Senior citizens target of area scam

By Mathew Pellegrino
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

Elderly Medicare recipients beware.

According to several local residents, a person has been calling homes around northern Santa Rosa County alleging to be a Medicare representative and asking citizens for personal information, such as bank routing numbers and Social Security numbers.

Jay resident, Norma Burch, 81, said she was at a senior citizen meeting Wednesday afternoon when Dorothy Penton, also a Jay resident, warned the senior citizens about a man who has been calling locals to get information on their Medicare coverage.

According to Burch, Penton said that the man alleges that because of the new year, Medicare must update the person's information to send out new Medicare cards.

After leaving the senior citizens meeting in Chumuckla, Burch said she returned home, and right before she was about to go to church, she got a strange phone call.

"I answered it, and it was a broken English fella," Burch said. "He said he was from Medicare and was trying to get information from me to send out new Medicare cards."

That's when Burch said she hung up on the man. Since the call, Burch has tried to get a hold of someone at the Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Office, but has been unsuccessful.

"I'm afraid of this happening to someone else," Burch said. "We need to let our senior citizens know about this."

Burch said the lady who spoke at the senior citizen meeting in Chumuckla said the man asked for her bank routing number and her Social Security number, and she gave him both.

"I know Medicare sends me letters when they want something from me," Burch said. "The only reason they call me is when I call them and tell them to call me back."

Burch said that because she does not have caller ID, she was unable to verify who was calling and from where.

"It's a scam," Burch said. "A lot of people think Medicare is their lifeline, and they don't know any better. It could happen to you."

Penton said she heard about one of her friends in Berrydale

Also in observance of the holiday all banks, mail delivery and city services such, as trash pickup, will be postponed.

Locally, the holiday will commence with the annual MLK Day Parade.

The parade, organized by the Santa Rosa County Fellowship Churches Pastors and Ministers' Wives Organization, is set to begin at 10 a.m. and will start at Milton High School, traveling south on Stewart Street to Elva Street.

There is a $30 parade fee per vehicle, float or walking unit, and the fee must be received by today, Jan. 14. A $10 late fee will be charged for entries received after the deadline.

Units for the parade will start lining up at 8:30 a.m. at Milton High School.

At 11 a.m. there will be a MLK Block Party hosted by the Santa Rosa County NAACP.

The block party will be held on Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Drive in Milton and will feature food, games and entertainment in a family environment.

Buses continue to roll

By Bill Gamblin
news@srpressgazette.com

On Thursday, by the narrowest of possible margins, Santa Rosa County Commissioners approved to continue offering bus services until November 2012.

Commissioners voted to amended the express route for morning and afternoons, while continuing with a normal route during the middle of the day and late evenings by a 3-2 margin.

Those in dissention of this plan were commissioners Jim Melvin and Jim Williamson.

Until Thursday, the trial bus service was on a three-month extension as Commissioner Lane Lynchard asked to see if something could be done to reduce the time of travel for those using the service in the morning and afternoons in a effort to get to and from work.

"When we looked at the bus routes, it was almost a two-hour trip due to all the stops, and that was not successful any way you look at it," Lynchard said. "Now with the express routes we are looking at, those times wil be reduced by over 50 percent.

"I think that will be a great thing for the service and I can't stress enough the need to constantly monitor the routes and adjust them as necessary."

While cost has been a factor, the extension will only cost the county $16,000 with the aid it

Customers boiling over water board stipend proposal

By Mathew Pellegrino
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

The collective mood inside the Pace Water System meeting Tuesday night could only be described as disgruntled.

Dozens of unhappy Pace Water System customers filled the water systems boardroom to lash out about the recent proposal to give board members annual stipends.

The large gathering was fueled by recent talks the that the nonprofit Pace Water System Board was considering an annual $7,500 stipend for each of its board members or the possibility of health benefits. The members on the board attend about 10 to 12 meetings a year that last approximately an hour to an hour-and-a-half.

Tuesday night's meeting lasted two hours, mostly because Pace Water System customers were there to voice their opinions on the proposed stipend.

At their Dec. 13 meeting, the idea of the stipend was discussed and voted on to further consider at Tuesday's meeting. It was later determined by board attorney Joe Saba that the vote was pointless.

Pace Water System has two separate entities: the Pace Water System Inc. and Pace Property Finance Authority. The board members present at Tuesday night's meeting represent both boards as a whole. The attorney found that in 1992, Pace Water Systems board voted to change the bylaws in order to allow for a stipend on their nonprofit board, but not on the Pace Property Finance Authority board. The attorney said because of this, it would be controversal to allow board members to receive any stipend until Pace Property Finance Authority was able to change their bylaws to do likewise.

"Overall, it's clear as mud trying to figure out where this stands," Saba said.

