Sarasota seeks ban on non-medical cannabis

By WARREN RICHARDSON
SUN CORRESPONDENT

SARASOTA — Sarasota County commissioners are reading the tea leaves, and disliking what the future portends, so they want to take preemptive action now.

On Wednesday, commissioners conducted the first of two public hearings on an ordinance that would ban the sale, cultivation and processing of non-medical or recreational marijuana.

Recognizing there is a strong effort underway to place a constitutional amendment on the ballot that would legalize recreational marijuana in the state, commissioners asked County Attorney Steve DeMarsh earlier this summer to draft an ordinance banning it in the county.

While it's not clear if passing an ordinance would survive if the amendment gains passage, commissioners are thinking a local ordinance would survive once the Legislature passes enabling legislation.

"If we had something in effect, it depends on the mood of the Legislature at the time. There is wiggle room in writing the language," said Commission Chairwoman Nancy Detert, a former state senator. "This gives us an out for the future."

DeMarsh added there were "other instances where the Legislature has protected local ordinances."

While commissioners feel there is a need to add a restriction against the sale, cultivation and processing of recreational marijuana, several speakers implored them to not act so fast.

"I don't understand why you're spending time on this when we have an ecological crisis going on off our shores," Bob Costa of Venice said.

"Allow things to transpire before you get reactionary," said Colby Wise, a member of Floridians for Freedom.

"It is not necessary nor is it the will of the people to prohibit the rights of adults to cannabis,"

Red tide kills snook season

FWC says fishermen must catch and release

By STEVE REILLY
STAFF WRITER

Anglers in Charlotte, Sarasota and Lee counties won't be able to keep their catches of snook and redfish next month.

Even though snook season reopens Saturday, the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission announced Thursday a ban that requires fishermen to release snook and redfish in the areas where toxic red tide algae blooms — at least until Sept. 26 when the FWC Commission next meets.

Anglers will be allowed to keep their catch long enough to measure, weigh with a hand-held scale, and photograph their catches before they release the fish back into the water.

The ban affects water bodies in all of Charlotte, Sarasota and Lee counties, and portions of Manatee and Collier counties. The boundary runs along the coast from the Manatee River and Ana Maria Island near Bradenton, south to Gordon Pass near Naples. Regulations outside of the affected counties remain unchanged, including the Sept. 1 snook season opening.

The ban has the support of the Coastal Conservation Association Florida.

"We've seen the devastation to the redfish and snook populations in Southwest Florida, and we support the catch-and-release initiative taken by FWC," CCA executive director Brian Gorski said in a joint press release with the FWC Thursday.

"In working with the FWC on this initiative, we've heard support from members and guides throughout the state who also understand the need for such a change, to ensure that generations to come can enjoy the thrill of catching one of these iconic species," Gorski said.

Mapping State Road 776's future

THE BOTTOM LINE

This is the sixth part of an ongoing Friday series looking at how fast Charlotte County and North Port are growing, and how we're set to manage the changes that are sure to come. Long overlooked as other parts of the Peninsula near and far exploded, it might be this region's turn. Nestled between Sarasota and Fort Myers, the area has remained one of the few relatively undiscovered coastal spots. But that's quickly changing as Florida's Final Frontier launches into a development boom.

Next Friday: What are the hurdles ahead for Southwest Florida?

Englewood's lifeline

By STEVE REILLY

State Road 776 is a true arterial roadway running through the Englewood area and Cape Haze peninsula from South Venice to the Myakka River, then into El Jobean and Murdock in Port Charlotte.

The state road is the life blood for Englewood and other communities along the route. The corridor, however, has no real clear path to the future, at least in Charlotte County.

Since the mid-1990s, Sarasota County has sought to shape future commercial and multi-family development along the nine-mile corridor from South Venice to the Sarasota-Charlotte county line in Englewood at

Unpacking the ban on big bags

Will Charlotte schools follow suit?

SHUTTERSTOCK PHOTO

By KAYLA GLEASON

Following a string of shootings involving high school football games, both Lee and Collier counties have announced they will ban large backpacks and purses from athletic and art events.

Charlotte County school officials are discussing whether they will follow suit.

With the fall football season just beginning, three unrelated shootings have already occurred, two in Florida — one in Jacksonville that left one dead and one in Palm Beach County. The third shooting happened in California. A football game in Illinois was also called off after shots were fired near the stadium; however, no one was injured and it was not connected to the game.

The School District of Lee County, hoping to prevent another tragedy, sent out a statement to families Wednesday night noting their intention to prohibit certain possessions from after-school activities.

"In order to increase the safety of our students, staff and guests at athletic and arts events, the School District of Lee County will no longer allow backpacks and other large bags into stadiums, gymnasiums and theaters," the district said in its release.

Aside from large bags, the district is also banning "any item that could be used as a missile," cans and bottles, coolers, fireworks, horns and lasers.

Locally, similar changes are currently part of an ongoing discussion on school safety, said Charlotte

Drive-thru collapses at South Venice bank

STAFF REPORT

SOUTH VENICE — The Wells Fargo bank in South Venice is closed until further notice due to the collapse of the roof over its drive-thru lanes Wednesday afternoon.

Ashley Lusby, spokesperson for Sarasota County Emergency Services, said the county fire department responded to the bank, 4205 South Tamiami Trail, at 4:05 p.m. after a report of a structure collapse.

"Upon arrival, crews found the drive-thru portion of the building had collapsed," she said.

Lusby said no injuries were reported and the cause of the collapse is unknown.

"There was severe weather in the area at the time," she said, but it's not known what role, if any, the weather played in the incident.

According to the branch's website, its ATM isn't available either.

Charlotte County wants your input

By LIZ HARDAWAY
STAFF WRITER

The ideal community would be accountable, transparent and kind, some citizens told Charlotte County Community Services officials Wednesday.

And they want government to try harder.

"I miss old Punta Gorda values," said Martha Bireda, executive director of Blanchard House in Punta Gorda. "I am very concerned about the changes that are happening and the attitudes of our community," she said noting some developments are gentrifying the growing town.

A group of seven citizens turned out to meet Wednesday morning at the Punta Gorda Housing Authority to discuss the community and how to improve it. This was one of a series of sessions scheduled by Charlotte County's Community Services Division to obtain community input.

Though attendance was smaller than some of the other sessions, the conversation was still vibrant, Eunice Wiley, a local retired resident, said. "A lot of areas of concern were honestly voiced."

"The (moderators), with this seasoned group, did a great job. They allowed us to say (what we wanted to say)," she said. "The idea that we can talk about the past, speak of the present and then our concern for the future; most groups like this, they don't do that."

Wiley also mentioned that children were not included enough in the community. After college, she said, they have nothing here as far as employment, only internships. There's a lack of entry-level positions with livable wages, "therefore our children don't come back."

Bireda wants to see every age in the community be involved and represented. "That's a real community."

A contributing factor to this lack of representation is the limited accessibility of government meetings. "I would like to see a room full of Punta Gorda citizens, not just retired people," Wiley said. "I remember when (working people) had a voice here."

This limited accessibility goes hand-in-hand with the county's perceived lack of transparency to its constituents. "There are a lot of things going on in our government and we're not included," said Joan Fischer, Democrat candidate for Charlotte County Commission. Fischer and incumbent Stephen R. Deutsch will face off in the Nov. 6 general election.

Citizens were also concerned about the lack of accountability by local officials. Though conversations similar to this take place, "there's no accountability of change," Bireda said.

Resident Dave Kesselring added that there is a lack of availability to public servants, saying "they think they're protecting themselves from us."

Historian Annette Snapp and librarian Leeann Beckwith moderated the event, taking notes as they went. They asked what groups the public would like to see make these changes, to which Kesselring replied that he'd like to see the public make these changes, "we don't need more government."

Others said they'd like to see people who receive community services be properly represented. "We make them feel like they're less than," said Bireda. "I'd like to hear what they have to say."

"(Community Services) needs to address human needs," Wiley said. "The focus here is all screwed up."

Punta Gorda Mayor Rachel Keesling and Punta Gorda Housing Authority Executive Director Kurt Pentelecuc also attended, listening intently to citizens' comments and concerns.

For anyone interested in joining in, two community conversations are scheduled for today. The first at 10 a.m. is set for Mid-County Regional Library, followed by another at 2 p.m. at the Englewood Charlotte Library.

FUTURE

Riverview Avenue, near the Sportsman's Pub.

In July, Sarasota County commissioners decided to tweak the S.R. 776 corridor plan and encourage old Florida architecture in the Englewood area and 50-foot wide landscaped vistas along the roadway.

Sarasota County can plan for its portion of the corridor since it still has patchy acres of pasture land waiting to be rezoned and developed.

Not so in Charlotte.

Charlotte's die along the corridor was cast long ago, as far back as the 1870s and 1890s, and the 1920s and 1940s in some stretches.

"It's a remnant of platting — we're stuck," said Shaun Cullinan, Charlotte County Planning and Zoning Official. He pointed out how some subdivisions along the state road are among the oldest areas platted in Charlotte.

And what wasn't chopped up in the '20s, '30s and '40s, General Development Corp., which set a lot of the area's development in motion, cut up into lots in the '50s and '60s.

"It's already been carved up and developed in a certain pattern all the way down to the (Myakka River) bridge," Cullinan said.

Also, many of the commercial structures — more so as you head closer to the county line — predate building and other regulations, and that also creates challenges when it comes to stormwater retention. Any redevelopment could prove a hurdle for the property owners.

Basically, the intersections of South McCall Road (S.R. 776) and Placida Road/Pine Street and South McCall and Gasparilla roads are the only opportunities for the further development of commercial hubs. Expect strip-store development, which Florida has become infamous for along highways like U.S. 41, from Englewood East to the Myakka River.

"The die was cast long before I was even born," the 40-year-old Cullinan said.

GDC's cookie-cutter development model — whether it be Englewood East, North Port, Port Charlotte, Cape Coral, Port St. Lucie and wherever else — led Florida to enact planning and land development regulations.

To see what will develop 20 years from today, Cullinan predicted, "Keep an eye on Port St. Lucie and Cape Coral, who have a 10-, 15-, 20-year head start on us. That's what you are going to see."

Rotonda Meadows/Villas remains a subdivison on Gasparilla Road waiting for power lines so it could be developed.

Through the county's comprehensive plan and rezonings and developing zoning flexibility, Cullinan said, "We are trying to lay down the tools and foundations for the future. If it doesn't succeed, it won't be for a lack of trying.

"While we understand (residents) don't want commercial development near them," he cautioned, "if we you don't get some kind of non-residential tax base installed, we can't sustain our services without the tax base."

The two different approaches on S.R. 776 also illustrate the challenges of having a community like Englewood split by a county line.

Gasparilla's future

Driving on Gasparilla Road in Charlotte from the state road to the Boca Grande Causeway, motorists might wrongly think they're driving along a road like those in DeSoto and other rural counties.

They're not. They're traveling a future suburban corridor, that may not be much different than what's emerging along S.R. 776.

South Gulf Cove residents, like Sandy Slater, are doing what they can to shape the future of their community the best they can.

South Gulf Cove is made up of 6,200 acres and 55 miles of canals, allowing for about 4,700 waterfront lots that are mostly 10,000 square feet. The subdivision is only 20 percent built out, and the 2010 Census put the population at more than 9,500 residents.

"We started planning in 2000s," Slater said. "We're the first (approved) community plan in all of Charlotte." It's planning for the build-out of South Gulf Cove, when there are 33,000 residents.

South Gulf Cove residents also pushed for a community master park plan, adopted by the county in 2008.

The residents have created several county taxing units, such as its beautification municipal service benefit unit, to ensure they see capital improvements and amenities they want — even though the county process for taxing units can be cumbersome, Slater suggested.

As a waterfront community, Slater said, residents do worry about the future of water quality, a hot topic these days with red tide.

"South Gulf Cove's lock system is a real asset," Slater said, citing how the lock stemmed storm surge during Hurricane Irma.

Some also expect construction of the Sunseeker Resort in Charlotte Harbor, the proposed high-end redevelopment of The Fishery on Gasparilla Sound, Murdock Village, the Charlotte Sports Park stadium area and other major commercial operations to provide an economic boost to South Gulf Cove.

Five years ago, South Gulf Cove residents looked into incorporation and decided against it. That idea, however, may be back on the table again in the future

"We may want to reconsider (incorporation) if the county continues to tie (South Gulf Cove's) hands in meeting the requirements of our residents using our money," Slater suggested.

Far into the future

Rotonda Meadows and Villas subdivisions are barely lit and may remain in the dark for a few more years.

The Rotonda Meadows/Villas Conservation Association is now negotiating with Charlotte County and Florida Power & Light to find a way to pay for stringing power lines deeper into the Meadows and Villas subdivisions. FPL lines only extend to county sewer lift stations to keep the waste moving toward the treatment plant.

Association manager Tim Freeman and board member Pete Traverso agree, the Gasparilla Road corridor will shape West Charlotte County's far future. Build out may take another 20 or 30 years, they suggested.

"Right now, (Englewood and West County) is a relaxed beach community," said Freeman who is in his 30s, married and with an infant daughter. "I would like to see cooperation, a coalition, between the current property and homeowners, builders and county (and) to keep it that way.

"There are two headlines I think you'll see over the next 10 to 20 years," Freeman said. "One will be on red tide, how fertilizers, with this many homes, are affecting the watershed in our area. The other is development."

Besides South Gulf Cove, the corridor is lined with relatively undeveloped subdivisions that include Rotonda Meadows/Villas with 5,000 lots; Rotonda Sands with 2,400 lots; and Rotonda Lakes with 3,000 lots.

"This is where the action will be," Traverso said of Gasparilla Road subdivisions and West County's future. Rotonda/Villas is seeing lot sales now, but mostly long-term investors.

Freeman envisions what he hopes will be reasonable and sustainable development of the Cape Haze peninsula.

"I don't believe in fighting development just because it's development," he said. "Development is coming; people, it's coming."

West County and Gasparilla Road may not ever attract the "big builders," those who like to control subdivisions from the ground up and construct gated communities, Traverso said. But "scattered lot" builders will find opportunities along Gasparilla Road.

"We basically have a clean slate," Traverso said, particularly of the Meadows/Villas subdivision.

A TURNING POINT FOR DOWNTOWN ENGLEWOOD

The state is currently reviewing plans to increase development along West Dearborn Street in Englewood, and that could be a turning point for downtown.

Sarasota County commissioners already had approved a proposed Englewood Town Center comprehensive plan amendment this year that will allow up to 25 units per acre for future mixed commercial-residential developments.

Any new development will be expected to stay within the county's existing height limit of 35 feet.

The Florida Department of Economic Opportunity and other state agencies are reviewing it, with a final County Commission public hearing scheduled after that for Sept. 11.

The town center includes properties one block north and one block south of West Dearborn. The present development limit on Dearborn is 13 units per acre, which property and business owners say is too little for development to be profitable.

Taylor Meals — Olde Englewood Village Association president who owns the Buchan's Landing Resort and the Dearborn Corner Market — said staging a slew of events on Dearborn has helped it become a destination.

"But that's not the purpose of a downtown," Meals said. "We need a lot more retail space. The 13 units per acre hasn't worked. That's pretty obvious."

Downtown has had a couple of recent setbacks including the departure of Velvet Hammer Motor Cars.

In about a month, Bank of America plans to close its Financial Center right at Dearborn's gateway at State Road 776, a critical highly visible location for any area trying to market its vibrancy. Also, the Buchan's Landing tourist historical sign listed with the Sarasota County Historic Resources office that marks downtown's origins and early history has been gone from in front of 40 Buchan's Landing Rd. and not replaced for months.

Still, new businesses keep coming. Irving's Coffee and Creamery opened over the weekend.

No 'high' red tide reported

By STEVE REILLY
Staff Writer

Water samples suggest red tide may have subsided the Gulf waters of Sarasota and Charlotte County. Subsided, but not gone.

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission reported late Wednesday that no signs of the high concentrations were discovered in samples taken in Charlotte, Sarasota or Manatee counties.

But that doesn't mean the toxic algae has completely dissipated from local waters. Red tide plagues shorelines from Pinellas to Collier counties.

Reports of fish kills were received for multiple locations in Charlotte, Sarasota, Lee, Manatee, Pinellas and Collier counties, the FWC reported. People reported respiratory irritation in the same areas.

The FWC did discover a new highly concentrated red tide bloom 10 miles off the Pinellas County coastline.

Mote Marine Laboratory on Thursday reported people suffering from "moderate" respiratory irritations on Siesta Key but only "slight" irritations on Manasota Beach in Englewood. Both locations saw some dead fish washing ashore. The reports were posted on visitbeaches.org.

As of Thursday morning, conditions at Englewood Beach appear to be improving, according to Mark Timchula, who posts videos of his beach reports on Facebook. Known as the "Beach Guy" for his umbrella and beach chair rentals on Englewood Beach, Timchula hasn't been kept off the beach for more than eight weeks due to red tide. Conditions at the public beach, he said Thursday, were "moving in the right direction."

When concentrations exceed 100,000 cells per liter, the toxic algae can kill fish, sea turtles and marine mammals, as well as cause respiratory irritations in humans. When the counts reach a million or more per liter, red tide can stain Gulf waters a reddish-brown. The water off Manasota Key still has a brownish taint to it.

The FWC also reported Wednesday researchers identified Trichodesmium algae — sometimes called "sawdust" algae — blooming offshore.

Trichodesmium is unique because it gets most of its nitrogen from the atmosphere, according to the FWC website. Between May and September, when iron-rich Saharan dust blows across the Atlantic and settles in the Gulf of Mexico, Trichodesmium uses the iron from the dust "to fix nitrogen and grow." Other algae species, including red tide, can feed on the new nitrogen produced by Trichodesmium algae, according to researchers.

Also Thursday, Health Department officials in Sarasota County discontinued the "no-swim" advisories for Venice Pier and Brohard beaches in Venice, and Siesta Key and Longboat Key Beach. The advisories were posted on Aug. 23 for high levels of enterococcus bacteria, which can come from a variety of natural and human-made sources. A similar "no-swim" warning was lifted for Don Pedro beach in Charlotte County.

Health Department officials are still advising residents not to swim in areas where red tide is present.

Lost Lagoon earned some red ink but no red flags in the latest round of site plan reviews.

The water park and downtown village plan for the Murdock Village redevelopment zone is proceeding on schedule so far with its multi-year calendar.

Submitted in early August by Lost Lagoon Development LLLP, the preliminary site plan earned a "do not approve" this week from the county on zoning and the traffic study. County planners and engineers gave Lost Lagoon three pages of instructions on how to fix the problems in the final site plan.

Lost Lagoon spokesman Bill Gridley said engineers have told him the county critique reveals no show stoppers.

"There were no red flags for me," he said. "This is how planning and zoning works. We want to make sure what's being done is in alignment with the county's zoning and comprehensive plan."

This is the first pass for a site plan for 157 acres located between State Road 776, U.S. 41 and Toledo Blade Boulevard. The final site plan comes next along with a vote by county commissioners on a zoning change. Lost Lagoon officials say they plan to start construction by the end of the year.

The county's traffic engineers stated in their comments that the traffic study does not currently meet the county standards to conduct a review. Lost Lagoon's traffic study was a table predicting that the project would generate 35,178 new car trips daily on local roads. That includes 17,727 for the shopping center, 10,631 for restaurants, 2,335 for hotels and 3,405 for the water park.

As for the details of what activity and building goes where, county zoning reviewers asked for a lot more detail and explanation.

"The concept plan and narrative are inadequate," reviewers wrote. "Neither document indicates 'general locations ... density, and intensity for each proposed land use,' 'general traffic flow' or 'development time schedule and phasing' as required (by regulations.)"

Zoning officials complained that the site plan seemed to lose track of 2.5 acres in the survey, and did not show open space.

"We'll work with the county planning and zoning team to do whatever moves the project forward," Gridley said. "On a project this big, you rarely get it right the first time."

The site is currently a jungle with an ancient-looking network of abandoned roads. Lost Lagoon has visions of creating a low-rise, Old Florida landscape of shopping, eating, hotels and performance spaces. The water park would come after the downtown shopping and hotel space, because it takes longer to build, Gridley told the Sun earlier.

The Lost Lagoon project, also named Arrodondo Pointe, is the latest phase of a 13-year county project to redevelop land near the town's current center, which many consider inadequate. It is one of many tracts of land in the county that were never developed since General Development Corp. subdivided the county in the 1950s and 1960s and sold it lot by lot to northerners. GDC went bankrupt in the 1990s.

The county's Economic Development Office is working with Lost Lagoon to meet a series of deadlines stretching forward several years. At the end, the hope is that Lost Lagoon will take over ownership of the land in exchange for having installed major utilities and other infrastructure.

FHP to conduct DUI Wolfpack this holiday weekend

The Florida Highway Patrol will conduct a DUI Wolfpack Operation in Charlotte, Collier, and Lee Counties beginning 8 p.m. Friday through 4 a.m. Saturday.

