ST. LUCIE COUNTY — The St. Lucie Chapter of the Florida Master Naturalist Program is the recipient of a 2013 La Florida, Land of Flowers, Community Grant funded by Florida's State Wildflower license plate.

Funds will purchase $500 of native wildflower seeds which will be planted in the perimeter of the field adjacent to State Road 70 and Midway Road at the St. Lucie County Fairgrounds. A site near the entrance will also be planted with wildflowers.

The goals of this project are to build awareness and knowledge of native wildflowers and plants and their roles in Florida's ecosystems. These wildflowers will benefit native pollinators which will enhance pollination of nearby citrus groves and reduce the need to mow. Reduction in mowing saves energy and requires less manpower. In addition, it will home," said Johnny, a sophomore at Centennial High School in Port St. Lucie. "As a freshman, I wanted to try out for the basketball team, but my grades were so bad they wouldn't let me. That broke my heart. With nothing else to do, I went with a friend to the Boys & Girls Club. Everyone was just so welcoming and fun that I just kept coming back."

When Johnny's mother relocated in the middle of the school year, he moved in with his father, but he was not comfortable at the house that was to be his new home.

Johnny expressed his concerns with the staff at the Boys & Girls Club, and they helped to find him a new safe place to live so he could complete his sophomore year of high school before moving to join his mother in a new town.

The Boys & Girls Club also offered Johnny things that he never knew were missing from his life – a safe place to go afterschool, a place to learn and the sense of belonging to a loving family. Johnny received help with his homework, and in one year raised his 1.5 grade point average to a 3.5, qualifying him to join the basketball team.

"Because of the Boys & Girls Club I had people to talk to, I improved my grades and I even won a $1,000 scholarship from the Children's Services Council of St. Lucie County," said Johnny who now tutors young children at the Chuck Hill Unit. "Until now, going to college never seemed like it was something I could do or even afford. Maybe someday I'll become a psychiatrist so I can help others."

"I'll miss my Boys & Girls Club family when I move," said Johnny. "The staff already helped me find a Club location near my mom. I look forward to going there, trying out for the basketball and track teams, and graduating high school so I can go to college. None of this would have been possible without the Boys & Girls Club and the staff there. I thank them so much for being there for me."

The Boys & Girls Clubs of America programs and services promote and enhance the development of young people by instilling a sense of competence, usefulness, belonging and influence in a safe and fun environment. The programs and services are supported by membership and community outreach. Locally, the Boys & Girls Club is funded by the Children's Services Council of St. Lucie County.

Pest control company provides a green, bug-free lawn

By Dawn Krebs
dkrebs@hometownnewsol.com

TREASURE COAST — The summer months brings backyard barbecues, fireworks and lots of outdoor parties. One of the few downsides to living in Florida, however, is that it also brings a lot of bugs.

But a local pest-control company wants to help you keep the crawling party-crashers away.

Roberto Rivera, one of the managers of Tropical Pest Management, has spent a year on the Treasure Coast and recently expanded to include the residents of Stuart and Martin County.

"I got into the business to be able to help people and make their life more comfortable," Mr. Rivera said. "I really like the hometown feeling here."

Servicing the area from Broward County all the way up to Port St. Lucie, Mr. Rivera is proud to be a green-certified business, as well as termite certified, and a member of the national and state pest management associations.

"We are an integrated pest management," Mr. Rivera explained. "We try to minimize the exposure and pinpoint the issue. You want to keep the amount of pesticides to a minimum."

The most common insects the company deals with are ants and roaches, but they easily handle all the others, including termites. They also handle all sorts of wildlife removal from homes, from moles to possums to raccoons.

Since no one can predict when insects will try to ruin a person's day, Tropical Pest Management also handles all emergencies promptly.

All treatments are guaranteed, and if the pests return, so will Tropical Pest Management.

"We do the best job possible with the best products and people available," Mr. Rivera said. "That way, people get the most for their money."

Roberto Rivera, owner of Tropical Pest Management, offers his services throughout Martin and St. Lucie counties.

Tropical Pest Management is located at 652 N.W. Buck Hendry Way in Stuart. They are available from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

For more information, call (772) 692-9300 or go online to their website at www.tropicalpest.com.

New owners, same skate shop

By Dawn Krebs
dkrebs@hometownnewsol.com

FORT PIERCE — The Undercover Skate Shop has gone through a few changes recently, and all of them will guarantee that there's a place for skateboarders in St. Lucie County.

