14-year-old boy drowns in Lake Schimmerhorn

Officials have found the body of 14-year-old boy who was on a boat with his brother and another man on Lake Schimmerhorn when it capsized Thursday, according to the Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission. The boy was identified by his mother as Nathaniel Ladesic, an upcoming Umatilla Middle School eighth-grader.

"He was a good son, he was a sweetheart, " said the mother, Bridget Ladesic, who called her sons' recently acquired boat a "piece of junk."

FWC spokesman Greg Workman said the three young boaters were on the lake Thursday afternoon. For unknown reasons, the boat capsized.

Eli Ladesic, 17, said he, his brother Nathaniel and a friend had just got the old boat and were testing it when the boat suddenly started to take on water.

The three boaters tried to swim to shore, but Nathaniel couldn't keep up and cried for help. The two others made it to shore and went door-to-door looking for help, Workman said.

Sgt. James Vachon, sheriff's spokesman, said his agency received a call about 4:15 p.m. Thursday from a resident on Sunset Drive in Astor, who said a person came

Report cards sent out

District officials see challenges in improving local school grades

LIVI STANFORD | Staff Writer
livi.stanford@dailycommercial.com

The Florida Department of Education's recent release of its annual report card for all school districts alarmed some educators in Lake County, while others said the backward slide by some schools simply reflects a statewide trend.

Five schools in the district received an F. None did the previous year.

Officials said the number of F's statewide have increased, in part because teachers were phasing in the new Florida Standards, while evaluating students on the old standards on the annual Florida Comprehensive Assessment Tests.

In addition, this is the third year the FDOE has implemented the one letter-grade drop protection to allow districts to drop one letter grade, preventing some from failing.

Statewide, there were 178 F schools, an increase of 72 from the previous year.

Even so, school officials say more community involvement and instructional tutoring is needed to help struggling students in those failing schools.

Former police chief denies he assigned officers to join Klan

MILLARD K. IVES | Staff Writer
millardives@dailycommercial.com

Former Fruitland Park police chief Mark Isom is denying assertions he assigned two officers to join the Ku Klux Klan in an undercover operation to determine if a fellow officer was a member, according to a copy of a recording and transcript of a police interview released Thursday.

Ann Hunnewell, who left the department as a secretary in 2010, told state investigators that, sometime between 2008 and 2009, she and her then-husband, George Hunnewell, "successfully infiltrated" the United Northern and Southern Knights chapter of the Klan at the direction of then-police chief Isom, after he was told officer James Elkins allegedly was a member.

"At no time did I ever instruct or have anybody working undercover or infiltrating a Klan organization while I was chief," said Isom in an interview with the current chief on July 10.

Last week, George Hunnewell, a corporal, already considered

GRADES

School, Humanities and Fine Arts Charter School and Lake Virtual Instructional program each received an F this year.

In addition, 14 schools showed letter-grade declines.

Overall, 13 percent of Lake's schools had A's, 21 percent had B's, 41 percent had C's, 13 percent had D's and 13 percent had F's, according to the report card.

School officials pointed to the increase in A schools. Windy Hill Middle School, Sorrento Elementary School and Lost Lake Elementary moved up to receive the highest grade.

By comparison, many Central Florida counties had far greater percentages of A schools this year: 70 percent of Flagler schools earned A's, up from 33 percent last year; 57 percent earned A's in Seminole; 51 percent in Brevard; 44 percent in Orange; 26 percent in Osceola; and 24 percent in Volusia, according to a press release from the Florida Department of Education.

School Board Member Tod Howard said the failing schools were not acceptable in the district.

"The schools that had the greatest challenges have a very high percentage of free and reduced lunch," he said. "The schools alone can't fix the underlying problems. It is going to take an effort from city, county, faith-based organizations, civic organizations and the school system in order to refloat these communities."

Those failing grades not only affect the students, but economic development as a whole, Howard said.

"You are not going to get high-skill wage jobs in a community with failing schools," he said.

Howard pointed to Superintendent Susan Moxley as a factor in the declining grades.

At a July 7 School Board meeting, Howard had proposed a superintendent search to replace Moxley, but School Board members, in a 3-2 vote, rejected the idea.

Howard cited the dismantling of leadership teams in the schools as a contributing factor to the school grades.

"For me, it is not just five F's," he said, adding there are also five D's.

"We need to do better," he said. "At the end of the day, those grades are a reflection of the choices the district has made."

But David Christiansen, the district's chief academic officer, said the increase in F's is a trend statewide.

"The grading system has gotten more complex and more challenging every year," he said. "Sometimes kids can perform at the same level, but if you change the bar it looks like they are not doing as well."

Stuart Klatte, president of the Lake County Education Association, said he had problems with the state's grading system.

"It is a bad policy," he said. "It does not always measure from year to year accurately. It is a bad way of measuring schools."

However, Cheryl Etters, FDOE spokeswoman, said neither the grading system nor the scoring has changed.

Christiansen said it has been hard for students to acclimate to a new educational standard.

"We are trying to get ready for the new Florida Standards while testing in the old standards," he said. "We are trying to ride two or three horses."

Asked about letter grade declines, Christiansen said numerous schools also improved.

"Eight out of 10 middle schools made significant improvements," he said.

According to the FDOE, "school grades utilize a point system (where) schools are awarded points for students who score satisfactory or higher and/or make annual learning gains."

But Howard said even if there are improvements in points, at the end of the day the grade is still the same.

Speaking in support of the superintendent, School Board member Rosanne Brandeburg said Moxley is bringing forward a plan to address the issue.

Additional resources may be needed to address it, she said.

"When we have schools that are struggling, we have to give them additional resources in order to see them succeed," she said.

The community must also help the schools, according to Leesburg Elementary's new principal, Patrick Galatowitsch.

"We are not just an individual entity set apart from the community," he said. "We are part of the fabric of our community."

Galatowitsch said he is still assessing the factors leading to the school's F grade but remained confident the school would improve.

He said he is hoping to fill 23 vacancies in the school in the coming weeks.

"I have talked to a number of the teachers and there is a very positive perspective on the fact that even though we are a F school we believe strongly we are going to change that circumstance," he said. "We know we need across the board improvements in all subject areas."

Galatowitsch said he was hiring teachers to enhance small-group instruction for struggling children.

Overall, in the district there are 60 staff who will be trained as academic tutors to support students in the classroom and small-group instruction in reading and math, Christiansen said.

School officials acknowledge the new Florida Standards are more complex, challenging students.

"We need to write every day and it needs to be integrated in everything we do," Christiansen said. "We have worked with teachers in building curriculum, scope and sequence that has reading, writing, speaking and listening and academic language built into it."

a "marginal employee," was terminated and Deputy Chief David Borst resigned after being confronted with an FBI report and a Florida Department Law Enforcement investigation stating that they were Klan members.

In an investigation sparked by an informant alerting the FBI that Hunnewell and Borst were Klan members, Ann told FDLE investigators said Isom was the only person who knew about the undercover operation. Hunnewell added the couple told Isom they had been sworn in and confirmed Elkins' membership when his wife at the time, Pam Elkins, revealed to the media that her husband was in the Klan.

"(My) ex-husband did not share the KKK ideology but agreed to join in the spirit of the undercover operation," Ann told FDLE investigators.

Isom said that, apart from Elkins, he was unaware of any of his officers being involved in the Klan.

"When this (the Elkins story) broke, each officer was brought in and talked to individually, and at that point in time everybody told me that they did not have any involvement in it and they didn't want any involvement in it, so I was to believe that nobody was a part of it."

The FDLE report adds Ann was unable to provide any documentation of the couple's undercover work. Isaacs said Thursday he was unable to confirm her story.

Officials with the State Attorney's Office, who reviewed the report for possible criminal charges, said it is not a crime for an officer to be a Klan member, but it does hinder their credibility. Isaacs also has pointed out is against department policy to be a member of a "subversive organization."

Isaacs said there are about 20 cases Hunnewell investigated remaining to be prosecuted and about 5 of them could be affected by the Klan allegations.

Elkins eventually resigned in 2009 after the Klan allegations surfaced.

Isom retired as the city's police chief in 2010 after FDLE charged him with official misconduct on allegations he used fake college diplomas from a bogus university to get incentive pay from the city.

having "mental health issues." Police said with his parents on the scene, Jones was "extremely" talkative, but "was talking nonsense and not making any sense" and said something about "white devils" and the "power of God."

The report adds Jones said he was off his medication, was depressed and he missed his dog Remi, who had recently passed away.

During the Dec. 20 incident, Jones also kept telling officers to shoot him before they used a stun gun on him three times as he resisted being taken to a mental health facility.

Police Lt. Jason Paynter said Thursday that while they are aware of mental issues that were associated with 32-year-old Jones, they have not found any record of previous violence between him and members of the family he beat to death. Shannon Ratliff, 42, Jones' live-in girlfriend, died at the scene, and Mavis Ratliff, 66, her mother, died later at a hospital. Eddie Ratliff, 51, Shannon's brother, died at a hospital on Wednesday.

"We are still trying to determine what led to Monday's attack, Paynter said.

Paynter said he believes Shannon Ratliff and Jones had been together for 10 years, and there was nothing to indicate any prior violence between the two. A man who lives beside the brownish-colored duplex the couple shared, told the Daily Commercial on Tuesday that the couple argued a lot but he, too, was unaware of any violence between the two.

Police responded to the home Monday after receiving at least two 911 calls, one from Eddie Ratliff's supervisor that Eddie was going to the home to assist his sister, who was being beaten by Jones. Police also received a 911 call that Jones was attacking Eddie Ratliff as well as his mother, Mavis.

When police Cpl. Michael Woods confronted Jones in front of the home near a van Monday, Jones had the bat in his hands and splotches of blood on his shirt. The officer said the suspect dropped the bat, dared him to tase him and took off running.

Paynter said the officer chased the suspect around the van only to stop after finding Eddie and Ratliff lying on the ground. He opted to render them assistance as Jones darted across the street.

Officers found Shannon, 42, bludgeoned to death in the living room.

Jones was found dead, floating in a nearby lake.

Man arrested in driveway on sixth DUI charge

A Leesburg man, whose car was parked in a driveway, was charged with his sixth DUI on Wednesday after allegedly performing poorly on a series of sobriety tests.

Christian D. Price, 46, remained in the Lake County Jail Thursday in lieu of $10,000 bail.

According to an arrest affidavit, Leesburg police noticed Price sitting in the driver's seat of a running vehicle about 11:30 p.m. Wednesday that was parked in the driveway of a Stinson Street home that was known for "illegal drug activity."

The officer approached Price and allegedly could smell alcohol on his breath and noticed his eyes were glassy and bloodshot. Price was asked to get out the car to take sobriety tests.

The affidavit adds Price had already been arrested on DUI charges five times in Georgia, in 1993, 1994, twice in 1995 and in 2005.

Deputies, K-9 unit pursue one-legged man

Lake County deputies and a K-9 unit were sent to a wooded area on Wednesday to catch a one-legged man after he allegedly escaped during a pursuit.

According to an arrest affidavit, sheriff's deputies showed up Wednesday at the home of Charles Wayne Pike, who was wanted on warrants for dealing in stolen property and driving with a suspended license.

Deputies said after arriving at the Reds Lane home, Pike's father told them his son was in his room putting on his prosthetic leg. After a few minutes, the father checked on his son, only to find that Pike had climbed out of a window.

The affidavit added deputies went to the back of the home where they spotted Pike. He refused to stop and headed into the woods.

Several patrol deputies and a K-9 unit were called to look for him and eventually discovered Pike about one mile from his home.

Pike was arrested on resisting arrest charges, as well as fraud charges for pawning items. He remained in the Lake County Jail Thursday in lieu of $12,000.

Two wanted after pizza delivery man shooting

MILLARD K. IVES | Staff Writer
millardives@dailycommercial.com

A pizza delivery man was shot in the face during a robbery in Wildwood early Thursday and Sumter County deputies are looking for two suspects.

The victim, 46-year-old Jack Sickman, of Lake Panasoffkee, was found just after midnight lying outside the open driver's side door of his white Dodge Ram 1500 truck with a Domino's pizza sign on top.

Sickman remains in stable condition at Ocala Regional Medical Center, according to the Sumter County Sheriff's Office.

