■ he call Jerry Smith received last winter illustrated a problem that continued to get worse: numerous ambulances were tied up at the hospitals, with Lake EMS paramedics and EMTs waiting to offload patients, sometimes for hours.

As a result, there were no ambulances available to respond to medical emergencies.

On that one occasion, Smith, executive director of Lake EMS, had to call Rural Metro ambulance service in Sumter County and Marion County Fire Rescue for transport help.

In nine separate incidents over four months at the beginning of this year, Lake EMS did not have one ambulance available to respond to medical emergencies.

There were numerous times we were waiting over two hours to offload patients," Smith said

Paramedics were spending an average of 29 to 61 minutes offloading patients at three of the four hospitals, according to Lake EMS.

For the first time in four years, Smith began meeting with the hospital's chief executive officers to mitigate the problem in March 2013. He also brought the issue to the Lake EMS Board of Directors, which instituted a policy change in June requiring hospitals to accept patient care transfers within 30 minutes of the ambulances' arrival.

Since then, Smith said hospital offload times have been substantially reduced to an average of 11 to 16 minutes for all four hospitals.

Further, hospital officials said substantial improvements have been made.

The world braces for retirement crisis

Associated Press

A global retirement crisis is bearing down on workers of all

Spawned years before the Great Recession and the financial meltdown in 2008, the crisis was significantly worsened by those twin traumas. It will play out for decades, and its consequences will be far-reaching.

Many people will be forced to work well past the traditional retirement age of 65 — to 70 or even longer. Living standards will fall, and poverty rates will rise for the elderly in wealthy countries that built safety nets for seniors after World War II. In developing countries, people's rising expectations will be frustrated if governments can't afford retirement systems to replace the tradition of children caring for aging parents.

The problems are emerging as the generation born after World War II moves into retirement.

"The first wave of underprepared workers is going to try to go into retirement and will find they can't afford to do so," says Norman Dreger, a retirement specialist in Frankfurt, Germany, who works bulance service in September 2012 after the resignation of Jim Judge, has confronted numerous other challenges in the organization from inaccurate response times reported to addressing fewer ambulances in service when employees call in sick to increasing the number of ambulances available 24 hours a day.

Now, Smith said he must contend with a new anomaly: fewer transports. Lake EMS reported 49 fewer transports this year compared to 2012.

As a result, the ambulance's budget has been substantially reduced, with a projected half a million less in revenue, Smith said.

Commissioner Jimmy Conner, who is also vice chairman of the Lake EMS board, said he believed the hospitals have been very cooperative.

"As best as I can tell we have solved the problem," he said. Smith said the expectation is that patients are offloaded in 15 minutes, and hospitals are now much closer to that goal.

"They have taken on a Herculean task," he said. "I am applauding their efforts."

Open communication was vital to this issue being resolved, Smith said.

"Once it was brought to the attention of the chief executive officers and the impact it was having on the community, they all in unison realized it needed to be resolved," he

"The fundamental issue is how they process patients when they come in."

Saad Ehtisham, senior vice president and chief operation officer for Central Florida Health Alliance, said a combination of meetings with EMS and internal changes resulted in the problem being addressed.

"We saw what their issues were and how we were impacting their service to the community," he said.

"And they had an appreciation for our struggles and challenges internally. We worked collaboratively to make sure we understood each other's needs and concerns.'

Ehtisham said he instituted internal changes such as having a charge nurse alerted if the patient is not offloaded after 15 minutes.

After 30 minutes, he said, someone in administration then gets involved.

"We see EMS as an extension of our emergency department," he said.

"If we are effective in offloading the patients they bring us, we can get those EMS rigs back in service by getting them out of our emergency rooms."

In the spring of 2013, Smith was faced with another issue concerning numerous inaccurate response times being reported.

Addressing the board, he requested an internal audit to review efficiencies within the system, including fire services. According to an internal audit conducted in May 2013, "the first error type involved situations when two ambulances" responded to a call and the software only calculated the response time from when "the second ambulance responded rather than from the time that the first ambulance responded." Highlighting the issue, the audit reviewed a sample of 141 Priority 1 incidents and found that 57 percent of those incidents "reported an incorrect response time." Smith said he has corrected the software error to report accurate response times. The audit also stated Lake EMS reported only an average response time compared to the industry standard 90th percentile.

The 90th percentile refers to the time it takes an ambulance to respond to 90 percent of the calls.

The audit stated: "National benchmarks should be considered when establishing response time goals. EMS achieved an overall response time of 14:30 as compared to the benchmark of eight minutes and 59 seconds" set by the American Ambulance Association.

Smith said the agency is now reporting the 90th percentile in addition to the average response time.

He said the ambulance service does not have the resources "economically to meet the 90th percentile."

"We are going to report it and advise the board of where we are," he said.

"In these economic times it is extremely difficult to meet the 90th percentile." But fire and EMS, including

ALS responders, were meeting the 90th percentile, Smith said. Conner said the audit showed there was "more of a reporting issue than a response time issue." "We have definitely demonstrated we want to be trans-

"We want to make sure everything we report is accurate."

parent," he said.

During discussions about the audit, the Lake EMS board unanimously agreed that the response time should be calculated when the call comes in from dispatch as opposed to curb to curb.

Since then, Smith said the agency is reporting the response time when EMS receives the call.

"It is a challenge because they are two different systems," he said.

Bob Melton, the county's internal auditor, said a follow-up report on the audit would take place sometime in Commissioner Sean Parks said he had seen progress.

"I like the changes being made," he said.

"I do see marked improvements. I appreciate Jerry's sensitivity to the issues brought up in the audit."

There are 13 ambulances that provide 24-hour service, with six others providing 13hour coverage.

Previously, the unit in Fruitland Park provided only 13hour coverage.

Smith changed it to a 24hour unit, he said, to provide better service in that area, especially at night.

"It has dramatically increased the state of readiness in the county," he said.

Brian Gamble, vice president of the Professional Firefighters of Lake County, agreed.

"It helps out the Fruitland Park and Lady Lake corridor a lot," he said. "It is really busy in that area at night."

Further, Smith has added 12 floater positions to avoid ambulances being down when someone calls in sick.

"When there is a vacant spot on the ambulance, we are able to fill that and not have to rely on overtime to get that done," he said. Gamble said since those changes were instituted, he had not seen as many downed units. Overall, Smith said he is proud of his staff and the improvements being made. "I think the thing I am happiest with is having more open communication with administration and the people in the field," he said. "We have made improvements to the service. I am extremely proud of the fact that our staff gets so many compli-

shutdown and second debt crisis seemed improbable. His health care law, the signature achievement of his presidency, seemed poised to make the leap from theory to reality.

Obama had campaigned for re-election on the hope that a second term would bring with it a new spirit of compromise after years of partisan rancor on Capitol Hill.

"My expectation is that there will be some popping of the blister after this election, because it will have been such a stark choice," he'd said.

Instead, great expectations disappeared in fumbles and failures.

Obama's critics doubled down. Fractured Republicans, tugged to the right by the tea party, swore off compromise. The president's outreach to Congress was somewhere between lacking and non-existent. Obama's team dropped the ball — calamitously — on his health care law. Snowden's revelations had Democrats and Republicans alike calling for tighter surveillance rules.

for Mercer, a global consulting firm. The crisis is a convergence of three Countries are slashing retirement benefits and raising the age to start collecting them. These countries are awash in debt after overspending last decade and racking up enormous deficits since the recession. Now, they face a demographics disaster as retirees live longer and falling birth rates mean there will be fewer workers to support them.

■ Companies have eliminated traditional pension plans that cost employees nothing and guaranteed them a monthly check in retirement.

■ Individuals spent freely and failed to save before the recession, and they saw much of their wealth disappear once it hit.

Those factors have been documented individually. What is less appreciated is their combined ferocity and their global scope.

"Most countries are not ready to meet what is sure to be one of the defining challenges of the 21st century," the Center for Strategic and International Studies, a Washington think tank, concluded in a report this fall.

Mikio Fukushima, who is 52 and lives in Tokyo, is typical of those facing an uncertain retirement. Fukushima, who works in private investment, worries that he might have to move somewhere cheaper, maybe Malaysia, after age 70 to get by comfortably on income from his investments and a public pension of just $10,000 a year.

If he stayed in Japan, he says, "We wouldn't be able to travel at all."

People like Fukushima who are fretting over their retirement prospects stand in contrast to many who are already retired. Many workers were recipients of generous corporate pensions and government benefits that had yet to be cut.

Jean-Pierre Bigand, 66, retired Sept. 1, in time to enjoy all the perks of a retirement system in France that's now in peril. Bigand lives in the countryside outside the city of Rouen in Normandy. He has a second home in Provence. He's just taken a vacation on Oleron island off the Atlantic Coast and is planning a five-week trip to Guadeloupe. "Travel is our biggest expense," he says.

In Rochester, Minn., Elaine Case, 58, and her husband, Bill Wiktor, 61, both retired at 56 after three-decade careers at IBM. They have company pensions and will receive Social Security in a few years. They love to travel. Wiktor climbed Mount Kilimanjaro last year. They've taken a trans-Atlantic cruise and plan next year to hike Peru's Inca trail. "We're both enjoying our second lives immensely and with gratitude," Case The notion of extended, leisurely retirements, like the ones Bigand, Case and Wiktor are enjoying, is relatively new. German Chancellor Otto von Bismarck established the world's first state pension system in 1889. The United States introduced Social Security in In the prosperous years after World War II, governments in rich countries expanded their pension systems. In addition, companies began to offer pensions that paid employees a guaranteed amount each month in retirement so-called defined-benefit pensions. It got even better in the 1980s. Many countries began to coax older employees out of the workforce to make way for the young.

2 killed in car crashes late Friday

Staff report

A motorcyclist and a bicyclist died at the scene in separate accidents Friday evening when they were hit by vehicles in rural northeast Lake County, the Florida Highway Patrol reported.

The first accident occurred at about 6:40 p.m. on County Road 42 near County Road 439, just east of Altoona. The FHP reported that a 39-year-old Paisley man, who has not been identified pending notification of relatives, lost control of his 2004 Honda motorcycle and 2006 Mercury Sable.

The Honda was traveling east on CR 42 and the Mercury was headed west. The motorcyclist was ejected from the Honda and died at the scene, while the driver of the Mercury, Brandon Dearmas, 19, of Paisley, was uninjured.

No charges were filed and an investigation is continuing to see if the motorcyclist was driving under the influence of alcohol.

TAMPA — When Kevin Johnson decided to go back to school after sitting on an associate's degree for more than 20 years, he couldn't imagine signing up for one of those leading-edge, work-at-home online degree programs.

