Bill could raise state speed limit to 75 mph

BRENDAN FARRINGTON
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — “Seventy-nine. In the rain. With no headlights on.”

With those words, Florida Highway Patrol Trooper John Schultz sped onto Interstate 10 and flipped on his red, white and blue flashing lights and pulled over a black Nissan Maxima. He told the driver she was getting a ticket for exceeding the 70 mph speed limit.

“She said, ‘I had the cruise control set at 79.’ Yeah, it’s working,” Schultz said as he wrote the ticket. “She said ‘I just assumed I could go 10 over.’ So if we change the limit to 75, she’d be going 85.”

Highway safety advocates say that if the Florida Legislature passes a bill that would allow the state to raise the speed limit to 75 mph there could be more crashes, injuries and deaths. The bill’s supporters say people are already driving that fast and the speed limit should reflect reality — and would actually be safer.

“If you artificially force lower speed limits on roads that can accommodate faster speed limits, what you’re going to have is a greater disparity between the fastest drivers and the slowest drivers and that’s actually a much more unsafe environment than having everybody going faster together,” Sen. Jeff Clemens said.

The bill (SB 392) Clemens, D-Lake Worth, sponsored along with Republican Sen. Jeff Brandes of St. Petersburg sailed through committees with little opposition and is ready to be considered by the full Senate. A House bill (HB 761) sponsored by Republican Rep. Matt Caldwell of Lehigh Acres has also received little opposition and has one more committee stop before being ready for a House vote.

The measures would allow the Department of Transportation to raise the speed limit on interstate and limited access highways from 70 to 75 mph, from 65 to 70 mph

RV park church draws hundreds

THERESA CAMPBELL | Staff Writer
theresacampbell@dailycommercial.com

For three decades, from November to March, the Southern Palms RV Resort in Eustis has offered Sunday worship service for travelers from all over the country and Canada.

Sunday’s 10 a.m. service was the last of the 30th season, with a closing service and communion in the park’s fellowship hall, led by the Rev. Charles Granger, 82, of DeLand. An average of 150 to 200 people — just about all of the RVers — have attended on Sundays over the years.

“I love meeting such a wonderful group of people, a cross-section of Americana and the number of Canadians who come down here, too,” Granger said.

Christmas Eve is one of the biggest services, along with a memorial service on the first Sunday in February.

“We memorialize all of the people who have died the previous year who were a part of this fellowship here,” the pastor said.

“They call it a church, but there is no membership,” Granger said of the services at the resort, located near Lake County

Fairgrounds. “This is just people coming together.”

Granger recalled the park belonged to the city of Eustis before it was sold to individuals who owned parks all over the country. Granger had been serving as interim pastor at the First Baptist Church in Eustis when he was asked if he could preach at the RV park.

“My first Sunday, 82 people were sitting here,” Granger said.

“And what they told me was 80 percent of the people who were here for that service did not go to church anywhere on Sunday. I came back the next Sunday and we had 150 or so.”

During his time of ministering at Southern Palms, Granger was serving as chaplain and campus minister at Stetson University.

“It was a great time; I was working with both age groups,” he said of ministering to college kids during the week and to seniors on Sundays.

“I was 52 when I started (at Southern Palms) and I thought they were a bunch of old folks, and now I’m older than most of them over here.”

GOP has a built-in advantage in fight for House

STEPHEN OHLEMACHER

WASHINGTON — Even if Democrats recruit great candidates, raise gobs of money and run smart campaigns, they face an uphill fight to retake control of the House in this year’s congressional elections, regardless of the political climate in November.

The reason? Republican strategists spent years developing a plan to take advantage of the 2010 census, first by winning key state legislatures and then redrawing House districts to tilt the playing field in their favor.

In states like Ohio, Michigan and North Carolina, Republicans

Geography influences redistricting in Florida

MIKE SCHNEIDER

ORLANDO — Florida is a politically divided state. The Republicans have won the last four gubernatorial elections, but the Democrats have carried the state in the last two presidential elections. One U.S. senator is a Republican, while the other is a Democrat. The Democrats hold a slight edge in voter registration.

But that narrow divide becomes a chasm in Florida’s congressional delegation and in the Legislature.

on rural, four-lane divided highways and up to 65 mph on other roads. It does not automatically raise the speed limits.

"If you look back to when we rescinded the national speed limit (of 55 mph) in the mid-'90s until now, it's been 20 years of history and I think in only one year have fatalities actually increased. So the predictions of doom and gloom that we had in the mid-'90s just didn't come true," Clemens said.

But a National Highway

Traffic Safety Administration report showed that traffic fatalities on rural interstates increased by 10 percent in 1996, the year after the national speed limit was lifted and states were allowed to set their own standards.

And the fear of highway safety advocates is that another increase in Florida will result in more deaths because people will drive faster and be that much more at risk of losing control. The higher speeds also create more violent collisions, they say.

"It's clear that injuries and fatalities go up whenever someone raises the speed limit," John Ulczycki, a vice president of the National Safety Council, said in a press release opposing the bills. "Raising speed limits will increase the likelihood of a crash, and the government would in effect be telling people it's safe to drive faster."

Schultz, who patrols an area near Tallahassee, estimates most drivers on Interstate 10 are driving between 75 and 80 mph, and he thinks that will increase with a higher limit. Driving in the rain, he clocked a string of traffic going in the opposite direction.

"Seventy-eight," he said after the first radar reading. "There's 79 on the truck. That motorcycle right there is 82. Where I'm going with this is it's raining out and no one reduces their speed."

And a higher speed limit will make the situation more dangerous, he said. He also pointed out that the speed limit now is essentially 75 mph because the state only allows for warnings and not fines for the first five miles per hour above the speed limit.

"They're going to take it to the next extreme and go up even higher," Schultz said. "We want to keep people safe."

Sixteen of Florida's 26 U.S. representatives are Republicans, with one vacancy that will almost assuredly be filled by a Republican. Republicans also hold a 26-14 advantage in the Florida Senate and a 76-44 margin in the state House.

Some Democrats argue that the discrepancies are caused by "gerrymandering" — the Republican-controlled Legislature drawing districts to give the GOP an unfair advantage, which would be illegal under Florida law.

But two political science professors say the discrepancies aren't so simple or nefarious — they have used the Sunshine State to popularize their argument that large concentrations of Democrats living in cities have given Republicans a redistricting advantage not just in Florida but nationwide.

Jowei Chen of the University of Michigan and Jonathan Rodden of Stanford University say no amount of reforms is going to change an inherent bias based on where people live.

"Human geography plays a far greater role in generating electoral bias in the United States than commonly thought," they wrote in an influential 2013 paper.

Reformers in Florida have tried to stamp out gerrymandering. They successfully convinced voters in 2010 to approve two amendments to the Florida Constitution that would reduce the opportunities for lawmakers to make legislative and congressional districts that benefit one party over the other. The amendments require districts to be compact and contiguous whenever possible and to follow existing city and county boundaries.

Chen and Rodden argue that Democrats tend to live in densely populated cities while Republicans are more evenly scattered throughout suburban and rural areas. They also argue that Democratic precincts tend to be next to other highly Democratic precincts, more so than Republican precincts, which tend to be located in politically-mixed neighborhoods.

As a result, Democrats tend to be tightly packed into fewer districts than Republicans. Republican-dominated districts tend to be more diverse than Democratic precincts since pro-Republican rural areas often include Democrats in small cities to reach the population threshold needed to create a district.

In Florida, this translates into highly-Democratic districts along Florida's southeastern coast in and around Fort Lauderdale, Miami and West Palm Beach. Meanwhile Democratic precincts in interior cities like Ocala, and college towns like Gainesville and Tallahassee, are swallowed up by more rural, Republican districts, essentially drowning out Democratic votes.

were able to shape congressional maps to pack as many Democratic voters as possible into the fewest House districts. The process, called gerrymandering, left fertile ground elsewhere in each state to spread Republican voters among more districts, increasing the GOP's chances of winning more seats.

Geography helped, too, in some states. Democratic voters are more likely to live in densely populated urban areas, making it easier to pack them into fewer districts.

The first payoff came in 2012, when Republicans kept control of the House despite Democratic support that swept President Barack Obama to a second term. The next payoff is likely to come this fall.

Gerrymandering has a long history in the United States, pursued enthusiastically by both Democrats and Republicans. But the GOP's success at it this decade has been historic: In 2012, Republicans achieved a 33-seat majority in the House, even though GOP candidates as a group got 1.4 million fewer votes than their Democratic opponents.

Gerrymandering has a long history in the United States, pursued enthusiastically by both Democrats and Republicans. But the GOP's success at it this decade has been historic.

It was only the second time since World War II that the party receiving the most votes failed to win a majority of House seats, according to statistics compiled by the House Clerk. Democrats gained eight seats but were still a minority.