The purpose of the detail is to proactively remove impaired drivers from the roadways and enhance the safety of the motoring public, according to a press release. Troopers conducting the detail will be mobile while monitoring traffic to maximize their visibility and effectiveness in removing impaired drivers.

Florida law considers a driver with a .08 or higher blood alcohol content to be impaired. Drivers under the age of 21 with a BAC of .02 or higher are also in violation of Florida law.

To report an impaired driver, dial FHP (347) from any cell phone.

OUR VIEW

Meeting city's growing, great expectations

A recent series in the Sun highlighted the emergence of North Port over the past couple of decades with a focus on the future of what is already the largest city in the region.

The series by staff writer Steve Reilly noted that North Port — "designed" and platted by General Development Corp. and incorporated as a city in 1959 — had a total of 75,276 buildable lots. A little less than half — 32,000 — have been developed. Glass half full; glass half empty.

Developments on the city's east side off Toledo Blade Boulevard were halted by the Great Recession, but are said to be coming back on line. Assorted lots throughout are developed. U.S. 41 is now a thriving business strip; the area off Sumter Boulevard near (the newish, in context) City Hall is filling with businesses.

And, of course, there is the emerging tiger of growth in South Sarasota County — the West Villages development. New neighborhoods are springing up and a new spring training baseball stadium is under construction for (and with) the Altlanta Braves.

Major League stuff.

The ballpark will open for a peek at the end of 2019 spring season, then will draw crowds for the next three decades, at least. The new neighborhoods, the stadium and related activities associated with a baseball academy also will fuel commercial growth in the city's west side. We have little doubt the most significant section of the already overused and woefully underbuilt River Road will be improved to four lanes within the next five years. In addition, West Villages will have downtown-style commercial center off U.S. 41 near the ballpark.

It will be built. People will come.

The series spotlighted how life of the city is being transformed. As Reilly's most recent story last week noted, Mayor Vanessa Carusone recalled when locals only expected North Port to be a bedroom community and retiree haven. But, she said, newcomers slowly began demanding more amenities.

They wanted to "work, live and play" in their city, as she put it. They didn't necessarily want to travel elsewhere for life's necessities. And that goal has been coming, slowly but surely.

Returning from their summer hiatus recently, the North Port City Commission began turning their attention to existing amenities that needed attention and future amenities that will be needed.

One is old standby Dallas White Park, a popular spot that needs upgrades. At the park are a day care facility, an art center, a used clothing exchange and a skate park. A master plan would guide the redevelopment, but that will take time. Meanwhile, some infrastructure must be addressed ASAP.

Then came discussion of different potential approaches to partnerships with private businesses that would bring desired amenities – possibly a community center to the east end. The jury is out on that (or it has just begun deliberations). What's important at this point is the City Commission is exploring different options in an attempt to find creative ways to expand services to meet quality-of-life expectations of a growing and relatively young population.

They are — yes — thinking outside the box.

Good for them. This city is still growing into itself. There are a lot of possibilities, good and bad. But leaders are right to maintain an open-minded attitude about their approach and keep an eye on future possibilities.

Don't let them kill grizzly bears

Editor:

Yellowstone grizzlies were protected under the Endangered Species Act from 1975 to 2017, but now a trophy hunt is scheduled to begin Sept. 1 that could result in the killing of 22 grizzly bears, including as many as 13 females in Wyoming and one male grizzly in Idaho.

Grizzlies in the lower 48 states occupy less than 5 percent of their historic habitat, with only a few isolated populations in the northern Rockies and virtually nowhere else.

Why should these people have the right to kill our precious remaining wildlife, just so that they can hang a trophy animal on their walls?

A female grizzly can take 10 years to replace herself in the wild.

We may not see the impacts of this aggressive hunt for a decade. Removing even one female could affect the population.

Hunting is a huge source of income for the government agencies who are responsible for managing wildlife and conservation efforts. Each grizzly hunted brings in more than $6,000 for the agency.

It is tragic to think that this trophy hunt could lead to the demise of one of our most iconic predators.

In addition to allowing oil drilling in our national parks and the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, these actions are destroying what wildlife there is remaining.

Call or write your representative: Tom Rooney, Bill Nelson, Rick Scott, Pam Bondi, Marco Rubio.

We have only until Sept. 1. Please don't let this happen.

Hollywood script being played out

Editor:

In 1959 and again in 2004, Hollywood released movies titled, "The Manchurian Candidate." The plot involves an American politician who is brainwashed to subvert and take over the U.S. government. The brainwashed leader can then make changes to assist the foreign government achieve their agenda.

Imagine this updated plot line. An American real estate mogul who has rights to a beauty pageant goes to Moscow for the broadcast and gets kidnapped by foreign agents. The American is drugged and brainwashed. He returns to the United States to await the mental trigger, so he will do what the, say Russian, government wants. In the interim, Russia develops a computer network strong enough to interfere with the election process in the United States.

When everything is in place, the verbal trigger is given to the real estate mogul and he runs for president. Of course, he wins.

Once in office, he follows the cues embedded in his brain. Pull out of NATO so the chances of Russia attacking and winning a war improve. Allow military-style weapons to be sold to the public so school kids can be gunned down, thus leaving the United States with less potential military troops in the future. Try to divide the United States population racially so there is less chance of the people rallying to defend the nation against foreign threats because we are focused on internal issues. Buddy up to foreign dictators while angering the leaders of our allies.

A Hollywood script or real life?

A testimonial to Jesus' blessings

Editor:

Approximately 25 years ago I had a very good friend who I spent a lot of time with. We fished, scalloped and boated together.

Then, my friend died. There I stood in front of a funeral home with his friends and family, and it was my turn to speak about my friend.

All of a sudden I realized that I did not know if my friend was saved and was going to heaven or unsaved and going to hell. If he were saved I knew I would see him in heaven. If not, it was all my fault because during all the years we spent together I never asked him if he believed in Jesus Christ as his savior. If I had asked him and he had said no then I could have witnessed to him of salvation through belief in Jesus Christ and at least I would have had comfort in knowing that I tried to save him.

Since that time I have tried to ask everybody I meet if they believe in Jesus Christ. Those that say "yes" I rejoice knowing they will spend eternity in heaven. If they say "no," then I at least have the opportunity to witness to them about Jesus Christ who loves us so much that he died on the cross so we can spend eternity in heaven with him.

Please let me know if you would like the testimonial I have written about the experiences I have had witnessing for Jesus Christ.

Closed primaries deny free speech

Editor:

No form of speech is more important, more powerful or more sacred than our right to vote. No political party or legislator should therefore deny the citizens the freedom to vote for the candidate of their choice, regardless of party affiliation.

In January, 2010, SCOTUS handed down its decision in Citizens United v. FEC. The Opinion of the Court stated, "Because speech is an essential mechanism of democracy — it is the means to hold officials accountable to the people — political speech must prevail against laws that would suppress it by design or inadvertence."

Our right to free speech, when exercised through our vote, guarantees us the right to vote for whichever candidate we choose, regardless of party affiliation of the candidate or voter.

That court's opinion also cited the 1957 US v. AW case: "Under our Constitution it is We The People who are sovereign. The people have the final say. The legislators are their spokesmen. The people determine through their votes the destiny of the nation."

Closed primaries deny people their right to final say. These rules were created, not by the constitutionality of such action, but rather by political parties' desire to control the primaries and thereby deny us our right to vote freely.

We are being denied our constitutional right to free speech, to sovereignty and to influence the destiny of this nation. We are being denied our freedom.

Closed primaries are a violation of our Constitutional rights. We, the people, must prevail.

Non-believers don't want God in lives

Editor:

In God We Trust:

What in the Hell is happening to Americans that they want to mix religion, government and now education?

The amount of people believing in God is decreasing continually. There is no God unless it is imagined. Only idiots, low IQ people, brainwashed or ignorant people that believe in their figment of the imagination no matter what religion. You might as well believe in a Pet Rock.

I totally object to religion been promoted in school, government, currency, been used to swear in people to tell the truth in court (they are already liars if they agree to it), sports games. The president is always promoting God and is likely one of the most dishonest people on earth. All churches and cults believing in God should be taxed on all income and property.

This is as bad as people honoring military people which have done more damage to the world than good in the past. The USA has the biggest terrorist organizations in the world supported basically by Christians. Not one religion is much better than another. Look at the Catholics molesting thousands of children then been recommended to work in Disney World. What a joke. Wake up America smell the roses because you're going to hell if it's there!

Practice it, but take it out of non-believers lives.

Disgusted by Bible verse

Editor:

This reader was shocked and disgusted by the Bible verse chosen for the Aug. 22 edition of the Sun: "Touch not mine anointed and do my prophets no harm."

In light of the continuing Catholic Church scandal and cover-up, it is quite obvious that the church decided to just wait — because, "God will deal with them."

Meanwhile, what about the children? A more appropriate verse would have been Matthew 19:14. This believer in a loving God will continue to pray for the children and, like the church has done, let God deal with his "faulty servants."

With 12 years of Catholic school in my past, I am proud to be a recovered Catholic.

DeSantis 'monkey' comment naive at best, racist at worst

FloridaPolitics.com

Joe HENDERSON

If Ron DeSantis didn't believe it would be seen as racist when he said of the state's economy we shouldn't "monkey it up" by electing Andrew Gillum as Florida's next governor, then he is incredibly naive.

However, if this Donald Trump Mini-Me was sending a signal to remind his less, um … tolerant supporters that Gillum is, indeed, one election win away from becoming Florida's first black governor, then he might as well have announced to the world that he is a racist.

He will deny all that vigorously, of course, but I don't believe there is any other way to interpret the astonishing interview DeSantis gave Wednesday on Fox News. Instead of just taking a victory lap after his blowout win over Adam Putnam (what must he be feeling right now?) in the GOP Primary, DeSantis took that moment in the national spotlight to utter a phrase that is incredibly offensive to blacks.

Guess not.

Right after this story sent the Twittersphere into a tizzy, I was thinking that I have lived more than six decades on this planet and until now I had never heard the phrase "monkey it up." I saw shortly after that St. Pete Mayor Rick Kriseman tweeted the same thing.

Mess it up? Sure.

But "monkey it up" — um, no. What a coincidence that the first time I heard that combination of words was is in reference to a black man running as the Democratic nominee for governor.

That was about the time my eldest son sent me a text, weighing in on the topic. I mentioned it sure looked like a dog whistle and sounded like a dog whistle.

You hear something like that, and you start thinking about Charlottesville and how Trump defended some of the white nationalists as "very fine people."

You start thinking of the president's jag against the National Football League over players taking a knee during the national anthem. The overwhelming majority of players doing that are black, trying to raise social awareness about issues with police.

Trump calls the protesters "sons of bitches" and even said, "maybe they shouldn't be in the country."

You remember the way Trump tried to demonize Obama — the whole issue about the birth certificate, being born in Kenya, and so on.

When you're riding coat tails the way DeSantis rode Trump's, and then you say something like this, what are people supposed to think?

I can't think of a bigger gaffe occurring so soon after a gubernatorial primary win. It sent this governor's race straight into the swamp.

Maybe it was just an unfortunate word choice, as the DeSantis camp immediately tried to spin. If so, you would think a man hoping to lead the state for the next four years should understand by now that every word he says will be scrutinized for hidden messages.

Words matter.

When you want to be governor of the nation's third-largest state, you must know this.

If he doesn't, he better learn quickly.

But Ron DeSantis will also have to understand why many people will assume he said exactly what he meant.

Joe Henderson has had a 45-year career in newspapers, including the last nearly 42 years at The Tampa Tribune, where he covered sports, politics and city government. The column moved on website FloridaPolitics.com.

Most Americans just aren't that into politics

Creators Syndicate

Scott RASMUSSEN

For many obsessed with politics, the upcoming midterm elections are perceived as a fight between good and evil that will determine the fate of the nation. In the narrative framed by true believers and much media coverage, it's a fight between those who are convinced that President Donald Trump can make America great and those who dream of a socialist future.

Fifty-four percent of Americans don't fit into that narrative. Just 27 percent strongly disapprove of the president and believe things would have been better if Hillary Clinton had been elected. On the other side, 19 percent strongly approve of the president and believe things would be worse if Hillary Clinton were living in the White House today. The rest have more mixed views.

This 8-point advantage among committed voters is the reason that Democrats are expected to do well in the midterm elections this November. In the House of Representatives, likely outcomes range from Democrats falling just short of winning control to a big blue wave earning a significant majority.

The final outcome may be determined by a group of voters that neither political team can begin to comprehend. Rather than see the 2016 election as a watershed event that changed the direction of the country, 26 percent of registered voters don't believe life in America would have been all that different if Clinton had won. With Election Day just a couple of months away, most of these voters aren't committed to voting for either side.

Like most Americans, these voters overwhelmingly recognize that Steve Jobs and Bill Gates have had a bigger impact on the world than presidents of the United States. Perhaps their ambivalence about who is president simply reflects confidence in the belief that culture and technology lead while politicians lag behind.

Or perhaps it's just a lack of faith in the political process. Only about 11 percent of them trust the federal government to do the right thing most of the time. Seventy-two percent believe that government agencies use their power to influence elections.

Another possibility stems from the fact that 61 percent of these voters are ideologically moderate. They may be turned off by the shrill tones of activists from both teams.

These voters aren't fans of the president's; just 29 percent approve of the job he's doing, and only 19 percent believe he is a good role model. But 45 percent believe he is at least as ethical as most politicians.

Their top concerns revolve around economic issues (32 percent), health care (22 percent), social issues (18 percent) and security issues (10 percent). Whatever their top concern is, however, 53 percent don't have confidence in one major party or the other to address it. And they're not connecting the concerns to the political process. Seventy-three percent talk about politics with family and friends less than once a week.

Much of the discord in the political process today stems from the inability of the politically obsessed to understand the majority of Americans who don't fit the dominant political narrative. Often, it seems as if the politically engaged don't even want to understand the rest of the country.

At ScottRasmussen.com, we believe this disconnect is a serious problem and are committed to enhancing the public dialogue through data-driven analysis. With our partners at HarrisX, we will provide ongoing research and analysis with a particular focus on those who hold more nuanced views of the 21st-century political environment. The results will often be baffling to those who live and breathe politics, but they will be invaluable for all who are sincerely interested in reconnecting our political world with the nation it is supposed to serve.

Note: Data in this column are from 15 separate surveys of 1,000 registered voters. Each was conducted between Aug. 6 and Aug. 24 by HarrisX, a research company that specializes in online surveys and looks at Americans' opinions on technology, society, the economy and public policy.

'Weather models have flipped the switch': Hurricane season coming to life in the Atlantic

By Doyle Rice
FORT MYERS NEWS-PRESS

The sleeping giant may be about to awaken.

Hurricane activity in the Atlantic Ocean, Caribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico is forecast to ramp up over the next couple of weeks. "Weather models have flipped the switch on the Atlantic hurricane season and see multiple areas of development possible starting mainly this weekend," weather.us meteorologist Ryan Maue said.

One storm could spin up in the Caribbean over the next couple of days and potentially affect Florida over the Labor Day weekend. Looking further ahead, "there is the potential for two or three tropical features spinning over the Atlantic by the second weekend in September," AccuWeather meteorologist Dan Kottlowski said.

The next tropical storm or hurricane in the Atlantic basin will be called Florence.

One of the reasons for the predicted uptick in activity is that wind shear, which tends to rip apart developing hurricanes, appears to be decreasing. "There are signs now that wind shear may drop over a significant part of the Atlantic basin over the next couple of weeks," according to AccuWeather meteorologist Bernie Rayno.

However, it's still too early to predict exactly where or when any storm might form or whether a storm will affect land areas.

"When models start suggesting tropical cyclone development many days in advance in multiple parts of the Atlantic basin, while they might not be right about exactly when and where, it does indicate that the atmosphere is changing and it's about to get busy overall for September," Weather Channel hurricane expert Rick Knabb said.

Regardless of what happens this year, 2018 will be hard-pressed to top the calamitous 2017 season, which featured monster hurricanes such as Harvey, Irma and Maria. Overall, 10 hurricanes formed in the Atlantic last year, well above the average of six.

The prediction for a busy September this year also follows an unusually quiet August for the Atlantic. For the first time since 2013, no hurricanes formed in August in the Atlantic basin.

"A quiet August does not guarantee a quiet Atlantic hurricane season," said Colorado State University meteorologist Phil Klotzbach. For instance, he said that in 1961, no hurricanes formed in August, but four major hurricanes blew up in September of that year.

It's not surprising that the tropics are coming alive at this time. September is the peak month for Atlantic hurricanes, recording more hurricanes in that basin than any other month on record, the Weather Channel said.

The calm start to the Atlantic season is a stark contrast to the wild and woolly Pacific season, where 14 storms have already formed, including Hurricane Lane, which drenched Hawaii.

Two tropical storms, Miriam and Norman, are currently spinning in the eastern Pacific Ocean, both far from land. Both are forecast to become hurricanes within the next day or so, the National Hurricane Center said.

Miriam should curve to the north, away from Hawaii, but Norman could have some impact on Hawaii within the next seven to 10 days, Maue said.

"We look at every angle and situation that arises in other districts."

The district already has school security and law enforcement posted at every event — the number of officers present is determined by projected audience size.

Cans and bottles, coolers, fireworks and horns and lasers are already barred from all events, according to Riley. Likewise, weapons of any kind are strictly prohibited.

Parents and students in counties where the policy change has already been implemented, however, argue that this is an unnecessary step.

"I think it's totally ridiculous. First of all, a lot of students have activities after school and they go from after school directly to the game, so what are they going to do, have parents pick up backpacks?" Lee County parent Lori Gian said in a WINK News report.

So far, a decision has not yet been reached in Charlotte County on whether or not they will ban large bags or allow officers to conduct bag checks.

"We are working on a policy right now to put in place for our extracurricular activities," Riley said in an email.

Sarasota County Schools were unable to provide a response prior to press time.

Michelle Rhea, of Sarasota, said.

"You should table this piece of garbage on Oct. 10," James Ray, a member of Libertarians of Sarasota County, advised commissioners.

Yet, one resident disagreed with his fellow speakers in the public hearing.

"We don't want it. We don't need it. I'm 100 percent opposed to recreational marijuana," Air Force veteran Frank Hedy of Sarasota told commissioners. "I hope I'm dead before we ever have it."

Despite the public comments advocating against the proposal, Commissioner Charles Hines said it was important for the county to have the conversation now, while warning about the potentially harmful effects passage of the amendment could lead to.

"I totally disagree," Hines said. "We have solid evidence of the harmful impact. We need to have this discussion. We need more than five or six people here….Hopefully, more people will come and we can debate it."

Because two public hearings are required, commissioners did not vote on the measure Wednesday. That will occur during the second public hearing scheduled for Oct. 10.

Englewood gearing up for Pioneer Days

By ELAINE ALLEN-EMRICH
Community News Editor

ENGLEWOOD — No one on the Pioneer Days Committee saw it coming, nor anticipated this last-minute dilemma.

There may be a pie shortage for the pie-eating contest.

"We normally get pies donated from Save-A-Lot in town," explained Chris Phelps, Pioneer Days Chairwoman, during the last meeting before the big three-day event kicks off.

"The manager wanted to donate again this year, but the distribution center where they get their pies from burnt down," she explained. "We secured this donation months ago, but that was before the fire. We just have to figure out where else we can get pies from now for our pie eating contest."

It's one more problem to work out for Phelps and her small group of volunteers, known as the Pioner Days Committee.

For months, the group has been planning, organizing, promoting and sometimes re-planning more than a dozen events that make up Pioneer Days in Englewood. Over the last two weekends, the group has put on wildly successful dances for teens and elementary-aged kids, pulled off a charity bowling day, encouraged art at ChalkFest, crowned new Miss and Mr. Englewood in numerous age categories, and run Mayor for a Day and photography contests.

There were some hitches along the way. They had to cancel the annual Kids Fish-a-Thon because of red tide, and moved this Saturday's Cardboard Boat Race from Lemon Bay to the Oyster Creek pool for the same reason.

Next up are three days of food, music, dancing, car shows, and fun at Pioneer Park on West Dearborn Street, and the Pioneer Days Parade in downtown Englewood on Monday morning. The popular Diaper Derby will be at the Women's Club on Sunday. Labor Day will continue with more fun, music and and contests in Pioneer Park.

But where to find the pies for the pie contest?

Knowing a portion of the donations from the pie-eating contest go to the Center for Abuse and Rape Emergencies, Pat Knox at the St. David's Jubilee Center, in Englewood, donated 10 of the anticipated 30 pies needed for the contest, which will be sometime Monday after the parade.

Phelps said she made last-minute pleas to Walmart bakeries in Venice and Englewood to try to get pies donated. However, she worries she'll still be short on pies. Last year, there were 36 pie contestants and 30 more in the watermelon-eating contest.