"I just didn't see as much value in that," said Johnson, a downtown Tampa business manager. "I could sit there and take online courses all day, but I felt like I would just be going through the motions. You don't feel as involved." Instead, Johnson, 41, enrolled in Eckerd College's Program for Experienced Learners, a degree path designed to fit the lifestyle and learning preferences of the group categorized as "adult learners" who now make up 40 percent of the college population. Credits from his Pennsylvania degree were accepted by Eckerd. Leaning on his real-world experience, he tested out of six classes. And last week, he finished his coursework, with his business management degree pending. "I took a lot of electives, explored things I had never done before," he said. "In that way, it certainly exceeded my expectations." The Eckerd Program for Experienced Learners experience flies in the face of recent trends suggesting higher education is heading for the Internet. The number of college students taking at least one online course nearly doubled from 23 percent to 45 percent over the last five years with

"I don't see myself sitting in a class with 18- and 19-year-olds. I did that when I was 18 and 19. Doing everything through email wouldn't necessarily cut it for me, either."

more than 60 percent of U.S. colleges and universities now offering fully online degree programs. The Program for Experienced Learners bucks that trend by design. It's a well-accepted principal in academia that people have different learning styles. And an Eckerd marketing study of potential adult learners in Pinellas and Hillsborough counties confirmed they were more comfortable with an old-school higher education experience. "We found that a viable number of people are still into this mode of learning, and not relying on online courses," said Olivier Debure, an Eckerd language professor who is coordinating the college's efforts to further define and grow the Program for Experienced Learners program. "They are interested in the programs we offer, they are interested in small classes, they are interested in discussion and networking in the classroom. We're liberal arts people, so it's nice to know we have an audience." Eckerd's full-time Program for Experienced Learners students typically take two classes at a time, two nights a week in 8-week terms. There are five terms — two in the spring, two in the fall, and one in the summer.

Classes are held evenings and weekends at the main Eckerd campus on the St. Petersburg waterfront and at a West Shore Boulevard branch campus in Tampa. There were 531 Program for Experienced Learners students enrolled in the 2012-13 year.

2 qualify for council race

ROXANNE BROWN | Staff Writer roxanne.brown@dailycommercial.com

The qualifying period for the open Seat 3 seat on the Groveland City Council is now over and two people will vie for Richard Smith's interim spot on the board in a special election on Jan. 28.

Residents Dina Sweatt and George Rosario will face off for the chance at carrying out the remaining time of former Seat 3 Councilman Tim Louck's term, since he was moved into the mayoral seat (Seat 1) after former Mayor James Gearhart resigned from that post in October.

Smith, a former councilman and mayor, offered to fill the vacant seat a few weeks ago until the special election could be held to see who will permanently fill it until the next general election in November 2014. Smith said he wanted to help the council with ongoing issues, like hiring a new city manager, but he didn't want the job permanently.

According to Sweatt, her qualifications include president of the Green Valley Home Owners Association for nine years. She said she's also served as a member of the Groveland Community Redevelopment Agency for nearly two years.

Sweatt "stated she is concerned about the proverbial black cloud hanging over Groveland and wants to work with the council and staff to make changes for the better," read the official minutes of the Nov. 22 special meeting as posted on the city's web-Rosario said his qualifica-

TAVARES

Historical Lake County exhibit set to close

DAILY COMMERCIAL

Staff report

Only a few more days remain for people to visit "The Story of Lake County," historical exhibit in the Lake County Administration Building at 315 W. Main St. in Tavares.

The Lake County Library System and the Lake County Historical Society are sponsoring this unique "Viva Florida 500" display, which features items from the Lake County Historical Museum. The exhibit — which spotlights the Industry, Community, and Spirit of our county's pioneers — will be taken down beginning in January.

The "Industry" display, titled "Where Success Means More," contains memorabilia of Lake's agricultural and citrus beginnings, with recollections of Capt. Melton Haynes, who was instrumental in its birth. Also featured is Lake's rise as a steamboat and railroad hub. Florida's Cracker Cowboys are pictured with their famous which that created the distinctive "crack" sound that gave the cattlemen their nickname.

Included the "Community" section of the display are photographs of local "movers and shakers," including the 1954 founders of the Lake County Historical Society, Maj. Alexander St. Clair Abrams, Edward Mote, and William J. Howey. The exhibit includes the history of Tavares Troop No. 1; Florida's first Boy Scout troop, Eustis' annual George Washington parade, and Lake County's fishing attraction.

The "Spirit" section is reflected in military veterans, such as Medal of Honor recipient, Robert McTureous, and Leesburg native, Maj. Gen. Polly Peyer, with photos and decorations of their remarkable service.

Included in the "Spirit" display is the history of Lake's churches and schools.

Lake County" display depicts the many settlements that once existed in Lake County, such as Kismet, where Walt Disney's parents were married.

Other displays include a large Lake County map that spotlights the famous homes and buildings listed on the National Register of Historical Places and an impressive "timeline" recounting Lake County's history from 1845 through 2013. Many vintage paintings and photographs cover the walls of the building's rotunda.

Historian, author, and past president of The "Ghost Towns of the Lake County Historical Society, Bob Grenier, created and mounted this exhibit with assistance from the Viva Florida 500 Committee, Carol Anderson, Judy Buckland, JoAnn Glendinning, Stephanie Haimes, Cathy Haines, Marli Lopez, Helena Osborne-Ponsi and Katherine Spurgeon, Lake County Communications Department Director Kelly LaFollette and graphic artist Paul Viewing hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, except federal holidays.

The Florida Department of State has been "Viva coordinating Florida 500", a statewide, year-long, multicultural commemoration to provide a unique opportunity to educate the world about Florida's communities.

ROBOTIC SURGERY GOES "SINGLE-SITE"

The minimally invasive "da Vinci" robotic surgery was first introduced to Lake County in 2010 at South Lake Hospital. Since then thousands have benefited from the tiny incisions and better surgeon control.

Now, single-site robotic surgeries are giving patients even less invasive options.

Common with gallbladder surgery, single-site allows surgeons to perform complicated surgery with even fewer incision points than other robotic surgeries. It's one incision in the belly button, which dramatically limits visible scarring.

Robotic surgery is giving surgeons enhanced, modern tools, and gives patients a host of benefits:

- Virtually scarless results
- Low rate of major complications
- Low conversion rate to open surgery
- High patient satisfaction Minimal pain
- Shorter hospital stay than open surgery

Visit SouthLakeHospital.com to learn more about the physicians who perform da Vinci surgery in South Lake.

Egyptian student dies during protests at campus

CAIRO — Riot police moved into Egypt's main Islamic university on Saturday, firing tear gas and breaking up a strike by students that threatened to disrupt midterms. One student was killed in the melee, an administration building was torched and students fled from exam rooms.

Police say they entered eastern Cairo's Al-Azhar campus, the site of frequent clashes in recent weeks, and deployed around other Egyptian universities to prevent supporters of ousted President Mohammed Morsi from intimidating other students trying to take the tests.

Pro-Morsi activists have called for an exam boycott but deny government claims that they threatened anyone.

Students at al-Azhar, a stronghold of Morsi supporters, have been protesting for weeks against his ouster and a subsequent state crackdown, which this week saw his Muslim Brotherhood group declared a terrorist organization. The Brotherhood dismisses the label and has vowed to keep up its protests against Egypt-military backed authorities.

Prime Minis-Deputy ter and Minister of Higher Education Hossam Eissa said authorities will go after those he said were financing non-peaceful protests on campuses, and accused the Brotherhood of seeking to derail exams.

'The aim of the terrorist Brotherhood group is to call off university exams," he said according to comments published on the state news agency MENA. "The role of the government is to restore security especially before the referendum on the constitution."

A fireman tries to extinguish a fire at the Faculty of Commerce, that was started after a student was killed under disputed circumstances during clashes, at al-Azhar University, in the Nasr City suburb of Cairo Saturday.

The government is intensifying its crackdown on Brotherhood and Morsi supporters ahead of a Jan. 14-15 constitutional referendum they see as a milestone in the transition plan. Authorities fear Morsi supporters would seek to derail the key vote, through protests or by violent means.

University professors and security officials accused protesting students on Saturday of blocking entrances to classes and harassing students as they made their way into the campus.

A statement from the Interior Ministry, in charge of the police, said students stormed several buildings on campus to "terrorize students and faculty." It said some fired shotguns into the air and smashed furniture.

The ministry statement said that the attack prompted the police to move in to disperse the crowd, leading the students to setting the Faculty of Commerce on fire.

Ava Fathy, a student spokeswoman, disputed the officials claim, saying the students were protesting peacefully. She said police moved in to break up protesters outside the faculty building, firing indiscriminately at them, and killing student Khaled el-Haddad.

She accused the police of setting the building on fire to blame the students. She said the police force was chasing students on campus.

Footage from local TV stations and social media websites showed the campus as a battleground. Flames rose from the three-story building, with rooms inside badly torched. Pitched battles pitting police against rock-throwing students, some armed with what appeared to be homemade guns or projectile launchers, left the campus deserted, strewn with rocks and debris.

Other images showed masked protesters on roofs of university buildings lobbing rocks at security, and students jumping out of windows to escape the vio-

Other video showed plainclothes security with sticks grabbing a woman by her veil, kicking her, and manhandling her away.

Exams were postponed at the Faculty of Commerce and other schools on campus. The university dean said the delay will only be for hours. Osama el-Abd, the dean, told Egypt's state news agency that alternative classrooms will be provided for the students to carry out the exams, and those scheduled Sunday. He said investigation will be launched to determine the students behind Saturday's violence.

Sunday, December 29, 2013

Interior Ministry didn't mention el-Haddad's death in its statement. But a security official confirmed he was killed and said 14 others were injured. He blamed the students for the violence, and said 68 students, including seven female students, were arrested. He said three policemen were injured. The official spoke on condition of anonymity in line with regulations.

The violence in Al-Azhar university set off protests on a university campus in the Nile Delta city of Zagzig, where students lobbed rocks at police forces.

Following the Brotherhood's designation as terrorist, officials have warned that anyone joining the group's protests will face stiff prison sentences.

The designation has coincided with the revival of old tactics used by the security forces, some of which have the potential to spark new kinds of violence. Officials in Egypt's south sought help from tribes and large clans, who are traditionally heavily armed, to ward off protests by pro-Morsi supporters.

The government accused the Brotherhood of orchestrating a series of attacks by Sinai militants against troops to destabilize the transition- but have provided little evidence to prove the connection. It was the main justification for the authorities labeling the group a terrorist one.

Human Rights Watch said Saturday that the designation of the Muslim Brotherhood as a terrorist group was "politically motivated" and would affect the health and education services provided by the group to thousands of beneficiaries.

Uruguay's marijuana growers come out into open

LEONARDO HABERKORN Associated Press

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — Juan Andres Palese was using a fake name in public when he opened Uruguay's first store dedicated to cultivating marijuana, where he offered growing equipment and advice but no illegal plants or seeds. Now that President Iose Mujica's plan to create and regulate the world's first national marijuana market has the force of law, Palese's got much bigger plans.

ing number of clients, and he'll be moving to a larger, higher-profile locale soon. Once the law's regulations are in place, he hopes to openly sell seeds and cuttings along with all the tools anyone needs to legally grow up to six plants in their own home.

The symbols of marijuana are in full bloom in Uruguay: T-shirts featuring designs of pot leaves are sold on the streets, the radio carries the music of Jamaican singer Bob Marley.

But the people who are so enthusiastically buying potting soil, lights and irrigation equipment to start their own marijuana gardens also could be buying trouble from police if they don't wait to start cultivating the weed until after the state launches its registration and licensing system, the nation's drug czar said Thursday.

"From a strictly formal point of view, you still can't. Until the regulations are in place, there's no way to legally have marijuana plants in your house," Julio Calzada, secretary general of the national drug junta, said in an interview with Uruguay's Radio Universal.

Once registered and licensed, any Uruguayan adult will be allowed to choose one of three options.

South Sudan: 'White Army' militia marches to fight

JASON STRAZIUSO Associated Press

JUBA, South Sudan Twenty-five thousand young men who make up a tribal militia known as the "White Army" are marching toward a contested state capital in South Sudan, an official said Saturday, dimming hopes for a cease-fire.