The shooting occurred in the area of County Roads 462 and 235 in the Royal community.

Lt. Bobby Caruthers, sheriff's spokesman, said Sickman told investigators he was making a delivery when he saw two men, whose faces were covered with bandannas.

One of the suspects was armed with a rifle.

One man demanded money and when Sickman refused, he said the suspect shot through the driver's side window, striking him in the face.

Caruthers added the bullet went through Sickman's cheek and the injury isn't life-threatening.

The suspects then allegedly pulled the victim from the truck and took an

Circuit Judge strikes same-sex ban in Florida Keys

CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press

MIAMI — A judge ruled that gays can marry in Florida's most gay-friendly county, siding Thursday with same-sex couples in the Florida Keys who challenged a voter-approved ban as discriminatory. But an immediate state appeal quickly silenced their wedding bells.

Circuit Judge Luis M. Garcia said same-sex couples could get marriage licenses as early as Tuesday in Monroe County, but Republican Attorney General Pam Bondi said the voters' will must be respected. An overwhelming majority approved a constitutional amendment in 2008 that defines marriage as a union solely between one man and one woman. Her notice of appeal creates an automatic stay that prevents any same-sex marriage licenses from being issued, her office said.

Garcia, appointed by Republican Gov. Jeb Bush in 2000 and re-elected twice since then, invoked other moments in American history when the courts had to guarantee the civil rights of minorities. He said Florida's ban violates the 14th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, which guarantees equal protection under the law.

"The court is aware that the majority of voters oppose same-sex marriage, but it is our country's proud history to protect the rights of the individual, the rights of the unpopular and the rights

The ministries' vision is to have land donated where they can build a community center to house single moms and their children as they go through a two-year mentorship program to help them get on their feet, and become more empowered to stand on their own.

"Our goal is to become a single-mom ministry for all of Lake County," Mydlo said. "My prayer is that the community will come and hear our mission and vision and prayerfully want to walk alongside us and minister to the women at the Vineyard as a community."

Broadway said Charles caught wind of The Vineyard's vision through her local agent, who attends church at Unforsaken Ministries, where Broadway is the worship coordinator. That's when Charles donated her time and vocal chords to help spread the word about the project, Broadway said.

Crist picks local chair of Democrats as running mate

MICHAEL J. MISHAK and BRENDAN FARRINGTON
Associated Press

MIAMI — Republican-turned-Democrat Charlie Crist chose Miami-Dade County Democratic Party Chairwoman Annette Taddeo as his running mate Thursday, a pick that could help him ease any doubts among the important South Florida party base that his political conversion is for real.

Taddeo, 47, also serves as a Florida Democratic Party vice chair and sits on the Democratic National Committee's executive committee. She was her party's nominee for Congress in an unsuccessful campaign against Republican incumbent Ileana Ros-Lehtinen in 2008.

Taddeo was born in Colombia to an American father and Colombian mother and spent the first 17 years of her life in the South American country. She also formed and runs her own business, LanguageSpeak, which offers translation services and tutoring in more than 240 languages.

"She truly is the American Dream come true," Crist said. "The most important thing to me is compassion and kindness. That's what we don't have now and that's what we desperately need."

Former Gov. Charlie Crist introduces Annette Taddeo-Goldstein, right, during a news conference in Miami on Thursday.

Crist was a lifelong Republican until running for Senate as an independent in 2010. He first registered as a Democrat less than two years ago. By choosing a running mate who is a leader in the party, he should provide some comfort to Democratic activists who have fought Crist in five previous statewide elections.

Taddeo said she and Crist will provide a stark contrast to Republican Gov. Rick Scott, whom she painted as an elitist dedicated to corporate interests.

Hukill, unopposed this year, already eying 2018

Staff Report

Unopposed this year, state Sen. Dorothy Hukill, R-Port Orange, has opened a campaign account to run in 2018 for another term, according to the state Division of Elections website.

Hukill filed paperwork last week as a first step toward a re-election bid in Senate District 8, which includes parts of Lake, Volusia and Marion counties.

HUKILL

While a dozen incumbent senators have opened accounts to run for re-election in 2016, Hukill is the first to do so for the 2018 elections.

Hukill was elected to the Senate in 2012 and did not draw an opponent this year. She served from 2004 to 2012 in the House.

Two weeks ago, the Florida Chamber of Commerce picked Hukill to receive a 2014 Distinguished Advocates award.

The special awards were presented to legislators "who fought for pro-jobs initiatives during the 2014 session that help make Florida's businesses more competitive and create more economic opportunities for Florida's families," according to a news release from the chamber.

Hukill was selected for championing "tax-cut legislation, including the communications services tax and sales tax on commercial leases," the chamber stated.

of the powerless, even at the cost of offending the majority," Garcia wrote.

"When Nazi supremacists won the right to march in Skokie, Illinois, a predominantly Jewish neighborhood; or when a black woman wanted to marry a white man in Virginia; or when black children wanted to go to an all-white school, the Constitution guarantees and protects ALL of its citizens from government interference with those rights," he added.

"It hit us a little bit by surprise," said attorney Bernadette Restivo, who filed suit on behalf of Aaron Huntsman and William Lee Jones, a couple for 11 years. "But it's very well written ... a thorough analysis of the argument, so we couldn't be happier."

Florida has long been a gay rights battleground. In the 1970s, singer and orange juice spokeswoman Anita Bryant successfully campaigned to overturn a Dade County ordinance banning discrimination against gays. The county commission reinstated those protections two decades later.

In 1977, Florida became the only state prohibiting all gay people from adopting children. A state court judge threw out that law in 2008, finding "no rational basis" for that ban, and two years later, the state decided not to appeal, making gay adoption legal.

Gay marriage opponents said Thursday's ruling disenfranchises nearly five million voters — the 62 percent who approved the marriage ban. Repealing the amendment would require at least 60 percent support.

"They do not have a consensus of Floridians, so they're trying to go to the courts for a quick fix. If they're going to do it, that would be the appropriate way to do — take it to the people again with another amendment. They deliberately passed on that strategy because they know that Floridians by and large support marriage between a man and a woman," Stemberger said.

Republican Gov. Rick Scott's office attempted to straddle the issue in a statement late Thursday, saying he "supports traditional marriage, consistent with the amendment approved by Florida voters in 2008, but does not believe that anyone should be discriminated against for any reason."

His Democratic challenger Charlie Crist had nothing but praise, calling the ruling "a great step toward equality in Florida" via Twitter.

The suspects were last seen running eastbound from the scene toward CR 235.

The two suspects were described as black men in their mid-20s, between 5-feet-6 and 5-feet-8 with slim builds.

Anyone with information on the armed robbery can contact Sumter sheriff's detective Brian Wilson at 352-569-1680; or CRIMELINE at 1-800-423-TIPS, where callers can remain anonymous and be eligible for a reward up to $1000.

The AWWA also awarded Leesburg runner-up honors for best tasting water in this part of Florida.

The city created its water system more than 100 years ago. The utility service area includes 26 square miles inside and outside of city limits with more than 39,000 customers served through 332 miles of water mains.

In 2012, Leesburg invested $2 million to update the water treatment plant off of U.S. Highway 27 in the Highland Lakes community. The city constructed an 800,000-gallon ground storage tank and electric pump facility. Then the old, 200,000-gallon water tower was dismantled and removed from the site.

The new facility improved water pressure needed for utility customers and for fire suppression, the release states. The plant service area was expanded from the Highland Lakes, Spanish Village and Windsong communities to now include the Legacy and Arlington Ridge communities, as well as commercial development along U.S. Highway 27.

next to her friend's driveway in an area called Sun Valley near Ocala, after returning from Applebee's restaurant around 12:30 a.m. She discovered the car missing at 9:15 a.m. and called authorities.

Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Shane Crawford found the car in a retention pond at Southwest 49th Avenue and 112th Lane. Based on evidence at the scene, Crawford said the vehicle crossed Southwest 49th Avenue off 112th Lane, hit a dirt embankment, went airborne, landed and flipped several times before landing in the retention pond.

The car's air bag was deployed, and the trooper said he noticed the ignition was not damaged. Crawford estimated the car was traveling more than twice the posted speed limit of 30 mph.

The car was towed to a truck yard, where it was inspected by Tingue.

Tingue was able to find Hanna, who had a large bruise on her left collarbone, which the detective said could be an injury from a seat belt.

Hanna told the detective she was driving to a store the night of the crash and did not see or stop at a stop sign. She said the vehicle struck a curb in the road and she lost control of the car. She said she was scared because she was in the vehicle upside down, and wasn't sure if insurance would cover the accident.

She said she then filed a false police report, authorities said.

The woman was then taken to a district office for an interview, where she declined to talk further with the detective.

Senate Dems, GOP wooing female voters

CHARLES BABINGTON
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Democratic and Republican Senators are pouring significant time and energy into pursuing female voters, a coveted prize in the Nov. 4 elections.

Wednesday's Senate vote on contraception legislation is the latest example of Democrats' win-by-losing strategy, which forces Republicans to vote on sensitive matters that might rile women this fall.

Recent votes on "pay equity" and family leave issues were similarly aimed at women, who are increasingly crucial to Democrats' election hopes, and therefore worrisome to Republicans. Any shift in women's typical turnout or Democratic tilt this fall could determine tight elections, especially for the Senate.

Republicans need to gain six Senate seats to control the chamber, and these women's issues are especially lively in the most contested states, including Colorado, North Carolina, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Both parties must cater to their ideological bases in this midterm election year, even as they woo women who don't always vote. Nearly all Republicans are opposing measures that appear likely to expand abortion access, place new requirements on employers or limit religious conservatives' rights. And Democrats overwhelmingly support abortion access, worker benefits and equal treatment of women in the workplace.

Still, Democrats approached this week's birth control debate with different tactics, depending on whether they were seeking re-election in a GOP-leaning state or in a 50-50 or Democratic-leaning state.

Democrats knew Republicans would block their bill to counter the Supreme Court's ruling involving the Hobby Lobby arts and crafts company. The court said employers may exclude birth control products from their health insurance plans if the products violate the employers' religious faith.

Many Democratic and women's groups objected. No women "should require a permission slip from their boss" for affordable contraceptives that otherwise would be covered, Sen. Patty Murray, D-Wash., said.

AP PHOTO

From left, Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., Sen. Chuck Schumer, D-N.Y., and Sen. Patty Murray, D-Wash., hold a news conference after their effort to proceed on the "Protect Women's Health From Corporate Interference Act" was thwarted on Capitol Hill in Washington on Wednesday.

Two Democrats who strongly campaigned against the court ruling are seeking re-election in states that President Barack Obama carried at least once, thanks in part to strong backing from women: Kay Hagan of North Carolina and Mark Udall of Colorado.

Minutes after all but three of the Senate's 45 Republicans voted to block the Democrats' "Not My Boss' Business" bill, Udall said his party will continue to contest a ruling that says "a boss' beliefs can supersede a woman's rights to health care benefits that she has earned."

GOP leaders defended themselves in floor speeches, press releases, TV interviews, newspaper op-eds and news conferences. Sen. Kelly Ayotte, R-N.H., said Democrats were misleading women by suggesting a Hobby Lobby employee could not buy birth control products even with her own money. "No employer can interfere with a woman employee's access to contraception," Ayotte said.

Republicans promised to push legislation guaranteeing such access.

Democrats laughed at the GOP's idea of guaranteeing people something they already have. The court ruling, Hagan said, "just shifts the additional cost back to women" who have employer-subsidized insurance from companies like Hobby Lobby. And "that could affect access" to birth control for low-income women, she said.

Other Democratic senators in tough re-election races were more cautious. Sens. Mark Pryor of Arkansas and Mary Landrieu of Louisiana were among the few Democrats who did not co-sponsor their party's bill. Pryor has said he understands the "deeply held religious views" of those who brought the Hobby Lobby lawsuit, but he disagrees with the court's ruling.

Sen. Jeff Merkley, D-Ore., enthusiastically backed the bill. His GOP challenger, Monica Wehby, is treading more lightly in a state Obama won by 13 percentage points.

The court's ruling "was very limited in scope," Wehby told reporters at the time. "As long as women have access to contraception through a third party, then I think we have to respect everyone's beliefs as much as possible."

