's game against Columbia County, Irvine encouraged fans to "Talk to your defense!" During the loud cheering that followed, a false start penalty was called against Columbia County, forcing the Tigers into a punting situation. From that point on, "Talk to your defense!" became a rallying cheer for the Cowboys. "I want fans to know that if they get really loud in crucial situations, they can help the Cowboys," said Irvine. "If you get 4,000 fans cheering, that can have an influence on the game." At the same time, Irvine hopes fans will be smart with their cheering. "Too much cheering and noise can make it difficult for the Cowboys' offense to hear signals. We also want to always be respectful of officials, even if we disagree with a call." That call for respect carries over to opposing players and fans as well. "We should be loud, but we should always exhibit good sportsmanship at the same time," said Irvine.

Irvine encourages everyone to come out to Boot Hill, cheer on the Cowboys and "Talk to your defense," all the way to another state title.

In a joint effort between Madison County High School (MCHS) and North Florida Community College (NFCC), local students, both youth and adult, have the opportunity to learn welding skills that could lead to industry certification. New welding classes have been initiated and is proving to be very popular. According to Paula Ginn, Coordinator of Alternative Education, Career and Technical Education and Student Achievement at MCHS, a total of 36 high school students have enrolled in the initial welding class at MCHS. These students were able to hear first-hand about the welding profession when Troy Pickles, of Tri-County Electric, came to speak to the students in the high school welding class.

It is anticipated that three one-year classes will be offered for students at MCHS, with a fourth class in the works. These classes may be taken to satisfy performing arts requirements and qualify as level three honors classes. At the end of the class curriculum, students would be eligible to sit for industry certification exams. The classes are being taught by Mike Warmack, who has been teaching welding at Wiregrass Technical College in Valdosta since 2007.

These classes are also being offered in the evenings at NFCC for anyone in the community, in addition to high school students interested in dual-enrollment. The classes at NFCC meet Monday through Thursday evenings from 5 p.m. until 9 p.m. at MCHS. According to David Dunkle, Associate Dean of Economic Development and Technical Programs at NFCC, this is one of the first ventures of its kind in the state where a local community college and the local school district have pooled resources in such a manner. "Dr. [Karen] Pickles [Madison County Superintendent of Schools] and the school district have been an awesome partner in this," said Dunkle. There has been some discussion about the possibility of expanding NFCC's cooperation with the Madison School District to include other areas such as law enforcement and allied health.

According to the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics, the need for welders, cutters, solderers and brazers is high. The job outlook between 2016-2026 is expected to show a six percent increase. The median income is $40,240 per year, or $19.35 per hour. In the short-term for the State of Florida, the outlook is a bit brighter. Projections for the years 2017 to 2019 shows a 7.4 percent growth rate in the need for welders, cutters, solderers and brazers. One reason for this is the fact that "aging infrastructure will require the expertise of welders, cutters, solderers and brazers."

Students interested in taking the welding classes offered at NFCC have until Tuesday, Aug. 28 to enroll. According to Jennifer Page, Dean of Academic Affairs at NFCC, scholarships are available. Prospective students should contact the NFCC financial aid office at financialaid@nfcc.edu or call (850) 973-1621.

Betty Jean Gibson, daughter of Mrs. Leila M. Gibson, celebrated her 11th birthday with a spend-the-night party Friday night. Ten girlfriends of the honoree were invited. Supper of charcoaled hamburgers was served with birthday cake as dessert. The honoree received many nice gifts.

The Cherry Lake Methodist Church is having a new oak floor installed in the immediate future, the flooring is on hand. This will add to the beauty of the church sanctuary. A new ceiling, paneling of the walls, the new electric lights, new windows and doors have recently been added to the church. Other improvements are in the making.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hardee and four sons, Jimmy, Sandy, Cary and Larry, returned Saturday after spending two weeks in the mountains of North Georgia.

St. Mary's has quite a storied history begging to be told. The church was founded in 1859 but the cornerstone of the physical church was laid 20 years later on Aug. 1, 1879. The building was consecrated by John Freeman Young on May 1, 1883.

