Groveland relishes 'safe city' designation

ROXANNE BROWN | Staff Writer
roxanne.brown@dailycommercial.com

Groveland — population 8,729 — has been ranked one of the Top 10 Safest Places in Florida by Movoto Blog, a California-based online real estate brokerage.

"We are ranked 10th out of 411 cities across the state of Florida," City Clerk Teresa Begely announced in an email to city employees. "The rankings were based on statistical data of reported crimes from 2012. ...Your hard work and dedication help Groveland become a greater place to live and work."

Movoto's list ranks Groveland number 10 following Parkland, Weston, Marco Island, Sanibel, Punta Gorda, Longboat Key, Bay Harbor Islands, Niceville and Valparaiso.

"With just 144 reported crimes in 2012, Groveland comes in as the final city (number 10 of 10) on our list," the blog stated. "This city of nearly 9,000 people had only 11 reported violent crimes in 2012 — two robberies and nine aggravated assaults.

"Of their property crimes, 80 were theft, 46 were burglaries and seven were motor vehicle theft. All told, residents have just a 1 in 62 chance of being involved in crime in Groveland, making it significantly safer than our least safe city, Florida City, where your chances are just 1 in 8. So good job, Groveland!"

According to the firm, the information gathered to finalize the rankings was based on the FBI's 2012 report of crime statistics.

"We selected the Florida cities and towns with a population of 5,000 or more, which left us with 202 locations in total," the company's website states. "Then, we looked at each of these locations in terms of these three criteria: property crime (theft, burglary, motor vehicle thefts), violent crime (rape, murder, assault) and the chance a resident will be a victim of crime."

John Flinn, a Groveland police commander and assistant to Police Chief Melvin Tennyson, said he thinks the ranking speaks volumes about Groveland and should help

As the nation spends today honoring slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., area and national officials are hoping residents will keep his dream alive through the rest of the year.

The long-time Eustis native and 70-year-old Carla Mitchell, an official with the Eustis African-American Heritage Committee, recalls growing up in a segregated society of white and colored-only signs.

"Recognizing King only one day a year is a disservice to him," said Mitchell. "It is up to the elderly to make sure our youth are always mindful of all he did for us."

King spent his life fighting for the nation to honor all races by giving them equality. As a young minister in Montgomery, Ala., in 1955, King led a bus boycott that was sparked by NAACP member Rosa Parks, a black woman, getting arrested after refusing to give up her seat to a white passenger, as well as the March on Washington in 1963, where he delivered

Iran prepares for start of landmark nuclear deal

TEHRAN, Iran — Ahead of the start of a nuclear deal between Iran and world powers, an official in the Islamic Republic called limiting uranium enrichment and diluting its stockpile the country's "most important commitments," state radio reported Sunday.

The comments by Behrouz Kamalvandi, a spokesman of Iran's atomic department, show how the government of moderate President Hassan Rouhani welcomes the deal, which begins Monday. International inspectors also already have arrived in Tehran, preparing for the government opening its facilities to them.

"Implementation of mutual commitments in the framework of the Geneva deal will begin from tomorrow," Kamalvandi said. "Under the agreement, suspension of 20-percent enrichment of uranium — and the diluting of the current stockpile of enriched uranium — are the most important commitments of our country."

Iran struck the deal in November with the so-called P5+1 countries — Britain, China, France, Germany, Russia and the United States. Negotiators agreed to final terms of the deal Jan. 13.

Under the agreement, Iran will limit its uranium enrichment to 5 percent — the grade commonly used to power reactors. The deal also commits Iran to stop producing 20-percent enriched uranium — which is only a technical step away from weapons-grade material — and to neutralize its 20-percent stockpile over

Lawmakers say Obama surveillance idea won't work

LIBBY QAUID
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A chief element of President Barack Obama's attempt to overhaul U.S. surveillance will not work, leaders of Congress' intelligence committees said Sunday, pushing back against the idea that the government should cede control of how Americans' phone records are stored.

Obama, under pressure to calm the controversy over government spying, said Friday he wants bulk phone data stored outside the government to reduce the risk that the records will be abused. The president said he will require a special judge's advance approval before intelligence agencies can examine someone's data and will force analysts to keep their searches closer to suspected terrorists.

"And I think that's a very difficult thing," Sen. Dianne Feinstein, who chairs the Senate Intelligence Committee, said Sunday. "Because the whole purpose of this program is to provide instantaneous information to be able to disrupt any plot that may be taking place."

Under the surveillance program, the NSA gathers phone numbers called and the length of conversations, but not the content of the calls. Obama said the NSA sometimes needs to tap those records to find people linked to suspected terrorists. But he said eventually the bulk data should be stored somewhere out of the government's hands. That could mean finding a way for phone companies to store the records, though some companies have balked at the idea, or it could mean creating a third-party entity to hold the records.

Feinstein, D-Calif., said many Americans don't understand that threats persist a dozen years after the 9/11 terrorist attacks. "New bombs are being devised. New terrorists are emerging, new groups. Actually, a new level of viciousness. And I think we need to be prepared," Feinstein said.

HOROSCOPES

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Jan. 20, 2014:

This year you emphasize the importance of seeing the big picture. Sometimes, if you are not careful or overthink, you will lose your strong will to act. Watch out for this trait. If you are single, you are unusually attractive. You will have many dating possibilities, but you might attract emotionally unavailable individuals. Be careful. If you are attached, the two of you can work through nearly anything because of your commitment to each other. Be aware of your differences, and respect them. VIRGO sometimes annoys you with his or her penchant for detail.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Listen to what is being shared while you go through your day. You will note that seriousness seems to mark your interactions. A discussion is a must in order for you to understand where others are coming from.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your creativity will help provide a solution; it might not be considered perfect by all parties, but it will work. A partner could try to resist your attempts to bring him or her out of his or her shell. Your caring will be evident, but it still might not work.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Work from home, or handle a domestic matter before you go to work. A partner will come through for you in a big way. Let this person know how much you appreciate his or her efforts. You can balance different concerns with ease.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Ask more questions, and expect to receive clear responses. Everyone needs to be on the same page in order to be most effective. Your depth and interest in handling a personal matter efficiently and with sensitivity will impress a loved one.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be aware of the cost of handling a matter as you are. Play it easy and relaxed in the company of a loved one who can give you feedback that you will accept. A personal or domestic matter lingers in your mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept.

22) Keep conversations moving, especially if they turn the focus to others. You might notice that someone seems closed down. Trust that this person has a good reason, and refuse to personalize the matter. That attitude will mean the world to him or her.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Listen to news and consider what is really being said. Much is going on behind the scenes that you might not understand. Be aware of your options before you launch into action. Someone might not care how a certain idea will affect you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You could be making an error if you choose not to absorb what is said in a meeting with others. Approach a situation with care, yet also be aware of your limits. Be more open, and express your gentle side. Someone can't help but respond.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You like to perform and achieve the highest level of excellence possible. At the moment, you might feel challenged, but you have the assets to make an impression and to excel. Holding back a certain feeling will take a toll on you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Make a point of seeing the whole picture, and refuse to sell yourself short. Your way of dealing with a problem could change once you do. With that alteration will come a different outcome that might be more beneficial to everyone involved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Don't allow someone else to do your dirty work. Reach out and communicate with others directly. Follow this suggestion, and keep all interpersonal matters on a one-on-one level. The results will please you, and others will be more open as well.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You have a strong mind, but a partner will need to think a situation through and come up with his or her own conclusion. Develop the ability to let go, and give others the space to get to where you are. Be patient.

his "I Have a Dream" speech.

Several activities dedicated to King have been celebrated within the several days in Lake and Sumter Counties. Today, a Commemoration Celebration will take place from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Eustis Parks and Recreation Center/Carver Park, 2214 E. Bates Ave.

Sumter County will have three MLK events today: a parade in city of Royal at 10 a.m., a parade in Wildwood at 11 a.m. and a King banquet to recognize and honor "outstanding residents" will occur 5 p.m. at the Royal Community Center, 9569 County Road 235.

Louis Ward is an official with the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Commemoration Committee of Lake and Sumter Counties, which put on most of the annual area activities this month and whose theme is "Advancing the Dream," the same one used in last year's nationwide 50th anniversary celebration of King's civil rights March on Washington.

Ward said despite King's effort to bring the races together in harmony, the area and nation still remains somewhat divisive.

"People need to understand that King wasn't about just fairness to blacks, he was about equality for all people," said Ward. "We need to make sure people know that every day of the year."

King's daughter, Bernice, is calling for a "no shots fired" day today in honor of her father's support of non-violence.

According to a Reuters article, in a time of school shootings and increasingly violent movies, television shows and video games, Bernice King said she believes her father's philosophy of non-violence is more relevant than it was 10 years ago.

"America has an enormous appetite for violence. I don't know why we have such an affinity for that, but I do know it has to stop," said Bernice King, chief executive officer of the Atlanta-based Martin Luther King Center.

Capt. Rob Hicks, spokesman for the Leesburg Police Department, said he supported the efforts of Bernice King.

"I hope that her call for non-violence is respected," said Hicks. "It is a great way to honor the memory of such an influential leader and a man who advocated non-violence."

King's birthday is on Jan. 15, but recognized nationally the third Monday of January. Various area city and county offices are closed today to honor King and many residents have the day off from work.

Leesburg Mayor John Christian said residents should not just honor King by taking the day off and relaxing but should pay tribute to him throughout the year.

"Get involved in a community effort that brings people together," he said.

the six months.

In exchange, economic sanctions Iran faces would be eased for six months. Senior officials in President Barack Obama's administration have put the total relief figure at some $7 billion.

During the six months, negotiations between Iran and the world powers would continue in hopes of reaching a permanent deal.

The West fears Iran's nuclear program could allow it to build an atomic weapon. Iran insists its nuclear program is for peaceful purposes, like power generation and medical research.

On Saturday a team of international inspectors arrived in Tehran in preparation of beginning their inspections. They will visit Fordo, where Iran enriches its 20-percent uranium, as well as its Natanz facility, which produces 5-percent enriched uranium, to ensure the country complies with the deal.

attract people to the town.

Flinn said also that even though the crime statistics used for the rankings on the top-10 list Movoto devised are based on 2012 statistics, the same holds true today because of the day-to-day mentality the department strives to maintain.

"I attribute our success in keeping crime in Groveland down to a lot of proactive patrols on behalf of our duty shifts," Flinn said. "And with the benefit of our officers, the residents in our community and the intel systems we use within the police department, we can identify what areas we need to focus on."

"When we identify problem areas, we do a needs assessment and focus our efforts there."

Flinn said the department has two Directive Patrol positions, which focus on traffic enforcement and problem areas.

In an email to Tennyson and Fire Chief Willie Morgan, Groveland Mayor Tim Loucks praised both departments' efforts.

"I wanted to take this opportunity to personally thank you both, and all in the Groveland police and fire departments, for a job well done," Loucks said.

Opening lead — nine of diamonds.

One of the most authoritative bridge books ever written, "Morehead on Bidding," contains this classic deal, which demonstrates the benefits that can accrue from keeping your ears open during the bidding.

If you took only at West's hand, you might wonder whether he had taken leave of his senses when he doubled four spades. But West knew exactly what he was doing, and was extremely well-rewarded for his perspicacity.

West had listened carefully to the bidding and was able to project how the play was likely to go. He realized from North's two-diamond response to the opening spade bid and South's raise in diamonds that East had either one diamond or none.

So, acting on this reasonable deduction, West doubled and led the nine of diamonds, a suit-preference signal telling East what to return if he ruffed the first trick. West's fondest hopes were realized when East ruffed and returned the queen of hearts.

