Rep. Henry: 'Daytona Beach is on its way up'

By Diane M. Carey
dcarey@hometownnewsol.com

State leaders in Tallahassee have noticed a difference in Daytona Beach, according to State Rep. Patrick Henry, D-Daytona Beach.

Rep. Henry, who addressed Daytona Beach City Commission at its meeting June 20, said, "The boom that is going on in Daytona is talked about in Tallahassee. So, I want to commend this commission for the things you got going on in Daytona. The tarnished image we once had is truly being erased and the City of Daytona Beach is on its way up."

Rep. Henry is a former commission member while his siblings are Derrick Henry, Daytona Beach mayor, and Dannette Henry, Zone 5 city commissioner.

He is concerned by the Legislature's efforts to take power away from city and county governments, but he believes a happy medium can be reached.

Rep. Henry also noted Daytona Beach is ahead of the curve regarding school safety, because "all our schools already have a Daytona Beach police officer stationed at the school."

The Legislature's unfunded mandates for county school districts is a problem, he said. "Just like we fund everything else, we can find a way to make our schools safe. The money is there somewhere. We as legislators are just going to have to step up to the plate and say this is what we want to do. I know for a fact we can secure schools if we just start thinking a little outside the box."

Marijuana dispensaries also were mentioned by Rep. Henry as an area Daytona Beach must address a s up throughout the state.

Rep. Henry was lauded by commissioners for getting a boat inspection bill and the Mary McLeod Bethune statue bill passed as a freshman legislator.

Also in the meeting, Tony Grippa and Frank Molnar of the Beachside Redevelopment Committee implored commissioners to follow the recommen-

Council waives transition, county manager gone

By Gina McKee
gmckee@hometownnewsol.com

Just one week after James Dinneen announced he would be leaving his post as Volusia County Manager in January, the Volusia County Council voted 6-1 to approve his request to waive the six-month transitional period in his contract to leave immediately.

Several county residents, along with Volusia County Sheriff Mike Chitwood, Councilwoman Heather Post and others spoke at an emotional council meeting June 19, calling for Mr. Dinneen's immediate dismissal from what they called a tenure filled with malfeasance, insubordination and lack of honesty.

His early release from his contract, approved 6-1 by council with Ms. Post casting the only vote to terminate based on malfeasance and insubordination, ended his 12 years with the county June 22 and provided a severance, unpaid leave and benefits payout of more than $405,000. Deputy County Manager George Recktenwald will serve as interim county manager.

"(Mr. Dinneen) came to me and said he would like to be relieved. He is obligated to give us six months," Volusia County Chair Ed Kelly told the packed council chambers while protesters held up signs calling for the council to "fire" Mr. Dinneen. "In addition to that, I didn't want to leave the county in a position without a county manager, so I asked (Mr. Recktenwald) if

Jewish Federation director a tireless humanitarian

By Diane M. Carey
dcarey@hometownnewsol.com

Stage 4 ovarian cancer should slow you down a bit.

But in between chemotherapy treatments, Gloria Max still works seven days a week to make sure programs formed under her 25-year reign as executive director of the Jewish Federation of Volusia and Flagler Counties continue to flourish.

Ms. Max, 77, was diagnosed two and a half years ago and was in remission for 18 months, but the cancer has returned. What hasn't changed is her passion and love for the work she does, despite severe neuropathy and rashes.

"They don't even know if the chemo is going to work," she said.

"I go to work every day because it gives me energy," Ms. Max said. "If I stayed home, I would pity myself. I see people so much worse than I. When I help somebody, it makes me feel better. I forget about my troubles. Don't pity me. I enjoy helping people. I believe in helping people regardless of race or religion."

Programs she has nurtured include the Jerry Dolinar Food Bank, the School Supply Back Pack program and the newest program, the Disaster Aid program. For the latter, money and/or supplies are sent wherever the need exists, such as internationally to the disadvantaged in Israel. The federation has built nine bomb shelters there, which are used as community centers during the day. Ms. Max noted anti-Semitism still exists and many amazing works of charity are done behind the scenes by Jewish people, especially people from Israel.

Still, about 98 percent of the people the federation helps are not Jewish. Also, she noted the federation

Schools, hospitals ink pact

By Gina McKee
gmckee@hometownnewsol.com

Volusia County Schools and Florida Hospital inked a five-year, $2 million partnership, the first of its kind in the state for health education.

At a special meeting June 19 at Deltona High School, Volusia County School Board members voted unanimously to approve the program. Vice Chairman Dr. John Hill was absent.