California drought doesn't end brown lawn warnings

CHRISTOPHER WEBER and FENIT NIRAPPIL
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Laura Whitney and her husband, Michael Korte, don't know whether they're being good citizens during a drought or scofflaws.

On the same day the state approved mandatory outdoor watering restrictions with the threat of $500 fines, the Southern California couple received a letter from their city threatening a $500 penalty for not watering their brown lawn.

It's brown because of their conservation, which, besides a twice-a-week lawn watering regimen, includes shorter showers and larger loads of laundry.

They're encouraged by the state's new drought-busting, public service slogan: Brown is the new green.

The city of Glendora sees it differently.

"Despite the water conservation efforts, we wish to remind you that limited watering is still required to keep landscaping looking healthy and green," says the letter, which gives Korte and Whitney 60 days to restore their lawn.

DAMIAN DOVARGANES / AP

Michael Korte walks on his home's brown lawn in Glendora, Calif. on Thursday.

They're among residents caught in the middle of conflicting government messages as the need for conservation clashes with the need to preserve attractive neighborhoods.

"My friends in Los Angeles got these letters warning they could be fined if they water, and I got a letter warning that I could be fined for not watering," Whitney said. "I felt like I was in an alternate universe."

Despite the drought, Californians have increased their water use by 1 percent in May compared with previous years, according to a state survey of water providers. To combat perceived complacency, the state water board voted to require water agencies to adopt emergency drought plans and authorized fines of up to $500 a day for water wasters.

The board's chairwoman, Felicia Marcus, said "a brown lawn should be a badge of honor because it shows you care about your community." But several homeowners are reporting that a dried-up lawn instead attracts the wrath of their community.

Fast-growing Washington wildfire burns 2 homes

NICHOLAS K. GERANIOS
Associated Press

SPOKANE, Wash. — A fast-growing cluster of wildfires scorching north-central Washington state's scenic Methow Valley burned at least two homes Thursday, authorities said.

The Carlton Complex of fires covers 28 square miles of the valley near the town of Twisp, and is being pushed by high temperatures and strong winds.

Fire spokesman Jacob McCann also said there have been unconfirmed reports that eight other homes have burned in the four blazes that make up the complex and noted that "we have extreme fire behavior and rapid growth."

The fires have prompted the closure of Highway 20 at Loup Loup Pass, he said.

Meanwhile, another wildfire about 100 miles south chased people from nearly 900 homes as it burned near the Bavarian-themed village of Leavenworth.

The Chiwaukum Creek Fire sent a light dusting of ash over Leavenworth, where the German-style motif provides a backdrop to Oktoberfest and a Christmas tree lighting festival.

The fire's smoke plume rose 25,000 feet into the air. The blaze closed 35 miles of U.S. Highway 2, stretching from Leavenworth to Stevens Pass in the Cascade Mountains.

"There's a huge cloud of smoke above us," Don Hurst, a retired firefighter who lives just outside of Leavenworth, said Thursday morning. "The winds started to pick up a little. It's just like snowfall here with the ash coming down. It's fine ash. We're getting all this ash fall."

Residents of 860 homes have been told they should leave immediately, fire officials said. Another 800 homes were less seriously threatened.

Authorities said Thursday morning that the Chiwaukum Creek Fire has grown to more than 10 square miles. It was first detected Tuesday.

Ukraine: Pro-Russia rebels downed Malaysian plane

PETER LEONARD
Associated Press

HRABOVE, Ukraine — Ukraine accused pro-Russian separatists of shooting down a Malaysian jetliner with 295 people aboard Thursday, sharply escalating the crisis and threatening to draw both East and West deeper into the conflict. The rebels denied downing the aircraft.

American intelligence authorities believe a surface-to-air missile brought the plane down but were still working on who fired the missile and whether it came from the Russian or Ukrainian side of the border, a U.S. official said.

Bodies, debris and burning wreckage of the Boeing 777 were strewn over a field near the rebel-held village of Hrabove in the Donetsk region of eastern Ukraine, about 25 miles from the Russian border, where fighting has raged for months.

U.S. Vice President Joe Biden described the plane as having been "blown out of the sky."

The aircraft appeared to have broken up before impact, and there were large pieces of the plane that bore the red, white and blue markings of Malaysia Airlines — now familiar worldwide because of the carrier's still-missing jetliner from earlier this year.

DMITRY LOVETSKY / AP

People inspect the crash site of a plane near the village of Hrabove, Ukraine on Thursday.

The cockpit and one of the turbines lay at a distance of more than a half-mile from one another. Residents said the tail was about six miles farther away. Rescue workers planted sticks with white flags in spots where they found human remains.

There was no sign of any survivors from Flight 17, which took off shortly after noon Thursday from Amsterdam to Kuala Lumpur with 280 passengers and a crew of 15. Malaysia's prime minister said there was no distress call before the plane went down and that the flight route was declared safe by the International Civil Aviation Organization.

President Petro Poroshenko called it an "act of terrorism" and demanded an international investigation. He insisted his forces did not shoot down the plane.

Ukraine's security services produced what they said were two intercepted telephone conversations that showed rebels were responsible. In the first call, the security services said, rebel commander Igor Bezler tells a Russian military intelligence officer that rebel forces shot down a plane. In the second, two rebel fighters — one of them at the crash scene — say the rocket attack was carried out by a unit of insurgents about 15 miles north of the site.

Neither recording could be independently verified.

Earlier in the week, the rebels had claimed responsibility for shooting down two Ukrainian military planes.

President Barack Obama called the crash a "terrible tragedy" and spoke by phone with Russian President Vladimir Putin as well as Poroshenko. Britain asked for an emergency meeting of the U.N. Security Council on Ukraine.

Later, Putin said Ukraine bore responsibility for the crash, but he didn't address the question of who might have shot it down and didn't accuse Ukraine of doing so.

"This tragedy would not have happened if there were peace on this land, if the military actions had not been renewed in southeast Ukraine," Putin said.

Mexico reports first litter of wolf cubs in the wild

Associated Press

MEXICO CITY — The first known litter of Mexican gray wolves has been born in the wild as part of a three-year effort to re-introduce the subspecies to a habitat where it disappeared three decades ago, Mexican officials reported Thursday.

Mexico's National Commission for Natural Protected Areas said the wolf pups were sighted in June by a team of researchers in the western Sierra Madre mountains.

"This first litter represents an important step in the recovery program, because these will be individuals that have never had contact with human beings, as wolves bred in captivity inevitably do," the commission said in a statement.

It said the pups appeared to be doing well.

Mexico began reintroducing wolves in 2011, and the parents of this litter had been released in December with hopes they would reproduce. Authorities seldom reveal the exact location of breeding pairs in recovery programs, to protect endangered species.

The commission did not respond to requests about how many wolves now live in the wild in Mexico.

The Mexican gray wolf was almost wiped out in the U.S. Southwest by the same factors that eliminated it in Mexico: hunting, trapping and poisoning.

The last five survivors in the U.S. were captured between 1977 and 1980, and then bred in captivity.

Iranian president backs extension of nuclear talks

NASSER KARIMI
Associated Press

TEHRAN, Iran — Iran's president on Thursday backed an extension of his country's nuclear negotiations with world powers underway in Vienna, saying it would be in the "interest of all" if the talks went on past their planned July 20 deadline.

The talks aim at a deal that curbs Iran's atomic program in exchange for an end to the nuclear-related sanctions on the Islamic Republic. Negotiators have been holed up for weeks working on a plan to prevent Iran from building an atomic weapon but still letting it develop a peaceful nuclear energy program.

Facing stubborn disputes on the terms of a deal and with differences unlikely to be bridged by Sunday's deadline, both Iran and the six world powers — the five permanent U.N. Security Council members and Germany — could approve an extension. The talks could adjourn for two days before the informal deadline.

Rouhani said Iran wants an extension.

"What we seek in the talks is a win-win situation that would be in the interest of all," Rouhani said, according to the official IRNA news agency.

President Barack Obama said that progress has been made in several areas in the negotiations but that there are "still significant gaps" and more work to do to reach a deal.

Talk Show Doctor Reveals Digestion Remedy That Works Instantly!

Television host and best selling author Bryce Wylde explains how a new aloe-vera extract can make bouts of heartburn, acid-reflux, constipation, gas, bloating, diarrhea, and other stomach nightmares disappear!

By Damian Wexler,
Freelance Health Reporter

Recently, alternative medicine expert Bryce Wylde, a frequent guest on the Dr. Oz show, revealed a simple secret that amazed millions who suffer with digestion nightmares. And people haven't stopped talking about it since.

"I'd give anything to make it stop!"

That's what most people will tell you when asked about their digestive problems. "It's just horrible says Ralph Burns, a former digestion victim. I was tortured for years by my Acid-Reflux. Sometimes I'd almost pass out from the pain. My wife suffers with digestion problems too. If she eats one wrong thing, she spends hours stuck in the bathroom dealing with severe bouts of constipation or diarrhea."

FDA Warns About Popular Antacids

A recent FDA warning explained that excessive use of antacids could lead to an increased risk of hip, wrist, and spine fractures. Especially in people over the age of 50.

So when alternative medicine expert Bryce Wylde discussed an alternative on National TV, you can imagine how thrilled people were to find out they could finally get relief without having to rely on Prevecid®, Nexium®, Prilosec® and other dangerous antacids. But now, according to Wylde, your stomach problems could be over by simply drinking a small amount of a tasty Aloe Vera extract. It's as simple as that!

Finally There's Hope...

At first, the thought of drinking aloe vera might make some people back away. But in fact, this delicious "digestion cocktail" is doing amazing things for people who suffer with stomach problems --- even if they've had them for years. Here's how it works…

Stop Stomach Agony

Your stomach naturally produces acid so strong, it can dissolve an aluminum spoon in just 30 minutes! And when excess acid escapes into your esophagus, throat and stomach lining, it unleashes the scorching pain of Acid-Reflux, heartburn, ulcers and more misery. Add the problems of stress, and "all hell breaks loose."

Dr. Liza Leal, a well known expert on chronic pain management explains... "The AloeCure® can work genuine miracles. It buffers high acid levels with amazing speed. So your stomach feels completely at ease just moments after drinking it." In fact, it could wipe out stomach pain, discomfort, and frantic runs to the bathroom.

Until Now, Little Could Be Done...

But "AloeCure® can help virtually anyone. Even people with chronic stomach pain can feel better right away," says Dr. Leal. And what's really exciting is AloeCure® aids in keeping your digestive tract healthy, so intestinal distress stops coming back.

Digestion Defender #1: Balances Stomach Acid

Your first line of defense is calcium malate. This natural acid buffer instantly sends stomach acid levels plunging. And holds acid levels down so they don't return!

Digestion Defender #2: Instant, Soothing Relief

AloeCure® is brimming with polysaccharides, a "wonder" compound that gently coats the throat, esophagus and stomach, carrying instant relief to cells scorched by excess acid.

Here's What Doctors Are Saying!

AloeCure® is backed by important scientific studies that confirm... aloe calms stomach acid and allows your body to heal itself.

Dr. Liza Leal, M.D & Chief Medical Officer at Meridian Medical. says, "That's why I recommend it to patients who suffer from bouts of heartburn, Acid-Reflux, ulcers, and irritable bowel syndrome..."

Doctor recommended AloeCure® may be the most important application ever discovered for digestive health!

Dr. Santiago Rodriguez agrees. "Just two ounces of AloeCure® reduces the acids in your stomach by ten times."

Francisco DeWeever, a Certified Nutritional Microscopist, "My patients report their IBS, Crohn's, Colitis, Constipation, Acid-Reflux and a host of other digestive problems have all but disappeared."

Bryce Wylde says that pure Aloe Vera extract like AloeCure® may be the most important application ever discovered for digestive health!

Real Customer Testimonial:

For the better part of my life I purposely avoided a lot of foods. Especially ones with even a tiny bit of seasoning. Because if I didn't, I'd experience a burning sensation through my esophagus- like somebody poured hot lead or battery acid down my throat. Add to that those disgusting "mini-throw ups" and I was in "indigestion hell".

Doctors put me on all sorts of antacid remedies. But nothing worked. Or if they did, it would only be for a brief period. And then boom! My nightmare would return.