The store is now family owned and operated by local residents Aaron and Christina Jewett, who took over the business a few months ago.

"Everyone involved in the shop was born and raised in Fort Pierce," Mr. Jewett said. "We are also all involved with skating."

The shop offers a wide selection of skateboard inventory, including skateboards, longboards, footwear, apparel and accessories.

"Our customers come from all over," said Mr. Jewett, who has been skateboarding for the past 27 years. "It's always been my dream to own a skateboard shop."

But the shop does more than just sell skateboards and the accessories. It sells the full experience as well.

Inside the store, customers will find a four-foot high, 20-foot wide mini-ramp, with a ground rail, box, bench and a wedge to wall.

Skaters are encouraged to come to shop to practice their

Dealing with spam

COMPUTE THIS
SEAN MCCARTHY

Every day when I open my email, I am flooded with spam.

I get messages trying to sell me everything from Viagra to discount mortgages to memberships at adult Web sites.

I even get an occasional message from a "dethroned prince" from Nigeria promising that if only I help him (by giving him my bank account information) he'll be able to get access to his frozen assets and give me several million for my troubles.

It's gotten to the point that out of 60 to 70 messages, only a handful is legitimate.

How is it that I, a computer fixer with decades of experience, can get flooded with spam?

Don't I, of all people, know how to manage this scourge any better? Frankly, no. But, it's not from a lack or trying.

Unfortunately, just about everything I've tried to stem the flow of spam has had either negative or short-term effects. I've found the most effective way (for me anyway) is to just scan the subject headers and click the delete button and nuke all the unwanted emails one by one.

I know what you are thinking. Many of you are successfully using some sort of spam filter and are thinking, "If Sean would just switch to this method, all of his spam woes would be over." All I can really say to that is thanks, but no thanks.

Over the years, as I have tried one method after another to manage unwanted email, I've noticed a common thread; many spam filters are too aggressive and have a tendency to delete messages I actually want.

Many spam filters will look at the sender's domain name and filter the message that way. The problem with that is I may actually want messages from that domain and the spam filter can unintentionally red flag messages that I actually want to read.

An example of that would be the time I was trying to refinance my home. My father, being ever helpful, sent me an email listing the mortgage rates of a certain lender. The spam filter spotted the key words "low mortgage rates" and filtered that message as spam.

Then, since the offending message came from my dad's email address, all future messages from him were filtered. The really frustrating thing was that I didn't know my dad's email was getting filtered, so I didn't know he was trying to email me until he called annoyed that I was, "ignoring his email."

Other methods have had mixed results, too.

One question that always comes up is, "How do these spammers get your email address in the first place?"

It's not like you go to some site and sign up for spam. I've seen cases where people get new email accounts and within a week the flow of spam begins.

How's that?

There are dozens of ways that email addresses end up as targets for the spammers, but I'll just cover a couple.

Forwarding email messages to everyone in your address book (or actually corresponding with someone who engages in this practice) can expose your address to the spammers, because as the messages gets forwarded on and on, so do all the addresses listed in the e-mail. Then, once out in cyberspace, there are a number of ways that the addresses can get harvested from that email.

Another method is the old "random email address" trick. What they do is use a computer program to generate thousands of email addressed using random letters and numbers before the @ symbol and the domain name. Then, they send out test messages to the randomly generated addresses and the ones

Fraud is rampant

Food stamp fraud is rampant across the Treasure Coast. The other day I was behind a guy in the store. He paid for a six-pack of beer with his EBT card. I only had one item, and followed him out of the store. He got into a Lexus. I can't receive food stamps. I live on my Social Security. How do all of these people come here and get food stamps?

Waste of money?

The city pays a code enforcement officer to ride around on the weekends to stop people from selling items so they can better provide for their families and pay city taxes, so the city can pay the code enforcement officer his salary. City government at its best.

Everyone should cut back

All counties are faced with a tight budget. But the fire district doesn't want to cut back. They should cut back, too.

Trash in the canal

People are throwing all sorts of stuff in the canal west of town. It's a shame that we have something so beautiful as the canal, and people are just throwing all their trash into the canal.

The police won't do anything about it. They came out last week and asked me what I wanted done about it. Others who know about this should call the police, too.

Open both doors

If one of the doors is locked in a store, and an emergency occurs in the store, it blocks customers from getting out quickly. They should both be unlocked.