South and West both ducked, but West won the next heart with the ace and this time returned his lowest diamond, the deuce, asking for a club return at trick five. East ruffed and dutifully led a club. South did as well as he could when he rose with the ace and returned a trump, but he was fighting a hopelessly lost cause.

West took the ace of trumps and led a third round of diamonds. East ruffed again, returned a club to West's king — the seventh trick for the defense — and West had 1,100 points in the bank to show for his well-judged double.

Eustis to get second fire station

MILLARD K. IVES | Staff Writer
millardives@dailyccommercial.com

After almost three decades of serving residents with only one fire station, the Eustis Fire Department will add another one.

City commissioners recently voted to build a $350,000 station on 2.5 acres of city-owned land on Hicks Ditch Road, just south of the intersection with County Road 44. Eustis Fire Chief Rex Winn, who has been with the department since 1993, said they have wanted a second station for at least 20 years but didn't have the money.

Fire impact fees helped to generate funds for the building.

"It will allow us to make a lot of difference in the north part of the city," said Winn, of a department that typically responds to more than 3,270 calls every year. "It definitely will mean quicker response times."

A pre-bid construction meeting for the new station is planned Jan.

28 and bids will be opened Feb. 18.

Ground breaking for the project is expected in February and the building should be completed by the end of 2014.

Winn said the 24-hour Station No. 23 will include sleeping quarters and office space as well as other modern conveniences lacking in the current station that was built in 1984 at 100 W. Norton Ave. But he was quick to point out the department won't overspend on amenities.

Jim Gelslechter, an assistant professor in the biology department at the University of North Florida, holds one of the receivers that will be used to track shark movements in Jacksonville.

Researchers serious about tracking great white sharks

MATT SOERGL
The Florida Times-Union

JACKSONVILLE — The search for great white sharks off the coast of Jacksonville — just off the beach, in fact — is about to get a lot more serious.

By the end of this month, the University of North Florida's shark-research program expects to place as many as 10 sensors in the Atlantic. If a great white that's been tagged by a tracking device swims within a few hundred yards of a sensor, scientists will know.

The devices will be near the beach, perhaps a half-mile or mile from the sand. The great whites, after all, do come in close.

The nonprofit shark-research group, Ocearch, last January tracked a 16 1/2-foot great white named Mary Lee in the surf zone in Jacksonville Beach.

They then brought their research vessel on an expedition to Jacksonville and caught and tagged 14-foot Lydia within eyesight of Hanna Park. Meanwhile, the satellite tag on Katharine was showing that shark hanging around near Cape Canaveral.

The Ocearch sharks are tracked by GPS devices, which are caught by satellite every time they rise to the surface.

Don't think of UNF's nearshore devices as early-warning signals, though. The sensors store information but can't transmit it instantly; it will have to wait until researchers travel to them and download the data.

Jim Gelslechter, a shark expert at UNE, is still making final plans on where to place his school's sensors, which will be able to spot the sharks underwater.

He said they'll most likely be attached to buoys in Nassau Sound, Fort George Inlet, the Mayport area, Jacksonville Beach, Ponte Vedra Beach and St. Augustine.

Chris Fischer, founder of Ocearch, is on an expedition in the Galapagos Islands. He said he was "thrilled" by the new sensors off Jacksonville, calling them a crucial link in researchers'

BUSHNELL

Heritage trail to be official Friday

Staff Report

Brian Blanchard, assistant secretary of the Florida Department of Transportation, will be among the officials taking part in a ribbon-cutting in Bushnell on Saturday for a Sumter County scenic roadway designation.

The Scenic Sumter Heritage Byway becomes the 24th Florida Scenic Highway to be designated by the FDOT. It includes 62 miles of roadway from State Road 50 to State Road 44.

According to Samantha Merritt of the Sumter County Chamber of Commerce, the Florida Scenic Byway Program is a grass-roots effort to heighten awareness of Florida's historical and intrinsic resources — cultural, recreational, natural and scenic — which collectively enhance the overall traveling experience.

The roads that comprise the byway traverse pastoral farmlands, cattle ranches, horse farms and interesting small towns. Attractions along the way include the General James Van Fleet Trail State Park, Richloam Wildlife Area, Dade Battlefield Historic State Park, Florida National Cemetery and Lake Panasoffkee.

The ceremony begins at 9 a.m. Saturday at the Dade Battlefield Historic State Park, 7200 County Road 603. There will be free admission to the park for this event from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The Dade Battlefield Historic Society will provide a history lesson featuring time period re-enactors and musket firing demonstrations.

Leesburg native Sandi Moore is at the helm as the new executive director of the Leesburg Area Chamber of Commerce, and she comes to the Chamber following 7 1/2 years with the Leesburg Partnership, where she was involved in coordinating Saturday Morning Market, Mardi Gras and other events geared to bring folks downtown.

"I have a deep love for our community, and one of the things that appealed to me about the job is that I didn't feel like I had changed teams. I'm still on Team Leesburg," Moore said Sunday during a telephone interview.

Moore's new executive position allows her to expand from the downtown area to provide support and Chamber services to the business community through the Leesburg area.

"There is a lot of potential," she said. "We have a lot of great businesses and we want to really sup-

LSSC has new officers, board members

Staff report

The Lake-Sumter State College Foundation Inc. recently installed new officers and welcomed 11 new board members.

"As the principal fundraising organization for Lake-Sumter State College, the board of directors play a crucial role in the success of the college with their assistance to the foundation in generating private gifts to the college that include support for students, faculty, staff and instruction," Erin O'Steen Lewin, foundation development manager, said in a press release.

"We are extremely pleased to welcome our new officers and board members," said Brandeburg, the foundation's executive director.

"Through their leadership, LSSC will continue to provide the opportunities for higher education to our students, community partners, as well as to provide the insight and guidance our community has come to expect."

Eleven new board members also were installed: Bob Bone, Mike DeGraw, LeLayna France, Josh Gonzales, Lindsay Holt, David Jordan, Kathy Nail, Jacqueline Perry, Kim Varnadore, Linda Weekley and Joe Ziler, all of whom have been working with the foundation.

"I am very honored and humbled to serve as president of the Lake-Sumter State College Foundation Board for 2014," McRae said.

"Being a part of a board that positively affects the lives of so many students has been very exciting for me and as an alumnus it makes serving even more special."

The foundation's mission is to help provide excellence in education, service to the community and financial assistance to qualified students. For information, call 352-365-3518.

the Chamber and Partnership collaborating on some projects and showing support for each other's work.

"The Chamber is not the Partnership and there is no reason why we should look to each other like competition at all," she said. "We should be able to work together for the good of the community while maintaining our own identity because we each essentially have different focuses, but some of our focuses do overlap and in those cases, we can work together and not against each other."

Moore praised Joe Shipes, her former boss at the Leesburg Partnership, for being instrumental in preparing her for her new role.

"I really enjoyed all of my time at the Leesburg Partnership and I believed in the organization and what they are doing for the community," she said. "I have always loved working with Joe. He was a very generous boss in what he taught."

Moore said her new position comes at the perfect time.

"This is an opportunity in a time when we have a new city manager, and we are going to be having a new economic development person," she said. "There are lots of things happening within the city, and so I'm looking at the Chamber as another piece of that, and seeing where we can all work together so much more cohesively."

Moore began Jan. 6, and has been touched by the "overwhelming support" she has received.

"One of the things that I am really looking forward to is really listening to and hearing from the businesses," she said.

"I think that I have a good idea of what would be good, but at the same time, I'm really trying to keep my mind open to hearing what people want and what they are looking for."

The new director also aspires to increase the Chamber's membership from its current 350-plus businesses.

"My goal is to make it relevant; I want people to see the benefit of being a Chamber member, and maybe bring some of the people who were a little disgruntled back into the fold," she said of former members. "I hope that they will really see its value and relevance to being a member of the Chamber."

Moore replaces Jan Zacharchuk, the former director, who was cut Sept. 26, 2013, after the board of directors eliminated the top job and said it planned to reorganize and restructure the position.

"It will look more like a house," Winn said.

He added city employees will conduct much of the site work.

A fire truck from the downtown station will be moved to the new facility's 1,584 square-foot engine bay. The station will also have a brush truck.

Winn said some of the department's 21 firefighters will start using the new building and they also will hire another person.

A history of the Eustis Fire Department, written in 2012, stated that of all that has happened over the past 100 years, "The one bad thing is that they only have one fire station that is on West Norton Avenue, but Chief Winn says they are trying to work on getting another fire station soon."

Man reported missing

TARRAND

Lake County sheriff's detectives are looking for a missing Mascotte man and are asking for the public's help in finding him, officials said Sunday.

Xavier Tarrand, 20, of Douglas Road in Mascotte, was last seen the night of Jan 15 at the Race Trac gas station at the intersection of State Road 50 and State Road 33 in Groveland.

"A family member dropped Tarrand off at the gas station to meet with someone, at which time Tarrand left with an unknown person in a black vehicle," Lt. John Herrell, LCSO spokesman, said in a statement.

"Tarrand has not returned home and has not been seen since;

therefore, the circumstances surrounding his disappearance are considered suspicious."

Herrell said Groveland Police Department began the initial investigation before turning it over to the Sheriff's Office on Saturday.

Lake County sheriff's detectives are asking for anyone with information to call the Sheriff's Office at 352-343-2101 or Central Florida CRIMELINE at 1-800-423-TIPS.

understanding of great whites.

Placing the sensors close to shore is a big plus, too, Fischer said. The tracking devices are showing that some great whites spend much more of their time poking their noses into inlets and cruising along beaches than what was once believed.

"What's really surprised us is the coastal portion of their life, which particularly seems significant in the Southeast," he said.

Ocearch's high-profile spottings of great whites in the area created a buzz in traditional media outlets and social-media sites. Mary Lee, a celebrity shark, even has a Facebook page.

So are there more great whites in the ocean off Jacksonville?

Experts aren't sure. "Finding white sharks is tough," said Greg Skomal, a shark expert at the Massachusetts Division of Marine Fisheries who accompanies the Ocearch vessel on its expedition to Jacksonville. "Counting them is even tougher."

But Skomal said there has definitely been a big rebound in the great-white population off Cape Cod the last couple of decades. That's due to efforts to protect the seals there, which sharks find tasty.

Thanks to tracking devices implanted in those Cape Cod sharks, scientists know they frequently range as far south as Florida. So it seems likely that more Cape Cod sharks equals more Florida sharks.

"I don't think it's any reason to run up and down the beach screaming," Gelsleichter said. "But the scientist in me is curious about it."

Gelsleichter, an assistant professor of biology, has been fascinated by sharks ever since he saw "Jaws" at age 6. Yes, he knows it wasn't an age-appropriate movie, but there you have it.

He's now directing the university's Shark Biology Program, which studies the many species of sharks in the area. Great whites, the apex predator of the ocean, attract the most media attention, however — even if they're not much of a threat to humans on the East Coast.

In July 2012 a swimmer was bitten off Cape Cod and survived; that was the first great-white-shark injury there in 75 years, Gelsleichter said.

Meanwhile, the International Shark Attack File at the Florida Museum of Natural History said there has not been a single documented instance in Florida's recorded history of a great white attacking a human.

Scientists once thought the animals summered off Cape Cod and wintered in the Southeast — a pretty simple pattern.

Central Florida airport hopes fake grass will keep birds away

Associated Press

SANFORD — A central Florida airport wants to install artificial turf to deter birds from hanging around the planes.

Sanford International Airport officials say birds cause problems for dozens of planes a year. One jet had to make an emergency landing after a bird flew into one of its engines.

In 2012, the Federal Aviation Administration spent more than $100,000 on air cannons to scare away birds. Airport officials tell WFTV that they now want to take a quieter approach.

Officials say artificial turf doesn't retain water or food, so the birds won't want to hang around the airport.