Then one day at dinner, a friend of mine said, "Why don't you try an aloe drink?" I said, "Aloe drink? Jeez. That doesn't sound good at all!" The next day he brought me a case of something called AloeCure®.

I was shocked! AloeCure® tasted pretty good too. It has a pleasant grape flavor that I actually enjoy drinking. I decided to experiment. I stopped taking the PPIs altogether and replaced it with a daily diet of AloeCure®. Then something remarkable happened - NOTHING! Not even the slightest hint of indigestion.

And here's the best part. The next day we had Italian food - my worst enemy. But for the first time in 40 years I didn't need pills or tablets to avoid indigestion. Thank you AloeCure®!

- Ralph Burns

Safe And Easy To Use

With no sugar, no stimulants, and zero calories, AloeCure® is safe, all-natural and has absolutely no side effects. It's tasty, drug-free, and simple to use. Just drink two ounces, once in the morning, and once at night, and start enjoying immediate life-changing relief!

Try It 100% Risk-Free!

The makers of AloeCure® have agreed to send you up to 6 FREE bottles PLUS 2 free bonus gifts with your order— they're yours to keep no matter what. That's enough AloeCure® for 30 days of powerful digestive relief, absolutely free!

Israel invades Gaza after Hamas rejects truce

KARIN LAUB and IAN DEITCH
Associated Press

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip — Thousands of Israeli soldiers backed by tanks invaded the Gaza Strip on Thursday, a military spokesman said, escalating a 10-day military operation to try to destroy Hamas' weapons arsenal, rocket firing abilities and tunnels used to send militants from the Palestinian territory into Israel.

The high-stakes move was compelled by Israel's growing exasperation over unrelenting rocket fire and followed the collapse of Egyptian-led efforts to broker a cease-fire. It also came after a failed attempt by 13 militants to infiltrate Israel earlier Thursday through a tunnel under the Gaza-Israel border, only to be stopped by an Israeli strike at the mouth of the tunnel.

The military said the first major Israeli ground offensive in Gaza in just over five years was open-ended and would be carried out on several fronts in the coastal strip.

"Our forces, large ground forces accompanied by massive air force support, naval forces and intelligence, are taking over targets in Gaza, operating against tunnels and terror activists and infrastructure," Israel's chief military spokesman Brig. Gen. Motti Almoz said.

He called on Gaza residents to evacuate areas where the military is operating, warning the "military is operating there with very great force."

Hamas spokesman Fawzi Barhoum said Israel "will pay dearly" for the assault. "Hamas is ready for a confrontation," he said.

An official in the Gaza security operations room reported heavy Israeli tank shelling along Gaza's border areas with Israel since 8 p.m. Thursday.

"All border areas are under fire. There is a tank shell every minute," said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity in line with briefing regulations. "There is also fire from the sea toward police checkpoints."

Residents said the northern Gaza town of Beit Lahiya came under heavy Israeli shelling. "There is the sound of tank shells all the time," said Jamal Abu Samra, 42, a farmer in the area. He said his wife, six children, four brothers and their families were huddling on the ground floor of the family home.

CDC drops the ball, and the anthrax

We're no experts on medical research. Nonetheless, we offer this humble safety tip to those who are: When conducting experiments on deadly pathogens, safety protocols must be extremely restrictive and strictly followed. Always.

It should go without saying, but amazingly, employees at the until-now-revered Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta didn't get the memo. The nation's pre-eminent medical research laboratory has been rocked by revelations of scientists' sloppy handling of anthrax and an extremely dangerous strain of the deadly bird flu. (This around the time the also highly respected National Institutes of Health found a box of smallpox vials lying around a storage area. It had been there for 60 years, but still, not a good summer for health institutions.)

Among its many functions, the CDC actually sets safety and security standards for dealing with dangerous pathogens, but its own internal investigation revealed that it has not always lived up to the standards itself. It's pretty much a miracle that people haven't been killed.

The CDC was first embarrassed by the news that dozens of laboratory employees at its headquarters might have been exposed to anthrax samples through improper handling of the deadly pathogen.

As Dr. Thomas R. Frieden, the director of the CDC, was preparing to release details of his investigation to the public, he learned that CDC workers had shipped a strain of the H5N1 avian influenza virus to a research lab run by the Department of Agriculture.

Frieden discovered that the incident — which was at least as dangerous as the anthrax mishap — occurred in late May, and while some employees knew about it, CDC's top management wasn't told until July 7.

Frieden conducted an investigation of that incident as well and last week released his report on both. It was candid and critical of senior staff members for failing to write a proper plan for the anthrax study, and it found that the agency was not prepared to respond to an employee being exposed to anthrax.

Frieden has ordered an immediate review of all protocols at the highest-security labs and plans to bring in outside experts to form an advisory group on lab safety.

Some argue that the CDC should have oversight from an agency with subpoena powers comparable to the National Transportation Safety Board. Let's see what Frieden's approach does first.

Frieden has taken responsibility and what appears to be appropriate action to fix the problems. A distinguished external advisory group should be sufficient to ensure that all labs are operated safely. That, and a little more common sense.

Are African-American voters turning against the president?

Cal Thomas
TRIBUNE MEDIA SERVICES

It may be too soon to label it a trend and there is insufficient data to confirm it, but President Barack Obama and his party may be losing their iron grip on their most loyal and enthusiastic voting bloc: African-Americans.

Last Friday in Chicago, a group of black residents of the city's South Side, staged a protest against the violent shootings that are becoming as commonplace as White Sox games at Cellular Field. It wasn't just the protest that should concern the administration and Democrats; it was the language used by some of the protesters, many of whom at the time of the president's 2009 inauguration likely joined other African-Americans in worshipping at the Obama shrine.

One woman was quoted in The Washington Times: "Mr. President, we're asking for you. You're spending billions of dollars in Texas, but we've a problem here in Chicago..."

Another said: "Today, if you look at the time we were brought here as slaves 400 years ago, we got the same results today."

In what might have been regarded as political heresy only a few years ago, something akin to denying Jesus in church, another protester seemed to suggest the president should resign if he continues to ignore the city's problems: "For the president to set aside all of these funds for immigrants and (have) forsaken the African-American community, I think that's a disgrace." Speaking to the Rebel Pundit, the man added, "He will go down as the worst president ever elected. Bill Clinton was the African-American president."

How sharper than a serpent's tooth to have such ingratitude for a former Chicago community organizer.

Blacks rightly feel jilted after pledging so much loyalty and emotion to a man they thought was one of their own. They are painfully learning that President Obama is like the fast-talking peddler of magical elixirs who promises a cure-all, then skips town before you find out you've been bamboozled. The protesters feel used and now the president and the Democrats seem to have jilted them in favor of the Hispanic vote. That's what the unbridled illegal immigration debate is all about.

Last weekend on several Sunday talk shows, Attorney General Eric Holder asserted that criticism of President Obama is, for some, borne of racism. Since the criticizers in Chicago last week were black, are they racists, or can only white critics be racists? Are those who criticize conservative and Republican African-Americans also racists or does that overused label only apply to whites who criticize black liberal Democrats?

The president's policies have made those Chicago protesters angry, not his skin color. They expected more and got far less. Part of their problem is what is shared by all who put too much faith in political leaders to solve problems, which, ultimately, only they have the power to solve.

If President Obama's policies and those of his fellow Democrats in Congress and in Chicago worked, Democrats would be boasting of their successes and ignoring critics.

Patriotism is said to be the last refuge of scoundrels, so what is playing the race card? Is that the last refuge of failed policies?

Blacks rightly feel jilted after pledging so much loyalty and emotion to a man they thought was one of their own. They are painfully learning that President Obama is like the fast-talking peddler of magical elixirs who promises a cure-all, then skips town before you find out you've been bamboozled. The protesters feel used and now the president and the Democrats seem to have jilted them in favor of the Hispanic vote. That's what the unbridled illegal immigration debate is all about.

One hundred fifty years ago the end of slavery and its consequences were just beginning. Hispanic immigrants will likely find themselves treated by most Democrats the same way African-Americans have been treated; as pawns in a never-ending game of political chess, eventually tossed aside as freely as a Bill Clinton conquest.

Amid all this, Eric Holder deals the race card ... again.

I'll tell you what the race card has become. It is the joker.

Great Floridian Triathlon recognized by magazine

PAUL BARNEY I Staff Writer
paul.barney@dailycommercial.com

A lot of factors make the Great Floridian Triathlon in Clermont one of the best in the country.

Not only does it feature challenging courses and waterfront parks, but it's family friendly as well.

So friendly in fact, Triathlete magazine named the GFT one of the top family friendly events in the nation in its August edition.

Quick, head to the newsstands.

"It's always great to have any recognition like that," said Fred Sommer, president of Sommer Sports, which oversees the race. "It makes it a lot easier. You have to have family events in order to keep them busy and interested."

Sommer said what stands

LeBron's free agency a thrill for Cavs

My phone was blowing up with texts. My Twitter feed flooded.

LeBron James is going back to Cleveland.

Wait, what?

The best basketball player on the planet is trading in South Beach for Lake Erie.

For the Cavaliers?

Seriously?

You are talking about LeBron James, right?

Okay, just checking.

That's what was going through the minds of Clevelanders — myself included — last Friday when James announced he was returning to Northeast Ohio in an essay he wrote for Sports Illustrated.

The city of Cleveland was buzzing, social media was at an all-time high and it was all SportsCenter aired.

It ended another wild free agency by James, and the week leading up to his decision was crazy, exciting and exhausting all at the same time. Crazy how one person could nearly cause Twitter to crash, exciting to see if he would actually return home, and exhausting because of how long it took, not to mention all the rumors that came with it.

Ah yes, the rumors.

He's announcing his decision on Tuesday at 7 p.m.

No, he's making a decision at 3 p.m. on Wednesday.

Or was it 3:30?

Rory McIlroy and Tiger Woods deliver with solid opening rounds at British Open

DOUG FERGUSON

HOYLAKE, England — Rory McIlroy had everything go his way Thursday in the British Open.

A lovely summer day in England with abundant sunshine and minimal wind allowed him to attack Royal Liverpool. He made half his six birdies on the par 5s and kept bogeys off his card. And on the day Tiger Woods made a promising return, McIlroy took the lead with a 6-under 66, his best score in nearly two years at a major.

Now if he can only find a way to get to the weekend.

McIlroy either set himself up for a good run at the claret jug or another dose of Friday failures. In what already has been an unusual

After break, MLB gets back to work

JAY COHEN

Sure, it was great for a couple days. The cheers for Derek Jeter. The power of Giancarlo Stanton. The excellence of Mike Trout in the American League's 5-3 victory.

Baseball's All-Star party in the Twin Cities was a long series of smiles for players and fans. But the break is over now, and the real fun begins today.

Heading into the second half of the season, there are all sorts of compelling stories from coast to coast. It could be one fun summer in California, where Oakland begins the weekend with the best record in the majors, and the Giants, Angels and Dodgers are in prime playoff position. The trade deadline is in two weeks, and the recovery of several key injured players could dramatically affect a couple of divisions.

The A's bearded collection of shaggy misfits and stars is looking for the franchise's first World Series title in 25 years. Sensing an opportunity, general manager Billy Beane got an early jump on the deadline when he acquired pitchers Jeff Samardzija and Jason Hammel in a deal with the Chicago Cubs on July 4.

The blockbuster trade created an awkward scene at the All-Star game, where Samardzija was introduced with the NL reserves and then joined his new teammates in the AL dugout.

"I'm really excited to just put all this to rest now and the sideshow that's happened right in the middle of all this," Samardzija said. "It was a great opportunity to get to know these guys more. I flew out here with them. I'm excited."

There will be no such

Are you sure it wasn't Thursday?

He's staying in Miami.

He's going back to Cleveland.

Sources: Cavaliers owner Dan Gilbert met with James last week.

Sources: Gilbert and James never met at all.

Sources: James is still upset about Gilbert's letter.

Sources: James and Gilbert have resolved their differences.

He's going to quit basketball and play wide receiver for the Browns with friend Johnny Manziel.

Okay, maybe not that last one.

In all seriousness, though, it didn't matter to the people of northeast Ohio. In the end, they got their guy back. The same guy that promised a championship to the city when he played for the Cavaliers from 2003-2010.

The same guy that broke the hearts of Cleveland fans when he jolted to Miami in July of 2010.

