Bells toll for school shooting victims

NEWTOWN, Conn. — Bells tolled 26 times to honor the children and educators killed one year ago in a shooting rampage at Sandy Hook Elementary School as local churches held memorial services Saturday and President Barack Obama observed a moment of silence.

With snow falling and homes decorated with Christmas lights, Newtown looked every bit the classic New England town, with a coffee shop and general store doing steady business. But reminders of the private grief were everywhere. "God bless the families," read a sign posted at one house in the green and white colors of the Sandy Hook school, and a church posted that it was "open for prayer."

"We have to do more to keep dangerous people from getting their hands on a gun so easily. We have to do more to heal troubled minds."

Mandela makes final journey home

CHRISTOPHER TORCHIA
Associated Press

QUNU, South Africa — Nelson Mandela came home Saturday.

A hearse carrying Mandela's body drove into his hometown in rural South Africa ahead of burial Sunday, returning the country's peacemaker to the place where he had always wanted to die.

It was here in Qunu that Mandela roamed the hills and tended livestock as a youth, absorbing lessons about discipline and consensus from traditional chiefs. From here he embarked on a journey — the "long walk to freedom" as he put it — that thrust him to the forefront of black South Africans' struggle for equal rights that resonated around the world.

Traffic tickets speed back up

Motorists in Lake County might want to fill up their pockets with change after reading this.

Sharp increases in toll violations and DUIs as well as infractions for speeding, running red lights and careless driving helped to drive up the number of traffic tickets issued in Lake County in 2012, reversing a five-year decline in citations.

Law enforcement in Lake County doled out 52,864 tickets in 2012 — roughly 5,400 more tickets than the 47,488 handed out in 2011, according to numbers from the state's Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles.

Driving under the influence charges in the county almost doubled, from the 547 in 2011 to 934 in 2012, partly due to stepped up efforts by the Lake County Sheriff's Office.

Sgt. James Vachon, sheriff's spokesman, said the agency applied for grants last year to fund more DUI training as well as patrols to work beyond their normal hours.

"There is no way to tell if more people are drinking and driving in Lake County," said Vachon.

"We can, however, attribute our increase in DUI arrests directly to the DUI enforcement detail."

DUI arrests weren't the only infraction drawing more scrutiny from law enforcement over the past year.

More than 100 children grabbed toys off shelves without paying for them at a Walmart in Clermont on Saturday morning — right in front of dozens of law enforcement officers.

It was all part of the Lake County annual Shop with a Cop program, which allowed an officer strapped with a donated, $100 gift card to pair with a needy child for a shopping spree.

About 180 more motorists were cited in the county last year for careless driving. And speeding tickets ballooned from 13,715 in 2011 to 15,165 last year. Even tickets issued for going too fast in unfavorable conditions jumped slightly.

Only the Sheriff's Office and Florida Highway Patrol are listed individually in the 2012 state report so it's difficult to tell how many citations were issued by individual police agencies.

And preliminary numbers for Lake County weren't available.

Police officers questioned said it is not clear why speeding tickets zoomed last year.

"They are not necessarily declining in Leesburg; they are fluctuating," said Capt. Rob Hicks, Leesburg Police Department spokesman. "Personnel shortages and changes play a significant role, along with other intangible variables."

The biggest and most notable jump in Lake County was toll violations, which came from motorists on the Florida Turnpike. There were 3,248 toll violations in 2011 but 6,577 in 2012. Tickets are sent in the mail to violators. Missing a toll as little as $1.25 can draw a fine of more than $100 if the violator takes too long to pay.

Christa Deason, a spokeswoman for Florida's Turnpike Enterprise, said she didn't have the numbers on Friday to determine if a possible increase in ridership in Lake County from 2011 to 2012 contributed to more toll violations.

"When you see an increase in ridership, you will expect to see also some increase in violations. I couldn't possibly speculate on why more drivers are choosing to violate," she said.

Motorists running through traffic lights likely saw red days afterward.

According to the state report, 1,129 motorists were cited in 2012 for running red lights in Lake County, compared to 420 in 2011, which appears to be the result of more red light cameras. According to the stats on red light cameras, that the state started to report in 2012, of the those 1,129 citations — 829 resulted from the cameras.

And motorists can expect more of an increase in such tickets, at least in certain areas of the county. Twenty-four red light cameras became operational in Clermont early this month. Motorists will have a month to get used to the cameras, with warning notices coming in the mail rather than tickets.

"We get a tremendous amount of pass-through traffic on 50 and 27, and the cameras will send those drivers a message that when driving through our community in Clermont, they need to slow down," City Manager Darren Gray said in an earlier interview.

The 52,854 traffic citations issued in 2012 represented the first time the number of overall tickets left in the county since 2007. Various law enforcement agencies had different reasons for the sudden jump in 2012, after years of declines.

"The perception among many police chiefs is the increase in the cost of traffic citations and the downturn in the economy resulted in the decreased number of traffic citations and increase of warnings written by officers," said Robert Simken, a spokesman for the Eustis Police Department.

Not everything was grim for motorists in the Lake County last year. There were 3,460 citations issued last year for seatbelt violations — down from the 4,500 in 2011.

According to the Department of Revenue, in a 12-month period that ended the middle of 2012, the state pocketed $101 million from traffic citations. But area law enforcement officers questioned said there is no effort to push more tickets to get more money for their departments.

"Traffic enforcement is not about handing out tickets. It is a philosophy of correcting the behavior of the driver through education and awareness," Simken said. "Most officers would prefer to modify the behavior through education; however, it is the officer's discretion to issue a citation."

Capt. Nancy Rasmussen, a spokeswoman with the Florida Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles, said traffic citations are not the only way to reduce traffic crashes.

"Safety awareness and education campaigns along with enforcement will assist in our overall mission of crash reduction," she said.

escorted the vehicle carrying Mandela's casket to the family compound, people lining the route sang, applauded and, in some cases, wept.

"When I saw the hearse passing, I couldn't hold my excitement. I felt like I was holding him by the hand," said Norma Khobo. "It was very exciting, I saw him!"

The vehicle carrying Mandela's casket, covered with a national flag, arrived at the family compound under cloudy skies at 4 p.m. It was accompanied by an enormous convoy of police, military and other vehicles, and a military helicopter hovered overhead.

According to Xhosa tribal tradition, Mandela was honored as a leader by placing a leopard skin on the coffin, replacing the flag.

Mandela's journey started Saturday with pomp and ceremony at an air base in the capital before being flown aboard a military plane to this simple village in the wide-open spaces of eastern South Africa.

At the Mthatha airport Mandela's casket was welcomed by a military guard and placed in a convoy for the 32 kilometer (20 mile) voyage toward Qunu. Residents and people who had traveled for hours thronged a road leading to Qunu, singing and dancing as Mandela T-shirts were handed out.

"We got up this morning at 2 a.m. and drove from Port Elizabeth — it's about seven hours — and we got here now. We're waiting on to show our last respects to Madiba," said Ebrahim Jetha, using Mandela's clan name.

Mandela's widow, Graca Machel, and his former wife, Winnie Madikizela-Mandela, tearfully embraced at Mthatha airport when the casket arrived.

Mandela had been imprisoned for 27 years for opposing racist apartheid and emerged in 1990 to forge a new democratic South Africa by promoting forgiveness and reconciliation. He became president in 1994 after South Africa's first all-race democratic elections.

The late president died in his Johannesburg home Dec. 5 at age 95.

His body lay in state for three days this week, drawing huge crowds of South Africans who mourned his death and celebrated his successful struggle against apartheid.

When Mandela's body arrived at Mthatha airport soldiers in full dress regalia, male and female, were stationed on foot on either side of the road as cows grazed nearby. Local residents lined the route, shielding themselves from the sun with umbrellas.

Mandela had longed to spend his final months in his beloved rural village but instead he had spent them in a hospital in Pretoria and then in his home in Johannesburg where he had remained in critical condition, suffering from lung problems and other ailments, until his death.

said it was worth the 90-minute trip Saturday the family made from Astor.

"It's like a blessing from God," said Gill.

The event was made possible by the Lake County Police Charities, which spent the year collecting donations to buy the gift cards.

There were 133 children selected for the event, mainly by officers who were able to identify those in need through their jobs.

"We wanted to help those struggling," said Debbie Peterson, treasurer for the Police Charities.

While parents were present during the shopping spree, organizers told the children to grab what they wanted, as long as it was age appropriate.

But in a store full of electronics, home furnishings, books, crafts, groceries, jewelry and sports and outdoor items — it was the toy section that kept the children busy.

"I want this one," said 6-year-old Natasia Ortiz, of Paisley, who along with her 5-year-old brother Isaiah, grabbed a Chasin' Cheeky, a toy monkey that runs around as contestants try to throw a ring around its tail and snatch a banana from its mouth.

Howey-in-the-Hills Police officer Juan Cuevas took the two siblings on the shopping spree.

"It's great we can help kids have a better Christmas," Cuevas said.

After each child finished shopping, the officer walked them to the cash

Bicyclist killed in crash with truck

MILLARD K. IVES | Staff Writer
millardives@dailycommercial.com

A Tavares bicyclist was killed Saturday morning after being struck by a pickup, according to the Florida Highway Patrol.

Earl Dudley, 66, was pronounced dead at Orlando Regional Medical Center.

The crash occurred at the intersection of State Road 19 and Dead River Road in Tavares about 6:50 a.m. According to a FHP preliminary report, Dudley was riding the bike west across State Road 19, just south of the intersection of Dead River Road. The 2003 Ford F-250 was traveling south on S.R. 19, in the outside lane, approaching Dead River Road.

Sgt. Kim Montes, FHP spokeswoman for Lake County, said the truck failed to yield the right of way and its front left side struck the right of the bike.

The collision threw Dudley, who wasn't wearing a helmet, off the bike. The pickup driver, Alan Gagne, 42, of Leesburg, didn't sustain any injuries.

Montes said the crash remains under investigation.

Deputies: Teen kicks 72-year-old Fla. man, laughs

FORT MYERS — A southwest Florida community is rallying around a 72-year-old man this holiday season after authorities say a teenager kicked him to the ground while her friend videotaped the incident on her phone.

A 15-year-old high school basketball player and several teammates were walking through a neighborhood last month when they spotted Robert Lerberg pulling weeds in his yard. Authorities say the teen ran up behind him, kicked Lerberg to the ground and then erupted into laughter. One of the students videoed it, according to Lee County Sheriff's officials.

Authorities said the teen also allegedly knocked on another door that same day and slapped an 89-year-old victim in the face. She faces two charges of felony battery on a person 65 years old or older. The Associated Press is not naming the suspect because she is a minor. The suspect said she was only imitating similar acts she's seen online, deputies said.

"That was one of the worst things done to me in my life," Lerberg said. "All I could say was, 'Very funny, thanks a lot.'"

The incident sparked outrage in the community, and prompted supporters to create a Facebook page titled "Fort Myers Supports Robert Lerberg." The sheriff even held a news conference to speak out against the brazen unkindness.

Several members of the basketball team and Cypress Lake High School principal and athletic director stopped by Lerberg's home Saturday to apologize and lend their support.

Lerberg told The News-Press they all hugged and cried.

"That meant a lot to me."

Ryan Knaggs, a chef who lives in Newtown, said that as the bells tolled he thought of two young victims who played soccer with his 7-year-old daughter.

"The echo of the bells, knowing some of the children personally, you feel the exactitude with each bell ... the exactitude of the loss and the grief," Knaggs said.

The bells rang 26 times at St. Rose of Lima church in Newtown beginning at 9:30 a.m. — the moment the gunman shot his way into the school on Dec. 14, 2012 — and names of the victims were read over a loudspeaker. Connecticut's governor had asked for bells to ring across Connecticut and directed that flags be lowered to half-staff.

In Washington, the president and first lady Michelle Obama lit 26 votive candles set up on a table in the White House Map Room — one each for the 20 children and six educators.

