Plantation Palms Golf Club closes

By Michael Hinman
mhinman@lakerlutznews.com

Unless you're a resident, a guest or a vendor, anyone thinking about trying to get into the Plantation Palms community off Collier Parkway should think again.

The community is on lockdown, even during the day. And it's all because the golf course has shut down ... again.

Nine months after closing for a week, Plantation Palms Golf Club has shuttered its links, and this time there's no telling when it might reopen.

That's forced the homeowners association at Plantation Palms to act swiftly to protect not only its residents, but the private golf course as well.

"While not our property and not our legal responsibility, (the golf course) is a critical component of our neighborhood," the board, led by president David Gunsteens, said in a written statement to The Laker/Lutz News. "Many of our residents purchased their homes here because of the excellent golf course. Not only that, but one of the benefits all of us enjoy in living in a golf course community, whether golf enthu-

Barnes & Noble offers showcase for local authors

By B.C. Manion
bcmansion@lakerlutznews.com

If you're looking for a new recipe, want to make a quilt, are in the mood for a little dark humor or want to be inspired, a selection of books by local authors may appeal to you.

Seventeen local authors will gather at Barnes & Noble at The Shops at Wiregrass May 17 from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., to offer their works for sale, chat with potential patrons, and sign books.

"It's Barnes & Noble's way to recognize the community," said Paul Brouillard, assistant store manager at the bookstore, which is located at 28152 Paseo Drive in Wesley Chapel. "Our customers are readers. A lot of them aspire to be authors and have their books for sale in our store. So this is a great way to get the authors who are local to our store."

It's a fun event for the authors, Brouillard added. Besides having a chance to sell their work, they get to talk to customers and to network with each other.

The store will set the writers up in clusters at different locations in the store, with a sprinkling of genres at each table, Brouillard said.

"I'll have a teen book maybe next to maybe one of the cooking books and the quilting book, something like that," he said.

Some authors have been there before, such as Leigh Kenyon, a teenager who wrote "The Zebra Riders," and Madonna Jervis Wise, a retired educator who has written several books, including "Wildcat Creek Kids," "Sam & Company," and "Juanita in Blue." She's also co-author of "Kachina and the Bully."

Evelyn Johnson-Taylor, a women's ministry leader, will be there with her book "A Woman's Call, Living a Life of Purpose."

Those interested in learning to quilt can pick up some pointers from Elizabeth Dackson, author of "Becoming a Confident Quilter."

Guy Cote will offer his book "Long Live the King: Book One of the Charlemagne Saga." Milt Harris will have three titles available, a book for young readers called "Foxy Roxy," a self-help guide titled "Ceilings," and

Pasco lacks incentives for local filmmakers

By Michael Hinman
mhinman@lakerlutznews.com

Years of filming low-budget shorts in and around Pasco County finally paid off for Christopher Leto when investors offered $250,000 to fund his biggest movie yet, a horror thriller called "The Ritual."

Yet when filming starts later this month, it won't happen anywhere near his Land O' Lakes home. Instead, Leto and his crew are heading south to Sarasota County where he can take advantage of film incentives like a 20 percent rebate on certain purchases, and waived costs for government services.

"I met with the film commission there, and they were amazing," Leto said. "Everything I asked them to do, they would bend over backward to help me get what I needed."

But if he had a choice, Leto would've much preferred to stay right in Pasco County.

"I didn't want to go to Sarasota to shoot my movie," he said. "But they have incentives that are really nice."

Pasco has what officials here call a simple permitting process with no fees, and a requirement to carry an insurance rider that costs around $85. But don't expect too much help beyond that, because Pasco County not only lacks incentives for filmmakers, it lacks an actual film commission.

The work instead is handled through Pasco's Office of Tourism Development, a department led by Ed Caum, who admits he is forced to wear so many hats, the film industry is almost an afterthought. Which is probably why the county's website still links production companies to the closed mail-

Land O' Lakes filmmaker Christopher Leto shot his independent film 'Die Die Delta Phi' in Pasco County, but his first larger-budget film, 'The Ritual,' moved to Sarasota County because of the financial incentives in place there.

Lutz leader: 'The system, this time, worked'

By B.C. Manion

bcmation@lakerlutznews.com

Towering stands of pine trees and open fields characterize the plot of land at the northeast corner of Van Dyke Road and North Dale Mabry Highway, but that property soon could have an entirely new look.

The parcel is part of a 251-acre plan that calls for upscale houses, multifamily units, offices, retail and a congregate care facility.

Lutz residents are notorious for battling proposals they believe will disrupt their way of life. But in this case, they turned out en masse to support the proposed project. That's because of all the work the applicants and community did before the public hearing took place.

"They negotiated with our community members in good faith," said Mike White, the president of the Lutz Citizens Coalition. "The system, this time, worked. And, it worked well."

Attorney Joel Tew and Richard Davis represent Geraci Land Acquisition LLC and Standard Pacific Homes of Florida, who presented their rezoning applications as companion requests. The companies are seeking to change the land from its current agricultural zoning to planned developments (PDs).

Land Use Hearing Officer Steve Luce had two public hearings on April 21, to listen to the evidence that he will use to recommend whether the Hillsborough County Commission should approve or deny the two requests. Much of the testimony heard during the first hearing was carried over to the second hearing, as well, at the request of those testifying.

One request incorporates the Landings at Lake Pearl, a previously approved rezoning that includes 650 multifamily units and 70,000 square feet of office.

"We agreed, at the county's request, to essentially roll that old PD into the new PD," Tew said. "The county preferred to have one consolidated PD that would give easier site plan control, easier enforcement of conditions, easier platting and easier development approval, so we were happy to do that."

Besides the existing entitlements, the application calls for 240 single-family houses. Standard Pacific is planning a gated, high-end residential community. Another parcel is planned for 177 multifamily units.

The new requests total 417 dwelling units, about 25 percent of what would be allowed under the county's long-range land-use plan, Tew noted. The retail uses requested in the companion proposal represents about one-third of what would be allowed under the long-range plan designation.

In essence, the requests are substantially less than the major activity center that was designated on the county's long-range plan, Tew said.

The applicants also worked hard with the community and the county's staff to work out conditions that addressed concerns and will create a quality project, Tew said.

"We have had a total of eight meetings with the major community associations that are directly affected by this project," he said. "We've had very valuable, constructive input from them. We've listened to their concerns and we've made significant changes to the plan."

Both requests received favorable recommendations from the Planning Commission and the county's land development staff.

Ethel Hammer, a professional planning expert working for the applicants, noted that the proposed developments include conditions that exceed the county's land development code.

"There are project enhancements, such as increased setbacks from surrounding properties," Hammer said. "There are conditions that deal with building orientation, which is somewhat unusual. There's enhanced landscaping and there are requirements for signage that are above and beyond the normal requirements in the code."

Conditions also call for a number of transportation improvements that residents want. That includes a signalized intersection at Exciting Idlewild Boulevard and North Dale Mabry Highway.

The applicants agreed to a new alignment leading into the Veterans Expressway that essentially will square up that intersection. They also agreed to a single access point off of Van Dyke Road, instead of the three they initially requested.

