South Daytona Councilwoman retiring

South Daytona Councilwoman Nancy Z. Long announced July 10 she is withdrawing as a candidate for Seat 2 to allow her the opportunity to travel and visit family members who live out of the country.

City Manager Joseph Yarbrough said Ms. Long's dedication and long service to the city is appreciated. "Nancy brought a passion and love of this city to the council. We

Report says Beachside Daytona set to blossom

By Diane M. Carey
dcarey@hometownnewsol.com

It may not happen as quickly as many people would like, but local leaders are excited about recommendations and plans to revitalize Volusia County's beachside area.

The Daytona Regional Chamber of Commerce heard Thursday, July 12, about the Beachside Redevelopment Committee's recommendations at the monthly Eggs & Issues breakfast program at LPGA International. The committee has been meeting the last year and is starting to present findings to local governments.

Guest speaker Frank Molnar, managing partner of The M Group and a committee member, reviewed the group's findings for attendees.

"Every recommendation we came up with was unanimous," Mr. Molnar said. "Really it is getting everyone together and working on the same page. At the end of the day we have to create something in that area that is going to give people a reason to go down there."

Mr. Molnar cited Wynwood Walls Art District in Miami as the model to emulate.

"If we can have something like that as a draw, then we can have year-round restaurants and year-round wine bars and art galleries and create a hub so it would be a huge draw moving things in the right directions.

"There are great things happening on beachside. The key is everyone working together. The chamber, the city government, the county government, working with developers.

We are all moving in the right direction,"

Mr. Molnar said. "I have lived in this community a long time and I have never seen such great momentum and so many people working together towards the common goal of improving on beachside and I

Foundations new 'Passion Funds' make giving easy

By Diane M. Carey
dcarey@hometownnewsol.com

"We all share in our community's vibrancy and future" said David Jones, Community Development Manager for the Community Foundation of Volusia & Flagler, a division of the local United Way.

But just how to share in that vibrancy and future isn't always easy, Mr. Jones said.

"Many generous families and businesses are interested in contributing to important community charitable causes that are meaningful in their lives, but are faced with the challenges associated with developing and managing an effective giving plan," Mr. Jones said.

The Community Foundation created PassionFunds to provide support and tools for giving.

"We care about what you care about," he said. "If you are passionate about wanting to make a difference in a particular area of interest or with a specific non-profit organization, we want to help you in any manner possible. PassionFunds are easy to establish, low cost, and offer the latest in technology and mobile connections for staying informed, making grants and managing your charitable giving."

An individual or family can name their fund to represent the family, memorialize a loved one or state the charitable purpose.

A donor-advised fund can be described as a charitable savings-investment account that allows you:

ROTC commander will be honored on retirement

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

Whether serving in leadership positions in the space, missile or information technology fields, Col. Kimberley Ramos has a deep appreciation for her 30 years in the U.S. Air Force.

But as she prepares to retire, she counts the last four years as commander of the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps Detachment 157 on Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University's Daytona Beach Campus as her most rewarding.

With 250 to 350 cadets at any given time, she has enjoyed "watching them grow, develop and mature."

A private retirement ceremony for Col. Ramos, a Port Orange resident, is planned for July 26 at the Jim W. Henderson Administration & Welcome Center, although she'll remain on through Sept. 8 during a transition period.

Arriving Aug. 1, Col. Jason E. Patla, commander of the 2nd Weather Group, 557th Weather Wing, at Offutt Air Force Base in Nebraska, has been appointed as the new commander of AFROTC Detachment 157, one of the largest in the country and one of the top pilot producers for the Air Force, after the Air Force Academy.

At the ceremony, Retired Brig. Gen. Timothy P. O'Brien will present Col. Ramos with her third Legion of Merit for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services and achievements.

Her honors during her three decades of service to the nation also include the Defense Meritorious Service Medal; the Joint Service Commendation Medal; the Joint Meritorious Unit Award with one oak leaf cluster; the Meritorious Service Medal with two oak leaf clusters; the Air Force Commendation Medal with one oak leaf cluster and the Combat Readiness Medal.

In four years at ERAU, Col. Ramos has not only commissioned a record 143 cadets as second lieutenants in the U.S. Air Force, she has increased alumni serving as mentors to cadets.

As the first woman commander of Detachment 157, which includes students from ERAU, Bethune-Cookman University, Daytona State College and the University of Central Florida-Daytona Beach, she's been focused not only on producing more flying officers compared to other detachments, but increasing women cadets. The percentage of women is currently about 14 percent.

She's hopeful a new partnership she has established with Stetson University will increase those percentages.

During her 30-year-career, Col. Ramos broke many barriers in the Air Force as being the first woman on various assignments. She was the first woman deputy commander for Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles, Minute-

Mental health stretches schools' budget

By Gina McKee
gmckee@hometownnewsol.com

In addition to the normal annual budget challenges, Volusia County Schools must find ways to cover large mental health services mandated by House Bill 7026.

