THE STATE PRESS ON T. ALBERT JENNINGS AND THE GOVERNORSHIP

HON. THOMAS ALBERT JENNINGS.

Hon. T. A. Jennings, of Pensacola, in a lengthy interview in The Pensacola Journal of last Thursday virtually declared his intention to become a candidate for governor. He is strongly endorsed editorially by The Journal and will prove a strong man in the race. That he is a good and able man is proven by the fact that The Pensacola Journal supports him. The Journal is not only west Florida's leading daily but it is the most reliable big daily paper in the state, being conducted not as the organ of any faction, corporation or clique, but as a legitimate newspaper should be, supporting what it believes to be right regardless of all else.—Wauchula Telegram.

The Pensacola Journal of Thursday, April 4th, contained an article of an interview with Hon. T. A. Jennings, in reference to his probable candidacy for governor. We are satisfied that after giving the matter his consideration, that Mr. Jennings will decide to enter the race. His public announcement, declaring that he has entered the race for gubernatorial honors, will meet with the approval of the entire state; or, in other words T. A. Jennings's admirers are in the majority in the state of Florida, and if it is his desire to succeed Governor Broward, all that he has to do is to say the word, and his numerous friends will see to it that his request is granted.—Jasper Banner.

Hon. T. A. Jennings's interview in The Pensacola Journal reads good to us.—Lake City Index.

It looks as though Mr. Jennings's candidacy for the office of governor is to be a factor to be reckoned in future discussions as to that office.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

We publish today an editorial from The Pensacola Journal, in which the probable candidacy of Hon. T. A. Jennings, of that city, for governor, is fully and fairly discussed. The Journal has a right to feel proud of their fellowtownsman, Hon. T. A. Jennings. He is a good and able man and no doubt will be a candidate and if so, will keep company until the final count of the ballots with the best in the race. It's a long time until the primary, however, and other sections of Florida will later bring out their favorite sons to "battle" with the popular Jennings for the governorship.—Live Oak Democrat.

The practical anonouncement of Hon. T. A. Jennings that he will be a candidate for governor will more than likely force the hand of other probable entries in the gubernatorial race. Already, even in this Gilchrist stronghold, Mr. Jennings is being favorably discussed and no doubt unless statements of their intentions are made by others some will make up their minds to support the Pensacola candidate. After a voter once makes up his mind it is hard to change and later entries will be the loser by Mr. Jennings's earlier announcement and the support he will be able to gather to himself while still unopposed. Mr. Jennings is a very able man and a man who would also make Florida an admirable chief executive, but DeSoto county also has a man of the same calibre whom we all down this way expect to support. We believe our choice would be the gainer now that Mr. Jennings is actually in the race to make some definite statement of his intention, in order that his friends may get to work for him.—Wauchula Telegram.

Hon. T. A. Jennings has been formally announced by his friends as a candidate for governor. If nominated and elected he will make a good one.—Brooksville Argus.

Hon. T. A. Jennings, of Pensacola, whose name has been prominently mentioned by the state press as a probable candidate for governor of Florida, made his position known to a Pensacola Journal reporter last week. Mr. Jennings plainly states his position and says he will make the race if he is assured that he is the people's choice and can win on a "platform of peace and prosperity." If he finally decides to enter the race he will make a fight to win and it is almost certain that he will succeed for he is popular all over the state. —Chipley Banner.

Hon. T. Albert Jennings of Pensacola is out in a lengthy interview in The Journal concerning his probable candidacy for the governorship two years hence. The opinion we have formed from reading the interview is that the gentleman "is and he ain't and he ain't and he is"—with the accent on the last clause. At any rate he is in a decidedly receptive mood and if enough people insist he will become a candidate at the proper time. Mr. Jennings is a Florida cracker who has made a success of life, is not a bit "stuck up" or unduly puffed up and having successfully fought shy of embarrassing political entanglements ought to make a strong man for the race.—Madison New Enterprise.

Hon. T. A. Jennings, of Pensacola, an honorable citizen and a good democrat, of the West Coast, in an interview published in The Pensacola Journal, announces that if the people want him he will run for governor. Although Mr. Jennings is no kin to the ex-governor his name will be a great handicap to him in the race.—Tavares Herald.

