NTC adds World Cup fields

ROXANNE BROWN | Staff Writer

Two $400,000 multipurpose/World Cup soccer fields were unveiled to the public last week at the National Training Center in Clermont.

NTC spokesperson Kim Couch said the fields can be used for soccer, lacrosse, flag football and other sports.

Paul Johns, NTC's chief operating officer, said he believes the fields will benefit Lake County because they will attract even more teams — along with sports fans and players' families and friends — who will spend money on food, lodging and other things.

"This certainly will be a big impact to south Lake County," he said.

The NTC already has five multipurpose fields, but more were needed because local groups and organizations use them, too. That's why county officials contributed $400,000 from their county-wide parks and recreation budget to build them.

"We, along with the county, wanted to take care of community leagues and clubs, and we're excited that we were able to provide them with what they needed," Johns said.

Couch said the two World Cup soccer fields can also serve as four modified fields.

Information provided by the chamber said the NTC welcomes more than 250,000 visiting athletes to its facilities each year, which South Lake Chamber of Commerce President Ray San Fratello said energizes the local economy.

"South Lake County has a niche in sports tourism, ecotourism, adventure tourism and heritage tourism," he said. "It is a true economic development driver in that it provides jobs and creates new wealth in the community through visitors spending at our hotels, dining in our restaurants and buying goods and services typical of tourists from our stores."

Crimeans vote overwhelmingly for secession

SIMFEROPOL, Ukraine — Fireworks exploded and Russian flags fluttered above jubilant crowds Sunday after residents in Crimea voted overwhelmingly to secede from Ukraine and join Russia. The United States and Europe condemned the ballot as illegal and destabilizing and were expected to slap sanctions against Russia for it.

Ukraine's new government in Kiev called the referendum a "circus" directed at gunpoint by Moscow — referring to the thousands of Russian troops now in the strategic Black Sea peninsula after seizing it two weeks ago.

But after the polls closed late Sunday, crowds of ethnic Russians in the regional Crimean capital of Simferopol erupted with jubilant chants in the main square, overjoyed at the prospect of once again becoming part of Russia.

The Crimea referendum offered voters the choice of seeking annexation by Russia or remaining in Ukraine with greater autonomy. After 50 percent of the ballots were counted, Mikhail Malishev, head of the

Timeline: Key events in Ukraine's political crisis

Associated Press

Key events in Ukraine's political crisis:

Nov. 21, 2013: President Viktor Yanukovich's government announces it's abandoning an agreement to strengthen ties with the European Union and instead seeking closer cooperation with Moscow. Protesters take to the streets.

Nov. 30: Images of protesters bloodied by police truncheons spread quickly and galvanize public support for the demonstrations.

Dec. 1: A protest attracts around 300,000 people on Kiev's Independence Square, known as the Maidan, the largest since the 2004 Orange Revolution.

US cites national security as reason to censor, deny records

TED BRIDIS and JACK GILLUM
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Obama administration more often than ever censored government files or outright denied access to them last year under the U.S. Freedom of Information Act, according to a new analysis of federal data by The Associated Press.

The administration cited more legal exceptions it said justified withholding materials and refused a record number of times to turn over files quickly that might be especially newsworthy. Most agencies also took longer to answer records requests, the analysis found.

The government's own figures from 99 federal agencies covering six years show that half way through its second term, the administration has made few meaningful improvements in the way it releases records despite its promises from Day 1 to become the most transparent administration in history.

In category after category — except for reducing numbers of old requests and a slight increase in how often it waived copying fees — the government's efforts to be more open about its activities last year were their worst since President Barack Obama took office.

In a year of intense public interest over the National Security Agency's surveillance programs, the government cited national security to withhold information a record 8,496 times — a 57 percent increase over a year earlier and more than double Obama's first year, when it cited that reason 3,658 times. The Defense Department, including the NSA, and the CIA accounted for nearly all those. The Agriculture Department's Farm referendum committee, said more than 95 percent of voters had approved splitting off and joining Russia.

Opponents of secession appeared to have stayed away Sunday, denouncing the vote as a cynical power play and land grab by Russia.

Russia was expected to face strong sanctions Monday by the U.S. and Europe over the vote, which could also encourage rising pro-Russian sentiment in Ukraine's east and lead to further divisions in this nation of 46 million. Residents in western Ukraine and the capital, Kiev, are strongly pro-West and Ukrainian nationalist.

The Crimean parliament will meet Monday to formally ask Moscow to be annexed and Crimean lawmakers will fly to Moscow later in the day for talks, Crimea's pro-Russia prime minister said on Twitter.

In Moscow, the speaker of the lower house of the Russian parliament, Sergei Naryshkin, suggested that joining Russia was a done deal.

"We understand that for 23 years after Ukraine's formation as a sovereign state, Crimeans have been waiting for this day," Naryshkin was quoted as saying by the state ITAR-Tass news agency.

Russian lawmaker Vladimir Zhirinovskiy said the annexation could take "from three days to three months," according to Interfax.

Some residents in Crimea said they feared the new Ukrainian government that took over when President Viktor Yanukovich fled to Russia last month will oppress them.

"It's like they're crazy Texans in western Ukraine. Imagine if the Texans suddenly took over power (in Washington) and told everyone they should speak Texan," said Ilya Khlebanov, a voter in Simferopol.

In Sevastopol, the Crimean port where Russia now leases a major naval base from Ukraine for $98 million a year, more than 70 people surged into a polling station in the first 15 minutes of voting Sunday.

Ukraine's new prime minister insisted that neither Ukraine nor the West would recognize the vote.

"Under the stage direction of the Russian Federation, a circus performance is underway: the so-called referendum," Prime Minister Arseniy Yatsenyuk said Sunday. "Also taking part in the performance are 21,000 Russian troops, who with their guns are trying to prove the legality of the referendum."

As soon as the polls closed, the White House again denounced the vote.

"The international community will not recognize the results of a poll administered under threats of violence," it said in a statement.

Revolution. Activists seize Kiev City Hall.

Dec. 17: Russian President Vladimir Putin announces Moscow will buy $15 billion worth of Ukrainian government bonds and cut the price Ukraine pays for Russian natural gas.

Jan. 22, 2014: Three protesters die during a confrontation with police.

Jan. 28: The prime minister resigns and parliament repeals harsh anti-protest laws that set off the violence.

Feb. 16: Opposition activists end their occupation of Kiev City Hall in exchange for the release of all 234 jailed protesters.

Feb. 18: Protesters attack police lines and set fires outside parliament after it stalls on a constitutional reform to limit presidential powers. Riot police respond; at least 26 people die and hundreds are injured.

Feb. 20: Hours after a truce is announced, violence resumes. More than 80 people, mainly protesters, are killed by gunshots.

Feb. 21: Under a European-mediated plan, protest leaders and Yanukovich agree to form a new government and hold an early election. Parliament slashes his powers and votes to free his rival, Yulia Tymoshenko, from prison. Yanukovich flees Kiev.

Feb. 22: Parliament votes to remove Yanukovich and hold new elections. Tymoshenko is freed.

Feb. 23: Ukraine's parliament assigns presidential powers to its new speaker, Oleksandr Turchynov, a Tymoshenko ally.

Feb. 24: Ukraine's interim government draws up a warrant for Yanukovich's arrest. Russian Prime Minister Dmitry Medvedev derides the new leaders in Kiev as "Kalashnikov-toting people in black masks."

Feb. 26: Leaders of Ukraine's protest movement propose legislator

Arseniy Yatsenyuk as prime minister. Putin orders major military exercises just across the border.

Feb. 27: Masked gunmen seize regional parliament and government buildings in Crimea. Ukraine's government pledges to prevent a national breakup with strong backing from the West. Yanukovich is granted refuge in Russia.

Feb. 28: Ukraine says Russian troops have taken up positions around strategic locations on the Crimean Peninsula. Ukraine's parliament adopts a resolution demanding that Russia halt steps it says are aimed against Ukraine's sovereignty and territorial integrity.

March 1: Troops under apparent Russian command take over Crimea without firing a shot. The Kiev government and its Western supporters are powerless to react. President Barack Obama calls Putin to demand the troops' withdrawal.

March 2: Ukraine appeals for international help, fearing a wider Russian invasion.

March 3: Ukraine says there are up to 16,000 Russian troops in Crimea. Russia says it has approved troop deployment at the request of Yanukovich.

March 6: Crimea's parliament declares the region wants to join Russia and will let voters decide in a March 16 referendum.

March 12: Obama meets with Yatsenyuk in Washington in a show of support for the new Ukrainian government and declares the U.S. would "completely reject" the Crimea referendum.

March 14: A last-ditch diplomatic effort before the referendum fails in London, where Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov met with U.S. counterpart John Kerry amid threats of sanctions against Russia if it annexes Crimea.

March 16: Crimea votes in the referendum about whether to become independent and seek to become part of Russia.

RECORDS

Service Agency cited national security six times, the Environmental Protection Agency did twice and the National Park Service once.

And five years after Obama directed agencies to less frequently invoke a "deliberative process" exception to withhold materials describing decision-making behind the scenes, the government did it anyway, a record 81,752 times.

"I'm concerned the growing trend toward relying upon FOIA exemptions to withhold large swaths of government information is hindering the public's right to know," said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. "It becomes too much of a temptation. If you screw up in government, just mark it top secret."

Citizens, journalists, businesses and others last year made a record 704,394 requests for information, an 8 percent increase over the previous year. The government responded to 678,391 requests, an increase of 2 percent over the previous year. The AP analysis showed that the government more than ever censored materials it turned over or fully denied access to them, in 244,675 cases or 36 percent of all requests. On 196,034 other occasions, the government said it couldn't find records, a person refused to pay for copies or the government determined the request to be unreasonable or improper.

Sometimes, the government censored only a few words or an employee's phone number, but other times it completely marked out nearly every paragraph on pages.

The White House said the government's figures demonstrate "that agencies are responding to the president's call for greater transparency." White House spokesman Eric Schultz noted that the government responded to more requests than previously and said it released more information. "Over the past five years, federal agencies have worked aggressively to improve their responsiveness to FOIA requests, applying a presumption of openness and making it a priority to respond quickly," Schultz said.

Sunday was the start of Sunshine Week, when news organizations promote open government and freedom of information.

The chief of the Justice Department's Office of Information Policy, which oversees the open records law, told the Senate last week that some of the 99 agencies in the past five years have released documents in full or in part in more than 90 percent of cases. She noted the record number of requests for government records, which exceeded 700,000 for the first time last year, and said decisions are harder than ever.

"The requests are more complex than they were before," director Melanie Pustay told the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The government's responsiveness under the FOIA is widely viewed as a barometer of its transparency. Under the law, citizens and foreigners can compel the government to turn over copies of federal records for zero or little cost. Anyone who seeks information through the law is generally supposed to get it unless disclosure would hurt national security, violate personal privacy or expose business secrets or confidential decision-making in certain areas. It cited such exceptions a record 546,574 times last year.

"The public is frustrated and unhappy with the pace of responses and the amount of information provided," Sen. Richard Blumenthal, D-Conn., said at the same congressional hearing. "There's a common reaction for anybody who has any experience with it that it doesn't function well."

John Cook, the incoming new editor at the Intercept, the online magazine founded by investor Pierre Omidyar, said his experience under the open records law was "abysmal" but not especially worse last year than previously. "It's a bureaucracy," Cook said. "As often as it's about trying to keep data from falling into the hands of reporters, it's the contractor looking for ways to reduce the caseload. It's just bureaucrats trying to get home earlier and have less to do."

The AP could not determine whether the administration was abusing the national security exception or whether the public asked for more documents about sensitive subjects. The NSA said its 138 percent surge in records requests were from people asking whether it had collected their phone or email records, which it generally refuses to confirm or deny. To do otherwise, the NSA said, would pose an "an unacceptable risk" because terrorists could check to see whether the U.S. had detected their activities. It censored records or fully denied access to them in 4,246 out of 4,328 requests, or 98 percent of the time.

Jordan Baker, in F. Scott Fitzgerald's The Great Gatsby, said she likes large parties. "They're so intimate," she said. "At small parties there isn't any privacy."

merce's upcoming Great Gatsby-themed party.