Seeking an end to the nearly two-week crisis in which an estimated 1,000 people have been killed, leaders from across East Africa announced on Friday that South Sudan had agreed to a "cessation of hostilities" against forces loyal to former Vice President Riek Machar, accused by the government of leading a coup attempt on Dec. 15 that erupted into spiraling violence.

But Machar rejected that, saying in an interview with the BBC that any cease-fire had to be negotiated by delegations from both sides. The government in the capital, Juba, seized on that statement to further condemn Machar.

"Dr. Riek Machar has put obstacles to this genuine call by issuing pre-conditions that a cease-fire cannot be reached unless a negotiation is conducted," said Vice President James Wani Igga. "This is complete intransigence and obstinacy because the main issue now is to stop violence."

In addition to those killed, tens of thousands are seeking shelters at United Nations camps.

More fighting is expected. Most serious is the looming battle for Bor, the provincial capital of Jonglei state that briefly fell to rebels before government forces took it back this week, said military spokesman Col. Philip Aguer. Pro-Machar forces are believed to be preparing a fresh offensive to retake Bor, the Jonglei state town where three United States military aircraft were hit by gunfire while trying to evacuate American citizens on Dec. 21, wounding four U.S. service members.

estimated 25,000 vouths from the Lou Nuer sub-clan — the same tribe Machar is from — are marching on Bor, said Information Minister Michael Makuei Lueth. The "White Army" gets its name from the white ash fighters put on their skin as protection from insects.

"He has decided to mobilize the youth in the name of his tribe," Lueth said.

The estimate of 25,000 came from intelligence inside the group itself, Lueth said. Asked if the government was monitoring the group from the air, he said only: "Well, ultimately we are monitoring."

As of Saturday evening, the youths, who are armed with light weapons and heavy machine guns, were about 30 miles outside Bor, he said, meaning they could reach the state capital imminently. Earlier in the crisis some 2,000 Lou Nuer armed fighters attacked a U.N. base in Akobo, also in Jonglei state, killing three U.N. troops and a reported two dozen or so ethnic Dinka inside the base.

Akshaya Kumar, a South Sudan analyst for the U.S.based Enough Project, said it was important to remember that civilian lives hang in the balance in Bor.

"Bor has already been the site of two violent clashes in less than two weeks. Its people, many of whom are sheltering in the U.N. compound, cannot withstand another battle," she said. "The recent Lou Nuer storming of the U.N. base in Akobo set a dangerous precedent. We worry that the Bor peacekeeping force may not be able to withstand a similar onslaught."

South Sudan military forces are in Bor and will protect the civilian population against attacks, Lueth said. Most of the residents of Bor are Dinka.

"It's hard to predict what will happen," Lueth said. "This is war."

The White Army has threatened the central government in recent past. In 2011 the army said that the Nuer youths would fight until all the Murle — another tribe — had been killed. The statement warned the national military to stay out of the way. Another statement warned that the White Army would "wipe out" the army, according to the Enough Project, a U.S.-based advocacy group that works on issues in central Africa.

Elsewhere, in oil-rich Unity state government troops were being forced to repel attacks by forces loyal to Machar, said Aguer. The military "is fighting back, but it is the other side that is attacking us," he said.

IGAD, the regional bloc of East African nations, demanded on Friday that negotiations begin before the end of the year between South Sudan's government and Machar.

Activists: Syrian airstrike kills 21 in Aleppo

RYAN LUCAS Associated Press

BEIRUT — A Syrian government airstrike hit a crowded vegetable market in a rebel-held neighborhood of the northern city of Aleppo on Saturday, killing at least 21 people, activists said.

For nearly two weeks, President Bashar Assad's warplanes and helicopters have pounded opposition-controlled areas of the divided city. Activists say the aerial assault has killed more than 400 people since it began Dec. 15.

The campaign comes in the run-up to an international peace conference scheduled to start Jan. 22 in Switzerland to try to find a political solution to Syria's civil war. Some observers say the Aleppo assault fits into Assad's apparent strategy of trying to expose the opposition's weakness to strengthen his own hand ahead of the negotiations.

Saturday's airstrike slammed into a marketplace in the Tariq al-Bab neighborhood, the Aleppo Media Center activist group and the Britain-based Syrian Observatory for Human Rights

The Observatory, which relies on a network of activists on the ground, said 25 people, including four children, were killed and dozens were wounded in the strike. The Aleppo Media Center published a list of 21 names of people it said were killed in the air raid.

The discrepancy could not be immediate reconciled, but differing death tolls are common in the chaotic aftermath of such attacks.

An activist with the Aleppo Media Center, Hassoun Abu Faisal, said the airstrike took place around 10 a.m. local time when the market was packed with shoppers.

"Cars were damaged, debris and rubble are everywhere," he said via Skype. "Many of the wounded have lost limbs.'

One amateur video posted online showed scenes of carnage: a body, its legs twister under it, lying in a pool of blood in front of a smashed car; the body of another man ripped in half in the middle of the street; men rushing a limp body past shattered storefronts.

In another video, blankets cover at least three bodies placed on a sidewalk. Muddy black shoes poke out from under one of the blankets.

SUPER BOWL, FEB. 2

Yes, teams play in the cold and snow all the time during the regular season, and some of the NFL's most memorable games were played in wintry conditions. And yes, there's a chance it could be in the 40s on game day. But the NFL is taking a big gamble by holding the Super Bowl, its marquee event, at an outdoor stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., in the dead of winter.

Notre Dame beats Rutgers in Pinstripe Bowl

NEW YORK — Tommy Rees passed for 319 yards in his final college game, Kyle Brindza kicked five field goals and No. 25 Notre Dame muddled through a 29-16 victory against Rutgers in the Pinstripe Bowl on Saturday.

The Fighting Irish (9-4) finished their follow-up season to last year's run to the national championship game a long way from the BCS against a two-touchdown underdog trying to avoid a losing record.

Notre Dame's TJ Jones scored on an 8-yard run in the first quarter and Rutgers star Brandon Coleman answered with a 14-yard touchdown catch soon after. Tarean Folston's 3-yard touchdown run with 3:38 in the fourth made it 26-16 and finally gave the Irish a comfortable lead.

On the slick, cold turf at Yankee Stadium, the Pinstripe Bowl turned into a field-goal kicking contest. Brindza was 5 for 6. Kyle Federico made 3 of 3 for the CLEVELAND — The Andrew Bynum experiment appears over for the Cavaliers.

The team suspended the enigmatic center indefinitely on Saturday for "conduct detrimental to the team" and banned him from all team-related activities. Bynum, who signed a two-year, $24 million contract with the Cavs in July, did not travel with the team to Boston for Saturday's game and it's likely that he has played his final game for Cleveland.

The Cavs will try to trade Bynum. Bynum's suspension isn't a major shock considering he has not performed at a consistent level and has appeared uninterested while on the floor. Earlier this season, the 7-footer, who did not play a single second last season for Philadelphia because of knee injuries, talked openly about retirement and said his medical issues have been a challenge to overcome

"It's a terrible situation internally with our team," All-Star guard Kyrie Irving said before the Cavs faced the for Super Bowl tickets are fans of the two teams playing, most come for the experience — and that wasn't meant to include frostbite. There will be plenty of mumbling and grumbling if the Big Apple is hit by a blizzard or cold snap Feb. 2, to say nothing of the potential embarrassment of empty seats. Bad weather wouldn't be any picnic in the days before, either, wreaking havoc with the other events that make the Super Bowl the spectacle the whole world is that it is and keeping watching. fans hunkered down in their hotel rooms.

If they can get to their hotel rooms, that is.

WINTER OLYMPICS, FEB. 7-23

Weather has been a concern since the Winter Games were awarded to Sochi, a resort city on the Black Sea where the average high in February is nearly 50 degrees and rain is far more likely than snow. The temperatures should be lower in the mountains, where the outdoor events will be held, and organizers have guaranteed snow, even if it's the stuff they've been squirreling away since last year, when un-Winter Olympic-like weather

forced the cancellation

Warm temperatures

and slushy snow might wind up being the least of the worries for Russian president Vladimir Putin and Sochi organizers, however. Russia's new anti-gay laws have sparked outrage from the rest of the world, as has Putin's human-rights record. The International Olympic Committee has reminded athletes that protests or political gestures violate the Olympic charter, and Sochi organizers have said they will set up special "protest zones." But the criticism isn't likely to quiet once the games begin, not when

ALEX RODRIGUEZ

A decision on whether the New York Yankees' third baseman will play this season is expected in January. Rodriguez was banned for 211 games last August for violating baseball's drug agreement and labor contract, but he played out the season while the union appealed. The Yankees have made it clear they've had it with Rodriguez, which would make spring training all kinds of awesome if he reports in February. Oh, A-Rod is also suing Major League Baseball and Commissioner Bud Selig. Not that that's awkward or anything.

BOSTON MARATHON, APRIL 21

The field for this year's race will be 36,000-strong, the second-largest in history, as runners honor not only the victims of last year's bombings but the city's resilience.

WORLD CUP, JUNE 12-JULY 13

Six of the 12 stadiums won't be ready until January or February, though organizers insist that's still more than enough time to hold test events. But despite spending billions to prepare for the World Cup (and the 2016 Olympics), questions remain about Brazil's infrastructure, with many fearing the airports, roads and local transportation systems won't be able to handle the crush of tourists. All that spending also has created resentment among Brazilian citizens, who disrupted last summer's Confederations Cup with violent protests.

On the field, however, this could be one of the most entertaining tournaments yet. Led by budding star Neymar, host Brazil has its most intriguing team since its last title run in 2002. Lionel Messi is finally showing the sublime form for Argentina that's become his trademark with Barcelona. The Europeans

are, simply, stacked, with reigning champion Spain, Germany, the Netherlands and Belgium all legitimate front-runners. And parity has made for some very competitive — some would say cruel — group-stage matchups.

US OPEN, JUNE 12-15 AND 19-22

For the first time, the men's and women's U.S. Opens will be played on the same course, Pinehurst No. 2, in the same year. A week apart, no less.

While it's a terrific showcase for the women — odds are the upcoming women's Open will be mentioned a time or 12,000 during the men's broadcast — there are concerns, as well. Like the state of the domed greens after a week of being tromped on by Tiger, Rory and the rest of the guys. If there are weather delays or a playoff, the women won't get on the course until Tuesday, giving them just two days to prepare for their biggest major.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL No matter what else happens, there will be peace in the land come the end of the year in the form of the first college football playoff.

Celtics. "It's something we have to get over."

Cavs coach Mike Brown has been a huge supporter of Bynum. The two were together in Los Angeles and their relationship was one of the reasons the Cavs risked signing Bynum.

Brown was asked if Bynum's days with the Cavs were over. "He's on an indefinite suspension and I'm not trying to be funny, but you know what indefinite means," Brown said. "We've got 14 guys in that locker room who are very focused and determined and ready to take on any challenge that's in front of them. They're great guys, they're focused guys and they know how to play the game the right way and that's what I'm focused on, just helping those guys win." There were times this season Bynum showed flashes of being a dominant post player again. But recently he has lacked energy or enthusiasm, and on Monday he missed all 11 fieldgoal attempts and didn't score in 22 minutes against Detroit. On Thursday night, Bynum struggled to guard Atlanta's Al Horford and was taken out in the third quarter. Bynum didn't return despite Horford suffering a torn chest muscle in the Hawks' double-overtime win. Bynum impressed the Cavs with his work ethic while getting ready for the season. They weren't sure if he was motivated, but Bynum shocked many by being ready to play on opening night and seemed to have revived his career.

