DON QUIXOTE.

Romance is dead and knights have
had their day.
Old Time now dances to a soberer
tune,
No longer Strephon worships Phyllis'
shoon,
The very gods have fled this mortal
fray;
Yet one heart owns fair Dulcinea's
sway,
And bears her banner, praying as a
boon
That he may dare the mountains of
the moon,
The filched stars before her feet to lay.
Here Don Quixote holds his forehead
high,
His lance in rest, his oriflamme unfurl'd,
Tilting at windmills or against giants
hurl'd,
Honor and Truth and Love his battlecry,
Demanding only of a laughing world
Gently to live and with brave heart
to die.

Wisest of madmen, maddest of the wise!
We would adventure where thy fancies lead;
Where knightly thought quickens to
knightly deed,
Where thy defeat shames meaner
victories.
Did all men view life's pageant thro'
thine eyes,
Wield righteous sword when grief
and weakness plead,
Then were this world from all enchanters freed,
All mortals listed in thy high emprise.
Quixotic we would be—to still declare
Our cot a castle, and our lass a
queen;
Upright, unconquered, unafraid, serene,
Finding God's poorest creatures
brave and fair.
Shedding a glory over all things mean.
If this be folly, folly be our share.
—E. H. Sothern.

PLANS ON FOR A BIG RALLY.

The Gadsden street Sunday school is now preparing for its "Rally Day" service, which will take place next Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

An interesting program is being prepared, and those identified with the important event are confident of one of the most successful rallies in the history of the Sunday school.

LITTLE MISS LOTTA WATSON ENTERTAINS.

One of the prettiest children's parties which has occurred this season took place on the afternoon of the 26th, when the tiny friends of little Lotta B. Watson met at the home of her parents on East Hill to assist her in properly observing her third birthday.

The tots had gathered promptly at 3:30 o'clock, and merriment reigned supreme until the parents and nurses of the precious babies began calling for their small charges when the late shadows of the autumn afternoon began lengthening into night. Delightful children's games had been prepared, which were enjoyed to the utmost, as were the dainty refreshments which constituted a prominent feature of the afternoon.

Those present were as follows: Ella and Olga Byers, Gerald and Bernard Crona, Ethel, Harold and Marguerite Van Ausdale, Lawrence, Alex and Rosalie Brown, Harold Mackey, Inez Croft, Paul Williams, George and Ruth Villar, Carrie and Adelaide Yniestra, Evelyn Wrighton, Carrie Lee Miller, Harold Lewis, Fannie May Andrews, George and Ruth Williams, Graham Dorsey and Dave White, Ernest Lloyd Fell, Frank Crona, Claude Shamley, and Myrtice and Retta Reddick, of Harris, Fla.

Mrs. Watson was assisted by Miss Vesta Dilger.

NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT IS HALLOWE'EN.

A date which has its numerous attractions for the clever hostess is close upon us, next Saturday night being Hallowe'en, or All Hallowed Even. Witches and ghosts will put mere mortal man completely out of business as usual on this mystic night, and the hilarity of the various and diverse spooks will be infectous as usual. Several pretty social events have been planned for next Saturday, and there will be pranks and pranks in staid old Pensacola, according to present indications, before the first gray dawn of All Saints' Day ushers in a day of thought and retrospection.

CIVIC LEAGUE TO MEET THIS AFTERNOON.

An important meeting of the newly-organized Civic League will occur this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A., when a great deal of value to the new association will receive attention. The election of officers will be one of the main features of the event, nominations having already taken place. Committees will be appointed, and the constitution as framed by the committee on the same on Monday afternoon will be adopted.

The Civic League should be of paramount interest to every Pensacola woman, whose attitude toward her own particular city is of the right sort, as the ladies have really taken the lead in the movement. This fact should be duly appreciated, and those who have identified themselves with this most important feature of local civic pride should be thoroughly complacent over the fact that they are doing considerably more for the future of Pensacola than can now be estimated.

MARRIED LADIES' EUCHRE CLUB MEETS.

An exceptionally pleasant meeting of the Married Ladies' Euchre Club occurred yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Blumer, at 310 East Government street.

Mrs. Blumer, who is famed in local circles for her hospitality, succeeded in making the afternoon one long to be remembered among those who constitute the membership of the club. Mrs. Florence Howland carried off first honors, the prize being a beautiful hand-painted vase, Mrs. Sydney Bell receiving an aquarium of gold fishes as second favor. The next meeting of the club will occur at the home of Mrs. Ida Roch on East Government street.

MEETING POSTPONED UNTIL THURSDAY.

The regular meeting of the Tuesday Afternoon Club, which was to have occurred yesterday at the home of Mrs. Jas. White on West Garden street, has been postponed until tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 p. m.

TUESDAY EUCHRE PLEASANTLY ENTERTAINED.