St. Mary's beautifully dated history

John Willoughby:
Greene Publishing, Inc.

It's one of Madison's oldest churches, founded on Christ and striving for the salvation of others. St. Mary's Episcopal Church, resting at the corner of Horry St. and Marion St., is the proud home to a number of Madison County citizens on Sunday, including St. Mary's Vicar, Rev. Joe Boyles.

St. Mary's has quite a storied history begging to be told. The church was founded in 1859 but the cornerstone of the physical church was laid 20 years later on Aug. 1, 1879, after a committee was appointed to coordinate fundraising to erect a building. The church was finished two years later and then consecrated by a well-known figure in both the church and civilization, John Freeman Young, on May 1, 1883.

Young, a native of New York, moved to Jacksonville and became the second bishop of the Diocese of Florida in 1867. Young, who spoke German, found a German hymn titled "Stille Nacht" and today, Young is known as the original translator for the Christmas hymn "Silent Night."

Bishop Young was a friend and confidant of architect Richard Upjohn, who wrote a book on church architecture. Young, using Upjohn's book, began to use it as he populated churches in North and Central Florida at the time.

St. Mary's Episcopal Church is distinguished by a steep roof and a scissor-truss system. The Victorian church has never been expanded outside the original walls. The peak of the interior is 28 feet and all arches in the building are pointed, including the doors (which are original) and stained-glass windows. The altar-area of the church was added after the church was built but the time of construction is unknown.

As one enters the church, to the east, a beautiful representation of Jesus Christ's open-arm embrace is located. The piece of art is the oldest window in the church and is pointed east, toward Jerusalem, as Rev. Boyles states.

Another original piece of the building that is still in sight is the chimney that was used during the winter time. During the winter months, a member of the church would come two hours before the service and heat the stove. Rev. Boyles stated that most of the congregation would sit on the side of the stove to keep warm.

In 1997, St. Mary's Episcopal Church was listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

According to nps.gov, the National Register of Historic Places is the official list of the Nation's historic places worthy of preservation. Authorized by the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, the National Park Service's National Register of Historic Places is part of a national program to coordinate and support public and private efforts to identify, evaluate and protect America's historic and archeological resources.

St. Mary's Episcopal Church is among the Bishop-Andrews Hotel, the Dial-Goza House, the Old Madison First Baptist Church, the Jordan-Beggs House, the Smith-Dr. Chandler Holmes House and the Wardlaw-Smith House.

St. Mary's Episcopal Church has services every Sunday with Holy Eucharist at 10 a.m. Choir practice takes place before the service and coffee hour and fellowship is held after the service. St. Mary's Episcopal Church is located at 140 NE Horry St., in Madison.

Two NASCAR legends will make special appearances during Coca-Cola Racing Weekend, Aug. 25 and 26 at Wild Adventures Theme Park in Valdosta, Ga.

"Coca-Cola Racing Weekend is a new event to Wild Adventures, and we are thrilled to kick it off this year with two of NASCAR's most well-known and accomplished drivers," said Patrick Pearson, marketing director.

Bobby Allison, three-time Daytona 500 winner and 1983 NASCAR Winston Cup Series champion, will appear at the park's Lonestar Stage from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 25 to sign autographs and take photos with fans.

Matt Kenseth, two-time Daytona 500 winner, 2003 NASCAR Winston Cup Series champion and current driver of the Number 6 Ford Fusion for Roush Fenway Racing, will appear at the Lonestar Stage from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 26.

In addition to the appearances by Allison and Kenseth, the Coca-Cola Racing Weekend will also feature the "Coca-Cola Ultimate Racing Experience," a state-of-the-art racing simulator. Guests will have the chance to get behind the wheel and test their skills by racing on laser-scanned versions of tracks from around the country.

Fans of NASCAR and NHRA drag racing will have the chance to have their picture taken with the Mello Yello show car and compete against their friends in the Mello Yello Reaction Time Challenge.

