PUNTA GORDA — Most students in Charlotte County return to school Aug. 18. And the bar has been raised for those who will attend the first full school year at Florida SouthWestern Collegiate High School at Florida SouthWestern State College Charlotte Campus — or FSWC — since its name change.

Students at the high school in Punta Gorda — the county's only charter school — last year improved their state test scores and final exams in five of six categories, and were well above the state and local averages in each, according to recently released data from the Florida Department of Education.

"We are so pleased to see so many of our students excel with their FCAT and EOC scores," FSWC principal Diane Juneau stated in a press release. "Here at FSWC, the teachers and staff try to offer a variety of learning options for students so that they have the opportunity to receive the best possible education to ready them for college and real-world challenges."

On the most recent FCAT tests, 88 percent of FSWC 10th-graders passed the reading portion, and 91 percent passed the writing portion. And

City's high water could have been worse By BRENDA BARBOSA

PUNTA GORDA — Heavy rains the last few days have left the city soggy and miserable, snarling traffic and flooding sections of the downtown. Yet, despite the steady downpours that have sopped the area since Sunday, many agreed it could have been worse.

"I was watching the news last night and when you see what's going on in Cape Coral and Fort Myers, this is nothing," said Punta Gorda resident Amber Jones, as she took advantage of a break in the clouds to walk her dog.

Indeed, unlike neighboring cities, Punta Gorda — a low-lying waterfront community notorious for heavy flooding — held up remarkably well.

Massive drainage improvements along Gil and Durrance streets between Retta Esplanade and Olympia Avenue in the city's downtown, as well as

Edna Peeples worked behind the scenes

By AL HEMINGWAY SUN CORRESPONDENT

PUNTA GORDA — The very first day 15-year-old Edna Jane moved to Punta Gorda in 1945, she met her future husband, Vernon Peeples Sr.

"It was her birthday," Vernon Peeples said. "We became high school sweethearts and dated for six years and we married in August 1951."

On Sunday, Edna Jane Peeples, 83, passed away after a long illness. Born in Kearney, N.J., on Nov. 2, 1930, she chose a career in nursing and graduated first in her class from the Jackson Hospital School of Nursing in 1951. She was a registered nurse and director of volunteer services at the community hospital.

Although strong and opinionated, Peeples was a private, behind-thescenes person who was a devoted wife and mother. She was very active in the Church of the Good Shepherd. She held

City of Punta Gorda rocks into August

A aturday, we will be commemorating the 10th anniversary of Hurricane Charley at Charlotte Sports Park, to thank as many of those as possible who helped our community "rise like a phoenix" to become the city it is today. Any business is invited to attend and sell its wares (for either a $100 flat fee or the purchase of 20 tickets at either the $9 or $19 price point). Certain restrictions apply, in order to not compete with the concessionaires at the ballpark. To register your business to sell goods or services, please call Tyler at 941-639-3720, and she will get you all the necessary information.

We would like as many residents of our area as possible to attend also. Both ticket levels are Box Level. The ticket only is $9; but for $19, you can include an all-youcan-eat buffet of hot dogs, chips, popcorn, cookies and sodas. These tickets can be purchased now in the online payment center at www. puntagordachamber. com, or by calling the chamber office during regular office hours. The game will conclude with a fireworks display as well.

A portion of the proceeds of each ticket sold will go to Project Illumination — a project to light up the entire city of Punta Gorda for the holidays, which, in turn, seemed to be an appropriate way of "shining a light" on Punta Gorda's progress over the last 10 years. Please be part of our celebrations and mark your calendars to come along and join the party.

City Councilwoman Carolyn Freeland will do the honors of throwing out the first pitch in the pregame festivities, in the absence of Mayor Rachel Keesling and former mayor Steve Fabian, who was mayor when Charley paid a visit. Carolyn is a little nervous about getting the ball across home plate, and needs as much encouragement as we can muster!

Also, now in preparation, the annual Pops at Sunset concert is confirmed for Oct. 11 at Florida SouthWestern State College Charlotte Campus in Punta Gorda, with the park opening at 5.30 p.m. We are thrilled to be bringing a group from New York, who both look and sound like ABBA.

Do you remember "Dancing Queen," "The Winner Tales It All," "Money, Money, Money" and "Mamma Mia"? They'll be performing all those favorites that night. Regular tickets are $25 per person, and can be purchased either by calling our office or visiting the online payment center at www. puntagordachamber. com. Bring your own chair and picnic and enjoy a crazy night of musical fun under the stars, with a portion of the proceeds benefiting the college foundation. As in all previous years, there are tables up front for sponsorship, and we have no doubt that there'll be some crazy costumes on display that night! If you wish to purchase a table and/or be a sponsor, now is the time to get on board, so we can maximize your dollars in the run up to the show.

Just in case you missed our recent announcement, there are only a few VIP tickets remaining for next year's 10th Annual Wine and Jazz Festival. The lineup is Dave Koz, Nick Colionne and Mindi Abair. Tickets are on sale for all categories now, and many of the VIP tickets already have been snapped up, so don't delay. Either visit the online payment center at www. puntagordachamber.com and purchase securely from there, or call the office during regular office hours at 941-639-3720. Full details of what is included in each ticket price also can be found on the site. Our only "disclaimers" are, sadly, no pets, and definitely no coolers.

Very shortly, the Punta Gorda chamber will be honored by the Arts & Humanities Council of Charlotte County for the Wine and Jazz Festival. We are truly honored to receive this accolade in recognition of the chamber's significant contribution to the promotion of performing arts in our area, and we'll treasure this award for years to come.

Join us in congratulating the 15 finalists, all vying to receive the Donna Heidenreich Business of the Year award for 2014, to be presented at our Sept. 13 awards gala. In alphabetical order, they are: Calusa Bank, the Charlotte County Homeless Coalition, the Charlotte Players, the Charlotte Sun, Copperfish Books, Dean's South of the Border, the Farr Law Firm, Fishermen's Village Realty, Florida SouthWestern State College, Four Points by Sheraton Punta Gorda Harborside, Friends of the Punta Gorda Library, Golisano Pediatric Clinic, Marketing Arm International, Salon Blue and Sunny Days Ice Cream. Congratulations to you all.

Case of the missing mangoes

By ADAM KREGER STAFF WRITER

PUNTA GORDA — On a vacant downtown lot at the corner of Cross Street and Virginia Avenue sits a massive mango tree — at least 25 feet high, with a massive trunk and vibrant green leaves.

But its mighty branches currently hold few mangoes.

The lot is owned by Charlotte County Commissioner Chris Constance, and he believes someone swiped hundreds of the juicy stone fruits from his tree last month. The Punta Gorda Police Department is investigating.

"This is not a common complaint around town," said Punta Gorda Police Chief Albert "Butch" Arenal.

Constance did not return calls Tuesday.

The commissioner contacted police in mid-July, and he told investigators he believed his tree held "300 to 400 full-sized mangoes ready for harvest," according to the PGPD report. Constance further stated the fruits typically sell for $3 to $5 each. Another mango tree nearby may have also been stripped of its fruit, authorities said.

The investigation was still open Tuesday, and the report shows there would be an extra patrol near the trees.

"There will be no officers added," Arenal said. "We will just keep an eye on it since we have received a complaint."

However, those close to the situation think there may not have been a theft to complain about.

Lamar Higdon is a supervisor with Beautiful Boundaries Lawn & Landscaping. He oversees the program that mows about 2,500 vacant lots around Punta Gorda. He's familiar with the Constance property.

"I've had that lot for six years," Higdon said. "And I just don't think there was fruit on that tree for anyone to steal." Higdon is from Rotonda, and he owns a similar mango tree.

"I have one the same size — about 25 feet tall and 20 feet wide, with big, beautiful green leaves," he said. "Last year, we got 200 mangoes from it. This year, we got three. You'd think someone stole from it, too."

Higdon said this season appears to have been a fluke.

"Around town, I've seen a lot of trees that just didn't produce," he said.

The PGPD lists Higdon as one of the sources questioned by

EAST OF PUNTA GORDA — A 17-yearold was so upset his girlfriend wouldn't have sex with him, he choked her to the point that she blacked out, and then threatened to kill her with a knife, according to a Charlotte County Sheriff's report.

Casey Reynolds was with his girlfriend — who is the same age — Sunday night at his home, on the 5500 block of Wilson Drive, east of Punta Gorda. When Reynolds' girlfriend refused his desire to have sex with her, he put his hands around her neck and she lost consciousness, the report shows. Reynolds then allegedly dragged her across the carpet

He then followed her to the friend's house, where he pulled out a knife and threatened to kill her and anyone in the house, authorities said. Reynolds then left.

The victim reported the crime to the CCSO the next day. When deputies went to Reynolds' home to arrest him later, they found a small bottle of peach liqueur

Edna Jane Peeples

Edna Jane Peeples, wife of Vernon Peeples, Sr., passed away on Sunday, August 3, 2014. She was the daughter of Edna Carolyn Kennell and

Frederick Buchholtz. Born in Kearney, New Jersey on November 2, 1930, she lived in Caldwell and Lyndhurst, New Jersey. She moved to Punta Gorda in 1945 at age fifteen. Shortly thereafter she met Vernon Peeples, and they soon became high school sweethearts. They were married in August of 1951. They were to become the parents of three children, Carolyn, Jane and Vernon, Jr., and the grandparents of nine grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren.

Edna Jane graduated from Jackson Hospital School of Nursing in 1951. She worked for some time as a Registered Nurse and later served for many years as the Director of Volunteer Services at the community hospital in Punta Gorda. In addition to motherhood and nursing, she was devoted to service to her community and her church. Among her many contributions to the community, she was responsible for initiating the organization of the Girl Scout program in Charlotte County in 1958 and recently served on the Wotitzky Scholarship Committee of the Charlotte Community Foundation. She served in several capacities at the Church of the Good Shepherd including vestry member, Senior Warden, the President of the Episcopal Church Women of the Diocese of Southwest Florida, Delegate to several general conventions of the Episcopal Church, and forty years as the Director of Christian Education. She was widely admired for her ability to be a leader and efficient organizer while maintaining her soft spoken, unassuming manner.

Edna Jane provided invaluable support and encouragement throughout her husband Vernon's fourteen year tenure in the Florida House of Representatives. He particularly remembers fondly an occasion when an illness during his first campaign for office rendered him unable to keep a speaking engagement. Edna Jane stepped in to speak for him and did so with considerable poise and charm.

Edna Jane's passing is a great loss to her family and her many friends in her church and community. A memorial service will be held at the Church of the Good Shepherd on Thursday, August 7th at 10 a.m.

The family requests that in lieu of flowers, donations be made to the Punta Gorda Historical Center which is the future home of the Vernon and Edna Jane Peeples History Collection.

a lot of beer. The bottles also go through an X-ray machine, which can tell if the caps are properly applied and if the appropriate amount of liquid is in each bottle. And, beer freezes at 28 degrees.

Mary and Booth streets near Bayfront Hospital, appear to be working.

Since mid-February, crews from Quality Enterprise USA — the Naples-based contractor hired to do the drainage improvements - have been busy digging up and pulling out old drainage pipes in sections of the Historic District and Harborwalk East and replacing them with larger ones.

The $1.4 million downtown flood-mitigation project, which is funded in large part by a grant from the Federal Emergency Management Agency, is a two-part project meant to stem flooding in older,

To be sure, there were areas that fared better than others but, said City Engineer Mark Gering, that had more to do with bad luck and timing than faulty infrastructure.

(Durrance Street) had more water than it should have had on Sunday and that's because of the sandbags down in the pipes," Gering said. "(The contractor) has to pour a little more concrete in the bottom of those catch basins before the sandbags can come out. Then, everything will be 100 percent operational."

"They were scheduled to do that Monday but unfortunately we got the rain Sunday and it's been raining every day since," Gering added.

Much of the accumulated water hung around a stretch of West Marion Avenue between McGregor and Durrance streets, where two lanes of traffic were condensed into one, and a section of Taylor Street between Virgina Street and West Charlotte Avenue.

Cars slowed to a crawl as they neared rising pools of water, which dissipated as quickly as they appeared.

Though flooding seemed to be less of an issue this time around, Gering said a major storm event would really put the new system to the test.

"Everything in Punta Gorda is tide-dependent," Gering said. "If we have a real high tide when we get a rain, it's much slower to go out. Low tide it's much faster to go out. The rains we've had the last couple of days have been at low tide so I wouldn't say we put it to the test yet. But I am confident that when we are put to the test, we'll see that it works."

85 percent of ninth-graders passed the reading portion. Less than 65 percent of students passed at the state and local levels for each of those three categories.

Moreover, the FSWC students at various grade levels took end-of-course exams in three categories: algebra, biology and history. The passing rate for those exams was 89, 91 and 94 percents, respectively. The state and local passing rate for each was less than 70 percent.

"These are kids who want to be here," FSWC vice principal Matt Catanzarite said. "The students come in with a certain level of seriousness about what they're doing. I think that makes the atmosphere very comfortable for everybody.'

FSWC — formerly known as Edison Collegiate High School opened its doors in 2009. The school affords students the opportunity to graduate from high school with their Associate of Arts degree, if they choose to take on a more rigorous workload.

One hundred new students are accepted into the freshman class each year. If more than 100 applications are received (which there always has been), a lottery is held to determine who gets in.

"It's truly random," Catanzarite said.

The students who get in aren't just lucky — they're smart; a higher percentage of FSWC students passed each of the three most recent end-of-course exams than a year ago.

"You can always improve," Catanzarite said. "But the bar has been set pretty high. The kids coming in know what's expected of them."

Last year's students improved in two out of the three FCAT categories. The only category to see a drop was 10th-grade reading, which slipped from 93 percent passing to 88 still more than 30 percentage points higher than the state and local passing rates.

"It's a testament to their hard work and a fantastic staff," said

Bonwill cooks up food, fun, fame

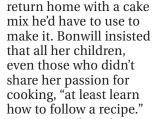

By JOEL S. LANGHAM SUN INTERN

ENGLEWOOD -Linda Bonwill's cooking skills weren't acquired in a gourmet chef school.

Growing up in Connecticut in an Italian family, a love of the craft as a communal activity was instilled in her from a young age. She has memories of her grandmother rolling out pasta noodles and making cakes from scratch for sick family members. Sometimes ingredients were scarce, and the family had to make do with "extras" left over from other meals. Frugality and improvisation were essential to family meals. Her husband — also from an Italian family has similar experiences. Now the Englewood couple own two businesses, including Bonwill's candy business, and she also gives lessons to local kids.

Those early childhood experiences with cooking in the home followed Bonwill as she raised four children of her own. She read labels on grocery items and tried to stick to wholesome homemade dishes when possible. In the fall, she bought pumpkins with her kids and they made pies together. In her words, she was always "teaching them the value of good food."

She jokes that her son Michael once asked her to buy a cake for him at the store, only for her to Learning the value of self-sufficiency and how to thrive as an adult continues with her grandchildren, who get an opportunity to switch off social media and engage in memory-making. When Bonwill entered a competition through the online recipe club, Just A Pinch, her primary motive was fun. But she won grand prizes, and she credits the money she earned from that competition with providing the funding necessary to compete in the 2012 World Food Championships.

Her mindset upon entering the Championships was "to soak it all in, observe and come back with some knowledge," to continue to learn the craft with passion.

Her initial entry for her category — a potato salad that includes bacon, avocado, blue cheese and tomatoes — won her the highest score among the top 10 side dishes. Her broccoli cheese soup, which included a roasted cauliflower garnish and a sweet chili sauce topping, won the final round, and Bonwill believes that it was her innovative use of the required food sponsor product, Philadelphia Cream Cheese, and a related sponsor product, Kraft Velveeta Cheese, that impressed the judges. She was awarded $10,000. Bonwill has already qualified to re-enter the Championships held this fall, but she is still looking for sponsors.

Even as she continues to participate in worldwide culinary competitions, Bonwill prioritizes giving back to Englewood, which she describes as a "tight-knit" community. In addition to her work with the Big Brothers Big Sisters Foundation, she shares her talent with local kids through cooking lessons, including candy making. But even in these lessons, as in her own personal experiences, cooking can express life values.

I try to make it educational," she says. "I say, look kids, the table's a mess! What would happen if I put these clean boxes down?"

Bonwill makes sure to keep the kids involved and to engage their minds with skills for good living.

Her culinary advice is to keep it simple, using only a "handful of ingredients" that will stand out when tasted.

"I consider the basic homeowner," she says. And while Bonwill agrees that creativity certainly counts in a competition, she doesn't think judges expect or want anything fancy or complicated. Taking a cue from her humble beginnings in the craft at her grandmother's table, Bonwill believes that she won in 2012 because "I kept it real. I kept it me."