The limited access on Van Dyke Road was essential to gain the support of area residents and the Lutz Citizens Coalition, who were concerned about traffic impacts both on Van Dyke and nearby neighborhoods.

Pamela Jo Hatley, an attorney representing the coalition as well as some individual Lutz residents, said "the broader community has expressed its support."

"The applicants and their representatives met with my clients and with me, and they listened to my clients' concerns and they were very responsive," she said. "We appreciate that."

About 40 people turned out to show their support.

Applicants sought for Community Water-Wise Awards

The Laker/Lutz News Staff Report

Tampa Bay Water is now accepting applications for the 2014 Community Water-Wise Awards program until June 30.

The program is designed for those whose yards incorporate Florida-Friendly Landscaping principles with an attractive design. It's open to residents, businesses, builders or other organizations in Pasco, Hillsborough and Pinellas counties, as well as the cities of Tampa, St. Petersburg and New Port Richey.

The online application is available at TampaBayWaterWise.org, and should include a brief description and photos of an applicant's water-efficient landscape. Each entry will be evaluated and scored on-site by a Florida-Friendly Landscaping representative during regular business hours in July, but the applicant does not have to be present during the evaluation.

"It's part of our station's mission to try to minimize our impact on the environment, it's kind of in our DNA," said Paul Carrol of WMNF Radio, who won in 2012. "We separately meter the water for the irrigation of the station, so we know exactly how much we use, and we try to take that down to zero."

Winners are awarded with a custom-made, mosaic landscape stepping stone during a ceremony presented by county commissioners, city council members or even mayors within their local government.

Tampa Bay Water is the largest wholesale water supplier in Florida, providing high-quality drinking water to its members, who in turn supply water to more than 2.3 million residents in the Tampa Bay area. Member governments include Pasco, Hillsborough and Pinellas counties, as well as New Port Richey, St. Petersburg and Tampa.

Mourners brave rain to remember fallen officers

By Michael Hinman
mhinman@lakerlutznews.com

It's said that J. Edgar Hoover himself traveled from Washington, D.C., to Dade City, to remember prohibition agent John Van Waters.

The 46-year-old U.S. Department of Justice officer was killed alongside Pasco County constable Arthur Crenshaw on Oct. 4, 1922, in an ambush soon after investigating an illegal distillery near Dade City.

They were just the second and third law enforcement officers killed in the line of duty at the time, but would eventually become a part of a list that now totals eight who paid the ultimate price in protecting the people of Pasco County.

And those same people who benefit from that protection refuse to let them be forgotten as the Pasco County Sheriff's Office and other law enforcement agencies celebrated their lives during a memorial service May 2 in front of the Historic Dade City Courthouse.

Pasco County Sheriff Chris Nocco said that the men being honored showed courage, that 'when there was a fight or flight situation, they did not run in fear, they fought.'

"It is truly a special day for us," Sheriff Chris Nocco told the crowd of spectators who stood in a steady downpour to honor the officers. "In a world where so many times we get wrapped up in the petty little things of life, this is a moment that we can reflect upon what is most important."

Last year, the death toll for law enforcement officers killed in the line of duty dropped to its lowest numbers in more than 50 years. And while those are statistics that should be celebrated, Dade City Police Chief Ray Velboom warned that work to protect officers is still needed.

"While this number is gratifying somewhat, one life is still too many," he said. "We as leaders continue to work hard to provide our officers with the awareness and training they need to confront the many dangers they are facing. We must strive to create a new culture of safety in law enforcement that addresses the elements of our job that we can control, such as driving habits."

Two of Pasco's deaths were from automobile accidents, including the most recent, Hernando County Sheriff's deputy John Mecklenburg, who was killed during a high-speed chase on U.S. 41 in 2011 that crossed into Pasco County.

Pasco County Sheriff's deputy John McCabe also died on U.S. 41, but in 1948, while responding to a call about stolen grove heaters.

"On this day, let us remember these men not by how they died, but how they walked among us, and whose lives they enriched in a thousand ways by their very existence," said U.S. Circuit Court judge William Burgess III, after reading the roll call of the fallen officers.

Those officers honored also included Lt. Charles "Bo" Harrison, who was killed June 1, 2003, while doing surveillance near a Dade City nightclub. A sniper, whose only goal reportedly was to shoot a police officer, hid in the nearby woods, and shot Harrison in the back. Harrison, who was 56, was just 15 days away from retirement after 31 years of service.

Also remembered was a member of the Florida Highway Patrol, Trooper James

Pasco County sheriff's deputies salute during ceremonies remembering law enforcement officers who were killed in the line of duty during the last century or so.

Bradford-Jean Crooks, who was just 23 in May 1998 when he was slain by a man who had earlier killed two Tampa Police Department officers and a young boy. Brad Crooks, as he was known by, never had a chance to get out of his car, was shot and killed on the off-ramp of Interstate 75 into Wesley Chapel.

And then there was the first officer ever killed in Pasco in the line of duty. Sheldon Nicks was working with his father, Fivay town marshal H. Robert Nicks, to serve a warrant. When the man they were serving realized he was being arrested, he pulled a gun. The younger Nicks jumped in front of the bullet, saving his father, but died on May 8, 1909.

"None of whom we honor today can be defined by their deaths," Florida Highway Patrol Capt. Kristina Quenneville said. "But by what is forever imprinted on the lives and hearts of those they have touched."

Officers salute a wreath featuring pictures of law enforcement officers who lost their lives in the line of duty in Pasco County during its long history.

DENTAL BITES

There have been so many changes in how dentistry is practiced since we opened our dental office 25 years ago in Land O' Lakes. We want to use this dedicated space in The Laker and Lutz News to answer questions we are frequently asked and to share with you information about new innovations that make dentistry pain free and affordable.

Q What is the difference between whitening agents and true bleaching agents? Watch your product labels.

A Whitening agents only affect stains embedded within the enamel pellicle (the protein skin of your teeth) and do NOT alter the base color. These work on surface (outside) stains.

True bleaching agents will also remove stains on the outside of your teeth. The difference is a true bleaching agent will penetrate the tooth's enamel and cause a change in the tooth's color affecting the dentin layer of your teeth (the inside). The bleaching affect comes from either hydrogen peroxide or carbamide peroxide as the active ingredient. Use of a true bleaching product will give a more dramatic change in tooth color and longer stability. With the help of your dentist you can a brighter smile in no time.

Schools rack up awards for good performance

The Laker/Lutz News Staff Report

Public schools in Hillsborough County earned nearly $8.5 million and Pasco County $2.7 million in Florida School Recognition Program awards, according to figures released by the Florida Department of Education.

Schools eligible to receive the recognition awards include those receiving an A school grade; those improving at least one letter grade from the previous year; those improving more than one school grade and sustaining the improvement the following year; or alternative schools meeting state improvement criteria.

Award distributions are based on $100 per full-time equivalent student for each eligible school.