The Cavs, however, grew concerned about Bynum's attitude in recent weeks were worried about it affecting team chemistry. So, they opted to remove him before things got worse.

Cavs guard Jarrett Jack said Bynum wasn't disruptive and that his quietness may have been misinterpreted.

"That's just kind of how people are sometimes." Jack said. "People like to march to the beat of their own drum. That's not saying you're a bad guy, that's just how you are."

N. Carolina decimates Cincinnati

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — The North Carolina Tar Heels have broken their Belk Bowl jinx.

T.J. Logan returned a kickoff 78 yards for a touchdown, and Ryan Switzer scored on an 86vard punt return to help North Carolina beat Cincinnati 39-17 on Saturday for its first Belk Bowl victory in four attempts.

Marquise Williams threw for 171 yards and a touchdown for the Tar Heels (7-6) in their first bowl victory since 2010.

Romar Morris scored on two short touchdown runs and Jack Tabb caught a touchdown pass as the Tar Heels (7-6) closed the season by winning six of their final seven games under second-year coach Larry

Duke must contain Manziel to end long bowl drought

AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA — Duke will need a better result in its second straight game against a Heisman Trophy winner if it is to come away with its first bowl victory in more than 50 years.

It already has been a memorable season for No. 22 Duke. The Blue Devils won 10 games for the first time and are coming off their first appearance in the Atlantic Coast Conference championship game.

On Tuesday night, play Johnny Manziel and No. 20 Texas A&M in the Chick-fil-A Bowl. This is the first time Duke will be in back-to-back bowl games. Duke will be facing the 2012 Heisman winner in Manziel after falling to 2013 Heisman winner Jameis Winston and Florida State in the ACC title game.

Duke coach David Cutcliffe said Manziel poses a "very unique challenge, to say the

"They're extremely efficient offensively and well-coached," Cutcliffe said Saturday. "Then you throw in his ability to create. I've been doing this a long time. I don't think I've ever seen anybody ad-lib on the field better. So the things that concern you are giving up explosive plays when you seemingly have a play defended." Duke's last postseason victory came against Arkansas in the 1961 Cotton Bowl.

The Blue Devils were overwhelmed in their 45-7 loss to Winston and Florida State on Dec. 7. Winston threw three touchdown passes and ran for a score in the runaway win.

The bowl game could be the end of Manziel's college career. The third-year sophomore could enter the NFL draft.

Manziel led the Southeastern Conference in total yards with 3,732 passing and 686 on the ground. He accounted for 41 touchdowns, including 33 through the air. He improved his completion percentage and passing yards from his Heisman-winning season, but the Aggies' 8-4 record helped push him down to fifth in this year's voting.

Manziel passed for 3,732 yards with 33 touchdowns and led Texas A&M with 686 yards rushing and eight TDs.

cornerback Duke Ross Cockrell said Manziel's mobility makes life difficult for defensive backs. "Manziel and Winston are obviously two great quarterbacks," Cockrell said Saturday. "Winston is a much bigger quarterback, not nearly as quick and as fast, I think, but very mobile. "The thing about Manziel is when he's back there scrambling, you can't tell which routes the receivers are going to run."

Saints' Payton OK with NFL's playoff format

Associated Press

Sean Payton can accept if New Orleans misses the playoffs while a division winner with fewer victories makes it.

He's also OK if the Saints have to go on the road in the postseason against a team with a less impressive record.

"I kind of like the way it is set up right now," the Saints coach said of the NFL's playformat, which gives the first four seeds to division winners, regardless of record, and the last two seeds to wild cards.

Heading into Sunday's regular-season finale, it's possible for the Saints to finish as a wild card at 11-5,

OURVOICE City council deserves praise for bus funding ometimes the consequences of mixing politics and governing aren't pretty.

Sometimes politicians have to put a spin on difficult financial decisions to make them appear more palatable to a skeptical and cynical public.

Difficult decisions sometimes lead to sour feelings. This was the case with the Lake County School Board's decision earlier this year to eliminate courtesy busing for students who live within two miles of their public schools. That meant nearby students had to find their own transportation or walk to school.

The savings for the school district was relatively minor, but board members insisted it was a significant enough savings in austere times. Some members even made the argument that the public school system's responsibility was to provide students with an education, not transportation.

What inevitably followed was something of a small-scale firestorm from parents who had to adjust their schedules to get their children safely to school. School district officials later said they would in fact provide courtesy busing to students within that 2-mile range — for a fee.

While a small, somewhat political concession, that still wasn't well received by many parents who argued that it hardly resolved the problem in the first place and placed a financial burden on many of them.

Along comes the Groveland City Council, which committed to paying for busing those students living north of State Road 50 and who attend Groveland Elementary School to the end of this school year.

Groveland has certainly not been a stranger to controversy. Complaints over the last year of draconian governing and micromanaging by city officials have haunted council members and led to a state investigation over allegations of conflicts of interests and violations of open-government laws.

In the past few months, we have taken a hard line in our editorials against some of the allegations and inaction to public concerns by council members.

This decision by the council, however, deserves our attention, for different reashowed real leadership and set an example of how the county, municipalities and the school board can work together for the benefit and safety of our children," said board member Bill Mathias.

We agree — and we're hoping that this is the decision that turns the page on Groveland's not-so-pleasant picture of local governance during 2013. It sure looks that way to us.

Vote Democrat. The reasons are obvious

Thomas Abrehamson's letter from Dec. 8 asks why he should vote Democrat.

First reason: Most of what he writes is incorrect, and I wonder where he gets his information.

I am a life-long Democrat. I have never gotten anything from the government for "free," nor have I experienced a loss of any freedom. I am a member of a large family born of a hardworking, independent Irish immigrant mother.

All of my six siblings were taught to work hard from an early age, give a good day's work for a good day's salary, pay taxes willingly and be grateful for all of the advantages of being an American.

Democrats believe in the middle class and every American's right to a decent public education and an equal opportunity to progress. We are law-abiding, compassionate people, which is why we extend a helping hand to those who have suffered severely, such as those in the Philippines due to the typhoon.

riencing now, or an oligarchy with only a few very rich people ruling our country, would be better? It would be smaller, yes. The government needs to consolidate many agencies and can definitely find ways to cut spending, but the government also needs more income to do the necessary infrastructure work — bridges, roads, tunnels, schools, etc., and protect our country.

Is it fair that corporations, oil companies and the wealthiest have multiple loopholes to avoid paying their fair share? Democrats think not. Democrats care about their fellow Americans and do not grovel at the feet of the greedy. Newspaper does good job on water stories

Kudos to the Daily Commercial for covering a series recently on Florida's natural water and the concern for the growing depletion and pollution of the natural springs, one of Florida's great natural resources and source of beauty.

The Dec. 3 article, especially, ("Water rules muddied by politics") was so informative. Though I worked for over a year with the Florida Park Service, both in High Springs and in Tallahassee, I learned much more. Just the disclosure of a farmer permit request to discharge 5.5 million gallons from the acquirer is staggering. There are so many Floridians interested in protecting and preserving these natural resources, and yet we know the reality we are facing with the ever growing demand for water from a growing population, develop-

is one obvious way to greatly alleviate the water problem, especially for the cattle farmers who need much more water than a household. Last time I checked, rain comes from the sky. I find it interesting that cisterns are hardly heard of in Florida.

Believe it or not, compared to ancient Israel, we are living in the dark ages when it comes to collecting and storing water, at least in some aspects. One of my areas of research has been the archaeology of the Middle East (and the religions of).

One just needs to study the elaborate rainwater channeling system and water collection system that Qumran had. One would find it amazing that in that climate with as little rain as it gets per year, when it did come, and within minutes, it would be channeled to cisterns and they will fill up in sections, like water "gushing in the wilderness" (c.f. Is. ch. 35). A good book highlighting this is Prof. Jodi Magness,' "The Archaeology of Qumran and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Eerdmanns, 2002.

All farmers should be collecting some rainwater. This makes the most sense. And no farmer should be permitted to draw 5.5 million gallons a day from the aquifer. That should be totally unacceptable. Let them collect it from the sky.

President has failed on pledge to be transparent mong many of the president's unfulfilled campaign promises was his statement that" his administration would be the most transparent in history." Ironically in 2013 his promise of transparency became clearer but not due to his efforts. The element of transparency revealed in 2013 was the discovery by the American people that they finally learned the magnitude of the lack of transparency in this administration.

In 2013 we learned of the attempted cover up of the gun running program into Mexico called "Fast & Furious". This ill-conceived program initiated by the Border Patrol cost the life of one American Border Patrol agent and hundreds of Mexican citizens. Attorney General Eric Holder chose not be to be fully forthcoming to Congressional committees as to who initiated this fiasco. As Congress pressed for full disclosure President Obama intervened and declared executive privilege thereby freezing further Congressional hearings as to who authorized this deadly program. Administration transparency in ac-

Next was the deadly attack on our embassy personnel in Benghazi which cost the lives of four brave Americans including our ambassador. The administration was told within hours that the attack was not a random act of some mob but was an orchestrated attack by a terrorist group. Both Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and President Obama condemned an anti Muslim video as the culprit and had our U.N. Ambassador Susan Rice go on five Sunday talk shows spreading the lie about the video being the cause of the attack. Since this occurred in the home stretch of the 2012 presidential campaign, transparency became a victim of election politics.

Russ Sloan

GUEST COLUMNIST

Transparency also disappeared within the IRS until after the president was reelected. In the 2010 congressional elections the tea party enthusiasm made a huge impact and helped sweep the Republicans into control of the House in one of the biggest shifts of power in American history. By sheer coincidence, the IRS just happened to then only target conservative and tea-party groups delaying their applications for 501-C-4 status so as to hamper their collective impact on the 2012 presidential election. We now know that top administration officials were aware of this illegal action but remained publicly silent so as to not harm the president's chances to be reelected. Transparency remains a victim.

Then came the revelations regarding the widespread spying on U.S. citizens by our National Security Agency (NSA). In fact, James Clapper, NSA director, lied before Congress, denying the massive effort to monitor the phone calls of Americans. He later apologized for his lie but I doubt that if you or I lied to Congress (under oath) that a simple apology would suffice.

But the most transparent president ever was recently named as telling the "Lie of the Year" when he constantly promised the American people that: "If you like your health care plan and doctor, you can keep them. Period! "! Since 2010 he knew that was not true but getting reelected again trumped transparency.

There is far more evidence of this administration's lack of transparency then the space of this column allows but suffice it to say that these examples clearly show that transparency always finished second to administrative political advantage. In fact, this administration may well be the least transparent in modern times including the Nixon years and Watergate.

But in 2013 the accumulation of administration scandals, lies and deceptions did reveal themselves to the American public. These unfolding events created their own transparency and Americans saw for themselves just how much they were misled, especially in the efforts to pass ObamaCare and to get the president reelected. The promise of transparency has proven to be as hollow as the president's promise about keeping our health care plan and doctor.

Real transparency breeds public trust and the absence of transparency can destroy a presidency.