VIEWPOINT

Our View Lee Swift for School Board

In the Aug. 26 primary election for the District 1 seat on the Charlotte County School Board, incumbent Lee Swift faces challenger Anthony Verdin. School board seats are nonpartisan and the election is open to all registered voters.

An Army veteran who moved to Charlotte County last year, Verdin is making his first run for public office, which is evident in his handling of the campaign. The Sun's editorial board was unable to schedule a meeting with the candidate and he has failed to return a questionaire sent to all candidates. Verdin has attended some candidate forums, telling attendees he is running to bring attention to the quality of special needs education in the district. His Facebook page contains a blunt clue about his position on the Common Core State Standards, with one graphic reading Common Sense Not Common Core. But Florida is no longer part of Common Core and has hired a Utah company to devise tests for a new Florida State Standards, so the slogan is both trite and moot.

Swift was first elected to the school board in 1994. The retired Realtor has served a chairman of the school board and president of the Florida School Boards Association. Swift is one of only six school board members in the state to have received the association's Advanced Boarsmandship Certification. This year he was elected vice chairman of the Florida High School Athletic Association Representative Assembly.

Swift has been a fierce opponent of serial reform. He said high stakes testing, such as the failed Florida Comprehensive Assessment Test, are design "to ensure the maximum number of schools are failing." He said proponents of taxpayer-funded charter schools and state-subsidized private schools use the flawed results to make the case

Porous borders bring disease too

Editor:

We face a new moral dilemma that will have the potential to put our children and grandchildren in extreme danger.

On one hand we are accepting into our country children and young adults who have no medical records, no proof of immunization and who undergo medical screening only after they are within our borders. On the other hand, we have two medical aid workers known to be infected with Ebola, for which there democratically elected by the Palestinian people (who were tired of the corrupt Fatah), in an internationally monitored election. The U.S. and Israel did not like the outcome and promptly attempted to unseat them. Hamas was given neither the opportunity to govern, nor, more importantly, the opportunity to fail.

Who is a "terrorist?" Menachem Begin and Shimon Peres were leaders of the Irgun and Stern gangs — considered Jewish "terrorist" organizations by the British — but they morphed into statesmen for their country. Gerry Adams of the Irish Republican Army was Britain's Public Enemy Number One, but no longer.

Jomo Kenyatta, of the Mau Mau, was feared as a "terrorist" by the British, but after independence became Kenya's leader.

The South African government's greatest "terrorist" was, of course, Nelson Mandela. Just saying it doesn't necessarily make it so.

try and get an explanation for this increase. The only explanation we received was that our cable server has no specific reason, they increased our fee "because they can!" We were also told that next year we are scheduled to received another increase for the same services we now receive, and this time it will be $30! The reason given? "Because they can!"

Basically, we were told by our cable server representative that we should be happy with such a small fee increase this year, because the cost of their service will continue to increase every year! Our cable server has a total monopoly of cable services in this area and, since they have or soon will acquire another major cable provider, the situation in Englewood definitely does not look good.

We really need some competition for these services in the Englewood area. We receive messages from another company to switch to their service, but when we tell them we are in ZIP code area 34224, they tell us they haven't gotten around to installing the necessary fiber optic cables in our area, and they don't know when they will. We definitely need help in our area!

Muslim threat to world is real

Joan Fischer Editor:

Port Charlotte

In 732 AD a Muslim army attacking Paris was defeated at Tours, France. In 1571 AD the Muslim Army/Navy was defeated at Lapanto by the Italians and Austrians as it was crossing the Mediterranean to attack Southern Europe. In 1683 AD a Turkish Muslim Army was defeated attacking Eastern Europe at Vienna by the Germans and Polish armies.

This has been going on for centuries and the politicians don't know their ancient world history. If these battles had not been won we might all be speaking Arabic and Christianity would be nonexistent, Judaism would certainly be. It would have been Islam or death, which is by the way the goal often stated by today's radical extreme Muslims. Let's lorget Hitler admired Islam, the Mufti of Jerusalem was an admirer of the Nazis, there were Bosnian Muslim SS divisions that killed Jews, Russians, Gypsies and a million others for Hitler. Recently Bosnian Muslims killed thousands of Christians in Serbia. Growth of Islam in France, Holland and elsewhere in Europe, Christians under attack in Iraq, Afghanistan and other Muslim countries by Hamas, ISIA, al-Qaida, Boko Haram etc. is a clear warning. Recently a Christian Church in Iraq that predated Islam was destroyed. When will the Western Nations wake up and realize radical extreme Islam is at war with Western World and unite against this massive threat?

We have been outspoken in our criticism of recent drops in student test scores and the district's falling grade from the state board of education. For example, the percentage of ninth-graders passing the FCAT 2.0 dropped from 60 percent in 2011 to 55 percent in 2014. There was a 5 percentage point drop in the pass rates for 3rd- to 5th-graders taking the reading FCAT 2.0 test in 2014. The district, once rated an A, has received a C grade the past two years and its ranking for math test scores dropped from 9th in the state in 2006 to 39th in 2013.

Swift was on the board when the district enjoyed better academic days, including a twoyear run in 2009 and and 2010 when the district ranked first in the percentage of students passing Advance Placement tests. The district enjoyed an A grade for eight straight years from 2004 to 2011. Nobody, even Swift, believes any one person can claim credit for the past success or blame for the current setbacks. But as an elected official accountable to voters, Swift knows something has to change.

School performance has impacts far beyond the success of individual students. Employers count on quality schools to attract talented employees, who always ask about the county's schools. Businesses look at schools when making decisions about relocating and/or expaning operations. We simple can't ignore the recent trend.

We think Swift gets it. We know he doesn't accept the grade slippage. We trust he will part a big part of the solution.

The Sun recommends Lee Swift for the District 1 seat on the Charlotte County School Board. is no known cure, seeking to come home to the United States.

What will we do? I'm glad I don't have to make that call.

We do need to have the conversation. There is too much riding on how we handle the danger of deadly and highly contagious diseases and on our policy of screening people. We owe it to our children to do our best to protect them.

The reality is porous borders make it easier for diseases to sneak through. Arnold Avery

Today's 'terrorist,' tomorrow's statesman?

Editor:

It is sickening to watch the never-ending justification for the slaughter in Gaza, as the "blame the victim" game plays out on TV.

The question posed repeatedly is, "What would America do if Canada or Mexico lobbed hundreds of rockets at her major cities?" Not a single interviewer from our corporate media is able to respond with the obvious, "but we are not occupying Canada or Mexico, are we?"

Every one of our craven politicians knows that to even mildly criticize Israel would be instant political suicide.

Charlotte County recovered from storm

Editor:

Aug. 13, 2004, had meteorologists tracking hurricane Charley as it raced north to Tampa. They warned winds would skirt the Charlotte County coast but nature has a mind of its own.

The hot summer and warm waters of Charlotte Harbor were a natural attraction for a hurricane. The winds escalated and a category four storm with winds at 145 mph and gusts up to 175 mph turned directly into Charlotte Harbor.

The full force of the storm pounded Charlotte Harbor, Port Charlotte, Punta Gorda and Deep Creek, leaving widespread destruction in its wake before heading to DeSoto County and Orlando. The wind ripped off roofs, tossing them through windows and pool cages while fiercely uprooting trees, downing electric lines and trashing boats. Some homes were totally destroyed, while schools and hospitals experienced severe damage.

Port Charlotte had suffered a direct hit. FEMA and the Red Cross were quickly activated. They provided meals, water, generators and those famous blue roof tarps. Our homes wore blue for a long time.

Residents were quick to help neighbors clean up the mess and build a better community. For understandable reasons, the monthly passes were in fact a 30-day pass.

I do not believe any reasonable person would understand why, on Aug. 1, the contract prohibits the sale of a 30-day pass.

While it is understandable that the bureaucrats wanted to avoid providing any refunds. I cannot understand why 30-day passes were stopped on July 31, when on Aug. 1 there were still 31 days left to swim.

It is unconscionable that the bureaucrats did not even have the respect for the community and the paying public to place a sign in the lobby stating that no passes would be sold after July 31.

Gasparilla Road project in construction phase

he County Road 771 (Gasparilla Road) widening project is now in the construction phase. The purpose of this project is to widen Gasparilla Road to a four-lane divided roadway, from State Road 776 to the vicinity of Rotonda Boulevard East. The project includes the installation of sidewalks and bicycle facilities. This project is funded by the 2009 local option sales tax, road impact fees, gasoline tax and a state grant. This month, the contractor will mobilize equipment to the project site and begin clearing and installing silt fencing. Work will begin on the south side of the project, near Rotonda Boulevard East up to the bridge at the Butterford Waterway, with the installation of a new utility system.

If approved by voters, the extension will run from Jan. 1, 2015, through Dec. 31, 2020, and is projected to generate $18 million in annual revenue or approximately $108 million over the life of the extension period.

More than 20 projects have been approved by the Board of County Commissioners to receive funding from the 1 percent local option sales tax. These projects include improved security features in schools,

Florida Power & Light electric system improvements

PL works yearround to provide customers with safe and dependable electric service. Their commitment has resulted in a number of storm readiness and reliability projects within Charlotte County this year: inspection of approximately 7,200 utility poles for strength, clearing tree limbs and vegetation from 795 miles of power lines, and examining 10 main power lines with cutting-edge infrared technology. In addition, they are upgrading five main power lines in the county, including those serving important community facilities such as water treatment plants, grocery stores and key thoroughfares to help the community recover more quickly following storm outages. Through 2013, FPL had invested more than $1.4 billion to upgrade the electric system against severe weather

Cattails rile local resident

By GARY ROBERTS STAFF WRITER

CHARLOTTE COUNTY — Frustration over the slow pace of the Sunshine Lake/Sunrise Waterway cleanup is not limited to Charlotte County officials. Citizens like Scott Andrichak also have reached their boiling point with the water debacle.

A vocal critic of the county on numerous issues, Andrichak most recently latched onto the climbing cost of the cleanup as yet another example of government waste. The total cost of clearing the waterway of algae now exceeds $4 million, with multiple problems delaying completion of the project and adding to the price tag.

Work now is halted on the project to allow for little blue heron eggs to hatch from a nest in the area, costing the county $5,270 per day as the contracting firm sits idle. The bird nest, the second to be discovered, is expected to be removed within two to three weeks.

But Andrichak's issue is with cattails that are supposed to be extracted from the waterway, along with the algae. Andrichak said the county in January made full payment on an $88,000 cattail-removal contract with ProLime Corp., declaring the work 100 percent completed. But the cattails remain.

"This is a serious fraud against the taxpayers," Andrichak told commissioners at the July 22 commission meeting.

Andrichak also provided copies of the same invoices and county financial documents to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement and the Charlotte County Sheriff's Office, asking for a criminal investigation.

But Ray Sandrock, county administrator, explained last week that the waterway is being cleaned up in phases, clearing out the algae, cattails and other vegetation one section at a time. It would do no good to get rid of all the cattails prematurely, he said, because they would just grow back before the entire cleanup is completed.

He said 78 percent of the cattails were taken out by January. The removal of the rest of the cattails was addressed when the county amended the ProLime contract again, agreeing to pay an additional $1.1 million. This money not only covers the eradication of all cattails on the waterway, but also all of the algae, including reimbursing the contractor for algae removed in the past.

"ProLime already exceeded the amount of algae in the contract," Sandrock said.

He also responded to Andrichak's charge that the presence of the cattails is responsible for inviting the birds to nest in the area. Sandrock dismissed this allegation, saying the bird nests are located in the trees high overhead, and not among the cattails.

Cattails and algae still clog the Sunshine Lake/Sunrise Waterway, as county officials hope to have the cleanup completed by the fall.

Regardless, Andrichak is demanding the county be held accountable for what he deems are its missteps.

The removal of the blue-green algae that is choking Sunshine Lake/Sunrise Waterway was supposed to cost $2.5 million. But a series of contract changes to remove unexpected obstacles in the waterway — more algae than anticipated, large debris, cattails and bird nests — continually push up costs.

Commissioner Chris Constance on July 22 voted against the latest change order in the contract to protect the bird nests, protesting environmental regulations the county must comply with, but did not create.

"This is the worst kind of unfunded mandate from the federal government," Constance said. "If they want to preserve the life of these creatures, they should pay the bill."

County engineer Joanne Vernon explained that it would cost significantly more to refuse to pay ProLime, which was the only contractor to bid on the project.

"If we were not to pay this change order, then ProLime would walk, and then we would have to hire a new contractor to come out and finish the project," Vernon said.

"We're kind of boxed in. Unfortunately, I don't see another option either," Commission Chairman Ken Doherty said. "We've got to complete the project. It's absolutely essential." Email: groberts@sun-herald.com

Renovations would boost summer, after-school capacity

By BRENDA BARBOSA Staff Writer

PUNTA GORDA — On a rainy afternoon in a room bustling with the excited chatter of kids, Grant Martin stands hunched over a box of LEGO-like building blocks, perfecting their latest creation.

Their job is to create a BattleBots car that will outperform all the other BattleBots being built by a dozen other screaming kids in the room.

After a few minutes of tinkering, Martin leans in and, with a frustrated sigh, adjusts the front tires.

But without a source of funding, the addition of a multipurpose room, as well as many other needed renovations to the county's recreation facilities, cannot be done.

That's why county officials are intent on educating voters on the importance of extending the local option infrastructure sales tax, also known as the "penny out-of-county shoppers.

If approved, officials have pledged roughly $3.5 million to renovate and expand recreation centers throughout the county, including the Harold Avenue Recreation Center, the Tringali Recreation Center, and the recreation center at South County Regional Park.

At South County, the plan is to build an additional 1,500-square-foot multipurpose meeting room that can accommodate more kids for the after-school, holiday and summer programs.

"We can only handle so much," Scott said. "Right

"There," he said. "That should do it."

The tweak was enough to push his team into the final rounds of the BattleBots championships.

The tax is an additional 1 percent sales tax Charlotte County levies to raise revenue for construction, reconstruction and improvements of public facilities. Voters approved an extension of the tax in 2008, which ends Dec. 31, unless extended by voter referendum for an additional six years. The question will be presented to voters in November's election.

Gunman in Afghan uniform also wounds 15 in attack

By ROBERT BURNS, RAHIM FAIEZ and LOLITA C. BALDOR Associated Press Writers

KABUL, Afghanistan – An American major general was shot to death Tuesday in one of the bloodiest insider attacks of the long Afghanistan war when a gunman dressed as an Afghan soldier turned on allied troops, wounding about 15 including a German general and two Afghan generals.

The American officer was Maj. Gen. Harold Greene, a U.S. official said. An engineer by training, Greene was on his first deployment to a war zone and was involved in preparing Afghan forces for the time when U.S.coalition troops leave at the end of this year. Greene was the highest-ranked American officer killed in combat in the nation's post-9/11 wars in Iraq and Afghanistan and the highest-ranked officer killed in combat since 1970 in the Vietnam War.

Five major generals were killed in Vietnam, the last was Maj. Gen. John Albert Dillard, whose helicopter was shot down.

X X 7] Vhy is property insurance so high?

By ROBIN SUSSINGHAM

WGCU PUBLIC MEDIA WRITER

Here's an impressive stat: six of the 10 most costly hurricanes in U.S. history hit Florida during 2004 and 2005. Insurance companies took a big hit financially and, as you'd expect, our property insurance coverage got more expensive. But the state saw its last hurricane nine years ago. So why are we still paying such high rates?

Florida's Insurance Consumer advocate Steve Burgess says nine years isn't a long time for insurance analysts, who may be looking at risk over a hundred year period. Also, insurance companies absorbed billions of dollars in damages over 2004 and 2005, and they couldn't pass all those costs onto their policyholders immediately. The cost had to be recouped over time, and that's what's still happening, says Burgess. The insurance companies are replenishing their financial reserves and getting ready for the next big storm.

State-owned Citizens Property Insurance Corporation, the state's largest insurer, has built up those reserves, Burgess says, and in fact is going to decrease its rates for next year. Most insurance companies, however, are not decreasing their rates. And a big reason YORBA LINDA, Calif. — Almost a decade after Richard Nixon resigned, the disgraced former president sat down with his one-time aide and told the tale of his fall from grace in his own words.

For three decades, that version of one of the nation's largest and most-dissected political scandals largely gathered dust — until this week.

Starting Tuesday, to commemorate the 40th anniversary of Nixon's resignation, portions of the tapes will be published each day by the Nixon Presidential Library & Museum and the private Richard Nixon Foundation. The postings begin with Nixon recalling the day he decided to resign and end Saturday — the date of his last day in office — with the 37th president discussing his final day at the White House, when he signed the resignation agreement, gave a short speech and boarded a helicopter for San Clemente, Calif.