Randy Grant, a board member whose term expires at the beginning of next month, originally drew-up the stipend proposal. Grant said that the paycheck was needed because there wasn't enough interest from locals to serve on the board. The stipend would be used to attract new members. Grant said he had no means of running again in the upcoming election.

"This was nothing but an opinion, and an opinion only," Grant said. "There was never a monetary amount established."

According to Grant, he did not establish a $7,500 stipend for board members, but originally proposed a figure that was closer to $6,000, which was based on the amount of people that Emerald Coast Utilities Authority serves.

Garcon Point road to close for repairs

Special to the Press Gazette

As a continuation of drainage system repair work, a segment of Garcon Point Road from Robinson Point Road south to Mary Kitchens Road will be closed Jan. 17 until approximately Feb. 15.

All local residents will have full access to their homes. The detour for all other traffic is Mary Kitchens Road to Avalon Boulevard.

The drainage system repair work is in preparation for the Garcon Point Road widening and resurfacing project. The road was closed in November for several weeks. Repair work will be done in phases due to several drainage culverts requiring replacement.

Subsequent closures in the spring are anticipated. Funding for the widening and resurfacing project has been provided by a grant through the Florida Department of Transportation Small County Outreach Program.

The cost of the project is approximately $852,837, with the FDOT funding 75 percent of the project.

The public is reminded to exercise extreme caution at all times. Even when workers are not present, the area will have additional signs, barricades and parked equipment as a visual reminder.

For a list of current road closures, please visit our website at www.santarosa.fl.gov/roads/closures.cfm.

Wednesday, 8:57 p.m.

It appears the Pace Water System Board has committed political suicide. In spite of overwhelming opposition from customers and strong efforts by board member Bill Carney they refused to allow a vote to change the existing Articles of Incorporation. This change would prevent the board from voting themselves the $7,500 per member annual stipend. Carney was able to have the recent proposal for stipend rescinded. Remember and vote them out in February.

Contrary to a Jan. 11 Speak Out, I do not enjoy, and even thoroughly dislike, Ron Hart's columns. Incorrect, false and misleading statements coupled with unfair attacks against (almost always) Democrats, liberals, progressives, and President Obama aren't that funny to me, especially when they only serve to increase the political rancor and divisiveness which is dragging our country down. Just another Republican partisan hatchetman, yes, but a real humorist — not at all. If you want to bash Obama and Dems, fine, knock yourself out, but don't publish lies under the pretense of humor, and just for a change, how about sticking to the facts, instead of alternative histories pirated from Fox Fantasy News.

Wednesday, 2:17 p.m.

Yeah, this is a comment on the Jan. 7 Speak Out about people getting a disability check. It seems to me if you can work full time or part time you should not be getting disability. It is the taxpayers who are paying this for you. I am sorry but you need to work if you can. You should not be getting a disability check when you are not truly disabled.

Milton resident Eleanor Bennett's home on Applegate Street was flooded with sewage more than four months ago after a line break.

City looks at final outlook on Applegate home

By Mathew Pellegrino
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

The City of Milton is looking to reimburse a Milton woman $10,000 for what she considers a portion of her belongings that she lost after a sewage line break caused sewage to back up into her home on Applegate Street off of Stewart Street in September.

Eleanor Bennett, who has been residing in an apartment paid for by the city while her home was being cleaned, said she lost more than $17,000 worth of personal items in the home when the sewage flooded her home four months ago. The city submitted that amount to an insurance claims adjuster back in December to see how much, if any, could be covered. The adjuster came back saying the claim was unjustifiable.

At Tuesday night's board meeting, the city agreed to pay for approximately $10,000 of Bennett's personal belongings, but not a penny more. That money would come out of the city's own pocket.

"Her bottom line was $15,000," Milton Mayor Guy Thompson said. "I think the city has been more than fair in trying to help Ms. Bennett out."

So far the city and Florida League of Cities, the city's insurance company has dished out more than $55,000 to clean up the mess they claimed was their own fault. A tree root was to blame for puncturing the sewage line and backing it up into Bennett's home.

"Part of those expenses were clothes…. she wanted more than $4,500 for clothing alone," Thompson said. "I think the city has done all that it can do.

"It's a take-it-or-leave-it scenario as far as I'm concerned."

Board members voted 7-0 to pay Bennett $10,000 for the personal belongings she lost during the sewage flooding.

The city said its insurance provider already has paid for roughly $6,000 in clean-up costs, and the insurance provider paid for the secondary cleanup.

Eleanor Bennett has been staying in an apartment while the city cleans out her home, which was flooded with sewage.

City Manager Brian Watkins said Bennett should be able to move back into her home by Jan. 20 if crews are able to finish her home by then. Currently, construction crews still are working on installing cabinets and new floors for the home.

But even with the hit taken from the project, the city was reimbursed from the Florida League of Cities at its meeting Tuesday night because the region was not effected by a hurricane in 2011.

