Brantley-Davis resigns from LP council

Cites demands on time from business and family matters

By ED BALDRIDGE
ed.baldridge@newssun.com

LAKE PLACID — Lake Placid Mayor John Holbrook confirmed Monday morning that Town Council member Cheryl Brantley-Davis resigned effective Sept. 20.

Brantley-Davis' letter was dated Sept. 1, and she indicates that her resignation was due to business and family requirements for her time.

"After a tremendous amount of consideration, I wish to inform you that I am resigning from my position as a Member of the Lake Placid Council, effective Sept. 15, 2011. I feel that I cannot dedicate the required time that this position necessitates," Brantley-Davis wrote.

"It was an honor and privilege to serve the people of Lake Placid. I would like to thank everyone for the support that you have provided me during the last 16 months on the town council," her letter continues.

During the meeting on Monday night, Brantley-Davis echoed her sentiments

Buddy's Buddies finds home for stray animals doomed to death

By CHRISTOPHER TUFFLEY
christopher.tuffley@newssun.com

SEBRING — Over the years, Jill Hamilton took care of her dog Buddy. As he aged, Buddy lost his sight and his hearing, developing arthritis to the point that he needed help standing and walking.

Then the sad day came when Buddy was put to rest.

Hamilton found herself surprised by much pet equipment she had accumulated through the years. Not just the normal feeding bowls and blankets, but specialized, expensive equipment for disabled animals.

She decided to list the items online, not to sell, but to give away to people who would use them.

Then fate reshaped her intent. What she found on the Internet broke her heart —the number of animals collected by animal control agencies and how quickly the "substandard" dogs were put down.

"They are the old dogs, the ones with health problems, or missing a leg or eye." Hamilton said.

That's when she had an epiphany. "If I could handle a blind and deaf dog that can't walk, I can do anything."

So, she adopted a dog named Jed who was blind in one eye.

Then she took in two dogs just to keep them alive while she hunted for permanent homes.

One dog only had three legs. The other dog's front legs were both broken and in full casts. She found families for both of them

AVON PARK — City Council members approved city manager Julian Deleon's contract quickly Monday night at the council's regular meeting.

The main provisions, which are based on the standard department head contract, are a three year term with a base pay of $93,000. At his own request, Deleon will not have a take-home vehicle and he is required to move into the city within two years.

Should Deleon resign before the end of contract term, he shall receive no severance pay or benefits.

In order to receive sick pay and vacation accrued time payout at 100 percent of allowable payout, Deleon will have to give at least four weeks notice if he decides to leave. Otherwise, he will

No across the board cost-of-living raises in AP

By CHRISTOPHER TUFFLEY
christopher.tuffley@newssun.com

AVON PARK — City council members, except for Deputy Mayor Brenda Gray who was absent, discussed the modified Police Benevolent Association contract Monday night at their regular meeting.

Three articles of the contract were on the agenda: a tentatively promised 3 percent cost-of-living raise; adding another step in the grievance process; and providing the union with a 30-day review period should the city decide to outsource police services, so the union may offer comment or counter proposals.

The only article to raise debate was the 3 percent cost of living increase.

Nathan Coogan, the police department's PBA representative, argued for the raise.

"There is a balanced budget this year with the increase included," he said, adding that the police negotiate every year in any case, so the raise could be re-visited then. "If the city can't sustain it," Coogan said, "we'll give back one or two percent, or all of it back to prevent anyone from being laid off."

"No disrespect to Mr. Coogan," council member Parke Sutherland replied, "but once you give (a raise) it's hard to get back."

The council expressed concern over the city's ability to afford a 3 percent pay increase across the board. Several council members were also worried that not all city employees have been treated fairly because some are covered by union rules, and some are not. For example, City Clerk Cheryl Tietjen, filling a non-union position, hasn't had a raise in five years.

It was decided that instead of across-the-board raises, one-time-only stipends would be distributed. The council indicated these stipends would probably only affordable in 2011-2012.

Mayor Sharon Schuler warned that 2012-2013 will be even more financially challenging. She referred especially to the police and fire department pension funds. With the instability of the stock market, Schuler said, the city may have to contribute significantly more to them next year.

The tentative budget was passed on first reading. Renee Green, finance director, was directed to collect all the money allotted for the stipends in a single line item, and readjust department accounts accordingly.

Drug Free Highlands gears up for tri-county summit

By SAMANTHA GHOLAR
sgholar@newssun.com

SEBRING — The Drug Free Highlands Coalition will gather for its monthly meeting this morning at the Florida Hospital Heartland Division conference room. The meeting, which begins at 9:30, will reveal more of DFH ideas and plans for the fall.

DFH Project Coordinator Amanda Sherley has been busy the past couple weeks visiting many of the tri-county (Polk, Hardee and Highlands) meetings as well as attending Community Anti-Drug Coalitions of America conferences and events.

"It's been insanely crazy around here," Sherley said.

Though today's meeting will be mostly political and board member elections, Sherley is looking forward to the upcoming events for DFH.

DFH has partnered with Hardee and Polk counties to form the tri-county coalition. The coalition will hold its Prescription Drug Summit Sept. 19 in Bartow at the First Baptist Church located at 208 West Church St.

"It's going to be very interesting. We will have break-out sessions, a few keynote speakers, a professional toxicologist will be there sharing information as well. She will talk about all the health issues with prescription drugs and address the abuse issue that is going on over in the bigger counties as well as all over Florida," Sherley said.

The tri-county coalition will then have time to speak to one another and share ideas.

"Sarasota spearheaded a new thing over there and it has been super successful so we hope to be able to use their ideas here," said Sherley.

Following the group discussions there will be a panel discussion. The summit will begin at 8 a.m. and last until mid-afternoon.

The $5 million White Elephant. It has been over 3 years since the County let the Sports Complex Manager go and what do they have to show for it? An empty complex that is not being used up to its potential. At least the former Sports Complex Manager had tournamnets on the schedule. Can the P&R Director say that - who is the same person who led the charge to terminate the Manager. I guess this witch hunt did not go so well. Remember the old adage - be careful what you wish for. To bad the commissioners did not get all the information from the P&R Director. Before you reject it - you may want to investigate the Director. County citizens money not being put to very good use. It is too easy to condem

The News-Sun "Your Voice" question of the day Friday, Sept. 9 — should the county adopt a policy of not hiring smokers — produced an unsettling result: 45.8 percent said it should, 45.2 percent said it should not.

It is one thing to forbid smoking, at least in an enclosed space. Tobacco smoke is a real danger to others.

Certainly smokers must be responsible when disposing of cigarette butts, which are a fire hazard and create unsightly, unhealthy litter.

To believe, however, that tobacco smokers should be denied a livelihood, at least with the county, we feel goes too far — way too far.

One of the main arguments voiced against hiring smokers is that, because they smoke they sometimes get sick, they may miss work and will raise insurance rates.

Many diabetics and people with hypertension, however — either of which can result from being over weight — also miss work and require extensive medical care.

Are we going to not hire people who, because they are heavy, might turn out to be an expensive employee from the health care perspective?

What about the adrenaline junkies among us? The individuals who ride motorcycles at high speed without helmets, for example. Why should we give jobs to people who live on the edge and may die any day? Or be left paralyzed from the neck down, costing society more in the long run than any emphysema patient.

What's next? Genetic testing on all applicants to weed out those who one day might become sick?

We're sorry to have to break the news folks, but each of us is mortal. Everybody dies. Magical thinking isn't going to change that. Nor will turning smokers, or the obese, or the reckless, into scapegoats. No one lives one day longer because someone else died one day sooner. No one is guaranteed a long life just because they don't smoke and eat only vegetables.

As to medical costs — life and death should not be measured in dollars.

Our system for providing health care has been out of kilter for a long time now. No one, for example, should have to take out a mortgage on the family home in order to pay for medical treatment. Truth is, the cost of health care in this country has nothing to do with people who smoke.

It's just as easy (and just as inane) to argue that smokers — and others who end up dying early — are actually essential to the well being of Social Security and Medicare, which as a result of shorter life spans save money by paying fewer benefits.

Smoking is a symptom, not the disease. We need to reflect on our fast-paced, multi-tasking society that demands so much from all of us. The vast majority of employees are paid as little as possible, and are expected to produce more in less time.

Now, according to a significant percentage of respondents, we all have to be perfect to even deserve a job.

No wonder so many of us bite our nails, need to take sleeping pills or light up and inhale.

