PENSACOLA, FLORIDA, THURSDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 6, 1908.

Two State Fairs, Both Doing Good.

With state fairs going on at both Jacksonville and Tampa, the whole state of Florida is being given one of the very best sorts of advertising.

Nothing under the sun pays communities or commonwealths better than judicious advertising—setting before the eyes of the world their natural advantages and the proofs of what the people have done with the advantages within their reach.

In the olden days, the county fair was a social and industrial necessity. Today the state fair is not less necessary because it is an expanded opportunity and an expansive possibility.

When a town, city or state gives a meritorious fair, the nation sits up and takes notice, as it were. Towns and cities are much like little boys on their way home from school, with little girls in the near vicinity. What they are doing does not, as a rule, profit them to the maximum unless someone is watching with approval.

The little boy resorts to all sorts of fatuous activity to attract attention. The town, city, or state, with maturer judgment, resorts to a display of its accomplishments, and the city or state that is most active in proclaiming itself through the medium of material accomplishments is the one that attracts the most attention to its latent resources and invites the most capital to their development by arousing the confidence of the outsider in the industry of the community or commonwealth.

A fair at Jacksonville or Tampa advertises all Florida, but especially the site of the fair. The same truth would hold as to Pensacola.

Representative Max Wilson, of Calhoun county, is a candidate for re-election to the legislature. Good man. Keep him there.

We see thare goin to reppare the streets in Pensacola for King Priscus. That shows kings is some use after all besides in a poker game.—The Gawbone.

Pensacola orter have a homecomin. Peepul that useter live there and dont, orter go there and see how the towns improved and still improvin. Its worth travlen a long ways if only to see what deelishous young ladies the little girls of ten years ago is grone up inter.—The Gawbone.

Governor Broward is suggested as a suitable candidate for delegate-at-large to the Democratic National Convention. Representing as he does, the spirit of real Democracy as expounded by the Bryan wing of the party, his selection would prove eminently satisfactory and proper.—Palatka Times-Herald.

Mr. Bryan gave notice that, under certain conditions, he would not be bound by the decision of the convention. Now the Brooklyn Eagle gives notice in advance that it will not support the ticket if Mr. Bryan is the nominee. But all good Democrats are bound by the decision of the convention within the scope of its powers. What are those who will not obey? They may be good citizens and most excellent fathers, but they are not good Democrats.—Times-Union.

Did Mr. Bryan really give such notice, and, if he did, what were the conditions? After swallowing the dose that respectable democrats had to swallow in 1904, when the policies of the Brooklyn Eagle and the Times-Union prevailed in the St. Louis convention, it must be an unusual condition indeed that would lead Mr. Bryan to make such a statement.

The Pensacola Journal complains of the quantity of ready-made editorial it finds in the columns of the state press. Well, what of it? The readers of those papers may find the views of the New York writer on national topics as interesting as those of the editor and it saves the latter from expressing himself on state topics on which he is reluctant, perhaps, to express his opinions. It is fully as good as the practice of filling up the columns with clippings from the editorial columns of other state papers—which is only objectionable, however, when carried to an extreme.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

Naturally, the Times-Union, whose advocacy of republican policies under the guise of democracy is everywhere recognized, could hardly be expected to appreciate any nice distinctions of propriety in the practice of sailing under false colors. Tainted editorial matter sent out by a corporation supported "bureau" and published as original by a Florida newspaper is therefore, from the Times-Union's standpoint, eminently proper and ethical stuff upon which Florida readers should feed.

The Pensacola Journal says truly that in recent years the New York World has seldom supported a national democratic nominee. It is also true that in recent years a national democratic nominee has seldom been elected. Not counting Cleveland (whom many democrats say is not a democrat) but whom the World supported, it has been more than half a century since a good old fashioned democrat was elected. We mean of the "Yon Yohnson' type. The babe born when James Buchanan was elected president is now a white-headed old man. Surely it is a long time between drinks. Some people behave as if they do not want a democrat elected.—Ocala Banner.

Would you mind telling us what particular "good old fashioned" type "Yon Yohnson" exemplifies? That he is a good present day, radical democrat we all admit. He is more radical on some questions even that Mr. Bryan. But since you are insisting on a man who, in contra-distinction to Mr. Bryan, may be considered of the safe and sane variety, won't you please advise us wherein the Minnesota statesman fills your specifications?

An Alabamian who advertised that he wanted a wife, received 200 replies to his advertisement. Of course not one of the dimpled, red headed beauties of the gulf coast of Florida answered the advertisement.—Apalachicola Times.

What's the mataer with them. Didn't they want to get married or are they just bashful.

VOX POPULI.

St. Joe, Feb. 2, 1908.

