Ferocious Michael slams into Panhandle

Category 4 hurricane comes ashore with 155 mph winds

By Jay Reeves and Brendan Farrington
 The Associated Press

PANAMA CITY — Super-charged by abnormally warm waters in the Gulf of Mexico, Hurricane Michael slammed into the Florida Panhandle with terrifying winds of 155 mph Wednesday, splintering homes and submerging neighborhoods. It was the most powerful hurricane to hit the continental U.S. in nearly 50 years.

Its winds shrieking, the Category 4 storm crashed ashore in the early afternoon near Mexico Beach, a tourist town about midway along the Panhandle, a lightly populated, 200-mile stretch of white-sand beach resorts, fishing towns and military bases.

Michael battered the shoreline with sideways rain, powerful gusts and crashing waves, swamping streets and docks, flattening trees, stripping away leaves, shredding awnings and peeling away shingles. It also set off transformer explosions and knocked out power to more than 190,000 homes and businesses.

"We are catching some hell," said Timothy Thomas, who rode out the storm with his wife in their second-floor apartment in Panama City Beach.

With the hurricane still pounding the state hours after it came ashore, and conditions too dangerous in places for search-and-rescue teams to go out, there were no immediate reports of any deaths or serious injuries.

Michael was a meteorological brute that sprang quickly from a weekend tropical depression, going from a Category 2 on Tuesday to a Category 4 by the time it came ashore. It was the most powerful hurricane on record to hit the Panhandle.

"I've had to take antacids I'm so sick to my stomach today because of this impending catastrophe," National Hurricane Center scientist Eric Blake tweeted as the storm — drawing energy from the unusually warm, 84-degree Gulf waters — became more menacing.

More than 375,000 people up and down the Gulf Coast were urged to evacuate as Michael closed in. But the fast-moving, fast-strengthening storm didn't give people much time to prepare, and emergency authorities lamented that many ignored the warnings and seemed to think they could ride it out.

"While it might be their constitutional right to be an idiot, it's not their right to endanger everyone else!" Walton County Sheriff Michael Adkinson tweeted.

Diane Farris, 57, and her son walked to a high school-turned-shelter near their home in Panama City to find about 1,100 people crammed into a space meant for about half as many. Neither she nor her son had any way to communicate because their lone cellphone got wet and quit working.

Federal jury clears former shelter director, awards damages

By Payne Ray
 pray@dailycommercial.com

TAVARES — A federal jury has cleared former Lake County Animal Services Director Jacquelyn Johnston of accusations that she euthanized dozens of animals during her brief tenure in 2014, deciding that public statements by former Sheriff Gary Borders and the Lake County Sheriff's Office were "false and stigmatizing."

The verdict on Friday concludes a three and a half-year civil suit, which began more than half a year after she was fired by the sheriff in Oct. 2014, only nine days after taking the job.

"My name is now clear," Johnston wrote in a statement Tuesday. "I will tell the full story in the coming months, as I begin a new chapter through my continued commitment to help shelter pets in need."

The court awarded compensatory damages to Johnston in the amounts of $65,000 from the Sheriff's Office and $35,000 from Jennifer Ferguson, who Johnston said defamed her in order to get her fired.

A second verdict called for $100 in punitive damages from Ferguson, formerly the shelter's kennel supervisor.

The Sheriff's Office has no plans to appeal the decision, according to Lieutenant John Herrell, "as this situation occurred four years ago under another sheriff."

Turbocharged: How Michael grew in a day

By Seth Borenstein
 The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Moist air, warm waters in the Gulf of Mexico, and ideal wind patterns turbocharged Hurricane Michael in the hours before it smacked Florida's Panhandle.

Hurricane Michael's wind speed increased by 50 mph in 24 hours, to 140 mph Wednesday.

"Michael saw our worst fears realized, of rapid intensification just before landfall on a part of a coastline that has never experienced a Category 4 hurricane," University of Miami hurricane researcher Brian McNoldy said Wednesday morning.

Hurricanes have something called a potential intensity. That's how strong a storm can get if all other factors are aligned, said National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration climate and hurricane expert Jim Kossin said. Michael had nothing holding it back.

"Everything was there for it to reach its potential and it did," Kossin said.

As Michael's eye started coming ashore, it boasted the third lowest central pressure of any storm to hit the United States, behind only a

Limo operator charged in crash that killed 20

By Michael Hill and Jennifer Peltz
The Associated Press

LATHAM, N.Y. — A limousine service operator was charged Wednesday with criminally negligent homicide in a crash that killed 20 people, while police continued investigating what caused the wreck and whether anyone else will face charges.

The operator's lawyer said that the man wasn't guilty and that police were rushing to judgment.

The company, Prestige Limousine, has come under intense scrutiny since Saturday's crash outside Albany killed two pedestrians and 18 people in a super-stretch limo.

Prestige Limousine operator Nauman Hussain hired a driver who shouldn't have been behind the wheel of such a car, and the vehicle shouldn't have been driven after state inspectors deemed it "unserviceable" last month, State Police Superintendent George Beach said at a news conference.

"The sole responsibility for that motor vehicle being on the road on Saturday rests with Nauman Hussain," Beach said, though he noted that investigators continue looking into whether anyone else should be held accountable.

As Hussain, 28, awaited arraignment, his lawyer, Lee Kindlon, said his client handled only marketing duties and phone calls, while his father ran the company, though police called Hussain its operator.

"My client is not guilty," Kindlon said. "The police jumped the gun in charging him with any crime."

Under New York law, criminally negligent homicide involves not perceiving a substantial, unjustifiable risk that leads to someone's death. It's punishable by up to four years in prison.

Police charged Hussain with a single count involving all 20 victims. He was arrested Wednesday in a traffic stop on a highway near Albany.

Hussain has had a brush with law enforcement before. State police accused him and his brother of claiming each other's names after a 2014 traffic stop, which happened while the brother was driving without a valid license.

Video shows team of alleged Saudi assassins

By Ayse Wieting, Suzan Fraser and Jon Gambrell
The Associated Press

ISTANBUL — Two Gulf-stream jets carrying 15 Saudis landed at Istanbul's Ataturk Airport before dawn on the day last week that journalist Jamal Khashoggi entered the Saudi Consulate and vanished. The men checked into hotels and left Turkey later that night.

Turkish media, which released surveillance camera video of the men on Wednesday, said they were members of an elite Saudi "assassination squad," sent to kill Khashoggi, a Saudi critic.

Saudi Arabia remained silent at the accusation as the images were seen around the world, raising pressure on the kingdom to explain what happened to the writer, a critic of Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman.

Adding to the macabre mystery, a Turkish official told The Associated Press that one member of the team was an "autopsy expert."

Saudi Arabia has dismissed allegations it played a role in Khashoggi's disappearance as "baseless," but it has offered no evidence to support its contention he left the consulate unharmed last week and vanished into Istanbul while his fiancée, Hatice Cengiz, waited outside.

The video, shown on the state-run broadcaster TRT and others, did not offer definitive proof about Khashoggi's fate. Turkish officials have said that they fear the team killed him.

U.S. National security adviser John Bolton, Secretary of State Mike Pompeo and White House senior adviser Jared Kushner have spoken to the crown prince about the 59-year-old Washington Post contributor, the White House announced.

President Donald Trump said the U.S. is "demanding" answers from its close ally, but he did not disclose any details.

"It's a very serious situation for us and this White House," Trump told reporters in the Oval Office. "We do not like seeing what's going on. Now, as you know, they're saying 'We had nothing to do with it.' But so far everyone's saying they had nothing to do with it."

Trump added: "Nobody

This image taken from a surveillance camera shows a still image of people inside Ataturk International Airport, Istanbul, Turkey, on Oct. 2. The text on the screen from a source in Turkish reads: "nine people enter from airport's E Gate on Oct. 2, 2018 around 03:37." A Turkish television station has aired surveillance video of missing writer Jamal Khashoggi walking into the Saudi Consulate in Istanbul and a black van leaving later for the consul's home. The footage aired Wednesday begins by showing the arrival of one of two private jets, then two cars can be seen taking the men to Gate E, where eight of them are seen on camera passing through passport control. knows what happened yet. We don't know what happened yet."

The Turkish security camera video was reminiscent of the surveillance video sleuthing done by officials investigating the assassination of a Hamas operative in Dubai in 2010 or the slaying of North Korean leader Kim Jong Un's half brother in Malaysia in 2017.

The silent video showed one of two private Gulfstream jets that Turkish media said carried the Saudi group, who flew in and out of Istanbul on Oct. 2.

The Sabah newspaper, which is close to Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan, published images of what it referred to as the "assassination squad," apparently taken at passport control at the airport. The state-run Anadolu news agency published the names and birth dates of all 15 Saudis.

The footage shows some of the Saudis leaving a hotel and Khashoggi entering the consulate, walking past a black Mercedes van with diplomatic plates parked adjacent to the entrance. An hour and 54 minutes later, according to the time stamp, a black Mercedes van drives about 1.2 miles to the consul's home, where it was parked in a garage.

The footage all seemed to come from surveillance cameras, which would have been located throughout the neighborhood housing the Saudi Consulate and other diplomatic missions. No footage has emerged of Khashoggi leaving the consulate.

Two Turkish officials, speaking on condition of anonymity to the AP because the investigation into Khashoggi's disappearance was still ongoing, confirmed the authenticity of the images in the Turkish media. One of the officials describes a member of the Saudi team as an "autopsy expert" amid earlier allegations that Khashoggi had been killed and dismembered.

The Hurriyet newspaper and other media alleged that the Saudi Consulate's 28 local staff were given the day off Oct. 2 because a "diplomats' meeting" would be held there on that day. The reports did not cite a source and there was no official confirmation. Turkey's private NTV news channel identified one of the 15 Saudis who arrived as the head of a Saudi forensic science agency. It alleged that he may have been responsible for cleaning up any incriminating evidence. The station did not cite a source for its report.

Khashoggi had written a series of columns for the Post that were critical of Saudi Arabia's assertive Prince Mohammed, who has led a widely publicized drive to reform the conservative Sunni monarchy but has also presided over the arrests of activists and businessmen.

Erdogan has not accused Saudi Arabia of being responsible for Khashoggi's disappearance but has said that if the Saudis have video footage of him leaving the consulate, they should release it. Saudi Arabia is a major investor in Turkey, despite Ankara's support for the Gulf nation of Qatar, which is under a blockade led by Saudi Arabia and three other Arab nations.

S. Korea may lift sanctions on N. Korea

By Kim Tong-Hyung
The Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — South Korea is considering lifting some of its unilateral sanctions against North Korea to create more momentum for diplomacy aimed at improving relations and defusing the nuclear crisis, the South's foreign minister said Wednesday.

During a parliamentary audit of her ministry, Kang Kyung-wha said the government is reviewing whether to lift sanctions South Korea imposed on the North in 2010 following a deadly attack on a warship that killed 45 South Korean sailors.

South Korea then effectively shut down all cross-border economic cooperation except for a jointly run factory park in the North Korean border town of Kaesong, which was shuttered in February 2016 after a North Korean nuclear test and long-range rocket launch. The so-called "May 24 measures" of 2010 also banned North Korea from using shipping lanes in South Korean territory.