The same guy whose jersey they burned when he did so.

The same guy who was booed whenever he returned to Quicken Loans Arena as a member of the Heat.

And yet, one day changed all that. All was forgiven. Not forgotten, but forgiven.

The city of Cleveland, which hasn't seen a championship since the Browns in 1964, it has been waiting for this day for four years. The possibility, no matter how slim, of getting its "son" back.

"The Q" is only 40 minutes away from James' hometown of Akron.

Championship next season? Vegas thinks so.

Not five, not six, not seven … One championship will do just fine.

Why? Because it means a lot more.

James said it best in his essay:

"When I left Cleveland, I was on a mission. I was seeking championships, and we won two. But Miami already knew that feeling. Our city hasn't had that feeling in a long, long, long time. My goal is still to win as many titles as possible, no question. But what's more important for me is bringing on trophy back to northeast Ohio."

That would be some victory parade downtown.

Cleveland would be buzzing, social media would be at an all-time high, and SportsCenter would be airing it for weeks.

I'll speak for every Cavaliers fans in asking, is it basketball season yet?

out the most at this race is its close proximity to entertainment, with major Orlando tourist attractions 30 minutes away.

The Great Floridian Endurance Festival, held in October, is also a spectator-friendly event that offers three triathlons, two aqua bikes, two relays, two road races, and an open-water swim.

The GFT, which is Oct. 18 at 7:30 a.m. at Clermont Waterfront Park, includes a 2.4 mile swim, a 112 mile bike ride, and a 26.2 mile run.

"We've received very positive feedback," Sommer said. "We've established a lot of participants."

That includes more than 400 volunteers from many Central Florida civic organizations.

The swim course is in Lake Minneola, where athletes will swim two laps of a 1.2 mile course. The bike course is a three-lap course covering 112 miles. The run course is a full marathon, a three-lap course covering the South Lake Trail.

Eligibility is open to people 18 years or older on the day of the race and two or three person relay teams.

year for golf, no trend is more mysterious than Boy Wonder going from awesome to awful overnight.

Six times in his last eight tournaments, he has had a nine-hole score of 40 or higher on Friday that has taken him out of the mix.

"It's not like I've shot good scores in first rounds and haven't backed them up before," McIlroy said. "I'm used to doing that. I just haven't done it recently. We'll see what tomorrow brings and what weather it is and try and handle it as best I can.

"Hopefully," he said, "it's just one of those things and I'm able to turn it around tomorrow."

Woods also would like to keep moving in the right direction. He got off to a troubling start with two quick bogeys, nearly made another one on the fourth hole, and then looked like a 14-time major champion when he ran off five birdies in six holes toward the end of his round for a 69.

Not bad for guy who had back surgery March 31, who started taking full swings only a month ago and who had not played in a major in 11 months.

"It felt good to be back out there competing again," Woods said.

Such pristine weather — how long it lasts is the big unknown — gave just about everyone a chance to score. Matteo Manassero broke par in The Open for the first time since he was a 16-year-old amateur. He began his round by hitting into a pot bunker, blasting out to the fairway and holing out from 160 yards for birdie. He made five birdies on the back nine, three on the par 5s.

That made him low Italian — barely.

Francesco Molinari and Edoardo Molinari have games that are nothing alike, though they shot the same score. They were in a large group at 68 along with Jim Furyk, Sergio Garcia, Brooks Koepka, Shane Lowry and Adam Scott.

Scott stands out as the No. 1 player in the world, and because he was the only player in the top 10 who played in the afternoon when the wind made Hoylake tougher. Scott went out in 31 and was slowed only by two bogeys on the back nine.

Even in tame conditions, the British Open can mete out punishment — to players, to spectators and even a golf club.

Phil Mickelson was trying to get back to even par when he hooked his approach to the 18th beyond the out-of-bounds stakes down the right side of the hole and had to scramble for a bogey and a 74. He hasn't broken par at a major since winning at Muirfield last summer.

That still doesn't top the bad day of Ernie Els. His opening tee shot hit a spectator in the face, and the sight of so much blood shook the Big Easy. When he got to the green, he missed a 1-foot putt, and then carelessly tried to back-hand the next one into the hole and missed that one. The triple bogey sent him to a 79.

problem for any other players on the move this month.

Boston pitcher Jake Peavy, Philadelphia second baseman Chase Utley, San Diego closer Huston Street and New York Mets right-hander Bartolo Colon are thought to be on the market as contenders shop for that missing piece that could pay off into October.

"I guess there's a possibility for anything, but at this point I love playing in Philadelphia," said Utley, who could veto any deal.

Jeter was warmly greeted everywhere he went this week, and the Yankee captain contributed two hits to the AL All-Star win. Any chance of his final season ending in the playoffs likely depends on the return of rookie ace Masahiro Tanaka, who is out with a partially torn ligament in his right elbow. He is going through a six-week rehab program but season-ending surgery is an option. Michael Pineda also could return from a back injury to New York's battered rotation.

The Bronx is one of many spots where health is an issue for the stretch run.

The recovery of Reds sluggers Joey Votto (strained muscle above left knee) and Brandon Phillips (left thumb) and indispensable Cardinals catcher Yadier Molina (right thumb) could affect the bunched NL Central. The Pirates could get starting pitcher Gerrit Cole (tight lat muscle) in the first few weeks after the break.

"We know what we're capable of doing, and we're going to play like we've been there before, like we've done it before," said slugger Andrew McCutchen, hoping to lead Pittsburgh back to the playoffs for the second straight year. "That's what we've got to look forward to."

The strained right quadriceps of Toronto's Edwin Encarnacion and ailing back of Detroit's Victor Martinez also bears watching. Atlanta, which is battling Washington for the top spot in the NL East, could get a lift from the return of Evan Gattis after the catcher was sidelined by a bulging disk in his back.

Beyond the standings, the races for the individual honors will come into focus.

SEC Network TV launch looming; some fans in dark

JOHN ZENOR
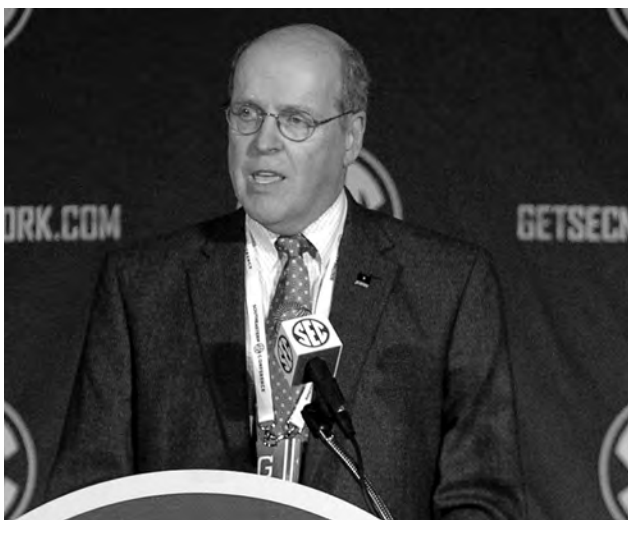
Associated Press

HOOVER, Ala. — Fan Lee Massengale is already worried about Georgia's game with Troy, even with Clemson and South Carolina coming up first.

Massengale's not sure if his cable provider will be carrying the SEC Network, which broadcasts the Sept. 20 contest with the Trojans.

Massengale, who's been following the Bulldogs since the days when Fran Tarkenton was the quarterback in the late 1950s, is among the Southeastern Conference fans waiting to see whether they'll be able to watch their teams at home. The SEC Network launches on Aug. 14 and will carry 45 football games this season.



BUTCH DILL / AP

College Football Playoff Executive Director Bill Hancock speaks to the media on Wednesday at the Southeastern Conference Media Days in Hoover, Ala.

"I want to see that game" with Troy, said Massengale, a retired family and youth counselor from Arcadia, who attended SEC media days on Wednesday. "I'm hoping and praying we'll get it."

He's not alone. Cable and satellite providers like DISH Network, Cox Communications and AT&T U-Verse have signed deals to carry the league's network. ESPN and the SEC are still in talks with other major distributors, including DirecTV and Comcast, Massengale's provider.

Justin Connolly, ESPN's senior vice president in charge of programming for college networks, said it's not unusual for such talks to go down to the wire.

"We're confident about the conversations, and our confidence is really based on the demand that's out there among SEC fans," Connolly said. "Long negotiations. Complicated issues. A lot of times these things don't come down until the very end."

But for fans like Massengale, SEC football isn't about business. It's more important than that.

The league that has won seven of the last eight national championships in football is also a huge TV draw. It helps that five of the 11 states with SEC teams don't have NFL franchises. The Alabama-Texas A&M and Alabama-Auburn games both drew more than 13.5 million viewers last season. The SEC championship game between Auburn and Missouri had an audience of 14.35 million.

Cox Communications' recent deal with the SEC Network was a relief to one prominent subscriber in Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

"Now, I won't have to change my cable provider," LSU coach Les Miles said.

It's also something Miles can pitch to prospects who want TV exposure.

"It's 24-7, it's start to finish," Miles said.

It's a benefit "when you're telling those players you want your family to see you, you want to be covered. You want an opportunity to have national awards," he said.

Joe Clayton, president and CEO of Dish, said subscriber numbers in the region have "steadily improved" since the satellite provider announced the deal with the SEC Network.

Tour leader Nibali: Doping belongs to cycling past

JAMEY KEATEN
Associated Press

SAINT-ETIENNE, France — Because of doping's ravages on cycling, it's natural for suspicion to fall on Vincenzo Nibali, who led the Tour de France on Thursday for a 10th time in 12 stages.

But Nibali says the sport has changed, doping cases have become rare, and "this theme belongs to the past."

The Italian has had a praiseworthy, almost unbreakable lock on the yellow jersey, yet he will be looking over his shoulder more on Friday. The great race enters two days in the Alps that feature uphill finishes, starting with the hardest climb that the peloton has faced so far.

Off the roads, Nibali said he expected questions about doping, a scourge of much of the last generation, for whom performance-enhancers such as blood-booster EPO or human growth hormone, and methods like blood-doping were common.

Many cycling experts say the sport has greatly cleaned up its act. On Thursday, the Sky team, which has won the last two Tours, sacked British cyclist Jonathan Tiernan-Locke after he was banned for an irregular biological passport. He was not a Tour rider, but few would say the Tour peloton was totally clean.

Doping's shadow remains at the Tour, among team staffers, and even a rider or two.

Nibali's team, Astana, was kicked out of the 2007 Tour after its star rider Alexandre Vinokourov tested positive for banned blood transfusions. He served his ban, returned to racing, and won gold at the London Olympics. Vinokourov is now Astana's general manager.

Rider Michele Scarponi who, like Nibali, won the Giro d'Italia and was racing in this Tour, was given a three-month ban in 2012 for seeing banned physician Michele Ferrari, a longtime adviser of Lance Armstrong.

Nibali says Astana has changed.

"I've chosen Astana for the possibility to build a group that I can trust to bring me at a competitive level for important races like the Giro, the Tour and the (Spanish) Vuelta," he said.

"There have been many mistakes in cycling in the past, by many riders, but they belong to the past," Nibali said. "We now have a biological passport, out-of-competition controls, controls at home ...

"Nobody can say that cycling hasn't changed. Nowadays, there is an isolated case. There's always the possibility that an idiot does something stupid ..."

One rider holds a drinking bottle with his teeth as the rest of the pack blurs in the heat haze during Thursday's 12th stage of the Tour de France, starting in Bourg-en-Bresse and finishing in Saint-Etienne, France.

Nibali, a native of Messina, Sicily, nicknamed the "Shark of the Strait" after the Strait of Messina, is trying to become only the sixth rider in history to win all three Grand Tours of France, Italy and Spain. He would also be the first Italian to win the Tour since Marco Pantani in 1998. The late Pantani was convicted in Italy of doping offenses during his career.

Giuseppe Martinelli, a cycling guru who worked with Pantani for years before they fell out, is an Astana manager.

"Thanks to him," Nibali said of Martinelli through a translator, "I became closer to the Astana team that has invested a lot in an Italian group in order to regain credibility."

To succeed Pantani, Nibali is keeping an eye out on other race contenders: Richie Porte of Australia trails by 2 minutes, 23 seconds, and Alejandro Valverde of Spain was third, 2:47 back.

