HACKIN' AROUND

Long John, may you RIP

Breaking my 20-year habit of going to Long John Silver's every working day for lunch is tough.

No more giant shrimp — mine and Wilson Williams' favorite. No more battered chicken. Where can you find that now? No more corn on the cob with melted butter served upon request.

John HACKWORTH
EDITOR

And, also, no more visits with a bunch of kind folks who served me and others for so long. Todd Opela, owner, did something right because there was never much turnover in staff.

I have taken a lot of kidding over the years for my compulsive habit of eating at Long John's every day. When I suffered temporary insanity and left for South Carolina a couple years ago, my going away presents included an original cartoon from Ron Bates with Long John Silver holding a newspaper article saying "Hackworth is leaving," and grumbling to his parrot, "What am I going to do with all this hushpuppy mix?"

Apparently I am not alone in my addiction to that fried food.

It was like a meeting place. I could count on seeing Linda Wilson there at least once every couple of weeks. And folks often came up to me to comment on an article or tell me they like the newspaper.

Not having that respite for lunch reminds me of the months following Hurricane Charley.

I remember as Charlotte County began its slow recovery from that disaster, I would stop by the shell of the Long John Silver's almost every week to see if and when it would reopen. Todd finally announced he would rebuild — better than ever.

While I made the occasional run to Fort Myers to satisfy my craving for LJS food, he was busy ordering equipment and planning a whole new interior. It was months before things were ready to go — but still a real success story compared to the Burger King next door, which never did reopen.

The more I think about it, 20 years has been a long time. I watched Todd's kids grow up. From the time they served me to the time they graduated from college. Now they are doctors and the such.

I remember Julia and Joel, who started there as kids. Now Julia is a mom and her husband is part-owner of Gatorz Downtown in Punta Gorda. Joel has been working in Fort Myers for a while but still, seemingly just for old times' sake, came back to work one day a week at LJS.

There are all sorts of rumors about what will happen to the building.

I can only speculate. But, I know there are talks of a whole new kind of restaurant going in. There may even be another Long John Silver's owner interested — but that is a long shot, I understand.

Meanwhile, I seek out other seafood locations. I'm not a meat eater. No hot dogs or hamburgers for lunch for me.

So where to?

I just have not found that perfect spot yet.

I am sure the same folks who helped me find great hushpuppies will surely have ideas for a tasty, quick seafood lunch.

I await your suggestions while I traverse U.S. 41 — and Kings Highway — trying to satisfy my hunger while clinging to a bag of LJS batter mix that I obtained on the black market.

Long John, we miss you.

Summer BreakSpot provides an average of 1,600 free and healthy meals daily to local children at various sites in the region. Neil Armstrong Elementary School is one of the sites in the Englewood, North Port, Port Charlotte and Punta Gorda areas.

Program offers free kids meals

For children ages 6 and up, the North Port Art Center is offering its usual array of week-long summer camps, where students receive professional instruction in crafts and the fine arts, including such advanced classes as canvas painting, mosaics and silk-screen printing.

But there is another essential component of learning provided each day. As one of more than 20 participating sites in the Summer BreakSpot program, the art center also offers children a free, well-rounded lunch.

"There is a need in the community for adequate nutrition," said Clare Harvey, North Port Art Center director.

On average, about 25 children are enrolled each week for the summer art camp, which operates weekdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and costs $80. But walk-ins are welcome for the federally funded food program, free of charge.

Harvey said this is the second year the art center has taken on the role of being a food distribution site, explaining it is an opportunity to reach out to the community and serve a critical need. While children must be enrolled in summer camp to enjoy the art classes, she said scholarships are provided based on interest as well as financial need. And, in some cases, the food and art programs complement one another.

"In the past, we have used the summer food program as a contact for scholarships," she said.

With 44 percent of Charlotte County school district children receiving free and reduced-price meals during the school year, the need for such financial assistance already is clear, said Will McWhirter, food and nutrition specialist for the district, which is the local sponsor for Summer BreakSpot.

When school lets out for the summer, however, many of these children are at risk of hunger or poor nutrition. Summer BreakSpot is designed to ensure that children have the nutritious

Developer eyes senior care near churches

By IAN ROSS
STAFF WRITER

SARASOTA COUNTY — A developer with a unique vision — senior care near church campuses — is building its first two facilities in North Port and Sarasota.

The developer, Alabama-based Omega Communities LLC, aims to create assisted-living and memory-care campuses on land bordering churches looking to expand their outreach and make full use of their assets. Per the company's vision, seniors will benefit from a close relationship with the church communities.

"The (South Biscayne Church in North Port) has about 3,000 members and the (Church of Hope in Sarasota) has 4,000, so these residents are getting very large families when they move to these churches," said Jimmy Taylor Jr., chief operating officer of Omega.

South Biscayne Church at 13000 S. Tamiami Trail is looking forward to the completion of its $25.6 million, 138-bed adjacent senior care center, The Springs. The facility will offer "faith-based" assisted living, including state-of-the-art medical care, to help residents with specialized

Sparks fly in Babcock power struggle

By DICK HOGAN
FORT MYERS NEWS-PRESS

Syd Kitson says he needs to set up his own electric utility on the sprawling Babcock Ranch to build his solar-powered city of tomorrow.

But the Lee County Electric Cooperative and its allies counter that Kitson's dream would be bad policy and potentially bad for consumers— disrupting the long-term plans of existing utilities.

At the request of Kitson on June 25, the parties have pushed the pause button on the Florida Public Service Commission proceedings that began in March and would otherwise settle the dispute.

But in the absence of a precedent, the debate in and out of the formal PSC process has blossomed into a multitude of public policy issues.

Babcock Ranch, on the eastern edge of the Lee/Charlotte line, will have 19,500 homes on 18,000 acres. It was part of a much larger ranch, but much of that was sold back to the state for a giant preserve in 2006.

KITSON

Experts are split on who's right, but agree the case is a glimpse into the future of how electricity will be generated and sold to consumers. Kitson plans to have large arrays of solar panels plus more panels on rooftops throughout the community.

"It's a great experiment," said Joe Simmons, a scientist and FGCU professor who's director of the school's emergent technology institute. "It's designing the future for us."

But exactly how that experiment is conducted is a matter of debate.

'No swim' advisory lifted at Bird Key Park

Provided by Sarasota County Government

SARASOTA COUNTY — A "no swim" advisory that has been in place at Bird Key Park on the west side of the Ringling Causeway in Sarasota since July 10 was lifted Saturday afternoon.

Florida Department of Health in Sarasota County officials received testing results that were at a satisfactory level meeting both the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and state recreational water standards. Residents and visitors may return to swimming and other water sports at this beach site. The "no swim" advisory signs have been removed.

The Florida Department of Health in Sarasota County monitors water quality weekly at 16 sites along Sarasota's 34 miles of beaches. The intent of this program is to provide county residents and visitors with accurate, up-to-date information on the water quality at area beaches.

When making beach day plans, be sure to check the latest reports on beach conditions.

ID, dog, luggage troubles follow

Brett Slattery

My wife, Deb, jokes about how trouble seems to find me when I fly. Like a recent flight where we sat in the third row. Just before departure, I hailed a flight attendant approaching from the rear of the plane to ask a question. When he ignored me, I became a tad more insistent. "I was counting passengers," he blurted out. With a disgusted tone, he continued, "Now I have to start all over."

But nothing could compare to our most recent trip. Arriving at the Tampa airport, I realized I forgot my wallet and had no ID. Anyone knows you can't board a plane without ID. But having experienced the power of positive thinking, Deb and I proceeded to check-in.

I told the greeter I had no ID. "That's OK," she said. "You technically don't need it, they'll just search you more." Really!

TSA interviewed my wife and I separately, and asked her to produce documents from her purse that had my name on it, like joint checks and insurance cards.

My TSA handler then told me they would now do a two-man, four-minute pat down. It took longer than that. They told me what to expect along the way. Like, "Now I'm going to rub my hands up your inner thighs. Now I'll run my hands around your waistband." I knew they were looking for weapons and I thought of lots of really funny things to say. I wisely bit my tongue. And we were cleared for takeoff.

Deb, our puppy, and I took our seats — elated that we had done the impossible again. But then we hit turbulence. The airlines require dogs be in carriers and placed under the seat at all times. But that scares our little puppy. She trembles, whimpers, then barks.

Our solution was to place her carrier on my lap and open up the newspaper to conceal it. Unfortunately, I laid the newspaper down the same instant an attendant approached from the rear.

I pleaded for an exemption on the basis that when I put her under the seat, she barks. Then the other three dogs on the plane joined in causing a disturbance. He intimated that if I couldn't control my dog, all four dog families on the packed plane would have to be rearranged for maximum separation. With a little help from sympathetic passengers, we found a solution I best keep to myself.

We arrived late to the baggage carousel because I had to run our puppy to Pittsburgh's "pet relief area." Upon arrival at the carousel, I was distracted by an urgent call that required immediate negotiations to hold a real estate deal together. In the midst of negotiations, I grabbed our two suitcases from the carousel. I checked the name tag on mine. I didn't need to check Debs because it is a shocking fluorescent-pink color and the only other suitcase on the carousel.

A few hours later, Deb flipped open her suitcase to unpack. "That's not my suitcase," she blurted out. Gulp.

The suitcase in our possession had a name tag with a phone number. I informed the airline I would immediately return the suitcase to the airport and asked them to call the owner to allay her concerns. They refused, saying they were "just a call center."

At that point, I knew the only right thing to do was for me to call the suitcase owner immediately, apologize for taking her suitcase, and make arrangements to return it ASAP. Her name was Delores.

Amazingly, Delores was very apologetic. She had mistakenly grabbed Deb's suitcase, assuming hers was the only shocking pink suitcase on the carousel. So we had her suitcase and she had ours.

We arranged a 5:30 p.m. meeting in front of a well-known candy store on a busy street to exchange suitcases. It's a little more complicated, though. The rental car we picked up a few hours earlier was malfunctioning and we had until 6 p.m. to return it at a satellite office near the candy store.

Coordinating both meant that Deb and her brother would drop me off in front of the candy store for the suitcase exchange while they drove off to return the car.

I am reluctant to hold my wife's purse in public. But there I was, sitting in front of a candy store, on a busy highway, holding a prissy dog in a pink harness, with a shocking pink suitcase at my heels, obviously waiting for whatever. People were staring at me.

We stopped at Giant Eagle on the way home to pick up hamburger for the grill and ice-cold beer. "Sorry," said the clerk. "We card everyone. No ID, no alcohol."

That was our first day of vacation. Actually, it turned out well. We made our flight against all odds, we kept our puppy calm, the real estate deal will close in 12 days, the car rental company eliminated the charges, Deb had ID to buy the beer, and once again we rode the power of positive thinking to accomplish what seemed impossible.

Variegated flax lily – a hardy, versatile ground cover

Ralph Mitchell

You have probably seen this plant almost everywhere these days — beds of vertically variegated, 1- to 2-foot-long strap-like leaves. Reminiscent of variegated lily turf or liriope, variegated flax lily is a larger plant and an excellent ground cover. Hiding in plain sight, let's learn more about the variegated flax lily.

The variegated flax lily has other common names, including Tasmanian Flax Lily. Native to both Australia and Tasmania, one cultivar of this herbaceous perennial, "Variegata," has become wildly popular here in the nursery trade. There are other cultivars with blue-green (a cultivar called "Becca") or even reddish foliage. In addition to the attractive, almost iris-like foliage, they also have small blue flowers which are sometimes followed by small blue fruit. The attractive green and white leaves can also be used to spruce up floral bouquets.

The variegated flax lily likes well-drained soil in a full sun or light shade site. Useful for edging, as a ground cover or even in containers, variegated flax lily is very drought-tolerant once established. The brightly variegated color can also be useful to brighten up lightly shaded areas. There do not seem to be any serious pest problems, although infestation by armored scale insects have been noted in Southwest Florida. They are fully hardy here and any frosted or just old, brown foliage can be trimmed off in the spring. Mature plants will grow up to 24 inches in diameter, so plant accordingly to use as a ground cover. Larger clumps can be divided and reset if necessary.

Variegated flax lily is easy to find at any garden center in our area. This Florida-Friendly Landscaping plant is a recommended, and relatively speaking, "brown thumb-proof" landscape material.

Sgriccia was 18 when she signed up to be an Air Corps nurse

By DON MOORE
Sun Correspondent

In 1939, the year Marie Sgriccia graduated from high school, the 17-year-old had to wait a year before attending college to become a registered nurse, because they wouldn't take her until she was at least 18.

"In those days, there wasn't very much a girl could do if she wanted a job. She could be a teacher, be a secretary or go into nursing," the 92-year-old Punta Gorda resident recalled with a smile. "I got started in nursing in 1940, before the war. They didn't think nursing was a good thing for a girl to go into. But then World War II started and then it was a different story.

"I attended the Indiana Hospital School of Nursing in Indiana, Pa., with two other friends of mine. It was a three-year course, 24/7. We only had two weeks off in the summer, otherwise it was all nursing. I went in the nursing course in September 1940 and graduated in September 1943.

"During our senior year in nursing the Red Cross came to the hospital and signed all of us up for the military before we graduated. I joined the Army Air Corps as a nurse at Pittsburgh Hospital in December 1943.

"That Thanksgiving, before I got out of school, my mother, my aunt and uncle visited me. On their return trip home the three of them were involved in an auto accident. My mother was so seriously injured I got a leave of absence and spent the next three months caring for her," Sgriccia said.

When she returned to Air Corps nursing, Sgriccia spent all her time as a nurse on bases around the country tending to the staff and young aviators who were learning to fly planes. She didn't tend wounded patients from the war in Europe or the Pacific.

"I saw my first wounded patient when I was sent to Coral Gables to work in the Biltmore Hotel that had been converted to a hospital during the war," she said. "They would bring them in on stretchers. Almost every night we would take some of our patients out to a restaurant or a nightclub to see a show.

"I remember being at the Orange Bowl football game on New Year's Day. I took two soldiers on gurneys to see the game."

The thing that made the biggest impression on Sgriccia during the time she was a nurse treating war-injured servicemen in Miami was a group of young soldiers who had been POWs of the Japanese.

"These boys needed food and attention. They were in terrible shape when they arrived. That's what they got from us, lots of attention."

In April 1946, Sgriccia got out of the service after serving two years. The following year she married Tom, a mechanical engineer. He had been a member of the "Manhattan Project," the top-secret undertaking involving thousands of people who designed and built the first atomic bomb that ended WWII.

"He worked in Oak Ridge, Tenn., on the bomb project. He never told us anything about what he did during the war until years later," Sgriccia said.

After early retirement, the couple moved to Charlotte County. She now lives in Alligator Park, a manufactured home park in Punta Gorda. They have eight children, Vicky, Thomas, James, William, John, Maria, Rita and Joseph.

92-year-old bounces back from broken pelvis

By STEVEN J. SMITH
Sun Correspondent

SARASOTA COUNTY — Clara Bodager credits an active lifestyle to her speedy recovery from a broken pelvis just a few short weeks ago.

Clara, 92, has lived in Nokomis for about 30 years. Her husband, a World War II veteran, died six years ago, and her only other family here is a niece who lives in Venice. She said a wet and slippery kitchen floor caused the fall on June 10 that sent her to the HealthSouth Rehabilitation Hospital of Sarasota. Although she was diagnosed with a fractured pelvis, it did not keep her down. The HealthSouth staff encouraged her to get on her feet as soon as possible, and she was back home in two weeks.

"My doctor said when I left the hospital that I should not stay in bed," she said. "And I haven't. They started me walking with a walker, but I got sick from all the medicines they gave me for the pain, like oxycodone. I don't take medicine. I'm not on any pills. Just vitamins, and some Advil at bedtime."

Clara added the hospital staff and physical therapists who now visit her at home could not believe how quickly she recovered from her injury.

"They knew I do water aerobics every day at the Venice YMCA," she said. "It's really all about exercising and you have to keep moving. Bonnie Judy is my water aerobics instructor at the Y. She has kept me fit. She is fantastic."

Pam Kostas was one of the registered nurses at HealthSouth tending to Clara during her stay there.

"It's really nice to see end results of people like Clara, going back home with quality of life," Kostas said. "She was upbeat and a lot of fun. There was a lot of laughter in her room. She had a positive attitude and she wanted to get better and get back to her life."

Clara gets around on a walker and a cane right now, and expects to return to normal soon.

"It takes six weeks to heal, and it's not healed all the way yet," she said. "I've got a couple of more weeks to go."

Once she reaches the six-week mark, Clara plans to keep moving — all the way to her other home in Jeromesville, Ohio.

"I'm a Florida resident, but I like to go to my northern home in Ohio during the summer," she said. "I'm physically active. I also keep my own house and I cook for myself, and I go to church every Sunday."

Kostas said the key to Clara's quick recovery was in her resolve.

"She wanted it and she worked for it," Kostas said. "I didn't do it for her."

Get 'Hooked' on Englewood for Pioneer Days

By STEVE REILLY
Staff Writer

ENGLEWOOD — Englewood Pioneer Days organizers hope to hear from those who are "hooked" on Englewood.

The theme for the 58th Pioneer Days Parade, which is scheduled for 9 a.m. Sept. 1, is how people are hooked on Englewood. However people interpret that is up to them.

What's important for those who want to be in the parade is that they have their applications in by Aug. 18. Organizers are asking a $35 fee for "the whole package" of individual entries, no matter how many components an entry might include, said Jean Airey, treasurer of the volunteer Pioneer Days Committee.

"Most people start thinking about Pioneer Days and the parade in the last weeks of July and the first two weeks of August," Airey said. Last year's Pioneer Days parade saw 65 parade entries, of which 28 were floats.