South Korean President Moon Jae-in has mostly stayed firm on sanctions despite actively engaging with North Korea and floating the possibility of huge investments and joint economic projects in return for the North's relinquishment of its nuclear weapons.

A move by South Korea to lift its unilateral sanctions would have little immediate effect since U.S.-led international sanctions remain in place. But it's clear Seoul is preparing to restart joint economic projects if the larger nuclear negotiations between the United States and North Korea begin yielding results.

"Many parts of the May 24 measures now duplicate with the United Nations sanctions (against North Korea)," Kang said. "As negotiations continue to improve ties between the South and North and achieve denuclearization, there's a need to flexibly review (lifting the measures) as long as it doesn't damage the larger framework of sanctions against the North."

Moon has described inter-Korean engagement as crucial to resolving the nuclear standoff. A large number of South Korean business leaders accompanied Moon last month to Pyongyang, North Korea's capital, where he and leader Kim Jong Un agreed to normalize operations at the Kaesong factory park and resume joint tours to North Korea when possible, voicing optimism the international sanctions could end and allow such projects.

MONTVERDE School bus stop argument leads to arrest

Police arrested a man who allegedly threatened several people with a pistol Tuesday after parents chastised him for getting his child to a school bus stop late.

Witnesses told sheriff's deputies that after Richard Ortiz stopped the school bus as it was pulling away so his child could get on, one woman told him, "Take your child to the bus stop on time like the rest of us." The parents went their separate way, but then a few minutes later, Ortiz reportedly walked into the yard of one of the parents, threatened them and brandished a black handgun, saying, "I will kill you all. I don't mind going back to jail."

Deputies found Ortiz sitting on the toilet at his home. When deputies inquired about the pistol, Ortiz reportedly reached for it on a shelf and the officers overpowered him and brought him outside. They determined that the gun was a toy.

Ortiz was charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. He is also wanted on a warrant out of New Jersey, the report states.

EUSTIS Man arrested for chucking rocks at passing cars

A man who was apparently upset about discourteous drivers decided to extract a little revenge by hurling dirt and rocks at passing cars Tuesday night.

According to an arrest report, several motorists called authorities to report that a shirtless man was standing on the side of County Road 44A near County Road 437 east of Eustis hurling rocks and dirt at cars. Several vehicles sustained damage.

Deputies arrived and quickly arrested John Earl Gregory, 29, of Sorrento, and charged him with throwing deadly missiles into vehicles.

On the way to jail, he reportedly told a deputy "that he is tired of people not sharing the roadway so he must do what he has to do," the report states.

EUSTIS Man arrested for fake bomb threat

A Eustis man apparently didn't know that police can trace prank calls made to 911 from cellphones.

He learned the hard way. Michael Sean Howes, 59, reportedly called 911 Tuesday morning to report that he "heard there was going to be a bomb at Save-a-Lot, Aldi and Big Lots in Eustis." He didn't identify himself and then hung up.

Dispatchers had T-Mobile ping the phone and determined it was located at an address on South Bay Street and belonged to Michael Howes. Deputies found him and questioned him about the call, but he denied making it. They then had dispatchers call the number that had phoned in the bomb threat, and the phone in Howes' pocket rang. He continued to deny he made the call, so they played a recording of the call for him.

The caller had "very distinct speech," like Howes', the deputy noted in his report.

Howes was charged with making a false report concerning planting an explosive device.

Woman wins $2M verdict

State Farm loses fight over her medical bills after accident

By Frank Stanfield
frankstanfield
@dailyccommercial.com

TAVARES - A Lake County jury has awarded a woman $2.3 million for car accident injuries going back to 2007.

It is a significant judgment for a local jury, said the woman's attorney and longtime court officials.

It was unusual, too, because the lawsuit, first filed in 2010, was amended to include a second car crash that occurred in 2014.

On top of that, the plaintiff had to sue her own insurance carrier.

Richard Taylor Jr. was driving an uninsured 1991 Chevy in 2007 when he crashed into Jessica Brower's 2002 Hyundai at State Road 50, the lawsuit states.

Brower, who was living with her grandmother, was covered by a State Farm policy issued to her grandmother. The policy included protection against an uninsured motorist.

"Florida is only one of two states that do not require drivers to carry any bodily injury insurance," said Todd Copeland, the Orlando attorney who represented Brower. "Florida is behind the times."

Taylor did not respond to court inquiries, and he had no assets, Copeland said.

The accident caused damage to a disc in her back. A doctor was able to do endoscopic surgery by filing off part of the protruding disc.

In 2014, Brower's back was reinjured in another accident. This time, she had to have spinal fusion surgery, including having screws and other hardware installed.

That led to two other surgeries, including procedures to remove screws.

"She's a thin, young woman, very petite," Copeland said.

Powerful Michael ranks among most intense Atlantic hurricanes

By Joe Callahan
GateHouse Media

Hurricane Michael will go down in history as one of the most intense storms to hit the United States since 1851, when the record-keepers started tracking such things.

Michael made landfall near Mexico Beach, packing 155 mph wind. It had a minimum central pressure of 919 millibars, one of the lowest readings ever of a hurricane making landfall.

It ranks ninth among the 10 most intense hurricanes ever to strike land in the Atlantic basin. The ranking is based on the low central pressure in millibars at landfall. The record was the Labor Day Hurricane of 1935, which had a reading of 892 millibars.

Michael was 1 mph shy of a Category 5 hurricane, the highest level on the Saffir-Simpson wind speed scale.

To put that in perspective, only three Category 5 hurricanes have ever struck the United States:

- The Labor Day Hurricane of 1935, with 185 wind, and minimum central pressure of 892 millibars;
- Camille, 175 mph, 900 millibars; and
- Andrew, 175 mph, 922 millibars.

Andrew was originally considered a Category 4 hurricane, packing 155 mph wind. But after a decade of investigation, the National Hurricane Center raised its designation to a Category 5.

Michael, which had a lower pressure than Andrew, will go down as the most intense October storm ever to make landfall in the United States and the strongest hurricane ever to hit the Florida Panhandle.

The outer eye officially hit Mexico Beach, midway between Panama City and Apalachicola, at 1:30 p.m., according to the National Hurricane Center.

Attorney: Zimmerman to plead no contest in stalking case

By Mike Schneider
Associated Press

SANFORD - Former neighborhood watch volunteer George Zimmerman will plead no contest to resolve a misdemeanor charge accusing him of stalking a private investigator working for a documentary filmmaker, Zimmerman's attorney said in court Wednesday.

Zimmerman will enter a written plea of no contest next month and serve some probation, though the length of probation and other terms won't be disclosed until the plea is entered, said Zimmerman's attorney, Zahra Umansky.

Under such a plea, a defendant doesn't admit guilt, and a conviction is withheld if the conditions of the plea are met.

Commission elects retired colonel to Children's Council

By Payne Ray
pray@dailyccommercial.com

TAVARES - County commissioners appointed a new member-at-large to the Children's Services Council Tuesday, filling a vacancy for a two-year term.

Retired Col. Herbert Scott Smith of Eustis was appointed to the committee on the recommendation of Commissioner Wendy Breden, who currently serves as the commission liaison to the Children's Services Council.

Smith previously served two terms on the Sales Surtax Advisory Committee and applied for that alongside the council position.

He formerly served in the U.S. Air Force in Germany and has held a handful of other government positions, such as the Lake County School District's director of finance.

He also works with his local Kiwanis club on their annual "Terrific Kids" awards, which he credited with bringing a great deal of positivity to children's lives.

Smith said he was excited for the new opportunity to help children from his council position.

"I feel honored. The children are our future," he said.

Breden recommended he fill the vacancy on the Children's Services Council because of his years of involvement in the county.

He not only worked under the commission on the previous advisory committee, but Breden remembered him from her Leadership Lake County class.

Having seen him in action, and knowing his work history, she said she felt confident he would do well on the council.

"The other two could be as effective," Breden said. "I just know that he will be."

The Children's Services Council's job is to offer guidance to the County Commission on children and family matters, and also to fund intervention and prevention programs to keep kids from falling through the cracks of social services.

It has representatives from the School Board as well as the Department of Children and Families.

Its next meeting, when Smith will officially take his seat, is Oct. 17 at the Lake County Agricultural Center.

FORT MYERS 2 men killed in outdoor mall shooting

Authorities say two men were killed and a woman was wounded in a shooting at an outdoor mall. Lee County Sheriff Carmine Marceno said during a news conference Wednesday that 56-year-old Kevin Robinson and 22-year-old Javaricia Riggins were fatally shot Tuesday night at the Bell Tower Shops in Fort Myers. Marceno says the men were part of a group that was targeted while walking from a restaurant to their cars. A woman with the group was hospitalized with a gunshot wound, and another man sustained minor injuries from glass. Authorities haven't identified any suspects, but Marceno was emphatic that the shooting was not random.

Until Michael, Hurricane Hazel had the October record with a minimum central pressure of 938 millibars and 130 mph-plus wind speed when it hit the South Carolina/North Carolina border on Oct. 15, 1954. It was the last Category 4 hurricane to hit in October. Hazel killed as many as 1,000 people in Haiti before striking the United States. After causing 95 fatalities in the U.S., Hazel struck Canada. Another 81 people died, mostly in Toronto.

Israel defends actions against former UF student

By Isabel Debre
The Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Israel on Wednesday defended its handling of the case of an American graduate student held in detention at the country's international airport for the past week over allegations that she supports a boycott against the Jewish state.

Lara Alqasem, a 22-year-old American citizen with Palestinian grandparents, landed at Ben-Gurion Airport last week with a valid student visa and was registered to study human rights at Israel's Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

But she was barred from entering the country and ordered deported, based on suspicions that she supports the Palestinian-led boycott movement.

Alqasem, from the Fort Lauderdale suburb of Southwest Ranches, is a former president of the University of Florida chapter of Students for Justice in Palestine. The group is a branch of the BDS movement, whose name comes from its calls for boycotts, divestment and sanctions against Israel.

BDS supporters say that in urging businesses, artists and universities to sever ties with Israel, they are using non-violent means to resist unjust policies toward Palestinians.

Israel says the movement masks its motives to delegitimize or destroy the Jewish state.

An Israeli court has ordered that she remain in custody while she appeals, although Israel says she can leave the country.

The weeklong detention is the longest anyone has been held in a boycott-related case. Her case is set to be heard at a Tel Aviv court today.

Strategic Affairs Minister Gilad Erdan said in an interview with The Associated Press on Wednesday that Israel had the right to protect itself and decide who enters its borders despite growing international criticism.

"We are doing whatever we believe that is right for the security of the state of Israel and that is more important than whatever the New York Times or other newspapers around the world will say about our policy," Erdan said.

His remarks come after the Times published an opinion piece by columnist Bret Stephens and editor Bari Weiss critical of Israel's handling of Alqasem's case. More than 300 academics penned a letter in the British Guardian Wednesday calling the case "an attack on academic freedom."

While waiting for her appeal to be heard, Alqasem has been spending her days in a closed area with little access to a telephone, no internet and a bed that was infested with bedbugs, according to people who have spoken to her.