Mrs. E. F. Bruce was hostess at the regular meeting of the Tuesday Euchre Club yesterday afternoon at her home at No. 815 North Barcelona street. The afternoon was spent in the usual pleasant manner, Mrs. Bruce receiving first prize, and Mrs. Geo. P. Wentworth the consolation. The next meeting of the club will take place at the home of Mrs. H. G. DeSilva.

MISS ELISE CHIPLEY WAS HOSTESS.

Miss Elise Chipley entertained the Tuesday Bridge Club at her home on West Cervantes street yesterday, a delightful afternoon being the result. Mrs. I. H. Aiken received first honors and the club will meet at her home at its next regular meeting.

MRS. SHARPE ENTERTAINED EAST HILL EUCHRE CLUB.

Among the pleasant events of yesterday afternoon was the regular meeting of the East Hill Euchre club which took place at the home of Mrs. Edwin Sharpe, at No. 1616 N. Avenue.

Mrs. J. M. Clutter received first prize, Mrs. L. M. Davis the consolation, Mrs. Wm. Roach the lone hand, Mrs. Ferguson being successful in carrying off the booby. Delicious refreshments were served. The next meeting of this popular club will occur at the home of Mrs. Bennett on Ninth avenue.

MRS. SODERQUIST TO ENTERTAIN TODAY.

Mrs. N. Soderquist will be hostess at her home on West Government street upon two different occasions today, the Social Card Club to meet at three o'clock, and the Pastime Euchre at 8 o'clock. Both events promise to be of unusual interest, both clubs being immensely popular.

BENNIE GRIFFIN SURPRISED.

A large number of the friends of Mr. Bennie Griffin gathered at the home of his sister, Mrs. Jackson Brandon, at 526 West Garden street on last Saturday night, in honor of the 21st anniversary of his birth. The evening was one of rare good fun, and the popularity of the young man was well attested by the presence of a large number of friends both from Warrington and Pensacola. The happy event, in fact, which was in the nature of a surprise, was enjoyable throughout, a mirth provoking feature of the evening being a giant "birthday" cake which was bravely surrounded by no less than 21 candles. Those present joined in wishing the young host many returns of the day.

FASHION'S LATEST MANDATES.

Importations of fancy feathers are unprecedentedly large. A great number of plumes and wings are seen, but the majority are of the fine, airy class of the aigrette and paradise sort.

There is a new hip-length coat, semi-fitted by seams to the shoulder in front and back, that is excellent for covert cloth or for serge and panama in plain colors, worn with a plaid of check skirt in which the color of the coat predominates; green with black is smart.

Bands that suggest the tunic are more practical for walking skirts than the tunic draperies that are seen at their best in the soft materials of house gowns and evening dresses. The line of trimming that is most generally becoming dips toward the front and rises on the sides, giving a slight forward movement.

There is going to be a good deal of tulle worn this winter. Its new heavy weave makes it available as a serviceable accessory. Bright blue will be more favored than light blue, but parrot and apple green are to be in the lead. Bows of this will be worn at the neck on an evening bodice, in front of the hat, and to tie flowers.

Feather collars follow, to some degree, the shapes of the net and mousseline models, and there are many close, high little collars, in marabou or ostrich, finished at side, back or front with a knot of liberty. There are, too, close-fitting collars of these same feathers, which have several pendant tabs falling from the point of fastening a little to the left of the front. These tabs are fashioned from the feathers, and are so soft and flat that the effect is almost that of a carelessly knotted feather cravat. Good color schemes are displayed in these collars, soft green feathers tipped with black or gray, bright browns tipped with deeper brown, peacock blues softened with smoky gray or black.

Buttons are to be freely used in lapping, one gore over another, and very often the whole skirt will be covered with them.

Silk and wool challis has taken on a new luster this week. It is offered for indoor frocks in dull and light tones, in stripes and in plaid.

Not in many seasons has green figured so prominently in modish materials as just now, and never before were there so many lovely shades of this color as now are offered.

The hair ribbon continues in marked popularity, but will probably be driven out in the winter. It is the outgrowth of tennis and golf hair ribbons, necessary to confine stray locks.

Such fabrics as crepe de chine, crepe royal, or any soft clinging crepe or satin will undoubtedly prove the best adapted to the clinging and draped styles, while the softer cloths and light-weight fabrics, such as veiling and cashmere, are good for dressy gowns.

Among seasonable things there are some new white flannels that every woman will like. They show hair lines of black, brown and blue, fawn color, with Roman stripes; combinations of pale blue and turquoise; Chinese pink and wood brown and the iris shades of lavender.

Particularly effective for wear with autumn millinery are the new ostrich feather hat pins. These are composed of diminutive curled ostrich plumes poised on gold pins, the feathers being in a great variety of colors, which must, of course, be of the same or contrasting shade to the hat. Somewhat more expensive are the dyed mother of pearl pins in the form of dragons, butterflies, dragon flies and birds, which are rivaling in popular favor the gold pins set with crystals en cabochon.