Of the $69 million appropriated by the bill for such services, Volusia County Schools will see only an estimated $1.4 million to cover a wide range of enhanced services, said Dr. Amy Hall, district counseling specialist, at a school board workshop meeting.

"(The $1.4 million) has to be specific to addressing the mental health needs to our students," Dr. Hall said. "This legislation is going to allow us to expand our services and support those individual needs of our students."

am excited about it."

Recommendations included code enforcement, public safety, intergovernmental coordination, neighborhood stabilization and getting the homeless issue under control. Types of needs listed by the committee included landscape, hardscape, medians, lighting, crosswalks, bike paths, updated signals and underground utilities.

Top priorities listed in order included streetscape/traffic calming for East International Speedway Boulevard, Main Street and Atlantic Avenue between Seabreeze Boulevard and Silver Beach Avenue. Improving the infrastructure constitutes a huge goal.

The committee was formed because, since 2008, $677 million in assessed value has been lost. Softening redevelopment rules to attract investors was cited as another solution.

The committee made recommendations regarding specific operational and policy issues identified for each of the corridors. These reflected many of the concerns presented by the public to the committee and included enhanced code enforcement, provision of facade grants, enhanced policing, incentives for residential development and quarterly meetings with neighborhood groups.

City Manager Jim Chisholm and Volusia County Councilwoman Billie Wheeler both spoke and expressed enthusiasm for progress made to date and positive changes forthcoming. A video was presented at the end showcasing recent developments, such as the Tanger Outlet Mall and Hard Rock Hotel, along with a rendering of what beachside areas could look like in the near future.

"For the past year, the BRC gathered information, statistics, and general data related to the beachside areas in Daytona Beach, Daytona Beach Shores and Ormond Beach, a chamber news release stated. "Its focus was to develop short and long-term solutions to make this area more viable for residents, businesses, and visitors as a year-round destination.

At its May 24 meeting, the chamber adopted a position statement encouraging Ormond Beach, Daytona Beach and Daytona Beach Shores to adopt the BRC recommendations in helping to enhance this area for visitors and residents.

Amy Pyle, a Daytona Beach resident and a member of the Beachside Redevelopment Board, said, "The success of these recommendations depends on buy-ins from these cities, especially Daytona Beach. Anybody that witnessed what that board did would say that Daytona Beach is the core of that, it is the center and it's actually got the worst problems on the beachside. The City of Daytona needs to say 'let's move on it' and then it can be successful."

A few things I don't like about Florida

LAND LINES
DAN SMITH

No doubt I do love my adopted home, but there are elements that tend to bother me from time to time.

Right about now I can tell you I don't care for the summer humidity. Back in 1992 when I became a permanent resident, I was lied to. Friends and family told me I would get used to it. I did not and, as far as I can tell, my blood didn't get any thinner either.

I hate the beggars lice that stick to my skin and clothes as soon as I venture off a marked path. Not good, but I hate the sand spurs more. Those are the sticky little nuggets that have the ability to hide in your carpet for months only to strike as you stumble along half asleep on a midnight bathroom run.

I really don't like our giant cockroaches. (I don't care for the little German variety either.) Oh, by the way, if you are a transplant to the state and refuse to believe you have cockroaches, forget it. Those big shiny things living under your sink are not palmetto bugs. Luckily they won't actually hurt you. There are, however, plenty other things here that will.

It is easy to spot the new arrivals to the Sunshine State. They are always complaining about the mosquitoes. More than likely those poor misguided souls have yet to encounter the no-see-ums. Florida mosquitoes are large and stupid and easy to swat. The no-see-ums will set your skin ablaze and make you wish for mosquitoes. Pilgrims to our sub-tropical paradise may call them sand gnats or flying fleas, but no name is sufficient to describe those tiny bloodsuckers. Napalm comes to mind. You may not get that reference until you are engulfed by a cloud of those tiny flamethrowers.

In other states, if you pick up a stick that has an ant on it, you may suffer a sting. Here if you get anywhere near a nest of fire ants, you will be partially consumed. There is no such thing as coming in contact with a fire ant and not being bitten. Look for fire ants under a pile of sand that seems to have been refined into some sort of gray powder. Never try to stomp them or spray them. RUN! Preferably into the water.

Of course, our waters have alligators. I don't dislike the gators, but I do have a healthy respect for them. It's the water moccasins I really don't like. At least the coral snakes are brightly colored so we can spot them.

Like all of us, I don't like the hurricanes. Hurricanes are those big storms your northern relatives like to use as an excuse for not moving here. Visitors, you have to know that when you say that all Floridians know you are just too cheap or cowardly to make the move.

If there is weather worse than hurricanes, it would have to be the lightning. We lead the league in lightning strikes and they cannot be predicted.