"The fact that Republicans controlled redistricting (after 2010) meant that they were able to build up a wall, stopping a lot of the tide from running out," said Justin Levitt, a law professor and redistricting expert at Loyola Law School in Los Angeles. "They were able to shore up a lot of the districts that had been won by, in many cases, tea party freshmen or other Republican freshmen."

The Republicans' advantage will fade as the decade wears on and the population changes. In the meantime, Democrats control the White House and the Senate, while Republicans control the House, giving the GOP powerful leverage to block Obama's second-term agenda.

In those early years, he arranged for some Stetson students to preach at the RV park.

"Every one of them would come to my office on Monday morning saying, 'Let me go again!' They loved coming over here," Granger said. He remained at the private college for 21 years before retiring in 1996 at age 65.

The Florida native recalled living three blocks from a Jacksonville church during his youth as the oldest of five children, yet his family did not attend church.

"We had never been in anybody's church," he said. "No one ever invited me to church because of my language. I used to cuss as good as any sailor at Jacksonville Naval Air Station," he said. "I could out-cuss them."

The turning point in

THERESA CAMPBELL / DAILY COMMERCIAL

Joyce Granger sings during worship service at Southern Palms RV Resort in Eustis. Sunday marked the resort's last church service of the 30th season. The resort will resume its weekly worship service on the first Sunday in November.

Granger's life was his junior year of high school.

"God spoke to me in a Jewish grocery store on a Saturday afternoon," said Granger, who was sacking potatoes when he heard an audible voice saying, "You go to church tomorrow." I looked around the store because I thought there was a ventriloquist practicing a voice. I looked around the store and there wasn't a soul in sight near where I was. I was in the produce section all by myself."

He put the message out of his mind.

"I went out and raised hell, caroused with the guys, just like I did every Saturday night with a bunch of high school boys," he said. "The next morning I was wide awake by 8 o'clock. It was just gnawing at me that I had to go to church, and I literally sneaked out of the house and went up to the little Baptist church three blocks away. When I walked in the church, people said, 'What is he doing here?'"

Granger was baptized that same school year, in December of 1946. "Eventually, all four of my siblings and my mother and father came into the church," he said.

He was working in a shop repairing telephones when he said the Lord spoke to him a second time.

"I got stopped in my tracks when I heard, 'I want you to go preach.' And I thought I didn't want to be a part of it," he said.

Now the Baptist minister is glad he listened to the Lord.

"And that is what I encourage people to do — listen to the spirit that is speaking to you, not what somebody else is telling you," Granger said.

The pastor has gone through hip and knee replacements and a battle with lymphoma cancer, but strives to continue inspiring people with his tell-it-like-it-is sermons.

"Pastor Granger is just wonderful. Thirty years he has been with us," said Judy Kryder of Michigan, who sings in the choir and cherishes the friendship she has forged with others at Southern Palms, the park that has been her winter home since 1998.

Florida's glorious weather is what brings her back each year, she said, and she and hundreds of others hope to reunite with their pastor in November for the park's 2014-15 season.

Lake County sets first Tourism Expo

Staff Report

Lake County recently unveiled its new slogan, Real Florida. Real Close, and to showcase the area as a tourism destination, the Lake County Economic Development & Tourism Department is hosting its first Tourism Expo in June.

The event — from 2-7 p.m. on June 11 at Lake-Sumter State College at 9501 U.S. Highway 441 in Leesburg — is open to the public, Elisha Pappacoda, the county's public information officer, said in a press release. It will feature businesses and agencies that support local tourism initiatives, like chambers of commerce, hoteliers, dining establishments and event planners.

"Lake County boasts unparalleled natural resources, state-of-the-art sports facilities and quaint downtowns — all within a short driving distance of Central Florida's major attractions and beaches on both the Atlantic and Gulf coasts," said Robert Chandler, director of Lake County's Economic Development & Tourism Department.

"For this expo, we are seeking to educate participants about the unique support the county offers local businesses, as well as foster networking relationships between our various tourism-related industries."

Chandler, along with Brandy Hastings of VISIT FLORIDA, will be the Adoption carnival planned for pets

Staff Report

Lake County Animal Services and Hurricane Dockside Grill have teamed up with shelter animals' best interests at heart to host the WOOF pet adoption carnival from 11 a.m.-3 p.m., April 12, at the restaurant, 3351 W. Burleigh Blvd. in Tavares.

Animal Services will have pets available for on-the-spot adoptions and, as an extra incentive, Hurricane Dockside is offering $25 gift certificates to people who take home a pet from the carnival.

"We are thankful for the support of community partners and friends like Hurricane Dockside Grill," Brian Sheahan, director of Lake County's Department of Community Safety & Compliance, said in a press release. "Together, we hope to accomplish one of Animal Services' top priorities — to get shelter pets adopted into loving forever homes."

The outdoor, family-friendly event will be held on Hurricane's patio and will feature live music, and a balloon animal artist and face painter for children.

"Hurricane Dockside is the largest of the pet-friendly restaurants in Tavares," said Derrick Haggerty, general manager of Hurricane Dockside Grill. "It just made sense for Hurricane to co-host an event like the adoption carnival. Our goal is to get as many of the animals adopted as possible."

To find out more about Lake County Animal Services, or to make a donation to the shelter, go to www.lakecountyfl.gov/adopt, visit the shelter at 28123 County Road 561, Tavares, or call 352-343-9688.

Third annual garden fair scheduled for May 3-4

Staff Report

From master gardeners to children, Lake County's 3rd Annual Central Florida Landscape & Garden Fair has something for everyone. The fair will be May 3-4 at Discovery Gardens, at the Lake County Agricultural Center, 1951 Woodlea Rd.

The fair will be open from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. on May 3 and from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. on May 4, Elisha Pappacoda, the county's public information officer, said in a press release.

Saturday's presenters include Teresa Watkins on Florida-Friendly Landscaping, Steve Earls on Square-Foot Gardening, Tom MacCubbin on Edible Landscapes, Anne Keller on Geocaching and Jonathan Squires on No-Turf Landscapes. On Sunday, presentations include Native Plants by Karina Veaudry and Hot Plants, Cool Looks by residential horticulture agent Brooke Moffis with the UF/IFAS Extension in Lake County.

The free event will provide visitors an opportunity to browse and purchase goods from dozens of exhibitors specializing in landscaping, gardening, irrigation, fertilizer, composting, hardscapes and more.

This year's fair brings back the popular Children's Passport, which children can fill in by visiting designated locations on the map.

Exhibitor booths ranging from 10 feet by 10 feet to 10 feet by 20 feet and food vendor spaces are available, as well as sponsorships ranging in cost from $250 for silver level to $750 for platinum level. Vendors and sponsors may register at www.lakecountyfl.gov/garden-fair. The deadline to register is Thursday. For information, call Tina Chavez at 352-343-9647 or email tchavez@lakecountyfl.gov.

Discovery Gardens is nestled on over 4 acres behind the Lake County Agricultural Center and features 20 themed gardens, including a string of lush courtyards and six specially designed children's gardens.

Teen charged in alleged attack on mom

Associated Press

OCALA — A 13-year-old central Florida girl will be tried as an adult for her alleged role in a conspiracy to kill her mother that authorities say she planned with her teenage boyfriend.

Yaquelin Galvez Don was indicted by a grand jury Friday. Typically grand juries indict defendants on first-degree murder charges, but state law required it in this case because the defendant is younger than 15.

During her first court appearance Saturday, the Ocala Star-Banner (<http://tinyurl.com/mqqam8>) reports a judge ordered the girl to be held without bond. The judge said the girl, who wore shackles and a red jumpsuit, faces life in prison if convicted.

"When someone is at that age, you have to evaluate the case differently," said the girl's attorney, Tania Alavi, who expressed disappointment in the decision.

Sheriff's detectives say Don lured her mother to the garage on March 9 and that her boyfriend, 15-year-old Pedro Solis, slit the woman's throat. According to an arrest report, Solis then went inside the home and held a knife to the throat of the girl's father. But ultimately, he was not injured and convinced Solis to drive the injured woman to a hospital, authorities said.

On the way to the hospital, Luz Galvez told detectives she promised Pedro she wouldn't sue him and that he could be with her daughter. She underwent surgery and was able to speak with detectives with the help of a physical therapist.

Authorities say Solis told them he and Don had discussed killing her parents so they could be together.

Detective said the girl admitted discussing the plan for about a week and giving her boyfriend the knife.

Solis was indicted on March 18 on the same charges and was also denied bond.

students, are walking three miles.

Parks said each month sees more than 100 participants on average, a number that she said sometimes dwindles slightly as the walking distance increases.

"(Family Walk Night) gives us a reason to exercise together. It provides us with an incentive because, truthfully, sometimes we need to be forced into it," said parent Matthew Goselin, who came after work to meet his wife, Nicole Goselin, and their children Evan, Aiden and Emma.

"When we can, we come together as a family," Nicole Goselin said.

Melanie Ressler, a mother of three students, called the program a "great initiative" to help kids be active.

"It gets them out of the house and keeps them from being in front of the television or playing video games all afternoon," she said.