Erik Phelps, Chris' husband and a key member of the team, said in addition to pies, he's concerned there won't be enough volunteers to do everything needed for the remaining Pioneer Day events. A member emailed and called volunteers from a 2010 list in hopes they would come out again and help. However, no one responded.

The group said people don't have to be invited to volunteer. Last year, there were 200 volunteers. Anyone who comes to volunteer will be useful and appreciated, Chris said.

Jobs include setting up tables and chairs and tents, beforehand, helping throughout the weekend, and cleaning up afterward.

Sermon of the Week: Cheers from the Crowd

Jim STULTZ
Columnist

Running a race requires an all-out effort. It is draining both physically and mentally. Have you ever watched runners in a race able to increase their pace as they hear the cheers from the crowd? They seem to get extra energy and an emotional boost when those surrounding them go crazy and cheer them on. Fans in the stands have a powerful part in the performance on the track.

Hebrews 11 gives us somewhat of a hall of fame of The Faith. These people include: Noah, Abraham, Joseph, Moses, Joshua, the Judges, Daniel, David, Samuel and many others. Men as well as women are listed as examples of those who persevered in the faith. These all are described for us as a great cloud of witnesses. Heb. 12:1,2 challenges us: "Therefore we also, since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which so easily ensnares us, and let us run with endurance the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, and has sat down at the right hand of the throne of God". These verses describe the race before us, the witnesses around us, and the Savior who is with us.

Every one of us who know the Lord have a race to run. It is the race of the Christian life. In it we are challenged to not let anything weigh us down or hinder us from pursuing Christlikeness. We also have the encouragement of the crowd. The examples of those in the Bible are to be our source of inspiration. They were fallen creatures just as we but if they could continue on so can we. We are not only surrounded by the witnesses we are to keep our eyes on Jesus. He is our greatest source of strength to keep running this race. He was victorious in His race as He endured the cross, rose from the grave and sat down at God's right hand.

Getting a little weary in your race? Listen to the cheers from the crowd and look to Jesus as He is your biggest fan.

Trinity United has existed in its current location in Charlotte Harbor since the 1940s.

Old and new come together at Trinity United Methodist

By KAYLA GLEASON
Staff Writer

Trinity United Methodist Church in Charlotte Harbor holds the title of oldest church in Charlotte County.

First formed in 1873, the original structure on Melbourne Street — a small building with a palm thatched roof — was destroyed by a hurricane. A similar fate would befall the next two buildings constructed at the present-day location on the corner of Parmely Street and Seneca Avenue.

Finally, in the 1940's, a group of mostly women and children — many of the congregation's men were off at war — built the church still standing today.

"There have been renovations, the stained glass was added in the '80s, but, for the most part, this is still that original structure," said Pastor Matthew McNutt.

"We also have the oldest cemetery in Charlotte Harbor. I believe that land was originally purchased for $1. The pews in the worship hall are from the 1800s. They came from England and were refinished."

TRINITY | 3

A photo of the women, men and children who helped build the current church is proudly displayed in Fellowship Hall.

Pastor Matthew McNutt has big plans for the future of Trinity United.

Meet the Preacher: Pastor Dan Turpin of Westcoast Church

NAME: Pastor Dan Turpin

CHURCH: Westcoast Church

ADDRESS: 240 Pine Street, Englewood

SERVICE TIMES: Sunday 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. We also meet on Sunday nights at 6:30 p.m.

Q: How did you get your start as a Pastor?:

A "When I was young I was in and out of trouble. One night in an empty lot between two houses in Bedford, Indiana, at 5:20 a.m. in the morning on Aug. 14 while I was high on LSD I dropped to my knees. That morning I saw two things that changed my life. First i saw the horrible person that I had become; someone I couldn't stand, but a person from whom I could not escape. My mind was going to and fro on the LSD and if that was the only thing I would have taken my life that night...but I saw that God loved in spite of it. I don't know how I knew this but I did. I went to jail that night and then my parents brought me to Florida. When I had been arrested I read the Bible in jail and various preachers came to talk to us. When I got out of jail that is where I went. I envisioned myself with a Bible in my hand reading and preaching and that year I went to school and became a pastor. I was ordained in 1980."

According to Pastor Dan Turpin this is his natural state, sitting at his desk doing the things pastors do at the Westcoast Church in Englewood. "We are a family church in the Kingdom business. People can find us on our YouTube channel as well as our Facebook page to view current videos," said Turpin. The church is located at 240 Pine St. For more information, visit their website at www.westcoastchurchmedia.com or call 941-474-7687.

Despite the extensive history of the church — marked by the Charlotte County landmark sign out front — they are not old-fashioned.

Currently, the membership sits around 125, though the number is still steadily growing.

"Right now, what's really exciting, is that we just started a children's ministry and we're going to have a family-oriented contemporary service on Sunday evenings. We're about to launch that in a few weeks, so demographics are changing," McNutt said.

Trinity is looking for more musicians to join their praise band which, at the moment, consists of a husband and wife team and a former rock band member.

"We'll probably start off by showing music videos. I know that sounds strange but there are some benefits to that. The music is always perfect because it's done by the original performers and it will allow the congregation to lead itself instead of having worship leaders instruct you on how to sing and what to sing," McNutt said.

The services will also have communion every single week opposed to once a month like many churches.

Dinner church is another idea McNutt has on his plate.

"It's not church dinner, it's not where people get together and have a potluck. Dinner church is where we have a worship service around a meal. That creates an environment that is similar to what Jesus did at the Lord's Supper," he said.

The goal is to provide a very informal service option. Attendees can ask questions, have discussions and not feel like they're being led. Scripture-inspired art and activities will also most likely play a role in the services.

"We're trying to mix it up, to keep things interesting. It will be primarily directed at people who maybe have never gone to church before or maybe were hurt by the church and decided they don't want to be a part of the church. It's about reaching out to those people and saying 'hey, there is a place for you. You can find a worship space that works for you,'" McNutt said.

"But we also reach a lot more people in the community who aren't members."

Every Wednesday, Trinity opens its food pantry, seeing more than 200 people come through, whether they're volunteers or those coming through for food.

"A lot of volunteers are people we've served in the food pantry who then come back and say 'hey, I want to serve others,'" McNutt said.

"There's people who are not religious at all who come and serve, so membership itself is an older demographic but the lives that we touch, the people who are involved in this church is everyone you can think of, it's very diverse."

There is also a thriving "house-less" ministry, according to McNutt.

"I say 'house-less' instead of 'homeless' because we always say they're in God's home. They may not have a building but they always have a home."

Most Sundays, a group gathers at Bayshore Live Oak Park for open worship and a lay leader from the church will bring free doughnuts and coffee along with other necessities like bug spray, socks, sunscreen and even tents.

"It's not super preach-y, just a space where they feel they can talk to God and hear God speak," McNutt said.

Whether it's a free community movie night, their newest contemporary service or outreach to those affected by poverty, Trinity United Methodist church fully lives up to its motto: "Open hearts. Open minds. Open doors."

For more information, visit www.charlotteharbortrinity.com.

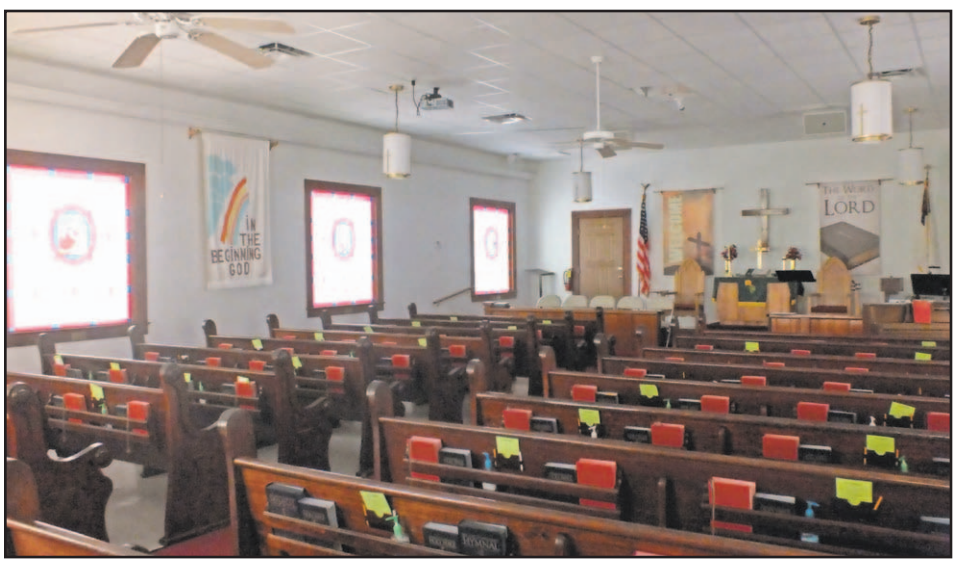
Volunteers organize donated food in the pantry.



The church's classic style, according to McNutt, is a huge draw for many in the community.

Q What makes your church unique?:

A "One thing that makes us different this church has a lot of youth. My wife Nancy and I are team pastors. Our emphasis is on our youth and we are thriving with our introduction to the younger population. This church has always attracted young people. Our music is contemporary but based on a traditional foundation."

Q What is the most challenging thing about what you do?:

A "I think trying to make everyone happy which is basically impossible. I am a shepherd. My wife is a natural-born gifted leader. We work well together. Getting the message out that it's alright to be who you are do not let others sway you to be something you are not."

New Hope Baptist Church, 2100 Englewood Road, Englewood, will begin a new Sunday evening Bible study at 5 p.m. on Sunday in the fellowship hall. The title of the study is "The End of Me" by Kyle Idleman. Learn how to have a deep, authentic relationship with Jesus Christ and what it really means to die to ourselves as we cultivate that relationship. The public is welcome. Call the church office to register at 941-474-7647. There is a $10 book fee for this study.

Light and Sound

Eckankar, The Path of Spiritual Freedom, will host an ECK Light and Sound worship service at 11 a.m. on Sunday, Sept. 2, at the Charlotte County Cultural Center, Room 30. D. A. Tyler will speak on "What is My Mission in Life?" The public is invited. For more information, call 941-766-0637.

Resale specials

St. Vincent de Paul's Resale Shop special this week is linens at 40 percent off. A large selection of Halloween and Christmas items are 50 percent off over $1. Red, orange and blue dot specials $.25 to $1. Many other specials not listed. Come in and check out all these great buys. The Resale Shops next Monthly Mega Sale will be Saturday, Sept. 8. Special sale hours from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. St. Vincent de Paul's Resale Shop / St. Max is located at 17753 Toledo Blade Blvd. and State Road 776, across from Racetrack gas station in Port Charlotte. Summer hours are Tuesday to Saturday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. All profits go to buy food for the St. Vincent de Paul Food Pantry.

GriefShare

Grieving the loss of someone close to you? Find comfort and support at GriefShare being held from 10 a.m. to noon and 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. on Tuesdays, through Nov. 13 at Edgewater United Methodist Church, 19190 Cochran Blvd., Port Charlotte. This 13-week seminar/support group can be joined at any time. For more information, call 941-625-8660 or visit www.griefshare.org.

Breakfast

St. Charles Knights of Columbus Council 5399 will hold a breakfast from 7:45 a.m. until 10:30 a.m. on Sept. 9, at St. Charles Borromeo Catholic Church Parish Center, 21505 Augusta Ave, Port Charlotte. Breakfast will include: Plain, chocolate chip, or blueberry pancakes, scrambled eggs, sausage or ham, biscuits and gravy, tater tots, juice and coffee. (You may substitute fruit cocktail or peaches for one entrée.) Cost is $6 for adults, and kids under 9 years old eat for free. Public is invited. All monies collected help the needy adults and youth of Charlotte County.

Sock it to ...

Faith Lutheran Church, 551 Rotonda Blvd., Rotonda West, once again will be participating in the ELCA's annual God's Work Our Hands Sunday being held Sept. 9. The church is collecting new athletic shoes and socks, low cut and ankle, which will be blessed and then presented to Kid's Needs of Greater Englewood. Elementary boys and girls sizes and men and women sizes are needed. Checks made out to Kids Needs may also be presented. So join us on Sept. 9 for worship. All are welcome. For more information, call the church at 941-697-3313.

Revival planned

The Salvation Army will present a three-day revival event at 6 p.m. nightly on Sept. 10-12 at 2120 Loveland Blvd., Port Charlotte. The revival will be hosted by Major Ed Binnix and feature Damien Horne. For more information, call 941-629-3170.

Episcopal schedule

Through Labor Day, Sept. 2, St. David's Episcopal Church, 401 S. Broadway, Englewood, will have one church service at 9 a.m. For more information, call 941-474-3140. Beginning Sept. 9, St. David's will return to its regular schedule of two Sunday morning services at 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. All are welcome.

Blue Sunday

Sonrise Baptist Church, 11050 Willmington Blvd., Englewood, and Pastor Clif Burritt, will host a Blue Sunday at its 10:15 a.m. service Sunday, Sept. 9. This emphasis is to honor our first responders, both retired and active. The event is open to the public and all are welcome to participate. Following the service there will be lunch provided by the church family. For more information, call the church office 941-475-5363.

True Woman

Experience God's truth through short, topical teaching segments and engaging, powerful dramas based on the best-selling book "Lies Women Believe: and the Truth that Sets them Free." This free, streaming simulcast, will be held on Sept. 27-29 at First Baptist Church, 18375 Cochran Blvd., Port Charlotte, and is open to all women in the community. For more information, call 941-286-3541 or visit www.truewoman.com.

Craft sale

This year's Craft & Tailgate sale will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 20, from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Indoor craft tables are $25 and outdoor tailgate spaces are a $15 donation. The church is located at 501 Rotonda Blvd. W., Rotonda. For more information, contact Mary at 813-312-3071 or leave a message on the church phone at 941-697-2100.

Presbyterian schedule

Burnt Store Presbyterian Church, 11330 Burnt Store Road, Punta Gorda, will extend its summer schedule through Oct. 21 with two services, traditional service at 9 a.m. and contemporary service (come as you are) at 10:30 a.m. Coffee and pastries will be available between services. Nursery will be available for each service. For more information contact the church office at 941-639-0001 during normal business hours, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to noon, on Friday or by email to office@bspconline.org.

Bus trip planned

Women With A Mission invites the public to join in on a fun trip to the Immokalee Casino, Saturday, Oct. 27. The cost for this popular trip is $25 per person which covers the round-trip bus fare and tip for the driver. The bus will leave the Murdock Walmart parking lot at 9:30 a.m. and return at 6 p.m. There will be complimentary water and treats on the bus and a 50/50 drawing will be available. Reservations begin Sept. 1. For more information, call Marie at 941-255-0005. Women With A Mission is a local organization that began four years ago to raise money to help local nonprofit organizations. All money raised stays in Port Charlotte and North Port.

At Ease, Veterans

During World War II, and the wars in Korea, Vietnam, Afghanistan and Iraq, the percentage of American soldiers who shot their weapons with the intent to kill steadily rose from just 15 percent to almost 100 percent. The Department of Housing & Urban Development estimates that in January 2017, over 40,000 veterans are more likely to be homeless each night. These brave men and women need a listening ear, and they need to know that God's grace is still with them. Combat veterans from Gulf Cove United Methodist Church are providing some of the support and discussion that our veterans deserve. On the first Tuesday of each month at 6 p.m., they will be at the American Legion Post 113, at 3436 Indiana Road, Rotonda West. Veterans are invited and encouraged to meet with them there. For more information, call 941-697-1747 or email GulfCoveUMC@gmail.com and GulfCoveChurch.com.

Single parents

Offering a safe environment for both single moms and dads, the Single Parent Small Group meets at 5 p.m. on Sundays in the Life Center, room 5 of First United Methodist Church, 507 W. Marion Ave., Punta Gorda. This group is open to anyone in the area. For your convenience, Connect Kids and United 4 Him Youth Group is available for all children in pre-kindergarten to 12th grade. Over the next few weeks, the group will focus on the challenges facing today's single parents, providing support, friendship and fellowship. If you know someone who is a single parent or know someone who would be interested in joining this valuable ministry, contact Janet Minerich, singleparentministry@whatis1st.com.

Englewood Moose donates to St. David's Jubilee Center

PHOTO PROVIDED

The Englewood Moose Lodge 1933 members Troy Skaggs, Trustee, and Gerry Greiff, Heart of the Community Chairman, presented Pat Knox of St. David's Jubilee Center, a check for $1,000 recently. Englewood Moose Lodge 1933 has donated more than $10,000 to the Jubilee Center in the last few years. The Moose Fraternal Organization's main purpose is supporting our children at Mooseheart, our elderly at Moosehaven, and the local community.

3010 ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dear Venice and Suncoast Residents:

It is with deep and heartfelt conviction that I seek your apology. ' The Church' has let you down. We have been going about our business without serious concern for the 'Red Tide' that hovers over our area. The latest news stories have shown people crowing city council, gathering at beaches and demanding elected officials that something be done. To our embarrassment, you have heard nothing from us.
We will be holding LT3
"Lord- Turn the Tide"- Prayer around our Flagpole this Sunday and Wednesday at 6:30pm. Then at Nokomis Beach on Sept. 2 at 6:30pm. We do not wish to remain silent in our request to God any longer. If you love and believe God, please join us.

Thank you

Fellowship debuts FUEL teen program

FELLOWSHIP CHURCH

ROTONDA WEST — Have you heard about the exciting new ministry at Fellowship Church of Englewood?

Fellowship Church kicked off a new high school ministry called Fellowship FUEL, which stands for Focusing Upward & Encouraging Lives. The first FUEL event was held Aug. 26, with a concert and Parking Lot Palooza. There were more than 100 in attendance.

This event included a concert with performances by Buckey, a local Christian rap artist and Lemon Bay High School Alumnus. Mitchell Clark, Joel Herring and Chris Brooks were also featured from the Fellowship Church Praise Band & Worship Team. The concert included a moving dramatic performance and ended with one of the team leaders getting a pie in the face after a little friendly competition.

Following the concert, students headed out to the parking lot for lawn games and a dinner off the grill. In addition, students were able to check out the new Fellowship FUEL Youth Room.

This room welcomes all and encourages a safe, comfortable atmosphere for students to hang out and be together. Students had fun playing with the foosball table, shooting hoops, playing video games, and just relaxing on the couch together. This is the place to be every Sunday night.

An invitation was given for any high school student to join the Fellowship FUEL family. High school students are welcome to hang out in our new youth room, eat dinner, and learn how the Bible applies to their life today.Fellowship FUEL is always free and opens its doors to any ninth-through-12th-grader every Sunday night starting at 4 p.m. at the Fellowship Church, 140 Rotonda Blvd. W., Rotonda West.

Fellowship FUEL. has a dynamite team of 18 adult team leaders who work to build positive relationships and mentor our FUEL students. These leaders provide acceptance, encouragement, guidance, and wise advice. The goals of the ministry include building positive relationships with students, sharing the message that the students have value and that they matter, building students up with the sound truth of the bible, and encouraging them to always seek and strengthen their relationship with Jesus Christ.

You can find out more about Fellowship FUEL by checking them out on Facebook (Fellowship FUEL) or Instagram (fellowshipfuel). Also, you are always welcome to call the Fellowship church office at 941-475-7447 to get more information or check out our website, fcenglewood.com.

Trump teases about successor to White House counsel

Trump cancels pay raise for federal workers

By DARLENE SUPERVILLE
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump informed Congress on Thursday that he is canceling pay raises due in January for most civilian federal employees, citing budget constraints. But the workers still could see a slightly smaller boost in their pay under a proposal lawmakers are considering.

Trump said he was axing a 2.1 percent across-the-board raise for most workers as well as locality pay increases averaging 25.7 percent and costing $25 billion.

"We must maintain efforts to put our Nation on a fiscally sustainable course, and Federal agency budgets cannot sustain such increases," said Trump. The president last year signed a package of tax cuts that is forecast to expand the deficit by about $1.5 trillion over 10 years.

Trump cited the "significant" cost of employing federal workers as justification for denying the pay increases, and called for federal worker pay to be based on performance and structured toward recruiting, retaining and rewarding "high-performing Federal employees and those with critical skill sets."

His announcement came as the country heads into the Labor Day holiday weekend.

The Democratic Party immediately criticized the announcement, citing the tax cuts Trump signed into law last December. The law provided steep tax cuts for corporations and the wealthiest Americans, and more modest reductions for middle- and low-income individuals and families.

"Trump has delivered yet another slap in the face to American workers," said Democratic National Committee Chairman Tom Perez.

Under the law, the 2.1 percent raise takes effect automatically unless the president and Congress act to change it. Congress is currently debating

Three Gmail automated response options are shown for an email on an iPhone in New York.

Gmail update provides customized auto-responses

By MAE ANDERSON
AP Technology Writer

NEW YORK — Google is toeing the line between helping you save time and creeping you out as it turns to machines to suggest email replies on your behalf.