The committee will be offering trophies in various categories for float entries:

- "You're Hooked" for the best overall use of the parade theme.
- "Watch that Hook" for the funniest float incorporating the parade theme.
- "Youth Hooked, too" for best entry with young people participating and/or creating a float.
- "Hooked on Englewood History" for the float that reflects Englewood's history.
- "Hooked on Water Fun" for the float that best reflects boating, other water recreation or life on the water.
- "Hooked on Good Times" for the float that shows the most spirit.
- "Hooked on Music" for the float with the best use of music incorporated into the theme.
- "Salute the Hook" for the most patriotic entry.
- "Hooked on Our Environment" for the ecologically sensitive, environmental float.
- "Hooked to be Most Original" for the most creative float, even those not necessarily staying within the theme.

Also, applications for vendors are being accepted for two days of events scheduled at Pioneer Park on West Dearborn Street. Vendors wanting a 10-foot by10-foot booth are expected to pay $65 for the two days.

"Vendor spaces are going quickly," Airey said.

Pioneer Days is more than a parade. The traditional celebration includes 14 events, starting Aug. 23. Organizers are also hoping for volunteers to ensure that all the activities and the parade are enjoyable and a success. Anyone wishing to volunteer can call J. Erick Phelps at 941-376-215.

The Englewood Area Chamber of Commerce originally created the Pioneer Days celebration. In later years, the Englewood Jaycees oversaw the organization of the traditional three-day Pioneer Days celebration and staging of the parade.

In 2009, the Englewood Jaycees no longer had the volunteers to stage the parade and other events. A grassroots committee coalesced to ensure the Englewood tradition would not die and has continued the community tradition.

The public is encouraged to attend committee meetings. The next meeting is scheduled for 6 p.m. Wednesday at the Elsie Quirk Library.

TIME TO THINK PIONEER DAYS

Applicants can apply online at www.englewoodpioneerdays.com or pick up applications at Lasbury Tracy Real Estate at 312 South Indiana Ave. (State Road 776) or Corin Bay Real Estate Marketing and Sales at 30 South Mango St.

meals they need for a healthy mind and body during the summer months and to fortify them for the upcoming school year, which starts Aug. 18, later than usual.

"There is a need for kids to have access to a nutritious meal," McWhirter said. "I think it's a great program."

This summer, food program sites include public school facilities, private schools, camps, churches and day cares, as well as the local YMCA and Boys & Girls Clubs. The public school facilities are open sites that welcome all comers for breakfast, lunch and snacks. However, satellite sites each have their own policies, which govern enrollment fees, meal offerings, and how long and which days they are open.

Overall, Summer BreakSpot provides an average of 1,600 meals daily. In June alone, the feeding program served up 16,000 lunches, more than 4,000 breakfasts and 9,000 snacks. And nutrition is included in every meal.

Each breakfast contains a fruit component, with lunches coming with sides of fruit and vegetables. Whole grain foods are used, and the milk is all low-fat or non-fat. Even the snacks are healthy.

needs, such as those suffering from dementia or Alzheimer's disease. The ALF will sit on nine acres of land Omega purchased from the church for $964,000 in 2012.

The North Port church is not a part of building the facility, but its members see it as an opportunity to worship with and help its elderly residents once it opens.

"It's just kind of a big opportunity right in our back yard for us to share," said Mitchell West, a graphic designer at the church.

"That's the heart behind Omega's vision for the project. They just want it to be a great experience for the residents that live there, (and provide) an opportunity to have people in their front yard that they know are going to want to be involved, build them up and encourage them."

West said the church is "hoping to maybe one day have an actual worship experience over there for residents and employees." Other than that, the church community will do "whatever it is that we can do to help out and serve."

Taylor anticipates both senior care centers currently underway will create jobs and generate economic value within the community.

Omega estimated 200 construction jobs will be created in building the Sarasota assisted-living facility and 100 full-time staff member positions will be available once the building is completed. It estimated the North Port ALF will create 225 construction jobs and 125 full-time staff positions.

The company expects the combined annual economic impact on Sarasota County will be over $30 million per year. "I believe that number is extremely conservative," Taylor said.

Omega estimates The Springs will be completed next spring, and The Fountains of Hope, near the Church of Hope at 1560 Wendell Kent Road, Sarasota, will be finished in the fall of 2015.

Though the developer broke ground on The Springs in January, Taylor said Omega has expended a lot of energy making its vision a reality.

"This is a new focus that came in about four years ago. We've spent about three years and $6 million building the foundation by aligning ourself with the premier senior (care) partners," he said.

He plans to continue building developments, focusing primarily on Southwest Florida for the next three years. "We will build three to four of these (communities) a year if market conditions allow us to do so," Taylor said.

STRUGGLE

Both sides are arguing their case in a torrent of filings to the Florida Public Service Commission, which has jurisdiction but no precedents in the past 50 years.

Kitson says he has all the authority he needs through the Babcock Ranch Community Independent Special District, created in 2007 by the Legislature.

That authority would be used for the benefit of future residents of Babcock, he said. "Perhaps the most important thing is we want our customers to have the best quality at the lowest pricing. In order to achieve that we'll have a large element of renewable energy and smart, energy efficient homes."

The net result for said, is that "We'll also have the ability to have the lowest possible pricing available."

Florida Power & Light, which has a small amount of the ranch in its territory and would supply some of the ranch's electricity to either the cooperative or Kitson, is urging a "mutually acceptable arrangement."

Kitson said to draw the capital and expertise to make it happen, he needs to have control over the crucial energy component of the project.

But the cooperative, which has the right to provide service, doesn't see it that way.

"We feel our members wouldn't want to take that route," LCEC spokeswoman Karen Ryan said. "We spend a lot of time and focus on providing good service and competitive rates. That's part of what makes a cooperative work."

The Legislature only gave the district the right to "provide electricity," not explicit authority to be its own full-blown utility, its filings point out.

Exactly what the Legislature intended is a topic of debate.

Firmly in Kitson's camp is Michael Bennett, the Bradenton electrical contractor who sponsored the bill creating the special district when he was a state senator in 2007.

"Believe me, we always expected them to be able to generate electricity through green power," he said. "The intent of the bill was to give Babcock literally everything they needed to develop their own community, including, if they needed it, an electrical system.

"I'm so positive on that, I'd be willing to testify before the PSC," he said.

But Florida Electric Cooperatives Association executive director William Willlingham said that point of view ignores a history of electric generation regulation that points to a more conservative interpretation of exactly what Kitson should be able to do.

"The issue is did the Legislature intend to pre-empt the Grid Bill," he said, referring to 1974 legislation that gave the public service commission authority to regulate electricity providers so the public wouldn't be hurt economically by turf wars.

Before that, Willingham said, consumers often suffered from a Wild West free market where land grabs were common — there would sometimes be two competing utilities "with power lines on both sides of the street."

He noted the Grid Bill was passed eight years after the main precedent cited by Kitson — the Reedy Creek Improvement District, which is the property that makes up Disney World.

Disney was granted the right to set up its own utility, complete with two on-site nuclear reactors. Those reactors were never built, but the district operates its own utility.

If Kitson's project works out it could benefit the people who eventually will buy homes in the new community, Willingham said — but if it doesn't work out, they could be stuck with higher rates than surrounding areas.

Is there a middle ground? Simmons said there may be.

Kitson could contract with LCEC to do the work of building electric infrastructure on the ranch, he said. "Maybe LCEC should be allowed a seat at the table."

However the issue is resolved, he said, it's important the Babcock project come to fruition because business models like it are vital to the industry and the planet's environmental health.

TIMELINE

July 2005
West Palm Beach-based Kitson & Partners announces its purchase of Babcock Ranch from the Babcock family for an estimated $600 million.

July 2006
State spends $351 million to buy 74,000 acres of Babcock Ranch from Kitson, who plans to build a new, self-sustaining town of 19,500 homes on the 18,000 acres his company kept.

June 2007
The Legislature establishes the Babcock Ranch Community Independent Special District, giving Kitson broad authority to develop the property.

March 2014
Kitson files with the Florida Public Service Commission to create an independent electric utility on the ranch – territory now set aside for electrical service by the Lee County Electric Cooperative.

Since then
Kitson and the cooperative have been waging a pitched battle in their filings before the commission about which of them has the legal right to provide service.

Early morning thunderstorms in forecast for mid-week

By PAUL FALLON
Staff Writer

Residents around Southwest Florida can expect a typical Florida summertime weather pattern today, but thunderstorms can begin forming in the mornings by mid-week, according to the National Weather Service.

A wind blowing off the Gulf of Mexico on Tuesday and Wednesday should cause thunderstorms to form in the morning instead of the typical time in the afternoon, said Brian LaMarre, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service's Tampa office.

"We should have early morning showers forming on the coastline and then they should move inland," he said.

The isolated storms should begin pushing inland between 5 and 9 a.m., LaMarre added.

Today should be partly sunny, with a high near 92 degrees. The heat index should make the temperature feel more like 98 degrees.

Scattered thunderstorms, mostly forming after noon, are also in the forecast.

Tonight should be partly cloudy with a nighttime low around 74 degrees. There is a 20 percent chance of storms forming, mostly before 2 a.m.

Tuesday should be partly sunny, with a 40 percent chance of storms. The daytime high should be around 91 degrees.

Tuesday night's forecast calls for a partly cloudy sky with a low around 75 degrees. There is a 20 percent chance of storms forming.

Area residents should see much of the same on Wednesday with a 40 percent chance of scattered thunderstorms and a daytime high of around 91 degrees. There is a 40 percent chance of storms forming, mostly during the morning hours, LaMarre said.

Wednesday night should be partly cloudy with a low around 76 degrees.

The weather pattern should shift back to afternoon showers and isolated thunderstorms on Thursday, he added. There is a 40 percent chance of storms forming, mostly during the afternoon hours.

The daytime high should be around 91 degrees. The sky should be partly sunny.

Thursday night should be partly cloudy with a low around 76 degrees. There is a 20 percent chance of isolated thunderstorms forming in the region. There appears to be no threat of any fierce storms forming in the Gulf of Mexico or the Atlantic in the next few days, LaMarre said. Dust blowing off the Sahara is helping to keep the chance of severe storms forming in the eastern Atlantic low, he said.

There also appears to be very little activity in the Tropics, LaMarre said.

"Everything looks pretty quiet right now," he said.

COMMUNITY NEWS BRIEFS

Estuary seeks calendar entries

We live in a beautiful place and many have captured this beauty in their photographs and paintings, as evidenced by the calendars produced by the Charlotte Harbor National Estuary Program since 2005. The CHNEP is a partnership program working to protect the natural environment of Florida from Venice to Estero Bay to Winter Haven.

Have you captured an image of the beauty and diversity of the native, natural environment with your camera or paintbrush? The CHNEP seeks entries for its 2015 calendar within the CHNEP study area of Charlotte, DeSoto, Hardee and Lee counties, and portions of Highlands, Manatee, Polk and Sarasota counties. Individuals may submit up to three digitized entries for consideration in the CHNEP 2015 calendar. The goal is that each calendar depicts the beauty and diversity of the native natural environment of Southwest Florida (as defined by the CHNEP) using these donated images.

To enter, complete a release form online at www.surveymonkey.com/s/CHNEP2015calendar; or mail a completed release form to CHNEP Calendar Art Contest, 1926 Victoria Ave., Fort Myers, FL 33901-3414. This release form allows the CHNEP to use the entries in the calendar and other materials.

To submit images, email to mhilgendorf@swfrpc.org, or burn images to a CD and mail the CD to CHNEP Calendar Art Contest, 1926 Victoria Ave., Fort Myers, FL 33901-3414; write your name and "2015" on the face of the CD. The deadline to submit digital images is 5 p.m. July 15. There is no fee to enter images. For more information, visit www.CHNEP.org/calendars.html.

OUR VIEW

Move ahead on Springs ownership

OUR POSITION: Time to end the stalemate at Warm Mineral Springs.

Sarasota County commissioners took the most rational course of action last week when they offered to sell their share of Warm Mineral Springs to the city of North Port.

They made a reasonable offer: the original price paid in 2010 for the 50 percent ownership stake — $2.75 million — plus costs associated with the transfer.

They were respectful: They avoided any unseemly impulse to stick it to a City Commission which had become a recalcitrant partner in a venture begun on such a positive, cooperative note four years ago. The terms were fair; they even offered the city 18 months to come up with the money.

One immediate downside is that the Springs is likely to close again after Aug. 31. But our hope is the City Commission will accept the offer and move forward quickly enough to minimize the downtown.

There are a number of logistical problems facing the two governments — procurement/bidding issues and commission summer recesses — and those will make a quick turnaround particularly difficult. But we'd like to think good-faith bargaining efforts can bring a resolution as quickly as possible.

As county officials outlined a potential scenario last week, bids for short-term operation again would need to be solicited. But the process might be truncated. In the interim, North Port would be able to staff the Springs with lifeguards and security. Though city officials have said they did not have staff for this now, it may be possible to hire out temporary workers. Who knows?

The City Commission will meet today at 1 p.m.

Looking forward — beyond finding the money to buy the place outright — city commissioners will need a business plan and a clear vision for the long-term future.

They should guarantee public ownership and public access, and a lower rate for city residents.

They will need to determine how they'll pay the nearly $1 million that it will take to install sewer and water, as well as other environmental protections.

They will need to determine how they'll pay to repair and upgrade the Springs buildings and whether they'll need to rebuild. (And where they would rebuild.)

Operating figures released last week showed operating expenses of $343,469 from June 30, 2013, to June 30, 2014. Total revenue was about the same, $339,569. Of course, the Springs was closed for nine months, so there was no income, and lower expenses, during that period.

Will future revenue projection be high enough to cover the expense of sewer service and building renovation? We're not confident.

But this is what the majority of the North Port Commission wanted — a public park. And while the majority may change again in the coming election cycle, we can't bank on that.

We still believe this course represents a tremendous failure of imagination and a lost opportunity for something better: public protection and guaranteed access to a unique place coupled with the possibility of badly needed tourism development.

But given the current reality of a broken, dysfunctional governmental partnership, this is the most rational direction.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Please research all the facts

Editor:

I would like to respond to the "Golf carts parked" article in the July 10 edition.

The opinion of the writer is not the view of many residents and most Board of Directors of Port Charlotte Village.

If the writer would have researched all facts and read Florida Statutes 316.212, which talks about all golf cart rules and regulations, maybe none of this embarrassment would have been bestowed on the community.

Thanks to Sparkle Brite

I am pleased to be able to congratulate and to thank one of the outstanding local businesses, Sparkle Brite Pools of North Port, especially the staff at their Sumter Boulevard location, for their outstanding customer service, which often extends beyond the "normal business practices."

In addition to their always friendly and courteous service, one should not overlook the reasonable prices for their products and service.

Supports Dave for County Commission

Editor:

Dave Ivankovic and his wife, Toni, have lived here since 1998, raising their two children who both graduated from Charlotte County schools. Besides their business, Dave and Toni both volunteer as coaches at our local schools, Dave for basketball and Toni soccer.

Dave is genuinely concerned about our community needs, and the problems still facing us, i.e.: Murdock, sewers, 1 percent sales tax increase, rising flood insurance costs and jobs that will keep our graduates here. He has realistic solutions to try to solve them.

Dave will not be a career politician, as his opponent is, and would like to see term limits for our commissioners. Dave's opponent, Mr. Deutsch, has been in politics for many years, both here and up north

During his opponent's last campaign, he had a solution to Murdock; nothing has changed. He voted for adding to the 1 percent increase in the sales tax for the addition to the courthouse, without conferring with other commission members, investigating if it was needed, or if other funding sources were available. He also claims he never voted for a tax increase, yet he voted for this one without any thought. He promised to attract businesses and create jobs, nothing.

Those of you who donated one or two dollars to Mr. Deutsch's campaign, remember you get what you pay for.

Learn more about Dave and assist in his election.

Widen sidewalks for golf carts

Editor:

A thought on the letter regarding golf carts on sidewalks this morning.

I'm amazed that a retired community, such as Charlotte County, would deny these citizens the ability to stay as independent as possible. We are quick to build bike trails and allow bikes on highways, with no additional "road tax" placed on them for maintenance.

Let's continue to support our community's senior citizens and build some golf cart trails that can be used by bikers, walkers and golf carts. Expanding sidewalks to accommodate them along Kings Highway would be an easy fix for everyone involved.

Help keep beaches clean

Editor:

This summer it has been wonderful to see so many people enjoying Manasota Key beaches. I am a homeowner and full-time resident of Manasota Key and I would like to bring some awareness to our visitors and locals.

The vast majority of people are very respectful of our beaches, but there are always a few who believe it is someone one else's responsibility to clean up after them. Specifically, I am referring to the amount of cigarette butts left on the beach.

It can take up to 10 years for a cigarette butt to decompose. After watching the sunset, I spend extra time on my little end of the beach picking up cigarette butts and trash left by others.

There is no county cleanup on the majority of Manasota Key beaches. It is up to visitors and residents to keep the beach clean and pristine. This could be accomplished simply, if everyone would just use a good neighbor attitude and pick up all trash, including cigarette butts, when they leave the beach.

Vote everyone out of office

Editor:

We have all seen stories on the evening news about our illegal immigration problem on our Mexican border. What are our unpatriotic politicians doing about it? Nothing.

The other day a trainload of these illegals derailed in Mexico with 1,300 illegals aboard. This is being done with the aid and support of the Mexican government. It cost money to run a train. Who is paying for this, foreign countries, our own politicians, or some rich people for personal gain?

Why do our elected government officials not stop this? The answer is that they do not want to. Why?

Some theories are that the Democrats think that if they can get enough illegals into our country that they can stay in power forever. Our government could stop this immediately if they wanted to by putting the manpower and resources down there. For some reason they do not want to.

If these Latin American illegals can cross our borders at will, what is to stop foreign terrorists from coming across our borders? One possible solution is at our next election to vote every politician out of office. We would remove some good ones, but we would get rid of every bad one.

Simple solution to border problem

Editor:

Question: Where to place the thousands of illegals coming across the borders.

Solution: Bus them to the White House. Beautiful big house, Michelle can feed them healthy food, take them on vacations on the big airplane, Nancy Pelosi can babysit and it could all be done on the taxpayer's dollar. Simple!

