Avalon mistake forces 6-month delay

Business owners desperate, angry as construction continues

By Bill Gamblin
news@srpressgazette.com

Avalon business owner Debra Casey, of Casey's Nursery, recently called to ask the state a question about Avalon Boulevard. Instead, she learned crews will be digging up parts of the street they supposedly had finished.

According to a Florida Department of Transportation official, Volkert Construction did not place a big enough drainpipe from Commerce Road to the CSX railroad in Phase I of the project, and they now will have to dig up the driveways and other completed parts, pushing the December completion date back to June 2012.

"I called the state to talk to them about the narrow roadway as you turn on to Avalon from Highway 90," Casey said. "During our conversation, I said I will sure be glad when December gets here and the project is done and they are gone.

Should Avalon businesses be compensated for Volkert's mistake?

"That is when she told me about the issue with the drainage and how they would not be done until June."

FDOT's Ian Satter said crews and engineers discovered an excessive amount of water runoff to the railroad tracks in July. FDOT determined that Volkert, the road consultant, did not correctly estimate the amount of water the installed drainage system would collect. The company called state drainage engineers to look at the issue.

Now, Volkert will be installing new lines and leveling off what was established as a water drainage area.

"February to May is our busy season, and last year we suffered because of all the heavy equipment and dump trucks in front of our store," Casey said. "We were looking forward to this coming busy season, which is where we make most of our money to help us through the lean months.

"Now we are looking at going through that all over again, and my business is already down 90 percent to where I have had to lay everybody off."

Satter said Volkert will be responsible for all costs associated with the road corrections, but he is not sure if Volkert will be responsible for compensating businesses like Casey's Nursery. Casey says several construction-related issues affect not just her business, but others along Avalon.

"I have contacted a lawyer on this, but he has not gotten back to me," Casey said. "When I called an attorney the first time, they

On Friday morning, military personnel lined Stewart Street for the annual Veterans Day Parade.

The parade started at Milton High School at 9:30 a.m. and wound down to the Veterans Memorial Plaza in downtown Milton.

Following the parade, Capt. Matthew Coughlin, the newly appointed commander at Whiting Field, gave a speech to those gathered at the plaza during a laying of the wreaths ceremony, which was followed by a rifle salute.

The Santa Rosa County 4-H held a Veterans Day Picnic after the ceremony, followed by a brick dedication ceremony at the plaza.

Speak OUT

If you have a short comment you would like to make, call the Speak Out line at 623-5887.

Wednesday 9:32 p.m.
Yes, my name is Brett, and what I'm calling about is the Press Gazette that came out today. You have a headline here that says "Santa Rosa eager for courthouse." First of all, I think that is very, very foolish to make that kind of statement. Santa Rosa County people are not eager for a new courthouse. We realize we need a new courthouse, but we also realize how much money is being wasted on projects such as this.

Also, you mentioned here that the courthouse is going to cost about $30 million. We don't need a $30 million courthouse. If we build it on property we already got, it will be half that amount. We don't need a mausoleum, we don't need a place like in Pensacola for the veterans administration there. Don't get me wrong, I believe in taking care of the veterans.

Yes we need a courthouse, but we don't need a $30 million courthouse. Thank you.

Wednesday, 4:31 p.m.
Yes, my name is Bud. I called three weeks ago and asked about information as far as the old Golden Service Station property that is now being dilapidated. The old tanks are being pulled up, and I'm noticing a lot of activity and a lot of money being spent there. They are pumping concrete into where the old pumps were. My question is, who paid for this?

I noticed some county state trucks there and equipment and whatever. This is private property from what I understand. What is our involvement there?

Wednesday, 4:24 p.m.
I called a couple of weeks ago about the gas tanks at the Old Golden Gas Station. I see all the state and county trucks there and wonder who is paying for all of this and how much is it actually costing. I see where they are pulling the tanks and filling near the road with concrete. I want to know who is paying for this and how much this is costing?

Editor's note: We are working on these figures, but they only have an estimate and we should be getting a more exact cost soon.

Wednesday, 4:02 p.m.
I was reading the letter to the editor from Joel Miller. His letter made a lot of sense when it comes to identifying the race of an individual involved in a crime. I think this information would end a lot of speculation by people. And since when is telling the truth being racist?

