Completion of rail project in April could spur business development in Lake County

The massive overhaul of Florida Central Railroad through Lake and Orange counties could open new opportunities here to businesses that crave rail access, economic development officials say.

The $18.4 million project involves replacing rail from Apopka to Eustis, through Tavares, according to the railroad's vice president and general manager, Pete Petree.

"We're taking out small (33-foot-long) 1920s vintage rail and installing new continuous welded rail that is larger, and it comes in pieces 1,600 feet long," Petree said.

"You can transport heavier cars, larger trains, larger locomotives. It really provides a good infrastructure for more freight movements, heavier freight movements," Petree said.

In addition to the rail replacements to Eustis, additional work will allow for the reopening of out-of-service lines from Tavares to Mount Dora and from Eustis to Umatilla, according to Petree.

The wooden ties on the railway will be replaced between Eustis and Umatilla, and Tavares and Mount Dora, Petree said. Road crossings are also being resurfaced during the project, most of which should be completed by April.

"We'll be able to provide them service. We won't quite be able to provide them what we would be able to from Eustis to Apopka," Petree said. "We can get the larger, heavier rail cars in there, but just in smaller quantities."

RAIL IMPROVEMENTS INITIATIVE

The project to improve the Florida Central Railroad line through Orange and Lake counties is a massive undertaking that will require replacing 23,100 crossties, rehabilitating 25 road crossings and repairing various bridges and rights of way. The total cost of the effort is expected to be $11.4 million.

Fla. lawmakers set to kick off 60-day session

Gov. Scott will use State of the State speech to stress tax cuts, keeping tuition flat

GARY FINEOUT
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida legislators return to the state Capitol on Tuesday for a 60-day session that will likely focus on tax cuts, spending and school vouchers, but avoid many of the contentious issues that sparked partisan rancor and fierce debate in the last few years.

The tone for the session will likely be set by Gov. Rick Scott, who is expected to ask the Republican-controlled Legislature to back his election-year agenda of tax cuts and keeping tuition rates at their current levels.

Florida lawmakers between now and early May are expected to cover everything from guns to gambling and whether or not to overhaul the state's massive pension system for

Court looks at death row inmate with low IQ

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The murderer of a Leesburg woman, a man with an IQ as high as 75, may be diagnosed as mentally disabled and be eligible for help getting a job. But on death row, the state says having an IQ higher than 70 categorically means an inmate is not mentally disabled and may be executed.

HALL

The U.S. Supreme Court barred states from executing mentally disabled inmates in 2002, but until now has left the determination of who is mentally disabled to the states.

In arguments scheduled Monday before the court, 68-year-old Florida inmate Freddie Lee Hall challenged the state's use of a rigid IQ cutoff to determine mental disability.

Florida is among a few states that use a score of 70, as measured by IQ tests, as the threshold for concluding an inmate is not mentally disabled, even when other evidence indicates he is.

Florida woman claiming psychic powers gets 10 years

Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — A South Florida woman who claimed to have psychic powers has been sentenced to 10 years in prison for a multi-million-dollar scam.

A Palm Beach County judge sentenced 62-year-old Rose Marks on Monday. Jurors in September found Marks guilty on 14 fraud-related counts. Prosecutors had been seeking 22 years in prison.

Marks and other family members operated out of storefronts in Fort Lauderdale and New York City. Testimony showed she convinced people that money was the source of evil and that they should give her cash and valuables to be cleansed and returned. Most was not.

The Palm Beach Post reports that one victim was romance novelist Jude Deveraux, who testified she gave Marks more than $12 million over 20 years.

Several other family members previously pleaded guilty for their involvement in the scam.

HOROSCOPES

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, March 4, 2014:

This year you alternate between being extremely assertive and being extremely laid-back. Others are likely to react to this changeability, so try to be understanding. You know how to trigger a partner or an associate, especially when the topic is money. Try to keep the peace. If you are single, you could discover that someone is trying to change you. You do not want a bond like this; instead, go for one where you will be accepted. If you are attached, your sweetie might find this newfound duality to be a delightful change. You keep life exciting. TAURUS is easy to talk to.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might sense that you have an edge, and you do in a key situation. You'll have little tolerance for settling for anything less than what you want. Your temper could erupt at any given moment. By mid-afternoon, you'll become far more poised.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could go from being somewhat blue or quiet in the morning to being Mr. or Ms. Personality by the afternoon. You'll express a real sense of direction and draw others in closer. Even someone who does not usually agree with you could emerge.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Use the morning for a key project, when your leverage and ability to draw in others is high. By the afternoon, you might resent being bogged down by what you judge to be insignificant details. Hold your tongue, and keep your own counsel.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You seem to offer a perspective that many people do not have. Your feedback is valued, even if you encounter difficulties with a higher-up. This person simply tends to be a bit of a curmudgeon. Refuse to let this person get to you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be overwhelmed by everything that is going on. Your temper could rise as others aggressively seek you out. Screen your calls rather than blow a fuse. Dealing with work matters might preoccupy your afternoon.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Deal with a partner, associate or friend directly. Both of you could be the victim of a misunderstanding. Limit the rhetoric, as you attempt to clear the air. Someone else will appreciate your ability to detach and see the big picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Though generally you're known as the sign of diplomacy, lately you seem to be specializing in putting your foot in your mouth. Do not let today be another example of this behavior. In the afternoon, listen to a loved one's saga.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Dive into work, and clear out as much as possible in the morning. Interpersonal interactions will take up a large part of the afternoon. You'll enjoy the change of pace. Talk with a loved one about what you want for the two of you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You could be frivolous in the morning and efficient in the afternoon. You suddenly might realize how much is on your plate and decide to concentrate on what must be done. Create the possibility of working at home, where you can focus.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could be more in tune with a child, a new project or a loved one in the afternoon. To someone close, your change in mood from the morning chilliness that emanated from you will make him or her smile. Share more of your emotional side.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You are likely to speak your mind and cause quite a hullabaloo. By the afternoon, you might wish that you had stayed a little more contained. Consider what might be the best peace offering or at least an expression of your caring.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Check out a financial offer or an investment in the morning. The research that you do could prove to be most worthwhile by the afternoon. A discussion could reveal a lot more about what is being offered. Fortunately, you will ask the right questions.

Opening lead — ten of spades.

Consider the North-South diamond holding in today's deal where, as declarer, your aim is to avoid losing more than one trick in the suit.

One method of play is to lead low to the ace and return the ten. If East follows low, you can let the ten ride or go up with the queen. If East has the jack, playing low on the ten wins, but if he has the king, the queen is the winning play. Whether you are successful depends on how good a guesser you are.

Another approach is to lead a low diamond from the closed hand and finesse dummy's eight. If the eight loses to the jack, you later try another finesse against West, hoping your right-hand opponent wasn't dealt the king and jack.

The second method of play is better than the first because there is about a 75 percent chance that East does not hold both honors, while if you play the ace followed by the ten, your chances are not nearly as good as that.

However, you shouldn't blindly choose the second line of play, for there might be yet another approach that is even better. In the present case, for instance, you can improve your prospects further by adopting a third line of play.

Accordingly, you win the spade lead with the ace, draw trumps, cash the king of spades and ruff a spade. Next you cash the A-K-Q of clubs and lead a low diamond to the eight.

East takes the jack, but even if he has the king, the slam is home. Because you have taken the precaution of eliminating the side suits before tackling diamonds, there is nothing he can do to stop you from scoring the rest of the tricks.

Tomorrow: Diabolical defense.

SESSION

While the first day is usually long on ceremony, the Florida Senate plans to pass bills intended to crack down on sex offenders. The main goal of the proposed laws will be to strengthen the Jimmy Ryce Act, which allows for the civil commitment of sexual predators once they finish their prison terms.

Still legislators may wind up pushing off some items to avoid controversies that could harm Scott's bid for re-election. Scott, who had never run for office before 2010, is seeking a second term though battling consistently low poll numbers.

Scott has yet to weigh in publicly this year on whether he favors any of the gambling proposals under consideration, or if he is willing to back a push by legislative leaders to limiting the type of retirement benefits that future public employees can receive.

House Speaker Will Weatherford said he was comfortable with Scott's cautious approach.

Scott will use his speech to press for more than $500 million in tax and fee cuts he's seeking this year. The governor wants to roll back auto registration fees that were increased back in 2009. He is also seeking a break in taxes charged on commercial rents and he wants to expand the state's existing back-to-school sales tax holiday.

"As I tell the hard-working people of Florida as I travel our state: We want you to keep more of the money you earn. Because it's your money," reads one excerpt from his speech.

