Trump wants recording of killing

President says he's not sure evidence exists

By Zeke Miller, Jonathan Lemire and Catherine Lucey
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. has asked Turkey for a recording that could reveal gruesome details of what happened to Saudi journalist Jamal

Khashoggi, President Donald Trump said Wednesday. But he's not confirming there is any such recording, as reported by Turkish media, and he's continuing to urge patience while Saudi Arabia says it's investigating.

Asked about a recording described by the Turkish newspaper Yeni Safak, Trump said, "We've asked for it, if it exists."

At another point, he said, "I'm not sure yet that it exists."

Trump, who threatened punishment for Saudi Arabia when Khashoggi's disappearance first came to light two weeks ago, has repeatedly noted Saudi leaders' denials since then and insisted the U.S. must know the facts before taking action.

New trash schedule drawing complaints

By Roxanne Brown
roxanne.brown@dailycommercial.com

MOUNT DORA — A little more than two weeks into the city's new garbage collection schedule, and not everything is smelling like roses.

In fact, some Mount Dora citizens are complaining of a stench after city officials reduced trash collections from twice a week to once a week on October 1.

An official with the city's trash collector, Waste Management, said that moving to the new schedule first and foremost, will save residents $1.94 a month. It will also allow the carter to use new trucks that run on compressed natural gas, reducing exhaust emissions and carbon impact, compared to diesel that the old trucks ran on.

"Lastly, this new collections schedule provides for collection of all garbage, recycling and yard waste all on the same day," said Doug McCoy. "No more trucks coming down the street on different days picking up different materials."

The change does not affect condominiums and apartments, which will still be serviced twice a week pickups on their current days of service.

MEXICO BEACH — With stunned faces and tears, residents of hard-hit Mexico Beach returned home for the first time Wednesday about a week after Hurricane Michael hit to find pieces of their lives scattered across the sand and a community altered.

Nancy Register sobbed uncontrollably after finding no trace of the large camper where she'd lived with her husband. She was particularly distraught over the loss of an old, black-and-white

Husband Taylor Register said he found nothing but a stool used for cutting his hair, a hose and a keepsake rock that was given to him by a friend 40 years ago.

"That's my belongings," he said, pointing to a small pile beside his red pickup truck. Choking up, he said: "I appreciate God humbling me. Everybody needs it."

Just up the road, tears ran down Lanie Eden's face as she and husband Ron Eden sifted through sand in

Tornadoes are spinning up farther east in US

By Seth Borenstein
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Over the past few decades tornadoes have been shifting — decreasing in Oklahoma, Texas and Kansas but spinning up more in states along the Mississippi River and farther east, a new study shows. Scientists aren't quite certain why.

Tornado activity is increasing most in Mississippi, Arkansas, Tennessee, Louisiana, Alabama, Kentucky, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa and parts of Ohio and Michigan, according to a study in Wednesday's journal Climate and Atmospheric Science. There has been a slight decrease in the Great Plains, with the biggest drop in central and eastern Texas. Even with the decline, Texas still gets the most tornadoes of any state.

The shift could be deadly because the area with increasing tornado activity is bigger and home to more people, said study lead author Victor Gensini, a professor of atmospheric sciences at Northern Illinois University. Also more people live in vulnerable mobile homes and WOODSTOCK, Conn. — The puppeteer who has played Big Bird on "Sesame Street" is retiring after nearly 50 years on the show.

Caroll Spinney announced in a statement Wednesday that he's handing over Big Bird and his other character, Oscar the Grouch, to younger performers. The 84-year-old joined "Sesame Street" at its inception in 1969.

Spinney says he didn't feel like his work was important until Big Bird helped him find his purpose.

Spinney says the physical requirements of performing the characters had become difficult and he developed problems with his balance. He stopped doing the puppeteering for Big Bird in 2015 and now only provides the voices for him and Oscar.

His apprentice, Matt Vogel, will succeed him in the Big Bird role. Vogel also plays Kermit the Frog.

'Horseface': Does it matter that Trump ridicules women?

By Laurie Kellman
 The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Suffice it to say that "Horseface" and porn actress Stormy Daniels aren't what Republicans want to talk about three weeks from the midterm elections — or ever. A record number of women are running, most of them Democrats, in the first balloting of the #MeToo era.

No matter. President Donald Trump this week added "Horseface" to a long list of unflattering references to women, including: Fat, ugly, disgusting, "that dog," "a 10," "no longer a 10," a slob, "Miss Piggy," "Miss Housekeeping," wacky and crazy.

A look at how Trump's approach is playing out as Republicans defend their House and Senate majorities:

'Horseface'

Trump's tweet about Daniels came after a federal judge dismissed the adult film actress' defamation lawsuit against the president.

Trump tweeted: "Great, now I can go after Horseface and her 3rd rate lawyer." He added, "She knows nothing about me, a total con!"

That appeared to be a reference to Daniels' detailed and unflattering description of Trump, with whom she says she engaged in an affair in 2006, from her recent book. (He's denied that.)

"Game on, Tiny," Daniels tweeted back Tuesday.

Republicans wish he wouldn't

Being asked to "respond" to Trump's words is one of the least-favorite pastimes of members of his party. Asked about "horseface," they tried to stay as bland as possible.

Carly Fiorina speaks at the Conservative Political Action Conference on Feb. 24 in Oxon Hill, Md. Trump mocked GOP rival Fiorina's appearance during the campaign. "Look at that face," he said of Fiorina, according to Rolling Stone in 2015. "Would anyone vote for that? Can you imagine that, the face of our next president?" [AP PHOTO/ALEX BRANDON, FILE]

"There's no place for that kind of language," said House Speaker Paul Ryan on CBS "This Morning," a little over two months away from leaving Congress at the end of the year. "He should not have said that."

"I wish the president hadn't done it," said Sen. John Kennedy, R-La., said on CNN. "I've made my feelings known, to the president, that tweeting a little less wouldn't cause brain damage. I mean you don't have to express every one of your thoughts."

Rep. Elise Stefanik, R-N.Y., on CBS called the president's "horseface" tweet "unacceptable."

"I disagree with the president's rhetoric numerous times with regard to how he addresses women," she said.

Damage?

By now, Trump's infamous talk about women is embedded in American political lore.

But through the campaign and his presidency, there's been little evidence that Trump's habit has done damage among his most passionate supporters. One question in the 2018 midterms is whether Democratic voters will be particularly likely to cast ballots this year.

In Gallup's latest tracking poll, 34 percent of women say they approve of Trump, which is about where it's been throughout his presidency. Republican women are still overwhelmingly likely to support him.

Women are typically far more likely than men to support Democratic candidates, and this year is no exception. In a recent poll by the Washington Post and ABC News, 59 percent of women said they would be voting for Democratic House candidates, while just 46 percent of men said the same.

On the turnout question, the Post/ABC poll found that women under 40 were significantly more likely than they were in 2014 to say they were certain to vote.

What Trump says

In an interview Tuesday with The Associated Press a few hours after the "horseface" tweet, Trump was asked whether it is appropriate to insult a woman's appearance.

"You can take it any way you want," he replied.

What women close to Trump say

As the controversy over Justice Brett Kavanaugh's confirmation raged, Trump counselor Kellyanne Conway bristled at the backlash she gets for working for Trump, who is accused of sexual misconduct by more than a dozen women — all liars, he says.

Conway told CNN that she, too, is a victim of sexual assault.

"I work for President Trump because he's so good to the women who work for him," Conway said.

In case you missed it

Here's a far-from-complete selection of Trump's descriptions of women who bother him:

- Trump unloaded on former aide Omarosa Manigault Newman, praising White House Chief of Staff John Kelly "for quickly firing that dog!"

- Trump mocked GOP rival Carly Fiorina's appearance. "Look at that face," he said of Fiorina, according to Rolling Stone in 2015. "Would anyone vote for that? Can you imagine that, the face of our next president?"

- Trump said 1996 Miss Universe Alicia Machado had gained a "massive amount of weight and it was a real problem." Trump did not deny Machado's charge that Trump called her "Miss Piggy" and "Miss Housekeeping."

Melania Trump visits babies, moms affected by the opioid crisis

By Kristen de Groot
 The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — First lady Melania Trump toured a hospital's neonatal care unit Wednesday to learn about the treatment given to newborns suffering from opioid withdrawal, after she was initially delayed by mechanical issues on her plane.

Her flight was forced to return to a Washington-area military base because of smoke in the cabin, and she took a different plane to make the trip to Philadelphia.

Trump spoke briefly at a conference at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital on newborns who have been exposed to opioids while in the womb. The hospital has provided care to mothers with opioid use disorder and their newborn children for more than 45 years.

She was introduced by Health and Human Services Secretary Alex Azar, who said the Trump administration's plan to fight the opioid epidemic was "comprehensive and driven by the best science we've got."

She began her remarks by saying "sorry for a little delay."

Trump said there are few things harder than seeing a newborn suffering from opioid withdrawal, and that she wants to shine a light on the issue.

"As the caretakers of the next generation, it is our responsibility to protect our most valuable and vulnerable, our children," she said.

After touring Jefferson's neonatal care until, the first lady was also going to visit with mothers who are in addiction treatment in a program that allows them to have their children with them.

According to reporters traveling with the first lady, the original flight was in the air about 10 minutes when smoke filled the cabin. A member of the crew handed out damp washcloths for passengers to put over their mouths, and Secret Service agents rushed to the front of the plane.

It was not immediately clear what caused the problem on the aircraft, a Boeing C-32A identified as "Bright Star."

The visit was one of a number of stops planned to promote her "Be Best" campaign, which focuses on issues affecting children, including the importance of healthy pregnancies.

Mega Millions jackpot climbs to $868M

No winning lottery ticket was sold for the latest Mega Millions drawing, meaning the jackpot climbs to $868 million.

Mega Millions officials say no tickets matched all six numbers to claim the estimated $667 million grand prize in Tuesday night's drawing. The numbers were 3, 45, 49, 61, 69 and Mega Ball 9.

The next drawing will be Friday. The estimated jackpot for that drawing would be the second-largest lottery prize in U.S. history.

The record lottery jackpot was a $1.6 billion Powerball prize won in January 2016.