Planned for 6 to 11 p.m. on March 28, the party will combine the chamber's annual Taste in Mount Dora and Casino Nights events. This will mark the first time the events have been held together, which led the chamber to add a theme that suited both, according to Mount Dora Area Chamber of Commerce President Rob English.

"We decided ... to kind of step it up a notch when we combined events," English said. "We decided it's (going to) be a themed event each year and so this year, we thought of a fun theme that everybody would enjoy because of the music that's associated with it, the flapper dresses, and the gangster look for guys and stuff like that. We thought that... a lot of people would possibly come dressed in the 20s-era clothing, and we'll see."

MDHS Band plans fundraiser

Staff Report

The Mount Dora High School Band will have a dinner with live and silent auctions on April 5 to raise money for uniforms and equipment.

"Helping to keep music in our schools is so important," auction chairman Terry Askins said in an email. "Music helps students learn discipline, responsibility, character and teamwork."

The dinner will feature a three-course Italian dinner with live entertainment by the students. There will be a live auction and a silent auction of theme park tickets, sporting event tickets, gift cards and gift baskets.

"We have lots of golf packages, restaurant gift cards and local items that were donated," Askins said.

Auction items can be purchased with cash, checks or credit cards.

The event is planned for 5 to 9 p.m. at Round Lake Christian Church, 31205 Round Lake Rd., near Round Lake Elementary School. Dinner will be served at 5:30 p.m.

Dinner tickets are $10 if purchased in advance and $15 at the door. Dessert will be available for purchase, and take-out dinners will also be available.

For tickets, call Gayle Minnig at 352-383-9199, Michelle Dotto at 407-399-9683 or email bandmommd@gmail.com.

Corporate tables of eight are available for $100 each, including a table-top logo and a mention in the agenda program. Askins will personally deliver these tickets. Call 352-551-0133 for reservations.

Cornerstone Hospice fills top positions

AUSTIN FULLER | Staff Writer
austin.fuller@dailycommercial.com

Cornerstone Hospice has made four leadership changes, promoting two employees and filling two other vacant positions.

Rhonda White is the new Chief Operations Officer, Donna Loyko is the new chief compliance officer, Tanya Holcomb is the new controller and Ursula Cutler is the new vice president of sales and marketing, according to a press release and a company official.

White said she has been Cornerstone Hospice's chief compliance office for the past six years. She took over the COO responsibilities on March 1 as former COO Mary Manrique will be retiring, according to a press release.

White said the adjustment does not pose a significant challenge because of her experience at Cornerstone Hospice.

"Even though I haven't been responsible for the operations, when you're compliance officer you have to know everything about operations. So, there wasn't a big learning curve for me coming into the position," White said.

She said as COO she is now completely responsible for patient care.

"As a compliance officer, we were responsible for monitoring the quality of the care, and also making sure that the care that was being delivered met all of the laws and regulations. So, not involved with... the patient care itself in my previous role," White said of the differences between her previous job and her new COO position.

She added, however, she has worked in hospice for 15 years and is glad to be coming back to the care side. "I started my career in patient care. I was actually delivering care to the patients and I've been away from that for a long time, and I love what hospice does.

I think we provide the best care, healthcare, and I'm glad that I get to be more intimately involved in that," White said.

A Lady Lake man died from injuries after a truck in which he was a passenger was struck and overturned in a two-vehicle crash Saturday night in Sumter County, said Florida Highway Patrol troopers.

Arthur Miller, 59, of Lady Lake, died at The Villages Regional Hospital, according to the police report.

Sgt. Steve Gaskins, public affairs officer for FHP, said Clayton Andrew Dorey, 17, of Ocklawaha, was driving a 2000 Dodge Durango northbound at 6:09 p.m. Saturday on County Road 229 and approaching the intersection at County Road 466 when he failed to stop at a posted stop sign.

As a result, FHP said, Dorey's truck collided with the left side of a 2001 Dodge Ram driven by Robert W. Plunk, 65, of Umatilla.

Upon impact, Plunk's truck rotated and overturned. Miller, a passenger in the vehicle, died from his injuries.

Plunk, along with two others in the same vehicle, Audrey Jean McQuay, 70, of Umatilla, and Janene Grace Miller, 60, of Lady Lake, reported minor injuries and were taken to TVRH.

FHP said Dorey also had minor injuries and was taken to Marion County West Hospital.

The crash was not alcohol-related and everyone was wearing seatbelts, according to the police report.

Gaskins said the accident remains under investigation and charges are pending.

LEESBURG

Hospitals to host job fairs

Staff Report

Central Florida Health Alliance will host job fairs this week at Leesburg Regional Medical Center and The Villages Regional Hospital in efforts to recruit employees for open positions at both locations, officials said.

■ LRMC will have its job fair from 7:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesday at the hospital's west lobby, 600 E. Dixie Rd., Leesburg.

■ TVRH job fair is slated for 12:30 to 7 p.m. Thursday at the hospital's main lobby, 1451 El Camino Real, The Villages.

"Candidates will be offered on-the-spot interviews at both locations as we try to fill a variety of clinical and non-clinical positions," said Lori Faries, director of recruitment and human relations at Central Florida Health Alliance.

Applicants are encouraged to dress professionally and bring a current resume.

Interested job-seekers can download an application and pre-register for the event at www.cfhacareers.com by clicking on the Spring Career Days link. Those who pre-register and attend one of the events will be entered into a drawing for a $100 Visa gift card.

Battle to save old homes not over

CHRISTINA VEIGA
Miami Herald

MIAMI BEACH — Sometimes, preservationists say, it takes a martyr: A lovely but old building has to fall to the wrecking ball before cities move to save historically significant structures.

Preservationists will soon have another martyr. The white mansion that sits at the tip of Miami Beach's Star Island and designed by Walter deGarmo, Florida's first registered architect, faces imminent demolition.

Its owners — a plastic surgeon who calls himself the "boob god" and his wife, a star of "The Real Housewives of Miami" — recently won a bitter, protracted legal battle to tear down their 1925 home to make way for a 20,000-square-foot estate. It will include six bedrooms, seven bathrooms, a home theater, game room, wine cellar, five-car garage and guest house.

Just as the demolition of the Art Deco Senator Hotel in 1988 led to legislation aimed at protecting important buildings, a push to save the manse at 42 Star Island has forced Miami Beach to re-examine how it protects its historic resources.

The home, which Leonard and Lisa Hochstein purchased in a foreclosure sale, has become a symbol of what preservationists say is a rush to tear down the Beach's historic homes and build massive new mansions on their ruins.

With 42 Star held up as an example, Miami Beach officials engaged real estate agents, developers, homeowners and the historic preservation community in more than a year of meetings about the city's preservation laws.

As a result, the city recently changed its building regulations to encourage homeowners to retain historically significant properties and to protect neighborhood character by restricting what kind of homes can be built in the first place. Beach commissioners approved the changes in February.

But some homeowners and preservationists say the new laws don't go far enough, and might even have the opposite effect. The Miami Design Preservation League, which led the crusade to preserve 42 Star Island, is asking elected officials to reconsider — especially because the changes were introduced shortly before the second public vote to approve the new rules.

In city government, new laws usually require two public hearings and votes before becoming final. The league says the most controversial changes were not discussed publicly before the final vote, though it is not unusual for changes to be proposed between the first and second readings of the laws.

"It just shows how pathetic it is that we cannot have the vision . . . to try to protect these homes a little bit better," said Nancy Liebman, a former city commissioner who now heads Miami Beach United, a citywide homeowners organization.

Liebman and others say that despite the new rules, older homes will continue to be knocked down, and hulking structures that push from property line to property line will stand in their places.

The preservation league wants Miami Beach to reconsider the changes, and is considering legal action if it does not.

"We're a small town and we have our symbols. And when certain symbols are lost, it kind of gets a community together and makes us think, 'What can we do to make sure this doesn't happen again?'" Ciraldo said. "Somebody's got to do it. It's important to the city."

joined Cornerstone Hospice a little over a year ago as a risk manager.

She has more than 30 years of nursing, leadership and risk management experience in home care, hospice and corrections health care, according to a press release.

Loyko said both her parents were at Cornerstone Hospice, which motivated her career choice.

"I think it was at that point... that I realized that this is something I think I want to do in my nursing career, and here I am," Loyko said. "I saw the teamwork, I saw the caring, I saw the compassion and I really felt that this is someplace that I really wanted to work."

She added she is "very excited about the opportunity the promotion brings."

Holcomb previously worked for The Villages Health System, and has "17 years of experience guiding teams in financial analysis, reporting, forecasting, auditing, budgeting and cash management for service and healthcare industries," the press release states.

The controller position has been vacant for several months and the vice president of sales and marketing position has been vacant for two years, according to the release.

Cutler, as vice president of sales in marketing, will be in charge of outreach, including marketing, advertising and community and clinical outreach, a press release stated.

Cornerstone Hospice covers seven counties and has more than 700 employees company-wide, according to White.

him when he died that Monday morning in the hospital after the shooting.

The first thing Cliff Preston noticed when he pulled into the parking lot behind Leigh Hall that Monday morning was the black Jeep.

Preston, 59, and his wife, Beckie Preston, 60, both work at UF and park in the same parking lot around 6:55 a.m. every weekday morning. This morning was no different, except for the unfamiliar vehicle parked south of his, Preston told UPD Detective Ellen Duffy.

As Preston was getting out of his blue car, he noticed the driver of the unfamiliar vehicle walking around the back of his car and looking at his license plate. Preston asked the younger man, who police have said was Michael Cravey, if there was a problem or if he needed help, the police report said.

"Do you have a gun?" Cravey reportedly asked him.

Preston told detectives he was confused and said no. Cravey then made statements about meeting "Mike Potter," but Preston told him he didn't know a Mike Potter, the report said.

That's when Cravey reportedly pulled out a 4-inch folding knife and Preston told his wife to run.

As Beckie Preston locked herself in the car, Cliff Preston ran toward the sidewalk yelling for help. Cravey caught up to him quickly and knocked him to the ground, the report said.

UF student Karah Mechlowitz was waiting for her friend in the same parking lot when she saw Cravey chasing Preston and laughing. She thought it was prank until she saw him stab Preston in the neck, the report said.

The whole time, Cravey seemed to be enjoying himself, she said.

Cliff Preston told police he didn't remember how many times he was stabbed. Doctors later said Preston had three stab and slash wounds to his neck, two to his back, one near his collarbone and one on his right forearm. His shoulder blade and collar bone were also cracked during the attack, the report said.

After the stabbing, Beckie Preston said Cravey came back to her vehicle and demanded she get out of the car, slamming his fist on the passenger window.

Evelyn Wilson, a senior operator at UPD, was running into work when she saw Cliff Preston on the sidewalk. From her car, she asked him if he was OK, she said.

"No, I was stabbed," Preston told her, pointing twice at Cravey, who was near Preston's car. "He tried to kill me."

Cravey stared blankly at her, as though he was looking through her, Wilson said.

Then he got into his Jeep and drove toward the entrance, going around Mechlowitz, who tried to block his path with her car. Wilson followed Cravey in her car down Buckman Drive to get his license plate, the report said.

As other officers began chasing the man down Buckman Drive, Officer Timothy Peck applied pressure to Preston's wounds until paramedics arrived and took Preston to UF Health Shands Hospital.

Beckie Preston ran to her husband and began yelling and shaking her hands as bystander Michael Santarsiero held her.

Wilson said she stayed calm as she comforted Beckie Preston but later broke down.

"It was surreal," she said. "I've never experienced anything like it, and I've been in dispatch 19 years."

Officer Brian Smith was on his way to Leigh Hall when he saw the dark-colored Jeep speed past him on Stadium Road.

Behind the Jeep, Smith saw UPD's Wilson following the Jeep in an attempt to get the tag. Officer Daymon Kizzar, who was behind Smith, positioned his police car to block Cravey and pointed his gun at him, the report said.

Cravey ducked but continued driving as Kizzar yelled at him to stop. Smith and Kizzar began to pursue the Jeep down Stadium Road as Cravey ran red lights and stop signs, the report said.

After making his way through the west side of campus, Cravey turned right onto Southwest 34th Street and headed north. Police chased him as he weaved through traffic going about 90 mph and drove on the wrong side, the report said.