In his weekly radio address released hours earlier, Obama said the nation hasn't done enough to make its communities safer by keeping dangerous people from getting guns and healing troubled minds. Gun restrictions backed by the president in response to the shooting faced stiff opposition and ultimately stalled in the Democrat-controlled Senate.

"We have to do more to keep dangerous people from getting their hands on a gun so easily. We have to do more to heal troubled minds. We have to do everything we can to protect our children from harm and make them feel loved, and valued, and cared for," Obama said.

Anniversary observances were held around the country, including in Tucson, Ariz., where former congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords and her husband were planting a yellow rose bush in a memorial garden created after the 2011 shooting that nearly killed her. Giffords' husband, Mark Kelly, said it is important to pause and support families of the Newtown victims.

Newtown asked for quiet and privacy on the anniversary.

Satellite television trucks filled Newtown's streets in the days after the shooting, and media have often returned since to the community of 28,000 people for stories related to the attack.

In an effort to keep the anniversary focused on quiet reflection, First Selectman E. Patricia Llodra announced in October that Newtown would not host any formal remembrance events. The news media were asked to keep their distance, and "No Media" signs went up around town as they did in the weeks after the tragedy.

Some news organizations stayed away Saturday from Newtown. A reporter and photographer for The Associated Press, whose reports are available to media worldwide, were present in the community, and some townspeople were willing to share their thoughts.

Andrew Snow, a mechanic who was drinking coffee at the general store with a friend, said it was an especially difficult day.

organized by the West Leesburg Community Development Corporation. Organizers returned to the drawing board this year after running out of toys for last year's event.

Giving toys as prizes this time, children could play Pin the Star on the Christmas Tree, Hot XMAS Toss, bingo, jump rope and other games to win a ticket, which they used to select from a pile of toys handed out by Santa elves.

Cassandra Cunningham, the officer manager for the CDC, said with a smaller crowd this year, all the children were able to get toys and prizes.

"We're going to help everyone have a better Christmas this year," Cunningham said.

The event included speakers, free food, entertainment and dancing. Live music included a performance by singers of the Frontier Church.

percent (5.8 percentage points increase)

Graduation rates at

Leesburg High (77.83 percent), Mount Dora High (83.70 percent) and Tavares High (80.67 percent) declined by a combined 2.87 percentage points;

however, each school is above the state's average graduation rate of 74.50 percent. Lake Minneola High received its first graduation rate of 85.9 percent, which is second best among Lake County's high schools.

In addition to graduation rates, FLDOE also released dropout rates. Lake County Schools' dropout rate slightly increased to 2.1 percent, a .1 percent point difference from last year's rate.

Florida began calculating and reporting only the federal uniform graduation rate beginning in 2011-12. This version replaces the National Governors Association (NGA) rate, which is no longer calculated, for high school grades accountability. Previously, Florida's official graduation rate included both standard and special diploma recipients. Students who earn a special diploma, a GED-based diploma, a certificate of completion, or have been retained and are still in school are not included in the federal graduation rate.

The federal graduation rate measures the percentage of students who graduate within four years of their first enrollment in ninth grade. The rate is calculated for an adjusted cohort of students, a group of students on the same schedule to graduate, taking into account those who enter or exit the group. The federal graduation rate is used in calculating high school grades and allows comparison among states.

Police seek motive in Colorado school shooting

DAN ELLIOTT and THOMAS PEIPERT
Associated Press

CENTENNIAL, Colo. — Investigators on Saturday were working to find out what motivated a teenage gunman to enter his suburban Denver high school armed with a shotgun looking for a specific teacher a day earlier.

Quick-thinking students at Arapahoe High School on Friday alerted the targeted educator, who quickly left the building. The 18-year-old shooter — identified by authorities as Karl Pierson — critically wounded a 15-year-old student, but the strategic response by police on the eve of the Newtown massacre anniversary appears to have averted more bloodshed.

About a half hour after wounding the girl, Pierson was found dead in the school, apparently of a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

“I believe the shooter took his life because he knew he had been found,” Arapahoe County Sheriff Grayson Robinson said.

Two other students were treated for minor injuries and released.

Robinson said Pierson, a senior who participated in debate activities, had had an altercation with the teacher, but the sheriff did not provide details or elaborate on a motive.

ated hundreds of students in an orderly procession — a demonstration of aggressive security measures developed by police and schools following the 1999 shooting at Columbine, some 8 miles west of Arapahoe High. All of the students there started school after Columbine and grew up in a security-conscious era.

After that tragedy, police across the country developed “active shooter” training in which responding officers rush toward gunfire — and step over bodies and bleeding victims if necessary — to stop the gunman.

“The first deputy sheriffs and police officers that were on scene immediately entered the school to engage the shooter if they could locate that individual and keep the other students safe,” Robinson said.

“This kid, the officers went right to him literally within minutes,” said Gov. John Hickenlooper. “That is a world of change from the way response used to happen.”

Before Columbine, officials followed a contain-and-wait strategy in which arriving officers set up a perimeter to contain the situation, then wait for SWAT team members trained in military tactics to bring down the gunman.

Robinson said Pierson made no attempt to hide his weapon while entering the school from a parking lot and asking for the teacher by name.

When the teacher learned that he was being targeted, he left “in an effort to try to encourage the shooter to also leave the school,” Robinson said. “That was a very wise tactical decision.”

Students heard shots and covered in classrooms while awaiting word on what had happened.

Senior Megan Jeffords, 18, was singing Christmas carols in the hall with her choir class when the shots rang out. A teacher rushed the 18 singers into a closet, where they huddled for more than half an hour.

Hours later, after Jeffords was reunited with her father, she was still visibly shaken and unable to talk much about what happened.

Jessica Girard was in math class when she said she heard three shots.

Ships to haul 500 tons of Syrian chemical agents

MENELAOS HADJICOSTIS
Associated Press

LIMASSOL, Cyprus — Danish and Norwegian ships can safely ferry up to 500 tons of Syria's most dangerous chemical weapons out of the strife-torn country, a Danish chemical expert said Saturday.

Bjoern Schmidt said sealed containers full of chemical compounds, which when mixed can create lethal Sarin and VX gases, will be loaded at opposite ends of the two cargo ships. The exact quantity of chemicals to be taken out of Syria is unknown, Schmidt said.

Cmdr. Henrik Holck Rasmussen, of Danish frigate HDMS Esbern Snare, said two cargo ships will go to Syria as many times as needed to pick up all chemical weapons.

The Danish warship and Norwegian frigate HNOMS Helge Ingstad will act as escorts. Both are docked in Cyprus along with the Danish cargo ship Ark Futura. The second cargo ship, which Norwegian shipper Wilh. Wilhelmsen ASA identified to the Associated Press as the MV Taiko, hasn't arrived yet.

Schmidt said according to a plan by the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons, which is in charge of the entire operation, the cargo ships will take the chemicals to the harbor of an as yet unidentified country where the most dangerous chemicals will be transferred onto American ship MV Cape Ray.

The ship is equipped with technology that can largely neutralize the chemicals. The process will take place at sea and the mostly inert chemicals will receive additional treatment at another facility.

Schmidt said the transfer can take place at sea, but that would mean additional risks given weather conditions and rough seas.

"I think the safest thing is to go into a harbor," Schmidt said.

Croatia has said that it would consider providing one of its ports for the transfer of the chemicals as long as there's no public opposition.

Danish Commodore Torben Mikkelsen, who is commanding the joint Danish-Norwegian operation, said it's unlikely the cargo ships would take any chemical weapons aboard until a harbor is found where they can be transferred onto the American ship.

"If there's no country willing to take the cargo or willing to participate with the transload, we're not going to take the stuff aboard," said Mikkelsen. "We need to know the transload or the disembarkation harbor. Then we're ready to go."

The containers will be inspected and sealed by OPCW officials and Syrian authorities at Latakia port. Each will be equipped with anti-handling and GPS tracking devices.

Iran sends second monkey into space

ALI AKBAR DAREINI
Associated Press

TEHRAN, Iran — Iran said Saturday it has successfully sent a monkey into space for a second time, part of an ambitious program aimed at manned space flight.

Iran's state TV said that the launch of the rocket dubbed Pajohesh, or Research in Farsi, was Iran's first use of liquid fuel. It reached a height of 72 miles. It said the monkey, named Fargam or Auspicious, was returned to earth safely.

TV footage showed the rocket blasting off and then showed the monkey, strapped snugly into a seat. The report said Fargam's capsule parachuted safely to earth after detaching from the rocket in a mission that lasted 15 minutes.

Iran frequently claims technological breakthroughs that are impossible to independently verify. The Islamic Republic has said it aims to send an astronaut into space.

"The launch of Pajohesh is another long step getting the Islamic Republic of Iran closer to sending a man into space," the official IRNA news agency said.

Fargam is a male monkey of rhesus macaque race with brown fur and a pink face. The primate weighs three kilograms and has a height of 22 inches. Iranian scientists say a bigger monkey or another animal will be tested in the next space flight.

State TV said the rocket was equipped with new features including sonic sensors and electronic devices that enabled scientists to monitor the monkey, its vital signs and voice.

Mohammad Ebrahimi said Iran's first use of liquid fuel meant the rocket's speed was about half that of a rocket using solid fuel.

Iran said it sent its first monkey into space in January, reaching the same height of 72 miles.

"The rocket carrying the first monkey used solid fuel and had a high speed. But a liquid fuel rocket has a lower speed and is better for the safety and protection of the living creature because it causes less pressure," IRNA quoted him as saying. "The capsule was equipped with a shock absorber to provide better protection for the monkey."

Ebrahimi said the monkey's appetite showed it was in good health after the journey.

Iran aerospace program is a source of national pride. It's also one of the pillars of its aspirations to be seen as the technological hub for Islamic and developing countries.

The U.S. and its allies worry that technology from the space program could also be used to develop long-range missiles that could potentially be armed with nuclear warheads.

Iran said it sent its first monkey into space in January, reaching the same height of 72 miles.

Desmond Tutu says he will attend Mandela funeral

GREGORY KATZ
Associated Press

The spokesman for retired Archbishop Desmond Tutu says the Nobel prize-winning cleric has changed his plans and will attend the funeral of anti-apartheid icon Nelson Mandela.

Roger Friedman said late Saturday that Tutu will take a flight early Sunday morning in order to attend Mandela's funeral service in Qunu. He did not say what brought about the change in Tutu's plans.

Earlier Saturday Tutu had said he would not attend because he had not been invited and did not want to "gate-crash" Mandela's burial services. The South African government said that Tutu had been invited.

UN: 2 peacekeepers killed, several wounded in Mali

ASSOCIATED PRESS

those who invaded and held the famous city of Timbuktu in northern Mali in 2012. It wasn't immediately clear if there were casualties from the second attack.

The back-to-back assaults are the worst to have rocked northern Mali in recent weeks, and come as France rushes troops to the Central African Republic, its former colony, where at least 600 have died in a week of sectarian violence. The French military deployed in Mali, another ex-colony, in January.

In the Kidal attack, the car packed with explosives detonated in front of a bank guarded by the peacekeepers, the intelligence official said. The explosion blew open the doors of houses in the area.

Abdallah Ag Ibrahim, a resident of Kidal, said the bank crumbled, a U.N. armored personnel car caught fire, and a nearby school was in flames. He said he saw four people who were either dead or injured.

Kidal, located some 1,000 miles northeast of Mali's capital, is where an ethnic Tuareg rebellion began in late 2011.

The French military, assisted by African troops, succeeded in chasing the rebels from almost all the areas they controlled, except Kidal, which remains at the heart of the conflict.

Analysts had long predicted that the al-Qaida linked fighters who controlled northern Mali for 10 months last year had not been defeated, just dispersed by the French-led intervention, and are just waiting for the international community to look the other way before staging a comeback. It's too early to tell if the attacks in Kidal and Teringuite were coordinated or if indeed they mark a new phase in the hostilities, but the damage caused met with condemnation from both the U.N. and Paris.

