Veteran Irving Locker shares his experiences during World War II, D-Day

LIVI STANFORD | Staff Writer

Arriving on Utah Beach on D-Day, Staff Sgt. Irving Locker saw thousands of soldiers dead in the water.

The image remains sharp almost 70 years later in The Villages resident's mind, as if it happened yesterday.

Locker, who was 19 at the time, rose to the rank of staff sergeant in 18 months and made a pledge to his men that day.

"I pledged to keep them alive," he said, explaining that even though he was scared, he did not let fear overcome him. "I encouraged them."

As the 65 soldiers in the 116th AAA Gun Battalion were being shot at in the water, Locker kept telling them they could make it.

"We got to do whatever we can to help each other and protect each other," he said. "We have to act as a team."

The fighting was constant, Locker said.

"We were shooting at planes, tanks and artillery all the time," he said.

Wearing a heavy helmet, a large backpack, carrying a shovel, a rifle, four hand grenades and ammunition across his waist, he jumped in the water to confront the Germans, Locker said.

Locker was in charge of four 90 mm guns, with 14 men manning each. The Army's radar "could pick up the height of the plane, the speed and where we would have to shoot in front of the plane for the shrapnel to hit the planes."

D-Day ultimately turned the tide of the war, but the Allies paid a heavy price. More than 160,000 troops landed along a 50-mile stretch of heavily-fortified French coastline. Locker was able to keep the majority of his men alive, fulfilling the promise he made.

Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges wrote in a unit citation the 116th AAA Gun Battalion "engaged in more than 100 separate fights … and destroyed 74 enemy aircraft to far outscore other units in the U.S. First Army."

TaxWatch urges plucking of Lake, Sumter 'turkeys'

JIM TURNER

TALLAHASSEE – A new science lab at Lake-Sumter State College's South Lake Campus to jump start a magnet school there and widening County Road 466A in Fruitland Park were among $121 million in budget projects that Florida TaxWatch says Gov. Rick Scott needs to strike with his line-item veto.

In releasing its annual list of budget "turkeys" Friday, TaxWatch officials urged Scott to veto 107 projects from a 431-page, $77.1 billion fiscal plan that lawmakers approved early this month.

Scott has until June 4 to act on the budget, which will take effect with the start of the new fiscal year July 1.

Kurt Wenner, TaxWatch's vice president for tax research, said the projects on the list aren't being questioned on their merits, but rather for failing to go through the normal legislative budget process.

"There were an awful lot of member projects in the budget this year,"

VA to allow more private health care

MATTHEW DALY
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — More veterans are being allowed to obtain health care at private hospitals and clinics in an effort to improve their treatment following allegations of falsified records and delays in treatment.

In a statement issued Saturday, Veterans Affairs Secretary Eric Shinseki also said VA facilities are enhancing capacity of their clinics so veterans can get care sooner. In cases where officials cannot expand capacity at VA centers, the Department of Veterans Affairs is "increasing the care we acquire in the community through non-VA care," Shinseki said.

Lawmakers from both parties have pressed for this policy change as the VA confronts allegations about treatment delays and falsified records at VA centers nationwide.

The department's inspector general says 26 VA facilities are under investigation, including the Phoenix VA hospital, where a former clinic director says as many as 40 veterans may have died will awaiting treatment.

East Ridge High graduate uses failure for motivation

ROXANNE BROWN | Staff Writer

Allie Addison's brothers never graduated high school. In fact, her incarcerated siblings never made it past the eighth grade, she said.

But Addison will graduate at East Ridge High School on Friday, and she credits her success to moving in with her father, stepmother and two stepsisters two years ago.

"Although for a long time, I thought I was worthless and thought everything that happened to my family was somehow my fault. I had to learn that I could only be responsible for my own actions," Addison said.

Before the move from Rhode Island, Addison said she thought "C" and "D" grades were acceptable and normal. Her father and stepmother thought differently.

"It took a while to realize that they care about me," Addison said. "I saw what sisters are supposed to act like and I know it took a while to get past being mad at everyone, but I just knew I had to do it, even if it wasn't perfect."

Addison started going to a counselor and is getting treated for her anxiety and depression. Her father, Ted, said it has been his goal to see Allie in a cap and gown.

D-DAY

D-Day was we were finally going to get Germany," said Donald Goldstein, a World War II scholar and author of "At Dawn We Slept: the Untold Story of Pearl Harbor," a runner up for a Pulitzer Prize. "It was the beginning of the crusade to free Europe. It became a religious thing — freeing the world from Hitler."

Locker participated in five major battles, including The Battle of the Bulge and D-Day.

As the nation stops to honor those servicemen and women who died in the line of duty Monday, Locker said he is blessed to be alive.

"You think about what you went through and how lucky you are," said the 90-year-old. "I thank God every single day I am alive."

Locker will get the chance to see the beaches of Normandy for the first time since storming them on D-Day.

D-Day Revisited, a British veterans organization, has invited Locker to take part in two ceremonies commemorating World War II. One, on Monday, will take place at Slapton Sands in Devon to remember the loss of more than 700 American soldiers and sailors during a training exercise weeks before D-Day known as "Operation Tiger."

Locker is the only U.S. veteran taking part in this ceremony, as he was training at Slapton Sands at the time.

Then, on June 6, he will attend the 70th anniversary commemoration, where he is expected to be alongside dignitaries such as President Barack Obama and other world leaders.

A CALL TO DUTY

Drafted right out of high school after his two brothers, Locker said he did not know about the Holocaust. His commanders knew of his Jewish heritage and knew he would fight to the death, so they put him out front to shell the German tanks.

Paul Sicari, who served under Locker, wrote in a citation how his staff sergeant inspired him.

"He was our man of action and accepted responsibility like a kid going after candy," he wrote. "He had the ability to move small mountains and was a giant of a little man."

During the Battle of the Bulge, the Germans tried to reverse the course of the war by splitting the Allied armies in the Ardennes Forest. Locker said the forest was so cold he had to take the clothes off of his own soldiers who had died to keep others warm.

THE AFTERMATH OF WAR

Even though Locker fought five major battles and saw scores of soldiers perish, he said nothing prepared him for the scene at Gardelegen, a death camp in Germany.

"This struck me as the worst experience of my life and I got violently sick to my stomach and just sat down and cried," he said. "To this day, I still recall the horrible stench of the burned and decaying bodies which were piled up on the grounds."

THE WORLD TODAY

With Russia in the news as of late for annexing Crimea and continued tensions between pro-Russians and Ukrainians in Eastern Ukraine, Locker said he feels a bit of déjà vu.

"It scares me," he said of the actions of Russian President Vladimir Putin. "I wouldn't be human if I was not scared or worried about it."

Goldstein said there are parallels between Russia's annexation of Crimea and Hitler's takeover of Austria, when no one responded.

"They want to stop him, but they can't because he controls the oil," he said.

Wenner said. "I think everybody knew there were going to be, there was more money. The Legislature did do a pretty good job of getting a lot of them in the budget early."

Wenner said the budget would never get done if there wasn't backroom dealing. But the group is opposed to new projects being introduced during those talks without being properly vetted.

The business-backed organization uses two main criteria to select turkeys: first, whether the project was inserted into the budget during the final negotiations between the House and the Senate; and second, whether the spending was requested by a state agency.

TaxWatch opposes $3 million earmarked for new science lab at the LSSC's South Lake Campus because it said it was not on the Florida College Three-Year Public Education Priority List.

Local officials want the lab to serve 100 high-performing students in the ninth grade, who would take two years of advanced placement classes, followed by dual-enrollment at LSSC and two years at the University of Central Florida. Lake County School Board Vice Chairman Tod Howard has called the lab "part of the future economic development for south Lake County."

Sasheika Tomlinson, director of marking and college relations for the LSSC, previously said the $3 million would assist the college with "funding the first part of two phases of building the science lab." Planning was supposed to occur the first year and construction the second year, Tomlinson said earlier.

TaxWatch also opposes eight road projects, including $1 million earmarked for widening CR 466A in Fruitland Park, because it said some are local roads that should not be funded with state money and some were added in conference by lawmakers.

Local officials want to four-lane CR 466A from U.S. Highway 27/441 in Fruitland Park, west to the Sumter County line, because the road is congested now and will only get worse when the Villages of Fruitland Park is built along the road. While progress has been made on securing funding for the $25 million project, there currently still is not enough to complete a large portion of it, county officials have said.

"The revenue stream is not there from impact fees to get enough money to build this road locally," Jim Stivender, Lake's public works director, previously said. "We are going to have to rely on some state funding."

TaxWatch also opposes $547,500 earmarked for Baker Act facilities in Lake and Sumter counties because it said this was added in conference and "circumvents the DCF (state Department of Children and Families) process to determine which counties are in need of additional Baker Act funding."

"Through our inpatient units, we operate the only Baker Act receiving facilities in Lake and Sumter County," Jon Cherry, chief executive officer of Lifestream, previously said. "We are the only resource for this and it is critically important for the health of the individual involved and the safety of the community."

"We all struggled to get her through this and she's doing it," he said. "This is what I envisioned — to see her graduating."

Allie's most vivid memories of her former life go back to when she was about 7. She said her mother was always addicted to drugs and alcohol, and her two older brothers — both now jailed — would stop at nothing to get the money they needed for their drugs.

Allie said she recalls how scared she felt sitting in an empty house with her mom, because everything — computers, televisions, her iPod and even the family's food — had been stolen by her brothers to sell for drug money.

"My mom was always skeptical or scared about what would be gone next and she took it out on me," Allie said. "She would misplace things like toothpaste or money when she was drunk and think I took them."

From that early age, Allie realized alcohol and drugs were a path leading to misery.

"I had visited sober houses with my mom, I saw my brothers get arrested, we would come across cops and they'd automatically recognize the name 'Addison,'" she said. "My brothers were always in gang fights and one almost got shot.

"One of my brothers has hepatitis C from shooting up and I would think, 'All that, for feeling good for a couple of hours?' Um, no. No thank you."

As for her mom back in Rhode Island, Allie said she's started to mend that relationship and has talked to her several times. Allie plans to move back to Rhode Island — but not into her mother's house — to attend a university there, majoring in psychology. She's also thinking about joining the U.S. Air Force.

"I would eventually love to help other people," Allie said. "I feel like I've experienced enough where I could get others through things, too.

"I want to help teens and kids who are living through difficult times, who feel like the walls are caving in on them and tell them that there's a whole different life out there waiting for them."

Laura Rembert, one of Allie's teachers at ERHS, said she looks at the teen and sees a strong inner will.

"Alexandria is a very determined student," Rembert said. "She was determined to get through her FCAT and AACT exams. She always said she was not going to let her past define her future and she has remained true to that statement. She's following her dreams."

Allie has put thoughts of worthlessness way behind her.

"I wanted to be an active member of society," she said. "I wanted to achieve something, so I just used all this failure around me to motivate myself to be successful.

"I never used it as an excuse and I never will. I'm just focused on my future."

Officials also are investigating claims that VA employees have falsified appointment records to cover up delays in care. An initial review of 17 people who died while awaiting appointments in Phoenix found that none of their deaths appeared to have been caused by delays in treatment.

The allegations have raised fresh concerns about the administration's management of a department that has been struggling to keep up with the influx of veterans returning home from the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, and Vietnam veterans needing more care as they age.

The directive announced Saturday should make it easier for veterans to get medical care at non-VA facilities, according to an agency spokeswoman.

The VA spent about $4.8 billion last year on medical care at non-VA hospitals and clinics, spokeswoman Victoria Dillon said. That amounts to about 10 percent of health care costs for the Veterans Health Administration, the agency's health care arm.

It was not clear how much the new initiative would cost, Dillon said.

Rep. Jeff Miller, R-Fla, chairman of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee, welcomed Shinseki's announcement, but questioned why it took so long. Reports about the veterans at the Phoenix hospital surfaced more than a month ago.

FWC offers safe boating tips for weekend

Associated Press

MIAMI — Florida wildlife officials are urging boaters to keep safe while out on the water this Memorial Day weekend.

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission says its officers have responded to 236 accidents so far this year, including 11 fatalities.

There were 736 accidents reported last year, and out of 62 boating fatalities, 38 were due to drowning, officials said. The highest number of boating accidents were reported in May, and the deadliest month was December with 12 fatalities.

According to the commission, drugs or alcohol played a role in 15 percent of the boating fatalities last year. The total number of fatalities includes eight people whose bodies were never found.

Miami-Dade County led the state with 104 boating accidents and four fatalities. Ten other counties with high numbers of boating accidents were: Monroe, Broward, Palm Beach, Collier, Lee, Pinellas, Hillsborough, Brevard, Duval and Okaloosa.

Florida leads the nation in the number of vessels registered in the state — 896,632 registered boats last year, according to the commission.

The commission offers these basic tips for boating safety: Plan ahead and pay attention. Boat operators should keep an eye on their surroundings, including weather, waves, wildlife and objects like waterway markers, docks and other boats.

The FWC reports that boat operators failing to pay attention remains the leading cause for boating accidents. FWC officers patrol waterways to check that boaters have the appropriate gear and are operating safely.

As many spent early Saturday morning traveling or visiting Memorial Day weekend destinations, 12-year-old Carson Paulsen was at the Hillcrest Memorial Gardens cemetery in Leesburg carrying on a solemn duty.

Along with more than two dozen of his fellow members and officials of Leesburg's Boy Scout Troop 299 and Cub Pack 299, Carson walked up to a military veteran's grave, bent down, planted an American flag and stepped back with a smile.

The flag would be one of nearly 1,500 the group planted at the County Road 25A cemetery during the scouts' annual Memorial Day ceremony to ready the grounds for visitors.

More than two dozen members and officials of Leesburg's Boy Scout Troop 299 and Cub Pack 299 participated in a pre-Memorial Day ceremony.

The Boys & Girls Club South Lake Unit has been changing locations since its inception as an after-school program in September 2010.

