GORDON MEMORIAL SERVICE

At the Presbyterian Church—Eloquent Sermon by Dr. Lindsay

The Gordon memorial services Sunday morning drew a large audience at the Presbyterian church. The Ocala camp of Confederate veterans, headed by Major G. M. Hubbard, and the Daughters of the Confederacy, preceded by the beloved president, Mrs. Fannie R. Gary, repaired to the church in a body. Of the former there were about thirty, among the most noted being General Robert Bullock, Commander G. M. Hubbard, Hon. C. M. Brown, William Martin, D. A. Miller and Mr. Whetstone. Of the Daughters there were about forty, among them being the representative women of our city.

Rev. W. C. Lindsay preached a most eloquent and appropriate sermon from Psalms 84:5, 6: "In whose heart are the highways of Zion passing through the valley of weeping, they make it a place of springs." He impressed the fact that we were all passing through the world, only one journey, only one life; we could only live over in memory that life; that only our good deeds counted; that whatever was done with sincerity and singleness of purpose should be to our credit.

He only gave a passing notice of General Longstreet; spoke of his characteristics of deliberation, slow, steadfast, tenacious and doing valiant battle, and so furious when engaged in combat that the ideal soldier and the world's greatest and grandest commander, General Robert E. Lee, called him his war-horse. He was a man of set ideas and purposes, and never changed; so deliberate in his actions that at Gettysburg it amounted almost to insubordination ere obeying the order to charge. After the war he accepted office, which in those days was deemed an act of dishonor by his late associates, hence he exerted little or no influence among the people.

General Gordon was the opposite. Though not so great a general as Longstreet, he fought with a dash and enthusiasm, which, from the very nature of the man, infused his unbounded spirit into that of his followers and made their attacks invincible. He was a genial, friendly man, and made his followers feel that their interests were his. To his credit be it said he was a true reconstructionist, and to his everlasting honor the first man to assist to build a school house in which to teach his and his neighbors' former servants. He told of Gordon's wonderful work in reuniting the different sections of the Union, how his heart was in the work, and how the warmth and power of his magnetic oratory melted and fused opposing ideas. His influence was for good, and his actions were so unselfish and grand they won the admiration and love of the world. He quoted a paragraph from Gordon's speech delivered in Atlanta at the reception of President Davis in that city, all showing that while the past should be held sacred, the future should be devoted to building up, cementing and making the united country greater and better. He said Gordon's character was so grand and noble that all loved him, and by none more so that by those of the Southland, who knew and appreciated his worth.

Dr. Lindsay read a poem by "Captain Jack" Crawford, the last survivor of the Custer massacre, a scout under Custer and a wearer of the blue. It was a beautiful and touching tribute to a good and great man, showing how the heroes of the gray and the blue were waiting for Gordon's gallant spirit in Paradise. He told how "Captain Jack," during the war, a private in the Union army, had become a wounded prisoner to Gordon's command; how a fair Southern Florence Nightingale, who had gone to the scene of carnage, became a nurse to this wounded prisoner, taught him as she nursed him back to life, illiterate as he was, his alphabet, taught him to respect and love the nobility of the Southern women, and finally taught him to so love her that in a few years this fair "human angel" became the sweetheart and wife of the later famous "Captain Jack."

But we are not trying to give even a synopsis of this strong, logical discourse, filled with such touching truths which so deeply impressed the worshipers. No words of ours could do justice to the inspired and weighty words of the Divine.

Those who did not hear Dr. Lindsay missed an occasion for which Ocala is deeply grateful. Gordon's religious side was touched on to the edification of all believers in God's omnipotent and purifying power.

The singing was excellent. The voices of Messrs. Albert and Jake Gerig, Clifford Anderson, Mrs. R. G. Blake and Miss Bernice Mark mingled sweetly harmonious with the notes of the grand organ as Mr. Ray Alworth touched the keys so deftly. The songs sung were General Gordon's favorites, and closed with the beautiful song, "Lead, Kindly Light," which Mrs. Blake and Miss Mark rendered with fine effect.

Dr. Lindsay spoke with great emphasis, remarking that his father served under the gallant Gordon, and that they were personal friends.

MORE LEAD THAN LUCRE

Bandits Held Up a Seaboard Train Near Sanderson, Saturday Night, But Were Driven Off by Plucky Train Men and Road Officials.

MacClenny, Fla., Jan. 16.—Passenger train No. 76, eastbound on the Seaboard Air Line, was held up one mile east of Sanderson at 7:45 tonight by four white men.

The door of the baggage car was blown open with dynamite, the robbers mistaking this car for the express car.

The engine was stopped by a volley of shots fired into the cab. The fireman and engineer were taken off the engine and escorted to the second class coach, and the robbers ran the train ahead for about a half mile, when they blew open the baggage car.

The train conductor went forward but was fired on and driven back to the coaches.

Conductor L. S. Peck, who was deadheading over the line, called for firearms and volunteers. N. H. Harrison, claim agent of the road; B. W. McCaa, traveling auditor, and J. C. Williamson, traveling freight agent, responded, and the four went forward, opened fire, and drove the robbers off.

Conductor Peck took the throttle and ran the train four miles down the road.

The robbers secured no booty and made no attempt to rob the passengers, but there was great excitement in the passenger coaches while the firing was going on.

The sheriffs of Duval and Baker counties are on the trail of the robbers with bloodhounds.

ANOTHER TRAIN ATTACKED

It Passed Through Here Saturday Afternoon, and Was Fired on Forty Miles North

Campville, Fla., Jan. 16.—Seaboard train No. 63, from Tampa to Jacksonville, was fired into near this place today, one load of buckshot passing through a window of the white passenger coach. No one was hurt.

The train was stopped and the crew spent fifteen minutes looking for the offender, but no one was found.

Ocala People in Danger

The shot came dangerously near to Mr. and Mrs. J. Starr Sternberger, Mr. J. A. DeWeese and Mr. Clarence Spencer, all of Ocala, and just missed another man, who was reclining on his seat, otherwise he would have been struck. It is supposed the parties who did the shooting were negro hunters.

DISLOCATED HER SHOULDER

Mrs. Johanna Soderholm, of Fergus Falls, Minn., fell and dislocated her shoulder. She had a surgeon get it back in place as soon as possible, but it was quite sore and pained her very much. Her son mentioned that he had seen Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised for sprains and soreness, and she asked him to buy her a bottle of it, which he did. It quickly relieved her and enabled her to sleep which she had not done for several days. The son was so much pleased with the relief it gave his mother that he has since recommend it to many others. For sale recommended it to many others. For sale by all druggists.

IT WAS "JIMMY," NOT "KITTIE."

The Chicago boomers who are here after the democratic national convestion, tell this story, says the Washington letter of the New York World:

"Most of them slept late in tehir car out of Chicago. At 9 o'clock next morning a fat woman charged down the aisle of the car and poked with an umbrella into berth No. 4.

"Kitty," she said, "Kitty, get up; it is time for breakfast."

"There was no answer from berth No. 4. The fat woman stirred around vigorously with her umbrella again and said, shrilly, "I tell you, Kitty, you must get up; it is time for breakfast."

"Then the curtains parted and the pink whiskers of Col. J. Hamilton Lewis, the orator for the Chicago boomers, appeared.

"Madam," he said, "my name is Jimmy, not Kittie."

"The fat woman fled wildly to the baggage car."