French Foreign Minister Laurent Fabius condemned "the cowardly attack" in Kidal, which came just ahead of Sunday's second round of legislative elections, meant to restore constitutional order in Mali.

Thai military hosts forum on political crisis

GRANT PECK
Associated Press

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Anti-government protest leader Suthep Thaugsuban, center, along with his supporters greets the media as he arrives for a meeting with Thai armed forces at their headquarters in Bangkok, Thailand, Saturday.

Prime Minister Thaksin Shinawatra — Yingluck's brother — was a bloodless one, but was followed by the installation of an inept interim government. The coup also polarized the country, which has seen Thaksin's supporters and opponents contending for power ever since, sometimes violently.

Suthep and his "People's Democratic Reform Committee" want new laws to banish corruption in politics to be implemented ahead of any election. The protesters say Thai politics are hopelessly corrupt under the alleged continuing influence of Thaksin, who has lived in self-imposed exile since 2008 to avoid jail time on a corruption charge.

Yingluck has dissolved parliament to call elections for Feb. 2.

More significant than what Suthep said Saturday was the role the armed forces played in hosting the event.

The military, apparently seeking to cast itself in a new light, has repeatedly declared itself neutral in the current political battle, though it's no secret that it dislikes Thaksin.

Despite being wanted by police on an insurrection charge, Suthep sat on a stage during Saturday's public forum, which was attended by the leaders of the various military branches.

6,000 people dressed as Santa Claus run in Spain

Associated Press

MADRID — Around 6,000 people dressed as Santa Claus and his elves have run a "mini-marathon" through the streets of Madrid to promote festive cheer as the country tries to emerge from a two-year recession.

While grown-ups dressed in red costumes with wisp white beards, children donned green elf outfits to run the 3.4 miles course through the city center.

The race was organized Saturday by one of Spain's leading department stores.

Bucs seeking signature win against streaking 49ers

FRED GOODALL

TAMPA — The San Francisco 49ers have won three straight games and are beginning to play like a team capable of making another run to the Super Bowl.

That also makes the defending NFC champions the type of team the improving Buccaneers need to knock off to prove their second-half turnaround isn't a fluke.

Not that star cornerback Darrelle Revis and his teammates necessarily believe the Bucs (4-9), who've won four of five following an 0-8 start, need a signature win to validate their progress.

"It would be special if we win because they're one of the top teams in the NFL. But at the same time, a win is a win," the three-time All-Pro said.

The streaking 49ers (9-4) are coming off an emotional 19-17 victory over Seattle, a win that stopped the Seahawks from clinching the NFC West title.

Three teams Tampa Bay has beaten had losing records at the time. The fourth, Detroit, leads its division but has been reeling lately and is 7-6.

Linebacker Patrick Willis is not concerned about a Niners let-down.

"We understand every game is important to us. We understand that last week was a very big game, a rivalry game, but this week is just as important," Willis said.

"Our guys are professionals, they know what's at stake," 49ers coach Jim Harbaugh said.

"This game is the biggest game on the schedule. This is a must-win game ... by any means necessary. The first thing is the preparation. You've got to put yourself in a position to earn that. And,

Reynolds, Navy run to 34-7 win against Army

DAVID GINSBURG
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Keenan Reynolds ran through steady snow and swirling wind into the NCAA record book, helping Navy beat Army 34-7 on Saturday for its 12th consecutive victory in the series.

Reynolds scored on touchdown runs of 47 yards, 11 yards and 1 yard. The sophomore has 29 rushing touchdowns, breaking the single-season mark for a quarterback previously held by Ricky Dobbs (Navy, 2009) and Collin Klein (Kansas State, 2011), both of whom had 27.

Reynolds ran 30 times for 136 yards on a frozen, snow-covered field. He also caught a 2-point conversion pass on a trick play following his second touchdown.

Navy (8-4) won the Commander-In-Chief's Trophy for the second consecutive season and ninth time in

Winston wins Heisman Trophy

RALPH D. RUSSO

NEW YORK — Jameis Winston left voters no choice but to give him the Heisman Trophy.

The Florida State quarterback became the second straight freshman to win the Heisman on Saturday night, earning college football's most prestigious individual award with a performance so spectacular and dominant that even a criminal investigation couldn't derail his candidacy.

Winston received 668 first-place votes and 2,205 points. He finished 1,501 points ahead of Alabama quarterback AJ McCarron for the seventh-largest margin of victory in Heisman history, despite being left off 115 of the 900 ballots that were returned.

Northern Illinois quarterback Jordan Lynch was third, followed by Boston College's Andre Williams, Texas A&M's Johnny Manziel and Auburn's Tre Mason.

Manziel was the first freshman to win the Heisman, and was trying to join Ohio State's Archie Griffin as a two-time Heisman winner. Instead, Winston made it two freshman winners in the 79-year history of the Heisman. He also became the youngest winner at 23 days short of 20.

The 19-year-old also was investigated last month for a year-old sexual assault, but no charges were filed.

Winston is the nation's top-rated passer and has led the top-ranked Seminoles to a spot in the BCS championship game against No. 2 Auburn on Jan. 6, his birthday. The former five-star recruit from Bessemer, Ala., made college football look easy from his very first game. On Labor Day night, on national television, Winston went 25 for 27 for 356 yards and four touchdowns in a victory at Pittsburgh.

It was a brilliant debut that lived up to the offseason hype, when Winston wowed Florida State fans in the Seminoles' spring football game and on the baseball diamond as a hard-throwing reliever and clutch-hitting outfielder. He had already earned the nickname Famous Jameis before he ever played a college football game.

our guys will be committed and professional about doing that.”

Five things to watch as the 49ers seek their fourth straight win and the Bucs try to build on their recent success:

- DEFENDING DAVIS While Anquan Boldin is drawing plenty of attention in the 49ers' passing game, Vernon Davis is showing each week why he is such a factor in San Francisco's success. The Bucs might want to watch out for Davis' high-hurdling move, too.
- San Francisco's speedy tight end has a touchdown catch in each of the past four games

No. 1 Arizona rallies past Michigan 72-70

Arizona forward Brandon Ashley (21) makes a lay-up defended by Michigan forward Mitch McGary (4) during the second half of Saturday's game in Ann Arbor, Mich.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Nick Johnson made six free throws over the final 25 seconds, and No. 1 Arizona held on for a 72-70 victory over Michigan on Saturday after rallying from an 11-point deficit in the second half.

The Wolverines (6-4) led by one when Johnson drew a foul on a drive with 24.6 seconds left. He made both free throws, and Michigan's Nik Stauskas missed at the other end. After a tie-up, the possession arrow gave the Wildcats (11-0) the ball with 9.5 seconds remaining.

Johnson pushed the lead to three with two more free throws, and Arizona fouled Spike Albrecht at the other end. Albrecht made only one of two free throws, and after two more free throws by Johnson made it 71-67, Albrecht made a 3-pointer with 2 seconds left. Arizona's Gabe York added a free throw to end the scoring.

Brandon Ashley scored 18 points for Arizona, which finally wore down Michigan inside in the final minutes. The Wildcats finished with 17 offensive rebounds, and although they only outscored the Wolverines 34-28 in the paint, that was enough.

Glenn Robinson III had 20 points for Michigan, but he did most of his damage in the first half. Caris LeVert contributed 15 points for the Wolverines, but this game was decided by Arizona's late free throws and the one miss by Stauskas when Michigan had a chance to go back ahead.

Michigan led 37-28 at halftime, and Mitch McGary pushed the lead to double digits with a dunk for the first points of the second half. But Arizona went on an 11-2 run to pull within two.

Michigan led 58-50, but the Wildcats again had an answer. Aaron Gordon and Ashley made consecutive baskets, and a dunk by Ashley cut the lead to two.

Johnson, Gordon and Kaleb Tarczewski had 14 points each for Arizona. Tarczewski went down with what looked like a right leg injury around the midpoint of the second half, but he was able to return.

It's been a quiet start to the season for Robinson, who showed enough potential in 2012-13 that he considered a jump to the NBA after his freshman year. Against Arizona, he showed why he's a definite candidate to play at the next level.

Robinson made all seven of his shots from the field in the first half, including a contested 3-pointer in the final seconds that gave

Michigan the nine-point halftime lead.

Opponents were shooting only 27 percent from 3-point range against Arizona coming into the game, but the Wolverines were 6 of 11 in the first half. They finished 8 of 17.

The Wildcats rallied late when they finally started converting around the basket. A three-point play with 2:32 to play by Rondae Hollis-Jefferson gave Arizona its first lead of the second half at 63-62.

The lead changed hands four more times after that — for good when Johnson made it 67-66 with the first of his six late free throws.

Fourth ranked Wisconsin beats E. Kentucky

Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. — Ben Brust scored 20 points to lead four Wisconsin players in double figures and the fourth-ranked Badgers beat Eastern Kentucky 86-61 on Saturday.

Freshman reserve Nigel Hayes scored a career-high 17 points for the Badgers (12-0), who are off to the best start to a season since 1915-16 when they started 12-0 and finished 20-1. Sam Dekker added 16 points, while Frank Kaminsky shrugged off a right foot injury that hampered him this week to add 13.

Glenn Cosey scored 21 points to lead the Colonels (7-4), while Orlando Williams added 13.

The Badgers made a living on free throws and 3-pointers in a game that wasn't close after the opening minutes.

Wisconsin, which averages 21 free throws a game, went 25 of 33 from the free throw line — led by Hayes going 13 of 17 — as the undersized Colonels committed 26 fouls. The Badgers finished 9 of 15 from beyond the 3-point line with Brust making five, two short of his school record..

Wisconsin used a 10-0 run in the first half featuring two 3-pointers by Brust to take control early and then continued to gradually pull farther ahead of the Colonels.

The Badgers first got the lead to 20 points with just over 2 minutes left in the first half and to 30 just past midway through the second half on a layup by Hayes.

The Colonels, who start four guards and a forward, started the game at a physical disadvantage that was exacerbated by their early foul trouble.

Starting forward Eric Stutz was whistled for his second foul less than 8 minutes into the game. But coach Jeff Neubauer brought him back in after a brief rest only to see him whistled for his third a few minutes later.

In all, Eastern Kentucky committed 16 fouls in the first half with three starters whistled for at least two. Reserves Timmy Knipp and Jef Johnson both committed three in the first half. Things got marginally better in the second half but the Colonels were still whistled for 26 fouls overall, though no player ended up fouling out.

The Colonels, meanwhile, could get nothing going on offense until the game was well out of hand, shooting 33 percent in the first half.

Louisville overcomes absence of Jones to top Western Kentucky

GARY B. GRAVES
Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Most satisfying to Russ Smith about No. 6 Louisville's victory over Western Kentucky was his teammates' assistance in overcoming the absence of starting point guard Chris Jones.

Just as important was the timing of those contributions that put away the Hilltoppers.

Smith had 14 points and 10 assists and Louisville shot 69 percent from the field in the second half to pull away to a 79-63 victory on Saturday.

With Jones sidelined at least a game with a sprained right wrist, the Cardinals (9-1) got numerous backcourt contributions to beat their in-state rival for the fifth straight time.

Smith, Louisville's leading scorer who has tried to involve teammates more this season, set the tone in both areas with five assists and nine points in the second half to finish with his second double-double in three games.

Louisville's bench outscored WKU's 33-20.

"My job is just to perform on a daily basis and get my teammates involved," Smith said. "If shots aren't falling, I have to find my teammates, play some great defense and help Louisville win some games."

Freshman Terry Rozier grabbed a team-high 10 rebounds starting in Jones' place while little-used senior reserve Tim Henderson — whose consecutive 3-pointers helped Louisville rally past Wichita State in last spring's national semifinal — added career highs of 12 points on four 3-pointers and four assists in 22 minutes.