The Florida League of Cities' Return of Premium Program returns money to its customers if they are not affected by a hurricane during the year.

This was the first year the city received a premium refund, and it earned the city $18,108.

Individuals asked to 'Climb the Ladder'

Special to the Press Gazette

The site of the old Milton Firehouse in Milton soon will be transformed into a "recycling innovation station" and businesses, corporations and individuals now are being asked to help "Climb the Ladder" to the top with donations which will be used to purchase recycled plastic picnic tables, park benches and garbage receptacles for the new Fireman's Recycling Station.

The Santa Rosa Clean Community System Inc. has begun soliciting donations.

One end of the station will house recycling containers and the other end will include the recycled plastic tables, benches and garbage cans for use by the general public.

Kiosks will provide information about recycling. Plans also include a garden area made from recycled glass.

The location of the recycling center is adjacent to the intersection of Stewart Street and Berryhill Road. The project is a partnership with the City of Milton and Santa Rosa County.

Sponsorships are available at the Platinum Ladder Level — $1,000 or more; Gold Ladder Level — $500-$999; Silver Ladder Level — $250-$499; or Bronze Ladder Level — $50-$249. All donations are tax-deductible.

If you do not receive a letter in the mail and would like more information and/or donation form, or if you have additional questions regarding this project, feel free to contact John Tonkin, executive director, Tuesday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., at 850-623-1930, or email him at SRClean@aol.com. MINORITY VIEWPOINT

In greed I trust

MINORITY VIEWPOINT
Walter Williams

Last week's column started off asking, "What human motivation gets the most wonderful things done?" The answer is that human greed is what gets wonderful things done. I wasn't talking about fraud, theft, dishonesty, special privileges from government or other forms of despicable behavior. I was talking about people trying to get as much as they can for themselves.

Think about greed and racial discrimination. In 1947, when the Brooklyn Dodgers hired Jackie Robinson, why did racial discrimination by major league teams begin to drop like a hot potato? It wasn't feelings of guilt by white owners, affirmative action or anti-discrimination laws. It turned out that there was a huge pool of black baseball talent in the Negro leagues. It became too costly for teams to allow the Dodgers to gain a monopoly on this talent. Black players won the National League's Most Valuable Player award for seven consecutive seasons. Had other teams not stepped in to hire black players, allowing the Dodgers to hire them, it might have given the Dodgers a virtual monopoly on world championships.

During South Africa's apartheid era, whites were in control, both economically and politically, and enacted some of the harshest racially discriminatory employment laws. There were job reservation laws that reserved certain jobs for whites only. Many white employers went to considerable lengths to contravene and violate those laws. White building trade unions complained to the South African government that laws reserving skilled jobs for whites had broken down.

What was happening? White contractors found out that often they could earn greater profits by hiring a black worker to do the job of a white worker for only a fraction of the wage. That raised the cost of discriminating against black workers. Racist white workers did what any good liberal or labor union supporter would do; they got behind support for minimum wage laws and what produces the same effect, equal-pay-for-equal-work laws. South Africa's Wage Board said, "The method would be to fix a minimum rate for an occupation or craft so high that no native would likely be employed."

"Equal pay for equal work" became the rallying slogan of the South African white labor movement. They knew that if employers were forced to pay black workers the same wages as white workers, there'd be reduced incentive to hire blacks.

Unionists in the U.S. also wanted to suppress employer quests for greater profits. After a bitter 1909 strike by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, an arbitration board decreed that blacks and whites were to be paid equal wages. Union members expressed their delight, saying, "If this course of action is followed by the company and the incentive for employing the Negro thus removed, the strike will not have been in vain."

The Davis-Bacon Act sets minimum wages on federally financed or assisted construction projects. It was racially motivated in 1931, and it's still on the books. During congressional debate leading to its passage, Rep. John Cochran of Missouri said he had "received numerous complaints in recent months about Southern contractors employing low-paid colored mechanics getting work and bringing the employees from the South." Rep. Miles Allgood of Alabama complained, "Reference has been made to a contractor from Alabama who went to New York with bootleg labor. This is a fact. That contractor has cheap colored labor that he transports, and he puts them in cabins, and it is labor of that sort that is in competition with white labor throughout the country." Rep. William Upshaw of Georgia complained of the "superabundance or large aggregation of Negro labor," which, to him, was a real problem. American Federation of Labor President William Green made clear his union's interests, saying, "Colored labor is being sought to demoralize wage rates."

There are many examples from around the world of how people have used legal and extralegal means to thwart people trying to get more for themselves, or what I like to call greed. The suppression of these motives has always worked against the best interest of discriminated-against people.

For a promise

For a promise by our current president, the "staunchly conservative" Florida Panhandle representative to the U.S. Congress, Jeff Miller, gave more power to the president.