Speaking of weather, I don't like the way the local stores try to sell us tropical plants that cannot survive our winters. That should be illegal.

I'm not happy about what the salt air does to my car or how it turns the aluminum in our screen room to dust.

I suppose all of that sounds pretty bad. You are probably thinking I am ungrateful for all of the good stuff Florida has to offer. Some of you may even write to say I should pack up and move. Naw, you couldn't chase me out of here with a herd of palmetto bugs.

Mental

If the funding falls short, the mandates still are in place and the district's already stretched budget will have to find ways and resources to meet the requirements.

The district will focus efforts in four specific areas: Mental health assessments; evidence- based interventions and treatment options; recovery services; and coordination plans.

A key part of the program will be mental health response teams, including certified addiction counselors and other licensed mental health professionals stationed throughout the district who are tasked with aiding students in crises.

With the school shooting tragedies that prompted the bill, districts across the state also have seen a rise in the number of students who have threatened harm, either to themselves or to others, and Volusia County also has seen an increase, she said.

"Last year, we had 2,500 concerns of harm, meaning 2,500 students have exhibited some type of mental health distress," Dr. Hall said. "We have students exhibiting concerns that we want to address the needs of so it does not continue to escalate. That is a pretty big number, and these team members will monitor and continue to provide assistance."

The team will help make connections with resources and link these students to the resources they need, she added.

"What our hope is, is that we are going to reduce our number of Baker Acts and address the immediate individual needs of the students," Dr. Hall told board members. "We believe the mental health response teams (will provide interventions) for those students."

In addition, the mental health teams will play a critical roll in the threat response units the bill requires districts to have in place.

In addition to the mental health assistance within schools, the bill appropriates $97.5 million for resource officers, although that funding falls short in covering the costs. In addition to the resource officers, or Guardians, the bill allocates about $99 million for enhancing schools' physical security; gives an additional $28.1 million annually to the Department of Children and Families for more proactive community engagement and crisis prevention; mandates that schools conduct regular active shooter drills; sets up and funds the Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School Public Safety Commission, a 16-member board that will offer ways to improve the school safety system; creates and funds the "marshal" program — which would train and arm certain school professionals who do not primarily teach; allows certain retired law enforcement officers to become school resource officers; and formally prohibits "a person from making, posting, or transmitting a threat to conduct a mass shooting" and sets criminal penalties for such actions.

"This is a very large, comprehensive bill that has many components to it," Dr. Hall said. "We do need to embrace this and meet the needs of our students."

A Sound Choice with Florida State Hearing Aids

Touch. Taste. Sight. Smell. Sound. All important. The last one, sound, is what Florida State Hearing Aids specializes in.

Owner Julie Pruitt opened Florida State Hearing Aids Inc. in 2004 "in order to bring a more affordable and wider variety of hearing aids to my clientele," she said.

Ms Pruitt is assisted by Patient Care Coordinator Samantha Carpenter whose job is to schedule patients' appointments, pre-authorizations, billing, and assist with the cleaning and maintenance of hearing aids. She has been with Florida State Hearing Aids for six years, working an additional eight years with Ms Pruitt before that.
When asked what makes her business unique, Ms. Pruitt said, "My business gives individual one on one service to every client. You won't walk in two weeks after you purchase your hearing aids and get a random person that doesn't really care about you at all, they don't know you, they didn't test or fit you, and you feel left out in the cold.

"There is a lot of competition in the newspapers advertising low, low prices on hearing aids," she said. "The problem is in the small print. I don't do bait and switch ads. It is insulting to today's consumer."

FREE or discounted hearing aids for GEHA, APWU, Federal employees, Empire Plan, Epic and local insurances. We also work with Veteran Affairs and offer free programming for our Veterans.

Zero interest financing available.

Give me back my wallet

I had my Captain Jack wallet stolen while on Votran recently.

Votran, you have done nothing to help me, and I really resent this whole thing. I don't like you any more Votran. I think you deserve further action from me and I am thinking of pursuing it.

I haven't gotten one phone call back. It was stolen on your 11 route.

Wide Open Homeless

My message is about our slogan, Wide Open Fun, that many people weren't happy about anyway.

I think it now has be changed to Wide Open Homeless. This is all very discouraging. The people who live here can't go to the parks they want to, and the people from out of town are noticing it.

Refreshing honesty

The other night while enjoying a beautiful evening at the outdoor setting of One Daytona, I witnessed something extraordinary in this day and time.

A young man of around 18 to 20 years of age approached us and asked if we had lost $25, which he had in his hand. We said no and watched as he went around to everyone outside Jeremiah's Italian Ice and asked the same question.

He was with his family and was possibly of Middle Eastern descent as the women in his party all wore head scarves. When he couldn't find anyone who claimed they lost the money, he turned it in to the workers at Jeremiah's.

