Utilities object to proposed lake level standard

BY DAN HILDEBRAN
Managing Editor

Representatives of public utilities expressed concern over the St. Johns River Water Management District's proposed Minimum Flows and Levels standards for Lakes Brooklyn and Geneva, during the district's May meeting.

According to the water management district, minimum levels for lakes Brooklyn and Geneva were last adopted in January 1996.

"Those MFLs were based on a methodology designed to maintain the location of existing stable wetlands and organic soils," the district said in a news release. "However, stable wetlands and organic soils do not exist at these sandhill lakes. A reevaluation is necessary to ensure that appropriate, protective minimum levels are developed."

When a water body or watercourse currently does not or is anticipated to not meet a proposed MFL, the district is required to develop recovery or prevention strategies for adoption in conjunction with the proposed MFL.

The district's staff has already issued a report on the proposed new standards and has scheduled a public workshop to address draft revised MFLs and any required recovery or prevention strategies for lakes Brooklyn and Geneva for 5-7 p.m., July 26, at district headquarters in Palatka.

Tom Bartol of JEA, representing the North Florida Utility Coordinating Group, objected to what he called non-scientific, aesthetic criteria used in the MFL report.

"We have serious concerns over that," he said of the aesthetic and recreation criteria the district used to set the proposed MFL.

"I'll just tell you and I'll say it again, there's not a lot of science behind that."

Bartol added that historically, the district has used environmental standards, such as a lake level's impact on birds and fish. He said that taking recreation into account when devising the standard was out of the ordinary.

However, Bartol did find some agreement on the proposed standard.

"The MFL report does acknowledge that the majority: at least 85 percent of the water level change... is due to rainfall. Those 31 feet of water level changes, (the) vast majority of that is due to rainfall."

Save Our Lakes President Vivian Katz asked water management district board members to not be influenced by the threats from the utilities.

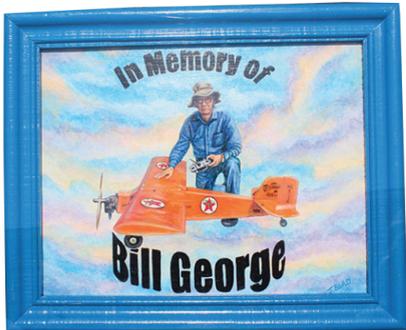

"JEA's the big guy, the big elephant in the room, and they've got deep pockets," she said. "They can sue you guys and probably keep you in court forever. The right thing to do, quite frankly, would be just to get on with it. Get a fair, honest, MFL."

Katz added that she saw no problem with the district using recreational criteria in developing the new water standard.

"I don't see a lot wrong with having water at the dock," she told board members. "That's what we're all there for. You know, fishing, and enjoying family entertainment, and that sort of thing."

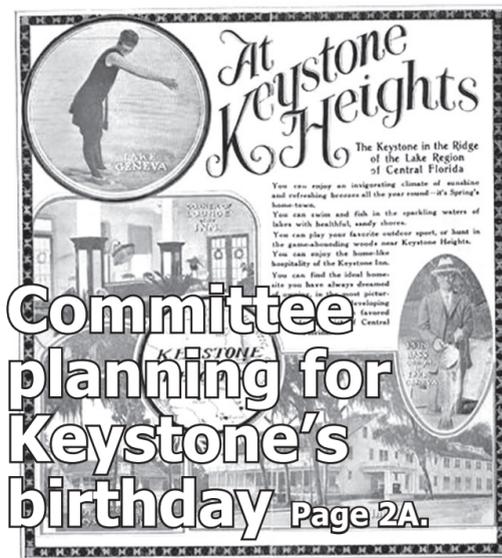

She also said that the Keystone Heights area has suffered enough from low lake levels.

"We have a harmed community," she said, "and if we don't get this MFL set right, this time, our community could die."

2017 was best year ever for local manufacturer

BY DAN HILDEBRAN

The sales manager at G&A Manufacturing gave the Keystone-Lake Region Business Association an overview of the company's operations and emphasized the importance of buying locally, during the association's May 14 meeting.

Scott Slater said G&A is an aluminum fabrication company with three product lines: marine, commercial railing and handicap access.