It costs $2 to play the game, but the odds of winning the jackpot aren't good. The chance of matching all six numbers and taking home the grand prize is one in 302.5 million.

Mega Millions is played in 44 states, including Florida, as well as Washington, D.C., and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

OCALA Man gets 40 years for plotting bombs in Target stores

A man has been sentenced to 40 years in prison for planning to place bombs on the shelves of Target stores in an attempt to drive the company's stock price down.

A federal judge in Ocala sentenced 50-year-old Mark Barnett on Wednesday. He was convicted in July of attempted arson and other charges.

Authorities say Barnett offered a confidential source $10,000 to place homemade bombs disguised in food packaging on Target store shelves from Florida to New York. Investigators found bomb-making materials at his house.

Authorities say Barnett had purchased options on Target stock that would pay out when the share price dropped.

MIAMI 2 ex-officers get prison for framing black teenager

Two former police officers will serve a year in federal prison for framing a black teenager for burglaries he did not commit.

Court records show ex-Biscayne Park officers Charlie Dayoub and Raul Fernandez were sentenced Tuesday by a Miami federal judge. They admitted to being part of a scheme to frame the 16-year-old so the police chief could claim a perfect rate of solving burglaries in the small city.

The judge insisted on prison for the pair despite plea deals calling for house arrest.

Former chief Raimundo Atesiano faces up to 10 years in prison after pleading guilty to a more serious civil rights conspiracy charge.

MIAMI Officials issue alert after rabid cat found in Miami-Dade

Health officials have issued a 60-day alert in Miami-Dade County after a second cat tested positive for rabies this year.

The Florida Department of Health announced the alert Tuesday morning. It covers a limited area in North Miami Beach and will last until Dec. 14.

An earlier alert following the discovery of the first rabid cat is set to end Nov. 24. It covers another area in North Miami Beach.

Health officials say one person is receiving rabies treatment after trying to deal with an unvaccinated stray cat. Another person is being checked following a cat scratch. The cat has been euthanized.

Killer gets a second chance

Jury will decide in resentencing hearing whether Raul Roque lives or dies

By Frank Stanfield
frankstanfield@dailyccommercial.com

TAVARES — A man sentenced to death in the 2006 stabbing of a fellow prisoner will get a second chance at life in prison without parole starting Monday when lawyers begin picking a resentencing jury.

Raul Roque, who was born in Cuba in 1957, is already serving a life sentence for second-degree murder in a Miami-Dade homicide in 1996.

His Florida Department of Corrections record shows 18 convictions — not including the 2006 first-degree murder — going back to 1996, including 10 charges of possession or sale of cocaine, three marijuana sale convictions, two for battery on a law enforcement officer or firefighter, one for resisting an officer with violence, grand theft and the second-degree murder case.

Roque was convicted, along with another man, of killing Miguel Griffin with a homemade knife for stealing honeybuns and other items from his locker at Lake Correctional Institution. That second man, Jeffrey A. Ferris, 60, was sentenced to life in prison.

The defense will present evidence it hopes will show brain damage or low intellect.

"Roque's case is very interesting," said John Spivey, executive assistant public defender.

Going to the voters

Justices reject challenge to 3 ballot measures

By Jim Saunders
News Service of Florida

TALLAHASSEE — Though one justice wrote that voters should "beware," the Florida Supreme Court on Wednesday rejected a challenge to three proposed constitutional amendments on the November ballot — including a measure that seeks to ban offshore oil drilling and vaping in workplaces.

Justices overturned a ruling by Leon County Circuit Judge Karen Gievers that would have blocked the constitutional amendments in a case focused on whether the proposals improperly "bundled" unrelated issues into single ballot measures.

The Supreme Court said, in part, the Florida Constitution and a state statute do not bar such bundling when amendments are placed on the ballot by the Constitution Revision Commission, which proposed the three disputed measures. The challenge contended that bundling would violate First Amendment rights because voters could have conflicting opinions about issues in the same ballot measure.

"It is evident that a vote of either yes or no corresponding to the ballot summary of a proposed amendment is a vote to approve or reject the entire constitutional amendment — including all of its subjects," said the opinion, which was fully shared by Chief Justice Charles Canady and justices Ricky Polston, Jorge Labarga and Alan Lawson. "The fact that each proposed amendment contains multiple independent measures covering different subjects does not prevent compliance with the statute."

Judge rules Rosario can't hold office

By Linda Charlton

GROVELAND — The long-standing dispute between former Groveland mayor George Rosario and the City of Groveland may finally be over.

On October 8 Circuit Judge Don Briggs signed an order denying Rosario's petition for a writ of quo warranto, finding that the city followed acceptable procedure when they removed Rosario from office, and that Rosario was not qualified to hold that office in the first place.

Rosario had filed the petition to compel the city to show by what authority they had removed him. Rosario has 30 days to file an appeal.

City Attorney Anita Geraci-Carver's said "the Court's decision underscores Florida's Constitutional requirements to hold public office in the City of Groveland. It also reinforces the authority granted the Groveland City Council under the City's Charter."

Attorney Howard Marks, who represents Rosario, has a different take on the matter.

"Obviously we're disappointed at the decision," Marks says. "It is incorrect. However it was not a great surprise since the judge is the same one who initiated an injunction against Rosario that was overturned by the appeals court."

Marks said he will appeal on Rosario's behalf and is adamant that Rosario does meet the requirements to run for and hold the office of mayor.

The Rosario/Groveland saga began in late 2016, shortly after Rosario was elected mayor by a narrow margin in a three-way race.

His political opponent came out with information that Rosario had a 30-year-old felony drug conviction in Pennsylvania and had never Spivey and his boss, Public Defender Mike Graves, assembled a team of brain injury specialists and mitigation investigators to see if there was some reason a defendant may have acted the way he did, including from childhood. Just getting permission to get into Cuba before relations were normalized between the two nations was a challenge, Spivey said, let alone finding records and witnesses. Among the witnesses discovered during the original trial were neighbors, who later moved to Miami. They said Roque's mother tied him to a thorn tree and beat him. Jurors next week will likely hear from the neighbors. The state typically presents its own experts, and prosecutors will make legal arguments about why Roque should die of lethal injection. Among those arguments is that he is a felon who has been convicted of a violent crime.

The fact is, there likely wouldn't even be a resentencing if not for the reluctance of one juror in the original trial. Supreme Court rulings have forced Florida to adopt unanimous-only jury death decisions. Roque's case is similar to another Lake Correctional prisoner who stabbed a fellow convict to death. Like Roque, Allen Cox, 56, is also eligible for resentencing since a jury was not unanimous in its death recommendation (10-2). And like Roque, Cox was already serving a life sentence. The difference is that Cox doesn't want to fight the death sentence. He wrote a letter to Circuit Judge Larry Semento saying he has a comfortable, safe cell on death row and doesn't want to go back to general population. "But if you desire (sic) to sentence me to life the very first time one of those scum bags trys (sic) to rob me I promise you that I will put a big hole in his heart the same way I did the last one and his blood will also be on your hands as well as mine."

been pardoned, making him unqualified under Florida law to hold public office. The Florida constitution states convicted felons may not hold office unless they have had their civil rights restored. But to run for office, candidates must only be qualified voters (Rosario is) and meet residency requirements (Rosario does). Rosario was asked to produce a pardon on multiple occasions but declined every time. In January 2017, after concluding that the Groveland City Council would take no action on the Rosario matter, Glen Wilson, the candidate who had come in second to Rosario in the mayoral race, filed for and obtained an emergency injunction to prohibit the city from recognizing Rosario as mayor. In October 2017 an appeals court, citing procedural issues, ruled in Rosario's favor. Rosario

"Obviously we're disappointed at the decision. It is incorrect. However it was not a great surprise since the judge is the same one who initiated an injunction against Rosario that was overturned by the appeals court."

Attorney Howard Marks, who represents mayor George Rosario was restored to power, but not for long. In January of this year the new council voted to declare Rosario's seat forfeit. At that point vice mayor Dina Sweatt became mayor. Several months later, Rosario filed suit in appeals court, asking that the city be compelled to show it's authority for removing Rosario. But there were procedural problems with that filing, and in June the matter was bumped back to circuit court, where Judge Briggs made his ruling last week. Under Groveland's charter, convicted felons are not specifically barred from holding office, but Judge Briggs' order points out that "the City charter is not the only law regarding municipal elections; the laws of the State of Florida also apply, and overrule a city's charter where they conflict." Briggs also clarified the charter's use of the term "declare." Rosario was asserting that council only had power to announce a forfeiture. The city and Briggs both asserted that the term "declare" also allows council to take "positive action" in the matter. Rosario is currently running for city council, seat 3, against Dina Sweatt. If he wins, he will face the same challenge as council member that he faced as mayor - the lack of a pardon. Under Pennsylvania law, Rosario's right to vote had automatically been restored on completion of sentence, but even under Pennsylvania law, a pardon is necessary in order to regain the right to hold public office. And while available records indicate Rosario has applied for a pardon in Pennsylvania, there is no indication that his case has yet been heard.

CHALLENGE

The ruling finalizes that voters in the Nov. 6 election will decide whether to approve 12 proposed constitutional amendments, which were placed on the ballot by the Constitution Revision Commission, the Legislature and through petition drives. The Supreme Court last month rejected one amendment, which dealt with education issues. The three amendments involved in the bundling case included the measure, Amendment 9, that seeks to ban offshore oil drilling and vaping or use of electronic cigarettes in workplaces. Another measure, Amendment 7, deals with governance of the state-college system and death benefits for survivors of first responders and military members. The third measure, Amendment 11, would remove constitutional language that prohibits "aliens ineligible for citizenship" from owning property and would revise language to make clear the repeal of criminal statutes does not affect the prosecution of crimes committed before the repeal. Former Supreme Court Justice Harry Lee Anstead and another plaintiff, Robert J. Barnas, challenged the three amendments by filing what is known as a petition for a "writ of quo warranto" against Secretary of State Ken Detzner, the state's chief elections officer who assigns measures to the ballot. Such petitions involve questions about whether officials have "improperly exercised a power or right," according to the Supreme Court ruling. But justices unanimously ruled that a petition for a writ of quo warranto was not a proper legal basis to challenge the proposed constitutional amendments.