Wednesday, 3:50 p.m.
W.O. Jones in the Jay area. Couple of comments on the headlines in the Press Gazette from the Nov. 9 edition. "Santa Rosa County eager for courthouse". And right under there, "Some say old building doesn't meet security, accessibility need". It can't be both. Santa Rosa, does that mean everyone's eager for a new courthouse? I don't think so. Going through the article it looks like its saying $30 million for 150,000 sq feet. My numbers add up to $200 per square foot, right? No. 2 is they could have built a courthouse a long time ago. They could have bought a few buildings for $2 or $3 million. They could have got a Walmart shopping center out on Highway 90 like the one behind McDonald's or the Piggly Wiggly building.

They say $30 million, it will be at least $45 to $60 million. That's the normal thing for county commissioners around here. Go back and look at the original figures for the jail. Good luck on holding onto your wallets. Bye.

Wednesday, 11:44 a.m.
My response to a couple of comments in the Nov. 5 Speak Out column. Number one, if I understand correctly, the money for the old brick road project is a grant from the government. If it is not accepted in Santa Rosa County, it goes to another county. It is providing jobs for our citizen. Are you asking where is our leaders mind, referring to President Obama?

And my number two is concerning the hair and the mind issue. This man served in the military and has two sons and a son in law active at the same time. They are defending your right to speak out and his to let his hair grow. This is Mary.

Wednesday, 6:50 a.m.
Ok, my name is Carol. I'm calling in concern of something I think we should be ashamed of. I don't know if it's Milton Mainstreet or the City of Milton. Veterans Day has not even come yet. You know, we should celebrate our troops and our veterans that have gone on, instead of worrying about decorating downtown and putting up the Christmas lights, especially before Veterans Day. Come on Santa Rosa County, we are better than that. Thank you.

Tuesday, 10:45 p.m.
Yes, Jen again. If red light cameras are legal, can I video cars and their tag numbers running stop signs on my street? It would bring in more money than red light cameras. Citizens could really help the sheriff's department. Use this money to help build the new courthouse. Thank you.

Tuesday 10:43 p.m.
Yes, this is Jane. I'm just wondering what is going to happen next. TEAM Santa Rosa failed to perform, now I'm starting to figure out if this plan fails, is it another $10,000 down the drain? I'm going to vote to get rid of TEAM and the Santa Rosa County commissioners. Thank you.

Tuesday, 11:15 a.m.
Nov. 1 someone removed my trash container from my house on Autumndale Drive in Pace. Makes you wonder if they have become so desperate to steal they have resorted to trash cans! Allied Waste kindly replaced the container at no charge and it will now have to stay in the garage to keep thieves from stealing!

Hall prepares for change of command at Whiting Field

By Bill Gamblin
news@srpressgazette.com

CAPT. PETE HALL

Capt. Pete Hall during an interview with the Santa Rosa Press Gazette as he recalled Sept. 11, 2001 when he was at the Pentagon in Washington, D.C.

Two years ago, Capt. Pete Hall arrived at NAS Whiting Field following a commander who was embraced by a community that he should soon return to, Capt. Rick Sadsad.

While many thought Hall had some big shoes to fill, he didn't try be a Capt. Sadsad, but he was his own man and fell in love with Santa Rosa County just as his predecessor did.

"Rick did a great job setting me up for success here at NAS Whiting Field," said Hall, as he prepared to turn over command at NAS Whiting Field on Thursday to Capt. Matthew Coughlin. "He did a great deal of the work for me personally and the base to where these two years have just flown by.

"He brought the base close to the community and the community close to the base."

Thursday marked the 37th transition of command since the base was established in 1943.

During the last two years, NAS Whiting Field has been busy, recording 15 percent of the Navy's and Marine Corps' flight hours or one of its 13 outlying fields in Northwest Florida and Southern Alabama.

"This has just been such an exciting time and privilege for me to be here at NAS Whiting Field," Hall said. "Being the skipper here, I find myself watching a lot more than I do things.

"The leaders and commanders of Training Wing 5 are great people and do an awesome job."

During his tour, the base supported the safe execution of 320,000 aircraft flight hours and 3.5 million flight evolutions, as well as classroom and simulator training for 3,600 student naval aviators.

While keeping his sight on the needs of his Sailors and the needs of the Navy, Hall also supported an increase in Training Air Wing 5 flight requirements without an increase to the budget or personnel. This flexibility enabled Training Wing 5 to successfully return to schedule and pilot production months ahead of the anticipated time.

One significant change during Hall's command at NAS Whiting Field was the introduction of the T-6B Texan training aircraft.

Earlier this year, NAS Whiting Field celebrated the delivery of the 100th T-6B Texan and now the base is approaching 135 trainers.