U.S. government should help the poor more, or else

Many Americans are falling into poverty at a shocking rate. Pew Research says 46 million Americans lived in poverty in 2011, and not much has changed since then. In addition, 45 million Americans have no health insurance, so when they get sick, they might go to the expensive emergency room or they might die.

It is clear that the American "middle class" is shrinking in terms of wealth and standard of living. Pew says 84 percent of the self-identified "lower class" said they had trouble getting medical care or pay-

Robert Reich (Aftershock, 2013) says the economic game in Russia is rigged against poor people and it triggered peasant uprisings directed at "bringing down the rich" rather than helping poor people rise from poverty. Still, the economic anger in America is growing. Will poor Americans try to bring down the

In March, 2009, the government bailed out AIG with $150 billion. The "roll-forward" estimate of AIG's excess economic capital as of Dec. 31, 2007, was in the range of $14.5 to $19.5 billion. Its December 11, 2012 sale of stock resulted in the full recovery of the government's commitment along with an approximately $22.7 billion combined return for the Treasury. Yet there is very little help for the poor. A recent poll showed only 43 percent of Americans thought recent trade agreements benefitted the U.S. economy. News accounts show a growing resentment toward immigrants who work for lower wages. So, the rich get richer and the poor get sick and die.

Today, tea party members attack politicians who they consider "elites." Rand Paul thinks voters should "get rid of power people ... who think they are above everybody else." Are poor voters ready for revolution? How does one "get rid of power people"?

All that bitterness is building across the country which indicates that poor people are getting tired of being economically trampled by rich folks. Some young voters gathered at the front door of John Boehner's home and they shouted for more equality. When will mobs of poor American people rise and bring down the rich people?

Perhaps it may be wise for the U.S. government to help poor people become more economically stable with low cost education, healthcare, and work-related programs. In the short run, educational programs are more effective and more productive than the present programs of individual greed. Educational programs will help reduce poverty across America and that may prevent more Americans from falling deeper into poverty.

Tour Historic Mount Dora

Our one hour city tour begins at our dealership in downtown Mount Dora, travels along side of the city marina, runs out to the famous Mount Dora lighthouse and over to Palm Island Park. In the Palm Island Park we traverse some of the most intriguing nature paths in Florida and explore the raised walkway over the water's edge, allowing the riders an opportunity to view our abundant wildlife and variety of plants up close and first-

You will then leave the Palm Island Park and head out through beautiful and historic neighborhoods while riding by several of the town's well known and historic Bed & Breakfasts'. The tour will then turn back towards town via the Historic Lakeside Inn which was built in 1883 and still retains its original charm. After enjoying the gorgeous view westward across Lake Dora you will begin your return trip back through town to our home base on 5th Av-

f not for his aunt, Ed Woodring might have become something besides a barber and the owner of City Barber Shop.

His aunt used to trim his and his uncle's hair.

But it wasn't her clipping that inspired young Ed. It was her hacking that made it necessary."

"My aunt would screw my uncle's and my hair up," said Woodring. "And I'd always go back and cut it myself. Then my uncle asked me cut his."

He was 11 at the time. And smitten with snipping

Woodring must have been pretty good, because when he was about 12 or 13, his friends started asking Ed to cut their hair. At the time he didn't

"I just liked doing it," Woodring said. "It wasn't about money, I found something I was good at and I liked it."

When he was 14, Woodring knew what he wanted to do with his life and asked how old he needed to be to enter barber school.

"They said 16," he said. "So when I was 16 I went to CTI, Career Training Institute,

BRADLEY KLAPPER Associated Press

WASHINGTON Mailing a letter is about to get a little more expensive.

Regulators on Tuesday approved a temporary price hike of 3 cents for a first-class stamp, bringing the charge to 49 cents a letter in an effort to help the Postal Service recover from severe mail decreases brought on by the 2008 economic downturn.

Many consumers won't feel the price increase immediately. Forever stamps, good for first-class postage whatever the future rate, can be purchased at the lower price until the new rate is effective Jan. 26.

The higher rate will last no more than two years, allowing the Postal Service to recoup $2.8 billion in losses. By a 2-1 vote, the independent Postal Regulatory Commission rejected a request to make the price hike permanent, though inflation over the next 24 months may make it so.

The surcharge "will last just long enough to recover the loss," Commission Chairman Ruth Y. Goldway groups have opposed any price increase beyond the current 1.7 percent rate of inflation, saying charities using mass mailings and bookstores competing with online retailer Amazon would be among those who suffer. Greeting card companies also have criticized the plans. "This is a counterproductive decision," said Mary G. Berner, president of the Association of Magazine Media. "It will drive more customers away from using the Postal Service and will have ripple effects through our economy — hurting consumers, forcing layoffs and impacting businesses."

Berner said her organization will consider

Bye bye, bile? Websites try to nix nasty comments

BARBARA ORTUTAY

AP Technology Writer

NEW YORK — Mix blatant bigotry with poor spelling. Add a dash of ALL CAPS. Top it off with a violent threat. And there you have it: A recipe for the worst of online comments, scourge of the Internet.

Blame anonymity, blame politicians, blame human nature. But a growing number of websites are reining in the Wild West of online commentary. Companies including Google and the Huffington Post are trying everything from deploying moderators to forcing people to use their real names in order to restore civil discourse. Some sites, such as Popular Science, are banning comments altogether.

The efforts put sites in a delicate position. User comments add a lively, fresh feel to videos, stories and music. And, of course, the longer visitors stay to read the posts, and the more they come back, the more a site can charge for advertising.

What websites don't want is the kind of off-putting nastiness that spewed forth under a recent CNN.com article about the Affordable Care Act.

"If it were up to me, you progressive libs destroying this country would be hanging from the gallows for treason. People are awakening though. If I were you, I'd be very afraid," wrote someone using the name "JBlaze."

YouTube, which is owned by Google, has long been home to some of the Internet's most juvenile and grammatically incorrect comments. The site caused a stir last month when it began requiring people to log into Google Plus to write a comment. Besides herding users to Google's unified network, the company says the move is designed to raise the level of discourse in the conversations that play out under YouTube videos.

Company providing charity tracking software

JAY REEVES Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. Charities in northwest Alabama had a problem after Hurricane Katrina blasted the northern Gulf Coast in 2005: They didn't know how to keep track of thousands of people who were suddenly on the move and seeking help far from their homes in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

A collaboration between community workers and computer programmers resulted in a system that is now being used to keep track of thousands of charity recipients in about 680 cities nationwide this Christmas

Developed by Simon Solutions Inc. in Florence, CharityTracker is one of about 30 software tools used by U.S. homeless shelters, services agencies, soup kitchens, faith-based groups and community organizations to keep up with the thousands of needy people who seek assistance every day. An agency can sign up and use the Web-based system for as little as $15 a month.

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development requires agencies to share information electronically if they receive government funding, and other software systems have wider use in certain areas than CharityTracker. But Cathy Easley, a United Way administrator in Charleston, S.C., said CharityTracker is simple enough that even occasional users can work it and robust enough to let agencies share detailed information that helps people.

For example, she said, someone might ask for utility assistance at an agency that doesn't pay for power bills. Once a client signs a release allowing information to be shared, the agency can upload a copy of the power bill, which can then be seen by another organization that can help out, Easley said.

"It has really transformed how our community, agencies and churches work together and how we are better able to serve clients by using it," said Easley, director of integrated community systems for Trident Unite Way. About 90,000 names are in the Charleston-area database, which is used about 200 organizations, she said.

Simon Solutions President Mike Simon said his company tries to differentiate its system from others with good customer service and a user interface that's so simple that an elderly church volunteer could pick up the basics in a few minutes of training.

"It is very, very volunteer friendly," he said.

Part of the reason goes back to the way the system was born in the months after Katrina.

The hurricane inundated New Orleans with floodwaters after levees failed, and thousands of people lost their homes in Mississippi and Alabama because of the high winds and storm surge. Many people fled north after being left homeless by the storm, and some of them wound up in northwest Ala-

Small-town church volunteers and charity agencies that were using notebooks or index cards to track aid recipients suddenly were faced with large numbers of people seeking assistance, and they needed a way to keep tabs on what type of aid individuals were receiving to avoid duplication. They also dreamed of an easy way to communicate with workers in other organizations to help determine what sort of assistance may be available for specific needs, like someone who needed transportation or a job.

"They were pretty perplexed," said Simon. "They were worried that the right resources were not getting into the right hands.'

Simon Solutions already was located in the Shoals area of northwest Alabama, and agencies asked the company for help in developing software to help track people and to make it simpler to get aid to the needed. The goal was to build a computer database in which agencies could store information and share it, a key requirement for avoiding duplication of

The company developed a regional system called SE-ANtracker, or Shoals Emergency Assistance Network tracker. Word spread and software engineers used it as the basis for CharityTracker. Large groups of users are now located in cities including Charleston, Joplin, Mo., and Austin, Texas, said Si-

Michelle Farley, director of a Birmingham-based consortium of assistance agencies called One Roof, said her agency and most others in Alabama use a larger, competing system called ServicePoint, which functions similarly to Charity-Tracker and other software systems that let organizations store and share information about aid recipients.

To improve its product, CharityTracker has added technology that will allow assistance agencies to add information into their databases by simply scanning a recipient's identification card.

Charity groups need some sort of database to avoid the drain of providing duplicate assistance, Farley said, but they also need information that can help them operate most efficiently.

"Churches don't want to continue giving people money for utilities monthly if what they really need is weather stripping," said Far-you care about first," wrote YouTube product manager Nundu Janakiram and principal engineer Yonatan Zunger in a blog post announcing the changes. "If you post videos on your channel, you also have more tools to moderate welcome and unwelcome conversations. This way, You-Tube comments will become conversations that matter to you."

Anonymity has always been a major appeal of online life. Two decades ago, The New Yorker magazine ran a cartoon with a dog sitting in front of a computer, one paw on the keyboard. The caption read: "On the Internet, nobody knows you're a dog." At its best, anonymity allows people to speak freely without repercussions. It allows whistle blowers and protesters to espouse unpopular opinions. At its worst, it allows people to spout off without repercussions. It gives trolls and bullies license to pick arguments, threaten and abuse.

But anonymity has been eroding in recent years. On the Internet, many people may know not only your name, but also your latest musings, the songs you've listened to, your job history, who your friends are and even the brand of soap you prefer.

"It's not so much that our offline lives are going online, it's that our offline and online lives are more integrated," says Mark Lashley, a professor of communications at La Salle University in Philadelphia. Facebook, which requires people to use their real names, played a big part in the seismic shift.

"The way the Web was developed, it was unique in that the avatar and the handle were always these things people used to go by. It did develop into a Wild West situation," he says, adding that it's no surprise that Google and other companies are going this route. "As more people go online and we put more of our lives online, we should be held accountable for things we say."

Nearly three-quarters of teens and young adults think people are more likely to use discriminatory language online or in text messages than in face to face conversations, according to a recent poll from The Associated Press

-NORC Center for Public Affairs search and MTV. The poll didn't distinguish between anonymous comments and those with real identities attached.

Huffington Post is also clamping down on vicious comments. In addition to employing 40 human moderators who sift through readers' posts for racism, homophobia, hate speech and the like, the AOL-owned news site is also chipping away at anonymous commenting. Previously, anyone could respond to an article posted on the site by creating an account, without tying it to an email address. This fall, HuffPo began requiring people to verify their identity by connecting their accounts to an email address.