Israel, Hamas to negotiate new Gaza deal

By KARIN LAUB and MAGGIE MICHAEL

Associated Press Writers

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip — The outlines of a solution for battered, blockaded Gaza are emerging after Tuesday's tentative Israel-Hamas cease-fire: Norway is organizing a donor conference and Western-backed Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas aims to oversee rebuilding and reassert his authority in the territory, lost to Hamas in 2007.

Forces loyal to Abbas would be deployed at Gaza's crossings to encourage Israel and Egypt to lift the closure they imposed after the Hamas takeover.

Indirect Israel-Hamas talks in Cairo are to tackle the details. The hope is that promises of a better life for Gazans will coax compromise and avert what had been looking like a fight to the finish.

The gaps remain wide, especially between Israel and Hamas.

Israel says it has inflicted a painful blow to Hamas' military capabilities in the monthlong fighting and wants to make sure the group cannot re-arm if border restrictions are eased.

"The extent to which we are going to be ready to cooperate with the efforts to have better access and movement in Gaza will deeply depend on the kind of arrangements that would secure our peace and security," said Yossi

Gay marriage arguments flooding federal courts

CINCINNATI (AP) — Federal appeals courts covering nearly half the United States will soon hear arguments on whether gay and lesbian couples have a right to marry, part of a slew of cases putting pressure on the U.S. Supreme Court to issue a final verdict.

If the appeals courts continue the unbroken eight-month streak of rulings in favor of gay marriage, that could make it easier for the nation's highest court to come down on the side of supporters.

If even one ruling goes against them in the four courts taking up the issue in the coming weeks, it would create a divide that the Supreme Court also could find difficult to resist settling.

"We're going to be racking up more courts of appeals decisions, and every one we get puts more pressure on the Supreme Court to weigh in," said Douglas NeJaime, a law professor at the University of California-Irvine. "It's very likely the Supreme Court ultimately settles this question. Given how quickly things have moved, it's hard for the court to avoid this in the short term."

A three-judge panel of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati will hear arguments from attorneys in six cases from Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio and Tennessee, all Wednesday, the most of any federal appeals court so far.

Similar arguments are set for Aug. 26 in the 7th Circuit in Chicago, for bans in Wisconsin and Indiana, and for Sept. 8 in the 9th Circuit in San Francisco, for bans in Idaho and Nevada. The 5th Circuit in New Orleans is expected to soon set a date to hear arguments on Texas' ban.

The flurry of arguments means an upcoming spate of rulings, possibly all issued this autumn, that could profoundly alter the nation's marriage laws. If the four federal circuit appeals courts rule in favor of gay marriage, then nine states with pending appeals stand to have their bans stricken down altogether or ordered to recognize out-of-state gay marriages: Ohio, Michigan, Tennessee, Kentucky, Texas, Indiana, Wisconsin, Idaho and Nevada, though the decisions likely would be put on hold for a Supreme Court ruling.

Five additional states under those four circuit courts have gay marriage lawsuits awaiting decisions by federal judges: Alaska, Arizona, Louisiana, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Montana.

Observers say the 6th or 5th circuits could deliver the first victory for gay marriage opponents. The three judges at the 6th Circuit set to hear gay marriage arguments Wednesday are Jeffrey S. Sutton and Judge Deborah L. Cook, both George W. Bush nominees, and Martha Craig Daughtrey, a Clinton nominee.

S&P: Wealth gap is slowing US economic growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Economists have long argued that a rising wealth gap has complicated the U.S. rebound from the Great Recession.

Now, an analysis by the rating agency Standard & Poor's lends its weight to the argument: The widening gap between the wealthiest Americans and everyone else has made the economy more prone to boom-bust cycles and slowed the 5-year-old recovery from the recession.

Economic disparities appear to be reaching extremes that "need to be watched because they're damaging to growth," said Beth Ann Bovino, chief U.S. economist at S&P. The rising concentration of income among the top 1 percent of earners has contributed to S&P's cutting its growth estimates for the economy. In part because of the disparity, it estimates that the economy will grow at a 2.5 percent annual pace in the next decade, down from a forecast five years ago of a 2.8 percent rate. The S&P report advises

Subaru recalls 5 models for air bag problem

DETROIT (AP) — Subaru is recalling an undetermined number of vehicles because of air bag problems that have affected much of the global auto industry.

The recall covers the 2003-2005 Baja, Legacy and Outback and the 2004-2005 Impreza, as well as the 2005 Saab 9-2X made by Subaru.

It only affects vehicles in Florida, Puerto Rico, Hawaii and the U.S. Virgin Islands with air bag inflators made by Takata Corp.

The front passenger inflators can rupture, causing metal fragments to fly out when the air bags are deployed. That can injure passengers.

Faulty air bags have been blamed for recalls of millions of cars in recent years.

Apple expected to announce iPhone 6 Sept. 9

(LA Times) — There's finally a date for the iPhone 6 announcement: Sept. 9.

According to influential tech blog Re/Code, Apple will formally unveil its latest smartphone next month.

The device is expected to feature a 4.7-inch screen, larger than any iPhone before it. Apple has also been said to be working on a 5.5-inch version of the iPhone 6, but recent reports have said Apple may not announce that version until later this year or possibly in early 2015. By releasing a larger-screen iPhone, Apple hopes it can better compete against the likes of Samsung and HTC, whose devices feature screens larger than the 4-inch iPhone 5s. The iPhone 6 is also expected to be thinner than its predecessors and feature an all-new, very metallic design.

against using the tax code to try to narrow the gap. Instead, it suggests that greater access to education would help ease wealth disparities.

Part of the problem is that educational achievement has stalled in recent decades. More schooling usually translates into higher wages. S&P estimates that the U.S. economy would grow annually by an additional half a percentage point —or $105 billion — over the next five years, if the average the American worker had completed just one more year of school.

By contrast, S&P concludes, heavy taxes that would be meant to reduce inequality could remove incentives for people to work and cause businesses to hire fewer employees because of the costs involved.

The report builds on data from the Congressional Budget Office, the International Monetary Fund and top 1 percent of earners had an average income of $1.3 million in 2012, the most recent year for which data are available. Average income jumps to $30.8 million for the top 0.01 percent.

Adjusted for inflation, the top 0.01 percent's average earnings have jumped by a factor of seven since 1913. For the bottom 90 percent of Americans, average incomes after inflation have grown by a factor of just three since 1917 and have declined for the past 13 years.

Yale researchers reverse Alzheimer's in mice

(Hearst Connecticut Newspapers) — Researchers from Yale School of Medicine have discovered a new drug compound that has reversed the effects of Alzheimer's disease in mice.

The researchers found a compound that inhibited the effects of a protein that is key to regulating memory and learning. The research has led to cautious optimism among Alzheimer's research advocates.

"Further studies have now begun to see if the compound leads to cognitive improvement in other species," including monkeys, said Dr. Paul Lombroso, lead author and professor in the Yale Child Study Center and the neurobiology and psychiatry departments at Yale.

Lombroso cautioned that it is too soon to know if the treatment would be effective in humans. "I would be hard-pressed to say that this is the drug (that will be used to treat Alzheimer's), but we're much closer," Lombroso said.

Lombroso and the other researchers have found the compound, TC-2153, alters the effects of a protein called striatal-enriched tyrosine phosphatase, also known as STEP.

If the body's STEP levels get too high, it can prevent synaptic strengthening in the brain — a process that's required to turn short-term memories into long-term memories. When STEP is elevated, it can impair cognitive function. High levels of the protein are associated not just with Alzheimer's, but a number of other disorders, including schizophrenia, Parkinson's disease, and the developmental disorder fragile X syndrome.

Lombroso said the role of STEP in Alzheimer's has been known for years, and there's long been interest in finding something that keeps the enzyme from affecting brain function. He and his co-authors studied thousands of small molecules, looking for one that would inhibit STEP. They found that treating mice with a single dose of TC-2153 improved their cognitive function.

Basically, the medication "binds very tightly to the STEP molecules and keeps (the protein) from doing its job," Lombroso said.

According to the state chapter of the Alzheimer's Association, there are more than 5 million Americans living with Alzheimer's, including 72,000 in Connecticut. The findings -- published in the Aug. 5

issue of the journal PLoS Biology — are encouraging said Christy Kovel, senior director of communications for the Connecticut chapter of the Alzheimer's Association.

"It is an exciting and busy time in Alzheimer's disease research, with hundreds of potential therapies being tested at various stages of the research process, and many more being developed," Kovel said in a statement. "We need to create more treatment targets for Alzheimer's disease and the only way to do that is with more research, especially basic research into the causes and progression of the disease. This new data will help the scientists determine the likelihood and viability of moving forward with testing this potential therapy."

granted the prosecution's request to suspend Espinosa's license. She is due back in court Aug. 7.

Police said that after the crash Espinosa was taken to a hospital where she was treated and released, then arrested.

Firefighters were in the station house at the time, police said, and when they went to aid Espinosa found a "small ball python" wrapped around the woman's neck.

The firefighters removed the snake and secured it.

Dead zone off Louisiana about at 5-year average

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — This dead zone — an area off Louisiana where there's too little oxygen in the Gulf of Mexico to keep sea creatures alive — is about average this year and currently the size of Connecticut, a veteran scientist reported Monday.

The dead zone covered about 5,050 square miles as of Aug. 1, triple the 2015 target set by a task force led by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, said Nancy Rabalais of Louisiana Universities Marine Consortium.

The scientist has spent decades researching the phenomenon. She said she could not tell whether this year's dead zone was likely to become larger than average, but conditions on the surface make an increase in size likely in coming weeks.

Growth in tourism boosts jobs creation

(Tampa Bay Times) — The state spends tens of millions in public dollars each year to promote tourism, and a Florida TaxWatch report released Monday showed that investment is generating new visitors, new jobs and new spending.

The business-backed institute in Tallahassee also said that the state is "well on its way" to fulfilling Gov. Rick Scott's goal of 100 million annual visitors by 2015.

"We love it when they come here and spend money," said Florida TaxWatch chief economist Jerry Parrish. "We have a lot of great tourists leaving their money in the state of Florida, and that directly reduces the tax burden on Floridians."

Florida TaxWatch said it assembled its report using data from Visit Florida, the state's tourism marketing corporation, and the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

According to the report, the state had a record 94.2 million visitors in 2013. That's an increase of 2.8 million tourists, or 3 percent, from the 91.5 million visitors recorded in 2012.

It was also the fourth consecutive year that the number of tourists has increased since that number dipped to 80.8 million in recession-plagued 2009.

Those 2.8 million additional visitors generated almost 76,000 new jobs in Florida, according to the report. The average annual salary is more than $43,000.

But tourism investment created more than just tourism-related jobs, Parrish said. Florida TaxWatch research showed that investing in tourism was also "indirectly" responsible for creating 37,382 jobs unrelated to tourism. The record 94.3 million

The record 94.3 million tourists who visited

Florida was also notable because an increasing share of them are international visitors. The report said there were a record 11.1 million overseas visitors in 2013, an increase of 7 percent. There were also a record number of Canadian visitors, 3.7 million, which was an increase of 4 percent from the previous year.

Those overseas visitors are especially crucial to the economic success of Florida tourism.

"International tourists typically stay longer and spend more than the domestic tourist," Parrish said. Florida TaxWatch said that the average overseas tourist spent $1,737 each and stayed an average of 10.9 nights. By comparison, the average domestic visitor spent $148 a day and stayed an average of 4.4 nights.

The state is also investing more public dollars than ever in tourism.

In fiscal year 2007, the state spent $24.7 million on tourism marketing. But in 2013, the Legislature gave Visit Florida a then-record budget of $54 million for marketing.

The state's tourism marketing budget jumped to $63.5 million in fiscal year 2014. And in the 2015 budget, which started in July, Visit Florida was given $74 million.

But it's not just public dollars helping Florida tourism. Parrish said that for every public dollar spent to attract visitors, the private sector is spending $2.08.

"They're seeing that the state is willing to invest in both the state and private sectors' success," Parrish said. "It gives them confidence that the state of Florida understands tourism and invests in that subsector of our economy."

Florida Medical Association opposes pot

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — The group that represents Florida's doctors is coming out against a proposal to allow medical marijuana in the state.

Florida voters will vote this November on a measure authorizing medical marijuana.

The Florida Medical Association on Monday announced it was opposed to Amendment 2.

The group that represents physicians said in a statement that there are "unintended consequences" linked to the proposal that create a health risk. The FMA contended that the amendment would allow health care providers with no training to order medical marijuana.

United for Care, a group supporting the proposed amendment, said the FMA's position does not reflect growing support for the measure among doctors and nurses.

The organization also questioned the FMA criticism about training. The group said rules could be passed later to require training.

WEST PALM BEACH (AP) — A fourth judge in Florida has overturned the state's ban on same-sex marriage in a single county.

2 men accused of taking bags from S. Fla. airports

MIAMI (AP) — Two men face multiple charges of grand theft for taking baggage from carousels at Miami International Airport.

The Miami Herald reports 37-year-old Alis Jimenez and 41-yearold Juan Fidalgo were arrested July 25 at a Miami home. Police say they found numerous pieces of luggage inside the home.

Jimenez was charged with 16 counts of grand theft for stealing some $25,000 worth of items. Fidalgo faces two counts of grand theft for taking in excess of $2,000 in goods.

Police say the men also admitted to taking luggage from Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport and Palm Beach International Airport.

On June 11, authorities spotted the men taking baggage on airport security camera. They had stolen items at least three more times before their arrest because police didn't know who they were.

More than 1 million on US terrorism database

WASHINGTON (Washington Post) — A U.S. government database of known or suspected terrorists contains the names of about 25,000 Americans or legal residents, which represents about 2 percent of the total number of people in the vast intelligence files.

According to the National Counterterrorism Center, there were 1.1 million people, many with multiple spelling variations, in the classified database as of December 2013. The government draws from the database when it places individuals on its no-fly list.

The number of people in the database more than doubled after a terrorist tried unsuccessfully to blow up a Detroit-bound airliner on 2009, according to secret documents leaked to the online magazine The Intercept and published Tuesday.

Since late 2010, "analysts have created more than 430,000 terrorism-related person records and deleted 50,000 subjects whose nexus to terrorism was refuted or did not meet current watchlisting criteria," the documents show.

The Associated Press also reported similar figures Tuesday, citing newly released information provided by the National Counterterrorism Center. The database, called the Terrorist Identities Datamart Environment, or TIDE, was created after the Sept. 11, 2001, terror attacks.

The counterterrorism center said in a statement that "TIDE — in supporting the watchlisting system provides a critical layer in our counterterrorism defenses."

The documents obtained by The Intercept also indicated that the government, with the assistance of the CIA, is in the midst of a major effort to obtain biometric data on people in the database. The records say analysts have added 730,000 biometric files to the database; some of those files include fingerprints, iris scans and facial photographs.

As of last year, the database contained 860,000 biometric files related to 144,000 people.

In 2013, The Intercept said, the government collected biometric information from U.S. driver's licenses. The Intercept said 2,400 images were provided and placed in the database.

The government has also embraced non-traditional biometric datafields for use in TIDE, including handwriting, signatures, scars, tattoos and DNA strands.

The documents also outline the government's exhaustive efforts to improve the information in the database, relying partly on the CIA's "clandestinely acquired foreign government information" to enhance "select populations."

To do this, the CIA used a secret program called "Hydra." For ex-ample, the CIA took 555 Pakistanis listed in TIDE and vetted the names against their Pakistani passports. The CIA was able to supplement the database with biometric and biographic information.

The documents didn't provide any additional details about the CIA program. Managing the database is onerous, with analysts handling an average of 250 nominations a day and 200 encounter reports along with visa applications.

In 2013, the CIA accounted for the greatest number of nominations at about 45 percent. The FBI nominated 5 percent, the lowest number of nominations.

The Intercept said the top five U.S. cities with "known or suspected terrorists" are New York; Dearborn, Mich.; Houston; San Diego; and Chicago.

The Intercept reported that the Untied States put 3,200 "known or suspected terrorists" in the database because of connections with the Syria conflict, including 715 Europeans and Canadians and 41 Americans.

The White House said President Barack Obama was briefed on the shooting. Obama and Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel both spoke with Gen. Joseph Dunford, the top U.S. general in Kabul, who said a joint U.S.-Afghan investigation was underway and who assured his bosses he still had confidence in the Afghan military.

The Pentagon's press secretary, Navy Rear Adm. John Kirby, announced that the U.S. general officer was killed in the attack but he refused to be specific about his rank, citing concern that his family had not yet been fully and officially notified. Another U.S. official said the officer was a major general. There are only a few U.S. generals in Afghanistan.