"Appellees (Anstead and Barnas) do not demonstrate or even allege that Secretary Detzner exceeded his authority to assign ballot position to the revisions," the opinion said. "The petition therefore fails to assert a proper basis for quo warranto relief." But questions about whether the proposed constitutional amendments improperly bundled unrelated issues caused a split on the court. While Canady, Polston, Labarga and Lawson rejected the arguments about improper bundling, Justice Barbara Pariente wrote an opinion that took issue with the practice. "Voters beware! When amending our Florida Constitution, voters should not be forced to vote 'yes' on a proposal they disfavor in order to also vote 'yes' on a proposal they support because of how the Constitution Revision Commission (CRC) has unilaterally decided to bundle multiple, independent and unrelated proposals," Pariente wrote in an opinion joined by justices R. Fred Lewis and Peggy Quince. "While I concur in (the overall) result because I agree with my colleagues that petitioners fail to present a proper claim for issuance of a writ of quo warranto, I write separately to emphasize the obvious dangers of logrolling - combining popular and unpopular proposals into a single proposal - even by the CRC." The 37-member Constitution Revision Commission, which meets every 20 years, has unusual authority to place proposed amendments on the ballot. Largely appointed by Gov. Rick Scott and Republican legislative leaders, the commission this spring approved eight proposals, though one of them was the education measure blocked last month by the Supreme Court in a separate case.

Lake County and its municipalities have sent dozens of officers and firefighters to the scene as part of different organized efforts, and civilian volunteers have been traveling back and forth all week to deliver food, supplies, medical treatment, and manpower to help rescue people from trapped buildings, in the case of one lawn-care service. The Lake County Sheriff's Office and Strike Team 501, a team of Central Florida firefighters, has been providing 911 services in Panama City and Chattahoochee, and Leesburg electricians have been working to restore power since the day after the storm. Florida's counties have mobilized in a large front of solidarity with the panhandle, which has mostly avoided the brunt of powerful storms in the past. Florida's efforts are also joined by efforts from surrounding states, including Texas, whose task force was operating jointly with Fickett's team in Wednesday's search operations. Any further updates from Fickett may be found in that comment section or posted to the Florida US&R Task Force 4 page.

TRASH

Council meeting Tuesday night, said when he first heard about the change in the pickup schedule, he did not think it was going to affect anything.

But it has, he said. "There's a stink every Monday now," Hall said. "Not only that, there's also animals. People are laying down their trash bags next to the trash cans because people have families and I'm just a single man, but the cats and the animals are going through the trash."

His neighbor, Jason Holford, concurred, as did a handful of people on at least one Facebook post on the very topic Tuesday, some of who mentioned they would gladly forego the $1.94 savings to have their trash pick-up reinstated to twice a week.

Holford asked the city to look at worsening conditions in his neighborhood, citing an increase in roaches, pests and a mid-afternoon stench.

Most of all, Holford is concerned about children he's seen lingering near the trash.

"I'm just concerned for people's health, people's welfare and just the general cleanliness of the neighborhood," Holford said.

Mayor Nick Girone said city officials will contact Waste Management and ask that they look into Hall and Holford's situations and any others that surface.

Girone said Waste Management and the city can potentially work on educational programs revolving around trash pickup and other things that can be done to help.

On Tuesday, the city attorney also announced that the city may be eligible for a grant to help solve trash issues related to bears.

As it stands now, collections will continue weekly Monday through Friday. If a collection falls on a holiday, the items will be collected on the next service day. If the holiday falls on a Friday, the next service day will be Monday.

A city spokeswoman on Wednesday said there have been about a dozen complaints to city officials. A number of people have asked for bigger bins.

McCoy said Waste

Management has been delivering bigger bins to residents affected by the change but there have been some delays getting them all out.

"We temporarily ran out," he said. "The city was originally set up with 64-gallon carts as the standard size. Waste Management is supplying a larger cart (96-gallon) upon request at no charge to residents or the city. About 500 residents have made the request so far and we have delivered about 400 carts. Our supply of carts will be replenished by the end of next week and we fulfill those orders as soon as possible."

McCoy suggests that residents ensure they are provided with the proper cart size and that to reduce odors between pick-ups, they place garbage in tightly tied plastic bags.

Neighboring cities use a variety of trash collection strategies. Some pick up twice a week, like Tavares and Leesburg, and others only once, like Umatilla, Eustis and Clermont.

McCoy said Inverness, Wildwood, as well as Lake and Orange Counties also pick up once per week.

search of items they left before evacuating from the small beach house they've rented each October for years. They didn't find much — just a large pack of toilet paper that somehow stayed dry and a son's camp chair.

The Edens, who are from Fort Knox, Kentucky, and are temporarily staying in Alabama, were stunned to see mountains of debris and countless destroyed buildings as they drove into town for the first time. In a state of condominium towers, Mexico Beach was one of the few remaining places with small houses and a 1950s feel.

"Basically, we lost 'old Florida.' It's all gone," said

Lanie Eden.

Residents among the community of about 1,200 people who rode out the storm at home have been in Mexico Beach since Michael hit. But officials used the city's Facebook page to tell others to stay away for a week after the Category 4 storm ravaged the beach town with 155 mph winds and a strong storm surge.

State emergency management officials said some 124,500 customers across the Panhandle were still without power Wednesday morning and 1,157 remained in shelters.

In Bay County, home to Mexico Beach and Panama City, more than half of the households and businesses remained without electricity. Inland, in Calhoun County, 98 percent of the customers didn't have power Wednesday morning, according to the emergency management website. And in Jackson County, which borders Alabama and Georgia, about 83 percent were without power.

In the meantime, in many areas devastated by the hurricane, law enforcement officials are battling looting of homes and businesses.

Bay County Sheriff's Maj. Jimmy Stanford said deputies have arrested about 10 looters each night since the storm hit. In some parts of the county, residents have spray-painted signs warning that "looters will be shot."

Panama City resident Wes Allen said looters have been a constant problem at the badly damaged motel where he is staying with his wife and three children. Residents have formed a nighttime patrol to keep an eye out for thieves.

But when asked if he was "giving cover" to the Saudi leaders, he said Wednesday that he was not.

"No, not at all," he declared.

Saudi Arabia, a key U.S. ally in the Middle East, is under pressure to explain what happened to Khashoggi, a Washington Post contributor living in the U.S. who had been critical of the crown prince. Turkish officials have said he was murdered, and the Turkish newspaper's report said an audio recording revealed gory details about Khashoggi's demise inside the Saudi Consulate in Istanbul. Trump has repeated denials by the Saudi king and crown prince that they knew anything about Khashoggi's fate, and he has warned of a rush to judgment.

U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo, dispatched by Trump to the region, said the U.S. takes Khashoggi's disappearance seriously.

In an interview with The Associated Press on Tuesday, Trump compared the case of Khashoggi to the allegations of sexual assault leveled against Supreme Court nominee Brett Kavanaugh during his confirmation hearing. Kavanaugh denied the allegations and was confirmed to the court.

tornadoes are more likely to happen at night in those places, he said.

Even though Texas, Kansas and Oklahoma get many more tornadoes, the four deadliest states for tornadoes are Alabama, Missouri, Tennessee and Arkansas, according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

"More folks are generally at risk because of that eastward shift," Gensini said.

Because tornadoes sometimes go undercounted, especially in the past and in less populous areas, scientists don't like to study trends by using counts of tornadoes. Gensini and tornado scientist Harold Brooks of the National Severe Storms Lab looked at "significant tornado parameters," a measurement of the key ingredients of tornado conditions. It looks at differences between wind speed and direction at different altitudes, how unstable the air is and humidity. The more of those three ingredients, the more likely tornadoes will form. The increases in this measurement mirrored slightly smaller increases found in number of twisters.

The study looked at changes since 1979. Everywhere east of the Mississippi, except the west coast of Florida, is seeing some increase in tornado activity. The biggest increase occurred in states bordering the Mississippi River.

Overall there is a slight increase in tornado activity, but it's not too much and not nearly like what's happening in the east, Gensini said.

Stocks erase most of early losses after huge gain

By Marley Jay
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — After an early slide, U.S. stocks clawed back much of the ground they lost and ended slightly lower Wednesday. Banks climbed but retailers, homebuilders and smaller companies fell. Stocks slumped in morning trading as homebuilders and retailers took sharp losses after the Commerce Department said construction of new homes dropped in September. Technology companies fell as IBM suffered its biggest loss in 5½ years after it reported weak sales. Stocks were coming off their biggest gain in more than six months. Bond prices fell, sending yields higher, after the Federal Reserve said some of its policymakers argued in their latest meeting that the central bank should raise rates to a level that slows economic growth slightly. After years of record low rates following the financial crisis, the fact that some policymakers are talking about eventually using them to slow the economy is a big change. Jeremy Zirin, head of investment strategy for UBS' global wealth management business, said the Fed won't raise rates to those levels unless there is clear evidence inflation has increased. But he said it makes sense for investors to be wary. "Overly restrictive monetary policy is a risk to the bull market," he said. "It would be a mistake for (the Fed) to raise rates in the absence of inflation beyond their target, and it's exceedingly unlikely to do so." The S&P 500 index fell 0.71 points to 2,809.21. The Dow Jones Industrial Average slumped 91.74 points, or 0.4 percent, to 25,706.68. It lost as much as 319 points Wednesday morning before briefly turning higher. The Nasdaq composite slid 2.79 points to 7,642.70. The Russell 2000 index of smaller-company stocks skidded 7.23 points, or 0.5 percent, to 1,589.60. Stock trading has been erratic recently. Earlier this month the benchmark S&P 500 index went through a six-day losing streak that included huge drops last Wednesday and Thursday. Then on Friday the S&P 500 jumped 1.4 percent, its biggest rally in three months, fell on Monday, and surged 2.1 percent Tuesday. Trading had been steady from late June to early October. The Federal Reserve released minutes from its meeting in late September, when it raised interest rates for the third time this year. A few participants believed that the Fed's key interest rate would eventually need to "become modestly restrictive" to make sure inflation doesn't climb too high. Other officials felt the Fed shouldn't take that step unless there are signs the economy is overheating and inflation is rising quickly. Bond prices sank. The yield on the 10-year Treasury note rose to 3.19 percent from 3.15 percent. U.S. home construction fell 5.3 percent in September, according to the Commerce Department. The pace of homebuilding has slowed since May, and the report is the latest sign that the combination of rising home values and increasing mortgage rates may be weighing on the market.