Editor, Pensacola Journal:

I notice under the heading of Farmdale, in The Journal of Jan. 30, where the writer refers to the old St. Joe write-up of the Panama City Pilot with tears. Be not cast down, brother, by the idle vaporings of a few land-lubbers, that think to get a million dollar appropriation on a fifteen-cent port, at the expense of old St. Joseph, a natural harbor that has naturally more water and deeper water than Panama City even, if the aforesaid million dollars were spent on Panama City bar. Now, sit up and listen how we folks over this way do things. We appreciate the fact that St. Joe is the only practical harbor between Pensacola and Apalachicola, and keep quiet—we don't want too much advertising over that way just now. But rest assured that before the frosts of next November, we will have a regular train in operation over the St. Joe division of the Apalachicola Northern Railroad. Then the Panama City people will sit up and say to them: "Well, if I had only known."

From a well-wisher.

J. W. MADDOX.

MILTON

Special to The Journal.

Milton, Feb. 5.—L. M. Rhoda, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. C. H. Jernagan, and children, went to Pensacola today.

A. E. Mann, formerly bookkeeper for the First National Bank here, leaves this week for Pensacola, where he has accepted a position with the Pensacola Bank and Trust company.

Miss Martha Newman has returned home from a two-weeks' visit to relatives in Mobile and New Orleans.

Mr. Sam Pasco, Jr., of Pensacola, is here as the guest of W. J. Williams, Jr., on a hunting trip.

G. R. Newman, of Columbus, Miss., spent several days with his mother here last week.

Mr. Harvey, of Pensacola, arrived this morning and has taken the position of cashier of the bank here.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS.

Lamar Much Improved.

Congressman W. B. Lamar, accompanied by Mrs. Lamar, tarried in St. Augustine awhile the present week. General Lamar contracted the grip in Washington, and was advised by his physician to seek Florida air as the best remedy for his ailment. We are pleased to note that the genial gentleman is already much improved, and that he expressed his determination of paying the Ancient City a visit in March, when he will be pleased to meet the voters of St. John's county and court their favorable recognition of his candidacy for the United States senatorship.—St. Augustine Meteor.

Both Good Men.

A voice from Vernon through the columns of our contemporary says, in substance, "Im impossible to get D. J. Jones to run for state senator, get Buell Cook. He is very popular and will make a good one." Yes, either of these gentlemen would ably represent the people, but it seems at present another case of the "office seek the man." Both have been approached time and again by friends, but each time have "shied the cast," and it remains a question whether either will finally be captured and "brought to gaff."—Chipley Verdict.

Dr. West of Marianna.

Dr. Theop. West, senator from Jackson county, is mentioned as a possible candidate for governor by his home paper, the Marianna Times-Courier. The doctor is said to be a gentleman of the old school, a disciple of Chesterfield. The Madison New Enterprise in a recent comment says: "We rather doubt his ability to mix up in a rough and tumble fight for so great an office as that of governor. We are quite sure that his exceeding politeness would hinder him greatly on the hustings. But notwithstanding, if the doctor should enter the race he would secure a strong following.—Chipley Verdict.

Ceph Wilson.

Col. C. L. Wilson, of Marianna, is a candidate for state attorney of the Pensacola circuit. Ceph Wilson is one of the brightest lawyers in Florida, and the people will honor themselves in electing him to any office to which he aspires.—Gainesville Sun.

Just Incidentally.

Congressman Lamar is spending a few days at Tampa. His visit in that section, he says, is for the purpose of recuperating his health, but incidentally he is working in the interest of his candidacy for the United States senate.—Live Oak Democrat.

An Able Speech.

The Evening News wishes to congratulate Col. T. J. L. Brown on the speech he made at the courthouse last night. It was a very comprehensive and well-balanced utterance, covering the ground admirably, and full of notable declarations.

Especially was Colonel Brown timely and forcible in his utterances on the need of conservatism in Florida, in the necessity for inviting capital rather than repelling it. His doctrine of "more bread and butter and less agitation" is likely to awake a responsive chord all over Florida. Essentially a man of action, Col. Brown's expressions along this line came with the force of sincerity and they were highly appreciated by his audience.

On the great questions of deep water, immigration, financial relief and state's rights, the speech left nothing to be desired. His observations on his opponents were dignified but effective; and he concluded with a brilliant tribute to the democratic cause and to the party's prospects in the approaching election which brought forth liberal applause.

Colonel Brown is apt to make a decidedly favorable impression throughout the state, when he goes forth on his campaign, which will begin immediately after the close of the state fair. He is certainly entitled to the best consideration and support of Tampaites, for he has been a devoted and poorly-paid fighter for this city.