"You could palpate her skin and feel the screws."

The insurance company who covered the second accident driver paid a small amount. State Farm, meanwhile, refused to pay medical bills in excess of the policy it covered - around $300,000, Copeland said. The bills came to more than $550,000.

The case dragged on. State Farm hired doctors and a medical billing clerk to refute the costs. They also hired biomechanical engineers and a private detective to follow and videotape Brower. Copeland had to counter with his own experts.

One of the dangers in cases with dueling experts is that jurors' eyes can start to glaze over.

"For whatever reason, they were very engaged,"

Copeland said.

The insurance company's lawyers claimed Brower committed fraud when she was observed kayaking with friends. A defense doctor hired to examine her claimed he saw her running through the parking lot.

"Shortly after the 2015 surgery, she was observed walking, bending at the waist, driving, running and jumping over a large puddle in the rain in contrast to what she testified to after the last update...." State Farm's motion read, referring to the doctor visit.

A hearing was held. "It was very entertaining," Copeland said.

Her doctors testified that they had been training her with core-strength training, including kayaking. "She was doing exactly what they wanted her to do," Copeland said.

Copeland said he proved that the doctor who supposedly saw her running could not possibly have witnessed what he had testified about. A young lawyer Copeland had hired to witness the doctor's exam swore that Brower was walking, not running, in the parking lot. Copeland also hired a forensic videographer to record the outside of the building and the interior. It was impossible to see Brower from the window, the video showed.

The trial began on Sept. 24. When it ended on Oct. 4, the jury awarded $575,000 for past medical bills, $275,000 for future bills, $200,000 for past pain and suffering and $1.3 million for future pain and suffering.

It was a pleasant surprise for Copeland and Brower. Lake County has a reputation for small jury awards, and so does neighboring Polk County. Copeland said a brain injury case he tried there recently was disappointing.

"She's very happy with the verdict," Copeland said.

Brower could not be reached for comment.

to amicably resolve this case," said Umansky after a brief hearing in Sanford.

Prosecutors wouldn't comment as they left the courtroom.

Zimmerman fatally shot black teenager Trayvon Martin in 2012 in Sanford. Zimmerman, who identifies as Hispanic, was acquitted of all charges in a case that raised questions about race and Florida's "stand your ground" self-defense law that allows people to use force without retreating if they feel threatened.

Critics say the law unfairly allows young black men to be victimized by gun violence.

Zimmerman was accused of sending threatening messages to a private investigator who had contacted him about a documentary series on Martin. The documentary was produced by rapper Jay-Z.

A sheriff's report said private investigator Dennis Warren received numerous calls and texts from Zimmerman in December. Zimmerman pleaded not guilty after being charged with misdemeanor stalking earlier this year.

Since his acquittal in Martin's killing, Zimmerman has had several brushes with the law, including two cases of domestic aggravated assault that were later dropped.

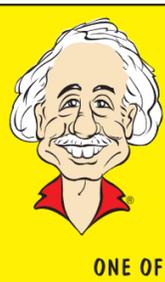

Zimmerman was accused of sending threatening messages to a private investigator who had contacted him about a documentary series on Martin. The documentary was produced by rapper Jay-Z.

1935 Labor Day storm and 1969's Camille.

Meteorologists first got a sense something big could be happening by watching how Michael's eye changed shape. Early Tuesday, it was oddly shaped and ragged. Later in the morning it started to get better organized, and by Tuesday night real-time satellite imagery was showing the eye getting stronger and scarier by the minute.

Another factor: Its pressure, the measurement meteorologists use to gauge a hurricane's strength. The lower the pressure, the stronger the storm. Before landfall, Michael's pressure fell so low it looked like the winds were sure to pick up fast, said Ryan Maue, a meteorologist for weather-models.com.

And none of the factors that hold a storm back were present, especially something called "wind shear." Wind shear is when there's a mismatch either in speed or direction between winds near the surface and those five to six miles up.

That mismatch "pushes the storm over" or decapitates it, Kossin said. When the wind shear near Michael eased, the storm took off, he said.

"It's kind of like someone was holding on to it when it was trying to run and they let it go," Kossin said.

Another huge factor was the water temperature. Warm water is the energy that fuels hurricanes, and the Gulf water is 4 to 5 degrees warmer than normal.

Water temperatures in the Gulf of Mexico vary along with weather, but some scientists said the warm waters are signs of human-caused climate change.

"Have humans contributed to how dangerous Michael is?" Kossin said. "Now we can look at how warm the waters are and that certainly has contributed to how intense Michael is and its intensification."

The warm waters, Kossin said, are a "human fingerprint" of climate change.

Kossin and others have a study out this month in the Journal of Climate with computer simulations showing that human-caused global warming will increase rapid intensification of tropical weather across the globe in the future.

Other studies have shown rapid intensification has already increased over past decades. One study this year in Geophysical Research Letters found that since 1986, the rate of intensification of storms like Michael has increased by about 13 mph.

"I'm worried about my daughter and grandbaby. I don't know where they are. You know, that's hard," she said, choking back tears.

Hurricane-force winds extended up to 45 miles from Michael's center. Forecasters said rainfall could reach up to a foot, and the life-threatening storm surge could swell to 14 feet.

A water-level station in Apalachicola, close to where Michael came ashore, reported a surge of nearly 8 feet.

Based on its internal barometric pressure, Michael was the third most powerful hurricane to hit the U.S. mainland, behind the unnamed Labor Day storm of 1935 and Camille in 1969. Based on wind speed, it was the fourth-strongest, behind the Labor Day storm (184 mph), Camille and Andrew in 1992.

It appeared to be so powerful that it was expected to remain a hurricane as it moved into Alabama and Georgia early today. Forecasters said it will unleash damaging wind and rain all the way into the Carolinas, which are still recovering from Hurricane Florence's epic flooding.

At 5 p.m. Wednesday, Michael was still packing 125 mph winds as the eye approached southeastern Alabama and southwest Georgia. It was moving north-northeast at 16 mph.

At the White House, President Donald Trump said the government is "absolutely ready for the storm." "God bless everyone because it's going to be a rough one," he said. "A very dangerous one."

In Mexico Beach, population 1,000, the storm shattered homes, leaving floating piles of lumber. The lead-gray water was so high that roofs were about all that could be seen of many homes.

In Panama City, plywood and metal flew off the front of a Holiday Inn Express. Part of the awning fell and shattered the glass front door of the hotel, and the rest of the awning wound up on vehicles parked below it.

"Oh my God, what are we seeing?" said evacuee Rachel Franklin, her mouth hanging open.

The hotel swimming pool had whitecaps, and people's ears popped because of the drop in barometric pressure.

The roar from the hurricane sounded like an airplane taking off.

Meteorologists watched satellite imagery in complete awe as the storm intensified.

"We are in new territory," National Hurricane Center Meteorologist Dennis Feltgen wrote on Facebook. "The historical record, going back to 1851, finds no Category 4 hurricane ever hitting the Florida panhandle."

Colorado State University hurricane expert Phil Klotzbach said in an email: "I really fear for what things are going to look like there tomorrow at this time."

The storm is likely to fire up the debate over global warming.

Scientists say global warming is responsible for more intense and more frequent extreme weather, such as storms, droughts, floods and fires. But without extensive study, they cannot directly link a single weather event to the changing climate.

With Election Day less than a month away, the crisis was seen as a test of leadership for Gov. Rick Scott, a Republican running for the Senate, and Tallahassee Mayor Andrew Gillum, the Democratic nominee for governor.

insured, and the damages are covered under that plan.

Herrell said he wasn't immediately sure if the plan covered Ferguson, however.

Johnston initially filed with the federal court in 2015, suing for damages against then-Sheriff Borders, the Sheriff's Office and Ferguson for stigmatizing and defaming her.

According to Johnston, her firing was premature and lacked a proper investigation, making the statements about her firing unfounded.

She also accused

Ferguson of lying about the need to euthanize 20 animals in one day, and telling people afterwards that Johnston had ordered the euthanizations without following proper protocol.

The euthanizations happened Oct. 9, 2014, and Johnston was fired the next day.

The Sheriff's Office released multiple statements to the press in the following days stating Johnston was fired for killing animals without attempting to find alternatives.

At one point, 147 animal deaths were attributed to Johnston, who said the accusation and the statements released by the Sheriff's Office had ruined her reputation.

Since she had no opportunity to defend herself from the accusation, a claim corroborated by Borders in court documents, she claimed the decision to fire her was unconstitutional and that the statements were unfairly damaging.

At that time, though, the case was dismissed because she supposedly skipped a step by going straight to the federal court system.

The Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals reversed that decision in February this year when it found that there was no appropriate remedy through state courts, and the case went back to federal court in late August.

Dow industrials sink 831 points as tech firms plunge

By Marley Jay and Stan Choe
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — U.S. stocks plunged to their worst loss in eight months on Wednesday as technology companies continued to drop. The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 831 points.

The losses were widespread, and stocks that have been the biggest winners on the market the last few years, including technology companies and retailers, suffered steep declines. Apple and Amazon both had their worst day in two and a half years.

The Nasdaq composite, which has a high concentration of technology companies, had its biggest loss in more than two years.

Alec Young, managing director of global markets research at FTSE Russell, said investors fear that rising interest rates and growing expenses are going to erode company profits next year. "The tax cuts juiced earnings this year and that's not sustainable," he said. "The market's starting to say that the glass may be half empty."

The S&P 500 index sank 94.66 points, or 3.3 percent, to 2,785.68. The benchmark index fell for the fifth straight day, which hadn't happened since just before the 2016 presidential election.

The Nasdaq composite tumbled 315.97 points, or 4.1 percent, to 7,422.05. It's fallen 7.5 percent in just five days.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average gave up 831.83 points, or 3.1 percent, to 25,598.74. The Russell 2000 index of smaller-company stocks shed 46.45 points, or 2.9 percent, to 1,575.41.

After a long stretch of relative calm, the stock market has suffered sharp losses over the last week as bond yields surged. Stocks had come close to big drops in the last few days, but each time they recovered some of their losses. That didn't happen Wednesday as stocks fell further late in the day.

Apple gave up 4.6 percent to $216.36 and Microsoft dropped 5.4 percent to $106.16. Amazon skidded 6.2 percent to $1,755.25. Industrial and internet companies also fell hard.

Boeing lost 4.7 percent to $367.57 and Alphabet, Google's parent company, gave up 4.6 percent to $1,092.16.

Insurance companies dropped as Hurricane Michael continued to gather strength and came ashore in Florida bringing winds of up to 155 mph. Berkshire Hathaway dipped 4.7 percent to $213.10 and reinsurer Everest Re slid 5.1 percent to $217.73.

Luxury retailers tumbled after LVMH, the parent of Louis Vuitton, said its sales growth in China slowed. Tiffany plunged 10.2 percent to $110.38 and Ralph Lauren fell 8.4 percent to $116.96.

The biggest driver for the market over the last week has been interest rates, which began spurring higher following several encouraging reports on the economy. Higher rates can slow economic growth, erode corporate profits and make investors less willing to pay high prices for stocks.