Its marine products include fixed docks, floating docks and gangways.

G&A's commercial railing includes balcony railing for hotels, and the company recently completed railing for the 49-story Hilton Grand Vacation Club in Myrtle Beach.

District: April showers nearly double average rainfall for many counties

All counties in the St. Johns River Water Management District's service area experienced higher-than-average rainfall during April, with several counties seeing twice their average, according to a news release by the district.

This is a departure from last year's data, when rainfall was trending significantly below average. A full hydrological report was presented earlier in May during the district's governing board meeting.

April's showers brought the 12-month rainfall total to above average, with a zone of very high rain running through northern Alachua, most of Putnam, southwest St. Johns and northwest Flagler counties. Districtwide, the annual rainfall total is more than 11 inches above average.

* Bradford, Clay, St. Johns, Alachua, Putnam, Marion, Flagler and Volusia all received enough rainfall during April to double their monthly average.

* Putnam County had the highest rainfall, with 7.4 inches.

* The southernmost part of the district, including Indian River, Osceola and portions of Brevard County, all had average rainfall, ranging from 2.4 to 2.7 inches.

Battle of Britain survivor tells story to Primetimers

Lunch served at this meeting was a covered salad dish. There was a wide variety of food and plenty of it. People stayed around after the luncheon was over to obtain recipes for many of the dishes.

BY ATHIE SANDERS
Special to the Monitor

Keystone Heights United Methodist Church Primetimers Adult Ministry Group hosted a covered dish luncheon May 8 in the church's Multi-Ministry Center for fellowship and to heighten awareness of the significance of Memorial Day.

"We celebrate Memorial Day in May," said Primetimers Chair Gilda Kinsey. "I remember how important it was to us as children. It can be easy to forget what Memorial Day is all about.

I felt it appropriate to have Shelia Creigh as our May speaker. She lived in Bath, England as a child during WWII. She knows firsthand the perils of war."

Shelia Creigh was born in London, England May 4, 1930. "I just had my 88th birthday and I don't care who knows how old I am. I just celebrated my 88th birthday," said Creigh.

She drives her own car wherever she needs to go. She is a member of the Keystone United Methodist Church and volunteers across many areas.

Creigh puts together the three weekly programs for Sunday services and helps with the weekly newsletter. "I found something I was missing, and I didn't even know I was missing it," she said. "There is a very big, warm welcome waiting here for you, right here at this church."

Creigh paused a moment, took a long breath and then started to share her childhood story, often using a slightly shaky voice. "Memories formed as a child don't necessarily come in order," she said.

Her father, a World War I veteran, became one of the first British fighter pilots in the war. He flew in what became the Royal Air Force. He was wounded and exposed to gasses used by the Germans.

Creigh lived in London until the age of seven when her father was promoted and moved the family to Bath. Bath is an ancient, historical city with buildings dating back to the days of the Romans.

"Bath is in a valley with beautiful hills and countryside where we picked berries and flowers and had picnics," said Creigh.

"Trouble had been brewing in Europe for some time. Hitler had taken over and it didn't look like he was going to stop. Poland asked Great Britain if we would come to their aid. A pact was made and, yes, Britain would come to their aid," shared Creigh.

September 1, 1939 German forces invaded Poland.

On September 3, the British sat around their radios and waited for the broadcast.

"BBC London. Here now is Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain," said Creigh in a quivering voice after a long pause.

Creigh continued, "Germany has invaded Poland on September

Centennial committee begins planning Keystone's 100th birthday

The inaugural members of the Keystone Heights Centennial Steering Committee include (l-r) City Councilman Steve Hart, City Clerk Lynn Rutkowski, Keystone Heights High School Student Council President Brandon Ludwig, Keystone-Lake Region Business Association President Harold Gilstrap, Jaycees representative Erica Bassett, Lake Region Kiwanis President DarbyAnn Roberts and Dairde Murphy representing the Garden Club of the Lakes.

BY DAN HILDEBRAN
Managing Editor

The City of Keystone Heights will be 100 years old in 2025 and a group of community leaders is getting a seven-year head start on planning the party.

City Councilman Steve Hart told attendees of the first Centennial Steering Committee that his colleagues on the city council want to be prepared by the time the birthday rolls around.