On Dec. 31, 2011, in a presidential signing statement, President Obama, in effect, promised he won't use the power given him in the Miller-approved National Defense Authorization Act — the option to detain U.S. citizens without charges outside the limits of the Bill of Rights — indefinitely.

Presumably, Miller did this to enable the $662 billion NDAA act to pass. This judgment is so short-sighted that it is hard to believe.

Jeff Miller enabled President Obama in the past as well. In August, he voted to raise the national debt ceiling by $2 trillion, and $1.2 trillion of that is spent already. Incredibly, he tolerates presidential signing statements, that unconstitutional legal nonsense first used by George H.W. Bush so long ago, in which a president says what part of a law he will enforce.

Recently, supposedly to save Social Security, Miller was actually against extending the payroll tax cut. The correct answer would have been cut both the taxes and the spending.

All this shows is an opportunistic willingness by Jeff Miller to bargain away your rights to gain temporary legislation; to bribe you with your own tax money. He is not about you keeping your wealth.

Libertarians really know the score. Stop accepting Miller/Obama promises, and protect your rights instead.

Prediction for Iraq

In regard to the despicable, demented, detestable, deplorable, debacle action in Iraq, I have a few predictions concerning Iraq.

It is almost for sure that Iraq will fold up like a cheap lawn chair as follows.

There will be major civil unrest at best, more than likely full out civil war with massive killings.

And/or the Sunnis and the Kurds will attempt to secede and be an independent country or become attached to a neighboring country with the major portion part of Iraq, the Shiites, becoming effectively a part of Iran.

When some/all of these actions happen, who will be held responsible?

Hopefully all in Washington who did not stand for the Constitution and force a declaration of war to start with will be held accountable in a very harsh manner.

This includes those who voted to fund these actions, Jeff Miller and even those locally the same.

Will these local gasbags offer any prediction in writing?

Third chance for them.

Three strikes and out?

Not agreeing with Santa Rosa Democrats

As a former card-carrying Santa Rosa Democrat, I am moved to reply to the letter from the Santa Rosa Democratic Executive Committee on Dec. 31.

Yes, the Gulf Power rate increase should not happen in a perfect world. But look at the history. In January 2008, candidate Barack Obama said that his policy "... will bankrupt coal-fired power plants and rates would skyrocket." He then chose the radical environmental activist Lisa Jackson to head the EPA to carry out his plan. In the 32 years that I have lived here, I have seen Gulf Power invest more than a billion bucks in scrubbers at the Christ plant. Still not enough apparently. This is the same EPA that obstructs and delays the permitting process for new power plants. Meanwhile, the administration has fast-tracked turkeys such as Solyndra and the Chevy Volt, which has a Chinese battery and after all is said is coal-fired.

As for not being able to confront Gulf Power at a stockholders meeting regarding the rate increase, Gulf Power is owned by the Southern Company in Atlanta. This is why you need to own stock in the Southern Company and attend that stockholder's meeting. For this same reason, you cannot buy Chevrolet shares, you must invest in GM.

The Executive Committee's letter suggests that only the rich elite will profit from a rate increase. I respectfully beg to differ. Gulf Power has to pay those penalties before they are passed on to us as a rate increase. Also, many mutual funds invest in both Southern Company and GM stock, and these funds are found in most IRAs, retirement and 401(k) plans. They are in mine, and I am far from an elite. I am just a middle-class retiree and rate payer. Thanks, Mr. President.

MAT BILL

Pro Con

Does the school district need an engineer?

Pro: An offer you can't refuse

Bill, while you ask if this is an expense we really afford, I have a better question: Can we afford not to? What if it affords savings in the long run?

You're looking at a temporary picture right now, but not at the permanent one.

The school district is paying the county on the side to help it out with something that is not beyond their control. They are looking to hire this person to work for them to avoid having to spend time and money paying a separate entity.

Let's say the school board wants to have a fire line inspected. Automatically, they call the county up. They then pay the county to have their inspector come out and inspect the lines to make sure they are working properly. That response time from the county to come out and check the lines can be anywhere from an hour to a week, depending on how backed up they are with other inspections.

Superintendent Tim Wyrosdick said sometimes it takes time for county inspectors to come do special inspections for the district.

Some construction projects like Jay High School don't have time to wait.

If the district can find a specialist to do all of its inspections, they can save the expense from the county and just pay someone to do a job they should have had filled a long time ago.

Right now, the district does have an engineer, but that engineer only specializes in certain areas. By hiring a more educated specialist, the district can avoid having to go to the county for its inspections.

Yes, the district will still have to make a phone call to have inspections done, but it will be done through one person, and there won't be a waiting period because that person will be on the payroll.

Yes, this person will be getting paid good money, but I'm sure the school district expects them to do the job and do it in a professional and timely manner.