"This Florida Hospital Healthy Futures Program is a first of its kind," said David Ottati, Central Florida Hospital North Region CEO. "This is a cool step in the right direction in having a public entity and a private entity partner for the betterment of the school and the kids."

The agreement designates Florida Hospital as the official healthcare champion of Volusia County Schools and grants the hospital system official naming rights to each of the health care academies, of which there are six, and nine academic health care prothe council would approve it, if he would serve as interim county manager for 90 days. He agreed, so long as he would not be considered for the permanent position."

More than once during the meeting, Chair Kelly had to warn a rowdy crowd of protesters to maintain respectful decorum, and at least one resident was escorted from council chambers. He also cautioned council members to stay on topic and discuss only the vote or issue at hand.

"We're not going to run this like we did the last time, we're not going to have scattered comments all over the place, we are going to discuss the issue," Chair Kelly said. "The issue is whether or not we are going to relieve him of his obligation. Please be nice. Can you not be nice? I have to put up with this stuff on Facebook, I shouldn't have to deal with it here."

Mr. Dinneen

Prior to casting her lone vote for termination with cause, Councilwoman Post said the payout of severance in the county manager's contract could be negated by council with such a vote, relieving the county of its obligation to pay. No other council members joined her in that vote.

"I think just cause has been given repeatedly," she said. "I think there's significant cause for insubordination, absolutely. There's significant cause for misconduct, malfeasance, violation of duties to the county for honesty. All of those are listed in his contract as terms for just cause."

County Attorney Dan Eckert, however, disagreed, and said he has given his legal opinion that he does not believe there is just cause for those items.

"That's my opinion. If you would disagree with that, then respectfully, you would vote against the motion," Mr. Eckert said. "I think the county would be unsuccessful in litigation for that."

dations of a comprehensive report from the committee.

"We must do everything we can to clean up beachside," Mr. Grippa said. "I really believe beachside isn't getting its fair share of infrastructure (overhaul)."

Recommendations also included cracking down on code violations and creating space for new hotels and restaurants to be built. Another concept discussed was Daytona embracing a year-long economy rather than being driven by special events.

Both speakers were encouraged by new hotels emerging beachside.

In other business, commissioners unanimously approved rezoning 3.8 acres of land at 605 Glenview Blvd. and 640 N. Atlantic Ave. from residential/professional and tourist/office/restaurant to planned development-general to allow for renovation of the Ocean Breeze Hotel and building of a parking structure, paving the way for the Marriott Renaissance Hotel. A comprehensive plan change also was approved to allow the maximum building height to up to 76 feet for the parking garage on Glenview.

The parking garage height, which is double what would have been allowed, disturbed some area residents.

Joyce Case said, "It's too big, it's too tall. Make it smaller."

Commissioners also approved land use and zoning changes at Dunn and Mason avenues, west of Williamson Boulevard, for Project Beta, which primarily involves a new Costa del Mar Sunglasses headquarters

Commissioners as well as citizens expressed concerns for the increased aggressiveness of panhandlers at intersections throughout the city.

"The homeless are bombarding drivers," Ms. Henry said. "I know we have an epidemic. I know we have a problem. At the same time our residents need to be safe."

Mayor Henry added that not all the panhandlers are homeless, some do it is a business.

May sends rain totals soaring

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

May's wet weather pushed rainfall totals across the St. Johns River Water Management District to double the average, district officials reported.

For May, the districtwide rainfall total was 8.8 inches compared to the average of 3.5 inches. This is a departure from last year's data when rainfall was trending significantly below average.

While May's rainfall has been reported as record setting, it wasn't record setting in all areas of the district, with weather stations in Jacksonville, Orlando, Daytona Beach and Vero Beach having recorded more rain in prior years.

•Indian River County had the highest monthly rainfall, with 11.6 inches, followed by Seminole and Volusia, with just over 10 inches.

•Twelve-month rainfall totals are above average, with a zone of unusually high rainfall running through northern Alachua, Putnam, southwest St. Johns and northwest Flagler counties.

•Putnam County had the highest 12-month rainfall of 76 inches.

•Districtwide, the annual total is 16.5 inches above average.

Probing the branches of the family tree

LAND LINES
DAN SMITH

At some point you have probably considered having your DNA tested.

After, all it is a big part of human nature to be curious about our ancestors. There is something satisfying about discovering the intricacies of our own make up. Unlike those who think they have lived several past lives and once lived as Alexander The Great or Helen Of Troy, DNA testing is based on hard facts.

When this DNA thing became popular, I for one did not buy into the act of taking every DNA result as nothing less than the absolute truth. DNA testing rapidly became irrefutable fact in court cases and many criminals who otherwise would have gone free were jailed. At times, cases were decided solely on that testing and still are.