Three acres of the fake grass has been proposed for the north side of the airport at a cost of more than $500,000. Airport officials plan to finalize the project next month.

Postal Service, union wrangle over retail centers in Staples

SAM HANANEL
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The opening of Postal Service retail centers in dozens of Staples stores around the country is being met with threats of protests and boycotts by the agency's unions.

The new outlets are staffed by Staples employees, not postal workers, and labor officials say that move replaces good-paying union jobs with low-wage, non-union workers.

"It's a direct assault on our jobs and on public postal services," said Mark Dimondstein, president of the 200,000-member American Postal Workers Union.

The dispute comes as the financially struggling Postal Service continues to form partnerships with private companies, and looks to cut costs and boost revenue. The deal with Staples began as a pilot program in November at 84 stores in California, Georgia, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania as a way make it easier for customers to buy stamps, send packages or use Priority and certified mail.

Postmaster General Patrick Donahoe said the program has nothing to do with privatization and everything to do with customer service and driving up demand for the agency's products.

"The privatization discussion is a ruse," Donahoe said in an interview. "We have no interest in privatizing the Postal Service. We are looking to grow our business to provide customer convenience to postal products."

Staples spokeswoman Carrie McElwee referred questions about union concerns to the Postal Service. She said the company "continually tests new products and services to better meet the needs of our customers."

Union leaders fear that if the Staples program is successful, the Postal Service will want to expand it to more than 1,500 of the company's other stores. That could siphon work and customers away from nearby brick-and-mortar post offices, taking jobs from postal workers and even leading traditional post offices to close.

Union leaders have been visiting Staples stores to meet with managers, asking them to share the union's displeasure with upper management.

Dimondstein asked to meet with the Staples CEO Ronald Sargent, who has declined.

The union plans to hold "sustained" protests this month at Staples stores in the San Francisco and San Jose, Calif., area that would be expanded elsewhere. Union officials also are considering how they can exert pressure on Staples shareholders.

"If Staples insists on continuing to refuse to staff those stores with postal workers, we're going to urge people to take their business elsewhere," Dimondstein said.

The union wants the counters to be run by postal employees, not workers hired by Staples. The average postal clerk earns about $25 an hour, according to the union. The Staples post office counters are run by non-union workers often making little more than the minimum wage.

Adelman said.

The images are among roughly 150 assembled at Nova Southeastern University's Museum of Art-Fort Lauderdale for an exhibit marking the half-century since the Civil Rights Act was passed in 1964.

Adelman volunteered his services as a photographer to the Congress of Racial Equality and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee. He went on to shoot the covers of national magazines and the front pages of national newspapers, but he always considered himself an activist.

"Unlike photo-journalists trying to get the shot, this is somebody that is part of the circle really recognizing the role he can play in bringing about change through his images," museum director Bonnie Clearwater said.

The exhibit is titled "The Movement," referring to both the efforts to end segregation in America and Adelman's aesthetic as a photographer, Clearwater said.

Adelman wanted to capture the spirit of the demonstrations on film, but frame after frame focuses on bodies — how the people in the movement physically moved.

Another image from the march to Montgomery shows King and his wife at the front of a crowd that seems endless behind them, in spite of the rain that has dampened their clothes. The descendants of enslaved people who had no rights to their own bodies were marching en masse across a landscape in which signs and white people told black people where they could and could not go.

"I told my friends, 'This is history,' even though it was not apparent to many people," Adelman said. "I thought this using your body to try to change things, whether you tried to vote or went to the bathroom or you were trying to go into a movie theater or whatever — that was inescapable and it was I guess very, very provocative and confrontational."

In his Miami Beach home, above a fireplace filled with dozens of the books he has published, hangs Adelman's iconic image of King delivering his "I Have a Dream" speech at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, raising his right hand over his head as he crescendos with the words of an old spiritual, "Free at last! Free at last! Thank God Almighty, we are free at last!"

The contact sheet with that image has been enlarged for the exhibit. The frame is in the center of a row of negatives and has a crack through its center. It was reprinted so many times that the negative tore.

"I've spent 50 years wondering, with all these photographers there, why I took the definitive picture," said Adelman, 83. "I only came there because I knew that Doc was the most extraordinary speaker I ever heard and he would speak in an unforgettable way."

Ukraine protests escalate into fiery street battles

MARIA DANILOVA
Associated Press

KIEV, Ukraine — Anti-government protests in Ukraine's capital escalated into fiery street battles with police Sunday as thousands of demonstrators hurled rocks and firebombs to set police vehicles ablaze. Dozens of officers and protesters were injured.

Police responded with stun grenades, tear gas and water cannons, but were outnumbered by the protesters. Many of the riot police held their shields over their heads to protect themselves from the projectiles thrown by demonstrators on the other side of a cordon of buses.

The violence was a sharp escalation of Ukraine's two-month political crisis, which has brought round-the-clock protest gatherings, but had been largely peaceful.

Opposition leader Vitali Klitschko tried to persuade demonstrators to stop their unrest, but failed and was sprayed by a fire extinguisher in the process. Klitschko later traveled to President Viktor Yanukovich's suburban residence and said the president has agreed to negotiate.

"There are only two ways for events to develop. The first one is not to negotiate," Klitschko was quoted as saying by the Interfax news agency. "A scenario of force can be unpredictable and I don't rule out the possibility of a civil war. ... And here we are using all possibilities in order to prevent bloodshed."

Yanukovich said later on his website that he has tasked a working group, headed by national security council head Andriy Klyuev, to meet with opposition representatives to work out a solution to the crisis. However, it was unclear if either side was prepared for real compromise; throughout the crisis, the opposition has insisted on the government's resignation and calling early presidential elections.

The crisis erupted in November after Yanukovich's decision to freeze ties with the European Union and seek a huge bailout from Russia. The decision sparked protests, which increased in size and determination after police twice violently dispersed demonstrators.

But anger rose substantially after Yanukovich last week signed an array of laws severely limiting protests and banning the wearing of helmets and gas masks.

Many of Sunday's demonstrators wore hardhats and masks in defiance of the new laws. They set several police buses on fire and some chased and beat officers.

Police responded with tear gas and stun grenades. Water cannons were also fired at the protesters in temperatures of 18 F, but the clashes continued.

The harsh new laws brought a crowd of tens of thousands to the protest at Kiev's central square on Sunday.

While most remained on the square, a group of radicals marched toward a police cordon several hundred meters away blocking an area housing government offices and began attacking riot police with sticks to push their way toward Ukraine's parliament building. The crowd then swelled to thousands.

The blasts of stun grenades echoed and plumes of smoke rose above the crowd. Activists chanted "Shame!" and "Revolution." The Interior Ministry said more than 70 police were injured, four of them seriously; there were no immediate figures for protester injuries.

NJ mayor: Sandy aid ultimatum came from Christie

ANGELA DELLI SANTI
Associated Press

TRENTON, N.J. — The Democratic mayor of a town severely flooded by Superstorm Sandy said Sunday that she was told an ultimatum tying recovery funds to her support for a prime real estate project came directly from Republican Gov. Chris Christie.

Hoboken Mayor Dawn Zimmer told CNN's "State of the Union with Candy Crowley" that the message pushing a Rockefeller Group commercial development was delivered by Christie's lieutenant governor, Kim Guadagno, when the two were at an event in Hoboken in May to celebrate the opening of a new supermarket.

"The lieutenant governor pulled me aside and said, essentially, 'You've got to move forward with the Rockefeller project. This project is really important to the governor.' And she said that she had been with him on Friday night and that this was a direct message from the governor," Zimmer recalled Guadagno saying.

Christie spokesman Colin Reed issued a statement Sunday saying, "Mayor Zimmer's categorization about her conversation in Hoboken is categorically false."

Taliban bombing kills 20 troops in Pakistan compound

IAJAZ MOHAMMED REBECCA SANTANA
Associated Press

BANNU, Pakistan — A Taliban bombing inside an army compound in northwest Pakistan killed at least 20 troops Sunday, officials and militants said, in one of the deadliest attacks to target the country's forces as they battle insurgents in its volatile frontier.

The blast targeted a vehicle in a convoy about to leave a military base in the town of Bannu and drive west to the North Waziristan tribal area, police official Inyat Ali Khan said. Pakistan's military said the blast wounded 30 troops.

The Taliban claimed the attack and called it a suicide bombing. Military officials said the blast came from an explosive planted in the vehicle, hired by the paramilitary Frontier Corps. While the army has its own transport vehicles, the paramilitary forces often hire vehicles when they need to move troops in large numbers.

A spokesman for the Pakistani Taliban, Shahidullah Shahid, told The Associated Press by telephone that the attack had been carried out to avenge the death of Waliur Rehman, the group's former second in command. He was killed last year in a U.S. drone strike.

"We will avenge the killing of every one of our fellows through such attacks," the spokesman warned.

The explosion was heard and felt across the town of Bannu.

"I rushed out of my home and saw black, thick smoke billowing out of the cantonment's Razmak gate area," resident Sajjad Khan said. He said troops quickly cordoned off the area and ordered residents to go back inside.

North Waziristan is considered a safe haven for al-Qaida-linked militants. Pakistani troop convoys often are hit by roadside bombs, but blasts inside military compounds are rare.

Last December, a suicide bomber killed four Pakistani soldiers when he rammed an explosive-laden car into a checkpoint outside an army camp in North Waziristan. Thirty Pakistani troops died over a four-day period last April in another part of the northwest called the Tirah Valley as part of an operation to oust militants hiding there.

The Pakistani military has been fighting for years in the tribal areas against militants who want to overthrow the government and establish a hard-line Islamic state. The tribal region is also a refuge for insurgents fighting NATO and U.S. forces in neighboring Afghanistan.

The truth about lying in politics

Lying by and about politicians is a regrettable and probably permanent feature of American democracy. But should it also be a criminal offense? The Supreme Court has agreed to hear an argument by an antiabortion group challenging an Ohio law that criminalizes false statements about candidates for public office. The justices should allow the group's claim to proceed. Using criminal law to police truth in political debate is unnecessary and invites abuse.

The Ohio law prohibits false statements about a candidate if they are made knowingly or with reckless disregard of whether they might be false. If the Ohio Elections Commission decides the law was violated, it "shall refer" the matter to prosecutors.

During the 2010 election campaign, the Susan B. Anthony List, an antiabortion political action committee, planned to post an ad on billboards accusing then-Rep. Steven Driehaus, D-Ohio, of voting "for taxpayer-funded abortion" when he supported the Affordable Care Act. Driehaus filed a complaint with the commission under the false statement law, and fearing legal reprisals, the advertising company that owned the billboard space refused to post the ad.

The Susan B. Anthony List tried to challenge the constitutionality of the law, but the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals said that no "case or controversy" existed because the elections commission hadn't made a final decision on Driehaus' complaint and because the group couldn't establish that it faced an "imminent threat" of prosecution.

Citizens who believe a law violates their First Amendment rights ought to be able to make that case even if they aren't in immediate danger of being prosecuted. And the Ohio law is constitutionally suspect, especially after a 2012 decision in which the Supreme Court struck down a law making it a crime to falsely claim to have received military honors.

However well intended, laws criminalizing false statements about candidates could have the unintended effect of stifling truthful political speech. As the Supreme Court has observed: "Erroneous statement is inevitable in free debate, and ... it must be protected if the freedoms of expression are to have the breathing space that they need ... to survive."

Claims by and about candidates are best tested in the back-and-forth of a political campaign, in journalistic fact-checking and, if worse comes to worst, in a civil libel trial, not in a criminal trial.