Less time will be spent making phone calls, and more time will be spent getting things done. Many things once paid for will now be able to be completed at no additional cost. And all of these things will be done by one person instead of many.

The district has spent millions of dollars over the past few years in construction projects, and many of those projects are still going on. Sometimes, several of them have been going on at the same time.

Wyrosdick says the county has had to cut back its employees. Who is the district supposed to lean on if they have to cut back hours on the inspector?

I think the school district is taking a step in the right direction. It can ultimately avoid conflict and save money.

Only you, Bill, would argue with that.

Engineer is a good idea, but costly

Mat, I understand the school system wants to hire an engineer to have on staff, but I am wondering if this is an expense we can afford.

Recently, the new Jay High School project was completed, and it wasn't that long ago the school system completed a cafeteria at Central School, a football complex at Pace High, etc.

If you look at the schools that have been constructed, they have been using the same plans and designs since they were drawn up, before David Holland was the school superintendent.

If we are going to use the same plans for each project, what is the need for such a costly and expensive hire?

I understand Santa Rosa County or the City of Milton having an engineer on staff because of the vast number of projects — water, sewer and others, but not our school system.

I am a concerned citizen and taxpayer as well as a parent. We had school grades fall from A's to B's, but we are more interested in hiring an engineer.

There is something wrong with this picture.

If we make this move and add an engineer's salary to our school system's expenses, how long before this person needs a secretary? What will that be? Will the engineer need a vehicle? What type? What will that cost?

I bet all that could add up to an amount that could easily pay the salaries of a few extra teachers. The extra teachers might help the at-risk students who didn't graduate, something that eventually proved to be costly to Pace, Milton and Navarre.

Or better yet, how about using that money for a reading coach for high schools like Jay, Central or Gulf Breeze?

Assistant Superintendent of Instruction Bill Emerson has pointed out that one or two students who remain behind at a small school like Jay or Central could prove to be costly when you look at making the necessary improvements.

I don't see how a coat of paint or a redesigned sidewalk or a new school entry is going to help make those gains.

I have heard, over and over, how under-funded our school system is when it comes to students and that we are one of the bottom three districts when it comes to state funding for our youngsters.

If that is the case, I can't see where we have the money to fund an engineering position.

Have we sacrificed enough teaching positions to the point that this hire is now possible?

I want to see a school system interested in hiring more teachers even if they are spoon-feeding information to children so they can pass the almighty FCAT.

A district-wide engineer is not going to be able to do that unless he is traveling around the district teaching advanced math in his off time.

Despite my ultimate dislikes of our school grading system set by the state bureaucrats, I don't see how this position will help us reach the goal or standard being set for our children.

Ultimately, this decision is about as wise as our state educators deciding that high school students only need to know U.S. history from the reformation until today.

Stuff like the Declaration of Independence, Revolutionary War, War of 1812, the Three-Fifths Compromise, American-Indian War and so much more is being ignored.

I have been vocal about supporting education and the necessary moves in these tough times, but this idea needs to remain "under construction" for a lot longer.

"Resign? I don't think so. My run is up anyway," Grant told the room of more than 60 people on Tuesday.

William Carney, a PWS board member, walked around local stores handing out information on the proposed stipend and what was being considered over the past month. These letters, which many Pace Water System customers received, fueled tempers in the boardroom.

"What one of these board members (Carney) has done is walked around and handed out false literature," Grant said. "Nothing of what he says is true."

Board member Sandra Thompson member brought up the idea of getting health benefits instead of an annual stipend at the December board meeting.

"I wouldn't want someone to run (for the board) solely to make a little bit of money," Thompson said. "This would not raise our rates."

The origin of the stipend discussion came after a workshop at the end of 2011 held by the board. Grant designed the proposal and said he would look into the stipend matter, according to Carney.

Grant came back to the Dec. 13 with the proposal to look at initiating an annual stipend for the board. Board members voted 4-1 for members to consider the stipend.

No other water authority in northern Santa Rosa County pays its board members a stipend.

Grant argued that Emerald Coast Utilities Authority, which provides water to approximately 90,000 customers a month in Escambia County, pays its board members an annual salary of $37,000 a year plus a $200 travel stipend applied annually.

The board later voted to rescind the vote from last months meeting to consider looking at a stipend and Carney drew up a proposal to change the wording in the bylaws again so as to not allow board members to receive a stipend in the future.

The motion was later killed without a second.

"This is the opinion of only 100 people out of 19,000 customers," Grant said. "I made a simple statement when I brought this up to generate more public interest."

recieves through federal and state grants, which led to Williamson's concerns.

"I don't want to promise something to the public and then see us have to cut it," Williamson said when explaining his opposition to the fledgling transportation program. "The federal government is running at a huge deficiency and the state is having problems balancing the budget.