Katie Ciccotelli, also there with her two girls and with Ressler's family, has participated every month since the start of school. Ciccotelli said she also likes the venue (Waterfront Park) because of its natural beauty. After walking, the kids enjoy playing on the beach and in park areas.

The two moms also like that participating counts as school volunteer hours for parents.

"Coming keeps us in shape and then afterwards, we can spend time with our families, friends and play with each other," Sebastien Ressler, 9, said.

Joshua Phillips, there with his 6-year-old daughter Elizabeth, said he feels the program provides a great opportunity to get some exercise, spend time with family and friends and show support for the school, but most of all, he likes the challenge.

"They lay it out for you and they increase it each time we come. It gets tougher, and it's exciting to see how far we can go," Phillips said.

In March, in honor of the city of Clermont police department's newly instated waterfront/downtown Clermont task force patrol initiative, the kids, parents and teachers at Family Walk Night were greeted by Officers James Rooney, Brenda Teets and Chief Charles Broadway. They congratulated the walkers for their efforts and rewarded the students with wrist bands.

Gun madness in Georgia

Fifteen months ago, as the nation recoiled in horror from the massacre of 20 children and six adults by a mentally ill man armed with three semiautomatic weapons, there were firm proclamations that this time would be different. The violence at that Newtown, Conn., elementary school, it was said, would finally lead the nation to come together and embrace some reasonable gun control laws.

Well, that didn't last long. If anything, the national gun frenzy, fueled by the irresponsible lobbyists at the National Rifle Association, has intensified. Though some states have adopted laws tightening access to guns since Newtown, others have actually loosened their gun control regulations.

The latest state to move in the wrong direction is Georgia, where the Legislature last week approved the most extreme — indeed bizarre — set of gun laws in the nation. The bill is awaiting the governor's signature.

Among the law's absurdities: People with gun permits would be allowed to carry their weapons in unsecured areas of airports. It would allow loaded guns in bars (South Carolina recently approved that as well), unless the owner of the bar specifically objects. In some cases, guns could be brought into churches. The law would offer an "absolute defense" if a gun was used in the face of a violent attack, though it doesn't appear to define exactly what constitutes a violent act. Georgia is already a "stand your ground" state. So envision this scenario: A gun-toting Georgian tries to enter a bar that bans guns and is confronted by a bouncer. Who, incidentally, may also be armed under the new law. You can imagine how that might play out.

This page has been firm in its opposition to the NRA's abject disdain of the public good in pursuing its warped view of the 2nd Amendment's right to bear arms and its bullying approach to the political process. But the blame for this national insanity should not be placed entirely on the NRA. Politicians respond to the group's pressure out of fear, knowing that their jobs often depend on low-turnout, one-party primaries in which fringe passions are amplified.

At the same time, public opinion has taken a puzzling, and depressing, turn. According to Gallup, in the weeks after the Newtown massacre, support for stricter gun control rose to 58 percent. By last October, it had ebbed to 49 percent.

To twist a cliché, with that attitude we — and Georgia — are getting the gun laws we deserve. But the next time an avoidable killing occurs in Georgia, an awful lot of people are going to have gunpowder residue mixed in with the blood on their hands.

EDITORIALS

Editorials are the consensus opinion of the editorial board, not any individual. They are written by the editorial staff but are not signed. Local editorials are published Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

COLUMNS

Columns are the opinion of the writer whose byline and picture appears with them. They do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the newspaper, and are chosen to represent a diversity of views.

If you would like to submit a guest column on a local, state or national issue, email your submission to letters@dailycommercial.com, or mail it to Voices, P.O. Box 490007, Leesburg, FL 34749-0007.

Guest columns should be limited to 550 words in length. The writer also must submit a recent photo to be published with the column, as well as a brief biographical sketch.

HAVE YOUR SAY

The Daily Commercial invites you to write letters to the editor. Letters should be no longer than 350 words. They must be original, signed with the full name of the writer, and include the writer's address and telephone number for verification. We reserve the right to edit for length. Letters also will be edited for grammar, clarity, taste and libel. We accept no more than two letters per month from the same writer. No open letters, form letters or copies of letters to third parties will be published. We do not publish unsigned letters. Submissions are not returned. We retain the right to archive and republish any material submitted for publication.

You can submit your letters by:
Email (preferred) to: letters@dailycommercial.com

OTHEr VOICES

Let's get real and help Syrians under siege

When Bashar Assad's forces gassed the Damascus suburb of Moadamiyeh in August, the fumes penetrated Qusai Zakaria's apartment within minutes. A female neighbor knocked on his door with two unconscious children, but he couldn't breathe or talk.

The 29-year-old struggled to the street, where women and children were running about wildly and dropping dead; he saw a young teenager with pale blue eyes on the ground "staring at nothing." Then his heart stopped, and his body was thrown on a pile of corpses with white foam dripping from their mouths.

Miraculously, Zakaria revived (about 1,300 other civilians died) and he became a voice for civilian survivors. Recently, he escaped Syria and I spoke with him in Washington. He bears witness to a shameful global failure to confront what U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon calls "the biggest humanitarian and peace and security crisis facing the world."

As Zakaria makes clear, the regime was starving residents of Moadamiyeh for a year before the gas attack — and continues to besiege survivors, along with more than 220,000 civilians in other areas held by rebels. This in direct defiance of a U.N. Security Council resolution last month.

When the Syrian uprising began, civilians in Moadamiyeh demonstrated peacefully for an end to a corrupt Assad family dictatorship that had lasted more than four decades. A middle-class suburb of four-story apartment houses, adjacent to open farmland, the suburb sat between key regime military bases, and the government forces began arresting, torturing, and raping residents.

"They would beat young men and throw them in garbage cans, and tell them to stay there, or they would go to houses and beat people," recounts Zakaria, a former hotel worker. "It was too much humiliation to handle." In mid-2012, regime tanks rolled into Moadamiyeh, killing about 500 civilians and arresting 600 to 700, including some women and kids.

Trudy Rubin

It was only after the regime brutalized civilians that residents of Moadamiyeh decided they must defend their community. "Ordinary people sold their jewelry and the rich donated, and we bought weapons from smugglers and corrupt officers, mostly AK-47s. We recruited young men who had done military service," Zakaria said. Most of his family fled, but he joined the local relief committee that distributed food and medicine to the needy.

In November 2012, the regime laid siege to the suburb and its remaining 13,000 people (including 3,000 women and children), cut off electricity, and barred any food from entering or people from leaving. "On a quiet day, we got shelled with 60-70 mortars," recounts Zakaria, while helicopters shot missiles into apartment buildings and jet fighters dropped bombs, smashing schools, hospitals, and mosques.

Zakaria's relief council scoured abandoned apartments for bags of flour or pasta to distribute to residents. By mid-2013, starvation set in. "By then we had only grape leaves, olives, and herbs from the ground, adding salt and pepper to make a sort of soup," he said. "Malnutrition started. We were telling the world, but all we got was speeches, which we couldn't eat."

After the gas attack, on Aug.

21, 2013, residents hoped they would be rescued. "We knew any kind of strike would shake the regime."

When President Barack Obama opted instead for the chemical-weapons accord "we were disappointed and angry," says Zakaria. "We felt like he was telling Assad to do more, to use new means of death." In other words, the accord brokered by Washington and Moscow to destroy Syria's chemical arsenal gave Assad a green light to kill by other means.

And that's what he did, again starving Moadamiyeh after the Geneva talks ended. Zakaria, who spoke English and had met Western journalists, went on hunger strike for 33 days. He sent desperate messages about Moadamiyeh's plight to the West.

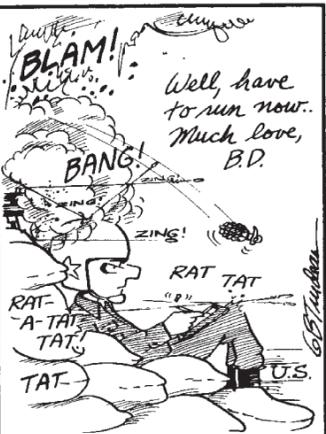

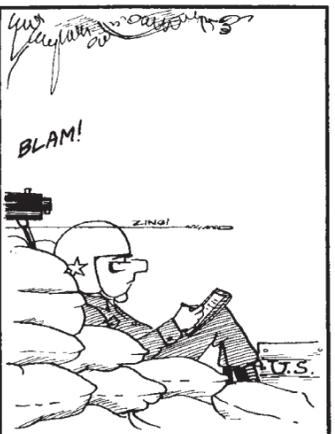

During talks in Geneva in January and February, the regime let some food in, letting thousands of residents return. But as soon as the talks ended, Assad stopped the humanitarian aid convoys.

"I know the United States is one of the main donors," Zakaria told me, "but the aid is going to organizations that work under the regime, which gives him (Assad) more cards to force civilians or rebels to surrender. They should find a way to get the aid into besieged towns."