THE WOMAN BEAUTIFUL.

Note.—The Journal will be glad to answer any questions which may be directed to this department. Questions will be published, without signature, and answered in full. A correspondence is invited.

A common defect which plays havoc among the hopes of the modern Woman Beautiful nowadays is a tendency toward puffiness under the eyes. If not caused by a constitutional disorder, which may be eradicated by following the advice of the family physician, the trouble may be traced to late hours and unnatural habits. The lack of sleep can do more to tear down the constitution of a woman and put a quietus on the good looks proposition than any other known agent.

While Pensacola ladies have very little to contend with along the line of the smoke nuisance known in large manufacturing districts, the local feminine complexion is apt to suffer as the result of the fine flying sand. It is a duty that every woman owes to herself to protect any degree of beauty with which good Old Lady Nature has invested her. Here is a formula used extensively in building up a barricade as it were against the common vicissitudes which are bound to assail her:

Before going out on the street for your daily constitutional, employ a liberal amount of good benzoin and almond lotion in a brisk massage, which alone will bring the blood rushing to the usual healthy skin. A harmless powder dusted over the whole provides a mask as it were, through which the effects of the elements will permeate with difficulty.

A small soap dispenser, filled with an antiseptic solution, is both sanitary and convenient when installed just above the basin in the bath room. This precaution is exceptionally advisable to persons who are identified in a prominent way with the public, where hand shaking is one of the features of the day's routine. Those who are forced to handle a great deal of money, and who are thus endangered where the spreading of disease is concerned, will find the dispenser equally valuable.

One of Pensacola's most striking matrons confided a secret not long ago, as to the remarkable state of preservation of her skin. The agent is simple enough. Just before going out, this particular lady doses her face and arms liberally with the white of a raw egg, allowing it to remain until quite dry. When the application is sufficiently dry to "dust off," she whisks a bit of powder over the whole, and the result is at once the delight and despair of her acquantances.

If every woman will take time to rub the wrinkles from her face at the end of each day with a simple application of olive oil, she will do much to keep up with the general ravages of Father Time.

Most women fail to keep their faces clean. Ugly, isn't it? Nevertheless it is true. When you see a pasty, uncertain sort of feminine countenance, which happens to be muddy along with the rest, it is a hundred to one shot that the little lady needs an introduction to a good flesh brush, some green soap, and a booklet dedicated to her particular needs. Scrub the face well with the brush and soap, using warm water. After this phase of the process, follow with a dash of cold water, into which has been introduced a generous allowance of alcohol. A firm, healthy complexion is bound to result, unless ill health has already made irreparable inroads upon milady's beauty.

It's no use for the little lady to be trying complexion lotions unless she is immaculately clean and tidy. The daily bath is a first essential, and she should be sweet and trig and trim. Pin those scolding locks well out of the way, and avoid a general appearance of tag ends. Then watch for real results.

One of the best features of a sea bath is the salt water inadvertently swallowed by bathers. It is a wonderful tonic. In many cases it is said to cure biliousness when all drug preparations have failed. It is peculiarly effective in ordinary cases of indigestion, disordered stomach and insomnia, and has been known to produce excellent results in many cases of dyspepsia. Clean sea water, such as is to be had at any of the numerous fashionable seaside resorts, is full of tonic and sedative properties. It will not hurt anybody. Indeed, two or three big swallows of it would be a positive benefit to nine bathers out of ten. It is not of course, a palatable or tempting dose to take, but neither is quinine or calomel. You seldom, if ever, see an old sailor who is bilious or dyspeptic, or a victim to insomnia, and why? For the reason that an ocean of good medicine spreads all about his sky, and he doses himself copiously with it whenever his mechanism becomes the least bit deranged.

If one stays awake at night because of the warm weather, or any restlessness or nervousness causes one to sleep fitfully, a sponge-off with alcohol has refreshing results. A small sponge is used, not very well soaked. It is not necessary to get into the bathtub to do it. Squeeze the sponge over the body and wipe it over the entire surface of the skin. Apply more alcohol at the base of the neck than anywhere else. This cools the blood going to the brain and smooths the nerve centers. It takes only four or five minutes, and usually the most restless woman can sleep for hours after such a sponging. It is far better than a cold or hot bath.

GOWN OF WHITE CLOTH.

The illustration shows an attractive design for a gown of light cloth, the model being in white broadcloth, with a black satin tie, and black satin binding at the edges of the upper sleeves. Tiny cords of the white cloth were used to finish the edges of the piece across the bodice front and the little panels on each side, and large cloth covered buttons were used down either side of the cloth panels from waist to hip line. The yoke of the gown was of white net, and the shirred sleeves were finished down the outer arm by a frill of the net caught in scallop effect with white lingerie buttons.