The mostly flat 115.5-mile course from Bourg-en-Bresse to Saint-Etienne in southeastern France was well suited for a possible sprint finish and that's how it was won by Alexander Kristoff, a Norwegian specialist with Katusha.

American rider Andrew Talansky pulled out before the stage due to back pain from two previous crashes. A day earlier, the Garmin-Sharp leader rode for hours and finished last.

Stage 13 will put riders' legs under the most strain yet. The 123-mile trek begins in Saint-Etienne and will crescendo: It first covers a mid-sized climb and the Category 1 Palaquit pass, and finally an 12-mile ascent to Chamrousse — one of cycling's hardest climbs.

Mural panel 7 depicts a collage of Leesburg's past

We've looked at six of the eight panels making up Leesburg's history in the mural hanging on the west wall of the Leesburg Community Building in beautiful Venetian Gardens.

Panel seven offers a diversified collage of Leesburg's past with five scenes presented. I was a little baffled after reading the narrative that accompanied the painting, especially with a scene depicting a little boy on a swing. I found nothing in the script I could associate with the smiling lad. There was also a mention of Leesburg's first newspaper and first movie house, but with nothing on the painting corresponding to them that I could see.

That said, let's begin with the picture of the lady talking on an old-fashioned crank phone. If you're observant you might have noticed the calendar hanging to the left of the telephone. The year is 1886.

"The first telephone line was strung from Leesburg to Sumterville in 1886 by C.M. Knott," the script reads. "Later Dr. P.W. Butler built the first telephone exchange, which he operated until 1918, selling it to Otto Wettstein, Jr. who created the Florida Telephone Corporation."

Knott was the Clerk of the Sumter County Court. There reportedly was also a phone line from Tavares to Leesburg in 1886.

C.N. Chesshyre, long-time resident who came from England in 1882, in writing his memories for a 1922 edition of the Leesburg Commercial, said the line was strung from tree to tree with no insulation, and every one of the trees had been struck by lightning. He also mentioned the line almost never worked.

According to files in the Leesburg Heritage Museum, the first telephone exchange was built around 1900 by Dr. Butler in a structure on Orange Street owned by the city and formerly the library, now used for city business. Those humble beginnings eventually grew to become part of the Sprint/Embarq system. Butler sold his interests in 1918 to Wettstein when the Leesburg exchange had about 250 customers. In 1925, Wettstein combined his holdings to create Florida Telephone Corporation with about 500 customers.

Panel seven of the Leesburg mural is shown.

Both of Wettstein's sons entered the family business after college, and upon the elder Wettstein's death Otto Wettstein, III became president. In 1954 he left to form the North Florida Telephone Company, and was succeeded by his brother, Max Wettstein, who served until his retirement in December 1975.

The general offices of the corporation were moved to Ocala, but returned to Leesburg after a large new building was constructed on North Third Street. It opened in January 1958. A four-story addition was later constructed and designed to support an additional four floors.

In March 1974, Florida Telephone Corporation merged with United Telecommunications of Kansas City as a part of the United System of telephone service. A large building was erected at State Road 44 and South Street as a distribution center for United Telephone equipment of all kinds. The company merged with United Telephone in 1974, which later merged with Sprint, which later became Embarq.

To the left of the phone was a window from A.B. Efird's Dry Goods Store. Leesburg had plenty of shops along Main Street but this one was special because in the rear of the store was Leesburg's first public library.

The books came from the personal library of Mrs. Efird and others who donated to the cause. According to information passed down by word of mouth, the system was simple: When you took a book, you wrote the name of the volume and your own name in a notebook, and when you brought the book back, you scratched your name off the list and restored the book to the shelf.

In 1892, Mr. Efird built a new store building at the corner of Main and Fourth streets on the south side, and apparently there was no room in the new quarters for the library. But that didn't signal the end for the library.

It was really more of a new beginning because of R.F.E. Cooke. He was a banker and humanitarian who, among other properties, owned a building mid-block on the north side of Main Street between Sixth and Seventh streets. It was next to the old theater, where Ezell's Department Store was later built. Cooke donated use of this building for a library, paying with his own funds for a librarian, Mrs. Joseph Julian, the widow of Rev. Joseph Julian. He was the first rector of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church at Fruitland Park, and later at St. James in Leesburg.

The Library Association was organized, and the Leesburg Woman's club added the library to its list of civic interests in 1912. The club met in the library building and paid $1 a month to the Library Association as rent.

By 1916, however, the room had become too small for their meetings and was in bad repair, so the Woman's Club moved to other quarters. When the Woman's Club moved into their new building on South Sixth Street in 1922, now the Leesburg Heritage Museum, the club women again turned their attention to the library, and brought it back to life in a room on the lower floor of the clubhouse, next door to where the Leesburg Chamber of Commerce is now located.

The library was manned by volunteers, after Mrs. Julian, at 84, could no longer serve. Mrs. Stella Fabyan carried much of the load, with her sister, Miss Ethel.

More next week.

Create an environment for kids to become productive adults

NINA GILFERT

FROM THE PORCH STEPS

No generation so far has created the perfect environment for their children, but we keep trying. Almost all parents strive to provide this utopia.

My family doctor once laughed at me and said, "That child could grow up just fine lying right next to your garbage can. You don't have to keep her so clean." This was after he treated my baby daughter for a yeast infection. Yeast infections are caused by a lack of the bacteria necessary to control the yeast spores. In other words, balance is important in a child's environment.

When I was a child, our dad spoiled us but our mom carried a switch from the old cherry tree in the backyard. When that switch hit your bare legs you knew you had better change your ways.

Being a child of the Great Depression I grew up poor. In spite of a lack of funds, we didn't lack for the things that were really important, the things that kept our little lives in balance.

Mom was a snob but Daddy was a lover of all humans. He considered everyone deserving of love and respect. It tends to rub off on you when you live with someone like that. It even changed our mother as she got older.

The toys our dad made us were as good or better than anything he could have purchased at the fanciest toy stores. They were made special because they were made just for us and with that special love only a daddy can add. The old cherry tree in the backyard was the setting for a lot of our summer fun. We climbed it and ate its fruit, which we also picked for the wonderful sour cherry pies our mother baked.

Daddy made us stilts, swings, teeter-totters, doll beds, rubber jar ring guns, barrel stave skis, soap box cars, whistles out of hollow cane. He also taught us to sing, do our numbers and read. Mom taught us the more practical things like helping with the spring and fall cleaning and doing the laundry.

Sometimes I think the most important of all is what we weren't taught. We weren't taught to envy those who had more than we did. We weren't taught to look down on anyone or to take what wasn't ours. We also weren't taught to lie. We weren't taught to avoid the chores we hated or to expect others to do our work for us.

The '30s and '40s were a simpler time. Today's parents have to cope with many undue influences that are placed on their children.

A child's job is to learn, to have fun and to grow into a productive adults. Many children in the world don't have the opportunity to do this. In some parts of the world, poverty is so pervasive that just keeping children fed is a challenge.

We must do the best we can to make sure all children are safe and well fed. Our children are our future, and it takes two parents to vouchsafe that future. Our children will eventually have to deal with those who are growing up at the same time who are not so fortunate. Those children are also part of the future and their welfare should be as important to us as our own children's welfare.

Sometimes it is difficult to know the right thing to do. We watch our government flounder around in a quagmire every day. Their quandaries are always in front of us on our television screens and on the Internet.

When it comes to parenting, however, there is no great mystery. We all are aware of the fact that when we have children we should be responsible for them. Can that be so difficult in a country where, in times of difficulty, temporary assistance is usually right around the corner? Has it ever been more difficult to be a responsible parent than it was during the Great Depression?

I wonder if anyone ever told errant fathers who want to attract young ladies that there is nothing more attractive in a man than to see him caring for a child, playing with them, reading to them, carrying them in his arms and, yes, even changing their diapers.

I personally can't imagine why anyone would abdicate the awesome, wonderful job of being a parent.

The children who are being neglected today are the adults of tomorrow who will hold the future of this country in the palms of their hands. Would you neglect them and fail to teach them if you thought you would have to come back and live in the world they create?

Son decides life on the open road isn't for him after all

JEANNE PHILLIPS

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: For years, my wife and I were RV enthusiasts. We have a son who was envious about our lifestyle and expressed a desire to own an RV and travel the highways. When we decided to give up the practice, we gave our travel trailer to him as a gift.

The trailer has been sitting on his property for more than a year now and has never been moved. He has kept the license and insurance fees current. He recently told us he has changed his mind and is no longer interested in traveling with it. He has offered it back to us.

We have decided to sell it and wonder what, if any, moral obligation we have to share the proceeds of the sale with our son. Your thoughts? — HOMEBOUND OUT WEST

DEAR HOMEBOUND: You gave your son the RV as a gift; he is returning it to you instead of selling it himself. While I think it would be generous of you to split the proceeds with your son, I don't think there is any moral imperative that you must.

DEAR ABBY: My wife of 17 years just told me out of the blue that she doesn't love me anymore and hasn't for some time. To say that this came as a shock is an understatement. We've had our disagreements, but we always worked through them, or so I thought.

Because she has felt this way for some time now, she has hardly shed a tear. For me, my heart is broken. I feel lost, confused, angry, depressed and I can't stop crying.

I wish I could die, but we have children and I know I can't leave them. We made a pact years ago that if we ever fell out of love we'd stay together for the kids until they were grown. Now I don't know if it was a lie or if she'll keep her promise.

I'm writing this at midnight, crying in the dark and alone. I still love her and my heart breaks every time I think about it. Please tell me what to do. — DEVASTATED IN TEMPE, ARIZ.

DEAR DEVASTATED: I am sorry for the pain you are feeling. What you must do now is pull yourself together and find out from your wife when it was that the two of you stopped communicating honestly with each other — because it seems your paths diverged some time ago. She owes you honest answers, and you need to hear them.

After that, you may have to decide whether you still WANT her to honor that long-ago promise to stay together until your children are adults. You might find it helpful to stage some of these conversations in the office of a licensed marriage and family counselor. Having a mediator present could make it easier for both of you. While I can't promise counseling will save your marriage, it may provide you with the emotional support you will need in the weeks and months ahead.

BRIDGE

Bidding Quiz

You are South and hold this hand in each of the following three problems:

♠ AQ94 ♥ AQ65 ♦ KQJ83 ♣ —

1. The bidding has been:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♦ | Pass | 2 ♣ | Pass |
| 2 ♥ | Pass | 3 ♣ | Pass |
| 3 ♠ | Pass | 3 NT | Pass |
| ? | | | |

What would you bid now?

2. West bids One Club, your partner passes, and East raises to Two Clubs. What would you bid now?

3. The bidding has been:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♦ | Pass | 1 ♥ | Pass |
| 2 ♠ | Pass | 2 NT | Pass |
| 3 ♥ | Pass | 3 NT | Pass |
| ? | | | |

What would you bid now?

1. Pass. You've told your story, and there's nothing more to add. Certainly this is a fine hand and, on the face of it, suggests a potential slam. But partner is obviously not of the same mind. True, his two-club bid was constructive and showed reasonable values, but his reaction thereafter was all negative. He wants out, and there's no good reason to overrule him. He probably has something like:

♠ 852 ♥ K3 ♦ 74 ♣ AQJ872, in which case three notrump is just about your limit.

2. Three clubs. You could make a takeout double instead, but that would not describe your hand nearly as well as an immediate cuebid. On the bidding to date, your partner can't have much, but opposite your hand, he really doesn't need much to produce a game. Thus, he could have as little as:

and have a good shot for 10 tricks in hearts. The immediate cuebid, implying a powerhouse with a likely void in clubs, will enable partner to appreciate even these slender values.

3. Four hearts. It would be dangerous to venture beyond four hearts, since partner is turning an absolutely deaf ear to your powerful bidding. He is probably looking at something like:

and is trying to get out from under. Your eyes tell you that you have an excellent hand with an enormous potential for slam, but your ears should tell you that partner is not interested in going further. Bridge is a partnership game, and if North says he has the wrong hand facing yours, you should trust him by giving up on a slam.