The customized auto-responses come in the latest version of Gmail on the web and expand on a feature already available on Android devices and iPhones. They're just one more example of how artificial intelligence is seeping into everyday online life, whether it's to tailor product recommendations or correct spelling.

So far the new feature has been drawing mixed responses from users.

The new feature, called Smart Reply, offers three short responses, like "It was great seeing you too," or "I'll look into it." Unlike standard auto-replies when on vacation, for instance, these are customized to an individual email based on its context. If you select one, you can either send it immediately or edit it before sending.

Friends call John McCain hero, maverick at Arizona funeral

By MELISSA DANIELS and NICHOLAS RICCARDI
Associated Press

PHOENIX — A former vice president, an NFL star and other friends remembered Sen. John McCain as a "true American hero" — and a terrible driver with a wicked sense of humor and love of a good battle — at a crowded church service Thursday for the maverick politician that ended to the tune of Frank Sinatra's "My Way."

Addressing an estimated 3,500 mourners, former Vice President Joe Biden recalled "the sheer joy that crossed his face when he knew he was about to take the stage of the Senate floor and start a fight."

Biden, a Democrat who was among the fast friends the Republican senator made across the aisle, said he thought of McCain as a brother, "with a lot of family fights."

Telltale bits of DNA help track past and elusive wildlife

By EMILIANO RODRIGUEZ MEGA
Associated Press

NEW YORK — On a scorching summer day, Mark Stoeckle threw a bucket into the murky waters of New York's East River to fill up three small plastic bottles.

The biologist hopes the water he collected contains the genetic trail of the river's diverse life including all of its fish — and of course, the occasional rat.

"We've cleaned up the East River significantly, but we're still dumping a lot of stuff," said Stoeckle of Rockefeller University. "This will give us a better idea of whether fish are recovering or not."

He doesn't have to catch the slippery fish himself —a dangerous task given the river's rocky bottom and strong currents. He just needs to look for the tiny bits of DNA they leave behind to track them.

Animals lose hair, scales and feathers as they move. They also discard skin cells and waste. All of these leave traces of genetic material that can be detected hours, weeks or even millennia later.

Scientists say analyzing the DNA floating in waterways or hiding in soil, which they call environmental DNA or eDNA, promises to help in managing and protecting biodiversity. The tactic has become increasingly popular within the past few years and has already provided clues of ancient mammoths in Siberia, early warnings of frog die-offs in California and evidence of elusive sawfish in Mexico.

For Sam Chew Chin, a fish ecologist at York College in New York, the DNA sampling reminds him of childhood shows he loved such as Star Trek.

"Whenever they'd find a new planet, they would scan it for life,'" he said. "Detecting environmental DNA is kind of the closest we come to being able to do that. It's pretty neat."

Chew Chin said he used to be a "muddy-boots and bloody-desk biologist."

Studying fish meant capturing them and eventually killing them. Now, he searches for whales off of Long Island or fish in the Hudson River by testing water — an advance that has made his job faster and cheaper.

It wasn't always like that. Nobody really cared about eDNA a decade ago, said Danish

Gillum, Nelson: A team approach for Florida Dems?

By BRENDAN FARRINGTON and BILL BARROW
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Fresh from a stunning primary upset that boosts the progressive wing of the Democratic Party and potentially scrambles the November midterms in the nation's premier political battleground, Florida's Democratic gubernatorial candidate Andrew Gillum says he's intent on bringing a flood of new voters to the polls in November.

"We're going to be wildly successful at getting more black voters, brown voters, young voters, poor voters, working class white voters to get out and vote for us," Gillum said.

"I honestly believe that the nature of this moment — what's happening at the national level — is fueling and will fuel a whole new segment of people who really want to see more decency, more respect, more humanity and also a brand of politics that says, 'I see you, I hear you and we have a plan to make your life better.'"

Gillum defeated better-funded candidates as the unapologetically liberal who's vying to become the state's first black governor. He'll face Republican Congressman Ron DeSantis, who won the GOP nomination with an assist from President Donald Trump's endorsement.

The questions are how much Gillum's nomination changes the dynamics in a state accustomed to tight elections and whether there's any spillover effect for the titanic Senate matchup between Democratic incumbent Bill Nelson and term-limited Republican Gov. Rick Scott.

Republicans and Democrats agreed Wednesday that the fundamental rules of Florida politics don't change: Both races at the top of the ticket will be close.

"In this environment, base voters on both sides are very likely to turn out, so this is going to be a fight over the handful of people who are not already aligned with one or the other candidate," said Whit Ayres, who is polling for DeSantis and has extensive experience polling statewide and presidential races in Florida.

But Gillum's wild card is to change just which independents and casual partisan voters cast ballots in November. Republicans agree that he could boost nonwhites and younger voters, pushing the November electorate more toward what it looks like in a presidential year. Besides Gillum, that could boost Nelson, a 75-year-old white incumbent widely viewed as one of the most vulnerable Senate incumbents nationally.

It's the same strategy that Democrat Stacey Abrams, who joins Gillum as one of three black Democratic nominees for governor, is trying in GOP-leaning Georgia. And it's a contrast to the staid, centrist Nelson and Gwen Graham, Gillum's top primary rival.

"We'll be a good combination for each other," Gillum said of Nelson. "There are constituencies that Sen. Nelson has a stronger network of support with, and I think there are folks I have a stronger network of support with. It just so happens that I think the communities that most resonate with me happen to also be folks from communities that don't typically participate in midterm elections."

Hurricane Irma, disease, lowers value of Florida citrus crop

LAKE WALES (AP) — Losses from Hurricane Irma last year sent the value of the 2017-18 Florida citrus crop plummeting 41 percent.

The Lakeland Ledger reports that's a preliminary estimate of last season's crop value released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The USDA set the total 2017-18 Florida citrus crop value at nearly $551.2 million, down from a revised estimate of $927 million for the state's 2016-17 citrus crop. A year ago, the agency estimated the 2016-17 crop at $780.7 million.

Florida citrus acreage has declined continuously since 2000, at first under pressure from real estate developers buying groves for commercial development. Since 2005, the pressure has come from the fatal bacterial disease citrus greening.

Florida citrus production has dropped more than 70 percent since greening's arrival.

Fire inspectors shut down bar where fatal shooting occurred

JACKSONVILLE (AP) — Fire inspectors have shut down the restaurant and bar that was the scene of a fatal shooting during a video gaming tournament.

A bright orange "cease and desist" notice was posted on the door of Chicago Pizza in Jacksonville on Wednesday.

A city code violation report says the restaurant didn't have a permit to hold the Madden NFL 19 tournament last weekend. On Sunday afternoon 24-year-old former champion gamer David Katz of Baltimore opened fire inside Chicago Pizza, killing two people and injuring nearly a dozen others before killing himself.

The Florida Times-Union reports the restaurant's last approved building layout was submitted in 2009. Fire inspectors say the layout was altered without approval to create the GLHF Game Bar, where the tournament took place.

Deputy: Boy threatened to 'blow up' another student

Okaloosa County Sheriff's officials said in a news release that the student made the threat while in a classroom at Ruckel Middle School on Monday.

According to sheriff's deputies, the student asked someone in the classroom for the other student's address. Investigators say the boy told the witness that he planned to "stab" the victim and "blow him up."

Investigators say the boy told the witness he knows how to make "C4" explosives and had them at his house. Another student told investigators he overheard the conversation. Both witnesses provided written and verbal statements to investigators.

The boy told investigators he didn't mean what he said.

He's charged with a second-degree felony.

Keys resort reopens nearly a year after Hurricane Irma

MARATHON (AP) — Almost a year after Hurricane Irma pummeled the Florida Keys, another major resort is set to resume operations.

Hawks Cay Resort on Duck Key formally reopens Thursday after a $50 million project to repair damage caused by Irma. Owners also used the opportunity to enhance the property's appeal to upscale travelers.

Keys tourism officials says the resort's 177 hotel rooms will bolster the Keys lodging inventory to 90 percent operational following the Sept. 10, 2017, tropical cyclone.

Among enhancements guests will experience are completely renovated rooms, two new restaurants and a new oceanfront, adults-only relaxation area with pool, food and beverage facilities.

The resort laid off much of its staff because of the storm but has hired 200 employees in advance of the reopening.

Giant Monitor lizard is terrorizing Florida family

DAVIE (AP) — A Florida family is terrified of a huge Monitor lizard that has taken up residence in their back yard.

The lizard is about 7 feet long and weighs about 150 pounds. Homeowner Zachary Lieberman tells the Sun Sentinel that the lizard was at his back patio door "scratching to get inside the house" on Sunday night.

The family enlisted the help of trappers, dogs and Florida Fish and Wildlife officers to help catch the lizard. They've used dead rodents and chicken thighs to try to lure the reptile into traps, but it has eluded capture.

The wildlife officers even used a video camera scope to check inside a burrow Wednesday.

Lieberman says "it's scary." He's not comforted by the fact that Monitor lizards aren't known to attack people.

UN Syria envoy floats idea of evacuating Idlib civilians

By JAMEY KEATEN and NATALIYA VASILYEVA
Associated Press

GENEVA — Fearing a military offensive, the U.N. envoy for Syria proposed Thursday that civilians holed up in the rebel-held region of Idlib could evacuate to government areas — a move that would send many back into parts of Syria they once fled in its 7 1/2-year-old civil war.

U.N. envoy Staffan de Mistura expressed fears of a "perfect storm" that could have a devastating impact on nearly 3 million people — nearly half of whom arrived from elsewhere in Syria — in the region largely controlled by al-Qaida-linked fighters. It came as Russia, President Bashar Assad's strongest military backer, announced major military drills in the Mediterranean Sea amid growing tensions over the enclave.

"Short of going to Turkey, the civilians have no other option in order not to be where fighting may take place," de Mistura told reporters of the evacuation plan, which is in its early phases and will need to be discussed with regional players. Russia expressed openness to the idea.

The evacuation proposal reflected rising concerns that Idlib could become the site of the latest humanitarian disaster in a country that has faced many of them during a war that has killed over 400,000 people and driven more than 5.5 million to flee abroad.

De Mistura said a proposal would be a "temporary" measure so that "people can then return to their own places untouched once this is over."

Ahmad Ramadan, a spokesman for the Syrian opposition's delegation to U.N. talks with the government, called de Mistura's proposal "unrealistic."

"It's very regrettable," he said. "The special envoy's role is not to call for a humanitarian corridor, but to call on Russia to stop the aggression."

Idlib is the last remaining refuge for the Syrian opposition since President Bashar Assad's forces began recapturing territory from rebels in 2015. The country has been consumed by war since demonstrations broke out against Assad in 2011.

Separately on Thursday, at a news conference in Moscow with Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov, Syrian Foreign Minister Walid al-Moallem said his government plans to "liberate" Idlib, but that its priority was "to negotiate peace with those who want to surrender."

Al-Moallem said the government tried to negotiate with a so-called reconciliation committee in Idlib, but al-Qaida-linked militants arrested most of the committee members.

The militants have arrested over 500 people accused of trying to negotiate with the regime in recent weeks, according to Rami Abdurrahman, who heads the Britain-based Syrian Observatory for Human Rights monitoring group.

German protesters voice anger at migrant crime, politicians

By FRANK JORDANS
Associated Press

CHEMNITZ, Germany — Hundreds of people protested and expressed disdain for politicians in east Germany on Thursday as a regional governor visited a city where the fatal stabbing of a German citizen sparked violent clashes over immigration.

Saxony state Gov. Michael Kretschmer held a town hall meeting in Chemnitz under the watch of tight police security as about 500 people demonstrated outside.

Many of the protesters refused to talk to the media, but the ones who did said they felt abandoned by politicians and were angry at the crimes committed by migrants.

At the site where the 35-year-old man was wounded in an altercation with migrants over the weekend, a message placed among the flowers and candles read: "Take away their knives or we'll take away your elected offices."

Authorities denied online rumors that the victim was protecting a woman from harassment when he was stabbed, saying there was no evidence this had been the case.

The slaying has become a rallying point for far-right groups in Germany. At least 18 people were injured Monday when their supporters, mobilized from surrounding areas and further afield, clashed with counter-protesters in Chemnitz.

The public display, which included neo-Nazis hurling abuse and bottles as police struggled to keep the groups apart, has raised fresh concerns about the threat posed by far-right extremists in Germany.

Green party lawmaker Claudia Roth told German news agency dpa that "organized far-right extremists" appeared to be using public anger over the killing for their ends. Footage showing numerous protesters performing the stiff-armed Nazi salute was evidence of their extremist ideology, Roth said.

Public displays of the salute, the Nazi swastika and other efforts to glorify Adolf Hitler's National Socialist regime are forbidden in Germany and can result in fines or prison sentences.

Dutch anti-Islam lawmaker cancels Prophet cartoon contest

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — A Dutch anti-Islam lawmaker canceled a planned Prophet Muhammad cartoon contest Thursday following death threats and concerns other people could be put at risk.

"To avoid the risk of victims of Islamic violence, I have decided not to let the cartoon contest go ahead," far-right opposition politician Geert Wilders said in a written statement.

Wilders, who for years has lived under round-the-clock protection because of death threats sparked by his fierce anti-Islam rhetoric, said he does not want others endangered by the contest he planned for November.

The planned contest sparked angry protests in Pakistan and a death threat this week from a 26-year-old man, reportedly a Pakistani, who was arrested Tuesday in The Hague.

Physical depictions of the prophet are forbidden in Islam and deeply offensive to Muslims.

"It's not just about me," Wilders said in the statement. Strong opponents of the event "see not only me, but the entire Netherlands as a target."

Egypt to host war games with US for second straight year

CAIRO (AP) — Egypt's military says it will host war games with U.S. troops next month for the second straight year.

Thursday's statement from the military's spokesman says the "Bright Star" exercise will run from Sept. 8-20.

U.S. Central Command said in a Thursday statement that approximately 800 U.S. troops will participate.

The first "Bright Star" exercise took place in 1980, but the Obama administration postponed them in 2011, following the uprising that toppled longtime President Hosni Mubarak, and scrapped them in 2013, after Egyptian security forces killed hundreds of protesters while breaking up a mass sit-in.

Last September, Egypt held the war games with U.S. troops for the first time in eight years.

The exercise is typically biannual. It was unclear why it will be held two years in a row.

Man charged with making death threats over Trump editorials

By ALANNA DURKIN RICHER and BRIAN MELLEY
Associated Press

BOSTON — A Los Angeles man upset about The Boston Globe's coordinated editorial response to President Donald Trump's attacks on the news media was arrested Thursday for threatening to travel to the newspaper's offices and kill journalists, whom he called the "enemy of the people," federal prosecutors said.

Robert Chain's threatening phone calls to the Globe's newsroom started immediately after the Globe appealed to newspapers across the country to condemn what it called a "dirty war against the free press," prosecutors said.

The day the editorials were published , Chain, 68, of the Encino section of LA, told a Globe staffer that he was going to shoot employees in the head at 4 o'clock, according to court documents. That threat prompted a police response and increased security at the newspaper's offices.

After the editorials ran, Chain said he would continue threatening the Globe, The New York Times and "other fake news" as long as they continue their "treasonous and seditious acts" in attacking Trump, according to a court complaint.

Several times, he called Globe employees the "enemy of the people," a characterization of journalists that Trump has used in the past.

It was not immediately clear if Chain has an attorney. Phone messages left at his wife's law office and with a person listed as a relative didn't immediately return a phone messages.

Cars are parked in the driveway of Robert Chain's house in the Encino section of Los Angeles on Thursday. Chain, who was upset about The Boston Globe's coordinated editorial response to President Donald Trump's attacks on the news media, was arrested Thursday for threatening to travel to the newspaper's offices and kill journalists, whom he called the "enemy of the people," federal prosecutors said.

A neighbor who lived across the street from Chain and only knew him as "Rob" said he had a bombastic personality and could frequently be heard yelling at his television.

Tim McGowan said he knew nothing of Chain's political leanings but assumed he was an old hippie because he wore his hair in a man bun and frequently walked around in just shorts with his big belly protruding.

McGowan said he couldn't imagine Chain following through with violence, "but I could see him making the threats because he's such a loud mouth."

McGowan said he was startled awake by three loud bangs at 6 a.m. Thursday. His wife called police, who told her they were the source of the commotion.

When he looked outside, he saw about 30 heavily armed officers in and a tank-like vehicle. Chain eventually emerged from the house in handcuffs wearing only boxer shorts.

"When I saw Rob in handcuffs standing there in his underwear, I was, like, 'What the heck is going on here?'" McGowan said. He subsequently learned what happened from reporters who showed up at his door, adding that he had learned more about his neighbor in a few hours than he had in nine years.

Chain is expected to appear in Los Angeles' federal court and be transferred to Boston at a later date. He's charged with making threatening communications in interstate commerce, which calls for up to five years in prison.

Jane Bowman, a spokeswoman for the Globe, said the newspaper is grateful for law enforcement's efforts to protect its staffers and track down the source of the threats.

Newsrooms have received threats for years, but sensitivity has been heightened since a gunman with a long-running grudge against The Capitol newspaper in Annapolis, Maryland, killed five employees there in June.

Government accuses Harvard of 'outright racial balancing'

By MARIA DANILOVA, COLLIN BINKLEY and ERIC TUCKER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In its latest push to end the use of race in college admissions, the Trump administration on Thursday accused Harvard University of "engaging in outright racial balancing" and sided with Asian-American students who allege the Ivy League school discriminated against them.

Harvard denied the bias claim and said it would defend the right to consider race as a factor in admissions.

The Justice Department weighed in on a lawsuit filed in 2014 by Students For Fair Admission, which argues that one of the world's most prestigious universities discriminates against academically strong Asian-American applicants in favor of others who may be less qualified.

The agency said in a "statement of interest" that Harvard has failed to demonstrate that it does not discriminate on the basis of race and that its use of personal qualities in determining worthy applicants "may be infected with racial bias."

The Supreme Court permits colleges and universities to consider race in admissions decisions, but says that must be done in a narrowly tailored way to promote diversity and should be limited in time. Schools also bear the burden of showing why their consideration of race is appropriate.

In Harvard's case, Justice Department officials said, the university hasn't explained how it uses race in admissions and has not adopted meaningful criteria to limit the use of race.

"No American should be denied admission to school because of their race," Attorney General Jeff Sessions said.

Sessions said Harvard's use of a "personal rating," which includes highly subjective factors such as being a "good person" or "likability," may be biased against Asian-Americans. Sessions said the school admits that it scores Asian-American applicants lower on personal rating than other students. Sessions also argued that Harvard admissions officers monitor and manipulate the racial makeup of incoming classes.

Harvard said it was disappointed the department was "recycling the same misleading and hollow arguments that prove nothing more than the emptiness of the case against Harvard."

"Harvard does not discriminate against applicants from any group, and will continue to vigorously defend the legal right of every college and university to consider race as one factor among many in college admissions, which the Supreme Court has consistently upheld for more than 40 years," the university said in a statement. "Colleges and universities must have the freedom and flexibility to create the diverse communities that are vital to the learning experience of every student."

Edward Blum, president of the group that sued Harvard, hailed the administration's action. "We look forward to having the gravely troubling evidence that Harvard continues to keep redacted disclosed to the American public in the near future," he said.

Word that more China tariffs could come knock stocks lower

By MARLEY JAY
AP Markets Writer

NEW YORK — U.S. stocks skidded late Thursday following a report that the Trump administration could put tariffs on $200 billion in Chinese goods as early as next week.

After a weak start, stocks fell further after Bloomberg News said the U.S. government was getting ready to ramp up its trade dispute with China. It has been threatening to tax $200 billion in Chinese imports for several months, which would represent a major escalation in the trade fight.

Major exporters including chemical companies and machinery makers took sharp losses. Technology companies also fell, while banks dropped along with interest rates and some weak second-quarter results hurt retailers.

According to Bloomberg, the administration could impose the 25 percent tariffs as soon as a public review period ends next week, but it could simply announce the tariffs and say they will take effect later.

China has threatened to retaliate with tariffs on $60 billion in goods from the U.S. and could take other measures as well.

"Markets have kind of gone to sleep on these things," said Sameer Samana, a strategist for the Wells Fargo Investment Institute. "We think this might take as long as a year or two to play out."

Stocks were coming off a four-day surge that brought them to record highs as the U.S. appeared to make progress in trade talks with Mexico and Canada.

The S&P 500 index lost 12.91 points, or 0.4 percent, to 2,901.13. The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 137.65 points, or 0.5 percent, to 25,986.92. The Nasdaq composite slid 21.32 points, or 0.3 percent, to 8,088.36.

The Russell 2000 index of smaller-company stocks dipped 2.40 points, or 0.1 percent, to 1,732.35.

Construction equipment maker Caterpillar fell 2 percent to $139.06. Gold and copper miner Freeport-McMoRan lost 3.5 percent to $14.15 and steel producer Nucor slid 2 percent to $62.79. General Motors fell 2 percent to $36.36.