The Evening News publishes his speech today. It should be read by everybody.—Tampa News.

Lamar in Key West.

Among the arrivals on the steamer Montauk last night were Congressman and Mrs. W. B. Lamar. Mr. Lamar recently suffered a severe attack of catarrh and was ordered by his physician to come south for a short time, hence his visit here at this time.

Mr. Lamar is now a candidate for United States senator, and will return to Key West several weeks later to remain a few days to get acquainted with our people.

Mr. Lamar's strong argument for support from this country lies in the fact that he does not come from a seaport town and is not connected with any of the big corporations.—Key West Citizen.

Bryan the Man.

Just as well quit talking about it—William Jennings Bryan will be the next democratic nominee for president. The old adage: "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again," is applicable. Here's hoping his "try" this time will be successful.—Manatee Record.

Brown of Tampa.

On Tuesday night last, in the courthouse in Tampa, before a full house and an appreciative audience, Col. T. J. L. Brown, president of the State Fair Association, and one of the most prominent and influential citizens of South Florida, formally began his campaign for United States senator in a well-delivered and forcible address, embodying his views on current political issues. He will be a more formidable antagonist than the other candidates for the same position have been led to imagine.—Brooksville Argus.

Clay Crawford Strong.

No one has yet been so "bold" as to announce as a candidate for secretary of state against Clay Crawford. Clay, like his noble old father who held the office for so many years prior to his death six years ago, has so engrafted himself into the good-will of the people that it would be a waste of time and money for anyone to oppose him. A public official never loses anything by being polite and courteous to the people, as well as attentive to the duties of the office he was elected to fill.—Gainesville Sun.

The Lamars in Tampa.

Hon. William B. Lamar, representative in congress from the third district, who recently announced his candidacy for the senate and his consequent withdrawal from the race for congress to succeed himself, is a visitor to Tampa today, having arrived yesterday from the east coast, where he spent a week.

Colonel Lamar is accompanied by his beautiful and accomplished wife and his brother, Jeff Lamar.

Speaking of the political outlook, this morning, Colonel Lamar said to a News man that he had no reason to regret the step he had recently taken. In every section of the state which he had visited, he had found substantial encouragement and, oftenest, where least expected. In Jacksonville, for instance, which has two candidates for the senate, he received many pledges of influential support.

Colonel Lamar will spend several days here and will return in March, by which time the campaign will probably be on in full force. He is one of Florida's most distinguished citizens and has risen from step to step in political and official advancement by the force of his personal merit. He will receive much support in Tampa. Mrs. Lamar, who has accompanied him on his present tour of the state, is herself taking an active interest in the political fortunes of her distinguished husband and can "talk politics" with a vim and a familiarity with political conditions that makes her a valuable aid to the congressman. The congressman's brother, who is also with him, is actively attending to his "fences" throughout the state and reports the prospects very favorable.

The Lamars are stopping at the Tampa Bay.—Tampa Herald.

Brown's Slogan.

"More bread and butter and less agitation" is the keynote of Candidate Brown's coming-out address, delivered at Tampa Tuesday night. If it does as well for him as the "full dinner pail" slogan did for the republican party a few years ago he will be our next United States senator.—Starke Telegraph.

Lamar's Still Hunt.

Congressman W. B. Lamar is on a still hunt for that senatorship, and as the "Honorable Bill" is a pretty smooth specimen of the genus politician, it will be a wise move for the other candidates to keep their eyes glued on him. But even if they succeed in this, it will be only another example of "Now you see him and now you don't."—Palatka News.

Bryan the Party's Hope.

Twice Mr. Bryan has been the nominee of his party and in each instance his great personal popularity with the masses of the voters was demonstrated at the polls, and no fair man will deny that the great campaign corruption fund raised by the republican party defeated him both times. Conditions are not such that a large campaign fund can be raised this year. Mr. Bryan has a larger personal following than any other man in the United States today in either party, because he stands for something, and if the democratic party has any chance to win it will throw it away by nominating any man other than Bryan to lead the party.—Clay County Times.

Missed One County.

Congressman W. B. Lamar, who is a candidate for the United States senate, to succeed Senator W. J. Bryan, has been touring the state in the interest of his candidacy, and has visited the most important points on the east coast, and was in Tampa this week. He didn't come down this way, however. Wonder if he thinks the twelve or fifteen hundred voters of Lee county are not valuable enough to visit.—Fort Myers Breeze.

Efforts Born of Envy.