The wounded included a German brigadier general and two Afghan generals, officials said. A U.S. official said that of the estimated 15 wounded, about half were Americans, several of them in serious condition.

U.S. officials still asserted confidence in their partnership with the Afghan military, which appears to be holding its own against the Taliban but will soon be operating independently once most U.S.-led coalition forces leave at the end of the year.

1994, had hoped that providing his own narrative would help temper America's final judgment of him.

Perhaps with that in mind, he didn't shy away from the tough questions, commenting on everything from the threat of impeachment to the so-called "smoking gun" conversation that included evidence he participated in a Watergate cover-up.

Nixon said when he decided to resign, he faced such strong resistance from his wife that he brought a transcript of the "smoking gun" tape to a family meeting to show her how bad it was.

"I'm a fighter, I just didn't want to quit. Also I thought it would be an admission of guilt, which of course it was," he said. "And, also, I felt it would set a terribly bad precedent for the future."

The tone of the tapes contrasts with the sometimes adversarial tone of the well-known series of Nixon interviews done in 1977 by British journalist David Frost. Nixon appears relaxed in the tapes. He smiles occasionally, speaks fondly about his two daughters and wife and seems emotional while recalling the final days of his fraught administration, as pressure mounted for his impeachment over a 1972 break-in at Democratic headquarters by burglars tied to the president's re-election committee who were trying to get dirt on his political adversaries.

Police: Teens made drug brownies during break-in COLLEGEVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Police say two 17-year-old boys have been charged with breaking into a Pennsylvania home and baking drug-laced brownies.

Police say the burglary happened late July 22 in Perkiomen Township, though the department only recently publicized it.

Police say the boys were found with drug paraphernalia and more than 2 pounds of the unspecified drug used to make the brownies.

The boys have been charged in Montgomery County Juvenile Court.

relative weakness. The Islamic militant group's fortunes changed dramatically last year after the Egyptian military deposed a Hamas-friendly government in Cairo and began closing hundreds of smuggling tunnels under the Gaza-Egypt border.

The closures deprived Hamas of a key source of revenue — the taxation of goods brought through the tunnels — and prevented weapons and cash destined for Hamas from flowing into Gaza.

By this spring, Hamas was in such a severe financial crisis that it accepted a reconciliation deal with Abbas. Under that agreement, an Abbas-led government was to run both the West Bank and Gaza, though thorny issues were put off, including Hamas' insistence that it retain control over its security forces. The unity government was stumbling by the time Israel-Hamas fighting erupted on July 8.

Even before the war, Gaza was in bad shape because of the prolonged blockade.

Unemployment in the impoverished territory of 1.8 million people had risen well above 50 percent, in part because of Egypt's tunnel closures. Only half of Gaza's electricity needs were being met, and the closure prevented most Gaza residents from travel.

Nigerian official says 7 more show Ebola symptoms

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — A total of eight people in Nigeria who were in direct contact with a man who flew to Lagos and died of Ebola now have symptoms of the dreaded and deadly disease and have been placed into quarantine, a Nigerian health official said Tuesday.

Of the eight, only a doctor who treated the traveler has so far tested positive for Ebola. The others are being tested, with results pending, said Lagos state health health commissioner Jide Idris.

The official death toll for the worst-ever outbreak for the disease stood on Monday at 887, according to the World Health Organization. Guinea, Sierra Leone and Liberia have been affected much more severely than Nigeria, which has experienced only one death. Though as Africa's most populous nation, Nigeria poses a grave risk of the disease catching on like wildfire.

Scots offered more tax powers to stay with Britain

LONDON (Bloomberg) — Chancellor of the Exchequer George Osborne pledged more powers for Scotland if voters opt to stay part of Britain, hours before a live televised debate pitting the nationalists against supporters of the union.

"There's a commitment by all the Westminster parties and therefore any combination of a U.K. government to make sure that if Scotland stays in the U.K. there will be further devolution of powers," Osborne told BBC Radio's "Today" program. This includes Conservative proposals to give Scotland more tax powers, he said, without giving more details.

S.African quake kills 1 as tremors hit biggest cities

JOHANNESBURG (Bloomberg) — South Africa's biggest cities were rocked by an earthquake that sent tremors through the country, killing one person near a mining town west of Johannesburg.

Ukraine fighting reaches rebel-held Donetsk

DONETSK, Ukraine (AP) — Fighting in eastern Ukraine reached the main rebel stronghold of Donetsk on Tuesday as separatists and government troops exchanged rocket fire in neighborhoods on the edge of the city.

In a western district of Donetsk, rockets apparently fired from a government position landed in the courtyard of a one-story house, killing an elderly resident.

The spread of fighting into the city itself marks a decisive turn for the conflict, but one that will arouse fears of an alarming escalation in the humanitarian crisis gripping the country's easternmost regions.

As government troops try to tighten their encirclement of rebel citadels, officials in Kiev have warned of a spike in Russian troop numbers along the border, arousing renewed fears of intervention by Moscow. In the morning, an Associated Press journalist saw a tank bearing the Ukrainian blue-and-yellow flag at a key checkpoint in the western suburb of Marinka, which lies on a road into Donetsk.

Rebel combatants could still be seen hunkered down in sniper positions in a nearby area closer to the center.

Defense officials swiftly played down the presence of government troops in Marinka, insisting that more fighting lay ahead before the area could be properly secured.

By the afternoon, however, there were signs the army was looking to advance further into the city.

The shell that landed by the house in western Donetsk's Petrovsky district killed a resident that neighbors identified only as Galina, along with her dog.

An AP journalist saw

Galina's body as it was covered by a plastic sheet and carried from her house by rescue workers.

Her next-door neighbor, Sergei Lozinsky, 47, said he was in his house when the blast hit.

"I fell to the ground and covered my head with my arms when the shell fell. It all happened so fast. And my windows were all blown out," he said.

Another neighbor, 32year old teacher Nataliya Subbota, said Galina had until recently taken refuge in bomb shelters.

"We hid in basements night and day. The shelling would get quiet and then start again. But every day they became more intense," Subbota said, before referring to Galina by a nickname. "Granny Galya got sick of hiding with us in the basement. And now look what has happened."

Separatist fighters responded to incoming fire with rocket attacks of their own.

Militants target second Iraq dam

BAGHDAD, Iraq (Bloomberg) — Islamic militants in Iraq are battling to seize two of country's largest dams as a breakaway al-Qaida group seeks to consolidate control over the territory it took this year.

Fighting between militants from the so-called Islamic State and Kurdish security forces raged for a third day near the Mosul dam, Iraq's largest, Hisham al-Brefkani, member of the Nineveh provincial council, said in a phone interview. About 350 kilometers (200 miles) to the south, Iraqi forces engaged militants in the farmland and villages near the Haditha dam, Khalid al-Hadithi, a city council chairman, said in an interview.

The Islamic State, previously known as Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, has grabbed territory throughout Iraq and Syria and declared its own self-styled caliphate, highlighting the central government's inability to ensure security under Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki. Strengthened with weapons seized from the Iraqi army, the group this week seized two oil fields and predominantly Kurdish towns in the north, forcing thousands to flee their homes.

"The Kurdish military status has changed from a defensive one to an offensive one," al-Brefkani said.

Kurdish forces also launched a counterattack on Sinjar and Zummar, which were seized by militants during the past few days, he said.

In Sinjar, used during the filming of The Exorcist about 40 years ago, the fighting overnight went back and forth, with the majority of the district still under the control of the militants, Sheikh Ahmed Al-Obaidi, a resident of the nearby city of Rabia'ah, said in a phone interview from Mosul.

Egypt announces major expansion at Suez Canal

CAIRO (dpa) — Egyptian authorities on Tuesday announced plans for a major upgrade of the Suez Canal, one of the world's most important waterways which connects the Mediterranean to the Red Sea.

The project will involve digging 35 kilometers of a new parallel canal and widening the existing canal along a further 37 kilometers, Suez Canal Authority chief Muhab Mumayish told a conference in Ismailiya.

The 193-kilometer canal, first opened in 1869, already has 80 kilometers of bypass waterways, according to the authority.

President Abdel-Fattah al-Sissi told the conference that 17 Egyptian companies would be involved in implementing the project, under and six Armenians.

Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov told the Itar-Tass news agency that he had asked the leaders of both countries to meet with Russian mediators in the Black Sea resort of Sochi on Friday to try to work out a plan to restore peace.

Obama announces $33B in Africa aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Barack Obama says the U.S. must do more to boost its financial foothold in Africa as economies on the continent grow stronger.

Obama is speaking at a U.S.-Africa summit in Washington that has brought together business leaders and politicians. In conjunction with the summit, the White House is announcing $33 billion in commitments aimed at increasing U.S. economic ties with Africa.

A big part of the money, $14 billion, is coming from the private sector. Among the companies announcing new commitments are Coca-Cola and General Electric.

into deep space that aims to place the first lander on a comet.

Rosetta will begin orbiting the Churyumov-Gerasimenko comet to glean information about the mass of dirty ice, dust and gas, according to the European Space Agency, which launched the probe in 2004. In November, it's due to send a smaller landing craft down onto the comet to take more measurements.

"This is the start of the real mission that Rosetta was built for — it's the kickoff of the real science phase," said Gerhard Schwehm, an ESA and study it in detail."

Scientists hope to learn about the early evolution of the solar system by studying comets, which date back 4.6 billion years when the planets were forming. Researchers also are searching for organic molecules that represent the building blocks for life, which comets may have brought to Earth in its early years.

Stocks sink on Ukraine tensions

NEW YORK (AP) — Renewed concerns that tensions could flare up between Russian and Ukraine pushed U.S. stocks sharply lower Tuesday.

The market had been moderately lower all day, weighed down by a disappointing earnings forecast from retail giant Target and a report on China that showed the world's second-largest economy was slowing down.

The selling accelerated in afternoon trading. The Dow Jones industrial average fell nearly 200 points at one point, but recovered some of those losses in the last 30 minutes of trading.

Several traders pointed to news reports of a buildup in Russian troops on the Ukraine border and comments from a Polish politician that reportedly said Russia was poised to invade or pressure Ukraine's eastern border as catalysts for the selling.

The developments came after the most recent round of sanctions were imposed on Russia by the U.S. and Europe last week. Russia called Tuesday for a meeting of the U.N. Security Council to discuss the situation in Ukraine.

The Ukraine-Russia tensions were "outweighing any good economic data" that investors had to work with Tuesday, said Tom di Galoma, a bond trader at ED&F Mann Capital.

The Dow lost 139.81 points, or 0.8 percent, to 16,429.47, the lowest level for the index since mid-May. The Standard & Poor's 500 index lost 18.78 points, or 1 percent, to 1,920.21 and the Nasdaq composite fell 31.05 points, or 0.7 percent, to 4,352.84.

The tensions between Russia and Ukraine have been a headache for investors for months now. However the stakes are higher than before, investors say.

With winter a few months away, Europe's recovering economy remains dependent on Russian natural gas for heat and electricity. Germany imports nearly all its natural gas from Russia, and France also gets a significant amount of its energy needs from Russia.

"Europe's economy is far more exposed to Russia than the U.S.," said Randy Frederick, a managing director at Charles Schwab.

Bonuses lurk in shiny, new computers

Which the recent sales tax holiday, many of us purchased new computers to upgrade existing equipment or added another PC to the household. Most of us took home a PC featuring Windows 8.1. Because Microsoft is the dominant OS on the machines we buy, they get the first crack at adding us to their base of potential users.

The process starts as we power up our shiny new computer. After a few screens that ask for language, time zone, EULA acceptance, Windows asks that either we sign in with a Microsoft account or create one if we don't have one. There is a link near the bottom of the page that says to sign in with a Local Account, which doesn't require a Microsoft account, but we sacrifice a raft of features offered should we do so.

With a Microsoft account and Windows 8.1, every time we log into our binary buddy, we immediately have access to Windows products such as OneDrive which comes built-in and offers cloud-based storage for documents, pictures, etc. For example: My office machine still has the traditional folders for Documents, Pictures, Music and Videos but I have another directory called OneDrive and these four folders are in there plus a whole directory of other folders I use to organize my work. The advantage to OneDrive is that all my work is automatically stored in the cloud. If I'm traveling, need a particular file, I can sit down at any PC, smartphone or tablet in the world, log into my Microsoft account and access my OneDrive to retrieve the specific file. It also doubles as an automatic backup system.

Another product built into Windows 8.1 that many people use is Skype, the program that allows us to make video calls to the grandkids and others. Signing in with our Microsoft account gives us Skype. All Skypeto-Skype video and voice calls are free, and we can make group calls with the far-flung members of our family. Snap Skype to the left or right of the screen and we can talk and work at the same time.

Windows also includes an app called Mail. For those who have multiple email accounts, this allows us to collect all our emails in one place. And since Mail is web based, signing into our Microsoft account anywhere allows us to see all our emails in one spot.

For news junkies, the News app can be customized to bring us news that interests us. We can also pick the sources we wish to see such as CNN, AP and FOX — just to list a few. And as with other apps, we can slide the window and lock it to the right or left, and use the rest of the screen to continue working.

Windows 8.1 coupled with a Microsoft account comes with 20 useful apps such as Finance, Maps, Games, Weather and many more. Additionally, with the MS account we have access to the store where we find many more useful apps.

Freezing your credit report

Dreat Dave: Do you recommend a credit freeze in order to protect against identity theft? — Eric

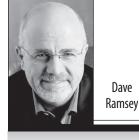

Dear Eric: I absolutely recommend doing that, especially if you're not borrowing money anymore. However, putting a freeze on your credit report only provides partial protection against identity theft.

Identity theft is where someone, for example, signs up for a credit card in your name. If Joe Crook signs an application with your name and address, and the credit card company issues the card without cards about seven out of 10 times — then the card will be issued to the thief. Having your credit frozen does nothing to stop that from happening. Still, if they check your credit and it's frozen, chances are they won't issue the card.

I'd also recommend having a good identity theft protection program in place. I have it on myself and all my team members at the office. If you don't have this, and someone gets a card in your name, the credit card company will demand that you pay the bill. You can insist it's not you, but that won't do much good. Then, you'll have to go through the hassle of filling out affidavits and police reports.

You may get out of paying for it in the end, but you'll still have to spend dozens, if not hundreds, of hours dealing with the credit card company trying to get the whole mess straightened out! — Dave

Dear Dave: I make $30,000 a year. I've just started Baby Step 2 of your plan, and I'm paying off my debts from smallest to largest. I have $55,000 in debt, including $15,000 on a car loan. I recently picked up a part-time job to help pay down the debt, but sometimes I'm working 70 hours a week. Do you have any recommendation for staying motivated during this process? — Brandon Dear Brandon: I understand. We can all get tired and run short on motivation from time to time. There's an old saying that fatigue makes cowards of us all. Fatigue is a real issue if you're working long hours and facing additional pressure.

The balance on your car is awfully high. My general rule is that you don't want to own vehicles equaling half or more of your annual income. If I'm in your shoes, I'd sell that car and move down to a little beater for a while. You can find a decent used car to fit the bill, and that would get rid of a big chunk of debt in a hurry.

At this point, I think you just need to feel like you're making some measureable progress. Sometimes, that means throwing a stick of dynamite into the middle of your life. Also, try keeping your debt snowball list where you'll see it on a regular basis. It can be a visual reminder of the progress you have made. — Dave health law is a tale of two Americas Poll: Obama

WASHINGTON (AP) President Barack Obama's health care law has become a tale of two Americas.

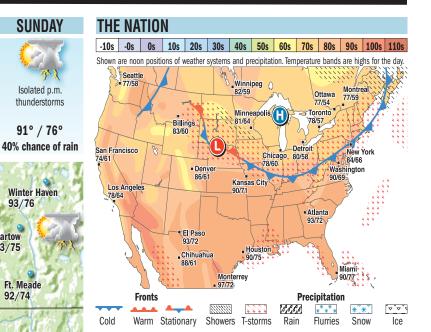

States that fully embraced the law's states accepting the law's core coverage provisions. Those are states that expanded their Medicaid programs and also built or took an active role managing new online insurance markets. The drop was about half that level -2.2 percentage points — in states that took neither of those steps, or just one of them. "Those states that implement the law's major mechanisms are seeing a significantly greater decline in their uninsured rates," said Dan Witters, research director for the poll. Medicaid expansion mainly helps low-income uninsured adults in states accepting it. Insurance exchanges operate in every state, offering taxpayer-subsidized private coverage to people who have no health plan on the job. Leading the nation were two southern states where the law has found political support. Arkansas saw a drop of about 10 percentage points in its share of uninsured residents, from 22.5 percent in 2013, to 12.4 percent by the middle of this year. Kentucky experienced a drop of nearly 9 percentage points, from 20.4 percent of its residents uninsured in 2013, to 11.9 percent.