What an honest young man. I hesitate to think my own children would not have been so honest as to turn the money in – using the old adage of "finders, keepers." How refreshing.

A nice gesture from the ice cream shop would have been to give this young man a free cone for his honesty.

In response to: 'Enough fast food'

No, I really don't think you get it either.

The rant is not about what a few retirees that don't like change want to decide what everybody else gets. Burger King is the most awful place ever and I don't want a sub or doughnuts everyday.

I, among a lot of others in Edgewater, want some better choices, plain and simple. So, if you are happy with the choices you listed, then that is great. Stick with going to only them, but for others, we want better choices. Why is that so hard to understand ?

Give them an award

The HIG Insurance office on State Road 44 in New Smyrna Beach deserves a restoration/beautification award.

They have done a beautiful job updating and improving an existing building.

In response to: 'Unsupervised children run amok'

After reading "Unsupervised children run amok," I had to add the problem of dogs running amok as well.

My dog and I walk as much as my physical condition allows. He is always leashed, under control and on public property. Walking helps both of us. Unfortunately, we often encounter dogs that run towards us barking.

I stop and ask the owner, who is usually in the vicinity but not controlling the dog, to please get their dog. The responses range from a dirty look to, "Oh, he's friendly" or "She just wants to play," and my favorite, "He doesn't bite."

All dogs have the potential to bite given the right circumstances. This is especially true if they feel threatened.

Often the owner will halfheartedly call the dog, then stroll over with no sense of urgency or any apology. These encounters are stressful to the point I stay on "safe streets" and now carry a deterrent spray.

I have owned dogs of various breeds and sizes my entire life. Usually, the encounters are with small dogs. Just this past week, a family member was pet sitting and attacked by a pack of chihuahuas and, yes, in the mayhem this person was bitten.

I want your dog to be just as safe as mine. Please be considerate by not allowing your dog to get the idea they own the street. Nobody wants to spend time at the ER, pay fines or hospital bills, or potentially bury a beloved pet due to owner negligence.

In response to: 'Enough fast food'

OK, I get it. You're on the road working hard in Edgewater? Interesting.

Edgewater isn't that large, but you're driving around and around working hard, you're hungry. You need a fast food place to energize -- a drive through. A fast in-and-out because you're working hard on the road. You pull up, yell your order at the intercom. Moving forward you pay. They throw a bag in your car and you're off on the road again.

Being hungry and hard working and lacking the time to sit in a restaurant; also lacking the ability to appreciate you have a choice asking Edgewater to "give you something you want."

There is a problem here a new restaurant will not solve. Quit whining.

Learning lessons

During a recent five-day get-away from New Smyrna Beach to Provincetown, Mass., I thought how much my hometown could learn from my vacation destination.

And, then, by extrapolation, other such beach communities along the Atlantic coastline (Bar Harbor, Cape May, Hilton Head, Jekyll Island, Myrtle Beach, Mystic Seaport, Nantucket, Ocean City, Outer Banks, Rehoboth Beach, Sag Harbor, St. Simon's Island, Tybee Island, Virginia Beach), including Florida (Amelia Island, Fort Lauderdale, Jax Beach, the Keys, Palm Beach, South Beach, St. Augustine).

With the arts, fishing, golfing, horseback riding and surfing already going for us, we'd do well to incorporate that which works from other Eastern Seaboard beachside locales. Rather than to imitate, the goal being to adapt an appropriately cohesive plan to replace our heretofore slapdash anything goes approach.

As the once quaint charm associated with our area has fallen by the wayside of disproportionate sites and crowded roadways, how smart it would seem to emulate the hard-won lessons learned by others, both to our north and south. Thereby having more opportunity to move beyond fond memories of fleeting times past, toward a realistically pleasant and prosperous future.

Repairing a burned out pole light

I called to have a light bulb replaced at a very bad curve on our street.

The person told me it would take three weeks. Three weeks came and went. I called a second time. They said they replaced it, but they replaced the pole, nine houses away. It was the wrong pole. They told me there was no pole at the location, but it has been there for 27 years.

I finally got a young lady, Beverly Wells, who took the time to check the maps and found the number for the pole and had someone change it the next day. Hats off to Beverly and we can relax a little with the terrible curve on the street.

Tomatoes are red

Would someone explain to the present generation that pink tomatoes are not ripe.

Tomatoes, to be ripe, have to be red. Especially restaurant owners, have you ever bought tomato sauce that was pink, did you?

Mayor must run the city

Hopefully in the upcoming election for new mayor in New Smyrna Beach, we will not select a bread man, a restaurateur or even an insurance man.

We are looking for someone professional, perhaps retired, who can devote time to running the city, rather than turn the reigns of management over to the city manager. We have seen what has happened when that has gone on the last few years, when the mayor has been able to do nothing and cares about nothing. Let's be judicious in who we select as our new mayor.