"We are reaching a place where the Internet is growing up," says Jimmy Soni, managing editor of HuffPo. "These changes represent a maturing (online) environment."

This doesn't mean that people have to use their names when commenting. But Soni says the changes have already made a difference in the quality of the comments. The lack of total anonymity, while not a failsafe method, offers people a "gut check moment," he says. There have been "significantly fewer things that we would not be able to share with our mothers," in the HuffPo comments section since the change, Soni says. Newspapers are also turning toward regulated comments. Of the largest 137 U.S. newspapers - those with daily circulation above 50,000 — nearly 49 percent ban anonymous commenting, according to Arthur Santana, assistant communications professor at the University of Houston. Nearly 42 percent allow anonymity, while 9 percent do not have comments at all. Curbing anonymdoesn't always ity help. Plenty of people are fine attaching their names and Facebook profiles to poorly spelled outbursts that live on long after their fury has passed.

In some cases, sites have gone further. Popular Science, the 141-year-old science and technology magazine, stopped allowing comments of any kind on its news articles in September.

While highlighting responses to articles about climate change and abortion, Popular Science online editor Suzanne LaBarre announced the change and explained in a blog post that comments can be "bad for science."

Because "comments sections tend to be a grotesque reflection of the media culture surrounding them, the cynical work of undermining bedrock scientific doctrine is now being done beneath our own stories," wrote La-Barre. We can't wait to see the response to this

In Shoals, former workers fondly recall Ford plant

LISA SINGLETON-RICKMAN

LISTERHILL, Ala. — This week marks the 30th anniversary of the closing of the Ford Motor Company aluminum cast plant, but to employees like L.C. Lenz, of Leighton, it is a great deal more than that.

At one time, the 600,000-squarefoot operation was considered the largest casting company in the world with its 130-acre operation between River Road and Second Street.

The plant opened in the spring of 1957. Lenz, now 81, had just retired from the Naval Reserves, and moved back to take a job at the plant in October. The plant started production in April 1958, and Lenz was just beginning his 26-year career there, where ultimately he'd spend the last eight as a supervisor in the piston department.

Monday was a day of reflection for Lenz, just as Dec. 23 has been the past 30 years. He annually commemorates that date with a visit to the old plant. His wife, Louise, always snaps a photograph of him.

"I come out here, take a picture and just look around," he said. "It's mainly just grown up green fields now, but I remember everything about that plant, about the hope it brought to this whole area, the families it brought in here and how it boosted this economy," Lenz said. "It pumped millions into the economy."

Lenz said during the past three decades he's watched a few companies come in only to subsequently shut down.

"All that remains at that site now are some test wells and thev'll have to continue to do ground water testing for many years to come," he said.

After the plant closed, government officials in Colbert County, Mus-appealing the decision before the U.S. Court of Appeals.

For consumers who have cut back on their use of mail for correspondence, the rate increase may have little impact on their pocketbooks.

"I don't know a whole lot of people who truly, with the exception of packages, really use snail mail anymore," said Kristin Johnson, a Green Bay, Wis., resident who was shopping in downtown Anchorage, Alaska, while visiting relatives and friends. "It's just so rare that I actually mail anything at this point."

The Postal Service is an independent agency that does not depend on tax money for its operations but is subject to congressional control. Under federal law, it can't raise prices more than the rate of inflation without approval from the commission.

The service says it lost $5 billion in the last fiscal year and has been trying to get Congress to pass legislation to help with its financial woes, including an end to Saturday mail delivery and reduced payments on retiree health benefits.

The figures through Sept. 30 were actually an improvement for the agency from a $15.9 billion loss in 2012.

The post office has struggled for years with declining mail volume as a result of growing Internet use and a 2006 congressional requirement that it make annual $5.6 billion payments to cover expected health care costs for future retirees. It has defaulted on three of those payments.

regulators Tuesday stopped short of making the price increases permanent, saying the Postal Service had conflated losses it suffered as a result of Internet competition with business lost because of the Great Recession. They ordered the agency to develop a plan to phase out the higher rates once the lost revenue is recouped.

It's unclear where that would take rates for first-class postage in 2016. The regular, inflation-adjusted price would have been 47 cents next year. If inflation rates average 2 percent over the next two years, regulators could deem 49 cents an acceptable price going forward.

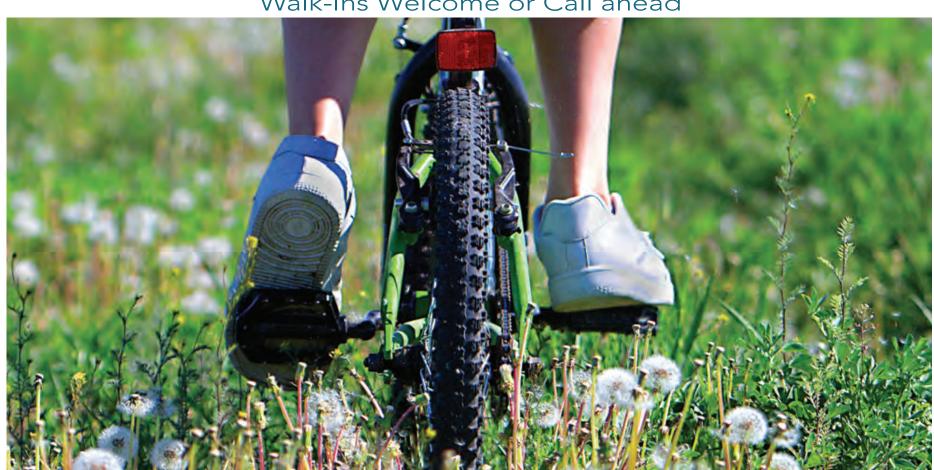

The Postal Service has only twice lowered the price of a stamp: in the mid-19th century from 3 cents to 2 cents, and again after the end of World War I. In neither case was the higher price the result of a temporary authorization.

The new price of a postcard stamp, raised by a penny to 34 cents in November, also is effective next month.

Favorite hairdresser divorces her husband, not his cousin

DEAR ABBY: For 17 years I have been using the same hairstylist, "Marietta," because she does great cuts and color. She's married to my cousin "Gil," but not for long. They're divorcing.

Gil's mother suggested I should find a different stylist, but when I did, I had horrible results. I returned to Marietta and it took her several appointments to correct my color.

Some family members are now furious with me for getting my hair done by someone who is soon to be a relative's ex. I look at it as a business. I like what Marietta does for me. We never discuss the divorce. Family is now demanding an apology, and I don't think I owe one. I haven't been close to any of these people in years.

Must I say I'm sorry to distant family and discontinue Marietta's services? Or should I say nothing and continue my professional relationship with her? My roots are beginning to show again, so please answer quickly. -SNIPPED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR SNIPPED: Tell Gil's mother to stay out of your hair. You tried leaving Marietta; it was a disaster — and you plan on using her until the day you curl up and dye.

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of three grown children. I have a good marriage, a successful career and a close relationship with my two younger children.

My problem involves my oldest daughter. She has been emotionally unstable and verbally abusive to me since her 20s. I have reached my limit of patience with her. We had a terrible fight three weeks ago, and she hasn't spoken to me since.

If you caused it, then you owe it to both of you to offer an apology. If she caused it, then put your white flag away and enjoy the respite because sooner or later she'll be back. Take this case from the 2003 North American Open Pairs, where declarer failed to draw the proper inference from the opponents' line of defense. South reached four hearts, and West led the spade deuce.

East took the top two spades and continued with a third spade, ruffed by South with the three as West followed with the queen. East's unusual defense — helping declarer establish dummy's ten as a trick — failed to make an impression on declarer, who next led the queen of hearts and let it ride after West followed low.

This was the opening East had hoped for. He took the king and returned his fourth spade, and South had to go down one. If he ruffed low, West would overruff with the ten, and if he ruffed with the jack, East's

Declarer could have averted this ignominious outcome simply by crossing to the jack of diamonds and leading a heart toward his Q-J-7. As long as the opposing hearts were divided 3-2, this would have assured If East rose with the king and

HOROSCOPES

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Dec. 29, 2013:

This year you could keep a lot to yourself. Your friends and family will sense this secrecy, and they will try to draw it out of you. You like your free time alone, more so than in the past. If you are single, you could find yourself in a relationship with someone emotionally unavailable or even married. Be careful. If you are attached, the two of you benefit from taking off together for weekends away. In these situations, romance will bloom. SAG-ITTARIUS understands vou perhaps better than you can ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have been holding back on planning a day trip or taking off for a few days. Now would be a good time to split. You might hit a few obstacles along the way, but your instinctively quick nature will see a way around this problem.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You don't always agree with a partner, and today is no different. You will decide to follow this person on an adventure, even though you Bigar's Stars JACQUELINE

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might want to revise a situation to make it more amenable to you. Understand your limits if you do not want to irritate a good friend. Someone you look up to might decide to put in his or her two cents.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take a hard look at the possibilities right now as you head into the next few days. Many of you will need to squeeze in a week's worth of work in a few days. Others will have a lot to do post-Christmas.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The past few weeks have been rather regimented with a firm schedule. Take today as a free day, and do what you want. Whether you're playing Scrabble or flirting

On Dec. 29, 1913, the first true "cliffhanger" movie serial, "The Adventures of Kathlyn," starring Kathlyn Williams, premiered.

On this date:

In 1170, Thomas Becket, the Archbishop of Canterbury, was slain in Canterbury Cathedral by knights loyal to King Henry II.

In 1808, the 17th president of the United States, Andrew Johnson, was born in Raleigh, N.C.

In 1812, during the War of 1812, the American frigate USS Constitution engaged and severely damaged the British frigate HMS Java off Brazil.

In 1845, Texas was admitted as the 28th state.

In 1890, the Wounded Knee massacre took place in South Dakota as an estimated 300 Sioux Indians were killed by U.S. troops sent to disarm them.

In 1916, Grigory Rasputin, the so-called "Mad Monk" who'd wielded great influence with Czar Nicholas II, was killed by a group of Russian noblemen in St. Petersburg.

In 1934, Japan formally renounced the Washington Naval Treaty of 1922.

In 1940, during World War II, Germany dropped incendiary bombs on London, setting off what came to be known as "The Second Great Fire of London."

In 1957, singers Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme were married in Las Vegas.

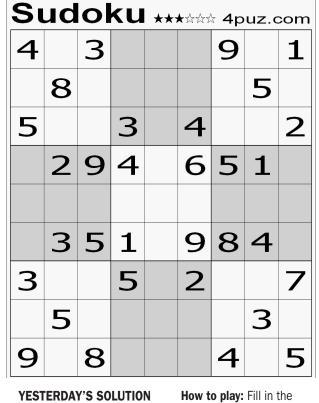

In 1972, Eastern Air Lines Flight 401, a Lockheed L-1011 Tristar, crashed into the Florida Everglades near Miami International Airport, killing 101 of the 176 people aboard.

In 1975, a bomb exploded in the main terminal of New York's LaGuardia Airport, killing 11 people.

In 1986, former British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan died at his home south of London at age 92.

FEATURE STORY

Gone but not forgotten 2013: Gandolfini, Monteith and more

By Jay Bobbin © Zap2it

The year now ending marks another 12-month period of losing talents who have given television viewers entertainment or information ... and some of those passings, even more sadly, came as major and untimely shocks.

James Gandolfini: He projected so much older as mobster Tony Soprano, many were surprised to learn the three-time Emmy winner only was in his 30s and 40s when he played the part.