The governor also wants to keep college tuition rates flat again this year. Scott vetoed a proposed tuition hike in 2013 and his office tried unsuccessfully to get universities to ignore a provision in state law that requires tuition to go up by the rate of inflation.

Scott in his speech will ask legislators to repeal laws that allow universities to raise tuition above rates set by legislators. Legislative leaders have said they are willing to roll back the rate from the current 15 percent to 6 percent.

"Florida is a really divided state. So, if we let leaders that only represent a portion of the state control the agenda, then you've got the wishes of so many Floridians that are going unmet."

House Democratic Leader Perry Thurston

Scott will say that "undoing" the tuition laws is "another way we can keep higher education affordable and accessible.

Weatherford acknowledged that legislators need to get tuition rates "under control" but he defended the idea of letting universities have some flexibility to raise tuition rates without legislative approval.

The final day before the session started included scores of fundraisers by legislators who will not be able to collect checks once the session. It also included activist groups holding rallies to stress their priorities.

Several hundred people participated in a "Moral Monday" event modeled after similar protests in North Carolina.

House Democratic Leader Perry Thurston said the idea was to shine a light "on issues that matter" but have been ignored by Republicans. Some of the issues cited by those at the NAACP sponsored event included expansion of the state's Medicaid program and restoration of voting rights for ex-convicts. Neither is expected to be addressed by legislators this session.

"Florida is a really divided state," Thurston said. "So, if we let leaders that only represent a portion of the state control the agenda, then you've got the wishes of so many Floridians that are going unmet."

The Florida chapter of Americans for Prosperity, a conservative group aligned with many tea party causes, held its own rally attended by GOP politicians, including by Weatherford. The group is backing Scott's call for tax cuts, as well as the push by legislative leaders to alter the pension plan for state workers.

COURT

"Simply put, IQ tests are not a perfect measure of a person's intellectual ability," Hall's lawyers told the court in written arguments.

In nine tests administered between 1968 and 2008, Hall scored as low as 60 and as high as 80, with his most recent scores falling between 69 and 74, according to the state.

A judge in an earlier phase of the case concluded Hall "had been mentally retarded his entire life." Psychiatrists and other medical professionals who examined him said he is mentally disabled.

As far back as the 1950s, Hall was considered "mentally retarded" — then the commonly accepted term for mental disability — according to school records submitted to the Supreme Court.

He was sentenced to death for murdering Karol Hurst, a 21-year-old pregnant woman who was abducted leaving a Pantry Pride grocery store in Leesburg in 1978.

Hall and an accomplice, Mack Ruffin, were looking for a car to use in a robbery, when Hall approached Hurst and forced her into their car. Hall drove the car away, with Hurst and Ruffin following in another car. Hurst was driven to a wooded area, beaten, raped and shot, then the body was dragged further into the woods.

Hall also has been convicted of killing a sheriff's deputy and has been imprisoned for the past 35 years. He earlier served a prison term for assault with intent to commit rape and was out on parole when he killed Hurst.

Hall's guilt is not at issue before the high court.

Florida's regulatory code says individuals with IQs as high as 75 may be diagnosed as mildly intellectually disabled, potentially allowing them to receive state aid. The code relies on the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders, the authoritative manual of the American Psychiatric Association, setting an IQ of 70, plus or minus five, as the upper range of intellectual disability.

The range reflects something that is true of all standardized testing — results are generally reliable, but not 100 percent so, and they are reported along with a margin of error.

Psychiatrists and psychologists who are supporting Hall also say that an IQ test alone is insufficient for a diagnosis of mental disability. The groups say there's a consensus among the mental health professions that an accurate diagnosis also must include evaluating an individual's ability to function in society, along with finding that the mental disability began in childhood.

But the Florida Supreme Court has ruled that the state law regarding executions and mental disability has no wiggle room if an inmate tests above 70.

In defending Hall's death sentence, the state says it makes sense to set a different threshold for vocational services than for criminal justice.

Providing treatment to a broader group makes sense, Florida Attorney General Pamela Jo Bondi said in court papers. But for death row inmates, "the risk of overdiagnosis of mental retardation is particularly pronounced," Bondi said. They "have every incentive to secure such a diagnosis, and the risk of malingering is very real," she said.

Father gets shocking telephone call

Staff Report

A man vacationing in Orlando was shocked to get a phone call Friday night from the Lake County Sheriff's Department, saying his 16-year-old daughter — thought to be home in Mississippi — was in Minneola having an alleged sexual relationship with a 36-year-old Groveland man.

Robert Regan, at 20349 U.S. Highway 27, was charged with traveling to meet a minor for sexual activity, unlawful sexual activity with a minor, lewd or lascivious battery and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

A sheriff's deputy pulled over Regan's vehicle in Minneola late Friday night because of an improperly lit license tag and spoke with the 16-year-old, sheriff's spokesman Lt. John Herrell said.

"Upon speaking with the female, she gave a fake home address and stated that Regan was her uncle," Herrell said. "After giving several suspicious and inconsistent explanations as to what she was doing with Regan, the deputy was able to determine that the female was actually from Mississippi, at which point he began to attempt to contact her parents."

REGAN

The father, who told the deputy he was vacationing in Orlando and thought his daughter was back home in Mississippi, immediately came to Minneola to pick her up.

The juvenile victim then admitted to the deputy and her father that she met Regan online and that he had picked her up about a week ago at her home in Mississippi, Herrell said. After spending time in Pensacola, they made their way to Lake County, where they have been staying at the Palace Hotel in Clermont.

"The juvenile described having sexual activity with Regan on numerous occasions while at the Palace Hotel," Herrell said.

Regan, a dump truck driver, was booked in to the Lake County Detention Center with no bond.

Ranch sold six Arabian Nights show horses

ROXANNE BROWN | Staff Writer
roxanne.brown@dailycommercial.com

The man who founded and built the popular Arabian Nights dinner theater equestrian show in Kissimmee has sold six of the 16 horses that performed at the show before it closed.

Mark Miller, who was raised around horses and learned all about the Al-Marah Arabian breed from his mother, Ruth Bazy McCormick Tankersley, called it a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to acquire one of the highly trained show horses.

Al-Marah spokeswoman Eileen Daley said about 80 or 90 people showed up for the sale Saturday, and six of the horses found new homes. Prices ranged from $2,500 to $20,000.

The six that sold are Officer, a grey Arabian gelding; Dark Storm, a black Arabian stallion; Lucky's Queen, a half-Grey, half-Arabian Irish draft mare; Shift Work, a Grey Anglo Arabian gelding; Sonny, an 11-year-old Percheron gelding and Regency Royal, a 5-year-old Belgian gelding.

A couple of sales are still pending.

"A lot of people came to check us out, and we were pleased that six of our horses were able to find new homes," Daley said.

Miller's ranch is on 80 acres off Lakeshore Drive overlooking Little Lake Nellie and Lake Nellie. Its name, Al-Marah, a word from the Budeon tribe that means "an oasis," is synonymous with the Tucson, Ariz., ranch Miller's mother

Pig on the Pond, south Lake's main fundraising event for local educational programs and scholarships for college-bound students, is being expanded this weekend from two days to three.

A new Sunday lineup will include several musical performances and this year's No Duck Left Behind rubber ducky race, where one Lake County child will win a $5,000 scholarship.

The event kicks off at 5 p.m. Friday with The Great Chili Challenge, a competition featuring a variety of chili, music by T. Scott Walker and Clemons Road, a midway carnival, craft show, boat show and more.

It continues at 8 a.m. Saturday with the 5K Rib Run/Walk for Education, sponsored by First Green Bank. Pig on the Pond "For the Kids" then officially opens at 10 a.m., featuring lots of barbecue and a sanctioned barbecue competition, the midway, a Kids Zone, dessert bake-off competition and the annual Cub Scout Pinewood Derby Race, scheduled from noon to 1:30 p.m.

Emergency animal shelter C-section saves five puppies

Staff Report

When a beagle/walker hound mix arrived to Lake County Animal Services already going into labor last week, staff members jumped into action to save the dog and her unborn puppies.

The mother was emaciated, anemic and in labor when a resident in Umatilla heard her distressed cries, county public information officer Elisha Pappacoda said in a press release. Animal Services officers located the animal and rushed her into the shelter, where veterinarian Dr. Julie-Anne Corda assessed her condition.

Due to her weakened state, the dog — now named Henrietta — was unable to birth all of her puppies naturally, so Corda and Animal Services staff members quickly performed an emergency C-section, in between an already full surgery schedule, to save Henrietta's life.