What bothered me from the beginning was not the science, but the people who were performing it. Any time people are involved, there is room for error. Sometimes accidentally, but lately it seems more and more instances of wrongdoing by lab technicians are happening.

Any time there is a human element involved there is a possibility of error or outright fraud. Now it turns out samples have been mishandled and mislabeled all across the world. In one instance, it was determined two people working in the same lab had managed to mix their own DNA into thousands of samples. In one case a lab worker left a random sample at a crime scene in order to get her boyfriend off the hook for murder. Far fetched? Maybe, but it would be naive to believe that those things won't happen.

In Texas, the Dallas testing facility has been shut down after it was discovered hundreds of cases may have been bungled due to faulty DNA testing. In a state where there is more executions than any other, you would think accuracy would be foremost. Their problems go all the way back to 1992 and are now being re-examined.

In Australia, a man went to court on a murder charge when his DNA was found at the crime scene. With such fool proof evidence, his attorney told him to plead guilty and try for a lesser sentence. Eventually it was discovered he and a suspect with the same name had their DNA mixed up at the lab and he was released. He spent more than a decade in the pokey.

There is a problem with DNA when innocent people who chose to be tested to discover more about their family tree wind up as police evidence in a criminal case. That happened in California when authorities tapped into an ancestry data base and found relatives of the suspect that had been dubbed "The Golden State Killer." That resulted in the capture of a 72-year-old former police officer.

In another case, a popular ancestry website was hacked and 92 million customers had their DNA in the hands of criminal investigators. Look, when you put your DNA onto the Net, which is what you are doing when you buy into one of those ancestry sites, you open yourself up for all sorts of problems.

Right now cold case detectives are subpoenaing those companies for their records so they can search for a distant match that will put them on the right track. We all want the criminals to be caught, but what if your DNA results in a relative going to jail on a false charge? It could happen. Think long and hard before putting your DNA out there. We all love science, but the people who perform it are not perfect.

absorbs all administrative costs, so all donations go directly to the programs.

For the food bank, there is a screening process to make sure people receiving food are truly needy. People can potentially receive food each month, but they also have to qualify each month.

"We make up the bags according to the size of the family," Ms. Max said. "We help 24,000 people a year (through the food bank program) and 7,000 kids (through the school supply program)" she said.

The school supplies are given out at all educational levels and are relevant for the child's age and grade. The federation relies on school counselors to determine student eligibility.

"I want it to go to the kids that really need it," Ms. Max said. "We give quality stuff and I am really proud of it."

Schoolchildren throughout Volusia and Flagler counties benefit from the program.

The Volusia County School Board recently honored Ms. Max for her "generous donations and continued commitment" to local schools.

School Board member Carl Persis joked that people cannot say no to Ms. Max when she calls asking for help for the federation's school backpack project or Jerry Doliner Food Bank. Ms. Max replied by asking for donations at the meeting.

The federation has a board of directors and about 40 volunteers. It also sponsors other events, such as bringing in internationally known speakers, that are free and open to the public.

Raymond Max, 84, volunteers at the food bank and supports all his wife's endeavors. They will be married 59 years this fall. They have two adult children.

"We grew up together," Mr. Max said. "We had a successful business. She is incredible. I appreciate her. I have never missed a meal in my life with her. I don't understand why (the cancer) is happening to her. She still takes care of me. She is such a good woman. She is my everything."

Ms. Max admits she gets all the glory.

"He stays in the background," she said. "He keeps this place clean."

As to her legacy, she wants people to know, "I was allowed to help people, I was allowed to give back. I think if more people who are alone would go to an organization and help them, they would feel better."

Key people for the programs, she said, include her assistant Janice Sumner, "right hand woman" and all the volunteers, especially George Gosselin, Marta Weisberg and Cory Lancaster.

grams at middle and high schools, according to information provided by the school system.

While other districts have entered into naming rights agreements for athletic facilities, this agreement is unique in that it creates educational opportunities for students, school officials said.

"It's an honor to present this historic partnership between Volusia County Schools and Florida Hospital," Superintendent James Russell said. "The goal is to create pathways that allow students and parents to directly connect coursework to industry certifications, work-based learning opportunities, that will prepare students for careers in the healthcare industry."

It also helps with funding, Mr. Russell said. "The question for Volusia County Schools continues to be one of funding. Career and technical education programs are very costly, and although the need is clear, funding from the state is inadequate."

The agreement also provides assistance to the district in three key areas, which are chronic absenteeism, student athlete health and internship programs.