Archaeologist shares coquina's history

Coquina is a conglomerate rock unique to Florida's east coast.

Beginning in the 1590s when the Spanish first established quarries, coquina was used to build every type of structure from the historic period: forts, plantations, sugar mills, houses, businesses, even cemeteries.

Emily Jane Murray of the Florida Public Archaeology Network will discuss regional coquina ruin sites and focus on the role of this material in Florida history during a free presentation from 2 to 3 p.m. Thursday, July 26, at the Port Orange Regional Library, 1005 City Center Circle.

Runway closure to cause flight pattern change

As part of the Daytona Beach International Airport's taxiway rehabilitation project, Runway 7L/25R closed July 14 and will be closed for approximately one month.

The closure will not impact airline operations but will affect flight patterns. Neighbors of the airport may notice a change in flight patterns and an increase in north-south flight traffic during the closure.

The airport began a two-year project in April to rehabilitate several taxiways, including the primary air carrier taxiway. For more information on the project, visit bit.ly/7L25R.

Marine Science Center plans ocean birding trip

The Friends of the Marine Science Center are offering an ocean birding tour Saturday, July 28.

The tour group will meet at 5:15 a.m. at the dock between Rusty's and Milliken's Reef restaurants at 670 Glen Cheek Drive, Cape Canaveral. The boat departs at 6 a.m. and will return at 6 p.m.

Led by birding expert Michael Brothers of the Marine Science Center, participants will travel to the center of the Gulf Stream, about 60 miles offshore. They will ride the Canaveral Princess, an 85-foot boat with excellent observation areas on the upper deck, bow and stern.

The cost is $265 per person. To register, contact Mr. Broth-

Apartments are multiplying in Volusia

VOLUSIA BUSINESS
CECIL G. BRUMLEY

Construction of multi-family rental housing, barely a blip on the radar in the first half of this decade, has been on the rise the past three years and could explode in 2018 in Volusia County.

Some of the most recently completed apartments include the Integra Sands, a 264-unit complex on Williamson Boulevard in Daytona Beach, and the Sanctuary at West Port, a 310-unit complex on Town West Boulevard in Port Orange.

Already under construction this year include a 276-unit complex at Tomoka Town Center in Daytona Beach and the 100-unit affordable complex, The Pines, in DeLand. I wasn't able to get the status of the 289-unit Hawthorne Landing in DeBary by press time, but it was due to start construction.

On the planning board is the 274-unit Integra Dunes and a small project on Alabama Avenue, both in DeLand; a 114-unit complex at One Daytona; a 90-unit student housing project in Daytona Beach; another project of about 200 units on Williamson in Daytona; the Beacon apartments, a 253-unit complex at State Road 44 and Glencoe Road, and a project at Coastal Woods on S.R. 44, both in New Smyrna Beach; and about 600 units of apartments on both sides of Reed Canal Road between Clyde Morris Boulevard and Nova Road in Port Orange.

I'm probably missing something, but you get the idea. A lot of apartments could be built over the next couple of years in Volusia, which hopefully will slow down rapidly rising rents and lack of availability.

Indigo Development, a subsidiary of Consolidated-Tomoka Land Co., has submitted a preliminary plan to create eight commercial lots from 21.7-acre site at Williamson and LPGA boulevards in Daytona Beach, bringing back the Williamson Crossing project that would surround the new RaceTrac.

Speaking of Consolidated-Tomoka, the company continues to buy up property in downtown Daytona Beach. It already bought the First Baptist Church property and has now acquired the restaurant property at the corner of Bay Street and Ridgewood Avenue for $385,000.

Bed tax collections were down 2.9 percent countywide in Volusia in May from May 2007. Halifax area down, but Southeast and West Volusia were up. It's probably another case of a big hotel operator paying their bill late, so expect a big jump in June like there was in April.

A McDonald's has been proposed at Howland Boulevard and Halifax Crossings near where Halifax Hospital is going up in Deltona. Also, in food service news, renovations are starting for a building at 854 Orange Ave. in Daytona Beach that will become Jet Set Restaurant.

On a final note, Surterra Wellness plans to open one of its medical marijuana dispensaries soon on Clyde Morris Boulevard in Port Orange – next to a Dunkin Donuts.

Six good reasons to take Social Security early

PLAN STRONGER
DAVID D. HOLLAND

You've probably heard me, and other financial advisers, tout the benefits of postponing Social Security.

The biggest reason, of course, is more money! If you take Social Security as early as possible, at age 62, you will get far less in your monthly benefit check than if you collect at your full retirement age, or continue to wait, and file at age 70.

However, if you wait to collect later, you "miss out" on all the checks you could have received over the years. It will take time, probably many years (I estimate 12 to 14 years), to "catch up" to the total money you could have had if you collected sooner. Here are six more reasons for taking Social Security before full retirement.