Although the poll's margin of sampling error is higher for smaller states. Witters said Gallup has a high level of confidence that the numbers represent real changes. The poll found contrasts among states that share a border, but have taken different paths politically on the health care law. • While Arkansas had the 10-point decline in its uninsured rate, the drop in Tennessee was just 2.4 percentage points. • The uninsured rate in West Virginia fell 5.7 points after the state agreed to Medicaid expansion, but there was no change for neighboring Virginia, where Democratic Gov shifts are unlikely. That's because negative views about the law are driven by people who already had insurance. They worry that the coverage expansion will raise their premiums or compromise the quality of care they receive. "Why isn't the bill more popular?" asked Blendon. "Rightly or wrongly, people who are not directly aided by it are worried." The Gallup survey found some coverage gains in several major states opposing the law that were also the focus of sign-up campaigns by the Obama administration and its supporters. Texas saw a drop of 3 percentage points in its uninsured rate, while Florida saw a slightly higher decline. Some blue states that already had high levels of insurance coverage made little headway. The poll found hardly any change in Massachusetts and Vermont.

Terry McAuliffe has been blocked by a Republicanled legislature.

 Colorado's uninsured rated dropped 6 percentage points with Medicaid expansion and a staterun exchange, while Utah's didn't budge. That state has a federally-run exchange and is still weighing whether to expand Medicaid.

It's unclear if emerging disparities among neighboring states will start to shift the hardened lines in the political debate over health care. Americans remain divided over Obama's signature program, with opponents clearly outnumbering supporters.

Robert Blendon, a public opinion analyst at the Harvard School of Public Health, said immediate

'Gluten-free' labeling rules kick in WASHINGTON (AP) -Starting Tuesday, "gluten free" labels on packaged foods have real meaning. Until now, the term 'gluten-free" was unregulated, and manufacturers made their own decisions about what it means.

This new requirement is especially important for people who suffer from celiac disease and don't absorb nutrients well. They can get sick from the gluten found in wheat and other cereal grains.

Under a rule announced a year ago, food manufacturers had until this week to ensure that anything labeled gluten-free contains less than 20 parts per million of gluten — ensuring that those products are technically free of wheat, rye and barley. That amount is generally recognized by the medical community to be low enough so that most people who have celiac disease won't get sick if they eat it.

Smith says Sims 'has it'

By RICK STROUD TAMPA BAY TIMES

TAMPA — At 6 feet, 213 pounds, Charles Sims looks like a power runner, a bone-jarring back who doesn't run to daylight as much as he punches a hole in the wall to create it. Then when tacklers brace for contact, he turns on the jets and makes moves that would cause a chiropractor to grimace.

"I just want to mix it up," Sims said of his running style. "You want to give them a move every now and then. Then to keep them on their toes, you just want to go straight forward. You give them the wiggle and the next time they expect the wiggle and I just go right through them."

A change of pace was also what the Tampa Bay Buccaneers sought when they drafted Sims in the third round from West Virginia.

NFL: Technology

By RACHEL COHEN

Associated Press

NEW YORK — NFL teams used to take Polaroid pictures of plays from atop the stadium during games then send them down to the field on a rope.

Technology improved so that an automated camera could deliver the images to a printer on the sideline, creating that familiar sight of a quarterback staring at a sheet of paper to figure out what went wrong on an interception.

That was still the case last season, when fans in the stands could watch highlights on their smartphones, but players and coaches were flipping through three-ring binders of black-andwhite photos.

The NFL sideline is finally catching up.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — With his confidence sky-high and his golf "in really good shape," Rory McIlroy said he has never driven the ball better as he heads into this week's PGA Championship fresh from wins in his last two tournaments.

The Northern Irishman clinched his third career major in wire-towire fashion at last month's British Open, then landed his first World Golf Championships title at the WGC-Bridgestone Invitational on Sunday. McIlroy is especially delighted with the state of his mental approach to the game, though he is wary of any media hype that the sport is entering a "Rory era" of individual dominance.

Confident McIlroy balks at 'Rory era' talk

"I've had a great run of golf and I've played well over the past few months," the newly crowned world number one told reporters at Valhalla Golf Club on Tuesday while preparing for the season's final major.

"I said at the start of the year that golf was looking for someone to put their hand up and sort of become one of the dominant players in the game. I felt like I had the ability to do that.

"It's just nice to be able to win a few tournaments and get back to where I feel like I should be, which is near the top of the world rankings, competing in majors and winning golf tournaments."

McIlroy, who regained the world number one ranking from Australian Adam Scott with his WGC victory at Firestone on Sunday, felt that any talk of a new era was premature.

"Sometimes I feel that people are too quick to jump to conclusions

Clinic owner charged in MLB doping scandal

Anthony Bosch, former owner of the Biogenesis of America clinic, leaves the federal courthouse after bonding out on Tuesday in Miami.

By ZACHARY FAGENSON Reuters

MIAMI — The owner of a defunct Florida anti-aging clinic at the center of a doping scandal that led to the suspension of Major League Baseball superstar Alex Rodriguez has agreed to plead guilty to distributing testosterone, according to federal court documents filed on Tuesday.

The U.S. government filed criminal charges against Anthony Bosch and six others tied to the clinic, where federal prosecutors allege professional athletes paid as much as $12,000 per month for testosterone-filled syringes and creams.

Bosch, who faced one count of conspiracy to distribute testosterone, a felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison, would possibly get a lesser sentence under terms of a plea deal finalized on Monday.

Bosch was released on a $100,000 bond, ESPN reported.

The first federal criminal charges filed in one of U.S. sports' biggest doping scandals also ensnared Yuri Sucart, a cousin of Rodriguez, the New York Yankees slugger and baseball's highest paid player, suspended for the entire 2014 season.

None of the dozen or so players who were suspended in the fallout from the scandal involving the Miami-area Biogenesis clinic faced criminal charges on Tuesday.

SUN CORRESPONDENT PORT CHARLOTTE — When Christine Burkhart stepped into the Port Charlotte High School gym as junior varsity volleyball coach, the former Pirate standout knew exactly what to expect from her team.

Or so she thought. "In my mind I remember what it was in 1991," Burkhart, now the Pirates varsity coach, said. "Half of the team was really, really good because they played in middle school and the other half were casual.

"When I walked in though, I realized I was starting with basic skills for most of the crew. We were starting from scratch, and that's when my eyes were wide open." Charlotte County eliminated middle school athletics because of a lack of money in 2010, meaning crops of eighth graders entering high school were largely unprepared to compete at a high level, and Burkhart said the program suffered because of it.

"On varsity, we are currently competing been training together for years, and it's tough to do," she said. "It costs a lot to play club, and because there were no middle school sports programs outside of intramural, we have definitely struggled."

To Burkhart's relief and that of the other two area schools affected · Lemon Bay and Charlotte High schools — Charlotte County reinstated a number of sports to begin this school year, volleyball among them.

'We never want to take anything away from the kids once they have it, and that's the hardest thing any time you make cuts," Charlotte County community liaison Mike Riley said. "We want to be able to do more. We want kids, especially at the middle school level, to get involved in extracurricular activities, and then the budget worked out.

"I think the kids will be excited, we're definitely excited, and we hope the turnout is huge.'

Manta Rays coach Stacy DeWolfe echoed Burkhart's enthusiasm, adding she hopes the added time athletes spend competing before they get to high school will bring Charlotte County volleyball back into the spotlight.

"The kids learn if they really have the dedication earlier," she added. "Especially since our high school doesn't have a freshman team, the girls have to be ready to play with upperclassmen.'

To help offset the estimated $25,000 middle school sports will cost the county, each child must pay $20 for one sport, $30 for two or more, and $40 for a "family rate" that includes multiple children and sports.

Burkhart, who noted a typical club volleyball season costs each child upward of $100, celebrated that children who had once been left out of competition because of costs once again have a place to play.

"I've been shouting it from the rooftops," she said. "Part of reason we struggle in our county is because everywhere else has middle school volleyball. It is really, really great the county has brought it back, that they see the importance of it.

"You look at kids, a lot of their successes in school depend upon what they do extracurricular-wise, and a lot of them miss opportunities when they have to pay. I think it's fantastic, and I am really excited."

and jump on the bandwagon, jump on certain things," said the 25-yearold from Holywood in County Down.

"I'm not necessarily sure you can call that an era or the start of an era, but I'm just really happy with where my golf game is at the minute and I just want to try and continue that for as long as possible.

"People can say what they want to say, that's fine. But I can't read too much into it. I just need to continue to practice hard and play well."

McIlroy won his first major title by eight shots at the 2011 U.S. Open, then added a second with the 2012 PGA Championship at Kiawah Island, where he also triumphed by eight.

"Historically, the PGA Championship has probably been my best major," said McIlroy, who has recorded four-top 10s strengthen his body. at the event in just five career starts.

"The win at Kiawah in 2012, but then a couple of third-place finishes ... it's been a tournament that I've really enjoyed and a tournament that I've had some success at. Hopefully I can continue that trend this week."

Asked which area of his game gave him the most confidence at the moment, McIlroy replied: "My approach to the game, my mental state. That's really what I'm happy about.

"I'm not dwelling on the results that I've had and I'm just trying to keep moving forward, focus on the next week.

"People can talk about my driving or how I'm swinging the club, but mentally, I just feel like I'm in a really good place."

McIlroy is driving the golf ball prodigious distances while sacrificing very little accuracy off the tee, the result of hard work in the gym to "I'm definitely hitting it longer over the past couple years," he said. "I've always had the speed and I've always had the power, but I haven't really had the strength or the stability to hold on to it my whole way through the swing.

"I've put on three kilograms (about 6½ pounds) of muscle in the last eight weeks, so that definitely helps. I'm the heaviest I've ever been. I don't feel like I need to put on any more distance.

"If I can hit it over 300 yards and in the fairway most of the time, I'm happy enough with that. That gives me plenty of opportunities to hit it close to flags and try and make birdies. The past couple of weeks, it's the best I've driven the ball."

McIlroy will tee off in Thursday's opening round at Valhalla in the company of the year's other major winners — American Bubba Watson (Masters) and German Martin Kaymer (U.S. Open).

Report: 3 finalists for commissioner

BY THE SPORTS XCHANGE Major League Baseball has a list of three finalists to succeed commissioner Bud Selig, a high-ranking MLB executive with direct knowledge of the hiring process told USA Today Sports on Tuesday.

The owners will reportedly choose between Rob Manfred, Tim Brosnan and Tom Werner during an Aug. 14 vote.

Manfred, MLB's chief operating officer for the past 15 years, has worked closely with Selig during his tenure. His career highlights include helping to broker labor deals and having a major hand in helping the Los Angeles Dodgers through bankruptcy.

Brosnan, who has worked as MLB's executive vice president of business for 23 years, has been a major player in broadcasting, licensing and sponsorship deals that have helped expand revenues.

Werner, a Boston Red Sox chairman who has also been a member of the ownership group for 12 years, worked as a television executive prior to joining the Red Sox. He is also chairman for Liverpool FC of the English Premier League.

The new commissioner needs 23 of 30 votes to be elected. If no candidate is elected on the first ballot, owners would vote until a candidate is elected.

The 80-year-old Selig _____ announced his retirement in September 2013. He is scheduled to stay aboard until Jan. 24, ending a tenure of 45 years with Major League Baseball, including the last 22 as commissioner.

McCutchen dealing with broken rib: Pittsburgh Pirates outfielder Andrew McCutchen has a fractured rib but the team has not put him on the disabled list.. "We continue to evaluate Andrew's progress and he will remain on the active roster," Pirates general manager Neal Huntington said. With McCutchen out of the lineup, the Pirates activated outfielder Sterling Marte from the concussion disabled list. The reigning National League Most Valuable Player said he is hoping for a quick recovery to avoid a stint on the DL.

Around the majors: An injury-plaqued season officially ended for Boston Red Sox outfielder Shane Victorino, who will undergo lower back surgery next week. Meanwhile, newly acquired Allen Craig was placed on the 15-day disabled list with a sprained ankle. Dr. Robert Watkins, a spine specialist, will perform the back procedure on Victorino on Tuesday in Los Angeles. An MRI showed that Victorino might be in need of back surgery and Watkins confirmed the test findings. ...

The Milwaukee Brewers sent right-hander Matt Garza to the disabled list with a strained oblique muscle. To take his place on the roster, the Brewers recalled right-hander Rob Wooten form Triple-A Nashville. It's unknown how long Garza will be sidelined. . . .

The Detroit Tigers signed struggling reliever Jim Johnson to a minor-league contract in an attempt to bolster their bullpen. The Oakland Athletics released Johnson last week after he posted a 4-2 record, two saves and a 7.14 ERA with 24 walks and 28 strikeouts in 38 outings covering 40¹/₃ innings this season....

The Washington Nationals claimed left-handed reliever Matt Thornton off waivers from the New York Yankees. The 37-year-old appeared in 46 games for the Yankees this year and posted an 0-3 record with a 2.55 ERA in 24³/₃ innings....

The Cleveland Indians recalled right-hander Josh Tomlin from Triple-A Columbus, optioned outfielder Tyler Holt to Columbus and activated outfielder Nyger Morgan from the 60-day disabled list and released him. ...

New York Yankees pitcher Masahiro Tanaka threw again with increased intensity from flat ground as he attempts to work his way back from a small ligament tear in his right elbow. The Japanese sensation was 12-4 with a 2.51 ERA before he was injured last month.

Hellickson hoping for a strong start

By MARC TOPKIN TAMPA BAY TIMES

OAKLAND, Calif. -RHP Jeremy Hellickson takes the mound this afternoon for his fourth start since coming off the disabled list and is hoping to get through five innings for the first time.

Part of the issue is that Hellickson needs to pitch better. In 13²/₃ innings since returning from January elbow surgery, he has allowed 17 hits (for a .304 average) and five walks.

"The main thing is to attack the zone more and attack the zone more," Hellickson said.

But a bigger part may be regaining the confidence of manager Joe Maddon, who has been quick to pull him at the first signs of trouble.

"I haven't pitched well, I haven't really given him a reason to leave me out there," Hellickson said. "Obviously I'd like to get a chance to work out of my own jams and go deeper into the game, but with the bullpen we have and every game a must-win there's not really time to wait around so I just have to be better early and give him confidence to leave me out there late in the game."

Love trade to Cavs nearly complete: A threeteam deal that would send Kevin Love to the Cleveland Cavaliers and Andrew Wiggins to the Minnesota Timberwolves is near completion, ESPN's Brian Windhorst said on ESPN Radio New York. Also, Cavaliers forward Anthony Bennett, the No. 1 overall draft pick in 2013, would go to the Philadelphia 76ers as part of a deal for forward Thaddeus Young. An undetermined number of draft picks will also be involved. Minnesota Timberwolves owner Glen Taylor said Love will likely be traded to the Cavaliers by Aug. 23 or Aug. 24.

Cavs recruiting Marion: With LeBron James leading the recruiting effort, the Cleveland Cavaliers are growing optimistic about their chances of signing veteran free agent forward Shawn Marion. Marion, 36, visited with Cavaliers general manager David Griffin, who was in Phoenix when Marion starred for the Suns. Marion could have been a topic of discussion when, according to ESPN. com, James met Griffin and Cavs coach David Blatt for the first time.

State Warriors center Marreese Speights was arrested early Tuesday and charged with suspicion of driving under the influence in Tampa, a second-degree misdemeanor. Speights, who turned 27 on Monday, was released from jail after posting a $500 bond. . . .

Brooklyn Nets center Brook Lopez has recovered from a broken foot suffered early last season and received clearance to return to the court.

Maddon said it's ultimately a combination of both issues.

Strategically, the Rays want to see him be more aggressive in putting hitters away and make more use of his curveball.

"It's not that I lack confidence in him," Maddon said. "I just know what's going on right now. We've just got to get him beyond that. It's almost like he's teetering, we've got to get him beyond that one moment. All of a sudden there's that breakthrough

MLB ROUNDUP Marlins beat Pirates in walk

BY THE SPORTS XCHANGE

PITTSBURGH -Patience truly was a virtue for the Miami Marlins on Tuesday night.

The Marlins drew three walks during a five-run eighth-inning rally that included one extra-base hit as they came back to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-3.

It was the Marlins' biggest inning since they also scored five runs June 27 against the Oakland A's and the eighth time they scored five or more runs this season.

"We're not necessarily known for walks," said Marlins manager Mike Redmond, whose team is fourth in the National League in drawing bases on balls. "We had a lot of really good at-bats that inning. We were really patient."