The organization relies on business and church partnerships from the community for space at little or no cost because it needs donations and outside grants to remain open. The club has moved five times and, each time, the spaces have been cramped.

In the next week or two, the club will be moving from its current home at First Baptist Church of Clermont on Fifth and Montrose streets, to the city's newly acquired Community Center at 3700 S. Highway 27. Space will not be an issue because 8,200 square feet have been set aside for the club.

court judge will determine what, if any, punishment the defendant will receive.

Baruch was sentenced to five years of probation in October of 2012 after he pleaded no contest to lewd and lascivious conduct against a minor on accusations of inappropriately touching a girl younger than 16 years old.

Lake Judge Lawrence Semento sentenced Baruch to register as a sex offender but signed an order to allow the defendant to live at his parent's Clermont home on Willow Crest Drive. Under state law, sex offenders are not allowed to live within 1,000 feet of a school, child-care facility, park or playground and Clermont's ordinances are even stricter — stretching the restriction to 2,500 feet.

Last year, during a random Clermont police check on registered sex offenders, it was discovered the Willow Crest Drive home was only 821 feet from Our House Child Development Center and 698 feet from a community park and pool.

Baruch was then arrested for violating the state law and released, but remained registered at the same address — telling officials he had the judge's permission. This sparked controversy among area residents.

The media reported various reasons why Semento had allowed Baruch to live at the home, including it was best that the defendant stay with his parents and Baruch's attorney had misled the judge on how far the home was from where children congregated.

"I did so because I was under the impression the location of the residence did not violate state law," said Semento during the hearing last year on whether to allow Baruch to remain at the address.

According to Lake County court records, the State Attorney's Office decided not to prosecute the case, but it is not clear if the judge ordered Baruch to move. However, Baruch was a resident of Orange County when he was arrested on the curfew violation last week, according to a jail booking sheet.

CLUB

First Baptist Church at 8 a.m.

"Any help anyone wants to give would be greatly appreciated," Unit Director Tracy Williams said, adding that people with trucks will be useful since many pieces of furniture, pool tables, etc. need to be transported.

This latest partnership has been something Boys & Girls Club board members have been trying to accomplish for some time, board member Michelle Michnoff said.

"This is an awesome move to be able to partner with the city and use the facility that the residents expressed strongly they wanted used for the community," she said. "And what better way to show community use than to have kids from all over the city come to the center where they will have a safe place to learn and play.

"We couldn't have asked for a better partnership. This is something we've been trying to achieve for years. Darren (Clermont City Manager Darren Gray) has a vision that includes children very prominently because they are our future, and we feel the same. Our vision is for the children to be great."

According to Clermont officials, the Boys & Girls Club will be responsible for running the city's summer programs.

Discussions are ongoing to continue the partnership in the fall so that the city of Clermont and the Boys & Girls Club could offer recreational programs for children needing after-school care, a city spokesperson said.

BRETT LE BLANC / DAILY COMMERCIAL

The Celebration of Praise church located off of U.S. Highway 27 in Clermont, was recently purchased by the city of Clermont after many citizens requested more recreational activities.

Freddy Williams, chief executive officer of the Boys & Girls Club of Lake and Sumter Counties, said the center will be ideal for children during the summer because it has a full-size gymnasium, classrooms, three swimming pools, a playground, an inside theater and 40-plus outside acres of land and fields.

Williams said they plan to offer a variety of programs, including computer literacy, creative arts classes and recreational activities at the center.

"By partnering with these well-respected organizations, we are able to bring quality, cost-effective programs to Clermont families," Gray said.

Any family wanting to sign up for the summer session, which will run from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, can call the club at 352-394-9840. Rates are $25 per child per week, which includes breakfast, lunch and a snack. There is also a one-time $25 membership fee.

"We were capped last summer at 100 at First United for space reasons, but this summer we won't have that kind of cap at all," Michnoff said. "We will be able to serve so many more children and that is so exciting."

Additionally, former NBA Pat Burke will run two, one-week basketball camps over the summer at the center.

Burke, a Lake County resident who played for the Orlando Magic and Phoenix Suns, will hold his all-day youth basketball camps from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on June 23-27 and July 14-18.

Sheriff: Calif. gunman killed 3 people at home

RAQUEL MARIA DILLON
Associated Press

GOLETA, Calif. — A California gunman who went on a rampage near a Santa Barbara university stabbed three people to death at his apartment before shooting to death three more in a terrorizing crime spree through a neighborhood, sheriff's officials said Saturday.

The three people in the apartment were among the six left dead Friday night during the shootings near the campus of the University of California, Santa Barbara. Elliot Rodger, 22, the suspected gunman, apparently killed himself, authorities said.

At a news conference, Sheriff Bill Brown called it a "chaotic, rapidly unfolding convoluted incident" that involved multiple crime scenes.

Police provided new details about the scope of the killings as they described how he went from one location to another and opened fire on random people and exchanged gunfire with law enforcement before he crashed his BMW. Brown said the suspect had more than 400 rounds of unspent ammunition in his car.

Brown identified Rodger as a student at Santa Barbara City College.

Rodger fired for 10 minutes as he made his way through the beach community of Isla Vista where students were walking, biking and skateboarding in a deadly rampage that chillingly mirrored threats made on a YouTube video posted that same night, authorities said.

PETER VANDENBELT / AP

Police investigate the scene of a drive-by shooting that left seven people dead, including the attacker, and others wounded on Friday, in Isla Vista, Calif.

Seven others remained hospitalized with serious injuries.

Authorities confirmed Rodger was the shooter and said they had seized a semi-automatic handgun. It wasn't immediately clear whether he was killed by gunfire in two shootouts with deputies or if he committed suicide.

Investigators were analyzing a YouTube video in which a young man who identifies himself as Elliot Rodger sits in a car and looks at the camera, laughing often, and says he is going to take his revenge against humanity.

"It's obviously the work of a madman," Bill Brown said.

Earlier Saturday, Alan Shifman — a lawyer who represents Peter Rodger, one of the assistant directors on "The Hunger Games" — issued a statement saying his client believes his son, Elliot Rodger, was the shooter. It was unclear how the son would have obtained a gun. The family is staunchly against guns, he added.

Boy Scout president says he supports gay adults' inclusion

NOMAAN MERCHANT
Associated Press

DALLAS — Robert Gates, the new president of the Boy Scouts of America, said Friday that he would have moved last year to allow openly gay adults in the organization but said he opposes any further attempts to address the policy now.

Gates took over an organization this week that serves about 2.5 million youth but faces continued membership declines and fights over its inclusion of openly gay boys, but not adults. Gates, the former secretary of defense who oversaw the end of the military's "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" policy, addressed those issues Friday, a day after Scouting's national leadership elected him president.

"I was prepared to go further than the decision that was made," Gates told The Associated Press in an interview in advance of a speech before the group's national leaders at its annual meeting in Nashville, Tennessee. "I would have supported having gay Scoutmasters, but at the same time, I fully accept the decision that was democratically arrived at by 1,500 volunteers from across the entire country."

The BSA's National Council voted at last year's annual meeting to accept openly gay youth, after a monthslong process with protests on both sides. Gates planned to tell Scouting's leaders Friday that a continued fight over the issue threatens BSA's future.

"Given the strong feelings — the passion — involved on both sides of this matter, I believe strongly that to re-open the membership issue or try to take last year's decision to the next step would irreparably fracture and perhaps even provoke a formal, permanent split in this movement — with the high likelihood neither side would subsequently survive on its own," Gates said in prepared remarks.

Gates, 70, who also served as director of the CIA, is a visible advocate for Scouting as it faces a storm of bad publicity.

The Scouts reached out to Gates as he was retiring from the Defense Department and asked him to join their leadership, said Wayne Perry, the departing BSA president. AT&T CEO Randall Stephenson, who was expected to become president this year, agreed to wait another two years to allow Gates to serve now, Perry said.

cemetery for the Memorial Day weekend.

Attired in olive green and brown uniforms, members sifted through the 25-acre cemetery's manicured green lawn and around giant statues of praying hands, religious figures, and huge Oak trees covered in Spanish moss in search of the 24-inch by 12-inch bronze memorials of the veterans.

Most of the grave sites honored Vietnam, World War I and World War II veterans.

"It's fun and we are doing a good thing," said 11-year-old scout Ian Owens.

The morning started off with a brief ceremony that included a visit by Mount Dora's VFW Post 8087 Color Guard, followed by its 21-gun salute and a brief explanation of the salute to the scouts.

Scouts also read aloud what is commonly referred to as Franklin D. Roosevelt's "D-Day Prayer," given by the former president on the morning of the Normandy invasion, a crucial turning point in World War II.

"Almighty God: Our sons, pride of our Nation, this day have set upon a mighty endeavor, a struggle to preserve our Republic, our religion, and our civilization, and to set free a suffering humanity," reads part of the prayer.

Cub Pack leader Chris Fisher said the ceremony gives members a sense of patriotism and pride.

"This teaches them with a visual reminder about the veterans who paved the way for our freedom," Fisher said.

The planting of the flags is just one of several community projects scouts take on nationwide for Memorial Day with local efforts including food drives and helping the elderly.

In his first year with the Cub Pack, 7-year-old Humberto Rodriguez could be seen carrying flags in both hands as he searched for the graves of veterans.

Rodriguez's mother, Marisela Padilla, said since joining the Cub Scouts, her son has been a lot more helpful.

"This is a good organization for him," Padilla said.

Cemetery officials said Memorial Day holiday weekend is usually crowded with visitors. Relatives of the veterans buried at the cemetery praised the scouts. Sharlyn Wilson came there late Saturday morning to place flowers on the grave of her husband Walter C. Wilson, a World War II veteran.

"It's such a wonderful thing they are doing," said Wilson, looking at the flag beside her husband's grave.

Thailand's junta orders activists to surrender

TODD PITMAN

BANGKOK — In a chilling move apparently aimed at neutralizing critics and potential opposition, Thailand's new army junta on Saturday ordered dozens of outspoken activists, academics and journalists to surrender themselves to military authorities.

The junta, which is already holding most of the government it ousted in a coup Thursday in secret locations against their will, said it would keep former Prime Minister Yingluck Shinawatra and others in custody for up to a week to give them "time to think" and keep the country calm.

Two days after the army seized power in the nation's first coup in eight years, it also faced scattered protests that came amid growing concern over the junta's intentions. Also Saturday, the military dissolved the Senate — the last functioning democratic institution left, and absorbed its legislative powers.

"Military rule has thrown Thailand's rights situation into a free fall," said Brad Adams, Asia director at Human Rights Watch. "The army is using draconian martial law powers to detain politicians, activists and journalists, to censor media, and to ban all public gatherings. This rolling crackdown needs to come to an end immediately."

More than 150 people, mostly top politicians, have been detained incommunicado so far and banned from leaving the country, according to rights groups. Deputy army spokesman Col. Weerachon Sukondhapatipak said they were all being well-treated and the military's aim was to achieve a political compromise.

Weerachon said all those held have had their cellphones confiscated because "we don't want them communicating with other people. We want them to be themselves and think on their own," he said, adding that they need to "calm down and have time to think," Weerachon said.

"We don't intend to limit their freedom — it's to relieve the pressure," he said.

Militants attack parliament building in Somalia; members blame military

ABDI GULED

MOGADISHU, Somalia — Militants in Mogadishu on Saturday carried out a multi-pronged, complex attack against the country's parliament building involving a car bomb, suicide bomber and gunmen on foot, police said.

Frightened members of parliament blamed the military for failing to prevent the attack, but other politicians praised the army for limiting the attack's damages.

At least seven people were killed, including six attackers and one soldier who tried to stopped a suicide bomber from entering the building, said police Capt. Mohamed Hussein.

Other officials later indicated that more people died in the assault but gave no figures.

Many members of parliament were inside the building as the attack unfolded, and they made a mad scramble to flee. Two were wounded by gunfire, said legislator Mohamed Ali.

Inside the parliament building, where soldiers fired from to ward off attackers, were the remnants of pure chaos: Metal chairs lay overturned with bullet casings on top of some. Bullet marks scarred the walls.

Somali soldiers gather around the dead body of an Al Shabab fighter who was killed during Saturday's attack on Somalia's parliament .

Parliamentarian Dahir Amin Jesow, who was inside parliament debating Somalia's development bank when the attack began, said he and his fellow legislators evacuated out of the back of the building. No gunman entered parliament, he said.

The army failed to protect the legislators, one member of parliament said.

"The enemy can now access everywhere," said visibly frightened legislator Mohamed Nor.

Al-Shabab, an al-Qaida-linked group, has carried out several such complex attacks in Mogadishu, including on the city's main court complex and attempts against the presidential palace. The group was booted out of the capital in 2011 but still controls wide areas of southern Somalia.

The prime minister defended the security forces' response, calling it swift. The top U.S. representative to Somalia, James P. McAnulty, extended condolences to the families of those killed. McAnulty also commended the "quick response of security forces."

Prime Minister Abdiweli Sheikh Ahmed said in a statement that the terrorists again showed they are "against all Somalis by killing our innocent brothers and sisters," but he did not give a death toll and said the facts were still being established.

Later, at a news conference, Ahmed said he had instructed the army to launch an immediate offensive against al-Shabab.

"Somalia's army: You must move now to crush the enemy who merely cares about killing our people," said an angered prime minister. "You must move now!"

In the aftermath of the attack, bodies could be seen lying near an entrance gate to the building.

Gunfire and two blasts rang out near the building long after the attack began and after police had confirmed six attackers' deaths. Security forces shot and killed four men, Hussein said.

Redskins to senators: Team's name 'respectful'

Half of the U.S. Senate says it's time to change the name of the Washington Redskins.

But half the Senate doesn't think so and wants change made

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Redskins President Bruce Allen said in a letter to Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid on Saturday that the football team's nickname is "respectful" toward Native Americans.