Hancik has the experience

Editor:

We have read with great interest the letters to the editor and discussed with many people concerns with the Charlotte County-Punta Gorda Airport Authority. Charlotte County has an asset in Rob Hancik, of whom the voters should take advantage to provide new vision in the management and development of the airport, the adjacent industrial park and future tenants.

Mr. Hancik is a Republican candidate for the Airport Authority primary in August. He holds a B.S. in aeronautics from St. Louis University, is a pilot and aircraft builder/restorer. He is a 10-year resident of Charlotte County and an accredited airport executive who directed the development of the Springfield/Branson National Airport for 32 years. As that airport's executive director, he completed over $200 million in capital improvements, developed an industrial park and initiated a U.S. Customs Port of Entry and Foreign Trade Zone. All this accomplished without one penny of tax support money.

As an accredited expert witness he testified before the U.S. Congress regarding federal aviation legislative issues and continues providing services as an aviation technical consultant/expert witness. He is honored as the recipient of the American Association of Airport Executives Distinguished Service Award, one of only 50 to ever receive this recognition.

New vision, indeed. Experience, yes indeed. Just the vitality the Airport Authority needs to continue to improve, develop and serve the community. Voters can allow their voices to be heard by their actions in the August primary election.

The creative climate

David Brooks

In the current issue of The Atlantic, Joshua Wolf Shenk has a fascinating description of how Paul McCartney and John Lennon created music together. McCartney was meticulous while Lennon was chaotic. McCartney emerged out of a sunny pop tradition. Lennon emerged out of an angst-ridden rebel tradition.

Lennon wrote the song "Help" while in the throes of depression. The song originally had a slow, moaning sound. McCartney suggested a lighthearted counter melody that, as Shenk writes, fundamentally changed and improved the nature of the piece.

Lennon and McCartney came from different traditions, but they had similar tastes. They brought different tendencies to the creative process but usually agreed when the mixture was right. This created the special tension in their relationship. They had a tendency to rip at each other, but each knew ultimately that he needed the other. Even just before his death, Lennon was apparently thinking of teaming up with McCartney once again.

Shenk uses the story to illustrate the myth of the lone genius, to show that many acts of genius are the products of teams or pairs, engaged in collaboration and "co-opetition." And we have all known fertile opposites who completed each other — when they weren't trying to destroy each other.

But the Lennon-McCartney story also illustrates the key feature of creativity; it is the joining of the unlike to create harmony. Creativity rarely flows out of an act of complete originality. It is rarely a virgin birth. It is usually the clash of two value systems or traditions, which, in collision, create a transcendent third thing.

Shakespeare combined the Greek honor code (thou shalt avenge the murder of thy father) with the Christian mercy code (thou shalt not kill) to create the torn figure of Hamlet. Picasso combined the traditions of European art with the traditions of African masks. Saul Bellow combined the strictness of the Jewish conscience with the free-floating go-getter-ness of the American drive for success.

Sometimes creativity happens in pairs, duos like Lennon and McCartney who bring clashing worldviews but similar tastes. But sometimes it happens in one person, in someone who contains contradictions and who works furiously to resolve the tensions within.

When you see creative people like that, you see that they don't flee from the contradictions; they embrace dialectics and dualism. They cultivate what Roger Martin called the opposable mind — the ability to hold two opposing ideas at the same time.

If they are religious, they seek to live among the secular. If they are intellectual, they go off into the hurly-burly of business and politics. Creative people often want to be strangers in a strange land. They want to live in dissimilar environments to maximize the creative tensions between different parts of themselves.

Today we live in a distinct sort of creative environment. People don't so much live in the contradiction between competing worldviews. We live in a period of disillusion and distrust of institutions.

This has created two reactions. Some monads withdraw back into the purity of their own subcultures. But others push themselves into the rotting institutions they want to reinvent. If you are looking for people who are going to be creative in the current climate, I'd look for people who are disillusioned with politics even as they go into it; who are disenchanted with contemporary worship, even as they join the church; who are disgusted by finance even as they work in finance. These people believe in the goals of their systems but detest how they function. They contain the anxious contradictions between disillusionment and hope.

This creative process is furthest along, I'd say, in the world of B corporations. There are many people today who are disillusioned both with the world of traditional charity and traditional capitalism. Many charities have been warmheartedly but wastefully throwing money at problems, without good management or market discipline. Capitalists have been obsessed with the short-term maximization of shareholder return without much concern for long-term prosperity or other stakeholders.

B corporations are a way to transcend the contradictions between the ineffective parts of the social sector and myopic capitalism. Kyle Westaway, a lawyer in this field and the author of the forthcoming "Profit & Purpose," notes that benefit corporation legal structures have been established in 22 states in the last four years. The 300 or so companies that have registered in this way, like Patagonia or Method, can't be sued if they fail to maximize profits in order to focus on other concerns. They are seeking to reinvent both capitalism and do-gooder-ism, and living in the contradiction between these traditions.

This suggests a final truth about creativity: that, in every dialectic, there is a search for creative synthesis. Or, as Albert Einstein put it, "You can never solve a problem on the level on which it was created."

World War II veteran more than a hero

Leonard Pitts

Just two pages into the book "Unbroken," its protagonist is in the water, hiding beneath the deteriorating life raft in which he has been drifting across the Pacific Ocean for almost a month. Overhead, Japanese bombers are circling back to strafe him a second time. And sharks are approaching from below.

Death is coming for him from two directions, and your impulse is to verify that this is not a novel, not some outlandish fiction from the Indiana Jones School of Narrow Escapes.

But it isn't.

The story is true, the man in the water, real. His name is Louis Zamperini and he died last week of pneumonia.

No one who has read the book (a movie of the same name is due on Christmas Day) will be surprised to learn that it took that fearsome disease 40 days to claim this 97-year-old man. If Zamperini was nothing else, he was a fighter. Whatever life threw at him, he threw back. Whatever it piled on top of him, he overcame.

Child of poor Italian immigrants in suburban Los Angeles, he overcame a predilection for petty theft, vandalism and brawling to become a celebrated runner, first in high school, then in college and finally in the 1936 Berlin Olympics. Bombardier for the Army Air Corps, he overcame a plane crash, surviving 47 days on a raft in the trackless vastness of the Pacific Ocean, subsisting on rain water, fish and sea birds. Prisoner of the Japanese, he overcame daily beatings and torture from a sadistic guard nicknamed the Bird, and lived to return home after the war ended. A cash-strapped alcoholic and wife beater, tormented by nightmares of what the Bird did to him, he overcame his own degradation when he came forward at a tent revival and accepted Christ at the invitation of a young evangelist named Billy Graham. A World War II veteran who would have been fully justified in anger and bitterness over what the Japanese did to him, he overcame those things to carry the torch in the 1998 Olympics in Nagano and write a letter of forgiveness to the man who had daily tortured him.

For all these things and more, Zamperini is being hailed as a hero. But frankly, the word feels too small, having been mashed into near impotence by its own ubiquity. These days, we overcompensate for our mistreatment of servicemen and women in controversial wars of the past by declaring every supply sergeant in North Carolina or desk clerk in Texas who wears a military uniform to be a "hero." It is a relatively harmless thing, and certainly well-meant. But it leaves us no adequate word for a man like Zamperini.

The lessons of his life are manifold and manifest, a master class in moral and physical fortitude, resilience and resistance, the criticality of human dignity, the importance of fight, faith — and forgiveness. Those lessons seem especially crucial for the America Zamperini leaves behind, a nation riven by isms and shrunken in its vision.

Indeed, his whole generation — the ones who overcame the Depression and saved the world — is leaving that nation behind and perhaps it is only now, as they do, that we can truly appreciate who and what they were and did. They were not perfect, Lord knows, but they were more right about more things than their children and grandchildren ever gave them credit for. They didn't do a lot of whining. Their navels went ungazed. They saw what needed to be done and did it with no expectation of reward. They understood they were part of something larger than themselves and that, sometimes, the price of belonging is sacrifice.

We could use some of what they had — some of what Zamperini, in particular, had. He overcame sharks, torture, hunger, gunfire, the Pacific Ocean and his own demons to die peacefully at an advanced age with his family around him. No, he is not a hero.

He is whatever comes after that.

Florida Tracks & Trails Motocross park taking shape

By CHARLES RUNNELLS
Fort Myers News-Press

Head up Highway 17 in Punta Gorda, turn south on Bermont Road and keep driving. Go past houses and churches, farms and ranches and plenty of pine trees.

Just keep driving.

Eventually, 13 miles later, you'll find Florida Tracks, Trails and Entertainment deep in the heart of rural Charlotte County. The place doesn't look like much right now. From the road, its entrance is an easy-to-miss metal gate opening on a dirt road flanked by rows of cement drainage pipes waiting to be installed.

But give it time.

The 1,000-acre park complex, often referred to as simply Florida Tracks & Trails, is humming with activity right now. Bulldozers shape dirt into lanes and hills for ATV and dirt-bike riding and racing. Crews install "tactical tropical huts" in an 80-acre paintball park. And that doesn't even include the buildings being constructed in an Orlando warehouse, such as the 23,000-seat amphitheater that will bring in rodeos, comedians and big national music acts.

In about six months, barring bad weather or construction delays, this place will be Fun Central.

"It's an outdoor entertainment playground," said Rachael Ketterman, marketing and entertainment director for the project. "It's a Disney World for the outdoor world.

"There's nothing like this, anywhere."

To prove her point, Ketterman recently gave The News-Press a tour of the wide-open park grounds that used to be farmland and still smells vaguely of cows. Ketterman's four-wheel-drive Polaris Ranger jumped and jostled along wooded trails and expansive brown and gray dirt fields scarred by countless bulldozer tracks and dump truck tires.

In one wooded area, paintball park manager Tyler Stancel and his crew were building tactical huts for the Tropical Paintball War Zone, one of nine fields in the large paintball park.

In other areas, the land has already been flattened and awaits the arrival of enormous parking lots, a full-service general store and the amphitheater. Florida Tracks & Trails recently hired former Clear Channel radio executive Deborah Pollard as its production manager to book acts and produce shows at the amphitheater.

Then there's the largest part of the park: 22 miles of leisure trails for ATVs, go-karts, golf carts and dirt bikes, plus several miles of Motocross dirt-bike racing tracks designed by track builders Dream Traxx. The professional track will be 1.8 miles long and feature jumps and tricks for Motocross racing. But there are also tracks for amateurs, kids and beginners.

Construction crews broke ground on the $17-20 million Florida Tracks & Trails project in January, and Dream Traxx arrived July 1 to start building the racing tracks.

Owned by Punta Gorda resident Terry Cooke, Florida Tracks & Trails is expected to eventually bring in an estimated 1 million people every year, Ketterman said. And many of those people will come from outside Southwest Florida for the unique Motocross tracks.

Dream Traxx owner Jason Baker was busy on this particular day supervising a fleet of rumbling bulldozers and excavators. The machines have been scooping clay and sand from what will be the park's 6-acre man-made lake and its five water-management lakes, and Baker has been using it to sculpt and shape the land into lanes and hills.

Baker stopped working long enough to supervise a quick tour of the professional-level Motocross track. Driving Ketterman's Polaris, he swooped up and down man-made hills along the vast brown and gray landscape ringed by pine trees and crowned by a big blue sky. He paused at the top of a towering 40-foot-high hill — a hill that's just begging for dirt bikes to jump it.

Baker is obviously excited about the project. His Lakeland-based company has built tracks all over the world (he's leaving at the end of the month to build another one in South Africa) but he's never built one quite like this.

He and his crew are moving five times more dirt for this project than his next biggest Motocross project. That's about 500,000 cubic yards in all. And unlike most Motocross tracks built into hilly terrain, these ones are going into the relatively flat countryside of Southwest Florida. So almost anything goes.

"We're taking something flat and recreating it," Baker said. "If you're interested in track-building and Motocross, that's mind-blowing. Nobody does that!" The project is already getting a lot of national attention. Some of Motocross's top professional riders follow it on Facebook (the park's page has almost 12,000 likes). The AMA has already sanctioned the facility, months before it even opens. And journalists from Motocross publications and websites such as vurbmoto.com have been visiting for tours.

Those racing tracks, along with the amphitheater, paintball park and other attractions, will make Florida Tracks & Trails a go-to spot for outdoor enthusiasts in Florida and beyond, Ketterman said. And it all could open by the end of the year.

"We're right on schedule," Ketterman said. "We're making progress every day. These guys are working hard."

MORE ABOUT FLORIDA TRACKS & TRAILS

- The park will open with an estimated staff of about 100 part-time and full-time employees, including concession workers, security, first aid staff, park rangers and track "groomers" (people who regularly "comb" the tracks to remove rocks and potholes). But that number could grow to 200-220 within three to five years.
- The 23,000-seat amphitheater will have a 5,000-square-foot stage. There will also be a 40,000-square-foot expo hall.
- The park features 3 ½ miles of roadways, 75 acres of parking and a 25,000-gallon-per-day system for drinking water.
- Safety measures include a staff first aid team, a helipad for emergency medical evacuation and a designated lane for emergency vehicles so they can quickly access any accidents and other emergency situations.
- An 80-acre paintball park will feature natural wooded "jungles," urban tactical sites, a Hyperball field and two regulation speedball fields.
- The 6-acre man-made recreational lake will feature swimming, volleyball courts, lifeguard platforms, hammocks and a shallow kiddie play area.

FISH in need of volunteer drivers

If you couldn't drive, how would you get to the doctor? How would you get to the grocery store? In North Port, an organization has the answer — call FISH (Friends In Service Here).

FISH is a nonprofit organization providing transportation to medical appointments and grocery shopping for North Port residents who have no other transportation alternative. The group provide rides from North Port to Englewood, Port Charlotte and Venice.

They are in urgent need of volunteers. Volunteer drivers tell the group which day or days they are available to drive. A dispatcher calls in the late afternoon on the day prior to when they want volunteers to drive. If you're not available, you simply say no. The group reimburses drivers for mileage.

Clients are generally elderly; many live on their own and have no transportation. The best thing about volunteering for FISH is that you meet some very nice people, according to the organization's president, Bruce Isbell. To learn more about becoming a volunteer, call Isbell at 941-429-8945.

Breakfast, poker and BBQ

More than 50 people came out to a Breakfast, Poker Run and BBQ benefit for cancer patient Chad Jones, Saturday at Gatorz in Port Charlotte. Waiting for the next participant to sign in, Cathy Maxwell, Tom Bracy, Larry Coder and Mike Empey man the table outside of Gatorz. Bracy has been a friend of Jones for 30 years and put together the fundraiser with the help of friends.

R.J. Doerrfeld and Lenny Igrison came from North Port to attend the poker run.

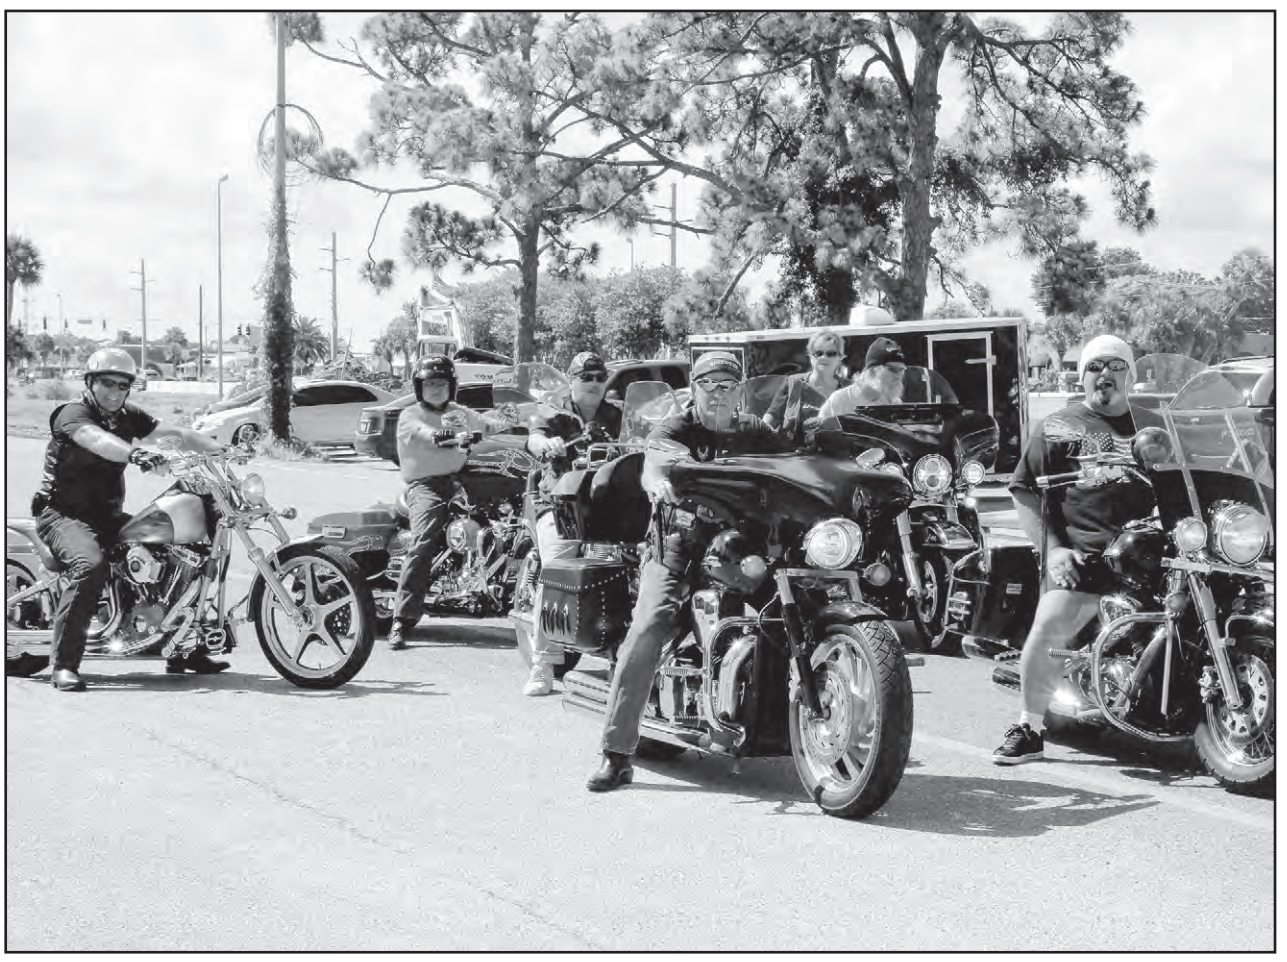
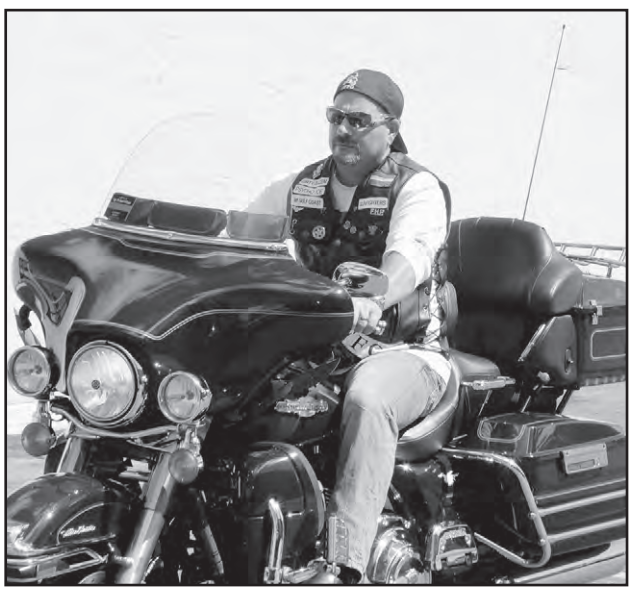
Trevor Brock, who now lives in Louisville, Ky., and his sister Robyn Jones, who attends college in Gainesville, were on hand to thank the many friends and supporters who came out for their father, Chad Jones.