The 10-year Treasury yield remained at 3.20 percent, about where it was late Tuesday, after earlier touching 3.24 percent. It was at just 3.05 percent early last week and 2.82 percent in late August.

Technology and internet-based companies are known for their high profit margins, and many have reported explosive growth in recent years, with corresponding gains in their stock prices.

Gina Martin Adams, chief equity strategist for Bloomberg Intelligence, said the stocks have become more volatile in the last few months because investors have concerns about their future profitability.

"Amazon recently announced they were increasing wages, Facebook is spending a ton on security," she said. "Semiconductors have the most exposure to China out of segments in the S&P 500."

Sears Holdings nosedived after the Wall Street Journal reported that the struggling retailer hired an advisory firm to prepare a bankruptcy filing that could come within days. The stock fell 16.8 percent to 49 cents. It was more than $40 five years ago.

Sears has closed hundreds of stores and sold several famous brands or put them on the block as it sees more customers abandon its stores.

Benchmark U.S. crude oil fell 2.4 percent to $73.17 a barrel in New York. Brent crude, the international standard, lost 2.2 percent to $83.09 a barrel in London. Wholesale gasoline shed 2.7 percent to $2.02 a gallon.

OUR OPINION

'Design flaws' not the problem

The ugly, brutal battle to confirm Judge Brett Kavanaugh — now Justice Kavanaugh — to the U.S. Supreme Court will leave exposed wounds in our political system that won't soon heal. But those are tied to ideology.

We must be more concerned about the now-emerging gripes from anti-Kavanaugh forces that attack the structure of our political system. If those gain a toehold in the popular consciousness, we might lose something far more precious.

On Saturday, The Washington Post ran an article that noted Kavanaugh will be the "first justice nominated by someone who lost the popular vote (President Donald Trump) to earn his seat on the bench with support from senators representing less than half of the country while having his nomination opposed by a majority of the country." The Post followed up that analysis with a piece on Monday that noted "a palpable, growing sense among the Democratic base that the system is rigged against them."

Along these lines, tweets appeared on Saturday from folks like MSNBC host Lawrence O'Donnell and influential Harvard Law School professor Laurence Tribe. O'Donnell, who was a Democratic strategist before he became a TV host, noted, "Founders' design flaws in democracy — electoral college & 2 senators per state no matter the size of population — have created the current Supreme Court." That came in response to Tribe's tweet, which referenced a New York Times editorial arguing in the same vein: "Of the 5 justices picked by Republicans, including Kavanaugh, 4 were nominated by presidents who first took office after losing the popular vote. And the senators who will vote to confirm Kavanaugh represent vastly fewer Americans than those voting no."

Such comments attack an American political system that has proven extremely durable to threats, foreign and domestic, for 230 years — a system that, by restraining the raw power of government and respecting the rights of those in the political minority, has created more freedom and respect for the individual's rights than any that came before it or that currently exists.

Yes, Hillary Clinton received almost 2.9 million more votes than Trump. But, again, the Electoral College exists to protect the minority.

So, while they appear anachronistic to people who obsess over the concept of "fairness" — even when it often means being blatantly unfair to others — the Electoral College and the idea of balancing population imbalances by giving each state two senators were designed to protect the minority's rights. They were the Founder's bulwarks against the tyranny of the majority.

As the libertarian philosopher Ludwig von Mises wrote nearly 70 years ago, "It is not true that the masses are always right and know the means for attaining the ends aimed at. ... Majorities too may err and destroy our civilization."

We tempt that fate if we surrender to the idea that our system's "design flaws," as O'Donnell put it, must be fixed.

How Haley's vision clashed with Trump's

By Eli Lake

The highlight of Nikki Haley's tenure as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations came in the third week of December 2017. The General Assembly was preparing to vote to condemn the U.S. for moving its embassy in Israel to Jerusalem, and Haley was having none of it.

There is a great photo of her voting against the draft resolution and casting a stern, side-eye stare at her colleagues. There is her tweet warning that she "will be taking names" of countries that voted later in the week to condemn America's decision yet still wanted to receive U.S. foreign aid. The American right — from wonky neocons to MAGA populists — swooned.

With the news that Haley will leave office at the end of the year, I thought of that showdown nearly a year ago. The conventional wisdom then from Trump's critics was that Haley had needlessly bullied the envoys of other nations. It was an embarrassment to treat the hallowed halls of the secretariat building like a Mafia social club. Diplomats are supposed to persuade, not alienate.

Despite Haley's stern warning, and others like it, she has proved effective. As I wrote at the time, the same week that Haley promised to take names, she won two unanimous votes at the UN Security Council to ratchet up sanctions on North Korea and tighten the screening of potential foreign fighters leaving Syria. In July Haley managed to get approval for an overhaul of the UN peacekeeping budget, cutting costs and streamlining the bureaucracy.

Haley didn't always press for reform. She also announced in July that the U.S. will be leaving the UN Human Rights Council, accusing it of providing cover for the world's most inhumane regimes while focusing its condemnation exclusively on the world's only Jewish state.

A fair criticism of Haley's tenure is that in her defense of the universal rights of all people, she did not manage to win the support of her boss at the White House. President Donald Trump has too often flattered the kind of tyrants that Haley scolds.

So there were moments when Haley's foreign policy was in tension with Trump's. The best example came in April, when Haley went on the Sunday talk shows to promise new sanctions on Russia for its role in abetting the Syrian regime after a chemical weapons attack. White House officials walked it back the next day. When White House economic adviser Larry Kudlow suggested Haley may have been confused, the ambassador responded: "With all due respect, I don't get confused."

This tension reflects a wider rift within the Republican Party.

Traditional conservatives embrace American exceptionalism and chafe at the UN vision of a community of nations, all deserving equal respect. Trump takes a different view. As he said in his address to the UN General Assembly last month: "I honor the right of every nation in this room to pursue its own customs, beliefs and traditions. The United States will not tell you how to live or work or worship. We only ask that you honor our sovereignty in return."

In this respect, Trump might be called a transactionalist. Haley is clearly an exceptionalist. In a speech last May at the International Republican Institute, she said the UN's "foundational dilemma" was that "it is set up to treat all countries the same." She went on: "But all countries are not fundamentally the same. When you try to pretend that there is no difference between the good guys and the bad guys, that's always a win for the bad guys."

Haley proved it's possible to speak plainly about the bad guys and still gain their cooperation. It's a record that would make any diplomat proud — and a lesson her soon-to-be-former boss might take to heart.

Susan Collins delivers her finest hour in Kavanaugh speech

Cal Thomas

In a speech announcing her vote to confirm Brett Kavanaugh to the Supreme Court, Sen. Susan Collins, R-Maine, reminded me of some of the great orators of the past. Her speech was measured in tone, substantive in content and delivered with conviction.

Collins is no conservative. She has voted in favor of abortion and same-sex marriage while towing a more moderate line on economics. Her speech denouncing Kavanaugh and denouncing the smears against him and the distortion of his judicial record was as good as any delivered by her more conservative colleagues.

She correctly labeled the process that has become corrupt, nasty and divisive:

"We have come to the conclusion of a confirmation process that has become so dysfunctional it looks more like a caricature of a gutter-level political campaign than a solemn occasion."

Collins chastised activists who sent out fundraising letters opposing President Trump's nominee even before Kavanaugh was announced: "...we have seen special-interest groups whip their followers into a frenzy by spreading misrepresentations and outright falsehoods..."

She didn't mention the major media's complicity in helping those groups to publicize the falsehoods with virtually no corrections to their outlandish claims.

Noting "Our Supreme Court confirmation process has been in steady decline for more than 30 years," she added this wish: "One can only hope that the Kavanaugh nomination is where the process has finally hit rock bottom."

Given the level of virulent hatred by the left I wouldn't bet on it.

After saying she has been assured by Kavanaugh of his respect for precedent — by which she meant fealty to Roe v. Wade and the Affordable Care Act — she said that Kavanaugh was not a sure vote for policies of the Trump administration. She pointed out that other justices nominated by Republican presidents have voted in ways that went against their wishes, United States vs. Nixon being one of the more significant ones.

There was a glimmer of hope in Collins' speech for those who believe Roe was wrongly decided. She said, "There are, of course, rare and extraordinary times where the Supreme Court would rightly overturn a precedent."

In what might be one of those "carved in stone" quotes, Collins delivered her most profound line: "We must always remember that it is when passions are most inflamed that fairness is most in jeopardy."

Fairness was not just in jeopardy; it was murdered.

Democrats and activists promoted inaccurate and unfair stories and treated as truth the testimony of Dr. Christine Blasey Ford that Kavanaugh sexually assaulted her. They did the same with others who claimed, without evidence, that Kavanaugh participated in, or was present at, alleged gang rapes fueled by drugs and alcohol.

About that Collins said, "This outlandish allegation was put forth without any credible supporting evidence and simply parroted public statements of others. That such an allegation can find its way into the Supreme Court confirmation process is a stark reminder about why the presumption of innocence is so ingrained in our American consciousness."

In this instance, the presumption of guilt was the rule. Though there were no corroborating witnesses and Ford, herself, could not remember significant details about the evening, virtually all Senate

Democrats and many Americans appeared ready to lynch Kavanaugh, causing harm to his reputation, character and grief to his family and friends, including many women who issued statements about his honor and fitness for the court.

Nearing the end of her speech, Collins said of the process surrounding the Kavanaugh nomination: "It is a case of people bearing ill will towards those who disagree with them. In our intense focus on our differences, we have forgotten the common values that bind us together as Americans."

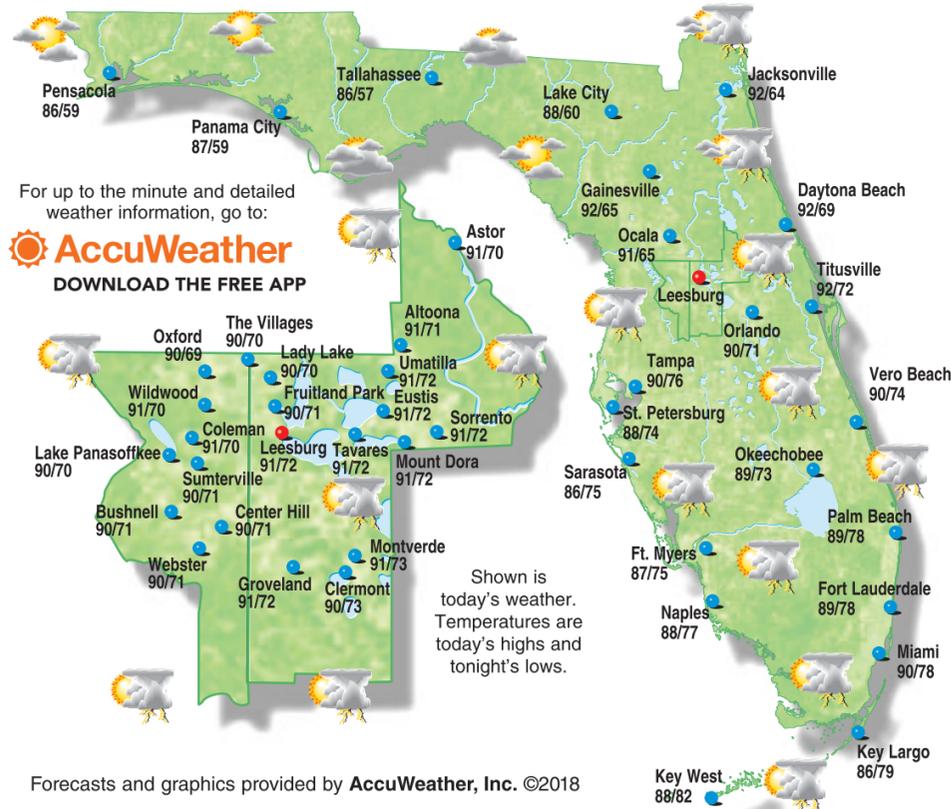

Unfortunately, a younger generation of Americans knows little about those values. They seem to be rarely taught in public schools and universities. That is why they are slipping away. Young people would do well to be reminded of them by reading Sen. Collins' speech.