Officers stopped chasing Cravey around the 4300 block of Newberry Road because it became too dangerous, they said. Although they lost him, they managed to get his tag and connect their suspect to a name, the report said.

Around 8:30 a.m., Cravey went through the drive-thru at the campus McDonald's on Northwest 13th Street and got a meal, the report said.

Police finally spotted Cravey again at 9:42 a.m. near Tigert Hall on Southwest 13th Street. Deputy Chief Darren Baxley followed him down Southwest 13th Street, driving an unmarked police car, the report said.

As they approached the entrance of the Kirkwood subdivision, Cravey made a sudden U-turn and started driving north. At the intersection of Southwest 13th Street and 16th Avenue, police said Cravey ran the red light, crossed in front of other vehicles and turned left onto 16th Avenue.

As several police cars surrounded him at the intersection of Southwest 16th Avenue and Archer Road, Cravey drove across the median into the opposite lane and continued on Archer Road, the report said. Again, the pursuit had become too dangerous, according to police, and they let him speed away down Archer Road.

Minutes later, police said Cravey crashed into another vehicle near Sonny's BBQ and Southwest 37th Boulevard. Bystanders told officials he had run into the Pier 1 Imports in Butler Plaza with a black-and-yellow hatchet.

At 10:04 a.m., GPD Lt. Mike Schibuola approached Cravey with his gun pointed at him and ordered him to drop the hatchet.

Cravey instead sprinted toward Schibuola with his hatchet raised, the report said. Schibuola fired his weapon, shooting multiple times and hitting Cravey.

Two women lying on the sidewalk near the PetSmart entrance said Cravey ignored precise commands from the police officer to show his hands and did not obey, the report said.

After detaining Cravey in handcuffs, officers rolled him over and cut his shirt open. Cravey's breathing was shallow, and he had blood coming out of his mouth, the report said. One officer performed CPR as others tried to control the bleeding until paramedics arrived.

Syrian government forces ride a motorcycle around the main square after being deployed in Yabroud town, Syria, on Sunday.

Syrian army ousts rebels from border stronghold

BARBARA SURK and DIAA HADID
Associated Press

BEIRUT — With rebels fleeing into neighboring Lebanon, Syrian government troops and Hezbollah fighters captured a strategic town near the frontier Sunday, ousting opposition fighters from their last stronghold in the vital border area.

Yabroud was a major smuggling hub for the rebels trying to overthrow President Bashar Assad. The town's fall is the latest in a string of strategic gains by Assad's forces that have consolidated authority in the past months in Syria's major cities, including the capital, Damascus.

Militants from Lebanon's Shiite group Hezbollah have been instrumental to Assad's success on the battlefield, and support from the Iranian-backed fighters appears to have tipped the balance into the government's favor in Yabroud. However, the fact that opposition fighters fled into Lebanon, where Hezbollah is a major force, suggests the conflict could bleed further into Syria's neighbor. The civil war already has ignited polarizing sectarian tensions between Lebanon's Sunnis and Shiites.

"It's a good day for Assad," said Fawaz A. Gerges, director of the Middle East Center at the London School of Economics. "He has not only survived the past three years, but his army is intact and on a rebound, with his allies Hezbollah firmly behind him."

However, Gerges warned the fall of Yabroud will reverberate in neighboring Lebanon, "pouring gasoline on sectarian divisions and likely bring more violence" into the country.

Outgunned by Assad's army and Hezbollah, rebels abandoned their positions on the hills surrounding Yabroud overnight Sunday, collapsing the fighter ranks inside the town and allowing government forces to move in from the east shortly after dawn, a spokesman for the rebel coalition and the Syrian army said.

Yabroud was an important supply line for rebels into Lebanon. The town overlooks an important cross-country highway from Damascus to the central city of Homs.

"There's no doubt Yabroud had big strategic importance," said Capt. Islam Alloush, a spokesman of the Islamic Front, a rebel coalition who had fought in Yabroud but were now streaming into Lebanon. The biggest immediate loss, Alloush said, would be that rebels now had no way of supplying fighters outside of Damascus, where Syrian forces have surrounded a series of opposition-held areas, denying them food, power and clean water.

Syrian Defense Minister Gen. Fahd Jassem al-Frej hailed the army's latest triumph while inspecting troops in Yabroud on Sunday. "We are moving from one victory to another," al-Frej said in comments carried by state news agency SANA. He said the army troops are now "chasing terrorists and gangs, and soon, all their hideouts will be destroyed."

Final words from jet came after communications system shutdown

CHRIS BRUMMITT and JIM GOMEZ
Associated Press

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia — When someone at the controls calmly said the last words heard from the missing Malaysian jetliner, one of the Boeing 777's communications systems had already been disabled, authorities said Sunday, adding to suspicions that one or both of the pilots were involved in the disappearance of the flight.

Investigators also examined a flight simulator confiscated from the home of one of the pilots and dug through the background of all 239 people on board, as well as the ground crew that serviced the plane.

The Malaysia Airlines jet took off from Kuala Lumpur in the wee hours of March 8, headed to Beijing. On Saturday, the Malaysian government announced findings that strongly suggested the plane was deliberately diverted and may have flown as far north as Central Asia or south into the vast reaches of the Indian Ocean.

Authorities have said someone on board the plane first disabled one of its communications systems — the Aircraft and Communications Addressing and Reporting System, or ACARS — about 40 minutes after takeoff. The ACARS equipment sends information about the jet's engines and other data to the airline.

Around 14 minutes later, the transponder that identifies the plane to commercial radar systems was also shut down. The fact that both systems went dark separately offered strong evidence that the plane's disappearance was deliberate.

On Sunday, Malaysian Defense Minister Hishammuddin Hussein told a news conference that the final, reassuring words from the cockpit — "All right, good night" — were spoken to air traffic controllers after the ACARS system was shut off. Whoever spoke did not mention any trouble on board.

Air force Maj. Gen. Affendi Buang told reporters he did not know whether it was the pilot or co-pilot who spoke to air traffic controllers.

Given the expanse of land and water that might need to be searched, finding the wreckage could take months or longer. Or it might never be located. Establishing what happened with any degree of certainty will probably require evidence from cockpit voice recordings and the plane's flight-data recorders.

The search area now includes 11 countries the plane might have flown over, Hishammuddin said, adding that the number of countries involved in the operation had increased from 14 to 25.

"The search was already a highly complex, multinational effort," he said. "It has now become even more difficult."

The search effort initially focused on the relatively shallow waters of the South China Sea and the Strait of Malacca, where the plane was first thought to be. Hishammuddin said he had asked governments to hand over sensitive radar and satellite data to try to get a better idea of the plane's final movements.

With more information, he said, the search zone could be narrowed "to an area that is more feasible."

Malaysia is leading the search for the plane and the investigation into its disappearance.

In the United States, Dan Pfeiffer, senior adviser to President Barack Obama, told NBC's "Meet the Press" that the FBI was supporting the criminal probe.

Rep. Peter King, chairman of the House Homeland Security subcommittee on counterterrorism and intelligence, said on ABC's "This Week" that so far "there's nothing out there indicating it's terrorists."

Investigators are trying to answer these questions: If the two pilots were involved in the disappearance, were they working together or alone, or with one or more of the passengers or crew? Did they fly the plane under duress or of their own will? Did one or more of the passengers manage to break into the cockpit or use the threat of violence to gain entry and then seize the plane? And what possible motive could there be for diverting the jet?

Malaysia's police chief, Khalid Abu Bakar, said he asked countries with citizens on board the plane to investigate their backgrounds, no doubt looking for anyone with terrorism ties, aviation skills or prior contact with the pilots. He said that the intelligence agencies of some countries had already done so and found nothing suspicious, but he was waiting for others to respond.

Egypt crackdown brings most arrests in decades

HAMZA HENDAWI
Associated Press

CAIRO — Egypt's crackdown on Islamists has jailed 16,000 people over the past eight months in the country's biggest round-up in nearly two decades, according to previously unreleased figures from security officials. Rights activists say reports of abuses in prisons are mounting, with prisoners describing systematic beatings and miserable conditions for dozens packed into tiny cells.

The Egyptian government has not released official numbers for those arrested in the sweeps since the military ousted Islamist President Mohammed Morsi in July. But four senior officials — two from the Interior Ministry and two from the military — gave The Associated Press a count of 16,000, including about 3,000 top- or mid-level members of Morsi's Muslim Brotherhood.

The count, which is consistent with recent estimates by human rights groups, was based on a tally kept by the Interior Ministry to which the military also has access. It includes hundreds of women and minors, though the officials could not give exact figures. The officials gave the figures to the AP on condition of anonymity because the government has not released them.

The flood of arrests has swamped prisons and the legal system. Many are held for months in police station lockups meant as temporary holding areas or in impromptu jails set up in police training camps because prisons are overcrowded. Inmates are kept for months without charge. "My son looks like a caveman now. His hair and nails are long, he has a beard and he is unclean," said Nagham Omar, describing to the AP the conditions that her 20-year-old son Salahdeen Ayman Mohammed has endured since his arrest in January while participating in a pro-Morsi protest. He and 22 others are crammed in a 3-by-3 meter (yard) cell in a police station in the southern city of Assiut, said Omar, who visits him once a week. Mohammed has not yet been charged.

The government says the police, run by the Interior Ministry, have changed their ways from the era of autocrat Hosni Mubarak, when the security forces became notorious for torture and corruption.

The assistant interior minister for human rights, Maj. Gen. Abu Bakr Abdel-Karim, told the newspaper Al-Watan in an interview last month that "it is possible that there is some use of cruelty" and said anyone claiming to be maltreated should file a complaint with either the ministry or the general prosecutors' office. But he said so far there had been no proof presented of maltreatment.

Supreme Court ruling may make it more difficult to establish certain bike trails

It might be sound reasoning, but a Supreme Court decision this week on an arcane legal-easement argument will likely have broad and regrettable consequences, particularly in the West, for the national movement to convert old railroad beds into bicycle paths.

The case, Brandt v. U.S., is rooted in the General Railroad Right of Way Law of 1875, through which Congress established a uniform approach to granting easements on government land so railroad companies could extend tracks through the heart of the still-developing country. As the federal government deeded some of that land to homesteaders, the easements went with the property transfer, meaning that the new landowners were required to let the railroads use their property.

But that 1875 law didn't specify what would happen to the easement if the railroad line was abandoned, which is what occurred in 2004 to a 66-mile track running from Laramie, Wyo., to the Colorado state line.

Two years later, federal lawyers filed legal papers asserting that the easement reverted to the government, part of a move to convert the railroad bed into the Medicine Bow Rail Trail.

The Brandt family, which owns 83 acres transected by the old railroad line, contested the government's claim, arguing that the easement died with the railroad. As a result, the government had no right to maintain the easement — and thus no right to build a public bike trail on the family's land.

The Supreme Court ruled 8 to 1 in favor of the Brandt family (with Justice Sonia Sotomayor dissenting), and it's hard to find fault with the court's logic. But it may have the unfortunate effect of encouraging private property owners to cut off public access to bike trails established over old railroad easements, and to thwart efforts to build new ones.

The Rails to Trails organization behind the efforts says there are more than 21,000 miles of rail-trails nationwide, but no one has kept track of how many were developed on easements under the 1875 law, so it's unclear how many miles will be affected.

This is the regrettable repercussion of the court's decision. Bike trails have added significantly to the recreational offerings available around the country, and if they were built on a now indefensible legal presumption, care must be taken to protect existing trails and create a mechanism for their continued development. That will likely take negotiations with property owners, and some federal park dollars to ensure the future of the affected trails. If so, it would be a good investment, and smart policy.

The plight of the media's sources

Why should people talk to reporters? It's a question that's seldom raised among news people, which is too bad, because it's an important one.

When you think about it, that question goes to the foundation of the entire edifice of a free press. And that foundation, at the moment, is shaky.

Let's back up. No honest press, whatever its sense of mission and however firm its legal protections, can outperform its sources. It can't be any better, stronger, braver, more richly informed, or more dedicated to broad public purpose than the people who swallow their misgivings, return the phone call, step forward, and risk embarrassment and reprisal to talk to the reporter.