Hillsborough schools receiving awards locally were:

- Benito Middle, $107,383
- Chiles Elementary, $78,259
- Clark Elementary, $82,957
- Hammond Elementary, $69,710
- Liberty Middle, $110,342
- Lutz Elementary, $58,750
- Maniscalco Elementary, $54,156
- Martinez Middle, $108,800
- Schwarzkopf Elementary, $60,163
- Tampa Palms Elementary, $76,953
- Wharton High, $236,050
- Walker Middle Magnet, $80,066

Pasco schools receiving awards were:

- Pasco High, $138,375
- Oakstead Elementary, $107,492
- Double Branch Elementary, $83,617
- Long Middle, $160,838
- Wiregrass Ranch High, $193,549
- Sunlake High, $153,626
- Veterans Elementary, $80,196
- Connerton Elementary, $86,881
- Pine View Middle, $90,207
- Lake Myrtle Elementary, $66,713
- Sand Pine Elementary, $63,254
- Wesley Chapel Elementary, $62,054
- Seven Oaks Elementary, $94,966
- Academy at the Farm, $38,982
- Countryside Montessori, $23,200
- Imagine School at Land O' Lakes, $63,360

The Florida Lottery provides the program's funding, and the legislation that created it authorizes the school's staff and school advisory council to decide how to use the funds.

The money can be used for bonuses for the faculty and staff, for educational equipment or materials, or for temporary personnel to help the school maintain or improve student performance.

If bonuses are awarded, the staff and advisory team decide who receives them and how much each person receives, according to the state Department of Education's website.

Forget finance, B.A. Arnot finds his sweet spot

Getting to know You

By Michael Hinman
mhinman@lakerlutznews.com

There may be about a dozen different cuts of steak, but the ways to prepare it are almost endless. Think about Bubba Blue's long list of shrimp recipes in the film "Forrest Gump," and replace all of it with all the types of steak that exist.

B.A. Arnot has watched thousands of steaks carried from his kitchen to customers at his LongHorn Steakhouse location on Tampa's Westshore Boulevard. Rancher's Sirloin. Outlaw Ribeye. Flo's Filet. There's never a shortage of meat.

And for the last 20 years, Arnot has dedicated his professional career to making sure hungry customers walk away satisfied from the restaurant chain. But his job as managing partner is not exactly the career Arnot expected to find himself in back in his college days at the University of South Florida.

"My degree is in finance," Arnot said one recent afternoon before the Saturday dinner rush. "I was on the USF golf team, too, and I was even thinking about maybe turning pro."

In fact, if the Super Bowl and a major golfing event ever ended up on the same night, Arnot might have to read about football's biggest game in the newspaper the next morning. The only reason why he isn't pursuing that dream is an injury that prevents him from playing as much as he likes.

Of course, that does not mean Arnot never plays. Silverado Golf & Country Club in Zephyrhills is just a short jaunt from his Lake Bernadette home. From time to time, people will find Arnot carrying his clubs, looking to master each hole.

Injury explains the change in his golf plans, but what happened to a career in finance?

"I don't think I would've ever been good behind a desk," Arnot said. "I'm used to being on my feet and walking around, because at the end of the day, it all comes down to customer service for me."

But Arnot doesn't like the word "customer," however.

"'Guest' is a better word," he said. "It's all about the guest, and taking care of the guest."

In 1994, LongHorn was a young restaurant chain that was more "roadhouse" style. The complete menu was found on a chalkboard when customers arrived, and each table offered complimentary peanuts — the shells of which were welcomed on top of the wooden floors, crunching under the servers' feet.

Arnot had worked at a Burger King when he was a teenager, and Bennigan's in college. But at LongHorn, he was still starting at entry level, first as a host, and then as a server.

Yet, the manager at his LongHorn saw something in Arnot. He saw a leader.

"After a year-and-a-half here, I got offered a chance to go into management, so I did," he said.

Arnot would continue to work at the LongHorn location on North Dale Mabry Highway, until he became a kitchen manager at a new location in Citrus Park in 1999. Just two years later, he was back at the Dale Mabry location, now as its managing partner.

Arnot gives back the same way he received nearly two decades ago. He looks for manager material from the staff he hires, and promotes them whenever the opportunity arises. He's a big believer in hiring from within.

During almost all of that time, Arnot has commuted the nearly 40 miles from his home to the restaurant. Even when the Dale Mabry location closed down and moved to nearby Westshore Boulevard, it was still a haul.

But he doesn't let all that travel time and long hours at the restaurant interfere with making time for his wife — a manager at a Fifth Third Bank — and three daughters, ages 16, 14, and 8. He takes turns getting his kids around to their various activities, and making sure he's home for dinner the nights

Getting to know B.A. Arnot

What are you watching on TV?

There have been tons of shows on that everyone likes, but I tend to only watch TV on Wednesday nights when I'm off. So the shows I'm watching are "Burn Notice" and "Suits."

What music group makes you turn up the radio?

Nirvana. Or really anything on 102.5 The Bone.

If you could spend a week anywhere?

I would go to St. Andrews Links, the golf course in Scotland. It's the most famous course in the world.

Best golfing movie?

"The Legend of Bagger Vance."

he's not working.

Arnot also carves out a little time for himself in the middle of the week, where he can enjoy a round of golf, or simply work on projects at home.

And as the LongHorn chain expands, Arnot hopes to expand with it. His ultimate goal is to become a regional director of operations, although such a job might mean moving. Moving up is a long-term plan, like waiting until his youngest daughter is on her way to college.

"Yeah, 10 years would be my goal to move ahead," Arnot said. "But who knows. It's hard to predict."

And Arnot should know. Just 20 years ago, LongHorn was supposed to be a quick stop on the road toward a banking job. Instead, he's focused his career on the industry, and still has a lot more he wants to accomplish.

MARTIN TO LEAD SAINT LEO ADVISORY COUNCIL

Saint Leo University has launched a new Communication-Marketing-Multimedia Industry Advisory Council, with Summer Martin from the Pasco Economic Development Council, elected as chairwoman.

The council's mission is to serve as an advisory body, working collaboratively with the instructional faculty and students by providing ideas and opinions on matters concerning the industry, and to help advance the department's strategic plan.

"Talent is always No. 1 on a company's wish list when choosing a location for its business," said Martin, in a release. "This is a great opportunity for industry professionals to weigh in on the skills they would like to see future graduates have as it relates to their business and the field of marketing, communication and multimedia."

Martin joined the PEDC in 2012, and has since helped the organization win four awards recognizing its marketing efforts. She also serves on the Tampa Bay Partnership's Regional Marketing Council, and in 2012, participated as a member of the Communications Action Group for the Tampa Bay Host Committee.

"Saint Leo University is preparing students for future jobs, and we want to stay on the cutting edge," said Michael Nastanski, dean of Saint Leo's Donald R. Tapia School of Business, in a release. "We look forward to working with industry professionals to develop the Tampa Bay region's talent."

PANCAKE BREAKFAST FUNDRAISER

North East Tampa Women in Business will host a pancake breakfast fundraiser May 17 from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. at Lexington Oaks Golf Club, 26133 Lexington Oaks Blvd., in Wesley Chapel.

The cost is $10 per person, and includes raffles. Money raised will help fund two $500 scholarships the organization gives in December.