Lennar gave up 2.3 percent to $43.08 and PulteGroup shed 3.4 percent to $22.82. Among retailers, Home Depot fell 4.3 percent to $185.17 while Target lost 1.6 percent to $84.42 and Macy's dipped 5 percent to $31.84. Some investors worried that a weaker housing market is a bad sign for the economy. Zirin, of UBS, said the housing market should keep getting stronger as long as employment is high and wages are rising, but investors aren't sure what is ahead for the economy or stocks. "When you get into the latter stages of a bull market or the economic expansion, investors get more nervous about the latter stages turning into the end of the cycle," he said. "They start looking for any signals that would lead them to believe that a downturn is imminent."

OUR OPINION

Don't be fooled by 3 tax amendments

Of the dozen state constitutional amendments on the Nov. 6 ballot, three were proposed by the Florida Legislature — and all three deal with taxation. While Florida's lawmakers are selling Amendments 1, 2 and 5 as tax-cutting measures, voters should not be fooled.

All three amendments would make it harder for local and state governments to raise money needed for vital services — if 60 percent of the voters approve them.

AMENDMENT 1

It will be hard for voters to resist this proposed increase in the homestead exemption. Amendment 1 would add another $25,000 in homestead exemption on the $100,000-$125,000 portion of your home's valuation. Already homeowners enjoy $50,000 in homestead exemptions — on the first $25,000 and the third $25,000 of valuation.

But while it sounds like a tax break, it is more likely a tax shift. The Florida Association of Counties estimates Amendment 1 would cost Florida counties $752.7 million the first year, and it would go up from there. Lake County alone would lose a whopping $10.2 million the first year.

That money would either have to be made up through higher fees and taxes, especially on small businesses and apartment dwellers, or counties would be forced to cut essential services. Besides, only about 40 percent of Lake County homes currently on the tax rolls would even qualify for the exemption, which FAC estimates would save the average qualifying property $192 a year.

This is a proposal that will benefit far fewer people than it would hurt.

Vote NO on Amendment 1.

AMENDMENT 2

Amendment 2 would actually continue a law that has been in place since 2008. Amendment 2 would affect commercial property, apartments and vacation homes. As of now, the assessed value of non-homestead properties can only be increased 10 percent in any given year, except for school taxes. The cap, however, is set to expire Jan. 1. Amendment 2 would make the provision permanent.

Thousands of non-homestead property owners — that is, business and commercial properties — would be protected from sudden and inordinate hikes in property taxes, a possibility if Amendment 1 passes.

Floridians established the existing 10 percent cap 10 years ago. It helped alleviate inequities in Florida's tax system and gave business and commercial property owners needed protection. Voters should vote to make it permanent.

Vote YES on Amendment 2.

AMENDMENT 5

This proposed addition to the Florida Constitution would require a two-thirds majority vote of the Legislature to approve any new or increased taxes or fees. Currently, a simple majority is all that is necessary.

This is a ridiculous and potentially crippling proposal. It would handcuff the Legislature's ability to handle an economic downturn or a fiscal emergency. Imagine if a proposal was floated to assess a $1 fee to vehicle tags to provide, say, money for more troopers. It's a reasonable and prudent way to raise money but would require a two-thirds majority of the Legislature to enact it.

Plus, Amendment 5 is a solution desperately in search of a problem. Florida already has the 47th lowest overall tax burden among the 50 states, according to the analytics firm WalletHub. Wild-eyed spending by the Legislature is not a problem.

Vote NO on Amendment 5.

Why vote for Democrats?

Cal Thomas

Given what the Trump administration is saying are record achievements for a president at this stage in office, why would anyone consider voting for Democrats in the upcoming midterm elections?

Writing in The Washington Examiner, Paul Bedard lists 289 accomplishments of the Trump administration, beginning with the obvious one, the economy: "They include 173 major wins, such as adding more than 4 million jobs, and another 116 smaller victories, some with outsize importance, such as the 83 percent one-year increase in arrests of MS-13 gang members."

They also include two justices now on the Supreme Court and 82 other federal judges confirmed to lower courts.

As the White House has touted, unemployment in all demographics is the lowest it has been since 1969. Despite a recent blip in the stock market, portfolios have grown fatter since Trump became president. An analysis in The Wall Street Journal predicts economic growth is likely to continue "for years."

Other positives include updated trade deals with Mexico and Canada that will produce benefits for American manufacturers and workers far more than the old NAFTA deal ever did.

Consumer confidence reached an 18-year high in September, according to Lynn Franco, director of Economic Indicators at The Conference Board, which conducts the Conference Board Consumer Confidence Index (R).

Top this off with the successfully negotiated release of Pastor Andrew Brunson from a Turkish prison and a more realistic foreign policy in confronting America's enemies.

According to Gallup's weekly tracking poll for the week of Oct. 7, the president's approval rating jumped a percentage point, from 42 percent to 43 percent. His disapproval rating holds at 53 percent, though that number is down three percentage points from the week of Sept. 16. Rasmussen, which tends to be more favorable toward Republicans, puts the president's approval at 51 percent. That is higher than President Obama achieved at a similar point in his presidency. Presidential polling does not necessarily forecast voter behavior in state and local races, though one Quinnipiac University Poll shows that Sen. Ted Cruz (R-Texas) has a nine-point likely voter lead over his opponent Rep. Beto O'Rourke (D-Texas).

In view of Republican successes, including tax cuts and the booming economy, what Democratic policies would produce results better than these? Other than spite for the president, why would voters elect candidates who want to return to a past where things were far different? Do people who didn't have jobs during the previous administration want to embrace policies that kept them unemployed? Do businesses once prevented from hiring people because of regulations now wish to have regulations re-imposed and to lay off workers they recently hired?

By what logic do some people wish to return to the recent past, including a recent past that includes Republican presidents who cannot lay claim to the type of successes President Trump is enjoying?

Perhaps most amazing is the president's growing approval among African-American voters, whose votes he is openly campaigning for as evidenced by rapper Kanye West's endorsement and the president's reciprocal embrace. USA Today reported on a new Rasmussen poll that shows "approval rating among African-Americans is at 36 percent, nearly double his support at this time last year." Despite the NAACP's hostility toward the president, African-American voters seem focused more on results than symbolism.

Polls have been wrong in the past — take the 2016 election as the latest example — but the president has begun touting his record while campaigning for candidates. That record appears to be resonating with voters, at least in some states. Never has the Ronald Reagan question "Are you better off than you were four years ago" seemed more relevant. Never has the answer

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Animal shelter misconduct is unacceptable

I have been reading the recent articles about the court case over the Lake County employee "accused of framing her boss for improperly destroying dozens of animals in 2014." Subsequently, it was determined by the court that the plaintiff (Johnston) of a lawsuit in this case be awarded $65,000 to be paid by the Sheriff's office, and $35,000 to be paid by the employee accused of "lying in the records and obstructing policies of the shelter."

In today's Daily Commercial, Mike Fry, a consultant "hired to help with the transition of the shelter to a no-kill shelter," effectively added more details supporting the award and enlightening the public on further details of obstruction by the lying employee.

The sheriff's defense of that employee's continued employment because she "is no longer involved in the day to day operations of the shelter" is ludicrous and unacceptable!

I also have read the opinion piece, "What you're saying on social media," and must add this letter of my disgust that Ferguson is still employed in any capacity with the county.

This decision by the sheriff certainly does not add to my respect for our sheriff's leadership decisions. Employees who obstruct, defame and cost taxpayers $65,000 do not belong in any position with the county, and this will be considered when the sheriff comes up for re-election.

Susan Meyers, Mount Dora

What if Kavanaugh was your son?

I read Ms. Vicki Bush's recent letter to the editor where she railed against all Republicans and stated she "will resist ... and never stop being furious about Kavanaugh's confirmation."

I ask Ms. Bush and all women one simple question: If Kavanaugh was your son, would one unfounded allegation — 36 years after the fact — be enough to have your son tried, convicted and sentenced in the court of public opinion? To have his life ruined and his family threatened?

Timothy Beary, Leesburg

Electoral College benefited slave states

The Daily Commercial had an informative editorial on Oct. 11, as they usually do, on the some of the problems we have with our political system. But the editorial had one totally wrong statement: "Yes, Hillary Clinton received almost 2.9 million more votes than Trump. But, again, the Electoral College exists to protect the minority."

The Electoral College has nothing to do with protecting the minority. It was created to give slave holding states a vehicle by which their non-voting slaves could impact the presidential election. Slaves were counted as $\frac{3}{5}$ ths of a person in determining the number of representatives each state had, which gave the slave holding states an extra 60 representatives and giving 60 more votes in the Electoral College.

It was a scheme cooked up by James Madison to level the playing field for the less populous slave holding states against the more populous Northern states. He had huge leverage because the South would not vote to approve the Constitution without this gimmick being included.

TROUBLE FOR TRUEX AS HOPES ARE FADING

Midterms: 'Bama still on top

A look at college football at the halfway mark

By Ralph D. Russo
The Associated Press

The midpoint of another season has arrived and the burning question is — yet again — can anybody beat Alabama?

This is the third straight year the Crimson Tide has started the season No. 1 and ripped through its first seven games with little resistance. In 2016, the Tide outscored its first seven opponents 318-105, spent the entire regular season at No. 1 and did not lose until the national championship game against Clemson

Last year, Alabama outscored everyone 299-71 through seven games and did not stumble until the

REWARDING SUCCESS

Leesburg, The Villages to play in Montverde tournament

By Frank Jolley
frank.jolley@daily-commercial.com

The prestigious Montverde Academy Invitational Tournament will have a definite local flavor when it tips off in January.

Officials for the 16th annual event recently announced its eight-team field, including defending Class 6A state champion Leesburg, 2017 Class 5A Final Four participant The Villages along with defending national champion Montverde Academy.

The three-day tournament begins Jan. 24 and features four games each day in the Center for Sportsmanship and Wellness — The Nest — at Montverde Academy. The two remaining undefeated teams, following two days of bracket play, will face off on Jan. 26 for the tournament championship.