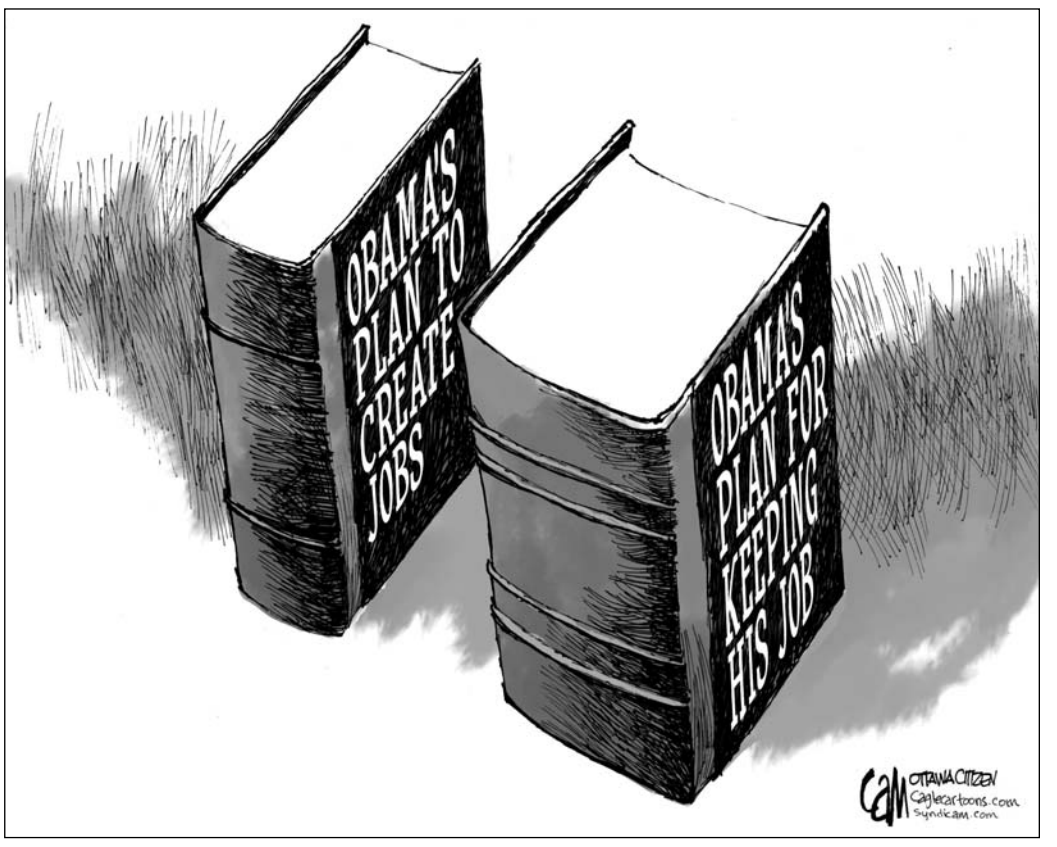
Why the rush to pass the American Jobs Act?

Guest Column

Susan Stamper Brown



As the Democratic National Committee (DNC) launches an ad campaign in battleground states to promote rapid passage of President Barack Obama's "American Jobs Act," I cannot help but to ask, "Why the rush, Mr. President?"

While proposed payroll tax cuts would be useful to hard-working coupon-clipping Americans, common sense suggests that something is wrong, if, during a Joint Session of Congress, the president demands 14 different times to "pass this bill now."

My father taught me well; high-pressure sales pitches never end well for the consumer. Another wise father, Lord Chesterfield, also taught his child well in 1749, when he said, "Whoever is in a hurry shows that the thing he is about to do is too big for him."

Considering the abject failure of the administration's previous mammoth-sized stimulus "jobs" bill, why would anyone with common sense consider a similar bill, about half the size, could create jobs? In what can only be perceived as a slick Chicago-style political maneuver, the administration is attempting to divert attention away from past failures and place the responsibility of excessive debt and unemployment in Congress' corner.

Americans should think twice before hopping on the Democrats' bandwagon bound for bankruptcy, and instead urge elected representatives to pass a bill to disable regulations that are strangling business owners and entrepreneurs. Much like the "jobs saved or created" in the previous stimulus bill, the American Jobs Act, will only put a bandage over the gushing artery that is our economy; a frightfully expensive gimmick to drive down unemployment numbers temporarily, and thereby bolstering Obama's re-election chances in 2012.

America learned the costly lesson of jumping headlong into a cement pond before checking first to see if it had water. Taxpayers (and future taxpayers) have not yet recovered from injuries suffered from the last Stimulus bill which was supposed to settle unemployment at or below 8 percent. And, only heaven knows the economic ramifications of Obamacare.

The original Stimulus bill has proven to be a "gift that keeps on taking." The Congressional Budget Office's (CBO) August 24, 2011, Annual Summer Update, reported that the unemployment rate "will remain above 8 percent until 2014."

Nearly $800 billion was "invested" chasing shiny objects to no avail. A prime example is the recipient of a $535 million U.S. Treasury loan guarantee who just went belly up — sending upwards of 1100 workers to the unemployment lines and leaving taxpayers with the tab. The solar panel company, Solyndra, was the third U.S. solar company to go bankrupt in recent weeks due to apparent subsidized competition from China.

Back in 2010, Obama stood in Solyndra's plant avowing the "future is here." If it is, the future looks a bit dismal. And, once again, we are expected to trust the president's judgment and blindly march to cliff's edge as mindless lemmings.

It may be a better time to slow down to consider the danger of haste and the value of deliberateness. And, maybe pause to pray — before we plunge.

A toothless watchdog

Editor:

It looks like Arts and Culture is still trying to get 17 percent of the money collected by the tourist tax. The plan now in effect states TDC will: Promote and advertise Arts and Culture events, which have one of their main purposes to attract tourists.

In other words, TDC says, you must have a two-day event, that will put heads in beds. Request money to go towards the event and if approved, they will give you $10 for every hotel/motel stay you can prove you were the cause of, up to the amount of dollars that was approved. That is called TDC sponsorships and there is $60,000 in the budget for that use. To my knowledge, you haven't been doing that and you haven't been getting any money.

Why I said the "plan now in effect" is because the tourist tax ordinance states section 8-222 that the plan, where the 17 percent requirement for A&C is, can be changed at any time with a 4-1 affirmative vote by the county commission. And if you notice TDC just attempted that, which would have done away with A&C's 17 percent. But two commissioners said they would not vote for the change unless there was a sunset included and the attempt failed.

The TDC plan has been in force for nine years and has not been followed. Now the TDC tells you they see the light and will start following the plan to the T, without any changes to the ordinance.

Were you told how they intend to raise administration costs from the 29 percent promised to the 42 percent they say they now need, let's see, that is a 13 percent increase? Or why they don't want any restrictions, like summer tourists, Arts and Culture, local events and say, just give us 51 percent of the tax money and we will bring tourists to Highlands County, trust us.

Mr. Fitch, I agree with you 100 percent but without a sunset in the ordinance somewhere, your watchdog ain't got no teeth. It is a tax forever, why should they worry about you. You can't fire them, only the voters can and a sunset every 10 years would solve that problem. But as of now, our county attorney says we must repeal the ordinance before we can put the teeth in it. Is that a true statement? We will see.

Setting up for civil disorder

Editor:

The buying of the Hispanic vote [is] a very dangerous practice by the American politicians to remain in power.

The rewarding of illegal workers who entered the United States illegally is an insult to all Americans. It violates the Constitution's many amendments.

The right to bear arms is being put in a bad light by the selling of arms to the Mexican Drug Cartel by the incumbent politicians to build up the coffers to be re-elected. The huge amount of money it takes to remain in power is a very good reason that the way Americans elect the public officials must change. How much drug money is involved in our elections? Both political parties are so corrupt that it could very well destroy our nation.

If we don't adopt "term limits," as we should have in the 22nd amendment for local, state and federal governments, then we are setting up for civil disorders as the rest of the world is experiencing.

The destruction of the middle class worldwide is the best way I know to destroy the rule of law worldwide – where no one is safe.

The violation of laws to remain in political power is in violation of laws against all mankind. It will not be tolerated.

Term limits please.

Thousands of public officials, local, state and federal, have gamed the system, corrupting the entire political system.

Are you one of those corrupt politicians?

Wait should not be elevated

Editor:

A quick comment on a the story published Sunday, Sept. 11, titled "Two AP streets to get turning lanes" by Ed Baldridge. One quote in the story: "These are much needed projects and will elevate some of the wait at these two intersections. The improvements are part of the plan to lessen the traffic overflow from both intersections. This will also increase the safety of these two busy intersections," Deleon said.

I question the use of the word "elevate". Why would adding a turn lane "elevate" (increase?) the wait time, and why would Deleon brag of such a result? Maybe next time a project will be funded that will alleviate the wait time faced by motorists.

Thanks given for the flag wave

Editor:

I would like to thank the Patriots of the Highlands Tea Party, their families, the Grass Root Grannies and the Highlands Voters League, who came out and participated in our flag wave Sunday morning in honor of those people who lost their lives on this terribly tragic day, 10 years ago today 09/11/2001.

We presented a flag that was in the center median of U.S. 27 and Sebring Parkway for all to see [and] know as "The Flag of Honor," which had the red, white and blue stripes made up from the the names of all the victims of 9/11.

I also want to extend a heartfelt thanks to one of the local businesses that was kind enough to send out a case of cold bottled water for the participants. Name with held because of company policy.

DAVID OLDHAM

David Oldham, 47, of 308 E. Florida St., Evansville, Ind., died of heart failure on Thursday, Sept. 8, 2011.

