Former sheriff, legislator dies at 88

Ferrin Campbell Sr. had served county for decades

Former Okaloosa County Sheriff and state legislator Ferrin Campbell Sr. died Saturday morning. An attorney by profession, he died after an extended illness. He was 88 years old.

After graduating from Laurel Hill School, Campbell served in World War II as a Marine pilot and was called back for the Korean War as a flight instructor in the Marine Corps.

When Gov. Fuller Warren cracked down on illegal gambling in Okaloosa County in 1950, he appointed Campbell as the replacement for Sheriff H. Isle Enzor, who was removed from office, along with two constables. The appointment caused some difficulties in the family, because Enzor was Campbell's father-in-law.

"There was a little rancor; I don't know how it worked out," said Campbell's grandson, Ferrin Campbell III. "The governor said he didn't realize they were related. He was the youngest sheriff in the state of Florida. He was 27 years old. That is awfully young to be heading up the sheriff's department."

AREA HOMES MEET GULF POWER EARTHCENTS CERTIFICATION

The home of ~~the future~~

Area builders consult utilities, analysts on energy-efficient homes

Brent Acree, co-owner of Watree Homes, nervously watched as Todd Trusty, a home energy rater and owner of Energy Services Inc., conducted a blower test on the ductwork in Watree's newest house in Crestview. The house was designed to meet Gulf Power's stringent standards to earn the utility's EarthCents certification.

As an outside, impartial analyst, Trusty's tests would determine if the house on Live Oak Church Road qualifies for the certification.

Homebuilders and homeowners covet the certification. Among other benefits, it assures lower power bills, but it also can qualify for potentially thousands of dollars in rebates on the purchase of energy-efficient appliances and fixtures for a new home or an energy upgrade in an existing one.

After more than an hour of setting up, depressurizing the house and testing its air moving system with 100 measurements at every pressure point, Trusty returned his verdict. The house had 42 cubic feet per minute of air leakage, far below the 138 CFM allowable under EarthCents standards. Acree broke into a grin.

"You should've seen all the things we had to seal," Acree said. "We learned so much from Todd that we apply to all our

100 women, $100,000, 1 improved community

IMPACT 100 forms to change lives, encourage altruism

It's simple math. Find at least 100 women who want to make a lasting difference in their community, bring them together as each donates $1,000 to fund a community grant, and you have $100,000 to make a difference near your home.

IMPACT 100 Northwest Florida is a group of local women determined to make a difference in Okaloosa and Walton counties. The mission of IMPACT 100 is to know and serve the community; to collectively fund significant grants to charitable initiatives; and to set an example of effective philanthropy.

Two of the board members, Della Goodson and Brandi Terrell, explained how the group began.

"We're not a sorority," Goodson said. "This isn't a national membership. There are other IMPACT 100 groups in the country, but this is our home and our communities and our needs that are being addressed. You don't have to have an invitation to join, you just have to be generous."

Goodson said she does not consider herself wealthy.

"I spent many years as a

Ferrin Campbell Sr., left, observes the swearing in of his son, Ferrin Jr., as mayor of Laurel Hill in April 2009.

"Ferrin Sr. was a humble man who stepped in to serve his community when needed and in fact was devoted to public service," Okaloosa County Sheriff Larry Ashley said. "It's a loss for not only his family and friends, but for all of Okaloosa County."

Ferrin Campbell Sr. served in both the Florida Senate and the Florida House of Representatives, being first elected in 1951 while he was still in college.

Campbell also was one of the first members of the Crestview Area Chamber of Commerce upon its organization in May 1956. In November of that year, he was named to the chamber's new Military Committee. His grandson, Ferrin Campbell III, said it was only within the last few months that his grandfather resigned from the Florida Bar.

"He was an attorney here in Crestview for 61 years," Ferrin Campbell III said. "That's what he lived for. He loved practicing law. He'd still read all those law journals."

Three more generations shared Campbell's name, including his son, the late former mayor of Laurel Hill; his grandson Ferrin Campbell III, a Crestview insurance agent; and Ferrin IV, a second-grade student at Antioch Elementary School.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Ernest Willie and Marie Campbell, and his sons Ferrin Campbell II and Willie Campbell. Ferrin is survived by his wife, Edwina Campbell; daughter Nikki Campbell; as well as his grandson Ferrin III; and great-grandsons Ferrin IV and Ayden Campbell.

"He didn't meet a stranger," Ferrin III said. "He'd find out who you were and who you were related to. He loved to talk. My goodness, he loved to talk."

Nikki Campbell followed in her father's footsteps by entering the legal profession. She spent a great deal of time with her father in the days and hours before his death.

A memorial service will be held for Ferrin Campbell Sr. Saturday at First United Methodist Church of Crestview, 599 Eighth Ave.

That was good news to Gulf Power's Natalie Smith, a communications specialist who also monitored the tests.

"It's great to see builders embrace EarthCents," Smith said. "It makes such a better, energy-efficient house."

Though the four-bedroom, two-and-a-half bath home is greater than 2,400 square feet, Acree and Smith agreed its monthly power bill will probably be less than $120 a month.

Trusty's weatherization tests showed the house will have about 3.48 air changes per hour. It is a test, he said, that "sees how leaky a house is. Seven to eight air changes is fairly leaky. Less than six ACH is pretty good."

He cautioned that weatherization of a home must be done carefully. A minimum amount of air change must be allowed for structural integrity and resident safety.

"You could actually rot your house with weatherization" if moisture is trapped in a tight house, Trusty said. "You can't seal everything. Windows can't be completely air-tight because if you do, you're going to kill the house's occupants."

But if a home is too "leaky," it is allowing energy to escape. Both Gulf Power and CHELCO recommend homeowners make an appointment for a free energy audit by their respective utility company. Auditors will inspect the home and make recommendations about where improvements can be made to increase the home's energy efficiency.

"The big thing is the energy savings you get from building an energy-efficient home," said Kathy Morrow, CHELCO communications director. "We encourage everyone to build an energy-efficient home as well as practicing energy efficiency at home. It'll make you a lot a happier when you get a lower electric bill."

Because CHELCO is a member-owned cooperative, "We don't do any rebates because we can't subsidize private enterprise," Morrow said.

Some of the energy-saving features of the home on Live Oak Church Road include a hot water heater that draws warm air from the garage and uses it to heat the water. The appliance qualified for a $700 EarthCents rebate. Applying insulation to the attic ceiling instead of the attic floor will produce further energy savings.