Jean Stapleton: Forever TV's top "dingbat," the "All in the Family" actress earned three Emmys as lovably daffy Edith Bunker.

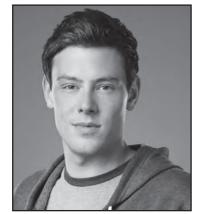

Cory Monteith: As Finn Hudson on "Glee," the Canadian-born performer touched fans of all ages both in life and afterward.

Annette Funicello: She would continue to grow up in the public eye in the "Beach Party" movies, but many fans got their first taste of this charmer as one of the most popular Mouseketeers on "The Mickey Mouse Club."

Jonathan Winters: The improvisation genius who inspired his later "Mork & Mindy" co-star Robin Williams was one of the first recipients of the Mark Twain Prize for American Humor.

Marcia Wallace: Beloved by fans of "The Bob Newhart Show" as receptionist Carol Kester, the comedic actress won a new generation of fans as the voice of Edna Krabappel on "The Simpsons."

Bonnie Franklin: The stage veteran was quite symbolic on the home

"Glee" co-star Cory Monteith was among the television personalities lost in 2013.

screen, portraying a single mother's challenges on the sitcom "One Day at a Time."

Dennis Farina: The former Chicago cop brought his great sense of style to "Law & Order," but earlier, it also informed the shows "Crime Story" and "Buddy Faro."

Conrad Bain: Another theater alum, this actor had dual series successes as Arthur on "Maude" and the benevolent Mr. Drummond on "Diff'rent Strokes."

Roger Ebert: Together with onscreen partner Gene Siskel, the veteran critic did much to popularize movie reviewing on TV.

Pat Summerall: The NFL veteran became one of television's premier sportscasters ... and pitchmen, thanks to his hardware store ads.

SUNDAY'S BEST BETS

Daniel Radcliffe

8 p.m. on (3) (5) (5) The Simpsons

Homer made a to-do list when he was only 10 years old. Now Marge wants him to start doing some of those things. Reminding him that "you only live once," she encourages him to invite an old pen pal for a visit. A new honor code is in place at Springfield Elementary, thanks to Lisa, in "YOLO." Jon Lovitz provides a guest voice.

8 p.m. on 20 23 Movie: Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone Director Chris Columbus' blockbuster 2001 version of the internationally popular J.K. Rowling story features Daniel Radcliffe as Harry, the young wizard in training. He finds himself the target of an unknown enemy while being schooled in the use of magic at Hogwarts. Rupert Grint and Emma Watson play Harry's young comrades. The expert supporting cast includes Robbie Coltrane, Alan Rickman, Maggie Smith and Richard Harris.

9 p.m. on 🗗 🗊 The 36th Annual Kennedy Center Honors

Actress Shirley MacLaine, opera singer Martina Arroyo, and musicians Herbie Hancock, Billy Joel and Carlos Santana are this year's recipients of the prestigious awards for achievement in the performing arts. President and Mrs. Obama are on hand, along with friends, colleagues and admirers of each honoree. Glenn Close hosts the event.

10 p.m. on (FOOD) Cutthroat Kitchen

Honey is yummy, but it has its place, and that isn't on the outside of pot stickers. That's the sticky situation this new episode finds one of the chefs in — a batch of pot-sticker wrappers that have been doused in honey. A peanut butter and jelly project forces two chefs to share ingredients. Later, a chef must harvest shrimp from a block of ice in "Shrimp or Get off the Pot Sticker."

FAMILY VIEWING

THURSDAY 8:30 p.m. on (FAM)

Movie: The Goonies

A group of adolescent misfits undertakes a harrowing mission to recover the booty of a notorious 17th-century pirate in this 1985 children's classic. Leader Mikey (Sean Astin) proves himself when he discovers the booby-trapped treasure in time to save their homes from demolition. Josh Brolin, Martha Plimpton, Corey Feldman, Jeff Cohen and Kerri Green also star.

SUNDAY 10:30 a.m. on (DISN)

Movie: High School Musical

It's all about the music in this descriptively titled movie. Directed by choreographer Kenny Ortega ("Newsies"), it stars Zac Efron and Vanessa Anne Hudgens as two radically different teens who decide to challenge their innate personalities and act in a play. Once together on stage, feelings friends will have none of that. Lucas Grabeel also star.

MONDAY

The Cat in the Hat Knows a Lot About That!

In "Night Lights," Nick, Sally and the Cat are putting on a shadow puppet show when their flashlight stops working. They shrink down and visit some fireflies, who demonstrate how they communicate with light and provide illumination for the puppet show. In "Go Snails Go," the Cat and the kids join a pair of snails named Lewis and Clark for an expedition through the forest of Slippity-Goo, where they learn how snails use their shells.

8 p.m. on (TCM)

Movie: That's Entertainment!

Hollywood legends introduce a star-studded 1974 collection of moments from the finest MGM musicals, ranging from the first all-sound musical — "Broadway Melody of 1930" — to the climactic ballet from "An American in Paris." Gene Kelly, Fred Astaire, Bing Crosby, Liza Minnelli, Mickey Rooney, Elizabeth Taylor, Frank Sinatra, Debbie Reynolds, Jimmy Stewart, Peter Lawford and Donald O'Connor are the on-screen hosts. The sequels immediately follow.

Martha Speaks

This episode features a visit from former U.S. poet laureate Billy Collins. In "Billy Collins Speaks," Martha is convinced that Collins must be a dog because he writes about them so well. She causes a minor melee when she sees a human reading his work, and in the process she introduces young viewers to the word "impostor." In "Milo's Reading Buddy," T.D. helps Milo get over his anxiety about reading in front of people.

SATURDAY

11 a.m. on (FAM)

Movie: Space Jam

America's most beloved athlete since Muhammad Ali teams up with our favorite cartoon characters for a riotous, "Roger Rabbit"smooth blend of animation and live action. When the boss of a theme park on a faraway planet sends his minions to capture the Looney Tunes gang for use as new attractions, they'll only go if the aliens beat them at basketball. The visitors have some tricks up their sleeves, but the Looneys have a secret weapon: Michael Jordan himself.

Movie: The Adventures of Mark Twain

Fredric March stars as Samuel L. Clemens, the witty, satirical author commonly known as Mark Twain. The 1944 docudrama focuses on the life as well as the career of the beloved American writer. Alexis Smith, Donald Crisp, Alan Hale and John Carradine co-star.

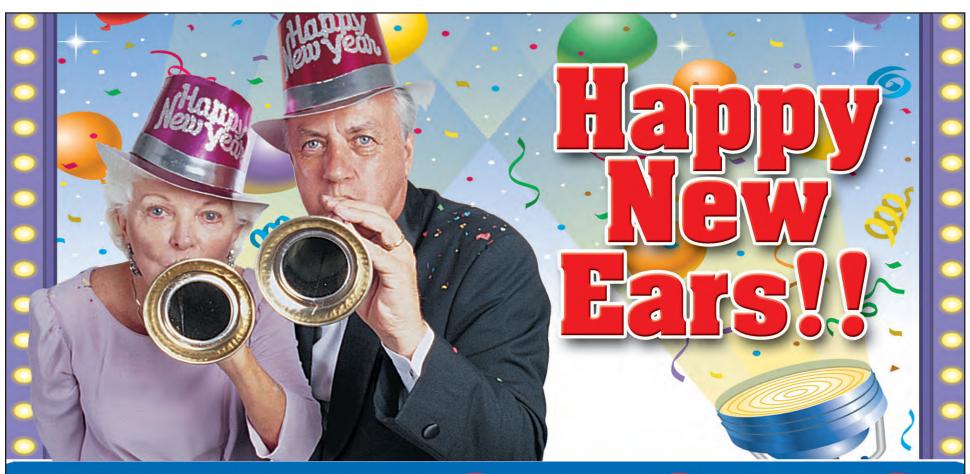

12:30 p.m. on (FAM)

Movie: The Little Rascals

Penelope Spheeris ("Wayne's World") directed this charming 1994 comedy, which transplants the Our Gang kids to the '90s with their '30s innocence intact. Alfalfa (Bug Hall) incurs the wrath of the He-Man Womun Haters Club when he falls for the lovely Darla (Brittany Ashton Holmes). Eventually, all learn that girls are people, too. Whoopi Goldberg, Mel Brooks and Reba McEntire have cameo roles.

MONDAY'S BEST BETS

Katy Perry

8 p.m. on (13) (44) iHeartradio Music Festival, Night 1

Filmed in Las Vegas and airing over two nights, this concert features performances by Katy Perry, Elton John, Keith Urban, Queen with Adam Lambert, Muse, Tiesto, J Cole, Robin Thicke and Fun. Cast members from The CW's shows also make appearances.

9 p.m. on 20 23 Rudolph's Shiny New Year

While it's not up to par with "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," this animated special still is a lot of fun. Red Skelton, Frank Gorshin and Morey Amsterdam provide voices for the story of how the red-nosed deer, with the help of a whale and a caveman, sets off across time to find Happy, the missing New Year baby. If Happy stays lost, it will be Dec. 31 forever.

Irreconcilable differences?

We strive to make it less painful.

Carson Daly

8 p.m. on 3 5 24 Live From Lincoln Center

The new episode "The New York Philharmonic Gala With Yo-Yo Ma" features the orchestra and the popular cellist performing a program of dance-inspired works. They include Maurice Ravel's "Alborada del gracioso" and "Bolero"; a new arrangement of Astor Piazzolla's "La serie del Angel"; and Osvaldo Golijov's "Azul," a piece written for Ma. Audra McDonald hosts.

8 p.m. on ② ② New Year's Rockin' Eve Presents the 30 Greatest Women in Music

For those who want to start their New Year's Eve celebration early, this new special serves up memorable performances by female artists from past "Rockin' Eve" shows and the archives of "American Bandstand." Ryan Seacrest, Jenny McCarthy and Fergie host.

8 p.m. on (FX) Movie: Avatar

Writer-director James Cameron's Oscar-winning, visually dazzling and ecologically responsible saga uses extensive "motion-capture" animation as a paraplegic Marine (Sam Worthington) is brought to a planet called Pandora. His scientifically engineered alter ego, or "avatar," is enlisted to help mine the planet for resources needed on Earth, but his goal changes as he empathizes ever more deeply with the land's native people, the Na'vi.

10 p.m. on 2 (3) NBC's New Year's Eve With Carson Daly

This two-hour special begins in prime time, then continues later with the countdown to 2014 and the first performances of the new year. "Last Call" and "The Voice" host Daly emcees from the middle of the world's most famous New Year's Eve destination: Times Square in New York.

WEDNESDAY'S BEST BETS

Joe Mantegna

11 a.m. on 📵 (HALL) (HGTV) 11:30 a.m. on 2 The 125th Tournament of Roses Parade

"Dreams Come True" is the theme of the 125th parade from Pasadena, Calif., featuring fabulous flower-festooned floats and more. The grand marshal is sportscaster Vin Scully, who has been in the broadcast booth for his share of dream-coming-true moments, including Hank Aaron's recordsetting 715th home run and Sandy Koufax's four no-hitters.

8 p.m. on (HGTV) HGTV Dream Home 2014

It's a very, very, very fine house, and it could be yours. In this new special, viewers get an armchair tour of this year's Dream Home — a "new mountain"-style threebedroom property in Truckee, Calif., near Lake Tahoe. The winner of the giveaway, who also gets $250,000 and a new vehicle, will be chosen in March, so you still have time to get your entry in.