About 50 people attended the poker run fundraiser for cancer patient Chad Jones, including (back row) Jackpot, Ceej, Paul and Gunz, and (front) Psycho Joe and Detour, who attended the event to show community support. Detour is a member of the Defenders MC, a fraternal motorcycle club for active and retired law enforcement, emergency services, military and public safety professionals, the others belong to The Gunfighters MC, a male-only law enforcement motorcycle club, for active and retired officers.

Jackpot, and his wife Jane Larmore and Brenda Johnson and her husband Ceej, are ready for "kickstands up" and the start of the poker run.



Bikes and drivers started the poker run in small groups and had to make three stops along the route before returning to Gatorz for a BBQ, raffles and more.



Psycho Joe takes off from Gatorz, heading for the first stop in the poker run.

Disciple painting is local artist's gift of hope

By ELAINE ALLEN-EMRICH
Community News Editor

ENGLEWOOD — Maggie McClellan envisioned what people in her church could look like if they were painted into a photo portraying Jesus and his followers.

As a gift to her church at the St. David's Episcopal Church Jubilee Center, 401 S Broadway in Englewood, she painted a 52-inch by 54-inch canvas.

"The women invented the costumes for the disciples, etc.," McClellan said. "And we talked the reluctant men into posing. Only after 'Jesus' arrived, did they start having fun, which was perfect for me to catch the quality of joy I wanted to portray."

McClellan is working on two companion pieces for the church painting.

"A lot of the church members posed for the painting and two the others that are in the works," she said. "The Bishop said he just loved the joy in the painting and is coming in January to bless the center and the painting."

McClellan said she caught the painting bug in 1971. Then she was 29 and was grounded from flying as a stewardess with Eastern Airlines.

She lived on Key Biscayne at the time. She was taking a needlepoint class and asked the teacher if she could draw her own design.

"We ended up partnering as designers," she said. "At that point I signed up for a drawing class at a small private art school in Hollywood, Fla. Shortly after the airline put me back on flight. I found a Chinese couple who taught private lessons. Chow Chian Chiu and his wife wrote the Walter Foster books on Chinese painting after escaping communist China."

McClellan said painting has always been a part of her bloodline. Her grandfather was a World War I combat artist.

"My uncle was a combat artist in the U.S. Navy," she said. "He did the cover for the book 'The Good Shepherd' about an admiral. My dad was a professional photographer with a photo in the permanent collection at the Guggenheim, won ABC's national home movie contest (in the '70s). Dan Rather showed his winning entry on television. My grandfather was drawing in 1914."

McClellan studied Chinese art for 11 years and then moved toward an American/European style in the early '80s.

"I was extremely undisciplined but caught a fever once I got a brush pencil in my hand," she said. "It hasn't stopped since then despite losing a cushy way of life that financed a growing national art career. After my divorce and then Hurricane Andrew destroyed everything, I said goodbye to my 15 minutes of fame and tried at nearly 50 to get a real job."

At 58, McClellan went to college in Miami-Dade and graduated with high honors in graphic and web design and still couldn't get hired for "real" work.

"Somehow, that has turned out to be a great thing for my painting and my students, who loved studying with me, even when it seems impossible to keep going financially," she said. "After that painful period in my life, a transformation took place that moved me from being focused on what could be done for me to what I could do for others. I moved to Englewood and met good people. That's what led me to do the St. David's painting."

McClellan also created paintings called "Highway Antics" and another called "Halloween Nights," in which a grandfather shares a lollypop with his grandson. She's always painting people in her surroundings.

"Englewood is a fabulous community with great community spirit and generosity," she said. "I like to paint people in the community. When the church changed the day care house into a food bank, a couple of parishioners had heard I painted. They had a hole in the bathroom wall that they hoped I could make look nice ... After they saw my work they said we can't put your work in a bathroom. And they asked me to do a mural on the main room's wall. I said sure. The disciples in my painting and most of the children are members of St. D's. The babe in Mary's lap was my student's newborn baby. My passion is painting people, living life — the good and the hard times. The painting is my thank you for having been given a chance to regenerate that hope."

Governors express concerns about cost for states

By ALICIA A. CALDWELL and STEVE PEOPLES
Associated Press Writers

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Health and Human Services Secretary Sylvia Matthews Burwell met privately with dozens of governors Sunday as the Obama administration tried to get support from the leaders of states that will host thousands of the Central American children who have crossed the Mexican border on their own since Oct. 1.

Governors of both parties expressed concerns about the cost to states, including providing public education for the children, according to those who attended the meeting. Burwell left the meeting through a side door without talking to reporters.

"Our citizens already feel burdened by all kinds of challenges. They don't want to see another burden come into their state," said Colorado Gov. John Hickenlooper, a Democrat. "However we deal with the humanitarian aspects of this, we've got to do it in the most cost-effective way possible."

Wisconsin Gov. Scott Walker, New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie and Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad were among the most vocal Republican critics. They seized on the administration's plans

CHICAGO — Peering through the chain links of a holding pen at the Cook County Jail, a man wrapped in a navy varsity jacket leans toward clinical social worker Elli Petacque Montgomery, his bulging eyes a clue that something's not right.

"When I can get them," he answers.

"I'm down here every day," Montgomery says. "Every morning I hear this."

'Human props' stay in homes to help sales

By DREW HARWELL

TAMPA — When the Mueller family sits for dinner, the leftover broccoli and crepes are already wrapped in plastic, the kitchen is beyond spotless, and the rest of the home is so tucked-away tidy it looks like they just moved in. In a way, they have: Every inch of furnishing, every little trinket and votive candle, sits precisely as designers placed it five months ago. That would make them the most perfect suburban ideal, except for one catch: This isn't actually their home. Bob and Dareda Mueller and their three grown sons are, instead, part of an "elite group" of middle-class nomads who have agreed to an outlandish deal. They can live cheaply in this for-sale luxury home if it looks as if they never lived here at all.

The home must remain meticulously cleaned and preserved: the temperature precisely pleasant, the mirrors crystalline clear. If a prospective buyer wants to see the home, they must quickly disappear. And when the home sells, they must be gone for good, off to the next perfect place.

That they do everything an owner would do — sleeping, making memories, learning

Russia: 1 killed near Ukraine border by shell fire

By LAURA MILLS
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW — Russia's foreign ministry said Sunday that a Ukrainian shell hit a Russian border town, killing one person and seriously injuring two others. Ukraine denied firing a shell into Russian territory.

President Vladimir Putin expressed "grave concern" over the incident, Russian news agencies quoted his spokesman as saying. A statement from Russia's foreign ministry labeled the event a "provocation," and warned of the possibility of "irreversible consequences, the responsibility for which lies on the Ukrainian side."

Russia said the shell hit the courtyard of a residential building in the Russian town of Donetsk — near the Ukrainian city of the same name that has become a rebel stronghold — early on Sunday. Ukraine's restless east has been mired in a pro-Russia separatist insurgency against the Kiev government.

Ukrainian officials denied that any Ukrainian shells had fallen on Russian territory. Andriy Lysenko, a spokesman for Ukraine's National Security and Defense Council, was quoted by Interfax Ukraine as saying that Ukrainian forces "do not fire on the territory of a neighboring country. They do not fire on residential areas." He placed blame for the attack on the rebels themselves.

Russia has made repeated claims that settlements along its porous border with Ukraine — which the West and Kiev say is a key supply route for the rebels — have been hit by Ukrainian fire, but no deaths have been previously reported.

The claims come as Putin, whose nation will host the

Governors group skirts Common Core

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Reviled by staunch conservatives, the common education standards designed to improve schools and student competitiveness are being modified by some Republican governors, who are pushing back against what they call the federal government's intrusion into the classroom.

The Common Core standards were not on the formal agenda during a three-day meeting of the National Governors Association that ended Sunday, relegated to hallway discussions and closed-door meetings among governors and their staffs. The standards and even the words, "Common Core," have "become, in a sense, radioactive," said Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad, a Republican whose state voluntarily adopted the standards in 2010.

"We want Iowa Common Core standards that meet the needs of our kids," Branstad said, echoing an intensifying sentiment from tea party leaders who describe the education plan as an attempt by the federal government to take over local education.

There was little controversy when the bipartisan governors association in 2009 helped develop the common education standards aimed at improving schools and students' competitiveness across the nation. The standards were quickly adopted by 44 states.

But conservative activists who hold outsized influence in Republican politics aggressively condemned Common Core, and lawmakers in 27 states this year have proposed either delaying or revoking Common Core. The issue has forced many ambitious Republicans who previously had few concerns to distance themselves from the standards and the issue has begun to shape the early stages of the 2016 presidential race.

Wisconsin's Republican Gov. Scott Walker, a potential 2016 candidate among the governors gathered in Nashville, said he has proposed a measure to adopt Wisconsin-specific education standards that are tougher than what the state adopted under Common Core in 2010.

AP PHOTO

Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad, left, and West Virginia Gov. Earl Ray Tomblin, attend the closing session of the National Governors Association convention Sunday, in Nashville, Tenn.

"My problem with Common Core is I don't want people outside Wisconsin telling us what our standards should be," Walker said.

Indiana Gov. Mike Pence was the first to sign legislation revoking Common Core in April and fellow potential Republican presidential hopeful Gov. Bobby Jindal of Louisiana signed a series of executive orders blocking the use of tests tied to the standards, a move that outraged his state's own education superintendent.

Republican governors in Oklahoma and South Carolina, an early presidential primary state, have signed measures aimed at repealing the standards.

Other Republicans, including former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush, have defended the standards as integral to improving student performance and maintaining American competitiveness around the globe.

Democratic Gov. Peter Shumlin, of Vermont, called the conservative critics "crazy."

"The fact that the tea party sees that as a conspiracy is a symptom of their larger problems," said Shumlin, who leads the Democratic Governors Association.

Common Core is a set of English and math standards that spell out what students should know and when.

Mayor: Cop killer said he was 'going to be famous'

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — A gunman who killed a rookie officer responding to a report of an armed robbery at a drugstore early Sunday never tried to rob the store and instead lay in wait for police, telling a witness to watch the news because he was "going to be famous," authorities said.

Lawrence Campbell shot Officer Melvin Santiago in the head shortly after he and his partner arrived at the 24-hour Walgreens at around 4 a.m., Jersey City Mayor Steven Fulop said. Other officers returned fire at Campbell, killing him.

Campbell, 27, of Jersey City, was one of three suspects wanted by police for a prior homicide, Fulop said.

Fulop said Campbell was carrying a knife when he walked into Walgreens and asked for directions to the greeting card aisle. He assaulted an armed security guard at the store and snatched his gun, Fulop said. He waited for police to arrive, then shot Santiago with what police believe was the guard's weapon.

"Today was a horrible day for Jersey City," Fulop said.

Dozens of officers stood single file at the entrance of the hospital and saluted as Santiago's flag-draped body was carried into an ambulance. A handful of younger officers consoled one another as they walked away. Santiago, 23, graduated from the police academy in December.

Fulop was there when Santiago's body arrived at the hospital. As Santiago's mother identified the body, Fulop said, she "just kept repeating the badge number and saying that it's not possible."

Santiago is the first Jersey City officer killed in the line of duty since Detective Marc DiNardo died in July 2009 during a raid on an apartment while searching for suspects in a robbery.

"It is a tragic situation when any officer is killed in the line of duty," Fulop said. "Melvin was an officer who represented everything one would want to see in a police officer. I know the entire city's thoughts and prayers are with the Santiago family during this difficult time and we mourn together."

Jean Belviso, who has been delivering newspapers for 10 years, was driving through the Walgreens parking lot when she said she saw a man wearing burgundy sweatpants and a baseball cap walk out of the store. A police cruiser pulled up in front of Walgreens, and the suspect began shooting, the 61-year-old Belviso said.

"We thought he was running, coming toward us," said Belviso, who was riding along with a friend. "He kept on shooting."

Bullets flew through the cruiser's windshield, 13 in all. The suspect was shot multiple times, and officers slapped handcuffs on him, Belviso said.

Campbell's body remained on the ground next to the bullet-riddled cruiser for more than five hours after the shooting before it was placed in a coroner's van and taken away.

Markeisha Marshall, a spokeswoman for Walgreens, said the company was "deeply regretful" over the officer's death and extended its sympathies to his family and friends. The store has round-the-clock armed security, Marshall noted.

Police are also searching for another man who they believe was involved in the previous homicide with Campbell, Fulop said. They have been aggressively seeking Daniel Wilson for the last three days, Fulop said.

'Planet of the Apes' thumps chest with $73M debut

NEW YORK (AP) — The monkey business is a good business to be in at the box office.

"Dawn of the Planet of the Apes" roared to $73 million on its opening weekend, one of the summer's best debuts, according to studio estimates Sunday. The 20th Century Fox sequel easily surpassed the $54.8 million opening to 2011's "Rise of the Planet of the Apes," the reboot of the fabled chimp franchise.

In a summer heavy on hype but thin on quality, "Dawn of the Planet of the Apes" has proven to be one of the few hits that combined both spectacle and substance. Directed by Matt Reeves ("Cloverfield"), the 3-D "Dawn" has drawn enthusiasm from critics and moviegoers alike, particularly for the motion-capture performance by Andy Serkis as the film's lead ape, Caesar. In the film, Caesar's tribe suspiciously encounters a colony of surviving humans on a planet overrun by intelligent apes.

"When you get the kind of reviews we got and the audience actually agrees, it's the kind of rare thing where critics and audiences come together and say this is a great movie," said Chris Aronson, head of distribution at Fox.

A sequel to be directed by Reeves is already in the works to further extend the franchise.

After two weeks on top, the Michael Bay action sequel "Transformers: Age of Extinction" slid to second with $16.5 million.

This photo released by Twentieth Century Fox Film Corporation shows Jason Clarke, as Malcolm, foreground, and, background from left, Andy Serkis, as Caesar; Toby Kebbell, as Koba; and Karin Konoval, as Maurice; in a scene from the film, "Dawn of the Planet of the Apes."

Its three-week domestic total is now $209 million for Paramount. The Melissa McCarthy comedy "Tammy" came in third with $12.9 million.

The big opening for "Dawn" helped give the summer box office a shot in the arm, but it wasn't enough to stop an overall downward trend. The weekend's box office was down nearly 24 percent from the corresponding weekend last year. The summer overall is down 20 percent from last year, which was a record season for Hollywood.

The thinness of the summer schedule is a big reason for the drop. Whereas last year had multiple big-budget releases jockeying for position against each other, many weekends this summer have had little blockbuster competition. Last year's same weekend featured the openings of "Grown Ups 2" and "Pacific Rim," in addition to recent holdovers like "Despicable Me 2" and "The Heat."

Estimated ticket sales for Friday through Sunday at U.S. and Canadian theaters, according to Rentrak. Where available, latest international numbers are also included. Final domestic figures will be released on Monday.

1. "Dawn of the Planet of the Apes," $73 million. ($31.1 million international.)

2. "Transformers: Age of Extinction," $16.5 million ($102 million international).

3. "Tammy," $12.9 million.

4. "22 Jump Street," $6.7 million ($6.3 million international).

5. "How to Train Your Dragon 2," $5.9 million ($34.4 million international).

6. "Earth to Echo," $5.5 million.

7. "Deliver Us From Evil," $4.7 million ($1.4 million international).

8. "Maleficent," $4.2 million ($13.4 million international).

9. "Begin Again," $2.9 million ($750,000 international).

10. "Jersey Boys," $2.5 million ($1.8 million international).

Michelle Knight says fame comes with complications

CLEVELAND (AP) — Michelle Knight has discovered that the fame that followed her escape from Ariel Castro's house of horrors in Cleveland cuts both ways.

There has been some obvious good. The girl who grew up without a toothbrush and spent nearly 11 years in captivity can provide for herself. She has her own apartment. Her book, "Finding Me," spent five weeks on the New York Times BestSellers List. She and the other two women kidnapped by Castro split $1.4 million in donations collected after their escape. Phil McGraw of "Dr. Phil" television fame presented Knight with an oversized check for more than $400,000 from his foundation.

In a recent interview with The Associated Press, Knight said she is ready to assume a normal life and, with it, a new name and identity — Lily Rose Lee.

"I'm not a celebrity," said Knight, 33. "I don't want to be. I want to be me."