"If you do the attic floor, you still have to worry about the heat getting into the ductwork," Trusty said. "That's why you want to foam the roof deck. It acts as a radiant barrier, and it insulates the attic."

To learn more about Gulf Power's EarthCents program, visit www.gulfpower.com. For energy savings tips from CHELCO, visit www.chelco.com. You may visit Watree Home's EarthCents-certified house at 4634 Live Oak Church Road during the June 9-17 Parade of Homes.

teacher and then a guidance counselor. Now I work as a case manager to help end homelessness, so I know all the needs here, and I look at the $1,000 that I gave as an investment I'm making to make our area a better place."

IMPACT 100 for Okaloosa and Walton counties received 501(c)(3) status this calendar year and began a membership drive in March. The organization's goal is to enroll 100 women by June 1 and to award the first $100,000 grant by Sept. 1.

"We have 79 paid members and three weeks left in our first year membership drive," Terrell said. "And every one of the members so far are word of mouth, one woman sharing the idea with a friend, relative or coworker, and them catching the vision."

"Members can be as involved as they want to be," Terrell said. "If they want to write a check and know that they were a part of the original founding group, then that is just fine. If they want to become involved in evaluating the grant applications or the follow-up after the grant money is awarded, then they are welcome to do that, too."

Terrell said 100 percent of each member's $1,000 goes to the grant. She said members or people who choose to become friends of the organization contribute to the administrative costs and needs of the group. There is no office and no paid employees or staff, just volunteers.

"There are five areas that IMPACT has identified to improve the quality of lives: family; health and wellness; education; arts and culture; and environment, recreation and preservation," Terrell said. "We will take grant applications that speak to projects in those areas. The grant applications will be reviewed, and the grant, or hopefully grants, will be voted on and awarded."

The organization's website states the goals are to empower women as philanthropists and leaders, bridge the geographic areas of the Walton and Okaloosa county regions and leverage the talents of women to be a positive force for good in their communities. They also encourage volunteerism and an altruistic heart.

"This is not about, 'Look what I can do.' This group is about look what we can do when we come together," Terrell said. "People give to philanthropies every day, and that makes a difference. But we don't want to just make a difference. We want to make an impact. Impact changes lives."

‘Wheels up, rings off’: Secret Service traveling mantra

RON HART
The Hart Beat

Distracting Obama from scouting out vacation spots for Michelle, with South American leaders at the Summit of the Americas meetings were 11 advance Secret Service agents subsequently sent home — with pay, of course, unlike their hookers.

It seems a prostitute and one of the federal government officials were arguing because he did not pay the “lady of the evening” properly. The lesson here is clear: never involve yourself with sleazy people to begin with. I trust the hooker learned her lesson.

The agent and the hooker argued over her $47 price. I wish the government were as stingy with our tax dollars. If she had been a government-procured hooker she would have cost $2,500 and, because of union seniority rules, she would have been 64 years old.

Maybe the Colombian hookers were paid with counterfeit drug money seized by the Secret Service. Suspicions arose when the $50 bill used to pay the prostitute had a picture on it of Ulysses S. Grant wearing a baseball cap on backward.

Per The Wall Street Journal, the whole scandal was uncovered “when one of the women stayed in an agent’s hotel room past 7 a.m., in violation of hotel policy.” It seems a third-world hotel has a more effective policing policy than our own government agencies.

This is the most embarrassing thing to happen to the White House since news of the GSA $820,000 western regional conference boondoggle broke.

Prostitution is legal in certain parts of Cartagena called “tolerance zones,” which explains why this city hosted politicians from 32 countries and why Charlie Sheen has asked to be transferred to Promises Cartagena.

It has long been the unwritten code among government workers not to rat each other out. That might mess up their sweet gig. What happens in Colombia stays in Colombia — or Las Vegas — except for the STD, which comes home with you.

Boys will be boys, especially macho types who gravitate toward jobs involving guns. I get that. My dad was a cop; I know most do noble work.

My beef is that the agents got there a week in advance and stayed at a five-star, beachfront hotel. Our GSA conference attendees had hotel rooms that cost over $2,000 a night in Las Vegas, where they usually comp idiots. The bigger question is, why are we paying for all of this?

And who investigates the CIA, IRS, TSA, The Federal Reserve, FBI or the Secret Service?

There are now more than 6,500 Secret Service employees, and we still just have one president. This over-the-top Praetorian Guard for our president should, like all parts of bloated government agencies, be cut back. They all start with some grandiose mission, in this case to protect the president. Then they grow unchecked into monstrous bureaucracies accountable for neither their results nor their use of taxpayer money.

I don’t care what they did to the hooker — just stop doing it to us taxpayers.

Every four years agents are called upon to protect presidential candidates. Resources are assigned to candidates based on the importance put on them by, of course, the government. This ranges from full Secret Service protection for Mitt Romney to Ron Paul, who was given some nunchucks and told to be careful.

Rick Santorum was eventually assigned Secret Service coverage; it was the first time he had ever used protection. Glitter was thrown on Newt Gingrich by gay activists and he got protection. On the bright side, the whole episode was nominated for a Tony Award.

Herman Cain got Secret Service protection, but that was just to shield him from his wife after news of his indiscretions surfaced.

Secret Service officers recently caught ducks slipping on to the White House grounds. The birds were escorted off after background checks found that they had not donated enough money to the Obama re-election campaign to merit that much access to the president.

Who can forget the couple that sneaked into the White House state dinner for the Indian Ambassador? Apparently, bouncers at nightclubs do a better job of keeping out the unwanted. The Secret Service immediately addressed that lapse by changing its policy; no longer are people allowed into such events by just saying “Oh come on, dude, Michelle Obama promised we could come.”

We need maybe a 1,000-person Secret Service whose agents remain skilled at what they do — just in case we ever get a president we want to keep.

The vaccinations are for dogs, cats and ferrets. It is not necessary to be an existing client at any of the participating offices to take part. All animals must be on a leash or in a pet carrier.

Participating offices are Southside Veterinary Clinic, 821 S. Pearl St., Crestview; Brightman Pet Clinic, 10 10th Ave., Shalimar; Niceville Animal Clinic, 509 E. John Sims Parkway, Niceville; Emerald Coast Animal Hospital, 350 E. Miracle Strip Parkway, Mary Esther; Friendship Veterinary Hospital, 623 Beal Parkway NW, Northside Veterinary Clinic, 18 Racetrack Road NE, and Bayside Hospital for Animals, 251 Racetrack Road NE, all in Fort Walton Beach.