"The city council asked me to form a steering committee to start thinking about it," Hart told committee members, "get some ideas, so that by the time 2025 sneaks up on us, which will come pretty quickly actually, we'll have this thing pretty well organized and we won't be scrambling."

Hart recruited committee members from the Lake Region's civic and community organizations, including the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, the business association, high school student government, the Jaycees and the Garden Club.

The group agreed to form a separate corporation to develop branding, collect and spend revenues, in the same way that the Our Country Day committee is a separate legal entity from the city.

The group also agreed that in addition to sponsoring unique events for the centennial, the organization should work with other Lake Region organizations that already produce events throughout the year, encouraging those groups to include the centennial theme into their events.

"So instead of 'Our Country Day', it's the 'Centennial Our Country Day,' and instead of the Arbor Day Celebration with the Garden Club, it's the Centennial Arbor Day Celebration," said one committee member. "I think we will leverage our efforts in doing that and work on helping the organizers of these other events enhance their event to focus on the centennial theme."

Hart also suggested the Centennial Committee produce a New Year's celebration at the beach pavilion, to bring in 2025 in a big way.

The steering committee agreed to meet quarterly for the remainder of 2018.

Dr. Tom Farmer stands with guest speaker and church member Shelia Creigh. She lived in Bath, England during WWII. She shared her childhood remembrances of life during the war. "I am not a historian, I am a survivor," said Creigh.

Primetimers' Chairwoman Gilda Kinsey and husband Bob Kinsey confer with Dr. Tom Farmer about upcoming events in the fall. "We've been at this church a few years and have wanted to get more involved," said Bob Kinsey.

1. Hitler has been sent an ultimatum. Unless he withdraws, a state of war will exist."

There was no response from Hitler; therefore, Great Britain was at war with Germany.

The first few months were quiet in some areas. But 1,500 ships were sunk with a great loss of life and supplies. There was no stopping Hitler.

"The British and French fought back but Hitler pushed them back to the sea, they had no place to go. Four hundred forty thousand soldiers were trapped with their backs to the sea. So many died on that beach," said an emotional Creigh.

"Prime Minister Churchill sent out a call for all owners of any sea worthy vessels with motors that could travel the English Channel to come to their aid. Small vessels came out in the hundreds to assemble in various ports," said Creigh.

The small vessels were able to cross the channel to the beaches. Large war vessels were off shore but due to their size they were unable to get to the beach. The small vessels ferried soldiers to off shore vessels. "All the time the small vessels were under attack themselves," said Creigh.

"In that manner somehow 338,226 soldiers were saved off that beach," said Creigh.

"After the fall of France, the people of Great Britain waited. Hitler hoped Great Britain would give up, but British people do not soften up, we lighten up," said Creigh.

During the Battle of Britain bombing went on for months. Bath was on the route to Bristol, a much larger town. People lived without lights so as not to attract night bombers. Bombers flew overhead nightly on their way to other targets. Sirens sounded every night. People became complacent because they knew the planes were going to Bristol.

One night, Bath was bombed. "It started at 11 p.m. and went on until daylight. We stayed in our beds. They came in waves of about 10 at a time, over and over for hours," said Creigh with tears in her eyes.

"Bombs make a whistle sound. If one sounded louder than others you wondered if that one had your name on it," she said.

"Thousands were killed, thousands more injured. Everything was reduced to rubble," said Creigh as she shared pictures of her town.

"One day while walking down our road, while it was lights out, a solitary plane came straight down and right up our road. It was machine gunning through all the bedroom windows. Lucky, I got up early that day

Creigh shared that her brother was a pilot. He would fly over their house and dip his wings to let them know he was alright. During the war he was shot down twice. Fortunately, he was rescued each time by the British, not the Germans.

Creigh stood taller, a smile transformed over her face, and she said, "December 7, 1941. Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor. Roosevelt declared war on Japan, Germany and Italy," she said.

"American GIs came. They were good looking, had nylons, chocolate, powdered eggs, also spam and the jitter-bug!" said a much lighter voiced Creigh.