Hall's active participation within the community not only strengthened an already powerful partnership, but was reflected within the command through increased efforts in projects such as Adopt-A-School, Blackwater River cleanups, Starbase Atlantis, Youth Works, Sea Cadets and other community service initiatives.

Because of his active participation in the community and initiatives, Hall has become quite fond of Santa Rosa County and has tried not to look forward to Thursday's change of command.

"The people here are more friendly than any other tour I have ever been at before," Hall said. "When I leave here, I will leave part of my heart here with the community and the county.

"I have tried my best not to think ahead to my next duty spot because I like it here."

Hall's next duty post will be at the Pentagon, which is where he was stationed on Sept. 11, 2001, as well as two years prior to arriving at NAS Whiting Field.

As Hall prepared for his last day as the skipper of NAS Whiting Field, he has told his successor, Capt. Coughlin, that he has stumbled on a hidden gem.

"I am not wanting this chapter to end," Hall said. "I really like being here and I like the people I have met and gotten to know over the last two years.

"I have told Capt. Coughlin about all the great support he has here with the City of Milton, Chamber of Commerce, Rotary, as well as the community at large."

Hall's successor, Capt. Coughlin, hails from Greenfield, Mass., and graduated from Western New England College.

He was commissioned in Oct. 1988 through the Aviation Officer Candidate School Program and was winged in 1990 at NAS Whiting Field.

Throughout his career, he has flown the SH-60B with the Air Wolves of HSL-40 and the Vipers of HSL-48 as well as onboard the USS San Jacinto (CG-56) and the USS Peleliu (LHA-5).

He completed tours at the Naval Post Graduate School in Monterey, Calif., and the National Defense University in Washington, D.C.

Coughlin served his command tour with the HSL-43 Battle Cats as well as working a stint with the Joint Chiefs of Staff as an assistant deputy director of operations, surveillance officer, and emergency actions officer.

Maryland man sentenced for child solicitation

By Bill Gamblin
news@srpressgazette.com

BRUCE ALPERSTEIN

Tuesday, a Maryland man received 63 months in prison on sex charges involving a minor.

Bruce Alperstein, 66, of Silver Springs, Md., was sentenced by Judge David Rimmer after pleading no contest to traveling to meet a minor and soliciting a parent of a child for unlawful sexual conduct with a child using a computer.

Alperstein was also designated a sexual offender and will be placed on probation for four years following his release from prison.

On May 7, 2010, Alperstein traveled from Maryland to Florida to have sex with a mother and her children after chatting online with who he thought was the mother of two in Santa Rosa County.

Alperstein was actually talking to an agent from the Attorney General's Cyber Crime Unit, which is located at the Santa Rosa Kid's House.

When he came to Santa Rosa County, Alperstein was arrested and charged with two counts of obscene communications after he arranged what was to be a sexual encounter with a woman's 12-year old son and 9-year old daughter.

According to then Florida Attorney General Bill McCollums's office, Alperstein began chatting with the undercover investigator in April and set up a meeting at a predetermined location in Santa Rosa County.

At the time of Alperstein's arrest, the Florida Attorney General's office stated Alperstein will be charged with two counts of solicitation of a parent of a minor for sex with that child via a computer, a third degree felony, and one count of traveling to meet an adult for the purpose of having sex with the person's child, a second degree felony under the CyberCrimes Against Children Act 2007.

Alperstein could have faced up to 25 years in prison on these charges if the case would have gone to trial.

The Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Office, Federal Bureau of Investigations, and the Pensacola Police Department assisted in apprehending Alperstein on May 7.

Deputies make meth arrests

BRIAN MAULDIN

Monday night, Santa Rosa County Sheriff's deputies went to search for a fugitive wanted for meth related charges and made a surprising discovery.

Santa Rosa County Deputies went to 9081 John Hamm Road in Milton to search for Brian Mauldin.

According to Sgt. Scott Haines, when deputies arrived at the residence, Heather Raybon and William Hindall consented to a search by Santa Rosa County Deputies. Deputies noticed a strong chemical smell that was reported to be consistent with the presence of a methamphetamine lab and located drug paraphernalia in plain view.

According to Haines, once inside, the deputies noticed materials and ingredients used to produce methamphetamine along with 13 grams of meth powder and 32 grams of meth oil.

Inside the bedroom of the residence detectives discovered an active "one pot" methamphetamine lab.

Fire units were requested to help neutralize the active lab due to the threat of fire or explosion as officers safely neutralized and removed the lab from the residence.