For information, email debholley@netze-ro.net, or call (813) 451-8023.

MORE APARTMENTS COMING TO ZEPHYRHILLS

A developer that wanted to add another recreational vehicle park to State Road 54 just west of Zephyrhills, has been convinced to build a new apartment complex instead.

Terrace Investors LLC were scheduled to appear in front of the Pasco County Commission May 6 seeking a rezoning of a 14-acre piece of property on New River Road next to Terrace Park Mobile Home Park, so that it could build a 228-unit project.

Terrace Investors bought the vacant land in 1999 for $240,000, according to the Pasco County Property Appraiser. Steve McConihay owns the company, and in 2012 also proposed to replace a 138-lot RV park with a 230-unit apartment complex in Largo, according to published reports.

His new project there, called Boulevard Apartments, secured $30 million in financing just last month.

The commission's decision on the rezoning request was not available by the time The Laker/Lutz News went to press.

LEVENT TO SPEAK AT WOMEN-N-CHARGE

Women-n-Charge will have its next meeting June 6 at 11:30 a.m., at Pebble Creek Country Club, 10550 Regents Park Drive in Tampa.

Guest speaker is business strategist and author Tammy Levent, who will talk about how to create successful strategic partnerships in this economy.

COURTESY OF PASCO COUNTY TAX COLLECTOR'S OFFICE

Burke retires from tax collector's office

Cathy Burke, center, is retiring from the Pasco County Tax Collector's Office after 11 years of service. Tax Collector Mike Fasano, left, and Dade City office manager Michelle VanCuren, honored her.

Cost is $15 for members, and $18 for guests, if purchased by Tuesday before the meeting.

To register, visit Women-n-Charge.com. For information, call (813) 600-9848.

GRANDSON TO INTERN WITH CESSNA

Joshua Cherok, the grandson of Leon and Shirley Cherok of Land O' Lakes, has accepted a summer internship with Cessna Aircraft Co., in Wichita, Kansas.

He will work as a customer support representative with the engine events management team.

Cherok will graduate in December from Kent State University in Ohio with a bachelor's degree in aeronautics.

PEDC NEEDS BANQUET SPONSORS

The Pasco Economic Development Council is seeking sponsors for its annual appreciation banquet.

The 28-year-old event allows the organization to recognize those who help keep the Pasco County economy strong and growing, and is typically attended by more than 600 business and community leaders each year, according to a release.

The banquet is set for Sept. 2 at Saddlebrook Resort in Wesley Chapel.

Sponsorships range from $500 to $7,500. For information, call (813) 926-0827, ext. 226, or email suzanne@pascoedc.com, by July 1.

MORE JOBS COMING TO REGION

The Tampa Bay market gained 30,000 new jobs in March, while the unemployment rate locally dropped by 1 percentage point to 7.5 percent.

The numbers were released by Gov. Rick Scott's office, and included gains in areas like professional and business services with 9,000 new jobs, and trade and transportation with 6,400 new jobs. Manufacturing had 4,100 new jobs.

The region was first among the state metropolitan areas when it came to online job demand with 41,076 openings. That included nearly 10,500 openings in science, technology, engineering and mathematics — STEM jobs that are considered high wage and high skill.

The unemployment rate statewide in March was 6.3 percent.

AARP launches initiative to help defeat scammers

By B.C. Manion

bcmalion@lakerlutznews.com

When it comes to being scammed, virtually everyone is at risk, said Claudette Henry, the featured speaker at a recent Land O' Lakes AARP chapter meeting.

Because identity theft and fraud are so pervasive, the AARP has launched the Fraud Watch Network to combat the problem. Last year, an estimated 12.6 million Americans were the victims of identity theft, Henry said, citing AARP materials.

AARP's Fraud Watch Network aims to help people of all ages, not only members of the AARP, Henry said.

"We're trying to protect you against phone, email and mail scams," Henry said. "If you receive a phone call or email from anyone saying that your checking account or bank account or credit card or PayPal, or anything that you do has been compromised, and you need to respond, do not."

Instead, contact the company that sent the communication to make sure it is legitimate, she said.

"If it is from the bank, they'll address you by name, not just your email account, or say, 'Dear Member,' or anything like that," Henry said. "If you receive a phone call and it says, 'To verify your account, press 1.' Do not do it."

Another common scam involves messages that say someone won a lottery.

"Anytime you receive information that you've won a lottery, you've won a prize — if you have to pay taxes up front, or a qualification fee, or a document fee — it's a scam. Don't fall for it," Henry said.

Con artists attempt to get people emotionally involved because that makes them more vulnerable, Henry said. One common ploy involves an email or a call that claims to be from a relative needing help. It's best to hang up the phone and verify that information from another source.

Claudette Henry

There are other scams that claim to offer investment opportunities, such as oil and gas stock options, she said. One victim lost $40,000.

"It can happen to anyone," Henry said.

Some criminals use threats and intimidation to try to get what they want. "The latest scam involves calls or emails that claim they're from the IRS," she said. "They're not going to call or email. They're going to send you a letter. Don't be fooled."

A caller attempted the IRS scam on Steve Dierking of Lutz, who was at the AARP meeting.

"I had the IRS call me a month ago and they said they had audited me over the last seven years. I owed $3,400," Dierking said. "I had one hour to give it to them. And, if I didn't, they were sending the sheriff out to pick me up."

"So, I said, 'I have to get back to you, because I don't have that cash.' I called the sheriff," Dierking told the crowd.

There are persistent scammers, who use harassment to try to get their way.

"The best thing you can do is get on the phone with the authorities," Henry said. "Put an answering machine on your phone or block your phone calls. If all else fails, change your phone number. Don't let this happen to you."

Keep your credit cards and Social Security number in a place where others can't get to them, she added. Check your credit reports to be sure they are accurate.

"Be real careful about your mail and how you handle your mail. You don't want to throw stuff out in the trash with information from credit card companies, offers or even your name and address," Henry said. "Shred the information. Don't put it out there. People go through your trash trying to get information."

Also, be careful in returning calls when you don't recognize the numbers, she said.

"If you don't know who's calling you, don't call them," Henry advised.

Ginny Sibley, a bank officer for American Momentum Bank, offered this advice: "When you're traveling, please use a credit card, not your debit card."

Scammers can do serious damage once they get someone's checking account number, Sibley said.

"What they do, is they set up an exact time throughout the whole United States and they compromise your number," she said. "At that moment, they use the cards, the plastic into the machine. You could have five, six transactions at the same time."

When buying gas, be sure to click the clear button after your transaction, Sibley added.

Robert Brown took that advice a step farther.

"Any time I use my debit or credit card when I get gas, I go inside and swipe it," said Brown, an independent associate of LegalShield. "I always go inside."

The Land O' Lakes chapter of the AARP welcomes new members. Annual dues are $10 per person. Anyone interested in learning more can email Phyllis E. Bross, chapter president, at pebross@verizon.net, or leave a voicemail at (813) 996-1361.