"We were so strictly rationed. We had two ounces of butter per person per week. There was a meager meat allowance. We did supplement with fish, wild rabbit and whale meat. My mother had a meal on the table every day, often rabbit. I don't know how she did it," added Creigh.

"We were all issued gas masks. Germans had used poisons gas in the past and there was fear of them dropping gas from airplanes. It never happened," said Creigh.

"Memories were seared into my brain that no child should ever have," Creigh quietly said.

"June 6, 1944. Operation Overload, D Day, Deliverance Day. Forces of good gradually defeated the sources of evil. But in so doing there was a new horror. Concentration camps were discovered. It was the first time the world saw the Holocaust," stated Creigh.

converged on Germany. Hitler was dead, so it was thought. War in Europe was over. Victory in Europe, call VE Day, saw such rejoicing in the streets. Lights were back on in Great Britain after nearly six years of darkness. There had been no lights at all after dark. It was wonderful, said Creigh.

Creigh was nine-years-old when it all started and 15 years-old, a young woman, when it ended.

"The British people are forever thankful for your help and sacrifice. I am not a historian, I am a survivor," said Creigh.

Primetimers Adult Ministry group will not meet during the summer months.

Keystone Elementary hosts Muffins for Moms

Keystone Heights Elementary School hosted "Muffins for Moms" before school May 14 in its gym to provide an opportunity for mothers to attend a breakfast activity with their children and participate in family centered activities focusing on academics.

Keystone Heights Elementary is a Title 1 school because the school meets a threshold for federal funding based on the percentage of free and reduced lunch students registered.

Title 1 is designed to help close the achievement gap between disadvantaged students and their peers. Programs are meant to change the culture of schools so that success is defined in terms of student achievement and that schools invest in every child.

Funding from Title 1 provides multiple opportunities for parents to receive training to help their child in school.

The involvement of parents in their children's education and schools is critical. Parents play an integral role in assisting their child's learning. When schools, families and community groups work together to support learning, children tend to do better in school.

Parent involvement is directly related to students earning higher grades and test scores. Students of involved parents enroll in higher-level programs and pass their classes. They also attend school regularly and graduate and go on to postsecondary education.

"Muffins for Moms" was a Title 1 sponsored activity. "Title 1 funds enable us to provide parents and students with special activities that focus on educational objectives but also enable us to provide food and special activities," said Corrine Lavin, assistant principal.

The purpose of this event was to encourage parent engagement. It gives an opportunity for the parent to come to school with their student and to participate

"This Title 1 event is designed to encourage parent involvement. It encourages parents to come to school with their student and participate in fun activities. We had some suggested fun activities they can take home and work on over the summer together. We had activities moms can do that are enjoyable and fun," said Missy Gillenwaters.

Although it was raining there was a large turnout for Muffins for Moms. Moms, grandmothers, aunts and caregivers attended with their children.

Large and small muffins and juices were served. Math and reading reinforcement activities were available at activity tables. Students made cootie-catchers designed with math problems and filled out guided forms "All About My Mom" or aunt, or grandmother, to share with their moms.

A photo booth offered opportunity for selfies leading to interactions between families helping each other get the perfect shot. Artificial trees flanking the photo bench were donated by community member Ace Hardware.

"Title 1 funds have allowed us to offer a lot of parent involvement opportunities for families to be engaged with their children's education. We had Open House earlier in the year and were able to serve pizza, salad and cookies. We also had Science, Technology, Engineering, Art and Music (STEAM) night and were again able to serve pizza," said Lavin.

with 12 Florida school districts, including Clay County, to provide handicap access ramps to portable classrooms.

Beginnings

Slater said John and Debbie Hoffman launched G&A after Alcoa bought the company's predecessor: Red Team and moved the operation to Louisiana.

John Hoffman, from Interlachen, was a produce manager for Miller's Grocery in Keystone Heights.

Later, he worked for Architecture Rail and Grill in Florahome, which made commercial railing, ShoreMaster Southeast, which made marine products in Keystone Heights and the Red Team, which prior to its acquisition by Alcoa, fabricated aluminum for handicap access in the Lake Region.