1. Job loss. Whether you were laid off, fired or "downsized," a job loss at age 62 or older can be a significant blow. Finding employment at an older age can be difficult. If you've tried to re-enter the workforce without success, you might want to consider collecting Social Security early.

2. Health reasons. No surprises here. As we age, we tend to have more health issues. If your job consisted of heavy lifting, for example, your body might not be up to the task anymore. Standing or sitting for eight hours a day may be a challenge, or you might have other ailments that limit your ability to work.

3. Part-time work. Maybe you have not been able to find full-time employment, you are phasing out of a full-time career, or you are caring for an elderly parent. You might need extra money to supplement your part-time income.

4. Awaiting other assets. For those who expect income from another source "down the road," taking Social Security early can bridge the gap between a previous career and a future pension or inheritance, for example.

5. Family history. This could possibly be the best reason of all for taking Social Security early. Maybe your family doesn't have the "longevity gene," and everyone in your family passes away in their 60s or 70s. If that were true in my family, I would take my benefits as soon as possible!

6. Will it be there? For many years, you may have heard about Social Security "running out of money." I doubt this will happen; too many people rely on these benefits for a major portion of their income in retirement. If you, however, are concerned the funds you paid into the system for 40 or more years won't be there in the future, it might be better for you to collect your benefits now, rather than to continue to wait and worry.

All six of these scenarios are legitimate reasons to collect SS benefits early. A good way to find out what is right for your situation would be to sit down with an experienced adviser. Make sure to ask if the adviser uses software to help determine the most appropriate age for you to collect Social Security benefits. With that information, he or she can help guide you.

Water management board holds line on taxes

For Hometown News
newsdy@hometownnewsol.com

The St. Johns River Water Management District's Governing Board Tuesday, July 10, approved a tentative budget that uses the rolled-back millage rate for taxpayers for a sixth consecutive year.

The board set the millage at .2562, which will generate about the same amount of revenue as the previous year for programs and projects to ensure sustainable water resources, increase water conservation and protect water quality in springs and other priority water bodies.

"This tentative budget reflects the district's continued commitment to our core missions of water supply, water quality, flood protection and natural systems," said District Executive Director Dr. Ann Shortelle in a news release. "We continue to invest taxpayer dollars and focus our efforts on cooperative projects that are helping to restore and protect our water resources."

The tentative rate would result in nearly $87 million in revenue toward a total $142.5 million budget for fiscal year 2018-19, which begins Oct. 1. The budget is also funded through state, federal and other district sources, including timber sales, cattle leases, interest earnings and permit fees.

The millage rate adopted by the board is 6 percent less than the current year's tax rate of .2724, which produced revenue of about $85.4 million.

Under a .2562 millage rate — 25.62 cents for every $1,000 of assessed property value — the owner of a $200,000 house with a $50,000 homestead exemption would pay $38.43 in property taxes to the district.

The proposed budget will fund the district's major programs, such as priority water body and springs restoration and continued cost-share partnerships.

Public hearings will be conducted at 5:05 p.m. Sept. 11 and 25. Final budget adoption will occur at Sept. 25.

WCA will host All-Class Reunion

Warner Christian Academy will host All-Class Reunion for graduates and former students Oct. 12-14 at 1730 S. Ridgewood Ave., South Daytona.

WCA was established in South Daytona in 1971.

The homecoming football game against rival Father Lopez will be Friday, Oct. 12. Alumni in attendance will receive two free tickets to the game, WCA swag and Warner trivia games with prizes.

Two events are scheduled Saturday, Oct. 13. In the morning, former students and faculty may attend a free continental breakfast and tours of classrooms. Saturday evening all former students and guests may attend a catered dinner and dessert with music from the past five decades. The cost is $30 per person.

Former students and faculty may attend a service at 11:30 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 14, at White Chapel Church of God. Warner is a ministry of White Chapel Church and former students will be honored and recommissioned in Christian service.

For more information or to register, visit wcaeagles.org/alumnifriends.

DSC urges students to complete programs

Daytona State College informed 3,600 non-returning students, dating as far back as 2013, who took classes but did not complete their degrees, they can get a one-time only "Come Back to Daytona State" incentive valued at 25 percent off the cost of their in-state tuition for the fall semester.

Students must have completed at least 45 credits of coursework within their major and did not re-enroll in classes for at least 12 months.

Students considering taking advantage of the incentive offer also are encouraged to apply for financial aid as soon as possible by completing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid available at DaytonaState.edu/finaid.

The Come Back to Daytona State Scholarship must be redeemed by Aug. 27.

For information, email Admissions@DaytonaState.edu or call (386) 506-3642.

Free school shots available

Parents and guardians of a child entering kindergarten or seventh grade must provide proof of immunization to enroll their child in Volusia County schools.

New students enrolling in Volusia must also be current on immunizations.