Tricks have been a treat for UF

'Daring Dan' pulling out all the stops for Gators

By Mark Long
The Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — Jump pass. Double pass. Rocker step. Throwback toss. Those are apparently just a glimpse into Dan Mullen's playbook.

The first-year Florida coach has turned to a little trickery to help the 14th-ranked Gators mask their offensive deficiencies.

"Daring Dan" is perfect on the season with them, too.

His latest play-calling masterpiece came Saturday against LSU. Mullen dialed up a throwback pass from seldom-used tight end Lucas Krull, a former left-hander pitcher at Arkansas, to quarterback Feleipe Franks that set up the go-ahead touchdown in a 27-19 victory.

The timing was impeccable. The execution was flawless. The outcome was something Florida players and coaches are starting to expect.

A week earlier, the Gators used a double pass nicknamed "Kodak" to beat Mississippi State 13-6. The play was named after rapper and Florida fan Kodak Black.

So what about Krull's 15-yard completion to Franks?

"That's just called throwback," Mullen said. "We have some cool, other plays in there. ... It was one that we had a long time ago. I wasn't smart enough to create cool names for plays until about four or five years ago. That's just one we've had for a long, long time. But, sorry. I've got to be more creative than just throwback."

No one will mind plain as

No. 2 Georgia prepares to face gauntlet of Top 25 teams

By Paul Newberry
The Associated Press

ATLANTA — The first half of the season was a breeze for No. 2 Georgia.

No daunting opponents. No game closer than two touchdowns.

Now the real season begins.

The Bulldogs must run a gauntlet of four straight games against Southeastern Conference opponents currently ranked in the Top 25, beginning with Saturday's trip to No. 13 LSU.

"Anytime you go on the road in the SEC, it's an adventure," coach Kirby Smart said. "We're going to play some good teams coming up, absolutely. It's tough everywhere in the SEC. Go talk to Tennessee and ask them the road they're dealing with. Go talk to LSU — they just played Florida. I mean, there's no time to cry about it. Nobody wants to hear that. You gotta get ready to go play."

Coming off a trip to the national championship game, Georgia (6-0, 4-0 SEC) has yet to be seriously challenged.

But beating teams like Austin Peay and Vanderbilt by an average of nearly 30 points a game makes this a rather mysterious team. Even this deep into the season, no one is quite sure how the Bulldogs will react when inevitably faced with an opponent that can match up with them physically and hang around well into the second half.

"We just know that from

EAGLES, GIANTS MEET AMID STRUGGLES

Out at home: Yankees fall to rival

By Mike Fitzpatrick
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Aaron Judge and the New York Yankees couldn't wait to get back home.

Now, that's exactly where they're staying.

CC Sabathia became the latest pitcher to put New York in an early hole as rookie manager Aaron Boone again stuck with his starter too long, and the Yankees fell just short of extending their season Tuesday night with a 4-3 loss to the rival Boston Red Sox in Game 4 of their AL Division Series.

"That's the one team that you don't want to lose to," outfielder Brett Gardner said. "We hate losing to them and we love beating them. Obviously, they just had our number this year."

New York mounted a last-ditch rally against wild closer Craig Kimbrel, scoring twice in the ninth inning. But the Yankees' comeback stalled when Gary Sanchez's bases-loaded sacrifice fly was caught on the left-field warning track, and rookie Gleyber Torres grounded out with two on to end it — sort of.

The play at first base was close, so both teams and a sellout crowd held their breath during a dramatic replay review before the out call was upheld following a 63-second delay. Kimbrel and the Red Sox — suspended in mid-celebration for a minute — resumed bouncing around in excitement.

"We played a really

Eagles struggling post Super Bowl, Giants still losing

By Tom Canavan

The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — After turning over half their roster, it's not surprising the New York Giants are losing.

The defending Super Bowl champion Philadelphia Eagles are another story. They were expected to make a run at being the first team to repeat since the New England Patriots won title games after the 2003 and 2004 seasons.

The Eagles (2-3) head into tonight's game at MetLife Stadium against the Giants (1-4) looking to avoid their first three-game losing streak since the 2016 season. A fourth loss would be more than they had last season.

While some might point to a Super Bowl hangover, it's also a combination of having a target on their backs, injuries and bad play.

"We know we're going to get everybody's best and we've seen it already this season," Eagles coach Doug Pederson said.

"I've addressed the team that way. It doesn't mean we have to; it's not about panic mode or anything in that nature, it's just a heightened sense of urgency. The mistakes we're making are self-inflicted and it's keeping us from possibly winning a game or two here or there, and we understand that."

So do the Giants. They have not played horribly in coach Pat Shurmur's first season. They are not making enough plays, and too many mistakes.

Odell Beckham Jr., who caught a touchdown and threw another in the Giants' 33-31 loss to Carolina last weekend, is glad this is a short week and the Eagles are the opponent in the weak NFC East where no team has a winning record.

"Defending Super Bowl champs coming in here, Thursday night game, but right now the focus is more on this just one game, and not putting so much pressure on what it could do for us," Beckham said. "But this is a game that we need to win against a division rival."

The Eagles have won the past three against New York and seven of eight.

hard season, we managed to win 100 games and then we get to this point and we just can't finish off a series against the Red Sox. It's tough," reliever David Robertson said.

Asked about his long fly, Sanchez said through a translator: "I wasn't sure about it. I hit it well, but I got under it."

After beating Oakland in the AL wild-card game, it was a humbling playoff exit for a power-packed Yankees team that added reigning NL MVP Giancarlo Stanton last offseason and hit a major league-record 267 home runs.

With the stakes at their highest, however, the Yankees never left the yard in two home games versus Boston. They were outscored 20-4 as the AL East champs took the best-of-five series 3-1 and advanced to the ALCS against defending World Series champion Houston.

"I didn't expect to come here and lose two in a row. I expected to come back here and win two in a row," Gardner said.

Last year, it was the Yankees who reached the AL Championship Series before their surprising run ended with a Game 7 loss to the Astros.

This time, a 2018 season that began with sky-high expectations — now over in bitter disappointment.

While the Red Sox got strong starts from Chris Sale, Nathan Eovaldi and Rick Porcello during the series, Yankees starters were charged with 15 runs over 13 innings in four games. Masahiro Tanaka was the only one to get an out in the fourth.

"They just had a lot of stuff going right. We're very equal teams," Sabathia insisted. "The ball just bounced their way."

Adding to the humiliation, the Red Sox got to revel in a second champagne celebration at Yankee Stadium in less than three weeks.

Boston also clinched its third consecutive division crown on enemy ground Sept. 20.

"They got momentum on their side and never really slowed down," Robertson said.

So while the Red Sox roll on seeking their fourth World Series title in 15 years, the Yankees own but one pennant and championship during that span (2009).

On deck, a long winter of wondering how they've fallen behind in a rivalry they dominated for nearly a century.

All that changed in 2004, when Mariano Rivera was finally unable to close out the pesky Red Sox and they rallied for an unprecedented comeback from a 3-0 deficit to win the ALCS. Boston took Games 6 and 7 at Yankee Stadium on the way to its first World Series championship in 86 years.

This was the first playoff meeting between the clubs since then, and the Red Sox once again made themselves right at home in the Bronx. After splitting two games at Fenway Park, they quieted the Yankees' boisterous crowd — and their dangerous bats. New York hadn't gone consecutive games at Yankee Stadium without a home run since April.

"Definitely frustrating," Boone said. "I think one of their goals in this series was to keep us in the ballpark, and then coming here where we're so good at that, they were able to do it. Credit to them for being able to hold us down and shut us down, but in the end, you don't move on usually when you can't get enough big hits in a series, and they just outplayed us a little bit."

Before the last two games, New York was 7-0 at home over the past two postseasons.

Confident players were excited about returning to the Big Apple, and Judge even walked past Boston's clubhouse inside Fenway Park early Sunday morning with Frank Sinatra's rendition of "New York, New York" blaring from a boom box.

"It's a good song. And Aaron, he's one of our resident deejays, so he's got a pretty extensive playlist," Boone said later that day at Yankee Stadium, a smirk filling his face. "We like to hear that song sometimes when we win a big game."

That was the last time they did.

Boston's 16-1 blowout Monday marked the most lopsided defeat for a home team in postseason history, and shortstop Didi Gregorius called it "an embarrassing day."

Boone acknowledged some regret in allowing ace Luis Severino to start the fourth inning down 3-0. Severino was removed with the bases loaded and nobody out, but relievers Lance Lynn and Chad Green quickly let the game get out of hand.

long as it's productive.

And the Gators (5-1, 3-1 Southeastern Conference) have been productive while winning three straight. It hasn't been particularly pretty on offense, mostly because the team's line is a work in progress and Franks is far from a polished passer.

Mullen, to his credit, has found ways to get the most out of both.

He's not asking the line to try to manhandle more physical fronts in a league filled with them, and he has Franks making quick reads and, if nobody is open, scrambling for yards.

Add in some deception, and Mullen and the Gators are doing enough to complement a stout defense that continues to be the backbone of the team.

"He's got every trick in the bag and he knows when to call the right play at the right time," Krull said. "He's tremendous at what he does."

On a first-and-10 play at the LSU 17 and trailing 19-14, the 6-foot-6

Krull started in motion from right to left, took a handoff that resembled an end-around and then pulled up and floated a pass back to Franks, who had slipped into the flat mostly unnoticed.

Franks was tackled at the 2, setting up Lamical Perine's touchdown run on the next play.

"I was hoping someone would run with me and I'd kind of snatch it off someone's head or something like that (and) make 'SportsCenter' top plays," Franks said.

It certainly will end up on Franks' growing highlight reel.

He threw a jump pass for a touchdown in the season opener, stirring memories of Florida great Tim Tebow. Franks started the double pass last week, the one that ended with Kadarius Toney's 20-yard TD toss to Moral Stephens.

Franks' 13th touchdown pass of the season came Saturday on a rocker step to Stephens, another play Tebow made famous at Florida. Franks took the shotgun snap, stepped toward the line of scrimmage like he was about to tuck it and run, and then rocked back and completed a 3-yarder to Stephens.