Fame has brought some frustrations. Knight becomes frightened when crowds sometimes gather around her as she walks alone. She finds it annoying when people snap cellphone photos without asking.

And people from her distant past have reappeared, feigning friendship but ultimately seeking money, she said.

NYC Mayor Bill de Blasio isn't afraid to be goofy

NEW YORK (AP) — He sported a rainbow tie for the Gay Pride Parade. He wore an "I Love LA" shirt and warbled that song on national TV to pay off a bet. He even donned a pirate outfit — puffy shirt and all — to join his equally outlandishly costumed family for a hipster parade in Brooklyn.

New York Mayor Bill de Blasio is not afraid to be bold — and, at times, downright goofy — in his appearance and manner, creating an approachable persona that is a stark contrast to his predecessor, buttoned-up billionaire Michael Bloomberg. It's an everyman image that experts say meshes with de Blasio's populist politics, a liberal call to reach out to poor and working-class New Yorkers who felt left behind by the city's growing income inequality.

"He's just a guy from Brooklyn who happened to be elected mayor who likes hanging out with his wife and talking about his kids," said Hank Sheinkopf, a Democratic political consultant. "People can relate to that, and, for some, it'll be easier when he has to bear bad news."

Sheriff: Bus was hit by stolen car going wrong way

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — A car that collided with a Greyhound bus on an Indiana highway, killing the car's driver and injuring 19 people on the bus, had just been stolen and was headed in the wrong direction, authorities said.

Phillip Lloyd, the driver of the stolen 1999 Ford Mustang, died at the scene of the Sunday morning collision on Interstate 70 near Richmond, Wayne County Sheriff Jeff Cappa said. Lloyd was from Richmond, which is about 70 miles east of Indianapolis and near the Ohio border.

"It had been reported stolen from the Love's truck stop … just prior to the crash," said Cappa, adding that it was unclear how Lloyd ended up going westbound in the eastbound lane.

- The Outer Ear

When sound waves reach the ear, they are gathered by the funnel-shaped outer ear and channeled into the middle ear. Sometimes hearing loss can be easily and quickly corrected by clearing blockage that can occur from wax build up.

Years of using q-tips to clean your ears can embed layers of wax so tightly that it affects your ability to hear clearly. That's why the first part of your ear exam will be with an otoscope to determine if there is any blockage that can open up your ear canal and allow you to enjoy the beauty of unmuted sound again.

- The Middle Ear

At the entrance to the middle ear, sound waves hit the eardrum. A damaged eardrum can not only be painful, but it can muffle natural sounds and make it extremely difficult to hear clearly. If you're experiencing hearing loss, it's important to find out if it is a correctable condition involving the middle ear.

- The Inner Ear

Sound vibrations travel through the middle ear and into the fluid filled inner ear where they are converted into signals that are sent to your brain. Damage to the inner ear can lead to deafness, so it's vital to make sure your inner ear is functioning properly.

Problems with the inner ear often require surgery or medication. If the damage is irreparable, you'll want to ask about the new cochlea implants that can help restore your ability to hear again.

There is also new scientific and medical research with stem cell transplants that can regrow damaged inner ear hair follicles (known as cilia) that send electronic signals to your brain allowing you to translate sounds into language. Researchers at Stanford University say that they are 5-10 years away from a breakthrough that could possibly correct human deafness.

How Hearing Is Tested

To evaluate your hearing a specialist will perform a series of hearing tests. These tests are often performed by using a combination of electronic equipment and headphones.

What Hearing Tests Show

Hearing tests can determine whether a hearing impairment exists and what the cause may be.

Your hearing examination will also let you know the degree of hearing loss you are experiencing, from mild to profound, and what technologies are available to help correct your hearing loss.

The results of your hearing exam will provide you with the road map to what you should do next to regain and restore your ability to hear clearly again.

Why Do People Delay Addressing Hearing Loss?

In America, the average person with hearing loss delays dealing with it for 5 to 7 years. The big question is, "Why do people wait so long before confronting the obvious problems that come with an inability to hear clearly?"

Accepting & Correcting Your Hearing Loss

Researchers estimate that over 30 million people in the United States suffer from hearing loss, but almost 75% avoid scheduling a hearing test to determine the cause and how to remedy this condition. As the baby boomer generation ages, more people are going to experience hearing loss.

Many people with hearing loss do not take the steps needed to correct the problem. The first step starts with getting a hearing exam when you first notice you are experiencing symptoms. A hearing test can determine the cause of your hearing loss, and which state-of-the-art hearing devices can improve your quality of life. There is often a period of denial or hesitation that must be overcome before the appointment for the hearing test is made.

At first it may seem like you only have very mild hearing loss, if any, because you can hear someone talking to you, or you can hear the TV, radio, or a movie, you just can't catch every word. Or you may have trouble following conversations, but you always come up with a reason why it's too noisy, people are speaking too fast, or there are too many people talking at once.

The truth is that when you have early, mild hearing loss, you will start to have trouble hearing certain higher frequency sounds. Consonant sounds are in the higher range and are the first to go. While you may hear voices, you may find yourself mistaking similar-sounding words, like ,"rent" and "sent" or "time" and "lime".

If you believe you have mild hearing loss, begin by getting a hearing exam. You can use the results of the hearing test to rule out or fix any correctable conditions, and then you can assess if any of the new and advanced hearing technologies can help you hear more clearly.

After your hearing test you will be able to make a more educated decision about what your options are to prevent further hearing loss and hear more clearly immediately, improving your overall quality of life.

Thomas Edison Suffered From Hearing Loss!

One of the most famous people with hearing loss in history is the inventor Thomas Edison (1847-1931), who is credited with inventing the phonograph, light bulb, and movie camera. What many people are not aware of is that Edison became technically deaf in his early teens. It could have been from a childhood illness or the result of a "boxing"of his ears by a train conductor.

Purchasing a hearing aid is not a decision made lightly. It's important that the person you are working with listens to you and works together with you to address your specific hearing needs. You need to be able to trust their guidance in choosing a solution to match your lifestyle.

Advances In Hearing Care!

A hearing specialist with Audibel Hearing Centers will be available to answer all your questions and discuss the latest advances in hearing care. Even with the new technology, your brain still needs time to readjust to hearing sounds it may not have been hearing for years. You will be amazed at your own ability to reconnect with your life with the help of this advanced technology.

In addition, technology is constantly changing. A hearing test can now determine if you have even very mild hearing loss, and the new generation of digital hearing aids has nearly eliminated the problems of feedback, and extraneous noise that was bothersome with earlier models.

Most hearing losses don't require expensive hearing aids to help you with sounds you were missing, including those lost consonants, without introducing additional, distracting noises. Personalized programming adjustments ensure your hearing aid is set to your specific loss and unique needs.

No One Will Know

It is true that hearing aids of past years did have a stigma attached to them. They were large and bulky, and usually they were visible to anyone who walked by. But just as the internal technology has changed, so have the external characteristics of digital hearing aids. New models are virtually invisible when worn making your Audibel hearing aid far less noticeable than your hearing loss. With advanced digital technology and miniaturization, nobody else has to know that you're wearing a hearing device.

In addition, hearing aids technology has an exciting future. Even now you can have your hearing aid connected to different external devices, such as an MP3 player, a cell phone, radio, or your TV. As microchips continue to get smaller, the amount of data processing power continues to increase at astronomical rates, allowing for hearing aids to be made smaller while continuing to improve sound quality. If you checked out hearing aids five years ago, you should take a look at the new models - you might be surprised at how far things have come and how easily hearing loss may be corrected.

Hearing loss can affect people of all ages. If you were in the military, law enforcement, or simply exposed to the loud noises of machinery in a factory, you could have developed hearing loss at an early age. Don't be embarrassed by your inability to hear clearly - take action now and get a hearing test to find out what you can do to enhance your ability to hear clearly and prevent continued deterioration.

Start by having a hearing test and then take steps to decide if you feel comfortable with the new technologies. Think about it - how much time and energy are you spending apologizing because you misheard something, or asking someone to speak louder or to repeat themselves? Having a hearing test and wearing a hearing device can alleviate many problems caused by hearing loss - and that is priceless!

No Iran breakthrough with Kerry in Vienna

VIENNA (AP) — Joint efforts by U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry and three other Western foreign ministers failed Sunday to advance faltering nuclear talks with Iran, with the target date for a deal only a week away.

"There has been no breakthrough today," said British Foreign Secretary William Hague after meetings with Kerry and the foreign ministers of France, Germany and Iran.

The trip gave Kerry a chance to ease an espionage dispute with Germany. After meeting with German Foreign Minister Frank-Walter Steinmeier, both stressed the importance of their cooperation in solving global crises, yet offered little indication they have fully mended ties.

Separately, Kerry spoke by telephone with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu about the escalating Mideast violence. Like the others, he also met with Iranian Foreign Minister Mohammad Javad Zarif.

"We're working, we're working, we just got here," said Kerry, chiding reporters asking about progress as Sunday's meetings wound down.

But the dispute over Iran's enrichment program appeared to be defying the Western foreign ministers' combined diplomatic muscle.

Tehran says it needs to expand enrichment to make reactor fuel but the U.S. fears Tehran could steer the activity toward manufacturing the core of nuclear missiles. The U.S. wants deep enrichment cuts; Iran wants to greatly expand enrichment.

"There is a huge gap" over enrichment, said Hague, in comments echoed by the other foreign ministers.

Steinmeier and French Foreign Minister Laurent Fabius left Sunday, a few hours after they arrived.

Kerry and Hague stayed on for another day of diplomacy. Still, the dispute and other differences strongly indicated that six world powers and Tehran will need to continue negotiations until July 20 and could decide to extend their talks past that informal deadline for a deal.

Such an agreement would buy time to negotiate a pact limiting the scope of such programs in exchange for a full end to nuclear-related sanctions against Tehran.

"Obviously we have some very significant gaps still, so we need to see if we can make some progress," Kerry told reporters before a meeting with European Union foreign policy chief Catherine Ashton, who is convening the talks.

"It is vital to make certain that Iran is not going to develop nuclear weapons, that their program is peaceful. That's what we are here trying to achieve."

French Foreign Minister Laurent Fabius said "positions are still far apart," and the ministers had come to "try to narrow differences."

Steinmeier said he and other Western foreign ministers had made clear in meetings with Iranian officials that "the ball is in Iran's court."

"It is now time for Iran to decide whether they want cooperation with the world community or stay in isolation," he told reporters.

to place the children with friends or family members without checking on their immigration status.

Under current law, immigrant children from countries that don't border the United States and who cross into this country by themselves are turned over to HHS within 72 hours. From there, they often are reunited with parents or placed with other relatives already living in the country, while they wait for an immigration court to decide their future. The court process can take years.

Neither Burwell's agency nor immigration officials check the immigration status of relatives who take custody of the immigrant children.

Since Oct. 1 more than 57,000 children have crossed the border alone. Most are from Honduras, El Salvador or Guatemala.

"We want to make sure they're placed in a safe and supportive home or placement, but also, it should be somebody that is legal and somebody that will be responsible to see that they show up for the hearing," Branstad said.

According to data from the Justice Department's Executive Office for Immigration Review, about a quarter of immigrants facing deportation hearings don't show up as ordered. The no-show rate for the juvenile immigration court docket is about 46 percent.

Amid the debate of what is causing the ongoing crush of child immigrants and how the government can stem the flow, two key lawmakers said President Barack Obama can take administrative action to relieve much of the crisis without waiting for what is likely to be a contentious and lengthy Congressional battle.

At issue is a provision in a 2008 human trafficking law that puts the fate of these immigrants in the hands of immigration judges. The Obama administration has expressed some interest in asking Congress to change the law to give the administration more leeway in dealing with the crisis.

But Rep. Mike Rogers, a Michigan Republican and chairman of the House Intelligence Committee, said Sunday that wholesale changes by Congress may not be necessary and that Obama has the authority to return the children to their native countries.

Obama "has tools in his toolbox" to deal with humanitarian issues and deter more children from coming to the U.S., Rogers said.

JAILS

mental illnesses, most arrested for non-violent crimes. And like other jails, it is awash in a tide of booking and releases that make it particularly unsuited for the task.

U.S. jails, most of whose 731,000 inmates are trying to make bail or awaiting trial, hold roughly half the number in prisons. But last year, jails booked in 11.7 million people — 19 times the number of new prison inmates. The revolving door complicates the task of screening for mental illness, managing medications, providing care and ensuring inmate safety.

"Jails are churning people," says Henry J. Steadman, a consultant to government agencies on how courts and correctional facilities deal with people with mental illnesses.

Experts have pointed to rising numbers of inmates with mental illnesses since the 1970s, after states began closing psychiatric hospitals without following through on promises to create and sustain comprehensive community treatment programs.

But as the number of those with serious mental illnesses surpasses 20 percent in some jails, many have struggled to keep up, sometimes putting inmates in jeopardy.

The Associated Press has reported that at least nine of the 11 suicides in New York City jails over the past five years came after operators failed to follow safeguards designed to prevent self-harm by inmates. The AP's investigation into the deaths of two mentally ill inmates at the city's Rikers Island complex — one who essentially baked to death in a 101-degree cell in February and the other who sexually mutilated himself last fall — have prompted promises of reform.

Federal law protects the rights of people in jails and other institutions. But in temporary holding facilities, dealing with serious, long-term mental illnesses requires operators to rethink what they do, Cook County Sheriff Thomas J. Dart says.

"You're given a court order by a judge to hold this person in the jail until you're told not to," Dart says. "You're not supposed to do anything other than feed him, give them a bed, make sure they don't harm anyone else or themselves. … You're not in there trying to cure people."

Many jails are dealing with similar dynamics, with sometimes disturbing results.

In Pensacola, Fla., Justice officials last year issued a scathing report about conditions at the Escambia County Jail. Records showed many inmates who requested care were never seen by a mental health professional. When inmates refused to take medications, the jail merely removed them from its list of those with a mental illness.

the home's quirks and secrets — imbues an otherwise-empty home with an unmistakable energy, say executives with Showhomes Tampa, the home-staging firm that moves them in. It also helps the homes sell faster, and for more money.

"They have to live a very different, very difficult life," said Kim Magnuson, a sales director. Added franchise owner Linda Saavedra, "The home managers act like human props, and (with buyers) it's like magic. It works phenomenally well."

The Muellers once lived in an opulent lake house bigger even than this $750,000 estate, which graces the 10th hole of an exclusive golf course in one of Tampa's wealthiest suburbs. But after a financially shattering fall from grace, this home, their fifth in two years, has become a surprising lifeline: Bob, 60, and Dareda, 56, now both work at McDonald's and scrape to pay the bills.

It has allowed them to start over with the painstaking gloss of perfection, but it has also brought up tough questions about what it means to have a home. Is it worth sleeping in a mansion if it means living as a ghost?

Showhomes has for years offered sellers their home stagings and "makeovers," but the firm's signature is deploying managers to the cavernous, dreary, desolate shells they call "naked homes."

Filling vacant houses with stuff, the firm said, "enhances the focal points, softens age and minimizes flaws." But adding in fake homeowners adds something else entirely, Saavedra said, turning quasi-spiritual: "There's an energy there. You can feel it. There's something. There's life."

Showhomes pays moving costs but the Muellers pay the firm about $1,200 in rent, plus all household bills. Showhomes decorators decide where things should go, and managers are responsible for faultless precision, enforced by rigorous, random inspections.

All surfaces must be regularly cleaned; weeds eradicated, car oil spots removed. Clothes in closets are to be organized by color, and contestable items — heavily religious books, personal photos — must be removed or neutralized. Every item has a rule, and everything must be exact: the rotation of pillows, the fold of towels, the positioning of toothbrushes. Even the stacks of novels casually left on the bookshelf are placed and angled with pinpoint detail.

Gatherings of more than 10 people require approval, and managers must always be prepared for surprises. A training manual states, "Our motto is 'A SHOWING IS NEVER REFUSED.'"

UKRAINE

2018 World Cup, is attending Sunday's final in Rio de Janeiro to take part in a handover ceremony with Brazilian President Dilma Rousseff and FIFA President Sepp Blatter.

Brazilian officials said Saturday that both Putin and his Ukrainian counterpart, Petro Poroshenko, would attend the match. But Poroshenko announced Sunday that he wouldn't be going. Talks between Russia and Ukraine over a cease-fire between the rebels and Kiev's troops have stalled in recent weeks, as Ukrainian troops have succeeded in pushing insurgents out of key towns in the east.

Putin met Sunday with German Chancellor Angela Merkel, also in Rio for the World Cup final, to discuss eastern Ukraine. Merkel spokesman Steffen Seibert said in a statement that the two leaders "agreed that as soon as possible direct talks should take place between the Ukrainian government and separatists in form of a video conference." Selecting a location for talks has been a key sticking point for both sides.

Putin spokesman Dmitry Peskov told Russian news agencies that Putin and Merkel believed the situation in east Ukraine was "deteriorating."

"Putin expressed grave concern with the ongoing attacks from the Ukrainian armed forces, and emphasized that it is unacceptable when such attacks result in the shelling of Russian territory," Peskov said.

Ukraine's Donetsk, where rebels have gathered to regroup after a major Ukrainian offensive last week, was quiet on Sunday. But some 150 people from the settlement of Marynka, on the outskirts of the city, were moving into dormitories at a local university on Sunday, after their homes were bombarded during the night.

"We were brought here this morning," said Svetlana Panteleyeva, who was with her grandson. "We were bombed so terribly. … They blew up our houses."

Police arrest man accused of kicking police horse

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Police in Portland, Ore., say they have arrested a 29-year-old man accused of running up to a police horse, uttering a "karate-like battle cry" and delivering what a spokesman calls "a jumping, double kick" to the horse's right thigh.

Police say the horse named Olin was unfazed and unhurt Wednesday. A police spokesman notes Olin outweighed his attacker by about 1,000 pounds.

Olin and his human partner took Joseph Cruz into custody for investigation of interfering with a law enforcement animal. The man was also wanted on an unrelated arrest warrant.