The mythology of journalism enshrines the sleuths, sometimes the editors, even the publishers, but sources are really the whole ball game. Press freedom is nothing more than source freedom, one step removed. The right of a news organization to tell what it learns is an empty abstraction without the willingness of news sources to tell what they know.

Considering how important sources are, it's stunning how little affection they get and how flimsy the protections are that anybody claims for them. For starters, take the current national security cases, the unprecedented Espionage Act prosecutions that the Obama administration is pursuing against whistleblowers who gave news reporters secret information about governmental improprieties and illegalities.

Nowadays prosecutors, for the most part, prefer to leave the press alone, and happily embrace the idea that even if an informant belongs in prison for handing over secrets for publication, the media organizations that actually make them public need not be answerable.

That practice reflects a cozy little entente between government and big media: The government avoids a public fuss, and the media buy themselves immunity at the cost of their sources' safety.

Edward Wasserman
 MCCLATCHY-TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

Of course, as a matter of moral logic, ignoring the press is absurd. If publishing something causes real harm, those responsible should be called to account — whether they're former security contractor Edward Snowden or The New York Times.

More important, if the publication was, on balance, a public benefit nobody should be punished — neither the mighty news organization nor its source. But news sources have few allies nowadays. And, it's not just in the national security realm. If you look at digital era news practices, the overall environment for sources has deteriorated, and potential informants have better reason than ever to keep silent.

Consider the channels through which reporters and informants communicate. News organizations routinely post email addresses for their reporters. But does anyone believe an email to a journalist is private, in the way a phone conversation would have been a decade ago? Can the reporter even safeguard his or her own electronic correspondence? How many proprietors would pay to fight an outside litigant's attempt to see that correspondence — even if it's nothing more than some ex-boss trying to enforce a cockamamie "non-disparagement" clause that the source was pressured to sign on his way out the company door?

And once the story is published, even if the source knew enough to speak carefully and his or her comments were accurately rendered and properly contextualized (no sure thing, that), what then?

Then the source's contribution will be subjected to the boisterous give and take of the online multiverse, and his or her words, motives and integrity will be denounced or impugned, often by pseudonymous dingbats, some of them undisclosed hirelings.

None of that is fun.

To be sure, many informants are essentially professional sources, people sophisticated in handling journalists. They're officials who are in the game, who know how to negotiate terms beforehand, and who know that their continuing value to the reporter will guarantee that they'll be handled with consideration.

But the source who's imperiled is the average Joe or Jane who has significant information the public should hear, but whose collaboration is a one-off thing; this person won't ever be on any reporter's speed dial. This is the source who steps from obscurity off a cliff into public notoriety, hoping the landing will be soft, perhaps expecting that with publicity will come some measure of protection, believing that speaking out is doing the right thing.

We don't make it easy for them. They aren't honored in the press ethics books or the civics texts, and the sociologists don't bother studying how often they get hurt.

Yet they matter, crucially. They understand that talking to the press is what a responsible person does, an action that belongs among the indispensable elements of being a citizen, alongside the right to vote and the duty to give evidence in court.

That people talk to the press at all is something of a miracle, and it's time sources began to get the respect and attention from the media that they deserve.

Carl Edwards leads Ford sweep at rain-soaked Bristol

JENNA FRYER
AP Auto Racing Writer

BRISTOL, Tenn. — Carl Edwards claimed a rain-soaked win at Bristol Motor Speedway, where weather wreaked havoc on yet another Sprint Cup race.

The rain caused two delays lasting more than five hours — one that delayed the start Sunday by almost two hours, and one that stopped the race for 3 hours, 18 minutes. But when the drivers got on the track, they raced fast and furious.

Much like the season-opening Daytona 500, which was stopped by rain for almost six hours, the threat of more bad weather bringing a sudden halt to the race forced the drivers to go hard every single lap.

So when a caution with 77 laps remaining sent most of the field to pit road, Edwards' crew chief, Jimmy Fennig, made the call to leave his driver on the track. The move gave Edwards

Allen gets hot late as Heat top Rockets 113-104

MIAMI — Ray Allen scored 14 of his 25 points in the fourth quarter on a milestone day for the veteran, LeBron James and Dwyane Wade each scored 24 and the Miami Heat beat the Houston Rockets 113-104 on Sunday to snap their worst skid in three years.

Chris Bosh added 18 points for the Heat, who won for just the second time in their last seven games. They were down 97-92 following a 3-pointer by James Harden midway through the fourth, then finished the game on a 21-7 run.

Allen had 11 points during that late stretch, including a 3-pointer that allowed him to pass Allen Iverson for 21st on the NBA's scoring list. It was also the 750th regular-season win that Allen was a part of in his career.

Senden comes from behind to take title at Valspar

DOUG FERGUSON
AP Golf Writer

PALM HARBOR — John Senden ended more than seven years without a victory by making two late birdies, including a chip-in from 70 feet on the toughest hole at Innisbrook, for a one-shot victory on a wild and windy Sunday at the Valspar Championship.

Senden, two shots behind going into the final round, closed with a 1-under 70 for his first PGA Tour win since the 2006 John Deere Classic. The timing couldn't have been better. The victory sends the 42-year-old Australian to the Masters next month.

Kevin Na had a long birdie putt on the final hole that would have forced a playoff, but it never came close.

"If I could just stay in the moment, I knew I was swinging well enough to give it a shake," Senden said.

It took what he called a "magic shot" to shake loose from a traffic jam along the back nine of the Copperhead course. The tournament was up for grabs over the final two hours, with nine players separated the afternoon, and the third when Beverley was hit with a technical in the final minute.

James hit a pair of free throws with 46 seconds left for his first points of the final quarter, and that sealed it for Miami, which moved back within three games of Indiana for the No. 1 spot in the Eastern Conference.

Allen took another pass from Wade to score inside with 3:31 left, giving Miami the lead for good.

Allen now has 24,370 points, two more than Iverson.

The first surprise of the day came about 20 minutes before tip-off, when the Heat announced Greg Oden 20-foot birdie putt on the 17th.

Equally important was the par on the 18th, which was just as difficult as the birdies. He needed two putts up a ridge and breaking slightly to the right before it went swiftly down the slope and breaking to the left. The 40-foot putt settled inches from the cup.

Senden finished at 7-under 277, the third straight tournament on the Florida swing won with a single-digit score under par.

Na played in the final group and made sure pace of play was only a memory. He missed a 3-foot bogey putt late on the front nine that sent him plunging

Gators No. 1 seed in NCAA South Region

MARK LONG
Associated Press

Florida's path to the Final Four is filled with college basketball blue bloods.

The Gators earned the tournament's overall No. 1 seed after beating Kentucky 61-60 in the Southeastern Conference championship game Sunday. Coach Billy Donovan's team, which has won 26 consecutive games, is the top seed for the first time since winning the second of back-to-back national titles in 2007.

"It's kind of what we expected," said guard Scottie Wilbekin, the SEC's player of the year and tournament MVP. "It feels good. Obviously, it doesn't matter when the games start playing."

Florida (32-2) will open tournament play Thursday in Orlando, in the South Region. The Gators will face the winner of Albany (18-14) and Mount St. Mary's (16-16), two 16 seeds that play Tuesday night in Dayton, Ohio.

"We've got to stay locked in and not let it get to our heads," Wilbekin added.

Florida's road to Dallas could get considerably tougher after that, with No. 2 seed Kansas, No. 3 seed Syracuse and No. 4 seed UCLA all in the South. The Jayhawks, Orange and Bruins have a combined 15 national titles and plenty of experience on college basketball's biggest stage.

"Anybody in the country can come out and win it," Florida center Patric Young said.

Kansas (24-9) opens the tournament Friday against 15th-seeded Eastern Kentucky in St. Louis, a relatively short trip for the Jayhawks. Eastern Kentucky (24-9) beat Belmont in the Ohio Valley Conference final to earn its eighth NCAA tournament appearance and first since 2007.

Behind star freshman Andrew Wiggins, Kansas captured its 10th straight Big 12 regular-season title but lost to eventual champion Iowa State in the tournament semifinals to dash any hopes of a No. 1 seed. The Jayhawks likely will be without 7-footer Joel Embiid until the tournament's second weekend. The Big 12 defensive player of the year has a stress fracture in his lower back.

"You obviously worry about winning a two-game tournament," Kansas coach Bill Self said. "You don't worry about what you could potentially worry about next week. In our regional, you got the best team in the country, a team that four weeks ago was thought to be the best team in the country.

"You have a team in UCLA that's one of the hottest teams in the country. You could make a case that if everybody in our regional plays to their ceilings, it could be the hardest region of any of them."

No. 7 New Mexico (27-6) and No. 10 Stanford (21-12) also meet in St. Louis. It's Stanford's 17th NCAA berth and first since 2008, shortly before coach Johnny Dawkins was hired from Duke's staff to replace Trent Johnson.

Last spring, athletic director Bernard Muir said Stanford needed to reach the NCAAs to show progress or Dawkins' future could be in jeopardy.

"Coach always tells us never pay attention to what's being said," senior forward Josh Huestis said. "One thing I've really learned about Coach Dawkins is he can stay very focused despite the chaos around him."

Syracuse (27-5) will face 14th-seeded Western Michigan (23-9) on Thursday in Buffalo, N.Y. The Orange gets a chance to end its late-season fade. Syracuse was 25-0 and No. 1 in the country last month, but lost four of six to close the regular season.

The Broncos (23-9) are in the field for the first time since 2004 after beating Toledo for the Mid-American Conference championship.

No. 6 seed Ohio State (25-9) and 11th-seeded Dayton (23-10) also play in Buffalo. UCLA (26-8) and 13th-seeded Tulsa (21-12) play Friday in San Diego. The Bruins, in their first season under coach Steve Alford, upset Arizona in the Pac-12 tournament championship game Saturday. Tulsa closed with 11 consecutive wins under second-year coach Danny Manning, a former Kansas star whose alma mater also is in the region.

The Golden Hurricane secured their berth by winning the Conference USA tournament, earning their first NCAA tournament berth since 2003.

San Diego also will host No. 5 seed Virginia Commonwealth and 12th-seeded Stephen F. Austin. The Lumberjacks (31-2), who have won 28 in a row, won the Southland Conference tournament and are making their first NCAA tournament appearance since 2009.

VCU (26-8) lost to Saint Joseph's in the Atlantic 10 championship Sunday. The Rams are making their fourth consecutive trip to the NCAA tournament and have at least one win in each of their first three trips. They advanced to the Final Four in 2011.

Florida has come up just short of the Final Four the last three years, losing to Butler (2011), Louisville (2012) and Michigan (2013) in regional finals.

The senior-laden Gators have had their sights set on the Final Four all year — and now the last leg of the journey begins.

"We've still got work to do," forward Dorian Finney-Smith said. "Now we've got to start from the bottom and work our way back up."

No. 6 UVa tops No. 7 Duke 72-63 for ACC championship

JOEDY MCCREARY
Associated Press

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Malcolm Brogdon scored 23 points and No. 6 Virginia claimed its first Atlantic Coast Conference tournament title since 1976 by beating No. 7 Duke 72-63 on Sunday.

Tournament MVP Joe Harris added 15 points and hit the backbreaking 3-pointer with just under 2 minutes remaining for the top-seeded Cavaliers (28-6).

They shot 45 percent, pestered the Blue Devils into 38 percent shooting and used a late 12-3 run to pull away and claim the second ACC tournament title in school history.

Jabari Parker scored 23 points on 9-of-24 shooting for the third-seeded Blue Devils (26-8), who were making their 31st appearance in the championship game but were denied their ACC-record 20th title.

The Cavaliers came to Greensboro off of their first outright regular-season title since 1981, and were trying to do something not even Ralph Sampson could do.

It had been a long time — 38 years — since Wally Walker led Virginia to its only previous ACC tournament title.

Now that trophy will have some company.

With its “pack line” defense clicking and holding Duke 13 points below its scoring average, Virginia was in control for most of the day, yet could never get any separation until the final 2½ minutes.

Akil Mitchell hit a shot to make it 61-57, then stripped Parker at the other end to set up Harris' wide-open 3 in transition that extended the lead to seven and had Duke's Rodney Hood fuming.

Harris gave Duke a final chance when he rushed up a shot and Quinn Cook countered with a 3 with 1½ minutes left to pull the Blue Devils back within four.