Wild Adventures is home to more than 40 family and thrill rides, hundreds of exotic animals, the region's largest waterpark and dozens of concerts and special events each year. Wild Adventures is located at 3766 Old Clyattville Rd., in Valdosta.

Coca-Cola Racing Weekend is included with park admission or a season pass. For more information, visit WildAdventures.com.

Monticello author to hold book signing

John Willoughby: Greene Publishing, Inc.

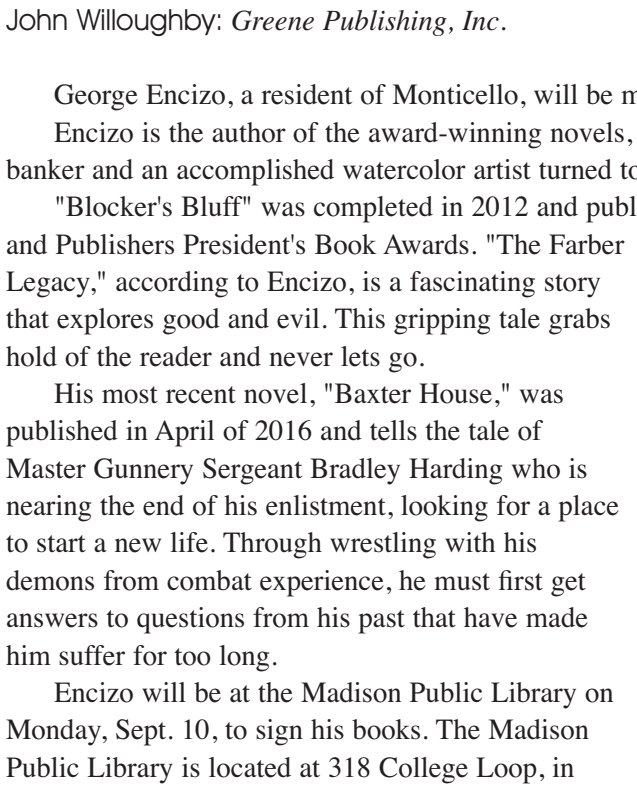
George Encizo, a resident of Monticello, will be making the short trek to Madison to greet book lovers and sign his autograph to the pages that he wrote.

Encizo is the author of the award-winning novels, "The Farber Legacy," "Baxter House" and "Blocker's Bluff." According to his website, Encizo is a retired banker and an accomplished watercolor artist turned to writing.

"Blocker's Bluff" was completed in 2012 and published in 2013. "The Farber Legacy" was published in 2015 and won a gold medal at the 2015 Florida Authors and Publishers President's Book Awards. "The Farber Legacy," according to Encizo, is a fascinating story that explores good and evil. This gripping tale grabs hold of the reader and never lets go.

His most recent novel, "Baxter House," was published in April of 2016 and tells the tale of Master Gunnery Sergeant Bradley Harding who is nearing the end of his enlistment, looking for a place to start a new life. Through wrestling with his demons from combat experience, he must first get answers to questions from his past that have made him suffer for too long.

Encizo will be at the Madison Public Library on Monday, Sept. 10, to sign his books. The Madison Public Library is located at 318 College Loop, in Madison.



NEW MOVIES IN THEATERS

Crazy Romantic Fun

By Paul Hall

Crazy Rich Asians
Stars: Constance Wu, Michelle Yeoh, Henry Golding
Director: Jon M. Chu

Dating has been the topic of many films throughout history -- the classic tale of the man or woman who isn't quite good enough for the rest of the family has been repeated with some decent success. Now, it's time to experience that general story in the new film "Crazy Rich Asians," based on Kevin Kwan's global bestseller.

Nick Young (Henry Golding) has a beautiful relationship with girlfriend Rachel (Constance Wu). She is everything he could want in a girl, and he wants to take her to his best friend's wedding in the East. Although Rachel thinks that means going to Queens, it actually requires the couple to fly to Singapore and affords Rachel the chance to meet Nick's parents for the first time.

Even though the two have been dating for over a year, Rachel quickly realizes she may not know everything about her beau as their luggage is "handled" and they head to luxury seating for the flight over.