"I'm kind of used to that role, I've had it for four years now," the walk-on said. "We have such a great group of people, a great group of guards who can all play well."

"It's whatever Coach (Rick Pitino) feels like is going to work that game and how you match up with them. I guess he felt like I matched up well with this team and with Chris out."

Their efforts helped Louisville pad a 31-28 halftime lead as the Cardinals made 13 of their first 21 attempts from the field after the break to build a 63-44 lead with 6:02 left. They shot 18 of 26 in the second half.

Louisville held the Hilltoppers (5-4) scoreless for nearly 6 minutes.

Mangok Mathiang added a career-high 13 points and Chane Behanan had 11 points and seven rebounds for Louisville, which shot 30 of 59 overall (51 percent) after hitting just 36 percent in the first half.

Wayne Blackshear added 12 points while senior forward Stephan Van Treese had five points with four rebounds, providing a presence for the Cardinals with Mathiang hampered by three fouls.

Pitino praised Smith, his senior tri-captain, for being the catalyst.

"Until you knock the young man off of his throne, he's the premier player in college basketball," Pitino said. "(It's a) biased opinion by me, but I think he is because he has made every change.

T.J. Price's 22 points led WKU, which shot just 36 percent and was outscored 36-14 inside.

Louisville improved to 38-39 all-time against WKU in a series that both coaches want to continue even though its programs are headed to new leagues next season. The Cardinals will leave the American Athletic Conference to join the Atlantic Coast Conference while the Hilltoppers will move from the Sun Belt to Conference USA.

Jets' Zach Sudfeld a study in perseverance

DENNIS WASZAK JR.
Associated Press

FLORHAM PARK, N.J. — The metal dog-tag hangs around Zach Sudfeld's neck nearly everywhere he goes.

It dangles under his pads when he's on the football field, and he takes it off only when he showers. It was a gift from his grandfather, and the Winston Churchill-inspired quote engraved on it epitomizes his journey from hard-luck youngster to tenacious New York Jets tight end:

"Never, never, never give up."

Sudfeld could have easily walked away from football a few times. Many people told him he should have.

A broken leg and dislocated ankle in his senior season at Nevada appeared to abruptly end a college career marked by setbacks and six surgeries. He had nothing more to prove, they told him, and he'd been through enough adversity.

"I'm a football player," the 24-year-old Sudfeld said, his long, reddish-brown hair pulled back neatly behind his head. "I couldn't let it end that way."

And, he didn't. Not even close.

Sudfeld — nicknamed "Studfeld" by friends and teammates — is a 6-foot-7, 260-pound backup tight end who has played in eight games as a rookie, including two starts, with four catches while carving roles on the scout team and special teams.

"The sky's the limit for him because each day he gains more confidence," Jets tight ends coach Steve Hagen

New York Jets tight end Zach Sudfeld (82) walks on the sideline during a game on Dec. 1 against Miami in East Rutherford, N.J. said. "He makes like freak catches in practice."

As his blocking improves, Sudfeld's playing time figures to increase. He gets about 10 snaps a game, but he's used to having to prove himself.

"We loved watching 'Rudy' growing up, but Zach's no Rudy," said Sudfeld's father Ralph. "He has demonstrated he belongs here. Nothing was handed to him. Nothing. He just kept saying, 'Nope, I'm just going to keep going.'"

That perseverance was born in part from being raised in a family whose business is delivering hope.

The Sudfelds are heavily involved with Assist International, a humanitarian organization started by Sudfeld's grandparents Bob and Charlene Pagett in a spare bedroom in 1990 that has since completed over 500 projects to help the needy in 61 countries.

Ralph Sudfeld is the executive vice president. Zach's mother, Michelle, is the director of fundraising for abandoned and orphaned children. Zach's twin brother, Matt, is the director of strategic development. When each of his grandchildren turned 13, Bob Pagett let them pick a project on which they could accompany him.

Zach chose a trip to Romania, where an experience at an orphanage still resonates.

"You go to the streets where these kids came from and it's just devastating," he said. "You can't get those images out of your head. It's an amazing thing when you hold an orphan in your arms. You're like, 'Man, I have no issues.'"

Sudfeld has since been to Myanmar and Thailand, and plans to go to Africa during the offseason. He'll join the rest of the family full-time in the business someday, but after his playing days are through.

Sudfeld was born 10 minutes before Matt. He spent most of his childhood and teen years in Modesto, Calif., trying to catch up to him on the football field, basketball court or pretty much anything that provided even the smallest measure of competition.

"Growing up, whenever we'd get into a fight, I was just a lot tougher than him, even though he was taller," Matt said with a laugh.

They're fraternal, and their drastic height difference — Matt is 5-foot-11 — makes it difficult to imagine they're brothers, let alone twins.

"We're as close as you can be," said Zach, whose younger brother er Nate plays quarterback at Indiana. "But growing up, he was way more athletic."

The family has a theory on the moment Zach went from being a tall, skinny, awkward guy to one of the toughest players on the football field. It was the day during the twins' sophomore season in high school that Zach was moved up to varsity from junior varsity to fill in for some injured tight ends.

He dropped the first two balls that came his way. He rebounded, though, with three catches on a last-minute drive. Modesto Christian High School had the ball at the 3-yard line with 1 second left, and coach Mike Parsons dialed up a slant to Zach.

He caught the ball and cradled it in the end zone for the winning score against rival Mariposa.

"We joke about it like, 'Man, if you dropped that ball, you'd be teaching math somewhere,'" Matt said. "From that point on, he developed more of an edge and by the time he was a senior, he was just a force."

The twins went separate ways for college, with Zach heading to Nevada and Matt going to Brown — but both continued to play football.

Zach walked on to the Nevada football team that featured current 49ers quarterback Colin Kaepernick, eventually earning a scholarship. He showed promise, despite not playing a lot behind starter Virgil Green. Injuries — a shoulder, a knee and a broken wrist — provided some other bumps in the road. But, heading into his senior year, he was poised for a breakout season.

On Sept. 10, 2011, the Wolf Pack opened the season at Oregon. At the start of the second quarter, with 35 family members in the stands, someone rolled into his left leg. His femur broke, and his ankle was dislocated and turned 180 degrees.

"My toes were pointed to the sky and I was on my stomach," Zach recalled.

He was carted off the field, and many believed he was done with football.

"Everyone was telling me that it was time to hang up the cleats," he said.

Sudfeld had other plans.

He was already working on his master's degree in business administration, so he'd continue to do that while he rehabilitated and planned his next comeback. He persuaded coach Chris Ault to keep a spot on the roster for him, and was awarded a sixth year of eligibility by the NCAA.

A year after all the doubts and tears, Sudfeld was back on the football field.

It's a comeback story with a Hollywood-style script: Sudfeld started every game for Nevada as a sixth-year senior, caught 45 passes for 598 yards, set a school record for tight ends with eight TD catches, and was a semifinalist for the Mackey Award, given to the nation's top player at his position.

"You just go, 'Listen, man, congratulations to you. You went out and willed yourself to do that,'" Ralph Sudfeld said. "That's what makes you so proud as a parent."

Rob Ryan explains decision to back out of job with St. Louis

Associated Press

METAIRIE, La. — New Orleans Saints defensive coordinator Rob Ryan says his verbal commitment to take a job in St. Louis was made hastily while he was still upset over his firing in Dallas.

Ryan said he backed out because he owed it to himself and his family to make sure he found the best fit for his style as a coach.

"It was kind of a complicated thing. I think getting fired in Dallas was a shock to my system," Ryan said Friday.

"I took a job with the Rams; hadn't had anything signed. Just from being there and finding out the direction of how they wanted to do things, it was my obligation not only to me, but to them, to just walk away and look for something different.

"I don't think I can fully commit to something that wasn't exactly what I believed in, despite having great people in the building," Ryan continued, referring to the Rams.

"They have Jeff Fisher, who has been a friend of my family. We love him, we respect him. He's a great coach. They've got some of the best defensive coaches there."

Ryan, who has generally coached 3-4 fronts (three down linemen, four linebackers), noted that the Rams were using more of a 4-3, "so I just didn't get the right vibe."

"I thought to myself — I was mad already about the Dallas situation — that, you know what? This is the best thing for me to do and for them, for me to walk away, wait for the perfect opportunity to come, because I knew I was going to get one," Ryan continued. "Wherever it was going to be, I was going to get one because I believe in myself."

Ryan noted that he had jumped between defensive coordinator jobs in Oakland, Cleveland and Dallas during the past half-decade, and thought his next move needed to be one that he believed had the potential to last a while.

"I've moved my family. ... I wanted the perfect situation. I wanted to coach a defense that I'm an expert at, and I know I'm damn good," Ryan said. "I wanted to do the best job I could do. I was tired of moving around every single year, every two years."

Ryan said joining the Saints staff was something that interested him from the moment he learned by phone, while vacationing in the Turks and Caicos islands — that he'd been fired by Dallas.

He said the first call he made was to his brother, in which he described Dallas' decision to fire him as "a joke," and then called current Chicago offensive coordinator Aaron Kromer, who was then New Orleans' offensive line coach and running game coordinator.

Broncos' loss opens door in AFC playoff race

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — John Fox doesn't see a defense that's diving or a sky that's falling.

A day after the Broncos lost their aura of indestructibility and handed New England a golden chance to steer the road to the Super Bowl away from the Rocky Mountains, Denver's coach said the stunning 27-20 loss to San Diego doesn't substantially change the challenge facing his team.

"You can go back and do research; I think there has been a lot of successful teams that have had losses late in the season," Fox said Friday. "Where we'll fit on that totem pole, I have no idea yet. We obviously have work to do to improve. I know that. I agree that every loss is a wakeup call."

Last year's Super Bowl champion, the Baltimore Ravens, in fact, went 1-4 in December.

"They got hot at the right time," safety David Bruton said. "You just get hot at the right time. Yeah, it stinks that we lost the game, but we're definitely just trying to move forward and learn from it. We just finished watching film and just move on to the next one. You learn from adversity. You learn from your mistakes."

"You want to be hot in December, but we lost early in December and we can learn from that and push forward and become hot at the end of December and throughout January and February."

Saban, Alabama reach long-term agreement

JOHN ZENOR
Associated Press

Alabama's Nick Saban is staying put, apparently for the duration of his coaching career.

The university announced Friday night that Saban has reached "a long-term agreement" to remain with the Crimson Tide.

"We are very pleased to have this agreement completed," Saban said in a statement. "(Wife) Terry and our family are very happy in Tuscaloosa. It has become home to us. This agreement allows us to continue to build on the tremendous success that we have enjoyed to this point — successes that have transcended the football field. We are excited about the future and the University of Alabama is where I plan to end my coaching career."

proved by the board of trustees.

Saban received an eight-year deal in March 2012 worth about $5.6 million annually and seems likely to remain college football's highest-paid coach.

The agreement quells speculation that Saban would take over at Texas if Mack Brown steps down. Saban, who turned 62 on Oct. 31, has led the Tide to three national championships in the past four years with no signs of fading from annual contention.

"Coach Saban is the best in the business and has led our program to the pinnacle of college football," Alabama athletic director Bill Battle said. "This agreement is a strong indication of our mutual commitment to building on the foundation he has established."

The third-ranked Tide was on the verge of another Southeastern Conference, and perhaps national title, before losing 34-28 to No. 2 Auburn in the regular-season finale on a last-play 109-yard return of a missed field goal.

Alabama will play Oklahoma in the Sugar

Bowl on Jan. 2 in New Orleans.

Saban has said multiple times that he's too old "to go someplace else and start over."

"I'm very committed to the University of Alabama, love being here," he said in November. "We've talked about it before. Don't need to talk about it again."

But that didn't stop the speculation and rumors that he was bound for Texas amid reports that Brown was on his way out.