Miller said while he personally loves the horses, he is keeping only a couple from the show to use on his ranch as teachers. The rest are not from the core herd his family has bred since the 1940s.

While Arabian Nights is closed, Al-Marah Ranch stays busy. The facility offers riding lessons, training lessons and boarding.

Patrons can also book special events, complete with pony or horse rides, including birthday parties, weddings and family reunions on the 80-acre grounds.

Miller said arrangements can be made for special entrances, rides into ceremonies and themed events during ceremonies or parties. Many of the props originally used in the Arabian Nights shows — like covered carriages that can transport a bride and bridesmaids, or a chariot that a groom can ride — are now available at the ranch.

"If people want a show, we can give them a show," Miller said.

condition, she also couldn't nurse the pups, Pappacoda said. Animal Services volunteer and photographer Whitney Luckhart stepped in to foster and care for the new family through the night.

Corda reached out to South Lake Animal League (SLAL), which has had many successes with orphaned puppies, to stand vigil. SLAL volunteer Joanna Block has since taken over care of the five newborn puppies, while Luckhart, having fallen in love with Henrietta, will continue fostering the mother, Pappacoda said.

"Kudos to our staff at Lake County Animal Services for going the extra mile to save this mom and her puppies, and for working with one of our animal rescue partners to step in to take care of this new family," said Brian Sheahan, director of Lake County's Community Safety and Compliance Department.

"These are some of the challenges our staff faces daily, and I am so proud of their work in saving the lives of animals."

Robinson's Racing Pigs will perform at various times throughout the weekend during Pig on the Pond, according to event organizers.

Since the event first began in 1998, nearly $700,000 has been raised for education programs and scholarships. The event takes place at Waterfront Park.

Since there is no on-site parking at Waterfront Park, and downtown parking is for customers using businesses there, a free shuttle service is available at the following locations: Clermont Middle School, 301 East Ave.; Clermont Park and Ride on U.S. Highway 27 north, just south of U.S. Highway 50; First United Methodist Church, at the corner of Broome and 8th Streets and the Citrus Tower Professional Center, located at the corner of US 27 and Hunt Street (one block south of the Citrus Tower).

Shuttles will run continuously from 4 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. on Friday, from 8 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. on Saturday and from 10:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. on Sunday.

The main entrance to Waterfront Park will be closed and will be restricted to emergency vehicles and handicap parking.

Event organizers are stressing there is no parking in residential areas surrounding the Waterfront Park.

"The no-parking areas will be enforced and vehicles will be towed at the owner's expense," an event organizer said.

RAIL

The line from Mount Dora to Tavares has been out of service for more than four years, while the line from Eustis to Umatilla has been out since the late 1990s, according to Petree.

The line from Mount Dora to Sorrento will remain out of service as the local governments saw no need for it and will try with a separate project to turn it into a trail, according to Petree.

Robert Chandler, director of economic development and tourism for Lake County, said as property with rail access becomes scarce across the state, the work could be a major boon to business here.

"For us to now be adding back some supply, the demand is there," Chandler said. "On the other side, you've got demand going up for rail-oriented freight, and the supply is going down in Florida. So, that's kind of a sweet spot for us."

Chandler said his office is getting leads from businesses interested in finding properties with rail access in Lake County.

"It's a straight economic development play. There's times when you've got to invest money to get money back," Chandler said. "What we have to do in Lake County is seek out ways that we can have a competitive advantage over other areas."

He added on a certain scale, shipping by train is cheaper than shipping by road.

According to Chandler, of Lake County's main industrial parks, only the Eustis Commerce Park and the Southridge Industrial Park south of Tavares have rail access. But with vacant acreage along the line, new developments could come in.

"For the industrial parks, it's certainly a huge advantage because they've got either buildings that are sitting vacant in some cases or land that hasn't been developed, and this just gives them one more amenity to offer to a potential business," Chandler said.

U.S. Rep. Daniel Webster also said infrastructure is important for business.

"Everybody's got these ideas about what's the first thing a business looks at," Webster said. "It's (going to) be infrastructure. You have to have transportation infrastructure unless the business is some sort of isolated business that doesn't need to move any product, and that's pretty rare."

Petree added the rail could also help reduce traffic.

"If you can get 300 trucks on one train, that's 300 trucks that are not traveling up and down 441," Petree said.

Of the $18.4 million cost for the project, $13.8 million came from a state grant, $2.2 million came from a federal grant and the remainder came from Florida Central Railroad and local governments, including Lake and Orange counties, Tavares, Eustis, Mount Dora, Apopka, Orlando, Winter Garden and Ocoee, according to T.J. Fish, the executive director for the Lake-Sumter Metropolitan Planning Organization.

Petree said it was the best public-private partner project he had ever been involved with.

Webster also praised the local governments coming together.

"I've found the Central Florida area is a partnership dream. Cities work together," Webster said. "If you go other places you hear these horror stories of the cities and counties that can't get along; they can't get their act together. I would say this is a picture of cities getting their act together and actually stepping up to the plate and doing something good for the whole community, not just their own city limits."

He added he believed projects like this should originate locally.

While the project has been in the making for more than two years, construction work began this past November and the majority of it is expected to be done by April, according to Petree. He added there will be some minor work and cleanup after April.

The installation of the larger rails could also eventually allow for passenger rail service from Eustis to tie in with SunRail in Orlando, according to Petree.

"This provides the type of rail that you will need to make that happen," Petree said. "FDOT, along with the Lake MPO and the cities and counties, are currently going through a study to look at the feasibility of that."

Tavares has annexed property in hopes of creating a 1,200-acre Cargo-Oriented Development near the southwest corner of Lake Dora that could have places for private rail cars to stay, train engine and rail car repair and support areas. It could also feature warehouse and manufacturing space, according to the Florida Department of Transportation.

Webster added he would eventually like to see a rail system to connect to Gainesville that would come through Leesburg.

"I would like to have a rail system...to go farther north with that leg, up through Leesburg, and then all the way to Gainesville at some point in time," Webster said.

Established in 1986, the Florida Central Railroad has 68 miles of track, according to the company's website. It was expanded in 1990 by Pinsly Railroad Company.

Obama: Tough choices nearing in Israeli-Palestinian peace talks

JULIE PACE
AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Seeking to salvage an elusive Middle East peace plan, President Barack Obama pressed Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu Monday to make the "tough decisions" needed to move forward on talks with the Palestinians.

But facing a U.S.-imposed April deadline, the Israeli leader declared pessimistically that, "Israel has been doing its part and, I regret to say, the Palestinians have not." Netanyahu's comments underscored the slim prospects of reaching an agreement to the long-running conflict, despite a robust effort led by Secretary of State John Kerry.

Obama and Netanyahu spoke before an Oval Office meeting on a snowy Monday in Washington. The meeting marked a more direct foray into the peace negotiations by Obama, who will also meet at the White House later this month with Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas.

PABLO MARTINEZ MONSIVAIS / AP

President Barack Obama and Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu shake hands during their meeting in the Oval Office of the White House in Washington, on Monday.

"It is still possible to create two states, a Jewish state of Israel and a state of Palestine, with people living side by side in peace and security," Obama said. "But it's difficult. It requires compromise on all sides."

While the relationship between Obama and Netanyahu has improved after early tensions, the two leaders still grapple with deep differences, particularly on Iran. Israel sees Iran's nuclear program as an existential threat and fears Tehran is using U.S.-led negotiations to stall while it builds a bomb.

Obama, seeking to reassure Netanyahu, affirmed his "absolute commitment that Iran does not acquire a nuclear weapon."

Netanyahu insisted Monday that Iran must suspend all uranium enrichment, though any final deal between the international community and Iran would likely leave the Islamic republic with a small enrichment capacity.

"No country has a greater stake in this," said Netanyahu, who is in Washington to speak at the annual meeting of AIPAC, the largest pro-Israel lobby.

Obama, who has twice addressed the conference, is not speaking this year, though Kerry was scheduled to speak Monday night.

In excerpts released ahead of his speech, Kerry outlined what he called "the endgame" in the peace negotiations. He said a peace deal must include security arrangements that leave Israel more secure, mutual recognition of states for the Jewish and Palestinian people, an end to all conflict, a just solution for Palestinian refugees, and an resolution "that finally allows Jerusalem to live up to its name as the city of peace."

Kerry has made nearly a dozen trips to the region over the past year and is seeking to get both sides to sign a framework by the end of April that would serve as a guide for negotiations on a permanent solution to the conflict between the Israelis and Palestinians. The framework aims to address the core issues in the dispute, including borders between Israel and a future Palestine, the fate of Palestinian refugees and the status of the holy city of Jerusalem.