Video game maker Electronic Arts dropped 9.8 percent to $115.94 after it said the release of a major game, "Battlefield V," will be delayed by four weeks. It also said the strong dollar is hurting its sales. It cut a revenue forecast, citing those problems.

Oil prices rose. Benchmark U.S. crude gained 1.4 percent to $70.25 a barrel in New York, while Brent crude, used to price international oils, added 0.8 percent to $77.77 a barrel in London.

Wholesale gasoline rose 1.8 percent to $2.14 a gallon.

Trump to sign executive order on retirement security Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Donald Trump will be signing an executive order Friday that the White House says is aimed at strengthening Americans' retirement security.

The White House declined to provide details on the order, but said it was part of a larger plan to promote programs that enhance retirement security and expand access to retirement savings plans.

Trump is expected to sign the order and deliver remarks at an event at the Harris Conference Center in Charlotte, North Carolina.

Labor Secretary Alexander Acosta and Small Business Administration head Linda McMahon are also expected to attend.

The Charlotte Observer says Trump will also be headlining a fundraiser for two Republican congressional candidates, Mark Harris and Rep. Ted Budd, while he's in town.

Microsoft to contractors: Give new parents paid leave

Microsoft will begin requiring its contractors to offer their U.S. employees paid leave to care for a new child.

It's common for tech firms to offer generous family leave benefits for their own software engineers and other full-time staff, but paid leave advocates say it's still rare to require similar benefits for contracted workers such as janitors, landscapers, cafeteria crews and software consultants.

"Given its size and its reach, this is a unique and hopefully trailblazing offering," said Vicki Shabo, vice president at the National Partnership for Women and Families.

The new policy affects businesses with at least 50 U.S.-based employees that do substantial work with Microsoft that involves access to its buildings or its computing network. It doesn't affect suppliers of goods. Contractors would have to offer at least 12 weeks of leave to those working with the Redmond, Washington-based software giant; the policy wouldn't affect the contractors' arrangements with other companies. Leave-takers would get 66 percent of regular pay, up to $1,000 weekly.

Judge: Government can end housing for Puerto Rican evacuees

BOSTON (AP) — Puerto Rico hurricane evacuees living in hotels across the U.S. can be evicted in two weeks, a Massachusetts judge ruled Thursday, saying he didn't believe it was the right thing to do but that his hands were tied by the law.

Worcester-based U.S. Judge Timothy Hillman denied an effort to force the government to continue the temporary housing voucher program until all of the evacuees either receive temporary housing or find permanent housing. But he ordered the Federal Emergency Management Agency to keep the program in place through Sept. 13 to give the evacuees time to make other plans.

Hillman said he was forced to issue the ruling because the evacuees weren't likely to succeed on the merits of their case.

"While this is the result that I am compelled to find, it is not necessarily the right result," Hillman said. He said he could not order the government to do "that which in a humanitarian and caring world should be done."

He also urged the two sides to work together to find temporary housing or other aid for the evacuees before the program ends.

Travelers to Hawaii's Big Island drop 12.7 percent in July

HONOLULU (AP) — Hawaii's Big Island continued to experience sharp declines in visitors and tourism spending last month amid Kilauea volcano's eruption.

The Hawaii Tourism Authority said Thursday the number of travelers to the island sank 12.7 percent in July compared to the same month last year. Spending by visitors declined 7.2 percent to $201 million.

Lava mostly stopped flowing from the volcano early this month. It was vigorously erupting in July.

Tourists had few options to see lava because Hawaii Volcanoes National Park closed in May due to eruption dangers. There was also no public viewing area outside the park.

Overall, more than 939,000 visitors came to the state. That's a 5.3 percent increase over July last year and a record high for any month.

Spending climbed 4.8 percent to $1.66 billion.

Lawsuit alleges newborn died after hospital virus outbreak

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A lawsuit filed by the family of a premature baby who was treated at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia alleges she died after being one of 23 infants infected during a virus outbreak at the hospital's neonatal intensive care unit in 2016.

Philly.com reported Thursday that 23 infants contracted adenovirus infections after eye exams at the unit. In a medical journal article published in June 2017, hospital staff attributed the outbreak to medical staff failing to wear gloves and clean equipment properly.

The lawsuit alleges the baby, Melanie Sanders, died as a result of the infection. Lawyers for the hospital said in their court answer that survival of babies born so prematurely is uncertain for numerous reasons.

The authors of the medical journal article said 43 babies received the eye exam in the unit in August 2016, and 23 of them were infected. All of those who were infected suffered respiratory symptoms; five developed pneumonia; and 11 had eye-related symptoms, they said. In addition, nine adults including six nurses and three parents contracted viral infections.

"Observations revealed lack of standard cleaning practices of bedside ophthalmologic equipment and limited glove use," the authors wrote.

Could a keto diet have contributed to atrial fibrillation?

Dr. Roach

DEAR DR. ROACH: My husband, age 67, recently was diagnosed with atrial fibrillation. He began feeling very weak, and got dizzy every time he stood. We both had started on the keto diet together about a week prior. I'm a registered nurse. After taking his blood pressure and finding it to be very low for him, I thought he was dehydrated. I fed him extra carbs and lots of fluids, but nothing changed. So we went to the emergency room.

After a few tests and an EKG, he was diagnosed and admitted to intensive care, where he ate a regular diet. I asked the hospital doctor if being in ketosis could cause atrial fibrillation, and he thought that ketosis makes the body more acidic so maybe, but he wasn't sure. He was put on a blood thinner and metoprolol, and sent home the next day to continue on a regular diet.

The following day, he began having chest pain, sweating and shortness of breath, so we went back to the emergency room. More tests ruled out a heart attack, and when his heart converted back to a normal rhythm, he was sent home until his stress test. He remained on a regular diet and hasn't had any more symptoms since then, and also passed his stress test.

His doctor cut his metoprolol down and has kept him on the blood thinner. Do you have any thoughts on ketosis causing atrial fibrillation? The keto diet is popular, and I am concerned for friends who may want to try it. — L.S.

ANSWER: The ketogenic diet uses very low amounts of carbohydrates to create a condition called "ketosis," where the body has ketones in the blood and urine. This can lead to rapid weight loss; however, there is not general acceptance of the diet from the standpoint of overall health, especially in long-term use.

The effect of a ketogenic diet on blood acid is complex, but briefly, the blood pH does not change appreciably in people on a ketogenic diet, because the body has powerful ways of regulating pH. Worse still, the terminology is confusing: ketones do lead to "acidosis" but not a low pH (which is called "acidemia").

The connection with atrial fibrillation is not clear. An early study noted that several people developed atrial fibrillation during diet-induced ketosis; however, I could not find a well-done study to support or refute a connection. Your husband's ordeal does raise suspicion, however, that there may be a link. Still, atrial fibrillation is common, and it may have nothing to do with the diet.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I'm an 87-year-old woman and have been taking thyroid pills for many years. What would cure this condition? I try to eat healthy, but is there something I should get more of or avoid? — J.B.

ANSWER: By far, the most likely thyroid condition requiring daily medicine in older women is autoimmune thyroiditis, also called Hashimoto's. Diet is neither a cause nor a cure: The condition is caused by your body's own immune system attacking the thyroid gland in the neck, initially causing too much thyroid hormone to be released, then a long period of low thyroid levels in the blood. Symptoms of low thyroid include fatigue, constipation, dry skin and voice changes when severe.

Although many people will get better on their own from autoimmune thyroid disease, most people take replacement thyroid hormone long-term. Blood levels usually are tested yearly but some people may need more frequent checks to make sure the dose is right.

Man rejects idea of having surgery to quiet snoring

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are happily married, but have one serious problem. I am an extremely light sleeper; he is a horrendous snorer.

He sees a snoring specialist and tried several medical treatments, none of which worked. The only solution is a minor surgical procedure. He doesn't want to have the surgery.

I have tried earplugs, white noise machines, sleep medications and more, but I cannot get a decent sleep with the obnoxious snoring.

We agree we don't want to sleep in separate rooms and lose the intimacy, but it's the only option for me to sleep well.

Am I wrong for asking him to have surgery so we can share a bed? — Sleepless In Louisiana

DEAR SLEEPLESS: It wasn't wrong of you to ask, and out of consideration for you and the intimacy in your marriage he shouldn't have refused.

Understand, the "intimacy bed" does not always have to be the "sleeping bed." Good sleep quality is necessary for us to function properly.

DEAR ABBY: I have five grown children and three grandchildren. They have always come first, especially my grandchildren. When I began the relationship with my husband, I told him how important both were to me and that, no matter what, my grandchildren always came first. He agreed and said he felt the same way.

Now, two years into our marriage, my daughter and grandchildren want to come live with us for nine months while her husband is deployed. My husband is freaking out and keeps complaining every day even though they aren't even here yet. What should I do? — Family First In The South

DEAR FAMILY FIRST: Remind your husband that this is what he agreed to before your marriage, and point out that this isn't forever. It will be for only nine months. Who knows? He might enjoy it.

Life of a cellphone battery

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: If you want to extend the life of your CELLPHONE BATTERY, try these hints:

* Be sure to charge the battery fully before first use.
* Turn your phone off if you won't be using it for several hours.
* Do NOT let the battery fully discharge before recharging.
* Your battery will last longer if you keep it out of extreme heat, like a hot car or direct sunlight.
* Use only a charger rated for your battery.

Dear Heloise: I hated using hair spray because it would get into my ears. Now, I've found that if I place the hair spray can's cap over my ear while I spray my hair, I can keep my ears free of spray. — Nanette D., Alpena, Mich.

Another reader once told me that she had a spatula just for the purpose of covering her ears when she uses hair spray. — Heloise

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19). What you want is not as out of reach as you think. What seems ridiculous to expect may actually be just a little bit out of the normal pattern, and all it will take is an extra push to make it so.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). When you don't know what to do next, concentrate your efforts on just being the best you. Keeping yourself sharp and strong will ready you for the opportunities around the bend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'll hear many versions of the truth. Avoid trusting powerful people over honest people. As Groucho Marx once said: Who are you going to believe, me or your own eyes?

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You'll pick your goal almost arbitrarily, and that's fine for today. The purpose is to give you a reason to take every step along the way. You'll commit to the journey, not the destination.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). If you were a cast member on "Survivor," you might conspire to handle today's challenge. Thankfully, you live in the untelevised version of reality where it is better to be kind than to drum up the drama.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Between people whose history includes great love, there will always be explosive topics, buried like landmines in the field of conversation. They are usually best avoided. If you accidentally step on one, turn and run.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Thankfulness is the seed that all good things blossom from today. What you're most appreciative of is not material, rather it's the attention, help and lessons you gather.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). If the events knock you off course, take it as a cue to expand your perception and grow your influence. With a bigger worldview you will definitely be unfazed by life's little irritations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). To protect yourself against the thievery of time, demand that time leave you something in return for what it takes. This is most easily accomplished by working toward meaningful treasures.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). It's wasteful to wish you were anywhere else, with anyone else, doing anything else than what you're doing. Guard against this immaturity by fully joining the moment you're in.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You'll get the win, but winners be warned: Arrogance and pride are terrible, dangerous hitchhikers on the road to a great win. Do not pick them up. Arrogance and pride are the failures of success.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You're thinking creatively, and because of this, you will see how there are wonderful experiences to be had for very little or no money. They'll take planning though.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Aug. 31). You place yourself in service to humanity. "Humanity" is not always an easy customer, and the obstacles that ensue will contribute to your spiritual might. Truly, you gain the most from your own selflessness. You'll bank on it in October, and there's another windfall in December. Travel and romance come in mid-2019. Gemini and Pisces adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 8, 40, 1, 22 and 15.

The bidding:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1♡	Pass	1♠	Pass
1NT	Pass	3♡	Pass
4♡	All pass

Opening lead: King of ♣

South's decision to carry on to game has a two-way interpretation — it was aggressive if he makes it and an overbid if he doesn't. What's the verdict?

East overtook the king of clubs lead with his ace and returned the suit. West won with his nine, cashed the queen, and persevered with a fourth round of clubs as East discarded two diamonds and South ruffed. The biggest problem was the queen of trumps. Playing West for that card meant that declarer probably wouldn't be able to ruff any diamonds in dummy. The spade suit would have to provide four tricks. All of that was possible, but it was a long shot. Instead, South decided to play East for the queen of trumps.

Declarer cashed the king and ace of spades and then ruffed a spade. West's failure to overruff was a good sign. South cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond with a low trump in dummy. He ruffed another spade in his hand, reducing his trumps to just the ace and jack. His last diamond was ruffed with dummy's king as East helplessly under-ruffed. In the two-card ending, South simply led a trump to his jack and took the last two tricks. Very nicely played!

South used this deal for weeks to assert that he was not an over-bidder, just a little aggressive. His partners gritted their teeth, but they had to give him the nod on this one.

Trump teases about successor to White House counsel

By DARLENE SUPERVILLE, KEN THOMAS and ZEKE MILLER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A day after announcing the departure of his White House counsel, President Donald Trump teased Thursday that he's excited about his choice for a replacement but isn't ready to share his new lawyer's name.

Trump said Wednesday on Twitter that Don McGahn will leave in the fall. He has been a consequential insider on Trump's legal team and a key figure in the administration's handling of the federal investigation into Russian election interference and possible Trump campaign collusion.

"I am very excited about the person who will be taking the place of Don McGahn as White House Councel!" Trump tweeted Thursday. He sent a later tweet that spelled "counsel" correctly.

Trump also took a shot at reports that McGahn had threatened to resign last year if the president continued to press for the removal of special counsel Robert Mueller as head of the Russia investigation.

"I liked Don, but he was NOT responsible for me not firing Bob Mueller or Jeff Sessions. So much Fake Reporting and Fake News!" Trump said, referring as well to his attorney general, who recused himself from the investigation, much to the president's annoyance.

Trump said Thursday that the Russia investigation was not a factor, "even a little bit," in his decision about McGahn's departure.

White House counselor Kellyanne Conway said at the White House Thursday that Trump will make the announcement about McGahn's successor. She offered no timetable.

McGahn has done "a fantastic job as White House counsel," she said, mentioning his work on deregulation and the president's judicial nominees.

McGahn's exit, which has been expected for some time, continues the churn of top officials as the administration sets records for turnover and the White House struggles to fill key vacancies.

Unlike some less-amiable separations, however, Trump praised McGahn as "a really good guy" who has done "an excellent job."

Trump said Wednesday that McGahn's departure had nothing to do with the lawyer's interviews with the special counsel. Pressed by reporters, Trump said he had approved the interviews and was unconcerned about anything McGahn might tell prosecutors.

"We do everything straight," he said. "We do everything by the book."

a proposal for a slightly lower, 1.9 percent across-the-board raise to be included in a government funding bill that would require Trump's signature to keep most government functions operating past September.

Unions representing the 2 million-member federal workforce urged Congress to pass the 1.9 percent pay raise.

"President Trump's plan to freeze wages for these patriotic workers next year ignores the fact that they are worse off today financially than they were at the start of the decade," said J. David Cox Sr., president of the American Federation of Government Employees, which represents some 700,000 federal workers.

"They have already endured years of little to no increases and their paychecks cannot stretch any further as education, health care costs, gas and other goods continue to get more expensive," added Tim Reardon, national president of the National Treasury Employees Union.

Cox said federal worker pay and benefits have been cut by more than $200 billion since 2011, and workers are currently earning 5 percent less than they did at the start of the decade.

In July, the Trump administration sharply revised upward its deficit estimates compared to the estimates in the budget proposal it sent Congress in February. The worsening deficit reflects the impact of the $1.5 trillion, 10-year tax cut, as well as increased spending for the military and domestic programs that Congress approved earlier this year.

The administration's July budget update projected a deficit of $890 million for the fiscal year that ends Sept. 30, up from the February estimate of $873 billion. The $890 billion deficit projection represents a 34 percent increase from the $666 billion deficit the government recorded in 2017.

For 2019, the administration is projecting the deficit will once again top $1 trillion and stay at that level for the next three years.

The only other period when the federal government ran deficits above $1 trillion was the four years from 2009 through 2012, when the government used tax cuts and increased spending to combat the 2008 fiscal crisis and the worst economic downturn since the 1930s.

GMAIL

and AOL, both owned by Verizon, still scan email for advertising.)

Google's suggestions draw on what's in your email, such as the text of the message and the subject line. The analysis can include past conversations. For example, if someone says "Thanks!" more often than "Thanks," with no exclamation point, the suggested response would likely reflect that.

It's not known, though, how far Google goes in scanning your email. For instance, Gmail scans attachments for security risks, but is it also using that information to customize responses? The machines behind Google Photos can tell whether an image has food, flowers or the beach. Might Gmail suggest, "How was lunch?" Google didn't respond to a query for details on what it scans for replies.

Brian Lam, a San Diego attorney who focuses on privacy and data security, said auto-replies represent "a tradeoff between privacy and new features that consumers may want."

Google has been scanning Gmail since its debut in 2004, so scanning for auto-replies shouldn't come as a surprise. Lam said he has no concerns as long as companies disclose they are doing this.

"There's a market incentive to behave responsibly," he said. There's been consumer backlash when people get wind of companies that don't respect privacy. People decide not to use those services."

Not every email will get suggestions — only those that Google thinks will lend themselves to a short reply.

To disable the "Smart Reply" feature on a mobile device, simply go to "Settings" and uncheck the box next to "Smart Reply." But for now, there's no way to disable the feature on the web. However, users can return to the "classic" version of Gmail on the web by selecting that option under "Settings."

Suggesting responses isn't the only way Google uses artificial intelligence to help people manage their emails, as it has been rolling out a new version of Gmail since April. The new Gmail has "Nudges," a feature that reminds users to reply to emails it deems important. Gmail also prods users who forget to include an attachment to an email that uses the word "attached" or something similar.

The service for the statesman, former prisoner of war and two-time presidential candidate unfolded at North Phoenix Baptist Church after a motorcade bearing McCain's body made its way from the state Capitol past Arizonans waving American flags and campaign-style McCain signs.

Family members watched in silence as uniformed military members removed the flag-draped casket from a black hearse and carried it into the church. McCain died last Saturday of brain cancer at 81.

McCain's longtime chief of staff Grant Woods, a former Arizona attorney general, drew laughs with a eulogy in which he talked about McCain's "terribly bad driving" and his sense of humor, which included calling the Leisure World retirement community "Seizure World."

Woods also recalled the way McCain would introduce him to new staff members by saying, "You'll have to fire half of them."

The service brought to a close two days of mourning for the six-term senator and 2008 GOP presidential nominee in his home state.

A motorcade then took McCain's body to the airport, where it was put aboard a military plane that took off for Washington for a lying-in-state at the U.S. Capitol on Friday, a service at the Washington National Cathedral on Saturday, and burial at the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland, on Sunday.

Twenty-four sitting U.S. senators and four former senators attended the church service, according to McCain's office.

Neither Biden nor other speakers uttered President Donald Trump's name, but Biden made what some saw as a veiled reference to the president when he talked about McCain's character and how he parted company with those who "lacked the basic values of decency and respect, knowing this project is bigger than yourself."

Biden said McCain "could not stand the abuse of power wherever he saw it, in whatever form, in whatever country."

Dabbing his eyes at times, Biden also referred to his own son's death from cancer, saying of the disease, "It's brutal, it's relentless, it's unforgiving." And he spoke directly to McCain's widow, Cindy McCain, in the front row: "You were his ballast."

At the end of the nearly 90-minute ceremony, McCain's casket was wheeled out of the church to "My Way," in tribute to a politician known for following his own path based on his personal principles.

DNA

geneticist Eske Willerslev, who pioneered the technique.

He had been traveling to Siberia to sample permafrost. The frozen soil was so cold that he thought ancient genetic material could have remained intact throughout the years.

In 2002, with a handful of permafrost samples the size of a sugar cube, he was able to identify the genetic material of bison, horses and many different plants that lived hundreds of thousands of years ago. He also found the preserved DNA of mammoths.

Environmental DNA "helps us reach the inaccessible," said Willerslev from the Natural History Museum of Denmark, adding that this approach will play a key role in scientists' quest to understand nature.

Examples of this are appearing in other fields, where eDNA has changed how researchers think about conservation.

When Colleen Kamoroff spent the summer collecting water in 2015 from the lakes in California's Sierra Nevada, she saw a healthy group of native mountain yellow-legged frogs hopping around.

One month later, they were all dying. The culprit: a microorganism that has caused the decline of about 200 amphibian species around the world, called chytrid fungus.

Curious whether the frogs could have been saved if she had seen early signs, Kamoroff, a wildlife biologist who works for Yosemite National Park in California, started looking for chytrid fungus DNA in the water she had sampled. She was surprised to find it.

"Maybe if we knew they were infected at that point, we could have been more prepared. We could have started treating them" with medication, she said.

If a species is reduced to the verge of extinction, protecting the area where animals live or breeding them in captivity can sometimes help rescue it. It's been done before. But knowing where those last survivors hide is a common headache for conservationists.