Last year, Montverde Academy won its sixth MAIT title in seven years and 10th in tournament history with a thrilling 69-67 win against Henderson (Nevada) Findlay Prep. Michael Devoe drained a 3-pointer with one second left for the win.

The three local teams had a combined record of 86-9 in 2017-18 and earned considerable bling for their on-court successes.

Montverde Academy was 36-0 and beat Fort Lauderdale University in New York in March for its fourth mythical national title in six years. Earlier in March, Leesburg capped a 30-1 campaign — the best single-season record in school history — with 71-62 win against Tallahassee Rickards for its second straight state title.

The Villages finished 20-8 and watched its bid for back-to-back Final Four appearances end with a loss in the Class 5A-Region 2 quarterfinals after high-scoring guard Tre Mann went down with a knee injury in its district tournament. Considered one of the top players in the country and a University of Florida commit, Mann scored 81 points in last year's MAIT

No anthem policy in works for NFL

By Rob Maaddi
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Don't expect the NFL to institute a national anthem policy this season, if at all.

NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell emphasized on Wednesday the work teams and players are doing in the community and didn't say whether the league and the NFLPA are moving closer toward any agreement on the contentious issue.

"The focus of the players' association, the NFL and all of our clubs and our players is to focus on the efforts our players have continually brought (forth) as their issues in their communities and how can we make our communities better," Goodell said after the fall meetings concluded.

"They're incredibly passionate about that. They have brought these issues greater awareness and they are working in their communities to try to make their communities better and they are working on the issues, on criminal justice reform. I've been on listen-and-learn tours with our players. Owners have been on listen-and-learn tours. Our players are obviously out there and you see a tremendous amount of work being done."

Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones indicated a policy isn't forthcoming.

"I think right now we are going forward just as we entered the season," Jones said.

He added: "One of the owners stood up and said: 'We have really gotten in a place that's positive and not that we weren't, but we benefited from this.' And, I agree, in relationships and sorting through where we want to go, and I'm so impressed with the social programs that the clubs and the players have engaged in."

In May, the NFL passed a rule that forbids players from sitting or taking a knee if they are on the field or sidelines during "The Star-Spangled Banner," but allowed them to stay in the locker room if they wish. The league left it up to teams on how to punish players. The union challenged the rule in a grievance.

The league halted the policy in July.

The NFL and a coalition of players have been working in tandem to support player initiatives for a variety of social issues. Last month, coalition members including Malcolm Jenkins, Benjamin Watson, Demario Davis and Chris Long conducted work in the areas of bail reform and criminalization of poverty. Seattle's Doug Baldwin attended bail hearings and met with grassroots organizations and the public defender's office regarding the need to end cash bail in

After he struggled in the Miami Hurricanes' nationally televised, season-opening loss to LSU, quarterback Malik Rosier made it clear he understood that he needed to improve.

If he didn't, he knew what would more than likely happen.

"If I keep messing up, then by all means, coach (Mark) Richt has the right to bench me and let somebody else play," Rosier said after his 15-of-35 performance against LSU that included two interceptions.

Three weeks later, after wins against Savannah State and Toledo, that benching came during Miami's 31-17 win over FIU.

After Rosier and the offense went scoreless in the game's first two series, Richt opted to insert red-shirt freshman N'Kosi Perry and give the young quarterback the opportunity to play in a game that hadn't been decided.

And with Rosier watching from the sideline, Perry connected on his first 10 passes and led the Hurricanes on Kali Walker had 21 kills on 49 attacks and Caroline Culbreath added 28 digs to lead First Academy of Leesburg to a 25-19, 25-20, 25-19 win over Legacy Charter in the Class 3A-District 3 tournament.

First Academy split two matches with Foundation during the regular season, with each school winning 3-2 at home.

Kylee Brooks had 11 kills and six digs and Ariel Modeste added 11 kills, three blocks and three digs to lead South Lake to a 25-21, 25-18, 25-15 win over Auburndale on Tuesday in the Class 7A-District 6 tournament.

TONIGHT'S HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL PREVIEW

LEESBURG (1-6) at GAINESVILLE (4-3)

7:30 p.m.
 Struggling through a difficult season, Leesburg could be forgiven if it was hoping for a breather in the schedule at this point. But there is no breather this week for the Yellow Jackets.

Gainesville is led by senior quarterback Luke Matthews, the son of former UF star and 14-year NFL veteran Shane Matthews. Matthews has thrown for 1,965 yards and 10 touchdowns with nine interceptions. He has completed almost 71 percent of his passes while averaging 280 yards passing per game.

Leesburg looks for its first Class 6A-District 5 win of the year when the Yellow Jackets travel to Gainesville. Leesburg is 0-3 in the district after last week's 49-16 loss to South Lake.

Senior receiver Jalen Kelsey has been Matthews' top target with 47 catches for 783 yards while senior Isaac Meacham has 43 catches for 492 yards.

Gainesville's record may not look overwhelming on paper, but the Hurricanes' three losses have all come against likely playoff teams. Two of the losses came against Class 7A teams Columbia and Gainesville Buchholz. Columbia is currently the top-ranked playoff team in Class 7A-Region 1 and ranked second in the state while Buchholz is third in that region.

Gainesville senior running back Niles Cromwell has rushed for 394 yards and four touchdowns on 64 carries and junior K-Z Hutchinson has 319 yards and seven touchdowns on 61 carries.

The other loss came against district opponent Ocala Vanguard, which is ranked third in the state in Class 6A. Vanguard defeated Gainesville 49-28 last week and defeated Leesburg 59-3 on Sept. 28.

Leesburg's lone bright spot in last week's loss to South Lake came from senior Jatavian Solomon, who rushed for 167 yards and both of the Yellow Jackets' touchdowns.

Leesburg's Jatavian Solomon (13) makes a carry during last week's game against South Lake in Leesburg.

Football playoffs

Three area football teams would be playoff bound if the postseason began this week, based on the latest Playoff Power Rankings (PPR) released this week by the Florida High School Athletic Association.

In Class 4A, The Villages and South Sumter would transfer in the second season, along with South Lake in Class 6A, with Wildwood missing out on a playoff berth by less than a full point.

The Villages improved to 7-0 last week with a 50-0 win against Interlachen and maintained its hold on fourth place in Class 4A-Region 2. The Buffalo have a PPR of 37.29, ahead of fifth-place Dunnellon (37.00) and South Sumter (34.75) in sixth place.

which lost to South Sumter 42-28 last week, is ninth and winless Umatilla (25.63) is 11th.

In classes 1A through 4A, the top six teams in each region earn postseason berths. In classes 5A through 8A, four district champions in each region move on along with the next four-highest PPR, regardless of district affiliation.

South Lake held on to the sixth seed in Class 6A-Region 2 following a win 49-16 win against Leesburg. The Eagles (4-3) have the fifth-best PPR (38.43) in the region, but would be the sixth seed in the postseason because district champions earn automatic bids.

Leesburg (29.29) sports the 19th-best PPR in the 22-team region.

In Class 1A-Region

4, Wildwood began last week as the region's sixth seed, but dropped to seventh following a 34-20 loss to Class 4A Keystone Heights. The Wildcats (33.50) trail sixth-seeded Williston (33.71) by .21 points.

Wildwood (4-4) hosts Interlachen on Friday and The Villages on Oct. 26. The Wildcats believe they will secure a postseason berth with wins in both games.

In Class 5A, Eustis (32.57) is 13th in Region 4, two spots ahead of Tavares (30.86).

Lake Minneola (34.57) is 13th in Class 7A-Region 1 and East Ridge (31.71) is 18th.

Playoff pairings, based on PPR, will be announced on Nov. 4 by the FHSAA.

South Lake hosting Halloween Havoc

The South Lake High School baseball and softball teams will host a variety of activities on Oct. 29 for Halloween Havoc at the South Lake baseball field.

Beginning at 5:30 p.m. and lasting until 9 p.m., there will be a Kids Costume Contest, along with a Baseball/Softball game featuring coaches and players in costumes. A concession stand will be open, offering traditional ballpark fare, and there will also be various candy and fun booths operating.

Admission is $5 for adults and $3 for students, with children 10 and under being admitted free.

Proceeds will go toward supporting South Lake's sports programs.

FHSAA

The FHSAA Athletic Directors Advisory Committee endorsed the organization's new classification proposal on Wednesday during a special emergency meeting in Gainesville.

The proposal will be voted on by the FHSAA Board of Directors on Monday and if approved, will go into effect with the 2019-20 school year for baseball, softball, boys and girls basketball and soccer, and girls volleyball.

Key aspects of the proposal included reducing the number of classifications to seven. The six largest classifications will be divided evenly based on student enrollment, with eight teams in each of four regions earning playoff berths.

Districts will remain, but schools will not be required to play regular-season district games. District tournaments will be held following the regular season, with teams seeded based on rankings provided by MaxPreps.

Football and Class 1A programs for the affected sports will not be impacted by the proposal.

King County on Sept. 25.

Coalition members have focused on voting this month as well as voter restoration rights, plus their ongoing work on bail reform.

"The focus has been on listening, learning, understanding what the players want to accomplish in their community, the impact they want to have and supporting them," Goodell said. "Our clubs have done that at historic levels and we've gone over that the last couple of days. I'm proud of what our clubs are doing. I'm proud of what our players are doing. We're all working together to try to address those issues, and from my standpoint that always helps make relationships more productive when there's respect and understanding and agreement to work together to try to make things better.

"When you have people working together and listening to one another and that level of respect, I think everyone feels better and I think that's important, but the key thing is there's a lot of work to be done."

In 2016, then-49ers quarterback Colin Kaepernick began protesting police brutality, social injustice and racial inequality by kneeling during the national anthem, and the demonstration spread to other players and teams.

Critics led by President Donald Trump called the players unpatriotic and Trump even said NFL owners should fire any player who refused to stand during the anthem. Many players countered that their actions were being misconstrued and that they are seeking social change rather than protesting the anthem itself.

regular-season finale at Auburn, which the CFP selection committee excused and the Tide went on to win its fifth national championship under coach Nick Saban.

This year, Alabama is 7-0 by a margin of 375-106. Granted, part of this first-half dominance is because the Crimson Tide's early season schedule always contains at least two nonconference pushovers, and its typically toughest Southeastern Conference games against LSU and Auburn are always in November.