Haines indicated a small metal pill bottle was located in Raybon's purse in which the contents tested positive for methamphetamine.

Arrested by the Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Office were Raybon, 31, and Hindall, 30, who were charged with production of methamphetamine, a second degree felony, trafficking in methamphetamine, a first degree felony, possession of felony drug equipment, a third degree felony, and possession of listed chemicals to manufacture methamphetamine, a second degree felony.

Both remain lodged in the Santa Rosa County Jail. Raybon's bond is set at $12,000, while Hindall's bond is set at $20,000. At the time they were arrested, officers set a bond of $35,000 for each.

Deputies immediately evacuated the residence and called on Narcotics detectives, who entered the residence wearing protective equipment.

According to Haines in a press release, "Raybon has multiple past arrests involving methamphetamine related charges in Santa Rosa County. Raybon also suffered severe and disfiguring burns during a fire that occurred on Dec. 16, 2004, in Milton. Due to the injuries and past intelligence, Investigators believe that Raybon's burns were consistent with being associated with a meth lab explosion; however, Raybon was cooperative with investigators as to how the injuries occurred."

The Sheriff's Office is still looking for Brian Mauldin (W/M, 28 years old) for an active warrant for possession of listed chemicals to manufacture methamphetamine, a second degree felony.

His last known address was at 9081 John Hamm Road.

Anyone with information concerning his whereabouts is asked to contact Santa Rosa Crime Stoppers at 437-STOP or www.srccs.com.

Ignorance exploited

MINORITY VIEWPOINT
Walter Williams

Many Wall Street occupiers are echoing the Communist Party USA's call to "Save the nation! Tax corporations! Tax the rich!" There are other Americans, on both the left and the right — for example, President Barack Obama and House Speaker John Boehner — who call for reductions in corporate taxes. But the University of California, Berkeley's pretend economist Robert Reich disagrees, saying, "The economy needs two whopping corporate tax cuts right now as much as someone with a serious heart condition needs Botox." Let's look at corporate taxes and ask, "Who pays them?"

Virginia has a car tax. Does the car pay the tax? In most political jurisdictions, there's a property tax. Does property pay the tax? You say: "Williams, that's lunacy. Neither a car nor property pays taxes. Only flesh-and-blood people pay taxes!" What about a corporation? As it turns out, a corporation is an artificial creation of the legal system and, as such, a legal fiction. A corporation is not a person and therefore cannot pay taxes. When tax is levied on a corporation, who pays it?

There's an entire subject area in economics, known as tax incidence, that investigates who bears the burden of a tax. It turns out that the burden of a tax is not necessarily borne by the party or entity upon whom it is levied. For example, if a sales tax is levied on a cigarette retailer, the retailer does not bear the full burden of the tax. Part of it will be shifted forward to customers in the form of higher product prices. The exact amount of the shifting depends upon market supply and demand conditions.

What about raising taxes on corporations as a means to get them to pay their "rightful share of government?" If a tax is levied on a corporation and if it is to survive, it will have one of several responses or some combination thereof. One response is to raise the price of its product, so customers share part of the burden. Another response is to lower dividends, so shareholders share a part of the burden. And a considerable portion of reduced dividend burden falls on ordinary non-rich people. According to the Tax Foundation, 19 percent of federal tax returns report dividend income but 42 percent of taxpayers older than 65 report dividend income. Therefore, it is people, not some legal fiction called a corporation, who bear the burden of the tax. Because corporations have these responses to the imposition of a tax, they are merely government tax collectors.

The largest burden of corporate taxes is borne by workers. We discover that by asking a simple question, such as: Which workers on a road construction project earn the higher pay, those employed moving dirt with shovels and wheelbarrows or those doing the same atop giant earth movers? You would guess the guys operating the earth movers, but why? It's not because they're unionized or because construction contractors have a fondness for earth mover operators. It's because those workers have more capital (tools) to work with and are thereby more productive. Higher productivity translates into higher wages.

Tax policies that raise the cost of capital formation — such as capital gains taxes, low depreciation allowances and corporate taxes — reduce capital formation. As a result, workers have less capital, lower productivity and lower wage growth. In 1980, Joseph Stiglitz, now a Nobel laureate, said that workers share the highest corporate tax burden in the form of lower wages. A number of economic studies, including that of the Congressional Budget Office, show that workers bear anywhere from 45 to 75 percent of the corporate tax burden. Adding to the burden is the fact that capital has the kind of mobility that labor doesn't. Corporate capital can flee to other countries easily, but workers cannot.