For Jahi, it's past time for a reality check

The case of Jahi McMath, the 13-year-old Oakland, Calif., girl who was declared brain dead Dec. 12 following complications from tonsil and sinus surgery, hasn't ended yet. Insisting Jahi was still alive and should remain on the ventilator that was keeping her heart beating, the girl's family fought Children's Hospital Oakland and was finally allowed by a judge to take her body into their custody. On Jan. 5, the body was moved to an undisclosed facility where, according to the family's attorney, Christopher Dolan, "her health is improving."

Jahi's saga gives rise to several conflicting strains of accusation. The family and its supporters vilified the hospital for stopping treatment. The public, while sympathetic to the family, saw Dolan as a shameless opportunist who'd stirred up a media circus.

I've already made the somewhat subtle point that beneath the welter of conflicting views lurked the desire to locate some source of blame — including the family — in an effort to cope with the terrifying randomness of a child dying under such circumstances.

But the truth is that Jahi has been dead for more than a month now, and the time for subtlety is over. The situation, to put it bluntly, is a disgrace.

Dolan, who has argued that it shouldn't be up to doctors but rather families to determine when death has occurred, has done a grave disservice to the McMath family by enabling their delusions. In turn, they have done a disservice to their community by maligning a world-class hospital, which serves some of the area's poorest children, with as-yet-unsubstantiated implications of poor treatment.

The most disgraceful party in all of this, however, may be the media, which have done a disser-

The hospital, even before the court order, gave the family many more days to say goodbye than most loved ones get in such circumstances. The judge, seemingly against all logic, gave the family a power, and a burden, that no family should have to wield or shoulder. The media (including me) gave them attention that, like the donations, would have been better spent elsewhere.

vice to a public that, despite the endless coverage of the case, remains widely confused about the difference between brain death, from which there is no recovery, and comas or vegetative states, in which the brain continues to function to some degree.

It's hard to say what's worse, the countless and continued uses of the misnomer "life support" or the remarkable amount of exposure granted to "experts," many affiliated with radical religious groups, determined to cite a handful of "recovery from brain death" cases that are really misdiagnoses of brain death. And don't get me started on a local TV news report about Jahi's eighth-grade classmates, who were told by at least one administrator and even some parents that their friend might return someday.

This is all, of course, done in the guise of balance, and to generate the kind of page views I'll call "rage views." But this is no longer a story that requires balance. A teenager, tragically, has died. Her family deserves sensitivity and compassion, but do they deserve authority over doctors and the coroner in declaring someone dead? Do they get to do whatever they want with a body? Do they deserve to collect nearly $60,000 in GoFundMe contributions they've solicited under the pretense that six separate doctors have made a wrong diagnosis and a resurrection will happen?

Figures from the National Center for Health Statistics tell us that every day, roughly 7,000 people die in this country. Many are declared dead after being taken off ventilators, and many — though we don't like to think about it — are children who, like Jahi, have died suddenly and seemingly inexplicably.

For whatever reasons — coercion, denial, distrust, greed, grief — Jahi's family got the idea that they were somehow different. As harmful as that is to their healing process, it's also harmful to society's well-being, a harm that too many, whatever their intentions, have perpetuated.

The hospital, even before the court order, gave the family many more days to say goodbye than most loved ones get in such circumstances. The judge, seemingly against all logic, gave the family a power, and a burden, that no family should have to wield or shoulder. The media (including me) gave them attention that, like the donations, would have been better spent elsewhere.

In that sense, Jahi's family is right: They were mistreated. They were treated as special. And death, though it is singular and especially horrifying when it befalls a young person, is about as unspecial as it gets. Believing otherwise will only prolong their suffering and draw out a story that should have ended long ago.

Manning, Broncos dominate Patriots to earn trip to Super Bowl

EDDIE PELLIS

DENVER — Peyton Manning had an answer for everyone. What's new?

For Tom Brady. For the New England defense. For anyone who thought he couldn't win the big one.

Manning is taking the Denver Broncos on a trip to New York for the Super Bowl after another of his impeccably crafted victories — this time, a 26-16 win over the Patriots on Sunday in the AFC title game.

Less than three years after being unable to throw a football because of his surgically ravaged neck and nerve endings, Manning will get a chance for his second ring. He'll try to become the first quarterback to win one with two different teams, at the Meadowlands on Feb. 2 against Seattle, who defeated San Francisco.

"It's very rewarding when you put a lot of hard work into the off-season and the regular season and it pays dividends with a huge win," Manning said.

After taking the final knee, Manning stuffed the football in his helmet and ran to the 30-yard line to shake hands with Brady. The Indy-turned-Denver quarterback improved to 5-10 lifetime against New England's QB but 2-1 in AFC title games.

"He's been remarkable. It's unprecedented what he did," Broncos coach John Fox said.

Though Manning threw for 400 yards, it was more dink-and-dunk than a fireworks show in this, the 15th installment of the NFL's two best quarterbacks of a generation. Manning set up four field goals by Matt Prater and put his stamp on this one with a pair of long, meticulous and mistake-free touchdown drives in which nothing came cheap.

He geared down the no-huddle, hurry-up offense that helped him set records for touchdown passes and yardage this season and made the Broncos the highest-scoring team in history. The result: 93- and 80-yard touchdown drives that each lasted a few seconds over seven minutes; they were the two longest, time-wise, of the season for the Broncos (15-3).

Manning capped the second with a 3-yard

Magic end their 10-game skid with win over Celtics

ORLANDO — Arron Afflalo had 20 points and 13 rebounds, Tobias Harris added 18 points and the Orlando Magic snapped a season-high 10-game losing streak with a 93-91 win over the Boston Celtics on Sunday night.

After several ties in the fourth quarter, Harris hit a pair of free throws with 10.1 seconds remaining to give Orlando the victory.

The win also ends a 10-game regular-season losing streak to the Celtics.

Glen Davis added 17 points and Jameer Nelson 16 for Orlando.

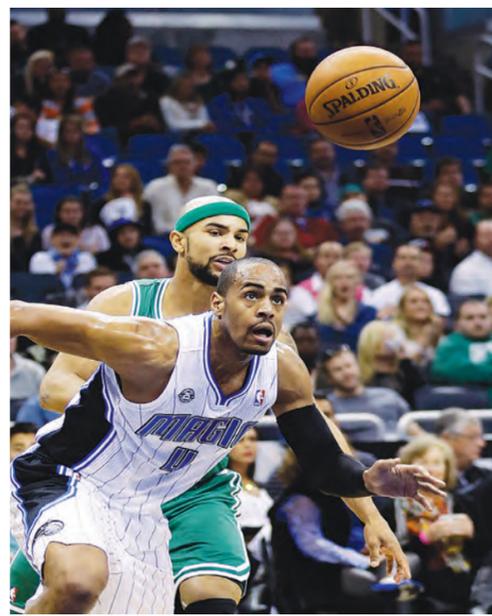

Boston has lost nine straight on the road and 11 of 12 overall.

Jeff Green led the Celtics with 22 points, and Avery Bradley and Kris Humphries added 18 apiece. Rajon Rondo had six points and four assists in his second game back from a torn ACL.

Orlando scored the first basket of the third quarter to build a nine-point lead, but went cold and allowed Boston to reel off a 13-2 run and re-take the lead, 61-57.

The Magic were able to steady themselves, and after three different ties in the first six minutes of the fourth, nudged back in front

SEATTLE — The Seattle Seahawks are bringing their game-changing defense — and the 12th Man — to the Big Apple for the Super Bowl.

Seattle's top-ranked defense forced three fourth-quarter turnovers, and Russell Wilson threw a 35-yard touchdown pass on fourth down for the winning points in a 23-17 victory over the San Francisco 49ers for the NFC title Sunday.

Seattle will meet Denver (15-3) for the NFL title in two weeks in the New Jersey Meadowlands. It's the first trip to the big game for the Seahawks (15-3) since they lost to Pittsburgh after the 2005 season.

The conference champs had the best records in the league this year, the first time the top seeds have gotten to the Super Bowl since the 2010 game.

Moments after Richard Sherman tipped Colin Kaepernick's pass to teammate Malcolm Smith for the clinching interception, the All-Pro cornerback jumped into the stands behind the end zone, saluting the Seahawks' raucous fans. With 12th Man flags waving everywhere, and Cardinals rookie right-hander Shelby Miller doesn't know why he wasn't used in the postseason. Now, he simply wants to get on with the game.

Cardinals' Shelby Miller armed for coming season

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Shelby Miller pitched just one inning in the playoffs last season for the Cardinals and is puzzled why he wasn't used more. Now he simply wants to get on with next season.

"It's tough to not get to pitch in the postseason and stuff, but at the same time, we had a good thing going and it's hard to change it up," Miller said Sunday during the annual Cardinals' Winter Warmup. "I don't really have a good answer for it to be honest. We were winning games, so you can't really complain."

Miller had a 15-9 record last year with a 3.06 ERA, 10th best in the league. In the postseason, the 23-year-old rookie right-hander pitched one inning of relief against Pittsburgh in the NL division series. He gave up a home run.

And that was it. He says there were no injury concerns with this shoulder and he wasn't tired.

"Physically, I felt amazing," he said. "I felt good. I didn't feel any better or worse than I did during the season."

No one in the organization told him why he was put on the shelf. Nor did he ask for a reason, either.

"The season just kind of ended and I just kind of put it in the past really," Miller said. "I was a little upset I didn't pitch but I just put it away. After the season ended, I just wanted to be ready for a big off-season."

"I didn't want to dwell on the past and why I didn't pitch in October. I'm not worried about it anymore. I'm just going to let it be a mystery. A mystery unsolved."

'Sid the Kid' now known as 'Captain Canada'

Associated Press

OTTAWA, Ontario — "Sid the Kid" is now "Captain Canada."

Pittsburgh Penguins star Sidney Crosby, who lifted his home country to gold in Vancouver four years ago, will captain the Canadian hockey team in Sochi.

"You hear names being kind of thrown around," Crosby said. "There's so many leaders and so many guys capable of leading by example. It's just an honor."

The 26-year-old currently leads the NHL in scoring and has become the face of both the NHL and hockey in Canada.

The Chicago Blackhawks' Jonathan Toews and the Nashville Predators' Shea Weber will be alternate captains, Hockey Canada announced Sunday.

"Sidney, Jonathan and Shea have been leaders on the international stage in the past, as well as with their NHL teams," coach Mike Babcock said in a statement. "These three players will be at the forefront of our efforts in Sochi, but we are confident we have 25 players on our roster that will lead in their own way and allow our team to be successful."

Crosby was made the youngest captain in NHL history when he got the "C" for the Penguins 6½ years ago.

White helps No. 14 Iowa blow past Minnesota 94-73

LUKE MEREDITH

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Aaron White scored all of his 18 points in the second half and Josh Oglesby added a season-high 17 points as 14th-ranked Iowa blew past Minnesota 94-73 on Sunday.

Devyn Marble had 15 of his 16 points after halftime for the surging Hawkeyes, who moved into third place in the Big Ten behind Michigan State and Michigan.

Iowa (15-3, 4-1 Big Ten) overcame a 10-point deficit with a 29-10 run and outscored the Gophers 53-30 in the second half.

Andre Hollins had a game-high 20 points for Minnesota (14-5, 3-3). But Iowa held Hollins without a field goal in the second half in handing the Gophers their most lopsided loss of the season.

Last season, Iowa used a 37-10 run to erase a 16-point deficit and blow past the Gophers in Iowa City.

On Sunday, the Hawkeyes outscored the Gophers by 19 points in just 6½ minutes to notch its 20th straight home win — one shy of the Carver-Hawkeye Arena record.

An 11-0 run helped put Minnesota ahead 43-33 late in the first half, but Oglesby hit back-to-back 3s as the Hawkeyes got the deficit down to 2 by halftime.

fire, scoring 14 points in the opening 8:41 of the second half to help Iowa take a 71-59 lead with 11:19 left.