The incident happened as mounted officers patrolled Portland's Old Town, near a bus depot. They had stopped to speak to a group of people.

Anybody home? Pacific island of Niue hit by exodus

ALOFI, Niue (AP) — It was a school once, but there are no children here anymore. The lonely building on this remote Pacific island now contains only a punching bag that someone has strung from the classroom rafters, and a note scrawled on the chalkboard in Niuean: "Keep this place clean," it says, "so it stays beautiful."

While much of the world worries about how it will accommodate rapidly growing populations, some islands in the Pacific face the opposite dilemma: how to stop everybody from leaving.

The population decline on Niue, a lush coral atoll about the size of Baltimore, has been steady and relentless. In the 1960s, there were more than 5,000 people living here; today, there are fewer than 1,600. Fifteen times as many Niueans, some 24,000, now live across the ocean in New Zealand, 2,400 kilometers (1,500 miles) away.

The stories, songs and language that developed into the Niuean culture over more than 1,000 years are at risk of vanishing.

Speedo Hetutu, 54, attended the old school in the town of Avatele before it was abandoned and later used for workouts. There used to be six primary schools on the island; now there is only one. Other buildings where people used to work, pray or live now sit empty and in disrepair.

"People wanted to go away to look for a better life," Hetutu says. "People are still searching."

Other Pacific islands face similar struggles. The CIA estimates the population of the Cook Islands is declining by 3 percent per year, a rate second only to war-torn Syria.

Tokelau and American Samoa are also losing significant numbers of people. Even on archipelagos like Samoa and Tonga where the population is steady, people are abandoning the outer islands and moving to the main towns, where they can find better jobs, education and health care.

The exodus from Niue has been particularly acute because of its connection with New Zealand. Niue is self-governing but in free association with its wealthier neighbor to the south, and Niueans are automatically New Zealand citizens.

While that relationship has lured away thousands of young Niueans, it has also paid the bills for those who have remained. New Zealand has helped establish a $44 million trust fund and gives annual aid that amounts to about $10,000 per resident, helping fund the government work that accounts for most of the island's jobs. Some Niueans living abroad send back remittances.

Many of those who left had goals that were simply too big for the island. Professor John Connell, a South Pacific expert at the University of Sydney, recalls speaking with a nurse who specialized in neonatal care and had returned for her father's funeral.

Niueans see New Zealand as a land filled with opportunity, says the Rev. Falkland Liuvaie, 52, a Presbyterian minister who moved to its capital, Wellington, seven years ago.

He delivers a weekly sermon in both Niuean and English which he says gives many expats their only opportunity to listen to their language. He says for the first few years he gave his services only in Niuean, until he realized many people had difficulty understanding him.

The oral traditions that were once strong on the island are in danger of disappearing, he says.

"It's really hard. The more you stay away from home, the more you embrace other cultures, especially the Western culture," he says. "There's nothing much you can do about it."

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Thousands of Palestinians flee northern Gaza

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) — Thousands of Palestinian residents of the northern Gaza Strip fled their homes on Sunday and sought safety in U.N. shelters, heeding warnings from the Israeli military about impending plans to bomb the area in the sixth day of an offensive against Hamas that has killed more than 160 people.

The fighting showed no signs of slowing, despite international calls for a cease-fire and growing concerns about the mounting civilian death toll in Gaza. U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry spoke to Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and voiced U.S. "readiness" to help restore calm, while Egypt, a key mediator between Israel and Hamas, continued to work behind the scenes.

Amid the diplomacy, Israel said it was pushing forward with preparations for a possible ground invasion of Gaza. Thousands of troops have massed along the border in recent days.

Iraq parliament postpones decision on new leaders

BAGHDAD (AP) — Iraq's deadlocked parliament failed Sunday to overcome the deep divisions hampering the formation of a new government, making no progress on choosing new leaders who could help hold the nation together and confront the Sunni militant blitz that has overrun much of the country.

The legislature is under pressure to quickly choose a new speaker of parliament, president and prime minister — the first steps toward a new government. The international community has pressed lawmakers to put their differences aside, while the United Nations has warned of chaos if the political impasse drags on for too long.

But just 30 minutes into Sunday's parliament session, acting speaker Mahdi al-Hafidh announced he was breaking off the proceedings until Tuesday "due to the absence of any agreement on the names of the nominees for the three posts."

US, Germany vow cooperation despite espionage spat

VIENNA (AP) — The United States and Germany put a brave face on an escalating espionage dispute, stressing on Sunday the importance of their cooperation to solving several global crises but offering little indication they've fully mended ties.

After a meeting on the sidelines of nuclear talks in Vienna, German Foreign Minister Frank-Walter Steinmeier and U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry each extolled the value of the two NATO allies' work together on issues such as Iran and Israeli-Palestinian violence.

Steinmeier directly addressed the difficult time in the key trans-Atlantic partnership, without explicitly mentioning the reports of two German government officials recruited by American intelligence. The accounts have rocked relations, coming on the heels of revelations about widespread U.S. spying in Germany.

Medicare Recipients Find Pain Relief at a Price that's Hard to Beat

Qualified Medicare recipients can now get high-tech braces for their knees, back, ankles, shoulder or neck — all at little to no cost!

CHICAGO —

At 65 mph, George M. could see his back pain approaching through the windshield of his semi.

His knuckles whitened on the wheel as that feared section of road just north of St. Louis on the Mark Twain Expressway came into view.

He was seconds away from intense pain.

Always at this exact spot on the freeway, the cab of his tractor-trailer would begin vibrating and bouncing up and down, sometimes quite violently.

Fiery, Hot Pain

That's when the lower part of his spine would explode in hot, fiery pain.

"I have been to the chiropractor more times than you could count," says George.

"Just as soon as I get back behind the wheel," he says, "here comes the pain, again."

Top-of-the-line, pain-relieving support braces provided by Medicare at little to no cost keep active seniors, on the move!

The US Department of Transportation reports that long-haul truckers like George suffer low back pain at four-times the national rate.

It's no wonder either; after more than 30 years of driving, the discs between George's 24 bone vertebras, once plump and cushiony, were now dehydrated and flattened from repeated jarring.

The bone-on-bone grinding was almost too much for him to bear.

A Life-Changing Discovery

Then, George made a life-changing discovery.

Because he had Medicare, he qualified for a high-tech, state-of-the-art back brace that helped end his severe back pain problems.

Pain Relief, Priced Right

More importantly, the price was right.

George got his back brace for 'almost nothing," he laughs.

"When lady on the phone told me I could get this fancy brace at little to no cost, I didn't believe it. But, she was right!"

How Much!?

"I got a brace worth several hundred dollars at a fraction of the cost!"

"Anyone on Medicare may qualify," he says.

George is also happy to report that his new brace is 'as comfortable as my favorite pair of jeans.'

George is back on the road again, doing what he loves to do.

His new, high-tech back brace that he got for 'almost nothing!' has put him back in life's passing lane.

"It keeps me trucking," says perhaps the happiest trucker in America.

A Risky Decision

For 68-year-old Larry A. of Newark, New Jersey, having knee surgery at his age was a risky decision.

Lifelong truck driver, George M., almost quit driving because of severe back pain. A state-of-the-art, pain-relieving back brace provided by Medicare at little to no cost, has put America's happiest truck driver back in the passing lane.

He knew in his heart that he was strong and healthy enough to have the operation, and he was right.

The problem came after his surgery. The severe pain was completely unexpected, and almost unbearable.

Pain So Bad You Can't Sleep

Not only did his knee ache and throb during the day, it also kept him up at night.

"It took almost six months before I could get more than three hours of sleep at night."

Then, a friend told him how to get an expensive knee brace at little to no cost.

Medicare to the Rescue

He learned that anyone on Medicare can qualify for a number of different, doctor-recommended, top-of-the-line braces.

They have braces for your back, knee, ankle, shoulder, and neck, all at little to no cost if you qualify.

Comfortable Pain Solution

Each brace is ergonomically designed to provide a full-range of motion in a durable, breathable fabric that offers increased airflow, and super-comfortable wear.

Every brace is hand washable, too, for years of reliable, pain-relieving support.

That was sweet music to Larry's ears.

Free Long Distance Call

So, he called the toll-free number, and spoke with a friendly young lady who asked him a few easy-to-answer questions.

She even phoned his doctor for him.

Before long, Larry was giving the operator his home address to ship him one of the most advanced knee braces ever developed.

Every Brace Shipped Free!

Larry's brace, like all braces shipped through this special program, was delivered free of charge.

It doesn't matter what kind, or how many braces you will receive, all are shipped at no charge.

For Ronnie Jackson, realizing that he could get a top-of-the-line knee brace at little to no cost was a life-changer.

His Pain Worsened Until...

When Ronnie suddenly began to experience knee pain, he hoped it would go away, but it only got worse.

It got so bad, in fact, that he literally began limiting his activities.

He stopped going for walks. He discovered an effective way to beat the pain: he actually stayed in bed more often.

A Depressing Outcome

"It was very depressing," says Ronnie. "I couldn't do the athletic things that I loved to do."

One day, Ronnie's son called him. He had seen a TV commercial for knee braces.

So Ronnie called the toll-free phone number.

"They were so nice and wonderful," smiles Ronnie.

Medicare offers high-tech ankle, knee, shoulder, back and neck braces at little to no cost. They are exceptionally comfortable and can provide daylong pain relief.

"I spoke with Norma and answered a series of questions.

She asked questions like where was the pain, how often did I get it, and if it hurt only when I applied pressure.

Help You can Trust

"I could tell they really cared about me," says Ronnie.

"The next thing I knew, I had two knee braces!"

"These are really, really nice braces. They are worth several hundred dollars each.

"Because I had Medicare, these braces cost me almost nothing. They have changed my life," says Ronnie.

"I can play ball again and it doesn't hurt! Plus, I have a lot more energy."

"I would tell anyone who lives with pain to give them a call. They can help! Who knows, it may change your life, too!"

New preschool offers parents glimpse of kids' day

ZEPHYRHILLS (AP) — A new Florida day care and preschool is giving parents the chance to monitor their child throughout the day via webcams.

Wee Warriors Daycare and Preschool is scheduled to open Aug. 25 at Fair Haven Baptist Church in Zephyrhills. Inside, children's movements will be captured by an elaborate 16-camera system that can be monitored by downloading an app to a smartphone or computer. Parents and guardians will be issued codes to give them access.

"Each one of these rooms you can look on your smartphone and watch your kids so you can be at work and check in on your kid," said Mike Smith, pastor of the church and principal of its Zephyrhills Christian Academy for grades kindergarten through 12. "You'll get a vision of the entire room and the same thing in every single classroom."

Elliot Rondon, a technician with Low-Voltage Technologies in Brandon, told The Tampa Tribune that aside from viewing the footage in real-time, parents can watch recordings later and zoom in if they want a closer look at their child.

"We came up with the idea because a lot of the fear of sending your kids to a day care today is, 'Are my kids being abused?' or 'What's going on with my kids while they are there all day?' We want to know what's going on with our babies," Smith said. "We figured it would be a good idea to put a camera in every room that is accessible to the parents. They'll have a code that they'll be able to go to, and at any time during the day, they can open up their kids' classroom and see their kids."

Still, Smith said just because cameras will be watching every move doesn't mean the school will shy away from discipline.

"There has to be correction if a kid bites or if a kid won't listen," he said, "so we have a disciplinary policy in place to be able to handle that."

Space station shipment launched from Virginia

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) — A commercial cargo ship rocketed toward the International Space Station on Sunday, carrying food, science samples and new odor-resistant gym clothes for the resident crew.

Orbital Sciences Corp. launched its Cygnus capsule from the Virginia coast, its third space station delivery for NASA.

"It's like Christmas in July," said Frank Culbertson, an executive vice president at Orbital Sciences and former astronaut.

Daylight and clouds limited visibility, but observers from North Carolina to New Jersey still had a shot at seeing the rising Antares rocket. It resembled a bright light in the early afternoon sky.

The unmanned capsule should arrive there Wednesday.

This newest Cygnus contains more than 3,000 pounds of supplies, much of it food. Also on board: mini-satellites, science samples, equipment and experimental exercise clothes.

Panhandle woman wins title of Miss Florida USA

FORT LAUDERDALE (AP) — A Panhandle woman has been crowned Miss Florida USA.

Ashleigh Lollie of Grand Ridge earned the title in the pageant at Parker Playhouse in Fort Lauderdale on Saturday night.

Seventy women were vying for the crown. Lollie goes on to represent Florida in the Miss USA pageant next year. A win there would earn her a spot at Miss Universe.

1 killed, 1 badly hurt in separate hit-and-runs

SARASOTA (AP) — Florida authorities are looking for two motorists involved in serious hit-and-run accidents over the weekend.

In Sarasota County, 71-year-old William Wren was killed Saturday morning after he was hit while riding his motorcycle. The Florida Highway Patrol says the motorcycle was caught under the driver's car and dragged for about 250 feet.

After it became detached, the driver fled.

In a second hit-and-run on Friday night in the Panhandle, 59-year-old Roy Reasoonover was trying to cross Mobile Highway near Edison Drive in Escambia County when he was struck by an unknown vehicle. The highway patrol says the victim was dragged under the vehicle for 21 feet and was critically injured.

Home 'flipper' sentenced to 10 years for scheme

TAMPA (AP) — A developer who "flipped" houses throughout Florida has been sentenced to 10 years in prison for what prosecutors say was a mortgage fraud scheme.

A federal judge also ordered 42-year-old Joseph Daniele to pay a $7.4 million judgment.

Daniele pleaded guilty to fraud conspiracy in May.

Prosecutors say Daniele advertised "no money down" home investment opportunities to buy homes targeted to low-income buyers with good credit.

However, prosecutors say the loans required the investors actually to put their money into the deals.

Prosecutors say the scheme involved hundreds of properties.

For Goetze, glory is worth the wait

Reserve scores in 113th minute as Germans capture fourth title

By MATTIAS KAREN
Associated Press

RIO DE JANEIRO — Mario Goetze produced the piece of individual skill that Lionel Messi couldn't muster.

With two quick, deft touches, Goetze ended Germany's 24-year wait for another World Cup title — and denied Messi the one title he needs to forever take his place among the game's all-time greats.

Goetze scored the winning goal in extra time to give Germany a 1-0 victory over Argentina on Sunday in a tight and tense World Cup final that was decided by one moment of brilliance.

Goetze, who wasn't born when West Germany beat Argentina in the 1990 final, controlled a cross with his chest in the 113th minute and in one fluid motion volleyed the ball past goalkeeper Sergio Romero and inside the far post from five yards out.

It was a goal that gave Germany its fourth World Cup title, tying Italy for second on the list of all-time champions. Brazil has five.

"It's an unbelievable feeling. I don't know how to describe it. You just shoot that goal in, you don't really know what's happening," Goetze said. "And then at the end of the match, having a party with the team, the whole country … it is for us, a dream come true."

At the final whistle, Germany players fell into a pile in the middle of the pitch in celebration. Messi walked past them

Price, Rays streak into break

Left-hander wins 4th consecutive start by working into the ninth

By MARK DIDTLER
Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — Not even a stomach virus could derail David Price's surge.

The All-Star left-hander scattered five hits in eight-plus innings to win his fourth consecutive start and Tampa Bay beat Toronto 3-0 on Sunday.

Price (9-7), who had his start pushed back one day due to being ill, struck out five and walked one. He was pulled after giving up a leadoff single in the ninth to Melky Cabrera.

"Everything was working," Tampa Bay manager Joe Maddon said. "They weren't getting comfortable swings on him. Really fun to watch."

Price let the team know Saturday night that he felt good enough to pitch Sunday. He watched Saturday's game at home on TV.

Because Price pitched on Sunday, he is ineligible to play in the All-Star game Tuesday night in Minnesota. His roster spot was taken by his former teammate, Seattle closer Fernando Rodney.

The Rays, who have won 11 of 15, took a 1-0 lead on a

Bad run of victory parties ends

Keselowski stages a perfect celebration after third win of year

By DAN GELSTON
Associated Press

LOUDON, N.H. — Brad Keselowski hopped out of his car and grabbed an oversized broom to give a playful sweep of all the confetti already collected around his Ford.

He then truly savored his victory, snagging a New England lobster and raising it in triumph.

Keselowski survived without a cut, splinter or pinch. He didn't even fumble his championship crustacean. For once, his victory celebration was as perfect as his performance on the track.

He completed a flawless weekend at New Hampshire Motor Speedway and won Sunday under a green-white checkered finish. Keselowski followed up Saturday's Nationwide Series victory with his first Sprint Cup win at New Hampshire, dominating in the No. 2 Ford for his third victory of the season.

The 2012 Sprint Cup champion is tied with Jimmie Johnson for the series lead in wins.

"This was just such a phenomenal weekend and these don't happen that often," he said.

Keselowski had been in a slump with, of all things, his Victory Lane fun.

He needed four stitches to close a wound he received during his Victory Lane celebration in the Sprint Cup race

■ COLLEGE FOOTBALL: SEC meetings

Varied storylines await league coaches

Off-field issues dwarf the on-field questions for league

By JOHN ZENOR
Associated Press

There's plenty of issues to discuss in the Southeastern Conference.

The league opens its annual media days — four days instead of three now — on Monday in Hoover, Alabama with radical change in the college athletic model appearing imminent and the SEC Network soon to take the airwaves.

Football will also be on the agenda, of course; Florida State ended the SEC's seven-year run of national titles by beating Auburn. Six SEC teams will be led by new starting quarterbacks after an exodus that included big names like Texas A&M's Johnny Manziel, Alabama's AJ McCarron and Georgia's Aaron Murray.

SEC Commissioner Mike Slive opens with his annual address. Auburn's Gus Malzahn, whose Tigers matched the biggest one-season turnaround in college football during his debut, will be the first coach to address the media. The SEC issued about 1,100 credentials for the event in suburban Birmingham.