Brown didn't address his future at Texas at Friday night's annual team banquet, while acknowledging "distractions" for his team. The Longhorns (8-4) will face Oregon in the Alamo Bowl on Dec. 30.

Brown met with school President Bill Powers and athletic director Steve Patterson before the banquet. Patterson declined to say what was discussed or if any conclusion had been reached.

Saban is 74-14 in seven seasons at Alabama, with at least 11 wins in five of the last six years and a string of top-rated recruiting classes. The Tide was trying to become the first team to win three straight national titles since the 1930s.

Saban has been mentioned as a candidate for various openings in the NFL and college during his tenure.

That's no surprise given his track record in the college ranks. Saban is the only coach to win four BCS national titles, including the 2003 championship at LSU. He returned to the SEC after going 15-17 in two seasons with the Miami Dolphins.

"The University of Alabama has finalized a contract agreement with the finest football coach in our country and this contract will keep Nick Saban at the University of Alabama for the remainder of his career," said Robert E. Witt, Chancellor of the University of Alabama System.

At Texas, several university regents and a former regent were involved in a meeting with Saban's agent last January to gauge the coach's interest in coming to Texas.

According to an email detailing that phone meeting and obtained by The Associated Press, Saban's agent, Jimmy Sexton, told Texas representatives that Texas was the only job Saban would leave Alabama for, and that Saban was under "special pressure" at his current job.

JIM VERTUNO
Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas — Texas says coach Mack Brown has stepped down and that the Alamo Bowl against Oregon on Dec. 30 will be his last game with the Longhorns.

The school announced the move Saturday.

Brown led the Longhorns to the 2005 national championship and ranks second at the school in career victories. He's stepping down after 16 seasons — and one tumultuous week of reports and speculation that this was coming.

He is 158-47 at Texas, but 30-20 the last four seasons, including 19-17 in the Big 12.

The 62-year-old Brown was hired at Texas from North Carolina in 1997 and was credited with reviving a dormant program. Texas had a run of dominance from 2001-2009 when the Longhorns went 101-16. He is one of the highest-paid coaches in the country at $5.4 million this year.

Brown did not directly address the speculation swirling around his job during Friday's annual football banquet, but news of Alabama's new contract with Nick Saban, a coach some Texas officials hoped to lure to the Longhorns, rippled through the banquet minutes before Brown was scheduled to speak.

He gave no indication that he planned to step down. His lively speech seemed to lift the somber tone of the banquet and he told new athletic director Steve Patterson that he's looking forward to working with him.

Brown lingered long after the banquet was over to chat with recruits and their families.

Afterward, Brown told ESPN, "Everybody just needs to slow down. I have a good relationship with my bosses ... and I look forward to making the best decision (about my future)."

Brown, Patterson and school President Bill Powers met Friday afternoon, but Patterson declined comment when approached at the banquet.

"When we have something to announce, we'll announce it," Patterson told reporters.

During his prepared remarks, Patterson said he's "excited to be working with" Brown.

Powers, one of Brown's biggest allies, also praised Brown and his wife.

"Mack and Sally, I'm so proud of you, the way you brought this team over obstacles," Powers said. "You two are the very best. I'm proud to be your friend."

Alabama coach Nick Saban had been identified as a target to potentially replace Brown, and several university regents and a former regent were involved in a meeting with Saban's agent last January to gauge his interest in coming to Texas.

That door closed Friday night when Alabama announced it had reached "a long-term agreement" for Saban to remain with the Crimson Tide. Alabama didn't release terms of the new deal, which must be approved by the board of trustees.

Are golf carts in downtown Leesburg wise?

We can certainly understand what would motivate leaders in retirement and planned communities to allow golf carts to drive on public roads.

The carts — which are referred to as “golf cars” by most sellers — are the primary mode of local transportation for a large part of those populations.

The advantages of golf carts are numerous: They are inexpensive to use, have comparatively little effect on the environment and are very convenient.

But typically local governments that do authorize their use have already laid the basic infrastructure to prevent traffic problems and to bolster safety.

Many retirement communities have separate or wider lanes for golf cart travel and have designated throughways.

Authorizing their use has become something of a municipal trend to accommodate a growing segment of older residents.

Along comes the Leesburg City Commission's decision last week to allow golf carts, utility vehicles and low-speed vehicles to be used on certain public and public-maintained streets in the downtown.

Anyone unfamiliar with downtown Leesburg may fairly ask the question: What's the problem with that?

But anyone who has traveled along the narrow, visibility-restricted downtown streets, may be wondering about city commissioners' geographic wisdom.

The downtown streets are narrow, many of the timed traffic lights are less than a block apart and many multi-story buildings limit visibility even for motorists. Sidewalks along most downtown streets allow for passage of no more than two pedestrians at a time.

We can only envision a fearsome scenario of golf cart users dodging through traffic among vehicles several times their weight and size.

We want to know how much thought was put into this decision and was the larger picture even considered.

Did commissioners who voted unanimously to approve golf cart use even ask the questions?

While some residents are pleased with the decision, we're wondering why commissioners were so quick to approve this.

Commissioners did express concerns about safety. Commissioner Bill Polk wanted to set the age limit at 18 and older.

Commissioner Elise Dennison briefly broached the subject. “The streets are really not wide enough to handle the cars and golf carts.”

Some city residents expressed similar concerns, many of which weren't adequately addressed.

Although briefly discussed in the public meeting, commissioners need to provide better and more thorough answers.

Golf carts on public streets is not just about following municipal trends, luring customers to downtown businesses and enhancing residents' convenience. It's also about safety.

LETTER of the WEEK

ALAN YOUNGBLOOD / HALIFAX MEDIA GROUP

A diver prepares to make a dive while standing in the thick algae that blankets both the shallow edge of the spring and down to about 30 feet at Troy Springs State Park in Branford.

We all need to help protect our springs

Thanks for having the courage to print the “Natural Springs Under Attack” in your Nov. 29, 2013 edition. We all need the courage to discuss this problem more openly and start doing something about it.

Drought does play a big role in our lower lake levels, rivers and springs, because that is when we pump even more water out of the aquifer. Then, as the water table goes down, so do our seepage lakes and springs. Statewide, we are pumping more water out of our aquifer than is being replaced by rainfall.

The average homeowner is using 50 to 60 percent of their water to maintain their lawns. Many communities in the Western states are replacing their grass with rocks or more drought-tolerant plants. It is time we did the same.

If a plant freezes in your yard this winter, replace it with a drought-tolerant variety. Replace some of that grass each year with drought-tolerant ground covers or native plants.

Lake County has two dozen natural small springs, two second-magnitude springs and one first-magnitude spring (Alexander). Protecting our springs, rivers and lakes is a joint responsibility, not just the governments'.

Obama, Kerry duped on the Iran deal

A couple of weeks ago, President Obama and Secretary of State Kerry described the bargain we had struck with Iran. We would relax sanctions and, in return, Iran would “neutralize” its stockpile of 20 percent enriched uranium. With my knowledge of physics, I thought that was a very good deal.

A light water tower reactor can use 3 percent to 5 percent enriched uranium, and 20 percent enriched uranium has only one use: as the precursor to nuclear weapons material.

To be rid of their stockpile of 20 percent enriched uranium was truly a significant diplomatic agreement — an historic advance for our side and well worth relaxing sanctions.

Later, I learned that by “neutralize,” the Iranians mean they had agreed to turn their 20 percent enriched uranium into uranium oxide and retain the oxide in their possession. Now, that's a relatively simple and easily reversible process. It's the functional equivalent of asking a man to divest himself of his gold coins by having him paint the coins black and then put them back in his safe.

The Obama administration had deliberately misinformed me with misleading language. I had been lied to. We had struck a very bad bargain.

Republicans are denying others health care

With great effort, Republicans are seeking to deny health care for a good number of Americans. They've obstructed its going into effect so insurance companies could continue to offer policies inferior to ACA. Insurance companies are still giving bonuses to their sales staffs for selling these profitable policies. The GOP wants to continue their attack so the big donors continue.

If Obamacare succeeds, they'll lose these funds but Americans will have better medical coverage than they have now. Those 27 and older would be the hardest to sell this program to. They would no longer be covered by their parents' policies and may feel great, health-wise.

It could also be hard to get those who refuse to stay enrolled in Social Security, work as private contractors or own their own businesses. Many don't see the need for insurance and want to save the 7 percent that would go to buy insurance through Social Security. If they don't buy private insurance, disaster awaits them.

Try to imagine being in the position of having no health coverage and then an illness strikes. That's a chance you're willing to take, but to deny others that coverage is something far less than Christian-like.

Pharaoh said 'Let it be written. Let it be done'?

In my life time I believe the movie I have enjoyed the most was Cecil B. DeMille's epic film, The Ten Commandments, shown in 1956. Loaded with a star-studded cast, the two lead roles were played by Charlton Heston, as Moses, and Yul Brynner who played Rameses, the Pharaoh of Egypt.

Both won numerous awards for their work. Brynner was brilliant in his portrayal of an arrogant and all powerful Pharaoh of Egypt. To this day I still vividly remember the line that followed his decrees, which stated, "Let it be written, let it be done."

Rameses was all powerful and answered to no one. He had no Congress or Supreme Court to deal with or thwart his decrees.

If I was making the same movie today and had to cast the role of Rameses the clear cut choice would be President Obama. Yul Brynner as Rameses would have stated, "If you like your health care plan and doctor, you can keep them. Let it be written, let it be done."

President Obama's frequently uttered quote has been: "If you like your health care plan and doctor, you can keep them. Period!" Both statements had the verbal emphasis of the most powerful leader in their country.

As a nation we have witnessed the most incompetent major launch of a web site in a country which probably has the greatest web site designers in the world.

Adding insult to injury we have paid more than $600 million for this monstrosity and who knows how much more to fix it.

GUEST COLUMNIST

One of my neighbors in Leesburg just got her letter canceling her coverage. She had been a happy customer for 15 years but was dropped due to the new requirements of ObamaCare.

The Tea Party and Republicans who have been labeled as "kooks" by the president and the Democrat members of Congress for voicing their grave concerns about the serious flaws they saw in ObamaCare don't appear so "kooky" today! In fact, the flaws, especially the increased costs, may be even more serious than we originally thought.

Since the abysmal launch on October first of the Healthcare.gov web site over five million Health Care plans have been canceled due to the new demands imposed by the requirements of ObamaCare.

This mass of cancellations hit the White House like the final plague of death hit Rameses and Egypt. But this is just the tip of the ObamaCare iceberg. The really huge number of cancellations will occur when the employer provided plans are affected in 2014. In fact, in the June 2010 Federal Register, administration officials predicted, "massive disruptions of the private insurance market."

Recent polls show that the majority of Americans now feel the president was not truthful when he promised some 29 times that "If you like your Health Care plan and doctor you can keep them. Period!" As the promises of the president and the benefits of ObamaCare evaporate, the president under intense pressure from Democrats in Congress facing the 2014 elections have forced the president to tell those who have lost their coverage that they can keep their coverage for one more year.

For the past three years insurance companies have been retooling for ObamaCare and now in about 30 days President Obama tells them to immediately pivot to reinstate canceled policies so as to protect the democrats who are running in 2014. Simply put. "Let it be written. Let it be done."

Cuba's hostage remains imprisoned

Alan Gross began his fifth year as a prisoner of Cuba's unjust "justice" system last week, a symbol of the continuing estrangement between that island nation and the United States, and, more important, the fundamentally unchanged nature of the governing regime.

Gross, for anyone who needs reminding, is a 64-year-old husband and father who was surprisingly detained in December of 2009 by Cuban authorities. He was summarily tried and sentenced to 15 years in prison for the "crime" of delivering a portable computer and a cellphone to Cuba's small and isolated Jewish community, an action not normally considered a crime except by a handful of repressive regimes around the world, including, of course, Cuba.