"(Of the) 63,000 kids who go to this school district, we have over 11,000 with chronic absenteeism," Mr. Ottati said. "That is unacceptable, and we've got to do everything we can to improve that … whether it's health related or any other reason, and that is part of this program."

Florida Hospital will provide a liaison to work with school nurses, provide chronic disease education to parents and students, and provide E-Care and telemedicine services, with full parent consent and collaboration, at 36 of the schools with the highest absenteeism rates, according to information provided by the district.

For student athlete health, Florida Hospital will provide access to its Concussion Program, including testing services and training. Florida Hospital also will assist with pre-participation sports screenings for students, provide a dedicated certified athletic trainer to work with school trainers, and training to coaches and athletic trainers, according to a school district news release.

Also, Florida Hospital will have the opportunity to establish student internship programs at each high school health care academy in coordination with the district's career and vocational education programs, and will also arrange for hospital tours for students and health care professional speaking events at schools.

High school job fairs also are part of the agreement, along with healthcare information and educational materials for all students.

"We are invested in the future of Volusia County. We're constantly investing more and more into the county for the betterment of this community," Mr. Ottati said. "We want to make sure that our school systems continue to improve. We want our kids to have solid jobs when they leave … whether it's with us or any other entity. That is a win for the community and that is our intent for this agreement, to help our kids continue to be successful in life."

CRIME STOPPERS

(888) 277-TIPS

Wanted

There has been a recent spike in motor vehicle thefts and vehicle break-ins occurring in the driveways of private residences and shopping complexes throughout the City of Ormond Beach. Victims are leaving valuables such as purses, firearms, wallets, GPS devices, computers and cell phones in plain view in their cars and trucks. Victims are usually leaving the vehicles unlocked. In some cases, they are leaving the keys to the vehicle inside the unlocked vehicles, which has resulted in four vehicles being stolen this month. The Ormond Beach Police Department urges you, your family and guests to always remove valuables from vehicles and be sure to lock the doors.

Following a few easy crime prevention tips could prevent a crime from occurring.

•Remove all valuables from the interior of your vehicle, to include garage door remotes.

•Always lock your vehicle and activate the alarm, if installed.

•Park in well-lit areas.

•Immediately report suspicious activity when you see it.

Officers are increasing their patrols, but ask your help to reduce these crimes of opportunity by rolling up windows, locking your doors and removing valuables from your cars and trucks.

For further information on how to prevent these and other types of crimes, contact OBPD Community Outreach @ (386) 676-3526 or (386) 676-3553.

The Ormond Beach Police Department provides nightly reminders, called the "9PM Routine" on its Facebook page, for people to lock their cars and remove their valuables.

Better plans than people

My rant is about people who want to call plants invasive, but we are the most invasive species on the planet.

How are we going to call another species invasive when we are so invasive. I think it is better to have too many plants than humans.

Don't pay him

Jim Dineen is getting almost half a million dollars as severance pay.

How many thousands of dollars did he shortchange Volusia County in impact fees. I think we should not pay him.

In response to: 'Service desk snubbed'

I can go along with the comment that the service desk should be for service and not for check out.

However, since they always do this, they need to make a uniform policy and not leave it up from a clerk to decide who can check out and who cannot.

Cancel bike day

Last weekend, it was bike day in New Smyrna Beach.

I don't know why we put bike lanes in when they won't use them. They want to ride all over the road. Then I went to a restaurant on Flagler Avenue that I go to frequently, and even those people were having trouble with rude bikers.

This Bike Day thing needs to be canceled. We don't need this in New Smyrna Beach.

Is it really progress?

There are those who define progress as the extent to which they push aside the natural world to make way for money-making ventures and satisfy human ambition, e.g. the Granada Pointe project.

Progress is, in essence, the process of moving forward. This may mean improving quality of life. On the other hand, a move forward can take one onto a railroad crossing in the path of an oncoming train. A step forward may send one hurtling over a cliff.

So it may be seen that "progress," in a positive or negative direction, is indeed in the eye – or pocket - of the beholder.

Vote to protect quality of life

Political Action Groups will be backing some New Smyrna Beach mayor and commissioner candidates with unlimited funds.

These PACs do not care what impact development has on us. They want only to have nonstop building of chain stores and restaurants and apartments and townhouses and … minimum wage jobs.

They don't care about our traffic or our environment. They don't care that our tax dollars will be paying for the destruction. They don't care if we have enough emergency personnel. Just "Build, Baby, Build".

Tell them New Smyrna Beach is not for sale. Vote in the August primary for candidates who will protect your quality of life.

Pay attention to pedestrian crossings

It seems there is big time misunderstanding regarding when to stop and where, when pedestrians are crossing A1A.