David's unique perspective, his warmth, and his many endearing eccentricities will leave an unmistakable gap - one felt literally halfway around the world by those who knew him. David glided through the worst of times with an enviable Zen of contentment, seeming to revel in the amusing details of the world when the big picture wasn't to his liking. He moved at his own pace, spoke in his own way, and left too suddenly.

David graduated from Harrison High School in 1982, where he won several regional and state awards in film making, spurring him to seek a degree in the field from Southern Illinois University in 1986. In adult life he continued to exercise his talents in many areas, from painting to graphic design and sculpture. Recently, David had begun studying and molding glass objects. He was a lifelong learner, a ravenous reader, and a questionable cook.

David will be missed deeply as a loving son, a devoted brother and a loyal friend. Surviving are his mother, Alice Oldham of Sebring, Fla.; his father, John Oldham and wife Connie of Newburgh; his brother, Bill Oldham of Bowling Green; sister-in-law Linda; and nieces Abby and Alex. David was engaged to be married to Tania Wilke of Dunedin, New Zealand.

Visitation will be at Ziemer Funeral Home's East Chapel, 800 S. Hebron Ave., Evansville, Ind. 47714, on Monday, Sept. 12, 2011 from 3-6 p.m., with the funeral service beginning at 6 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to the American Heart Association, 6100 W. 96th St., Ste. 200, Indianapolis, IN 46278-6005 and the Vanderburgh Humane Society, 400 Millner Industrial Drive, Evansville, IN 47710

County policy sets reserve fund level at two months

By ED BALDRIDGE
ed.baldridge@newssun.com

SEBRING — Commissioners on Tuesday directed county staff to enact policy to put hard limits on the county's contingency fund.

According to Tim Mechlin, director from the Office of Budget and Management, in 2009, the Governmental Accounting Standards Board issued statement No. 54 Fund Balance Reporting and Governmental Fund Type Definitions which suggested that county governments set a policy to keep two months of reserves.

Another objective of the statement, Mechlin said, was to clarify terms like non-spendable, restricted, committed, assigned and unassigned amounts.

The new policy sets the minimum in unrestricted funds to two months operating cash, which is enough to cover the expenses, barring any emergency, of the entire county budget for those two months.

The county has just under $13 million in its contingency fund, according to statements made at previous budget hearings.

The policy also allows the county to keep enough liquid assets in place to overcome the uneven cash flow that happens with tax collection.

Commission Chairwoman Barbara Stewart had insisted on a three-month balance for the rainy day funds during budget workshops, and wanted that amount to remain the goal.

"The county's goal is three months, that's what the county's outside auditor recommended, especially in these hard economic times," Stewart said.

"The policy states what happens if we cannot make that goal of three months, we will have two months or work to get up to two months," Stewart explained.

A part of the new policy stipulated that if the balance in the account fell below two months, the county would "develop a strategy" to work towards replacing those funds immediately.

Commissioner Don Elwell asked for stronger language be asserted and the "develop a strategy" language be dropped leaving just "the County shall return to a level of adequate fund balance."

County staff promised to reword the policy to make allowances for the commissioner's request and bring the policy back on the next consent agenda.

in her letter, but extended her resignation until Sept. 20.

"I will agree to stay on until after the budget is approved on the 19th, but that's it," Brantley-Davis said.

"She will be missed, but I understand. She has a lot on her plate. Of course we will miss her, she was a crucial member of this council. I think this is one of the better councils we have had and she was a very important member," Holbrook said.

According to Holbrook, Brantley-Davis was about two years into her four-year term, but that her seat could be on a referendum this year with Councilmen Steve Bastardi and Ray Royce, whose seats are up for re-election.

"We would like for her to stay until April, if she can, that way we can just put her seat on the ballot with the others. But if we need to, we can request applications and then seek someone to fill her seat," Holbrook said.

Other council members and town wished Brantley-Davis well.

"She will still be quite a community leader as we move forward," said Royce. "She will certainly be missed. She has a straightforward way of asking the right questions at the right time, and she will be missed."

"She was a very good council member," said Arlene Tuck, town clerk. "She was very quiet, but always thinking. She was very sincere and served the town well. I appreciated working with her."

Deleon contract approved by council

receive a payout of 85 percent of up to 700 hours of accrued vacation time, and 65 percent of up to 600 hours of accrued sick time.

Only two questions were raised, both by council member Parke Sutherland. One had to do with the issue of the payout percentages, and the other was about the timing of Deleon's move into the city.

The council was told the payout parameters were a typical provision.

Deleon pointed out his position depended entirely on the council, that he was taking something of a risk.

Should Deleon be terminated, the city is under no obligation to pay severance or provide group health insurance. The contract lists eight causes that could lead to termination including violation of the city's drug policy, refusal to cooperate in a legal investigation, conviction of felony criminal charges, or misdemeanor charges related to city business, insubordination, dishonesty, or willful violation of the city's charter or ordinances.

Regarding Deleon's residency, a city ordinance, since amended, mandated department heads live in Avon Park within six months of employment. The city charter, while mandating residence, sets out no deadlines.

City attorney Gerald Buhr told the council the charter trumps all and that given current economic conditions, giving Deleon, who lives in Lake Placid, two years to sell one house and buy another was a "reasonable amount of time."

Mayor Sharon Schuler complimented Deleon "for issues in this contract where you have taken less. Therefore I don't have a problem (with approving the contract)."

Deputy Mayor Brenda Gray was not at the meeting. All present members voted approval.

Buddy's Buddies saving animals mission that grew into Hamilton's 501(c)3 charity, Buddy's Buddies.

It's not a shelter, but a communications network.

Animal Control officers alert her to unusual dogs. "I know animal control (officers) see hundreds of dogs. When someone stops toe-mail me about a special dog, I should pay attention," Hamilton said.

She relies on foster families to take the dogs in while she finds them new homes.

Foster families attend to health issues, for which Hamilton pays the bills, and socialize the pet through the transition.

Hamilton doesn't wait to be contacted. She surfs the Internet for "sub-standard" dogs to save. In addition to a Web site, she posts fliers describing wonderful dogs in need of a home — in veterinarian offices, pet stores, grocery stores, and community bulletin boards.

"Anywhere they'll let me," she said.

She frequently takes part in adoption events. She has accepted dogs from out of county and found homes all over the state.

Right now she has 20 dogs up for adoption. For more information, to volunteer a foster home, or to adopt a dog call Jill Hamilton at 257-4228.

Highlands shines at Bartow Invite

By DAN HOEHNE

Highlands County volleyball made quite an impression in this past weekends annual Bartow Invitational.

A perennially tough tournament, this year's edition featured 16 teams ranging from Class 1A all the way to 8A.

Though size didn't seem to matter too much to the local representatives on hand as Avon Park took second in its pool play, while Sebring and Lake Placid won their respective pools.

The Lady Red Devils route to their finish, while daunting, showed their continued progress with wins over Lake Gibson and Haines City.

Considering the class size, that was 4A Avon Park topping 6A Lake Gibson and 7A Haines City, before finally falling to eventual tournament champion, Class 8A Vero Beach.

'We were fired up. We played better than we ever have against them.'

"I was surprised to see they did so well, considering the pool they were in," Lake Placid head coach Linette Wells said of her teams' county as well as district rival. "That was impressive."

The Lady Blue Streaks made their march Saturday with three-game sweeps of both Frostproof and Victory Christian to put themselves into the Final Four, where they would meet up with, of course, Lake Placid.

Wins Friday over Hardee, All Saints and the host, Class 7A Bartow, which features two Division I recruits.

"Their coach knows a lot of the Lake Placid girls from club and told the team, if they don't come to play, they'd get beat," Sebring head coach Vanessa Sinness said. "There's a fine line between confidence and cocky. They came in with the wrong one and Lake Placid took it to them."

Which set up yet another classic match-up with the Streaks in the Final Four.

And much like their titanic battle just nine days earlier, Sebring took the first two sets with the Dragons storming back to take the next two.

Just like that prior match, as well, the Streaks had a lead in the rubber match, only to see Lake Placid come roaring back again.

But unlike Sebring's narrow win on Sept. 1, the Dragons were the ones to get the final point and the victo-

Some teams like to ease into their seasons, much like when you see an Ohio State square off against the University of Akron on the opening weekend of college football.

Not so the Sebring cross country team, as the Streaks headed to Winter Park to test their mettle in a loaded field in the Trinity Prep Invitational Saturday.

The starting line on the girls side saw 118 runners toeing the line, readying to take on the course.

"It was a challenging, three-loop course with many sharp turns, loose gravel and some soft ground from rain the night before," head coach Krista Schult said.

But when the course was completed, the Lady Streaks had placed fifth out of the 15 scoring teams, edging out the First Academy of Orlando.

'I was impressed by our team placement.'

KRISTA SCHULT
Lady Streaks head coach

The finishes that saw Sebring place so well were provided by Taylor Tubbs, 14th in 21:18, Hannah Schroeder, 15th in 21:21, Emily Smith, 43rd in 23:58, Laura Eshelman, 71st in 26:08 and Ashley White, 74th in 26:14.