Some of the storylines:

Slive speaks: The five wealthiest conferences will likely be granted more decision-making powers after an August vote by the NCAA board of directors, including more money for athletes. Slive has been an outspoken advocate of the need for change and figures to talk about that prospect and the SEC Network again. The SEC Network goes on the air in August, with negotiations continuing with some cable and satellite providers.

Tension in the air? Alabama's Nick Saban and Arkansas' Bret

Eagle lands major victory

American wins with miracle shot on 18th hole

By DOUG FERGUSON
Associated Press

SOUTHPORT, England — Mo Martin knew she hit her 3-wood exactly how she wanted on the 18th hole at Royal Birkdale.

With the ball slightly below her feet, just under 240 yards away and a strong wind at her back, she let it rip and watched the ball track toward the flag. Martin thought it was short. Then she thought it might be too long. Moments later, she realized how good it was.

"I could hear it hit the pin from the fairway," Martin said. "That was a pretty fun feeling."

The ball rolled into the center of the flagstick and settled 6 feet away for an eagle, and when no one could catch her, the 31-year-old American became a major champion on Sunday at the Ricoh Women's British Open.

"I think I still need to be pinched," Martin said after closing with an even-par 72 for a one-shot victory over Shanshan Feng of China and Suzann Pettersen of Norway.

NUMBERS GAME

Martin's earnings for winning the Women's British Open

$599,760
Martin's career earnings when she arrived in England.

It was Martin's first eagle of the year — one of the shortest hitters in the game, she doesn't get many opportunities. She had not won on the LPGA Tour in 63 previous tries. And on a wind-swept Sunday when no one broke par, she was never closer than two shots of the leaders the entire final round.

The best shot of her life changed everything.

An hour later, it turned out to be the winning shot when Feng and Inbee Park of South Korea couldn't stay under par.

Both needed one birdie over the two par-5 closing holes at Royal Birkdale. Feng missed birdie putts of 15 and 10 feet and shot 75. Park missed a 12-foot birdie putt on the 17th, and then put her tee shot in the right rough on the easy 18th hole and wound up with a bogey for a 77.

Martin, who finished at 1-under 287, was on the practice range preparing for a playoff that never happened when she hugged her caddie, Kyle Morrison.

"Is this real life?" she said.

It seemed like a fairy tale for Martin. Growing up with modest means, her father built a cage in their driveway for her to practice hitting balls. She walked on at UCLA. She needed financial help to keep her dream alive, including six years to reach the LPGA Tour.

Americans now have won the first three majors of the LPGA Tour season for the first time since 1999, with Martin following Lexi Thompson at the Kraft Nabisco Championship and Michelle Wie at the U.S. Women's Open.

"It's still soaking in, along with champagne in my jacket," Martin said. "This is just unbelievable. It's literally a dream come true. Safe to say it's the best week of my life."

Montgomerie wins Senior playoff

By The Associated Press

EDMOND, Okla. — Colin Montgomerie won a three-hole playoff against Gene Sauers to win the U.S. Senior Open title Sunday at Oak Tree National.

Both entered the playoff at 5 under. Montgomerie entered the third extra hole with a one-shot lead, then made a putt on No. 18 to par the hole and claim the win.

Montgomerie became the fifth golfer to win both the Senior PGA Championship and U.S. Senior Open in the same year. He led at the end of the first and second days of the Senior Open, but entered the final round four shots behind Sauers and shot a 2-under 69 to force the playoff.

It was the first playoff at a U.S. Senior Open since 2002, when Don Pooley beat Tom Watson in a five-hole playoff.

Harman edges Johnson to win John Deere Classic: In Silvis, Ill., Brian Harman used three straight birdies down the stretch to hold off Zach Johnson by one stroke and win the John Deere Classic for his first PGA Tour title. Harman had a 5-under 66 in the final round for a 22-under-262 total. The 27-year-old Georgian in his third full season on the PGA Tour earned $846,000 and the last exemption for next week's British Open.

Rose wins in Scotland for back-to-back titles: In Aberdeen, Scotland, Justin Rose won the Scottish Open by two shots after a final round 6-under 65, sealing back-to-back victories either side of the Atlantic and bolstering his confidence ahead of this week's British Open. The 2013 U.S. Open champion turned rolled in six birdies, going bogey-free on a windless Royal Aberdeen links course. Phil Mickelson, saving his best round for last with a 65, was tied for 11th while Rory McIlroy tied for 14th after a 67.

two-out single by Logan Forsythe in the second.

Tampa Bay went ahead 2-0 during the sixth thanks to a video replay. Yunel Escobar was thrown out trying to score from second by right fielder Jose Bautista on Molina's two-out single, but the call was overturned.

Evan Longoria's seventh-inning sacrifice fly made it 3-0.

"There was no let up the day before All-Star break," Maddon said. "We didn't mail anything in."

R.A. Dickey (7-9) gave up two runs and five hits over six innings.

"That's a perennial All-Star over there," Dickey said of Price. "You know when you're pitching against a guy like that you don't have a lot of margin for error."

Price said he was too amped up early, forcing him to work out of a two-on, one-out jam in the first. He needed 23 pitches to get out of that inning but only 89 after that.

Price scattered five hits and a walk in his team's 10th shutout of the season. Although he had only five strikeouts, he enters the All-Star break with 164 —ss the most of any pitcher at this point in the last 12 years.

"He's one of the best in the business," Blue Jays manager John Gibbons said. "That's why everybody wants him."

Price and the crowd both seemed to recognize that reality, too.

When Price left the game after giving up a leadoff single in the ninth, he received another standing ovation. He tipped his cap to the crowd of 17,187 and lingered outside the dugout for a long round of postgame hugs.

"He's just proving the kind of pitcher that he is right now — to everybody," outfielder Ben Zobrist said. "To our organization and to every other organization."

Notes: Tampa Bay activated McGee from the paternity list and optioned RHP Jeremy Hellickson to Double-A Montgomery. Hellickson is coming back from right elbow surgery in January, and the move will allow him to pitch today during the All-Star break. Maddon said Hellickson make a second start in the minors next weekend. Rays C Ryan Hanigan (sore left side) sat out his third consecutive game, while CF Desmond Jennings (bruised left knee) missed his second.

DeGrom pitches, hits Mets to win

Holt's five hits lead Red Sox to rout of Astros

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Jacob deGrom had a tiebreaking single and again shut down the Miami Marlins over seven innings, David Wright doubled twice and drove in two runs, and the New York Mets completed a three-game sweep with a 9-1 victory on Sunday.

Wright, Curtis Granderson and Juan Lagares each had RBI doubles, and Chris Young added a sacrifice fly for New York in its eighth win on a 10-game homestand heading into the All-Star break.

New York jumped over the Marlins, losers of four straight, and into third place in the NL East at 45-50.

Red Sox 11, Astros 0: In Houston, Clay Buchholz allowed three hits and struck out a career-high 12 in his fifth career shutout in Boston's rout of Houston. Brock Holt had a career-best five hits, including a leadoff homer, to help the Red Sox to their fourth victory in five games heading into the All-Star break.

Nationals 10, Phillies 3: In Philadelphia, Jayson Werth homered and drove in four runs, and Tanner Roark pitched seven innings of one-run ball to lead Washington over Philadelphia. Ryan Zimmerman also went deep and had two RBIs, Ian Desmond knocked in two runs, and Anthony Rendon had three hits and an RBI for Washington. The Phillies dropped to 8-41 overall and 2-29 in their last 31 games when failing to score four runs.

All-Star game appearances by Philadelphia's Chase Utley. Hall of Famers Joe Morgan (seven) and Ryne Sandberg (nine) —Utley's manager — are the only National League second basemen to make more All-Star starts than Utley.

Braves 10, Cubs 7: In Chicago, Chris Johnson had three hits, including his third homer in two days, and Atlanta beat the Chicago Cubs to stay in a virtual tie with Washington for first place in the NL East. Atlanta has won three of four since a four-game losing streak.

Angels 10, Rangers 7: In Arlington, Texas, Mike Trout doubled twice and drove in four runs as Los Angeles beat Texas and took a five-game winning streak into the All-Star break. Texas lost its eighth in a row and has the worst record in the majors. The Angels are a major league-best 26-9 since June 6.

Athletics 4, Mariners 1: In Seattle, Sonny Gray limited Seattle to six hits and one unearned run in Oakland's victory.

Reds 6, Pirates 2: In Cincinnati, Kris Negron hit his first career home run, and All-Star Todd Frazier added a two-run shot as Cincinnati rolled into the break with a win against Pittsburgh.

Brewers 11, Cardinals 2: In Milwaukee, Elian Herrera got five hits while filling in for mourning shortstop Jean Segura, and Milwaukee ended a seven-game losing streak by routing St. Louis. The Brewers tied a season high with 19 hits and took a one-game lead over St. Louis in the NL Central at the All-Star break.

Giants 8, Diamondbacks 4: In San Francisco, Madison Bumgarner became the first pitcher in 48 years to hit two grand slams in a season, and Buster Posey also hit a slam that boosted San Francisco. The last pitcher to launch two slams in a season was Tony Cloninger, who hit both in the same game for Atlanta on July 3, 1966, against the Giants.

Dodgers 1, Padres 0: In Los Angeles, Hyun-Jin Ryu struck out 10 and outpitched first-time All-Star Tyson Ross, and Yasiel Puig singled home the only run in the Los Angeles Dodgers' win over San Diego to take ook a one-game lead over San Francisco in the NL West into the All-Star break.

Manatees starter stymies Crabs

Staff Report

VIERA — Damien Magnifico scattered six hits across eight innings of one-run ball to lead Brevard County to a 7-5 victory against Charlotte on Sunday in the Florida State League.

Magnifico (6-5), a fifth-round pick out of the University of Oklahoma in 2012, struck out five and walked one. His outing was made easier after the Manatees scored seven runs in the first three innings off Marcus Jensen (3-4), who was making his second start of the season.

Jensen allowed five earned runs on six hits and a walk though his defense let him down in the first. Leadoff batter Nathan Orf reached on an error, moved to third on a single and scored on a throwing error by catcher Luke Bailey on a steal attempt. The error allowed Orlando Arcia to reach third, from where he scored on a sac fly.

In the second, two singles and a walk set up Orf's sacrifice fly and Arcia's two-run single. Tyrone Taylor's bunt single capped the rally.

Brevard County completed its scoring on Victor Roache's homer run, his 11th, to right field.

Charlotte made the final score look closer with a four-run ninth off relievers Trevor Seidenberger and Scott Lieser. Josh Sale tripled and Ariel Soriano doubled to start the inning. Following a walk, Luke Bailey hit a three-run homer to right. The blast was his second.

Every Stone Crabs starter except Marty Gantt recorded at least one hit. Tyler Goeddel was the only Charlotte player with two.

The teams conclude the four-game set today. Charlotte is 4-4 since snapping a five-game losing streak.

O'Conner singles in Futures Game

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Texas Rangers prospect Joey Gallo hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning to give the U.S. team the lead for good in a 3-2 victory over the World squad Sunday at the All-Star Futures Game for baseball's best minor leaguers.

Gallo, a 20-year-old third baseman for Double-A Frisco, has 31 homers in 85 games.

The first five U.S. pitchers tossed scoreless innings, starting with Henry Owens, the Double-A lefty for the Boston Red Sox.

Charlotte Stone Crabs catcher Justin O'Conner entered the game at catcher in relief of Kevin Plawecki. O'Conner singled in his lone at-bat.

Martin wins stage; Gallopin takes lead

By JEROME PUGMIRE
Associated Press

MULHOUSE, France — German rider Tony Martin showed he has climbing skills to go with his speed by winning the hilly ninth stage of the Tour de France on Sunday, while Frenchman Tony Gallopin took the yellow jersey from Vincenzo Nibali of Italy.

The 29-year-old German, a three-time world time trial champion, broke away with specialist climber Alessandro De Marchi of Italy and eventually won by nearly three minutes.

"The objective was to win the stage. There was a chance to do it and I felt good, my legs felt good," Martin said. "I knew it would be one of my rare chances to win a stage."

The 170-kilometer (105.4-mile) trek from Gerardmer to Mulhouse — in the mid-sized Vosges mountains range near the German border — featured six mostly moderate uphill treks that posed Martin little problem, even though he is not a reputed climber.

"When the stage started to climb I realized I was stronger and started to attack and then things went well," he said. "We're close to Germany and that was an extra incentive."

Swiss rider Fabian Cancellara was second and Belgian rider Greg Van Avermaet was third — both 2 minutes, 45 seconds adrift in the chasing pack.

It was a good day for France with Gallopin set to defend the yellow jersey today — Bastille Day — and for Germany, which won soccer's showpiece Sunday in the World Cup final against Argentina.

Portuguese rider Tiago Machado is in third place overall, 4:08 back. But, like Gallopin, he is not considered a Tour contender.

"It's with great pride that I will ride on the national holiday day in the yellow jersey," the 26-year-old Gallopin said.

OLYMPIC SWIMMING CHAMPION THORPE: 'I AM A GAY MAN'

SYDNEY (AP) — Five-time Olympic swimming gold medalist Ian Thorpe for the first time publicly confirmed that he is gay during a television interview on Sunday.

Thorpe, who had long denied that he was gay, told British talk show host Michael Parkinson in an interview broadcast on Australia's Channel 10 that he recently realized the truth about himself.

For years, Thorpe took great pains to hide his sexuality. In his 2012 autobiography, "This Is Me," Thorpe wrote, "For the record, I am not gay and all of my sexual experiences have been straight. I'm attracted to women, I love children, and aspire to have a family one day."

Thorpe, 31, said being asked about his sexuality by journalists when he was a teenager forced him to adopt a defensive attitude. He was too young to know whether he was gay or straight, and said he responded that he was straight to avoid teasing.

Now, he says, he wishes he had come out sooner.

"I'm comfortable saying I'm a gay man," he said. "And I don't want young people to feel the same way that I did. You can grow up, you can be comfortable and you can be gay." …

Bosh embraces challenges of Heat leadership

By The Associated Press

Half a world away, Chris Bosh could not escape the frenzy of last week.

An offer from Houston was waiting. His longtime Miami teammate LeBron James was leaving. For a few moments, Bosh wondered if his days with the Heat were over.

Then he looked at his family, and everything stopped.

"We've built a life in South Florida and we're comfortable," Bosh said Sunday. "So I had to do what's best now for myself and my family."

With that, his decision became very easy. Bosh will sign a $118 million, five-year deal to stay with the Heat, a formality only held up by the logistical challenge presented by him being in Ghana right now and with more exotic stops on a family vacation still to come before returning home.

"I can't lie to you: I'm excited. I'm excited for the challenge," Bosh said during a break from NBA Africa duties. "I want to step up to the challenge. I feel this is a chance to prove to myself and others that I can still do this.

"I want to see if I can do what's necessary to go in there and win every night. That's the challenge of being a leader. It excites me."

Anthony stays with Knicks: Carmelo Anthony is remaining with the Knicks, saying he wants "to stay and build here with this city and my team." Anthony made his decision official with a posting on his website. He writes: "In the end, I am a New York Knick at heart." Anthony explains that he owed it to himself to explore other opportunities as a free agent, but in the end his "heart never wavered." The Knicks can pay the All-Star forward they acquired in February 2011 nearly $130 million over five years.

Hornets sign point guard: A person familiar with the contract said free-agent point guard Brian Roberts agreed to a $5.5 million, two-year deal with the Charlotte Hornets. The deal is expected to be signed next week. The 6-foot-1, 173-pound Roberts will backup Kemba Walker.

Parsons heads to Mavs: Chandler Parsons is going to Dallas after Houston decided not to match the restricted free agent's three-year offer sheet worth more than $45 million. Dallas also struck a deal with free agent veteran swingman Richard Jefferson on a one-year minimum deal.

Lin joins Lakers: Jeremy Lin joined the Lakers in a trade with Houston, who also gave up first- and second-round draft picks in 2015 for the rights to European center Sergei Lishchuk. Lin will make about $15 million this season in the last year of a deal that counts only $8 million against the salary cap. The Lakers have the cap room to absorb Lin's contract. Lakers general manager Mitch Kupchak said the trade allows the team to acquire a solid player and two draft picks while maintaining financial flexibility.

FREE AGENCY AT A GLANCE

The biggest moves made so far during the NBA's free agency period:

ON THE MOVE

LEBRON JAMES: Leaves Miami for Cleveland. Best player in the world goes home.

CHANDLER PARSONS: Leaves Houston for Dallas, which gets another shooter to play off Dirk sNowitzki.

PAU GASOL: Leaves the Lakers for Chicago. Add Bulls to suddenly growing list of East contenders.

PAUL PIERCE: Leaves Brooklyn for Washington. If Wizards didn't strike you as a team on the rise already, they should now.

ISAIAH THOMAS: Leaves Sacramento for Phoenix. With this playmaker at the point, the Suns will be a popular sleeper pick.

LUOL DENG: Leaves Cleveland for Miami, which is fitting. The Heat had an opening at small forward.

ANTHONY MORROW: Leaves New Orleans for Oklahoma City. Top 3-point threat gets to play off MVP Kevin Durant.

SHAUN LIVINGSTON: Leaves Brooklyn for Golden State, gets chance to be a full-fledged starter and got paid. His comeback from that awful knee injury? Complete.

DARREN COLLISON: Leaves the Los Angeles Clippers for Sacramento, where he gets a nice raise and chance to be Isaiah Thomas' replacement in the backcourt.

VINCE CARTER: Leaves Dallas for Memphis. Leadership will help, but Grizzlies need more.

SPENCER HAWES: Leaves Cleveland for the Los Angeles Clippers. Big, strong and now a 3-point threat? Clips are better, without question.

STAYING PUT

CHRIS BOSH: Staying in Miami. Keeping Bosh helped Heat avoid what would have been offseason disaster.

CARMELO ANTHONY: Staying with New York Knicks and gave them a little discount. Knicks would have been in worlds of trouble without him this season.

KYLE LOWRY: Staying in Toronto, and despite widespread speculation otherwise, there was no way Masai Ujiri was letting the Raps' point guard go anywhere.

MARCIN GORTAT: Staying in Washington. Wizards impressed many last season and young core will get better.