The Marlins managed 11 runs while losing four of their previous five games, a skid that followed a season-best six-game winning streak. They also lost their previous six games at PNC Park while scoring a total of 13 runs. Center fielder Marcell Ozuna and catcher Jarrod Saltalamacchia drew consecutive bases-loaded walks off left-hander Justin Wilson to force in the tying and go-ahead runs.

After right fielder Gregory Polanco's RBI single in the seventh put the Pirates ahead 2-1, Marlins right fielder Giancarlo Stanton started the eighth by drawing a one-out walk from reliever Jared Hughes (6-3). Pirates third baseman Josh Harrison then booted a potential double-play ball by third baseman Casey McGehee to keep the inning alive.

NEW YORK — Alex Avila had the game-tying single in the seventh and hit the go-ahead home run with one out in the top of the 12th inning as the Detroit Tigers outlasted the New York Yankees for a 4-3 victory Tuesday night.

Avila was the reason the game reached extra innings when the catcher had a two-out single in the seventh off New York starter Hiroki Kuroda. After grounding out in the 10th, Avila drove a 1-0 fastball from Matt Daley (0-1) into the last row of the right-field grandstand just in front of the rightfield bleachers.

It was Avila's eighth home run and first since July 12 at Kansas City.

After David Price allowed three runs and eight hits over 8²/₃ innings in his Detroit debut, Joba Chamberlain, Joakim Soria and Joe Nathan combined on 31/3 scoreless innings.

Chamberlain recorded the final out of the ninth and stranded Derek Jeter at first in the 10th after hitting the Yankee captain with a pitch. Soria (2-4) pitched a perfect 11th for the win and Nathan did the same in the 12th for his 23rd save in 28 opportunities, though he needed a running catch at the right-field warning track by J.D. Martinez on a drive by third baseman Chase Headley.

The Tigers won for the fourth time in five games on a night when they lost right fielder Torii Hunter to a left-hand contusion after he was hit by a Dellin Betances pitch in the ninth. They also won on a night when first baseman Miguel Cabrera went 1 for 5 with two strikeouts.

Brian McCann and Martin Prado hit solo home runs for the Yankees, who lost for the seventh time in 10 games and dropped to 6-6 in extra innings. The Yankees also played their 16th straight game decided by two runs or less, which according to the Elias Sports Bureau is the most since the 1975 Baltimore Orioles.

Kuroda allowed three runs and six hits in seven innings.

Detroit had first and third after a single by Cabrera and took a 1-0 lead on designated hitter Victor Martinez's sacrifice fly. The Yankees tied it on McCann's 12th home run in the second and then went ahead in the third against Price.

Second baseman Brendan Ryan opened the inning with a double, was sacrificed to third by left fielder Brett Gardner. After Jeter grounded out, Jacoby Ellsbury slapped a double down the left-field line.

In Toronto, Baltimore clubbed three home runs to power past the Blue Jays in the opener of a pivotal threegame set. Catcher Caleb Joseph and second baseman Jonathan Schoop hit back-to-back shots in the fourth. while first baseman Chris Davis added a solo blast in the fifth to help the Orioles (64-48) extend their American League East division lead over the second-place Blue Jays (60-54) to five games.

Cardinals 3, Red Sox 2:

In St. Louis, after a game rife with missed opportunities and frustration, the Cardinals finally did just enough to keep pace with the Milwaukee Brewers in the National League Central. Phelps ready to transact 'unfinished business'

BY REUTERS

Michael Phelps will assess his chances of qualifying for the 2016 Rio Olympics after this week's U.S. national championships, his coach Bob Bowman said.

The 18-time Olympic gold medalist and world record-holder in the 100 meters, 200 fly and 400 individual medley, retired after the 2012 London Olympics but returned to competition in April. The nationals, which start today in Irvine, Calif., will show how much progress the 29-year-old has made, Bowman told reporters on Tuesday.

"We will see how it goes this week and maybe, if there is anything after that, we will see how it goes and go from there," Bowman said. "I don't think we will really know until after this week. After this week we will have a pretty good picture of if he is ahead or if he is behind."

Phelps' view of his current form was vague. "It could be better, it could be worse," he said.

Phelps will compete in the 100 freestyle, 100 butterfly, 100 backstroke and 200 individual medley.

If those go well, he will head to Australia later this month for the Pan Pacific Championships with an eye on next year's world championships in Russia.

But while Phelps and American Conference

Bowman may be trying to keep expectations low and avoiding talk about Rio, the swimmer's actions indicate an athlete who is working hard to get back to his best.

Phelps was well above his competing weight when he returned but said he has adjusted his diet to get back in shape.

"I was 30 pounds heavier than I am now when I got back in the water," he said. "I was eating whatever I wanted and I wasn't exercising but I knew that to get back into the shape I wanted to be in, something had to change.

"I actually went through a phase where I cut out red meat for six months just to see what it would do. I was eating more chicken, more fish, more salads just eating cleaner and fresher. I saw a little bit of difference and I've started sort of gradually adding red meat here and there."

Bowman said he was glad to see Phelps come back for the right reasons.

"I don't think he is doing it because he is bored and there is nothing else to do, I think he is doing it because there is some unfinished business he thinks he can accomplish," Bowman said.

Phelps smiled at the reference to "unfinished business" but declined to elaborate on what that might mean.

MLS stars set to take on German champs: World Cup stars will be on display for both teams tonight in the Major League Soccer All-Star Game in Portland, Ore. The contest pits the MLS stars against the reigning German champions, Bayern Munich. Bayern is led by players who helped Germany win the World Cup in Brazil last month. U.S. national team captain, forward Clint Dempsey (Seattle Sounders), will play for MLS along with Team USA midfielders Michael Bradley (Toronto FC), Graham Zusi (Sporting Kansas City) and Kyle Beckerman (Real Salt Lake); defenders Matt Besler (Kansas City) and DeAndre Yedlin (Seattle); and backup goalie Nick Rimando (Salt Lake).

Tests show Nadal's recovery on track: Rafael

Nadal's recovery from a wrist injury that ruled him out of two U.S. Open tuneup events is progressing, the Spanish tennis federation (RFET) said after the world's No. 2-ranked player underwent tests. Nadal sustained the injury during practice late last month and the 28-year-old Majorcan left-hander has been training with a cast on his right wrist. He was forced to withdraw from this week's Rogers Cup in Toronto and next week's Cincinnati Open, putting in doubt his title defense at the year's final grand slam at Flushing Meadows.

You wouldn't expect the selection of Sims to be greeted with open arms in the running backs room. The Bucs already had a logjam of ballcarriers when the team ignored more glaring needs such as guard to add to a position of strength.

The depth was born from injury. Starter Doug Martin, who rushed for 1,454 yards as a rookie, tore the labrum in his left shoulder in Week 6 at Atlanta last season and was done. Backup Mike James broke his ankle three games later. Bobby Rainey, claimed off waivers from the Browns, carried the rushing load the rest of the way. Each finished the season with more than 500 yards rushing.

Martin and Rainey are 5-9 and 5-8, respectively. James seems to tower over them at 5-11. None is as physically imposing as Sims, who reminds former Bears and now Bucs running backs coach Tim Spencer of Chicago's Matt Forte.

"I think you can tell, especially at skill positions, does a guy have it?" coach Lovie Smith said. "Charles Sims, I would say, has it. He hasn't played a game and right now we're not live an awful lot. But you can see enough in him to like his future with us. Just talking about it, that's the last thing. He can carry the ball or he can catch the ball. Protections for any young back, that's the thing that they will have the most trouble with early on. But he's picked things up fairly well quickly.

Sims, 23, had to be fast on his feet to pick up a new offense, transferring to West Virginia as a senior after three solid seasons at Houston. Mountaineers coach Dana Holgorsen had been the Cougars' offensive coordinator when Sims was a freshman.

All told, Sims caught 203 passes in his career, making him a perfect fit for the Bucs offense under coordinator Jeff Tedford.

"He's a big guy that's very elusive, has great feet, really good skills running or catching the football and running routes," Tedford said. "He understands pass protections. For a young guy, he's picked that up really, really well."

Sims puts it another way. "You can't get the quarterback hit or you won't be playing. That's the most important thing, pass blocking," he said.

The addition of Sims has been good for Martin, who averaged only 3.6 yards per carry before his injury. Martin doesn't seem too concerned that Sims could significantly cut into his carries.

"Nobody likes rotten apples," Martin said about the prospect of staying fresher this season.

Sims, a Houston native, runs a 4.48 40-yard dash, making him one of the fastest players on the team. He grew up idolizing Barry Sanders but his running style is more like James Wilder's.

"We are very deep there," Tedford said of running back. "I'm really impressed by their knowledge. They all bring something different. They all have skill. They all catch the football really well. They're smart and they can run between the tackles and they have speed outside. They're really versatile guys. It's a good group of guys to work with and I'm anxious to watch them in the game."

COLLEGE FOOTBALL NOTEBOOK FSU to pitch in for Winston insurance policy

WIRE REPORTS

Florida State is helping Heisman Trophy winner Jameis Winston cover payments toward a $10 million injury insurance policy, as approved by NCAA guidelines.

The school's Student Assistant Fund can be used to "assist student-athletes in meeting financial needs that arise in conjunction with participation in intercollegiate athletics, enrollment in an academic curriculum or that recognize academic achievement."

The premium on the highest "loss of value" and injury policies is reportedly $60,000.

Winston, who also plays for the Seminoles' baseball underclassmen, are also in the early conversation as possible first-round quarterback prospects. Baylor senior Bryce Perry also ranks among that group.

Family of Cal player files wrongful death suit: The family of former California football player Ted Agu filed a wrongful death lawsuit against the Regents of the University of California, alleging "reckless and negligent behavior" by the staff toward an athlete known to have sickle cell trait.

The lawsuit filed in California Superior Court repeatedly said that the university was negligent for hiring and retaining trainer Robert Jackson, who previously worked at Central Florida, where he was the sole certified athletic trainer present when wide receiver Ereck Plancher died following conditioning drills in March 2008.

The suit says that Jackson was the Bo Jackson to be a multi-sport pro. Yet, the quarterback projected as a top-10 draft pick in 2015 said he plans to graduate from Florida State, not enter the NFL early.

Entering his redshirt sophomore season on the heels of a national championship, Heisman Trophy and 40-touchdown pass season, Winston could be enticed to leave school with another year of bigtime accomplishments.

While he has made news of the unflattering kind away from football, pro scouts project him as a high pick. NFLDraftScout. com includes him among the top potentially available passers in its soon-to-be-released 2015 draft rankings. Oregon's Marcus Mariota and UCLA's Brett Hundley, also most experienced trainer at the scene when Agu died after experiencing "extreme fatigue" during an offseason training run in Berkeley on Feb. 7. The family's attorneys argue that, like Plancher, Agu had sickle cell trait and should not have been put through a "lethal conditioning drill."

FSU defensive coordinator gets raise: Florida State

defensive coordinator Charles Kelly received a raise to go along with his promotion. Kelly's salary has increased to $500,000 and he received an extension through the 2017 season. He was promoted from linebackers coach during the offseason after Jeremy Pruitt left to take the defensive coordinator position at Georgia. Kelly made $275,000 last season before bonuses.

Seven of nine Florida State assistants reached new deals that run from 2014-2017. Kelly, assistant head coach/ offensive line coach Rick Trickett and co-offensive coordinator Randy Sanders are the three highest paid assistants at $500,000 each. New linebackers coach Bill Miller is signed from 2014-2016 and defensive ends coach Sal Sunseri is in the final year of a one-year deal.

Florida State is paying its assistants a combined $3.375 million.

Chicago Bears tight end Martellus Bennett was fined and suspended indefinitely for a fight Monday at training camp with rookie first-round pick Kyle Fuller.

Bennett did not practice Tuesday and general manager Phil Emery said the suspension will prevent Bennett from being involved in all team activities. Bennett was not present at Olivet Nazarene University in Bourbonnais, Ill., and Emery said it's unknown when he will return.

No surfing the Web. No selfies or tweets. And more important from a football standpoint: no watching replays of the last snap.

"The purity of the game has always been not having video," Tennessee Titans coach Ken Whisenhunt to the field while trying to force a fumble in Monday's practice. Bennett, riled by the jarring blow, got to his feet and pulled Fuller to the ground. Coach Marc Trestman, who is preaching throughout camp the need for unity and character to achieve the team's lofty goals, stopped practice immediately.

Emery said he informed the team of the Bears' decision on Bennett, who signed a four-year, $20 million deal in March 2013. The Bears would not disclose the amount of Bennett's fine.

Browns list Hoyer as starter: The Cleveland Browns listed Brian Hoyer as their starting quarterback on the first depth chart of the preseason. Johnny Manziel was No. 2, but Browns coach Mike Pettine said the order could change after every game. A starter has yet to

Indianapolis Colts tight end Dwayne Allen, though, suggested that allowing video would improve the sport by making games even more competitive. And just as instant replay, once revolutionary, is now widely accepted and has been expanded over the years, the same could take place with the tablets. Adding ized: New Orleans Saints owner Tom Benson was hospitalized in White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., as a precaution after receiving oxygen. The 87-year-old Benson has been attending practice at the Saints' new training camp facility in the mountains of West Virginia. "The altitude got to him. He's fine," Saints spokesman Greg Bensel said.

Around the league:

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers signed defensive ends Ryne Giddins and James Ruffin, while linebacker Jeremy Grable (injury) and safety Mycal Swaim were placed on waivers. Giddins was an undrafted rookie out of the University of South Florida this year who participated in the Bucs' rookie minicamp during the spring. He joins the team a day after the Bucs signed another former USF Bull, safety Mark Joyce. ...

The Denver Broncos signed defensive lineman Brian Sanford, video is possible in the future, NFL spokesman Brian McCarthy said.

That would need to go through the league's competition committee, just as the introduction of tablets did. The NFL signed a sponsorship deal with Microsoft last year, which includes the standard promotions of sticking the league's logo on products and a more sophisticated collaboration of making NFL content available on Xbox.

But the company also became a sort of bonus IT department, engineering its Surface tablets to Green Bay Packers offensive lineman Don Barclay was carted off the practice field with what the Green Bay Press-Gazette reported as a torn ACL in his right knee. That would be a season-ending injury for Barclay, considered the team's top reserve lineman after he started 15 games at right tackle last season. ...

The Cleveland Browns added four players to their roster, signing tight ends Martell Webb and Kyle Auffray, linebacker Keith Pough and wide receiver Tim Smith. Webb spent time with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in 2011....

With David Wilson's career ended by a neck injury, the New York Giants moved Peyton Hillis up to No. 2 on the depth chart at running back. The Giants waived Wilson and then placed him on injured reserve. The Giants also waived defensive end Kendrick Adams and signed defensive end Israel Idonije and and tight end Jerome Cunningham.

And the devices couldn't be vulnerable to hacking — a real concern in a league famous for paranoid coaches, where the term "Spygate" was spawned.

The tablets will be locked in a temperature-controlled cart by the NFL during the week. They'll operate on a secure wireless network in stadiums.

GABRIELA MENDOZA Let's Go! Editor

I want your photos, content and more hy, it's August already! Seems like this year is just flying on by. Doesn't it? Well, I hope that between your busy schedules you can continue to find the time to send me your photos for Around Town, your events for the Out and About section and anything else you wish to share with other Let's Go! readers.

Your feedback is also very much appreciated. A Let's Go! reader recently brought to our attention that our Out and About section lists a lot of live music happenings, but we don't always say what type of music it is. In order to make this section more reader-friendly, we've asked that submitters let us know what type of live music will be featured, such as country, jazz, trop rock, oldies, etc. So far, we have gotten some response but I hope that in the next month or so we can get even more musical categories listed. In the meantime, please continue submitting your content to LetsGo@sun-herald.com.

Explore Venice this week

W enice has beaches for people and even one for dogs. All have fossils of prehistoric shark, horse and occasional mammoth teeth plus sting-ray barbs and even an occasional native American artifact.

Fishing is popular along the beach and on the Venice Fishing Pier. So is eating fish, especially on the waterfront at Sharky's Restaurant at the Pier, at the Crow's Nest adjacent to the Venice Jetty and at the recently opened Marker Four adjacent to the Hatchett Creek Bridge. My seafood of choice is Florida lobster when available or the rock shrimp that are nearly always available at Capt. Eddy's in neighboring Nokomis. I save all other fish for everyone else. Occasionally I am tempted such as when a friend orders fish and chips at Robbi's Reef on Bypass 41 South. Robbi's is not on the water but its walls are lined with photos of fish caught in the area as well some taxidermied specimens. The fish in Robbi's aquarium are too small to eat but provide a colorful backdrop to this neighborhood eatery.