But here we are again, halfway home waiting to see if and when the machine in Tuscaloosa will malfunction.

Time to put a caper on the first half, acknowledging the good and bad.

Best offensive player

Tua Tagovailoa, QB, Alabama

The NCAA passer rating might not be the best way to measure how well a quarterback is playing, but it does provide a consistent data point that's been used for a long time. Last year, Baker Mayfield set an NCAA record for rating in a season at 198.9 on the way to the Heisman Trophy. Look back at the statistics over the years and you will find that good quarterbacks have good ratings. It's not a bad tool, even if it is not perfect.

Tagovailoa currently leads the country in passer rating at 248.09. He has thrown 21 touchdowns, no interceptions and is averaging 14.3 yards per pass. Even accounting for inflation because of competition — and Alabama's schedule is really not that bad relative to other top teams — the sophomore has delivered on every bit of his hype.

Also considered: Dwayne Haskins, QB, Ohio State; Darrell Henderson, RB, Memphis; Kyle Murray, QB, Oklahoma; Laviska Shenault Jr., WR, Colorado; Jonathan Taylor, RB, Wisconsin.

Best defensive player

Ed Oliver, DT, Houston
If you thought Oliver might cruise through his junior season, having already declared that he will enter next year's NFL draft, not a chance. Despite drawing loads of attention from opposing blockers, Oliver is putting up almost two tackles for loss per game (third in the nation). If advance measurements are your thing, Oliver has graded out as one of the best defensive players in the country, according to Pro Football Focus. There is also a cool bobblehead doll version of Oliver riding his horse, Oreo.

Also considered: Josh Allen, LB, Kentucky; Ben Burr-Kirven, LB, Washington; Quinnen Williams, DT, Alabama; Gerald Willis III, DT, Miami; Oshane Ximines, DE, Old Dominion.

Most surprising team

No. 5 LSU (6-1)

The Tigers were pre-season No. 25, but it seemed even their fans were not quite convinced this would be a successful season. Now they are thinking playoff after LSU walloped Georgia last weekend. The offense still lacks explosiveness, but it has limited mistakes. The defense is stout, relying on a trio of midseason All-Americans in cornerback Greedy Williams, safety Grant Delpit and linebacker Devin White. The Tigers might have already peaked, but only a second-half collapse will keep them from exceeding expectations.

Also considered: Cincinnati, Colorado, Florida.

Most disappointing team

Auburn (4-3)

The SEC West's other Tigers are in a tailspin. The defending division champions were ranked ninth in the preseason and kicked things off by beating Washington. Auburn's offense seems to get worse every week, which is especially problematic when that is your head coach's thing — and that head coach is one year into a $49 million contract. The Tigers can't run behind a faulty line and quarterback Jarrett Stidham, touted as a potential first-round NFL draft pick, is 86th in the country in passer rating (126.76). Getting to 7-5 will take serious work.

Also considered: Arizona, Florida State, Memphis.

Coach of the half season

Brian Kelly, Notre Dame

The fourth-ranked Fighting Irish had to replace the key components of last season's run-heavy offense and their defensive coordinator. Kelly confidently turned a veteran defense over to 36-year-old assistant Clark Lea to replace Mike Elko, who left after one season to join Texas

A&M. The Irish leaned on the defense early. Needing to spark offensively, Kelly handed the offense over to quarterback Ian Book after three games and he delivered a more dynamic attack. Notre Dame heads into the second half a serious playoff contender.

Also considered: Mario Cristobal, Oregon; Luke Fickell, Cincinnati; Tom Herman, Texas; Nick

Saban, Alabama; Scott Satterfield, Appalachian State.

Most promising first-year coach

Jimbo Fisher, Texas A&M

We know what you're thinking: For $75 million over 10 years the least Fisher can be is promising. But considering all the highly touted coaches who have flopped in year one, give credit to Fisher for having the Aggies looking ahead of schedule. He has gotten good play out of quarterback Kellen Mond, who was recruited to play in a very different system, and a defense that has been flimsy for years is suddenly stingy.

Also considered: Josh Heupel, UCF; Chad Lunsford, Georgia Southern.

NASCAR THIS WEEK

The Daytona Beach News-Journal's Godwin Kelly & Ken Willis have covered NASCAR for nearly 60 years combined. godwin.kelly@news-jrnl.com ken.willis@news-jrnl.com

SPEED FREAKS

A few questions we had to ask ourselves

Among the "bottom four," who has best chance to advance?

GODSPEAK: I gotta go with Brad Keselowski. There's no reason why he can't jump that line to the good.

KEN'S CALL: Mathematically, Kez, but Mr. Hunch says Ryan Blaney might be the guy to grab a win and move along.

What does Almirola's win at 'Dega do for him going forward?

GODSPEAK: Aric Almirola has a ton of confidence, and so does his team. When was the last time we saw the No. 10 in Victory Lane?

KEN'S CALL: For immediate purposes, it gets him to the next round. Other than that ... nothing. Plate-race wins mean NOTHING beyond the next plate race.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

KURT BUSCH VS. NASCAR:

Busch said NASCAR stripped him of victory with two late calls in the closing laps at Talladega — an unneeded caution lap and failing to freeze the field on the last lap.

GODWIN KELLY'S TAKE: Busch led the most laps but ran out of fuel on the last lap, which had him watching the fuel gauge. He expressed frustration. "Two missed calls by NASCAR at the end," Busch said.

GODWIN'S PICKS FOR KANSAS

WINNER: Kevin Harvick

REST OF TOP 5: Kyle Busch, Joey Logano, Clint Bowyer, Chase Elliott

FIRST ONE OUT: Martin Truex Jr.

DARK HORSE: Kyle Larson

DON'T BE SURPRISED IF: Harvick completes a sweep of both Kansas Cup Series races.

MOTOR MOUTHS PODCAST

Who's leaving the playoffs after this week? We'll tell you. Maybe.

Tune in online at www.news-journalonline.com/daytonamotormouths

KANSAS

THREE THINGS TO WATCH

1. Swelled bubble

Six drivers will be battling to advance into the Round of 8 at Kansas Speedway. Kurt Busch, who led the most laps at Talladega but finished 14th, is 30 points to the good ahead of ninth-place Brad Keselowski, who is 18 points behind bubble boy Martin Truex Jr., with Clint Bowyer sandwiched in between. Ryan Blaney is 22 points behind Truex, followed by Kyle Larson, 26 points from the cut line.

2. Truex watch

The Truex slide continues as the life of the defending championship team begins to flicker. The No. 78 Toyota has five races left in its history before it shuts down forever. At least Truex is talking a tough game. "I think that's a good place (Kansas) for us even if we had to win," he said. "I am not saying we're going to go there and win. But anytime we can go to any of those tracks, I feel like we have a shot. It's racing."

Martin Truex Jr. has a problem. His No. 78 Toyota team is fading as the NASCAR playoffs tighten. The defending Cup champ is on the playoff bubble going into Kansas. [AP/BUTCH DILL]

3. Jimmie's streak

NBC Sports has been making a big deal of Jimmie Johnson's streak of winning at least one race every season since 2002. The No. 48 Chevy is crumbling. Crew chief Chad Knaus and Johnson will separate in 2019. "It's important to try to win this season," Johnson said. "You guys rely on stats way more than what I do. But, yeah, contrary to what people believe, we go to the race track to win every week. That is kind of the goal."

— Godwin Kelly, godwin.kelly@news-jrnl.com

THREE THINGS WE LEARNED

1. The winners

Aric Almirola, obviously, after emerging from Talladega with the trophy. The four Stewart-Haas Racing Fords led 155 of 193 laps. AJ Allmendinger was best in class for Chevy, finishing sixth. Jimmie Johnson wrecked early but rallied for seventh place.

Aric Almirola celebrates after winning at Talladega and clinching a berth in the NASCAR Round of 8. [AP/BUTCH DILL]

2. The losers

Not enough room in this space, but Kurt Busch leads this category after pacing the field for 108 laps only to run out of gas on the last lap. Ouch. Martin Truex Jr., fighting to defend his Cup title, struggled to finish 23rd. Michael McDowell finished last overall, turning only 155 laps.

3. Holding ground

Clint Bowyer finished second and has a three-point advantage on Truex, who is now the playoff bubble boy. Kevin Harvick had to pit before the last restart and finished 28th but is 63 points above the cut line. Joey Logano can advance on points after finishing fifth at Talladega.

— Godwin Kelly, godwin.kelly@news-jrnl.com

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling questions ... and maybe a few actual answers

Is Kurt Busch right to be mad at NASCAR?

Yes and no. It's always better to finish under green rather than yellow, even as cars are wrecking behind the leaders, assuming it doesn't create a safety issue. Problem is, that's a judgment call. Any other time, the yellow might fly and Kurt would be declared the winner instead of running out of gas on the final lap. We'll keep lobbying to take the judgement out of it — throw the yellow and keep restarting as many times as it takes.

Will Chad or Jimmie benefit most from their split?

It's obviously impossible to tell at this time, but one definite winner and one possible winner have already emerged. Kevin Meendering, an Xfinity Series crew chief for Elliott Sadler, will be promoted to Jimmie's No. 48 car and, let's assume, gets a nice raise. And "Billy the Kid," William Byron, gets a brand-new crew chief who happens to have seven championship rings in his toolbox.

eration permit in accordance with the conditions of the draft/proposed Title V air operation permit unless a timely petition for an administrative hearing is filed under Sections 120.569 and 120.57, F.S. or unless public comment received in accordance with this notice results in a different decision or a significant change of terms or conditions.

Comments: The Permitting Authority will accept written comments concerning the draft air construction permit for a period of 14 days from the date of publication of the Public Notice. Written comments must be received by the Permitting Authority by close of business (5:00 p.m.) on or before the end of this 14-day period. If written comments received result in a significant change to the draft air construction permit, the Permitting Authority shall revise the draft air construction permit and require, if applicable, another Public Notice. All comments filed will be made available for public inspection.