"I was impressed by our team placement," Schult said. "We are going to work hard on closing the time gap between our first and fifth runners. That will give us the best chance at advancing past districts."

On the boys side, another very competitive field featured 16 schools represented, with the Blue Streaks placing ninth.

Evan Wilburn came in an impressive 16th out of the more than 100 runners, finishing in 18:07.

Damian Foster was next, 47th in 19:24, Wesley Koning was 64th in 20:24, Grey Lawrence was 67th in 20:27 and Elias Salgado was 71st in 21:15.

With it being the first true competition of the season, it might be hard to determine progress, but head coach Matthew Schult knew what he was looking for.

"After comparing results to this time last year, the guys who have returned are running significantly better," he said. "And there are quite a few freshmen that are already showing they can be competitive at the varsity level."

Fresh off the strong showing, Sebring will host the Blue Streak Invitational, a 10-team meet, at SFCC Friday at 5:30 p.m.

Colts' fans need a reason to believe

Turns out all those sirens going off in Indy last week weren't false alarms.

And those jokes about Peyton Manning being named the league's Most Valuable Player a fifth time without setting a foot on the field this season?

Not so funny anymore.

The downside to having the NFL's longest-running one-man act is what happens when that man can't go.

Never mind how many injuries the Colts quarterback avoided or overcame to string together his league-best consecutive-game streak (227, including postseason).

He turned 35 in March, an age when even the greatest athletes are cresting the hill and their teams have started laying the groundwork for a successor (more on that later).

Not the Colts. Instead, Indy gave Manning the biggest contract in NFL history.

Even after it became apparent the Colts' Iron Man was going to be in the shop for a while, owner Jim Irsay seemed to think he would find Manning's replacement on Twitter.

First there was Irsay's mischievous tweet about hunting for a possible replacement down around Hattiesburg, Miss., the environs of never-quite-retired Brett Favre.

Soon after came an

Hurricanes changing sideline access rules

CORAL GABLES — Boosters will no longer be permitted on the Miami sideline during home football games, a change that comes after a former donor who had field access at times sparked an NCAA investigation by claiming he provided 72 players and Hurricane recruits extra benefits over an eight-year span.

The moves go into effect starting with Saturday's home opener against No. 17 Ohio State.

The Associated Press obtained a copy of the updated policy Monday.

Some of the changes are sweeping, including a policy that anyone without a game-day operations purpose — even administrators, trustees and deans — will no longer be able to receive field-access passes.

Some university employees will be permitted to escort guests such as donors and potential donors onto the field during pregame warmups, but they must stay in a designated area on the visiting sideline and leave shortly before kickoff.

The former booster, convicted Ponzi scheme architect Nevin Shapiro, was one of many donors who had sideline access in recent years. Television cameras even captured Shapiro, in a Miami jersey, standing on the field near the team's tunnel as it emerged onto the field for a game at the now-demolished Orange Bowl.

Shapiro ran into an end zone as well that night, having to be quickly ushered back to the sideline by a security guard.

A scene like that shouldn't happen under Miami's tighter policy.

Recruits and their guests,

BURNING ISSUES

▶ The final regular-season race was eventful, but some of the events were unexpected.

Stewart

▶ Drivers Tony Stewart and Kurt Busch clashed verbally with writers. Stewart's was captured on live national TV by ESPN.

▶ The 12 drivers who entered the race in position to make the Chase for the Sprint Cup remained there, but it was interesting watching Dale Earnhardt Jr. work his way back into the fray after an early crash.

▶ Kurt Busch's irritation was laughable. He vehemently denied saying what he had said on ... live national television.

▶ Cooler heads did prevail, however. "Snooki" didn't wind up waving the green flag, after all. That honor was handed over (literally) to the brother of a 9/11 fallen hero.

▶ The night was surreal, but the pistachios were wonderful. (It was the Wonderful Pistachios 400.) In fact, the night was nuts.

Bowyer

▶ By all accounts, including the principals, Clint Bowyer is likely to leave Richard Childress Racing at season's end.

▶ David Ragan, who needed another victory to make the Chase, gave it the old Saturday-night try.

▶ For the first time — the Chase format was implemented in 2004 — New Hampshire isn't where it starts. The Loudon track gets the second race, a week after Chicagoland Speedway opens it.

▶ Carl Edwards almost won the Wonderful Pistachios 400 and probably would have had he pitted when everyone else did at lap 310.

Harvick

▶ Who's hot: Kevin Harvick roared to life late in the regular season and won the final race. ... Jeff Gordon continues to stake his claim as the strongest obstacle in Jimmie Johnson's path to a sixth straight title.

Edwards

▶ Who's not: Dale Earnhardt Jr. is safely in the Chase, but he isn't entering at the form it will take to win the championship. ... For Carl Edwards, Richmond was yet another one that slipped away.

DALE EARNHARDT JR. SPRINT CUP SERIES No. 88 AMP ENERGY CHEVROLET

Photos by John Clark/ NASCAR This Week

Dale Earnhardt Jr. raced to his fourth Chase appearance after a 16th-place finish at Richmond. The Hendrick driver, who recently got a contract extension that will keep him with the team through 2017, says he's going to have a good attitude about the Chase. Vegas oddsmakers have him at a 40-1 shot to take a Cup title.

Junior Proud To Be In The Chase

Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s 2011 path to the Chase was one of ups and downs

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

RICHMOND, Va. — The Chase is here ... and Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s back in it.

It wasn't easy. He didn't win a race. The season has had its ups and downs. His No. 88 Chevy staggered through the final regular-season races. But he made it. Ten drivers make it by Sprint Cup points standings, and Earnhardt Jr. was the 10th.

He's got his shot. He has 2,000 points. Kyle Busch and Kevin Harvick have only 12 more. Over 10 races, those 12 points don't amount to very much. If Earnhardt can get his team back in gear, he can win the championship.

Las Vegas oddsmakers have made Earnhardt a 40-1 shot. The winner of the past five, Jimmie Johnson, is 3-1.

"We'll just go see how we can do in the Chase," said Earnhardt after scrambling to finish 16th in the Wonderful Pistachios 400.

"I'm proud to be in the Chase," he added. "I feel like I'm a good-enough driver to be in the Chase. My team is good enough to be there. ... Had we been more conscious and smarter at certain times, we wouldn't have had to even worry about it this weekend.

"But we're a good team, and I'm proud to carry my sponsors and HMS (Hendrick Motorsports) in the Chase and represent them. We're going to work real hard, and hopefully we do a good job."

This is Earnhardt's fourth appearance in the Chase, which began in 2004. He finished fifth that year and also in 2006. He brought up the rear, finishing 12th in 2008.

"We've got to run a different setup than what we ran in the last six (regular-season) races, frankly," Earnhardt conceded. "We had a pretty good run at it going through the first 15 races, and for whatever reason, we sort of fell off and forgot some things, or over-engineered something.

"We'll go in there with a good attitude."

Earnhardt recently signed a contract extension that will keep him with Hendrick Motorsports through 2017.

"I'm in the Chase, and I've got an opportunity to run for the championship," he said. "I've got an opportunity to compete and improve my points position and improve the overall payout."

"You've basically got to hold it together the last 10 races and don't do anything stupid and settle some scores. ... I'm pretty proud of what we've been able to do all year."

FEUD OF THE WEEK

Johnson

VERSUS

Kurt Busch

JIMMIE JOHNSON VS. KURT BUSCH

The timeline of their squabble is extensive and goes back across several seasons. Both drivers entered Richmond safely in the Chase. Johnson admitted to "dumping Busch" and said the timing was right to do so. Busch became agitated afterward, not at Johnson but at a couple of writers.

NASCAR This Week's Monte Dutton gives his take: "Rubbing is racing. Wrecking isn't. To quote the late Waylon Jennings, 'Don't y'all think this outlaw business done got out of hand?'"

Bowyer's Fault Or What?

This Week welcomes letters to the editor, but please be aware that we have room for only a few each week. We'll do our best to select the best, but individual replies are impossible due to the bulk of mail received. Please do not send stamped and self-addressed envelopes with your letters, which should be addressed to: NASCAR This Week, The Gaston Gazette, P.O. Box 1538, Gastonia, N.C. 28053.

Dear NASCAR This Week,

I watched the race at Richmond Saturday night, and for the most part, it was a pretty good race. My question is, where was Clint (Bowyer's) mind and just what the heck was he thinking? He hurt a lot of good race cars, and we will never know just how good they could of been. What happened to the spotter telling Clint, hey you need to hold the brake, half the field is coming? There were a lot of good race cars that got tore up over somebody not doing their job.

I think for the most part, Clint is a clean driver, but not Saturday night. Oh, by the way, Junior Nation, we are in the Chase!

Ginger Striker

Sometimes drivers, not to mention spotters, make mistakes. It's not always an example of thinking. Sometimes it's an example of not thinking. But driving a stock car is very difficult, even for the best.

Tony's TV tussle not one of his finer moments

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

RICHMOND, Va. — Television has carte blanche. It can do what it wants.