White's 3-point play with 4:35 left was a back-breaker for the Gophers, who missed all eight of their 3-point tries in the second half.

Austin Hollins had 13 for the Gophers, who came to Iowa City on a roll.

After pushing league leaders Michigan State to overtime in East Lansing, Minnesota beat No. 11 Ohio State 63-53 on Thursday for its third win in four games.

The Gophers started strong in this one too, keeping Marble and White scoreless for nearly 18 minutes in the first half. But Oglesby capped a brilliant half with an off-balance 25-footer that pulled the Hawkeyes within 43-41.

Oglesby, who missed the first 12 games with a foot injury, had 14 first-half points to keep the Hawkeyes in the game.

Iowa had a week off after a program-defining upset at Ohio State, which was likely a big reason why it looked so sluggish in the first 20 minutes. But Marble opened the second half with his first basket of the day and followed with a pair of 3s, waking up a sellout crowd and putting the Hawkeyes ahead 52-46.

Iowa is now a game back of Michigan for second place in the league — but it won't have to wait long for a shot at the Wolverines. Michigan hosts the Hawkeyes on Wednesday.

WRIGHT ST. 49, CLEVELAND ST. 46

CLEVELAND — Jeran Young scored 10 points and Wright State held off a late rally from Cleveland State for a 49-46 win on Sunday.

Wright State (12-9, 4-2 Horizon League) led 49-40 with 3:15 left after Matt Vest's dunk before Cleveland State (11-9, 3-3) scored the last six points of the game.

Cleveland State's Trey Lewis scored with 44 seconds left to bring the Vikings within 49-46. Following a shot-clock violation from Wright State, Lewis had a 3-point attempt at the buzzer but the shot bounced off the rim as the Raiders held on.

Young was the lone Wright State scorer in double digits as the Raiders shot just 33.3 percent from the field. Vest had nine points.

Jon Harris scored 17 points to go along with 11 rebounds for the Vikings.

Associated Press

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Faith Randolph scored a career-high 26 points and Virginia rolled by No. 17 Florida State 85-68 Sunday.

Virginia (9-9, 2-3 ACC) tied its second-highest scoring performance of the season, and jumped to a 47-31 halftime lead behind 20 first-half points from Randolph.

Florida State (14-4, 2-3) never cut the deficit to fewer than 11 points in the second half. The Seminoles committed 27 turnovers compared with 10 for Virginia.

Aaira Franklin had 18 points and 10 rebounds for the Cavaliers while Sarah Imovbioh added 15.

Emiah Bingley scored 21 points to lead the Seminoles. Natasha Howard added 15 points and Kai James had 11.

Virginia played its third straight ranked opponent after falling to No. 2 Notre Dame and No. 3 Duke.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Jasmine Lister scored 25 points, including a trio of 3-pointers and 10-for-10 shooting from the foul line, to lift No. 24 Vanderbilt to a 79-70 upset win over No. 14 LSU on Sunday.

Christina Foggie contributed 19 points and Morgan Batey had 11 for Vanderbilt (16-3, 5-1 SEC), which shot 52 percent from the field in toppling its second ranked team in as many weeks.

The Commodores broke open the game in the second half, carving out its first double-digit lead with an 11-4 run fueled by a layup and four free throws from Kylee Smith that made it 48-35 with 12:08 to go. Vandy scored 12 of the next 18 points over the next 4 minutes to build a lead it would protect against an LSU rally down the stretch.

NO. 10 KENTUCKY 73, AUBURN 71

AUBURN, Ala. — Jennifer O'Neill scored 16 points, Samarie

Walker had 13 points and 10 rebounds and No. 10 Kentucky overcame a 13-point first-half deficit to beat Auburn 73-71 on Sunday.

The Wildcats (15-3, 3-2 Southeastern Conference) survived 13-of-29 shooting from the foul line to hold off the Tigers (11-6, 2-2).

Meagan Tucker hit a jumper with 1:07 left to bring Auburn within two points. The Wildcats worked 20 seconds off the clock and then called timeout. O'Neill missed two long jumpers in the final seconds, but Linnae Harper and Walker grabbed the offensive rebounds.

Walker missed two free throws with 6 seconds remaining. Tyrese Tanner, who scored 28 points, rebounded and threw it to Katie Frerking. O'Neill smothered her in the corner and Auburn couldn't get a final shot off.

Harper also had 13 points for the Wildcats.

Auburn starter Hasina Muhammad missed the game with an unspecified injury.

Kane scores in SO as Blackhawks top Bruins

JAY COHEN
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO — Patrick Kane scored in a shootout to lift the Chicago Blackhawks to a 3-2 victory over the Boston Bruins on Sunday in a rematch of last season's Stanley Cup finals.

Jonathan Toews beat Tuukka Rask on the stick side to give the Blackhawks the lead in the tiebreaker, but Brad Marchand's quick wrist shot got by Corey Crawford, tying it up for the Bruins.

Kane, who won the Conn Smythe Trophy last year as playoff MVP, then skated toward the net, slowed up for a second and sent a shot past Rask on the stick side to give Chicago the win. The Blackhawks had lost their past seven games that had gone past regulation.

Marian Hossa and Brandon Bollig had the regulation goals for Chicago, which beat Boston in six games in June for the title. Coach Joel Quenneville picked up win No. 692, matching Dick Irvin Sr., for third on the NHL's career list.

Marchand scored in each of the first two periods for the Bruins, who had won two of three. Rask had 35 stops.

visit to Chicago since June 22, when the Blackhawks used two goals by Kane to win 3-1 and take a 3-2 lead in the NHL finals. The Blackhawks then had a memorable rally in Game 6 in Boston, scoring twice in 17 seconds late in the third period to secure their second title in four seasons.

The series included five overtime periods, including three in Chicago's 4-3 victory in Game 1.

Together again for the anticipated rematch, the Bruins and Blackhawks once again were unable to decide the game in three periods. Defenseman Gregory Campbell had a chance to win it for Boston in overtime, but whiffed on a deflected puck.

Chicago controlled much of the first period and had a 1-0 lead before Marchand made the most of two open opportunities in a 69-second span overlapping the first two periods.

First, Marchand got a slick pass from Patrice Bergeron and sent a wrist shot over Crawford's right shoulder at 19:41 of the first. The Blackhawks lost the sneaky forward again at the start of the second, and he used a clever fake to set up a shot through Crawford's legs for his 14th goal.

It was Marchand's second multigoal game of the season. He has four goals and an assist in his past three games.

Boston's 2-1 lead lasted about 10 minutes. The Blackhawks caught a break when Bollig's bad-angle shot from the right side went off Rask's left foot and into the net for his fifth goal of the season.

Young scores 29 as Lakers beat Raptors

IAN HARRISON
Associated Press

TORONTO — Nick Young says the Los Angeles Lakers have woken up since airing some grievances at a team meeting last week.

Young returned from suspension to score 29 points, Pau Gasol had 22 and the Lakers beat the Toronto Raptors 112-106 on Sunday, just their third win in 15 games.

"Nick's been doing it all year and he just keeps going," Lakers coach Mike D'Antoni said.

Young was suspended for Friday's victory at Boston after he was ejected for throwing a punch at Phoenix's Goran Dragic in a loss last Wednesday. Rested and refreshed, Young scored 15 points in the fourth quarter as the Lakers overcame a 19-point first-half deficit. They won back-to-back games for the first time since beating Memphis on Dec. 17 and Minnesota on Dec. 20.

Los Angeles held a team meeting before Friday's game to address Young's ejection, and suggestions that his teammates had not done enough to stand up for him after a hard foul by Suns center Alex Len. Young called the meeting "a turning point" in what's been a dismal season so far.

"We had an altercation that woke us all up and we're out there battling with each other now," Young said. "Now we're just laying it out there."

his first career start and Kendall Marshall had 10 points and 11 assists.

Kelly said Friday's meeting underscored a "lack of urgency" in both the team's response to Len's foul on Young, and the Lakers' play in general.

"That was carrying over into the game, a lack of urgency to get back on defense, a lack of urgency to rebound and things like that," Kelly said. "When we saw that on tape, that's the one thing it did for us is to make us realize that on every play, every possession, we have to have that sense of urgency."

The Lakers reached the midway point of the season with a record of 16-25.

"It's really gratifying to win back-to-back games on the road, especially with the way we've been struggling," Gasol said. "I'm just really proud of the guys. They're stepping up, they're bringing the effort, bringing the intensity, bringing the focus and not wanting to give up."

Long-term injuries to Steve Nash and Kobe Bryant have made life rough on the Lakers, but they haven't given up on a playoff push.

"If we keep plugging along, maybe we'll get some luck here and get some guys back," D'Antoni said.

With Bryant sidelined by a sore left knee, Kelly said Young has become the player the Lakers turn to when the shot clock is winding down.

"If we've got seven seconds on the clock, you give Nick the ball he'll find a way to get a shot or get to the line."

Record 98 underclassmen eligible for NFL draft

Associated Press

NEW YORK — A record 98 underclassmen, including Johnny Manziel and Jadeveon Clowney, have made themselves eligible for the NFL draft in May.

The league released the list of early entrants Sunday and said the number has risen six straight seasons. The deadline for underclassmen to apply was Jan. 15.

Last year, 73 underclassmen entered the draft. The year before it was 65 and in 2011 it was 56.

Also, four players who recently graduated and still have eligibility left are joining the draft class but aren't included in the number. Most notable among those is Louisville quarterback Teddy Bridgewater. Southern California defensive back Dion Bailey, Arizona State linebacker Carl Bradford and Alabama linebacker Adrian Hubbard are also juniors who have informed the league they have graduated.

Among the early entrants expected to be selected near the top of the draft are Manziel, the Texas A&M quarterback, Clowney, the defensive end from South Carolina, and Clemson receiver Sammy Watkins.

The draft is May 8-10 in New York.

LSU for the second straight season had the most players of any school to leave early. The Tigers had seven early entrants this season, including wide receivers Jarvis Landry and Odell Beckham Jr., after 11 LSU players left early last year.

Alabama and Southern California each had five leave early, along with California. Cal, which went 1-11, has six players listed among the early entrants, but that includes defensive end Chris McCain, who was dismissed from the team in September.

National champion Florida State lost four players early, including All-America defensive tackle Timmy Jernigan and receiver Kelvin Benjamin, who caught the winning touchdown in the BCS championship game against Auburn. Notre Dame, Florida and South Carolina also had four early entrants.

Patrick Reed holds on to win Humana Challenge

JOHN NICHOLSON
AP Sports Writer

LA QUINTA, Calif. — Patrick Reed lost his putting touch for a few hours in the final round of the Humana Challenge. He found it when things were getting interesting.

After shooting three straight 9-under 63s to open a seven-stroke lead, Reed had a 1-under 71 on Sunday at PGA West's Arnold Palmer Private Course to beat Ryan Palmer by two strokes.

"It was tough out there," Reed said.

Finally resembling the guy who talked Saturday about being in a "putting coma," Reed ran in an 18-footer for birdie on the par-3 15th to push his advantage to three strokes and parred the final three holes. He completed the wire-to-wire victory at 28-under 260.

"I started toward the end playing for par, just because I knew pars weren't going to hurt me," Reed said. "I knew someone was going to have to do something spectacular to catch me."

The 23-year-old Reed has two victories in his first 46 PGA Tour starts, winning the Wyndham Championship in August. He was projected to jump from 73rd to 42nd in the world ranking, enough to lock up a spot next month in the 64-man Match Play Championship field.

Palmer made a 15-foot eagle putt on the final hole for a 63.

this week?" Palmer said. "It's ridiculous what he did. Amazing how good he played. We'll come up a couple short, but it was a win in my game because I was playing for second today."