On Thursday, half the U.S. Senate urged NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell to change the Washington club's name, saying it is a racist slur and it is time to replace it.

The franchise responded by releasing Allen's letter.

"Our use of 'Redskins' as the name of our football team for more than 80 years has always been respectful of and shown reverence toward the proud legacy and traditions of Native Americans," he wrote.

The letter references research that "the term Redskins originated as a Native American expression of solidarity." It notes that the team's logo was designed by Native American leaders and cites surveys that Native Americans and Americans as a whole support the name.

Redskins owner Daniel Snyder has refused to change the name, citing tradition, but there has been growing pressure including statements in recent months from President Barack Obama,

Colin Montgomerie leads Senior PGA by a shot

Associated Press

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. — Colin Montgomerie said he looked forward to the fun when he joined the Champions Tour.

He was clearly enjoying himself Saturday in the Senior PGA Championship when he made a winding, 30-foot birdie putt on the final hole for a 3-under 68 and a one-stroke lead.

"Bloody great," he said about the birdie putt that took the sting out of a bogey at the 17th hole.

"It was going a bit quick. Thank God the hole got in the way. It was downhill, down grain, but it held its line and went in. It was a joyous occasion in the Montgomerie camp."

Trying to win his first senior major after failing to capture one of golf's four biggest events on the regular tours, the 51-year-old Scot took a 7-under 206 total into the final round at Harbor Shores.

Bernhard Langer, the 56-year-old German star who has won twice this season on the Champions Tour, was a stroke back after a 69 that included a double bogey from a buried lie in a huge sand bunker on the seventh. He will play alongside Montgomerie for the fourth consecutive round Sunday.

Rays win in 15 after Red Sox blow 5-0 lead

ST. PETERSBURG — Andrew Miller threw a force attempt at second base into center field, allowing pinch-runner Cole Figueroa to score in the bottom of the 15th inning as the Tampa Bay Rays handed the Boston Red Sox their ninth consecutive loss, 6-5 Saturday.

Boston scored five runs in the first inning but still lost its ninth in a row for the first time since Aug. 25-Sept. 4, 2001.

James Loney opened the 15th with a single off Miller (1-4). Figueroa ran for Loney and went to second on Brandon Guyer's bunt single. He scored when Miller threw the ball into center field while attempting to get a double play on Desmond Jennings' grounder.

Cesar Ramos (2-3) allowed an infield single and two walks in three scoreless innings for the win. Five Tampa Bay pitchers limited Boston to six hits, with just two coming after the first inning.

A.J. Pierzynski homered for the Red Sox in a game that took 5 hours, 16 minutes.

INDIANAPOLIS — Juan Pablo Montoya stormed onto the national scene in 1999 as a brash and fearless rookie who didn't hesitate to go wheel-to-wheel with the biggest names.

The 23-year-old Montoya backed down from no one, didn't hesitate to drive his car in the most precarious positions and charged hard in his pursuit of winning races. He collected seven wins and won the CART Series championship, then picked up three more series victories the next year.

RAYS

Matt Joyce had an RBI single and Guyer drove in two with a double off Jake Peavy in the fifth as the Rays rallied from a five-run deficit to tie it at 5. Logan Forsythe had a second-inning sacrifice fly and an RBI single during the fourth.

The struggling Boston offense broke out against David Price. After Mike Carp was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded and Jonny Gomes had a sacrifice fly, Pierzynski connected on a three-run homer.

Boston, which scored just 16 runs in its previous eight games, had just two baserunners — Gomes' walk in the third and an eighth-inning single by Xander Bogaerts — over the next seven innings against Price, who allowed five runs and five hits in eight innings.

Bogaerts left the game due to right hamstring cramps and was replaced defensively at shortstop by Jonathan Herrera in the 11th.

Peavy gave up five runs and eight hits over six innings.

The Red Sox used a makeshift lineup with David Ortiz, Mike Napoli and Shane Victorino all out with injuries.

Saturday was a planned off day for Ortiz, who has calf soreness. Napoli could sit out a few games due to lingering affects of flu-like symptoms along with hamstring, calf and finger issues. Victorino was placed on the 15-day disabled list after aggravating a right hamstring injury.

SENIOR

third at 5 under. Dawson had a 64, the best round of the tournament. Bryant and Murota shot 70.

Montgomerie, who said he has nothing to prove to anybody or himself in golf, is trying to win an official event for the first time on U.S. soil. He does have victories in the country in the 1998 Andersen Consulting World Championship and 2000 Skins Game.

"So I came here to enjoy one's self," he said. "I would like to win wherever that might be. It would be great to try and win in America. I always felt to win in America is a very difficult thing to do, on an away patch, on golf courses that are usually suited to the American style of play."

Langer, a two-time Masters champion, has 20 victories on the 50-and-over — including majors at the 2010 U.S. Senior Open and Senior British Open. He's looking forward to playing with Montgomerie again, and has a plan.

"I still need to play very aggressive, smart aggressive as I call it, and take my chances because Colin is playing very solid golf and there's a whole bunch of other guys," he said. "If any of them post a 6 or 7 under in front of us, then we have our work cut out to just stay in touch."

Tom Watson, among the six-way tie for first through 36 holes, had a 72 to drop four shots behind.

Dawson made the biggest move of the day with nine birdies. He said the bounces went his way on the tricky Jack Nicklaus-designed greens.

"You're going to get some luck and you're going to get some bad luck," he said. "You just have to be patient on the greens."

John Cook, who last week in the Regions Tradition lost the lead on a double-hit confirmed later by video, birdied three of the final four holes for a 68 to join Watson, Jay Haas (70), David Frost (69) and Gary Hallberg (70).

INDY

four-year absence. Ganassi pushed hard for an Indy 500 win, and Montoya delivered in a monstrous way: The Colombian led 167 of the 200 laps as he routed the field and beat runner-up Buddy Lazier by more than seven seconds. Then he was gone, off to Formula One for 5 1/2 years and then seven full seasons in NASCAR. Montoya never looked back, never once considered another run at the Indianapolis 500.

Until now.

Now 38, Montoya is back in IndyCar, driving for storied Team Penske, and after four races and two weeks of practice at Indianapolis Motor Speedway, he's comfortable again in the race car.

"I'm starting to get cockier and cockier and cockier in the car," Montoya told The Associated Press. "Your confidence starts to grow. To be honest, I think I have a really good shot of winning it. I really do. With my oval experience in NASCAR and knowing this place really well, and being with Team Penske, chances of winning don't come much better than that."

That's the attitude fans more or less expected when Montoya made his return.

But it wasn't just like riding a bike for Montoya, who needed months of testing to relearn the car. It was make-or-break time at the season-opener in March, where many fans thought Montoya would once again make the series look like his own personal playground.

He was not one of them.

"In the first race, I couldn't outbrake anybody," he said. "In NASCAR, you never pass anybody into the corner, you pass everybody out of the corner. Here, you don't pass anybody out of the corner. Everything is in the braking, and I haven't outbraked anybody in seven years. So I had to relearn."

He finished fourth at Long Beach, the second race of the season, and started to get his feel again. Now, after four races, he has shown he is ready for Indy.

lawmakers of both parties and civil rights groups. Last month, Reid took to the Senate floor to say Snyder should "do what is morally right" and change the name.

In a letter Thursday, 49 senators mentioned the NBA's quick action recently to ban Los Angeles Clippers owner Donald Sterling for life after he was heard on an audio recording making offensive comments about blacks. They said Goodell should formally push to rename the Redskins.

"We urge you and the National Football League to send the same clear message as the NBA did: that racism and bigotry have no place in professional sports," read the letter, which did not use the word "Redskins."

Sen. Bill Nelson of Florida wrote his own letter saying he doesn't believe that retaining the Redskin name "is appropriate in this day and age."

In a written response Thursday, NFL spokesman Brian McCarthy said "the intent of the team's name has always been to present a strong, positive and respectful image."

Reid and Sen. Maria Cantwell of Washington led the letter-writing effort. All senators on the letter are Democrats. Cantwell spokesman Jared Leopold said Republicans were not asked to participate.

The senators noted that tribal organizations representing more than 2 million Native Americans across the U.S. have said they want the Redskins name dropped.

Despite federal laws protecting their identity, "Every Sunday during football season, the Washington, D.C., football team mocks their culture," they wrote.

Serena Williams as fluent in French as on red clay

HOWARD FENDRICH
AP Tennis Writer

MICHEL EULER / AP

Defending champions Serena Williams and Rafael Nadal pose during the draw for the French Open Tennis tournament on Friday at the Roland Garros stadium in Paris.

PARIS — Serena Williams was wrapping up her pre-French Open news conference when someone seated in the front row wanted to know whether she would take one question in the local language.

The tournament's defending champion gave the OK. The reporter proceeded to put forth a pair of queries, and Williams arched her eyebrows and kiddingly chastised him — in French, of course — for asking two. She went on to answer both, earning a thumb's up from the media member.

A year ago, Williams won over the fickle Roland Garros crowd by doing on-court interviews in French en route to the title, and the American — who has an apartment in Paris and is coached by a Frenchman — is clearly prepared to do more of the same this time around. What's just as impressive is her comfort level playing on the Grand Slam tournament's slow, red clay these days.

Heading into her first-round match Sunday against 138th-ranked Alize Lim, a wild-card entry from France who is making her Grand Slam singles debut, the No. 1-ranked Williams is 53-2 (a .964 winning percentage) with eight titles since 2012 on the surface known around here as "terre battue." Before that, Williams was 86-29 (.748) with three titles on clay for her career.

> "When Serena is at her best, she's going to win everything. It's just a matter of: 'Is she going to be at her best?'"
> Chris Evert
> former French Open champion

Williams is not entirely sure how to explain that surge, saying she didn't alter her game.

"I don't know what clicked or didn't click," she said. "I have the capability of playing on clay, so I don't know why I wasn't more consistent on clay before."

And then the 32-year-old Williams broke into a wide smile before adding: "But, hey, I guess better late than never, right?"

Absolutely. Indeed, one way to view her improvement on clay is simply in the context of a career renaissance that began, not coincidentally, right after a surprising exit against 111th-ranked Virginie Razzano of France at the 2012 French Open, the only first-round loss for Williams in 54 Grand Slam tournaments.

It was after that setback that Williams began working with Patrick Mouratoglou, who runs a tennis academy in France. She has since earned four singles trophies at the past seven majors, raising her Grand Slam total to 17, one shy of Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert.

"When Serena is at her best, she's going to win everything," Evert said. "It's just a matter of: Is she going to be at her best?"

1906 — Jesse Tannehill's 3-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox snapped a 20-game losing streak — 19 at home — for the Boston Red Sox.
1935 — Babe Ruth, winding up his career with the Boston Braves, hit three homers and a single at Pittsburgh, but the Pirates won 11-7. Ruth connected once off Red Lucas and twice off Guy Bush.
1941 — Boston's Ted Williams raised his batting average over .400 for the first time during the season. Williams finished the season batting. 406.
1951 — Willie Mays, a highly touted rookie for the Giants, went 0-for-5 in his debut against the Philadelphia Phillies.
1982 — Ferguson Jenkins became the seventh pitcher to strike out 3,000 batters in the Chicago Cubs' 2-1 loss at San Diego. Jenkins reached the milestone by striking out Garry Templeton in the third inning.
2001 — Kerry Wood of the Chicago Cubs allowed one hit and struck out 14 in a 1-0 win over the Brewers. Wood took a no-hit bid into the seventh before giving up a leadoff single to Mark Loretta.
2001 — Hideo Nomo of the Boston Red Sox tossed a one-hitter and struck out 14 in a 4-0 win over Toronto. Nomo faced one batter over the minimum of 27, giving up a leadoff double in the fourth to Shannon Stewart.

Ibaka's return could help Thunder improve defense against Spurs

CLIFF BRUNT
AP Sports Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY — Serge Ibaka walked slowly and carefully, but without a limp, before facing reporters Saturday afternoon.

Much has been made of the Oklahoma City defensive star's absence in the first two games of the Western Conference finals series against the San Antonio Spurs. The 6-foot-10 power forward strained his left calf in the previous playoff series, and the Thunder said they expected him to be out for the playoffs. The team changed course Friday and declared him day-to-day. He worked out Saturday, but he didn't practice before addressing the media for the first time since his outlook changed.

With Ibaka, the league's leading shot blocker, the Thunder were one of the best defensive teams the NBA. Without him, the Spurs shot at least 50 percent in the first two games of the Western Conference Finals and won them by a combined 52 points. As he stood for the five-minute session wearing a black compression sock over the calf, he deflected claims that he could be a savior heading into Game 3 on Sunday.

"I've been hearing a lot of people saying my team lost two games because I was out," he said. "That's not true. I believe in my guys. I believe in my teammates. They can be better with me or without me. It's no excuse because Serge Ibaka was not there. Just San Antonio, the first two games, they played better basketball."

Ibaka said he sometimes screamed at his television set when he watched scenarios in which he could have made plays during the losses. He is not sure if he will play in Game 3 — he said it is up to doctors, and much will depend on how he feels in the morning. For now, he will depend largely on rest, ice and luck.

Donovan stunned to be cut from US World Cup team

GREG BEACHAM
Associated Press

DONOVAN

CARSON, California — Landon Donovan thought he had earned a prominent role on the U.S. World Cup team right up until the moment he was cut from the roster by coach Jurgen Klinsmann.

Donovan was still stunned and confused by Klinsmann's decision when he went back to work with the LA Galaxy on Saturday.

"I'm disappointed. I'm sad," Donovan said Saturday after the Galaxy's practice. "I'm human, and I wanted to go. I'm at peace with it. I respect the decision. I just feel in my heart that I deserve to be there, and that's the pill that's hardest to swallow."

The 32-year-old attacker was denied the chance to play in his fourth World Cup after Klinsmann chose U.S. team newcomer Aron Johannsson and 31-year-old Chris Wondolowski over the most accomplished international player in American history.