ESPN cut in on the so-called garage-area media availability of Tony Stewart at the Richmond track on Friday, and it caught Stewart basically berating Associated Press motorsports writer Jenna Fryer live. Stewart also turned in the opposite direction after going off on one of his garden-variety diatribes involving his educated evaluation of journalism and what constitutes a good question. As soon as Stewart finished cuffing Fryer around, he quickly went the other way and lavishly praised ESPN's Marty Smith, who asked the next question. It couldn't possibly have been planned, but from King Television's point of view, it certainly was convenient. Stewart took issue at being asked about the race at Richmond, suggesting that Fryer should take what he said "before the last seven races."

Sorry, Tony, but asking a question about the race at the track where the interview is taking place is acceptable. It's hard for even Stewart to believe that all races are the same.

Sorrowful but inevitable — It seems Clint Bowyer's departure from Richard Childress Racing is drawing nigh.

"You know, we've tried and we've really worked really hard to put the deal together to keep Clint," said Childress on Sirius XM satellite radio. "It's not 100 percent off the table, but it's getting tougher and tougher as the day goes by. Clint's got a couple of really good opportunities there facing him.

"Clint's still a good friend. I want the best for him."

Bowyer called it "heartbreaking, a tough deal."

"But," he said, "the world goes on. You have to make decisions, and these are performance-driven, business-driven ... (There are) just a lot of decisions you go through and everybody goes through those in life. Racers are no different."

What goes around — Earlier this year, Kevin Harvick chided Kyle Busch about being a poor businessman, specifically referring to Busch's Truck team. Now Harvick is folding his Nationwide team into RCR and shuttering his Truck team. Busch, in fact, wants to keep his Truck operation going.

"For me, it's the joy of being able to get out there on the track and race," he said. "I love racing in everything I can get in, and I pretty much show that every year that I've been able to have a ride in trucks and Nationwide and Cup.

"I do it, and I do it because I love it."

Winning all the time doesn't hurt, but Busch conceded, "Certainly there's an abundance of headaches. I'll tell you that, man."

ry.

"We were fired up," Wells said. "We played better than we ever have against them."

Sinness agreed.

"They just turned it on," she said. "And we didn't have an answer. We couldn't finish, and after that we were mentally done."

The epic contest did knock the Streaks back, took the wind out of their sails as they settled for fourth place overall after falling to McKeel Academy in their next match.

Lake Placid would go on to take second in the tournament overall, falling to Vero Beach, the clear-cut top team in the field.

"Oh, they were just unbelievable," Sinness said. "I don't know of any other team there that would have stood a chance against them."

The weekend complete, it was back to the regular season and Sebring got back on track Monday night with a three-game sweep at Frostproof, winning handily by 25-14, 25-11 and 25-11 scores.

"It was a nice bounce back for us," Sinness said. "The seniors really stepped up, especially Kaley (Walter), Dino (Lower) and Stephanie (Struck). I was real happy with the effort and it makes life better for us with the seniors playing well."

Avon Park was back at it Tuesday night, facing new district foe DeSoto at home before hosting Sebring Thursday.

Lake Placid is back in action Thursday at Mulberry.

Colts quarterback quandary

even more unnerving tweet, this time about Manning's actual replacement — Kerry Collins.

Despite Collins' performance Sunday in the humbling 34-7 loss at Houston, there's no need to pile on.

He fumbled back-to-back snaps early in the game, but that only hinted at the deluge of failures sure to follow.

Center Jeff Saturday was the lone starter from last season's offensive line playing the same spot; so when he and Collins couldn't even get the snap right, smart Colts fans could have turned off the TV and anticipated exactly how coach Jim Caldwell would react afterward.

He didn't disappoint.

"It's a marathon, not a sprint," Caldwell said.

Considering the way the Colts were put together — of Manning, by Manning and uniquely for Manning — you have to wonder whether he was looking at the right roster.

The running game in Indianapolis long has been an afterthought.

The defense has always been undersized and built around pass-rushing specialists, the better to take advantage of opposing quarterbacks trying to climb out of the holes Manning's quick-strike offense dumped them into.

Caldwell's words aside, things likely will get worse before they get better.

Colts fans thought they had a sneak peek of the future when it was revealed team president Bill Polian made a trip to the Stanford-Duke game to scout can't-miss Cardinal quarterback Andrew Luck.

Not so fast.

First, Polian's son, Brian, is an assistant at Stanford and the family home is in nearby Charlotte, so who knows how much of the trip was business and how much leisure.

Second, Polian is a forward-thinker when it comes to finding franchise quarterbacks.

As first noted by Sports Illustrated's Peter King, Polian's first moves after taking over as general manager in Buffalo, Carolina and Indianapolis were to hire Jim Kelly from the now-defunct USFL, draft Collins from Penn State (when he could still play) and use his No. 1 pick on Manning.

Either way, by the time the draft rolls around, another quarterback — say USC's Matt Barkley — might shine just as bright, assuming the Colts finish the season as bad as they started it.

But let's focus on now.

The most urgent question might be why not take a flyer on recently released Jacksonville QB David Garrard?

His availability appears to have less to do with declining skills than the Jaguars' tight-fisted ownership, and he's only bigger, stronger, younger and better than Collins.

And he wouldn't be that far behind on learning the Colts' playbook — at least on the admittedly limited evidence of one bad game.

We have no idea whether Garrard, or any other quarterback, is on Irsay's radar screen at the moment.

According to his latest tweets, Colts fans can expect "shocking, dramatic, inspiring, unimaginable things happening in Coltsland the next 18 months."

"Buckle up, stay faithful, BELIEVE," he added in another tweet.

Nice words. But isn't believing too much exactly what got the Colts in this trouble?

Former Florida State football coach Bobby Bowden says in an interview with USA Today that he was treated for prostate cancer in early 2007.

In an interview published in Tuesday's edition, Bowden says he kept the details hidden from everyone except family members for the past four years.

Bobby Bowden

Bowden was treated by one of his former players who was captain of the coach's first team at FSU in 1976.

Dr. Joe Camps, a urologist and surgical oncologist, implanted low-dose radiation seeds in Bowden's prostate, a procedure known as brachytherapy.

The longtime Seminoles coach says he is now cancer free.

The 81-year-old says that if he knew at the time what he knows now, he would have considered it "my moral duty to bring it out in the open."

Miami making changes usually parents, will still be allowed on the field before games, though they will also need to be accompanied by an authorized university employee and must leave the field 22 minutes before kickoff.

In certain situations, former Miami football players will be credentialed to have access on the Hurricanes' side of the field, but would not be allowed in the team's bench area.

The university said that president Donna Shalala and athletic director Shawn Eichorst would both have to approve any exceptions to the new policy.

A number of NFL teams, including the Miami Dolphins — who play in the same stadium where the Hurricanes are a tenant — allow fans and some invited guest field-level views of games.

Hundreds were on the Dolphins' side of the field for their opener against New England on Monday night, but were behind a temporary wall and positioned well away from Miami players and staff.

PEOPLE DON'T CARE HOW MUCH YOU KNOW. UNTIL THEY KNOW HOW MUCH WE CARE.
Use it, or LOSE it!
- Communication occurs in the brain.
- When we lose our ability to hear, the ear stops sending needed information to the brain, effecting the ability to understand what is being said.
- "Auditory Deprivation", can impair the way the brain processes sound.
- The solution is hearing aids; sending the correct information to the brain, protecting it from atrophy.

The Scope of Oriental Medicine
Oriental medicine includes acupuncture, Chinese herbology, dietary therapy, exercise and bodywork based on traditional Oriental medicine principles.
This system of health care is used extensively by one-quarter of the world's population residing in Asia, and is rapidly growing in popularity in the West.
Oriental medicine is based on an energetic model rather than the biochemical model of Western medicine.
Acupuncture
Acupuncture is the 5000 year old Chinese system of natural healing. Fine sterile needles are inserted into specific points of the body to restore a balanced flow of energy.
Through acupuncture, Qi (energy) is allowed to move freely throughout the body, reestablishing balance. This balance helps the body achieve higher levels of health and well-being.
Chinese Herbs
For as long as people and plants have coexisted, herbal medicine has been around in some shape or form. It has been found to very helpful in treating conditions such as allergies, ADD and ADHD, menopausal syndrome, chronic pain and many, many other ailments.

It was directed by Steven Soderbergh and stars an A-list cast that includes Matt Damon, Kate Winslet, Jude Law and Gwyneth Paltrow.

SpongeBob SquarePants in hot water from study of 4-year-olds

By LINDSEY TANNER
AP Medical Writer

CHICAGO — The cartoon character SpongeBob SquarePants is in hot water from a study suggesting that watching just nine minutes of that program can cause short-term attention and learning problems in 4-year-olds.

The problems were seen in a study of 60 children randomly assigned to either watch "SpongeBob," or the slower-paced PBS cartoon "Caillou" or assigned to draw pictures. Immediately after these nine-minute assignments, the kids took mental function tests; those who had watched "SpongeBob" did measurably worse than the others.