Wasting money on education?

The teachers union has been spending money advertising, urging the public to pester the state legislature for more funding for the public schools.

This runs counter to a report on the status of teaching history, which indicates that pupil performance is woeful.

Teenagers know nothing about "the longest day." Most teens cannot identify Dwight Eisenhower as a U.S. president and they've never heard of D-Day or the Battle of the Bulge.

Worst of all, many believe the United States started World War II. All of this leads one to believe that much of the money we have already provided to the educational establishment has been wasted.

Illegal code words

Citizens should not trust politicians, especially when discussing illegal immigration they use code words and phrases, such as "a path to citizenship," which really means amnesty for illegals.

Another catch phrase they love to use is "comprehensive immigration reform," which translates into "for years we have promised to secure our borders and we really have no intention of doing so, but we hope voters will be so busy with their daily lives that they will forget what we have said."

A thank you

When I was at the theatre the other night, I left my purse in the bathroom. As soon as I noticed it was gone, I returned to the bathroom, only to find it gone. I went to the office, and my purse had been returned.

I want to thank the person who returned it, without disturbing any of the contents.

Skirting the truth

When politicians want to obscure their true intentions, they are very good at using words to hide what they really mean.

There was an excellent example in the recent debate about the government program to take over the nation's health care system.

Rather than tell the whole truth, they found a way to disguise their plan to raise taxes on the productive members of our society.

Who decides?

Traditional wisdom tells us that an individual should earn what he is worth based on the opinion of his boss.

Now, however, the Obama administration has started to force executives to accept the judgments of politicians in Washington about pay levels dictated by non-elected bureaucrats.

If Washington can enforce such arbitrary standards based on class envy, where will it all end and will the politicians be able to tell each of us what we can earn?

Support nuclear energy

The nuclear industry is investing today to solve our long-term energy challenges. Citizens should be supportive of their efforts on at least three fronts.

Most important, our nation is severely dependent on unpredictable foreign sources of energy.

Also, the fact that nuclear is a major clean energy source should please environmentalists.

And finally, the nuclear industry is providing a huge number of well-paying jobs, which is a major boost in this ailing economy.

No local jobs

We moved here in January 2009. My husband has been looking for work ever since. There is place that employs guys from other areas for the local work, while the local guys wait for the phone to ring for work. Something should be done.

One trash day a week

There only needs to be one trash pick up a week and, at the same time, the trucks could pick-up the recyclables. Think of how much money that would save.

Stop complaining

These people who are city employees complaining of having to pay extra for their health insurance should be grateful to have a job to be able to pay.

Shape up, VA

Because the Department of Veterans Affairs (better known as the VA) promises to give our courageous, wounded soldiers excellent service, but instead provides lousy service, it is a shame to the VA and it is a shame on this nation to allow such injustice to continue.

President Obama has done next to nothing to rectify the situation, which should be a lesson for us.

If the government cannot or will not help our troops, how can we expect it to take care of 300 million Americans?

More auto blues

The Chinese who are adept at producing cheap compacts and subcompacts have purchased automaker Volvo from Ford. We can anticipate they will soon start exporting their inexpensive cars into the United States. Because of our high taxes, high wages and expensive benefits, plus our government's strict rules regarding environmental issues and mileage mandates, the cost of Chinese cars is about half of what we can sell them for, and the outlook, therefore, for our auto industry and the jobs that go with it is indeed bleak.

From President Jefferson

Let's listen to the thoughts of those who came before us.

President Thomas Jefferson said, "Honor, justice and humanity forbid us to surrender that freedom which we received from our gallant ancestors, and which our innocent posterity have a right to receive from us."

Should you finance your car with a car dealer or bank?

ON CARS
EARL STEWART

Earl Stewart is the owner and general manager of Earl Stewart Toyota in North Palm Beach. The dealership is located at 1215 N. Federal Highway in Lake Park. Contact him at www.earlstewarttoyota.com, call (561) 358-1474, fax (561) 658-0746 or email earl@estoyota.com.

As with most complicated issues, there's no simple answer. The very fact that this question is complicated is exactly why you need to be very careful before you choose to finance the next car you purchase with the car dealer who sold it.

So, let me start by giving you a hard and fast rule. Never finance your car with the car dealer unless you have checked the interest rate and terms with at least two banks and/or credit unions.