But Donovan declined to speculate on additional possible factors in the decision: his recent soccer sabbatical, the coach's decision to evaluate a versatile player solely as a forward, or the impact of the Americans' difficult group draw on their long-term planning.

"I think if I'm being judged solely on what happens in camp, then I absolutely deserved to be going to Brazil."

Four tied for lead at Colonial

Hideki Matsuyama watches his tee shot on the ninth hole during the third round of the PGA Colonial golf tournament on Saturday in Fort Worth, Texas.

FORT WORTH, Texas — David Toms, Hideki Matsuyama, Chad Campbell and Chris Stroud shared the third-round lead at 7-under 203 on Saturday at Colonial, where plenty of others also are in contention.

There were 13 players within two strokes of the leading quartet.

The closest chasers included Adam Scott, the No. 1 player in the world, and Jimmy Walker, a three-time winner this season and No. 1 in the FedEx Cup standings.

Kevin Chappell, whose early 7-under 63 was the low round of the day, moved from a tie for 60th to within one stroke of the lead.

Matsuyama, the 22-year-old from Japan with five wins at home, shot a bogey-free 64 Saturday. Toms, who got the last of his 13 PGA Tour victories at Colonial in 2011, had a 65, local resident Campbell shot 68, and Stroud had a 69.

Walker was 6 under after a 69, and Scott was another stroke back after a 66.

Walker and Campbell were playing together, and were tied for the lead at 8 under before both bogeyed the 161-yard 13th hole.

When Walker missed a 9-footer, it was his first bogey this week at Hogan's Alley — and he had another two holes later when hitting from two greenside bunkers. Campbell held the lead alone only for a moment before missing his 4-foot par chance at No. 13.

They were on the 18th hole when play was suspended 1 hour, 8 minutes because of an approaching thunderstorm that brought only a brief downpour.

Walker saved par on the final hole after his drive settled near the edge of the water and he hit with an awkward stance into a greenside bunker. He blasted to 8 feet and made the putt.

Scott, who overtook injured Tiger Woods at No. 1 this week, started the round tied for 36th in the same group with Matsuyama. Chappell had to make a 6-foot par putt on his last hole Friday just to make the cut at 1 over, but quickly made up ground in his early-morning third round.

LPGA

MOBILE, Ala. — Anna Nordqvist moved into position for her third victory of the year, shooting her second straight 6-under 66 to take the third-round lead Saturday in the Airbus LPGA Classic.

The 26-year-old Swede, the winner in Thailand and Carlsbad, had a 16-under 200 total on The Crossings course at the Robert Trent Jones Golf Trail's Magnolia Grove complex.

"All I can do is put myself in a position to have a chance tomorrow and I felt like I've done that," Nordqvist said. "Last year, I was in the final group and I was playing well and there was a lot of people coming from behind, so I know this golf course, you can never relax. You always have to keep pushing forward and trying to make birdies because if you don't, someone else will."

Nordqvist played the front nine in 5-under 31, birdieing Nos. 2-5 and 9 and added a birdie on the par-5 16th.

NASCAR

Dale Jr. looks to win the longest race

PETE IACOBELLI

CHRIS KEANE / AP

Dale Earnhardt Jr. prepares for practice for today's Coca-Cola 600 auto race at Charlotte Motor Speedway in Concord, N.C.

CONCORD, N.C. — Some of Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s earliest NASCAR memories came at Charlotte Motor Speedway, and he hopes to add another big one by winning the Coca-Cola 600 on Sunday night.

Earnhardt grew up watching his late father, Dale Earnhardt, race here more than 30 years ago and has long wanted to win NASCAR's longest race as his dad accomplished three times, the last in 1993.

"I want to win a points race here so bad because we live just right down the road," Earnhardt Jr. said.

He has come close, most notably in 2011 when he broke free from a late restart to take the lead. He got the white flag just fine, then ran out of gas on the front straightaway and coasted through the final turn before Kevin Harvick passed him for the win. Earnhardt finished seventh, his sixth top-10 finish in the Memorial Day weekend race.

Earnhardt has won the All-Star race here before, in 2000. He kept the strong showing going a week later when he won his only pole at Charlotte. In the race, though, Earnhardt faded to fourth.

"We've had some good cars, but not anywhere near enough," he said this week. "There are a lot of other tracks where I think, 'Man, we were really close,' or the car was fast enough. But I've never really had a car here that I thought we had it, we were walking away and we gave it away."

Earnhardt is off to one of his most consistent starts. His No. 88 Chevrolet took the season-opening Daytona 500, and he's barely slowed down since. He followed the Daytona win with second-place showings at Phoenix and Las Vegas. He was third in Martinsville, added another runner-up finish at Darlington and was fifth behind winning Hendrick Motorsports teammate Jeff Gordon at Kansas two weeks ago.

Most eyes at Charlotte will be awaiting Kurt Busch's arrival after the former NASCAR champion competes at the Indianapolis 500 earlier Sunday. The Double has been a focus heading into motorsports' biggest weekend of the year and Earnhardt is among many NASCAR drivers who will be watching how Busch does.

Busch returned again to North Carolina for the final two Sprint Cup practices Saturday. He split time with backup driver Parker Kligerman in the morning session before taking all the laps in the No. 41 in the afternoon. Busch finished 16th fastest in his last practice. He'll start 28th in today's race.

"The team here's doing a great job of juggling all of this, the logistics of traveling back and forth," Busch said.

He's got one more Charlotte-to-Indianapolis roundtrip left in his bid to join Tony Stewart as the only drivers to complete all 1,100 miles in both races.

Sheriff makes bold crackdown on K2 drugs

The announcement by the Lake County Sheriff's Office that it is going to crack down on stores that sell synthetic marijuana, also known as K2, has to be a welcome sound for anyone who is familiar with the scourge of this so-called fake pot.

As background, the Lake County Commission banned the family of substances, collectively known as synthetic marijuana, as of May 1. This, after commissioners watched Florida legislators struggle for years to come up with a law that covers all the possible combinations of ingredients back-room chemists use to make the stuff.

The problem is, every time the Legislature wrote a law banning a substance, it had to describe in particular the chemical components of the substance it was outlawing. The chemists who made synthetic marijuana simply modified their formulas to confound law enforcement.

The County Commission wisely decided not to roll over. It followed the lead of other Florida communities by passing an ordinance outlawing the sale of any synthetic substances designed to mimic the effects of marijuana, cocaine, crystal meth and other illegal drugs.

Is it a perfect law? Probably not. Some clever defense attorney will likely argue that any number of household cleaners or other legal chemicals can mimic the effects of drugs and would have to be banned under the law.

But it gives Sheriff Gary Borders a tool to begin cracking down on smoke shops, convenience stores and others who sell this poison to kids disguised as potpourri or incense and packaged in colorful cellophane wrappers adorned with such harmless-sounding names as "Scooby Snacks."

And Borders is running with it. Last week, he announced that deputies would deliver warnings to area stores to clear out their inventory of fake pot or risk arrest.

We applaud the County Commission and the sheriff for their aggressive stance on this matter because, frankly, synthetic marijuana is truly nasty stuff. Don't let the name fool you. Fake pot has little in common with its namesake, except that its leafy form resembles pot.

Synthetic marijuana is a different drug altogether. Health officials warn that it can — and often does — produce psychotic episodes in those who smoke or ingest it. The effects can differ from packet to packet, too, because batches of fake pot are produced in poorly controlled environments, and the variations in chemical concentrations can cause unpredictable results.

Good for the County Commission, and good for the sheriff.

LETTER of the WEEK

Share the road safely

It's spring again, and you'll be seeing more motorcycles on the roads. The Leesburg Partnership's Bike-Fest as an example attracted over 250,000 motorcyclists riding through our area. Every year several motorcyclists here in Lake County are seriously injured or killed in accidents with cars, often because drivers of cars don't share the road safely with them.

I would like to thank Mayor Harold S. Turville, Jr. for proclaiming May as "Motorcycle Safety and Awareness Month" for the city of Clermont. I also want to take this opportunity to address both safety and awareness. I would ask all motorists to be aware of motorcycles on our highways. Motorcycles are smaller and harder to see.

To my fellow motorcyclists, who are responsible for your own safety, proper operation and handling techniques are your best defense against tragic occurrences on the roads. There are several motorcycle safety courses available locally. These courses are well worth your time and investment.

We have many motorcycle riders in this area. The beautiful weather and hills are a riding attraction that may make for more chances of accidents. In addition, motorcycle events are held almost every weekend, with groups of bikers riding together. Motorcycling is a growing hobby. There may be new riders on the roads whose riding skills and reaction times may not be well-developed.

Please, let's all work together to make 2014 a safe and enjoyable riding season.

Benghazi is about politics

You can't blame the Republicans for trying to have the 16th Congressional hearing to try to link the attack on Benghazi to the White House after 15 failures to do so. They need something to run on.

They had planned on using the failure of the Affordable Care Act as the basis for their 2014 midterm campaigns. The problem is that the Affordable Care Act is a success. Over 8 million people have signed up. Millions more young people under age 26 are covered under their parents' policies. Governor Rick Scott found out in his town hall meeting in South Florida that senior citizens liked Obamacare.

The stock market is at all-time highs, and unemployment is down to 6.3 percent, so they can't run on the failed economy, especially when the big companies who support the Republican Party are making record profits.

All the American troops are home from Iraq, and most will be home from Afghanistan by the end of the year. President Obama and Secretary of State John Kerry have been handling numerous international threats without sending in more troops. The U.S. is working with our partners to find non-military solutions.

We tend to forget that while the loss of four brave Americans in Benghazi is tragic, Moammar Gadhafi was removed after 25 years in power with the loss of four American lives. Regime change in Iraq initiated by President Bush resulted in the deaths of over 4,000 American military.

So it's our choice. I'll vote for the Obama team.

Moxley should step down

The recent crisis in our school system where fictitious, non-existent classes were created in an effort to meet class-size requirements for the State was not a result of "lack of training" as a recent report indicated, but rather it was an indication of a lack of effective and capable leadership right at the top.

Superintendent Susan Moxley has indicated that she had no knowledge of the situation. Class size requirements have been front and center with the media since the amendment passed and for the superintendent to have no knowledge of this critical reporting is just ludicrous. This is another example of just how out-of-touch she is with what is happening within her organization.

Remember a few years ago when a boatload of teachers were sent packing to the Ritz-Carlton in Orlando for a conference. Superintendent Moxley didn't know how many teachers were going, where they were staying, how much the conference cost, or who made the decision. This boondoggle costs taxpayers almost $150,000. Now I wonder how much the state will fine the county for the class-size misreporting.

I am not expecting much action from the School Board either. They even lauded the superintendent for beginning training at the district level as if that action would correct the situation. And the tenor of the Board appears to be that it just may be too challenging to decide if anyone should be disciplined or discharged.

Superintendent Moxley should do the school system a big favor by just resigning. Lake County Schools simply deserves better and more effective leadership.

Obama violated his oath

Really Ron Ivey, you are going to refer to the murder of four Americans for which the then Secretary of State Hillary Clinton joined the rest of this administration in trying to blame it on a video when they knew it wasn't the truth?

And the day she left office, Hillary Clinton refused to give a true account as to what happened on that day. Yet as a U.S. senator from New York, she was among the loudest screaming "what did George W. Bush know and when did he know it?" She even made a comment at one of the hearings that it didn't matter that those four Americans got killed on her watch.

Well, excuse me Ron, but it matters a lot seeing as how this entire administration took an oath to uphold and protect the constitution of this country. It was Hillary Clinton's job and her constitutional obligation to keep those people safe. And she could have sent the extra security to that embassy, whether Ambassador Stevens wanted them or not.

But then this entire administration has gotten a pass on all the violations of their oaths since they have been in office, so what's one more, right? There have been so many impeachable offenses committed by this administration at every level it is pathetic, yet people just continue to turn a blind eye to them.

I really wonder how much longer it will be before we see great efforts to vacate the entire Constitution and turn us into a completely socialist nation, because believe me this administration has been leading us down that path since Obama came into office

Harry Reid: Grinch who stole the Senate

One of Dr. Suess' most famous children's tales was about the Grinch who stole Christmas.

The Grinch is a bitter, grouchy, cave dwelling creature with a heart "two sizes too small." The theft of Christmas in the Seuss tale has a happy ending, as the bitter Grinch, who had stolen all of the children's presents, woke up on Christmas day to hear joyous songs of Christmas instead of the sorrowful cries of the children of Whoville bemoaning the loss of their gifts.

The shrunken heart of the Grinch suddenly grew three times larger and he returned the gifts and was warmly invited to the Whos' Christmas feast.

This classic Suess story could now take place in the U.S. Senate instead of the town of Whoville.

Within the body of the Senate is the perfect Grinch replacement known as Senator Harry Reid D-Nevada. Reid is the Senate Majority leader whose demeanor on TV is usually just as bitter and grumpy as the Grinch, and he rules the Senate as the Grinch would. Almost daily, he vilifies Republicans and those who financially support conservative causes such as the Koch brothers, Charles and David Koch.

Reid's campaign against the Koch brothers borders on paranoia. The Koch brothers have several foundations that support many charitable causes for at-risk youth, the arts, entrepreneurship, research and education, human services, environmental stewardship and medical research. Just in medical research, the Koch brothers have given over $500 million dollars.

RUSS SLOAN

No matter, none of the immense charitable giving by the Koch brothers can offset the terrible sin of also giving to conservative causes and candidates.

Reid's transformation into a full time Grinch occurred in November of 2013 when he did away with the Senate's historic 60 vote rule on shutting off debate on presidential nominees to the judiciary. I find it very interesting that in 2005, when Bush 43 was president and Reid was in the Senate minority, he was all for keeping the 60 vote threshold and stated, "The threat to change Senate rules is a raw use of power and will destroy the very checks and balances our founding fathers put in place to prevent absolute power by any one branch of government."