Here's my suggestion: Instead of sending video cameras to civilian rebels to film the carnage, or ambulances to take victims to gutted hospitals (the latest idea), the United States should get real. Send vetted rebel groups the heavy weapons they need to shoot down planes that bomb civilians, and to ensure that aid reaches the needy. Doing less makes us complicit in Assad's war crimes.

Connecticut players celebrate after beating Michigan State 60-54 in a regional final at the NCAA college basketball tournament on Sunday in New York.

Lakehawks come up short in loss to CCF

Staff report

Down by eight runs when they came to bat in the bottom of the eighth inning, Lake-Summer State College made a game of it with a six-run outburst against the College of Central Florida on Tuesday. But the rally fell short and the Lakehawks dropped below the .500 mark (15-16) for the first time this season as the Patriots managed to hold on for a 9-7 victory.

Six LSSC hurlers were pounded for 10 hits with starter Shane Crouse taking the loss after giving up three runs in his single inning of work. That said, the Lakehawks managed 11 hits of their own but, with the single exception of the eighth-inning explosion, were unable

Kurt Busch bests Johnson at Martinsville

MARTINSVILLE, Va. — Kurt Busch passed Martinsville master Jimmie Johnson for the lead with 10 laps to go Sunday and held off the eight-time winner to win at Martinsville Speedway for the first time since October 2002.

Johnson, with eight wins in 25 career starts on the 0.526-mile oval, led 11 times for 296 laps. He seemed on his way to another victory when he took the lead from Busch with 17 laps remaining. But Busch stayed close, ducked underneath Johnson seven laps

UConn upsets Michigan State 60-54, back to Final Four

RACHEL COHEN

NEW YORK — Shabazz Napier scored 17 of his 25 points in the second half, and UConn beat Michigan State 60-54 to return to the Final Four a year after the Huskies were barred from the NCAA tournament.

Napier, the East Regional's most outstanding player, hit three huge free throws with 37.6 seconds left at Madison Square Garden to carry UConn to the Final Four just as Kemba Walker did in Napier's freshman year.

The Huskies (30-8) rallied from a nine-point second-half deficit to become the first No. 7 seed to reach the Final Four since the tournament expanded to 64 teams in 1985.

Connecticut head coach Kevin Ollie cuts the netting on the rim after his team defeated Michigan State.

Fourth-seeded Michigan State's seniors become the first four-year players recruited by Tom Izzo to fail to reach the Final Four. Gary Harris led the Spartans (29-9) with 22 points.

The undersized Huskies matched Michigan State's physical play box-out for box-out, holding the Spartans to just six offensive rebounds and six points in the paint. UConn dared Michigan State to shoot 3-pointers, and the Spartans nearly made enough, going 11 for 29 from behind the arc.

Trailing 51-49 with more than two minutes left, Michigan State had a chance to tie or take the lead. But Adreian Payne fumbled the ball away, and Napier drilled a jumper on the other end.

After Payne hit a pair of free throws to pull the Spartans back within two, Keith Appling was called for a foul on Napier's 3-point attempt. The senior extended the lead to 56-51, and after Travis Trice missed a 3, Michigan State couldn't get to UConn to foul. Phillip Nolan slipped free for a dunk that clinched the victory and had thousands of Huskies fans in the Garden leaping up and down.

UConn won its third national title in 2011, but the Huskies were

Bozzelli wins at Harbor Hills

Making history isn't supposed to be easy.

Dominic Bozzelli's drive to establish himself as one of the best golfers in National Golf Association history was about as difficult as it gets.

Bozzelli birdied his final three holes on Sunday to finish with a four-day total of 269, 19-under-par, to win the Lake County Classic at Harbor Hills Country Club by two shots over Jack Newman. With the win, he is only the second golfer in NGA history to win three straight tournaments. Zach Johnson, an 11-time winner on the PGA Tour and the 2007 Masters champion, was the first to do so, having won three straight in 2001.

Bozzelli had to battle through the pack for the win under sunny skies over the nearly 7,000-yard par 72 layout. Unable to finish his third score consistently. By the time winning pitcher Mike Cetta left the mound, CCF had built up a 4-1 lead and the game seemed well in hand. Cetta had surrendered just one run on four hits for CCF in his six-inning stint, managing to keep Lakehawks hitters off balance. It was the Patriots relievers who would manage to keep the game close.

In the bottom of the eighth, the Lakehawks began a barrage of two-base hits. Tanner Elsbernd sliced a double down the right-field line. Then, with two out, Walker Sheller doubled in Elsbernd and Dan Autiello kept the rally alive with another double, this one to left, scoring Sheller. Baziell Cabrera slammed another two-bagger to right to allow Autiello to come scampering across the plate. Austin Simmons' base hit to left-center scored Cabrera before Kris Hodges drew a walk to put two men on — still with two out. Sam Thomas sent a hard ground ball to third, which was misplayed to load the bases.

Dakota Higdon, who came into the game leading all LSSC batters with a .325 average, plated both Simmons and Hodges with a line single to center. But there the rally ended when, with Elsbernd at bat for the second time in the inning, Higdon was caught stealing for the final out.

The Lakehawks return to action today as they travel to Ocala for a return engagement against the Patriots. Game time is 3 p.m.

ineligible for last year's tournament because of previous low scores on the NCAA's academic progress measure. Ryan Boatright made four steals as UConn used its quickness to force 16 turnovers. DeAndre Daniels shut down Branden Dawson, who scored 24 points in Michigan State's Sweet 16 win over top-seeded Virginia. Dawson attempted just three field goals, making one, to finish with five points.

The 6-foot-10, 245-pound Payne hit two long jumpers to put Michigan State up 32-23 less than four minutes into the second half. But Napier started driving, getting the bigger Appling in foul trouble and UConn back in the game.

After hitting four straight free throws to tie the score at 32 with 12:38 left, Napier was struck in the face by Gary Harris — the UConn guard was called for a foul on the play — and left the court with his nose gushing blood. He was back less than minute later when Daniels completed a three-point play to give the Huskies the lead for good.

Boatright hit a contested 3-pointer with the shot clock winding down to put UConn up 49-39 with less than seven minutes left. But the Spartans rallied behind their long-range shooting.

round on Saturday due to inclement weather, Bozzelli was forced to complete it on Sunday and then immediately begin his final loop. He responded to the challenge of a golfing marathon by carding a 5-under-par 67 in his third round for a two-shot lead over Newman at 15-under. He backed that up with a 4-under 68 in his fourth round to secure the win.

Bozzelli and Newman battled for the lead throughout the final round, with each player owning it on multiple occasions. Both players were tied at 17 under after exchanging birdies on the par-3 16th hole, the longest par 3 on the course at 210 yards and one that involved a carry over water to an undulating green.

On the 17th, a 400-yard par 4, Bozzelli set himself up for a makeable putt that would put him in the driver's seat heading to the final hole. The Pittsford, N.Y., golfer drained the putt and took a one-shot lead to the 18th.

Newman was able to look down the fairway and watch Bozzelli's nearly flawless play down the stretch.

On the 18th, a 579-yard finishing hole that was set up for scoring, Bozzelli worked his way down the fairway and drained an insurance birdie, forcing Newman to make an eagle to take the tournament to sudden death.

Newman put himself in position for an eagle from the fairway with his third shot, but missed left, giving Bozzelli a shared entry with Johnson in the NGA Pro Tour history books. He will have chance to win an unprecedented four straight tournaments beginning Thursday at the Ocala/Marion County NGA Pro Golf tour at Ocala National.

In his final round, Bozzelli finished with six birdies and two bogeys. The three birdies he had on his final three holes of the tournament were, ironically, the only time he put together three red numbers in succession.

For the tournament, Bozzelli carded 20 birdies, three eagles and seven bogeys. He played par-3 holes to average score of 2.79 and par 4s to 3.93. On the par 5s, however, Bozzelli averaged nearly a full stroke below par at 4.19. He had seven birdies, three eagles and five pars on the four par 5 holes on the course. He did not have bogey on a par 5.

Bozzelli earned $16,000 for the win, giving him $52,700 for the year and an exemption in the Web.com Tour Price Cutter Charity Championship in August in Springfield, Mo.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

Harrison lifts Wildcats to win over Michigan

EDDIE PELLIS
AP National Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — Aaron Harrison made a 3-pointer from NBA range with 2.3 seconds left Sunday to lift Kentucky and its freshmen to a 75-72 win over Michigan and a trip to the Final Four.

After Harrison's teammate, Julius Randle, inadvertently tipped in the tying shot on Michigan's previous possession, the eighth-seeded Wildcats got the ball to the 6-foot-6 guard, whose twin brother, Andrew, is another of the five freshmen in Kentucky's starting lineup.

Standing a good three feet behind the arc, Harrison elevated over Caris LeVert and took a bit of contact on the arm from the Michigan guard as he shot. No matter. The shot rattled in, and for the second straight game in the Midwest Regional, Harrison had the go-ahead points in a tense game for the Wildcats (28-10).