Politicians and leftist elite get away with corporate tax demagoguery because economists haven't done well in making our subject understandable to ordinary people, not to mention that we have derelict news media people with little understanding.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Silent no longer

Until now I've kept my mouth shut on the attempts of Muslims to overtake America, their goal. They even want Sharia Law our law of the land. This daughter of naturalized citizens is outraged at this thought.

Now a professor of my husband's alma mater, George Washington University, is suing Catholic University for removal of the cross in the room where Muslim students worship, a room for which they should be grateful. If I am not mistaken, the students haven't complained.

No one has the right to eradicate symbols of Christianity in a private institution. The frivolous lawsuit should be thrown out.

I'm tired of apathetic Christians who won't stand against attacks by anyone, even native born Americans. The professor is obviously prejudiced against Catholics.

All attackers of Christianity need to come to the foot of the Cross to meet the one God provided for their salvation, Jesus Christ, or shut their mouths.

By the way, further outrage, Congress just voted 396 to 9 in favor of our motto, "In God We Trust." These eight Democrats and one Republican need Jesus too.

God bless you all as only He can.

MAT BILL ProCon

Topic: Should the state compensate businesses on Avalon Boulevard?

Pay up

Bill, you don't go to a buffet and clean them out without paying, so what makes you think these businesses along Avalon want to be cleaned out of customers without being compensated?

These businesses are struggling. Some are even going as far as shutting their doors. By the time Avalon opens up to a four-lane road, there won't be any businesses.

The problem has started since day one of this project. The contractor working on this project has not taken the time to care about these businesses which are already hanging on by a thread due to the past road disturbances and the weak economy.

These businesses hire local people and keep the county strong. And while a new road is a good way to strengthen the economy, it only hurts the economy while under construction.

Bob Cole and many others have the mentality that "if you have your mind set on going somewhere" you are going to throw your truck into four-wheel drive and topple over the curbs to get to that business – regardless of road work or obstacles.

Well Bill, not all of the people have trucks, and a lot of people don't have the patience to search for an entrance to a business, especially when they are battling people with road rage who just want to get off of Avalon Blvd.

The real businesses that are suffering are the ones that have been suffering with the economy in the first place. Businesses such as restaurants, mom-and-pop firms and others are reeling.

People just won't go to much trouble to patronize a business. If the road is bumpy, directions hard to follow or prices too high, the customers simply move on to another business.

From the start, the FDOT should have told the businesses to keep a list of their expenses on a month-by-month basis. That way, they could track how much these businesses lose. From there, the FDOT should have dished out some money to at least help these businesses keep their doors open while they wait for customers to be ABLE to beat a path to their door.

And the worst part is, many of these businesses are small businesses and employ very few. I've received call after call from business owners on Avalon who say they have had to cut down on employee hours and wages just to get by. That's not something these businesses should hear while waiting to get a better road.

Now it seems as though the southbound lanes won't be done for some time because construction crews have to go back in and repave a big chunk of the road. Time wasted is money wasted Bill.

FDOT needs to work with the federal government to acquire grants to pay back these businesses that are losing business because of construction. While I agree that many of these businesses were happy to see that they were getting a better road, many probably didn't think their business would be turned upside down for years.

Mat, what more do you want?

I feel bad for what the businesses are going through.

Heck, I have to endure the obstacle course every day on my way to work and in the evening as I go home.

At times, it has been so bad that I would rather navigate my way through a field of speed bumps, but I have to keep reminding myself it is progress in the making.

I remember the nightmares when Avalon Boulevard was just a two-lane stretch and one car could back people up for miles.

Everyone cheered loudly when it was announced it was going to become four lanes thanks mostly to the work of Bob Cole.

Now everyone wants to be compensated because it has disrupted their business.

If we did not progress as a nation because someone or some business was inconvenienced, we would still be dealing with the Dust Bowl and the days of the Wild Western Frontiers.

I recall talking to people who not only had to move, but had their homes and towns completely destroyed in the name of progress.

For those who might have forgotten the Tennessee Valley Authority not only took over an entire region, but helped meet the ever growing demand for power in a country when it needed it the most.

In Kentucky, there are towns like Eddyville, Kuttawa, Gilbertsville, and several others that are now at the bottom of what you will find on a map as Lake Barkley and Kentucky Lake.

What do you think would have happened to our nation if everyone who felt inconvenienced by the interstate road system introduced by President Dwight D. Eisenhower had cried fowl?