Classmates can't find time capsule buried in 1988

COLOMA, Mich. (AP) — Former classmates reunited in Michigan to uncover a time capsule buried 30 years ago. The result? They couldn't find it.

The seven classmates and two teachers spent two hours Sunday digging outside Coloma Junior High in southwestern Michigan. Tracy Gilmer said she remembers putting a Michael Jackson cassette in the box in 1988, along with assignments from an accelerated writing-and-reasoning program, including a fictional country.

A teacher, Sandi Sanders, said information about the capsule was filed away but lost. Some wonder if rebellious classmates dug it up.

Coloma Superintendent Dave Ehlers said the box may have been unearthed earlier when work was performed to alleviate flooding behind the school. The group might use a different metal detector and keep hunting.

No. 21 UCF extends winning streak to 14 with rout of UConn

By PAT EATON-ROBB

EAST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — McKenzie Milton threw for 346 yards and five touchdowns and No. 21 UCF routed UConn 56-17 on Thursday night to extend the longest winning streak in the nation to 14 games.

The reigning American Athletic Conference offensive player of the year completed 24 of 32 passes and ran for another 50 yards. Sophomore receiver Tre Nixon, a transfer from Mississippi, caught passes, scoring on plays of 34 and 11 yards.

Backup quarterback Darriel Mack Jr. came on in the fourth quarter and broke a 70-yard touchdown run down the left sideline, making him the team's leading rusher.

UConn quarterback David Pindell was a bright spot for the Huskies, throwing for 266 yards and a touchdown and running for another 157 yards and a score.

The game was marred by what appeared to be a serious injury to UCF defensive back Aaron Robinson on the opening kickoff.

The sophomore transfer from Alabama appeared to collide head-first with another UCF player while making the tackle. He had to be cut from his shoulder and was taken off the field on a stretcher, giving the crowd the thumbs-up sign as he was wheeled to an ambulance. His condition was not immediately known.

The takeaway

UCF: New coach Josh Heupel's fast-paced offense is as advertised, putting up 652 yards and scoring eight touchdowns on 11 drives, with each scoring drive taking less than 3 minutes off the clock.

UConn: The Huskies seem to have found their quarterback in Pindell. In addition to completing 27 of 41 passes and running 22 times, he had another 50-yard touchdown run

Team effort carries Tarpons past Bulldogs

By STEVE KNAPP
Sun Correspondent

The Tarpons volleyball team used a complete team effort to top the pesky Bulldogs from DeSoto County Thursday night. After rolling past the Bulldogs 25-9 in the opening set, Coach Michelle Dill went to her bench midway through the second set.

Those players kept the team on track with a 25-11 win.

"Putting in the girls that don't play all the time was good because it gave them some more game experience," said Dill. "They did a really good job, and I liked what I saw. In the third set we made several errors and with Kaitlyn (Chavarria) and Shelby (Beisner) out, which are our two main hitters, we still should have capitalized and won that set."

The Bulldogs took their first lead of the night in the third set at 6-5, and the contest remained tighter than bark on a tree to the finish. Neither team was able to get more than a two point lead, with the Bulldogs taking the set 25-23.

The Tarpons got back to work in the fourth and final set and won easily 25-12.

Chavarria not only had a good night at the net, mixing dinks just barely making it over the net and screaming kill shots. The senior also put on a show from the service line. In the first set with the score still close at 8-5, Chavarria knocked off 12 straight points to put the game out of reach.

Sarasota Military Academy posted a nine-stroke victory Thursday afternoon over the Lemon Bay's boys golf team 97-106, in a rain-shortened five-hole match at Palm Aire.

Lemon Bay scores

SMA scores

Stone Crabs

The Tampa Bay Rays announced two roster moves affecting the composition of the Charlotte Stone Crabs. Right-handed pitcher J.D. Busfield has been reassigned to Charlotte from the Rays' Low-A affiliate, the Bowling Green Hot Rods. The 6-foot-7-inch tall hurler played collegiately at Loyola Marymount.

First baseman/left-handed pitcher Brendan McKay has been placed on the 7-day disabled list. The Rays' first round selection, fourth overall, in the 2017 Major League Baseball draft, has a 3-2 record with the Stone Crabs. The 2017 Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year, while playing at the University of Louisville, McKay was a Golden Spikes winner and won the Dick Howser Trophy as a junior. He is a three-time winner of the John Olerud Award, a distinction given annually to the best two-way collegiate player.

Florida QB Franks: I don't have anything to prove

By MARK LONG
AP Sports Writer

GAINESVILLE — Florida quarterback Feleipe Franks insists he has nothing to prove.

Coaches, teammates and close to 90,000 fans at Florida Field on Saturday probably would disagree.

Franks was benched three times last season, went 3-5 as the starter and finished with more turnovers (11) than touchdown passes (9). The Gators (4-7) posted their second losing record in five years, and the offense ranked in triple digits nationally for the sixth time in the last seven seasons.

Nothing to prove? It wasn't all Franks' fault, but he was often criticized for lacking situational awareness and having poor pocket presence.

AP PHOTO

Franks stuck around and was named the starter Monday after five months of competition against high school backup Kyle Trask and freshman Emory Jones, who has a ways to go as a passer.

Mullen's decision was hardly a surprise, but some of Franks' responses to getting the job raised eyebrows.

"Just ready to get back out there and, not prove myself, but just kind of go back out there and build confidence back up for the team," Franks said. "I'm not trying to prove anything to anybody. I don't have anything to prove to anybody."

■ MLB: Tampa Bay Rays

Jim Hickey: Impressed with Rays' pitching staff

By MARC TOPKIN

ATLANTA — Jim Hickey was a little surprised walking into the meeting at the Trop two days after the end of last season to hear he would leaving his post as Rays pitching coach after 11 impressively successful seasons, and with one more on his contract, by mutual decision.

But by the time he walked out, learning what Rays officials and manager Kevin Cash were thinking and planning going forward pitching-wise, realizing he likely wouldn't have been signed to a new deal and that promising Kyle Snyder was ready to move up from Triple-A and replace him, he felt it made "perfect sense."

So what does Hickey, 56, think of some of the specifics?

On the plan of using relievers as openers and young starters as relievers three times a week:

"I have mixed emotions about it," he said. "It's pretty darn interesting. You've got to have the right pieces and you've got to have enough of those pieces where you're moving them in and out. That's what makes what they've done so impressive."

Hickey had some idea before he left that the Rays were considering using the opener, but didn't think — and doesn't feel Cash or Snyder did either — that would have implemented it as extensively if not for the injuries. And even given his apprehensions he would have been willing to give it a try under the circumstances.

"I'm not really surprised that they traded him," Hickey said. "I'm actually a little bit surprised they had not traded him sooner just based on what they were doing. And I was a little surprised he went to the Pirates because you never think of the Pirates as a team adding on. I think the timing was probably right for him also and the Rays organization. And they got a couple of darn good players."

On Blake Snell's emergence as an All-Star, with a 16-5, 2.05 record:

"I'm not sure you could ever say you saw what he's doing coming where he's nearly leading the league in ERA, but absolutely, positively, was this guy a top of the rotation, front line guy, no question about it," Hickey said. "He showed that over this last 10 starts last year. It's not like he just came out of the blue. All he ever needed to do was start channeling that stuff and putting the ball over the plate, which he's doing now. He's extremely aggressive. And he's confident, obviously. …

"Even with the success of a guy like David Price, (Snell) has the chance to be the best one that's ever come through there, and that's saying something."

■ MLB: Tampa Bay Rays

Rays' Ji-Man Choi has all the right moves … sort of

By MARC TOPKIN

ATLANTA — There is a lot we still don't know about Ji-Man Choi, the Rays' international man of some mystery. But we are learning.

Such as the variety of ways he entertains his teammates, how beloved he is in his native South Korea, the way he communicates in different languages.

What has become quite apparent is he can hit in the major leagues, at least when given the opportunity for regular at-bats, evidenced by his .340 average and 1.043 OPS over his past 14 games as a DH and pinch-hitter.

"Our guys upstairs did a good job recognizing he'd done some things, probably under the surface, especially against right-hand pitchers, and he's got a knack for hitting the ball hard," manager Kevin Cash said.

Choi, 27, agrees that the opportunity has begat success.

Signed and brought up through the Mariners system, he spent a couple of months with the Angels in 2016, a couple of weeks with the Yankees in 2017 and played in a dozen games for the Brewers this year before the Rays got him in a June trade for Brad Miller, who has since been released.

Just like kids growing up in Florida or Iowa, or Puerto Rico or Venezuela, Choi said his dream also was to make it to the big leagues.

"I played baseball as a little kid, and I'm always thinking that I want to play full time in the major leagues in the United States, and I'm getting close to it," Choi said. "I don't know what's coming in the future, but if I could be a full-time major-leaguer, that would be awesome. If I get that opportunity, I can do better than what I've done for the team so far."

Choi spends most of the offseason in Arizona, only going back to South Korea for a month or so to see his mom and brother, whom he hopes to one day bring over to the States.

Though he speaks enough English to converse with teammates and coaches, he won't do interviews without a Korean interpreter, which has been handled thus far with a third party on the phone, creating an interesting dynamic.

Choi's every word, and every swing, are followed closely by South Korean fans, including about 20,000 avid members of a Facebook-based fan club site, according to John Lee, one of the administrators. Fans leave comments; Choi sometimes replies. (Evidence of how avid they are, Lee first reached out to me via email to ask why Choi wasn't getting the chance to play first base, and he attached a video of past defensive highlights.)

Choi is one of only four Koreans currently in the majors, and Lee said with the other three — Rangers outfielder Shin-Soo Choo, Rockies pitcher Seunghwan Oh and Dodgers pitcher Hyun-Jin Ryu — heading toward the end of their careers, Choi's popularity will increase. Plus, he already has earned goodwill by establishing a charitable foundation, at choi51.com.

The Rays will use the next few weeks to further determine if the defensively limited Choi, who makes $850,000 this season and is under team control through 2023 but out of options after this season, fits their 2019 plans.

That's one more thing we don't yet know.

Tortugas top Stone Crabs

STAFF REPORT

The contest went only seven innings, with Daytona doing all of their damage in the first two frames, scoring a pair of runs each inning, off of starter J.D. Busfield, who had just been promoted from the Bowling Green Hot Rods.

Tristan Gray and Russ Olive had the other Charlotte hits.

Busfield, worked two innings, allowing four hits and four runs, only two were earned, while issuing one walk and fanning one hitter. Orlando Romero relieved, and came into work the next four innings, silencing the opposition bats, allowing no hits, while striking out three and walking one. Trevor Charpie finished the game, pitching a scoreless inning.

Kaepernick grievance advanced to trial

By ROB MAADDI
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

PHILADELPHIA — An arbitrator is sending Colin Kaepernick's grievance with the NFL to trial, denying the league's request to throw out the quarterback's claims that owners conspired to keep him out of the league because of his protests of social injustice.

The former 49ers quarterback argues that owners have colluded to keep him off any NFL roster since he hit free agency in 2017.

Kaepernick began a wave of protests by NFL players two seasons ago, kneeling during the national anthem to protest police brutality and racial inequality. The protests have grown into one of the most polarizing issues in sports, with President Donald Trump loudly urging the league to suspend or fire players who demonstrate during the anthem.

Kaepernick contends the owners violated their collective bargaining agreement with players by conspiring to keep him off of teams.

A similar grievance is still pending by unsigned safety Eric Reid, who played with Kaepernick in San Francisco and joined in the protests.

Meanwhile, the league and players union still haven't resolved whether players will be punished this season if they choose to kneel or demonstrate during the national anthem.

Owners approved a policy requiring players to stand if they are on the sideline during the national anthem, allowing them to stay off the field if they wish. But the league and union put that on hold after the Miami Dolphins faced backlash for classifying the protests as conduct potentially detrimental to the team — putting players at risk of fines or suspensions.

North Port can't think about last year

By JACOB HOAG
STAFF WRITER

It'd be easy to coast off the momentum from last season, a time when North Port was running into the locker room thrilled after a 54-28 beat down of struggling Ida Baker High School.

But that's not really how it works, and the Bobcats are aware.

Last year's rout was nice. It gave the Bobcats (0-1) some hype, but it means nothing as they look to repeat the performance.

"It's a different year," Bobcats coach Brian Hatler said. "You gotta approach it that way. In today's high school athletics, teams change drastically from year to year so results of last year don't have any bearing on our game this week. We just have to focus on ourselves."

North Port is coming off a 35-3, rain-soaked loss to Port Charlotte with plenty of room for improvement.

The Pirates got deep on the Bobcats three separate times for long touchdown passes and with another proficient quarterback on the horizon, it's an area Hatler would like to clean up.

"(The Ida Baker) quarterback throws the ball pretty well," Hatler said. "He's a lefty and they've got a big offensive line and they want to throw the ball. We've got to be prepared this week. We just have to shore up our coverage. I think there were a couple times we were just a little over aggressive and (Port Charlotte) caught us with it. We have to avoid that this week."

WEEK 2

Who: North Port at Ida Baker
When: 7:30 p.m.
Where: Ida Baker High School

Ida Baker Bulldogs' quarterback Evan Hubbard threw for 160 yards on 12-of-18 passing and a score in the first half last week in a 21-14 win over Lakewood Ranch and added a 29-yard touchdown in the second half.

The Bulldogs (1-0) are coming off a win and looking to keep the momentum rolling.

The Bobcats have a bad taste in their mouths and want to eradicate it with their first win of the season. To do that, they need to put last week behind them.

"Obviously we didn't play very well last week and we have to have a short memory," Hatler said. "We just have to move forward and execute what we do better. That's really what it comes down to."

Manta Rays open season at Golden Gate

By VINNIE PORTELL
VENICE SPORTS EDITOR

The Lemon Bay football team opened the Don Southwell era in 2017 with a narrow 21-19 win over Golden Gate when the go-ahead touchdown was batted down in the closing seconds.

The win was much needed in a season that saw the Manta Rays miss out on the playoffs by less than a yard.

Trailing Booker High 26-21 in the closing minutes with first and goal inside the 1-yard line, the Manta Rays threw a game-sealing interception. Though it wasn't the final game of the season — Lemon Bay would win its last two games with ease — they had to watch as the Tornadoes secured the final spot in the playoffs.

Now, the goal is a district championship.

"The seniors said to me, 'Coach, we've talked all spring and through the summer about our goals and we want a district championship,'" Southwell said. "There's a lot of football that has to be played between now and then, but that's their goal."

Lemon Bay will begin its hunt this Friday when the Manta Rays travel south to open their season at Golden Gate High School. While this isn't a district game for Lemon Bay, the Manta Rays' play could set the tone for the upcoming season.

SUN FILE PHOTO

Wyatt Soucy leads his Manta Rays onto the field for their kickoff classic against Bishop Verot. Lemon Bay would lose the game, 9-7, on a fumble return for a touchdown in the final minute.

"I think we're stronger than we were last year," senior offensive lineman Brock Lavallee said on why the Manta Rays can be 2018 district champs. "We're definitely faster than we were. I think we're just a much better team than we were last year, so it's definitely a possibility."

Despite losing brothers Hayden Wolff (2017 starting quarterback) and Weston Wolff (2017 starting receiver) to Venice, the Manta Rays believe they're better positioned for success this season.

One factor that's helped the Manta Rays strength heading into 2018 is having Southwell as the head coach of the weightlifting team. Several of the football players compete on both teams, and the second-year head coach said it's become contagious for his players to work on their lifting.

"I think there's a big correlation there," Southwell said on coaching both football and weightlifting. "Some coaches preach the weight room, but I'm in there, so they have no excuse. Weightlifting has kind of gotten the ball rolling for us. Kids see it as cool, and who doesn't like to look good? They live at the beach, so they're gonna have their shirts off."

Lemon Bay's added strength will be tested on Friday night by a Golden Gate team that features many of the same players as last season's meeting, but this year's Titans could be a much more difficult test.

With quarterback Jay Herard and running back Jouvensly Bazile back for their senior seasons, the Titans' offense looks to be potent in 2018.

Last year against Lemon Bay, Herard ran in a 35-yard score and hooked up with Bazile for a 69-yard passing touchdown. Herard also found receiver Lawrence Canton for a 58-yard score. Canton also returns this year.

Golden Gate (1-0) showcased what it can do with those dangerous offensive playmakers against a tough Immokalee team last week. The Titans came away with a 37-6 win over an Indians team that finished 2017 with a 13-1 record, including a 53-18 win over Golden Gate.

"I hope it's a great season," starting quarterback Trevor Hedges said. "You know, we preach around here to be district champs, and we've been working really hard for that. That's a very good goal that we have, and I really do think we can accomplish it if we play great every Friday."

Know the Foe: Venice football at Riverview

Indians face another top-tier 8A team in Week 2

By VINNIE PORTELL
SPORTS EDITOR

Coming off a 42-20 loss to 8A powerhouse Vero Beach, the Indians (0-1) will be facing another 8A team with playoff aspirations this Friday when Venice travels to play the Rams at Riverview High School.

Last season, Venice shut out Riverview for a 17-0 win that Indians interim coach Larry Shannon said was a springboard for their success in 2017.

"We played unbelievable defense," Shannon said of last year's win over the Rams. "We made them work for everything, and we didn't give up any big plays. That was kind of like the turning point of our season where we started putting it together in all three phases of the game. It propelled us through the rest of our season.

"We're in the same kind of position here where we've done some good things, but now we have to pick ourselves off the ground."

The Indians surrendered 413 passing yards to Vero Beach, which led to 28 straight second-half points. Much of what undid Venice were three long touchdowns by Vero Beach receiver Demarcus Harris that put the score out of reach.

"We struggled against the pass," Indians safety Noah Carr said of the loss to Vero Beach. "I think we were prepared, but we weren't prepared for how fast their receivers were gonna be. The emphasis this week is to get better with our technique and protecting against the deep ball."

Riverview, which knocked Vero Beach out of the playoffs in 2017, will present the Indians with a much different type of challenge. The Rams graduated last year's quarterback in Arthur Brantley IV and three of their top four receivers from 2017.

Unlike Vero Beach's fast-paced passing attack, the Rams offense lives and dies with running back Ali Boyce.

The senior running back was limited to just 102 carries across seven games last year, but he made them count. Boyce rushed for 748 yards (7.3 yards per carry) and scored a team-high 12 touchdowns in 2017.

"He's been a four-year varsity running back for them, so we've faced him several times," Shannon said of Boyce. "And he does a really good job. He's tough to tackle and he has good vision. He didn't play last week. He was out with a concussion, but we expect for him to be back at full force."

Even without Boyce, Riverview dealt Booker a decisive 41-6 loss in the opening game of the season last week.

With the aid of seven turnovers from Booker, new Rams quarterback Sean White finished the night with three touchdown passes and about as easy of a win you can ask for in high school football.

While Shannon said the win over Riverview last year was a momentous game in the Indians' state title season, the loss also served as a turnaround for Riverview as well.

The loss marked the only defeat in the regular season for Riverview, as the Rams reeled off 10 straight wins until they lost in the third round of the playoffs to Dr. Phillips (Orlando).

For Venice, the season likely won't come down to a win or a loss on Friday night, but the Indians are in need of a victory all the same.

"People were obviously pretty upset," Carr said of Friday night's loss. "But with the leadership on this team, I think we're gonna be fine. We just need to pick up the younger players and tell them that it's going to be OK because we can definitely fix this and it's not gonna happen again."

GREGORY

Venice's starting running back Brandon Gregory remains out for the Indians. The senior was absent from Monday practice, and he has yet to take a snap for the Indians since tweaking his back on a 60-yard run in which he was caught just before the goal line by a Plant defender in the Kickoff Classic.

"He's getting treatment," Shannon said of Gregory's absence from Monday practice. "He's a lot better. We're hoping that he can practice (Tuesday) and that we can get him back in the fold for Friday night."

PARKING

Parking for Friday night's game against Riverview will be available at Riverview High School on the corner of Proctor Road and Lords Avenue. Additional parking will be available at Suncoast Technical College on Proctor Road and Beneva.

WEATHER

According to the forecast from The Weather Channel, there is a 60 percent chance of rain in Sarasota on Friday, with evening thunderstorms expected.

ROUNDUP/MATCHUPS

Indians 5, Twins 3: Jason Kipnis' high drive barely cleared the right field wall for a three-run homer that broke a sixth-inning tie and sent the Cleveland Indians over the Minnesota Twins. Kipnis, who has struggled offensively most of the season, lofted a 2-2 pitch from reliever Alan Busenitz that was just out of the reach of leaping Max Kepler. The homer came two batters after Yonder Alonso's tying single.
Cubs 5, Braves 4: Tommy La Stella hit the first pinch-hit homer of his career against his former team, carrying the Chicago Cubs to a 5-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in a matchup of NL division leaders Thursday night.
Brewers 2, Reds 1, 11 inn.: Lorenzo Cain hit a home run off the top of the left field fence in the 11th inning that lifted the Brewers over the Cincinnati Reds. NL batting leader Christian Yelich went 0 for 4 with a bases-loaded walk for Milwaukee. On Wednesday night, he went 6 for 6 and hit for the cycle as the Brewers outlasted Cincinnati That's 21 innings in less than 24 hours. The playoff-contending Brewers totaled just six hits in their latest victory. Cain hit the first pitch from Austin Brice that hit the wall and bounced over.
Cardinals 5, Pirates 0: Harrison Bader and John Gant hit back-to-back home runs, Gant pitched into the sixth inning and the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Pirates.