"I think we all need to live within our means and if we lose the grants, this is something that the county can't possibly do alone."

While Williamson was looking at the funding source, Melvin was worried about the cost per trip.

"It is not wise to enter into an agreement when we can't afford it," Melvin said. "I want to know the cost of total rides vs. our total expense.

"I was briefed we are paying $125 a ride, and that is just not feasible."

Julia Pearsall, a Regional Planner III with the West Florida Regional Planning Council, commented that the cost right now was at $15 a rider and that the numbers had been offered to them through the efforts of Santa Rosa County Transportation Planner Nancy Model.

Model came to the podium and explained that based on the numbers as of August 2011, the cost has been $102,053, with 3,766 trips involved for a cost of $27 per trip.

"Operating cost is a very fluid number," Pearsall said. "If this was a premium service, we would expect a lot more, but for the minimum service offered this program is very excellent."

This past December, the bus service had 708 riders, which is significantly up from the original numbers of 167 when the service first began.

Commissioner Bob Cole, who seemed to be the deciding vote, was very concerned after hearing organizations and not-for-profits discussing the need for the buses.

"When I follow the buses, I don't see the support we are hearing here today," Cole said. "With what I am hearing, we should see faces on the bus, not the other side of the street.

Cole was also concerned about how long funding would last for the program, which Pearsall doesn't feel will be a problem because the grants from the federal government are continuing on a monthly basis and there are other federal grants they have yet to apply for.

While the buses were looked upon as a way to handle transportation needs for those with disabilities to become more independent, it was also viewed as a way to help those get to work and boost economic development.

"When I worked in the private sector, locating businesses to communities if there was not a bus service or public transportation to get individuals to work, we didn't consider them," said Gulf Breeze resident Jack Bonnie. "You should look at a town like Little Rock, Ark., where they do not seem to even be experiencing a downturn in the economy because they have public transportation.

"You need to look at this as a long range thing and not just at today. You have to have a purpose and plan to attract outside industry."

In other business, commissioners agreed to the payment of $34,877 to the City of Milton for milling, resurfacing, and restriping of Canal Street, which is maintained by the county.

The City of Milton has received a Community Development Board Grant to improve Canal Street south of Highway 90, which will include sidewalks, burying utilities and other improvements.

County dollars would be the cost if they milled and paved the road, which is part of the grant.

Commissioners also received $1,000 from Sam's Club as part of its continued support of county efforts in the community.

getting the call and wanted to warn the seniors in her community.

"He had every bit of her information, her bank and everything," Penton said. "The caller said that Medicare was having to issue another card because it was the first of the year.

"She smelled a rat when he ran off her whole name and bank account number and he wanted to confirm that it was right."

Following the call, her neighbor called Medicare and they told the woman that it was a scam, and to hang up on the person if they call back.

"The Medicare man she called said they don't call people and that's a scam," Penton said. "They told her that if they get her information, they can withdraw $200 or $300 from her account."

Penton, like Burch, confirmed that Medicare does not usually make phone calls, but sends letters to their recipients.

A representative from the Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Office was unavailable for comment on the matter by press time.

FWC REPORT

This report represents some events the FWC Northwest Region handled Dec. 30 to Jan. 5; however, it does not include all actions taken by the Division of Law Enforcement.

ESCAMBIA COUNTY

Lt. Dan Hahr was conducting enhanced patrol in the Escambia River Wildlife Management Area when he encountered a man with a truckload of freshly cut logs and limbs. The subject admitted to cutting a live oak tree for a bonfire that night. While talking to the man, Hahr discovered a rifle in the truck and learned that the man was a convicted felon. Hahr issued the subject a notice to appear citation for cutting wood from management area property and seized the rifle. Charges are pending for possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

SANTA ROSA COUNTY

FWC officers responded to a complaint regarding the taking of deer at night on private property in the Jay area. The officers conducted surveillance on the area and observed two suspects come out of the woods on the far side of the field. A brief investigation revealed the two individuals had hunted the field earlier in the day and killed a doe. Both subjects were issued notice to appear citations for the taking of doe during the closed season. The doe and two rifles were seized as evidence.

OKALOOSA COUNTY

The Okaloosa County Sheriff's Department responded to the Laurel Hill area after receiving a call about a subject trespassing at night. When the deputy arrived, the subject told him he was looking for a wounded deer he had hit with his vehicle. The following morning, Officer Alan Kirchinger responded to the area after the deer was located by a local resident. An inspection of the deer revealed no trauma consistent with being hit by a vehicle but instead a leg wound that appeared to be made from a gunshot. A closer examination of the wound revealed a small piece of bullet fragment. The investigation is ongoing, and charges are pending.

Soccer district tournaments to kick off

By Bill Gamblin
sports@srpressgazette.com

The soccer season is winding down across Florida, and as some people see it, the real season will begin Monday and Tuesday.