Zach Johnson and Justin Leonard tied for third at 25 under. Johnson birdied the final five holes for a 62, the best round of the week.

"I got red hot at the end," Johnson said. "I played really good early, missed a couple putts, but I made a bunch at the end."

The Kapalua winner is taking a four-week break. He'll return for the Match Play event in Arizona.

"I know it's a necessity, I know it's good for me, it's good for my family, but I'm also hesitant because I'm playing well," Johnson said. "Hopefully, I can maintain where I'm at. Maintain my posture and my fundamentals, and that sort of thing, and come back out here in Tucson ready to go."

Leonard parred his last two for a 65.

"It's a great week," Leonard said. "Would love to have made a few more putts today, but it's such a fun journey. I'm cutting my schedule back this year and all this does is kind of free me up to do that."

Other than a key 18-footer on No. 15, the longest putt Reed holed was a 5-footer for a par save on the par-4 13th. That also was a crucial putt after he played the previous eight holes in 1 over with four bogeys, three birdies and a par.

In that eight-hole stretch, Todd missed two 6-foot par putts and an 8-footer and dropped another stroke with a poor bunker shot on the par-3 12th. He two-putted for birdie on two par 5s and made a 4-footer on the par-4 eighth for the other birdie.

Reed also two-putted from 12 feet for a birdie on the par-5 second hole, but his eagle putt near had a chance — signaling that his putter had cooled off overnight.

Larrazabal wins Abu Dhabi Championship

Spaniard shoots final-round 67 to win Abu Dhabi Championship from McIlroy, Mickelson

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates — Spain's Pablo Larrazabal shot a final round 67 to end a near three-year winless drought to capture the Abu Dhabi HSBC Golf Championship on Sunday.

Larrazabal, 30, won by a stroke with a 14-under par 274 on the National Course in the UAE capital.

Rory McIlroy (68), who had incurred a two-stroke penalty a day earlier, finished with a share of second place with Phil Mickelson (69) on 13 under.

"It means a lot to win my third victory on Tour and playing against who I played today," said Larrazabal.

"Of course, I play against myself but I knew who I also had behind me in Mickelson. I have just beaten two of the three most talented guys in my era, and in the last era, as well in Phil Mickelson and Rory."

Mickelson was left counting the cost of incurring a shot penalty after a double hit while playing from brush on the 13th hole of the National course.

The British Open champion, who was leading at the time, finished the hole with a triple-bogey seven.

"I was sitting at the presentation ceremony I said to myself: 'Pablo? What are you doing here?' I've got Rory McIlroy on my left and I am shaking the hand of Phil Mickelson on my right. It's very special for me," added Larrazabal after collecting the trophy.

"But it's been a long journey and a lot of work since my last win in Munich, and only my team and my family know how hard I have worked for this victory with no holidays, and not too many days off this winter, just working hard to arrive here properly and in form to Abu Dhabi. So, yes happy days."

While Mickelson was returning home for his first PGA event of the New Year, at this coming week's Farmers Insurance Open at Torrey Pines, McIlroy is returning to nearby Dubai to continue working on his game.

It is the second occasion in three years he has let slip victory in Abu Dhabi because of a rules violation.

"It happens, it happens but it never crossed my mind I might double hit it," Mickelson said.

"I was just trying to dribble it out of the bush because I couldn't get the unplayable penalty lie to give me a shot without stroke and distance and I felt it was worth the risk. It not only cost a penalty shot, but it also stopped the ball from going to a spot where I could hit again."

"So after that I got refocused and got aggressive and made some birdies and gave myself a chance. If Pablo had not birdied the last hole to win, I would have gotten into a play-off, and so I give him a lot of credit for finishing the tournament off the right way."

McIlroy had been penalized for illegally brushing sand off his line on the final day of the 2012 event before losing by a stroke to England's Robert Rock. On Saturday, the double Major winner was slapped with a two-shot penalty after being reported by the caddy of another player in not taking "full relief" from a spectator cross walk.

Ivanovic ousts Serena in historic upset

JOHN PYE
AP Sports Writer

MELBOURNE, Australia — The powerful serve that carried Serena Williams to 25 consecutive wins suddenly became the target of Ana Ivanovic's attack in a major fourth-round upset at the Australian Open.

Williams had a back complaint she'd tried to keep secret before Sunday but Ivanovic noticed almost immediately that her serve wasn't as fast as she'd expected, and she started taking big swipes at it.

The No. 14-seeded Ivanovic ended Williams' bid for a sixth Australian and 18th Grand Slam title with a 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 victory that took the hottest of favorites out of contention at Melbourne Park and opened up one side of the women's draw.

"It's not easy playing such a champion ... but she is also just a human," said Ivanovic, who beat Venus Williams in the final at Auckland, New Zealand earlier this month. "I just went out there swinging."

Williams hadn't lost a match since August, and went 78-4 in 2013. She came into the fourth round with those 25 straight wins, the second-longest streak of her career, and it was her 70th match at Melbourne Park, a record in the Open era. Williams had just set the mark for most match wins (61) ever at the Australian Open with her third-round victory.

The No. 1-ranked Williams didn't move her feet well, and was lunging for balls. When she tried to step up the intensity in the third set, her grunts becoming louder and more frequent until she toned it down after spraying a wild backhand wide in the next-to-last game, Ivanovic matched her stroke for stroke.

"It wasn't the best," Williams told a news conference, after being told that her coach had leaked news of a back problem.

"Again, I don't want to blame anything. I feel like Ana deserves all the credit," Williams added. "I feel she played unbelievable today. I think she went for her shots. It's not like I gave her the match."

Ivanovic advanced to the quarterfinals here

Serena Williams of the U.S. rests on her racket during her fourth round loss to Ana Ivanovic of Serbia on Sunday at the Australian Open tennis championship in Melbourne, Australia.

for the first time since her run to the 2008 final and will next play the winner of Sunday's later match between Australian wild-card entry Casey Dellacqua and No. 30-seeded Eugenie Bouchard.

The other quarterfinal on this half will feature two women who'll turn 32 next month, after two-time finalist Li Na beat No. 22 Ekaterina Makarova 6-2, 6-0 and No. 28 Flavia Pennetta upset No. 9 Angelique Kerber 6-1, 4-6, 7-5.

Novak Djokovic continued his bid for a fourth straight title here with a 6-3, 6-0, 6-2 win over Fabio Fognini in 1 1/2 hours, while No. 3-seeded David Ferrer advanced to the quarterfinals by beating Florian Mayer 6-7 (5), 7-5, 6-2, 6-1.

In the 52 previous matches here where she'd won the first set, Williams had only ever lost one match — against fellow American Sloane Stephens in last year's quarterfinals.

The crowd was evenly divided at first but, sensing an upset, started backing Ivanovic, the former girlfriend of Australian golfer Adam Scott, as the match progressed.

After dropping serve twice in the first set,

Ivanovic didn't face another break point in the second or third sets. She broke Williams three times, frequently standing well inside the baseline to receive.

She had 33 winners, including 20 on her forehand side. She also had a little bit of luck, when she drove a backhand into the top of the net, and it looped over and caught the line at an important stage of the third set.

"I had to remind myself all the time just to stay in the moment, because there were moments in the match where it could have gone either way," Ivanovic said. "But I really just believed in my game and stepped up when I needed to."

Ivanovic won her only major at the French Open in 2008, giving her the No. 1 ranking for a total of 12 weeks. But then she only advanced past the fourth round once at 22 Grand Slams.

"I had to break a spell, fourth round," Ivanovic said, "and what's the better place to do it than here against such a champion?"

Williams hit 22 winners but made 31 unforced errors, mostly on her backhand.

"I made a tremendous amount of errors, shots ... I haven't missed since the '80s," Williams said.

Williams, pausing to concentrate, was given a warning for a time violation in her last service game, and fended off a match point when Ivanovic netted a return.

In the next game, though, Ivanovic set up triple match point when Williams hit a service return too long, and then clinched it just under two hours.

Williams didn't say exactly what the back injury was, but thought she'd get over it in a few days with some rest. She'd thought about pulling out of the tournament, but it wasn't in her nature to concede defeat.

"Maybe I wasn't the best physically, but that had nothing to do with it," Williams said. "I think Ana just played a really good match. She did what it takes to win."

Google's contact lens prototype could be option for diabetics

MARTHA MENDOZA

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. — Brian Otis gingerly holds what looks like a typical contact lens on his index finger. Look closer. Sandwiched in this lens are two twinkling glitter-specks loaded with tens of thousands of miniaturized transistors. It's ringed with a hair-thin antenna. Together these remarkable miniature electronics can monitor glucose levels in tears of diabetics and then wirelessly transmit them to a handheld device.

"It doesn't look like much, but it was a crazy amount of work to get everything so very small," he said before the project was unveiled Thursday.

During years of soldering hair-thin wires to miniaturize electronics, Otis burned his fingertips so often that he can no longer feel the tiny chips he made from scratch in Google's Silicon Valley headquarters, a small price to pay for what he says is the smallest wireless glucose sensor ever made.

Just 35 miles away in the beach town of Santa Cruz, high school soccer coach and university senior Michael Vahradian, 21, has his own set of fingertip callouses, his from pricking himself up to 10 times a day for the past 17 years to draw blood for his glucose meter. A cell-phone-sized pump on his hip that attaches to a flexible tube implanted in his stomach shoots rapid-acting insulin into his body around the clock.

"I remember at first it was really hard to make the needle sticks a habit because it hurt so much," he said. "And there are still times I don't want to do it — it hurts and it's inconvenient. When I'm hanging out with friends, heading down to the beach to body-surf or going to lunch, I have to hold everyone up to take my

John Fox's biggest decision was a life-saver

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Of all the decisions coach John Fox made that kept the Denver Broncos rolling through a drama-filled season, one was an absolute life-saver.

Instead of going out on his fishing boat for some solitude during his team's bye week, Fox decided to play 18 holes with some buddies some 200 yards from his offseason home in Charlotte, N.C.

"I'd have been 60 miles out in the woods," Fox said. "They might never have found me."

Fox had just seen his cardiologist in Raleigh, who told him he'd still be able to delay his heart operation until after the Super Bowl so long as he didn't feel faint or short of breath in the meantime.

Fox was born with a genetic defect in his aortic valve, which regulates blood flow from the heart into the aorta, the major blood vessel that brings blood into the body. He said it was discovered in 1997 when a murmur showed up in a physical while he was the Giants defensive coordinator.

Feeling dizzy, he chipped within 2 feet for par, then lay down on the 14th green and, hardly able to breathe, said a short prayer: "God

Surgeon general adds to list of smoking's harms

LAURAN NEERGAARD
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — It's no secret that smoking causes lung cancer. But what about diabetes, rheumatoid arthritis, erectile dysfunction? Fifty years into the war on smoking, scientists still are adding diseases to the long list of cigarettes' harms — even as the government struggles to get more people to kick the habit.

A new report from the U.S. Surgeon General's office says the nation is at a crossroads, celebrating decades of progress against the chief preventable killer but not yet poised to finish the job.

"The real emphasis needs to be put on the fact that we still have a major and tragic catastrophe going on," said acting Surgeon General Boris Lushniak.

The report, being released Friday, is a dash of cold water after last week's headlines marking the 50th anniversary of the landmark 1964 surgeon general's report that launched the anti-smoking movement. Yes, far fewer Americans smoke today — about 18 percent of adults, down from more than 42 percent in 1964.

But the government may not meet its goal of dropping that rate to 12 percent by 2020, the new report cautioned.