I do feel sorry for every business and try to visit or shop with them as many times as I possibly can, but there is more to the decline of their business than just road construction.

How many businesses have opened and failed in light of our recent economy? How many are because of the collapse of Freddie and Fanny Mae?

Should people along Avalon not have their homes or businesses foreclosed upon due to a nasty economy?

Who else should request money for the issues on Avalon Boulevard?

The shocks and struts on my car are ruined from having to travel off road for several weeks trying to get home and there are about three to four hundred more in my neighborhood who are probably suffering the same problem.

Then there is the water issue and the cars that have flooded out.

I have even aged 10 or more years some nights because someone was traveling the wrong way on the road and almost hit me head-on.

Should the state buy me a hairpiece or buy me a Hair Club for Men membership?

With all the wrecks there have been because of the way people have been driving on Avalon, I cannot wait for someone wanting to blame the state for their increased insurance rates after an accident.

Everyone could have a very valid and explainable claim, but a line has to be drawn somewhere.

The state has drawn the line and stated they do not have a claim. Even attorneys have consulted with some of these business owners and told them the same thing.

I hate to see these people suffer, but in one way or another, the suffering is not limited to just businesses.

SENIOR FEATURE

Tyler Kaelin

Tyler Joseph Kaelin is the son of Robert and Charla Kaelin. As a very dedicated and active MHS student, Tyler has been a member of Class of 2012 Board, Beta, and Mu Alpha Theta for all four years; Student Government Association for 3 years; National Honor Society for 2 years; and the newest club on campus, First Priority, for his senior year. Tyler has proudly served as Sophomore Board Vice President, Parliamentarian of SGA his junior year, and confidently serves as Vice President of both Beta and SGA. Tyler has competed in Cross Country, Soccer, and Track for 3 years. As a senior, Tyler plans on continuing with Cross Country and Soccer but plans on pursuing the Tennis Team. Tyler has received the Christian-based "Go the Distance" award twice for Cross Country and the Coach's award for Soccer. When Tyler thinks about his high school experiences, memories of screaming in the student sections at football games, helping with the most impressive prom MHS will ever see, and the crazy shenanigans of homecoming week prove his favorite. After high school, Tyler plans on attending Berry College to double major in mathematics and microbiology and then continuing to Duke University in his pursuit in becoming a biomedical engineer.

lack of participation, negative public responses and the city's cost of supporting the activities.

"This was a carnival and not what is to be considered Scratch Ankle," said Milton Mayor Guy Thompson, chairman of the Downtown Redevelopment Advisory Board. "This call is not an easy one, but that is what we get the big bucks for.

"When we started Scratch Ankle, there were 40 booths and it was primarily established for the churches and the nonprofits to have a fundraiser, but I don't know if we will ever be able to capture the old Scratch Ankle again."

Connie Clark led this year's festival planning.

"I helped organize Scratch Ankle, and when I started, I sent a letter to every church in Santa Rosa County and others trying to get back to the nonprofits by typing and sending out letters to them, but there are too many other ways for them to make money through fundraisers today," Clark said. "One thing we did do this year was to bring back the Scratch Ankle Pageant.

"I grew up on the Heritage of Milton, and that is what this festival was all about."

During the discussion, complainants also discussed claims that barricades limited the flow of traffic crossing the Blackwater River from Milton to East Milton.

"My business is in the hot seat of the backup," said Kim McCarthy, who owns the Copper Possum. "I appreciate the comment about traffic, but I see this every afternoon at 3 p.m., and it is that way every Friday if there is a festival or not.

"The people are polite and the traffic continues to move, but it is not horrendous."

McCarthy wanted to know what made the events "unsuccessful."

"Is this decision coming from just your observations, or have you asked the merchants?" McCarthy said. "Some do extended hours, so I wonder if your committee talked to those at places like Bodacious Pies and Bakery or the Old Post Office."

Randy Jorgensen, Milton's planning and zoning director, referred to a conference he attended earlier in the year hosted by the Florida Redevelopment Association.

"Events that are not successful have a bigger impact on the city than those that are successful," Jorgensen said. "I went by a First Friday event a few weeks back, and they had probably five show cars and a pop-up tent.

"The key is the individuals who come to an unsuccessful event will say, 'I have been to an event there, and I won't go back,' and they also tell their friends and neighbors. We do not want people to come to Milton and have a negative experience and not return for that. It comes down to the image of the community."