When you've completed the process of choosing the car you want to buy, the dealer who offers you the best price on that car, and the dealer who offers you the best price on your trade-in, you should be armed with quotes from at least two banks and/or credit unions on the lowest interest and best terms. Your own bank may even be the same bank that your dealer uses.

If you have good credit, you can borrow the money directly from your bank for as little or even less than the rate the bank offers the car dealer. When you borrow money from the bank, it's called direct lending and when you borrow through the dealer it's called indirect lending. Just because the dealer says that he "does business" with your bank doesn't mean that he's giving you as good an interest rate that you can get from your bank; in fact, he's probably not.

Did you know that the average car dealer makes more money on the car finance contract than he does on the sale of the car? A car dealer's finance department is a separate profit center in a car dealership, just like the new car, used car, service and parts departments.

AutoNation, the largest retailer of cars in world, averages about $1,600 on finance contracts for every car they sell. This includes cars that they don't finance because some buyers pay cash or finance through their banks or credit unions. If you factor those out, the average profit per car actually financed by the dealer can soar to well over $2,000, to $3,000 or higher.

I'm often asked the question, "If I pay cash for my car, can I get a better deal"? Counter intuitively, the answer is no! In fact, there's a good chance you will end up paying more for your car if the dealer knows you're a cash buyer, because he knows he is forgoing his better opportunity to make money from that purchase.

The code word for interest rate profit for car dealers is "reserve." Dealer reserve is what the banks kick back to the car dealer when they assign the finance contract that you sign to that bank. Dealers have reserve agreements with certain banks, including the manufacturers' banking subsidiaries. Examples of manufacturer lenders are Honda Credit, Ally Bank (Chrysler and General Motors), and Toyota Financial Services.

Manufacturer lenders are referred to as "captive lenders."

The car dealer is, in effect, borrowing the money from his bank, marking up the interest rate as high as is allowed by the bank, usury laws and you. The name for the markup is the "spread." The dealer might be able to borrow money from a bank for 2.69 percent and the bank might allow him to mark it up to 4.69 percent, a "2-point spread." Marking up 2.69 percent to 4.69 percent is a 75 percent markup above the dealer's cost (dealer retention) from the bank.

A customer with good credit, say a 740 Beacon score or better, could borrow the money directly from the bank at 2.69 percent, if that customer knew to ask. A customer who doesn't know, and assumes the dealer is trying to get him the lowest rate will pay the dealer an extra $1,004 profit if he finances $20,000 for 72 months.

The dealer usually will sell various "products" which are added to the finance contract and included in the payments such as extended warranties, GAP, maintenance, road hazard insurance, emergency road assistance, etc. These products can add up to $1,000 or much more. With interest rates at historic lows, many people who haven't financed a car in many years don't know that, with good credit, interest rates on new car loans can go below 2 percent. If they financed their last car at 5 percent and are quoted 4.69 percent by the dealer, they might think that's a very good rate when it's really very high.

But there are times when it definitely pays to finance with the dealer, and the biggest one is when the dealer's manufacturer captive lender offers special low-interest rate incentives such as 0 percent.

When you read an advertisement for 0 percent financing, be sure that the lender is the dealer's manufacturer's captive lender, like Honda Credit. If the dealer is offering 0 percent through a bank not affiliated with his manufacturer, it's not a valid offer. The dealer is simply adding additional markup to the car he's selling you so that he can "buy down" the real interest rate the bank is charging.

When captive lenders offer 0 percent, be sure you ask if there is an alternative cash rebate. Typically the captive lender offers something like 0 percent financing for 60 months or a $1,000 cash rebate. You need to do the math to find out which is the better deal. This is calculated by knowing how much you can borrow from your bank or credit union and how much you're financing.

Unfortunately it's common for dealers to advertise the car price including the $1,000 rebate and also advertise 0 percent financing. In the fine print they say "no two offers can be combined."

Today, the federal government is going after banks, including captive lenders, for discriminating against minorities by charging higher interest rate without regard to the customers' credit scores. They should be going after the car dealers instead of the banks, since it's the car dealers who raise the interest rates.

But the car dealers are hiding behind a loophole which names the bank as the primary lender, even though the dealer decides the interest rate and signs the customer to the installment sales contract. This is because the dealer immediately sells that contract to the bank. The federal government is saying that all customers with the same credit score should be offered the same interest rate. Since the dealer is the one who determines the interest rate, why isn't he held responsible?