Obama's 2015 budget appeals to Democrats

ANDREW TAYLOR
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Striving for unity among Democrats rather than compromise with Republicans, President Barack Obama will unveil an election-year budget on Tuesday that drops earlier proposals to cut future Social Security benefits and seeks new money for infrastructure, education and job training.

But Obama's almost $4 trillion budget plan is likely to have a short shelf life. It comes just three months after Congress and the White House agreed to a two-year, bipartisan budget pact that has already set the parameters for this election year's budget work. Democrats controlling the Senate have already announced they won't advance a budget this year and will instead skip ahead to the annual appropriations bills for 2015, relying on new spending "caps" set by December's budget deal that provide $56 billion less than what Obama wants in 2015.

Obama would divide the extra money equally between the Pentagon and domestic initiatives like boosting manufacturing hubs, job training and preschool programs and cutting energy waste. Republicans are likely to balk at the idea, which would be paid for by curbing special interest tax breaks and making spending cuts elsewhere in the budget.

Obama has also announced a four-year, $302 billion plan to boost spending on highways, rail projects and mass transit. Half of the initiative would be financed through corporate taxes. Funding for highway and mass transit projects expires at the end of September, and there's bipartisan interest in finding a supplemental funding stream to augment stagnant revenues from the $18.4 cents-per-gallon gasoline tax.

Obama's budget arrives after a tumultuous year that began with Obama muscling through a 10-year $600 billion-plus tax increase on upper-bracket earners.

Republicans are sure to brush aside most of Obama's new initiatives. Ryan released a report Monday criticizing many federal anti-poverty programs, saying they should be redesigned to better help the poor escape poverty.

Telecoms push back on proposed NSA plan

MARCY GORDON and MARTHA MENDOZA
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — When Apple, Google, Microsoft and other tech giants united in outrage last summer over the National Security Agency's unfettered spying, telecommunications giants such as AT&T, Verizon and Sprint — whose customers are also the targets of secret government spying — remained noticeably mum.

But now the phone companies are speaking up. In closed-door meetings with policymakers they are taking a less accommodating stance with government and rattling the historically tight bond between telecom and the surveillance community.

"It's been extremely unusual for telecoms to resist any requests from the government," says software engineer Zaki Manian of Palo Alto, who advocates against mass government surveillance.

"The telecom companies have a long history of providing raw data dumps to the government and typically taking some money in return and calling it a day," Manian says.

Technology companies typically comply with requests for information about individual users but resist demands for bulk data. But telecommunications companies share a connection with government unlike that of any other industry.

The central pillar of Obama's plan to overhaul the surveillance programs calls for shifting storage of Americans' phone data from the government to telecom companies or an independent third party. But telecoms don't want that job.

Russia sets Ukraine agenda with diplomacy, threats

KIEV, Ukraine — Russian troops said to be 16,000 strong tightened their stranglehold on Ukraine's Crimean Peninsula Monday, openly defying the U.S. and the European Union and rattling world capitals and stock markets.

The West struggled to find a way to get Russia to back down, but with little beyond already threatened diplomatic and economic sanctions, global markets fell sharply over the prospect of violent upheaval in the heart of Europe.

For its part, Moscow reiterated its price for ending the crisis: restoration of a deal reached with the opposition less than two weeks ago to form a national unity government in Kiev that represents pro-Russian as well as Ukrainian interests, with new elections to be held by December.

Ukraine, meanwhile, accused Russia of piracy for blocking two of the besieged country's warships and ordering them to surrender or be seized.

The U.S. originally estimated that 6,000 Russian troops were dispatched to Crimea, but Ukraine's mission to the United Nations said Monday that 16,000 had been deployed. That stoked fears that the Kremlin might carry out more land grabs in pro-Russian eastern Ukraine.

U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry was headed to Kiev in an expression of support for Ukraine's sovereignty, and the EU threatened a raft of punitive measures as it called an emergency summit for Thursday. The Pentagon said it was suspending exercises and other activities with the Russian military.

But it was Russia that appeared to be driving the agenda.

Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov said at a U.N. Human Rights Council session in Geneva that Ukraine should return to an agreement signed last month by pro-Russian President Viktor Yanukovych — but not Moscow — to hold early elections and surrender some powers. Yanukovych fled the country after sealing the pact with the opposition and foreign ministers of France, Germany and Poland.

"Instead of a promised national unity government," Lavrov said of the fledgling new administration in Kiev, "a government of the victors has been created."

The latest flashpoint came when Ukrainian authorities said Russian troops had issued an ultimatum for two of the besieged country's warships to surrender or be seized.

"I call on the leadership of the Russian Federation. Stop the aggression, stop the provocations, stop the piracy! These are crimes, and you will be called to account for them," said acting Ukrainian President Oleksandr Turchynov.

"The commanders and crews are ready to defend their ships. They are defending Ukraine," Turchynov said in a televised address to the nation after a military spokesman said Ukraine's corvette Ternopil and command ship Slavutych were being blocked by four Russian navy ships in the Crimean port of Sevastopol.

DARKO VOJINOVIC / AP

A Ukrainian soldier stands guard at the gate of a military base in the port of Kerch, Ukraine, on Monday.

Vladimir Anikin, a Russian defense ministry spokesman, dismissed the accusation as nonsense but refused to elaborate.

In Washington, the State Department warned of a "dangerous escalation" and said the U.S. would hold Moscow directly accountable for any threat to Ukraine's navy.

Russia is "on the wrong side of history" in Ukraine, President Barack Obama said, adding that continued military action would be "a costly proposition for Russia." Speaking to reporters in the Oval Office, Obama said the U.S. was considering economic and diplomatic options that will isolate Russia, and called on Congress to work on an aid package for Ukraine.

Still, it was not clear what the West could do to make Russia retreat. The clearest weapon at the disposal of the U.S. and the EU appeared to be economic sanctions that would freeze Russian assets and pull the plug on multibillion dollar deals with Russia. Late Monday, the EU threatened to freeze visa liberalization and economic cooperation talks and boycott the G-8 summit in Russia later this year.

Witness at Pistorius trial recalls hearing screams

GERALD IMRAY and CHRISTOPHER TORCHIA
Associated Press

PRETORIA, South Africa — "Bang ... bang, bang, bang."

The murder trial of Oscar Pistorius opened Monday in South Africa with testimony from a neighbor who described the sound of what she said were four gunshots and recalled the "blood-curdling screams" of a woman who prosecutors say was the girlfriend slain by the onetime star athlete in his home.

"It's the most helpless feeling I've ever had in my life," university lecturer Michelle Burger said of listening to the screams. "I knew something terrible was happening in that house."

The 27-year-old double-amputee runner, whose stature peaked at the 2012 London Olympics and then plummeted when he shot model and television personality Reeva Steenkamp in the pre-dawn hours of Valentine's Day last year, stood in the dock in a dark gray suit and black tie, writing in a pad and sometimes passing notes to defense lawyers. At one point, he smiled at a person sitting behind him. Steenkamp's mother, June, sat near Pistorius but there was no communication between them.

The proceedings were broadcast on television, though Burger was not shown at her own request, and millions of people around the world followed a trial where the heady mix of a celebrity defendant and shocking allegations has drawn comparisons to the O.J. Simpson case two decades ago.

Prosecutors allege that Pistorius, who has been free on bail, shot Steenkamp after an argument.

Gunmen, bombers kill 11 in Pakistan capital

REBECCA SANTANA and ZARAR KHAN
Associated Press

ISLAMABAD — Gunmen stormed Pakistan's main court complex in Islamabad on Monday, cutting down fleeing lawyers before blowing themselves up in a rampage that killed 11 people. It was the worst terror attack in years in the capital, which has largely been spared the violence raging in many parts of the country.

The bloodshed undermined the government's efforts to negotiate a peace deal with the main militant group, the Pakistani Taliban, just days after the organization announced a one-month cease-fire for the talks.

The Pakistani Taliban denied responsibility for the attack. But the violence underscored the difficulty of negotiations when numerous militant groups are operating in Pakistan. And it raised questions of whether the Taliban can control some of their factions that may oppose talks.

The attack stunned the capital, a normally quiet city of wide, tree-lined boulevards that is home to diplomats, generals, aid workers and government officials. It was the deadliest attack in Islamabad since a 2008 truck bombing at the Marriott Hotel killed 54 people.

In an assault that lasted roughly 20 minutes, gunmen swarmed through the narrow alleys between the complex's buildings, hurling grenades and firing automatic weapons wildly, witnesses said. Gunmen broke through a door to one judge's chambers and shot him to death, while other victims were mowed down in the cafeteria.