Tomorrow: That extra little twist.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, July 18, the 199th day of 2014. There are 166 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On July 18, A.D. 64, the Great Fire of Rome began, consuming most of the city for about a week. (Some blamed the fire on Emperor Nero, who in turn blamed Christians.)

One letter stands for another. In this sample, A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

HOROSCOPES

JACQUELINE BIGAR

BIGAR'S STARS

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, July 18, 2014:

This year you become more challenging in whatever you are involved with, within your community or at work. You are likely to build a reputation of playing the role of devil's advocate. If you are single, you could meet someone at a public event. Be smart, and keep business and pleasure separate. If you are attached, the two of you become far more prominent as a couple. You both might commit to a certain cause or interest. Others enjoy seeing you out and about together. ARIES knows how to light a fire under you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll enjoy a certain level of excitement. You generally can be found stirring the pot in some way or another. Buy a token gift for a loved one or family member; give some thought to this item, as it will help keep the peace in the long run.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might sense that you would be better off playing it low-key than being out there strutting your stuff. You also will have many responsibilities to handle. You might need to communicate your goals more clearly to a loved one.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Use your energy well, and make the extra effort that will make a difference to those around you. Focus on a get-together or a meeting involving you and others. Be careful when dealing with a new friend who could be inordinately touchy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Pressure builds to a new level. A loved one might be unusually stern and need some time off. Your creativity will emerge when you detach and take an overall look at what needs to happen. Loosen up and relax, no matter where you are.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Keep reaching out to an expert or someone in the know. Work with unexpected news. A domestic matter could be getting the best of you. You might choose to keep your feelings locked up, but don't be surprised if you suddenly lose your temper.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) One-on-one relating might be harder than you had anticipated. Either the words are not coming out right or the other party is in denial. Know when to pull back. You will need to find a way to jumpstart a talk now or in the near future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) When you least expect it, a situation could blow up in your face. A loved one or an associate might let you know that he or she has had enough. Stop and think carefully before responding. Snide remarks will not work.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You might be wound rather tight right now. You tend to withdraw when you're like this. Try diving into work as a distraction. Make a point of getting some exercise to help ease the stress. A walk around the block is better than nothing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You seem to have a lot going on. Handling day-to-day matters hardly has a place in your thoughts. Nurture and encourage a friend as much as you can, as he or she might feel as if you're too distracted and busy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could be overwhelmed by the endless calls, emails and knocks on your door. You usually are able to screen what comes toward you, but you might not be in the mood to do so right now. Consider the many options on your plate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Return calls and clear your desk. You can't avoid a phone call from a key person any longer. This person will make sure that is impossible. What might start as a tiff or a hostile conversation could resolve itself.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Keep reaching for more information. You have a lot of assets and talents that you could use. A partner or loved one who is usually helpful might not have any suggestions for you now. This person will let you know clearly where he or she disagrees.

Microsoft cutting 18,000 jobs

RYAN NAKASHIMA
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Microsoft announced the biggest layoffs in its history Thursday, saying it will cut 18,000 jobs as it streamlines its Nokia mobile device business to focus on using the Windows Phone operating system.

Although the job cuts were expected, the extent of the eliminations is a surprise, amounting to 14 percent of the company's workforce. It's CEO Satya Nadella's boldest move since taking the reins from Steve Ballmer in February. Ballmer announced the Nokia acquisition last September, a month after he announced that he would resign.

In a public email to employees Thursday, Nadella said the changes were needed for the company to "become more agile and move faster."

Nadella indicated that Microsoft will largely abandon low-price Nokia Asha phones — which work on their own non-Windows operating system — and reverse a strategically questionable move by Nokia in February to launch a line of phones called "X" that supported rival Google Inc.'s Android platform.

"The first-party phone portfolio will align to Microsoft's strategic direction," Nadella said in the memo. "To win in the higher price tiers, we will focus on breakthrough innovation that expresses and enlivens Microsoft's digital work and digital life experiences."

Windows phones made by HTC and Nokia are on display at the Microsoft Visitor Center in Redmond, Wash.

Nadella added the changes are "difficult, but necessary."

Of the job cuts, about 12,500 professional and factory jobs related to the Nokia acquisition will be eliminated, including 1,100 in Finland. Some 1,350 Seattle-area workers around Microsoft's Redmond, Washington headquarters were also notified Thursday, as were 1,800 workers in Hungary.

Microsoft Corp. expects charges of $1.1 billion to $1.6 billion over the next four quarters, largely for severance payments. The move puts the company on track to meet the target it set in September, when it announced the Nokia purchase, of saving $600 million in annual costs within 18 months after the deal closed.

FBR Capital Markets analyst Daniel Ives said the cuts were about double what Wall Street was expecting.

"Microsoft needs to be a 'leaner and meaner' technology giant over the coming years in order to strike the right balance of growth and profitability around its cloud and mobile endeavors," he said.

Stocks rattled by poor earnings, jet downing

Associated Press

The downing of a passenger plane flying over Ukraine rattled U.S. financial markets Thursday, deepening a slide set off by a batch of disappointing company earnings and a weak home construction report.

All three major stock indexes ended lower for the first time in a week, but remained near record highs and positive for the year.

Ukrainian officials said a Malaysia Airlines passenger plane carrying 295 people was shot down, although both the government and pro-Russia separatists fighting in the region denied responsibility. The situation raised concerns of wider geopolitical instability in the region and an escalation of tensions between Russia and the West.

CURRENCIES

| Dollar vs. | Exchange Rate | Pvs Day |
|---|---|---|
| Yen | 101.31 | 101.71 |
| Euro | $1.3527 | $1.3523 |
| Pound | $1.7113 | $1.7135 |
| Swiss franc | 0.8976 | 0.8987 |
| Canadian dollar | 1.0747 | 1.0746 |
| Mexican peso | 12.9620 | 12.9209 |

SanDisk, AutoNation, Yum Brands and Mattel were among the biggest decliners after reporting earnings or profit forecasts that disappointed investors. Airline and homebuilder stocks also fell sharply.

"What happened with the plane today and things swirling around with what may have actually happened with the plane caused a bit of a sell-off," said JJ Kinahan at TD Ameritrade.

Senators call on GM CEO to fire top lawyer

MARCY GORDON and DEE-ANN DURBIN
AP Business Writers

MILLIKIN

WASHINGTON — Lawmakers on Thursday demanded General Motors fire its chief lawyer and open its compensation plan to more potential victims as a Senate subcommittee delved deeper into GM's mishandling of the recall of small cars with defective ignition switches.

Sen. Claire McCaskill, D-Mo., who chairs the subcommittee, praised GM CEO Mary Barra, saying she "has stepped up, and with courage and conviction has confronted the problem head on and the corporate culture that caused it."

But McCaskill also put Barra on the spot, telling the CEO that she should have fired GM's corporate counsel, Michael Millikin, based on the conclusions of an internal report by outside attorney Anton Valukas. Millikin sat next to Barra as she defended him as a man of "tremendously high integrity."

The Valukas report found that GM's legal staff acted too slowly to share details of settlements it was making in cases involving Chevrolet Cobalts and Saturn Ions where the front air bag hadn't deployed in a crash, possibly due to a defect in the ignition switch. The lawyers didn't alert engineers or top executives to a potential safety issue.

She also questioned why Millikin didn't inform GM's board or the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission of the potential for punitive damages as GM settled the cases.

Barra said Millikin had a system in place but it failed. Some lawyers were among the 15 people the company let go.

Millikin said he only learned about the ignition switch problems in February and acted quickly once he did. He said any potential settlement, no matter how small, must now be brought to him before any action is taken.

GM has admitted that it knew about the faulty switches for more than a decade.

Oil surges to near $103 as US stockpiles fall

Associated Press

The price of oil surged to near $103 a barrel Thursday after a U.S. inventories report showed a larger-than-expected drop in crude supplies.

By early afternoon in Europe, benchmark U.S. crude for August delivery was up $1.64 at $102.84 a barrel in electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. On Wednesday, the Nymex contract added $1.24 to close at $101.20.

On Wednesday, the U.S. Energy Information Administration said U.S. crude oil inventories fell by 7.5 million barrels to 375 million barrels in the week of July 11. The fall was bigger than expected and attributed to increased refinery activity. Analysts had forecast a drop of 3 million barrels, according to a survey by Platts, the energy information arm of McGraw Hill Financial.

Supply concerns caused by conflicts in Iraq jacked up the price of oil to above $107 per barrel. But the price drifted lower as Iraqi insurgents failed to advance and oil exports remained unaffected. Libya's comeback to the oil market also pushed down prices.

Sanctions announced by Washington against Russia over the conflict in Ukraine were seen giving some support to prices, though their impact wasn't expected to be immediately significant.

Largest US insurer's move signals industry shift

TOM MURPHY
Associated Press

The nation's largest health insurer expects to play a much bigger role in the health care overhaul next year, as the federal law shifts from raising giant questions for the sector to offering growth opportunities.

UnitedHealth Group said Thursday that it will participate in as many as 24 of the law's individual health insurance exchanges in 2015, up from only four this year.

These state-based exchanges debuted last fall as a way for customers to buy individual health insurance, many with help from income-based tax credits. They played a key role in helping roughly 8 million people gain coverage for 2014.

But insurers approached them cautiously, in part because they had little information about the health of the people who would sign up.

Now, some of that uncertainty is starting to dissipate, which gives insurers "a little more confidence to try to tap into some of the opportunities," said Jennifer Lynch, an analyst who covers the sector for BMO Capital Markets.

"I think the hesitation on the part of the companies has really been largely because of the unknowns," Lynch said.

UnitedHealth CEO Stephen Hemsley told analysts on Thursday that the insurer had always planned a prudent, initial approach. But they also understand that the exchanges will become a more established part of future health care benefits, and they don't want to enter the market too late.

The overhaul is helping UnitedHealth outside the public exchanges. The insurer said Thursday that its Medicaid enrollment jumped nearly 19 percent to about 4.7 million people. About half of that growth came from Medicaid coverage expansions.

Homeowners should utilize the Lake-Sumter HBA

DON MAGRUDER

AROUND THE HOUSE

The largest investment most people will ever make is their home, and there is no better advocate for homeowners in regard to affordability, building standards and consumer protection than the Home Builders Association of Lake-Sumter.

As the primary watchdog for our local housing industry, the HBA of Lake-Sumter ensures that homeowners are protected against fraud, runaway government and unlicensed contractors. Protecting homeowners against unscrupulous, unlicensed contractors is a major priority for the group.

Chartered back in 1973, the HBA of Lake-Sumter's office is at 1100 N. Joanna Ave. in Tavares. William Wilburth of W.C. Wilburth Inc. Construction Services serves as president. Wilburth and 17 associate and builder board members provide strong leadership for our local building industry. These various companies each have a vested interest in the reputation of the local building industry.

HBA of Lake-Sumter Executive Director Carolyn Maimone answers calls daily from local residents asking for names of licensed contractors, information on government fees and questions about building requirements. If Maimone doesn't have the answer, she can consult one of the 206 HBA of Lake-Sumter members whose businesses range from plumbers and electricians to masons and roofers. The group's campaign on illegal, unlicensed contractors has proven especially effective in protecting local homeowners.

Providing homeowners with up-to-date information and choices for building projects is another mission of the HBA of Lake-Sumter. In early spring, they host their annual Parade of Homes, showcasing newly constructed homes and remodels by builders throughout the area. The 2014 Parade of Homes featured 32 new home and remodeling entries, ranging in price from $135,000 to $1.7 million. Thousands of potential buyers toured these showcased properties over a two-week period. Preparation for the 2015 Parade of Homes has already begun, and it could be the largest in nearly a decade.

In addition to the Parade of Homes, the HBA of Lake-Sumter hosts a Home Show, allowing a variety of local builders and subcontractors to display their products and services — all under one roof. Last year's event at the Wildwood Community Center attracted residents from across the area, with members reporting brisk traffic and numerous leads. Other events hosted by the HBA of Lake-Sumter are monthly general membership meetings, a July Horseshoe Contest and an October Party and Reverse Drawing. The group is very active.

The HBA of Lake-Sumter has two types of memberships. Builder memberships are open to all licensed builders and subcontractors who provide construction services in the area. Associate memberships are available to suppliers, vendor partners and service providers who do business locally or support the building industry. Annual membership for either category costs under $500 and members are entitled to participate in all events.