In this one, he scored all 12 of his points off four 3-pointers over the last 8:05.

"I hit a couple before that, so coach said to get the shot we were looking for," Harrison said. "They put it in my hands and I wanted to deliver for them out there."

Nik Stauskas missed a halfcourt heave at the buzzer for second-seeded Michigan (28-9), and moments later, Harrison was under a dog pile — or make that a puppy pile. This is the first all-freshman starting lineup to make the Final Four since another well-known group, the Fab Five of Michigan, did it in 1992.

"I'm gonna see everyone in Dallas this year," coach John Calipari said, with his version of a Texas twang, as he addressed the crowd before the nets came down.

The Wildcats will play Wisconsin next Saturday outside of Big D.

Stauskas finished with 24 points for the Wolverines, who finished a win shy of their second straight Final Four.

Randle had 16 points and 11 rebounds for his 24th double-double and was named the region's most outstanding player.

But he was just one of the freshmen stars for the Wildcats Sunday.

While Harrison was being completely shut down early, it was unheralded Marcus Lee keeping the Wildcats in the game.

Lee, one of the six McDonald's All-American freshmen on Calipari's roster, had scored a total of nine points since the beginning of January. But he got minutes that would have normally gone to the injured Willie Cauley-Stein, and finished with 10 points and eight rebounds. Eight of those points came on put-back dunks that were part of Kentucky's 18 offensive rebounds. Harrison's first 3 gave Kentucky a 58-55 lead and was part of an 11-0 run that put the Wolverines in catch-up mode, behind 62-55 with 6:30 left.

They fought back, and during a nine-possession stretch of sublime basketball that covered more than four minutes, each team scored every time they got the ball.

The first stop in the sequence gave the Wolverines the ball with about a minute left, trailing 72-70.

Stauskas missed a layup and a 3-pointer and Derrick Walton then missed an open 3. But the fourth attempt went in with 31 seconds left and got credited to Jordan Morgan on a scramble under the basket, though it was Randle's hand that tipped the ball in.

Calipari called a timeout. Michigan burned a foul. And the endgame started with 10 seconds left.

Cops pepper spray fans after game

Associated Press

TUCSON, Ariz. — Tucson police said Saturday night that they shot pepper spray at several hundred fans who took to the streets and threw beer bottles and firecrackers at officers after the University of Arizona basketball team's overtime loss in the NCAA tournament.

Fifteen people were arrested for offenses such as resisting arrest, disorderly conduct and unlawful assembly, Tucson police Sgt. Pete Dugan said. Of those, 14 were released, and one was sent to Pima County jail. He said those who advanced on officers were arrested.

No officers or fans were injured.

"The majority of the crowd did not respond to the dispersal order and began throwing beer bottles, beer cans and firecrackers at the officers," Dugan said. "Several of the firecrackers rolled underneath a patrol vehicle that was deployed with the Mobile Field Force Units."

Rays-Jays opener features pair of Cy Young winners

FRED GOODALL
AP Sports Writer

ST. PETERSBURG — The Tampa Bay Rays are launching another season with expectations of playing into October. The Toronto Blue Jays have to escape the AL East cellar before reviving talk of playoff aspirations.

The division rivals open the season Monday at Tropicana Field, with David Price and R.A. Dickey taking the mound in a matchup of 2012 Cy Young Award winners.

The Rays are coming off a year in which they won 92 games and made the playoffs for the fourth time in six seasons.

The Blue Jays would just as soon forget 2013, when they battled injuries and finished in last place after being a popular pre-season pick to contend for a championship.

Toronto failed to bolster its starting pitching this winter and returns with essentially the same lineup as a year ago, yet Dickey thinks the results will be better.

Only the Yankees, Cardinals and Phillies have earned as many postseason berths as the Rays over the past six seasons. And after hiking one of baseball's lowest payrolls above $80 million to keep most of last year's roster intact, Tampa Bay anticipates another strong run.

Price was 10-8 with a 3.33 ERA in 2013 after winning AL Cy Young honors two years ago, but he went 9-4 with a 2.53 ERA in 18 starts.

The 28-year-old lefty was the subject of trade speculation much of the winter before agreeing to a $14 million, one-year contract to continue anchoring one of the AL's strongest rotations.

The Rays, often overshadowed in the AL East by the big-spending Yankees and Red Sox, don't shy away from taking about how good they believe they can be.

"To be honest with you, I thought last year we had more expectations going into the season than we do this year — only because the Red Sox won the World Series and the Yankees have made some pretty big acquisitions. So, that kind of puts us in the shadows again," third baseman Evan Longoria said.

"There are a lot of expectations from within this team," he added. "But from an overall perspective, we'll probably be picked down the ladder a little bit more this year ... which is perfectly fine with me."

Raptors escape with victory over Magic

ORLANDO — DeMar DeRozan had 28 points, Jonas Valanciunas added 20 points and nine rebounds, and the Toronto Raptors escaped with a 98-93 victory over the Orlando Magic on Sunday night.

Kyle Lowry added 16 points.

Trailing 96-93 with 8.9 seconds to play, the Magic had the ball and an opportunity to tie the game. But coming out of a timeout they failed to inbound the ball, turning it over on a 5-second violation. DeRozan was fouled and hit a pair of free throws to provide the final margin.

The win was the Raptors' third in a row and seventh straight over the Magic. Toronto swept the season series 3-0.

Nik Vucevic led the Magic with 22 points and 10 rebounds. Jameer Nelson and Victor Oladipo each added 16 points.

After struggling offensively for most of the second half, the Magic cut a 21-point deficit all the way down to 76-73 on a layup by Tobias Harris with 9:53 to play in the game.

Orlando had a chance to take the lead, but came up empty on a pair of 3-pointers.

Djokovic beats Nadal at Key Biscayne

KEY BISCAIYNE — Novak Djokovic won his fourth Key Biscayne title, while Rafael Nadal failed again trying for his first.

Djokovic dominated from the start and closed out the victory by winning a remarkable exchange to beat Nadal 6-3, 6-3 Sunday in the final of the Sony Open.

Nadal fell to 0-4 in finals at Key Biscayne, one of just three ATP Masters 1000 events he has yet to win. As for Djokovic, only six-time champion Andre Agassi has won the men's event more.

Djokovic erased the only break point he faced, committed just 15 unforced errors and won a scrambling, 30-shot rally on the final point. He completed a Nadal stood six feet behind the baseline to return and often remained on the defensive from there, with his shots lacking their normal depth. Djokovic was quick to step into the court and even won a point playing serve and volley.

Djokovic also had the superior serve, this allowed him to chase down shots Nadal usually counts as winners.

Nadal's lone break-point chance came in the opening game, and he failed to convert. Djokovic broke in the sixth game, hitting three consecutive winners before Nadal put a backhand in the net.

Djokovic broke again in the opening game of the second set by winning a 22-shot exchange, and he held serve the rest of the way.

Steven Bowditch holds on to win Texas Open

Steven Bowditch, of Australia, poses with his trophy after winning the Texas Open golf tournament on Sunday in San Antonio.

SAN ANTONIO — Steven Bowditch held on to win the Texas Open in windy conditions Sunday for his first PGA Tour victory and a spot in the Masters.

The 30-year-old Australian bogeyed the par-5 18th for a 4-over 76 — the highest closing score by a winner since Vijay Singh finished with a 4-over 76 in the 2004 PGA Championship — for a one-stroke victory.

“I’m over the moon,” Bowditch said. “I really can’t believe it.”

Bowditch finished at 8-under 280 at TPC San Antonio and earned $1,116,000.

Will MacKenzie and Daniel Summerhays

MacKenzie shot 70, and Summerhays had a 71.

Chesson Hadley and Ryan Palmer missed chances to get into the Masters through the top 50 in the world ranking. Hadley, the Puerto Rico Open winner, needed at least a sixth-place finish, but closed with an 80 to tie for 56th at 5 over. Palmer needed a top-three finish and had an 82 to also tie for 56th.

Bowditch entered the week 339th in the world and had only two top-10 finishes in eight years on the tour in a career marked by bouts of depression. He won once on the Australasian circuit and twice on the Web. Com Tour.

Bowditch played the front nine in 3-over 39, making a double bogey on the par-4 fourth. He countered a bogey on the par-3 13th with a birdie on the par-5 14th and made three pars before missing a 3-foot par putt and settling for a bogey on 18.

On the par-3 16th, he got up-and-down after missing the green. He pushed his drive on the par-4 17th, hit his approach on the green and two-putted, then pulled his tee shot left on 18, recovered with a shot to the fairway and reached the green in three.

“I just drew back on some experience,” Bowditch said.

MacKenzie made a 13-foot birdie putt on the 17th to pull within a stroke of Bowditch, but the Australian tapped in from 2 feet for his birdie at No. 14 to push the advantage back to two.

Matt Kuchar and Andrew Loupe shot 75s to tie for fourth at 6-under.