A Pakistani woman comforts a woman grieving outside a hospital's morgue, where the bodies of victims of a twin suicide bombing are, in Islamabad, Pakistan, on Monday.

One lawyer, Momin Ali, described it as a scene from hell, with attorneys and judges fleeing for their lives amid explosions and gunfire.

"My colleague was shot, and there was no one to help him. When I reached him, he was bleeding and crying for help," he said.

In the confusion afterward, it was unclear how many attackers were involved and whether any escaped.

At least two were suicide bombers who rushed in, threw hand grenades and started shooting, then detonated the explosives on their bodies, said Islamabad Police Chief Sikander Hayat. One blew himself up outside the office of the lawyers' union president, the other outside a judge's office, he said.

Lawyer Murad Ali said he saw several attackers brandishing automatic weapons head toward a courtroom and shoot a female lawyer. Ali's hands were splattered with blood from helping remove four of the dead.

Another lawyer, Sardar Gul Nawaz, said the attackers had short beards and wore shalwar kameez, a traditional Pakistani outfit of baggy pants and a long tunic.

Police Inspector Khalid Mahmood Awan said the two suicide bombers were the only attackers. Awan, chief of the Margala police station near the court complex, said that the two carried out their shooting rampage, then, after an exchange of fire with police, blew themselves up.

Police searched the compound afterward and found no other gunmen. But others put the number higher.

One intelligence official, after examining the scene, said the attackers operated in three groups of four each. When the job was done, the survivors escaped in three waiting vehicles, he said. He spoke on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to talk to the media.

Police official Jamil Hashmi put the number of attackers at six to eight, and numerous witnesses spoke of seeing more than two.

The dead included one judge, three lawyers and a policeman, said Dr. Ayesha Essani, spokeswoman for the hospital where the dead and wounded were taken. She said 29 people were wounded.

A little-known group identifying itself as Ahrar-ul-Hind claimed responsibility in a telephone call to an Associated Press reporter. A spokesman for the group, Assad Mansour, said it was not part of the Pakistani Taliban, nor bound by their cease-fire. There was no way to independently verify their claim.

Obama admin drives ahead with new cleaner gas rule

JOSH LEDERMAN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Obama administration is driving ahead with a dramatic reduction in sulfur in gasoline and tailpipe emissions, declaring that cleaner air will save thousands of lives per year at little cost to consumers.

Public health groups and automakers cheered the new rules, finalized Monday by the Environmental Protection Agency, with some insisting they could prove to be President Barack Obama's signature environmental accomplishment in his second term. The oil and gas industry, meanwhile, panned the move, calling it gratuitous and accusing the government of grossly underestimating the increased cost at the pump.

"The benefits far outweigh the costs," said EPA Administrator Gina McCarthy, calling it a win for both consumers and automakers. "These standards will reduce pollution, they'll clean the air we breathe and protect the health of American families."

In the works for years, the rules require refineries to cut sulfur levels in the gasoline by about two-thirds by 2017. Less sulfur in gasoline makes it easier for a car's pollution controls to effectively filter out emissions, resulting in cleaner air, the EPA says. For car manufacturers, stricter limits on tailpipe emissions will require engineering changes so that cars weed out more pollution.

The cost to consumers: Less than a penny per gallon of gas, McCarthy said.

Vendor registration nears for garden fair

Staff Report

Dozens of businesses involved in landscaping, gardening, irrigation, horticulture, fertilization, composting, hardscapes and more will be on hand May 3-4 during Lake County's 3rd Annual Central Florida Landscape & Garden Fair.

The free event takes place beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Sunday at the Lake County Agricultural Center, 1951 Woodlea Rd., Tavares.

"For the past two years, this family-friendly event has been a big hit with gardeners, offering hands-on workshops and talks from expert speakers," Brooke Moffis, residential horticulture agent with the UF/IFAS Extension in Lake County, said in a press release. "We are especially looking forward to having the event again at the Discovery Gardens, which provides the perfect backdrop for this botanical-themed fair."

Discovery Gardens is nestled on more than four acres behind the Lake County Agricultural Center and features 20 themed gardens, including a string of lush courtyards and six specially designed children's gardens.

Special opportunities are being offered for companies to support this event and increase their visibility in the community through sponsorship. Sponsorships are available ranging in cost from $250 for silver level to $750 for platinum level.

Vendor and exhibitor booths ranging from 10 feet by 10 feet to 10 feet by 20 feet. Food vendor spaces are also available.

Vendors and sponsors may register at www.lakecountyfl.gov/gardenfair. The deadline to register is April 4. For information, call Tina Chavez at 352-343-9647 or email tchavez@lakecountyfl.gov.

Stocks slide as tensions build in Ukraine

STEVE ROTHWELL
AP Markets Writer

NEW YORK — Russia's military advance into Ukraine rattled global markets Monday.

U.S. stocks fell the most in a month and the price of crude oil rose sharply as traders feared Russian exports could be affected by sanctions. Gold and bond prices rose as investors sought safety.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index had its biggest drop since Feb. 3, following markets in Europe and Asia lower, as Russia's military tightened its grip on the Crimea region of Ukraine.

It was the second time this year the U.S. stock market has been roiled by developments in emerging markets. Stocks slipped in January as investors worried about slowing growth in China and other emerging economies. Now a showdown in Ukraine has grabbed investors' attention and stoked fears of a tit-for-tat campaign of economic sanctions between Russia and Western powers.

The S&P 500 index fell 13.72 points, or 0.7 percent, to 1,845.73, the biggest drop since Feb. 3. The index was down as much as 25 points at one point before recouping some of the ground it lost.

The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 153.68 points, or 0.9 percent, to 16,168.03. The Nasdaq composite fell 30.82 points, or 0.7 percent, to 4,277.30.

The price of crude following warnings by Washington and other governments that Russia, a major oil exporter, might face sanctions after it seized control of Ukraine's Crimean Peninsula. Russia was the world's second-largest producer of oil in 2012, accounting for 12.6 percent of global supplies, according to the International Energy Agency.

The prices of crude oil climbed $2.33, or 2.3 percent, to $104.92 a barrel, its highest price of the year.

Turnaround update?

RadioShack reports fourth-quarter financial results today.

The struggling electronics retailer has been cutting costs, shuffling management and updating its stores and offerings in response to tough competition from online retailers and discount stores. Investors will want to know whether the turnaround plan is reviving the retailer's slumping sales.

Auto supply bellwether

AutoZone has been adding stores, a move that has helped boost the auto-parts retailer's revenue.

The company also has been able to drive sales growth at stores open at least a year. The figure is closely watched in the retail business because it excludes potentially distorting results from newly added stores. Did the trend extend into AutoZone's fiscal second quarter? Find out today, when the retailer reports its latest quarterly earnings.

Better quarter?

Wall Street predicts that AeroVironment's latest quarterly earnings and revenue improved from the same quarter last year.

The drone manufacturer, which is due to report third-quarter financial results today, designs, develops, produces and supports an advanced portfolio of unmanned aircraft systems for the U.S. military and its allies.

Should the life of death row inmates hinge on an IQ test?

On Monday, the Supreme Court will hear oral arguments about a Florida man, Freddie Lee Hall, who faces execution for a 1978 murder. Hall is intellectually incapable of understanding the arguments, but the state of Florida says that it has the right to execute him nevertheless, in a case that spotlights both the barbarity and the absurdity of the death penalty.

We have a long history of opposing capital punishment on the grounds of morality, overwhelming evidence of its misapplication and public expense, among other things. But even if we did see sense in the practice, we would see none in applying the death penalty here, despite the brutality of the crime. Hall and a partner were convicted of kidnapping, raping and murdering Karol Hurst, who was 21 and pregnant; later that day, they allegedly shot and killed a deputy sheriff during a confrontation. This case centers on the Hurst murder.

Hall has a severely diminished mental capacity as measured by IQ tests and the observations of trained clinicians. The Supreme Court ruled in 2002 in Atkins v. Virginia that executing the intellectually disabled violates the Eighth Amendment's prohibition against "cruel and unusual" punishment. But the court left it up to the states to define what constitutes intellectual disability.

Florida, along with several other states, sets its threshold at an IQ test score of 70, though the professional consensus suggests a range of 70 to 75. Hall's score? He was measured at 71 in one test, 72 in another. Yet those tests also have a "standard error of measurement," which means Hall could actually be below Florida's threshold of 70.