To ensure children are ready to start the school year Aug. 13, the Department of Health in Volusia County is offering low or free immunizations throughout the summer. Appointments are not required.

Immunizations are available from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday at three DOH-Volusia locations:

- Daytona Beach, 1845 Holsonback Drive
- New Smyrna Beach: 717 W. Canal St.
- Orange City: 775 Harley Strickland Blvd.

Parents are encouraged to bring shot records with them when requesting immunizations.

California Gwen, a No Doubt/Katy Perry tribute band, will perform Friday, July 20, as part of the free Bandshell Live Summer Concert Series in Daytona Beach.

Opening at 7 p.m. will be area band Megan Stackpoole & Ronnie "Taco" Stroud.

Celebrity impersonator, singer and musician Monica Edwards has been performing in the Central Florida area for more than 15 years. Now, she's bringing two of her favorite established characters to a new level with a live band containing some of the best professional musicians Orlando has to offer.

Two of the biggest pop acts from the '90s to today are No Doubt with Gwen Stefani and Katy Perry. The two girls will converge when the tribute band California Gwen takes over the Daytona Bandshell with music from both. This hybrid show comes complete with signature costumes and replica performances of some of two women's most memorable shows.

Guests are encouraged to get to the Daytona Bandshell early to snag a VIP seat in the front and enjoy all of the massive hits, such as "Just a Girl," "This is How We Do," "Spiderwebs" and "I Kissed a Girl."

Bandshell Live is in its 10th year in Oceanfront Park, overlooking the Atlantic Ocean at 250 N. Atlantic Ave. admission. VIP tickets are available for $10, which include a chair, plus applica-

Storing food in the refrigerator

CHEF COSTA'S COOKING CORNER

COSTA MAGOULAS

I need to have a training session with everyone in my house on how to store food properly in the refrigerator.

Sound familiar? Everyone reading this is probably saying the same thing. Maybe I should write a book, "How to Stock a Refrigerator for Dummies." People would probably be too embarrassed to buy it. Of course I could sell it online. That way no one would see you carrying it home. I could always publish it with a plain cover. Just a picture of a refrigeration with one of those warning symbols on it like a circle with a line through it.

OK, OK, what am I complaining about this time?

Have you looked at your fridge lately? I bet nothing is in the right place. If it's like my home, you store food on any empty space you find no matter what it is. I am constantly opening the door and condiments come flying off the door shelf or small bottles are slipping between the holders in the door and open spaces in the bottom rack and fall to the floor and break.

And how about those plastic containers that berries come in? They never close properly, and when they fall on the floor berries roll everywhere.

Just for the record, there is a proper procedure for storing food safely. Yes, safely because someone could get sick from cross-contamination. I bet I have your attention now!

Unfortunately household refrigerators are not designed like commercial units, which have no door shelves or vegetable crisper or egg storage compartment in the door. Instead, commercial coolers have several open shelves, which are adjustable. Food must be stored in a certain pattern to keep it safe, which is different than what we do at home.

On the top shelf, store ready-to-eat food, produce, dairy, cheese and cooked left overs. The second shelf is for fresh seafood (if you buy it fresh), if not, keep it frozen until time to use. The third shelf is for raw ground meats and the bottom shelf for raw poultry. Eggs should stay in the cartons they came in to ensure freshness and safety.

Storing in this manner may be difficult at times. Always wrap food properly and store in plastic bags or containers to avoid the transfer of juices from one food to another. That is the key. Buy a good refrigerator thermometer to check temperatures so food is in the safe zone of 41degrees or lower. Oh, and those door shelves … buy some plastic containers at the dollar stores that fit in the shelf, that way nothing will fall through the bottom. Hope this all helps. Now let's eat.

Chicken Pasta Primavera

Ingredients

1 package frozen vegetables mix (broccoli, cauliflower, and carrots). Thaw and cut into half-inch pieces and set aside

1 medium size red onion peel and dice into ½ inch pieces and set aside

2 cups mushroom cut in half and set aside

2 cloves garlic peeled and cut small and set aside

2 chicken breasts sliced into strips. Keep in the refrigerator until ready to cook

Directions

Cook the chicken breasts in the oven at 350 for several minutes until they reach 165 degrees or have no pink inside.

In a sauté pan, add 1½ cup of chicken stock, the vegetables, mushrooms, onions, and garlic. Cook over medium heat for 2-3 minutes then add the cooked chicken and set aside.

In a sauce pan, place 2 tablespoon vegetable oil, 2 tablespoons butter, and 4 tablespoons all-purpose flour. Whisk together to make a roux. Cook over medium heat for 1-2 minutes.

Add one cup half and half (optional) and 4 cups milk slowly, whisking continuously to remove all lumps. If roux is too thick, a little more milk may be added. Simmer for 3 minutes and add cooked vegetables, chicken and 1 pound of your favorite cooked pasta (I prefer bowtie) or angel-hair pasta. Add ½ cup Parmesan cheese to mixture or just top each dish. Make sure to salt and pepper to taste.