Alzheimer's Family Caregiver Support Walk is Saturday

The Alzheimer's Family Support Walk was created to raise needed funds for caregivers, numbering around 20,000 in Lake, Sumter and Marion counties. The group offers respite care, emotional support and education for them to care for their loved ones afflicted with this debilitating disease.

Make a difference in the life of a caregiver by joining the walk with a friend or in a team from 9 a.m. to noon, Saturday at The Villages Polo Field, 703 Buena Vista Blvd.

Cost for individuals in a team of six or more is $15 each, and $20 for individual walkers.

Study: Married folks less likely to have heart problems

MARILYNN MARCHIONE
AP Chief Medical Writer

Love can sometimes break a heart but marriage seems to do it a lot of good. A study of more than 3.5 million Americans finds that married people are less likely than singles, divorced or widowed folks to suffer any type of heart or blood vessel problem.

This was true at any age, for women as well as for men, and regardless of other heart disease risk factors they had such as high cholesterol or diabetes, researchers found.

"It might be that if someone is married, they have a spouse who encourages them to take better care of themselves."

Dr. Jeffrey Berger,
Preventive cardiologist at NYU Langone Medical Center

"It might be that if someone is married, they have a spouse who encourages them to take better care of themselves," said Dr. Jeffrey Berger, a preventive cardiologist at NYU Langone Medical Center.

This is the largest look at marriage and heart health, said Dr. Carlos Alviari, a cardiology fellow who led the study with Berger. Previous studies mostly compared married to single people and lacked information on divorced and widowed ones. Or they just looked at heart attacks, whereas this one included a full range from clogged arteries and abdominal aneurysms to stroke risks and circulation problems in the legs.

Researchers used health questionnaires that people filled out when they sought various types of tests in community settings around the country from an Ohio company, Life Line Screening Inc. Some of these screening tests, for various types of cancer and other diseases or conditions, are not recommended by leading medical groups, but people can still get them and pay for them themselves.

The study authors have no financial ties to the company and are not endorsing this type of screening, Berger said. Life Line gave its data to the Society of Vascular

US autism estimate rises to 1 in 68 children

MIKE STOBBE
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The government's estimate of autism has moved up again to 1 in 68 U.S. children, a 30 percent increase in two years.

But health officials say the new number may not mean autism is more common. Much of the increase is believed to be from a cultural and medical shift, with doctors diagnosing autism more frequently, especially in children with milder problems.

"We can't dismiss the numbers. But we can't interpret it to mean more people are getting the disorder," said Marisela Huerta, a psychologist at the New York-Presbyterian Center for Autism and the Developing Brain in suburban White Plains, N.Y.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention released the latest estimate Thursday. The Atlanta-based agency said its calculation means autism affects roughly 1.2 million Americans under 21. Two years ago, the CDC put the estimate at 1 in 88 children, or about 1 million.

The cause or causes of autism are still not known. Without any blood test or other medical tests for autism, diagnosis is not an exact science. It's identified by making judgments about a child's behavior.

Thursday's report is considered the most comprehensive on the frequency of autism. Researchers gathered data in 2010 from areas in 11 states — Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, Maryland, Missouri, New Jersey, North Carolina, Utah and Wisconsin.

The report focused on 8-year-olds because most autism is diagnosed by that age. The researchers checked health and school records to see

Study finds many preteens have high cholesterol

MARILYNN MARCHIONE
AP Chief Medical Writer

There's fresh evidence that a lot of young people could be headed for heart trouble. A large study of preteens in Texas found that about one-third of them had borderline or high cholesterol when tested during routine physical exams. The results seem to support recent guidelines that call for every child to have a cholesterol test between 9 and 11 — the ages of the 13,000 youths in this study. Many doctors and adults have balked at screening all children that young, but researchers say studies like this may convince them it's worthwhile.

"A concerning number of children" are at risk of heart problems later in life, and more needs to be done to prevent this at an earlier age, said Dr. Thomas Seery of Texas Children's Hospital and Baylor College of Medicine.

He led the study, which will be presented at an American College of Cardiology conference in Washington this weekend.

Estimates are that by the fourth grade, 10 to 13 percent of U.S. children will have high cholesterol. Half of them will go on to have it as adults, raising their risk for heart attacks, strokes and other problems.

High cholesterol rarely causes symptoms in kids. Many genes and inherited conditions also cause high cholesterol but not obesity, so it can be missed especially in youths who are slim or athletic.

The new study involved children having routine physicals from January 2010 to July 2011 at the largest pediatric primary care network in the nation, more than 45 clinics in the Houston area. One-third were Hispanic, about one-third were white, and 18 percent were black. About one-third were obese.

Unhealthy total cholesterol levels were found in 34 percent. LDL or "bad cholesterol" was borderline or too high in 46 percent, and HDL or "good" cholesterol was borderline or too low in 44 percent. Just over half had normal triglycerides, another type of fat in the blood.

Boys were more likely than girls to have higher total cholesterol, LDL and triglycerides, Seery said. Hispanics were more likely to have higher cholesterol and triglycerides.

"I would hope that data like these would get the attention of general pediatricians," because many cases of disease are being missed now, said Dr. Elaine Urbina, director of preventive cardiology at Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center.

She was on the expert panel appointed by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute that wrote the screening guidelines issued in 2011 and endorsed by the American Academy of Pediatrics. They call for screening everyone

Surgery and New York University to help promote research.

The results are from people who sought screening from 2003 through 2008. Their average age was 64, nearly two-thirds were female and 80 percent were white. They gave information on smoking, diabetes, family history, obesity, exercise and other factors, and researchers had blood pressure and other health measures.

The study found:

- Married people had a 5 percent lower risk of any cardiovascular disease compared to single people. Widowed people had a 3 percent greater risk of it and divorced people, a 5 percent greater risk, compared to married folks.

- Marriage seemed to do the most good for those under age 50; they had a 12 percent lower risk of heart-related disease than single people their age.

- Smoking, a major heart risk, was highest among divorced people and lowest in widowed ones. Obesity was most common in those single and divorced. Widowed people had the highest rates of high blood pressure, diabetes and inadequate exercise.

Researchers don't know how long any study participants were married or how recently they were divorced or became widowed. But the results drive home the message that a person's heart risks can't be judged by physical measures alone — social factors and stress also matter, said Dr. Vera Bittner, a cardiologist at the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

She heads the heart disease prevention committee of the American College of Cardiology. The study results were released on Friday ahead of presentation this weekend at the group's annual meeting in Washington.

"We don't really have a clear explanation" for why marriage may be protective, Bittner said.

"You may be more willing to follow up with medical appointments," take recommended drugs, diet and exercise if you have a spouse, she said.

between age 9 to 11 and again 17 to 21.

"Very few people know their entire family history," and many forms of high cholesterol occur in people who are not obese, so screening is needed to catch more cases, she said.

High cholesterol doesn't necessarily mean the child needs medicines like statin drugs, she said. The guidelines stress diet and lifestyle changes as the first step.

"I have been to many dentists regarding my lower denture and the pain I was having. Some said I would need major surgery. Others stated that there was absolutely nothing they could do. I had no bone to work with, so no improvement could be made to my denture. When I found Dr. Vaziri, he stated there was an implant procedure that would be just right for me. I was amazed. The procedure took 30 minutes, and Dr. Vaziri and his staff made me feel like family from the very beginning. They are caring and truly have the patient's care at heart. I ate soft food that night and the next day I was back to my normal diet."

An alternative to the traditional colonoscopy

JEREMY OLSON
StarTribune

MINNEAPOLIS — A new test that requires people to send stool samples in the mail for laboratory analysis is proving nearly as reliable as a colonoscopy in identifying potentially fatal colon cancers.

The DNA screening

test, invented at the Mayo Clinic, could become an alternative to the colonoscopy — or at least an option for the millions of Americans who ignore their doctors' recommendations because they are squeamish about the rectal exam or concerned about its cost, said Dr. David Ahlquist, a Mayo gastroenterologist and co-inventor of the "ColoGuard" system.

The test was 92 percent accurate at iden-

"It's our hope that many individuals who are not being screened because of their reticence to undergo colonoscopy will choose to undergo screening with a noninvasive option like this."

Dr. David Ahlquist,
Mayo Clinic gastroenterologist

tifying patients with colon cancer and 69 percent accurate at identifying patients with the kinds of bowel lesions or polyps that indicate a high risk for cancer, according to clinical trial results published Wednesday in the New England Journal of Medicine.

"Time will tell," Ahlquist said. "It's our hope that many individuals who are not being screened because of their reticence to undergo colonoscopy will choose to undergo screening with a noninvasive option like this."

Regular screening for colon cancer is recommended at age 50 — earlier for people with family histories or greater risks — and was credited in a report Monday by the American Cancer Society for a decline over the past decade in the U.S. rate of colon cancer mortality.

But the lack of uptake is also why colon cancer remains the third-leading cause of cancer mortality, and contributes to 50,000 deaths in the nation each year.