GEORGIA

this point going forward we need to be on our A game, because this is our meat of our schedule," receiver Terry Godwin said. "We haven't played our best yet."

Making this stretch even more challenging: only one game is between the hedges.

After traveling to LSU (5-1, 2-1), Georgia has an off week before heading to Jacksonville for their Cocktail Party game against No. 14 Florida (5-1, 3-1). That's followed by another true road game at No. 18 Kentucky (5-1, 3-1), before the Bulldogs finally return to Sanford Stadium to host No. 21 Auburn (4-2, 1-2).

If the Bulldogs get through all that unscathed, they'll almost surely head to the SEC championship game with a perfect 12-0 record. The final two games are both at home against lowly Massachusetts and state rival Georgia Tech.

"Every week, the team gets better, they get more experience," tight end Isaac Nauta said. "Obviously, we've got a tough stretch up ahead with a lot of good opponents, but our preparation's not going to change. If anything, we're going to push harder because we know the competition's going to get better. It's exciting knowing you're going to go into some of these big games and that's what you want to be a part of being a football player."

Missouri was the only team to remotely challenge Georgia, hanging within striking distance going to the fourth quarter before losing 43-29. In every other game, the final margin was at least 24 points.

That's made it even more important for the Bulldogs to challenge themselves during the week.

"We've been tested," Nauta said. "We believe that some of the best competition we're going to play is in practice."

This will be Georgia's first trip to Baton Rouge since 2008. While no one on the roster has played in Death Valley, they all have a sense of what they'll be up against in Tiger Stadium's notoriously raucous atmosphere.

"From everything I've heard, it's supposed to be an electric place to play in and they've really got the home-field advantage," Nauta said. "I'm ready to see what it's like."

Smart already knows. He played there in 1998 during his senior season at Georgia, spent the 2004 season as an LSU assistant, and returned four more times while serving as Alabama's defensive coordinator.

1A-4 following a 68-0 win against Bronson on Friday.

In classes 1A through 4A, six teams from each of the four regions will advance into the postseason. In classes 5A through 8A, eight teams from each region — four district champions and the four highest PPR — will transfer into the postseason.

The final rankings — along with playoff seedings — will be announced on Nov. 4.

In Class 4A-Region 2, The Villages (37.67 PPR) began last week as the top-ranked team in the region. However, following a 49-13 win against Umatilla, the Buffalo dropped to No. 4 this week.

A likely factor in the Buffalo's fall from the top spot was the won-loss record of their previous five opponents, four of which lost on Friday. Opponent's won-loss record is one of the criteria used to determine PPR.

The Buffalo will get a chance to tie the program record with seven straight wins to open the season on Friday at Interlachen.

Also in Class 4A-2, South Sumter (34.71) maintained its stranglehold on the sixth spot in the rankings, despite a 42-21 loss to Dunnellon, the second-ranked team in the region. The Raiders (3-4) have earned 18 bonus points already this season, because they have played six teams that earned playoff berths in the 2015-16 scheduling cycle — another criteria for calculating a team's PPR.

South Sumter travels to Mount Dora on Friday, with both teams looking for a win against a regional opponent.

Mount Dora (31.50) enters Friday's game ranked eighth in Class 4A-2 with a 3-3 record. Also in Class 4A-2, Umatilla (25.00) is 11th.

In Class 6A-Region 2, South Lake (39.83) jumped two spots to fourth following a 45-14 win against Eustis. The Eagles are the third of four teams from District 5 who would earn a postseason berth, based on Tuesday's rankings.

Ocala Vanguard (second with a 43.33 PPR), Gainesville (third, 41.67), and Ocala Lake Weir (eighth, 37.50) are the other three Class 6A-District 5 teams in the hunt for the eight regional berths.

South Lake plays at district and regional rival Leesburg on Friday. Leesburg (29.50), which upset Tavares last week, improved to 19th in the region.

And in Class 1A-Region 4, Wildwood (34.71) jumped into the playoff fray, moving into sixth place after its third straight win.

The Wildcats, who opened the season with two straight losses, began the week in seventh place.

If the postseason began this week, Wildwood would travel to Frostproof for an opening-round game. Frostproof knocked off the Wildcats 59-38 at Wildwood in last year's playoffs.

PPR for other area schools and region standing include: Class 7A-Region 1 — Lake Minneola (15th, 34.83) and East Ridge (19th, 32.00); Class 5A-Region 4 — Eustis (14th, 33.29) and Tavares (16th, 31.33).

First Academy of Leesburg and Mount Dora Christian Academy compete in the Sunshine State Athletic Conference and are not part of the weekly rankings.

Leesburg's Lance Erving attracting attention

Lance Erving, a major contributor to Leesburg's back-to-back state championship boys basketball team, has been attracting the attention of various college coaches.

In a recent tweet, Erving indicated Louisiana Tech is among the schools that have recently begun to show interest in the 6-foot-2 guard. His play also drew special attention at last weekend's Hoop Exchange Fall Festival Showcase in Apopka, which attracted some of the top prep players in the state.

"Lance scored at will against DME (Sports Academy team in Daytona Beach)," evaluators noted. "He stood out immediately. Lance was very poised, and it showed on the court. His defense also stood out. We will keep our eye on Lance Erving and see where he ends up."

A member of the Daily Commercial's All-Area First Team, Erving averaged 18.3 points and 2.7 steals per game in 2018. With Erving contributing big numbers on the floor, — he scored 28 points in Leesburg's 62-61 win against Sarasota Bucks in last year's Class 6A state semifinals — the Yellow Jackets had a 53-7 record over the past two seasons, including a 30-1 mark in 2017-18.

Montverde Academy duo receives high praise

A pair of Montverde Academy senior standouts

— Omar Payne and Harlond Beverly — also showed big-time skills at last weekend's Hoop Exchange showcase in Apopka.

Payne, a 6-foot-9 power forward who transferred to Montverde Academy from Kissimmee Osceola, has already committed to play at the University of Florida next season. Nonetheless, Payne, who sports a wingspan of more than seven feet, said he has a lot to prove this season.

Payne helped the Kowboys to a 21-7 record in 2017-18 and a spot in the Class 9A-Region 2 championship, where they dropped a 57-54 decision to eventual state champion Orlando Oak Ridge.

Beverly, a 6-foot-4 guard from Michigan, was the "best guard" at the showcase, according to evaluators. Scouts noted: "(Beverly) showed his ability to finish above the rim with ease. Beverly also shot the ball well from the perimeter."

Among the NCAA Division I schools looking at Beverly are: Florida, Arizona State, Baylor, Michigan State, Missouri, Ohio State, Texas and Wisconsin.

Tavares baseball team holding golf tournament

The Tavares High School baseball team has scheduled its fourth annual Bulldog Baseball Golf Tournament for Nov. 10 at Deer Island Country Club in Tavares.

Cost to play is $65 per player or $260 for a foursome and includes green fees, cart and range balls.

The tournament will begin at 8:30 a.m. with a shotgun start.

There will be prizes for first, second and third places, as well as awards for closest to the pin and longest drive, along with other ticket prizes. All entrants will receive a barbecue lunch with sides and drinks.

In additions, there are various levels of sponsorship available, including hole sponsors.

All proceeds from the tournament benefit the Tavares baseball program.

NASCAR THIS WEEK

The Daytona Beach News-Journal's Godwin Kelly & Ken Willis have covered NASCAR for nearly 60 years combined. godwin.kelly@news-jrnl.com ken.willis@news-jrnl.com

SPEED FREAKS

A few questions we had to ask ourselves

What's your percentage on Chase Elliott's chance to win the championship?

GODSPEAK: Young Chase improved his standing by winning Dover and advancing. He moved up to a 50 percent chance.

KEN'S CALL: He's running well at the right time, which kinda tells me he'll make the Final Four, at which point, by my math, he has a 1-in-4 shot. Where's my calculator? Got it: 25 percent.

Who'll be happy to see the Talladega City Limits sign?

GODSPEAK: Let's go with Jamie McMurray, who has no ride in 2019. He is sneaky, restrictor-plate good, and a Talladega win would let him exit NASCAR with a big win.

KEN'S CALL: No doubt, Alex Bowman. If you only have one shot to advance in the playoffs, and that one shot hinges on victory, you take your chances on a plate race.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

CLINT BOWYER VS. RYAN NEWMAN

NEWMAN: Bowyer said his No. 14 Ford was jolted by Newman's No. 31 Chevy, which eventually led to him crashing out of the race.

GODWIN KELLY'S TAKE: Bowyer is a playoff driver, and Newman is making laps until 2019, when he joins Roush Fenway Racing. Bowyer was not happy. "I got tore up passing a lapper," Bowyer grouched.

GODWIN'S PICKS FOR TALLADEGA

WINNER: Brad Keselowski

REST OF TOP 5: Joey Logano, Chase Elliott, Denny Hamlin, Aric Almirola

FIRST ONE OUT: Ryan Blaney

DON'T BE SURPRISED IF: Keselowski or Logano wins this race. They have six victories in their past eight starts at Talladega.

TALLADEGA

THREE THINGS TO WATCH

1. In the hole

Alex Bowman has dug himself a deep playoff hole thanks to a 28th-place finish at Dover. He is 92 points behind points leader Kevin Harvick and 34 points below the cut line for advancing. Car owner Rick Hendrick has two drivers in the playoffs, but only one going into the Round of 8. "We hope Alex can get the win down there," said Hendrick, while celebrating with his Dover winner Chase Elliott.

2. Welcome, wild-card

While Charlotte Motor Speedway's Roval race has become a wild-card race of sorts for playoff contenders, Talladega Superspeedway will always be a driver's worst nightmare. Eight of the 12 survivors would like to win this race and join Chase Elliott with a pass to the Round of 8. This big, 2.66-mile tri-oval, which is a lane wider than Daytona, always produces major white-knuckle moments.

3. Entertainment value

Talladega Superspeedway must have enormous entertainment value because NASCAR's two television partners are airing races on their

All eyes will be on Talladega Superspeedway Sunday to see how the 500-mile race scrambles the NASCAR playoff field. This is what happened to Daytona 500 champion Austin Dillon when he raced at Talladega in April. [AP/RUSSELL NORRIS] broadcast networks. Fox will show the Camping World Truck Series race on its primary network Saturday, while NBC is doing the same on Sunday with the Cup Series event. This will be only the second (and last) Truck Series event to make the big stage at Fox. Enjoy.

— Godwin Kelly, godwin.kelly@news-jrnl.com

DOVER

THREE THINGS WE LEARNED

1. Pat on back

Chase Elliott got a pat on the back from his car owner Rick Hendrick after winning Dover. "You know he is smart, he is like his dad," he said. "He is really smart, he knows when to race and he has got unbelievable car control. I'm just very fortunate to have him in our camp."

2. Laps don't count

Kevin Harvick led at Dover five times for 286 (of 404) laps but finished sixth. Elliott led once, led 11 consecutive laps and won the race in overtime. Harvick will take the Cup Series points lead to Talladega. "I don't really care about points," he said. "I'd rather win."