Remember the saying that power corrupts. The only thing that has changed since 2005 is that Harry Reid went from the Minority leader in the Senate to the Majority leader.

Reid's Grinch-like behavior goes beyond his tyranny as majority leader. I watched on C-SPAN earlier this year his tirade against Republicans and stating that every claim about the negative consequences on Americans from Obamacare were fabricated lies. All of them.

The next day, I sat in disbelief as Reid stated that he had no recollection of criticizing Republicans on the previous day. Now we have a Grinch with a failing memory.

Regrettably, Harry Reid is the Grinch who stole the Senate. As the tyrant of the Senate, he has destroyed the traditional 60 vote threshold and he can now quash opposition debate on the important issues of our time. He can continue to make false statements from the floor of the Senate as members of Congress are free from slander and libel suits when speaking from the floor of the Senate or House.

On March 28 we learned that Reid gave $31,000 of his campaign funds to his granddaughter's jewelry business for holiday gifts. Don't recall ABC, NBC or CBS covering that story. Reid did have to repay those monies from his own account.

In the Dr. Suess story, the Grinch who stole Christmas did have a change of heart and the tale had a happy ending. However, in the true-life saga we are all experiencing, I think the only happy ending to Grinch Reid's rule will have to come this November when the voters of America decide to take back the Senate and once again enable the Senate to be a productive branch of our government. Our apologies to Dr. Suess.

Widening income gap threatens US

Today we have one party focusing their attention on Benghazi along with their two propagandist wings — Fox News and right-wing radio.

Locally,Russ Sloan uses his column to regurgitate the talking points from Fox News.

Meanwhile in the real world the attention is on real problems like job creation, income inequality, climate change and renewable energy.

In his book "Capital in the Twenty-First Century," French economist Thomas Piketty writes that the United States has one of the highest income gaps in the world and is headed for a society dominated by wealth.

The severity of the gap is shown by studies that indicate the top 25 highest paid hedge fund managers earned more than all the kindergarten teachers in the USA in 2013.

The concentration of wealth moving to the top one percent and the increasing gap between the highest paid and the lowest paid workers begs the question: why is it occurring?

There is a consensus among economists that the shift started in the 1980s with the reduction of income tax rates for the top earners. The tax rate cuts were also the catalyst that started our runway national debt.

In the late 1990s we were able stop the debt from increasing after some increases in tax rates and even two years of surpluses. In 2001 we reduced taxes on the wealthy again and the gap between the rich and poor grew, and the debt soared again.

The war on unions began in earnest in the 1980s as shown by the decline of labor union membership from 20 percent of the labor force in 1983 to around 12 percent in 2007. The decline of labor unions has coincided with the increasing gap in inequality.

The repeal of Glass-Steagal in 1998 opened the doors for financial firms to do as they pleased and helped move more money to the top one percent. It also contributed to the financial collapse of 2008.

In 1928 the concentration of wealth with the 1 percent was the greatest in our history and helped create the Great Depression. In 2008 we again reached the same levels and the Financial Collapse occurred.

The concentration of wealth in a few people allows them to control our elections and pass laws making them even richer.

The 1 percent want to make the 2014/16 elections about Benghazi, but you can make it about real issues and stop the race to creating an oligarchy.

Economic sanctions can work

When President Obama chose to impose financial sanctions on Russia after Vladimir Putin decided to annex Crimea, John McCain and GOP leaders said the U.S. should use military force to chase Russian forces back across the border.

We must recall that young McCain crashed several jets in his attempt to become a Navy pilot, and we know that McCain graduated last in his academy class. He is not the brightest bulb on the Christmas tree.

Other GOP leaders are skeptical of the Obama sanctions. However, international experts (Daniel Drezner, Washington Post, May 6, 2014) have studied sanctions and they point out the misconceptions held by the GOP.

Dick Cheney said sanctions are "madness." He wanted a show of military force. Think of the 10-year war in the Middle East. Recently, Iranian President Hassan Rouhani said the sanctions on the Iranian economy were severe and he wanted to negotiate right away.

Some people worry that sanctions hurt poor people more than they hurt the government. In 1990 the trade embargo on Iran affected citizens more than they hurt Saddam because food prices in Iran rose 250 percent. Madeleine Albright said the price was worth it because it saved lives.

Some people worry that sanctions hurt poor people more than they hurt the government. In 1990 the trade embargo on Iran affected citizens more than they hurt Saddam because food prices in Iran rose 250 percent. Madeleine Albright said the price was worth it because it saved lives.

Current research by the Peterson Institute for International Economy shows that sanctions usually end in less than a year. The U.S. has imposed travel bans, frozen assets and created arms embargoes to push governments to negotiate instead of using U.S. military action. It is true that some embargoes work well, others are not so effective.

As an energy exporter, Russia is vulnerable, but not as much as nations who export only one product. For example, England and Canada benefit from Russian oil and products but their trade economy is broad. Smaller nations might be more vulnerable to sanctions.

Because the United States is the epicenter of global financial markets, Washington can freeze personal assets and shut down banks in Russia. In recent months, Ukraine's president was forced to leave office because he would not take part in E.U. sanctions of Russian goods.

Thomas Friedman, in the New York Times, points out that sanctions may not always be effective, but when compared to the Bush 10-year war in the Middle East, sanctions look very, very good. Ask a wounded vet.

Of course, sanctions will not cripple the Russian economy, but when wealthy Russians realize their economy is sinking, when they see their bank accounts frozen, they will have a serious conversation with Putin.

Some of those wealthy Russians might ask Putin to explain why they cannot access their yachts on the Italian coast and sip Russian vodka after a long day of shopping for Italian shoes.

The 2014 Dodge Durango sports a number of mid-cycle tweaks to the SUV's third-generation design.

Dodge Durango: same name, but a nicer ride

LARRY PRINTZ
MCT

After spending a week in the latest version of the Dodge Durango, I would urge Dodge to give it a new name. It doesn't have the best history.

Too many buyers considering three-row crossover SUVs look past the Durango – mainly because the initial version was little more than an SUV shell plopped atop a Dodge Dakota pickup frame. As you can imagine, refinement suffered as a result.

And the previous generation saw the Durango grow, but more in terms of attitude than civility.

Finally, in 2011, a Dodge Durango appeared possessing the second generation's attitude, but gaining an impressive amount of sophistication. For 2014, a number of midcycle changes gild the lily.

The Dodge shares its platform with the Jeep Grand Cherokee. What differentiates the two is the Durango's size; its wheelbase is 5 inches longer, overall length is up by 10 inches. The Dodge has three rows of seats, the Jeep offers two.

So if you need more room than the Grand Cherokee offers, but with similar capability, the Durango should be on your list.

As you might expect, engine choices are identical to the Jeep's. The standard engine is Chrysler's excellent 3.6-liter, double-overhead-cam V6 mated to a new eight-speed automatic transmission.

DODGE DURANGO STATS

FUEL CONSUMPTION: 20.3 mpg

Like the Grand Cherokee, the Durango can be had with rear-wheel drive or all-wheel drive, but the Dodge has engineered the Durango for street use more than off-road boulder bashing. So, while both of the Durango's engines can be mated to all-wheel drive, only the V8's all-wheel-drive system features a locking low-range.

As before, the Durango turned in an impressive performance, with

Hyundai's latest Tucson — agile, frugal and versatile

EMMA JAYNE WILLIAMS
MCT

Hyundai entered the small SUV market in 2004 with the first Tucson, which was last redesigned for 2010 with more technology, more room for passengers and cargo, and better fuel economy.

Now, for 2014, the five-passenger compact crossover offers Hyundai's first panoramic sunroof, touchscreen navigation, Bluetooth hands-free phone, Hill Start Assist Control and Downhill Brake Control.

The sunroof and navigation are included in a Technology Package ($2,750), along with LED taillights and a premium 360-watt audio system with seven speakers (two front door mounted, two tweeters, two rear and a subwoofer).

Mechanical upgrades for 2014 include two new direct-injection engines — a 164-horsepower 2.0 liter and 182-horsepower 2.4 liter inline four-cylinder, which produce more torque and are more efficient than those in the 2013 models.

Tucson is offered in front- or all-wheel drive, with six-speed automatic transmissions. EPA mileage estimates for Tucson range from 20 mpg city/27 highway to 22 city/30 highway.

HYUNDAI / MCT

The 2014 Hyundai Tucson offers the automaker's first panoramic sunroof.

An active Eco system allows the driver to maximize mileage by pressing a button on the center console. Driving in Eco mode, mostly on the highway with cruise control engaged, I managed 24.5 mpg during my test drive. My tester was rated for 21 city/28 highway/24 combined.

Tucson comes in eight models, offered in eight exterior colors and three interior colors, with prices ranging from $21,450-$27,700 (plus $875 freight). All models were given to top "good" rating by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety for performance in frontal, side and rollover crash testing.

The Tucson has lots of features to help avoid accidents and to lessen the severity of an unavoidable impact. They include electronic stability control with traction control, antilock braking with brake-force distribution and brake assist, downhill brake control and hill-start assist, and tire-pressure monitoring.

Also included are front and rear crumple zones and reinforced unibody construction, active head restraints, and air bags in the dashboard, doors, seats and roof (with rollover sensors).

My 2.4-liter Tucson Limited front-drive tester (base price $26,200) was Winter White outside, with beige seats, front-center armrest, door pillars, mid-dash trim and speaker covers, and roof, dash, leather wrapped steering wheel and shifter knob, console, door panels and carpet/floor mats. Carpeted floor mats were a $110 option.

The two-part black louvered grille was chrome accented, and the exterior door handles were chrome. The roof side rails were gray and the lower body-side cladding and lower rear bumper were black, visually increasing the Tucson's 6.7 inches of ground clearance, giving it a floating appearance.

The tester also had 18-inch alloy wheels with five three-part sculpted spokes in matte silver and pewter—very attractive.

Body-color power/heated outside mirrors had LED turn indicators, lined up like jewels on the housing. The projector-beam headlights with LED accents and silver trim were striking even when not illuminated.

The interior door handles, center-stack trim, instrument panel, and steering-wheel buttons were pewter-colored. The perforated/quilted leather seats were comfortable front and rear, with sport-style bolstering in the front. The front seats were heated and the

Senior drivers dread conversation about handing over keys

MANDI WRIGHT / MCT

John Villa is still driving the streets of Beverly Hills, Mich., at the age of 96. He passed a driver's test last year and limits himself to daylight hours and familiar roads.

ROBIN ERB
MCT

DETROIT — John Villa laughs about it now — the "conspiracy" last year to take away his car keys, he calls it.

"I was a little incensed," said the 96-year-old former manufacturing manager.

The conversation wasn't easy for his children either.

"We were very cognizant of the fact — and this is important — that if he lost his ability to drive, this would seriously affect his independence and his sense of self," said daughter Nancy Villa Bryk, an Eastern Michigan University professor.

"It was a very difficult conversation, and he found it profoundly upsetting, which was upsetting to me," she said.

Analyzed by miles traveled, the risk of being involved in a fatal crash begins climbing at age 75 and increases notably after age 80 — a result of increasingly frail bodies and medical complications from injuries.

And though older drivers are less likely to get into accidents overall, in part because they limit their driving to familiar roads and safer times of the day, research suggests they have a tougher time making left turns at intersections, for example.

But for many families, the question of "Is it time to park the car for the last time?" is rarely answered by a medical problem or serious accident.

Rather, it's the little, insidious failings of the aging body that chip away at our ability to drive and trigger those nagging worries from loved ones.

"It creeps up on you," said Dr. Pratik Bhattacharya, a neurologist for Detroit Medical Center's Sinai Grace Hospital and an assistant professor at Wayne State University.

SEE SENIORS | C9

Cataracts and other eye problems mean nighttime glare. Arthritis makes it difficult to grip the wheel or twist your torso to check different directions. Nerve damage dulls the senses, making it more difficult to apply the proper pressure on gas and brake pedals or to make the switch between pedals quickly.

Additionally, when cognitive abilities start to decline, they chip away at your insight, he said: "You think you're driving fine and you're not," Bhattacharya said.

That means that well-intentioned concern from loved ones can lead to hurt feelings, resistance and angry self-defense.

"It is a difficult conversation to have," said Roberta Habowski, mobility project manager at the Southfield, Mich.,-based Area Agency on Aging, 1-B. "How would you feel if I say, you can't drive tomorrow?"

She and others say the first rule to follow: Know that age alone doesn't deteriorate driving.

"There are 50-year-olds who shouldn't be driving. There are 90-year-olds who can," said Kimberly Lariviere, senior mobility specialist with the Michigan Department of Transportation, a sponsor of the North American Conference on Elderly Mobility.

For his part, Villa volunteers for five organizations, including Wayne State University's Institute of Gerontology. He runs errands, visits friends and drops by Costco sometimes to pick up flowers for his wife, Jean.

And he wasn't ready to give that up last year when his family approached him with their concerns.

TALKING TO LOVED ONES ABOUT DRIVING

- Do your homework. Observe driving habits first. Age, itself, does not make one a poor driver. A worksheet, "Warning Signs for Older Drivers," is at www.thehartford.com.
- Approach the topic gently over time, rather than wait for an accident or a moment when the senior might be embarrassed.
- Start with I've been thinking about ... or I saw this article about driving and avoid language that seems accusatory: You shouldn't drive anymore.
- Identify the person whom the senior is most likely to trust. Outspoken family members may not be the right choice at the beginning, although they may enforce driving decisions later on, if necessary. The Hartford Center for Mature Market Excellence indicates that marital status should play a role. About half of married drivers would rather hear concerns from spouses, although doctors are a close second. Drivers living alone prefer to hear first from their doctors, then from adult children, friends and others.
- Start with a plan to help them replace their own driving with other transportation. Family members can help with errands from time to time and they can try a taxi service once in a while. That eases the transition even as the senior begins to limit driving when it's safest and planning for alternatives.