Main Street Milton does not receive any financial support for events like Scratch Ankle and First Friday. The concern for the city is ancillary items such as police, street sweepers, barricades and other items.

"There is an issue bothering me, and that is this is being done backwards," said Ryan Arvay, a Santa Rosa County resident who is the Main Street Director in Crestview. "The city is handing out a punishment without rules or guidelines to perform by. I don't feel that this is a responsible way for you to run the city."

told me there was nothing I could do unless they physically touched my property.

"By Volkert having to redo their work, it is going to cost more time and money. Why didn't the state offer the job to someone else when they noticed the problem so this would not go on any longer?"

Casey's is not the only business affected by the construction.

Mediacom, which was giving out free digital television adapters at its Avalon office, has moved that distribution across the street to make it easier for its customers.

Casey also opened a second location in an attempt to help her business.

"I opened an outlet on Highway 90, and people told me there was no way they were going to drive Highway 90 right now," Casey said. "It is even scary for me to get on.

"The other day I tried to go to the cleaners (Avalon Cleaners) just down the road, and I went past it because I could not figure out how to get to the store."

Getting to the front door has been a problem for places like Bingo Magic, the Oval Office and two Tom Thumb locations.

With the traffic pattern change introduced at the first of November at Avalon and Highway 90, those driving north cannot access the Tom Thumb near the intersections.

Satter said when this project is complete, there will be no access point for the Tom Thumb near Highway 90 and Avalon, but there would be some turnarounds spaced on the road so people could go back to access a place they had to pass.

"Karen has been a tremendous asset for the company and an outstanding leader for all of our associates in Florida," said Mark McEachen, Freedom executive vice president and chief operating officer. "All of us will miss her, but we wish her nothing but the best in her retirement."

Hanes began her career in 1968 with Lesher Communication in northern California, serving in a variety of sales management positions including general manager of Lesher's daily newspaper in Pleasanton, Calif. She is a graduate of the Kellogg School of Management and the Medill School of Journalism, both at Northwestern University, and the Santa Clara University Leadership Institute. She is a Rotary International Paul Harris Fellow.

Rick Martin, associate publisher of the News Herald since 2007, will succeed Ms. Hanes as publisher of the News Herald and will take on oversight for the Washington County Times, Holmes County Times-Advertiser, the Star in Gulf County and the Times in Franklin County. He will also assume responsibility on an interim basis for all print and digital properties of Florida Freedom Newspapers, reporting to McEachen. Meanwhile, Tom Conner will remain publisher of the Northwest Florida Daily News in Fort Walton Beach and will take on additional oversight responsibilities for a number of nearby Freedom weekly publications, including the Crestview News Bulletin, Destin Log, the Walton Sun and the Press Gazette.

Wednesday Milton pitcher Katie Worley signed a softball scholarship to play at Georgia State University. Joining Katie is her father Alan, mom Sherry and sister Mikaela. Standing in the back are Dennis Rosalie, Taren Walton, Derek Walters, and Robert Downs.

Worley headed to Pantherville

By Bill Gamblin
sports@srpressgazette.com

Milton High School's Katie Worley is known for her pitching abilities as a Panther at Milton High School.

KATIE WORLEY

After Wednesday, she will be 300 miles from her home in Pantherville and will be at Georgia State University.

Worley, a senior, on Wednesday signed to pitch next season for the Georgia State University Panthers and becomes the first female in the school's history to sign a full athletic scholarship.

Ironically what might have been a bad game for Worley in Georgia turned out to be a gem for GSU.

Worley, who in her high school career has a 30-11 record entering her senior year, saw a loss lead to Wednesday's historic success as ironically one Sunday was a new day.

"Katie was pitching for me on my travel ball team in Athens and at times the sport can be very unkind," said Dennis Rosalie, her travel ball coach. "We played a very competitive team on Saturday and they hit Katie pretty hard and we did not play well as a team. The coaches who were there to see her said she was not what they were looking for on their team.

"I told Katie Sunday was a new day and that Georgia State was coming to watch her. It never concerned her and she pitched a great game to where Georgia State offered her a scholarship on the spot and I started getting calls from South Alabama, University of Central Florida, and Jacksonville University."

Rosalie and everyone else who has worked with Worley, since she started pitching at the age of 10, will tell you to watch out when she has that certain look.

"I knew on Sunday she was fine as she gave me that look of give me the ball and leave me alone," Rosalie said.

That was the same look she gave her coaches in Bowling Green, Ky., this past summer at a regional qualifier as a member of the Mobile Thrillers.