Nearly half a million people will die from smoking-related diseases this year. Each day, more than 3,200 youths smoke their first cigarette. New products such as e-cigarettes, with effects that aren't yet understood, complicate public health messages. And if current trends continue unabated, 5.6 million of today's children and teens will go on to die prematurely during adulthood because of smoking, the report found.

Remarkably, the report adds more entries to the official list of smoking-caused diseases, including Type 2 diabetes, rheumatoid arthritis, erectile dysfunction, the macular degeneration that can blind older adults, two additional cancers — liver and colorectal — and cleft palate birth defects.

"Enough is enough," said Lushniak. He urged new resolve to end smoking by increasing use of proven tobacco-control measures, including price hikes for cigarettes and expanding comprehensive indoor-smoking bans that he said currently cover about half the population.

The report also encourages research into newer ideas, such as whether lowering the amount of addictive nicotine in cigarettes would help people quit.

Here are some ways the smoking landscape has changed between the 1964 surgeon general's report and Friday's:

1964: The surgeon general declares that cigarette smoking increases deaths.

2014: About 20.8 million people in the U.S. have died from smoking-related diseases since then, a toll the report puts at 10 times the number of Americans who have died in all of the nation's wars combined. Most were smokers or former smokers, but nearly 2.5 million died from heart disease or lung cancer caused by secondhand smoke.

1964: Heavy smoking is declared the main cause of lung cancer, at least in men. "The data for women, though less extensive, point in the same direction."

2014: Today, lung cancer is the top cancer killer, and women who smoke have about the same risk of dying from it as men. As smoking has declined, rates of new lung cancer diagnoses are declining nearly 3 percent a year among men and about 1 percent a year among women.

1964: Male smokers were dying of heart disease more than nonsmokers, but the surgeon general stopped short of declaring cigarettes a cause of heart disease.

2014: Today, heart disease actually claims more lives of smokers 35 and older than lung cancer does. Likewise, secondhand smoke is riskier for your heart. Smoke-free laws have been linked to reductions in heart attacks. Friday's surgeon general report also found that secondhand smoke increases the risk of a stroke.

1964: Smoking in pregnancy results in low-birth-weight babies.

2014: Friday's report said 100,000 of the smoking-caused deaths over the past 20 years were babies who died of sudden infant death syndrome, or SIDS, or complications from prematurity, low birth weight or other conditions related to parents' smoking. And it adds cleft palate birth defects to that list of smoking risks to babies.

1964: The more you smoke, the bigger the risk of death.

2014: Smokers are estimated to shorten their life by more than a decade. But stopping can lower that risk; sooner is better.

1964: That first report focused mostly on lung effects and couldn't prove whether certain other illnesses were caused by smoking.

2014: Doctors now know that smoking impacts nearly every organ of the body, and Friday's report said medical care for smoking-caused illnesses is costing the country more than $130 billion a year. Add to that lost productivity of more than $150 billion a year.

1964: Cigarettes were the major concern. "The habitual use of tobacco is related primarily to psychological and social drives, reinforced and perpetuated by pharmacological (drug) actions of nicotine."

2014: "The tobacco industry continues to introduce and market new products that establish and maintain nicotine addiction," Friday's report says. The percentage of middle and high school students who use electronic or e-cigarettes more than doubled between 2011 and 2012.

blood sugar."

The idea that all of that monitoring could be going on passively, through a contact lens, is especially promising for the world's 382 million diabetics who need insulin and keep a close watch on their blood sugar.

The prototype, which Google says will take at least five years to reach consumers, is one of several medical devices being designed by companies to make glucose monitoring for diabetic patients more convenient and less invasive than traditional finger pricks.

The contact lenses were developed during the past 18 months in the clandestine Google X lab that also came up with a driverless car, Google's Web-surfing eyeglasses and Project Loon, a network of large balloons designed to beam the Internet to unwired places.

But research on the contact lenses began several years earlier at the University of Washington, where scientists worked under National Science Foundation funding. Until Thursday, when Google shared information about the project with The Associated Press, the work had been kept under wraps.

"You can take it to a certain level in an academic setting, but at Google we were given the latitude to invest in this project," Otis said. "The beautiful thing is we're leveraging all of the innovation in the semiconductor industry that was aimed at making cellphones smaller and more powerful."

American Diabetes Association board chair Dwight Holing said he's gratified that creative scientists are searching for solutions for people with diabetes but warned that the device must provide accurate and timely information.

"People with diabetes base very important health care decisions on the data we get from our monitors," he said.

Other non-needle glucose monitoring systems are also in the works, including a similar contact lens by Netherlands-based NovioSense, a minuscule, flexible spring that is tucked under an eyelid. Israel-based OrSense has already tested a thumb cuff, and there have been early designs for tattoos and saliva sensors.

A wristwatch monitor was approved by the FDA in 2001, but patients said the low level electric currents pulling fluid from their skin was painful, and it was buggy.

"There are a lot of people who have big promises," said Dr. Christopher Wilson, CEO of NovioSense. "It's just a question of who gets to market with something that really works first."

Palo Alto Medical Foundation endocrinologist Dr. Larry Levin said it was remarkable and important that a tech firm like Google is getting into the medical field and that he'd like to be able to offer his patients a pain-free alternative from either pricking their fingers or living with a thick needle embedded in their stomach for constant monitoring.

Worldwide, the glucose-monitoring devices market is expected to be more than $16 billion by the end of this year, according to analysts at RenuB Research.

The Google team built the wireless chips in clean rooms and used advanced engineering to get integrated circuits and a glucose sensor into such a small space.

Researchers also had to build in a system to pull energy from incoming radio frequency waves to power the device enough to collect and transmit one glucose reading per second. The embedded electronics in the lens don't obscure vision because they lie outside the eye's pupil and iris.

Google is now looking for partners with experience bringing similar products to market. Google officials declined to say how many people worked on the project or how much the firm has invested in it.

Dr. David Klonoff, medical director of the diabetes research institute at Mills-Peninsula Health Services in San Mateo, worked with Google to see whether glucose is present in tears and whether the amount of glucose is proportional to the amount of glucose in blood. He's still analyzing but optimistic about his findings and warns there are many potential pitfalls.

"Already this has some breakthrough technologies, but this is a moonshot, there are so many challenges," he said.

One is figuring out how to correlate glucose levels in tears as compared with blood. And what happens on windy days, while chopping onions or during very sad movies? As with any medical device, it would need to be tested and proved accurate, safe, and at least as good as other types of glucose sensors available now to win FDA approval.

Pakistani health worker Nooman Mehboob, 21, center, gives Ameer Andriaz, 4, a polio vaccine while other women holding their children wait to have them vaccinated in a neighborhood in Islamabad, Pakistan.

World Health Organization calls Pakistan city world's largest pool of polio

REBECCA SANTANA
Associated Press

KARACHI, Pakistan — Pakistan's city of Peshawar is the world's largest pool of the polio virus, with the vast majority of cases in the country and neighboring Afghanistan tracing back to the restive northwestern city, the World Health Organization announced Friday.

Some 90 percent of polio cases found around Pakistan can be genetically linked to the city, the U.N. organization said. Even 12 of the 13 cases reported in 2013 in neighboring Afghanistan can also be traced back to Peshawar, officials said, showing the challenge of combating the disease in a country where militants target vaccinators.

"If you do not take care of this reservoir it will keep threatening other parts of the country as well. Then the final eradication would be much more difficult," said Elias Durry, who heads the WHO's eradication efforts in Pakistan.

Pakistan, along with Afghanistan and Nigeria, are the only countries in the world where polio remains endemic. Pakistan has struggled for years to eradicate the disease through a series of repeated vaccination campaigns of children.

But that effort has been hampered in recent years by militant attacks that have left more than 30 vaccinators and police officers who protect them dead. Two powerful Pakistani Taliban militants also have banned vaccinators from North and South Waziristan, two tribal regions that border Afghanistan to the west.

The number of polio cases in Pakistan jumped from 58 in 2012 to 91 in 2013. Of the polio cases recorded last year, 65 were located in the remote tribal regions.

Hundreds of thousands of Pakistanis seeking refuge from fighting in the tribal regions in recent years have flooded into Peshawar, which is also the capital of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province. Those infected bring the disease back with them when they leave. Hundreds of thousands of Afghans also travel to and from the city daily.

The WHO and the government regularly test samples of the sewage water in Peshawar as well as other major cities across the country. During the last six months, they detected the highly contagious polio virus in all the samples collected in Peshawar, Durry said.

The organization is calling for repeated vaccination campaigns to help get rid of the disease in Peshawar.

Pakistan has been under pressure internationally to eradicate the disease, which usually infects children living in unsanitary conditions. The disease attacks the nerves and can kill or paralyze.

But vaccination teams have had a hard time reaching all children in parts of the troubled northwest. Durry said roughly 260,000 children are believed to have missed vaccinations last year in North and South Waziristan.

Militants claim the vaccine is meant to sterilize Muslim children and accused health workers of being U.S. spies. The allegation gained traction after the CIA used a Pakistani doctor to try to confirm the presence of Osama bin Laden in 2011 under the guise of an immunization program.

Meanwhile Friday, gunmen killed a driver, a technician and a security staffer for the private Express News television channel in the southern city of Karachi, police official Javed Odho said. A spokesman for the Pakistani Taliban claimed responsibility for the attack in a statement, saying that channel and other media outlets had supported the government in its war against the militants.

The media outlet was attacked twice last year, with the Pakistani Taliban claiming responsibility for one of the incidents. Five journalists were killed last year in Pakistan, making it the fourth-deadliest country in the world for journalists, according to the Committee to Protect Journalists.

you get me out of this and I'll get it fixed now."

Less than 48 hours later, on Nov. 4, he underwent open-heart surgery.

Four days after that, he was released from the hospital and his wife helped him set up a command center at his home in Charlotte to keep tabs on his team back in Denver.

Not only was he in daily contact with defensive coordinator Jack Del Rio, who guided the Broncos to three wins in four games during his absence, but Fox was also in constant communication with his captains, including quarterback Peyton Manning.

Fox watched cut-ups of practices on his iPad playbook to help formulate game plans and he watched games on his big-screen TV.

The lone loss during his hiatus was a 34-31 overtime heartbreaker at New England on Nov. 24 when the Broncos blew a 24-0 halftime lead after cornerback Dominique Rodgers-Cromartie separated a shoulder trying to pick off Tom Brady's desperation pass that died in the wind at the end of the first half.

Brady took advantage of D.R.C.'s absence to stage the biggest comeback of his career, just as he's going to try to capitalize on the loss of cornerback Chris Harris Jr. (knee) when the Patriots (13-4) visit the Broncos (14-3) on Sunday with a trip to the Super Bowl on the line.

"Probably the hardest thing for the team was that we didn't know when Foxie was going to be back," Broncos executive vice president John Elway said. "And in Foxie's mind, he would have been back three days after the surgery."

Fox and his wife, Robin, flew home on team owner Pat Bowlen's jet in late November and at Del Rio's suggestion he visited with the team on Thanksgiving morning, then watched from his home in Denver as the Broncos beat the Chiefs 35-28 in Kansas City that weekend to take charge of the AFC West.

He returned to work the following day, his newfound energy matching his renewed enthusiasm, saying his surgeon told him the aortic valve was now the size of a 50-cent piece instead of a pinhead.

What a difference.

He exuded vitality while capturing his third division title in his three seasons since replacing Josh McDaniels in Denver, then dispatched the demons of last year's playoff loss with an exhilarating win over San Diego last weekend.

"He's got more energy than anybody I've ever seen," Elway said. "That, to me, is the definition of John Fox: the energy level that he brings. He brings it to the practice field, and it's contagious. I think that's why he was a perfect fit for us after what happened with Josh. That positive attitude that he brings turned the culture around because of the type of guy that he is."

"We missed his energy."