3. Teammate caution

Aric Almirola looked like he was on his way to victory, but with eight

Chase Elliott scored his second Cup Series win of the season at Dover, then scored a compliment from his car owner. [AP/NICK WASS] laps to go in regulation, his teammate Clint Bowyer crashed, which brought out a decisive yellow flag. "We've had so many opportunities," said Almirola, who finished 13th. "I'm frustrated and mad and angry."

— Godwin Kelly, godwin.kelly@news-jrnl.com

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling questions ... and maybe a few actual answers

Why didn't Denny force the issue?

Let's start with the obvious. Denny Hamlin and Chase Elliott have a history, and in terms of public reaction, Denny's reputation took a hit. So when Denny had a shot to stick his nose in there in Turn 1 at Dover, on the final restart, he appeared to back off and let Chase run it out. That's understandable in one respect, but then again, man, that would've been spectacular entertainment if he'd gone ugly on him.

Where is Christopher Bell next year?

Probably back in Xfinity, though he has nothing to prove there. It's never been just about ability in auto racing's pecking order. Often, manufacturers and sponsors have the final say about who gets promoted. In better economic times for NASCAR, Bell would almost be able to call his shot, depending on contractual issues. Now, not so much. But is he ready? You better believe it.

ON STAGE

Comedy and music on stage this weekend

By Linda Florea
Correspondent

It's all on stage this weekend - theater, comedy and music.

The Bay Street Players Young People's Theatre presents the musical "School House Rock, Jr." Thursday through Sunday.

Need a good laugh? Try Comedy Night with James Yon Friday at the Clermont Performing Arts Center.

The Orange Blossom Opry has two shows this weekend with the Ultimate Tom Petty Experience on Friday and George Trullinger and his many impersonations on Saturday.

The Mickey Finn Show features a variety of music in three shows this weekend at Lake-Sumter State College.

Here's what's On Stage this weekend

'School House Rock, Jr.'

The Bay Street Players Young People's Theatre presents "School House Rock, Jr." Thursday through Sunday. In the musical, Tom, a young school teacher who is nervous about his first day relaxes by watching television when various facets of his personality emerge to show him how to win over his students. Tickets: $12 adults, $6 children. Details: baystreetplayers.org.

Rock out in Tavares or enjoy barbecue in Clermont

By Linda Florea
Correspondent

Carpe diem this weekend with events featuring food, music, art and nature.

Lakeridge Winery's BBQ and Blues brings barbecue competition to the rolling hills of Clermont along with some Bluesy music Friday through Sunday.

Mount Dora is the place for art with Brushing up on Impressionism lunch and lecture today, the first Art in the Alley event featuring artists and musicians on Royellou Lane and the Bra-Vo 2018 Gala both on Friday.

Rocktoberfest in Tavares turns up the volume on Saturday followed by the more laid-back Guitars and Cars on Sunday in Mount Dora.

Get into nature Saturday at the Festival of Flight and Flowers in Eustis or take a walk in the woods to admire wildflowers and butterflies in Bushnell. Test your stamina in Umatilla Saturday at the 4th Annual Umatilla Kiwanis 5K for the Kids.

Here are your weekend highlights.

BBQ and Blues

in Clermont. Carolina Rib King will be back to defend his championship. In addition to champion-level barbecue, there is music on the outdoor stage and in the Wine and Cheese Bar, along with art and craft vendors and wine tastings. The times are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $10 with children 12 and younger free. A portion of the proceeds go to support the South Lake Chamber of Commerce. Details: lakeridgewinery.com.

Rocktoberfest

Turn it up at Wooton Park from 4 to 10 p.m. Saturday for the free Rocktoberfest featuring Petty Cash, a Tom Petty and Johnny Cash cover band, along with Hypersona. There is also a car show and beer garden. After the park closes, enjoy more live music at Bru Tap House and Ruby Street Grille from 10 p.m. to midnight.

Art in the Alley

The first Art in the Alley is from 6 to 9 p.m. Friday at the Mount Dora History Museum, 450 E. Royellou Lane. Artists and musicians will showcase their original art, handmade goods and acoustic sounds on Royellou Lane, which will be closed to traffic. Downtown galleries will be free and open until 8 p.m. Start your stroll at the Mount Dora Center for the Arts Gallery to pick up your Art in the Alley map. As you stroll down Royellou Lane, have your map punched at each gallery stop along the way. Once you have visited all of the galleries, bring your completed punched map to the Gatehouse Gallery at the Lakeside Inn to receive a special prize. Art in the Alley will be the second Friday of every month.

Bra-Vo 2018 Gala

In conjunction with Art in the Alley, Artisans on Fifth, 134 E. Fifth Ave. is hosting the Bra-Vo exhibit through Oct. 28 to raise money for the Florida Hospital Waterman Foundation for men and women in Lake County who are fighting breast cancer. Vote for your favorite work and bid at the silent auction through Oct. 28. There are light appetizers and cocktails with Bar-tending for Boobs. Free. Details: bra-vo.org.

Festival of Flight and Flowers

The Festival of Flight and Flowers is from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at Fountain Green Park, 101-199 E Magnolia Ave. in Eustis. Nature professionals will share stories, experiences and demonstrations, including native plants, outdoor recreation, wildflowers, bird and butterfly watching, kid-friendly activities, artists, photographers, crafters displaying and offering their works for sale, food and entertainment. There is also a butterfly house by the Master Gardeners.

'First Man' goes on a cerebral, emotional voyage to the moon

There are a few things you should know before seeing this newest film from Damien Chazelle ("Whiplash," "La La Land"). It's not an action-filled outer space movie. It's not, at its center, even about the first Apollo moon landing. It's not really even about NASA.

All of that is in there, much of it in great detail. But based on James Hansen's massive 2005 book "First Man: The Life of

Willis Clan looks to rebuild their careers

By Kristin M. Hall
The Associated Press

The Willis Clan, a musical family that starred in their own reality TV show and competed on “America’s Got Talent,” are now ready to sing again and tell their stories through a new album called “Speak My Mind” a year after their father was sent to prison for child abuse.

The Tennessee-based family was introduced to the world through the NBC talent show in 2014 as 12 singing and dancing siblings with ages ranging from 3 to 22. In 2015, they got their own reality show on TLC called “The Willis Family,” portraying the home-schooled, religious family with varied artistic talents.

But that all came to an end in 2016 when their father Toby Willis was investigated by the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation for years of abuse against underage family members. He pleaded guilty to four counts of child rape last year and was sentenced to 40 years in prison.

Six members of the family, ages ranging from 16 to 25, collaborated on the new record released Sept. 28, in which they address the pain and abuse and their fear of speaking the truth about their ordeal.

“We were just writing them for therapeutic reasons,” said Jeremiah Willis, 25. “And after enough of those songs have been written by various members of the band we realized, ‘This is good for us. I wonder if it can help other people.’”

But even for a family that spent so much of their lives together and performing on stages, writing the songs was a difficult process. Jackson Willis, 20, said some of the songs were written through tears.

“The content of the songs that are on this album, it’s not an easy subject,” he said. “It’s not an easy life experience that we all had.”

The title track, “Speak My Mind,” was written by the eldest daughter of the family, Jessica Willis, long before their father’s arrest. Although she is no longer in the band, her siblings saw the song in a new light as they worked on the new music.

“The song really is that just internal struggle of if I speak my mind, one, can I do it? Do I have the strength to? And if I do what will the outcome be?” said Jennifer McDowell, 23. “And I just resonated so well with it and I knew that it really just could work so well with the project.”

After a lifetime of being under the control of their father, McDowell said they are each rediscovering their individual voices.

“There’s definitely days where I personally I feel like, yeah I totally have the courage to speak my mind and to tell my story,” McDowell said. “And there are days that are just really hard and it’s hard to talk about it at all. And I realized that it’s going to be a process for the rest of my life.”

For Jeremiah, the oldest of the boys in the family, he’s struggled to understand his father’s impact on his life. He said he no longer has a relationship with his father.

“The song, ‘How Much Of Me Is You,’ is a question I will be asking myself for the rest of my life,” he said. “I was raised a certain way and I question every day, is that right? Was that right? How much of that do I keep? How much do I leave behind?”

With the MeToo movement dominating headlines, the Willis family knows that their message of resiliency, hope and encouragement is really timely and important.

“This album is being released at a time when people are being more open and telling their stories,” McDowell said.

Lynn’s vocals, feisty spirit still strong

By Kristin M. Hall
The Associated Press

Loretta Lynn, now 86, hasn’t been touring since she suffered a stroke in 2017, but the Kentucky singer-songwriter’s creative output remains strong on her new album, “Wouldn’t It Be Great.”

For years, Lynn has been recording her extensive catalog of songs with producing help from John Carter Cash and her daughter, Patsy Lynn Russell, ensuring that her legacy as one of America’s greatest songwriters and singers will continue for the next generation even as she’s had to slow down her public appearances. Recorded before her stroke, the album was delayed a year as she focused on her physical health.

The collection of Lynn-penned songs stays true to the country music icon’s favored subject matters, from love, heartaches, drunk husbands and angry women, but also family and spirituality.

Half new songs and half previously recorded, her high Appalachian vocals are unmistakably clear and refreshing with simple bluegrass and acoustic instrumentation that highlights the lyric and storytelling behind her nearly 60-year career. For a woman who has outlived her husband, as well as some of her children, her loneliness and pain is heartbreaking on a song like “I’m Dying for Someone to Live For.”

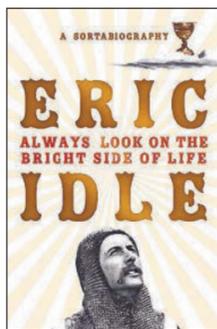

“Ruby’s Stool” sounds like a companion to her classic “Fist City,” as Lynn’s feisty side comes out in a barroom dispute with another woman. “Wouldn’t It Be Great” is a sorrowful plea to her late husband Doolittle to give up drinking for the sake of their relationship and contains little gems of simple and personal writing, such as “love went to waste when my sexy lace couldn’t turn your face.”

BOOK REVIEW

Eric Idle on Python, life’s bright side

By Michael Hill
The Associated Press

Eric Idle has been funny for a very long time.

He gained fame almost 50 years ago playing pompous TV hosts and leering idiots as a member of the Monty Python comedy troupe. While the original BBC TV show ran for only four seasons, it spawned a bunch of live shows and several movies, including “Life of Brian,” which ended with Idle on a crucifix singing “Always Look on the Bright Side of Life.”

There are a few laughs in this book, billed as a “sortabiography,” but it mostly reads like a casual memoir of someone who still can’t quite believe his good fortune.

Idle is one of those funny people who had a miserable childhood. His father survived World War II in the Royal Air Force only to die in a traffic accident as he was coming home for Christmas in 1945. The boy was eventually packed off by his overwhelmed mother to an orphanage.

He made it into Cambridge University and — more significantly — into its performing Footlights club, which was a springboard to British stage and TV shows.

In 1969, the BBC rounded up some other bright young performers for a sketch show so undefined it didn’t even have a name. Idle, John Cleese, Michael Palin, Graham Chapman, Terry Jones and Terry Gilliam toyed with names like “Toad Elevating Moment” and “Whither Canada?” before settling on “Monty Python’s Flying Circus.”