If you are a local and frequent A1A as we do, you will notice a lot of out-of-state license plates traveling along this corridor.

It seems as though these travelers either don't read our state law signs regarding stopping at designated crosswalks, or could care less. Obviously they are confused. This needs more clarification.

We have noticed when stopping either north or south bound to let someone cross, these people crossing have to take a calculated guess if the car coming in the opposite direction is actually going to stop for them as they are half way across.

We have observed cars sailing right through.

Then there are the ultra polite thinking drivers who decide abruptly to stop where there is no crosswalk. They then wave people across with beach chairs etc. Although this is a kind gesture, we have witnessed the potential for rear-end pile ups caused by having to be a mind reader as to these stops. Seems these polite people see what's in front of them with no concern about who is behind them.

Either we become consistent with these crossing laws or we will see a tragedy on our roads. Pay attention, it is happening much too often.

In response to: 'Edgewater is not that bad'

Regarding Edgewater restaurants, I am a retiree that enjoys good restaurant meals.

Edgewater has 30th Street Eatery, Riptides and Florida Roadhouse that serves good food.

If I am not wanting the locals, it's not a big deal to drive 20 minutes to New Smyrna.

In response to: 'Edgewater is not that bad'

I never said I was "retired." I don't know a handful of retirees making a decision on anything.

I thought since you knew how many auto and dollar stores there are from here to Daytona Beach, you must have time on your hands. Tell us. How many are there?

I volunteer at a food pantry. These people are grateful to have a meal and cold beverage.

Summer is challenging. Schools are out and there are families living in their car. The heat can take a toll on anyone living on the street. And you want what again?

Lots of folks traveling for the 4th of July

VOLUSIA BUSINESS
CECIL G. BRUMLEY

AAA is predicting a record-breaking 46.9 million Americans will travel more than 50 miles away from home for the Fourth of July holiday period next week, which the auto club defines at Tuesday, July 3, to Sunday, July 8.

You can definitely expect many of those Americans as well as a healthy dose of international travelers will find their way to Volusia County.

"We are already seeing a busy summer travel season and Independence Day will be no exception," said Vicky Evans, an AAA assistant vice president in a news release. "Consumers remain confident in the economy and have additional disposable income to put toward a summer getaway."

For Volusia tourism promoters, the Independence Day holiday was probably an easy sell with the beach and a lot of holiday celebrations. Topping it off with a NASCAR race weekend means if you plan to do anything in the coming week, you'll want to get there early.

It also will help that gasoline prices have been on the decline recently, dropping to an average of $2.71 in Volusia County. Prices at the pump are slightly higher across Florida and the nation, but since peaking at $2.97 Memorial Day weekend, the national average has declined about 10 cents.

"Declining gas prices will give Americans one more reason to celebrate this Independence Day," said Mark Jenkins, an AAA spokesman in the release. "After paying some of the highest gas prices in more than three years, this break couldn't come at a better time, as Americans prepare for the most-traveled holiday of the summer."

INRIX, in collaboration with AAA, predicts drivers will experience the worst congestion over the holiday week on Tuesday, July 3 in the late afternoon – as commuters leave work early and mix with holiday travelers. Travel times could increase two-fold in the major metros across the U.S.

According to AAA's Leisure Travel Index, travelers taking to the skies will pay an average $171 for a round-trip flight along the top 40 domestic routes. That is the lowest Independence Day airfare in five years, and 9 percent less than last year.

However, travelers can expect to pay more to rent a car and stay at mid-range hotels this Independence Day. At $66, the average daily cost of a car rental is a slight increase of 2 percent over last year. The average nightly rate at AAA Two Diamond hotels is $147, 11 percent more than last year, while AAA Three Diamond hotels will average $187, a 2 percent year-over-year increase.

A Sound Choice with Florida State Hearing Aids

Touch. Taste. Sight. Smell. Sound. All important. The last one, sound, is what Florida State Hearing Aids specializes in.

Owner Julie Pruitt opened Florida State Hearing Aids Inc. in 2004 "in order to bring a more affordable and wider variety of hearing aids to my clientele," she said.

Ms Pruitt is assisted by Patient Care Coordinator Samantha Carpenter whose job is to schedule patients' appointments, pre-authorizations, billing, and assist with the cleaning and maintenance of hearing aids. She has been with Florida State Hearing Aids for six years, working an additional eight years with Ms Pruitt before that.

When asked what makes her business unique, Ms. Pruitt said, "My business gives individual one on one service to every client. You won't walk in two weeks after you purchase your hearing aids and get a random person that doesn't really care about you at all, they don't know you, they didn't test or fit you, and you feel left out in the cold.