For more information on the rabies vaccination event, visit www.HealthyOkaloosa.com/rabies.

Dr. Karen Chapman, director of the Okaloosa County Health Department, said, "A special thank you to Dr. Carter Zorn and the Miracle Strip Veterinary Medical Society for partnering with us for the event. This is a community effort to bring pet owners into compliance with the law, while providing protection against a deadly disease that continues to cause public health concerns."

Rabies is a deadly viral disease that can be prevented, but not cured. The virus attacks the brain of warm-blooded animals, including people. Even if you consider your dog, cat, or ferret to be an indoor pet, it is important that your pet receives a rabies vaccination , officials said.

EXTENSION CONNECTIONS

The importance of credit and saving

By ELAINE COURTNEY
Special to the News Bulletin

It is important to understand your credit history and how this could affect saving success. All Americans need to have savings of some type. Having a savings account allows you to pay for emergencies, gives you financial freedom, and can help you avoid credit problems that could hurt credit scores.

Having a strong credit history, reflected in good credit scores, allows you to qualify for lower interest rates and fees. This helps you to free up additional money to set aside for emergencies, retirement, and other smaller unexpected expenses.

The connection between successful savings and good credit plays an important role in your financial life. Not only is it essential for obvious things like qualifying for a loan or getting a credit card, but also for less obvious things like getting cellular telephone service, renting a car, and perhaps even getting a job.

Want to learn more about the importance of credit history and successful savings?

- Why is good credit management so important?
- Five tips for building good credit.

MAKE A PLAN. Improve your credit history by making the minimum payment on all bills, keeping balances low on sources of credit, and applying for credit wisely.

SAVE AUTOMATICALLY. In order to have good credit scores you must demonstrate a habit of good credit management over a long period of time. Set up direct deposit or put part of your check into a savings account automatically each month to pay down debt and ensure you have enough money for emergencies.

Are you ready to take charge of your financial future?

Saving, for children

The Teaching Children to Save program is underway. Any youth 18 or younger who makes a deposit into a savings account is eligible for a $50 prize. Participating youths enter by completing an entry form, setting a savings goal and making a deposit of $1 or more into a new or existing savings account before July 31.

Entries are submitted to the financial institution at the time of the deposit. Participating financial institutions are Beach Community Bank; CCB Community Bank; Coastal Bank & Trust; Eglin Federal Credit Union; First City Bank; and First National Bank of Crestview.

When youths make a deposit at a participating financial institution, they can also vote for a participating school: Bruner Middle School, Davidson Middle School, Fort Walton Beach High, Laurel Hill School, Shoal River Middle School, and Walker Elementary.

The participating school that receives the most votes/entries will be awarded $500, sponsored by CCB Community Bank.

Crestview high chorus hits a high note

By BRIAN HUGHES
Arts & Entertainment Editor
brianh@crestviewbulletin.com

There are rare — far too rare, sometimes — moments in a concert when an audience member can sit back in his chair, close his eyes and be swept away by the sheer uplifting, soaring beauty of a performance. It's that marvelous feeling in which you not only praise God for giving the performers their talent, but thank him for the privilege of experiencing it.

There were several of those blissful moments in last Thursday's Crestview High School chorus spring concert.

The first occurred when the tremendous Women's Choir performed Guy Forbes' "Ave Maria." I couldn't understand the Latin text, but that didn't matter. The loveliness of the girls' performance assured I felt what it meant.

The Chorale show choir's first-ever public performance of "A Rose in the Deeps of My Heart," an a cappella piece, was similarly moving, as was the elite Chanticleer ensemble's heartfelt a cappella rendition of Henry Mancini's Oscar winner, "Moon River."

The evening wasn't all highbrow, however. There were plenty of fun, familiar and even laugh-out-loud jolly numbers to enjoy. The Men's Choir rendition of "The Lion Sleeps Tonight," complete with Darion Harrington's impressive, almost falsetto "ooh wee's," and the Women's Choir performance of the hilarious "Mashed Potato Love Poem" were delights.

The latter's lyric, performed in a slow, stately cadence that belies composer Paul Carey's tongue firmly imbedded in his cheek, went, "If ever I had to choose between you and a mashed potato, I think I'd choose the mashed potato. But I'd choose you next." Love it!

The Women's Choir begged to join the elite Chorale ensemble in "Tres Cantos Nativos," a trio of native Brazilian tunes sung a cappella in Portuguese, complete with jungle creature sound effects and foot-stomping percussion, resulting in a tremendous, large choral extravaganza that delighted the audience.

Accompanist Leon Curenton saved the day when in the last number of the first half of the concert, a medley

CHORUS COMPETITION RESULTS

The Crestview High School chorus received high accolades at the regional District Competition in Niceville in March.

Chorale, Women's Choir and Stardust, the new select women's show choir, received straight Superior ratings.

Men's Choir earned an Excellent rating.

Of Crestview's four student conductors, Olivia Dunn, Tiffani Souders and Kyler West earned Superiors. Juliet Yarger earned an Excellent.

BRIAN HUGHES | News Bulletin

During Thursday's Spring Concert, the Crestview High Women's Choir joined the elite Chorale ensemble for "Tres Cantos Nativos," a Brazilian medley of folk songs.

Community Arts CALENDAR

CHS band spring concert

The concert starts at 7 p.m.; admission is free. Concertgoers are encouraged to observe appropriate concert etiquette.

Baker Band concert

MAY 17 • The Baker School Sound of the Swamp band presents its annual spring concert at 7:30 p.m. in the school auditorium. Admission is free. Call the school at 689-7279 for details.

'The Sound of Music'

MAY 18 & 19 • The classic and beloved Rodgers & Hammerstein musical bursts onto the Pearl Tyner Auditorium stage in all its glory — and with a few special touches that will make this production a tad more unique — when the Crestview High School Drama Club presents its spring musical.

Come relish all over again the touching story of Maria, a young novitiate who arrives at the home of stern Austrian naval hero Capt. Georg von Trapp and brings music to his seven children. Favorite songs include the title number, "Do Re Mi," "Edelweiss," "Sixteen Going on Seventeen" and "Climb Ev'ry Mountain."