Pace, in District 1-6A, and Milton, in District 2-5A, are preparing for what could be a very interesting and intense district tournaments.

The Lady Patriots, who finished the regular season at 15-3 following Monday's 2-1 loss to Pensacola Catholic, will enter the tournament in Navarre as the No. 2 seed.

Included in Pace's half of the bracket is the No. 3 seeded Fort Walton Beach, while the No. 1 seeded Lady Eagles of Niceville and No. 4 seed Lady Raiders of Navarre are on the other half of the bracket.

BILL GAMBLIN | Press Gazette

Pace's Lana Chechak is seen in action from earlier this season for Pace High School who will kick off the District 1-6A tournament Monday night in Navarre against Escambia High at the Navarre Soccer Complex.

"I feel very good about our chances in the tournament this season," said Pace head coach Joey Goodwin. "We have suffered some key losses; however, we have the players who are stepping up and doing what they can to fill the void."

One of those voids was the early season loss of Rylie Hart to her second torn ACL in a four-year soccer career at Pace.

Hart, who had surgery last year, still is expected to play next season at Florida State University, where she has already verbally committed.

Monday's games in the District 1-6A Tournament will be played at the Navarre Soccer Complex before moving on Tuesday to Navarre High School.

Pace will play Escambia High at 6 p.m.

While Pace is traveling to Navarre, it will be the Lady Panthers of Milton who have the long bus ride ahead of them.

Milton, who is 7-12-1 on the season, will face tourney host and the No. 2 seeded Lady Marlins of Arnold High School in Panama City Beach at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

The winner of that matchup will face the winner of the Panama City's Rutherford and Choctawatchee High match at 7 p.m. Friday.

While also battling the injury bug by losing two goalies (Randi Bass and Conner McCreless) to torn ACLs this season, Milton had to sacrifice its leading scorer freshman Jenna Wade and move her to fill the spot in goal.

Before making the move, Wade had 13 goals and three assists on the season.

"These girls have shown a tremendous amount of resolve and determination this year," said Milton head coach Jeff Klug. "We currently only have five players on our roster who were on last year's team.

"They have played a tremendous amount of this season dealing with obstacle after obstacle, as much of the time we have only had 12 players."

NCAA women's golf super regional to be in Pace

Special to the Press Gazette

The University of West Florida has been selected to host the NCAA Division II Women's Golf Super Regional Two at Stonebrook Golf Club in Pace on May 6-8. Stonebrook will be one of four super regional sites for Division II women's golf, with the winners advancing to compete at the NCAA Division II Championships in Louisville, Ky, on May 16-19.

Each 54-hole super regional will include nine qualifying teams, as well as four individuals not on those teams. The three low teams and the low three individuals not on the three low teams will advance to the national tournament on May 16-19. Stonebrook will host Super Region 2, which includes teams from Conference Carolinas, Gulf South Conference, Peach Belt Conference, South Atlantic Conference and Sunshine State Conference.

The NCAA has been offering Division II national championships in women's golf since 2000, and teams from the Sunshine State Conference have won the national championship each year. Rollins (2003, 2004, 2005, 2006 and 2008) leads the pack with five national championships, followed closely by Florida Southern (2000, 2001, 2002 and 2007) at four and Nova Southeastern (2009, 2010 and 2011) with three.

Stonebrook Golf Club was the site of NCAA Division II women's golf regional championships in 2004 and 2006, and in 2007 Stonebrook hosted the Division II women's golf national finals. The championship selections will be announced by the NCAA on April 30. For information on all UWF Athletics, visit www.GoArgos.com.

Jay High School notched a key district win as it defeated Northview 61-45 at home Tuesday.

After a tight first quarter, the Royals (8-5) pulled out an 11-point advantage at intermission, 32-21, behind the efforts of Todd Laney and Tyler Presscott.

Opening the Jay inside game was Eric Trevino, who finished the night with 15.

Another big win Tuesday came at the hands of some fast Panthers, who led Milton 45-34 over Gulf Breeze in Gulf Breeze.

The Panthers (13-3) iced the game with an 11-2 third quarter after the game was tied 20-20 at halftime.

Isaiah Jones led Milton in the win with 20 points, while DeMichael McQueen added 11 points.

Laurel Hill traveled to Central and stopped the Jaguars 60-50 in Allentown on Tuesday.

The Hoboes outscored Central 12-9 coming out of the halftime break.

Zac Wright scored 13 points in a losing effort.

In girls action, it was a tough night for the Milton Lady Panthers at home, as they fell to Tate 41-29.

Milton (8-12) trailed at intermission by two, 25-23. After the break, the Lady Aggies turned up the heat in the district contest, which proved to be Milton's downfall.

Cierra Jackson led Milton with 11 points.