Slater said Debbie Hoffman refers to herself as a Navy brat from Camp David. Her family moved to Interlachen when she was in the 10th grade, and she met her future husband while working at Miller's Grocery. In addition to G&A Manufacturing, Debbie also owns three daycare businesses: In Loving Hands in Keystone Heights, Children's World in Palatka and Asbury Learning Center in Lake Asbury.

Best year ever

Slater said that 2017 was G&A Manufacturing's best year, and that the company is looking to break records again in 2018.

"This month alone is probably the best incoming order month-outgoing order month in our history, so we're very busy right now," he said. "We are updating processes, so it might not turn into a bunch of jobs right now, but...we hope to continue to grow more payroll."

He said the company's success is built on manufacturing high-quality products from 100-percent U.S. aluminum.

Slater added that John Hoffman has also emphasized consistency in his product lines. "We have access systems with Clay County (schools) that have moved five, six, seven times over a period of 10 years," he said.

He added that the district can take component parts from an access ramp it bought in 2008 and use those components on today's ramps.

"One of our competitors...has been through five generations of their access systems," he said, "not a single one of them compatible to the next. So, one of the things that we've had for success is keeping our products consistent."

Challenges

Slater said one of the challenges facing the company is a 13-percent increase in aluminum prices over the last 12 months.

"That's huge," he said of the increase, adding that around a third of G&A's product cost is in raw materials, "so, it turns into a price increase for your customer base."

"Staffing's always a challenge," he added, saying that attracting workers to a rural area and competing with wages from big-city employers can be difficult.

He also said that benefits are an additional challenge, noting that G&A's healthcare costs have risen by almost a third.

"I don't know what other people's health insurances are doing," he said, "but we need to get a grip on healthcare costs."

Local impact

Slater said that in spite of those challenges, the company continues to grow and hired its 21st employee the same day Slater spoke at the business association.

He also said that G&A and Debbie Hoffman's daycare businesses are committed to buying locally, citing Ameris Bank, Bryan's Ace Hardware, American Gutter, the Taylor and Taylor law firm, Mike Bertie Heating and Air, Regional Electric and CARQUEST Auto Parts as local businesses the companies work with.

Slater added that G&A purchases its industrial supplies from Lake Region resident Bill Wall of Jacksonville's Cornerstone Supply.

"I mean, I could order a bunch of that off of Amazon," Slater said, "but he's the local guy who depends on his living selling industrial supply, so we try to keep our business with local companies."

Keystone remote control aircraft club dedicates field to former Starke minister

BY DAN HILDEBRAN
Managing Editor

The Keystone Cloudbusters Remote Control Club dedicated its field at the Keystone Airpark to Bill George, during the club's annual Family Day on April 28.

George, who died in 2017, served as Minister of Music at Starke's First Baptist Church from 1966 to 1978, and then served as a chaplain with the Department of Corrections for 13-and-a-half years. During that time, he also served in several other churches, including Madison Street Baptist Church and the First Presbyterian Church of Starke.

George's son Denny, who attended the field dedication, said his father obtained his pilot's license after serving in the Navy during World War II.

"He taught me to fly real airplanes when I was 12," recalled Denny, "and then I was the first one to learn remote control and taught him to fly RC."

Father and son started flying remote control airplanes in a corner of the Keystone Airpark. Eventually, others joined the two and the small group formed a club.

"We flew out here back on a taxi strip and probably 35 years ago, 33 years ago," recalled Denny George. "At some point, the club became official and so they consider my dad the founder."

George added that his father enjoyed building remote control planes just as much as flying them. He built the planes from scratch, not from kits, which is the prevailing practice today.

They come in large pieces and they call them ARFs: almost-ready-to-fly," said George of the kits. "That was not my dad's deal."

George said that for a couple of the models his father built,

Denny George (left) holds a painting of his father presented to him by Darrin Hardee (center) of the Keystone Cloudbusters Remote Control Club. Looking on is the club's President: Michael Mullins (right).

Bill George ordered the plans of the original planes from the Smithsonian in Washington, so his models would be as authentic as possible.

Bill George first fell in love with flying as a boy, watching airplanes fly overhead while he worked in the tobacco fields near his boyhood home of Walkertown, North Carolina, just outside Winston-Salem.

The passion for flight remained with him throughout his life. His son said he last flew five days before his final hospital stay.