Readers looking for firsthand insights into the inner workings of that landmark show will be disappointed. They might even wonder if some of the book’s pages stuck together, since Idle barely touches on how the group of outsized personalities managed to create so much lasting comedy.

'Perfect' man vanishes when alcohol loosens his tongue

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating the most amazing man for the past 11 months. As we approach the one-year anniversary of the day we met, this "perfect" man is showing some not-so-perfect traits. I was unlucky in love for many years until he swept me off my feet. We have both become extremely close with each other's respective friends and family.

He's everything I have been searching for in a life partner and husband. But when he drinks, he confides his deep fears of dating me and enumerates each and every one of my relationship insecurities -- nagging, anxiety, loneliness, etc. The next day he acts like nothing happened! He swears up and down that it was the alcohol talking and he doesn't mean any of the harsh words he spoke the night before.

Should I believe him? Please don't let me be

JEANNE PHILLIPS

DEAR ABBY

the naive girl traveling down a dark rabbit hole. -- SELF-CONSCIOUS GIRLFRIEND

DEAR GIRLFRIEND: Your "amazing" man appears to be a loose-lipped lush. Not knowing him, I can't guess the degree to which he blacks out when he's been drinking. Some alcoholics don't remember what happened the night before. Others simply don't WANT to remember, so they claim amnesia.

Regardless of how you feel about him, for your own well-being, draw the line and tell him he needs to stop drinking. If he's as alcohol-dependent as I suspect he is, he will give you an argument or an outright refusal. And that's your cue to tell him if he wants a future with you, he will have to make a choice.

DEAR ABBY: My in-laws are angry that I have declined to host them over the holidays this year. My husband is never helpful. When company comes, he sits on his mobile phone while I do everything. I told his parents I can't have them over because all the responsibility falls on me. My "no" should suffice, but my mother-in-law hopes to argue me into hosting.

We don't have children because I knew I would end up raising them alone. I don't want the in-laws here "hinting" that they need us to help them when my husband won't lift a finger.

I recently became disabled, and my in-laws keep pressuring me to share my diagnosis with them. They think I should cheerfully do all the work of hosting them as a way to fight my disability!

They are extremely nosy. I am now blocking her calls. I know they will spend their time here trying to get a look at my medications and any financial information left out. What else can I do? -- UNMERRY IN LOUISIANA

DEAR UNMERRY: You should all try to achieve a workable compromise, if that's possible. Ask your MIL if she's prepared to take some of the responsibility off your shoulders if she and her husband visit. Suggest they stay in a hotel or motel rather than burden you. And your husband (their son) should back you up on this.

The bidding:
West North East South
Pass Pass 1♦ 6♥
Opening lead — jack of diamonds.

You sometimes have to close your eyes and bid a slam with no guarantee of making it, because there's no good way of finding out what you need to know. In most of these cases, the slam is bid simply because you feel you're a favorite to succeed.

Take this deal where South had to decide what to do after East opened one diamond. He felt sure he'd lose a diamond trick, so the question was whether he'd also lose a club.

South reasoned that if his partner held the jack of clubs, the slam would be laydown, and also that if the North hand contained any four or more clubs, the odds would strongly favor not losing a club trick. Furthermore, if North had a singleton or doubleton club, the seven of clubs could probably be ruffed in dummy.

Accordingly, South leaped directly to six hearts. He naturally was disappointed to find partner with the one holding — three small clubs — that made the slam a shaky proposition. The outcome seemed to depend entirely on a 3-3 club division, a 36 percent chance that was not about to materialize, but he found a way to make the slam anyway.

After East won the first diamond trick, he played the ace of spades, ruffed by South. Declarer then cashed the ace of trump before playing the A-K-Q of clubs. When East showed out but was unable to ruff, it was then a simple matter to trump the club seven with dummy's remaining heart and so bring home the slam.

It might seem that South took a very big chance when he failed to draw the only missing trump before playing his three top clubs, but his approach was well-reasoned. He was sure to succeed if the missing clubs were divided 3-3, but he would also get home safely if the clubs broke 4-2 or worse and the defender with the long clubs had the missing trump. If one of the top clubs did get ruffed, the contract was doomed regardless of how South played.

Tomorrow: Bidding quiz.

» HOROSCOPES

HAPPY BIRTHDAY FOR THURSDAY, OCT. 11, 2018:

This year you open up to new possibilities and ways of managing your life, especially with regard to your finances. You will feel more secure than in recent years. If you are single, your charm emanates and draws many people toward you. You have choices to make, especially as winter approaches. If you are attached, communication with your sweetie improves and intensifies. You will find your daily life as a couple to be more vital. SCORPIO has strong opinions; listening does not mean you agree.

ARIES (MARCH 21-APRIL 19) One-on-one relating takes you down a colorful path. An authority figure could surprise you with his or her attitude. If you cannot work within this person's parameters, walk away. Relate directly to a loved one, and you'll be pleased with the outcome.

TAURUS (APRIL 20-MAY 20) Don't take a stand, even if you're inclined to. Stay out of others' whirlwinds and issues. You will know when to reconnect on a deeper level.

Let those around you know that you have confidence in them and in their choices through your actions.

GEMINI (MAY 21-JUNE 20) Focus your energy where it counts. You will see a situation differently once you have completed the necessary work to wrap up a project. Share your perspective more openly at this point. You will get the respect you desire and need.

CANCER (JUNE 21-JULY 22) Express your emotional creativity. Others note how different your ideas are. Someone of interest might decide to come toward you in order to get to know you. You will find out what happens by being authentic. Honor your integrity.

LEO (JULY 23-AUG. 22) Understand what is happening around a domestic matter and a piece of property. Realize that your priorities might need revising. Do not fight the inevitable; instead, flow with it. Look to making changes at a later date.

VIRGO (AUG. 23-SEPT. 22) Reach out to someone you care about. This person seems to remain responsive no matter what you do! Do not push or test your limits, as a reversal could be close to impossible to enact at the present point. Let others know how much their loyalty means to you.

JACQUELINE BIGAR

BIGAR'S STARS

LIBRA (SEPT. 23-OCT. 22) Act rather than speculate, except when dealing with money ventures. The risk might not be worth it. You could be questioning how to best deal with a difficult roommate or family member. This situation is not new, yet you might want to try a new approach.

SCORPIO (OCT. 23-NOV. 21) You want to get to the bottom of a problem. Others might be reluctant to give you more information, yet you will accept nothing less. Understand that someone's priorities might influence which facts he or she chooses to relay. Share news.

SAGITTARIUS (NOV. 22-DEC. 21) Back out of a problem, or decide to be mum about it for now. You need to look at the issue at hand from several different perspectives before making a final judgment call. You will like what you see. Use the gift of time to your advantage.

CAPRICORN (DEC. 22-JAN. 19) You can't count on others' reactions to be what you want them to be. You can count only on yourself and your own responses. Do not create a hassle where one doesn't exist. Examine your possibilities more openly. Detach from a heated situation.

AQUARIUS (JAN. 20-FEB. 18) You carry additional responsibilities, but not because you want to. Much seems to fall on your plate because others know you will follow through. Consider using the word "no" more often. Be willing to be slightly less responsible once in a while.

PISCES (FEB. 19-MARCH 20) Reach out to an expert to get feedback, rather than brainstorm with a friend who is more likely to agree with you. You will get more dynamic input and have an opportunity to see an option that might not be readily visible.

» TODAY IN HISTORY

TODAY IS THURSDAY, OCT. 11, the 284th day of 2018. There are 81 days left in the year.

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHT IN HISTORY:
On Oct. 11, 1991, testifying before the Senate Judiciary Committee, Anita Hill accused Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas of sexually harassing her; Thomas reappeared before the panel to denounce the proceedings as a "high-tech lynching."

ON THIS DATE:
In 1958, the lunar probe Pioneer 1 was launched; it failed to go as far out as planned, fell back to Earth, and burned up in the atmosphere.
In 1968, Apollo 7, the first manned Apollo mission, was launched with astronauts Wally Schirra, Donn Fulton Eisele and R. Walter Cunningham aboard. The government of Panama was overthrown in a military coup.

In 1983, the last full-fledged hand-cranked telephone system in the United States went out of service as 440 telephone customers in Bryant Pond, Maine, were switched over to direct-dial service.

In 1986, President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev opened two days of talks concerning arms control and human rights in Reykjavik, Iceland.

In 2002, former President Jimmy Carter was named the recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize.

mission. No attempt is made to cover the ground in the book, as it sticks with events that happened between 1961, when Armstrong — a pilot with an engineering background — took part in NASA's manned flight training program, and 1969, when the Eagle landed on the moon and Armstrong took that one small step.

It's a long (140 minutes), slow-paced character study, punctuated by scenes of rousing action and unrelenting tension, and is a whittled-down history of how we got, to borrow a Jules Verne title, from the Earth to the moon.

It's a triumph of the spirit story, with Ryan Gosling somberly portraying Armstrong as a man who wasn't necessarily going after glory, but trying to find solace from tragedy in his work. That thread of it is introduced in the film's opening minutes, when cameras and all attention are trained on Armstrong's face after his young daughter succumbs to cancer. At that early point, his wife and young son are pretty much ignored, by the cameras and, as is revealed later, by Armstrong, who was consumed by grief.

Throwing himself into his work, and displaying a calm demeanor and a bright mind, he's seen by NASA bigwigs as a good candidate for Gemini, a series of missions that would put two astronauts in orbit in a capsule as a learning experience for the three-man Apollo flights to the moon that would follow.

But the solace he craved wasn't to be found at NASA, where the job is dangerous, and before long, tragedy is a regular occurrence in Armstrong's life there, too, as other astronauts in training go down in crashes and up in flames.

The film starts splitting its time between work and home, with Armstrong's wife, Janet (Claire Foy) struggling to keep up her inner strength, knowing full well that Neil could be the next fatality, and trying to hold back on the pent-up anger caused by him disappearing into himself, by his indifference to being an attentive husband and father.

Chazelle has got a lot of faith in both Gosling and Foy, in that he's constantly placing his cameras right up in their faces and letting them play much of their parts wordlessly, challenging viewers to figure out what's going on inside.

As far as those exciting moments, they're done with a great deal of flair. During one Gemini launchpad sequence, there's silence, broken by heavy breathing, joined by metallic creaking sounds, interrupted by the control room countdown, finally erupting into loud pandemonium, all of it taking place within the capsule. Later on, a successful mission in space goes wrong, resulting in a nerve-racking lesson of how to keep one's cool in adverse situations. Still later, if you know what the Apollo "plugs-out" tests were, you'll know what's coming; if you don't, you'll go through an emotional wringer in that scene.

By the time things lead up to the celebrated moon landing, it's clear that Chazelle knows how to tell a gripping and unusually low-key story. Though I still like him better as a more kinetic, splashy director, he's achieved a specific major accomplishment here. In the lengthy scene where Armstrong slowly climbs down the ladder to the moon's surface, there's complete silence in the film. The full-house audience I saw it with was also absolutely silent, as if everyone was holding their breath. It was a magical shared experience. It was one reason to go to a movie theater instead of watching a film on your couch.