"We were playing in the finals for a chance to go to the nationals in Chattanooga (Tenn.) and when we called that final pitch she looked over at the dugout and grinned saying she had this," said Taren Walton, a coach with the Thrillers. "She has something that you can't teach or coach and that is a competitive spirit."

Worley will tell you despite her successes she can always get better.

"That is the way I have been taught," Worley said. "There is always room for improvement no matter what you do and to succeed you have to work hard to be your best."

She has certainly been the best as she has established herself as one of the most successful pitchers in Milton High history with 339 strikeouts in three seasons and a career ERA of 1.05 while competing in a very demanding district with the likes of Pace, Escambia, Navarre, and Tate high schools. This year will mark the third head coach Worley will play under since she has been a Lady Panther at Milton.

For Worley, who has traveled and pitched just about everywhere in the nation, the Panthers drew her in on her initial visit to Atlanta, where Pantherville is actually located.

"When I went there on my initial visit I just fell in love with the place and it felt like home," said Worley who also considered offers from South Alabama, UCF, and Jacksonville University. "I am very excited about playing for Georgia State, but right now my focus is on my senior year."

Worley, a Wendy's High School Heisman candidate in softball, appears to be going to a team many should be hearing about after a strong 2011.

Last season the Panthers went 36-25 while winning the Colonial Athletic Association Conference title and earning a bid to the NCAA Regional held in Athens under the direction of coach Roger Kincaid who started the 2011 season as the interim head coach.

VETERANS GET HOPE, HOME FOR FUTURE

They served the U.S., they wore a uniform, and although their uniform has changed slightly, the veterans in Quad 1 K-dorm of the Santa Rosa County Correctional Institution are looking forward to a new life.

On Wednesday, the Santa Rosa County Correctional Institution held their open house for the new veteran's dormitory located inside the prison. Santa Rosa County will be one of only five counties in the State of Florida to house a veterans dormitory in their prison system.

The dormitory is the latest re-entry initiative from the Florida Department of Corrections that houses veterans of war who are within three years of being released from prison, allowing them the opportunity to participate in specialized programs to help them get on their feet before re-entering the civilian world.

In May, the program kicked off after the prison received 13 inmates from surrounding areas. Since then, the amount of inmates has nearly tripled in size.

"Some of these (prisoners) may need help, but we're here to provide that for them," said Congressman Jeff Miller, who attended the open house and serves as chairman of the House Committee on Veterans Affairs.

The program utilizes correctional officers with military backgrounds to help oversee the dormitories and the programs. Sgt. Chester Williams, who has worked at the correctional institution for more than two decades and has more than 40 years of military service on his shoulders, is just one of the many correctional officers who serve the K dorm with some type of military background.

"A lot of this program runs from volunteers and from staff," Williams said. "It took a lot of hard work, but we got the job done."

Before entering the program, veterans are medically and educationally evaluated. Once they're approved and their former service with the military is confirmed, they are placed in the program on a volunteer basis.

The program reinstates the military style thinking the prisoners may have been used to in the past such as keeping their cells "toothbrush" clean, participating in daily flag raising and retirement ceremonies and are strictly prohibited from using profanity or racial slurs.

The strict guidelines are some that SRCI Warden Randall Tifft says are necessary to get the inmates to be respectful toward one another.

Edwin Rosado, an inmate and former Marine entered the program with an understanding that it would potentially make him into a better person once he was released.

"This program has put a lot of discipline standards on us," Rosado said. "It gives us a better understanding of what has happened and what is going to happen."

Inmates who enter the program and are two years from being released from prison, participate in academic, vocational and betterment programs. They also receive post-traumatic stress disorder counseling, job readiness sessions and job assignments.

According to Ken Tucker, the secretary for the Florida Department of Corrections, the veterans in the program do not have special treatment as compared to the other inmates in the facility.

"They have to participate in these programs in order to stay in the vet dorms," Tucker said. "More importantly, they are expected to support one another and to achieve success."

One way inmates started doing this was by picking up a paintbrush and painting their heritage on the walls of the dormitory.

Around the dorm, U.S. flag murals and historical military photos were hand painted with care by the inmates to give the dorm a sense of military pride.

"Our goal is to reduce victimization and recidivism," Tucker said.

Approximately 6.7 percent of the Florida Department of Corrections inmates have been identified as military veterans according to data released by FDC.

Just before release, the inmates in the veterans program will receive vocational rehabilitation, and have counseling from the Agency of Workforce Innovation and the Department of Children and Families.