Science program connects students, robotics, Space Station

For Hometown News
NewsFP@hometownnewsol.com

TREASURE COAST — Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and the Florida Afterschool Network have partnered with four Florida school districts to participate in the Synchronized Position Hold, Engage, Reorient Experimental Satellites Zero Robotics Competition.

This fun and flexible five-week summer program, which began June 17, brings together 10 teams of middle school students from Brevard, Indian River, Orange and St. Lucie counties.

The teams will work with program staff, mentors and prominent scientists to learn about programming, robotics and space engineering while gaining hands-on experience working with and programming SPHERES, which are bowling-ball sized spherical satellites used inside the International Space Station to test instructions for spacecraft performing flight and docking maneuvers.

Culminating in a tournament at the Kennedy Space Center, each team's SPHERE will "battle" for spots to operate on the International Space Station. At the end of the summer, participants will get to see their SPHERES in space via a live feed and communicate with Space Station astronauts.

"The programs selected to participate in the Zero Robotics Summer SPHERES Program have demonstrated a commitment to including innovative Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics curriculum in their summer programs," said Larry Pintacuda, CEO of the Florida Afterschool Network. "Afterschool and summer programming provide the ideal environment for students to engage in hands-on experiments that complement what they learned during the school year. These kids are going to have a wonderful and exciting summer."

The Zero Robotics Summer SPHERES program is a continuation of the programming that was made available in 2010 through NASA's Summer of Innovation Grant Program. The pilot was implemented for three years in the Boston area, and the program now has multiple locations around the country, including California, Florida, Georgia, Idaho and Massachusetts.

Zero Robotics is led by MIT's Space Systems Laboratory, which originally designed the SPHERES satellites, with partners Top Coder, the Massachusetts Afterschool Partnership, and Aurora Flight Sciences, and with the sponsorship of the Center for the Advancement of Science in Space, the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency, and NASA.

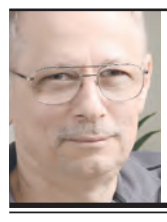
Lucky bamboo symbolizes good luck



GARDEN NOOK
JOE ZELENAK

Everybody needs a good luck charm and I can't think of a better way to go than with a lucky Bamboo. These interesting plants are extremely tough and surprisingly easy to care for. These plants do not require a lot of light and can grow in many places where other plants will not easily thrive such as in a bathroom. The plant has only one basic need and that is water.

The Lucky Bamboo is actually not a bamboo at all. Its botanical name is known as Dracaena Sanderana. It is also known as the ribbon plant.

Many Feng Shui master recommend this plant because the plant can create a space where you feel energized and less stressed. I personally have one in every room and it is one of my most favorite plants. I have them in several locations, one on the porch, another in the kitchen and yet another in my office. They do well in almost any lighting condition. When I feel stressed out from a hard day, I often just look at the plant and think and it almost always gives me a feeling of comfort.

You can purchase Lucky Bamboo in a couple of different ways. Sometimes, you can find them already potted in all flavors of decorative pots. You can also purchase them loose and buy your own vase or pot. If you use a vase to display your plant, simply keep the roots covered with water. If you choose to plant them in a small pot, buy some small stones or even marbles to place around the plant to give it stability. The rocks also give the plant a nice decorator look.

Taking care of Lucky Bamboo is very simple and worry free. All you need is to keep the plant in clean water. It is a good idea to change the water once a week or so. If you have city water, let the water stand for 24 hours before putting the plant in it so the chlorine has a chance to dissipate. Better yet, use distilled water. If you have a well, the water is perfectly safe as is. You can add a diluted water-soluble houseplant fertilizer but it is not necessary.

Not only can these plants bring you joy, but they also bring good cheer to others in the form of gifts. You can create your own themes for any occasion simply by using the appropriate container. You can then add ribbons, picks or any other type of small object to create something truly special that will be cherished for time to come.

This week's garden tip:

With the warm weather, plant pests are sure to be eyeing your prized plants. One way to help ensure your insecticide stays where you spray it is to add a spreader sticker to your insecticide solution. A spreader sticker helps keep the spray on the plant and makes it harder for rain and your sprinklers to wash it off. This makes the solution more effective. A very inexpensive way to achieve this is to add a small amount of mild dish detergent or vegetable oil to your bug juice before spraying. You should never spray your plants in the heat of the day as the solution can act like a small magnifying glass and cause the leaves to burn.