Since his arrest, Gross has lost more than 100 pounds. He suffers from degenerative arthritis and his health continues to deteriorate. Even worse is the emotional toll that four years of incarceration and separation have taken on him and his family.

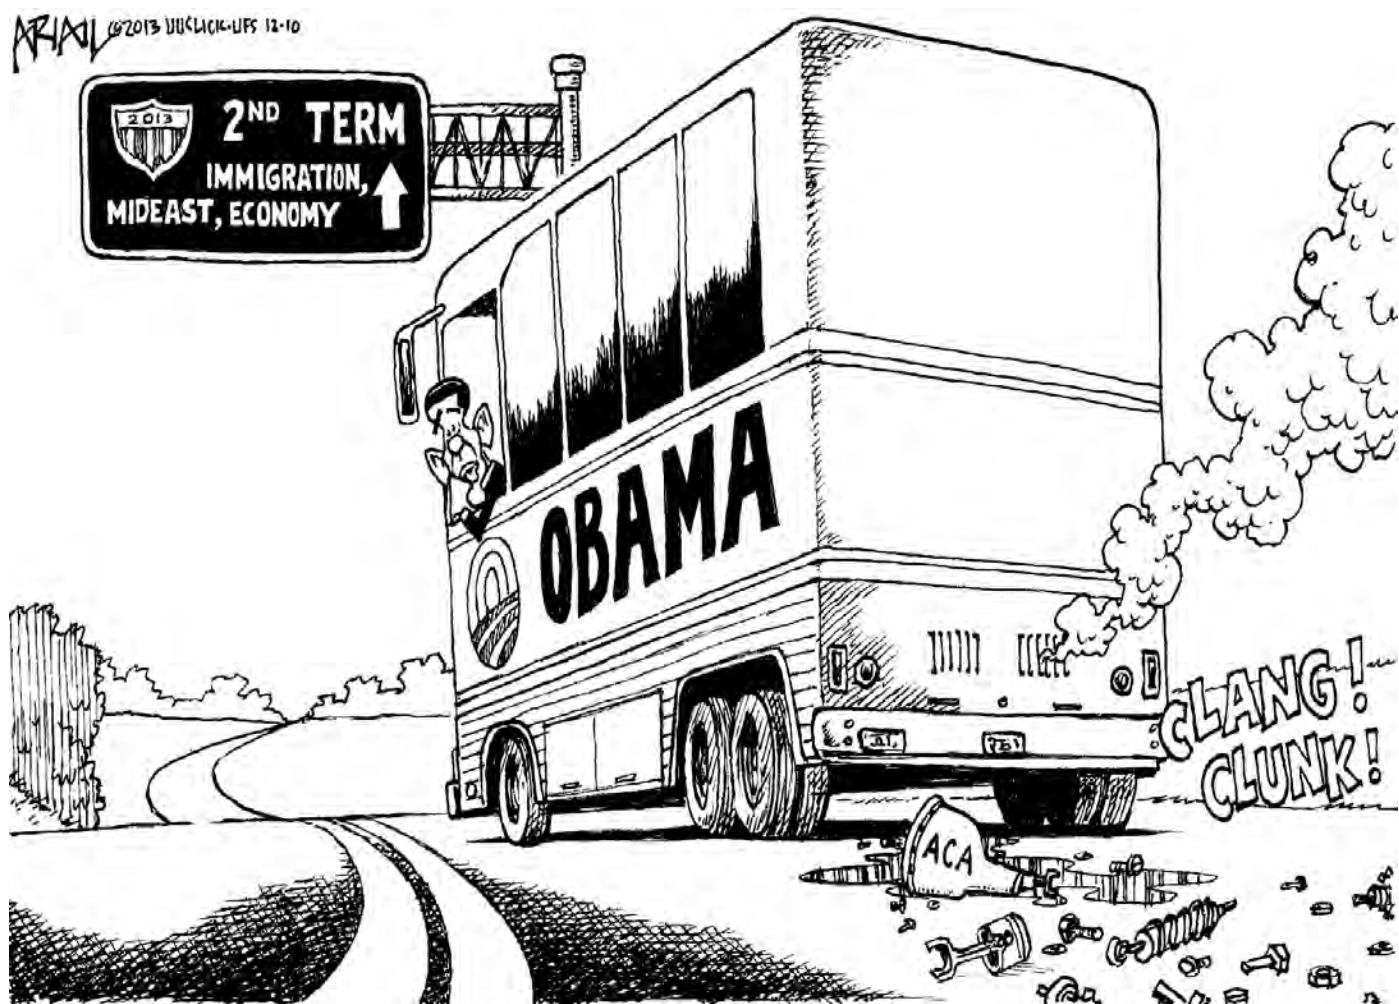

On the anniversary of his arrest, Gross' wife, Judy, made a dramatic plea for President Obama to "do whatever it takes to bring Alan home." The Obama administration, for its part, has said, without releasing details, that it is holding behind-the-scenes talks with the Cubans on the topic, even though officials have repeatedly called for his release without the need for negotiations.

Unfortunately, the Cuban government has other plans. Where the rest of the world sees a victim of an arbitrary and unfair government, Cuba's leaders see a human pawn that can be used to advance their own selfish political objectives.

The regime said last week that it was ready to hold talks over Gross' freedom, but that any such dialogue must include the situation of the four imprisoned spies who have been held in this country since 1998.

The Obama administration would be wrong to give in to this blackmail because the two cases are totally distinct. Alan Gross is a hostage; the Cubans committed espionage. The four Cuban spies (a fifth was released after completing his sentence and now lives in Cuba) were sentenced for spying not on Cuban exile organizations, but on U.S. military installations and for their part in the downing of airplanes belonging to Brothers to the Rescue in 1996.

Gross' wife has pleaded that he should not be left to die in prison. Releasing him would be the humanitarian thing to do. It's up to the Cuban government to demonstrate that it's capable, just this once, of doing the right thing.

WOODY'S GOLD EXCHANGE

Woody Fleming wasn't ready to retire a few years ago. So, he opened Woody's Gold Exchange in Tavares. And his customers are happy he did.

Woody says he originally opened the business just to buy Gold, Platinum, silver and Silver Coins but being the Old Jeweler that he is, he could not stop there. He now offers for sale Diamond, Gold and Silver Jewelry, Silver Coins, replaces most watch batteries ($6.00 for most batteries) and also does Jewelry Repair.

Woody provides the community an extensive Jewelry background reaching from owning his own businesses, becoming President of a NJ based Jewelry Manufacturer, developed two watch brands, and being Senior VP of a NYSB National Company of which was one of the largest Jewelry companies in the U.S..

He said he considers most of his customers as friends and they know they are dealing with someone they can trust.

Woody's Gold Exchange offers the community Diamond, Gold & Silver Jewelry at tremendously LOW, LOW PRICES EVERY DAY and He Pays More CASH$ for OLD, WORN, BROKEN JEWELRY, COINS, SILVER FLATWARE, ETC.

Due to my busy schedule and the fact that I am the owner/operator you may want to call ahead 352-508-5062 M-F 9:30 - 5pm and Saturday 10 - 3pm.

Just in time for the holidays. Harbor Freight Tools had its grand opening Nov. 20. The leading discount tool retailer in the U.S., which began as a small family-owned business in California in 1977, has grown into a chain with more than 470 stores nationwide and 35 in Florida alone.

"We are very excited to open the 35th Harbor Freight Tools store in Florida and thrilled to be a member of the Leesburg community," said Eric Smidt, president of Harbor Freight Tools. "Our business model is simple: earn our customers' business by offering quality tools at ridiculously low prices."

From hand tools and generators, to air and power tools, from shop equipment to automotive tools, Harbor Freight offers more than 7,000 tools and accessories at quality levels that match or exceed competing brands, but at prices that are up to 80 percent less.

How do they do it? "Our tools are made in the same factories as many of the high-priced famous brands, but we cut out the middleman and sell them at a fraction of the price," Smidt explained.

It's not just low prices, it high-quality merchandise.

Harbor Freight tests its tools in their own state-of-the-art labs, just like those operated by leading consumer advocate organizations. Their technicians put their tools through punishing tests exceeding the strain of normal use to ensure their tools perform to professional standards and stay tough for the long haul.

Harbor Freight Tools doesn't just talk quality, they walk the walk — with a 100-percent satisfaction guarantee, no-hassle return policy and a lifetime warranty on all hand tools.

The results speak for themselves — with more than 20 million customers nationwide and thousands of people switching to Harbor Freight Tools every day.

"We were very well received," said store manager Jeanna Foulke. "Our customers are glad that we're here so they don't have to drive Ocala."

Around the same time the Leesburg store opened, Harbor Freight Tools added stores in Spring Hill, Crystal River and Lake Park, which isn't quite in Leesburg's backyard.

"We have a strong fleet of stores in that area," said Colin Ozar, the corporate marketing supervisor. "All stores in that market are doing well. Our customers are definitely in that area and Leesburg is really strong doing very well."

So is Harbor Freight Tools. "We're expanding, the business is going really, really well," said Ozar. "Our goal is 500 and beyond. Florida is really strong for us."

Foulke, who has been with the company more than a year, agrees.

"We're a growing company," she said. "We have a big growth opportunity here in Florida. It continues to grow."

She came to Leesburg from the Auburndale location, which she helped with its grand opening.

Indian court allows Nokia to sell its frozen assets

KAY JOHNSON
Associated Press

MUMBAI, India — An Indian court ruled that Nokia Corp. may transfer a factory seized by tax authorities to Microsoft as part of the Finnish communications giant's 5.4 billion euro ($7.2 billion) sale of its devices and services unit.

The ruling by the Delhi High Court coincided with a deadline after which Nokia had said the factory in the southeastern city of Chennai would be excluded from the Microsoft deal and might have to close.

At least 8,000 workers are employed at the factory, which makes basic phone handsets, and some 25,000 subcontractors are dependent on its business, according to court filings.

The case has been closely watched because several other international corporations are embroiled in tax disputes with the Indian government, including Vodafone, Shell and IBM.

The ruling did not resolve Nokia's overall tax dispute.

The court wrote in its ruling that "there is partial truth in the allegations made by both sides against each other" and noted that the case was likely to be protracted and end up before the country's Supreme Court.

The ruling required Nokia to put at least 22.5 billion rupees ($369 million) in escrow as collateral against the pending back-tax dispute.

Nokia India spokeswoman Poonam Kaul said the company would comply with the decision but added that there were still other unspecified Indian statutory clearances needed before the transfer to Microsoft can be finalized.

"Nokia repeats its call for the Indian government to work with urgency to facilitate the other approvals needed for the transfer and secure employment for the tens of thousands of employees involved," Kaul said, adding that the company still expects the deal with Microsoft to close in the first quarter of 2014.

Does your advisor actually manage your money?

"Mama may have...
Papa may have...
But God bless the child,
Who's got his own...
who's got his own."
"God Bless The Child"
By Billie Holiday
(1941)

When shopping for an investment advisor, there are several important questions to ask in a get-acquainted meeting. One is a simplistic but nevertheless very important inquiry: "Will you actually be managing my money?" In addition to "Do you serve as a legal fiduciary to me?" and "Are you compensated solely by your clients?", this is one of the most important questions an investor should ask.

Many investors assume that the investment advisor with whom they sign an investment advisory agreement will be managing their money. But simply stated, many advisors do not actually manage assets. They may serve primarily as asset gatherers and relationship managers, while someone else does the investing. Sometimes that "someone else" is someone within the company, and sometimes it's a third party manager. Either way, it's very often not the person the investor considers their "advisor". In addition, some advisors specialize in product sales or commissioned investments, like parent company mutual funds, and do not "manage assets" per se. Sophisticated invest-tors want to work one-on-one with the advisor who knows them personally and who also actually manages their assets. They are increasingly aware of the fact that with many advisory relationships their assets are managed by someone else in the company or by a separate account or third party asset manager. Usually they've never sat down with this asset manager and thus, the asset manager may have no awareness of their quantitative or qualitative objectives.