'Do Re Mi' for breakfast

By BRIAN HUGHES
Arts & Entertainment Editor
brianh@crestviewbulletin.com

Katie Sharon, a vice president with Coastal Bank, had just started calling the May Crestview Area Chamber of Commerce breakfast to order when a quizzical look crossed her face. "Does anyone else hear the sound of music?" she asked the assembly of local business and community leaders.

At that moment a flash mob of a dozen or so student cast members from the Crestview High School drama program fanned out across the Community Center, singing the familiar Rodgers and Hammerstein number, "Do Re Mi" as they passed out flyers for this weekend's performances.

After firmly imbedding the jaunty tune in the heads of the almost 200 attendees, the students requested the community leaders to hang the flyers in their places of business, and invited them to enjoy the perennial favorite show. Show times are 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday, with an 11 a.m. matinee on Saturday. Tickets are $7.

The show will be performed in the Crestview High School's Peal Tyner Auditorium.

from "The Lion King," scheduled accompanist Judah DeGraaf was not to be found. Curenton, handed the sheet music virtually unseen, played the 6-minute piece, receiving applause from the students afterward.

During the break, last year's Senior Choral Award winner Kody Lusk returned from his freshman year at Florida State University and crooned a swinging version of "Come Fly With Me," evoking a combination of a young Frank Sinatra mixed with Michael Bublé, before announcing this year's award winner, Tiffani Souders.

"Girls Rock the '50s!" was the all-women Destiny show choir's opening number, a fun set of several pop tunes from the fabulous 1950s.

In an evening of fun, unscripted surprises, most of them wrought by high-spirited seniors, the lyrics to The Bobbettes' 1957 hit "Mr. Lee" somehow got changed to "Mr. Lusk" in honor of choral music director Kevin Lusk, who was ushered out to the stage and seated in a place of honor as the girls serenaded him.

More than a senior prank, however, the unexpected tribute to their teacher spoke volumes of the affection the 120 members of the Crestview High chorus feel for Lusk, despite his reputation for demanding perfection and professionalism from his students.

Though at times a reputed taskmaster, Lusk consistently extracts highly rated performances from his ensembles and choirs, and the students he directs consistently perform enjoyable, professional concerts like the one a packed auditorium enjoyed Thursday evening.

The time to plant a garden is now

By PAULA KELLEY
682-6524 | @cnbpaula
paulak@crestviewbulletin.com

On an already warm 87-degree morning, Jennifer Oliver walked the plant beds of her family's nursery in Holt to talk about what Crestview residents and the surrounding areas can plant now for a beautiful summer garden.

"This is a great time of year to plant for the long hot summer," Oliver said. "I always encourage people to plant when the heat is not so unbearable, for their health and the plants' health. There are great plants that need to go in the ground now for summer color."

She said that buying plants that have been grown for your area is a top consideration.

"You want to choose plants that are heat tolerant and ones that don't require a ton of water or labor," she said. "All of the plants that we carry are hybridized for our USDA agricultural zone, so that are hardy in our soil, with our temperatures. You want to plant it and water it deeply to encourage a deeper root system and a more beautiful plant."

Butterfly weed is a food source and host plant for butterflies and is one of the plants recommended for those who wish to start a butterfly garden.

Gerber daisies can be planted now and enjoyed all summer long, nursery owner Jennifer Oliver said.

She suggests North Okaloosa gardeners look to plants that are blooming now and will continue to bloom throughout the summer like echinacea, oleander, rudbeckia, coreopsis, guara, gaillardia, ixora, ruellia, hydrangea, daylilies, zinnias, Confederate jasmine, Shasta or Gerber daisies, and butterfly bush.

Oliver said that there are plants that are not as common in Northwest Florida gardens but do well in our conditions: King's mantle thunbergia, which looks like a small shrub with deep purple blossoms and yellow throats, or purple princess tibouchina.

She also suggests the Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow plant (Brunfelsia). The flower blooms a pale lavender and by the next day the same bloom has turned white.

"Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow is a great plant to give as a gift because it has such a unique story suggested in the blooms and it is a striking plant in a landscape," she said.

"There are plants like agapanthus that give a garden a constant clump of deep green and only flower for a couple of weeks in the summer, but their blooms are a long spire that shoots up from the plant. The blue or white flower that blooms on that is just beautiful, almost like a firework exploding over your garden," she said.

Oliver that an almost expected plant in a Florida landscape is the hibiscus, as it provides bright colors and blooms through the

Each year the Crestview Parks and Recreation Department hosts a kids fishing camp at Twin Hills Park, like this one that took place in June of last year.

City ponds to be stocked

State funding will trigger new fishing regulations

By MATTHEW BROWN
Special to the News Bulletin

Once ponds at Twin Hills Park are restocked with bass and catfish early next year, fishing regulations that apply to the east pond will also apply to the west pond.

In February, the Florida Division of Forestry's Blackwater Fisheries Research and Development Center near Holt will stock both lakes with fingerlings.

When the east pond was stocked with fish a couple of years ago by the state, new fishing regulations mandated by the state went into effect. At the east pond, anyone 16 years or older fishing at the lake must be accompanied by at least one person younger than 16. Fishing is only allowed in the east lake from one half hour before sunrise to one half hour after sunset.

There are no similar restrictions for fishing the west lake. Once the lakes are stocked, the restrictions at the east pond will go into effect at the west pond as well.

"The theory behind it is to encourage adults to take kids fishing and the sport of fishing and the act of conservation will live on," city Parks and Recreation Supervisor Chuck Powell stated in an email.

To ensure that the fingerlings survive, members of the Crestview City Council recently approved the addition of two new solar-powered fish feeders, which will be provided by the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission.

"I contacted the state and they are willing to provide the city with two new feeders valued at $600 each," city Public Works Director Wayne Steele said at the council meeting.

The only cost to the city would be the fish feed itself.

"Our average cost would be about $40 dollars a month," Steele said.

The money will come out of the Public Works budget, Administrative Services Director Mike Wing said.

Another state requirement is that at least one children's fishing rodeo take place at the park each year. For the past four years the Old Spanish Trail Festival has sponsored the Hub City Bass Masters Kids Fishing Rodeo at the park, with more than 300 children participating last year.

The city's Parks and Recreation department also hosts a kids' fishing camp at the park each year, typically in June.

All state of Florida licensing regulations for fishing in freshwater apply at both ponds.