9 p.m. on 🙃 📵 Criminal Minds

The BAU team heads for California when the burned bodies of homeless people start turning up on the Santa Monica Pier. Rossi (Joe Mantegna) has a reunion with Harrison Scott (Meshach Taylor), his former Marine sergeant from Vietnam, in "The Fallen." Thomas Gibson, A.J. Cook, Jeanne Tripplehorn and Shemar Moore also star.

10 p.m. on (FOOD) Restaurant: Impossible

In this new episode, Robert is in Plains, Mont., home of Heather's Country Kitchen. Heather is a former stay-at-home mom who bought the place on impulse three years ago and apparently hasn't learned the first thing about running a restaurant in all that time. Robert has two days to get the high food and labor costs under control and fix Heather's working relationship with her daughters in "Clueless in the Country."

CELEBRITY PIPELINE

'Today' hosts' hairy situation over ... somewhat

Q: Why were Matt Lauer and Al Roker sporting beards at the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade? — Steve Merritt, Baltimore

A: It was a "No-Shave November" for all the male regulars on NBC's weekday "Today," also including Carson Daly and Willie Geist. They grew the facial hair to support the "Movember" initiative to promote men's health, but once December arrived, the razors came out ... though some of the fellows kept a trimmed-down version of their new looks.

Q: What's the background of Emily Wickersham, who plays the newest agent on "NCIS"? — Don Reynolds, Columbus, Ohio

A: Now appearing as Ellie Bishop on the CBS hit, the actress played Rhiannon in several episodes of "The Sopranos," and she also had appeared in such shows as "Law & Order: Criminal Intent," "Gossip Girl" and "The Bridge." Additionally, she's been featured in movies including "I Am Number Four" and (as Amanda Seyfried's missing sister) "Gone."

Q: Is the television show "Terms of Engagement" going to return? — Gary Hodge, North Tonawanda, N.Y.

A: We assume you mean "Rules of Engagement," which was CBS' version of The Little Engine That Could for seven seasons, usually returning at an unexpected point of the TV year and performing admirably for the network.

The sitcom ended its original run last spring at exactly 100 episodes — considered the magic number for syndicating a show — and it's now seen in weekday morning repeats on TBS. Among its stars who have moved on to other projects, Oliver Hudson now appears on ABC's "Nashville."

CELEBRITY SCOOP

Checking in with Kat Dennings

By Jacqueline Cutler © Zap2it

When "2 Broke Girls" began, Kat Dennings and Beth Behrs' first interview was with Zap2it. Dennings, with a few years in the public eye, was joking around with her co-star, showing her it was OK to relax in an interview.

"We are basically like sisters now," Dennings says. "And we talk every day. We are extremely close."

Now in its third season, the sitcom about two very different young women working at a greasy spoon in Brooklyn has seen the characters evolve.

"When we meet Max, in Season 1, she was hard and jaded and set in her ways and thinking her life will be this one thing," Dennings says. "Caroline opens her outlook. Now she is more kind and outward and more hopeful and a little crazier.

Which might be them taking my personality."

Dennings is having a terrific year, one that included reprising her role as Darcy in "Thor: The Dark World."

"Darcy is one of the most fun characters I have ever played," she says. "She did not start out as anything in the script of the other movie. It was vague, and they were trying to figure out who would play her, and it depended on the girl coming in. She evolved from cute little Darcy in the first to this amazing character the second. She makes me laugh out loud, and I love her."

By now, Dennings pretty much inhabits Max.

"In a film, you play a character at most for three or four months," she says. "I am now playing Max for three years. It is more integrated in me than any other character. At work it is hard to distinguish between myself and the character." Dennings, who had just left the set, says, "It is a very lucky way to make a living."

Birth date: June 13, 1986 Credits: "Raising Dad," "The 40-Year-Old Virgin," "ER," "The House Bunny"

First time onstage: Doing commercials at 9.

Big break: "An episode of 'Sex and the City.' I was 14, and I had graduated high school right then. I did something kind of different than a normal school. I did subject by subject and sped through high school. It gives you a chance to become interested in a subject completely."

Actors she admires: "Bill Murray, Christopher Walken, Meryl Streep, obviously, and Anjelica Huston. She is incredible. Cher. She is an unbelievable actress."

THURSDAY'S BEST BETS

Rob Corddry

8 p.m. on 2 3 Community

With creator and executive producer Dan Harmon back in the driver's seat, the sitcom opens its fifth season with a pair of new episodes. In "Repilot," Jeff's (Joel McHale) former law partner (Rob Corddry) sends him back to Greendale to gather evidence for a suit. A delighted Dean Pelton (Jim Rash), thinking Jeff has returned to help save the school, calls the study group back together. Gillian Jacobs, Danny Pudi and Donald Glover also star.

10:01 p.m. on 🕤 📵 Elementary

Holmes and Watson (Jonny Lee Miller, Lucy Liu) come face to face with their old adversary Moriarty (Natalie Dormer) when she's brought in as a consultant on a kidnapping case they're investigating. Bell (Jon Michael Hill) continues his struggle to recover in the new episode "The Diabolical Kind." Aidan Quinn also stars.

FRIDAY'S BEST BETS

Molly Ephraim

8 p.m. on 20 23 Last Man Standing

Worried that Mandy (Molly Ephraim) doesn't have much of a social life at college, Vanessa (Nancy Travis) talks her into joining a sorority, which doesn't leave her much time for Kyle (Christoph Sanders). Ed (Hector Elizondo) goes to work incognito on the Outdoor Man loading dock to investigate employee productivity, but he gets a bit too attached to his alter ego in "Pledging." Tim Allen also stars.

9 p.m. on 20 23 Shark Tank

Cupcakes are hot now, and a mother and daughter from Massachusetts hope to cash in on that with their line of cupcakes in a jar. Also in this episode, the Sharks hear pitches for a fishing bobber made from a shotgun shell, a device that generates electricity via walking and a belt with no holes. They also catch up with Billy Blanks Jr., who got funding for his fitness program from Mark and Daymond in Season 3.

9 p.m. on (TNT) Movie: The Italian Job

Honor among thieves goes only so far in director F. Gary Gray's ("The Negotiator") energetic 2003 update of a 1969 heist tale. Mark Wahlberg plays the mastermind behind a Venice gold robbery that goes like clockwork — until one team member (Edward Norton) turns traitor. The others are determined to even the score in Los Angeles, where several small, very speedy cars are pivotal to the plan. Charlize Theron also stars.

10 p.m. on 11 11 Blue Bloods

Danny (Donnie Wahlberg) tries to track down the "Bonnie and Clyde" bank robbers who disarmed the off-duty cop who tried to stop them, then wounded a bystander. An acquaintance of Erin's (Bridget Moynahan) who works for the ACLU catches Frank's (Tom Selleck) eye in "Protest Too Much." Will Estes also stars.

COVER STORY

Dame Julie Andrews returns to Vienna for New Year's treat

By Jay Bobbin © Zap2it

The sound of music still warms Dame Julie Andrews' heart, particularly on New Year's Day.

The Oscar, Emmy, Grammy and Kennedy Center Honors recipient has been the host of the Vienna Philharmonic's traditional holiday concert of Strauss selections on PBS' "Great Performances" for four of the past five years. She returns to the Musikverein to preside over the program for the fifth time Wednesday, Jan. 1 (check local listings), as Daniel Barenboim conducts the orchestra. The Vienna State Opera also will perform again.

"I'm a huge fan," Andrews says of Barenboim, who also was the conductor the first time she succeeded Walter Cronkite in hosting the special in 2009. "I couldn't be more thrilled, and what a kudo for PBS that he's doing it. It'll be a good one."

Andrews gets to tour Vienna sites in the course of the show, but she knows its overall effect is very dependent on the music chosen. "Of course, it's mostly dedicated to the Strauss family," she confirms, "but sometimes, it's also to do with Haydn and the fact that he lived there, or that Mozart went there to visit somebody.

"They always finish with the Blue Danube Waltz, so last year, we did a moment where I was standing by the Danube (river). Those kinds of things are lovely, as are the castles and the homes and the museums that we visit."

Since she prepares for the concert while celebrating the holidays with her family, Andrews allows "it's a logistics thing. Just before Christmas, I'm in Los Angeles. For the second year in a row, I helped the Walt Disney Concert Hall and the L.A. Philharmonic - of which I'm a very proud board member - with their children's concert. The kids are bused in from areas that are in need, and they sing Christmas songs and just have a ball.

"Then I fly back to Long Island (New York) and join my family there, and the day after Christmas, I fly out to Austria. And since I'm there, I give myself the luxury of going to our home in Switzerland, which we've had now for close to 45 years. That is my joy and my treat to myself."

After Carrie Underwood starred in NBC's live, much-watched production of "The Sound of Music" last month, ABC gave Andrews' classic movie version its annual holiday season telecast. That film marks its 50th anniversary in

"NBC's New Year's Eve With Carson Daly" airs Tuesday on NBC.

2015, but the same milestone is being reached in 2014 by the Disney favorite for which Andrews won her Academy Award, "Mary Poppins."

As part of the celebration, the movie has just made its debut on Blu-ray, and its soundtrack is being added to the Grammy Hall of Fame. "It's sort of unbelievable, slightly mind-boggling to me," Andrews muses of the "Poppins" anniversary. "It's not 50 years, is it? It doesn't feel like it. I lost 20 years somewhere. I think this thing called life got in the way."

Here are additional highlights of New Year's Eve and New Year's Day programming.

"NBC's New Year's Eve With Carson Daly" (Tuesday, NBC): Just as the Seacrest-hosted event does, Daly begins the celebration in prime time and carries it past stations' late local news.

SATURDAY'S BEST BETS

Al Michaels

4:30 p.m. on ② ③ NFL Football

NFL playoff action begins with two wild-card games this afternoon and tonight on NBC. The winners here, along with those from tomorrow's two games on CBS and Fox, advance to the divisional round next weekend. NBC's NFL broadcast team includes Al Michaels and Cris Collinsworth.

8 p.m. on 20 28 Movie: Over the Hedge

"Me likey cookie!" This 2006 CGI film is stolen by Steve Carell as the voice of Hammy, a hyper squirrel with an addiction to sugar and caffeine. The main plot revolves around a cunning raccoon (voice of Bruce Willis) who uses naive forest residents to steal food from humans to replenish the stash he took from a hungry bear (voice of Nick Nolte). Additional voices include Garry Shandling, Wanda Sykes and William Shatner.

8 p.m. on (TCM) Movie: The Bad and the Beautiful

Following a reversal of fortune, a ruthless Hollywood producer (Kirk Douglas) is forced to turn for help to a director (Barry Sullivan), an actress (Lana Turner) and a writer (Dick Powell) — all of whom loathe him for the callous way he used and discarded people during his successful years. The 1952 drama also stars Gloria Grahame and Walter Pidgeon.

9 p.m. on (FAM) Movie: The Muppet Movie

Kermit and company made their big-screen debut in this 1979 charmer, which finds the talented amphibian heading to Hollywood to pursue showbiz stardom while trying to avoid becoming the main course at a fried frog legs restaurant. Charles Durning, Austin Pendleton, Dom DeLuise, Mel Brooks and Orson Welles also appear, along with Miss Piggy, Fozzie, Gonzo and the rest of the usual Muppet suspects.