Brogdon then drove through the Duke defense for a momentum-shifting layup that made it 66-60 with just over a minute to play and caused Duke assistant Jeff Capel to tellingly slump back on the bench in exasperation.

INDIANAPOLIS — Adreian Payne scored 18 points and Gary Harris and Branden Dawson added 15 each to lead No. 22 Michigan State to its second Big Ten tournament title in three years with a 69-55 upset of No. 8 Michigan on Sunday.

The third-seeded Spartans (26-8) are getting healthy and will have some momentum entering the NCAA tournament with four wins in five games.

“Let me tell you, we beat two great teams. Both of them are worthy of a one seed,” coach Tom Izzo told CBS, referring to the Wolverines and No. 12 Wisconsin. “I hope they don't drop much because they are both deserving. Those guys have done it all year long.”

Top-seeded Michigan (25-8) was led by Big Ten player of the year Nik Stauskas with 17 points and Derrick Walton Jr. had 11, but the Big Ten regular season champs had their seven-game winning streak come to an end.

It was never really close.

Michigan State took control with an early 12-0 run, led 38-29 at halftime and opened the second half with an 8-0 spurt to make it 46-29.

The Spartans had lost their previous two meetings with Michigan this season but weren't about to lose again.

For the first time all season, Michigan State started the same five players for a fifth straight game. Harris, who hurt his left shoulder early in the second half, returned later.

Harris, an Indiana native who never got to play for a state basketball title at Bankers Life Fieldhouse, took advantage of this opportunity. He scored 13 of his 15 points in the first half. Dawson, another Indiana native who was named the tournament's Most Outstanding Player, scored 10 of his 15 points in the second.

Michigan State has four tournament titles since the Big Ten started the event in 1998 — two in Indy and pulled off a rare double by winning the men's title less than a mile from Lucas Oil Stadium where the Spartans claimed the league's football championship in December.

St. Joseph's beats VCU 65-61 to earn A-10 championship

RACHEL COHEN
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Langston Galloway scored 19 points and hit yet another huge 3-pointer, and Saint Joseph's beat No. 23 VCU 65-61 on Sunday to win its first Atlantic 10 tournament title since 1997.

The fourth-seeded Hawks (24-9) arrived in Brooklyn on the NCAA tournament bubble. They all but clinched an at-large berth with a win over fellow bubble team Dayton in Friday's quarterfinals on Galloway's go-ahead 3, then made that moot by capturing the conference's automatic bid.

The second-seeded Rams (26-8) have reached the A-10 tournament finals in both years in the league but lost both times.

Fellow senior Ronald Roberts had 15 points on 6-of-6 shooting and 11 rebounds for Saint Joseph's.

Rob Brandenburg led VCU with 18 points, but Galloway got just enough separation on him to hit a tiebreaking 3-pointer with more

Briante Weber missed a 3 on the other end, and the Hawks broke down the Rams' pressure for Roberts' dunk on a pass from DeAndre Bemby for a 59-54 lead.

Bemby, a freshman, had a brilliant defensive game and a horrific offensive outing in Saturday's semifinals. But against VCU's “Havoc” full-court press, he kept his poise, scoring 13 points with eight assists and just two turnovers.

Halil Kanacevic, the third senior starter for Saint Joseph's, won tournament MVP honors after another all-around performance. The forward from nearby Staten Island had 11 points, 14 rebounds, four assists and two blocks.

All five starters played at least 37 minutes, with Galloway and Kanacevic going the full 40.

Davis powers Pelicans past Celts

Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Anthony Davis set career highs with 40 points and 21 rebounds, and Eric Gordon made two crucial free throws in overtime to lead the New Orleans Pelicans to a 121-120 victory over the Boston Celtics on Sunday night.

Tyreke Evans added 26 points and Gordon had 19 for the Pelicans, who had lost two consecutive games. Gordon's foul shots with 9.4 seconds remaining gave the Pelicans a 121-117 lead.

Davis did not score in overtime but controlled the middle by grabbing six rebounds. He became the first player in franchise history to have at least 40 points and 20 rebounds in the same game.

His previous high for points was Friday night when he scored 36 in a loss against Portland. Davis' 21 rebounds erased his previous career high of 19 against Orlando on Jan. 26.

Kris Humphries scored 16 points for the Celtics, including a long jumper to send the game into overtime. Jared Sullinger added 14 points and Avery Bradley had 12.

Davis' jumper with 1.7 seconds remaining in regulation lifted the Pelicans to a 112-110 lead. But Humphries responded with a fade-away from deep in the right corner.

BOBCATS 101, BUCKS 92

MILWAUKEE — Kemba Walker scored 21 points and Al Jefferson added 16 of his 20 in the second half to help the Charlotte Bobcats beat the Milwaukee Bucks 101-92 on Sunday for their fourth straight victory.

Gary Neal added 18 in his return to Milwaukee after the Bucks traded him to Charlotte last month. Gerald Henderson scored 14 as the Bobcats matched their longest winning streak of the season, set Feb. 18-22.

Brandon Knight scored 21 points and Ramon Sessions added 18. Jeff Adrien and John Henson each had 12, but it wasn't enough to stop the Bobcats from their first sweep of a season series from the Bucks.

Neal led the way in the fourth quarter as the Bobcats slowly pulled away. He scored seven the Bobcats' first 12 points and finished with 10 in the period.

Josh McRoberts hit a 3-pointer and then Neal added a jumper that gave Charlotte an 88-85 lead. Khriston Middleton answered with a basket to pull Milwaukee within one, but Jefferson scored on a hook shot and layup to end any chance of the Bucks' win.

SUNS 121, RAPTORS 113

TORONTO — Markieff Morris had 16 points and 14 rebounds, Gerald Green scored 13 of his 28 points in the fourth quarter, and the Phoenix Suns beat the Toronto Raptors 121-113 on Sunday for their second straight victory.

Goran Dragic scored 19 points, Eric Bledsoe had 14 and P.J. Tucker 11 for the Suns, who had lost three of four.

Bench scoring was a big edge for Phoenix, whose reserves outscored Toronto's 59-11.

Kyle Lowry had 28 points and 13 assists, as Toronto lost at home for the first time since a triple-overtime defeat to Washington on Feb. 27.

Knicks players eager to see what Jackson can do

BRIAN MAHONEY
AP Basketball Writer

NEW YORK — Even before meeting with him, Knicks players like Phil Jackson's hiring to run their franchise.

"I'm a chess player, so that was a power move right there," Carmelo Anthony said. "So now we're going to see what's the next move. But that was a great power move."

The Knicks haven't officially announced it yet, holding off until a press conference Tuesday morning. But the 11-time champion as a coach was already the focus before and after the Knicks' 115-94 victory over Milwaukee on Saturday.

Jackson was on the Knicks' only two championship-winning teams, in 1970 and 1973. He went on to win 11 more rings as a coach with the Chicago Bulls and Los Angeles Lakers, and the players are confident he can be a winner next as an executive.

"Phil knows what to do and how to build teams and how to win, that's the most important thing," Anthony said. "When you know how to win, whether you're a coach or whether you're in the front office, that stands out."

Jackson will be responsible for trying to keep Anthony when the All-Star forward becomes a free agent this summer.

Explosive Driver Distance

Seniors, Women & Golfers with Slower Swing Speeds Gain Up to 40 Yards More on Their Drives

By Leonard Finkel

Golf can be very frustrating, especially for golfers struggling with distance issues. Are you looking to recover lost yardage or seeking to add significant distance off the tee? Golfers with slower swing speeds have a difficult time launching the ball in the air with today's drivers. The problem is, these players don't generate enough ball velocity and spin which causes the ball to lift and soar through the air. The solution might be the Polara "Advantage" driver. Polara Golf's new drivers are designed to drive the ball farther than any other club. Polara has gone beyond the design and performance limits imposed on PGA Tour players. Polara's over-sized clubs are engineered to launch the ball higher and faster than other drivers, while also providing an extra-large sweet spot for more forgiveness and power on off-center hits. They are intended for any golfer whose #1 priority is achieving significantly more distance.

Why are these drivers longer? The primary advantages come from higher lofts, a thin beta titanium face and larger 475cc head size versus the USGA imposed limit. When a golfer with a slower swing speed uses a higher lofted club, they increase the ball's launch angle and backspin. The extra backspin causes the ball to generate more lift, but more importantly the higher launch angle and increased lift force the ball to stay in the air longer — producing added distance. Beta titanium is a more expensive but stronger alloy, which means the face can be made thinner, delivering a more enhanced trampoline effect. This translates into higher ball velocity, adding longer distance off the tee. The larger head delivers a higher moment of inertia because the center of gravity is moved farther back. This combination also means greater forgiveness on off-center hits.

Though the product was just recently released in limited quantities, it already has an almost cult-like following, indicated by the numerous testimonials the company receives. William Yaeger (Penfield, NY) wrote, "I bought the new Polara Advantage driver and not only am I getting 15-25 MORE yards per average but I've had many mis-hits forgiven by this driver."

The Advantage driver is designed to work with any golf ball and works especially well with Polara's own anti-slice balls. The combination of distance and accuracy is nothing short of a miracle. Gary King (Ft. Lauderdale, FL) wrote, "This driver performs as advertised. Combined with my Polara Golf balls I'm driving straighter and 10 to 15 yards longer than previously. At age 77 I welcome all the help I can get." Barbara Howard (The Villages, FL) related, "The one thing I could never do well was get distance and loft out of my driver. Since playing with the Polara Ladies Advantage Driver my distance and loft has been awesome. My friends can't believe how much better my drives are now. I am 72 years old and loving the game of golf."

Polara drivers are available in four models, with the HL1 and HL3 lofts designed especially for golfers who drive the ball less than 200 yards and want up to 40 more yards. David Moody (Louisville, KY) said, "I have no doubt the Advantage driver has added length to my drives. I have gone from the short knocker to one of the longer drivers in our group." Polara equipment is designed for the vast majority of golfers who want to take advantage of technology improvements and have more fun. "We've done extensive testing with golfers who have slower swing speeds; those who drive the ball less than 200 yards, and the biggest issue is almost all are using drivers with too little loft," says Polara's David Felker. "Our Advantage HL1 and HL3 drivers provide more loft than any other driver on the market. They are essentially fairway woods on steroids — faster face, larger size head, larger sweet spot and more forgiving on off center hits. An easy driver to hit, delivering a lot more distance!"

Purchase a Polara driver for $199 ($100 discount) and get a free Polara 6-ball trial pack. A trained Polara Golf specialist will properly fit you to the driver that will give you much more yardage — guaranteed. # Kalitta, Hight win top two divisions at Gatornationals

AP Sports Writer

GAINESVILLE — John Force and Antron Brown were looking to make history Sunday at the NHRA Gatornationals.

Those plans went up in smoke — quite literally.

Force and Brown spun their tires in the finals, helping Robert Hight and Doug Kalitta record easy victories in the top two divisions.

Hight beat his boss, 16-time champion Force, in the Funny Car division. Kalitta topped 2012 series champion Brown in Top Fuel.

"I'm racing the all-time leader, John Force, 16-time champ, my boss, the guy that gave me the opportunity to do this," Hight said. "It's tough to race him. ... It's also a lot fun when you actually race in the final and it's your teammate and you guys can just go up there and have some fun."

The 64-year-old Force was trying to become the fifth driver in Funny Car history to win as the No. 16 qualifier. He opened the day by upsetting top qualifier Cruz Pedregon, then knocked off Del Worsham and daughter Courtney Force to reach his second final in three events this year.

That set up the Force final.

Daniel Ricciardo stripped of first podium finish at Aussie Grand Prix

NEIL FRANKLAND
AP Sports Writer

MELBOURNE, Australia — Elation turned to desolation for Daniel Ricciardo at the Australian Grand Prix on Sunday after the Red Bull driver was stripped of his first podium finish due to a technical breach at Formula One's season opener.

Ricciardo initially finished second to Mercedes driver Nico Rosberg to become the first homegrown driver to take to the podium in the 29-year history of the Australian GP.

The celebrations did not last long as F1 stewards said his car breached fuel-flow rules introduced this year which limit cars to 100 kilograms of fuel during the race. World motorsport governing body FIA subsequently disqualified Ricciardo, elevating McLaren drivers Kevin Magnussen and Jenson Button to second and third.