The Pensacola Journal last Thursday published a long interview with Hon. T. A. Jennings concerning that gentleman's candidacy for governor in the next primary, which is the first authorized expression from him on the subject, notwithstanding the fact that he has been considered by the public as a candidate for a year past on account of the many favorable comments that have been made in the state press concerning it. In the interview Mr. Jennings goes no further than to say that if it appears to be the desire of the people he will at the proper time make a formal announcement of his candidacy. Mr. Jennings says that if he is a candidaet he will not accept any contributions from either corporations or individuals, and will be under no obligations to any one, but if elected will go into the office with no pledges further than to give the state the best administration of which he is capable. Thus far with a very few exceptions the press of the state has been very kindly in its expressions concerning him, even those papers where there are other candidates finding nothing derogatory to say of him. If there is anything in locality it will be West Florida's time to furnish the man, and the people of middle Florida are as enthusiastic as those of this part of the state. Mr. Jennings is a strong man physically and mentally, broadminded and liberal in his views, with a genial personality which makes friends wherever he goes. While always considered as a friend of the people he has never been a rabid factionalist, and among those thus far even mentioned there is none more worthy of the support of the whole people than he.—DeFuniak Breeze.

We notice that The Pensacola Journal says that "Hon. T. A. Jennings may run for governor of Florida." If Mr. Jennings enters the race we have no doubts but that he will make it "hot" for the other candidates.—Crawfordville Breeze.

T. A. Jennings of Pensacola, like Barkis, is willing to be a candidate for governor of Florida when the time for entering rolls around.—Jacksonville Metropolis.

Several of the papers in north and west Florida are bringing the name of Hon. T. A. Jennings, of Pensacola, to the forefront as a possible gubernatorial candidate, which is receiving favorable comment.—Calhoun Democrat.

The Chipley Banner asserts that if T. A. Jennings, "jumps into the political pool there will be a splash that no one can mistake." The Banner is reminded that the man who does the most "splashing" does the least swimming.—Apalachicola Times.

The Pensacola Journal announces to-day in a short editorial the candidacy for governor of Hon. Albert T. Jennings of that city, a man who has made a distinguished success in life and is looked upon by his close friends as an ideal man for the executive chair. The editor of the Star a few days ago heard Dr. Dan Morgan Smith of this city, discant on the virtues and ability of this excellent gentleman, and to hear him was to be convinced that Mr. Jennings was A No. 1 gubernatorial timber.—Ocala Star.

The Hon. T. Albert Jennings, of Escambia county, is the first to declare his candidacy for governor in the campaign one year hence. The time is too early for the Metropolis to take a stand in gubernatorial political issues, but judging from the utterances of The Pensacola Journal Mr. Jennings is a very deserving man, would make a good governor and will likely cut something of a figure in the issue when it comes before the people at the polls.—Miami Metropolis.

We have read The Pensacola Journal's interview with T. Albert Jennings and his proposed candidacy for governor. Its length is nearly three columns. Mr. Jennings rightly says he deems the agitation of the question of candidates almost two years hence, entirely too previous, and that the people are not nearly as deeply interested in this early discussion as the papers pretend. Speaking for Marion, we do not believe that a dozen men have thought of the question. If questioned on the matter the reply would be too soon, too soon. Mr. Jennings confesses he would be willing to sacrifice his large and important practice for the honor of being governor. If he made the race he would do it after feeling satisfied that the people desired him to run, and if he does enter the race he will throw his whole soul into it, conduct it himself from the day of his formal announcement until the close of the campaign. That not a cent shall be recived by him from any coroporation or other person for campaign purposes. His campaign will be carried on ligitimately, so that he will have no hesitancy to show the world the account. That he will be no man's nor corporation's candidate, but a contestant, in the interests of the people. This is really the sum and substance of the interview. He is a good man and one who would be hard to defeat.—Ocala Star.