Previous research has linked TV-watching with long-term attention problems in children, but the new study suggests more immediate problems can occur after very little exposure — results that parents of young kids should be alert to, the study authors said.

Kids' cartoon shows typically feature about 22 minutes of action, so watching a full program "could be more detrimental," the researchers speculated, But they said more evidence is needed to confirm that.

The results should be interpreted cautiously because of the study's small size, but the data seem robust and bolster the idea that media exposure is a public health issue, said Dr. Dimitri Christakis. He is a child development specialist at Seattle Children's Hospital who wrote an editorial accompanying the study published online Monday in the journal Pediatrics.

Christakis said parents need to realize that fast-paced programming may not be appropriate for very young children. "What kids watch matters, it's not just how much they watch," he said.

University of Virginia psychology professor Angeline Lillard, the lead author, said she found similar problems in kids who watched other fast-paced cartoon programming.

She said parents should realize that young children are compromised in their ability to learn and use self-control immediately after watching such shows. "I wouldn't advise watching such shows on the way to school or any time they're expected to pay attention and learn," she said.

Nickelodeon spokesman David Bittler disputed the findings and said "SpongeBob SquarePants" is aimed at kids aged 6-11, not 4-year-olds.

"Having 60 non-diverse kids, who are not part of the show's targeted (audience), watch nine minutes of programming is questionable methodology and could not possibly provide the basis for any valid findings that parents could trust," he said.

Lillard said 4-year-olds were chosen because that age "is the heart of the period during which you see the most development" in certain self-control abilities. Whether children of other ages would be similarly affected can't be determined from this study

Most kids were white and from middle-class or wealthy families. They were given common mental function tests after watching cartoons or drawing. The SpongeBob kids scored on average 12 points lower.

Nautilus home receives Yard of the Month

Special to the News-Sun

AVON PARK — September marks the start of a new year for the garden clubs in Avon Park. It also marks the selection of yards to be presented with the Yard of the Month Award.

David and Ellie Reams, 2746 Nautilus Drive, were presented with the September award after a phone call recommending the yard was received by the Avon Park Founders Garden Club.

The yard is a large one and has many different types of plants. Of special interest is a yellow jacaranda tree that has been trained to have one large trunk lying parallel with the ground. At first glance one would think this tree was an oak because of its growth pattern. Other trees in the yard include a butia palm, queen palms, Norfolk Island pine, yellow and pink tabebuia, bottle brush, poinciana, golden dew drop and a variety of citrus. Among the many flowering plants are knockout roses, different colors of hibiscus, moss rose, gerber daisy, clerodendrum, plumbago, azalea, several colors of day lily and red mandevilla.

Lining the driveway is a hedge of Mexican petunia bordered with black-eyed susan. There are also split leaf philodendron and caladium plants.

A "greenhouse" houses a variety of orchids. A wagon that had been used by their children is now used to raise lettuce, and several banana trees bear an abundance of fruit. Hot pepper plants are intermingled with the flowering plants.

Many of the plants have been obtained by trading cuttings with other plant growers, while others have been started from seed. Ellie also recommends "dead heading" plants to encourage more blossoms.

This yard is an ambitious undertaking and is not a yard for everyone. It requires a lot of maintenance, in which the whole family, including grandchildren, takes part. But the outcome gives a feeling of satisfaction.

If you know of a yard deserving of the Yard of the Month Award, call 452-1927.

Kiwanis Club of Sebring donates books to Woodlawn Elementary School class

Special to the News-Sun

SEBRING – Rhonda Beckman, president of the Kiwanis Club of Sebring, presented 120 "The Consequences of Crime Law Education" books to Melissa Blackman, assistant principal at Woodlawn Elementary School.

The club donated the books to Kendra Fout's fourth-grade class. Fout uses the books and said, "If they save just one child it is worth it."

In 1977, the late Judge Clifton Kelly sentenced a 16-year-old Frank Ross to the electric chair for stomping to death a 64-year-old Avon Park woman during a robbery that netted him $6 and a cheap necklace.

In 1980, the State Supreme Court asked Kelly to reconsider, saying he put too much weight on the jury's recommendation for the death penalty. Kelly changed the sentence to life imprisonment, but included a 13-page footnote to the sentence urging the State Legislature to require that children be taught respect for the law in public schools.

From this, Kelly created three books: "The Consequences of Crime," "Train Up a Child" and "Law Education and Character Training for Children." The Kiwanis Club of Sebring obtained the publishing rights and has funded the books for Highlands County schools for more than 27 years through their Golf Classic Tournament and other fundraising activities. In addition, the Department of Juvenile Justice uses these books.

"Youth that are placed under community control are required to take the class. The feedback from students and parents is very positive," says Beckman.

Kiwanians believe that by helping with the required law education in public schools along with the many other projects the club supports, they can further the Kiwanian theme of "Changing the world, one child and one community at a time."

The Kiwanis Club of Sebring meets at noon every Wednesday at Homer's Restaurant. For more information, call Beckman at 446-1579 or Grace Plants at 273-1421.

Dale talks cowboys with the LP Rotary

Special to the News-Sun

LAKE PLACID –The Noon Rotary welcomed Nancy Dale, Pd.D., to its meeting last week. Dale is a nationally published writer, research analyst, newspaper correspondent, and certified yoga instructor, just to mention a few of her accomplishments.

Dale has been recently honored for her publication of Florida "Cow Hunters" in the Cambridge Scholars publication, Florida Studies Proceedings 2007.

She told the Rotary members of her talks with pioneers and their offspring of the "Guilded Age" as the Westby's, the Griffins (Ben Hill III) and many more. She said that many from that age settled here in Florida, like Henry Flagler, who was one of the original founders of Standard Oil and built the first railway down the east coast, and Edward Bok, who built Bok Tower on 250 acres and a 205-foot tall tower in Lake Wales in 1924.

She also spoke of the legacy of those pioneers in Florida and is very concerned at how we can preserve the lands and legacy of these pioneers, who drove cattle to market to feed the bread basket of our young nation. This was a very rough and tough life for the cowboys of that age.

Tropical Harbor Estates

By Arlene Clouston

LAKE PLACID — A commemorative lunch and program was held in our clubhouse Saturday. A special committee was formed to put on the luncheon. Father Michael Cannon said the grace. Jim Witten led the program after the luncheon. Barbara Kelleher enumerates on the life of Wilford J. Noel Jr.

"Tropical Harbor is a community that reaches out to one another and that was evident Saturday, Sept. 3 when we attended a Christian funeral service at St. James Catholic Church for Wilford J. Noel Jr., who passed away Monday, Aug. 29 following his battle with cancer. We had more than 160 residents from Tropical Harbor attend the funeral service to pay their respect to the family. Many of the Noel family members traveled from as far as Michigan and Massachusetts, as well as friends from Boca Raton and Highlands County. We also had nurses who knew him when he was hospitalized attend the service. He was never a stranger to anyone he met. He and Carol inspired people in Tropical Harbor by getting involved with programs that people can help and enjoy at the same time. As a former service man himself, he became the coordinator for the Military Committee in Tropical Harbor. The group made homemade soup and sandwiches, which are held every third Sunday of the month. The attendance kept climbing as the residents came. The entrance fee went towards purchasing special treats and personal items that our service men or women could not or were unable to obtain.

Over the past four years, the support from the residents enabled the Military Committee to ship 240 boxes to our troops in Afghanistan and other areas overseas. The residents enjoy the Sunday evenings to eat and socialize with one another. If we were to have a cookout for a special holiday, patriotic or otherwise, Wil would be the first one to volunteer, not only at the clubhouse but at the church as well. He loved to play cards and dominoes and people started coming just to learn the games and have fun with Wil."

The Special Committee provided a luncheon as a tribute to Wil for his wife Carol and his family. We had more than 160 in attendance by all who admired and respected him. George Susco, manager of the park in Tropical Harbor, presented Wil's widow, Carol, with a plaque that will be hung in the kitchen area of the clubhouse that is dedicated and inscribed: "The Wil Noel Memorial Kitchen." He was a man that lived his life for God, family and community of friends. We are all going to miss him.

It is Labor Day and also our first coffee for the month of September. Smiling Luetta Kiger is our emcee. The people who made coffee were Jerry and Bonnie Allen, Derek and Marysue Willeke and Rod Wilds. They treated us to doughnuts in honor of Marysue Willeke and Jerry Allen's birthday. Laurie Bailie played the piano and we sang Happy Birthday to Marysue, Jerry and Ann Rissmiller. After having read the birthdays for the week, Luetta read the anniversaries and we sang Happy Anniversary to Robert and Jean Noyes.

We were all sorry to hear that John Reece's brother passed away. Give John and Carolyn Reece your sympathy.

Marge Perry wants us to remember that the Trash and Treasure is Nov. 12, though that seems like a long way off, it will be here shortly so work on what you plan to sell.