Gators get a gator

Bricks and tiles raise funds for Baker School sculpture

By BRIAN HUGHES
682-6524 | @cnbBrian
brianh@crestviewbulletin.com

The Baker School Gators will soon have a life-sized sculpture of their "Gator" mascot on their campus. Student leaders are spearheading efforts to purchase the bronze alligator and are selling engraved bricks and tiles to fund the centerpiece of the refurbished school quadrangle.

The 7-foot, 4-inch-long reptile will be the community's first piece of public art and will reside on a raised platform in the center of the "Swamp Walk," a new central court outside the school office, said faculty member and Student Government Association adviser Denise Gronberg.

Student government leaders are spearheading the effort to acquire the sculpture, Gronberg said. To raise the $1,945 needed to buy the work of art, Gronberg said the students are selling engraved paving bricks for the quadrants formed by the Swamp Walk's four curving walkways, and quarry tiles that will surround the artwork's base.

"It'll look real nice when we get it finished and get some landscaping and lighting installed," Principal Tom Shipp said.

"We are putting the cart before the horse," Gronberg said. "We need to sell the pavers to pay for the statue."

The school will acquire its new official Gator sculpture from the Large Art Company, a Baltimore-based foundry that specializes in bronzes. From the original alligator sculpture by artist Guillermo Castaño, the piece coming to Baker was reproduced by the same traditional "lost wax" casting process with which Castaño made the original.

A wax casting is made from the original sculpture and is covered in a ceramic coating. When it's fired in a kiln, the ceramic becomes hard and the wax melts out, or is "lost," leaving a mold of the original. While the ceramic is still hot, molten bronze is poured into the mold and a perfect copy is made of the original sculpture.

Gronberg and her students invite members of the community to contribute to the acquisition of the Gator sculpture and at the same time, secure in the school's history their names or those of loved ones by purchasing bricks or tiles to be placed in the permanent display in Baker School's new Swamp Walk.

"SGA has been working on this all year and it looks like we will have the statue at least during the summer," Gronberg said. "I really wish that we could have it by graduation, but at least we are getting it."

To get a brick or tile order form, see any Baker School Student Government Association representative, or contact Gronberg at 689-7279 or GronbergD@mail.okaloosa.k12.fl.us. summer.

"Hibiscus is available in so many colors — red, pink, yellow, white corals, with single and double blooms," Oliver said. "Once it is established it doesn't need a great deal of water. Some people buy it and treat it as a annual as it sometimes won't take the cooler temperatures and will have to be replanted. But they are worth it."

Oliver suggests watering early in the morning and watching plants for signs that the heat is taxing them.

"You want to water deeply, an inch to an inch and a half a week to promote a deeper root system," she suggested. "Just giving your plants a small drink with the water hose causes their root systems to stay shallow to seek the water and they are not as healthy."

Butterfly gardens are a great way to teach kids an outdoor science lesson, Oliver said.

"You need nectar sources to provide them with food," she said. "They love plants with a throat like hibiscus, butterfly bush, zinnias and ruellia. Native plants are worry free and include butterfly weed and they serve as a host plant for the caterpillars, or herbs like dill or fennel.

"Then they need a water source, something as easy as a bowl that you keep filled with water with rocks in it so that they can land and drink. And don't forget a flat rock or a piece of garden decor as they love sunning their wings."

PAULA KELLEY | News Bulletin

Purple princess flower, Tibouchina, is almost in bloom. It features a deep purple bloom that can take full sun to partial shade.

She also suggests that butterfly gardens be created away from birdhouses, or plants or fruit trees that attract birds as they eat the caterpillars and butterflies.

"Bumblebees are also essential to our gardens and you see fewer because of pesticide usage, but gardeners should consider plants that attract them as they keep a garden pollinated and healthy, and you need plants that they love — plants like nandina and coral vine," she said.

Oliver said it's time to hang hummingbird feeders again.

"The secret to a hummingbird garden is to attract and then maintain them. Hanging a hummingbird feeder or two with sugar water inside will give them a food source. They love bright red flowers, like bottle brush plant, hibiscus, honeysuckle vine and salvia," she said.

Local student visits NASA, helps plan exploration

Special to the News Bulletin

Matthew North of Eglin Air Force Base, a student at Northwest Florida State College, has been selected as one of 92 community college students from across the nation to be part of the National Community College Aerospace Scholars program. He traveled to a NASA Center May 9-11 to participate in the program at Johnson Space Center in Houston and is one of only three students selected from Florida to attend.

North competed with students from across the nation to create a mission plan and design a rover for a NASA mission to Mars through completion of four Web-based assignments during the school year. He will apply what he learned during the year in his work with NASA engineers during the three-day program in Houston.

The prestigious National Community College Aerospace Scholars program offers students from across the nation the opportunity to learn more about careers in science and engineering. While at NASA, students form teams and establish fictional companies interested in Mars exploration. Each company is responsible for developing a prototype rover, designing a line drawing of the rover, and forming the company infrastructure, including budgeting and communications functions, and will prepare presentations. The on-site experience at NASA includes a tour of facilities and briefings by noted NASA employees — including astronauts.

North graduated with honors May 5 from NWFSC with an Associate of Science in Architectural Design and Construction Technology, a Certificate of Drafting and a certificate in AutoCAD Foundations and plans to return in the fall to pursue a Bachelor of Applied Science degree in Project Management.

"Over the last two years I have learned an incredible amount from the teachers in the Advanced Technology and Design Department, and also from instructors across all departments of Northwest Florida State College," North said. "Thanks to their teaching and support I have achieved this accomplishment."

Special to the News Bulletin

Northwest Florida State College President Ty Handy (left) and Ray Rickman (right), chairman of the college's Advanced Technology and Design Department, congratulate Matthew North (center) on his selection to the National Community College Aerospace Scholars program.

North said he is also currently working on a proposal for the Lunar and Planetary Institute on Concepts and Approaches for Mars Exploration. "I am using the data and research performed through the NCCAS program to develop my proposal for an atmospheric balloon for the exploration of Mars. Proposals will be submitted to NASA senior directors to help revise the Mars Exploration Program," he said.

The National Community College Aerospace Scholars is a program based on Texas Aerospace Scholars, originally created by the state of Texas in partnership with NASA and the Texas educational community. Both programs are designed to encourage community and junior college students to enter careers in science and engineering and ultimately join the nation's highly technical workforce.

With this program, NASA continues the agency's investment in educational programs that attract and retain students in science, technology, engineering and mathematics, disciplines critical to NASA's future missions.