Protect yourself with these tips from AARP

- Don't carry your Social Security card
- Shred sensitive information
- Limit the number of credit cards you carry
- Keep copies of your credit cards, front and back, in case they are stolen
- Watch for missing bills
- Monitor your accounts carefully
- Do your homework before making investments
- Review your free credit report once a year
- Do not carry your check card codes or passwords
- Do not choose obvious passwords, such as a birthdate, phone number, consecutive numbers or the like
- If you receive a suspicious email, do not respond to it
- Avoid conducting personal or financial business on shared or public computers or over wireless hotspots
- Protect your mail
- Do not give out personal information to telemarketers
- Check out a charity before donating by going to CharityWatch.org or CharityNavigator.org

Florida first state to officially demand single-subject convention

By Michael Hinman
mhinman@lakerlutznews.com

The first step in many to call the nation's first Constitutional convention in nearly 230 years is on its way to Washington D.C., after a proposal from state Sen. Wilton Simpson earned approval from both the Florida House and Florida Senate.

S.M. 368 calls for a convention that would amend the U.S. Constitution, demanding the U.S. Congress only consider and pass bills with a single subject. The goal is to eliminate the many unrelated riders that get attached to bills, amendments that may not have been passed otherwise on their own.

"This is about having the federal government start conducting themselves in a professional manner," Simpson, R-Trilby, told The Laker/Lutz News back in January. "Most of the frustration we have with our government is that you have something like a spending bill in Congress. They always add on several hundred millions of dollars of something that has nothing to do with the subject they are dealing with. And as a citizen of the state of Florida, I am tired of our federal government being operated this way."

What made it through the Legislature is not necessarily a bill, but instead a "memorial." It demonstrates Florida's support of a specific measure, in this case calling for a Constitutional convention, and does not require the signature of Gov. Rick Scott.

However, that does not mean delegates

COURTESY OF SINGLE SUBJECT AMENDMENT

State Sen. Wilton Simpson, right, is pushing for a convention to propose amendments to the U.S. Constitution, and did his part to get Florida on board the nationwide push. He's joined in his efforts by former Tallahassee lobbyist W. Spider Webb Jr., center, and Florida Senate president Don Gaetz.

should start making travel plans. At least 33 other states will have to pass similar or identical memorials before such a convention could be scheduled.

A convention is just one way to propose amendments to the Constitution, but one that is typically not used. In fact, the last time a convention was called this way, it was 1787, and that was to write the U.S. Constitution itself in Philadelphia.

Congress can propose Constitutional amendments, and then have them ratified by the states. However, if Congress doesn't introduce such an amendment — which supporters of this movement believe Congress wouldn't do — then the fallback position is to have states call for the convention directly.

The passage of the memorial was great news for W. Spider Webb Jr., a former Tallahassee lobbyist who founded the activist group Single Subject Amendment.

"Both parties are guilty about the use of riders," Webb said in January. "We are not trying to give Congress a black eye. We are trying to improve the way Americans view Congress."

Webb now plans to take the newly approved memorial to the national stage as he tries to convince other states to do the same thing.

"If Florida passes this, then other states will take a more serious look at this," Simpson said earlier this year. "Doing a Constitutional amendment is such a large task, I think it will pick up momentum as more states pass it."

Many state governments already prevent riders on bills, either by requiring bills to be single-subject, or giving governors the power to veto specific portions of a bill, and approving the rest.

box of Eric Keaton, who hasn't been with the county since last year.

"I'm not making any excuses, but I'm probably one of the only people on my staff trained to" update the website, Caum said. "And I'm always sitting in on meetings and doing other work, that I can't seem to get to it."

Pasco has never been ignored by filmmakers, which can offer a little bit of everything when it comes to locales. It has beaches on the west side of the county. It has historic structures throughout Dade City. It has virtually untouched forests.

However, it's been a long time since a major production dug in roots in Pasco County ... almost 25 years, when a rather unknown director named Tim Burton brought Johnny Depp and Winona Ryder here to film "Edward Scissorhands." And it could be even longer before something else follows, especially after the Florida Legislature last week decided not to renew statewide incentives to attract major productions.

That leaves smaller, independent productions. But even they may be endangered, as the infrastructure for busy filmmaking markets will likely migrate to states that offer financial incentives to lure major films.

That could be troublesome for Kelly Mikes, an independent film producer who lives in Lutz. She worked with writer R. Presley Stephens to film "You Will Love Me," which included some exterior shots in Pasco. Without the skilled crews available to work on set or location, filming here could become difficult, if not impossible.

"There aren't a lot of outside resources in this area, because there just isn't any competition," Mikes said. "Those who are here are charging exorbitant amounts, and not everyone can afford to pay that."

Keeping film production locally cannot only keep jobs in the area, but can also provide a much-needed boost to the economy. The Motion Picture Association of America claims that for every dollar in incentives offered by government officials to attract film, the return on investment is, at the very minimum, $5.60.

Sometimes, that return could be as high as $20.

That means even $5,000 in incentives could generate an economic boost of between $28,000 and $100,000. Incentive packages generate revenue for businesses like retail outlets and hotels. They provide paychecks for workers who make their home here.

But that can't help Pasco quite yet, Caum said. Implementing such a program, maintaining it, and getting the word out to filmmakers it exists, requires a full-time commissioner. And there's no money for one of those.

"That is a sophistication level we need to get to," Caum said.

He hopes he can start sharing some ideas with Pasco County commissioners about promoting film production around September. However, the tourism department will still have to find revenue sources to pay for it.

Still, even without statewide incentives, there's no reason why Pasco couldn't eventually find its legs in the film industry to keep up with Hillsborough County for now, and maybe even someday reach the levels of Pinellas County, which has churned out films like "Dolphin Tale" and "Magic Mike," Caum said.

It couldn't come soon enough for Leto, who would like to keep productions from his Reaper Films company right at home.

"It's a beautiful place to film," Leto said. "But more importantly, it's close to home, and I want to stay here."

siasts or not, is the strength in property value.

"So when the golf course is impacted negatively, it has a detrimental effect on all of us."

The golf course is not maintained by the HOA, but instead by a private group, MJS Golf Club LLC, which has struggled to keep the 156-acre course open. Golf swings stopped for a week last August in what one of the owners, Jason Ray, described at the time as a perfect storm of bad luck.

"It was just a culmination of a lot of things that led up to the closing, but mostly the economy," Ray said at the time. "It's been too hot, and it's been raining, and the culmination of all that just resulted in not a lot of people playing golf. Summertime is always tough for all the golf courses."

But it's not summertime now, and what happened this time, no one is sharing. Ray, who is part of MJS Golf Club with Mitch Osceola and Steve McDonald, did not return calls on Monday before The Laker/Lutz News went to press.

One thing is for certain: Bills were racking up for the golf course. Several liens against Plantation Palms have been filed in recent months, according to county records, including a $2,915 claim from Omega Field Enterprises for trimming 83 palm trees.

Pasco County filed two liens of its own last month totaling $5,300 for solid waste disposal, and Lake Masters Aquatic Weed Control won a judgment against the golf course last January for more than $9,000.