Florida says it is satisfied with its "bright line" threshold and wants to put Hall to death despite assertions that he was incapable of cooperating in his own defense, and despite the fact that the professional determination of intellectual disability is based only in part on IQ. According to the American Association on Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities — and cited by Hall's lawyers — it is "characterized by significant limitations in both intellectual functioning and in adaptive behavior." An IQ test can measure intellectual functioning, but it takes trained professionals to determine the extent of a person's adaptive behavior. In other words, a test score alone doesn't define mental capacity.

Yet Florida says it does. The legal argument before the court is whether Florida can use its rigid statistical cutoff to determine who is ineligible for the death penalty. So it will be a court of the absurd as the justices hear arguments over whether a single IQ test point and a statistical margin of error should determine if someone lives or dies for a criminal act.

Venezuela's Maduro faces hard choices

Andres Oppenheimer

MCCLATCHY-TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

Venezuelan President Nicolas Maduro's disastrous government is in much bigger trouble than most people think, not because of the student protests that have already resulted in more than 16 deaths, but by a 56 percent annual inflation rate — the world's highest — that may soon turn his country ungovernable.

Most economists agree that no country can maintain a 56 percent inflation rate for several years. History shows that when countries reach that inflation level, they either take draconian austerity measures to curb inflation, or they fall into hyper-inflation, and economic and political chaos.

In other words, it would be almost impossible for Maduro to stay in power until the end of his term in 2019 without stopping the inflationary spiral, putting an end to food shortages, and preventing an economic meltdown.

Here are his available options:

■ A traditional IMF-supported austerity package. Much like bankrupt Greece did recently, and many Latin American countries have done, Maduro could ask the IMF to rescue Venezuela with emergency loans and a package of austerity measures. That would require, among other things, massive cuts in public spending, reversing nationalizations, lifting price controls and restoring the independence of the central bank.

Of course, all of this would be diametrically opposed to everything Maduro and his mentor, late President Hugo Chavez, have been preaching over the past 15 years. And, if he took these austerity measures, Maduro would most likely need to form a coalition government or reach a deal with the opposition to prevent the ongoing street protests from getting bigger, and bloodier.

■ A self-imposed austerity package. Maduro could try a self-imposed package of belt-tightening measures, without IMF assistance. Much like Mexico did recently with its Pact for Mexico, in which all major political parties agreed on long-term economic reforms, Maduro could call the opposition to sign a national economic salvation plan.

Most economists agree that no country can maintain a 56 percent inflation rate for several years. History shows that when countries reach that inflation level, they either take draconian austerity measures to curb inflation, or they fall into hyper-inflation, and economic and political chaos.

But the opposition would most likely not go for it without a coalition government that would restore a separation of powers, create an independent central bank, and call for early elections.

■ Dollarizing the economy. Much like Panama, Ecuador and most recently Zimbabwe have done, Maduro could stop the inflationary spiral by adopting a basket of major currencies, which in effect means the U.S. dollar.

That would help restore confidence in the country's economy. But it would not only be embarrassing for Maduro, who claims to be an "anti-imperialist" revolutionary, but would result in the same draconian public spending cuts as an IMF package. It would be hard to enforce without a coalition government or a political agreement with the opposition.

■ A Chinese bailout. Much like Cuba did with the former Soviet Union, Maduro could ask oil-hungry China to bail out Venezuela in exchange for virtually taking over the country, and turning it into a Chinese satellite state.

Problem is, the Chinese are prudent business people, and they are already worried about the more than $20 billion in outstanding loans to Venezuela. Last year, Venezuela asked for a $10 billion loan from China, but only got half of that with stronger conditions attached.

Now, with greater political uncertainty than last year, China will be even less likely to bail out Venezuela, says Evan Ellis, a professor with the Center for Hemispheric Defense Studies in Washington and a top expert on China-Latin American ties.

When I asked Ellis whether China would not be tempted to run greater economic risks in exchange for controlling oil-rich Venezuela, he said that's unlikely. It would require a level of Chinese control and supervision that would infuriate the United States, he said.

"Every commercial and strategic opportunity that the Chinese pursue in Latin America, they do with one eye to the reaction of the United States," Ellis said. "China doesn't want to turn the United States, its biggest trade partner, into an enemy."

My opinion: It's hard to say which of these options Maduro will choose, but it's clear that doing nothing is not an option for him. Praying for a new hike in world oil prices won't work, because virtually no serious economist is forecasting a major rise in world oil prices anytime soon.

Maduro will have to make massive cuts in public subsidies, which he cannot enforce by himself in a deeply divided country without triggering more — and larger — social protests. Barring an unlikely Chinese bailout, he will need a political agreement with the opposition leaders he now insults every day.

Umpires' calls upheld as instant replay debuts

The umps went 3 for 3 on Monday as MLB tried out the new format at three spring training games.

The first test came at 3:06 p.m. in Fort Myers, after first base umpire Fieldin Culbreth ruled Toronto shortstop Munenori Kawasaki's throw pulled Jared Goedert off the bag in the sixth inning.

"I'm not too sure that you're not right here," Culbreth said Blue Jays manager John Gibbons told him, "but since we haven't done it before, let's go take a look."

Umpire Chris Guccione calls a strike as Arizona Diamondbacks' Gerardo Parra bats against Colorado Rockies pitcher Franklin Morales on Friday in Scottsdale, Culbreth answered: "OK. That's what it's for."

After 2 minutes, 34 seconds, replay umpire Brian O'Nora relayed his call by headset, confirming that Minnesota batter Chris Rahl was safe. During the wait, Rahl said he realized he perhaps was part of history.

"It's kind of funny. I was thinking, 'Is this the first one?'" he said.

O'Nora made the final ruling from a satellite truck outside the stadium. During the regular season, umpires on the field will check with the replay booth in New York, where an MLB umpire will make the final call.

Later in the game, Culbreth rotated and took a turn in the truck, confirming another safe call at first base.

Florida remains atop AP hoops poll

The Gators (27-2), who are on a school-record 21-game winning streak, were a solid No. 1 Monday, receiving 46 first-place votes from the 65-member national media panel.

Wichita State (31-0), the first team since Saint Joseph's in 2004 to enter its conference tournament undefeated, was No. 1 on 14 ballots, while Arizona (27-2), which was ranked No. 1 for eight weeks earlier this season, got the other five first-place votes.

Duke moved up two spots to fourth while Virginia, which won its first outright Atlantic Coast Conference title since 1981, jumped from 12th to fifth, the

LSSC hurlers yield just three hits in 4-1 win

Staff Report

Dakota Higdon, Tanner Barnhard and Jack Curtis each provided a pair of hits on Monday as LSSC rode a three-hit performance by four pitchers to a 4-1 win over the Flagler College JV squad.

The Lakehawks jumped in front from the outset, scoring twice in the first inning and once in the third to give LSSC a lead it would never surrender.

In the initial frame, Tanner Elsbernd doubled deep down the left field line and advanced to third when Higdon singled past short, then stole second to put men on second and third. Barnhard

Rich get richer, but do buyouts make them better?

BRIAN MAHONEY
AP Basketball Writer

Buyout season helps the NBA's rich get richer. The remainder of the schedule will determine if they actually got better.

With Danny Granger signing with the Clippers and Caron Butler with Oklahoma City, teams that were already good were able to add former All-Stars without having to give up anything except a little money.

It sometimes even seems unfair, since just a few days earlier adding players would've cost assets if teams wanted to improve via trade before the deadline.

"Buyouts at this point of the season are not good for the game. They strengthen better teams & further destroy competitive balance," former NBA player and current ESPN analyst Jalen Rose wrote on Twitter.

The buyouts usually start as soon as the deadline is over, when the agent of an unhappy veteran who didn't get moved — or in Granger's case, moves somewhere he doesn't want to go — works out a deal in which the player agrees to leave some money on the table in exchange for his release.

As long it's done by March 1 and he clears waivers, he's free to sign with any team except the one that released him and would be eligible to suit up for that team in the playoffs.

The Clippers picked up Granger and Glen "Big Baby" Davis that way. Jimmer Fredette signed with Chicago on Sunday, and Metta World Peace

LeBron nets 61 as Heat top Bobcats

TIM REYNOLDS
AP Basketball Writer

MIAMI — LeBron James scored a career-high 61 points, breaking Glen Rice's franchise record, and the Miami Heat defeated the Charlotte Bobcats 124-107 on Monday night.

James made 22 of 33 shots from the field, including his first eight 3-point attempts. His career best had been 56 points, on March 20, 2005, for Cleveland against Toronto.

Rice scored 56 to set the Heat record on April 15, 1995, against Orlando.