Good stuff on My Plate

Library patrons discover the secret of the blue plate special

By BRIAN HUGHES

Brenda Smith, Food and Nutrition program assistant at the University of Florida/ IFAS Okaloosa County Extension office, minced no words while introducing the government's new "My Plate" nutrition guidelines. The program replaces the My Pyramid standards that many consumers found confusing.

"We do not realize how many calories are in our food," she said. "The labels are really, really, tricky. You have to look at them carefully. Look at the serving size and the number of servings in a package."

The new, simplified guide is an illustration of a plate divided into four unequal sections, visually indicating what approximate percentage of fruits, vegetables, grains and protein should be in a person's daily diet. The vegetables and grains segments are the largest portions of the plate. A smaller serving of dairy products is illustrated next to the plate.

Manufacturers deliberately make nutrition information vague, Smith said while presenting the Crestview Public Library's First Tuesday program. "Serving" sizes are often impractically small. Sugar is disguised by other names. And American diets

TIPS FOR BETTER EATING

- Drink water and milk instead of sodas. Even 100 percent fruit juice has as much natural sugar as a Coke.
- Grill, broil, poach or roast instead of frying.
- Use smaller plates with smaller portions on them.
- Choose 100 percent whole-grain bread, crackers, etc.
- Read nutrition labels carefully.
- Eat red, orange and dark-green vegetables with every dinner.
- Eat fruit and raw veggies for snacks instead of processed junk food.
- Choose a physical activity such as walking. Start at 10 minutes a day and work your way up.

are sadly lacking in fruits and vegetables.

Foods that boast dietary fiber may not have nearly enough of it, she said. Cheerios, for example, contain only 1 gram of fiber per serving, but the average person needs between 27 and 32 grams of fiber to flush our systems.

"You would need to eat so much of that you wouldn't eat anything else" to attain the recommended amount of daily fiber just from the popular breakfast cereal, she said. Instead, load up on fruits and veggies.

"The grains help to clean us on the inside," Smith said. "When we lack fiber, we're not properly cleaning our gut."

Smith cautioned that processed foods also tend to be least healthy.

"The higher you go on processed food, the least nutrition you're going to get out of it," Smith said.

Sadly, she said, when underprivileged families are shopping for food, their dollars stretch farther with processed food than with fresh foods. Processed foods also last longer in the family pantry, she pointed out. A way to include fresh foods at a lower price is to buy them at farmers' markets and roadside farmers' stands rather than grocery stores.

"Lower income people tend to buy processed food because it's cheaper than fresh veggies and fruit," she said. "Nutritious food is expensive and junk food is inexpensive!"

Even foods that some consider healthy are loaded in sugars, Smith cautioned.

"One hundred percent fruit juice has as much sugar as soda," she said. "Parents think they're doing their kids well but they're jacking them up on sugars."

Artificial fruit juice even worse, Smith said. If it's only 30 percent fruit juice, the rest of it is sugar, such as corn syrup and artificial ingredients.

Satoko Litynski, left, and Nancy Newby sample some fruit kebabs and veggies with yogurt dip. To make the dip, stir a packet of ranch dressing dip mix into a container of Greek yogurt, advised county extension Food and Nutrition program assistant Brenda Smith.

Smith presented comparisons of a typical unhealthy meal and showed how a consumer could still enjoy favorites such as fried chicken with macaroni and cheese on the side, but could cut their calorie intake by more than half. Portion control is a major tool in cutting calories, she said.

By reducing portion sizes and adding a healthy, steamed vegetable on the side, a mac-n-cheese and fried chicken dinner plummeted from a typical 860-calorie meal to 333 calories.

"We have to look at what we're eating, and this trickles down to our kids," Smith said, citing the nation's obesity problem.

University of Florida/IFAS Okaloosa County Extension Food and Nutrition program assistant Brenda Smith introduces the government's new My Plate nutritional guidelines at the Crestview Public Library.

"A lot of the ways we eat is based on the way we grew up."

A big secret, she said as she held up one of the salad plates that her family's meals are now served on, is using a smaller plate and eating off of blue dinnerware.

"The best plate to eat off of is your salad plate. Go to a smaller plate if you're trying to lose weight," Smith advised. "Research shows when eating off a blue plate, you'll eat less. A blue plate has a psychological deterrent to eating a lot of food because presentation is important to us."

NORTH END ZONE
Randy Dickson

A not so funny thing happened to me on the way to DeLand for my vacation on May 5 — my car broke down.

I was fortunate that the breakdown happened as I was pulling into a rest area just south of Gainesville. I was close enough to my family where one of my sisters and her husband could come and pick my dog and me up and take us the remaining miles of our journey.

As for my car, it required a little more help. My bad fortune turned into good fortune for the wrecker company that towed my car and the Ford dealership that did the repair. I'll give you a clue. If you ever hear the words torque converter be afraid. Be very afraid.

Things might have seemed bad, but I know they could have been much worse. Yes, part of my transmission went out, but it did happen as I was pulling into a rest area and not as I was trying to keep pace with the traffic on the interstate. And it was a frustrating three hours trying to figure out what might be wrong with the car while dealing with the roadside assistance program from my insurance company arranging a tow.

The tow driver that finally arrived turned out to be a nice guy — for a Florida fan. He joked with me that he would have charged me double rates if he had known I was a Tennessee guy.

We rode with him a short distance to meet my sister and brother-in-law and as we talked I found the Gator and this Volunteer had many things in common, even if we pulled for different teams. If I met Stan at a game in Knoxville or Gainesville I can easily see myself tailgating with him and talking a little good natured trash about the teams. I could also see myself shaking his hand if Florida won and congratulating him on his team's win.

My short time with Stan reminded me that most fans — be they high school, college or professional fans — do share many things in common and if things were different might very well be cheering for the same team. Maybe the next time I go to bash a Florida fan I'll think of Stan.

The highlight of this, or any vacation, was spending time with the family. Both of my parents will be 80 this year and the days that they get in the car and do the road trip thing are past. I was glad I was able to spend Mother's Day with my mom before hitting the road to head back to Okaloosa County and the News Bulletin.

Wilkerson, Sanders join Bulldog staff

By RANDY DICKSON
682-6524 | @BigRandle
randyd@crestviewbulletin.com

It probably seems like old times for first-year Crestview assistant football coaches James Wilkerson and Matt Sanders as they join the staff of second-year coach Kevin Pettis.

It wasn't that long ago that Wilkerson was a record-setting receiver for the Bulldogs and Sanders a highly sought after offensive lineman.