The efforts being made by politicians to keep Bryan from being nominated for the presidency is born of envy. They know that Bryan is the choice of nine out of every ten voters in the democratic party, and yet they pretend to believe that he cannot be elected. Well, if he cannot be elected no democrat can win. It seems to us if we would cease to contend among ourselves and put our time in fighting the republicans, we would stand a splendid chance to elect the next president. Mr. Bryan is surely one of the prominent men in the world today. He is great in intellect, broad in attainments and glorious in moral worth. And yet these solons in congress would say that he cannot draw to himself the party strength. That simply means that they will not fall in line if he is nominated. That they will do what they can to beat him, and will repeat what was done in 1896, when Palmes and Buckner were put up for the one purpose, to weaken Bryan, and aid in the election of the republican candidate. Why will men let selfish interests rule them, where they should think of the public good? If Bryan is elected president, we would have a man who would have the intellectual powers of a Calhoun, and the bravery of an Andrew Jackson. Bryan is the man.—Bartow Record.

A Good Man.

Hon. John F. Richbourg has announced in another column as a candidate for re-election as representative from this county in the next legislature. Having been a member of the legislature he has a record to which to refer, and he is running on his own hook, so to speak. That is, he is not a candidate in combination with any other man or men.—De Funiak Breeze.

The farmers around here are now getting ready for farming by hauling fertilizer by the carload.

BEULAH.

Special to The Journal.

Beulah, Feb. 5.—The stream of Baldwin county farmers with their produce continues to flow to the Deep Water City, where good prices always prevail, and they are loaded both ways, taking home merchandise of every kind in large quantities, and if that three miles of sand beds were allayed a good many more of them would go to Pensacola. The road grader is on this end of the hard road now, and is doing good work, but is working only where the road is clayed and letting the sandy places alone.

Mrs. Annie Maple, of Alabama, a niece of Mrs. James Snowden, has been the guest of relatives here and at her uncle's, Mr. Thomas Barrireau's. She has returned to Quintette, where she will visit other relatives before she returns to her home in Alabama.

The Misses Lena and Maggie Webb and Mary Spare of Pine Forest, attended the teachers' institute at Roberts last Saturday.

The grip is still prevalent and is making sad inroads on the attendance at school.

Rev. C. B. Netherlands preached at Roberts on Sunday, but is now home for a few days.

Rev. Mr. Judah preached at the Beulah Methodist church Saturday evening and Sunday morning, and in spite of the inclement weather and sorry condition of the church, had a good many present to hear him at both meetings.

The little child of Wm. Handrop, who was sick and died at the home of Mr. Handrop's uncle, H. Yonkers, of Pine Forest, was taken to Baldwin county, Ala., last Thursday for burial beside its mother, who died when it was an infant only a few weeks old.

Mr. W. A. Shelby and wife are still sick with the grip.

James Snowden and family attended church at Pine Forest last Sunday, where they heard a fine sermon by the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Roberts.

Plain Face? Did nature give you a plain face? What of it? Make your hair so handsome that every one will forget your face. Make them talk only of the softness, richness, and marvelous beauty of your hair. Ayer's Hair Vigor, "the new kind," does not color the hair. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Your doctor understands the formula of Ayer's Hair Vigor. Ask him about your using it. Do as he says. He knows.

ALL SORTS.

Wife—"What is the matter with James, doctor?"

Doctor—"I fear he has water on the brain."

Wife—"There I always told him this prohibition campaign would set him crazy."—Baltimore American.

When the jury had filed in for at least the fourth time, with no sign of coming to an agreement in the bribery case, the disgusted judge rose up and said: "I discharge this jury."

At this one sensitive talesman, stung to the quick by this abrupt and ill-sounding decision, obstinately faced the judge.

"You can't discharge me, judge!" he retorted.

"Why not?" asked the astonished judge.

"Because," announced the talesman, pointing to the defendant's lawyer, "I'm being paid by that man there."—Lippincott's Magazine.

The bereaved Mrs. O'Leary, with a neighbor, stood sobbing over the coffin of her deceased husband.

"Oh, Mrs. Murphy!" she cried. "O can't belave Pat's lyin' there dead. He's only ashlape."

"Shure, he do look loike he wor onuly ashlape," returned her sympathizer. "Call to him, Mrs. O'Leary—call to Pat jist as ye used to to wake him iv'ry mornin'!"

Mrs. O'Leary dashed away her tears and called vehemently:

"Git up, ye lazy baste, an' go out an' hunt fer a job."—Judge.

A Toronto man who visited England last summer appears to think that country the champion tiptaker. He says: "Well, I had tipped every man from the swell gent who seemed to own the house of commons, down to the hireling who gummed the wrong labels on my luggage, and I went into the waiting room on the landing stage at Liverpool to wash my hands of everything English, and what do you think stared me in the face when I had finished? A placard, saying: 'Please tip the basin!' I'll be hanged if I did."—Exchange.