Our friends are coming back from their travels and vacations and some are sharing their good times with us. John and Sylvia Fitch came from Michigan, Joe and Joan Shannon came back from Minnesota, George and Barbara Morse came back from New Jersey, Duane and Joy Dean came back from Jensen Beach. Joy tells they spent August in a condo's third floor on the Atlantic Ocean near Jensen Beach. They visited the nearby House of Refuge that was one of the 10 houses built along the Atlantic Shore in 1876. The keeper and his family scoured the beaches to rescue stranded sailors after storms sunk their ships. They provided much needed shelter, food and water. Hurricane Irene gave us nine to 12 feet waves to watch for a few days that kite surfers and regular surfers enjoyed using. Watching the pelicans and other shore birds were also enjoyable to watch.

Ted and Karen Glas tell us about their summer trip to the Northwest. They headed their motorhome north in mid-June with their first stop in Brunswick, Ga. Here they spent several days exploring Jekyll Island and St. Simons Island and Fort Frederica National Monument. Next they drove to Savannah-Charleston, S.C. They toured the American Tea Plantation (Bigelow), visited the Fort Sumter National Monument and climbed the lighthouse (100 steps). After moving on to North Carolina, their visits included the outer banks, Kitty Hawk and the Wright Brothers Memorial Monument and they climbed the Currituck Beach Lighthouse (219 steps).

As the Southeast was getting hotter, they quickly headed for upstate New York. They visited the other Lake Placid, drove up the White Face Mountain scenic road, which overlooked the lakes and mountains. They ventured out many days and hiked the trails overlooking the summits. Next they motored over to Vermont. Besides driving the scenic roadways with the many covered bridges, they visited Ben and Jerry's Ice Cream Factory and the Cabot Cheese Factory. They loved the free samples of both.

They moved to New Hampshire where they enjoyed several days touring the beautiful White Mountains. Next they traveled to Maine and camped there for a month. Their favorite place is still Acadia National Park, which is along the cold Atlantic Ocean. They shopped at the LL Bean Factory Store in Freeport, ate ocean scallops in Bath, took the cruise in Bar Harbor to view the lighthouse and drove up Cadillac Mountain and picked wild blueberries.

On their way back south toward Florida they stopped in Pennsylvania to visit the Gettysburg National Military Park and Soldiers National Cemetery. Of course, a visit to the Hershey Chocolate World was required. Then a short visit to St. Augustine and the lighthouse (219 steps) before they arrived back home. Ted and Karen felt that they were lucky because they left the Northeast before the bad storms struck the area.

The Ladies Coffee, Sept. 6, was led by Bonnie Allen and coffee was made by Marysue Willeke. We were sorry to hear that David and Laura Bailie's daughter, Laura Vaccarella, has had a heart attack. Please sign sheet for greeting card for her. We were glad to hear that Kathleen Margetts is now home and would like to see visitors.

Next week will be our luncheon out; don't forget to sign up on the sheets on the bulletin board. The men are going to Beef O'Brady's in Lake Placid. The women are going to the Lakeview Restaurant in Sebring. Both are held at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 20.

New book shows another side to Jackie Kennedy

Associated Press

NEW YORK — It's a side of Jacqueline Kennedy only friends and family knew. Funny and inquisitive, canny and cutting.

In "Jacqueline Kennedy: Historic Conversations on Life With John F. Kennedy," the former first lady was not yet the jet-setting celebrity of the late 1960s or the literary editor of the 1970s and 1980s. But she was also nothing like the soft-spoken fashion icon of the three previous years. She was in her mid-30s, recently widowed, but dry-eyed and determined to set down her thoughts for history.

MCT

Jackie Kennedy (right) stand next to Lyndon Johnson as he is sworn in as president following the assassination of John F. Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963.

Kennedy met with historian and former White House aide Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. in her 18th-century Washington house in the spring and early summer of 1964. At home and at ease, as if receiving a guest for afternoon tea, she chatted about her husband and their time in the White House. The young Kennedy children, Caroline and John Jr., occasionally popped in. On the accompanying audio discs, you can hear the shake of ice inside a drinking glass. The tapes were to be sealed for decades and were among the last documents of her private thoughts. She never wrote a memoir and became a legend in part because of what we didn't know.

The book comes out Wednesday as part of an ongoing celebration of the 50th anniversary of President Kennedy's first year in office. Jacqueline Kennedy died in 1994, and Schlesinger in 2007.

The world, and Jacqueline Kennedy, would change beyond imagination after 1964. But at the time of these conversations black people were still Negroes and feminists were still suspect even in the view of a woman as sophisticated as Kennedy, who a decade later would grant an interview to Gloria Steinem's Ms. magazine. In the book's foreword, Caroline Kennedy faults Schlesinger for asking so few questions about her mother.

As historian Michael Beschloss notes in the introduction, Jacqueline Kennedy once accepted that wives were defined by their husbands' careers and worried about "emotional" women entering politics. She enjoyed having her husband "proud of her," saw no reason to have a policy opinion that wasn't the same as his and laughed at the thought of "violently liberal women" who disliked JFK and preferred the more effete Adlai Stevenson.

"Jack so obviously demanded from a woman — a relationship between a man and a woman where a man would be the leader and a woman be his wife and look up to him as a man," she said. "With Adlai you could have another relationship where — you know, he'd sort of be sweet and you could talk. ... I always thought women who were scared of sex loved Adlai."

There are no spectacular revelations in the Schlesinger discussions and virtually nothing about JFK's assassination. Kennedy's health problems and his extramarital affairs were still years from public knowledge and from the knowledge of aides such as Schlesinger, who would often say he saw no "bimbos" in the White House halls. Jacqueline Kennedy speaks warmly throughout of her husband, remembering him as dynamic and perceptive and free of grudges, an assignment his wife and others took on for him.

The Kennedys had complicated relationships with those who shared their lives at the top. They valued loyalty, vision and ingenuity. They hated dullness, indecision and self-promotion, even among their own.

Art imitates life in new movie 'Dolphin Tale'

By MITCH STACY
Associated Press

CLEARWATER — The little injured dolphin they called Winter couldn't have come along at a better time for the Clearwater Marine Aquarium, a rustic sea life rescue center occupying the city's old sewage treatment plant.

The nonprofit public aquarium was about ready to go belly-up at the end of 2005 when the baby bottlenose dolphin was brought there after getting her tail tightly entangled in a crab-trap line. She lived, but her tail fluke withered away, forcing the young animal to learn how to swim with just a stump and then adapt to a revolutionary prosthetic. Winter's inspirational story of perseverance made her a global media star, quadrupled attendance at the aquarium and spawned a lucrative line of toys, books and other merchandise.

Now Winter is a movie star.

The charismatic animal plays herself in "Dolphin Tale," a family-friendly 3-D movie starring Harry Connick Jr., Morgan Freeman, Ashley Judd and Kris Kristofferson, opening Sept. 23. The production is based on Winter's unlikely story of surviving the loss of her tail, then thriving and inspiring human visitors — including war veterans — who have lost limbs and are adapting to their own prosthetics.

The story got some fictional tweaks — a troubled boy (Nathan Gamble) who bonds with Winter was created as a central character who finds the gravely injured animal — but the movie sticks close to the real events surrounding the loss of Winter's tail and her recovery at the aquarium. And in another twist on art imitating life, in the movie Winter's presence helps save the modest marine rescue center from financial ruin. A big chunk of the film was shot at the facility last fall.

Courtesy photo

Winter plays herself in the upcoming movie 'Dolphin Tale.'

"Largely what you see with her rescue, her rehabilitation, the (prosthetic) tail being made, the fact it was filmed here and Winter stars as herself, it's pretty much real life," aquarium CEO David Yates says.

Connick, who plays a veterinarian and director of the marine rescue hospital, says he didn't find out the script was based on a true story until after he had read it.

"I thought it was somebody's creative imagination at work," he says. "I was just blown away. I couldn't get over it, really, not only because of her survival and consequently thriving, but the advancements they made in human prosthetics because of it. I was just blown away that the whole thing was true."

Winter wasn't expected to survive when brought to the aquarium in December 2005 and was left with a rounded stump after losing her tail. A team of more than 150 volunteers and veterinarians spent more than four months nursing her back to health around the clock.

"When she arrived here we didn't think she would make it through the night," says trainer Abby Stone. "She was stressed, she was not physically doing well, she had been through a major ordeal. Most animals in that situation would not have made it."

Winter learned how to swim without her tail — amazing her handlers with a unique combination of moves that resemble an alligator's undulating swimming style and a shark's side-to-side tail swipes. She uses her flippers, normally employed for steering and braking, to get moving.

The prosthetic tail — made of rubberized plastic and carbon fiber — is a wonder of modern science, with the developers, Hanger Orthopedic Group's Dan Strzempka and Kevin Carroll, having to design the intricate tail fluke as well as figure out a way to keep the whole thing on her body. The solution was a sleeve created from a sticky gel composite that slips down onto her stump and creates suction when the prosthetic appendage is applied.

Since Hanger got involved, Strzempka has taken new amputees to see Winter at the aquarium. Interaction with her has been especially effective in coaxing children to wear their new prosthetics, which can feel strange and uncomfortable at first.