Wilkerson, a 2005 Crestview graduate, caught 52 passes for 1,082 yards as a senior in 2004. He continued his impressive career at Jacksonville State University in Alabama.

"It feels great to be back in the hometown getting back to the roots," Wilkerson said. "It kind of fell into place, but I kind of had it in the back of my mind that it would be a great thing to do to actually be a coach, bring my experience to the game."

Sanders graduated from Crestview in 2008 and was a fixture as a starter on the Bulldog offensive line throughout his playing career and accepted a scholarship to Clemson University. Sanders redshirted in the fall of 2008 and was a backup guard for the Tigers from 2009 to 2011.

Sanders graduated from Clemson on Friday and with degree in hand he was ready to move on to the next chapter of his life.

"I had been there (at Clemson) for a long time and I was thinking about it this past winter over the break and I just felt like it was time to move on," he said. "I accomplished all I wanted to accomplish at Clemson University.

Wanted: Football's finest

Gators trying to fill several spots in their lineup

RANDY DICKSON | News Bulletin
Dakota Campbell (65) will be a two-way lineman for Baker this fall.

By RANDY DICKSON
682-6524 | @BigRandle
randyd@crestviewbulletin.com

Plenty of spots are still up for grabs on the Baker football team as the Gators wrap up spring practice Friday night when they host Chipley in their spring game.

Kickoff is set for 7 p.m. at Doug Griffith Memorial Stadium.

A combination of 18 starting positions, many of which were manned by seniors that went both ways last year, have to be filled by the fall.

Gator coach Matt Brunson is taking an optimistic approach to what some might see as a big challenge.

"The door is wide open for a lot of kids," he said. "We are going to have competition at every position, which is a good thing. Our guys work hard and they are fun to coach and our coaches do a good job.

"Going into the fall we will have some guys that do exactly what we ask them to do. Based on that, and these kids knowing what to expect, although we lost a lot of starters, we are going to be just fine."

Brunson starts his second season at his alma mater and he has changed the mindset of the team. He has ditched the spread offense the Gators previously used and has returned Baker to more of a power style of football.

"We are going to try and knock people off the ball," Brunson said. "And they bought into that in a big way. I think they have done a great job in the weight room preparing and knowing what we are going to do going into next year."

With 18 positions to fill almost every starting spot is up for grabs.

Brothers Adam and Ben Crowson are in a battle at quarterback. Adam is a senior and Ben is a junior.

"One of those guys is going to be very capable in that position," Brunson said, "and then we have two or three other guys that are going to be pretty good."

Rising junior D.J. Thomas is the most experienced returning running back, but he'll have plenty of help in the backfield.

"We are going to be running back by committee because these guys haven't stepped up yet, but D.J. Thomas can be used at fullback or tailback," Brunson said. "Our JV tailback, Richard Stroheker, is moving up and he's put up great numbers in the weight room and has a great offseason. He's 5-10, 165 or 170 pounds. Hopefully he'll put on a little weight this summer.

"A couple of guys that we have coming back from last year, Dylan Wadsworth and Taylor Carlisle, will get some snaps and spend some time there."

Bulldog roster will be deep

In a few days the Crestview football team will wrap up spring practice.

The Red and White spring scrimmage is Friday night and a week from Thursday the Bulldogs host Niceville in their annual spring game.

Spring is a time for finding new faces and starting to piece together the puzzle that will be the roster for the upcoming season.

When the Crestview football team lines up at the start of the 2012 season there will be many familiar faces returning in the starting lineup.

That's not to say anything is set in stone for the Bulldogs, who are hoping to improve on last year's 4-6 record as coach Kevin Pettis enters his second season at the reign of the program.

The best football teams are those that have competition at every position and that should be the case for a deep Crestview squad in the upcoming season.

Crestview should have depth at every position. And, in fact, the

Be it ever so humble there is no place like home. Yes, vacations are nice, but by the third or fourth day I'm ready to get back to work and am thinking about the stories to be written and places I need to be in the coming days.

This is a busy week for me with Baker's spring football game and the pending announcement of the first class in the Bulldog Hall of Fame.

Crestview hosts Niceville for its spring game a week from Thursday and the official countdown to the 2012 season will begin.

In the next few weeks I'll be doing more community feature stories as I have a chance to catch my breath and start thinking about the fall.

I'm a sports guy and I wouldn't have it any other way.

"Coach Pettis actually had a great opportunity and had a spot open. He asked if I wanted to do it, and I said, 'Absolutely.'"

Wilkerson and Sanders are just two of the new faces on a revamped staff that includes the return of Thomas Grant as offensive coordinator. Grant was on the Bulldog staff for several years under Matt Brunson and followed Brunson to Baker last year.

Pettis likes the mix of young and old on the staff.

"I think it's invaluable (to have younger coaches on the staff)," Pettis said. "I think sometimes you can be too old on a staff. Our staff at DeLand was so old that first year it was unbelievable.

"We were the oldest staff in America and it was like I've got to get some youth and some fresh air in here. It was the same thing here. I just thought we needed some fresh air and we've got it."

Pettis said Wilkerson and Sanders have already paid dividends just with the work they've done with the team during weight training and conditioning workouts.

"You should see these guys in the weight room," he said. "They are jazzed up in the weight room. It's been worth it already."

Wilkerson graduated from Jacksonville State with a degree in sociology and would like to get into teaching in the classroom as well as on the field. For now he's just happy to be on the field.

"I can teach them how to play at a higher level as they are in high school now," he said. "I can show them how to go ahead and prepare for what's coming at them in the next phase (in football) for the seniors moving on."

Sanders cracked a big smile as he talked about the offensive linemen he's going to coach.

"We are going to have some great offensive linemen this year and I can't wait to coach them," he said. "We've got Jonathan Longmen and Alex Tillman and I'm excited about coaching those guys. They are great players."

Some of the more interesting battles coming out of Crestview football practice should be the ones between the offensive line and defensive line. Not only is Sanders coaching at his alma mater, he's also coaching with and, at times, against his dad, Jay, who will coach the Bulldog defensive line this year.

Matt joked that Jay has already starting talking trash about what the defensive line will do to the offensive line.

As is the case with Wilkerson, Sanders, who was a history major, hopes to land a fulltime teaching position in the fall so he can get on with the job at hand of coaching.

"I told coach Pettis when he hired me I'm a Bulldog born and raised and I would like to get a job here and hopefully that will materialize in the fall," Sanders said.