"I said, 'This is something we need to start talking about,'" recalled his son, John Villa, an attorney in Washington. "He said 'I do understand I can't drive forever and I know my limits.' ... He was defensive about it; I think anybody would be defensive about it."

On Dec. 12, Villa and his son-in-law reported to a branch office of the Secretary of State, where an instructor drove with Villa for a re-examination of his driver's test.

The papers came days later in the mail, Villa said: He passed.

And he continues to drive, though he limits himself to familiar roads and daylight hours. And though his children say they're happy to provide alternative transportation for him, he said he will drive on his own as long as he can.

It's a matter of self-preservation, he said.

"Some people, they retire and sit in front of a TV or do something inane that doesn't really help them to be cognitively alert," he said.

The driver's license, he said, is a "lifeline."

"I have to have something mentally to keep me doing, otherwise I'll atrophy," he said.

Miriam Freeling, in contrast, said she hadn't known the stress of driving until she was out from under it.

Just before Christmas, the retired occupational therapist had become hopelessly lost on the way to the home of a longtime friend.

Four days later — a week after John Villa passed his driver's test — a Henry Ford Hospital neurologist was kind but firm: Miriam, it's not a question of whether you are going to have an accident, it's a matter of when, recalled Miriam and Neal Freeling, married for 32 years.

They called their son. Miriam Freeling, 83, remembered saying, " 'Well, we're not driving anymore,' and he said, 'I'm so glad.' "

Neal Freeling, 75, wasn't surprised at his son's reaction.

Over time, the elder Freeling, who is blind and can't drive, said his son "would take me to the side and say 'Dad, Mom's missing stuff while she's driving — missing turns, not reading signs well.' I said 'We're having that discussion, and when the time is right it will happen.'"

These days, the Freelings use the bus or cabs. They accept rides from loved ones and others only if they're allowed to buy them a meal or occasionally fill up their gas tank. They kept their Subaru for those occasions, too.

And they insist on living life as they did before — visiting friends, attending shows and making appointments at the doctor's offices and beauty shop.

"I feel like the Queen of England," Miriam Freeling said, chuckling. "I'm in the back of the car and I look at things and I'm seeing things that I never saw while driving. Stores, the people. When you're driving, you're focused on the road and where you're going.

"I just sit there and enjoy talking to whoever is driving," she said.

TUCSON

driver's seat was power-adjustable, including lumbar support.

Front door panels were boldly divided into speaker area and armrest area, with a medium-size map/bottle holder below. The bottle holder was in the middle of the pocket, which divided the area that could be used for storing maps/papers. There was a medium-size cubby on the front of the center console with two power outlets and auxiliary jacks.

Tuscon's center stack was at the outer limit of my arm reach, and the position of the screen caused some glare, but overall the controls for the audio system, phone, and navigation were simple and well labeled.

Touch-screen controls for all systems (except the HVAC, which had simple "old school" controls under the touch screen) were intuitive, with folders and pages well defined and labeled. There were also simple controls for cruise, audio and phone on the tilt/telescopic steering wheel.

The navigation system had several helpful functions, such as programmable icons including emergency destinations, navigation by coordinates, intersection, exit/entrance number, home-address button, office-address button, address input, previous destination, gas station search and restaurant search. The rearview camera shared the display screen.

Programming by address input was simple, and audio directions were precise and frequent, along with detailed directions on a split screen showing the next turn and measuring the distance by a countdown-style gauge.

Tucson also comes with Hyundai's Blue Link, a telematics system connected via smartphone, web application or an in-car system, which allows the operator to call for help (roadside assistance/SOS), find a shortcut, find a gas station, get vehicle "health" reports, remotely lock the vehicle, locate the vehicle, and start the vehicle.

Blue Link also features stolen-vehicle slowdown/ immobilization/ recovery, and geo-fence, curfew and speed alert (teen driver/anxious parents, alerts by email, text or phone signal).

The rear seatbacks could be folded down in a 60/40 configuration, and also reclined slightly for a more comfortable position. My rear seat passengers had plenty of head and leg room — 39.1 inches and 38.7 inches respectively — and liked the reclining feature. They also had air vents on the back of the center console and small map/bottle pockets in the doors.

Tucson's flat cargo area with the seats folded (original cargo area was 25.7 cubic feet) came in handy for taking some bulky items to recycle and donate.

There were several cargo hooks, a bag hook on the back of the middle seat, a retractable/removable cargo cover, a power outlet and a covered storage area under the carpeted cargo floor with a compact spare tire, tire tools and a little extra space for hiding small items — camera, purse, or cell phone for example.

Tire tools were wrapped in a felt bag to keep them from rattling around, a very good idea. There was also an emergency release handle on the lower edge of the liftgate.

I didn't have a third passenger, but the rear middle seat was adequate with a little less legroom and no plush quilted seat. All three rear seating positions had tether hooks and lower hooks for child safety seats.

My Tucson was smooth, with plenty of power, although Eco mode did cause a slight decline in acceleration. The Eco button was on the center console, and was easy to reach to disengage, if necessary.

The vehicle also was nimble, with a 34.7-foot turning diameter and very little lean when turning.

Overall, the Tucson is nice looking, well equipped, agile, frugal, and versatile. My tester's list price was $29,835, including $875 freight and $2,750 in options, minus a $395 manufacturer discount.

DURANGO

a refined ride, smooth manners and reassuring ability. The steering is tuned to be just fast enough to take advantage of the well-tuned suspension. This doesn't feel as big as it is, even though you'll never mistake it for a compact. However, you might be surprised at how quickly you can take corners. Body lean is kept in check, and any softness in the suspension comes out only in the most extreme circumstances. The flip side is a ride that will have you wondering why they need to bother repaving so many highways. The Durango's ambience is enhanced by its quiet nature.

The real change comes when you ask for performance. The eight-speed automatic transmission transforms the V6. No longer merely adequate, this driveline has more than enough power for most situations. Yet its responsive nature doesn't come at the expense of fuel economy. The EPA rated the test vehicle at 17 mpg city, 24 mpg highway. Not bad for a three-row family hauler that tips the scales at more than 2 tons. If you can live without all-wheel drive, mileage goes up 1 mpg. Overall, unless you need the extra 1,200 pounds of towing capacity, you don't need the Hemi V8 and its rating of 14 mpg city, 22 mpg highway – not to mention its 89-octane fuel requirement.

The Durango has five ascending trim levels: SXT, Rallye, Limited, R/T and Citadel. For my weeklong test drive, Dodge provided a Durango Limited with all-wheel drive.

DODGE / MCT

The Durango has five ascending trim levels: SXT, Rallye, Limited, R/T and Citadel.

All Durangos get a redecorated cabin for 2014.

Limited models have standard leather seats and seat heaters in the first- and second-row seats. Legroom is impressive until you get to the third row where it's a bit more limited, but still very usable by adults for quick trips. All seats are very comfortable.

Unless you're a hedonist and need lots of gear, opt for the Limited. It leaves off items many will find unnecessary, while still providing an opulent feel. The test car was stuffed with gear, such as a $1,995 rear DVD entertainment center, which could be easily handled by a couple of iPads. Skipping the power sunroof saves another $1,095, enough to splurge for $1,195 aluminum wheels. Other useful options included second-row fold-and-tumble bucket seats ($895) with second-row console ($300).

As you might expect, the Durango's exterior styling gets a bit of a nip and tuck as well, although the overall appearance looks familiar. There's a new front fascia, projector-beam headlamps, LED running lights and a new choice of wheels. In the rear, the Durango gets an LED tail lamp design similar to that on the Dodge Charger and Dart.

Prices start at $29,795 – a slight premium over the base Grand Cherokee, but a bargain considering the extra square footage this ride provides. The prices do rise as you climb through the trim levels, so go easy. The well-equipped test vehicle started at $38,395 and carried an MSRP of $44,870. That's luxury car territory, but this Durango felt appropriately equipped and trimmed for the price.

It's easy to see that the Durango seems as if it has spent time at a health spa. With its revised cabin, refined road manners, peppy but fuel-efficient V6 engine and a long list of available gear, the Durango is the three-row crossover SUV that's much better than you'd ever expect.

As long as you don't mind its name.

ORGANIC

profitable, shoppers are paying more attention to health in their food and household choices, said Tom Johnson, principal at PricewaterhouseCoopers in Minneapolis. "It will grow exponentially in the coming years. Organic is now becoming part of retailers' commitment to wellness," he said.

Sales of products labeled natural and organic grew 7.5 percent in 2012, twice the overall growth rate of conventional food and nonfood products, according to the Organic Trade Association. Large food producers and manufacturers have been quick to hop aboard the food truck. Smaller brands such as Silk, Horizon, Cascadian Farm and Knutson have been gobbled up by larger companies such as General Mills, Smucker's and Dean Foods.

A retail field that used to be dominated by smallish co-ops (and Whole Foods) is now being integrated in supermarkets from high-end to low-end.

Experts attribute the buying shift mostly to kids. Having children continues to be a principal trigger for buying organics, said CEO Laurie Demeritt of the Hartman Group market research firm in Bellevue, Wash. "Some consumers begin using organics while they are pregnant, while others enter the category once their child has transitioned to baby food or dairy products," Demeritt said.

They're primarily concerned with perceived negative health effects of growth hormones and antibiotics in meat and dairy and pesticides in fresh produce and grains. Buying organics makes parents feel like they are protecting their children and acting responsibly, she said.

As organics go mainstream and prices drop, some insiders and consumers worry whether large companies are committed to doing organic "right," said Demeritt. Now that food companies have released organic versions of processed foods such as Oreos and mac-n-cheese, organic food is no longer tied as closely to good health in consumers' minds. Organic foods with added sugar, corn syrup and unidentified ingredients dilute the appeal.

Others distrust the purity of organic food as it becomes more widely available. Some worry that big companies are trying to water down the USDA's organic labeling criteria. "Trust is a major issue with organics," Demerritt said.

Cornucopia Institute in Wisconsin, an advocacy group that promotes economic justice for family farms, thinks Wal-Mart's claim that it will have organic prices on parity with standard ones is dubious.

"Wal-Mart tried a similar program in 2006 where they sold organics at 10 percent more than conventional," said Mark Kastel, director at Cornucopia. "They failed miserably."

Kastel found that Wal-Mart was using organic factory farms, including using some sourcing of produce from China. Some of the products labeled "organic" were not organic, he wrote in a 2006 report about Wal-Mart organics titled "Wal-Mart: Market Expansion or Market Delusion?"

He hopes that Wal-Mart will use its logistical prowess to do things right this time and make everyone in the grocery industry more efficient, but he cautions consumers that private-label organic products (sold by Wal-Mart, Target, Trader Joe's, Aldi and others) are not in the spirit of the organic movement.

those accounts. In other words, someone other than the advisor. This advisor's role appears to be more of a relationship manager, one who is charged with entertaining affluent investors and attending social functions. And that's fine, as long as the client understands that when he sits down to discuss his accounts, he is not visiting with the person who is actually making investment decisions.

Say the Dow drops 500 points on the day of the championship game, 2008-style. Who would have been in charge of making changes in the portfolio to minimize losses? Or, say the market hit an all-time high that day. Who was at the controls, possibly taking gains off the table and considering the tax consequences for the client?

Perhaps the advisor actually manages these accounts, but believes in a "buy and hold" investment style. The thinking here is that "the market always rebounds," so no need to react to market vagaries, because there may be upturns as well as downturns. Thus, week-long football vacations don't really interfere with the advisor's portfolio management activity. This investment philosophy works fine during steady uptrending markets, like those the late 1990s provided. However, investors nearing or in retirement risk damaging their portfolios significantly if they suffer large downturns like we witnessed in 2008. "Set it and forget it" may not work well for this demographic, especially in volatile or choppy markets.

Additionally, the investor/client is probably paying for the trip one way or another. The advisor may have funded the football journey, but the money to finance those activities most likely came from the investor in the form of management fees, trading fees, and commissions.

Ultimately, "It's not show friends, it's show business." People's retirement and life savings are at stake, and wealth preservation for someone nearing or in retirement is paramount. You may want to ask yourself: Do you want a football host? Or do you want someone who is in the office every day monitoring your accounts? Markets don't care how many games your advisor invites you to. The investment world is a meritocracy. It doesn't play favorites.

Loss for words of sympathy is embarrassing for woman

JEANNE PHILLIPS

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I have a very hard time expressing my condolences. I panic and avoid sadness at all costs. I'll give you two examples: My boss's husband died. (I worked for him, too.) Because I couldn't talk to her, I avoided her like she had the plague.

Another time, a close friend's son tried to commit suicide and severely injured himself. Instead of hugging my friend's wife and asking how she was, I waved and went on like I was late for something.

I'm ashamed of my behavior. How can I stop myself from acting like this? — EMBARRASSED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR EMBARRASSED: One way would be to ask yourself WHY you're afraid of confronting someone's sadness. Is it fear that doing so will bring you to tears, and you want to avoid the emotion? Because you are feeling shame, I don't think it is lack of empathy.

Being prepared in advance may help you reach out when a condolence is needed. All you have to say is, "I'm sorry for your loss," or, "I'm sorry about what you're going through." In some cases, the person may want to exchange a few words about it, but in others they won't.

Please stop beating yourself up about this. Many people don't know what to say, or blurt out something inappropriate because they're uncomfortable with their own feelings.

DEAR ABBY: I work in a small bakery. We have a very nice baker here who is an older gentleman. When he gets frustrated, he will shout out, "Son-of-a-rabbit-chaser!" We all laugh and have asked him what that saying actually means. He told us his father used to say it.

Now the entire bakery is trying to guess what this saying's true meaning and origin is. Can you help us out?

My boss seems to think a "rabbit chaser" is referring to a greyhound dog because they chase rabbits. I don't think that makes sense. I'm wondering if maybe it refers to a dirty old man chasing a younger woman, but that doesn't really make sense either. If you can shed any light on this, we would all appreciate it. — DYING TO KNOW IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR DYING TO KNOW: According to my dictionary of American slang, when someone starts an exclamation with "son-of-a," it is usually to express "anger, annoyance, amazement or disappointment."

