GATHERING OF GOVERNORS

At the White House to Confer with President Roosevelt on Preservation of the Natural Resources of the Country

Washington, D. C., May 14.—Governors of many states, senators, representatives, cabinet members, heads of great commercial and industrial bodies, labor leaders, corporation presidents and men distinguished in other walks of life assembled yesterday in the east room of the White House as the guests of President Roosevelt and inaugurated a conference which is likely to go down in history as the most notable of its kind ever held in the United States. The conservation of the natural resources of the country, its forests and waterways, is the subject which will occupy the attention of the famous delegates during the three days of the meeting. President Roosevelt presided at the opening of the conference, declaring that the subject under discussion is the "most weighty question now before the people of these United States." Two sessions will be held each day of the conference.

The following governors are present:

Preston Lee, Delaware; Edwin S. Stuart, Pennsylvania; John F. Fort, New Jersey; Roddin S. Woodruff, Connecticut; Austin L. Crothers, Maryland; Martin F. Ansel, South Carolina; Chas. M. Floyd, New Hampshire; Claude A. Swanson, Virginia; Chas. E. Hughes, New York; James M. Higgins, Rhode Island; Fletcher Proctor, Vermont; Augustus B. Wilson; Kentucky; Andrew L. Harris, Ohio; Newton Blanchard, Louisiana; J. Frank Hanly, Indiana; Edward F. Noel, Mississippi; Charles S. Deneen, Illinois; Braxton B. Comer, Alabama; Joseph W. Folk, Missouri; Fred M. Warner, Michigan; James O. Davidson, Wisconsin; John A. Johnson, Minnesota; Edward W. Hoch, Kansas; W. M. O'Dawson, West Virginia; H. A. Butchel, Colorado; John Burke, North Dakota; C. I. Crawford, South Dakota; Joseph K. Toole, Montana, A. E. Mead, Washington; Frank R. Gooding, Idaho; Bryant B. Brooks, Wyoming; John C. Cutler, Utah; Geo. Curry, New Mexico; Joseph H. Kibbey, Arizona; Wilford B. Hoggart, Alaska; Walter Frear, Hawaii, and Regis H. Post, Porto Rico.

Of the subjects outlined by the president for consideration, that of the improvements of the nation's inland waterways is looked upon as the most important.

The conversion of the Mississippi river into a deep waterway will be taken up.

Coupled with this are the saving of the forests, the control of floods, the preservation of soil erosion and the conservation of the supply of coal, iron and other mineral resources.

Special attention will be given to soil erosion by the Missouri river and its tributaries. Investigation by the experts of the department of agriculture shows that thousands of acres of rich land along the Missouri have been carried away to the Gulf.

Means of systematic irrigation and drainage in the far West without exhausting the streams will be sought.

Uniform laws among the states of the West and Southwest for the development of arid lands by the economical use of the streams will be urged.

BRYAN ENDORSES BROWARD

Great Democratic Leader Approves the Work in Which the Governor of Florida Takes Such a Prominent Part

Washington, D. C., May 14.—In the absence of Governor Broward, of Florida, who is president of the National Drainage Congress, Vice-President W. S. Braddock called the body to order yesterday. The principal speaker was William Jennings Bryan, who discussed drainage, and among other things, said:

"I have no doubt whatever of the practicability, the feasibility and the righteousness of the drainage of our swamps. I have no more doubt that the swamps ought to be drained and brought under cultivation than I have that the arid lands ought to be watered and brought under cultivation. I know of no general rule that would justify one that would not justify the other."

Mr. Bryan expressed the opinion that the bringing of the swamp lands of the country into cultivation would mean a wonderful addition to the wealth of those sections and the wealth of the country at large.

DEBS ALSO DECLINES

Socialist Nomination for President Seems to be Going a Begging

Chicago, May 14.—With all the important committees named, the delegates to the Socialist National Convention are prepared for the work of nominating candidates for president and vice-president. There will be a lively fight on the platform. It is admitted that it is not radical enough to suit certain Texas and Oklahoma delegates, and they are preparing amendments.

With Haywood eliminated from the contest and a letter at hand from Debs asking that some one else be named, the delegates are somewhat "up in the air." While Debs does not refuse to be a candidate, he pleads that his health is not of the best and suggests that some one else be given a chance.

FAIRBANKS IS NO FOOL

Sees the Name of Taft in the Handwriting on the Wall and Will Drop Out of the Race

Indianapolis, Ind., May 14.—Developments of the last week, especially the overwhelming Taft victory in Kentucky, have convinced the friends of Vice-President Fairbanks that there is no possibility of his nomination by the republicans for the presidency, and it is expected that he will quietly drop out of the race without formal announcement of his withdrawal.

Outside of arranging for headquarters at Chicago, the Indiana friends of the vice-president have not been active for more than a week, and it is said that the plan of sending men to other states to confer with delegates has been abandoned, and unless here should be a radical change in the situation before the delegates assemble at Chicago, the name of Fairbanks will not be presented to the convention.

Indiana's Votes for Taft

If Fairbanks withdraws, the 30 Indiana votes will go into the Taft column.