"There is a lot of competition in the newspapers advertising low, low prices on hearing aids," she said. "The problem is in the small print. I don't do bait and switch ads. It is insulting to today's consumer."

FREE or discounted hearing aids for GEHA, APWU, Federal employees, Empire Plan, Epic and local insurances. We also work with Veteran Affairs and offer free programming for our Veterans.

Should I, or shouldn't I, liquidate my Roth?

PLAN STRONGER
DAVID D. HOLLAND

I'd like to remind my readers that I love to get your questions, so keep them coming!

I heard from "Susan," a woman in New Smyrna Beach, who is trying to decide whether or not to liquidate her Roth IRA.

This is what I know about Susan. She is 65, recently retired, married, has Individual Retirement Accounts and a $20,000 Roth IRA, which she's owned for more than five years; she and her husband own a home worth $250,000 and they have a mortgage of $100,000. Her problem, however, is she doesn't have any cash in case of emergencies.

I commend Susan for planning ahead! You might know from my previous columns, I am a big believer in maintaining a hardy emergency account. You never know when the car will break down, the refrigerator will quit, or you'll be required to meet large deductibles not covered by your insurance policies.

My recommendation could be for, or against, liquidation of Susan's Roth account. A Roth can serve as a supplemental emergency fund without liquidating it, as long as the cash is not needed immediately. Should an emergency arise, and Susan can wait a week or two to receive her funds, the Roth doesn't really have to be converted to cash beforehand.

However, and this is a big however, if the Roth money is invested in the stock market, the value of the Roth account can, and will, fluctuate.

It wasn't too many years ago the stock market plunged 40 percent. If that were to happen when Susan needed money from her Roth account, the current $20,000 value could sink to just $12,000! If this potential volatility is a concern to Susan, I would recommend she liquidate part or all of the account and deposit the money in her bank. She won't be earning much interest, but she will feel more confident the full amount will be there if she needs it. Plus, she will have quick and easy access to the funds.

Another option for Susan might be to consider the equity in her home for potential cash. She could apply for a traditional refinance, a reverse mortgage loan or reverse mortgage line of credit. She would still have to pay homeowners insurance, property taxes and home maintenance, but she would gain access to the additional cash these products could afford.

What's great about Susan's situation is that she doesn't have to take money from her regular IRAs, because she has other options available. Those IRA accounts can continue to work hard for her until she absolutely needs to pull from them, or until she has to take required minimum distributions at age 70-1/2.

It was good to hear from Susan. She's taking stock of what she has, thinking about the future and asking great questions. Do these things and you, too, will PlanStronger!

City helps establish Little Free Libraries

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

The City of Daytona has begun a Summer Reading Kickoff with the installation of several Little Free Libraries outside of recreation centers throughout the city.

At the libraries, you can take a book, read it and return it, or read it and cherish it forever.

The libraries are a joint project between Agnes Ingram and Alycia Severson, instructors at Seabreeze High School, whose grant from the Futures Foundation of Volusia County provided the funding. Control of the libraries are given over to a steward, who keeps them full and maintained. The steward for these libraries is Vincent Terry of the Daytona Beach Department of Leisure Services.

With help from the Seabreeze High Construction Department, headed by Ray Grimmard; local carpenter John F. Eaton; and materials provided by Daytona Beach Sunchasers, a local motorcycle club, the Little Free Libraries were built. They were delivered to art teachers Amanda Roig at Westside Elementary School and Toni Roberts at Palm Terrace Elementary School. Their students painted the units with colorful, fun designs and messages.

Ms. Roig said she had the students explain to their classes what the boxes are and why they are important. She wanted to send a positive message about reading on the sides of the boxes. On the side of one library is a worm popping out of a book, with the words "Be a Bookworm."

The nationwide registry of Little Free Libraries can be found at littlefreelibraries.org.

There are plans to hang an LFL at the Midtown Cultural and Educational Center, the Dickerson Center and the Yvonne Scarlett-Golden Center. More libraries will be added over time.

To donate books to the libraries, call Mr. Terry at (386) 671-5830. Participants may also take them to Seabreeze's main office from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday to Thursday throughout the summer.

Families sought to serve as hosts for exchange students

ASSE International Student Exchange Programs, in cooperation with community high schools around the USA, is looking for families to host boys and girls ages of 15 to 18 from Norway, Denmark, Spain, Italy, Japan and other countries.

ASSE students come with an enthusiasm to practice their English and experience American culture — food, sports, shopping and more. They also love to share their own culture and language with their host families. Host families welcome these students into their family, not as a guest, but as a family member, giving both the students and families a rich cultural experience.