Since Venice was named for a town in Italy, it naturally has a collection of terrific Italian eateries such as Made in Italy and Casariano on Venice Avenue and my personal favorite, Luna Ristorante at the corner of North Nokomis and West Tampa avenues. Not only is the food good and portions ample but the owners restored the historic building to its 1927 finery, with stunning detail work around the doorways. Sam Altieri added well-thought-out flowers and greenery. Within the building is her husband Mike Altieri's sports memorabilia collection (worth a trip on its own). An added outdoor porch facing North Nokomis Avenue and Venice Theatre features a pergola above and hand-striped pilasters for the railing. Large rocks adorned with metal letters spelling LUNA, do what good signs should do without the visual cacophony of neon, or in-your-face block letters. This may be the best historic restoration in the city and certainly the most tasteful signage.

After dinner, head to neighboring Venice Theatre for "Cabaret" on the mainstage or a cabaret-style show in the Pinkerton. Call 941-488-1115.

To learn more about Venice, visit the Venice Museum and Archives, 351 S. Nassau St. from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. any Monday or Wednesday.

'Get on Up'

By MICK LASALLE San Francisco Chronicle

Not every important artist makes for a good biopic. The story is the crucial element. The artist has to start somewhere, go somewhere and end up somewhere. The destinations can be physical or spiritual. Artists might stay in one location for 50 years but remake the universe inside their mind, and even that can be dramatic, so long as they take a complete inner journey. In the absence of that journey, that completion, the audience walks out of the theater with no sense of arrival.

This is the challenge posed by the life of James Brown, a challenge that "Get on Up" can't overcome. Brown definitely started somewhere, in the most soul-crushing poverty. And he definitely went somewhere, to the heights of pop stardom, wealth and achievement. But he ended up in a solipsistic dead end, artistically irrelevant for decades and lost inside his own legend. Neither a hero nor a cautionary tale, his life hovers in an odd space — genuinely amazing and impressive, and definitely theatrical, but not quite dramatic.

To their credit, director Tate Taylor and a trio of screenwriters do a good job of disguising the movie's central vacancy through a bold approach to the storytelling. They begin in 1988, with a scene in which the 56-year-old Brown flies into a rage and threatens a group of people with a rifle. From there, they flash back to 1968 and show Brown, on board a plane in Vietnam, getting shot at by surfaceto-air missiles. Every other passenger is screaming, but Brown is perfectly relaxed, sure that nothing can happen to him.

These scenes announce, "This guy is crazy" and "You're going to have a good time," and for most of the way that's true. The opening minutes also let us know that, however zany Brown might be, the movie intends to match him. Throughout "Get on Up," Brown (Chadwick Boseman) keeps looking into the camera and acknowledging our presence. Most audaciously, this even happens during intensely dramatic moments.

Probably because they realize that Brown's life trails off into a 30-year ellipsis, the filmmakers flash back and forth through time, zigzagging around Brown's life, making poetic connections between events. This isn't the easiest way to plot a story, and it's a kind of high-wire act, in that it's difficult to know what fits together and what doesn't. Whether this approach was built into the script or discovered in the editing, it works for the most part. That is, it works until it doesn't.

There are moments of clumsiness. At one point, a character announces he's Jewish, for no apparent reason ... except that the next scene shows a coffin bearing a star of David being lowered into the ground. Great, so we know who's dead. In another scene, apropos of nothing, the death of Martin Luther King Jr. is announced. This turns out to be a setup for the next scene, in which Brown heads off a near riot at a Boston concert the following day. Boseman plays Brown as a mystery, someone who built up a wall of egomania around him as protection against the rejection he knew as a child; and as an artist in heedless pursuit of a sound. He is a lousy husband, a tyrannical boss and a useless friend, but he's probably the most interesting person everyone who knows him knows.

Cape Haze Marina employees prepare for the big event last year during the Pirate Poker Run, sponsored by the Englewood Florida Chamber of Commerce.

Pirates to invade Englewood for Poker Run

By ELAINE ALLEN-EMRICH

COMMUNITY NEWS EDITOR

The waters along Englewood Beach will be invaded by pirates this weekend.

Those won't be pesky pirates, but ones on a mission to help needy children in Englewood, while having a boatload of fun.

The Englewood Florida Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the sixth annual Pirate Poker Run Friday and Saturday, Aug. 8-9, by land and by sea in the greater Englewood area.

The event is designed to bring together a fun day of pirate mayhem while raising funds to benefit the BackPack Kidz program that helps to provide weekend meals for about 4,800 Charlotte County youth every year.

"The (BackPack Kidz) program provides nutritional support to children from Vineland Elementary (School) over the weekend, helping children and families that may otherwise go without a meal," event co-chairman Ken Stead said.

The event kicks off with a Captain's Party Aug. 8 at Flounders Restaurant & Tiki Bar, where participants can pick up their swag bag (with poker cards, a T-shirt, a Koozie cup and more) and register if not preregistered. Aug. 9, additional registration will be available starting at 10 a.m. at Cape Haze Marina. The first hand is $25. The second hand is only $10. Participants can buy "The Boat Load Hand" for $100, which includes five poker hands, five T-shirts and five Koozies.

Participants will travel to five stops to draw cards to complete their hand. The stops are Zekes at Royal Palm Marina, Flounders Restaurant & Tiki Bar, Weston's WannaB Inn, Stump Pass Grille at Stump Pass Marina, and Cape Haze Marina. Hands must be turned in at Cape Haze Marina by 5 p.m., followed by an awards ceremony.

"A tremendous amount of the participants arrive in costume," Stead said. "Even though it's the heat of August, people come dressed in full pirate regalia. The wait staff at each location dresses in costume. There's entertainment at the restaurants. There's temporary tattoos and face painting. People just come to have a really good time. As the day progresses, the event gets bigger because people want to join in. Everyone ends up at the same location for the last stop. One year, a group did the poker run on bicycles."

Last year, the chamber donated $1,100 to the Charlotte County Veterans Stand Down program, through the participation of about 400 "pirates." This year, the group hopes to be able to give even more to the BackPack Kidz program.

"The event has doubled in size in the past three years," said Stead, adding the Pirate Poker Run was the brainchild of a group who graduated from a community leadership class six years ago. "They handed it over to the chamber to run. The alumni (check) on us to make sure we are doing a good job with it."

In addition to participants dressing like pirates, those who choose to ride on

"They are bringing cannons and (fake) guns," he said. "The cannons will be fired at each location."

The first-place prize for the best poker hand is $500; second, $250; and third, $100.

"This year, we are introducing a random hand drawing from all the hands turned in," Stead said. "Other prizes will be awarded for the best individual pirate costume and best crew costumes."

 Custom crafts, whimsical art, cool air and hot deals at Venice Summer Craft Show Escape the heat on Saturday, Aug. 9, by attending the Venice Community Center's Annual Summer Craft Show. The event, sponsored by the center's partners, takes place in a spacious, air-conditioned facility located in the heart of Venice Island's Cultural Park.

Its neighbors are the Venice Public Library, the Venice Art Center, Triangle Inn, the Venice Archives, and the Venice Arboretum with its Gazebo and Public Art. Chairman, Marilyn Carcioppolo, her husband, Vito, along with Betty Watson, Susan Cairo, and a host of volunteers, will provide special luncheon treats in the Center's Craft Cafe.

"We're excited to once again be serving our very popular grilled sausage, peppers and onions sandwiches and huge Sugar Dale hot dogs. Detwiler's, our local Farm Market, donates all the fresh vegetables for our grilled sandwiches, and we've added mac and cheese to our menu this year," said Marilyn. "All proceeds from the show benefit the Venice Community Center and its many free activities that are offered throughout the year."

Program coordinator at the Venice Community Center Dorian Mattox expects between 40-50 vendors and crafters who will be selling a wide variety of goods.

Judi Light, a British-born, Canadian-raised artist, recently relocated to the Venice area from Washington State. Her work can be viewed online at www.lighttouchart.com.

"I've found my whimsical niche by creating Wee Folk Art," Light said.

She creates "touching, humorous paintings that uplift and lighten the soul" by using engineering pens to produce ink drawings and adding layers of watercolor washes. Many of her originals may be viewed at the Marietta Museum of Art and Whimsy in Sarasota from October through May. She's also the author of "The Magical World of Twigshire" a feel-good book for all ages.

Denise Crawford of Denebi Designs will be displaying and selling handmade silver-plated antique vintage silverware bracelets and a wide array of items such as necklaces, pendants, key chains, watches, rings, bud vases and earrings. Crawford, who has been attending the Venice Center's Craft Show for the past two years, travels to antique stores and flea markets around Florida in order to find rare silverware for her creations.

Crawford and fellow artist, Debi Kenney, welcome special orders from customers who want to transform their family heirloom silverware into pieces of beautiful jewelry online at www.DenebiDesigns.com.

One of the most popular crafters of wooden bread boards and cutting boards, Ted Lane, returns this year. He uses three kinds of hard wood to make "End Grain Butcher Block Patterned Cutting Boards" with rubber feet on the underside to prevent slipping. Unlike machine made boards that are flat with the wood grain running parallel, Lane's boards have geometric patterns or circular rings that are scratch proof and durable.

"I use a century old process," said Lane. "I travel to Goshen, Indiana every year to purchase black walnut, red cherry, sassafras, hickory, and maple hard woods from an Amish saw mill. Customers don't have to worry about damaging the beautiful design. After all, who said that cutting boards have to be ugly?"

Place an order at tedlane@comcast.net. Brenda Spalding, of www.abcbooks4children. com, will be attending with nine authors, including Carole Stevens Bibisi, Judi Light, Julia Mowery, Kate Nixon, Robert Coons, Linda Schell, Diane Worthen and Lucy Tobias.

Admission to the Summer Craft Show is free. It takes place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Venice Community Center located at 326 S. Nokomis Ave., Venice. For more information, call 941-861-1380.

Yo ho ho and a tankard of soup

o matter how you look at it, 20 years in the restaurant business is a long time. When a whole family persists at it for more than half a century, it's a saga.

The Arbuckles of Venice and Nokomis are variously, creative, eccentric, dogged, gregarious, flamboyant, occasionally overextended, and rarely boring.

It all started with an 18th-century Cape Cod sea captain's house that looked like something out of Christmas in Connecticut. In 1958, when Bill Arbuckle installed an inn-restaurant there, antique buffs and artists flocked in, sometimes booking a year in advance.

It was such a success that Bill's brother, Bob, in tony Sherborn, Mass., bought into the concept. Their doctor had advised a warmer climate for Bob's wife, Janet who suffered from arthritis. So, Bob moved the family to Nokomis, opening the Admiral Benbow Club, a cluster of cottages on Casey Key Road. Years later, author pal John D. MacDonald would drawl, "Janet and Bob have been down PHOTO BY SUE WADE here since a dog could nap any Dave Arbuckle after lunch morning in the rush at Curry Creek Café. middle of Casey Key Road."

SUE WADE

Sun Correspondent Not one to take this as another rejection from the universe, Bob opened The Admiral's Wardroom, transforming a Nokomis boats/bait/beer joint into a waterfront co-Ionial tavern unlike anything Florida could have seen in the 1700s. Flickering candles, wood paneling, beamed ceilings, blue tablecloths, yellow fancy-fold napkins, pewter tankards of Admiral's Grog.

It worked. Hosts Bob and Janet were soon called "Mr. and Mrs. A." Bob sported plaid trousers and green jackets embroidered with lobsters. They befriended everyone to Siesta Key and beyond. Local literati MacDonald, Jan de Hartog, and Walter Farley (The Black Stallion) popped in.

> Cocktails flowed, gals swanned about dangling a Pall Mall in one hand and a Golden Stinger or a Whisper in the other. This was the life!

But Janet wanted more than just to be Wardroom hostess. Afire with ideas, she leased space in Siesta Key for The Left Bank café, promoted it with a Wardroom cookbook, and went to town.

Son Dave, chef-owner of Nokomis' Curry Creek Café, recalls, "At first she cannibalized from the Wardroom when Bob wasn't looking. She'd collect whatever she could in 5-gallon buckets and drive it to her place, where the chef would cook it up. This worked for a couple weeks, but if they hadn't run things like a real restaurant, Bob would've closed them down."

In this cocktail-addled beachside town, Janet needed a catchy drink.

"There's no time when Bloody Marys are inappropriate," she chirped.

The Left Bank had only 30 seats; 150 were needed for a liquor license. Janet discussed this with the Division of Alcoholic Beverages and Tobacco. "They are not amused," she

pouted. "And there's PHOTO PROVIDED simply no way around

Janet knew she could use liquor in recipes, if not in drinks. So, Bloody Mary Soup went on the menu—ice cold, in mugs with spoons, celery, and Saltines. Soon Bloody Marys were flowing like, um, soup, and she'd found her niche.

Before long, other restaurateurs complained, and the state investigated. But seeing as she hadn't exactly broken the law, they shrugged.

The week the Wardroom was sold in 1981, Bob Arbuckle died and missed the closing.

But the saga didn't end. Psychics claim Bob's spirit believes he still owns today's Pelican Alley, flicking kitchen switches, moving mops, and making appearances for ghost hunters.

And, remember, there's a whole family carrying on here.

Rob Arbuckle — with his daughter Mariel, now the owner — has run Venice's Left Coast Seafood Co. for 13 years, in two different Venice locations.

Dave Arbuckle got his start at 13 at the Wardroom. He later pioneered in edible flowers and mingled in Washington, D.C., chef circles, then returned home to launch an award-winning Indonesian-American café with his wife Rofi.

Although Dave's daughters declined what he calls a life of "smelling like shrimp and garlic all the time," there's a new member of the clan, Dave's granddaughter Penelope, who might not mind.

"It's just typical restaurant family life," says Dave. Know a restaurant or bar with a good story to tell? Sue Wade wants to hear about it, at sue.gleasonwade@cengage.com.

The Sciacca family knows pizza. But they also know how to make a whole menu full of traditional Italian dishes. After all, Sal Sr. brought all his favorite recipes over from Sicily, Italy.

Now, he owns Father & Son Pizzeria with his sons Sal Jr. and Andy, and since they opened the Punta Gorda restaurant almost two years ago, word has been spreading about the authentic Italian food.

Sal Jr. talked about this as he hand-rolled his bread on the counter just before opening for lunch.

"Me, my dad, my brother and both of our fiancés are the ones who work here," he said. "Everything is done by hand — the bread we make every day, 30 to 40 loaves a day. Then, when we run out, we run out."

Father & Son only seats about 28 people, but one of the best things about having a small restaurant is that it's easier to control the quality of every single ingredient that goes into the food. Sal Jr. said they not only make their own dough each day, but they also make their own fresh mozzarella, which they use on the Capresi salad, the pasta dishes and atop their famous pizzas.

The house-style pizza served at the restaurant is a New York, thin-crust, but diners can also choose from stuffed pizzas, and calzones and strombolis filled with a variety of fresh vegetables and meats. There are also daily lunch and dinner specials, plus great prices on delivery, pick-up or eat-in pizzas on select nights.

"Monday, we have two large pies (16 inches each) with one topping for $18," Sal Jr. said. "Wednesday, we have two large plain pies and one dozen garlic knots for $18, and Saturday, we have two large pepperoni pizzas and 12 garlic knots for $24.99."

If you don't feel like ordering pizza, there are other traditional Italian dishes on the menu from which to choose. Eggplant, veal and chicken Parmesans, eggplant rollitini, baked ziti and homemade manicotti will put the taste of Italy in your mouth, and there are also lighter selections like salads, and hot and cold sandwiches.

Although the restaurant is small, the pizzeria can cater for large off-site events. So if you're planning an event and would like for Father & Son to prepare food for pick-up, they will help you create a menu that will please all your quests.

Sal Jr. said his family feels fortunate to have had great support from the Punta Gorda community since they opened the doors two years ago, and he feels positive about the restaurant's future success.

"We have a very good local clientele base, and the word of mouth has been great," he said. "I would bet that every week we get 10 to 20 new customers."

Father & Son Pizzeria is at 5240 Duncan Road in Punta Gorda, and is open Monday through Thursday, from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.; and from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. For more information, call 941-347-7117 or find them on Facebook.

Nokomis Breakfast House offers cozy dining atmosphere

One may not expect to come upon such a charming cottage nestled quietly right off busy U.S. 41, but it does exist.

It's called The Nokomis Breakfast House, a quiet retreat offering outdoor deck seating under a massive oak tree, or indoor dining in one of two brightly decorated breakfast rooms. Talented former interior designer Wendy Goldberg created this oasis of sorts, a place where friends may meet to enjoy a leisurely morning or afternoon meal.