The DNA test comes with its own "eww!" factor, in that people would need to fish out their own stool samples and package them to send in for testing. But market research by the test kit manufacturer, Exact Sciences of Madison, Wis., indicates that people aren't bothered as long as the test is effective and covered by health insurance. Surveys showed only 3 percent of people being put off by having to collect a stool sample.

"Our kit comes in its own sturdy box ... and the patient also uses it to return the sample to the lab," said Exact Sciences spokeswoman Cara Tucker. Test results would be sent to doctors in about two weeks.

The findings published Wednesday come from a company-funded clinical trial of 10,023 people who were at normal risk for colon cancer. They come about two weeks before a U.S. Food and Drug Administration committee is scheduled to decide whether the test is safe and effective for clinical use. In an unusual step, the U.S. Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services are reviewing the test before the FDA review is complete — an indication that the federal agency might expedite Medicare coverage of the test for the nation's elderly population.

Federal approval could mean the ColoGuard test would be available as early as midsummer.

The study was a head-to-head comparison with an existing test called FIT, which detects cancer by finding hidden blood in stools, and showed that the new DNA screening found more cancers and cancer risks.

Cologuard works because tumors and polyps in the colon "shed" cells that are detectable in human waste, Ahlquist explained. However, the DNA test resulted in some false positives — about one in 10 tests suggested patients had colon cancer or an imminent risk for it, when they didn't.

In clinical care, patients with positive results from Cologuard would undergo colonoscopies to confirm the results, said Dr. Thomas Imperiale, an Indiana gastroenterologist who was lead author of the study.

False positives do cause stress and anxiety, he said, but in the end they would direct patients to receive colonoscopies that they would have likely received anyway if the DNA test didn't exist.

The rate of false negatives was low, and would likely be overcome if patients repeated the test over time, he said. Whether the test would be recommended annually, or less frequently, is unclear. The cost remains unclear as well, though it would presumably be cheaper than a colonoscopy that requires a visit to a specialty clinic or hospital.

Dr. Cathleen Clouse, a

HealthEast family practice doctor in Maplewood, Minn., said she would welcome a new alternative for the many patients who are uneasy about colonoscopies or dislike the voluminous fluids they must consume in advance to clean out their bowels.

Husband's depression won't be cured by acting out online

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for seven years and have two children. My husband has what I can only describe as an Internet addiction. He's literally online from the time I go to bed until I wake up to take our kids to school. I checked and discovered many profiles he has made up on different dating sites.

When I confronted him, he told me he has no interest in having an affair. He said he has been depressed for some time, and it's his way of escaping reality. I recommended he talk to a therapist, but he keeps trying to justify his behavior by telling me I have no reason to feel hurt because it's all "make-believe."

Our relationship has taken a serious dive since I found out. I no longer trust him alone on the computer. I am also no longer attracted to him, and I no longer feel attractive. I don't know what I can do to be a supportive partner if he won't admit he has a problem. Please help me. I'm at a total loss. — SECOND TO A SCREEN NAME

DEAR SECOND: May I be frank? First on your agenda should be to take care of yourself and your own emerging depression. If that means talking to a professional, then go for it.

You have every right to be angry about what your husband has been doing. It isn't harmless, and it isn't effective therapy for his depression. Much as you might wish to, you can't fix his problem — which is trying to escape from reality. Only he can do that. Let's hope he'll find the courage to face what he's trying to escape from while your marriage is still salvageable.

DEAR ABBY: I am not suicidal, but I do think about death, in the sense of what happens when one dies. I believe in the heaven-and-hell theory. Although I'm not sure I want to go to heaven, I AM sure I don't want to go to hell.

Dear Abby

JEANNE PHILLIPS

My reason for not wanting to go to heaven is because of the relatives who have gone before me. I come from a very abusive family but, like so many, most of them have been able to do what I call the "last-minute redemption." With that in mind, I do not want to spend all of eternity with the same people I could not wait to have exit this Earth.

I am also not a big believer in this forgiveness thing — forgiving adults who do these things to children and expect them to forget about it. I sure haven't, and I never will!

Do you, or the clergy, think it's possible for God to just let some of us sleep through eternity without meeting up with family on "the other side"? — OWENSBORO, KY., READER

DEAR READER: Because I am more involved with what's going on in this life rather than the next, I took your question to Rev. Canon Mark Stanger of Grace Cathedral in San Francisco. He suggests that you stop thinking about heaven as a "place" or that you need a scorecard to get there. He also said: "A merciful God will make heaven what you need — and in your case, heaven may be liberation from these troubled people."

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

HOROSCOPES

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, March 31, 2014:

This year your libido energies peak to an unprecedented level. You seem to sleuth your way through problems and come up with remarkable solutions. Others will come to you for help more often; they admire your ingenuity. You will tend to be me-oriented this year, so try to temper any excessive egoism. If you are single, you could open up to a very intriguing person who you feel you have a lot to learn from. The two of you could become quite the dynamic duo. If you are attached, your relationship quality will depend on your ability to remain sensitive to your sweetie. A few ARIES could become even more important to you this year.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone is likely to sense your strength. As a result, this person will push you to get a reaction. You might decide to give him or her that reaction, just to catch him or her off guard. From there, you can continue with your day.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might prefer not to have to give explanations or deal with much. On some level, you could be experiencing a knee-jerk reaction regarding what is happening around you. You also might not feel a need to redefine or rethink your response.

Bigar's Stars

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You feel destined to achieve certain goals. You could be a little tired or feel pushed by someone else. You might want to put this person in his or her place. Keep your eye on the long term, and be more forthright with a loved one.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) All eyes turn to you whenever others question what to do next, as your leadership qualities are rather evident. You could be flattered that your judgment is so valued. Understand what might be needed to get past an immediate hassle.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Realize what is happening with those around you. One person seems determined to have things go his or her way. This individual could push beyond any normal level. If you see this behavior setting up, detach.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Deal with a loved one directly. You could want and need to rethink your interactions with this person, as he or she seems to have copped an attitude as of late. Your sense of direction and knowledge will cause a positive change.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You could be far grumpier than you realize. Look around and note others' reactions to you. Rather than growl and grumble, root out what is really going on with you. Only then will you be able to get more control over your feelings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Dive into work or a project. With concentration and focus, you'll accomplish much more than you previously might have thought possible. As a side benefit, you will work off some frustration. Make a call to a new friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Your playfulness and ability to honor a quick change will make all the difference in your choices. Re-evaluate what needs to happen between you and a new flirtation. As always, every bond has its limitations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll want to understand why someone is behaving a certain way before you make a judgment. This person seems to be all over the place. Get feedback from a friend, but realize that you might not feel comfortable with all of his or her opinions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Reach out to someone at a distance who might be searching for some feedback. Try to understand what is going on. Do not be adverse to picking up the phone and making some calls. You need more information.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You might be more sensitive to a loved one than you usually would deem necessary. Your ability to understand mood changes probably could be applied here. Do not personalize a comment.

Opening lead — ace of spades.
If you make a phony bid in an effort to mislead your opponents, there is always the chance you might fool your partner and cause your side irreparable damage. But on lucky days, such a deception might pay even greater dividends than expected, which is exactly what happened on this deal from the world championship match between Italy and Brazil in 1969. Pietro Forquet and Benito Garozzo were North-South for Italy when the bidding went as shown. After Forquet's one-heart opening, Garozzo naturally felt that without a diamond lead he could make at least a small slam in clubs, so he decided to bid two diamonds at his first turn in an effort to inhibit a diamond lead.

Garozzo's leap to six clubs two rounds later was made in the hope of silencing his partner, but Forquet did not recognize the two-diamond bid as merely lead-inhibiting, and he corrected six clubs to six diamonds.

This contract held no appeal for Garozzo, who ran to seven clubs, which East doubled after two passes. The double conventionally barred a spade lead and offered West the option of leading a diamond or a heart, depending on his hand and how he construed East's double.

But the Brazilian West, for reasons best known to himself, plunked down the ace of spades — though he should have known from the bidding that the ace would not survive.

As a result, Garozzo wound up making the doubled grand slam for a score of 1,630 points, instead of going down three — 500 points — which would have been his lot had West led the queen of diamonds!

Today is Monday, March 31, the 90th day of 2014. There are 275 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On March 31, 1814,

Paris was occupied by a coalition of Russian, Prussian and Austrian forces; the surrender of the French capital forced the abdication of Emperor Napoleon.

which children met the criteria for autism, even if they hadn't been formally diagnosed. Then, the researchers calculated how common autism was in each place and overall.