Many of us are always looking for organic ways to kill pests and one of these is by using nicotine. When diluted with water and used as a spray, it can be effective in controlling sucking insects such as aphids, whiteflies and leafhoppers. You can make your own solution by using chewing tobacco. Simply make some "nicotine tea" by putting a wad of tobacco in a piece of old stocking material and placing it in water.

Let the brew steep a day or two and dilute it with about 40 percent water. You may also be able to purchase the spray at garden centers that sell natural insecticides.

TREASURE COAST — Deserving middle and high school students from St. Lucie, Indian River, Martin and Okeechobee counties earned a valuable incentive for future success.

At a scholarship recognition ceremony held at Indian River State College, 40 students became the 2013 recipients of four-year tuition President's Challenge/Take Stock in Children Scholarships. Recipients this year are all the first generation in their families to pursue a college degree.

The special award ceremony was held on Monday, May 13 at the McAlpin Fine Arts Center on the IRSC Main Campus in Fort Pierce. In addition to recognizing new recipients, IRSC recognized the accomplishments of 63 high school graduates and 23 IRSC graduates.

Since 1997, 835 President's Challenge/Take Stock in Children scholarships have been awarded to students, with the provision that they meet the challenges and graduate from high school.

The scholarship program is designed to motivate and assist students who show academic promise and who might not otherwise have the opportunity to attend college. The scholarship recipients are matched with adult volunteer mentors from the community who provide guidance and encouragement. All the selected scholarship recipients sign a contract agreeing to maintain good grades, to stay out of trouble, to stay away from drugs and alcohol and to graduate from high school. Those who meet the challenge will receive a scholarship to attend IRSC for two years, followed by two years at IRSC or a Florida public college or university.

The President's Challenge/Take Stock in Children Scholarship program is made possible through many program partners including: the Florida Prepaid College Foundation, the Governor's Mentoring Initiative, the Indian River State College Foundation, the Indian River County School District, the Martin County School District, the Okeechobee County School District, the Okeechobee Educational Foundation, the St. Lucie County School District, the Take Stock in Children Foundation. Scholarship partners include: Edwin and Iris Arnowitt, Bank of America "Dream Makers," the Lawton Chiles Memorial Endowment, Pete and Susanne Clemons, José and Mary Ann Conrado, the Deerbrook Charitable Trust, the Estate of Marjorie Routt, the Florida College System Foundation, the Helios Education Foundation, James and Virginia Merrill Foundation, John's Island Community Service League, Mallonee Family Foundation, Michael and Misty Minton, the Okeechobee Educational Foun-

Passport to science through movie series

By Dawn Krebs
dkrebs@hometownnewsol.com

ST. LUCIE COUNTY — Over the hot summer months, Harbor Branch Oceanographic Institute will be offering summer movies every Wednesday through Aug. 28.

The movies are part of the institute's "Passport to Science" program and feature a variety of science topics, from lionfish to the planet's oceans.

All the movies are hosted by Dr. Jim Masterson, a scientist at Harbor Branch, and are suitable for children ages 9 years old and older.

On July 3, the movie is "On the Brink," and will show how environmental pressures can lead to terrorism and regional conflicts.

They will take place at 1 p.m. every Wednesday at the Johnson Education Center in the Harbor Branch campus. There is no cost to see the movie, and popcorn, drinks and hot dogs will be available for purchase.

In addition, a special science day is in store for those who attend more than six movies.

A "Science Saturday" will be held on Sept. 14 for those dedicated movie watchers, and will include a tour of Harbor Branch Oceanographic Institute, a boat trip, an aquaculture adventure and a review of the latest Harbor Branch research on local estuaries.

The movies are being offered by the Friends of Harbor Branch. Advanced registration is suggested. For more information, call (772) 242-2559.

WINTER HAVEN — If you're looking for a quick drive for spectacular summer fun, LEGOLAND Florida has everything you need, from pink-knuckle roller coasters and a splish-splashin' water park to a mystifying new expansion, The LEGO World of Chima presented by Cartoon Network.

About two hours from the Treasure Coast, LEGOLAND Florida rests along the shores of Lake Eloise in the city of Winter Haven. LEGOLAND Florida is a 150-acre two-day interactive family theme park specifically designed for families with children ages 2 to 12.

The largest LEGOLAND Park in the world, it features more than 50 rides, shows, attractions, restaurants, shopping, a breathtaking botanical garden and LEGOLAND Water Park.