The idea of opening a breakfast house came to Goldberg in a flash as she was driving down Fruitville Road in Sarasota. She spied a small house that was falling apart and thought: "I could really fix up the place to look great."

"Then I went a step further and mentioned to friends that I'd like to open up a breakfast house in that spot.

According to regular customer, Barbara Seed of Rotonda West, "'The food is to die for."

She often orders homemade soups for lunch. Manager Sherri Sandstrom recommends the made-to-order omelets as there's sure to be some that will appeal.

Choices include turkey Florentine, lobster, or shrimp with Monterey Jack cheese, or the Tuscan-pesto goat cheese, sun-dried tomatoes, fresh spinach, and mushrooms. The combinations seem endless. Owner and sometime breakfast cook, Goldberg, recommends the corned beef hash.

"Ours is an old New England family recipe," she said. "It takes us four hours to prepare, and I can't think of any other place that prepares hash this way. All our meats, eggs, and produce are bought locally, and our Sea Breeze Coffee comes from Bradenton. We're proud of the fact that our restaurant has won best small business breakfast

The staff recommends the homemade blueberry and cinnamon scones, six tasty treats served with real butter and jam. If diners order form the "Pancake Parlor" list, they have a choice of plain, banana, cranberry, white nut, or island style, the house specialty: three fluffy pancakes with coconut, grilled pineapple, and macadamia nuts. Of course, pancakes come with real butter and real maple syrup.

Some gluten-free choices are available upon request, and the stuffed French toast is a popular treat with sourdough stuffed with cream cheese and berry compote. View the entire Breakfast House menu online at www.thebreakfasthouse.net/ breakfast-menu.html.

The North Jetty — an old park that is new again

By KIM COOL Features Editor

On a recent Sunday drive along Casey Key Road, I discovered an old park that is new again — the North Jetty Park in Nokomis.

The site of an old (nearly 70 years) Tampa streetcar which served as the North Jetty Fish Camp for at least the past 35 years, the fish camp was the subject of a lengthy series of articles by Venice Gondolier Sun guest writer Deirdre Callanan. Only a discerning viewer can find hints of its origin.

Callanan's final article on the fish camp came at the end of the year when owner Marilyn Sawyer retired after 35 years. Callanan's series featured the intriguing folks that came and went over those years.

New landscaping and other amenities installed by the county have recently transformed the area known as the North Jetty Park. There is plenty of parking and a multitude of things to do. One can bring a small boat or kayak and launch it just east of the old street car, paddle to nearby Snake Island, sit at an umbrella table along the jetty watching boats come and go, have a picnic or simply hit the beach. The park is open daily, with parking legal from 6 a.m. to midnight. There is no overnight parking. During turtle season, nighttime beach going is discouraged at most beaches because lighting can disturb nesting and hatching sea turtles.

The morning of my visit, there was a rather large party going on in the park's largest covered pavilion and Snake Island was surrounded with at least 15 boats and kayaks plus their passengers.

A few people were enjoying coffee or some other libation near the old streetcar and a group of nearly 10 was headed to the beach, loaded down with several coolers, large beach umbrellas and more. I was not there long enough to see if they made a second trip.

In another area, some folks were starting up one of the grills as it was nearly lunch time. A mother was leading her youngest daughter toward one of the outdoor showers for some basic sand removal and a young boy was headed to another part of the beach with a kite in hand. There wasn't much wind that day but maybe he could run really fast and manage to launch the kite anyway.

Bird watching, boat watching, fishing, swimming and volleyball are other popular daily activities at the park.

While Venice beach is known far and wide for its fossilized shark teeth, don't count on finding too many on this side of the jetty. It truly is a different beach. The sand is lighter in color and shark teeth are few and far between. Like Venice, it is a turtle nesting beach, but because of the lighter sand, the incubation period is a bit longer as the sand is lighter in color and therefore a bit cooler.

Take plenty of sunscreen, a big umbrella and all your other beach gear for a pleasant day away — yet close to home.

From Interstate 75 take Exit 195 for Laurel Road toward Nokomis. Continue to U.S. 41. Turn left. Continue south to Albee Road. Turn right. Go over the Casey Key Bridge, turn left on Casey Key Road. North Jetty Park will be on the right, almost at the end of the road and the old trolley car will be at the end.

Rocking Eighties Ladies

While pop divas such as Madonna & Whitney Houston were enjoying 1980s success, other women produced rock with an edge. Singer Deborah Harry, along with her band Blondie, set the pace with "Heart of Glass" in 1979, then with a string of new wave rock hits including "Call Me,""The Tide is High" and "Rapture," all peaking at #1. Chrissie Hynde, singing and playing guitar, led the Pretenders with a fresh sound that included the songs "Brass in Pocket (I'm Special)""Back on the Chain Gang,""Middle of the Road" and "Don't Get Me Wrong."

Singer/songwriter Pat Benatar produced a harder rock sound including her best-known songs "Hit Me With Your Best Shot,""Love Is a Battlefield," and "We Belong." With more of a pop sound in the early '80s, the all-female band The Go-Go's recorded "We Got the Beat" and "Vacation." Their lead singer Belinda Carlisle then went solo and had a string of late '80s hits including "Mad About You," "Heaven Is a Place On Earth" and "I Get Weak."

Readers Rock!

Last week, the trivia question asked: Name the '80s pop group who had 11 top ten hits, including 4 from their album "Sports," and whose singer had a cameo appearance in the film Back to the Future.

Answer: Huey Lewis and the News. The first reader to get it right was John Lasky of Venice.

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION: Name the band whose 1968 "Cheap Thrills" album, in the San Francisco psychedelic era, introduced singer Janis Joplin, and the blues-rock classics "Piece of My Heart" and "Summertime" cover.

Email your answer to upbeat@sun-herald.com no later than noon this Friday. The answer and winner (randomly selected) appears next week. Please include your name and city.

The Kapo Kings perform heartfelt melodies with soulful style

By CHRIS KOURAPIS

SUN CORRESPONDENT

As a young man, Tampa born drummer, Kenny Cox, drifted west to rural areas in California and back through Louisiana and South Carolina, playing with a number of popular country/rock bands. He eventually landed in Nashville where he was hired by Dream Works in 1998, performing with notables such as The Dixie Chicks, Steve Forbert, and Randy Travis, to name a few.

"I didn't look anything like I do now. For one thing, I had very long hair. I learned so much playing with the pros, but after a year, I headed back home to Florida and decided to teach myself how to play the guitar using one or two capos," he said.

The capo (pronounced "caypo") Cox explained, is a tool that guitarists use to instantly change the key of the guitar. It can be very helpful when trying to match a song's key to a vocalist's singing range or trying to make key changes between or during songs.

Learning how to play the guitar opened up an entirely new career for Cox. He was already a singer, quite comfortable with singing before large groups. After all, his father was the preacher of a large church in Tampa, and his mother sang in the choir.

"I guess you could say that music comes naturally to me. Once I hear a tune in my head, I can teach myself how to play it," said Cox, who organized the Kapo Kings about five years ago. "I'm most influenced by the music of Verlon Thompson, a professional songwriter and traveling troubadour. I love Americana, and with the help of Thompson and acoustic roots musician and photographer, Frank Serio, I've been able to produce my first CD, 'The Far Side of Crazy' that I expect to release shortly."

Kenny Cox owns a large property in Punta Gorda where he often jams with fellow musicians who play in Punta Gorda, Fort Myers and Matlacha. His group, The Kapo Kings, was named quite appropriately, after the capo, the instrument so widely used by guitarists.

"We decided to change the spelling to go along with our title, the Kings," said Cox.

The Kapo Kings are seasoned musicians who are quite comfortable playing with "Death by Fire" — that means never rehearsing before going on stage.

"I like it because it puts pressure on us as musicians. We have more fun that way, and the audiences love it when we interact with them during a performance," said Cox.

Audiences also appreciate that the group's backing tracks are painstakingly recorded by Cox himself, allowing for a live band sound. The Kapo Kings, five members who play classic American, country, soul, and rock music, include: Kenny Cox, guitar and vocals; J.P. Hoover, guitar, harp, vocals; Dave dust, lead guitar, vocals, Jeff Brunderman, guitar, vocals; and Rick Russell, keyboard, mandolin, banjo, and vocals.

They're in demand to play at music festivals and perform from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. every other Wednesday at The Edison Restaurant, 3583 McGregor Boulevard in Fort Myers and from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. every third Friday at The Hideaway Sports Bar, 1418 Dean Street in Fort Myers.

'Collected Stories' closes Banyan's season

By KIM COOL Features Editor

Fame was fleeting for Ruth Steiner who published a book of short stories while in her 20s. Remaining on the literary scene as a teacher, she is blind-sided when a student writes a novel based on the teacher's affair with another writer of the time, poet Delmore Schwartz who was a real person. Steiner and her student are the creations of Margulies. The play was a Pulitzer Prize finalist and a Drama Desk nominee. "Collected Stories by Donald Margulies, opens Aug. 7 and continujes throuh Aug 24 in the Cook Theater at the FSU Center for the Performing Arts, 5555 North Tamiami Trail, Sarasota.

HURRICANE CHARLEY — 10 YEARS LATER

Celebrate with the Stone Crabs this weekend

By DEBBIE FLESSNER SUN CORRESPONDENT

For many people who lived through the devastation of Hurricane Charley, 10 years ago almost seems like yesterday. But those people may also recall that as horrific as the actual event was, it was what happened within the Punta Gorda community in the aftermath of the storm that was truly memorable.

That sense of pride is the feeling that the Punta Gorda Chamber of Commerce and the Charlotte Stone Crabs hope to evoke when they hold their Hurricane Charley 10th Commemoration event on Saturday, Aug. 9, at the Charlotte Park Stadium.

John Wright, chamber president, said that he had been initially looking at partnering with the city of Punta Gorda for some type of a 10th anniversary event.

"Then the Stone Crabs came to us and said

IF YOU GO

WHAT: Hurricane Charley 10th Commemoration, with the Charlotte Stone Crabs and Punta Gorda. WHEN: Saturday, Aug. 9, 6 p.m. WHERE: Charlotte Sport Park, 2300 El Jobean Road, Port Charlotte

INFO: In order for Project Illumination to get a portion of ticket proceeds, game tickets must be ordered on the Punta Gorda Chamber website at www.PuntaGordaChamber.com. Click the "online payment center" button on the upper right. For more information, call 941-639-3720.

they have a game on Aug. 9, so we could partner with them and the community for the event," he said. "We want to thank everyone for what they did during the storm and afterward, and for how they've helped Punta Gorda progress over the past 10 years."

The Stone Crabs will be playing the Jupiter Hammerheads the night of the event, and a ticket to the game is only $9. If you want, you can pay $19 and get not only the game ticket, but also an all-you-can-eat buffet of hot dogs, chips, popcorn, cookies and sodas. Punta Gorda vice-mayor Carolyn Freeland is scheduled to throw out the first pitch, and there will be fireworks after the game.

Wright said that his goal is to get everyone who lived through Hurricane Charley, came into town to help immediately afterward, and also those who moved into the area later to live and create new businesses, to come out to the game. All of those people were integral to rebuilding the Charlotte area and making it a viable community once again.

"After five years, they did the Spirit of Punta Gorda and erected the statue in Laishley Park," Wright said. "At this event, a percentage of the money from each ticket sold will go to Project Illumination."

Project Illumination is a plan to light up the entire city of Punta Gorda for the holidays, which, Wright said, seemed to be an appropriate way of "shining a light" on Punta Gorda's progress over the last 10 years. The project will light strategically-placed buildings like the historic courthouse, the Charlotte Harbor Event Center, the Sunloft Center, the downtown parking garage and City Hall, and will take place at the same time as the Fishermen's Village lighting.

The event starts at 6 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 9. at the Charlotte Sport Park, 2300 El Jobean Road, Port Charlotte. In order for Project Illumination to get a portion of ticket proceeds, game tickets must be ordered on the Punta Gorda Chamber website at www. PuntaGordaChamber.com. Celebrate with the whole family at American Legion

PROVIDED BY AMERICAN LEGION POST 110

At 4:17 pm on Aug. 13, 2004, Hurricane Charley slammed into the Port Charlotte American Legion Post 110 and at that precise time their clock was wrenched off the foyer wall. The clock, never to start again now hangs in the reception area of the American Legion Post 110 as a timeless reminder of that day.

On Saturday, Aug. 16, 2014, 10 years after the hurricane struck, Commander Michael "Gambler" Raymond, his officers and American Legion Post 110 members are hosting a celebration for residents of Charlotte and surrounding counties to join them in celebrating Charlotte County's 19 cold drinks and ice-cream to beat the heat. Entertainment while dining will be music by DJ "The Connections."

There will be activities throughout the day for all the family. For the children, there is a water slide, a bounce house, face painting and interactive computer games provided through the Punta Gorda Police Department.

Adults can enjoy classic car and show, a display of military vehicles and memorabilia and a replica of the Vietnam Wall. There will be a dunk tank with several community members volunteering to be dunked. Vehicles from the EMS and Charlotte County Sheriff's Office will also be on display depending on availability.

If I had Barrett's I would certainly take a proton pump inhibitor forever, even if I had no symptoms, since I think the evidence, though not definitive, is strong enough that the benefit of cancer reduction outweighs the risks. ANSWER: Seventy-two percent of women report pain during their mammogram, usually rated at less than ⁴/₁₀ on a standard pain scale. However, the pain usually is described as being in the breast, rib or breastbone, or with movement. I've never heard the complaint of jaw and face pain during a mammogram. It could be "referred pain," where pain in one part of the body is misinterpreted by the brain as coming from an entirely different part. In any event, I don't think it should be a cause for worry. I specifically don't think it's heart pain, which sometimes

FOR BETTER OR FOR WORSE By Lynn Johnston

Expectant mom with a past must consider baby's future

DEAR ABBY: Coming out of an abusive relationship in the past, I made some poor decisions. I moved away from home and into pornography and prostitution. I come from a small town, and it became a big deal when it hit the Internet. Everyone in my generation back home knew what I did.

Years later, I'm back home. I have a wonderful husband and we're expecting our first child — a girl. My husband loves and accepts me in spite of my past, and my mother has become my best friend. I love my life here. Nowhere else feels like home.

But I'm worried that my child's life could be miserable here because of my past. She will go to school with the children of people who know my history. No parent would want their child around me and — by extension — her. She may also learn the unsavory things I did.

I'm torn between moving away for her sake or staying. My parents are aging and have no one else to care for them. They can't follow me, but say I should do what is best for the baby. I hate the idea of deserting my parents when they need me. But I also hate that my child will be ostracized. Can you help? — LOST IN THE SOUTH

DEAR LOST: For your child's sake, I think you should relocate. As I'm sure you have already realized, people can be cruel and they love to talk. When children overhear what is said over the back fence, they can be cruel, too, and I'd rather your daughter wasn't subjected to it. (This is not to imply that wherever you go, you might not encounter someone who recognizes you - but the chances are less.)

You don't have to move right away. Take your time and scout out locations. Arrangements can be made for care if your parents need it. But your daughter's welfare must come first.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: When you go to the store for milk and eggs there is a "sellby" date on the package. How long after that date is it safe to use them? — WONDERING IN NEW JERSEY

DEARWONDERING: According to Eatbydate. com, when it comes to milk, the length of time it lasts beyond the expiration date on the carton depends on what kind of milk it is. Lactose-free and non-fat milk last another seven to 10 days. Skim and reduced-fat milk, one week. Whole milk should last five to seven days. Of course, for this to happen, the milk must be stored properly, at a temperature at or below 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

The Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics states that eggs should be refrigerated at the time you buy them and as soon as possible upon your return home, and can be used up to three weeks after the sell-by date if they have been stored property

Opening lead: Nine of \heartsuit

Pass

Pass

Another competitive auction, won by North-South due to the vulnerability — it was too dangerous for East-West to bid on.

Pass

The heart lead was obviously from shortness. There was a loser in each suit, but dummy's diamonds offered the potential to develop an extra trick for a discard. South won the opening lead in hand with the ace and led a low diamond, ducked by West and won with dummy's queen. Had South played a trump at this point, West would have grabbed his ace and led another heart. That would establish a heart trick for the defense, which East would cash when he obtained the lead with a club.

Seeing this danger, declarer made the excellent play of exiting dummy with a club at trick three. This forced East to use his entry before it could do him any good. East played his queen of hearts, setting up his jack, but he had no entry to cash it. South won dummy's king and finally led a trump. West won the ace and tried another club, but declarer ruffed, drew the last trump, and led another diamond. West won his ace, but there was no way for the defense to get a heart trick. The nine of trumps remained in dummy as an entry to the established diamond, and South had a parking place for his heart loser. Well played!