THIS DATE IN BASEBALL

AUG. 31
1915: Jim Lavender of the Chicago Cubs pitched a 2-0 no-hitter in the first game of a doubleheader against the New York Giants.
1935: Vern Kennedy of the Chicago White Sox pitched a no-hitter to beat Cleveland 5-0. Kennedy also had a bases-loaded triple.
1937: Rudy York of the Tigers hit his 17th and 18th home runs of the month to set a major league record as Detroit beat Washington 12-3.
1950: Brooklyn's Gil Hodges tied a major league record by hitting four homers against the Boston Braves in the Dodgers' 19-3 rout. Hodges also added a single for 17 total bases and drove in nine runs. His first homer was a two-run shot off Warren Spahn in the second inning. He followed with a three-run homer in the third off Norman Roy and a two-run homer off Bob Hall in the sixth. Hodges had a single in the seventh and a two-run shot off Johnny Antonelli in the eighth. Carl Furillo was on base for each of the home runs. Brooklyn pitcher Carl Erskine singled in the second, third, fifth and sixth innings.
1959: Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles struck out 18 Giants for a National League record as the Dodgers beat San Francisco 5-2.
1965: Boston catcher Russ Nixon tied a major-league record with three run-scoring sacrifice flies in the second game at Washington. Boston won 8-5, after taking the opener, 4-0.
1974: In a Northwest League game, Portland manager Frank Peters rotated his players so each man played a different position each inning. The strategy worked for an 8-7 win over Tri-Cities.

Fearsome foursome: Clemson's D-line set to wreak havoc

By PETE IACOBELLI
AP Sports Writer

CLEMSON, S.C. — Clemson defensive end Clelin Ferrell is tired of the talk, no matter how deserved it may be for the Tigers' fearsome front four.

Ferrell is among the quartet of starters with end Austin Bryant and tackles Christian Wilkins and Dexter Lawrence who are all projected as high-round NFL draft picks next spring. They've been on the cover of Sports Illustrated and hear crazy predictions about 100 sacks and multiple shutouts ahead for No. 2 Clemson.

"It's kind of been the longest offseason between everything," said Ferrell, the 6-foot-5, 260-pound junior who's had 15.5 sacks and 30.5 tackles for loss the past two seasons. "We want to enjoy because we know were on the verge of something special if everything goes right."

Many say it already did for Clemson's defense . Wilkins, Ferrell and Bryant thought hard about the pros after last season, yet all returned to a stacked unit that added two five-star lineman in Xavier Thomas and K.J. Henry — both among the top college prospects in the country last year.

The four starters combined for 25 of Clemson's 46 sacks last season, a total that tied Southern Cal for most in the FBS.

Defensive coordinator Brent Venables has looked hard for signs these past eight months of his starting line living off past success, coasting due to NFL potential or waiting to kick things into gear until the regular season. He found none of that.

"They've been dialed in since they've been here," Venables said. "They've taken ownership and accountability, shown up every day ready to work."

Venables has coached this sort of group before.

In 2014, the Tigers led the country in total defense anchored by a front of ends Vic Beasley and Corey Crawford and tackles Grady Jarrett and Deshawn Williams. All four played in the NFL with Beasley and Jarrett helping the Atlanta Falcons reach the Super Bowl two seasons ago.

In this Oct. 19, 2013, photo, Clemson head coach Dabo Swinney leads the team down the lane before the first half of an NCAA college football game against the Florida State, in Clemson, S.C.

Once Wilkins made the choice to return to school — Clemson coach Dabo Swinney said all his returning defensive linemen came back in large part because their projections from the NFL draft advisory board were lower than anticipated — he put aside disappointment and the outside talk of others. He understands the excitement (the SI cover proclaimed the four "The Best Ever"), but is just ready to do what he does best in creating havoc on the field.

"I feel like we just like to go to work and handle our business," said Wilkins, a 6-4, 300-pound grad student.

Wilkins is probably the most high profile of the four. He played from the moment he stepped on campus in 2015 and made headlines when he became Clemson's first defensive lineman to catch a pass on a 31-yard fake punt throw in a bowl win over Oklahoma.

Wilkins caught a touchdown pass the next season and picked up some dubious attention in Clemson's College Football Playoff semifinal game against Ohio State when he placed his hand in an inappropriate spot on an opponent's body. That was largely forgotten a week later when the Tigers defeated Alabama 35-31 to win the 2016 national title with the flexible, athletic Wilkins doing pirouettes and splits in celebration.

Wilkins and the Tigers were unhappy last season when Alabama's defense stifled Clemson 24-6, a defeat that has fueled the team through offseason workouts. The opener comes Saturday at home against Furman.

Wilkins is confident he and his line mates — he's the leader of what he calls the "Power Rangers," based on, yep, the children's show — can have a big year if they keep focused on what's important.

Bryant, who had 8.5 sacks a year ago, summed it up best. No one will care, he said, about magazine covers and hype if Clemson's line doesn't play up to its potential. "We don't bring it up," Bryant said. "Because it's really not important."

Youth serving: 3 true freshmen win Big Ten starting QB jobs

By ERIC OLSON
AP College Football Writer

In an earlier time, a true freshman starting quarterback wasn't necessarily unthinkable. It certainly was an outlier.

Not so much anymore, not in this age of what Rutgers offensive coordinator John McNulty calls the "bred quarterback," those players who immerse themselves in football year-round, get individual coaching from quarterback gurus and arrive on campus ready and expecting to play right away.

Three of the Big Ten's six new starters were in high school a year ago. Now consider the Big Ten had only five true freshman quarterbacks start openers from 2003-17.

Zack Annexstad will be taking snaps for Minnesota. Arthur Sitkowski will start for Rutgers against Texas State and Adrian Martinez for Nebraska against Akron.

With quarterbacks specializing at their position at younger ages and often skipping other sports, they show up with strong fundamentals and are well ahead of where freshmen used to be in their physical development. Once on campus, they must learn schemes, terminology and reads.

Much of that can be accomplished if — as Annexstad, Sitkowski and Martinez did — they graduate early from high school and enroll in January, which allows them to go through spring practice and get a jump on college life.

"They're really not freshmen when they do that," Rutgers coach Chris Ash said. "When you combine the early enrollment, all the training they're getting year-round at that position, the game has changed. It really has. All those things combined, it has led to more young guys having an opportunity to compete and potentially play."

Annexstad is the least heralded of the three freshmen. Though he transferred from West Mankato (Minnesota) High to the elite IMG Academy in Bradenton, Florida, as a sophomore — and beat out Sitkowski for the starter's job there — he passed on scholarship offers from Cincinnati, Illinois and Pittsburgh to walk on to his home-state university.

According to Minnesota research, he's believed to be the second walk-on true freshman quarterback to start a season opener in the Football Bowl Subdivision. Baker Mayfield, the 2017 Heisman Trophy winner and No. 1 overall NFL draft pick, started his first game at Texas Tech in 2013 as a walk-on before transferring to Oklahoma.

The Minnesota job was there for the taking. The Gophers had no quarterbacks with FBS game experience after Conor Rhoda graduated and Demry Croft transferred. A junior college quarterback was on the roster for a short time but left.

"You look at Zack and look at Tanner, that was an unbelievable quarterback competition," Gophers coach P.J. Fleck said. "I have no problem putting (either) of them in the game. Not one problem. I don't think we'd miss a beat at all."

No concession will be made for the 6-foot-3, 215-pound Annexstad's inexperience, Fleck said. "They're expected to execute it at a very high level — no matter what year you are."

Sitkowski, from Old Bridge, New Jersey, was a four-star prospect who signed with Rutgers after originally pledging to Miami. Sitkowski beat out incumbent Gio Rescigno and sophomore Johnathan Lewis. Rescigno started seven games last season.

McNulty said Sitkowski's ascent was no surprise.

"He went to a private school just to play quarterback, he's pretty serious about the job and he's got the physical attributes to do it," McNulty said. "He should become the guy, unless it was too much for him or he wasn't as good as we thought."

McNulty said the 6-5, 224-pound Sitkowski has the look of a pro-style quarterback with his pocket presence and ability to throw the deep ball.

"Clearly it's not going to be all smooth sailing at any point, but he's got a tremendous amount of talent to do it and the right mentality to do it," he said.

Martinez's path was a bit different. He went to Clovis West High in Fresno, California, and played basketball as well as football. He also injured his shoulder his junior season and hasn't played in a game since November 2016. Still, he was rated a four-star prospect and was the biggest signing in coach Scott Frost's first Nebraska recruiting class.

Martinez said he expected nothing less of himself than to beat out redshirt freshman Tristan Gebbia for the starter's job.

"Getting here in spring was essential for him to be where he is," Frost said. "I think that allowed him to get used to college life, get used to campus here, get used to a little bit of the spotlight, get familiar with things around here. He's going to need that maturity. There's going to be a lot on his shoulders."

The 6-2, 220-pound Martinez will take the reins of one of the all-time winningest college programs, yet the magnitude of the task doesn't seem to faze him. Maybe youthful ignorance isn't so bad.

"I don't think it's going to feel foreign to me out there," he said. "I feel like that doesn't really have any significance in my mind."

■ COLLEGE FOOTBALL: Florida State

Taggart's debut: No. 19 Florida State hosts No. 20 Va. Tech

The Associated Press

No. 20 Virginia Tech (9-4 last season) at No. 19 Florida State (7-6), Monday, 8 p.m. ET (ESPN)

Line: Florida State by 7½.

WHAT'S AT STAKE?

Florida State opens the Willie Taggart Era with a top-25 matchup. It's the first time since 2009, when the Seminoles played Miami that FSU has started the year at home against a Atlantic Coast Conference rival. Virginia Tech begins year three under coach Justin Fuente (19-8 at the school) and the Hokies make their first trip to Tallahassee since 2008.

KEY MATCHUP

Florida State's running backs vs. Virginia Tech's defense. The Seminoles have one of the ACC's deepest backfields behind Cam Akers, Jacques Patrick and redshirt freshman Khalan Laborn. And Taggart's spread offense has had 1,000-yard rushers at South Florida and Oregon. The Hokies were No. 2 in the ACC in run defense last season (123.1 yards per game), but lost eight defensive starters.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Virginia Tech: QB Josh Jackson. As a redshirt freshman, Jackson threw for 2,991 yards, 20 touchdowns and nine interceptions in 13 starts. He completed 59.6 percent of his passes and had a pair of 300-yard games, both in road wins (over East Carolina and Boston College).

Florida State: Akers. The 5-foot-11, 210-pound sophomore had four 100-yard rushing games, finishing with 1,024 yards (ninth-best in school history) and seven touchdowns. Akers averaged 5.3 yards per carry, breaking Dalvin Cook's school record for a freshman.

FACTS & FIGURES

Fuente is 3-0 vs. Taggart as head coaches, with Fuente's Memphis teams picking up wins in 2013-15 over Taggart's USF teams. ... FSU is playing its third straight opener against a top-25 team. Syracuse opens season at W Michigan

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Syracuse opens its season with a true road game for the first time in eight years, and the Orange can't afford any early season slip-ups if they hope to escape a three-year rut.

Syracuse, which has finished 4-8 in each of the past three seasons, has won its last four season openers, all in the friendly confines of the Carrier Dome. But the Orange open at Western Michigan on Friday night and coach Dino Babers is well aware of what's at stake.

"This game is huge," said Babers, who begins his third season. "It's different for a program of our size. I'll tell you this, we've got an experienced enough team that we should be OK. We've got enough seniors. We should be able to do this."

Last season, Syracuse won its opener, then stumbled at home in a loss to Middle Tennessee. Former Orange coach Scott Shafer, who was fired after three seasons and replaced by Babers, was in his first year as defensive coordinator for the Blue Raiders and was puffing on a victory cigar after a satisfying 30-23 win.

New season, similar scenario.

Former Syracuse offensive coordinator Tim Lester is in his second season as head coach at Western Michigan, and he recruited Orange senior quarterback Eric Dungey, among others. WMU defensive coordinator Tim Daoust and offensive coordinator Jake Moreland also served as assistants under Shafer, and former Orange cornerback Juwan Dowels is on the Broncos roster playing his final year in college as a graduate transfer.

That's a stacked deck.

"I think it's a huge advantage for them," Babers said. "They know these players. They recruited them. They've watched them on tape. They should have a good feel for what they can do and what they can't do."

Maybe.

"It is different," said Eric Dungey, who was sacked five times and pressured throughout in a subpar performance against Middle Tennessee. "He (Lester) is a very competitive person and he knows I'm a very competitive person. He knows me the best, but I've grown a lot since freshman year."

The meeting is the first between the schools.

POINTS GALORE

Syracuse and Western Michigan have played in the two highest-scoring games in FBS history. The Orange lost 76-61 to Pitt in the 2016 regular-season finale and last year the Broncos beat Mid-American Conference rival Buffalo 71-68 in seven overtimes.

MOVING UP

The Syracuse game will mark the second time in four years that WMU has hosted a Power Five school to open the season. The Broncos hosted then-No. 5 Michigan State in 2015 and have played a Power Five school in their opening game every season since 2005. Their lone win over an Atlantic Coast Conference foe was in 2006 (17-10 over Virginia).

Kentucky's Dorian Baker eager for comeback from ankle injury

By GARY B. GRAVES
AP Sports Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. — The injuries sometimes made even walking difficult. That might explain why Dorian Baker is so eager to run back on the field.

A balky hamstring cost the Kentucky receiver his first three games of 2016 and limited him to just two late touchdowns and 208 yards. Baker's hopes of following up that promising finish ended last August with a season-ending broken left ankle in the final scrimmage.

Now, however, the senior has recovered and awaits to Saturday's opener against Central Michigan determined to prove he's healthy and ready to be a reliable target.

"I just need that first catch, that first tackle and I feel like I'll be good," said Baker, who had career highs of 55 catches for 608 yards and three touchdowns in 2015. "I've just got to get those jitters, those butterflies out of my stomach right now."

Fall camp has helped the 6-foot-3, 205-pound Baker shed rust after nearly two years off the field. Though Kentucky coaches have taken care to ensure he hadn't overdone things, they haven't exactly babied him, either. Most encouraging has been his response after taking initial hits in scrimmages and making cuts while running routes.

"He gets more and more comfortable with every opportunity," coach Mark Stoops said. "First time he was tackled since he was injured and getting that rust off, I think that was very helpful for him and a big confidence builder."

Baker has also shown an intensity that's critical to leading a young receiver corps and familiarizing himself with newly named starting quarterback Terry Wilson. Kentucky first-year receivers coach Michael Smith just wants to ensure he follows a steady path.

"The biggest thing right now is just getting him back in shape and being smart with his reps because of what happened last year with the injury," Smith said.

Keeping Baker looped in during his recovery was key. He participated in workouts and team activities. Smith and quality control assistant Tommy Mangino gave Baker additional duties working with his younger cohorts, a responsibility that has helped Baker look beyond his situation and learn additional nuances about his position.

"I've been through so much, so it's kind of hard to keep my eyes on everybody else," Baker said. "I'm trying to do my best right now to keep my eyes on everybody and make sure they're doing what they're supposed to do. At the same time, I'm trying to get myself together."

Much of that process occurs before and after Baker hits the field.

He comes in early to get the heat treatments and stretching on the ankle to ensure it's loose before drills. Baker seemed eager to leave a media group after a recent practice to ice his ankle and prepare for the next day.

Maybe not, but Baker has recovered well enough to reclaim his spot in Kentucky's offense.

He'll start at the 'Z' receiver spot, the beginning of an effort to replicate his breakout 2015 season in which he led the Wildcats in receptions — with 26 going for first downs. Baker would also welcome something close to the final two games of 2016, when he grabbed both of his TDs and seemed to regain his groove.

Overcoming that hamstring injury made Baker confident he'd bounce back stronger from the ankle surgery. As he dreams of making clutch plays again, getting those first-game snaps matter more.

Though not as much as getting through camp in good shape.

Zverev reaches third round

By BRIAN MAHONEY
AP Sports Writer

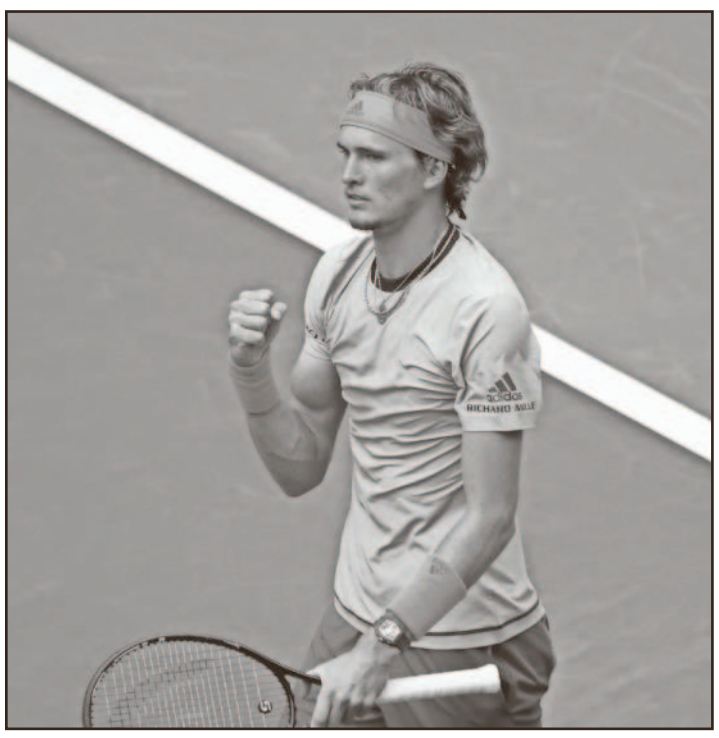
The No. 4 seed beat Nicolas Mahut 6-4, 6-4, 6-2 on Thursday, winning a second-round match for the first time in his four trips to Flushing Meadows.

The German leads the ATP Tour in wins this year, has already won three ATP Masters 1000 titles and at 21 is the popular pick as the young star most likely to have a Grand Slam breakthrough and the end the stranglehold veterans such as Rafael Nadal, Roger Federer and Novak Djokovic have had on the majors.

Maybe it will come during these two weeks. Zverev — perhaps benefiting from a tame early draw that started with two lucky losers — hasn't dropped more than four games in a set thus far.

Federer and Djokovic were also in action on another hot day, the third in a row with an extreme heat policy in effect. Men were permitted a 10-minute break between the third and fourth sets of their singles matches, while the break came after the second set for the women.



AP PHOTOS

Alexander Zverev, of Germany, celebrates after defeating Nicolas Mahut, of France, during the second round of the U.S. Open tennis tournament, Thursday, in New York.

Federer had an afternoon match against Frenchman Benoit Paire, looking to improve to 18-0 in second-round matches at the U.S. Open. The No. 2 seed has won all six meetings, though Paire had two match points in their last matchup in June in Germany before the five-time U.S. Open champion won 9-7 in a third-set tiebreaker.

He would next face No. 30 seed Nick Kyrgios, who beat France's Pierre-Hughes Herbert 4-6, 7-6 (6), 6-3, 6-0 in a match that featured controversy, when umpire Mohamed Lahyani climbed down from his chair to urge the Australian to give a better effort while trailing 0-3 in the second set.

Djokovic was scheduled to face American Tennys Sandgren at night. Marin Cilic, the No. 7 seed and the 2014 U.S. Open champion, was to face qualifier Hubert Hurkacz.

Angelique Kerber, the 2016 champion and No. 4 seed, and sixth-seeded Caroline Garcia both were pushed to third sets, with Kerber beating Johanna Larsson 6-2, 5-7, 6-4, and Garcia outlasting Monica Puig 6-2, 1-6, 6-4. No. 5 Petra Kvitova had an easier time, beating Yafan Wang in straight sets.

Cook runs for 2 TDs, Jaguars beat Buccaneers 25-10

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Fourth-stringer Tim Cook ran for a pair of second-half touchdowns, and Carroll Phillips returned a fumble for another TD to help the Jacksonville Jaguars close the NFL preseason with a 25-10 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Cook scored on runs of 1 and 3 yards, while Phillips picked up a fumble by rookie quarterback Austin Allen and ran it back 28 yards during a 19-point third quarter that turned a 10-3 halftime deficit into a 12-point lead.

Regulars for both teams sat out the finale Thursday night in mostly empty Raymond James Stadium. A total of 34 players did not dress for the Jaguars, including every starter on offense and defense.