Mr. T. A. Jennings of Pensacola is being urged by influential citzens as a candidate for governor of that state. In a charactertistic interview in The Pensacola Journal he endeavors to withold himself from the appearance of seeking public office. It is plain to be seen that Mr. Jennings is being urged to enter the race. He is now at the head of a very large business at Pensacola, being recognized as honorable and successful in it. The acquaintances of T. A. Jennings know him as a clean conservative, careful man, one pre-eminently qualified to occupy high office with grace and dignity. He would stand for Florida's material development, and a conversion into cash of her latent resources for the benefit of the people. His platform would be the encouragement of a policy that would create avenues for labor and opportunities for everybody. —Savannah Cotton Trade Journal.

We have a telegram from Pensacola stating that the Journal in a double column editorial in Thursday's paper, formally launched Mr. Jennings's gubernatorial boomlet. Mr Jennings is a native of Florida, having been born and reared in Hamilton county. He has been a member of the Williams Naval Stores Company, of Savannah, Georgia, and has amassed a fortune—at least what is regarded as a fortune by the average Floridian. He has never depended upon politics for a living and has never before been a candidate for an office to which a fee or salary is attached. West Florida presents Mr. Jennings as a candidate for governor confident in the belief that he will be elected.—Ocala Banner.

The Record can state with some degree of certainty that Albert Jennings, the well known Pensacola naval stores man, will be a candidate for governor of Florida. In an interview this week in The Pensacola Journal, while Mr. Jennings does not come out openly as an avowed candidate for the office of chief executive of the state, he nevertheless states his reason for not now announcing as not to precipitate a fight for the office, and plainly states that if his friends and supporters desire him to become a candidate, he will announce later. He has received many letters during the past year requesting him to announce, and these have come from some of the strongest men in the state.—Industrial Record.

Hon. T. A. Jennings, of Pensacola, whose name has been going the rounds of the state press for the past several weeks as probably announcing for Florida's next governor, made his position known to a Pensacola Journal reporter last Wednesday as probably deciding to enter the race when the proper time comes.

Mr. Jennings plainly states his position in The Journal and says he will make the race if he is assured that he is the people's choice and can win on the "Platform of Peace and Prosperity." If he finally decides to enter the race he will make the fight a winning one. He will be the candidate of no man or faction, and if elected will be absolutely untrammeled.

Mr. Jennings is one of Florida's best and brainiest gentlemen, and will no doubt prove to be the people's choice as the state chief executive if he announces.—Laurel Hill Home.

JOHN D. RENDALL FOR BUILDING INSPECTOR

Well Known Architect Announces His Candidacy for That Position.

John D. Rendall, who made such a strong race for alderman at large against Alderman Reilly in the last primary but was defeated by a small majority, is a candidate for inspector of buildings, a new elective position provided by the charter amendment bill which was recently passed.

Mr. Rendall has been engaged in building and in the profession of architecture for many years and a large number of Pensacola's buildings were built from his plans. He ougth to be a thoroughly competent man for the position.

SAGE LEAVES.

Special to The Journal.

Brent, Apr. 13.—The winds have become vibratory like the swinging of a mighty pendelum. On Monday the strong south wind again changed suddenly to the northward, and by Tuesday it was cool enough for winter wraps.

By Thursday a reactionary wave sprang up from the south which continued until Friday. During an effort to generate a shower of rain the northern vibration began to blow, and soon cleared the sky of threatening clouds and swept the murky atmosphere away.

That was a grave suggestion of the eloquent Atlanta editor—to have Wm. J. Bryan to nominate Theodore Roosevelt for the next presidential candidate.

If Theodore is pledged to abandon the position at the expiration of his term why not ticket Mr. Bryan in the lead, with Roosevelt for vice-president on the same co-operative ticket? We could thus have a double team of greater power to fight the trusts, harmonize public affairs and pacify the nations of the earth.

I am glad that Pensacola has struck the "happy thought" of helping to secure the new railroads which are struggling to get here from Memphis and Andalusia.

This co-operation in the way of donations will count above par, and make the dirt fly to the best advantage.

The neat, clean home is usually a happy home. If you cook with gas the home can be kept cleaner and neater than with the coal way, because there's no lugging in of wood and coal, nor lugging ashes out. Then, too, if gas is economically used, it is actually cheaper than wood or coal. Ranges $12.50, $13.50 and $24. Gas $1.50 per thousand.