The animals that usually chase rabbits are dogs. Your baker may have grown up hearing his father use the expression because back then gentlemen weren't supposed to say "SOB" in front of ladies or impressionable children because it was considered too crude for tender ears. Ahh, those were the good old days.

DEAR ABBY: I am struggling with my friend. We're both on the cross-country team, but I can run farther than she can. When she stops to walk, I continue to run, but when I do, it makes her very upset. She says I should stop running and walk with her. But if I do that, I will lose valuable mileage.

I don't know what to do. Should I wait for her? — SWIFTY IN NEVADA

DEAR SWIFTY: No, you shouldn't. Each of you should proceed according to your ability. Please discuss this with your coach. I know she (or he) will back me up on this.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Opening lead — four of hearts.

It stands to reason that you shouldn't allow the success of a contract to depend on a guess when there is a way of avoiding the guess. The aim should be to remain in command at all times, and so be the master of your own fate.

Take this case where West leads a heart against three notrump, and East plays the king. It is only the first trick, but the outcome rests largely on South's play at this point. If he plays the right card, he can considerably improve his chances of making the contract, and will succeed as the cards lie. But if he plays the wrong card, he must guess right later to get home safely.

First, let's see what happens if South takes the king of hearts with the ace. He can cash four diamonds, but then must guess whether to next play a spade or a club.

If he guesses wrong by leading a spade, East takes the ace and returns a heart. West's hearts thus become established, and, because West has the ace of clubs as an entry, declarer finishes down one. Of course, if South guesses right by attacking clubs before spades, he makes the contract, but the fact remains that at trick one he placed his fate in the laps of the gods.

Now let's see what happens if South allows East's king of hearts to hold the first trick, as he should. Declarer wins East's heart return and no longer has to guess whether to lead spades or clubs first. He is on safe ground either way.

Let's say he tackles spades first. East takes the ace but has no heart to return, and South makes four notrump

The same result accrues if South tackles clubs first. West can take the ace and establish his suit, but has no way to regain the lead later, and again South finishes with 10 tricks.

Tomorrow: Famous Hand.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, May 25, the 145th day of 2014. There are 220 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On May 25, 1964, the U.S. Supreme Court, in Griffin v. County School Board of Prince Edward County, ordered the Virginia county to reopen its public schools, which officials had closed in an attempt to circumvent the Supreme Court's 1954 Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka public school desegregation ruling.

On this date:

In 1787, the Constitutional Convention began at the Pennsylvania State House (Independence Hall) in Philadelphia after enough delegates had shown up for a quorum.

In 1810, Argentina began its revolt against Spanish rule with the forming of the Primera Junta in Buenos Aires.

In 1895, playwright Oscar Wilde was convicted of a morals charge in London; he was sentenced to two years in prison.

In 1935, Babe Ruth hit the 714th and final home run of his career, for the Boston Braves, in a game against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

In 1942, U.S. Army Lt. Gen. Joseph Stilwell, frustrated over being driven out of Burma by Japanese troops during World War II, told reporters in Delhi, India: "I claim we got a hell of a beating."

In 1946, Transjordan (now Jordan) became a kingdom as it proclaimed its new monarch, Abdullah I.

In 1961, President John F. Kennedy told Congress: "I believe that this nation should commit itself to achieving the goal, before this decade is out, of landing a man on the moon and returning him safely to the earth."

In 1963, the Organisation of African Unity was founded in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. (The OAU was disbanded in 2002 in favor of the African Union.)In 1968, the Gateway Arch in St. Louis was dedicated by Vice President Hubert Humphrey and Interior Secretary Stewart Udall.

HOROSCOPES

JACQUELINE BIGAR

BIGAR'S STARS

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, May 25, 2014:

This year you'll feel empowered and much more content by the end of summer. You will feel as if you can pull white rabbits out of black hats. Be careful what you wish for. If you are single, your social schedule could become overwhelming starting this summer, yet it is through such activity that you are likely to meet your sweetie. If you are attached, you will be very active and busy in the next 12 months. Make sure to include your significant other in your plans. Remember, a relationship takes time and caring. TAURUS understands you well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Make an effort to communicate what you feel. Reach out to someone you care about and share Sunday greetings. You even might decide to treat this person to dinner or invite him or her to a get-together at your place.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take today for you, whether it is napping under a tree or visiting with a friend. Play it low-key, as you are about to hit a very heavy pace. Check out a purchase with care.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You are more upbeat than you have been in a while, especially as you join friends for one of your favorite pastimes. Whether you're playing softball, cooking at a barbecue or simply visiting in a nice setting, you'll soak up the moment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Understand what is happening with an older relative. What feels out of whack will change radically, given some time. This person just needs to air out some of his or her concerns. Join friends at a picnic in the afternoon.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might want to rethink a decision that involves someone else's participation. Be smart, pick up the phone and discuss what you perceive to be happening with this person.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Check with a partner first; this person might not be in the same mood as you, and he or she could want to do something different. Make that OK, especially if the relationship is important to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You might be unusually kind when dealing with others. You'll seem more in the mood to deal with the little complications of life. Maintain a sense of humor, and let go of recent hassles and stresses.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You might be more inclined to be upbeat and carefree if you could get certain personal matters completed. Remove a burden or two, and not only will you feel relaxed, but you also will be more in the mood to enjoy others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You could be ready for a fun few days. Seize the moment, and do what comes naturally. Be yourself and share more of your humor and sense of fun. You might want to change your plans today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Catch up on news with a parent or older relative. In fact, go out to brunch or invite this person over. You might want to join a friend in the later afternoon, if possible. Go with the flow. The fewer plans you have, the more fluid and happier you will be.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Allow greater give-and-take than you have in the recent past. You will be relaxed and more receptive to a loved one's overtures. You have a unique way of changing the course of events. You might not even be aware of how you do it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Know your limits and honor them. You will find yourself in a less difficult position in your daily life. A partner or loved one might appreciate the effort. Realize that, when everything is said and done, you'll gain more freedom with self-discipline.

FEATURE STORY

Hall & Oates enter the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame on HBO

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

It doesn't get much more appropriate: a long-popular Hall — and Oates — joining rock music's Hall of Fame.

On their first nomination, Daryl Hall and John Oates have earned one of their field's top accolades as 2014 inductees into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. Taped last month at Barclays Center in Brooklyn, N.Y., the tune-packed ceremony will air on HBO Saturday, May 31.

Peter Gabriel, KISS, Nirvana, Linda Ronstadt, Cat Stevens and Bruce Springsteen's E Street Band are the year's other performer inductees; Lifetime Achievement Award recipients are Beatles manager Brian Epstein (posthumously) and Rolling Stones manager Andrew Loog Oldham.

Inducted by Questlove of the Roots, Hall & Oates select "She's Gone," "I Can't Go for That (No Can Do)" and "You Make My Dreams" to perform from their extensive catalog of hits. Springsteen, Chris Martin, Art Garfunkel, Glenn Frey, Michael Stipe and Peter Asher also give induction speeches, with Carrie Underwood, Bonnie Raitt, Stevie Nicks, Sheryl Crow, Emmylou Harris, Lorde and Joan Jett among the event's other performers.

Daryl Hall (left) and John Oates are feted at the 2014 Rock and Roll Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony, which airs Saturday on HBO.

In an interview for this article, Hall talked about the recent honor bestowed upon him and Oates ... and it didn't come without mixed emotions for him.

Q: How was the induction ceremony from your perspective?

A: I think it was indicative of the music business ... and when I say "music business," I use that in very loose terms. To me, the music business is organized crime; it's not a business. (The ceremony) was interminable windbaggery.

SUNDAY'S BEST BETS

Rafael Nadal

12 p.m. on 2 8
2014 French Open Tennis

Tennis on red clay is the order of the next fortnight in Paris as the sport's top players vie in the French Open. Rafael Nadal goes for his ninth singles title on Roland Garros Stadium's earthen surface, but he'll face competition from Novak Djokovic, Stanlislas Wawrinka and longtime foe Roger Federer. On the women's side, 2013 victor Serena Williams goes for her third championship, challenged by Maria Sharapova, Li Na and Petra Kvitova, among others.

8 p.m. on 2 8
American Dream Builders

In the season finale, the two remaining designers get their biggest challenge yet: transforming two beach houses in Ventura, Calif., with help from some surprise guests. In the end, only one will win the title and the $250,000 cash prize. Nate Berkus hosts "Beach Home."

8 p.m. on 3 5 24
National Memorial Day Concert

Gary Sinise and Joe Mantegna return to host this tribute to service members and veterans, airing from the West Lawn of the Capitol. A special salute to World War II veterans is planned to mark the 70th anniversary of D-Day, while the broadcast itself also celebrates a birthday: its 25th. Singers Megan Hilty and Jackie Evancho and actress Dianne Wiest are among the other stars slated to appear.

10:01 p.m. on (LIFE)
Devious Maids

Marisol (Ana Ortiz) uncovers more information about Opal (Joanna Adler) in this new episode. Rosie's (Dania Ramirez) efforts to help Lucinda (Kimberly Hebert Gregory) only aggravate the strife in the Miller family. Carmen (Roselyn Sanchez) gets ready for a performance, Zoila (Judy Reyes) goes on a date, and Genevieve (Susan Lucci) meddles in Ethan's relationship with Valentina.

LEADING EDGE DENTAL!

All Aspects of Dentistry in one Friendly Location Specializing in Seniors

Proudly celebrating 20 YEARS in Leesburg.

- IV Sedation (Sleep through your dental work)
- Extractions
- Immediate Dentures
- Implants

Now I can eat what I want, worry free!

"I have been to many dentists regarding my lower denture and the pain I was having. Some said I would need major surgery. Others stated that there was absolutely nothing they could do. I had no bone to work with, so no improvement could be made to my denture. When I found Dr. Vaziri, he stated there was an implant procedure that would be just right for me. I was amazed. The procedure took 30 minutes, and Dr. Vaziri and his staff made me feel like family from the very beginning. They are caring and truly have the patient's care at heart. I ate soft food that night and the next day I was back to my normal diet.

SUNDAY

6 p.m. on (FAM)

Movie: Zookeeper

More or less a variation on "Doctor Dolittle," this 2010 comedy casts Kevin James as the title character, whose decision to seek another job — prompted by a desire to improve his love life — panics the talking animals who have been in his care. They conspire to keep him around, and if they sound familiar, there's good reason: Voices are supplied by Adam Sandler (also one of the film's producers), Cher, Sylvester Stallone and Nick Nolte.

SUNDAY

12 p.m. on (TBS)

Movie: Sky High

If you think it's easy to be the child of superheroes, ask the young man (Michael Angarano) who's in that situation in this comedy-fantasy from Disney. Kurt Russell and Kelly Preston play his super-powered dad and mom, who aren't aware that he may lack their abilities as he enters a special school. A villain's reappearance forces him to rise to the occasion. Co-stars include Lynda Carter, Danielle Panabaker and Bruce Campbell.

TUESDAY

2 p.m. on 24

Cyberchase

In "Problem Solving in Shangri-La," Hacker holds the team captive aboard the Grim Wreaker, which is forced by a storm to land on a mountaintop. Taken prisoner by a mysterious Zen Master, the youths are faced with a game of strategy that only allows the winner freedom.

4:05 p.m. on (DISN)

Movie: Teen Beach Movie

Faced with leaving the beach she loves, young surfer Mack (Maia Mitchell) goes out to ride one last wave with her boyfriend, Brady (Ross Lynch). A storm transports the couple back to 1962 and into a beach movie, where they're in for a bit of culture shock. Garrett Clayton and Grace Phipps also star in this tuneful, tween-friendly 2013 confection from the Mouse House.

WEDNESDAY

8 p.m. on (TCM)

Movie: My Man Godfrey

A madcap debutante learns some of the finer points of life from an Austrian diplomat posing as her butler in this uneven 1957 remake of a 1936 screwball classic, with June Allyson and David Niven stepping into the stylish shoes of Carole Lombard and William Powell from the original. Jessie Royce Landis, Eva Gabor and Martha Hyer co-star.

FRIDAY

6:40 a.m. on (HBO)

Movie: Muppets From Space

Muppet Gonzo (voice of Dave Goelz) discovers secret messages in his cereal and becomes convinced that he's an alien. While trying to make contact with his alien family, he is captured by a secret government agent (Jeffrey Tambor) bent on uncovering the existence of extraterrestrials. It's up to Kermit (voice of Steve Whitmire) to save the day. Brian Henson, Frank Oz and Jerry Nelson provide additional Muppet voices. Rob Schneider also makes an appearance.

8:30 a.m. on 3 5 24

The Cat in the Hat Knows a Lot About That!

In this episode, a swimming lesson with a mother manatee and her son teaches Nick and Sally the importance of keeping them safe from boats in "Manatees and Mermaids." After the Cat eats the two chocolates that the kids planned to give their moms, he takes them to the Cocoalicious Forest, where they learn how the sweet treat is made in "The Last Chocolate."

10 a.m. on (NICK)

Dora the Explorer

A new friend joins the cast when Dora hangs out with her cousin in "Meet Diego." Diego works at an animal rescue center, can talk to wild animals, and has a bond with Baby Jaguar. When his feline pal gets stuck near a waterfall, Diego sets off to save her, making a menagerie of friends along the way.

SATURDAY

1:30 p.m. on (FAM)

Movie: Tuck Everlasting

A young woman must decide between love and life in this 2002 adaptation of the Natalie Babbitt novel. Alexis Bledel ("Gilmore Girls") stars as Winnie Foster, a teenager who meets and falls in love with Jesse (Jonathan Jackson), not knowing the dangerous secret his family has. William Hurt, Sissy Spacek and Ben Kingsley co-star.