The HBA of Lake-Sumter provides great resources to homeowners builders, and subcontractors. For information about the group, call 352-343-7101 or go to www.lakesumterhba.com.

Don Magruder is the CEO of Ro-Mac Lumber & Supply, Inc., and he is also the host of the "Around the House" Radio Show heard every Monday at noon on My790AM WLBE in Leesburg.

NAI Realvest negotiates two new office leases

ORLANDO — NAI Realvest recently negotiated two new office lease agreements in Casselberry off U.S. Highway 17-92 and in downtown Orlando totaling 8,043 square feet.

Jeff Bloom, senior director at NAI Realvest, negotiated the lease of 6,693 square feet at One South Orange Ave. in downtown Orlando representing the landlord One South Orange Ltd. by its GM MarKay Management, Inc. The tenant, Catalyst Workspace Partners, was represented by Mark Montgomery of CNL.

At 101 Sunnytown Road in Casselberry, Bloom represented the tenant International FOP Association, a nonprofit organization supporting medical research, in the lease of 1,350 square feet of office space. The landlord is VIG Leasing Corporation.

M/I Homes opening new homes at Hickory Hammock

WINTER GARDEN — M/I Homes has introduced a series of new home designs at its community of Hickory Hammock, located off Marsh Road and Stoneybrook West Parkway on Johns Lake in Winter Garden.

David Byrnes, area president for M/I Homes in the Central Florida region, said the new series consists of four floor plans ranging from 1,857 square feet of living area to 3,032 square feet, and are priced from $288,990 to $342,990.

Byrnes said the new series of floor plans features innovative designs with oversized master bathrooms and designer kitchens.

'Human props' stay in luxury homes but live like ghosts, helping sales

DREW HARWELL
Associated Press

WILL VRAGOVIC / AP

The master bedroom of the home the Muellers manage for Showhomes is shown.

TAMPA — When the Mueller family sits for dinner, the leftover broccoli and crepes are already wrapped in plastic, the kitchen is beyond spotless, and the rest of the home is so tucked-away tidy it looks like they just moved in. In a way, they have: Every inch of furnishing, every little trinket and votive candle, sits precisely as designers placed it five months ago. That would make them the most perfect suburban ideal, except for one catch: This isn't actually their home. Bob and Dareda Mueller and their three grown sons are, instead, part of an "elite group" of middle-class nomads who have agreed to an outlandish deal. They can live cheaply in this for-sale luxury home if it looks as if they never lived here at all.

The home must remain meticulously cleaned and preserved: the temperature precisely pleasant, the mirrors crystalline clear. If a prospective buyer wants to see the home, they must quickly disappear. And when the home sells, they must be gone for good, off to the next perfect place.

That they do everything an owner would do — sleeping, making memories, learning the home's quirks and secrets — imbues an otherwise-empty home with an unmistakable energy, say executives with Showhomes Tampa, the home-staging firm that moves them in. It also helps the homes sell faster, and for more money.

"They have to live a very different, very difficult life," said Kim Magnuson, a sales director. Added franchise owner Linda Saavedra, "The home managers act like human props . and (with buyers) it's like magic. It works phenomenally well."

The Muellers once lived in an opulent lake house bigger even than this $750,000 estate, which graces the 10th hole of an exclusive golf course in one of Tampa's wealthiest suburbs. But after a financially shattering fall from grace, this home, their fifth in two years, has become a surprising lifeline: Bob, 60, and Dareda, 56, now both work at McDonald's and scrape to pay the bills.

It has allowed them to start over with the painstaking gloss of perfection, but it has also brought up tough questions about what it means to have a home. Is it worth sleeping in a mansion if it means living as a ghost?

Bob was the pastor of a small church in Missouri when Dareda's father, a McDonald's franchise magnate who raised thoroughbred racehorses in the St. Louis suburbs, suddenly passed away. He left them the family ranch house, a turn-of-the-20th-century yearling farm and a sizable inheritance. Suddenly, they were rich.

The family adored real estate, led by Bob, the son of a house painter, who studied architecture in college and collected house plans as a boy. On Sunday afternoons, the

Downside of low mortgage rates in the US? Less selling

CHRISTOPHER S. RUGABER
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — Would-be home sellers across the country are grappling with a once-in-a-lifetime problem: They have mortgage rates so absurdly low it would hurt them financially to sell.

Doing so would mean giving up an irresistible rate in exchange for a new mortgage carrying a rate up to a percentage point higher. Their monthly payments would be larger even for a house of the same price. That's discouraging some people from selling, thereby limiting the supply of available homes and contributing to slower home sales.

It's a significant shift from the way the U.S. housing market has worked for the past 30 years. For most of that time, whenever a homeowner decided to trade up to a better home, mortgage rates usually were lower than the last time they had bought. That helped make a new purchase seem more attractive.

But that is changing. The average rate on a 30-year mortgage fell below 4 percent in late 2011 and reached a record low level of 3.3 percent in November 2012. It didn't top 4 percent again until mid-2013. Homeowners took advantage of the lower rates and a refinancing boom ensued.

More than one-third of homes with a mortgage now have rates below 4 percent, real estate data provider CoreLogic estimates. Yet mortgage rates now average 4.2 percent. That is still low by historical standards but up about three-quarters of a point from a year and a half ago. And should mortgage rates rise later this year and next, as many economists expect, even more homeowners will be affected.

As a result, many homeowners with low rates are staying put. Others are moving and buying new homes, but keeping their old ones and renting them. Both choices mean that fewer homes are listed for sale, which drives up prices. Higher prices and limited selection have put the brakes on a housing recovery that began in 2012.

More than one-third of homes with a mortgage now have rates below 4 percent, real estate data provider CoreLogic estimates. Yet mortgage rates now average 4.2 percent. That is still low by historical standards but up about three-quarters of a point from a year and a half ago. And should mortgage rates rise later this year and next, as many economists expect, even more homeowners will be affected.

And slower home sales, in turn, drag down economic growth. Fewer sales mean lower commissions for real estate agents. Sales of furniture, appliances and garden supplies also take a hit.

Mark Fleming, chief economist at CoreLogic, estimates that as many as 3.6 million homeowners are unlikely to sell this year because they would have to give up a lower rate.

"They got the deal of the century," says Glenn Kelman, CEO of real estate brokerage Redfin. "I don't think in 100 years anyone will be lending money at 3.5 percent. How do you walk away from a deal like that?"

You'd think Ryan Carson, an attorney in Seattle, would be ready to sell. He and his wife have one young child and they are expecting twins. They are going to hire a live-in nanny, which means there will be five people living in their four-bedroom house.

"I could probably use the extra space, honestly," he said. And he would make money off the sale, since his home's market value is above what he paid.

But Carson, 39, has a 30-year, 3.85 percent mortgage rate, so he isn't going anywhere. He refinanced into the lower rate last summer, reducing his monthly payment to $2,200 from $2,600.

"I have no interest right now in selling," he said. He and his wife plan to remodel instead.

A shortage of homes for sale has plagued the housing market since late 2012. The number of available homes last year was the equivalent of just 4.9 months' worth of sales, according to the National Association of Realtors. That's far below the typical figure of 6 months. Inventory has recovered somewhat this year, partly because the spring buying season is underway, but it was still equal to just 5.6 months of supply in May.

Meanwhile, sales of existing homes have fallen 5 percent in the past year. Yet prices rose 8.8 percent nationwide during the same period, according to CoreLogic, partly because of the limited supply.

What economists call "rate lock-in" is one of several reasons so few houses are for sale. Another factor is that almost 40 percent of homeowners still don't have enough equity to enable them to sell. Some are "underwater," with a mortgage higher than the home's value. Others may have so little equity that they can't afford to pay off the sales costs and put a down payment on their next property.

family toured homes for fun, the boys learning to say stuff like, "Dad, it's not a solid core door."

So with the couple's newfound wealth, they converted the farmhouse into a bed-and-breakfast, called Green Pastures, and amassed a weighty portfolio of investment properties. They also bought a sprawling French Country home, with a housekeeper, barrel ceilings and a view of the Lake of the Ozarks. Dareda dreamed of the boys coming back home with wives and kids of their own.

"When the housing downturn came, it hit us really hard, and the things we'd invested in fell through the bottom," Dareda said. Even selling their home and draining their bank accounts couldn't help them stay afloat. When a friend told them about Showhomes, they trucked down to Florida, homeless but heavy with stuff: a baby grand piano, intricate bronze statuary, a $10,000 Pakistani rug.

Dareda Mueller, 56, left, and her son Jordan, 21, wash dishes after the family's dinner together in the home they manage for Showhomes in Tampa.

Their first home here felt, to them, startlingly small, and Bob agonized over whether the family had made a huge mistake. Eight months later, on the day after Christmas, the home had sold and it was time to move. The family that had long decorated to excess, with 12-foot-tall Christmas trees, made ornaments out of construction paper.

Showhomes has for years offered sellers their home stagings and "makeovers," but the firm's signature is deploying managers to the cavernous, dreary, desolate shells they call "naked homes."

Filling vacant houses with stuff, the firm said, "enhances the focal points, softens age and minimizes flaws." But adding in fake homeowners adds something else entirely, Saavedra said, turning quasi-spiritual: "There's an energy there. You can feel it. There's something. There's life."

Showhomes managers live in about 15 Tampa Bay homes, most of them valued at more than $500,000. Some have lived in the homes for 18 months, others, less than a week. Few qualify, because managers are expected to bring their own upscale furnishings and compulsion for hyper-cleanliness. Most, Saavedra said, are "people in transition."

Showhomes pays moving costs but the Muellers pay the firm about $1,200 in rent, plus all household bills. Showhomes decorators decide where things should go, and managers are responsible for faultless precision, enforced by rigorous, random inspections.

Gatherings of more than 10 people require approval, and managers must always be prepared for surprises. Dareda has raced across town to get the home "show ready": lights on, soft music playing, Febreze Fluffy Vanilla subtly spritzed. She said, "You just think . by golly, we're going to just go do what it takes." A training manual states, "Our motto is, 'A showing is never refused.'"

RATES

"We are in a uniquely difficult period for matching buyers and sellers," says Stan Humphries, chief economist at real estate data provider Zillow.

Home prices are expected to keep rising in the coming months, though at a slower pace than the double-digit gains that occurred earlier this year. Higher prices should lower the number of underwater homes and enable more people to sell.

But as the number of underwater homes falls, several studies suggest the impact could be offset by higher mortgage rates, which would increase the number of homeowners facing interest rate "lock-in." Most economists expect mortgage rates to rise later this year as the Federal Reserve ends its bond-purchase program, which is intended to keep borrowing rates low.

The Carsons are one of many would-be home sellers across the country who have mortgage rates so low, it doesn't make financial sense to sell their homes.

"Mortgage rate lock-in is going to be a major challenge for the housing market going forward," Humphries said. "It is going to be a constant tug of war between buyers on one side ... and mortgage rate lock-in on the other side."

Humphries forecasts that rates will reach 5 percent by the first three months of next year. That would mean those buying or refinancing now, at the current rates of about 4.1 percent, might never want to sell either.

A 2011 study by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York concluded that for every $1,000 increase in a homeowner's annual mortgage payment, the likelihood that homeowner would sell fell as much as 16 percent.

Paul Bernard, a recruiter in New York City, says the issue has begun to interfere with some of his clients' willingness to move for a new job. In one recent case, an employee at a large technology firm decided to postpone a job-related move to San Francisco partly because it would have forced him to take out a mortgage at a half-percentage point higher than his current one.

"The job market in some cases is less mobile than it used to be," he said.

Low rates have combined with rising rents nationwide to make renting out a home, rather than selling, more attractive. A rental index compiled by Zillow has risen 19 percent in the past year.

Santiago Garcia, 30, and his wife both work from home and recently felt their 2-bedroom condominium was getting cramped. The couple was also thinking of starting a family. So in February they bought a new home in Oxford, Massachusetts, about 45 minutes from Boston.

But the mortgage rate on their condo is just 2.95 percent, so they decided to keep it and rent it out. The mortgage is so low because its rate is adjustable after 10 years.

Their monthly mortgage payment is only $540. But they are renting it out for $1,200 a month.

"The cash flow was so much, it was an easy decision," Garcia said.