Red Bull immediately announced it will appeal.

Shortly after the end of the race, FIA Formula One technical delegate Jo Bauer said Ricciardo's car had "ex-Renault are confident the fuel supplied to the engine is in full compliance with the regulations."

Horner further proclaimed the team's innocence to reporters saying; "It is no fault of Daniel. I don't believe it is the fault of the team."

"I am extremely disappointed, quite surprised ... hopefully through the appeal process it will be quite clear that the car has conformed at all times to the regulations," he added. "We would not be appealing unless we were extremely confident that we have a defensible case."

The Albert Park crowd earlier offered Ricciardo a thunderous applause as he stood on the podium in his first race with Red Bull.

"It's a bit overwhelming for now, but just an unbelievable day," the 24-year-old said shortly after.

Australia staged its first Grand Prix of the F1 era in Adelaide in 1985, with the 1986 edition marking the final race of Australian world championship winner Alan Jones.

Mark Webber's first F1 race was the 2002 Australian GP, and since then Australian fans have waited impatiently for a top-three finish at Albert Park.

ceeded consistently the maximum allowed fuel flow" and referred the matter to stewards.

More than three and a half hours later, after Ricciardo had left the track, the stewards disqualified the Australian saying Red Bull had not only breached technical regulations by exceeding the allowed fuel flow, but also had disregarded instructions before the race to change the fuel flow sensor and during the race to reduce the flow.

The operation of the fuel-flow sensors had been a source of dispute between the teams and the FIA coming into the first race.

After the findings, Red Bull said "Inconsistencies with the FIA fuel flow meter have been prevalent all weekend up and down the pit lane. The team and (engine-maker)

Volunteers cuddle babies too sick or tiny to leave hospital

LINDSEY TANNER
Associated Press

A volunteer slips her arms into a gauzy yellow hospital gown and approaches a medical crib holding a tiny newborn hooked up to noisy machines.

"OK," she says, with a smile. "Baby time."

That means cuddle time in the neonatal intensive care unit at the University of Chicago's Comer Children's Hospital. Here, as at several other hospitals around the country, strangers offer a simple yet powerful service for newborns too tiny or sick to go home.

When nurses are swamped with other patients and parents cannot make it to the hospital, grandmas, empty-nesters, college students and other volunteers step in. They hold the babies, swaddle them, sing and coo to them, rock them, and treat them as if they were their own.

A plaintive cry signals time to get to work.

"You can see them calm, you can see their heart rate drop, you can see their little brows relax," said Kathleen Jones, 52, a cuddler at the Chicago hospital. "They're fighting so hard and they're undergoing all this medical drama and trauma. My heart breaks for them a little bit."

Newborn intensive care units are noisy, stressful environments. There are babies born extremely prematurely, or with birth defects and other illnesses. Some are too sick to be held — but not too sick to touch. Cuddlers reach a finger inside their incubators and stroke tiny bare bellies.

Scientific evidence on benefits of cuddling programs is scarce, but the benefits of human touch are well-known. In one study, gentle caressing or placing a hand on preterm infants reduced levels of stress hormones. Other recent studies have suggested touch may benefit premies' heart rates and sleep and perhaps even shorten their hospital stays.

Studies also suggest that early negative experiences — including pain, stress and separation from other humans — may hamper brain development, while research in animals shows that positive interactions enhance brain growth, said Dr. Jerry Schwartz, medical director of medical neonatology at Torrance Memorial Medical Center near Los Angeles.

The benefit "at the most superficial level" is obvious, he said. "A baby is crying, mom's not there, the nurse is busy with

Mindful meditation at school makes kids go ommm

MARY MACVEAN
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Erica Eihl speaks in a voice that her kindergartners can hear only if they are as quiet as the church mice in children's storybooks.

And with a couple of squirrely exceptions, they stay that quiet for 15 or 20 minutes — a near eternity — as Eihl guides them to use all their senses to consider a piece of apple, with directions such as, "Looking at the apple, look on the outside. Look on the inside. ... Remember, keep it in your palm and just look at it."

When she asks for their input, she gets raised hands and comments such as: "It smells juicy and apple-y" and "I see little tiny white spots."

Mindful eating is just one of the mindful practices at the Citizens of the World charter school in Mar Vista, Calif., with 160 children in kindergarten through second grade.

"We are mindful and heartfelt" is the golden rule at the school, and the children practice mindful meditation in the mornings and after recess, among other times, often with 30 seconds to five minutes of silence — time when they can notice what is happening at the moment without judgment, which is at the heart of mindful meditation.

"They're very receptive to it," Eihl says. "They're so emotional at this age. It's allowing them to have the tools to be expressive" about their emotions and cope with them.

Educators are catching on to the benefits of mindful meditation.

Indeed, schools in 48 states, and hundreds of schools in California alone, have programs, says Chris McKenna, the program director at Mindful Schools in Emeryville, Calif., which has trained more than 2,000 teachers in mindfulness.

"One of the reasons it's growing is because the kids are under so much pressure now, with the testing culture and the pressure put on them by teachers and parents to be successful," says Vicki Zakrzewski, the education director at the Greater Good Science Center at University of California-Berkeley, which studies the science behind mindfulness.

CHERYL A. GUERRERO / MCT

Kindergarten teacher Erica Eihl, center, leads the meditation while Lucas Gold, left, and Husam Arab concentrate on deep breathing at Citizens of the World Mar Vista in Culver City, Calif.

Mindfulness helps with focus, attention and calming the emotions, she says. Teachers and administrators, she adds, see it as a tool that also can boost school performance.

"Schools are absolutely paying attention to the benefits of mindfulness," says Lorraine Hobbs, the director of youth and family programs at the University of California-San Diego's School of Medicine and Center for Mindfulness. "When we can teach kids to pay attention to this inner landscape," they can learn kindness and compassion.

Mindful meditation came to schools in part as they began to focus on social and emotional aspects of learning, sometimes to cope with bullying and other behavioral problems, Zakrzewski says. "We focus so much on cognitive development, but the science is showing us how important the social and emotional aspects are."

It's more than just a "nice experience," says Sharon Salzberg, a meditation teacher and author of the recent book "Real Happiness at Work." "Just like with adults, stress takes its toll, and we need to take breaks and regroup. And maybe it's as simple as remembering to breathe."

Hobbs says it's important for the adults in a school to develop a mindfulness practice. "You can't teach what you don't know," she said.

That might look like a daily meditation time, perhaps 20 minutes or so, using directions downloaded onto an iPhone. Or taking part in a group meditation program. And it also means teachers are aware of mindful ideas throughout the day.

Several experts likened the current statement of mindfulness to the way people approached yoga a few decades back. These days, "child's pose" is part of everyday language, but not so long ago yoga was seen as kooky or, worse, some odd religious practice. Like yoga, mindfulness is rooted in contemplative religious practice and like yoga has been secularized and is used as a complementary medical treatment for many conditions, as well as in schools.

NEAL ST. ANTHONY
Star Tribune

MINNEAPOLIS — Preceptis Medical is a small company that has big designs to clip the costs and boost the safety for the 1.3 million young children who undergo ear-tube surgeries each year.

"This is a simple story," said Preceptis CEO Steve Anderson. "We've come up with an effective tool that allows us to do the procedure under conscious sedation, avoiding the expense of the operating room, and avoiding the risk to young children of general anesthesia."

Anderson said the procedure can be done in a clinic or doctor's office for up to 70 percent less than the nearly $5,000 cost of the traditional surgical repair for infected ears in youngsters.

Dr. Frank Rimell, a veteran pediatric surgeon and a "principal investigator" testing the Preceptis tool at the University of Minnesota-Tamplat Children's Hospital, said several ear-nose-and-throat surgeons are testing the tool at four Twin Cities hospitals. Rimell said he expects to present the results of more than 50 procedures on children up to 5 years old at a May conference of pediatric ear, nose and throat surgeons in Las Vegas.

"I want to get this procedure out of the operating room for multiple reasons," he said.

The goal, Rimell said, "is to see if we can make this most-common procedure among children in the United States even safer. And it is a safe procedure now. But even safer and more economical. We want to remove potential risks and make it cheaper."

Rimell said he is not a shareholder in the company and receives less than $5,000 annually for coordinating clinical trials.

The tests are being done using nitrous oxide, considered a safe and inexpensive sedative used by dentists for decades, instead of a general anesthetic.

The Preceptis tool was invented by Dr. Michael Loushin, a partner in Twin Cities Anesthesia Associates and an adjunct faculty member at the University of Minnesota medical school, and Keith Leland, a mechanical engineer and vice president of research and development at Preceptis. The company is headquartered in Plymouth, Minn.

According to Preceptis, the procedure requires one precise pass at the ear, taking about 10 seconds. The patient remains awake, though sedated with the nitrous oxide.

"All these things are converging in a way that makes the timing right for us," said Anderson, 51, a biomedical engineer who has worked for several medical-products companies.

Anesthesiologists, who stand to lose business, might not like this procedure. But it's the type of innovation that can help reduce health care costs.

With the Preceptis tool, surgeons are able to insert the tube on the first pass 85 to 95 percent of the time, Rimell said.

"The goal is to get this done in the office, so the family doesn't have to come to the office for the initial visit and then come back for surgery and the child doesn't have to go for a surgical physical, and the parents don't have to take off a second day of work," Rimell said. "Let's get the tube done that day."

Preceptis, which still needs federal regulatory clearance for its product, hopes to be selling it by fall and would likely be a candidate for acquisition by medical-products companies looking to extend their product lines.

Breast cancer patients find romance and support online

MEREDITH COHN
The Baltimore Sun

BALTIMORE — True-heart4me was 5-foot-9, spiritual but not religious, and a social drinker, her Match.com profile read. She loved the water, traveling and a good belly laugh.

There was one more thing she labeled “full disclosure.” She had cancer. “I was very lucky in that it was caught early and underwent surgery in early November that was a complete success,” the profile read. “The cancer is now gone, however, I’ll be in treatment for the next several months. ... I expect to be finished up in early May, at which time I am also hoping my hair grows back!”

Patti Tolley had an aggressive breast cancer, invasive ductal carcinoma, which had spread to her lymph nodes. She’d recently had a large tumor removed, along with her right breast and the nodes, and endured three of about 16 chemotherapy sessions.

Bored one night, the executive assistant at the technology company Ciena bought a one-month subscription to the online dating site. She typed out the profile, posted pre-diagnosis pictures of herself and hit enter.

Her friends joked about who might be attracted to a woman who was “bald as a cue ball” and missing a breast. But Tolley felt she was more than the sum of her missing parts and she might get a chuckle from some of the men’s responses.

Several men responded as well as one woman, Jodi Kinney, who had uploaded a profile for a friend, a nice man without a computer or interest in Internet dating.

Kinney printed out several profiles of brunettes, which she knew her friend liked, and Tolley. Tolley was a blonde when she had a full mane, but Kinney just knew she was “the one” for David Parrish.

Parrish, who worked for Kinney at the Department of Defense, agreed to email, via Kinney, but Tolley initially put him off. She had some other dates lined up. But those didn’t work out, and the two began emailing each other.

The first time they talked on the phone, he told her he had his own “full disclosure.”

She never imagined he would say that he had had a double mastectomy five years before to treat his breast cancer. Only 1 percent of cases diagnosed are in men, though it is the most common kind of cancer diagnosed in women, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

“I told her I was fine and she’d be fine, too,” Parrish said.

Their first date was a comfortable dinner and the Diane Keaton movie “Because I Said So.” “It was like we’d known each other for 30 years,” Tolley said.

Tolley was soon sick and tired from chemotherapy, and dates consisted of Parrish bringing chicken noodle soup to Tolley’s Dundalk, Md., home.

When they did leave the house together, it often was Parrish escorting her to appointments, procedures and surgeries — including some that had nothing to do with cancer. He once got “a little loud” with a nurse he didn’t feel was attentive enough when Tolley was nauseated. And any time she had stitches, he’d make her ride home in the back seat, believing she was safer if they were in an accident.

“When he’s got your back, you know you are covered and in good hands,” she said. “Bless his heart.”