RANDY DICKSON | News Bulletin
James Wilkerson, a 2005 Crestview graduate, is back with the Bulldogs as the new wide receivers coach.

Fullback will be Thomas, Brandon Engler, Austin Martin and Blake Phillips. Brunson said Ben Crowson also is a very capable fullback if Adam Crowson is quarterback.

Starting wide receivers Ivory Smith and Steven Grant graduate, but when the Gators do throw the ball this year they should have a pretty good group of pass catchers even if none of them have the speed of Smith, who won his second straight state title in the 400 meters earlier this spring.

Andrew Allen, Luke Ostot, Matt Leverington, Devin Robbins and several others will battle at receiver.

The Baker offensive line graduated its two biggest players in Dillon Cotten and Joe Lee, but Brunson thinks they will be OK.

Taylor Brown and Logan Nixon are two starters from last year and both of those guys have had a great offseason and do a good job," Brunson said. "Our offensive line will probably be built around Taylor Brown.

"Logan Nixon is at center. Taylor Brown, Jake Rainey and Cody Chunn are our guards. Tackles are Dakota Campbell, Zack Way and Donald Stroheker and then at tight end filling in for Brian Benoit will be Cody Nixon, Andrew Allen and Jason Holt, so again we should have competition at every position."

It's not surprising that most of the projected offensive starters also will start or see significant playing time on defense.

Campbell, who started last year at a defensive tackle/nose tackle, is back this year along with Cody Nixon, Way, Brown and Stroheker on the interior defensive line. Allen and Martin will be some guys that are worked in at defensive end.

Starting linebackers Colton Bouchard and Cory Harper will be replaced by a group of players that includes the Crowson brothers, Engler and Phillips. Chunn and Thomas can also play linebacker.

Brunson likes the mix of the players competing in the defensive secondary.

"We've got Matt Leverington, who is a very physical kid and will run up and hit you, that had some good playing time last year," Brunson said. "We have Wilder Kersey, Richard Stroheker rotating at safety and then we have Devin Robbins and Wadsworth, who we are working at the corner positions."

Brunson said although this is his second year with the program he still expects some growing pains.

"The truth is we were changing things last year and some of those guys (quarterbacks) had never taken a snap from under center," he said. "It was kind of a big learning curve, but for these guys with only two starters coming back on either side of the ball, it will be the same type of learning curve.

"Until we get a year under our belt with some underclassmen coming back, it will kind of be like the same situation we were in last year."

RANDY DICKSON | News Bulletin
Rising junior quarterback Ben Crowson is battling his older brother, Adam, for the Baker starting job.

Bulldogs have so much depth at quarterback that it is hopeful that last year's starter, Dakota Dean, will be available to play elsewhere.

"Right now I think depth is the strength of our quarterback group," Pettis said. "I think Dakota Davis, T.J. Culligan and Khalil Foster — all three of them — can throw the ball. I think Dakota Davis and Khalil have kind of got a stronger leg (running) game than what T.J. does, but T.J. has the stronger arm.

"All three of them are going to get their chance to prove that they can be the guy, and we know that we've got a guy in the wings where if we need him we can pull him in there. We know Dakota Dean can play quarterback. We are going to play him at strong safety in what I feel is a natural position for him to show him as an athlete for recruiting purposes."

Pettis said he feels good that Dean and Tyler Henderson will work with the quarterbacks during the summer and some in fall camp, but he would like to find a starter from among Foster, Culligan and Davis, a transfer from Freeport. Pettis also mentioned rising sophomores Trace Richter and Trevor Thames as a couple of youngsters that could get in the mix.

Central Florida commit Micah Reed leads a group of talented running backs that should spark the Crestview running attack.

Reed will be joined by his younger brother, Emmanuel Reed, Jalynne Robinson, Darien McGee and Riquan Benbow.

Pettis feels good about the running back postion.

"I mean if you take Jalynne, Micah and Emmanuel, that's three pretty good football players right there," he said.

Pettis admitted he might not be able to find a fullback that can do what Matt Hutchison, a 260-pound bulldozer of a back, did for the Bulldogs last year.

"I don't know if you can replace that kid," Pettis said. "I've been doing this 21 years and I'm telling you right now I've had two players in 21 years like that who made such a difference.

"We don't have that guy, but we have some kids like K.J. Merchant and D.J. Stewart, who we feel like can help us at a tight end/H back type like Matt was, so we feel real good about that."

Pettis said he hopes to get the tight ends more involved in the passing game this year.

The Bulldogs had 21 wide receivers on the depth chart heading into spring practice and Pettis was hoping to trim the group down to a more manageable number, but he had a pretty good idea of the guys that will be able to help the team at receiver.

"I love Tate Sweatt," Pettis said. "That joker can play it and he's got some wiggle about him. Brandon Davis is another good one.

"Tyler Henderson is another good one. Matt Gillis had a big game against Bolles, so Matt's going to be a good one for us. We are happy with them but we've got to find four (that will get most of the snaps) out of that group."

Pettis said he plans to use Henderson, an explosive playmaker, at multiple positions on offense and defense to get the ball in his hands as much as possible.

Crestview lost a pair of jumbo size offensive linemen to graduation in Earl Reed and Will Boler, but the cupboard is far from empty.

"Replacing Big Earl is a mission and I don't know that we can," Pettis said. "Big Earl and Big Will did a great job for us, but we return Alex Tillman, Jonathan Longmen and Lucas Lee, so we feel pretty good with those three. We've just got to find two or three that help us.

"Right now Taylor Thompson and Brad Wolfe come to mind, along with Chance Owens and Justin Abdo. We are not going to be quite as big as we were last year but we are going to be a lot more athletic. I like the group coming in."

Pettis thinks the Bulldog offense should be good, but he believes the defense has a chance to be something special.

"On offense I think we are going to be all right, but what I'm excited about is our defense," he said. "Our defensive line is Denzel Ware, Billy Clemmon, Derrick Steele, Dillan Lawson and Kobi Robinson. That's a good bunch and they are going to be great.

"Our inside linebackers are probably going to be Will Jefferies and Kyle Koontz. At outside linebacker we've got Demarcus Bethune and Dakota Dean at strong safety."

Robinson and Henderson also will be at safety. Brandon Davis, Demetrius Smith and Justin Rebholz will play cornerback.

"I love our defense," Pettis said. "We are going to use Jalynne and Dakota in a monster type of position. It's going to be fun."