Corollary questions to "Will you actually be managing my money?" are "Do you actually select individual stocks?", "Will you manage my assets in-house, or will someone else in the company be managing them?", and finally, "Will you be investing my money with separate account managers?"

If a potential advisor says that he does indeed pick individual stocks for his clients' accounts, this is a good sign that he may actually be managing your money and possibly even "custom-creating" your portfolio, which is what most many savvy investors desire. If the advisor says, "No, I don't pick individual stocks. Instead, we use mostly mutual funds," this can be a sign that the advisor is more likely to throw your assets into a "model", with possibly less accompanying consideration of your unique financial goals.

Lastly, if an advisor says that he will be utilizing a separate account manager, then you know that your assets are being "farmed out" to another investment team or person, and you can rest assured that your advisor is not managing all of your money. "Who will actually manage my assets?" should rank high on your list of questions for a potential advisor.

US data add to Fed tapering fears in markets

ASSOCIATED PRESS

An investor looks at the stock price monitor at a private securities company in Shanghai, China on Dec. 11.

PAN PYLAS

Associated Press

LONDON — Growing expectations that the U.S. Federal Reserve will cut its monetary stimulus as early as this week weighed on global stock markets.

Strong news on retail sales and signs of an imminent budget agreement in Congress have reinforced expectations that the Fed will start reducing its $85 billion worth of financial asset purchases at this week's policy meeting.

"While markets have undoubtedly priced in an adjustment to monetary policy, a transition toward tapering still has the potential to unsettle investors and act as a catalyst for market volatility to re-emerge," said Jim Baird, chief investment officer at Plante Moran Financial Advisors.

Since the U.S. stimulus has helped buoy stocks over the past few years, its potential reduction has jolted markets periodically in recent months. However, any tapering is expected to be accompanied by a renewed commitment by the Fed to keep interest rates low. That, analysts say, helps explain why stock markets are still trading at relative highs and why bond markets aren't too volatile.

In Europe, the FTSE 100 index of leading British shares was down 0.8 percent at 6,453 while Germany's DAX fell 0.7 percent to 9,017. The CAC-40 in France was 0.3 percent lower at 4,075.

In the U.S., the Dow Jones industrial average was down 0.4 percent at 15,776 while the broader S&P 500 index fell 0.2 percent to 1,779.

Weekly jobless claims showing a 68,000 spike last week to 368,000 were largely ignored given difficulties making adjustments as a result of the late timing of the Thanksgiving holiday.

However, figures showing retail sales in the U.S. rose by a better than expected 0.7 percent in November had a far bigger impact, especially as back data were revised upward, too.

"The market will put the retail sales down as one more first tier economic release favoring an early tapering," said Alan Ruskin, an analyst at Deutsche Bank.

The focus will likely remain on the Fed until that decision next Wednesday. The future of the Fed's stimulus has been the main driver in markets since May, when chairman Ben Bernanke first mooted the possibility.

The negative tone was set earlier in Asia, where Japan's Nikkei 225 lost 1.1 percent at 15,341.82 and Hong Kong's Hang Seng dropped 0.5 percent to 23,218.12. China's Shanghai Composite eased 0.1 percent to 2,202.80. Markets were also down in Australia, India, Taiwan and South-east Asia.

Boston credit card data theft bigger than thought

Associated Press

BOSTON — The credit card data theft that affected about 300 people who attended conventions in Boston this fall is more widespread than initially thought, a police detective investigating the breach says.

The thefts were not limited to people who attended conferences at the Boston Convention & Exhibition Center, and extend through other areas of the city, Detective Steven Blair said.

Based on initial interviews with credit card companies, the tally of victims could be "hundreds" more than those who already have reported unauthorized or fraudulent charges on their credit cards, he told The Boston Globe (<http://b.globe.com/1dsMREE>) for a story Thursday.

"It's extensive," Blair said. "It's not just focused on the Seaport area," where the convention center is located.

About 300 people from two conferences — the American Society of Human Genetics meeting in October and the American Public Health Association gathering in November — told organizers their credit cards had been compromised and used for fraudulent purchases around the country and even overseas.

Officials with the state agency that runs the convention center have said they are not the source of the breach, and that several employees have been victimized.

Some area hotels and restaurants also have denied responsibility.

Blair said the scope of the crime suggests the thieves hacked into the computer system of a business or businesses and captured the data that way.

Airlines forecast profits to jump to record high

JOHN HEILPRIN
Associated Press

GENEVA — The global airline industry expects its profits to jump to a record high next year, helped by falling jet fuel prices, rising travel demand and cost-cutting.

The International Air Transport Association said Thursday it forecasts a profit of $19.7 billion — well above the $12.9 billion expected this year and the $7.4 billion made in 2012.

But the Geneva-based group, which represents 240 airlines, or 84 percent of total air traffic, noted margins are dropping.

Next year's profit would come from projected revenues of $743 billion. By contrast, 2010's $19.2 billion profit was made on revenues of just $579 billion.

Tony Tyler, director-general and CEO of IATA, said that the profit would amount to a little less than $6 per passenger.

"To put that into perspective, the McDonald's down the road here in Geneva will make about the same amount of profit by selling four Happy Meals at a cost in Geneva of $30," Tyler told reporters.

That kind of margin, at 20 percent, is well out of reach for airlines, he said.

"It begs the question of whether $6 per passenger is a reasonable reward for airlines if you consider the technology, skills and capital that is invested," he said.

Passenger traffic has been expanding by about 5-6 percent and jet fuel prices remain high, but below their 2012 peak, Tyler said.

The $12.9 billion net profit the industry expects for 2013, based on $708 billion in revenue, is itself a significant improvement on the group's earlier forecasts.

He attributed that to "a slight fall in the high price of oil" and the efficiencies of mergers and joint ventures, along with more success at cutting costs.

Mare airlines, for example, are charging passengers separately for food, baggage and other items.

North American airlines are expected to make the biggest profit next year — $8.3 billion, up from $5.8 billion this year — but see only a modest increase in demand for flight travel.

Carriers in Europe, where the economy has fared worse than other developed markets, are expected to have smaller profits — $3.2 billion in 2014 from $1.7 billion this year. But they are due to enjoy a sharper recovery in passenger traffic as the recession ends in some countries.

The highest growth in demand is forecast in emerging markets in Asia, the Pacific region, the Middle East, Latin America and Africa.

Asian airlines should see profits hit $4.1 billion next year, ending a three-year drop in earnings, while the Middle Eastern ones should see steady growth — to $2.4 billion from $1.6 billion.

US stockpiles jump in October by most in 9 months

CHRISTOPHER S. RUGABER
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — U.S. companies boosted their stockpiles at the fastest rate in nine months in October as their sales grew. The gain in restocking indicates businesses anticipated a healthy holiday shopping season.

Business inventories increased 0.7 percent in October, the Commerce Department said Thursday. That follows a 0.6 percent gain in September. Sales rose 0.5 percent, above a 0.3 percent gain the previous month.

The increase could signal better growth in the October-December quarter than some economists had anticipated. Greater restocking boosts growth because it requires more factory production.

Growth is still likely to slow from the July-September quarter's robust 3.6 percent annual rate, half of which came from a jump in restocking.

But consumers appear to be spending more, a trend that will help keep the economy growing at solid pace.

A separate report Thursday showed that retail sales rose 0.7 percent in November, the biggest gain in five months. Americans spent more on big-ticket items such as cars, electronics, appliances and furniture. They also made more purchases online.

Retail sales have risen at a healthy clip for two straight months. That suggests that steady hiring has given Americans greater confidence to spend more.

The October gain in inventories comes after companies built up huge stockpiles in the July-September quarter. So far, however, economists say that inventories don't appear to be outpacing sales. A measure of inventories as a percent of sales shows that stockpiles are in line with historical averages.

Still, stockpile changes are likely to contribute much less to growth in the final three months of the year — and maybe even subtract from overall growth.

Gov't: 1 in 14 fell prey to identity theft in 2012

PETE YOST
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government says 1 out of every 14 Americans age 16 or older was a target or a victim of identity theft, a crime imposing a heavy emotional toll on many of its victims.

According to a national household survey of 70,000 people issued by the Bureau of Justice Statistics, identity theft resulted in $24.7 billion in financial losses last year. The crime affected 16.6 million people and fell most heavily on households with annual incomes of $75,000 or more. In that income bracket, 10 percent of such households were victimized.

The survey counted both attempted and successful incidents of identity theft.

Two-thirds of identity theft victims experienced financial losses, which averaged $1,769.

For many victims, the size of the loss was eclipsed by concerns that someone had stolen their identity and that it might take weeks or months to repair the damage.

Among victims who spent six months or more resolving financial and credit problems stemming from identity theft, 47 percent experienced severe emotional distress, compared with 4 percent who spent a day or less resolving problems.

Victims experienced a wide range of issues having to do with credit, banking, debt collectors, even cutoffs in utility service. In general, victims whose personal information, such as a Social Security number, was misused were more likely to experience financial, legal or other difficulties, according to the bureau.

Grandson's behavior needs evaluation

DEAR ABBY: Our 7-year-old grandson has been a handful since he was able to walk. He has been sneaky and has told lies for as long as any of us can remember. He has been suspended from school more than 10 times for various things. He stole several hundred dollars from his mom's purse and took it to school so he would have money to buy snacks. He stays awake longer than everyone else in the house so he can take things and hide them in his closet. He knows what he does is wrong, but it doesn't bother him. He is also abusive to his disabled sister. It is hard to imagine that a 7-year-old could give hate-filled looks that you don't even see from adults. I'm afraid

Dear Abby

at the rate he is going, he will seriously hurt someone or be hurt himself.

He also has a very big heart. That is why we don't understand what is going wrong in this little boy's head. Please help if you can. — GRANDMA OF A BULLY IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR GRANDMA: Your grandson's behavior may have something to do with the fact his disabled sibling needs more of his parents' attention. Or he may have serious emotional problems. The boy needs to be evaluated by a mental health professional so his parents will understand what's driving his behavior, and it can be addressed. Please don't wait.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 17 and a few months ago I made the mistake of taking and sending nude photographs to my boyfriend. An adult co-worker, "Jim," got the photographs without my knowledge or permission and showed them to my other co-workers, including managers. Jim threatened to continue showing the pictures around unless I did him a "favor."

Out of distress, I quit my job, not realizing that managers had seen the photographs. I now know they were aware of the situation, but did nothing. How should I approach the situation? It would be very bad if my parents found out. — FACING THE CONSEQUENCES IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR FACING THE CONSEQUENCES: You now know why it's a bad idea to send nude pictures, because once they are out of your control, anything can be done with them. While this is embarrassing, you should absolutely tell your parents what happened because they may want to take this matter to their lawyer. Your former employers ignored sexual harassment, attempted coercion and blackmail. If it can be proven, they should pay the price for it.

The bidding:
West North East South
1 ♠ Pass Pass 1 NT
Pass 3 NT
Opening lead — seven of spades.

A thing of beauty is a joy forever, and this hand — played by Doug Drury, inventor of the Drury convention — undoubtedly qualifies for such status.

West opened with one spade, and, after two passes, Drury bid one notrump. This was perfectly proper in the balancing position, where a notrump overall shows less strength than the 15 to 18 points normally associated with a direct one-notrump overall.

North raised to three, and West led the seven of spades. Drury won with the nine and played a club. West took the king and made the excellent return of the queen of hearts. He was hoping to find partner with four or five hearts to the jack, and in that way stop the contract.

Drury could have assured himself of scoring a heart trick by covering the queen with the king — certainly the normal thing to do in the expectation that West had led the queen from the Q-J. But Drury's ESP was firing on all cylinders, and he confidently played the deuce from dummy.