In Jay on Tuesday, a late fourth-quarter rally by Northview proved to be the demise of the Lady Royals, who fell 48-41.

Heading into the fourth quarter Jay led 31-28, but the Lady Chiefs went on a 20-10 run in the final quarter for the win.

Becca Calloway led Jay with 21 points in the loss.

Pace recorded a 1-0 win over Crestview on Wednesday at Pace in boys soccer.

The Patriots (9-4) got the winning goal off the foot of Chandler Castleman off an assist from Robert Deville.

Connor Moon had eight saves in the shutout win.

BLACKWATER PYRATES SEE A CHANGE AT THE HELM

By Bill Gamblin
news@srpressgazette.com

Every group or organization will change officers from time to time, but it is something a little different if you are a pyrate — a Blackwater Pyrate, that is.

On Jan. 7, members of the Blackwater Pyrates held only their second change of command in the nearly seven-year history of the group.

Captain Hook'em Dano turned over the helm of the Blackwater Pearl to his first officer, Fins Up.

The Blackwater Pearl might not be a ship you see sailing the Blackwater River like it once did, but it makes stops at events like the Santa Rosa County Fair, Milton River Fest and even the Santa Rosa Historical Society's Ghostwalk.

But this civic-minded and fun-loving group has done quite a bit in just the last year, including:

- The inaugural shipwrecks of the Blackwater lecture, with more than 200 attendees
- Partnerships with the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary in Milton for the first safe boating day and blessing of the fleet on the Blackwater River
- A ship store at the NAS Whiting Field Exchange
- Great Mill Town Duck Race
- A record-breaking river clean-up along the Blackwater
- Being nominated for the Florida Steward State Award
- Milton Lighted Boat Parade
- Taking on its own adopt a spot

The group of scalawags from all across Milton and Santa Rosa County did all of this while having fun and looking to make the Blackwater River a nice and safer place to enjoy travels via boat or just a walk along the river banks.

Some of their fundraising efforts help community projects like the Bagdad Mill Site Park in Bagdad and other endeavors in Milton and Santa Rosa County.

For more information on the Blackwater Pyrates, visit www.blackwaterpyrates.com.

BLACK OLIVE PEPPER

SUMMER JEWEL PINK

All-America Selection winners tried and true

By Theresa Friday
UF/IFAS Santa Rosa County

CAYENETTEA PEPPER

The 2012 All-America Selections have been announced. AAS is a nonprofit organization whose mission is to promote new garden seed varieties with superior garden performance judged in impartial trials.

Each year, judges visit trial gardens across North America looking for improved qualities such as earliness to bloom or harvest, disease or pest tolerance, novel colors or flavors, novel flower forms, total yield, length of flowering or harvest and overall performance.

There are two AAS winning flowers and two vegetables for 2012. All grow best in well-drained soils and full sun.

Black Olive is a pepper (Capsicum annuum Black Olive) but won in the flower category. The AAS judges said this entry was a standout, especially in southern gardens, where heat is always a major factor. The dark purple to black fruit, which appears in small clusters along the stems, matures to red as summer progresses. If you can't find this one or start it yourself from seeds, look for the similar Pretty in Purple or Black Pearl. And yes, the fruit of Black Olive is edible and fiery hot.

Summer Jewel Pink salvia (Salvia coccinia Summer Jewel Pink) is the other winning AAS flower for this year. Summer Jewel Pink salvia is a dwarf-sized, compact plant that is notable for its prolific production of spikes of delicate pink flowers throughout the growing season. The plants grow to be about 15 to 20 inches tall and about 10 to 15 inches wide. The foliage is an attractive mid-green and is slightly fuzzy. The flowers are rich in nectar, and the hummingbirds love pink just as much as they do red.

Cayennetta pepper (Capsicum annuum Cayennetta) is one of the award-winning new vegetables. It is a chili-type pepper, with spicy fruits that reach 3 to 4 inches long. The tapered and elongated fruit start green and turn red as they mature. It grows upright and branched, requiring no staking, which makes it perfect for a container or patio planter. A unique character of this variety is that it has good cold tolerance. This is important for gardeners planting as early as possible in spring and a good characteristic for late-summer plantings for fall production. Also notable is the dense foliage cover that protects the fruits from sun scorch. And it handled extreme heat very well.

Faerie is the other winning vegetable for 2012. Faerie is a nontraditional watermelon in that it has a creamy yellow rind with thin stripes yet still yields sweet pink-red flesh. The fruit averages between 4 and 6 pounds and has a high sugar content and crisp texture. Vines are vigorous yet only reach about 10 feet in spread, making them good for smaller spaces. Another bonus to this selection is its tolerance to insects and diseases.

To learn about more recent winners and to see past winners, visit the All-America Selections website, www.all-americaselections.org. They even provide a spreadsheet of seed sources for the winning plants.