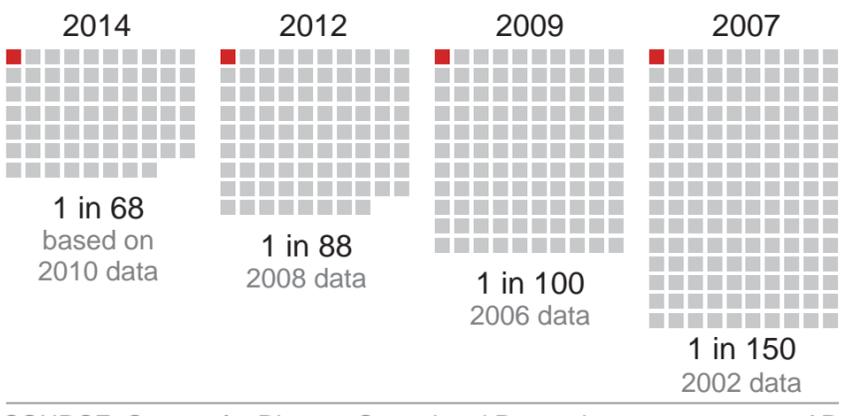

The CDC started using this method in 2007 when it came up with an estimate of 1 in 150 children. Two years later, it went to 1 in 110. In 2012, it went to 1 in 88.

Last year, the CDC released results of a less reliable calculation — from a survey of parents — which suggested as many as 1 in 50 children have autism.

Experts aren't surprised by the growing numbers, and some say all it reflects is that doctors, teachers and parents are increasingly likely to say a child with learning and behavior problems is autistic. Some CDC experts say screening and diagnosis are clearly major drivers, but that they can't rule out some actual increase as well.

"We cannot say what portion is from better diagnosis and improved understanding versus if there's a real change," said Coleen Boyle, the CDC official overseeing research into children's developmental disabilities.

For decades, autism meant kids with severe language, intellectual and social impairments and unusual, repetitious behaviors. But the definition has gradually expanded and now includes milder, related conditions.

One sign of that: In the latest study, almost half of autistic kids had average or above average IQs. That's up from a third a decade ago and can be taken as an indication that the autism label is more commonly given to higher-functioning children, CDC officials acknowledged.

Aside from that, much in the latest CDC report echoes earlier findings. Autism and related disorders continue to be diagnosed far more often in boys than girls, and in whites than blacks or Hispanics. The racial and ethnic differences probably reflects white communities' greater focus on looking for autism and white parents' access to doctors, because there's no biological reason to believe whites get autism more than other people, CDC officials said at a press briefing Thursday.

One change CDC officials had hoped to see, but didn't, was a drop in the age of diagnosis. Experts say a diagnosis can now be made at age 2 or even earlier. But the new report said the majority of children continue to be diagnosed after they turn 4.

"We know the earlier a child is identified and connected with services, the better," Boyle said.

The American Academy of Pediatrics issued a statement Thursday, saying the nation needs to step up screening for the condition and research into autism's causes.

"It's critical that we as a society do not become numb to these numbers," said Dr. Susan Hyman, head of the group's autism subcommittee.

Public Notice of Intent to Issue Air Permit
Florida Department of Environmental Protection Waste and Air Resource Programs,
Central District Office Minor Source Air Construction Permit
Project No. 0694866-001-AC
Quality Shavings of South Florida, LLC Facility
Lake County, Florida
Applicant: The applicant for this project is Quality Shavings of South Florida, LLC. The applicant's authorized representative and mailing address is:
Mr. Joseph Iadiserma, Owner
Quality Shavings of South Florida, LLC
10191-b Lantana Road
Lake Worth, Florida 33467

Facility Location: Quality Shavings of South Florida, LLC operates Quality Shavings of South Florida, LLC Facility, which is located in Lake County at 26444 County Road 33 in Groveland, Florida.

Project: This is an Air Construction Permit for the installation of an Energy Unlimited wood chip dryer, which will include a 30 MMBTU/hr. burner that will be fueled by wood waste and chips from the South Florida Shavings Company processing facility. Exhaust from the burner will be ducted to a Clean Gas Systems, Inc. cyclone dust collector device prior to exhausting to the atmosphere.

Permitting Authority: Applications for air construction permits are subject to review in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 403, Florida Statutes (F.S.) and Chapters 62-4, 62-210 and 62-212 of the Florida Administrative Code (F.A.C.). The proposed project is not exempt from air permitting requirements and an air permit is required to perform the proposed work. The Permitting Authority responsible for making a permit determination for this project is the Department of Environmental Protection's Waste & Air Resource Programs in the Central District Office. The Permitting Authority's physical address is: 3319 Maguire Blvd., Ste. 232, Orlando, FL 32803-3767. The Permitting Authority's mailing address is: 3319 Maguire Blvd., Ste. 232, Orlando, FL 32803-3767; the e-mail address is DEP_CD@dep.state.fl.us. The Permitting Authority's telephone number is 407/897-4100.

Project File: A complete project file is available for public inspection during the normal business hours of 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday (except legal holidays), at the physical address indicated above for the Permitting Authority. The complete project file includes the Draft Permit, the Technical Evaluation and Preliminary Determination, the application and information submitted by the applicant (exclusive of confidential records under Section 403.111, F.S.). Interested persons may contact the Permitting Authority's project engineer for additional information at the address and phone number listed above. In addition, electronic copies of these documents are available on the following web site: <http://www.dep.state.fl.us/air/emission/apds/default.asp>.

Notice of Intent to Issue Air Permit: The Permitting Authority gives notice of its intent to issue an air construction permit to the applicant for the project described above. The applicant has provided reasonable assurance that operation of proposed equipment will not adversely impact air quality and that the project will comply with all appropriate provisions of Chapters 62-4, 62-204, 62-210, 62-212, 62-296 and 62-297, F.A.C. The Permitting Authority will issue a Final Permit in accordance with the conditions of the proposed Draft Permit unless a timely petition for an administrative hearing is filed under Sections 120.569 and 120.57, F.S., or unless public comment received in accordance with this notice results in a different decision or a significant change of terms or conditions.

003 Legal Notices

Comments: The Permitting Authority will accept written comments concerning the proposed Draft Permit for a period of 14 days from the date of publication of this Public Notice. Written comments must be received by the Permitting Authority by close of business (5:00 p.m.) on or before the end of the 14-day period. If written comments received result in a significant change to the Draft Permit, the Permitting Authority shall revise the Draft Permit and require, if applicable, another Public Notice. All comments filed will be made available for public inspection.
Petitions: A person whose substantial interests are affected by the proposed permitting decision may petition for an administrative hearing in accordance with Sections 120.569 and 120.57, F.S. Petitions filed by any persons other than those entitled to written notice under Section 120.60(3), F.S., must be filed within 14 days of publication of the Public Notice or receipt of a written notice, whichever occurs first. Under Section 120.60(3), F.S., however, any person who asked the Permitting Authority for notice of agency action may file a petition within 14 days of receipt of that notice, regardless of the date of publication. A petitioner shall mail a copy of the petition to the applicant at the address indicated above, at the time of filing. A petition for administrative hearing must contain the information set forth below and must be filed (received) with the Agency Clerk in the Office of General Counsel, 3900 Commonwealth Boulevard, MS 35, Tallahassee, Florida 32399-3000, Agency.Clerk@dep.state.fl.us, before the deadline. The failure of any person to file a petition within the appropriate time period shall constitute a waiver of that person's right to request an administrative determination (hearing) under Sections 120.569 and 120.57, F.S., or to intervene in this proceeding and participate as a party to it. Any subsequent intervention (in a proceeding initiated by another party) will be only at the approval of the presiding officer upon the filing of a motion in compliance with Rule 28-106.205, F.A.C. A petition that disputes the material facts on which the Permitting Authority's action is based must contain the following information:

(a) The name and address of each agency affected and each agency's file or identification number, if known; (b) The name, address, any email address, telephone number and any facsimile number of the petitioner; the name, address, any email address, telephone number, and any facsimile number of the petitioner's representative, if any, which shall be the address for service purposes during the course of the proceeding; and an explanation of how the petitioner's substantial interests will be affected by the agency determination; (c) A statement of when and how each petitioner received notice of the agency action or proposed decision; (d) A statement of all disputed issues of material fact. If there are none, the petition must so indicate; (e) A concise statement of the ultimate facts alleged, including the specific facts the petitioner contends warrant reversal or modification of the agency's proposed action; (f) A statement of the specific rules or statutes the petitioner contends require reversal or modification of the agency's proposed action including an explanation of how the alleged facts relate to the specific rules or statutes; and, (g) A statement of the relief sought by the petitioner, stating precisely the action the petitioner wishes the agency to take with respect to the agency's proposed action. A petition that does not dispute the material facts upon which the Permitting Authority's action is based shall state that no such facts are in dispute and otherwise shall contain the same information as set forth above, as required by Rule 28-106.301, F.A.C.

Because the administrative hearing process is designed to formulate final agency action, the filing of a petition means that the Permitting Authority's final action may be different from the position taken by it in this written notice of intent to issue Air Permit. Persons whose substantial interests will be affected by any such final decision of the Permitting Authority on the application have the right to petition to become a party to the proceeding, in accordance with the requirements set forth above.

Mediation: Mediation is not available for this proceeding.