The Permitting Authority will accept written comments concerning the draft Title V air operation permit for a period of 30 days from the date of publication of the Public Notice. Written comments must be received by the close of business (5:00 p.m.), on or before the end of this 30-day period by the Permitting Authority at the above address. As part of his or her comments, any person may also request that the Permitting Authority hold a public meeting on this permitting action. If the Permitting Authority determines there is sufficient interest for a public meeting, it will publish notice of the time, date, and location in the Florida Administrative Register (FAR). If a public meeting is requested within the 30-day comment period and conducted by the Permitting Authority, any oral and written comments received during the public meeting will also be considered by the Permitting Authority. If timely received written comments or comments received at a public meeting result in a significant change to the draft Title V air operation permit, the Permitting Authority shall issue a revised draft Title V air operation permit and require, if applicable, another Public Notice. All comments filed will be made available for public inspection. For additional information, contact the Permitting Authority at the above address or phone number.

Petitions: A person whose substantial interests are affected by the proposed permitting decision may petition for an administrative hearing in accordance with Sections 120.569 and 120.57, F.S. Petitions filed by any persons other than those entitled to written notice under Section 120.60(3), F.S., must be filed within 14 days of publication of the Public Notice or receipt of a written notice, whichever occurs first. Under Section 120.60(3), F.S., however, any person who asked the Permitting Authority for notice of agency action may file a petition within 14 days of receipt of that notice, regardless of the date of publication. A petitioner shall mail a copy of the petition to the applicant at the address indicated above, at the time of filing. A petition for administrative hearing must contain the information set forth below and must be filed (received) with the Agency Clerk in the Office of General Counsel, 3900 Commonwealth Boulevard, MS 35, Tallahassee, Florida 32399-3000, Agency_Clerk@dep.state.fl.us, before the deadline. The failure of any person to file a petition within the appropriate time period shall constitute a waiver of that person's right to request an administrative determination (hearing) under Sections 120.569 and 120.57, F.S., or to intervene in this proceeding and participate as a party to it. Any subsequent intervention (in a proceeding initiated by another party) will be only at the approval of the presiding officer upon the filing of a motion in compliance with Rule 28-106.205, F.A.C.

A petition that disputes the material facts on which the Permitting Authority's action is based must contain the following information: (a) The name and address of each agency affected and each agency's file or identification number, if known; (b) The name, address, any email address, telephone number and any facsimile number of the petitioner; the name, address, any email address, telephone number, and any facsimile number of the petitioner's representative, if any, which shall be the address for service purposes during the course of the proceeding; and an explanation of how the petitioner's substantial interests will be affected by the agency determination; (c) A statement of when and how each petitioner received notice of the agency action or proposed decision; (d) A statement of all disputed issues of material fact. If there are none, the petition must so indicate; (e) A concise statement of the ultimate facts alleged, including the specific facts the petitioner contends warrant reversal or modification of the agency's proposed action; (f) A statement of the specific rules or statutes the petitioner contends require reversal or modification of the agency's proposed action including an explanation of how the alleged facts relate to the specific rules or statutes; and (g) A statement of the relief sought by the petitioner, stating precisely the action the petitioner wishes the agency to take with respect to the agency's proposed action. A petition that does not dispute the material facts upon which the Permitting Authority's action is based shall state that no such facts are in dispute and otherwise shall contain the same information as set forth above, as required by Rule 28-106.301, F.A.C.

Because the administrative hearing process is designed to formulate final agency action, the filing of a petition means that the Permitting Authority's final action may be different from the position taken by it in this written notice of Intent to Issue Air Permit. Persons whose substantial interests will be affected by any such final decision of the Permitting Authority on the application have the right to petition to become a party to the proceeding, in accordance with the requirements set forth above.

Mediation: Mediation is not available for this proceeding.

Objections: Finally, pursuant to 42 United States Code (U.S.C.) Section 7661d(b)(2), any person may petition the Administrator of the EPA within 60 days of the expiration of the Administrator's 45-day review period as established at 42 U.S.C. Section 7661d(b)(1), to object to the issuance of any Title V air operation permit. Any petition shall be based only on objections to the permit that were raised with reasonable specificity during the 30-day public comment period provided in the Public Notice, unless the petitioner demonstrates to the Administrator of the EPA that it was impracticable to raise such objections within the comment period or unless the grounds for such objection arose after the comment period. Filing of a petition with the Administrator of the EPA does not stay the effective date of any permit properly issued pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 62-213, F.A.C. Petitions filed with the Administrator of EPA must meet the requirements of 42 U.S.C. Section 7661d(b)(2) and must be filed with the Administrator of the EPA at: U.S. EPA, 401 M Street, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20460. For more information regarding EPA review and objections, visit EPA's Region 4 web site at: <http://www2.epa.gov/caa-permitting/florida-proposed-title-v-permits>.

Strong cast propels twisty 'Bad Times at the El Royale'

By Dana Barbuto
More Content Now

'Bad Times at the El Royale' is a good-not-great, twist-filled thriller about a group of strangers hiding dark secrets. One-by-one — a priest, a salesman, a singer and a hippie — land at the El Royale hotel on the outskirts of Reno. In its heyday, the inn was once considered to be heaven, but since falling on hard times it is pretty much hell. As it turns out, hell is exactly what writer-director Drew Goddard has in mind.

In following up his cult hit "Cabin in the Woods," Goddard gets a huge assist from a strong ensemble that prop up a script with more holes than Swiss cheese. I'm still irritated that a few plot points the

New Petty box set form of therapy for family, band

By David Bauder
The Associated Press

Tom Petty's family and former band members say it was like therapy to compile a four-disc box set of his music so quickly after he died.

"An American Treasure" went on sale Sept. 28, four days short of a year after Petty died at age 66 of cardiac arrest. He and his band the Heartbreakers had just completed a triumphant concert tour with a show back home in Los Angeles.

"I felt like when Prince died, unfortunately from a similar situation, that there was no central place to grieve for fans or for anyone, to make sense out of the greatness of that artist," said daughter Adria Petty, an instigator of the box set alongside Petty's widow, Dana; Heartbreakers Mike Campbell and Benmont Tench; and producer Ryan Ulyate.

It wasn't like their grief was private. Petty, 43, would hear her father's music in taxis and out of the windows of buildings she'd pass by. She went to get her eyes checked, and the optometrist broke down in tears. Their goal was to create a document that reflected Petty as an artist and a man, not just a hitmaker, she said.

"You see a picture of a man that emerges from this box and that man was such a special, complex Southern gentleman," Petty said. "He's sort of the best of what you'd call an American. I felt like this was something beautiful to show people."

Each disc follows a period of time: years as hungry newcomers in the 1970s, the hitmaking period of the 1980s, Petty's rough 1990s when he dealt with divorce and a heroin addiction, and late-career renaissance in the 2000s.

What's notable is the consistency of the work, the clarity of the writing. Petty was a rock 'n' roll classicist from the beginning and thoroughly loyal: Campbell and Tench followed Petty west from their homes in Gainesville, Florida, and they worked together throughout their lives.

Ten of the songs had never been released in any form, 18 are alternate versions of songs previously released, 14 are live cuts and 18 are songs that had already been on albums or singles. Well-known songs like "Breakdown," "Even the Losers" and "I Won't Back Down" are included; others like "American Girl," "Don't Do Me Like That" and "Free Fallin'" are not.

"It was good to have a task, and it was good to have a task involving Tom and involving the band," Tench said. "It was good to hear all of this stuff. It kind of validated my opinion of him."

That doesn't mean putting it together was easy. Tench said there were disagreements about what to include. He was initially in favor of a box consisting solely of material that had not been released before.

Some of the previously unreleased material, like "Keep a Little Soul" from the early 1980s and the rockabilly raver, "Lonesome Dave," are so strong they make you wonder why they were left on the shelf. But the risk in including too much unreleased material is it becomes obvious why they were set aside.

Petty said her father was a perfectionist, and she could hear his voice in her head as she evaluated songs from the vault.

"We started to pick stuff out and people said, 'Well, this is kind of cool' or 'This is kind of interesting,'" she said. "I would just sort of feel him cringing and saying 'Wait, this is too soon. I just died. Why are you putting stuff like this out?'"

The liner notes are also a voyage of discovery. Keyboardist Tench recalls his anger when he thought he would be called to record a late 1980s album only to be told that no, Petty intended "Full Moon Fever" as a solo disc. Complaining about it to a friend, Tench was told that he now had the time, and no excuses, to enter rehab.

Gaga, Cooper shine on soundtrack

'A Star Is Born' — Original Motion Picture Soundtrack

Various artists
(Interscope Records)

By Mark Kennedy

The Associated Press

The soundtrack to "A Star Is Born" is no slim thing, thank goodness. It contains a whopping 34 tracks, mostly due to the inclusion of brief snatches of songs, dialogues or interludes. It will put fans back into the film in a visceral way. Haven't seen it yet? With this album, you may not need to.

The latest film incarnation of the doomed love affair between two singer-songwriters — one on the way up, the other down — has plenty of buzz thanks to its stars, Lady Gaga and Bradley Cooper. But the soundtrack is proof that it deserves it. From bluesy rock to country to bubble gum pop, the 19 original songs are varied and addictive. We knew Lady Gaga was capable of great things, but Cooper's musicality is a wonder. We often make fun of actors who long to be rock stars, but Cooper shows real skill in front of the microphone.

The soundtrack is chronological and, of course, includes Gaga's performance of Edith Piaf's classic "La Vie En Rose," which is her star turn moment when Cooper's character discovers her in a cabaret. And it naturally has the huge tearful finale, "I'll Never Love Again" — actually it has an extended cut of that as well, if you have enough hankies at home.

But a film about the power of music needs to have lots of it and the soundtrack includes virtually every note heard onscreen, including blistering guitar instrumentals ("Out of Time"), duets (including the bluesy "Alibi," the country "Music to My Eyes" and the soft rocker "I Don't Know What Love Is"), and even dialogue about music (the minute-long "Twelve Notes" speech delivered by Sam Elliott).

In many ways, the film's trajectory can be boiled down to its first breakout hit, "Shallow," co-written by Mark Ronson. It starts in a folksy vein with Cooper alone, then becomes a duet with Cooper and Gaga before ending with her taking it over, belting out the lyrics in a glam-rock style. (Gaga first singing it to Cooper in a parking lot is nicely included on the CD in an earlier snippet.) Like that song, the whole soundtrack starts with Cooper's blues and rock and ends with Gaga going full Gaga.