GORDON HAYWARD: Staying in Utah after Jazz matched Charlotte's offer sheet. Hayward has answered every challenge since coming to NBA from Butler.

ZACH RANDOLPH: Staying in Memphis, which gives Grizzlies hope. When Randolph is right, he can be close to unguardable 1-on-1.

AVERY BRADLEY: Staying in Boston, after proving himself last year when Celtics were without Rajon Rondo.

TIM DUNCAN: Staying in San Antonio, like there was any chance of anything else.

DIRK NOWITZKI: Staying in Dallas, also like there was any chance of anything else.

MARIO CHALMERS: Staying in Miami, in a deal that means the Heat will at least have a proven starter back at the point.

German players celebrate after the final whistle in their 1-0 victory in the World Cup final. Germany has beaten Argentina in each of the past three Worlsd Cups.

with his hands on his hips — still in the shadow of his compatriot Diego Maradona, who led his country to the 1986 title.

Goetze went on as a substitute for Miroslav Klose toward the end of regulation time and his fresh legs made the difference.

Andre Schuerrle broke down the left flank, sending his cross into the area, and the Bayern Munich midfielder did the rest with a clinical finish. The goal echoed that of Andres Iniesta four years ago, when the midfielder scored in similar fashion but from the other side of the area to give Spain a 1-0 extra-time victory against the Netherlands.

According to Germany coach Joachim Loew, it was exactly as he'd planned when he made the substitution.

"I said to Mario Goetze, 'OK, show to the world that you're better than Messi and you can decide the World Cup. You have all the possibilities to do that,'" Loew said. "I had a good feeling with him."

Germany became the first European team to win a World Cup in the Americas, and the victory ends a string of near misses since winning its last major title at the 1996 European Championship. The team lost the 2002 World Cup final to Brazil, the Euro 2008 final to Spain and was eliminated in the semifinals in both 2006 and 2010.

Argentina had not been back in the final since that 1990 loss and has been beaten by Germany in the last three World Cups.

"This was our chance, and we felt that way. We couldn't do it. We have to lift our heads and suffer the pain," Argentina midfielder Javier Mascherano said. "Obviously, the pain is tremendous."

It is Germany's first World Cup title as a unified nation, having won as West Germany in 1954, 1974 and 1990.

The Germans faced Argentina in both the 1986 and 1990 finals, during Maradona's heyday. This time, they were up against Messi, the four-time world player of the year who has set a slew of scoring records in leading Barcelona to every major club title and is widely considered the best player since Maradona.

But in the biggest game of his career, Messi came up short.

He had one good chance to score when he was sent free in the area just after the halftime break, but sent his shot wide. It was a difficult angle, but still the type of chance he so often converts for Barcelona.

Messi threatened intermittently throughout the match, but was effectively smothered by the German defense. His free kick in the 120th minute went well high.

STORYLINES

Lionel Messi received the award for best player of the World Cup, minutes after his Argentina team lost the final 1-0 to Germany. Messi was selected ahead of Thomas Mueller of Germany and Netherlands forward Arjen Robben.

Mario Goetze's winning goal for Germany in the World Cup final was the 171st scored in Brazil, equaling the tournament record set at the 1998 World Cup in France.

Fans rained boos and catcalls upon FIFA President Sepp Blatter and Brazilian President Dilma Rousseff before and during the trophy presentation.

at Kentucky. He tried to open the bottle of champagne by hitting it against a podium, and the bottle broke and cut his hand.

Keselowski dropped the American flag out of his No. 22 Ford on Saturday and it was retrieved by an official to let the frivolity continue.

He joked he brought Kevlar-reinforced gloves that were touted as cut-proof.

Good thing. The New Hampshire winner traditionally receives a live lobster in Victory Lane.

"Apparently, I've got to win more and I'll get better at it," he said. "I think everybody got to hold the lobster. We're looking forward to eating the lobster later this week. I hear they're going to overnight the meat."

He'll get a taste of Loudon the Lobster — yes, that's its name — a 20-pounder caught off the coast of Massachusetts.

Keselowski won driving the Redd's Apple Ford Fusion, making the win a Redd Lobster photo opp.

Keselowski keeps pilling up wins and has proved he may be even better than he was during '12 championship run.

"I think in a lot of ways, we're stronger than that," he said. "I don't think we've had this much speed before."

After the last caution came with four laps left, Keselowski pulled away on the final restart to become the first driver to sweep the weekend in track history. He had the fastest car most of the weekend, even leading the speed charts during both Sprint Cup practices on Saturday.

"You can't have a great car if you don't have the best driver," team owner Roger Penske said. "I can tell you today, there was nobody that could beat him."

Keselowski and Dale Earnhardt Jr. clinched spots in the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship, provided they attempt to qualify for the final seven races before the cutoff.

Pole sitter Kyle Busch was second. Kyle Larson, Matt Kenseth and Ryan Newman completed the top five.

Busch said the No. 18 Toyota never had enough to mount a challenge.

"I don't think anybody did," he said.

Keselowski led 138 of 305 laps (four more than the scheduled 301) and helped Ford to its fourth straight win. Ford last won four consecutive Sprint Cup races in 2001.

Clint Bowyer, Tony Stewart, Denny Hamlin, Ricky Stenhouse Jr., and Dale Earnhardt Jr. rounded out the top 10.

Joey Logano was running inside the top five late in the race when he connected with Morgan Shepherd. The 72-year-old Shepherd, who extended his mark as the oldest driver to start a race in NASCAR's Sprint Cup series, was about 15 laps down when his No. 33 slid up into Logano.

"I feel like there should be a driver's test before you get out in a Cup car and make sure you know how to drive before you drive one," Logano said.

Shepherd was 39th and completed 278 laps. He was never warned about not meeting the minimum speed of 115.875 mph.

SEC

Bielema were part of a behind-the-scenes offseason push for a new pre-snap 10-second rule to slow down all these fast-paced offenses. Auburn's Gus Malzahn, Mississippi's Hugh Freeze and others were outspoken critics of the rule, which didn't pass. The tempo debate led to one of the more memorable moments at the 2013 media days. When Bielema was told Malzahn initially thought concerns about no-huddle offenses leading to more defensive injuries was a joke, the Arkansas coach wasn't laughing. The subject of speed vs. safety might just come up again.

Star power: Jadeveon Clowney and Johnny Manziel were the headliners at last year's SEC media days, drawing swarms of reporters and getting shadowed by cameras. None of the 42 players coming to Hoover have been under the same spotlight.

Quarterbacks: Six quarterbacks were initially scheduled to speak at media days but Auburn replaced Nick Marshall with tight end C.J. Uzomah. The Tigers' quarterback was cited for possession of less than an ounce of marijuana during a traffic stop Friday in Reynolds, Georgia. The remaining group includes Mississippi's Bo Wallace and Mississippi State's Dak Prescott and first-year starters Dylan Thompson (South Carolina), Maty Mauk (Missouri) and Hutson Mason (Georgia). Other jobs will not be settled until camp. The most prominent spot up for grabs is at Alabama, where Florida State transfer Jacob Coker is in the mix.

Predictions: As usual, the media will vote on All-SEC teams and predicted finishes. The track record — four correct picks in 22 tries — would get most coaches fired. Nevertheless, the favorite in the Western Division figures to be either Auburn or Alabama with Georgia and South Carolina the presumed front-runners in the East.

Which diet is the right diet?

Dr. Roach

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am taking Zetia and niacin for extremely high cholesterol and triglycerides. Exactly what type of diet should I be on to lower my cholesterol and triglycerides? Many of the processed (cheese, ice cream, cookies, etc.) fat-free, cholesterol-free foods are high in sugar. Should I be on the South Beach Diet or a strictly vegetarian diet? How many calories, carbohydrates and fat grams should I consume daily to lose weight? I am a 5-feet-4-inch-tall female who weighs 160 pounds. When I was on the Atkins diet for more than 20 years, I was always slim and had no health problems. Thank you. — J.D.

ANSWER: You are asking how to lower cholesterol, but I think what you really want to know is what diet reduces risk of heart disease. The right question is: What diet should you be on that will help you be healthier in the long term? All of the diets you mention have their strengths and weaknesses. Almost everyone agrees that avoiding sugar and processed grains is a key factor in reducing heart disease risk, but, despite decades of research and controversy, there isn't agreement on the best diet for overall health.

I think it's possible to take some wisdom from all the diets you mention, and to avoid some of their potential pitfalls. Both the Atkins and South Beach plans avoid simple sugars and excess carbohydrates, and I would emphasize that red meat and saturated fats should be kept at reasonable levels. A vegetarian diet emphasizes vegetables and fruits, but some people will gain weight on this diet, especially if they aren't careful to choose good sources of protein and healthy fat, or choose refined carbohydrate sources like the cookies you mention.

I have often recommended the Mediterranean diet, since there is high-quality evidence that it reduces heart disease risk. This diet calls for lots of vegetables and fruits, lean proteins such as fish, healthy fat such as from olive oil and nuts, and whole grains.

The medications you are taking, ezetimibe (Zetia) and niacin, do lower cholesterol, but it isn't certain whether either of them really reduces risk of heart disease. The statin class of drugs is best shown to reduce heart disease risk in people of above-average risk.

DEAR DR. ROACH: Nine weeks ago, my 76-year-old dad went to Punta Cana in the Dominic Republic for a two-week vacation. On the second day there, he began having diarrhea, and it has persisted since then. He has lost 15 pounds (and was not overweight to start). He went to a GI doctor, who ordered a single stool culture for ova and parasites, giardia, shiga, campylobacter, salmonella, shigella and C diff (toxin B screen cytotoxin), which all were negative. He will occasionally vomit. He has not had a fever or abdominal pain. Many foods cause violent symptoms, something that never happened before. The GI doctor recommended probiotics, which is being followed. The GI doctor says he is stumped, and has now started him on a lactose-free diet. We need some resolution to this. What are your thoughts? What else can be done to find out what is wrong? Any help would be greatly appreciated. — B.I.

ANSWER: Normally, we would repeat the stool cultures, since ova and parasites especially can be missed on one. Most specialists recommend three cultures.

I agree with the lactose-free diet and probiotics for now. If it persists, he should probably get an upper and lower endoscopy as well.

Soda box doesn't go over easy

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: Here is this week's sound off, about the position of UPC codes:

"My Sound Off is about soft-drink companies. Why can't they put the UPC code on the same side as the opening to pick up the boxes of cans? It would be so much easier and more convenient for consumers to place the boxes in their cart without having to turn the boxes over to be scanned with the handle on the bottom." — Connie O. in Louisiana

It can be a hassle to have to turn things over just to be scanned. Until they change the positioning, try placing it on its side in the cart. Then the bottom can be seen to scan the code, and you still can reach the handle. — Heloise

Fast facts

Dear Readers: Here are other uses for empty thread spools:

- Wrap leftover bits of ribbon or trim around them.
- Decorate and make into ornaments or garlands.
- Nail on drawers with missing drawer pulls.
- Glue a wire inside the spool hole and curl the other end of it to hold a picture.
- Use to make dollhouse furniture.

Cleaning sleeping bags

Dear Heloise: My family and I go camping a lot. Our sleeping bags can get really dirty. What is the best way to wash them? — A Reader, via email

Who wants to sleep on dirty sleeping bags? The first thing you should do is look for a care label. Each sleeping bag should have one that tells you if it can be machine-washed or if it needs to be dry-cleaned.

They usually can be cleaned in the washing machine. Set the machine to a gentle cycle and fill the tub with water. Add the detergent and let it mix before putting the sleeping bag into the machine. Push the sleeping bag down to remove all the air bubbles. If your machine has an extra rinse cycle, use it to remove all of the soap. Hang to dry. You can put the sleeping bag in the dryer if you want, but add a few tennis balls or clean tennis shoes to help distribute the filling so it will not get lumpy. Have fun camping! — Heloise

Wandering grandchild must be taught to respect boundaries

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: We were visiting my daughter and her husband when their 3-year-old, "Bethany," entered our room and rummaged through our medications. The door to the guest room was closed and the medications had been placed on a desk. Of course, everyone thought she had ingested some, so they rushed her to the ER. We were fortunate that nothing was found in her system.

My son-in-law thinks we should help pay the medical bills. I have sent several hundred dollars, but he is asking for more.

Bethany is an only child, and they allow her free reign of the house. I have other grandchildren who are even younger, and none of them would dream of touching something that wasn't theirs.

It has been almost a year since the incident, and they still haven't taught her to respect and leave things alone that are not hers. My daughter is a professional and her husband works from home, which concerns me because he isn't as strict as I feel is necessary.

Are we obligated to help with more of her medical expenses? I don't think so because we have already helped, and I don't think it's our job to teach our grandchild boundaries. — OHIO GRANDMA

DEAR OHIO GRANDMA: That must have been some hefty emergency room bill! Obviously, closing the guest room door was not enough to deter your granddaughter. In hindsight, you now know that you should keep anything you don't want her to get into locked in your suitcase. But you and your husband are not mind readers.

If this wasn't a wake-up call to your daughter and son-in-law that it was time to teach their child the meaning of "No!" and "Don't touch!" then I don't know what it will take to prevent another "oops!" As to your shelling out more money than you already have for Bethany's medical bills, I think you have given enough, and you should not be blamed for what happened.

DEAR ABBY: My best friend told me several months ago that she needed to make new friends. When I gave her a surprised look, her response was, "No, you took that the wrong way." I left it at that.

She recently mentioned that she was going to invite several of our neighbors over for cocktails and a light dinner, but she did not invite me. The evening of the event, while her guests were still there, she phoned me. She said they were finished with dinner and asked if I wanted to walk over and get some leftovers. I politely declined, saying I wasn't dressed.

Abby, I'm shocked that she would ask me to come over to, basically, get a take-out plate. Your thoughts? — NO TAKEOUT FOR ME

DEAR NO TAKEOUT: I think what the woman did was insensitive, and that it's time you, too, started making some new friends. Considering how this one treated you, it certainly couldn't hurt.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You know that you're not the center of the world, and yet your own part of it is all you can contribute to. Busily serve your purposes without apology,.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). There are many paths you might take, including the path that has yet to be blazed. Insistence on only one route will bring matters to an impasse.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). If you can't seem to find a quiet place to work today, take heart. You'll find tranquility inside yourself, and then it will be reflected in your environment — not the other way around.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). There's the you inside who is mannered and formed by the habits you have carefully put in place. Then there's the you inside who you can't help but be.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You'll enjoy a good mystery, especially when it involves learning something you didn't know about someone you thought you knew quite well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Do you have the time to read? Do you have the time to play music and dance? If you can adjust your responsibilities, the world will be merrier for it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). It's as though you have to be "on" all of the time. From the moment you get up to the moment you hit the hay, there will be something important for you to do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Old information delivered in a new way can be like poetry. In fact, your novel approach to sharing is part of what makes you such desirable company these days.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). There's much to be gained by pretending. You sometimes are afraid to act out in this way because you think it's the same as lying. It's not. Pretending is imagining.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). It's been said that children are essentially criminals. Over the course of the day, you'll appreciate how children have to be taught every little thing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). The project you take on today may seem silly or frivolous at first, but in fact, it will prove over time to be a pivotal part of your destiny.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Labors of love keep you excited about life. The chance to create something that wasn't there before is your chief joy. The money involved just complicates things. For now, you'll sweat for the sheer pleasure of it.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (July 14). The next three weeks will bring many happy occurrences at once. You'll grant a loved one's wish, and your own will be granted soon after. Your all-business attitude in August will pay off. In September, you'll quickly recognize what to cut out. A financial bonus in December allows for expansion in the new year. Scorpio and Aquarius people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 40, 2, 33, 48 and 14.

WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q 1 - Both vulnerable, as South, you hold:

♠ K 10 ♡ A K 5 ◇ A Q 10 9 4 ♣ K 10 7

As dealer, what call would you make?

A - The five-card suit and the good intermediate cards make this balanced hand well worth 20 points. Bid two no trump.

Q 2 - North-South vulnerable, as South, you hold:

♠ 10 5 ♡ A K Q J 5 3 ◇ 10 ♣ 9 8 6 4

Right-hand opponent opens one diamond. What call would you make?

A - A heart pre-empt is possible, but partner will then not bid aggressively with a singleton in your suit. This hand can provide a lot of tricks, not just in hearts, but in no trump as well. Bid one heart.

Q 3 - East-West vulnerable, as South, you hold:

♠ A J 5 ♡ K 4 2 ◇ K J 5 2 ♣ J 7 6

The bidding:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
1◇	Pass	?

What call would you make? (2NT would be non-forcing.)

A - Should your partnership use "Inverted Minors," where a raise to two diamonds is forcing for at least one round, use it now. Otherwise, you should bid three no trump. A club lead will give you some anxious moments awaiting the sight of dummy. A clever two-club bid now might inhibit that lead, but that is playing poker, not bridge.

Q 4 - Neither vulnerable, as South, you hold:

♠ J 9 8 ♡ 6 2 ◇ Q 10 9 8 6 2 ♣ Q 5

The bidding:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
1♠	2♡	?

What call would you make?

A - Usually, the most important thing you can do when the auction is competitive is to support your partner. This hand is ugly, but it is worth one move. Bid two spades.

Q 5 - Neither vulnerable, as South, you hold:

♠ K Q 9 8 3 ♡ J 10 ◇ K 10 8 6 ♣ K 7

The bidding:

EAST	SOUTH	WEST	NORTH
Pass	1♠	2◇	Dbl*
Redbl	?

*Negative, values with no clear bid

What call would you make?

A - Everyone is bidding and you have your fair share of values. There is nothing you can do now to help partner. Pass and give him a chance. Nothing he does will make you too unhappy.

Q 6 - Both vulnerable, as South, you hold:

♠ 10 ♡ Q J 7 5 4 ◇ A K 7 6 4 2 ♣ 9

The bidding:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
1NT	2♠	?

What call would you make?

A - Bid three hearts. Should partner not raise hearts, he will have enough diamonds to make that strain playable. Let him play in three no trump if he wants. Your hand should provide plenty of tricks.