James had 24 points at halftime, then added 25 in the third quarter. The record-breaker came with 5:46 left, when James spun through three defenders for a layup that fell as he tumbled to the court.

Al Jefferson had 38 points and 19 rebounds for the Bobcats, his huge night merely an afterthought.

REPLAY

"I'm looking at this thing as, this is the future of the game. And I'm going to treat these games here the same way that I'm going to treat them during the regular season," Culbreth said.

In the eighth inning, Doug Bernier of the Twins was called safe on a close play at first. As Culbreth studied the replay, the ballpark sound system played a Rolling Stones song with the familiar lyric, "I can't get no satisfaction."

The call was confirmed, Bernier was safe.

Extra replay also was in place for two games in Arizona — the Los Angeles Angels vs. Arizona Diamondbacks in Scottsdale and the Chicago Cubs against Milwaukee in Phoenix.

Each team in the majors will have at least five exhibition games with the new system in place.

In January, owners approved the use of additional video replay to review most calls other than balls-and-strikes. Previously, umpires could only go to replay to review home runs and boundary calls.

Moments after the first replay call, Angels manager Mike Scioscia wasted little time in using his challenge.

In the top of the second, Luis Jimenez of the Angels tried to steal second. Catcher Bobby Wilson's throw was high but second base umpire Bill Miller ruled that Aaron Hill tagged the runner out.

Scioscia bounded out of the dugout and charged toward Miller to argue, just like managers always have done.

Instead, though, he chose to use his challenge. After two of the umpires made a quick visit to the Angels dugout to communicate with the replay umpire, the call was upheld.

"We weren't trying to make a mockery out of it," Scioscia said of using the challenge so soon. "We thought it was a pretty close play."

There was only one angle available with the limited camera work of a spring training telecast.

singled to left scoring Elsbernd with Higdon advancing to third on an error by Flagler first baseman MacLain Larson. Curtis singled to left to score Higdon with the inning's final run.

Higdon doubled to deep left center to open the third inning and came in to score on Barnhard's double to right, giving the Lakehawks a 3-0 lead.

Barnhard reached on a two-out walk to lead off the seventh inning and advanced to third on reliever Joe Gardner's wild throw. Curtis singled up the middle to score Barnhard with LSSC's final run of the game.

Anthony Mazzurco worked the first three frames for the Lakehawks, yielding a single hit before giving way to David Wood, who also limited Flagler bats to just one hit in his two innings of work to earn the win. Evan Graves came on in the sixth and surrendered the only Flagler run of the game on a single hit in the eighth, before turning the ball over to closer Walker Sheller, who picked up the save. Brandon Moore took the loss for Flagler.

The Lakehawks return to action on Wednesday when they host Daytona State College at 3 p.m. remains available.

Indiana coach Frank Vogel thinks the Clippers got "dramatically better" with Granger. But tinkering this late in a season can be tricky, and not everyone is sure it's best.

"They're adding pieces. With adding pieces, sometimes you can add too much, so I wouldn't fall in love with every move that's made," Warriors coach Mark Jackson said. "Sometimes the best move is no move at all."

Here are five things to watch this week:

COLLINS COMES HOME

More than a week after signing a 10-day contract and becoming the NBA's first openly gay player, Jason Collins makes his home debut Monday when Brooklyn hosts Chicago. Then the Nets will have to decide if they want to give the veteran another contract.

TOURING TEXAS

The Miami Heat, who have won seven in a row, face a couple of big challenges in Texas, visiting Houston on Tuesday before heading to San Antonio for another NBA Finals rematch on Thursday.

CHALLENGERS

Nobody in the East is catching Indiana or Miami, but the race for third place in the much-maligned conference has turned into a good one. Chicago has won nine of 10 to tie Toronto at 33-26, while Washington is two games back after six straight victories.

MAKINGS OF A MISMATCH

Philadelphia has lost 14 straight, its longest skid since dropping 15 in a row in 1994, and its next game is Tuesday at Oklahoma City, where the West-leading Thunder are 25-6.

Rudy Gay returns to Toronto on Friday for the first time since the Raptors traded him to Sacramento on Dec. 9. The forward has played well for the Kings but the Raptors have been terrific without him, going 25-14 since the deal.

STAT LINE OF THE WEEK

Goran Dragic, Phoenix: career-high 40 points, 14 of 21 from the field, 9 of 11 from the free throw line in a 116-104 victory over New Orleans on Friday. Dragic, having one of the best seasons of any player who didn't make the All-Star game, made it even better while logging 42 minutes on a night he wasn't sure he could play because of a sore right ankle.

POLL

Cavaliers' first Top Ten appearance since 2002.

Villanova was sixth followed by Syracuse, Kansas, Wisconsin and San Diego State.

Connecticut and Oklahoma returned to the Top 25 this week replacing Ohio State and Texas.

Virginia jumped from No. 12 to fifth in this week's poll, the Cavaliers' first appearance in the Top Ten since the 2001-02 season, when they reached as high as No. 4.

Saturday's win over Syracuse gave Virginia its first outright Atlantic Coast Conference title since 1980-81. The Cavaliers, featuring three-time national player of the year Ralph Sampson, were in the Top Ten the entire season, spent four weeks at No. 1 and reached the Final Four.

Virginia was No. 24 in this season's preseason Top 25 and fell to 25th in the first week of the regular season. The Cavaliers dropped out of the poll the next week and didn't return until four weeks ago at No. 20. They moved up every week until reaching No. 5 on Monday.

The first spot in the NCAA tournament's field of 68 can be decided Friday when Harvard visits Yale.

The Ivy League is the only one of the 32 conferences with an automatic bid not to have a tournament. Harvard has clinched at least a share of the title for a fourth straight season. If there is a tie the Ivy League has a one-game playoff.

Connecticut and Oklahoma are back in the Top 25 this week.

Connecticut, which has won six of seven, including a 51-45 victory over then -No. 11 Cincinnati on Saturday, moved in at No. 19. The Huskies had been out for one week after a three-week run.

Matt Moore makes first start as Rays beat Phils 6-1

MICHAEL MANGANELLO
Associated Press

PORT CHARLOTTE — Philadelphia Phillies starter Roberto Hernandez allowed one hit in three shutout innings against his former team in a 6-1 loss to the Tampa Bay Rays on Monday.

Making his first spring-training start of the year, Matt Moore threw 37 pitches and gave up two hits in 1 2-3 scoreless innings with two strikeouts and a walk. He escaped a bases-loaded jam in the first by retiring John Mayberry Jr. on an inning-ending groundout, then retired his first two batters in the second.

Tampa Bay second baseman Ben Zobrist was 0 for 2 in his first game since straining a back muscle during a workout on Feb. 19. He is not scheduled to play Tuesday.

The Rays' Jeremy Moore hit a double and homer in the late innings.

AP PHOTO

Tampa Bay Rays third baseman Evan Longoria throws to first against the Philadelphia Phillies on Monday in Port Charlotte. The Rays won 6-1.

ASTROS 4, MARLINS 0

JUPITER — Dallas Keuchel needed only 17 pitches in two scoreless innings Monday to help the Houston Astros beat the Miami Marlins 4-0.

All but three of the lefthander's pitches were strikes. He allowed one baserunner, on a single, before his final pitch induced a double play.

Miami starter Jacob Turner went two innings and gave up one run, on Marc Krauss' homer. Krauss went 2 for 4 and is 5 for 9 in spring training.

J.D. Martinez doubled home a run in the seventh. Houston's Marwin Gonzalez went 2 for 2 off the bench.

Chia-Jen Lo, Houston's eighth pitcher, threw a scoreless ninth to complete a four-hitter. Houston improved to 3-1 after losing a franchise record 111 games last season.

PIRATES 7, RED SOX 6

BRADENTON — Pedro Alvarez and Russell Martin hit two-run homers off Brandon Workman, who started in place of injured Jake Peavy, and the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Boston Red Sox 7-6 Monday.

Pittsburgh leadoff batter Starling Marte reached on an infield single in the first that stopped an 0-for-9 start, and Alvarez homered to right off Brandon Workman with two outs. Marte singled in the third and Martin followed with a drive to left, his second homer in two days.

Workman gave up five runs and five hits in 2 1-3 innings in place of Peavy, the right-hander who accidentally cut his left index finger with a fishing knife last weekend.

Pirates starter Francisco Liriano strick out three and walked one in two hitless innings.

Mike Carp, trying to win a bench job with the Red Sox, hit a two-run homer against Bryan Morris in the eighth.