8 p.m. on (TCM)

Movie: My Fair Lady

It's "loverly," indeed. This winner of eight Oscars stars Audrey Hepburn as Eliza Doolittle, a Cockney flower girl who catches the eye of Henry Higgins (Rex Harrison), professor of linguistics. He bets he can pass her off as a lady. Jeremy Brett ("Sherlock Holmes") plays a love-struck beau; Stanley Holloway and Wilfrid Hyde-White also star in this 1964 version of Lerner and Loewe's stage smash, inspired by George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion."

TUESDAY'S BEST BETS

Freddy Rodriguez

8 p.m. on 13 35 51

I Wanna Marry Harry

He's not a prince; he just plays one on TV — sort of. In this new dating series, 12 American women compete for the affections of an ordinary Englishman who's been made over to pass as a member of the upper crust. It certainly doesn't hurt that he bears a striking resemblance to Prince Harry himself.

8 p.m. on 20 28

Extreme Weight Loss

Severely obese people get the chance to lose pounds and gain their lives back as this series begins its fourth season. Trainer Chris Powell returns to guide them on their journeys, and his wife and fellow trainer, Heidi, who worked mainly behind the scenes in seasons past, will have more of an on-camera role this season. In the premiere, two participants go head to head for the first time — former dancer Charita and aspiring baseball player Ty.

9 p.m. on 3 5 24

D-Day 360

Cutting-edge LIDAR technology re-creates the events of June 6, 1944, when tens of thousands of Allied troops stormed the beaches of France while others were dropped behind German lines. It focuses on the pivotal events along a five-mile stretch of beach over a five-hour period, moving between the big picture and the faces of individual soldiers.

10:01 p.m. on 2 8

The Night Shift

A hospital after hours is the setting for this new drama series. Eoin Macken ("Merlin") stars as Dr. TC Callahan, a military veteran with a rebellious streak. Ken Leung ("Lost") and Brendan Fehr ("Roswell") play his two closest colleagues. Freddy Rodriguez and Jill Flint also star.

WEDNESDAY'S BEST BETS

Matthew Gray Gubler

8 p.m. on 13 35 51
So You Think You Can Dance

Season 11 of the competition brings a new crop of dancers hoping to impress the judges and the home audience and jump-start their careers. Cat Deeley returns as host, and Mary Murphy and Nigel Lythgoe are back to judge the contestants with a little help from special guest judges.

8:30 p.m. on (FAM)
Baby Daddy

Emma (Ember and Harper Husak) is ready to take her first steps, but Ben (Jean-Luc Bilodeau) can't get her to do it before he has to go to work. As soon as he's out the door, however, Emma is off and running — er, toddling — toward Danny (Derek Theler). As he and Bonnie, Tucker and Riley (Melissa Peterman, Tahj Mowry, Chelsea Kane) discuss what to do next, they reflect on how their lives have changed since Emma arrived in the new episode "Baby Steps."

9 p.m. on 6 10
Criminal Minds

A boy's disappearance from his St. Louis home has Rossi (Joe Mantegna) and his colleagues revisiting a similar case from the past in search of clues. Doug Savant ("Melrose Place," "Desperate Housewives") and Marika Dominczyk ("Brothers & Sisters") guest star as the missing boy's parents in "The Caller"; Matthew Gray Gubler and Shemar Moore also star.

9 p.m. on (SPIKE)
One Night Only: An All-Star Comedy Tribute to Don Rickles

The granddaddy of insult comedy is on the receiving end of praise — and probably a few good-natured barbs, too — for his long career. Among those gathered to honor Rickles in this new special are David Letterman, Jerry Seinfeld, Jon Stewart, Robert De Niro and Martin Scorsese.

CELEBRITY PIPELINE

It's Crystal clear: The biggest of his movies

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Billy Crystal

Q: I liked seeing Billy Crystal in "700 Sundays" on HBO. Which of his movies has made the most money? — Brian Henry, Oklahoma City

A: If you include films involving only his voice, the clear topper is "Monsters, Inc." ... which, as of the time this tally was taken, had grossed a few million shy of $300,000,000. "Monsters University" came in second with close to $270,000,000; the rest of his Top 5 are (in descending order) "City Slickers," "Analyze This" and, somewhat surprisingly, "America's Sweethearts." No. 6 was "When Harry Met Sally."

Q: I've read that Megan Boone was on "Blue Bloods" before she started "The Blacklist," but I can't place her character. Which part did she play? — Jennifer Scott, Chattanooga, Tenn.

A: In Season 3, she appeared in four episodes as Candice McElroy, one of the partners Detective Danny Reagan (Donnie Wahlberg) had after the departure of Jennifer Esposito as Detective Jackie Curatola. Another Megan, namely Megan Ketch, preceded Boone for several episodes as Detective Kate Lansing. Later in Season 3, Marisa Ramirez originated the role of Detective Maria Baez, and she's remained as Reagan's partner since.

Q: I was troubled by the season finale of "The Following." Will there be more episodes to resolve that last scene? — Jim Stark, Clifton, N.J.

A: Yes, there will be more. Fox renewed the series for a third round even before Season 2 ended ... and in the same way that threads from the show's first year played heavily into the second, you can expect that a similar path will be taken in moving from the second year into the third.

CELEBRITY SCOOP

Checking in with Ron Funches

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

The laugh is frequent, high-pitched, contagious and most of all, surprising.

It erupts from Ron Funches, a really big African-American man, and he describes it as "sounding like an Asian princess."

Funches plays Shelly in NBC's latest comedy, "Undateable," premiering Thursday, May 29. Bill Lawrence ("Scrubs," "Spin City," "Cougar Town") and Adam Sztykiel ("Due Date") created a show about a bunch of guys who need remedial help in dating.

The series is set in Detroit, where Shelly is the city's biggest sports booster and wears only clothing with sports insignia. He does not seem to have demands on his time, such as a job.

"Shelly is currently independently wealthy," Funches says. "He works in music. I don't know what capacity, but he is second generation."

Considering the show is set in Detroit, it's not inconceivable that Shelly might be Motown royalty.

"He just hangs out," Funches says. "I think it explains some of his weirdness. He has never had to work."

So Shelly hangs out and roots for Detroit teams. Funches describes himself as a "medium sports fan, and it would not be Detroit teams. I like the Bulls, the Bears — Chicago. It kind of hurts my heart sometimes how much I have to (root for) Detroit."

Funches spent his childhood in Chicago, then his family moved to Salem, Ore., and he now lives in Los Angeles. Unlike Shelly, Funches has worked a whole lot of jobs over the years, including grocery store cashier, a faux Lady Liberty to lure customers into tax preparers' offices, and at a cannery.

He and a friend were working the graveyard shift at a cannery when they were watching wrestling one night. They decided to finish watching rather than clock in. When told that sounds very much like something Shelly would do, Funches lets loose with his raindrops-on-silver-bells-on-unicorns laugh.

First knew you were funny: "When I was about 5. I remember one time my mother grounded me and my sister, and we were making jokes and making fun of my mom and other family members. And then I could hear, on the other side of the door, my mom listening to me and laughing, and she didn't get mad at me."

THURSDAY'S BEST BETS

Chris D'Elia

9:01 p.m. on 2 8

Undateable

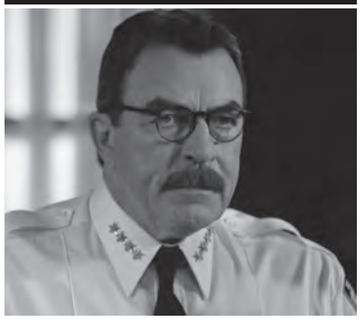
Bar owner Justin (Brent Morin) and his oddball friends Shelly, Brett and Burski (Ron Funches, David Fynn, Rick Glassman) haven't had much luck getting dates. That could change when Justin's new roommate, Danny (Chris D'Elia), decides to take them under his wing. Danny's older sister, Leslie (Bianca Kajlich), joins him on his mission to help the guys make love connections in this new sitcom.

9:31 p.m. on 6 10

Bad Teacher

Meredith (Ari Graynor) volunteers to help Ginny (Kristin Davis) finish the yearbook, but they risk missing the deadline when Ginny is suddenly dumped — and understandably distracted. Kim fails her teacher's exam and gets some help from Principal Carl in studying for a retake.

FRIDAY'S BEST BETS



Tom Selleck

8 p.m. on 20 28
Shark Tank

A former football player pitches his mobile fitness company aimed at youngsters, a "wall doctor" offers a remedy for holes in walls, a couple demonstrate their solution for smartphone photo overload, and a Washington, D.C., man shows off his webcam privacy shield. Also in this episode, the Sharks check back in with the three men whose line of nut butters Robert and Mark invested in during Season 4.

9 p.m. on 18 44
Hart of Dixie

Zoe (Rachel Bilson) has spent the summer in New York and is ready to stay there, but she has some loose ends to tie up in BlueBell, where only Lavon (Cress Williams) is happy to see her. Hoping for a good reference, she agrees to help Brick (Tim Matheson) find George (Scott Porter) and try to get the Founders Day parade reinstated. She asks Lemon (Jaime King) for help and learns a dirty secret.

10 p.m. on 2 8
Crossbones

Set in the 1700s, this new adventure series stars John Malkovich as the legendary pirate Edward Teach — aka Blackbeard — who rules over an island of outlaws and covets an invention called the longitude chronometer. His pirates face a formidable obstacle in their quest to get their hands on it: English spy Tom Lowe (Richard Coyle). They manage to capture him and bring him to Blackbeard's island, where things get interesting.

10 p.m. on 6 10
Blue Bloods

Jamie (Will Estes) comes under scrutiny after a gangbanger he chased away is fatally injured. Baez (Marisa Ramirez) goes under cover to investigate a drug dealer who's working out of a gym — and who's engaged to an ex-girlfriend of Danny's (Donnie Wahlberg). Tom Selleck and Bridget Moynahan also star in "Growing Boys."

A long day in Albuquerque at 'The Night Shift'

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

Outside, it's a cool mid-October day in Albuquerque, N.M., but inside, it's all Texas for visiting press. NBC's new medical drama "The Night Shift" is in production for its Tuesday, May 27, premiere, and the financially strapped San Antonio Memorial Hospital has come to life inside a soundstage.

The operating rooms may be a bit spacious, everything's rather clean, and one of the supply cabinets is illuminated in a particularly "X-Files" shade of green — and one storage bin is inexplicably labeled "VICE GRIP" — but if one didn't know better (or look up), it's easy to forget that it's not actually a hospital emergency room.

Created by Gabe Sachs and Jeff Judah, "The Night Shift" focuses on Dr. TC Callahan (Irish actor Eoin Macken), who has just finished three grueling tours of duty as a combat surgeon in Afghanistan. He lands in San Antonio, along with best pal Topher (Ken Leung), an ER specialist who helped soldiers injured in battle, and Army doctor protege Drew (Brendan Fehr).

TC's new boss on the 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift is his ex-girlfriend, Dr. Jordan Alexander (Jill Flint), whose new fiance, trauma surgeon Dr. Scott Collins (Scott Wolf), arrives from Dallas for a visit and sticks around for a while on the day shift.

Also on the team are new doctors Paul (Robert Bailey Jr.) and Krista (Jeananne Goossen), psychiatrist Dr. Landry de la Cruz (Daniella Alonso), and seasoned nurse Kenny (JR Lemon).

Presiding over the facility is Michael Ragosa (Freddy Rodriguez), who works the administrative side of medicine — and frequently works TC's last nerve.

And, according to TC's real-life alter ego, that's not especially hard to do.

"He's actually dark," says Macken, settled into a couch in a lounge that features a basket of stuffed animals (Lemon and Fehr, in particular, seemed to enjoy a little furry cuddle during some group interviews). "I like the darkness part of it. He's actually a deeply flawed character.

Jill Flint stars in "The Night Shift," premiering Tuesday on NBC.

"He's quite emotive, but when he is, it's quite extreme. He's got this disruption. There's a very fragmented psyche, which is fun, but he's also quite charismatic, so I'm not walking around playing this morose guy. So he's actually quite fun.

"A lot of it comes from his past, to do with family and relationships. For TC ... every single person he saves becomes a very personal project, because he has to save everybody.

"In a way, doing that abdicates him of any kind of guilt he has from aspects of his past, which makes him a wonderful doctor but makes everything very extreme. It can be tiring, but it also means there are a lot of places to go with it, which is fun."

SATURDAY'S BEST BETS

Jon Lovitz

8 p.m. on 6 10
Mike & Molly

After being shot on duty, Mike (Billy Gardell) resolves to live every day as if it were his last one on Earth — which has him considering some big changes. How big? He's thinking about leaving the police force, for starters. Melissa McCarthy and Reno Wilson also star in "They Shoot Asses, Don't They?"

8 p.m. on 20 28
Bet on Your Baby

Starting a new season tonight, this game show, hosted by comic actress and working mom Melissa Peterman ("Reba," "Baby Daddy"), features families competing to see how well they can predict their toddlers' next moves. At stake is cash for the kiddies' college funds.

8:30 p.m. on 6 10
Friends With Better Lives

Kate (Zoe Lister-Jones) discovers after the fact that the guy she just slept with (Nick Zano, "2 Broke Girls") is a male prostitute and tries to find a way to take it back. A rat is running loose in Bobby and Andi's (Kevin Connolly, Majandra Delfino) attic. Will (James Van Der Beek) can't find his jacket and suspects Lowell (Rick Donald) of stealing it in "Pros and Cons."

9 p.m. on 20 28
Sing Your Face Off

Five celebrities perform as iconic musical artists in this new competition. From makeup to mannerisms — and, of course, the voice — each participant undergoes a total transformation before taking the stage. The premiere features Sebastian Bach of Skid Row as Adam Levine, basketball's Landry Fields as Lionel Richie, actor-comedian Jon Lovitz as Elton John, actress China Anne McClain as Rihanna and soap star Lisa Rinna as Dolly Parton.