MJS Golf did have some good news last week, however. A proposed $13,000 penalty issued against it by the Southwest Florida Water Management District last September was reduced to $2,000. The agency, more commonly known as Swiftmud, had originally claimed the company overpumped water in 2012. However, officials later determined that there was a leak in the reclaimed water system, and MJS simply failed to notify Swiftmud it had to switch to the potable water system.

Ray, Osceola and McDonald purchased the golf course at 23253 Plantation Palms Blvd., in May 2011 through a $2.18 million mortgage from Native American Bank of Denver. The three have Native American roots, according to a 2012 story published in Indian Country Today. The trio was one of the first non-tribal groups to get a guaranteed loan from a company who specifically serves Native Americans.

The 875-home community's HOA is not only keeping outsiders away, but also is working to make sure its residents know they can't use the golf course.

"It is important that we continue to respect the golf course as a private property," the board said in a statement. "None of us have the right to free golf or to use the course as an additional to our backyards. We encourage all homeowners to pull together during this time, and do whatever we can to promote and protect the integrity of the golf course property."

Jamie Elizabeth Tingen's book, "Butterfly Messages," is a story about second chances. It's a particularly timely topic in this age of reconnections enabled through social media and of rekindled romance among former sweethearts who have found each other a divorce or the death of a spouse.

If you enjoy dark humor, "The Funeral Portrait" by Vincent Vinas, may be right up your alley.

Those who are drawn to history and photography may want to check out the work of R. Wayne Ayres, author of "Florida's Grand Hotels from the Gilded Age" and "St. Petersburg: The Sunshine City."

Other authors expected to be there are Jenice Armstead, Sarina Babb, Shelby Bender, Susan Noe Harmon, Paul Sunshine Murphy, Alison Oburia and Ria Prestia.

Readers drawn to poetry may want to pick up a copy of "Eyes Open, Listening," by Janet Watson, at the Barnes & Noble author gathering May 17 at The Shops at Wiregrass.

Here's a selection from her book:

The Artist

His studio was under the basement stairs, next to shelves of canned tomatoes, beneath the foundation window through which he could watch leaves scuttling by.

*His day-job at the factory shared space with thoughts of going home, of what he'd sketch or paint—
a remembered face, the valley in spring.*

*His assembly line labor supported us, and although I understood that need,
when people asked me what he did,
I always said my father was an artist.*

'Oklahoma!' at Straz features Lutz actor, dancer

By Michael Murillo
mmurillo@lakerlutznews.com

The play may be called "Oklahoma!" but some of its cast members call Lutz home.

The Patel Conservatory is presenting the famous Rodgers and Hammerstein musical from May 1 through May 10 at the David A. Straz Jr. Center for the Performing Art's Teco Theater, 1010 N. MacInnes Place in Tampa. The production features students in grades five through 12, as well as some professional actors.

"Oklahoma!" is the story of Curly McLain, his love interest Laurey Williams, and his rival, Jud Fry. Set in the territory of Oklahoma in 1906 as the area approaches statehood, those characters and others resolve their romantic relationships with a social dance as a backdrop.

It has enjoyed several runs on Broadway and London's West End, as well as national tours, film and audio recordings since its first run in 1943.

Among the 60 performers in the play are siblings Ryan and Victoria Santello of Lutz. Ryan plays Curly McLain, the show's leading man. Victoria is a featured dancer.

They're both excited to be part of the production.

"I love doing it because it's a rush of energy. So many people are watching you, and they're all enjoying it," 15-year-old Victoria said.

After opening night, she offered this assessment: "It went well."

Her performance requires a considerable amount of enthusiastic dancing, so it's important that she has the right mindset going on stage each night. Since she doesn't play a specific character, Victoria created one in her mind so she would have a role to play while dancing. The character has a flirty, bubbly personality, and she uses that identity to get the most out of her dancing and help convey the story.

For his part, 17-year-old Ryan had to challenge himself to take on the lead role. He watched Hugh Jackman's take on Curly from the 1999 film around 30 times, revisiting certain scenes over and over. That was in addition to the hours of rehearsals each week in the months leading up to opening night.

Lutz resident Ryan Santello takes on the lead role of Curly in 'Oklahoma!' which wraps up its run this week at the David A. Straz Jr. Center for the Performing Arts. His sister, Victoria, is a featured dancer in the play.

Both Santellos attend Steinbrenner High.

Victoria said she appreciates being able to perform with her brother and watch him grow as an actor. She admits she was unsure how Ryan would fare in his first leading role, but was happy to see him grow into the part successfully.

"When we were in rehearsal, I would always be nervous for him," Victoria said. "He's doing really well. He's come a long way from the first rehearsal."

Ryan also is impressed with his sister's performance. Since dancing takes so much work and energy, he didn't want her getting hurt or struggling with the dances. But those concerns were put to rest once he saw her on stage.

"She's doing awesome. Before the show, I didn't know she could dance like that," he said.

For Ryan, the hardest part wasn't the singing or learning all the necessary lines. It was the way he had to say them.

"It's the accent. It's easy to get, but it's hard to keep for a two-and-a-half hour show," he said.

As a Florida native, a country accent isn't his natural speaking style, but he focused on maintaining his pronunciation and is now able to keep it consistently. In fact, Ryan said it takes time to lose it when each performance is finished, so he'll still be talking like his character is the car or at home that night.

Kara Goldberg, the play's stage manager, said the Santellos' hard work is paying off. While Victoria might not have a lead acting role, Goldberg said that a featured dancer requires at least as much rehearsal time and effort as any other part. The way the play is set up, dancing is integral to the play's progress.

"She and all the other lead dancers, they help to tell story," Goldberg said. "They do a great job of that. I'm up in the lighting booth, and I see her always 'on' when she's on stage. She's always in character, and that's really something that we need in this show in particular."

And while this was the first play where she's worked with Ryan, Goldberg has taken note of his ability and work ethic.

"I can tell that he's doing his homework," she said. "When you're an actor you have to do your homework, you have to look up words you don't know in the script and you have to study your lines really well."

With just a little encouragement, he was soon rehearsing off-book, meaning he didn't have to refer to a script to practice.

Goldberg, who has been involved in the theater for about 15 years, said at first she wasn't sure how the play would turn out since it had so many young performers. But once she saw the dress rehearsal, she knew everyone was ready, and has been impressed as both a stage manager and a fan of the theater.

And the Santellos have been a big part of that. They're doing great," she said. I just think that they really enjoy performing."

Shelter dogs are desperately seeking adoptive, foster homes

The Laker/Lutz News Staff Report

Pasco County Animal Services say their shelter is now bursting at the seams with adoptable dogs, and they need some caring individuals and families to help find them a home.

"The shelter is currently over capacity for dogs, and we need help right now," said

Mike Shumate, the county's animal services manager, in a release.

The dogs, he said, have been spayed or neutered, micro chipped, and have all their vaccinations.

The shelter is looking both for adoptive families and foster homes for dogs. Although not as widely known as adopting, fostering can help save the lives of two animals — the one with the temporary home, and the new dog that would take his place at the shelter.

The county continues to work toward saving 90 percent of its population, a far cry from the 46 percent euthanizing rate in 2012 before the program was implemented.

Since the program started, more than 2,300 animals have been saved from being put down, county officials said.