Since his return on Dec. 2, Fox has more pep in his step, more boom in his voice — and even more gumption in his calls.

Like sending in Matt Prater for a 64-yard field goal attempt on an icy afternoon in Denver or ordering his high-powered offense not to milk the clock with a big lead at Houston, where Manning broke Brady's single-season touchdown record with a late score.

Could this be the same man who had Manning take a knee with three timeouts and 31 seconds remaining in regulation in the playoff game last year after Baltimore's Jacoby Jones' 70-yard game-tying TD catch?

Has Fox turned in his conservative credentials?

While Fox said his health scare did cause him to re-evaluate some things, he insists it didn't have a profound effect on his approach to the job.

"It's like an injury to a player," Fox said. "When you come back, you hope you're the same player again."

FDA OKs mental disability blood test for infants

MATTHEW PERRONE
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration on Friday cleared a first-of-a-kind blood test that can help diagnose mental disabilities in babies by analyzing their genetic code.

The laboratory test from Affymetrix detects variations in patients' chromosomes that are linked to Down syndrome, DiGeorge syndrome and other developmental disorders. About 2 to 3 percent of U.S. children have some sort of intellectual disability, according to the National Institutes of Health.

The test, known as the CytoScan Dx Assay, is designed to help doctors diagnose children's disabilities earlier and get them appropriate care and support. It is not intended for prenatal screening or for predicting other genetically acquired diseases and conditions, such as cancer.

While there are already genetic tests used to detect conditions like Down's syndrome, doctors usually have to order them individually and they can take several days to develop. Pediatricians said Friday that Affymetrix's test should offer a faster, more comprehensive screening approach. Dr. Annemarie Stroustrup stressed that such tests are generally only used after children exhibit certain physical or behavioral signs that suggest a disorder.

"When there's something about the child that strikes us as unusual or pointing to a potential genetic disease, that's when we would use this testing," said Stroustrup, an assistant professor of pediatrics at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York.

Currently hospitals in all 50 states are required to screen newborns for at least 29 disorders that can be detected through laboratory testing, including sickle cell anemia and cystic fibrosis. Generally those tests pick up irregularities in metabolism, not genetic variations. The mandatory screening program, begun a half-century ago, is considered one of the nation's most successful public health programs.

The FDA said it approved the new test based on studies showing it accurately analyzes a patient's entire genome and can accurately spot variations associated with intellectual disabilities.

Third-grader gets help with hearing aid

NANCY TANKER
Times-News of Hendersonville

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. — This year, Mills River Elementary third-grader Danny Castro, 9, got a very special present from his school.

School officials purchased an FM-based wireless system that allows the hearing-impaired youngster to hear his teacher, Julie Ann Mitchell, through his hearing aids.

Every day the gregarious boy enters school, hooks up his hearing system and prepares to learn. Mitchell uses a microphone and a palm-sized wireless transmitter that hangs around her neck to reach the receivers in Danny's hearing aids, allowing him to listen to her lessons at a higher decibel level than he otherwise could.

"Whenever she speaks on the microphone, it connects to my 'boots' (receivers in his hearing aids), and it's cool because you can hear what she is saying," Danny said on a rainy Friday morning after he finished reading a book passage to a classmate. "I use it to help me hear better."

PATRICK SULLIVAN / AP

Mills River Elementary School third grade teacher Julie Ann Mitchell uses a microphone connected to an FM wireless signal that connects to a receiver in the hearing aid of her third-grade student Danny Castro to help him hear what she is teaching.

Until this year, Danny had been using a similar system his parents had purchased and sent him to school with every day since kindergarten. The new technology, however, can be left at school.

Mitchell said "Danny is excelling this year. With his hearing loss, he works with a speech therapist and he has come a long way."

Learning vocabulary, math or any other third-grade subject "would be difficult for him" without the sound-amplifying apparatus, Mitchell said. "He would miss about 80 percent of instruction without the hearing aid and the FM system. Without the system, it would be a struggle for him and his vocabulary would suffer."

She added that Danny's parents have been very conscientious about making sure he has the proper technology to aide his learning. "They have been working with his doctors and audiologists to make sure he is receiving the help that he needs," Mitchell said. "He has become used to it over the years, so it's very much second nature to him. It's part of his everyday life."

Mitchell said Danny will often take the initiative to charge the system or initiate it in the morning before class starts.

"He is a very outgoing, very sweet and eager student," she said. "He wants to get his work correct, so he works very hard."

Fellow students think the system is "cool," she added. "They see that it is helping one of my students and because they have been in class with him for years, they have been very accepting."

Mitchell said several other hearing-impaired students at the school use systems to help them hear their teachers. "One student has a tower speaker that sits on the floor" and amplifies the teacher's voice, while another has a desktop speaker that accomplishes the same mission.

"With this system Danny, has really grown over the years," Mitchell said. She would like other school administrators to know that it is "easy for students who have hearing loss to receive help with some sort of FM system in order to grow academically. Without it, there's a lack of vocabulary and compensation with anything being taught. Our school has been working hard in the past year, and we were fortunate to get the system this year."

Danny said he likes the system "because wherever Mrs. Mitchell goes, the speaker follows her and moves with her so I can hear her. I also like it because it connects to the computer speaker so I can hear it better. Without it, I would not be able to hear Mrs. Mitchell and if I can't hear her, then what kind of lessons can I use?"

Church rallies around girl, 5, with rare cancer

JOHN MONK
The (Columbia) State

BLYTHEWOOD, S.C. — Sara Duncan is 5 years old, loves horses, cheerleaders, music and the color purple.

She also has neuroblastoma, a rare and potentially fatal childhood cancer. In the United States, there are only 400 to 600 cases a year.

Recently, several hundred people showed up at a spaghetti dinner fundraiser at Sara's church, the 1,100-member Trinity United Methodist, in Blythewood to offer prayers and well wishes. The event raised some $4,000.

One supporter was Trinity member Jackson Davis, 11, who wrote these words with a purple felt-tipped pen on a board crowded with prayers and good wishes: "Love you, get well soon."

Many people wore logos with a purple dancing lion, a logo church member Kathy Rhodes designed in tribute to Sara's favorite song, "Roar," an anthem to courage by pop singer Katy Perry. It's about a fearful young woman who became brave.

"I got the eye of a tiger / Dancing through a fire. ... You're going to hear me roar," the song goes.

Sara's mom, Michelle Duncan, 37, a church member, said in an interview that so far, Sara is making progress. "We're thankful we live in a community with such great support between the church, the neighborhood and the Blythewood community coming together to help us out."

The money will come in handy for expenses insurance doesn't cover, she said.

Already, Sara — the youngest of three children — has endured a medical odyssey most adults will never see. It has included a major operation to remove an abdominal solid-mass tumor, rounds of chemotherapy, stem-cell extractions and implants from and into her body.

Radiation therapy, and weeks more in the hospital, are most likely in the future. She's been a regular both at Palmetto Health Richland Children's Hospital and the Medical University of South Carolina.

The Duncans - Michelle and her husband, David, of 17 years - are thankful the neuroblastoma was discovered early. "In September, she had a little bellyache," said Michelle Duncan, explaining that Sara's regular pediatrician at Palmetto Pediatrics made the diagnosis on the first visit.

"We feel that God has a path for us, for healing, and He's been really good to us so far. He's put the right doctors in place, the right medical team in place," Duncan said, wiping away tears as she spoke outside the fundraiser.

Sara knows what is happening, Duncan said. "Her faith is great. She has prayed for healing, and she knows that God is going to heal her. She's a fighter. She doesn't complain. She doesn't like needles, but I don't know who does."

Trinity pastor the Rev. Cathy Jamieson-Ogg described Sara this way:

"She is happy and brave."

Also at the event were seven cheerleaders from the University of South Carolina. Last summer, before her cancer was discovered, Sara — a Gamecocks fan — attended a three-day cheerleader "kid camp" at USC.

"Clearly, we made an impact on Sara, which is awesome," said cheerleader Greg Francendese, 22, a senior advertising major from Atlanta.

Teenager's taxi service has a disgruntled rider

DEAR ABBY: I'm a high school senior. At the beginning of the school year, I agreed to drive my best friend to school in the mornings, and for a while it was nice.

Dear Abby

JEANNE PHILLIPS

Last month she started to refuse to talk while I was driving. If I tried talking to her, she wouldn't respond. She recently told her boyfriend (who she texts constantly while riding with me) that she didn't like my driving. I found out because of a post he made on Facebook. When I asked her about it, she said that morning I had slammed on the brakes and it scared her.

This has made me tense and stressed out in the mornings, and I want to stop driving her. My grandmother says I should stick it out instead of causing friction. My mom thinks I should stop driving her, but only if she can find another ride.

I tried to explain this to her, but she won't listen and I'm still stuck with her. This has ruined our relationship. I feel like she hates me, but I don't know what to do about any of it. Help! — DRIVEN CRAZY IN FLORIDA

DEAR DRIVEN CRAZY: Your former best friend may have stopped talking to you on the way to school because she was too busy texting her boyfriend. She is ignoring the fact that you have been doing her the favor of transporting her and is using you as a private taxi service.

If she was frightened because you braked suddenly, the person she should have said it to was YOU. So stop "explaining" to her and TELL her that if she wants to continue getting a free ride, she had better adjust her attitude or make other arrangements for transportation.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, the mother of a toddler, just had twins. We live four hours away, so I stayed with them for a few weeks to help her and her husband adjust to their larger family. It taught me a lot about how to help new mothers who are feeling overwhelmed.

It's not about holding the babies; everyone wants to do that. Instead, if you really want to help tired parents, do one of the following:

Take the older children to the park, the library, the zoo, to a diner for breakfast. Keep them happy and safe, and bring them home worn out.

Bring dinner or takeout when visiting. Wash, dry and fold the laundry. Get the kids ready for bed, give them their baths, read books to them and wait until they are asleep to leave.

Clean the house, run the vacuum, empty the garbage and change the beds. Buy groceries (the basics), including paper goods, and grab a box of gallon plastic bags, masking tape and Sharpies (to date frozen foods).

The gift of your time is ever so much more helpful than cute baby outfits that are quickly outgrown. Thanks, Abby! — PROUD GRANDMA IN NEW YORK

DEAR PROUD GRANDMA: My warm congratulations on the new additions to your family. Your daughter is a lucky woman. Your letter should be clipped and saved by anyone who is looking forward to grandparenthood because it is a classic.

DEAR READERS: Today we celebrate the birthday of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., the visionary civil rights leader who was assassinated in 1968. Many of his words ring as true today as when they were first spoken.

The quote I have in mind as I write this is, "All progress is precarious, and the solution of one problem brings us face-to-face with another problem." It applies to many aspects of life.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Painting, Wallpaper, Tile and Much More... "Just Ask"
Pals Gals Services
 352-787-4089

Pals Gals Services, Inc. has been owned and operated by Patti Kauffman and Kellie Kennedy since 1986. They are a multifaceted business offering a wide variety of services, which include interior and exterior painting, faux painting, wallpaper removal and installation, tile and grout cleaning, tile and grout removal and installation, and grout staining. They also install wood floors and can refinish your old wood floors, to make them look brand new. They can help you with color choices and give advice on what is practical or not! They can help resolve your "honey-do" list such as minor plumbing, electrical, drywall, cabinets, counter tops for your home or office.

They pride themselves on quality "womanship", dependability and trust. They know how difficult it is to find someone you trust and actually "show up" on time. They are a referral based business relying on previous clients to "spread" the word.

They are two very talented ladies that take extreme pride in their work and take each job personally. They know how important making choices about your home or office can be and are more than willing to help with each decision.

GIVE THE "GALS" A CALL, THEY CAN DO IT ALL!!!