It just so happens Nick is rich -- CRAZY rich! In fact, Rachel is on her way to one of the biggest weddings Singapore has seen. Nick's been away from his family, but he was expected back over a year ago to take the next step in his development and become the head of the family business.

His family is like so many others (just wealthier). The biggest challenge is for Nick to convince his mother Eleanor (Michelle Yeoh) that Rachel is good for him. As with any relationship, that is just one of the obstacles facing this young couple in love.

Sitting down to view a film that has the title "Crazy Rich Asians" when I knew nothing about the source material proved to be a challenge. I had no idea what to expect and thought the title was, at best, questionable. But then I did what I am challenged to do for every film. I let myself go and let the screen wash over me. I found myself laughing and smiling in approval throughout.

What a special experience to find this delightful film at the end of the summer. Snappy and witty at every turn, it's a story told with an excellent pace. Golding and Wu give us the goods and are believable and likable from the opening scene. The naivete of Wu's Rachel character adds to her charm and likability, while Golding's smile can get Nick through any situation. The leads are joined by a supporting cast with a great mixture of actors who always look to be having a good time onscreen.

"Crazy Rich Asians" proves to be crazy romantic fun. Sure, some of the sequences are a bit ridiculous considering the impact of social media today, but quite frankly most of it works. I love the characters and found myself really liking my trip -- when do we go back?

August 24, 2018
City of Madison
321 Southwest Rutledge Street
Madison, FL 32340
850.973.5081

These notices shall satisfy two separate but related procedural requirements for activities to be undertaken by the City of Madison.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS
On or about September 11, 2018, the City of Madison will submit a request to the Florida Department of Economic Opportunity for the release of Community Development Block Grant funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended, to undertake a project to install 2,600 linear feet of replacement sanitary sewer lines to serve homes on Arnold, Hall, Hudson and Walton Streets; provide sewer hookups for 31 low- and moderate-income households on the same four streets; repave Arnold, Hall, Hudson and Walton Streets; replace the Railroad Lift Station on Happy Street and 3,000 linear feet of force main. Construction costs include $644,000 Community Development Block Grant funds and $50,000 City Wastewater Enterprise Funds.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT
The City of Madison has determined that the project will have no significant impact on the human environment. Therefore, an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 is not required. Additional project information is contained in the Environmental Review Record on file at City Hall, 321 Southwest Rutledge Street, and may be examined or copied weekdays 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

PUBLIC COMMENTS
Any individual, group, or agency may submit written comments on the Environmental Review Record to City Hall. All comments must be received within 15 days following the publication date of this notice by September 10, 2018. Comments will be considered prior to the City of Madison requesting a release of funds. Comments should specify which notice they are addressing.

RELEASE OF FUNDS
The City of Madison certifies to the Florida Department of Economic Opportunity and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development that Ina Thompson in her capacity as Mayor consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental review process and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The State's approval of the certification satisfies its responsibilities under National Environmental Policy Act and related laws and authorities and allows the City of Madison to use the Community Development Block Grant funds.

OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS
The Florida Department of Economic Opportunity will accept objections to its release of funds and the City of Madison certification for a period of 15 days following the anticipated submission date or its actual receipt of the request (whichever is later) only if they are on one of the following bases: (a) the certification was not executed by the Certifying Officer of the City of Madison; (b) the City of Madison has omitted a step or failed to make a decision or finding required by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development regulations at 24 Code of Federal Regulations part 58; (c) the grant recipient has committed funds or incurred costs not authorized by 24 Code of Federal Regulations Part 58 before approval of a release of funds by the State; or (d) another Federal agency acting pursuant to 40 Code of Federal Regulations Part 1504 has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures at 24 Code of Federal Regulations Part 58, Sec. 58.76 and shall be addressed to the Florida Department of Economic Opportunity, Community Development Block Grant Program, Mail Station 400, 107 East Madison Street, Tallahassee, FL 32399-6508. Potential objectors should contact the City of Madison to verify the actual last day of the objection period.