"It's amazing to see the impact she has on people," Strzempka said.

"When we first got into this, we thought we could help this dolphin. She's helped us 20 times more than we could ever help her."

Winter wears the new tail only a half hour at a time, three or four times during the day, as her handlers continue to get her used to it and give her spine a break from the strain of the side-to-side swimming. She is trained to follow commands and patiently allows the prosthetic to be put on and taken off in front of adoring crowds.

Director Charles Martin Smith says Winter was so social and animated that capturing her engaging behaviors on film was relatively easy. She enjoys human contact, which he says opened up a lot of possibilities for filming people in the water with her.

"I spent those first three days just walking around and learning about her," Smith says. "She likes to carry toys around on her (nose), so I wrote that into the movie. She has a blue mattress that she likes to jump up on and float around on like a little kid, so I put that in the movie. She has this signature sound that she makes that they call a 'tweety bird' — like a little high-pitched bird trill — so I wrote that into the movie."

Winter captivated everyone, including Freeman. The veteran actor plays the specialist who takes on the challenge of designing the new appendage for the tailless animal. Freeman had never even been near a dolphin before.

"Playing the doctor who was going to create the prosthesis for her, I had a lot of hands-on time with her," Freeman said.

"I remember one day early on when I felt we needed to get to know each other a little bit, so I coaxed her up to get some fish and keep her nearby where I could pet her and talk to her a little bit."

The aquarium got a significant expansion thanks to the movie, after Smith decided he needed a nicer pool to film some of the water scenes. The other concrete tanks were left over from the aquarium's previous life treating the city's sewage.

Yates says a second aquarium building is opening in downtown Clearwater that will display the movie props.

"It was like a dream come true getting her story out there, because she has such an amazing story," says Stone, the trainer.

"It was like the best thing that could ever happen to this facility."

Sports nutrition for your kids

Dinner Diva
Leanne Ely

If your children are back in school, they're probably back in sports, too. Sports requires a lot of our little athletes; making sure he or she is well-fed and hydrated is the key to a happy child (and happy parent, too).

On game day, you want to make sure your child has quality protein on his plate, some starchy veggies (sweet potatoes, regular potatoes for example) as well as leafy greens, and a good dose of healthy fat. Those four components will come together to create stored up energy that your child can access when their team is kickin' tail on the field.

Children should be eating all the colors of the rainbow. Make that "people should be eating all the colors of the rainbow." This is how health, stamina and strength is built, whether you're male or female, grown or a child. This rule especially applies to children who are not only exerting a great deal of energy in their sports, but they're still growing, too.

And at the end of the game, when you see your child running toward you, sweating from head to toe, with a proud smile of a victory across their face, make sure you feed them within the hour. They've just earned themselves a ravenous appetite, and if you get the aforementioned combo of nutrients in their systems within the first 30 to 60 minutes, it'll help relax their stressed muscles.

Wife performing in old sex tape doesn't know she's a star

Dear Abby

Dear Abby: My wife and I have been married for 10 years, and it is a wonderful marriage. We love each other very much, never argue and get along great. We have a 2-year-old child.

Recently I found a "sex tape" online of my wife with the guy she dated before me. This video was taken without her knowledge and is from 13 years ago, Because of this, I am not upset about it.

My question is, should I bring this to her attention, and if so, how? I feel she needs to know it's out there. I'm reacting to this as a man would. I don't know how a woman would react. Please help.

– It's Private

Dear It's Private: Although there are no sex tapes of me floating around, I can tell you from a woman's perspective that if there was one (and the lighting was unflattering), I'd be furious. Your wife has a right to know, so don't keep her in the dark.

P.S. How did you come across that video? I'm sure she will be interested to know.

Dear Abby: A couple of years ago, my husband of 30 years became distant. He didn't want to touch me, talk to me or spend time with me. I was devastated.

An old boyfriend emailed me to offer condolences on the death of my brother. There were just chatty emails at the beginning, about our lives and how we had gone such separate ways in 40 years. The emails started becoming more intimate, as I was fed by his seeming "love" for me. He told me I was his "soul mate" and I fell for it. I took risks to see him, eventually slept with him and lied to everyone I know in the process.

Recently my husband came across an email from the past boyfriend. My secret was out and the truth was ugly. I had betrayed God, my husband, my mother and my four beautiful children. My husband no longer trusts me and wants a divorce.

Abby, please tell your readers to think long and hard before acting out of loneliness. It doesn't just affect the husband and wife; it also has an impact on the entire family, circle of friends and standing within the community.

– Adulterous Wife in Florida

Dear Wife: How sad that you didn't get to the bottom of your husband's distancing before it led to you having an affair. But before you allow your husband to place all the blame on your shoulders, you should make it your business to learn the reason for his behavior – since "everything" is now out in the open.

Dear Abby: I love my husband and, for the most part, we get along great. My only complaint is he stays neutral when someone hurts my feelings.

The latest incident involved good friends of ours until the wife hurt me for the last time. She has a history of inviting me out, even talking me into changing my plans, then ditching me if something better comes along. This last time, I was invited to her house, only to learn (as I'm walking out the door) that she had left for the evening. I've had enough. I gave her as many chances as I did only because my husband said I "overreact" and shouldn't let it be a big deal.

This isn't the first time he has chosen not to validate my feelings. The fact that my husband is never on my side hurts me more than what my "friend" has ever done. Am I right?

– Gets No Support in Azusa, Calif.

Dear Gets No Support: Your husband may not want to be caught in the middle of a disagreement between two women, but that's no reason for him not to tell you your feelings are appropriate when they are justified. He may be good friends with the husband, but the wife has shown she's not much of a friend to you. Real friends don't stand each other up if something "better" comes along. Her behavior is rude and insensitive, and I don't blame you for being offended.

Review: Lady A delivers another winning collection

By MICHAEL McCALL
For The Associated Press

Lady Antebellum, "Own The Night" (Capitol Nashville)

At a time when young country stars typecast themselves into roles that border on caricature — men brag about how rural they are to hard rock beats, women speak of empowerment with an aggressive sneer — Lady Antebellum presents an engaging anomaly steeped in sophistication and subtlety, rather than stereotypes and superficiality.

The trio — Hillary Scott, Charles Kelley and Dave Haywood — address issues about relationships with an engaging honesty rare in any musical genre.

They've been rewarded with multiplatinum, crossover success; their 2009 No. 1 smash "Need You Now" had them winning top awards at the CMAs, ACMs and the Grammys.

Their third album, "Own The Night," doesn't attain the heights of their 2009 album, also titled "Need You Now," but it's a consistently winning collection that plays to their strengths.

After an across-the-board success, Lady A could have overthought their next move.

Instead, they draw again on their songwriting depth and appealing vocal blend.

The group mixes lively songs that don't insult anyone's intelligence with moody narratives that probe the relationship complexities of young adults, as on the album's first hit, "Just A Kiss."

FAMILY TACO NIGHT with a TWIST

Cure the craving with some creative cooking

FAMILY FEATURES

Nothing brings the family together quite like taco night. So why not make it extra special by putting a taco twist on some other family favorites to make an easy, fun meal the whole family will love?

Whether it's the crunch that brings them to the table, the craveable taste of tacos or the ability to make their taco, their way, it's the one dinner the whole family loves.

- Do the kids love cheeseburgers? Try the Old El Paso ABC Taco (Amazing Bacon Cheeseburger Taco) recipe to change things up.
- Need something to spice up spaghetti? Make Fiesta Spaghetti Tacos, which serve up spaghetti and meat sauce in a fun fiesta form.
- Chicken nuggets, again? Spice up the flavor by adding taco toppings such as lettuce, sour cream and salsa and serving in hard and soft taco shells.

Visit www.OldElPaso.com for coupons and more ways to put some fiesta into your weeknight dinner routine.

Fiesta Spaghetti Tacos

Prep Time: 25 minutes
Start to Finish: 25 minutes
5 servings (2 tacos each)

- 5 ounces uncooked spaghetti, broken in half
- 1 pound lean (at least 80 percent) ground beef
- 1 package (1 ounce) Old El Paso 40 percent less-sodium taco seasoning mix
- 1/2 cup water

- 1 box (4.7 ounces) Old El Paso Stand 'N Stuff taco shells (10 shells)
- 1 medium tomato, chopped (3/4 cup), if desired

Cook spaghetti as directed on package; drain.

Meanwhile, in 10-inch nonstick skillet, cook beef over medium-high heat 5 to 7 minutes, stirring frequently, until thoroughly cooked; drain. Stir in taco seasoning mix and water. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat; simmer uncovered 3 to 4 minutes or until thickened. Stir in pasta sauce; cook over medium heat until hot. Stir in cooked spaghetti.

Meanwhile, heat taco shells as directed on box. Spoon about 1/2 cup spaghetti mixture into each taco shell; top with tomato and Parmesan cheese.

Variation: If you like corn, add 1 cup frozen whole kernel corn with the pasta sauce. Cook about 5 minutes or until hot.

Kids love participating in meal time, so gather the whole family to pitch in and make taco night right — and let the fiesta begin.