Not only that, but when West continued with the three of hearts, Drury rose with the king, rejecting West's effort to convince him that he held the jack of hearts. Drury then led another club to West's ace, and West wisely cashed the ace of hearts to hold declarer to nine tricks.

West's defense was superb but unsuccessful. Had Drury covered the queen of hearts with the king or not played the king on the second heart lead, he would have gone down one, losing three hearts and two clubs.

It was a dynamic battle, well-fought on both sides, with Drury finally emerging triumphant.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Dec. 15, the 349th day of 2013. There are 16 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Dec. 15, 1938, groundbreaking for the Jefferson Memorial took place in Washington, D.C. with President Franklin D. Roosevelt taking part in the ceremony.

On this date:
In 1791, the Bill of Rights went into effect following ratification by Virginia.

In 1890, Sioux Indian Chief Sitting Bull and 11 other tribe members were killed in Grand River, S.D., during a confrontation with Indian police.

In 1893, Antonin Dvorak's Symphony No. 9 in E minor, Op. 95, "From the New World," was rehearsed before the public at New York's Carnegie Hall (the official world premiere was held the next day).

In 1944, a single-engine plane carrying bandleader Glenn Miller, a major in the U.S. Army Air Forces, disappeared over the English Channel while en route to Paris. American forces invaded Mindoro Island in the Philippines.

In 1961, former Nazi official Adolf Eichmann was sentenced to death by an Israeli court for crimes against humanity. (Eichmann was hanged 5½ months later.) In 1962, the Vail Mountain ski resort in Colorado officially opened. Actor-director Charles Laughton died in Los Angeles at age 63.

In 1965, two U.S. manned spacecraft, Gemini 6A and Gemini 7, maneuvered to within 10 feet of each other while in orbit.

In 1971, the Secret Service appointed its first five female special agents.

In 1989, a popular uprising began in Romania that resulted in the downfall of dictator Nicolae Ceausescu (chow-SHEES'-koo).

In 1991, an Egyptian-registered ferry, the Salem Express, hit a reef and sank in the Red Sea; at least 470 people died, although some estimates are much higher.

In 1993, U.S. Defense Secretary Les Aspin announced his resignation, citing "personal reasons."

In 2001, the Leaning Tower of Pisa, Italy, was reopened to the public after a $27 million realignment that had dragged on for over a decade.

HOROSCOPES

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Dec. 15, 2013:

This year you often feel as if others come on a little too strong. Understand that you are not going to change them, but you can establish your boundaries. As a result, mutual respect will grow. If you are single, you initially might be put off by a potential suitor's assertiveness. Learn to deal with this energy if you feel a strong connection between you. If you are attached, the two of you have played many control games. The only way to win is not to play. After all, you are with the one you love. GEMINI is a good source of information.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have a lot to do, yet you seem to enjoy the pace. You also have a lot of energy. Your playfulness and quick wit come out with family and friends once you take care of your responsibilities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be aware of a possessive streak that a loved one sometimes inadvertently triggers. Go out and get some fresh air, which might involve tagging a tree and bringing it home. When you're away from the source of these uncomfortable feelings, you gain.

Bigar's Stars

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will be in the moment. Try not to be so extravagant when choosing a gift for a special person. A loved one could be demanding. Fortunately, you have a way of juggling your schedule to make nearly everyone happy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Slow down and take some time to relax and enjoy being with your family. A discussion about some holiday details will help make the next few weeks run smoothly. A loved one could be difficult and testy. This person just wants more of you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You don't need the holidays to make you smile — you just need people. You like being on center stage and socializing. Whether you are starting the party or just attending, you are in your element. Invite relatives to join you for a late brunch.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A friend or family member's request for you to join him or her for brunch might be too appealing to say "no" to. You often feel pressured by this person, but recognize that you have a choice. Make time to enjoy some of the holiday season's frills.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You seem to be in the right place at the right time. Get away from the hectic pace and everything that surrounds you, at least for a little while. A friend might open you up to a new perspective because of a conversation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Work with someone directly. This person might demand that you be an active partner in something you both are involved in. An unexpected event could distract you from doing as much as he or she would like. Be ready for a reaction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Others could be very belligerent in declaring that they will do what they want without first discussing it with you. You might be in the mood to pressure someone who has made a decision of this nature. Your best bet is not to trigger a reaction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Use the daylight hours to the max. Pretend that you are Santa as you go off to complete your holiday shopping list. Even you, who tends to be inordinately practical, might be in the mood to do a little extra spending.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You could turn a boring project into a happening. Wrap several presents, and your imagination will perk up. Live in the realm of possibilities for a little while. You will make a desire become a reality, if that is what you really want.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You might need to distance yourself from others. Once you cancel some plans, do whatever you want. You give so much that you often forget to take care of yourself. What would make you feel rested and cherished? Follow through accordingly.

"It was good to get in before black Friday and holidays," said Ozar. "It's also a good time because the snowbirds are back."

Harbor Freight Tools is expected to locate in the same plaza as Aldi's and Dollar Tree, south of Wal-Mart.

"The national chains all have an interest in Leesburg because of our location; we're a great a place to be, so no matter the size or nature of business, we're happy to have them," said Leesburg spokesman Robert Sargent in August when several chain stores announced new locations in Leesburg.

Foulke said the Leesburg store is easy to navigate.

"We want everybody to find what they're looking for," she said. "A lot of people come to us for some of the harder to find tools like screw extractors. The team here has done a great job of adapting the site. It's been fun."

Once a quarter they set up a tent in the parking lot and hold a sidewalk sale.

"Sidewalk sales are huge," said Foulke.

Sidewalk sales are scheduled for Jan. 10-12 and March 7-9.

"People don't realize that we sell more than tools," said Foulke. "Nobody realizes we have a pet section."

You can also find toys, lawn and garden items, and even some toys.

"In difficult economic times, our Business and Do-It-Yourself customers are more cost-conscious than ever and Harbor Freight is here to help," said Smidt.

FEATURE STORY

Changed the world but would not be in court

“How Sherlock Changed the World” airs Tuesday on PBS.

be whisked off to jail by an obliging Inspector Lestrade from Scotland Yard.

While Holmes' guiding principles still are useful in criminal investigation, unfortunately, the modern methods of criminal prosecution could very well stymie Holmes, if not get him in real trouble.

Forensic scientist Dr. Henry Lee, a longtime Holmes fan who's featured in the special, has just come off a long day of testifying in a homicide case.

“Basically,” he says, “my testimony relates to the crime scene, how this happened. I used a lot of Sherlock Holmes logic and let the evidence speak for itself.”

But Lee also had to back that logic up with a lot more than a witty and detailed explanation, which Holmes would probably never be allowed to fully give in court.

CELEBRITY PIPELINE

John C. McGinley is grounded in other series

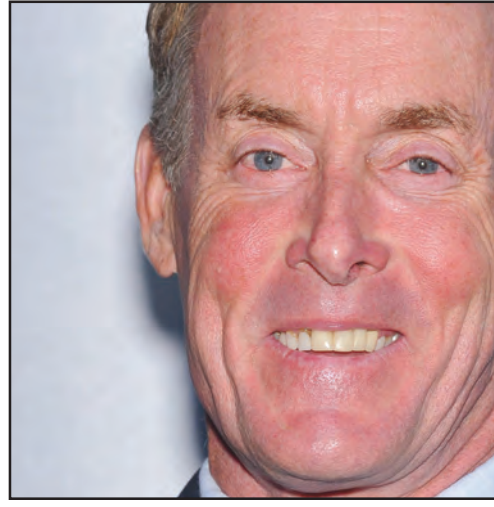

By Jay Bobbin
 © Zap2it

Q: I like John C. McGinley on "Ground Floor." Has he ever done any series besides that one and "Scrubs"? — Jim Craig, Pontiac, Ill.

A: He had a multiple-episode run on "Burn Notice" during its sixth season, but beyond those shows, the actor's series work has been a matter of supplying his voice for animated characters. He's done that for "Justice League" (as the Atom), "WordGirl" and "Dan Vs."

Q: Why was the return of "Mike & Molly" advertised as the "new" "Mike & Molly"? They look like the same actors and characters to me. — Donna Parsons, Reading, Pa.

A: It's not a matter of the actors but the premise. By taking Molly out of her teaching job and letting her sample various professions in her pursuit of a writing career, CBS has tried to give Melissa McCarthy even more of a showcase ... quite understandable, given the movie stardom she's developed in recent years. That still might beg another asking of why the network didn't use the show as a season starter, given McCarthy's popularity, but at least it's back now.

Q: When is "The Bachelor" coming back? — Terri Haines, Daytona Beach, Fla.

A: Jan. 6. As has happened in the past, he'll be familiar to fans of "The Bachelorette," since ABC has appointed Juan Pablo Galavis — of the past summer's edition steered by Desiree Hartsock — as the latest fellow getting to have many datemate. They have the mother, sister, and y host Chris of more o Dramatic

Checking in with Diana Perez

By Jay Bobbin
 © Zap2it

Working overnights while expecting her second child is fine with Diana Perez.

The current co-anchor (with John Muller) of ABC's early-early-morning "World News Now" has gotten accustomed to the hours, having had a permanent seat on the program since February. As a fill-in anchor for much of the previous year, she found what a good fit the often loose, humorous approach of the newscast was for her.

"When I was given the opportunity to go to the network," the spirited Perez says, "it was one of those things where I always thought, 'OK. Now is when you've got to get serious.' While I still feel I am delivering true news and I am still a true professional, it's just so wonderful to be able to let loose. That is my personality.

"The format of the show plays so well into being able to show who you truly are," adds Perez, "and that comes across on the screen. You just have that opportunity where you're not always delivering the bad stuff. You get the really important news people have to hear, but you get it with a dose of irreverence ... nothing I was expecting when I got called up to the network."

An anchor-reporter in New England for several years before joining ABC, Perez starts her maternity leave shortly after New Year's Day. Husband Ducis Rodgers is a sports anchor at Philadelphia ABC affiliate WPVI, and Perez allows that balancing their marriage and careers has its challenges, especially with their vastly different work hours.

"We're two ships crossing in the night, we always say, so we really cherish our days off. Every week, it's a little different; during football sea-

es musical therapy

“We had started on the pilot, talking about doing a musical, and it was just a weird, off-in-the-distance idea,” Franks says. “We talked about it because after the last shot of the pilot, James and Dule had done a lot of singing and performed Michael Jackson’s ‘Man in the Mirror.’ ”

In the special, Shawn and Gus (Roday and Hill) track down crazed playwright Z (guest star Anthony Rapp, “Rent”). Z is accused of acting out every scorned playwright’s fantasy — OK, maybe only the most delusional scorned playwrights — of burning a theater to the ground with a critic inside.

Z was institutionalized in a hospital for the criminally insane, where he had, conveniently, confided in Mr. Yang (Ally Sheedy).

As usual, “Psych” does not take itself too seriously, and the musical does not require knowing the series’ back stories.

“I designed everything I wrote in this episode, every character in a song or dialogue, every character is introduced as if this is the first time,” Franks says. “If you never watched an episode of ‘Psych,’ this is the perfect one to get introduced.”

Dule Hill stars in “Psych: The Musical,” a two-hour special presentation of the series airing Sunday on USA Network.

Franks doesn’t miss a beat and acknowledges that hard-core Psychos, as fans of the seventh-season show refer to themselves, will find incongruities.

“You could make a drinking game, some sort of inaccuracy within the storyline,” Franks says. “There are a whole bunch of little things, Lassie (Omundson) not wearing a wedding ring. ‘Psych’ followers, Psychos, will pick up on inaccuracies, because I was working on some of this before some of that happened.”

“I think it does tie up, it certainly wraps up the Yang story,” Franks says.

She is killed in this episode, but that is not necessarily a spoiler. As Hill notes, on this show, death isn’t definitively the end.