REVIEW

Old Heart of Mine" and "You Can't Hurry Love," the latter making for the backdrop to a tense scene with Bridges' Father Flynn and Johnson's Emily Summerspring.

"Bad Times" is set in 1969 and centers on seven folks landing at the El Royale hotel, a kitschy inn (with $8 a night rooms) straddling the California-Nevada line. That it's a "bi-state establishment" is a gimmick the script makes a big deal over, then Goddard just abandons it. He doesn't make good on the early promise to make the hotel itself — which used to host the likes of Marilyn Monroe, Frank Sinatra and Martin Luther King Jr. — very much a character in the film. "This place had swing." After awhile, though, the hotel just feels like set design.

Anyway, the movie is Tarantino-esque — and that's not an insult. It's a plus. But it's still no "Pulp Fiction." What is? Goddard unleashes holy hell on his characters. Not all of them make it to the closing credits. He plays with time, too, breaking the film up into chapters titled "Room Five," "Room Seven" and so on, to flashback to a character's past and to also backtrack through scenes to show the current action from a different character's perspective. Structurally, it's like the two-way mirrors hanging in the hotel rooms. There's always another side to the story.

Violence and mystery ensue over the course of one dark and stormy night, as Goddard reveals the sordid details of his characters lives, taking us on a quick trip to Vietnam and to an armored car heist gone wrong. Saying anymore about the plot or characters would ruin the surprises. Like a true ensemble, the script gives each member their chance to shine with a big speech or moment. None of the characters are what they appear, but you can guess that from get-go. Eventually Chris Hemsworth, yes, Thor himself, shows up as a charismatic cult leader (think: Charles Manson), who says a lot, but since his sexy Billy Lee struts around with his shirt unbuttoned those words are unlikely to land. You simply cannot take your eyes off his chiseled abs. He's truly a god among men. Check into "Bad Times at the El Royale" for the zigzag-y thriller, but stay for Hemsworth dancing to Deep Purple's "Hush." You won't want to leave.

Mother's empty-nest syndrome becomes an unhealthy fixation

DEAR ABBY: I am suffering from a depression I think many mothers experience when they become empty nesters. Although my husband is supportive, I miss my 18-year-old so much that sometimes I'm tempted to drive to his college in Florida. My husband and I have always wanted to live in a warmer climate, but he doesn't like the humidity in Florida. We had planned to move to Arizona once my son went away to college, but now I'm having second thoughts because the drive to Arizona from Orlando is twice the distance, and I don't think I can take his being that far away.

I have good job offers in Arizona, and family there as well, so I know it would be a healthier place for me to be. I just cannot reconcile with the fact that my son will be so far away. He will be in college in Orlando for the next five years, as he is in a master's degree engineering program. Am I being overprotective? He's my only son. I have real anxieties about this and have been seeing a counselor as well as my doctor, who prescribed a mild antidepressant. Is this normal? Should I stay put? Should I move?

-- INDECISIVE IN ILLINOIS

DEAR INDECISIVE: While some degree of empty-nest syndrome is normal, what you are experiencing is not. Keep the conversation open with your husband about relocating to Arizona. Your son needs a chance to become independent as much as you need the time to allow it to happen.

You say your husband can't tolerate the Florida humidity. Is it your intention to impose it on him for the next five years? It would create unnecessary stress on your marriage. Further, what will happen after your son earns his degrees and is offered a job elsewhere? Do you plan to move again to be close to him?

Continue your counseling and meds. And while you're at it, find a volunteer project so you won't have time to sit and brood. With time, your anxiety will subside, and you will become less emotionally dependent upon your son -- which will be healthier for both of you.

DEAR ABBY: I have read many of your columns and enjoyed them. These days though, you seem to hear from more and more people who are afraid of saying what needs to be said. I suspect it can be chalked up to the "be politically correct" nature of our country lately. But why is it that when people do speak their minds, others consider them rude? I let people know when they are disrespectful to me in public, and I don't put up with being put down. Am I wrong in feeling that people who say mean things need to be immediately corrected? Or am I really being rude? -- FARMGIRL IN MISSOURI

DEAR FARMGIRL: You are not wrong, and it is not rude if you choose to defend yourself. What you are being is assertive, which is a healthy personality trait. No one should have to accept as normal social interaction being made to feel "less than" in public. If someone has a bone to pick with you -- and vice versa -- it should be done in private.

Opening lead — king of spades.

At times, a skillful declarer may make a play that, to the less experienced player, would seem to make no sense. But after the play proves successful, subsequent analysis discloses that had he adopted the more obvious approach, the contract would have failed.

Consider declarer's sequence of plays on today's deal. East overtook the king of spades with the ace at trick one, then played the queen and jack, South ruffing the third spade high as West discarded a club. After drawing trumps in two rounds, declarer cashed the K-Q-A of diamonds and led a club. But after West followed low, South put up the ace instead of attempting a finesse, then crossed to his hand with a trump and led another club to the queen.

East took the queen with the king, but had to return a spade, allowing declarer to discard his remaining club as he ruffed in dummy. As a result, South made his game, losing only two spades and a club.

To the casual observer, it might seem that South had handled the club suit in a bizarre fashion, and then got lucky at the end. But in fact what happened was by design, not by accident.

As the play progressed, South learned that East had started with precisely six spades, two hearts and at least three diamonds, so he could not have been dealt more than two clubs. If East happened to hold the K-x of clubs and South took a first-round finesse, East would win and return a club, after which another club loser could not be avoided.

To guard against this possibility, declarer cashed the ace first and then led a club toward the queen. This guaranteed 10 tricks regardless of who had the king of clubs, leaving nothing to chance.

Tomorrow: Bidding quiz.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY FOR THURSDAY, OCT. 18, 2018:

This year you often eye a goal and refuse to let go of your vision. What you create could be more important than you yet realize. For others, the commitment and process involved will be significant. You easily identify and get along with others. If you are single, someone from a distance or a different culture could enter your life. Take your time getting to know this person before you decide you have met The One. If you are attached, the two of you have been planning a special trip or vacation. Continue planning it, but try to make it happen this year. AQUARIUS could be stubborn and pushy.

ARIES (MARCH 21-APRIL 19) What starts out as a mixed message could straighten out quickly without you making an effort. The unexpected takes its toll, as usual. However, it also opens you up to a new adventure. You push a friend toward an idea that works well for both of you.

TAURUS (APRIL 20-MAY 20) You have a lot on your mind. When going to an important source of feedback, you might find that this person is not ready to deal with you. Make decisions on your own for now. Where there could be a difference of opinion, you'll need to support yourself.

GEMINI (MAY 21-JUNE 20) You could be ready for a different type of opportunity. At first, confusion surrounds you, as many people don't understand that you are taking steps into the unknown. Be careful with an argumentative person who wants you to agree with him or her.

CANCER (JUNE 21-JULY 22) One-on-one relating proves most rewarding, as long as you maintain excellent communication. It is easy to have a misunderstanding; it's much harder to stay in sync with each other. You need to understand where others are coming from.

LEO (JULY 23-AUG. 22) Understand that many people around you are heading in different directions. This opens up the potential for disagreements. Accept differences rather than trying to make everyone think alike. You'll find life more rewarding with a positive attitude.

VIRGO (AUG. 23-SEPT.

JACQUELINE BIGAR

BIGAR'S STARS

22) Pace yourself, as you have a lot to complete. You also have to make several appointments and personal calls. You have the wherewithal to make choices that suit you well. Don't allow yourself to do anything halfway. Take your time.

LIBRA (SEPT. 23-OCT. 22) You have a wild streak inside you that you have difficulty hiding for any length of time. When distracted or irritated, your impulsiveness emerges. This allows for more fun in your life. Bow out of a misunderstanding. You will feel better as a result.

SCORPIO (OCT. 23-NOV. 21) Pressure builds around the homefront. You might have started the day with a quarrel or misunderstanding. Do not allow this disagreement to permeate your day. When the other party makes an effort, even if it is combative, be responsive.

SAGITTARIUS (NOV. 22-DEC. 21) Break past existing barriers rather than start an argument. Note how different each person is. Understand that others' ideas develop and are nurtured by their unique personalities. An effort made toward another person will ultimately be worth it.

CAPRICORN (DEC. 22-JAN. 19) You could be sorry that you've made certain choices that have pointed you in a particular direction. Your ability to move in deliberate ways and act the way you want could create more of a problem than you originally had anticipated.

AQUARIUS (JAN. 20-FEB. 18) You seem to beam, even in moments of conflict. You do not always act quickly or impulsively. Today is a different story. You know what you want, and you won't settle for anything less. Stay on top of your needs.

PISCES (FEB. 19-MARCH 20) Your best bet is to slow down and let others take the lead for now. You might have strong feelings. Take your time before sharing your thoughts, and you will make the correct choice. Trust yourself. Confusion surrounds a partnership.

Evil knows no age as classic horror film turns 40

'Halloween' offers a resurrection of scares, still with Jamie Lee Curtis

By Jay Bobbin

It's not exactly a surprise to find another "Halloween" movie thriller during trick-or-treat season. What's surprising is the background of the latest Jamie Lee Curtis-starring edition, which essentially erases most of the franchise's history, positioning itself as a direct sequel to the original 1978 film ... which remains one of the most financially successful independent productions in screen history. That even includes "Halloween II," which returned Curtis to the role of Laurie Strode, the babysitter who came face-to-mask with homicidal

Michael Myers. She also reprised the part in 1998's "Halloween H20: 20 Years Later," but Curtis reportedly took a particular shine to the way comedy veterans David Gordon Green (also the director) and Danny McBride co-wrote the latest "Halloween," which gives her present-day Laurie a daughter and granddaughter (Judy Greer, Andi Matichak) who also are imperiled by murderous Myers. Moreover, the actor who originally embodied Myers in 1978 - Nick Castle -- is back in the role, though he shares it with stunt veteran James Jude Courtney for some of the more physical scenes. And though original

"Dr. Sam Loomis" Donald Pleasence died in 1995, a performer who sounds like him is used in a newly created voiceover. Undoubtedly and understandably, loyalists will seek out the first "Halloween" as they do each October ... but this time, they also have another option that stays very true to the saga's roots.