One night during her treatments, she fell asleep on the sofa and her wig slid to the side, revealing to Parrish for the first time her hairless head. He said he couldn’t take his eyes off her.

Dr. Kristen Fernandez, director of the Breast Center at MedStar Franklin Square Medical Center in Baltimore, and Tolley’s surgeon, said she shares Tolley’s story often with other patients who tell her they are frightened of facing cancer alone.

Fernandez doesn’t necessarily recommend signing up on a dating site, but she said patients should talk to someone. She points them to a hospital program that matches breast cancer survivors with the newly diagnosed, created with the help of a survivor and the Maryland affiliate of the Susan G. Komen foundation.

“They don’t provide medical advice, but they provide support,” Fernandez said. “There are questions as a surgeon I can’t answer, like what it feels like when your hair falls out. We’d be foolish if we thought we could cut the cancer out and that’s it.”

Tolley and others say that support is essential, no matter where it comes from or how grand the gestures.

“Research shows that social support can help reduce stress and anxiety during treatment and that survivors with social connections — for example, through marriage, close friendships or membership in a religious organization — may have fewer physical limitations and less (of ) a decline in their ability to perform daily activities,” said Kelly Kesler, Komen Maryland’s community health director.

“Sometimes the simplest gestures, taking someone soup, just being there, may be what matters most to your friend or loved one,” she said.

Tolley said support came from all corners of her life, from friends, family, bosses and doctors.

Cancer now plays a big part in Tolley’s life. She continues to take medications and gets annual checkups. She also spends time talking to others scared by their diagnosis, mostly referrals from friends and family. And Parrish remains in a leading role. Seven months after they met, she moved into his Severn, Md., home. Eight months later, he proposed with a diamond ring that his mother had won in a bingo game and had him stash away when he was a teen. And on Sept. 9, 2009, she became Patti Tolley Parrish.

Gene mapping study shows promise, challenges

LINDSEY TANNER
Associated Press

CHICAGO — These days, it’s faster and cheaper than ever to decipher a person’s entire DNA. But a small study suggests that looking for disease risks that way may not be ready for the masses.

For one thing, the research found that gene variants most likely linked with significant disease were the least likely to be accurately identified.

And analyzing the mass of data from the DNA scan is a daunting task, researchers said.

Some experts think more targeted gene-mapping is a better approach. But while whole genome sequencing is mostly done for research, it has far-reaching potential for diagnosing and treating genetic diseases, even in people with no known risks. The new results show its promise and its challenges.

Stanford University researchers performed whole genome sequencing in 12 healthy people. Most of the millions of genetic variants they found were of uncertain significance, although one woman was found to have a high genetic risk for cancer.

DNA is recovered by a simple blood test and deciphered by machines. The difficulty lies in interpreting the findings and figuring out which variants are important and which ones can be ignored. That takes days of sophisticated follow-up lab tests and interpretation to reveal potentially meaningful genetic information, the researchers said.

Dr. Euan Ashley, a senior co-author and Stanford associate professor of medicine and genetics, likened the technology to “an unruly teenager who has grown up very fast. There’s huge potential.”

“This paper is like parental tough love — we have to be really honest about where we are in order to bring it up to clinical standards,” he said.

For the test, they used two commercially available instruments to sequence the DNA — the second one to validate the initial findings. But less than one-third of variants in inherited disease genes were confirmed.

Several specialists including medical geneticists, genetic counselors and a pathologist examined the findings and recommended follow-up tests. Medical intervention was considered appropriate for one participant, a woman with no family history of breast or ovarian cancer found to have a genetic variant strongly linked with those diseases. That finding led to surgery to remove her ovaries and increased breast cancer screening.

other sick babies, and it's an unpleasant life experience to be crying and unattended to, and, voila! A cuddler comes over and the baby stops crying."

Nancy Salcido has been a cuddler at Torrance for a year. Her two daughters are grown, and she considers her three-hour cuddling shifts good practice for any potential grandchildren.

"I just kind of hold them close to me ... and talk to them, sharing my day, or give them little pep talks," Salcido said. "One of the nurses has nicknamed me the baby whisperer."

Parents typically must consent for their babies to be part of cuddling programs, and cuddlers must undergo background checks and training before starting the job. At Chicago's Comer hospital, that includes lessons in how to swaddle babies tight to make them feel safe and how to maneuver around intravenous lines, as well as instruction in hygiene including frequent hand-washing.

At the Golisano Children's Hospital in Rochester, N.Y., one cuddler is a young man born there prematurely long ago. He "just wants to come and give back," said Chris Tryon, a child life specialist at the hospital, part of the University of Rochester Medical Center.

Comer's cuddlers include 74-year-old Frank Dertz, a retired carpenter who heard about the program from his daughter, a Comer nurse.

"It's quite a blessing for me. I get more out of it than the babies, I think," Dertz said.

Kathleen Jones says the same thing. A mother of three grown daughters and grandmother of two little girls, she joined Comer's program in 2012, working a couple afternoons a week or sometimes at night.

"They say that I look so in love with them when I'm there, but I cannot NOT crack an ear-to-ear smile whenever I pick that little guy or girl up."

Her love seems obvious as she rocks a stranger's newborn, the baby girl's tiny hand gripping Jones' finger.

"Ooh, I want to take you home," Jones coos. "You're so brave ... you're going to be feisty, aren't you?"

Jones used to wonder why parents or other relatives aren't comforting their own babies. But then, in August, her youngest grandchild was born deaf, with brain damage doctors say was caused by a virus her mom contracted before birth. Evelyn Steadman spent her first three weeks at Comer, and got cuddling care while she was there.

While family members visited often, "life happens and you can't sit by a bedside for three weeks," Jones said.

Erica Steadman had had a C-section, and already had her hands full with a toddler at home.

"She was being held and loved and watched over," she said. "I felt a great sense of relief from that."

YOUR HEALTH

President's own story: 15 years ago I started to have joint discomfort, frequent bathroom trips, kidney, snoring and manly issues. Now I take natural products to support my health and I'm glad I discovered them. Since then I have made it my life's purpose to help others. Nick A. Jerch

Frequent Bathroom Trips?

Men: Bell Ezee Flow Tea #4A is nature's nutritional support for urinary comfort, balance and ease.

- Helps maintain urinary flow, frequency and comfort, with a good night's sleep.
- Guaranteed to make urine flow easier again.*
- Relief from dribbling, discomfort, burning, urgency, poor flow.*
- Formulated using many herbs, such as chamomile, cranberry, willow flower, saw palmetto and many more.
- We have had thousands of satisfied repeat customers.
- Tastes great hot or cold!

■ I feel like another person with no more frustrations! It is phenomenal! It's unbelievable. I'd like to thank Bell. I will get other Bell products. Thank you again! Richard Dorvilus, 55, Elmont, NY.

■ Ezee Flow tea gave back good sleep and health! I feel like I'm 30 years old. During the night I hardly have to go to the toilet anymore. What a feeling. Because I sleep well, I'm not tired anymore during the day. "Old age" was bearing down on me. Now I feel great again and healthy. Jerry H. Cole, 73, Lansing, IL.

■ I'm truly amazed and relieved. After just 2 weeks of drinking the Bell Ezee Flow Tea I no longer have to get up during the night. I'm enjoying a normal sex life. This product is so incredible. I enjoy drinking the tea. I hope that a lot of men with a pride issue give this a shot. It's difficult to express how delighted I am. Clarence A. Rehrig, 58, Allentown, PA.*

Bell Bladder Control Tea for Women #4b

Satisfaction guaranteed (see box) for incontinence and control.* This inexpensive, pleasant tasting herbal combination tea is safe and effective. Put an end to embarrassments and discomfort. Support the bladder and urinary tract with these all natural ingredients. Tastes great hot or cold!*

■ I wish I had found this tea sooner! A family member told me that she used the Bell Tea for Women #4b with positive results. What a wonderful product. It also worked for me. Australia P. Rodriguez, Rego Park, NY.*

■ Plan to keep taking it as long as I live! One of the clerks in my local health food store recommended the Bladder Control Tea #4b. I was very skeptical. What a surprise it worked! 5 days after starting the tea I noticed a major improvement and it is continually getting better each day. I plan to keep taking it for as long as I live. Thank you! Frances Baird, 87, Venice, FL.*

■ Exercises didn't help! After drinking the Bell Tea for Women #4b my life is far less stressful especially when I am at work. Thanks for such an amazing product! Marilyn Sallows, 53, Fort McMurray, AB.*

■ Tea represents truth in advertising! Being a skeptic, I ordered this Bladder Control Tea for Women as a more or less last resort, after trying everything else in the last 5 years. It worked better than I hoped for. Thank you for this great product, and above all, for truth in advertising. Marina Rosa, 57, Las Vegas, NV.*

Happiness for couples is a satisfying love life.

Support for male virility!

- Bell Forza # 79 is a new formula packed with herbs, amino acids and other fantastic ingredients.
- May also foster healthy circulation, virility and strength, thereby creating the proper conditions for a healthy erection.*
- Epimedium extract (also known as "Horny goat weed") and cowitch extract included in the formula may help to peak sexual interest.*
- One of the many other ingredients Maca, is native to the high Andes mountain range in Peru and is historically known to balance natural hormonal processes.
- I'm 67 years old, but with Forza I feel like 27! with a renewed interest in intimacy, I'm loving it. It's wonderful to feel alive again. Dennis Wiczorkowski, 67, Greendale, WI*

Maintain your Healthy Cholesterol Levels!

Bell HDL Cholesterol Formulation is also high in antioxidants!

- Good Product! Some of my friends had the same good results with it. This is a really good product. Andrea Shirley, 44, Bronx, NY
- Thank you Bell! I tried Red Yeast Rice, diets, exercise, nothing worked until I got #14. Thank you. Sherry L. Mannor, 51, Clearwater, FL
- Cholesterol control is amazing! Your product is amazing. Thank you. Judy Anthony, 59, Cambridge, ON

Desire and Passion!

Nutritional support for a woman's natural vigor.

■ Supplement your diet with these easy to take capsules designed to stimulate desire and passion while increasing stamina and peaking interest in sexual activity.*

■ Wonderful difference in our sex life. My husband and I myself are delighted about the quick results. After taking Amora for 3-4 days we enjoy our new invigorated marriage. We tried many other things that didn't work. Victoria Dean, 61, Atascosa, TX*

■ Within days I felt really sexy. I wanted to be more and more intimate with my husband. I have been taking Amora now for one week and cannot get enough of my husband. My husband already told my girlfriend and she asked him for some pills to try it. We have used many other products that didn't work. Konnie Pereira, 50, Kissimmee, FL*

■ Amora dramatically charged my love life. It also balanced my hormones. It is a wonderful natural product. My sister takes other Bell products and recommended it. Shaundra Ramsey, 39, Petersburg, PA*

Healthy Blood Pressure Support

Dr. C. Hammoud M.H., PhD, recommends this natural, effective fish peptide product to nutritionally support the body's normal blood pressure function.* With science-backed herbal phytonutrient. Promotes flexible, relaxed blood vessels in healthy people.* "A one-of-a-kind formula that offers unprecedented nutritional support for your overall health and well-being.* We have thousands of repeat customers. William Oliver, Portsmouth, VA* ■ I have been taking (Bell Product #26) now for one year. My mom and brother started taking it as well. Even my pastor is on it now. Thanks! Mary Earl, Longview, TX* ■ A friend recommended Bell BP Formulation! When a friend had good results I decided to try it. Bell Healthy Blood Pressure Support (Bell Product #26) made a difference in my life. Milton Perdomo, 68, Rego Park, NY.*

Blood Sugar Metabolism

Bell #40 combines healthy herbal extracts, enzymes, minerals and compounds to support your blood sugar metabolism. Long term weight control without balanced blood sugar is destined to fail. Eating foods like sugar and starches cause high blood glucose levels. The pancreas then pumps insulin into your blood stream, which then causes low levels of blood glucose and cravings for more sugary and starchy carbohydrates (breads, noodles, crackers, cereals, French fries etc.) Bell # 40 will naturally assist in stabilizing your cravings and help support healthy blood sugar balance.*

- Working in a health food store, I heard people saying how well Bell Blood Sugar Metabolism does! After I heard how our customers praised #40 Blood Sugar Metabolism, I tried it myself. Finally a product that does better than any other. Thank you for helping people around the world. Irene M. Urdialez, 43, Brynton Beach, FL
- Herbalist recommended Bell Blood Sugar Metabolism #40! First I tried cinnamon capsules. That alone didn't work. Then I added your Bell #40 and that's when I started to see a difference. Thanks! Abe Thompson, 47, Ellenwood, CA
- Health food store recommended Bell Blood Sugar Metabolism #40! I was not feeling well for the last 3 years. My health food store recommended Bell Blood Sugar Metabolism #40. Within 3 days I felt better, the wellness feeling also gave me more energy. As an added benefit, I'm sustaining a healthier weight! Thanks! Maria Oniveros, 53, New Mexico.