The adoption center is located at 19640 Dogpatch Lane in Land O' Lakes. It is open from noon to 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, and on Thursday from noon until 6:30 p.m.

Public weighs in on Pasco's future parks and rec plan

By B.C. Manion

bcmansion@lakerlutznews.com

When residents consider the future of Pasco County's parks and recreation's programs and facilities, they have plenty of suggestions for the county to consider.

Some want to see more opportunities — such as pathways — to enjoy the beauty of natural areas owned by the Southwest Florida Water Management District.

Others want to create a "blue way," providing water access to coastal areas.

Some think more should be done to encourage gatherings on large green spaces, to foster a greater sense of community. And, some want to do a better job of marketing the county's gems, such as the rolling hills of Dade City.

These were just a few thoughts that popped up during a discussion last week at the Land O' Lakes Community Center, where David Barth, of AECOM Technology Corp., asked those gathered to help define what steps could be taken to help Pasco County become a premier county where people want to live, work and locate their business.

The county hired AECOM, a professional consulting firm, for $125,000 to develop a 10-year comprehensive parks and recreation system master plan. The plan must be considered in a broad sense, Barth told the crowd of about two dozen.

"It's important to understand lifestyle and demographics," Barth said. For instance, park planning in urban areas is different than it is in suburban or rural places. Since Pasco is a mix, different considerations must be made for different areas.

The planning also must consider existing facilities and programs — not only those which belong to the county, but also those which are part of the public realm, including schools, museums and libraries, Barth said.

Pasco County has a broad array of parks and recreational facilities, including nature trails. The county is in the midst of creating a new master plan.

"We need to understand what's happening today," he said. "What are the priorities in 2014?"

But it's also important to consider whether plans made before are still relevant, and whether there are emerging forms of recreation that the county may want to consider.

The May 1 workshop was one of three public sessions, but is just a small part of the planning effort. A steering committee made up of various stakeholders also weighed in and there will be a random survey conducted to collect more information.

Gathering input from people is just one part of the process. The work also involves evaluating current conditions, using demographic information, considering trends, and looking at current and desired levels of service. The work also will include a random survey to solicit public sentiment.

One issue that didn't even come up at the public session is the shortage of athletic fields for youth sports, a complaint that has been raised repeatedly in recent years. As the county puts together a plan, it must consider the costs of implementation and various funding options for carrying out the plan, county parks and recreation director Rick Buckman said.

Essentially, there are two payment plans. One involves using existing revenues to "pay as you go." The other involves coming up with additional revenues, which could include additional taxes, Barth said.

Planning efforts are expected to continue for several months. As the work goes on and the vision for the plan solidifies, debates are likely to intensify over program and facility priorities and how to pay for the plan.

The Pasco County Commission will have final say over the long-range plan and decisions regarding how to pay for it, including using existing revenues or seeking additional support through new taxes, more public-private partnerships or other means.

RAISE YOUR FAMILY & lower your mortgage!

Connerton
The natural place to call home.

The most important things in your life are your family, your health and your home. Isn't it nice to know there's a place where you can focus on raising your family in a healthy environment that's an exceptional value too? That place is Connerton, a community in the heart of Pasco County. Our homes start at just under $200,000 from quality builders like MI Homes, Homes by WestBay, Ryland Homes and Taylor Morrison.

Connerton is more than a great value, it's a world of amenities like a 3,000-acre nature preserve with wetlands, lakes and miles of boardwalks and nature trails. There's also a fitness center, sporting fields, social gatherings, yoga classes and an aquatic center bubbling over with fun.

When it comes to the most important things in life, Connerton has everything you want at a price you can live with.

Two games, two wins, no hits for Saint Leo junior

By Michael Murillo
mmurillo@lakerlutznews.com

Saint Leo University softball coach John Conway was so focused on the score of a recent contest, he wasn't paying full attention to the game's stats.

It was only after the Lions had secured a tight 1-0 victory over Florida Southern College that he found out something interesting: His pitcher, Ashley Ehlers, hadn't given up many hits.

In fact, she didn't give up any. "I didn't know it was a no-hitter until the game was over," Conway said. "My pitching coach had to tell me it was a no-hitter."

Ehlers struck out two and walked three to give Saint Leo the first game of a doubleheader against the Moccasins on April 19. It also boosted her record to 11-5 on the year.

Conway may not have realized what was happening at the time, but he's not surprised Ehlers, a junior, came through for the Lions when the team needed strong pitching.

"She's one of these pitchers who works very hard," he said. "She has gotten better every year that she's been here."

The game's score probably added some pressure for Ehlers because it was a close contest with little room for error, Conway said. One mistake might not only have cost her the no-hitter, but cost Saint Leo the game as well. That she preserved the no-hitter and the win makes the accomplishment even more impressive.

But there were more impressive accomplishments for the Lions and Ehlers that day. In the second game, pitcher Alana Tabel went above and beyond a game's worth of no-hit ball, pitching 8-1/3 innings before the Moccasins finally registered a couple of hits.

Saint Leo University junior Ashley Ehlers threw a no-hitter in game one of a doubleheader against Florida Southern College last month. In the second game, she came on in relief to record another victory.

With the game still a scoreless tie in the 10th inning, Saint Leo went back to Ehlers for some extra work and she responded with another inning without giving up any hits. That proved to be enough, as the Lions broke through in the bottom of the 10th inning to claim a second 1-0 victory, and make Ehlers the winning pitcher of record in both games.

Ehlers had pitched no-hitters in high school, but recording one at the college level was special for her.

"I feel like this one means a lot more," she said. "In high school there are only a couple of girls on every high school team who are going to college (and play softball), and in college it's all the dominant players."

As a competitor, Ehlers said earning the victory was more important than preserving the no-hitter. Competing in the tough Sunshine State Conference means every game matters, and conference games are even more important. So taking two from fellow SSC member Florida Southern was particularly satisfying.

Her strong junior year campaign is also a source of pride for Ehlers because she comes from a family of softball players. Her younger sister, Aubrey, is a pitcher for Dunedin High School, and was excited to hear about the no-hitter.

"She thought it was so awesome," Ehlers said. "My little sister looks up to me so much. Everything that I do in my success, I want her to see that and know that she can do that as well."

Her older sister, Amber, was also a pitcher when she attended Hillsborough Community College, and was proud to hear about her little sister's accomplishment.

Ehlers said the confidence she gained from the no-hitter would likely carry over into future games, and it did: She earned another victory against Barry University the following weekend.

Her own no-hitter aside, Ehlers also was impressed with Tabel's pitching in the second game, which would have marked another no-hitter if the Lions had scored in regulation.

"She threw an awesome game," Ehlers said.

And Conway agrees. "I just think both my pitchers were throwing a good game that day," he said. "They both were on."

LOL's Poore closes out track career with trip to state

By Michael Murillo
mmurillo@lakerlutznews.com

Land O' Lakes High School senior Jake Poore added several titles to his track and field resume this past season: Conference champion, District champion, Regional champion, State qualifier and sixth-place finisher for Class 3A for the two-mile run.

But a late-season injury almost prevented it from happening.