Tampa Bay's starters had the night off, too, as did suspended quarterback Jameis Winston, who must sit out the first three games of the regular season for violating the league's personal conduct policy.

Winston had a sharp preseason, completing 73 percent of his passes for 388 yards, three touchdowns and no interceptions. He will be eligible to return to practice and play in Week 4, when Tampa Bay travels to Chicago.

Ryan Fitzpatrick will fill in as the starter, with Ryan Griffin backing up the 14th-year pro, one of just four players in NFL history who've thrown TD passes for seven franchises.

The Jaguars, meanwhile, will head into their season opener against the New York Giants with heightened expectations after going 10-6, winning the AFC South and coming within one victory of reaching the Super Bowl last winter.

Hackenberg struggles, Eagles rally to beat Jets 10-9

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Christian Hackenberg had a rough audition for an NFL roster spot, tossing two interceptions but the defending Super Bowl champion Philadelphia Eagles rallied to beat the New York Jets 10-9 on Thursday night to avoid a winless preseason.

Joe Callahan threw a 4-yard touchdown pass to Matt Jones with 18 seconds left to lift Philadelphia (1-3).

Jason Myers kicked field goals of 58 and 43 yards for the Jets (1-3). New York's defense didn't allow a touchdown in August until the final drive.

Etling TD pass, run lead Pats over Giants to end preseason

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Third-stringer Danny Etling tossed a 1-yard touchdown pass to Ralph Webb early in the second half and iced the game with an 86-yard run late as the New England Patriots beat the New York Giants 17-12 in a preseason finale Thursday night.

There wasn't much action, with the biggest play coming late after an Alex Tanney-led drive from the New York 1 stalled at the Patriots 14 with New England ahead 10-6.

Etling faked a handoff and ran an option around right end and scored untouched to give the Patriots a 3-1 preseason record. The Giants finished their first preseason under new coach Pat Shurmur at 2-2.

Osweiler makes bid for backup QB job, Dolphins top Falcons

ATLANTA (AP) — Brock Osweiler made a strong final bid for Miami's backup quarterback job, leading three first-quarter touchdown drives in the Dolphins' 34-7 preseason win over the Atlanta Falcons on Thursday night.

Osweiler is competing with David Fales to be Ryan Tannehill's backup. Osweiler completed each of his first six passes for 65 yards, including a 1-yard scoring pass to Buddy Howell, on Miami's opening drive. He added a 14-yard scoring pass to Francis Owusu on the final play of the third quarter.

Osweiler completed 16 of 25 passes for 147 yards and two touchdowns for the Dolphins (1-3). Fales completed 13 of 20 passes for 94 yards and one interception.

Backup QB Barkley hurt as Bengals lose to Colts 27-26

CINCINNATI (AP) — Matt Barkley's left knee was injured by a low hit after he threw a pass during Cincinnati's 27-26 loss to the Indianapolis Colts on Thursday night, giving Jeff Driskel the inside track for the Bengals' backup quarterback role.

For the second year in a row, the Bengals (3-1) lost a quarterback to injury in the final preseason game. Last year, Driskel broke the thumb on his passing hand in Indianapolis, ending his season. Cincinnati also has seventh-round pick Logan Woodside.

Mayfield sharp as Browns roll over Lions 35-17

DETROIT (AP) — Baker Mayfield threw for 138 yards in a dominant first half for Cleveland, and the Browns wrapped up the preseason with a 35-17 victory over the Detroit Lions on Thursday night.

Mayfield completed a 41-yard pass to Devon Cajuste on the first play from scrimmage, and the top overall pick in this year's draft looked sharp throughout his two quarters directing Cleveland's offense.

Nick Chubb and Matthew Dayes ran for touchdowns for Cleveland in what was generally a battle of backups.

■ NASCAR: Darlingotn

NASCAR-Darlington Throwback

By PETE IACOBELLI
AP Sports Writer

DARLINGTON, S.C. — If Kyle Busch needed extra motivation for the Southern 500, he's gotten it from Ernie Irvan — or, more specifically, Irvan's paint scheme from 20 years ago.

Busch, NASCAR's points leader, is itching to drive a Skittles-themed red car like Irvan used in 1998 when Darlington Raceway honors seven decades of stock car racing history at its latest throwback weekend.

He'll have plenty of competition on the track and in the garage as teams throughout the Monster Energy NASCAR Cup Series dress out for Darlington's latest celebration of the sport's deep, rich past of characters and seat-of-the-pants driving success.

Kevin Harvick leads the series with seven victories with Busch right behind at six. Last year's NASCAR champion, Martin Truex Jr., is next with four and Bowyer follows with two. Five drivers have one victory apiece and the group of those winless this late in the season include former champions — and regular playoff participants — Jimmie Johnson, Keselowski and Matt Kenseth. Keselowski has clinched a playoff spot, although he'd love to enter the postseason off the high of a checkered flag.

■ PGA: Dell

Dell Championship

By DOUG FERGUSON
AP Golf Writer

NORTON, Mass. — The PGA Tour's postseason is supposed to be a sprint — four tournaments in five weeks, from a 125-man field at the start until it's whittled down to a 30-man field that gets to the FedEx Cup finale at the Tour Championship.

It feels more like a marathon in the middle, especially for players like Woods, Justin Thomas and those who expect to have four playoff events followed by a sleep-deprived, energy-sapping week in France at the Ryder Cup.

The Dell Championship starts Friday for the traditional Labor Day finish at the TPC Boston, though this will be the last time for that. Because the Boston area has shown such strong support for this tournament since it began in 2003, it was not killed off entirely with the shrinking postseason next year. Instead, it will alternate with Liberty National in New Jersey for the opening FedEx Cup event.

But it will be the last time the final round ends on Labor Day because next year the season ends on Aug. 25, before football gets started.

A little more than just advancing to the next FedEx Cup event is at stake this week.

The top 70 in the standings will go to the BMW Championship outside Philadelphia, and for a small number of players, it's either the last chance or another chance to audition as a potential captain's pick for the Ryder Cup.

on defense and serve receive in practice, and we just work well together as a team," said Chavarria.

The Tarpons scored 29 points with the lanky right-hander at the line. She saw limited action in the second set and rode the bench during the third set. Beisner and sophomore Ashleigh Miller played strong at the net as the entire team put in a good team effort for the win.

"She did a really good job serving and she gets excited out there," said Dill.

Charlotte will be at the Cardinal Mooney Tournament today and Saturday. It was Cardinal Mooney that gave the Tarpons their only loss of the season, as the Tarpons brought their record to 4-1 with the win over DeSoto County. Their next home match will be next Thursday September 6 as they host Fort Myers.

TAGGART

"When I became a head coach, I always thought that I can do it someday," Taggart said. "It just happened quicker than I thought it would. It's very gratifying because you worked so hard to get there. So to finally do that is very exciting."

Now that he has his dream job, he needs to ensure it doesn't become a nightmare.

His career record at Western Kentucky, South Florida and Oregon was 47-50 over eight seasons. Though a report ranked him as the most overrated coach in the country, Taggart has gone 25-12 the last three seasons (two at USF, one at Oregon).

Taggart left Oregon after just one season, a surprise to many in the college football world who didn't know of his affinity for Florida State. The 42-year old Taggart is only the third Florida State coach since 1976, when Bobby Bowden was hired. There wasn't a search in 2010 when Jimbo Fisher took over the program after being named head coach in waiting in 2007.

Taggart has no prior ties to the program, but that doesn't mean he doesn't know the history or tradition. The Palmetto, Florida, native grew up as a Florida State fan and said his love affair with the program started watching Deion Sanders and Charlie Ward.

But after leading Manatee High School in Bradenton to a state title, Taggart wasn't recruited by Florida State and instead the prep quarterback landed at Western Kentucky.

Taggart's mom, Gloria James, said her daughters were Florida fans but that she and her sons grew up supporting the Seminoles.

"I would say that he was always interested in Florida State from when he was a little child," she said. "He always said that was his dream of being a player there. And if not being a player there being a coach there. It's where he wants to be now."

Poll implications

Despite opening with a conference road win, UCF's poll position likely will only be impacted by losses higher up in the rankings.

Franks ended last season by throwing three interceptions and getting sacked five times in a loss to rival Florida State. He also fumbled early and watched helplessly as the Seminoles returned it for a touchdown.

"That was a rough one," he said.

Franks has waited more than nine months to get back on the field.

He should get a confidence boost in the opener. The Gators host Charleston Southern of the Football Championship Subdivision. The Bucs are 0-19 against teams from the Football Bowl Subdivision, including a 49-0 loss against Mullen and Mississippi State to begin 2017.

Charleston Southern also was overmatched during its lone visit to Gainesville in 2009, a 62-3 setback in the opener.

The Gators haven't been the same offensively since that one-loss season, which was Tim Tebow's senior year.

Quarterback play has been shaky, at best, with 12 different starters and none of them throwing more than 12 touchdowns in any season.

Franks hopes to end the trend, and he'll have arguably the most talent of any of the others around him.

Florida is loaded at running back, with Jordan Scarlett, Lamical Perine and Malik Davis leading the way, and has two intriguing additions to the receiving corps with Van Jefferson (Mississippi) and Trevon Grimes (Ohio State).

But the offensive line remains the biggest question mark despite having four experienced starters back.

"We've got to take care of our business up front," co-offensive coordinator John Hevesy said.

If everything pans out, Franks could be the beneficiary.

"If you're the quarterback, you've got everybody on your shoulders, everybody in your head," defensive back Chauncey Gardner-Johnson said. "I tell Feleipe every day: 'It's your turn. It's your year.' So I feel like this year's for him and it's up there for grabs."

Seamstress for the bears

MORE INFO

Luvybear Quilts 4 Tots Inc., Mission Statement:

Our goal is to provide 225+ Luvybear Quilts per month to the facilities with the hopes of growing and expanding into other chapters in other communities.

How To Help

There are so many ways that you can help Luvybear Quilts 4 Tots: monetary donation, new cotton fabric donation or volunteer to sew, cut, package and tag. You can place a bear and a quilt on a child's bed with "your name" on a tag as a sponsor for only $20 per bear.

The goal is to provide 225+ quilts and bears per month and place one on each child's bed in the hospital. Your $20 (per bear) could help make that happen.

HERALD PHOTO BY RUSTY PRAY

The seamstress for the bears lives in a house In Burnt Store Isles decorated with clay renderings of herons and pelicans and cats, and fine works of stained glass.

Sue VanOoyen has been sewing blankets for teddy bears for about three years now, much to the delight of Nancy Nelson, co-founder with her husband, Ian, of Luvybear Quilts 4 Tots of Cape Coral.

"She just can't seem to do enough for us," Nancy said.

The nonprofit makes small quilts, wraps a teddy bear in each, and donates 250 of them every month to Golisano Children's Hospital in Fort Myers, Nicklaus Pediatric Urgent Care in Naples, Cape Coral Emergency Room Dept., and the Children's Network of Southwest Florida for its adoption program.

Founded in October 2014, the foundation serves Charlotte, Collier, Glades, Hendry and Lee counties.

Every two weeks, Sue and her husband, Bill, trek to Cape Coral to pick up supplies for the blankets. The material comes in 4 ½- by 4 ½-inch squares. It is Sue's job to sew them together to form a 20x20 blanket. Other folks take care of other steps in the process before the bear-in-a-blanket is distributed.

Rusty Pray
PGH Correspondent

Rusty Pray is a freelance correspondent. Contact him at rustypray@gmail.com.

"I'm just one step," she said. The task is "simple. It's a straight stitch or zig-zag around the edge. Almost anybody who sews should be able to do that."

She sews about 100 a month and has two sewing machines at the ready.

"To date, Sue has made over 3,500 quilts for us," Nancy said.

Every bimonthly visit, Nancy said, Sue and Bill "bring us at least 50 quilts, some of which are made of her own fabric. Always, always, she brings more than what we provide to her."

Sue heard about Luvybear on the local TV news and decided to become part of the all-volunteer organization. She had volunteered at the Animal Welfare League in Charlotte Harbor and the Punta Gorda Library. She had made stained glass and the clay figures after taking lessons at the Cultural Center. But the pursuits "became too physical."

She has neuropathy of the feet and wears braces.

"It's not in my hands, so I can sew," she said. "You kind of forget about it if you're busy."

One thing Sue never mentioned was the time she broke her hip. According to Nancy, last November Sue fell and broke her hip. "When she called to tell me she had fallen, I asked her if there was anything we could do. Her response was, 'Just be patient with me.' Within one month's time, she showed up at our house with 75 completed quilts.

"She never, ever complains about anything. She always has a smile on her face."

Sue shrugged.

"I love to sew."

Enjoy your Labor Day, and let the countdown to Christmas begin

Our Herald story last week featured Jaha Cummings, Punta Gorda city councilman, who is spearheading an effort to bring to life the Cultural Heritage Center of Southwest Florida. The purpose of the center would be to bring together groups and individuals from Charlotte, Sarasota, DeSoto and Lee counties to promote the multiethnic nature of this area. Sushila Cherian, representing Indian Culture, was mistakenly identified in the article and to that I would like to apologize. I would like to relist the groups that have already committed include the Caribbean Jerk and Cultural Fest, the New World Celts of Sarasota, the American Czech/Slovak Club of Southwest Florida, the Filipino American Society, the Hispanic-American Citizens Council of Charlotte, Sushila Cherian representing Indian Culture, the Maasjid Nur Islamic Community of Southwest Florida, the Spanish-American Society of Charlotte County, the African Network of Southwest Florida and the Ukrainian American Club of North Port.

Traditionally, Labor Day consists of barbecues and time spent together with family. To some it means the end of the summer season and beginning of the school year. Here in Florida the end of summer is usually marked by the end of the rainy season and as my co-workers would say, "Christmas." So enjoy your Labor Day, eat a little too much potato salad, have another piece of fried chicken and let the countdown to Christmas begin.

Punta Gorda Isles Civic Association launches full season of Concerts and Cabarets

Provided by REGINA BUCKLEY
Executive Director

Building on the success of past programs, the PGICA is launching its first full season of concerts and cabarets for 2018–2019. To celebrate, there will be a 'ribbon cutting ceremony' by the Punta Gorda Chamber of Commerce, followed by a special performance of The Peace River Trio on Thursday, Sept. 27, beginning at 5:30 p.m.

This special event will be Cabaret style, so attendees are invited to bring their own beverages and snacks to enjoy. Admission to this event is free of charge, and seating is limited so reservations are a must! To make your reservation, call the PGICA at 941-637-1655.

The Peace River Trio is a new folk music group formed by veteran local entertainers John Welsh, Marsha Carpenter and Dave Heveron. All three talented and diverse performers have had extensive experience and, as a trio, present an exciting, entertaining, and engaging show of folk music made popular in the '60' and '70s as well as "A little bit of country and a little bit of rock-n-roll."

The PGICA season of Concerts and Cabarets continues in October with the popular jazz quintet from Sarasota, Hot Club, in November with the George Strait Experience and a holiday performance by the glorious Gospel group CHOSEN. In January, February and March, there will be bluegrass by Wild Carrot, a 50th anniversary celebration of Woodstock by American Pie, a tribute to the music of Neil Diamond by Denny Diamond, Scott Kirby performing his ever popular Key West style of music, and return visits by popular demand of Cahal Dunne with Choir Play and William Florian with his Those Were the Days show. Ending the season will be April in Paris featuring French singer Thierry Khalfa from Palm Beach and Cinco de Mayo with the fabulous Mariachi Voices de America from Miami.

For more information and to purchase tickets for the Concerts and Cabarets at PGICA, visit www.PGICA.org and select Concert and Cabaret Series under News and Events menu. Or visit the Facebook page PGICA Concerts and Cabarets.

Labor Day

Labor Day is one of our more recent holidays. The first observance in honor of labor was held in New York City in 1882. By 1894 Congress had given the occasion official status in the territories and District of Columbia. Only for the past half century have all the states officially celebrated it. Labor Day is the last holiday before Thanksgiving. It is no longer Labor Day alone, it belongs to all Americans.

'Village Development' does not erase history

More than bricks and wood are being torn down as the old city dock at Maud Street is being razed for the Fishermen's Village Development. With the bricks and wood comes a piece of Punta Gorda history. This is what Harry Goulding, a lifetime resident says, who worked in the fishing industry from 1918 to 1977. The Maud Street dock was once a site of a thriving industry, which played a role in attracting residents to the city. The site for industry used to be located where the Barron Collier Bridge now stands. Industry played a major role in the area's development. Fishing captains brought crews down from North Carolina. There were ice houses where fish were stored. Vernon Peeples, area historian recalls a fire in 1939 which devastated the dock. "The fishing industry never really recovered." Development of supermarkets, less use of railroads and pollution all combined helped bringing about the demise of the industry," Peeples said. The only Punta Gorda Fish Company, along with Gulf Shore Seafood Company survived during the 1950s to current years.

Opening postponed at City Marina

Formal dedication of the new Punta Gorda city marina complex is going to be delayed. It will not occur on Labor Day as city officials had earlier planned. There is still quite a bit of work to be done. Once completed, the recreation area will feature a large picnic area, an indoor observation room, in addition to other facilities. There will be a boat house, a new fishing dock and a new marina. The work is funded by a federal grant, which is being used both for the marina complex as well as the annex of the City Hall building. The city council has named part of the recreation area after former Punta Gorda Mayor Phil Laishley. The marina is bordered by U.S. 41 to the east, Nesbit Street on the west, Park Avenue on the south and Charlotte Harbor on the north.

Still no traffic light at Midway/U.S. 41

The much-needed traffic light at Midway Bloulevard and Highway U.S. 41 is being delayed–again–for at least three months, until January. The official reason cited in a letter from the Department of Transportation's (DOT's) Bartow branch was about a cut-back in state funds. The intersection with a quilt of turns, exits from the entries into traffic, has already been the site of at least one fatal crash. All county officials and concerned residents should do everything they can to hold the state to its promise.

County births continue to climb

St. Joseph Administrator Sister Mary Augustine has announced the following: Over 2,7oo babies have been born at the hospital since it opened its Obstetrics in 1962. "Our first patient was a mother who delivered a baby boy several hours before the hospital's official opening," Sister May Augustine said. St. Joseph Hospital was one of the first hospitals in Southwest Florida to allow men in the delivery room. The latest arrival last week was Tonni Lynn, The parents are Trina and Phillip Simco. Tonni is the over 2,700th baby to be born at St. Joseph Hospital since 1962.

Senior Billy Brumbaugh watches his first drives of the match at St. Andrews South Country Club. Brumbaugh had 9 straight pars and has drawn the attention of several colleges with his career-best of 35.

Charlotte Coach Scott Harvey is entering his 18th season as boys golf coach. The Tarpons split their season opener, losing to Venice but downed Lemon Bay last week.

The Charlotte Tarpons started their 2018 season with a split as they lost to Venice, but beat Lemon Bay 165-179. Senior Billy Brumbaugh earned the medalist honors with a career best 35 including 9 straight pars on the front nine at St. Andrews South Country Club. Brumbaugh said, "Everything was going well for me today, both my long game and my short game. Everything was slow and steady, nothing big happened. I just played consistent and in control." Jacob Smith finished 3 over at 38. Junior Bryce Hayse carding his best varsity round with a 42. The Tarpons went to the Bishop Verot Invitational at Stoneybrook Golf Club this week. The Tarpons will be home next Tuesday, Sept. 4, against North Port before going on the road for 5 straight matches before hosting the county meet Sept. 26.

Tarpons start season with win

By STEVE KNAPP
Sports writer

The JV Tarpon volleyball team continued to take care of business as they easily swept the Sarasota Sailors 25-11 and 25-15 in last week's season opener.

There wasn't much doubt to the outcome as the Tarpons led from wire to wire in both games. Charlotte has recently enjoyed several very good seasons on the court and this year looks to be more of the same.

"We've got four freshmen starting from last year's middle school championship team. They were back to back champions in the conference so they know what it takes to win," said coach Jill Damico.

Damico added, "We have to work on our serving. That is the key to winning games. We did a nice job of passing tonight and I'm really proud of how they played especially considering it was the first game of the season."

1 — Name of stock.
2 — Ticker Symbol company trades under.
3 — Dividend: A distribution of the company's earnings to shareholders, usually consisting of stock dividends, interest on bonds, or short-term capital gains on the sale of securities usually paid quarterly in the form of cash or stock.
4 — Div. Yield: The dividend divided by the stock price. It helps gauge how well the stock is paying, compared to other investments such as CDs, bonds or savings accounts.
5 — Price to earnings ratio: The price of a stock divided by its earnings per share. PEs are used to gauge the relative worth of a company' stock. When compared to other companies in the same industry, the companies with the lowest PEs are generally earning higher profits.
6 — Range of closing prices in last year.
7 — Sales in thousands (10 = 10,000 shares), and closing price.
8 — Last trading price of the day.
9 — Percent change for the year.