YANKEES 4, NATIONALS 2

TAMPA — David Robertson pitched a scoreless fourth inning Monday in his first appearance as the Yankees' new closer in New York's 4-2 victory over the Washington Nationals.

Robertson hit his first batter, Danny Espinosa, then induced a double-play grounder by Tyler Moore to shortstop Derek Jeter, who fielded a tough-hop grounder. Robertson is replacing career saves leader Mariano Rivera, who retired after last season.

Jeter went 0 for 3, including a double-play grounder. He is hitless in seven at-bats over three spring training games. The Yankees captain broke an ankle in the 2012 AL championship series and played in just 17 games last season.

Zach Walters hit a solo homer for the Nationals.

METS 6, BRAVES 2

KISSIMMEE — Freddy Garcia ran his streak of perfect innings to five in his bid to earn a spot in the Braves' rotation, Mets' top prospect Noah Syndergaard pitched two scoreless innings in his Grapefruit League and New York beat Atlanta 6-2 Monday.

The 21-year-old Syndergaard struck out leadoff hitter Jason Heyward on a 98 mph fastball and fanned Evan Gattis on three fastballs to start the second. The right-hander allowed just one hit over two scoreless innings.

In contrast, Garcia, 37, used an assortment of mostly slow stuff to retire nine straight Mets, three on strikeouts, after retiring all six Detroit batters he faced while fanning two in the spring opener.

Heyward, Atlanta's right fielder, threw out a runner at the plate to preserve a scoreless fifth inning for closer Craig Kimbrel, but the Mets scored five times off minor leaguers in the ninth for their first spring victory.

TIGERS 8, CARDINALS 5

LAKELAND — Jhonny Peralta homered twice against his former team, going deep in his only plate appearances Monday in the St. Louis Cardinals' 8-5 loss to the Detroit Tigers.

Peralta played for the Tigers for three and a half seasons before signing with St. Louis as a free agent this offseason. He said Cardinals manager Mike Matheny asked a couple days earlier if he wanted to make the spring training trip to Lakeland to face Detroit. Peralta accepted that offer — then made his visit worthwhile with two solo homers off left-hander Drew Smyly.

Nick Castellanos homered for the Tigers. Castellanos, Miguel Cabrera, Victor Martinez and Austin Jackson had two hits apiece.

Denver Broncos' Peyton Manning calls an audible against the Seattle Seahawks during Super Bowl XLVIII on Feb. 2 in East Rutherford, N.J.

Manning cleared to play in 2014

ARNIE STAPLETON

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Sixty touchdown passes. Fifteen wins. A fifth MVP trophy.

Peyton Manning is more productive than he's ever been, and whether he's deciphering defenses at the line of scrimmage on game day or on his iPad during the week, his love for the game hasn't waned.

The final piece of evidence that Manning is as good as ever came Monday.

As expected, Manning passed the exam on his surgically repaired neck that was required by his contract with the Broncos that will pay him $20 million next season, according to a person with knowledge of the results. The person spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity Monday because results of medical checkups typically aren't announced.

Manning has said that if doctors tell him he's at risk physically, he'd have no problem calling it a career.

After his four neck procedures, including a spinal fusion that sidelined him for all of 2011, Manning has said he has steeled himself for that possibility.

At the Super Bowl last month, he talked about how his older brother, Cooper, had to give up football after neck surgeries in high school and college.

"I remember at the time, when Cooper got injured, they did a test on me and Eli. I would have been a junior in high school and Eli would have been a sixth-grader, or something."

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

Kansas will win Big 12, but which teams will earn NCAA tourney bids?

LUKE MEREDITH
Associated Press

The only certainties about the Big 12 are that Kansas will finish in first place and TCU will be last.

For everyone else, the final week of the regular season represents a chance to either improve their postseason positioning or win over the NCAA tournament selection committee.

Iowa State, Oklahoma, Texas and Kansas State were tied for second place at 10-6 after the weekend's games with the Big 12 tournament set to begin on March 12. Baylor and Oklahoma State sit squarely on the at-large bubble, and even West Virginia has an outside shot at an NCAA tournament bid if it can get hot.

With so much on the line, the last week of the Big 12 play could also be the most competitive one.

"Every team has two games left. None of them are easy," Iowa State coach Fred Hoiberg said. "It's going to go right down to the wire."

In theory, there doesn't seem to be much of a difference between the second and fifth seeds for the upcoming league tournament. The four teams currently stuck in a second-place logjam will likely get first-round byes and play a NCAA tournament-quality team in the quarterfinals no matter where they're seeded.

CHARLIE RIEDEL / AP

Iowa State's DeAndre Kane (50) gets past Kansas State's Jevon Thomas (5) to put up a shot during the first half on Saturday in Manhattan, Kan.

But the No. 2 and No. 3 seeds would avoid a potential matchup with Kansas until the championship game.

Oklahoma (21-8) and Kansas State (20-9) held those tiebreakers for the second and third spots on Monday, and the Sooners appeared to be in the best position to keep it. Oklahoma hosts West Virginia (16-13, 8-8) on Wednesday night and closes at TCU (9-19, 0-16) on Saturday.

Should the Sooners win out, they'll clinch the No. 2 seed and perhaps push Lon Kruger's bid to become the Big 12 Coach of the Year over the top.

"He's done a great job with these guys," Kansas coach Bill Self said of Kruger. "It's not a surprise that they're 10-6 in our league. But I think to most people from the outside looking in, if you told people before the season that this is where they'd be I think everybody would agree that Lon and his staff have done a terrific job."

The Longhorns (21-8) are in good shape, too, since they host TCU and finish at Texas Tech (13-16, 5-11).

The path isn't nearly as easy for Iowa State or Kansas State.

The Cyclones (22-6), who on Monday ranked last among the second-place teams because of tiebreakers, get Baylor (19-10, 7-9) on the road and Oklahoma State (19-10, 7-9) at home on Saturday.

K-State has the opposite schedule, with Oklahoma State on the road on Monday followed by Baylor at home.

To the Bears and Cowboys, a win over the Cyclones or Wildcats would be a huge boost to their NCAA tournament hopes. Oklahoma State had won three in a row since Marcus Smart returned from his suspension, a stretch that included a 72-65 win over Kansas on Saturday.

Pregnant mom wants another princess, not a little frog

Dear Abby

JEANNE PHILLIPS

DEAR ABBY: I'm a single mother of a beautiful 2-year-old daughter. I have always pictured myself as a mom of four little princesses. When I fantasized about having children, I imagined fairy tales, ballet, cheerleading, dress-up, tea parties — all girl things.

Now I'm expecting a little boy and I feel heartbroken. When I learned my first was a girl, I couldn't wait to meet her. I bought her everything pink and frilly. Here I am eight weeks from my due date, and I have yet to buy this baby a single thing. When I look at baby boy items, I become severely depressed.

I'm no longer with the baby's father. He and his family are very excited about the baby, as he will be the only male grandchild for this generation. The truth is, the more I think about it, the more I am pulled in the direction of signing over my parental rights to my ex. At least he really wants him, whereas I don't.

I know this sounds terrible and selfish. I feel like a monster, but I can't help it. My family is totally against it. My dad says I shouldn't even allow my ex to visit our son in the hospital after he's born. No one will listen to how I feel. They keep saying my feelings will change after the baby is born, but I doubt it. I just need some guidance. — UNDESERVING TITLE OF MOMMY

DEAR MOMMY: I don't think you are a monster. I DO think you are not thinking objectively right now. Let me point out that life doesn't always go the way we fantasize. Because you imagined that you'd be the mother of four little princesses doesn't guarantee that you WILL be.

I see no need to rush into signing any papers right now, regardless of how eager your boyfriend and his parents are about the baby. There will be time for that later, if you still want to. For now, ask your parents to help you select some baby boy outfits, and tell your doctor about all of your feelings because they may be hormonal.

You might benefit from some professional counseling right now — more than I can offer you — and I urge you to get it before doing anything you might later regret.

DEAR ABBY: I received a restaurant gift card from some friends. When I presented it at a restaurant, it was refused as "never having been activated through purchase."

I called my friends to let them know, thinking it was a mistake on the part of the restaurant at the time it was purchased. They said they would come by and pick up the card. I have heard nothing from them since, and I haven't written a thank-you note or made any further attempt to contact them.

Was I right in calling them? Do I now ignore the whole thing? — GIFT CARD DENIED

DEAR G.C.D.: You did nothing wrong in calling your friends to tell them what happened. They may not have picked it up because they were embarrassed, or because they really never intended to activate it. I don't think it's necessarily worth ending a relationship over — IF you want to continue a friendship with people whose credibility you question.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.