"I hyper-extended my knee, and that was five days before the district meet. I couldn't even walk after the race," Poore said. "The doctor was saying that I might not be able to run, and I was telling her, 'I'm going up to the starting line no matter what because if I don't, my season is over.'"

His knee improved, and he went on to win district and regional competitions and compete in his individual category as well as the 4-x-800 relay.

That Poore was able to recover so quickly is a testament to his work ethic and rigorous training regimen. This season he broke down his workouts into what he labels "easy," "medium" and "hard" days.

COURTESY OF TEDD THOMAS

Jake Poore's hard work has paid off in his senior season, entering state competition as a conference, district and regional champion. His two-mile time at state was good for sixth place.

A day of gym workouts with cross-training and maybe a light run is what Poore considers "easy." They only get more difficult from there, with a warm-up, off-track runs, interval workouts with short rests, and another run and cool-down making up a "hard" day.

The idea was to make practice so challenging that actual competition seemed easier by comparison, he said. Only once every couple of weeks did he allow himself a day with absolutely nothing on his schedule, and Poore admitted his dedication to track had consequences outside the sport.

"I was working so hard," he said. "Even on my easy days I was so tired and had to get my sleep in, and made sure I did my schoolwork whenever I had a chance. I lost some friends, I guess, because I couldn't go hang out."

But he said the results in competition made the sacrifice worth it.

Those results included a strong showing in state competition. Although he finished sixth, that ranking is deceiving due to the caliber of competition in Class 3A. If Poore had been in one of the other divisions, he would have been state champion.

And while the 4-x-800 team finished 15th, he was thrilled with his time of 1 minute, 57 seconds.

Another motivator for his successful year — and for the entire team, which enjoyed conference and district titles — was the memory of Bill Schmitz, a track coach at Land O' Lakes High School, who died last year. Poore and his friends wore "We Run For Schmitz" T-shirts during the year, and followed through on team goals the coach set before he died.

As captain, Poore used the coach's expectations to help motivate his teammates, and he would reference Schmitz during his regular prayers before meets.

He credits the coach with helping him improve his abilities and become a more successful athlete.

He wasn't the best track runner earlier in his track career, Poore admits. But his hard work and dedication paid off, and he'll leave Land O' Lakes a conference, district and regional champion. But that's not the end of his running career: He'll attend the University of Tampa in the fall with an athletic scholarship, a new challenge in collegiate-level track, and a desire to reach the Olympic Games in 2016, held in Rio de Janeiro.

Away from meets, he'll take a pre-med course load with a goal of becoming an anesthesiologist when he graduates. And since college doesn't start until later this year, he's looking forward to a long break from his regular regimen before his summer training — long by his standards, anyway.

"I have two weeks off, and then I start working out for college," he said. "I'm going to get right back in it. It's just another day at work for me."

May is Skin Cancer Awareness Month

We often view the sun's harmful rays as the primary cause of skin cancer, due to the fact that it is often found on parts of the body that receive the most sun exposure. While this may be true of some bodily skin cancers, this does not hold true for those that arise on the skin of the feet.

Unfortunately, the skin of the feet is often overlooked during routine medical examinations, and for this reason it is important that the feet are checked regularly for abnormalities which might be indicative of evolving skin cancer: moles, lesions, or non-healing sores.

Make sure to schedule your appointment today to have your feet examined!

Tips for celebrating Mother's Day on a budget

The Laker/Lutz News Staff Report

With Mother's Day around the corner, people are thinking of ways to show their appreciation for their mom.

But those on a budget are in luck, because some "discount experts" at Dollar General are sharing helpful advice.

• Breakfast in bed: Every mom deserves some time to relax. Why not begin Mother's Day by pampering her with breakfast in bed? Don't forget to make the breakfast complete with a card, and a cup of coffee.

• Watch it grow: Spend Mother's Day afternoon making memories with mom by picking out a new planter with gardening tools, soil and seeds. As the plants grow, it will help remind her of the children who gave it to her.

• Bake and make: Update and brighten mom's kitchen with things like oven mitts, kitchen towels and such. Many can be bought inexpensively at places like Dollar General. By including a cupcake or brownie mix with all the appropriate kitchen utensils, the gift could translate into some quality time with mom in the kitchen.

• Tell the birds: Get mom a themed birdhouse with birdseed, or consider making a birdhouse together as an afternoon arts and crafts project. Either way, help her find the best place in the yard to enjoy the colorful and beautiful birds that could soon be frequent visitors.

Pasco County's annual survey now open

The Laker/Lutz News Staff Report

It's survey time in Pasco County again, as government officials look to get feedback from residents and businesses about the future of the county.

The 2014 Citizen Survey includes questions about quality of life, speed of growth, crime and safety, public transit, recycling, and general services, according to a release from the county. It also asks questions about the State Road 54/56 corridor, where an un solicited bid to build an estimated $2.2 billion elevated toll road has been proposed.

Data from the survey is combined from its random, scientific National Citizen Survey, and provides input for prioritizing planning efforts and budget allocations.

The survey is open online through May 31, and can be accessed online at PascoCountyFL.net.

Visitors to the site can provide feedback at any time as well through the customer comment card available on the site, or by sending an email to customerservice@pascocountyfl.net.

A direct link to the survey is available at tinyurl.com/PascoCountySurvey.

Cameo Salon & Spa

Sarah Haberl, is one of just 2,700 hair stylists worldwide to be recognized as a certified color technician from Redken.

Sarah Haberl receives Redken color certification

Sarah Haberl, a stylist at Cameo Salon & Spa in Lutz, recently became a Redken Certified Haircolorist. She joins an elite group of just 2,700 people in the world who have earned this prestigious certification.

"There's a certain level of acclaim associated with being a Redken Certified Haircolorist," said Olav Malm, owner of Cameo Salon, along with his wife Lori. "Members of this elite group are recognized for their expertise and commitment to excellence."

To receive her color certification, Sarah participated in a six-month program to learn every facet about Redken's color lines. Along with this course work, she also participated in practicum workshops, which entailed setting up, mixing, applying and cleaning, per Redken's show standards.

In November, Sarah went to Nashville and underwent three days of testing with stylists from across the country. Her results came in 10 weeks later, when she learned she passed the rigorous program.

"It's quite an honor. Once you pass the tests, Redken essentially deems you an expert in color and backs up your heightened level of professional knowledge," said Sarah.

Sarah, who has been a stylist at Cameo for five years, has been passionate about hair for most of her life.

"When the opportunity to do something bigger arose, I knew I wanted to take the plunge," she said. "Certification gives me the qualifications to educate my peers, and most importantly, to continue to do what I love in a better, more knowledgeable and unique way."

"And to me, my color certification is worth its weight in gold because my guests are the ones who benefit the most and truly fuel my fire."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Novena Prayer to Our Lady of the Miraculous Medal

Immaculate Virgin Mary, mother of Jesus and my mother, I come to you with confidence in your powerful intercession, manifested through your Miraculous Medal.

As your loving, trustful child I ask this favor...Obtain for me as well, a pure heart, that my entire life may give glory to God.

O Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to you.