Just in time for the Fourth of July holiday, LEGOLAND will celebrate the grand opening of The LEGO World of Chima presented by Cartoon Network on July 3. The park's annual Fourth of July celebration, Red, Brick & Boom, is held July 4-6 and features special viewing glasses that turn ordinary fireworks into millions of exploding LEGO Bricks.

The park will have extended hours during these three nights, with firework displays taking place at 9 p.m. and a special patriotic-themed display on July 4.

LEGOLAND is the only place in the world that LEGO fans can go to unleash the power and be fully immersed in The World of Chima, providing an experience like no other.

The centerpiece of the new World of Chima will be an immersive, family-friendly interactive and super wet water ride, The Quest for CHI. Guests will enter The World of Chima through a fantastical stone-and-moss-covered entrance, which leads to the Lion Temple at the base of the majestic 60-foot tall floating Mount Cavora. There, guests will explore a diverse landscape setting and join the Lion Tribe in an epic battle to recover the stolen CHI orbs. Guests will board a watercraft which will take them on an interactive experience using water cannons to help their hero, Laval the Lion Prince, defeat Cragger the Crocodile King as he attempts to steal the precious supply of CHI. The journey will take them through the land of Chima where they will meet some of the highly advanced animal tribal habitats, including the Rhino Quarry, Raven's Roost, Eagle's Nest, Wolves Encampment, Gorilla Forest and Crocodile Swamp, among other imaginative settings.

Famous 'Fokie' is worth the drive

FORT PIERCE — For more than 40 years, Chef Ty Neuman has been delighting palates around the world. Luckily for those who live close to Fort Pierce, his newest restaurant, Coyote Grill and Seafood Eatery, is easily accessible and full of reasons to sit down for an incredible meal.

Nestled just inside the Road Runner Travel Resort on St. Lucie Boulevard, the quaint restaurant is surrounded by nature. The quiet atmosphere, which includes trees, trails and a pond, makes visitors feel as if they've escaped to the countryside. The picturesque locale is accentuated by the small eatery, nestled next to a country store and surrounded by a large deck.

Ty Neuman, owner and head chef at Coyote Grill and Seafood Eatery, prepares the dough for his famous "Fokie" sandwich.

The menu includes items such as soup and salads to chicken wings and pizza. But, if you want to try something a little more daring, Chef Neuman or the other chef on staff, Michel Faugue, will prepare calamari, their version of shrimp on the Barbie, specials on live lobster, prime rib, paella, Boston scrod and Chef Newman's claim to fame; the Fokie.

My companion and I visited Coyote Grill on a quiet Saturday evening. The sun was setting and everything around seemed just a little more laid back than usual. Chef Neuman greeted us as we walked in and was incredibly attentive.

"I've been doing this a long time," he said. "I've owned 21 restaurants all over the country and worked at restaurants all over the world. I've also worked every position in the restaurant business, from bus boy to captain to maître d' to owner. I think that type of experience is important. I know as head chef I want to prepare the best tasting food and I know as owner, I want a chef who takes pride in Croc tribe's hideout and find a lush green foggy swamp with playful bubbles, intermittent water spouts and interactive elements that trigger swamp water effects. This attraction is a great place for mom and dad to relax in the shaded seating area while tots are in perfect viewing distance.

The battle continues in the SpeedorzTM Arena, where players compete to win the precious supply of CHI and have the chance to meet their hero Laval and villain Cragger, and also experience a new 4-D Chima movie.

Open for its second summer season, the LEGOLAND Water Park is a "park within a park," and provides splish-splashin' fun for the whole family. Main attractions include the Build-A-Raft River where guests can build their own LEGO raft and float down the 1,000-foot lazy river or play for hours at the Joker Soaker water playground.

Other attractions include the LEGO wave pool, five slippery-fast water slides and the DUPLO Splash Safari, a toddler-haven with perfectly-sized slides and a zero-depth wading pool.

If that's not enough, LEGOLAND Florida features 10 easy-to-navigate and highly-themed zones and more than 56 million LEGO Bricks. The heart of every LEGOLAND Park, Miniland USA, features nine remarkably themed areas that represent miniature versions of landmarks found throughout the United States.

LEGO Star Wars Miniland Model Display, the newest area of Miniland USA, includes a scene from each of the six live-action Star Wars movies, as well as a scene from the animated series Star Wars: The Clone War.