Seasons and limits on Florida seafood

FISHING WITH DAN
DAN SMITH

We are fortunate enough in Florida to be able to fish year-round.

We are less fortunate to be bound by a myriad of rules and seasons. These days most of us have a phone that will pull up Florida fishing regs in an instant. That's great, but a little personal knowledge would also be a big help to keep us out of trouble with the law.

Aside from our usual catches, the Sunshine State has plenty other species to liven up our seafood take. Bay scallop season is happening right now and continues until Sept. 24. Those are taken by snorkeling in the warm, shallow waters of the Gulf of Mexico. My two preferred spots are at Steinhatchee and Crystal River. The daily limit is 2 gallons per person. (If you have not eaten scallops that were caught that same day you have not lived.)

The spiny lobster two-day mini season is like a diving holiday down in the Keys. This year on July 25 and 26, more than 30,000 divers or snorkelers will descend on south Florida to take part. The limit is six per day per person. A legal lobster must have a carapace (back) of more than 3 inches and you must have a measuring device with you in the water at all times.

Back when I was a regular at the mini season I would enjoy lobster and eggs for breakfast, and steak and lobster for dinner, and still bring home 40 or so depending on the size of my crew. Locally deep water SCUBA divers bring in fewer, but always much larger ones than are taken in the Keys.

I don't recommend you taking oysters here, but we do have more stone crabs than most realize. That season runs from Oct. 15 to May 15. Blue crabs may be taken all year and the limit is 10 gallons per person per day. (Good luck with that.) Shrimp also may be caught all year and that limit is five gallons per vessel a day. (The shrimp are running right now in Port Orange.)

In Volusia, most of us seek the more finny targets with red drum at the top of our list. We are allowed one red between 18 and 27 inches to be legal. My Louisiana buddies always laugh when I tell them that and ask: "What can a Cajun do with one fish?" I have no answer. (They can keep five.)

State regulations for spotted sea trout are four per day locally with a length between 15 and 20 inches. We do get to keep one over 20, but my Cajun friends are allowed 25 per day, beginning at 12 inches. That does not seem fair does it?

Black drum must be between 10 and 24 inches and you may keep five. Snook season will reopen Sept. 1 and

Southeast U.S. rowers coming to Daytona Beach

The Halifax Rowing Association will host more than 600 rowers representing more than 30 rowing clubs from Florida and surrounding states during the 22nd annual Halifax Summer Regatta, Saturday, July 28, and Sunday, July 29.

The 1,000-meter race course is also the last opportunity where teams can compete for the Florida Masters Series Overall Points Champion.

New this year is the addition of the Row for Life race, designed to pair adult and youth rowers for an all-out sprint to the finish. The winning boat crew will win $1,000 for their junior team, a traveling trophy, medals and epic bragging rights.

Halifax Rowing will be represented at the World Rowing event.

Saturday's events begin at 8 a.m. and will have junior rowing teams competing for gold, silver and bronze medals as well as team trophies.

Sunday's schedule kicks off at 8 a.m. and features masters and adaptive rowers who will also be looking to bring home the gold. Racing will continue in to the late afternoon each day.

The race course, just south of Orange Avenue on the east side of the river, can be viewed from local parks along the river banks.

For more information, visit halifaxrowing.org.

Over the Edge set for Nov. 2-3

Registration is now open for the second-annual Over the Edge at One Daytona, which will be Nov. 2-3.

Proceeds will benefit Easterseals Northeast Central Florida and The NASCAR Foundation.

Individuals can register and and underwriting opportunities are available from $5,000.

The registration fee is $25. The first 140 fundraisers who raise a minimum of $1,000 will earn their spot to go Over the Edge of the west-side façade of the 102-foot-high International Motorsports Center, the headquarters of NASCAR and International Speedway Corp.

Register and learn more about the event and its corporate giving levels at DaytonaOverTheEdge.org,

Fishing

run to Dec. 16. There is a small slot for snook and it is between 28 and 32 inches. You can take home two. (Caution you must buy a snook stamp if you are required to carry a state fishing license.)

Mangrove snapper are a tasty part of fishing in this area and should be at least 10 inches. (Keep five.) Mullet are plentiful and a 50-fish limit may be taken with a cast net. Six pompano that are at least 11 inches long are legal per day. Flounder has a minimum of 12 inches, but you can keep 10 per day.

Well that is some of the regulations we must live by in Florida. For sure, a computer is needed to keep up. You may want to cut this column out and put it into your boat. All this red tape is tough to remember. (I had to look up a lot of it.)

Dan Smith has fished the waters of Volusia County for more than 40 years. Email questions and comments to fishwdan@att.net. His book, "I Swear the Snook Drowned," is available for purchase for $10.95 at (386) 441-7793.