Shape and Health Supplement #5SH

The main ingredient is ocean kelp extract. This is the most effective botanical we know for reducing hunger in general especially for sweets of all kinds. This ocean kelp helps us to be more selective in eating more USDA recommended non-fattening alkaline food (vegetables, salads, legumes, fruit, berries, mushrooms) and decrease acidic food (meat, fish, shellfish, bread, noodles, rice, eggs, cheese, nuts, potatoes, french fries or other junk food). Just change a few eating habits for long term weight management. If your blood sugar is unbalanced consider adding Bell Blood Sugar Metabolism #40. It is hard to manage weight if the blood sugar is out of line.

■ It seemed to naturally curb my appetite. Bell Shape & Health gave me extra energy for workouts. I have managed my weight well for the last 3 months. I have recommended Bell Shape & Health to my family and friends. I will definitely keep on taking it. Latoya Daniela Scottie 29, Shuterville, SC.*

Natural Superior Hair

Fuller, thicker hair for men and women.

- Promotes stronger, shinier, healthier hair.
- Unique combination of ingredients make it a guaranteed superior product.
- Helps to rejuvenate your hair for a fuller and thicker appearance.
- Feeds the roots of the hair by supplying them with the best hair nutrient ever discovered.*

■ Hair issues were noticeably reduced with first bottle! I tried many things that didn't work. After having good results with another Bell product, I was happy to see that Bell now has this product. It worked well. Thanks! Cheryl Quick, 79, Naperville, IL

■ I was skeptical! After throwing my money away for years on other products and supplements. Your Natural Superior Hair Formula #77 is worth every penny. I referred it to others I see who could benefit from it. Very pleased. Richard Rawls, 51, Houston, TX.*

Snoring?

Here is proof that snoring can be corrupting your health and your marriage. Three out of 10 couples are considering divorce because of snoring says a major magazine article. You are not alone! An official survey says 48% of all people snore. 75% are affected, if you add non-snoring husbands that have snoring wives or vice versa. Snoring is caused by slack muscles in the throat. A common complaint is that people feel that they are not well rested in the morning. Many people wrote they are now sleeping like babies. Their partners are delighted.* ■ College professor had lack of good sleep with many interruptions for last 8 years that made her tired during the day. Within 3 days of taking Bell Sound Sleep (Bell Product #23) the snoring stopped.* I wake up feeling refreshed and energized. I can concentrate in a focused, happy manner. I feel delighted with this natural product. Dr. Anele E. Heiges, 77, New York, NY* ■ My life changed. Sleep now 7-8 hours. I am a retired college professor and author of books. I have no more need to nap during the day. Nothing I tried helped until I started Bell Sound Sleep. I am so delighted with this product I would like to make motivational speeches to help others. Carmen V. Caruso, 66, Ann Arbor, MI*

Mom worries about 11-year-old daughter who acts grown up

DEAR ABBY: My 11-year-old daughter, "Gwen," just started middle school. She makes good grades, but she's strong-willed. Do kids grow up instantly when they start middle school?

She wants to know if she can have a boy friend. I told her not until she's 15. Now she's flirting with girls who ask her out. I told her to stay away from them, not because they are lesbians but because they are not good girls. They are always in trouble.

Gwen says I'm too strict, and if I don't stop, she will run away. I adopted her at birth (it was an open adoption), and she recently asked me if I am going to place her for adoption. She was worried that I would. I am very concerned that she is hanging out with the wrong crowd. Any advice? — SAN ANTONIO MOM

DEAR MOM: People do not grow up "instantly." I know individuals who are immature at 50, and I'm sure if you think about it, so do you. From what you have told me about your daughter, it's clear that she is far from the grown-up she thinks she is.

If you do not want Gwen to date until she is older, that is your prerogative as her parent. The gender of the person isn't the issue.

Because you think she is hanging out with the wrong crowd, my advice is to make sure she is so busy she doesn't have time to spend with them. Involve her in activities outside of school — sports, scouting, music or art. And be sure she knows that you are her forever mother and that nothing she could ever do will lessen your love for her.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 29-year-old woman who has just been diagnosed with multiple sclerosis. It has been a rough road, and I'm lucky to have such a supportive group.

My issue is, when people find out, I get comments such as, "Wow, you look so GOOD!" or suggestions on how I should "cure" my MS. The most hurtful one was that it's all in my head.

While I appreciate that folks care and want to offer help, I find their comments offensive and hurtful. How do I respond tactfully, but also convey that they should think twice before they say these things? — UPSET IN OHIO

DEAR UPSET: If someone says you look good, respond as you would to any other compliment — say thank you. When someone offers a suggestion about how you can "cure" yourself, you'll save yourself a lot of frustration if you keep in mind that the person cares enough about you to try to be helpful. All you need to do is smile and say firmly that you are under a doctor's care and are satisfied with the treatment you are receiving.

And, heaven forbid, if another individual tells you that your MS is "all in your head," remember that just because a jackass brays does not mean you have to pay attention.

The bidding:
North 1♠ East 1♥ South 1♥ West 2♦
5 NT Pass 6♣ Pass
6♥ 6♠ Dble

Opening lead — three of diamonds.
This deal occurred during the playoff to determine which of five teams would represent the United States in the 1981 world championship.

From the standpoint of drama, the timing of the deal was perfect. It was the last board of a 72-board match between the winners of the Spingold and Reisinger team-of-four championships. The teams were virtually tied after 71 boards, and the outcome of the 72nd hand would determine which team would be eliminated.

At the first table, with a Reisinger pair North-South, the bidding went as shown. North's five-notrump bid was the grand-slam force; it accepted hearts as trumps and instructed South to bid seven hearts with two of the three top trump honors. South's six-club response indicated one of the top two honors, and North signed off at six hearts.

East realized that South would almost surely make the vulnerable slam, worth 1,430 points, so he bid six spades as a sacrifice. This was doubled and went down only three tricks — 500 points — after a diamond lead by South.

At the second table, the bidding went:
North 1♠ East 1♦ South 1 NT West 2♦
3♦ 5♦ Pass Pass
5♥ Pass 6♥

Here, the Reisinger East did not gain nearly as much information about the adverse hands as East had gained from the bidding at the first table. He passed six hearts, apparently hoping that his pre-emptive tactics had jockeyed the opponents into a shaky contract. Unfortunately for East, this did not prove to be the case. Six hearts could not be defeated, so the Spingold team netted 930 points and eliminated the Reisinger team from the playoff.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, March 17, the 76th day of 2014. There are 289 days left in the year. This is St. Patrick's Day.

Today's Highlight in History:

On March 17, 1776, British forces evacuated Boston during the Revolutionary War.

On this date:
In 1762, New York's first St. Patrick's Day parade took place.

In 1861, Victor Emmanuel II was proclaimed the first king of a united Italy.

In 1906, President Theodore Roosevelt first likened crusading journalists to a man with "the muckrake in his hand" in a speech to the Gridiron Club in Washington.

In 1912, the Camp Fire Girls organization was incorporated in Washington, D.C., two years to the day after it was founded in Thetford, Vt. (The group is now known as Camp Fire USA.)

In 1943, the Taoiseach of Ireland, Eamon de Valera, delivered a radio speech about "The Ireland That We Dreamed Of."

In 1950, scientists at the University of California at Berkeley announced they had created a new radioactive element, "californium."

In 1959, the Dalai Lama fled Tibet for India in the wake of a failed uprising by Tibetans against Chinese rule.

In 1966, a U.S. midget submarine located a missing hydrogen bomb which had fallen from an American bomber into the Mediterranean off Spain.

In 1969, Golda Meir became prime minister of Israel.

In 1970, the United States cast its first veto in the U.N. Security Council. (The U.S. killed a resolution that would have condemned Britain for failure to use force to overthrow the white-ruled government of Rhodesia.)

In 1973, U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Robert L. Stirm, a freed prisoner of the Vietnam War, was joyously greeted by his family at Travis Air Force Base in California in a scene captured in a Pulitzer Prize-winning AP photograph.

In 1988, Avianca Flight 410, a Boeing 727, crashed after takeoff into a mountain in Colombia, killing all 143 people on board.

HOROSCOPES

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, March 17, 2014:

This year you have to handle more than your share of demands, especially those that revolve around a special relationship. You often might not see eye-to-eye with this person, but you learn from each other, as you both present different perceptions that are valid. If you are single, you probably will date a lot and grow as you come to understand the various personalities you will encounter. If you are attached, the two of you benefit from a healthy dose of nostalgia and romance. You often wonder how much to give and when to say "enough." Open up this discussion with your significant other. LIBRA is as romantic as you are.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your instincts will help you understand a partner's needs. Be sensitive with this person. Understand that you are capable of expressing unusual sensitivity. You might find that you're not sure how much to give. Don't worry so much.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Speak your mind. You'll sense a change in someone's demeanor that could concern you. Your efforts count more than you realize. Approach a new situation in a different way. Follow your intuition in order to understand someone's odd reaction.

Bigar's Stars

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might not be in the right shape to do what is necessary. You could find that relating to a child tests your need to control a situation. Your creativity will charge any interaction you have now, especially if you embrace the Irish spirit.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Pressure builds, and there are many options. You have a strong intuitive sense today that you'll put to good use. A discussion with a loved one could be difficult. You might feel as if you have too much to juggle. Try to eliminate as much as you can.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make yourself available for calls and others' inquiries.

You will receive a spontaneous invitation that you would like to say yes to, but it might force you to cancel other established plans. Only you can choose what to do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could go overboard when celebrating your Irish heritage. You might feel uncomfortable when someone brings up your tendency to overindulge. A loved one might try to encourage this conversation, which he or she could feel is long overdue.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You might have made plans with someone, only to have a last-minute change occur. Be gracious, because you could have an even better time opting to be spontaneous. If you are unattached, the potential for meeting someone is high. Remain open.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) If you want to let go of a tradition or decide not to join in with the shamrocks and the green-themed parties, make it OK. It is quite possible that you need a break from rituals, so take it. By next year, you might be more up for participating.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You'll want to network rather than be stuck in a meeting. You will feel 100 percent Irish today. Nothing makes you as happy as being the party animal you naturally are. Try to get started early on in your Irish transformation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You naturally take the lead, whether you're at work or out socializing. Take charge — be it at the office, at home or at a St. Paddy's Day party. You might need to distance yourself from a situation that is evolving into a power play.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your mind wanders today to distant places or people far away. You might need to carefully rethink a decision involving a personal matter. How much are you really willing to reveal? Recognize a limitation instead of avoiding it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) One-on-one relating could take a new twist, as long as you remain open-minded. Perhaps a discussion about long-term goals with a close friend needs to happen. You also might find that you are changing your values and the kind of people you are with.

Pals Gals Services, Inc. has been owned and operated by Patti Kauffman and Kellie Kennedy since 1986. They are a multifaceted business offering a wide variety of services, which include interior and exterior painting, faux painting, wallpaper removal and installation, tile and grout cleaning, tile and grout removal and installation, and grout staining. They also install wood floors and can refinished your old wood floors, to make them look brand new. They can help you with color choices and give advice on what is practical or not! They can help resolve your "honey-do" list such as minor plumbing, electrical, drywall, cabinets, counter tops for your home or office.

They pride themselves on quality "womanship", dependability and trust. They know how difficult it is to find someone you trust and actually "show up" on time. They are a referral based business relying on previous clients to "spread" the word.

They are two very talented ladies that take extreme pride in their work and take each job personally. They know how important making choices about your home or office can be and are more than willing to help with each decision.