LEGO Kingdoms is inspired by all things medieval and takes kids back to a time of knights, princesses and dragons. Major attractions include The Dragon, an indoor/outdoor steel roller coaster; The Royal Joust and Merlin's Challenge.

The Land of Adventure includes Coastersaurus, a wooden coaster that curves and dips in and around a life-sized LEGO Brick dinosaur; Lost Kingdom Adventure, a spectacular, Egyptian-themed dark ride that lets guests fire laser blasters and navigate an ancient-ruined temple; and Safari Trek which explores the wilds of Africa and features amazingly life-like LEGO Animals.

LEGO Technic is the most "intense" zone in the park. Here courageous youngsters and daring adults brave the LEGO TECHNIC Coaster. This area is also home to AQUAZONE Wave Racers, which lets riders zip in and out of waves as they dodge kid-powered water blasters on their own LEGO Jet skis.

LEGO City is the perfect place for youngsters to live out their dreams in a scaled-down town created just for them. At the Ford Driving School (and its counterpart, Ford Jr. Driving School), youngsters from ages 3 to 13 get to drive their own car, navigate roads and earn a commemorative driver's license. Other major attractions include Boating School, a fun-filled ride that allows kids to captain their own mini-vessels; Flight School, a suspended rollercoaster that simulates the thrill of flight; and the LEGO City Rescue Academy, where families compete with one another in fire and police vehicles.

For those looking for a more scenic and quiet escape amidst the brightly colored park, LEGOLAND Florida has taken great care to preserve the soul of the park – the historic gardens established on the grounds of its Cypress Gardens predecessor more than 75 years ago. The setting has been restored to its pristine condition, and the collection of native plants has been reclaimed and combined with a range of exotic species to create a horticultural masterpiece. And still standing sentinel in the garden is the vast Banyan tree that was planted as a seedling in a five-gallon bucket in1939.

It's easy to tell that he takes pride in every dish that he prepares.

Chef Neuman brought out an appetizer of shrimp on the Barbie, a healthy serving of grilled shrimp over yellow rice topped with Bam Bam sauce, a combination of mayonnaise, sweet chili sauce and sriracha sauce. The large shrimp were full of flavor and had to be cut into bite size pieces. Flavor was added to the yellow rice by diced vegetables that added a wonderful crunch.

My companion and I were also served chicken wings with gold rush sauce, which has just the right amount of sweet heat.

"I started making Fokies about years and years ago and they were a hit as soon as I started selling them," Chef Neuman said as he described his signature dish. "I prepare the dough fresh every day. It's prepared with basil, roasted garlic and grilled onion. I grill it and then add all of the ingredients of the sandwich and top it with Bam Bam sauce."

Because I had to know what all the fuss was about, my companion and I tried the sandwich… And, we can assure you that it really has been dubbed appropriately, 'The best sandwich on the planet.' The Focaccia bread is absolutely delightful and is bursting with flavor. Our sandwich was full of roast beef, ham, turkey, American, Swiss and provolone cheeses, fresh spinach, tomatoes, banana peppers, onions, and the tangy Bam Bam sauce. The sandwich can also be served with tuna salad or chicken salad. The amazing sandwich is served with a side of coleslaw for only $6.95.

The Shrimp on the Barbie is one of the appetizers available at Coyote Grill and Seafood.

Although we were getting full, he insisted we try some of the fried belly clams, shrimp and tilapia that that are featured on the entrée menu. The seafood is dipped in flour, milk seasoned with paprika, and yellow corn flour. The result is a light coating that doesn't weigh down the seafood with grease.

There is a prefect ratio of coating to seafood, leaving the delicious seafood flavor intact, yet coated with a delightful crunch.

The menu also offers sweet treats, including Peach Melba, a serving of ice cream, topped with peaches and a sauce made of black and red raspberries.

It was difficult to pick one meal that outdid the others. They were all perfection on a plate. If you've never had the pleasure of an evening at Coyote Grill, make time in your week to do so.

Also, look out for Chef Neuman at the Farmer's Market in Fort Pierce. He'll be there making his famous Fokies for everyone to enjoy.

There is live music on the deck at Coyote Grill on Friday and Saturday evenings until 8 p.m. and happy hour every evening.

Coyote Grill and Seafood Eatery is located inside the Road Runner Travel Resort, 5500 St. Lucie Blvd. in Fort Pierce. The restaurant is open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays, and from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. Sundays. For more information, call (772) 465-0202.