Also, ASSE students have pocket money for personal expenses and full health, accident and liability insurance. ASSE students are academically selected into the program, and host families can choose their student from a wide variety of backgrounds, countries and personal interests.

To participate, call (800) 473-0696 or visit host.asse.com.

FEMA hazard grant awarded

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

The City of Ormond Beach was recently awarded a grant from the FEMA Hazard Mitigation Grant Program for $811,842, about 75 percent of the cost to design, permit and survey the Fleming Avenue Pump Station at Central Park, Lake 5.

The city will have to pay $270,614 for the design phase.

The City submitted the project in June 2017 to the Florida Division of Emergency Management for FEMA funding under the Hurricane Matthew federal disaster declaration.

The pump station is expected to help the Laurel Creek Drainage Basin, where 72 hours were flooded in the May 2009 no name storm.

The City Commission authorized CDM-Smith to perform an investigation of the flooded areas to see what could be done to protect against future flooding. The study recommended a two-phase approach to improve the drainage. Phase 1 consisted of connecting the Central Park lakes along with Laurel Creek, and building flap gates and an emergency pump, infrastructure piping and connection location at Wilmette Avenue.

The benefits for Phase 1 improvements, which were completed in 2014, are mostly recognized during lesser storm events as opposed to the 100-year and May 2009 storm events. The Phase 1 improvements reduced the frequency of road flooding and provided the infrastructure for Phase 2. The cost for the Phase 1 improvements was $4.80 million with nearly $3.1 million in grant funding.

The recently approved Phase 2 improvements will expand the connection of the water bodies and provide a means to draw down the five lakes more rapidly during extreme storm events.

The pump station will be located next to the southernmost Central Park Lake, and would discharge to the Halifax River via a force main along the Fleming Avenue corridor.

The total estimated cost for Phase 2 of the project is $8.7 million.

newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

Continuing a longstanding Daytona International Speedway tradition, three Medal of Honor recipients, all representing the U.S. Army, will be honored during the 60th annual Coke Zero Sugar 400 Weekend July 5-7 at Daytona International Speedway.

This is the 10th consecutive year DIS has saluted Medal of Honor recipients, a tradition instituted in the 1970s by Bill France Sr., the founder of DIS and NASCAR.

Being recognized this year are Command Sgt. Major Gary Littrell (Vietnam), Master Sgt. Leroy Petry (War in Afghanistan) and Staff Sgt. Don Jenkins (Vietnam).

Throughout the course of the holiday weekend, the three will participate in:

•Medal of Honor luncheon Friday, July 6, at the Bill France Room in the DIS Ticket and Tours Building

•Monster Energy NASCAR Cup Series and NASCAR Xfinity Series drivers' meetings

•Pre-race ceremonies.

"Recognizing Medal of Honor recipients is one of the most important traditions we have at DIS," said speedway President Chip Wile. "This recognition is rooted in our facility's history, while also being embedded in the values all Americans hold dear. It is a true privilege to have these America heroes join us for our race weekend."

Fishing in the land of giants

FISHING WITH DAN

I met Capt. Brad Kayholm in New Smyrna Beach at the Outrigger boat ramp right at 5:30 a.m.

Now that may sound insignificant, but I had to leave my home in Ormond-by-the-Sea at 4:45 a.m. That requires a dedication that only a few anglers will understand.

As I pulled up in the dark, sure enough Brad and his dad, Rick, were sitting in the already launched boat. I was pleased to see Rick along for I knew he had been battling serious health problems. Big Daddy Kayholm said his only sacrifice would be to not fish on this trip. He was along for the company and spectacle that usually happens when we three get together.

A couple miles down the Indian River and we slowed so Capt. Brad could view his new Hummingbird Helex fish finder. The thing looks like a 16-inch color TV, and soon Brad saw what he was looking for. No anchoring on this modern vessel. The big remote control trolling motor would automatically hold us in one place despite the rapidly moving tide.

We baited with four-inch live croakers and I scored first. A hard hit made me believe I had a red drum, but it turned out to be a huge sail catfish. As it was released, we couldn't help but admire the long fins of the big fish. It probably went about 7 pounds with a head as big as a large grapefruit.

It was right at dawn when I hooked up with a large red. This fight would be monumental. Four long runs with me only able to hang on and hope the reel's drag would not seize up before the monster began doing that telltale head shake.

And what a head it was! Brad put the net under the big red drum, but only the head would fit. Now understand, Capt. Brad is a full-sized guy, but for just a second I was not sure he would be strong enough to get the thing into the boat.

Sometimes Dan Smith just gets a little too excited about fish he catches. Rick Kayholm of Wham Bam Charters really shouldn't encourage him.

You may recall a couple years back, Brad and his Wham Bam Charters put me on my all-time largest red fish at 44 inches in length. This one was 47-inches long and, although we didn't weigh it, we all agreed it had to go about 35 pounds. After posing with the big fish, I kissed it and set it free.

After that we each caught more very large sail cats and then I was on with a red larger than the first. The fight just lasted too long (for me) and the hook finally pulled free. Could it have been a 50-incher? I'll never know, but it felt like it.

My next hookup was with a stingray that was at least 30 inches wide. That big flattie went to the bottom and just stayed there. It became a test of wills and equipment, but I won. Just then I'm thinking "is everything oversized in this place?"

Folks, I have often told you about young Brad Kayholm and his Wham Bam Charters. As we all know, fishing is unpredictable, but Capt. Brad is as consistent as any angler I have ever fished with. To get in on this kind of fun, give him a call at (386) 314-8553 and get on his waiting list. The next time he gets on such a fishing bonanza he will give you a call to join him. I have been fishing for red drum for more than 60 years and he has put me on my best ones twice in recent years. Amazing! Call Capt. Brad for the trip of a lifetime.

Dan Smith has fished the waters of Volusia County for more than 40 years. Email questions and comments to fishwdan@att.net. His book, "I Swear the Snook Drowned," is available for purchase for $10.95 at (386) 441-7793.

I love salads, especially with dressing

CHEF COSTA'S COOKING CORNER
COSTA MAGOULAS

Salads have been with us from the times of the Babylonians when they would use oil and vinegar to season greens.

Hippocrates, the ancient Greek physician, believed salads were healthy to eat and should be served first as they would slip through the system easily and make room for other foods.

By the way, the Greek salads we all enjoy today are not what the ancient Greek or modern Greeks eat for salad. A true Greek salad, or what is called a peasant salad, is made with tomatoes, green peppers, onions, cucumbers, feta cheese, seasoning, olive oil and vinegar. They were no greens used at all. It has been Americanized throughout the years.

Salad comes from the Latin word "herba salta" or salted herbs. The Romans would eat greens with a dressing containing a lot of salt. Salads have a rich history. Each generation of civilizations have left their mark on this corner of the culinary world, however, through the ages, the salad remained greens or cooked vegetables with large amounts of oil, a little vinegar, and seasoning. They were served wet.

It wasn't until the early part of the 20th century that Americans brought the lowly salad to great heights with the development of salad dressings. Commercial dressing and sauces were not available until Joe Marzetti, a restaurant owner in 1896, began serving a variety of dressings to his customers. He eventually when on to bottle these dressings and sell them to the public. Richard Hellmann, a deli owner in New York, began selling his blue ribbon mayonnaise to the public after a strong consumer demand.

The American public took it from there. Ambrosia, carrot, chicken, shrimp, Cobb, cole slaw, potato salad, Waldorf and, of course, the great milestone in salad history … Jell-O salads! In 1930, lime Jell-O was introduced, which triggered decades of molded salads. I am afraid I still think of Jell-O as a dessert.

Salads are popular because they are healthy and easy to prepare. They have evolved into an appetizer, entrée or dessert. The ingredients can be anything you want them to be to mix together with the appropriate dressing. I love to take leftovers and make salads. So, with that in mind, I have included some simple dressing recipes you can make at home to add to anything you want to mix together, well almost anything. Meatballs and spaghetti I think should just be reheated.

Ranch Dressing 1-1/3 cups

1 cup mayonnaise
1/3 cup buttermilk
2 tsps. Garlic salt
½ tsp ground peppers
2 tbsps dried parsley
1 tsp vinegar
1 scallion, cut small

Place all ingredients in a bowl and mix well. Refrigerate.

Blue Cheese dressing 2-4 servings

½ lb. blue cheese
1 cup mayonnaise
¾ cup sour cream
½ lemon, juiced
splash of hot sauce

Place all ingredients in a bowl and mix well. Refrigerate.

Honey Mustard Dressing 12 servings

¾ cup mayonnaise
2 tbsps mustard
3 tbsps honey
1 tbsp lemon juice

Place all ingredients in a bowl and mix well. Refrigerate.

Raspberry Vinaigrette 12 servings

1 cup balsamic vinegar
1 cup olive oil
1 teaspoon dried basil
dash pepper

Cook vinegar over medium heat until it begins to thicken. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Set aside and cool.

Oregano Scented Cream 1 cup

1 tablespoon dried oregano
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Add all the ingredients together in a bowl and mix well. Let rest. The cream will thicken in 5-10 minutes. Spoon over salads of choice.