Club President Michael Mullins said the organization now has 32 members. Mullins joined in 2010 and met Bill George at that time.

"He was a very wise man," Mullins said of George, "especially when it came to airplanes. Bill was the type of guy that if he met you and talked to you, he was interested in what you had to talk about, not so much as what he had to talk about. He was just one of those kinds of individuals."

During the dedication of the Bill George Memorial RC Airfield, club member Darrin Hardee presented George's family with a painting of Bill George, derived from a photograph.

Germano running in District 4

The following is an announcement of intention to seek public office submitted by the candidate. Email announcements to editor@bctelegraph.com.

Lifelong Republican and business executive Tom Germano officially filed his candidacy for Bradford County Commissioner District 4 in November 2017. His district includes Hampton, Lake Hampton, Lake Santa Fe, Keystone Heights, Melrose, Theressa area south of Starke and the Keystone Airport area. Tom spent his childhood on Little Lake Santa Fe in his family's one-bedroom cabin. In 2004, Tom and wife, Nancy, purchased the house next door to his dad's old place.

"My fondest memories of growing up are on the lake; thrashing through the swamp, fishing, swimming and boating. I knew I always wanted to be on Little Santa Fe and feel blessed to live here."

"I am not a politician, and this is the first time I am running for office. I don't act a certain way to make friends or to get people to like me. What I am, is what you get." Tom's first involvement as a concerned citizen in Bradford government was at the grassroots level to halt the controversial RV-condo development on wetlands. His concerns, regarding the water resource challenges related to this project and the potential damage to the swamp, (the headwaters to the Santa Fe River) were echoed by many others around the county. In addition, Tom is the only candidate who has come out publicly against the proposed phosphate mine in Bradford and Union counties.

"As a businessman, I want to foster the right kind of growth in our beautiful county. We need job creators, not land destroyers!" Tom believes that starts with infrastructure: high-speed internet and better roads. Over the last few months, he has met with neighboring county officials regarding their approach to similar challenges. "The solutions are out there, we just have to make it a priority and take action." He believes business opportunities will follow.

As a father and grandfather, Tom is passionate about school safety and education. He is impressed with the sheriff's administration's commitment to protecting our schools. In addition, Tom highlighted that the Bradford School System is doing some great things with STEAM education - especially music. "We have a great musical tradition in this part of Florida and we need to support our future Tom Petty's and Bo Diddley's"

Tom maintains that part of being a good commissioner is reviewing the books for government waste and re-directing funds wherever possible toward education and the safety/well-being of our county, and most importantly, keeping taxes low for our hard-working citizens. He promises an open-door policy and is committed to regularly scheduled town hall type meetings. "I will represent the people of District 4 and all of Bradford county, not my own agenda."

Still running on environment, ecotourism, education

Still

The following is an announcement of intention to seek public office submitted by the candidate. Announcements may be emailed to editor@bctelegraph.com.

Since moving to Lake Sampson in 1996, I have been fascinated by Bradford's wetland, lake and stream ecosystems. Protecting these environmental assets has been my focus for over 20 years. The flooding from Tropical Storm Debby and then Hurricane Irma and the resulting devastation, emphasized the need for agencies, citizens and elected officials to work together to protect and restore these ecosystems. I have also become increasingly concerned at how many legislators run unopposed and thus limit our opportunity for discussion and a chance to vote for a candidate that we feel will best represent us. For these reasons I am running for the Florida House District 19 seat to represent the people in all of Bradford, Union and Putnam counties, and the southern part of Clay County.

I am a research scientist and I believe in the importance of not only collecting data but in analyzing data to find possible solutions to problems. This applies not only to ecology, but also to education, economic development and health care.

My education began in a small two room elementary school in rural Illinois. I met Kathy, my wife of 51 years, at Blackburn College, a small college in Carlinville, IL. I received a PhD in plant pathology from the University of Wisconsin and went on to do research and teaching in government labs and universities in the U.S., Papua New Guinea and Germany. In 1979 we moved to Newberry. I worked as a biologist at UF and later did training and research on solid and hazardous waste management at UF's TREEO Center before retiring in 1996.

In 1988 I helped form a company that provided recycling services to Archer and Newberry, provided home composting units to Alachua County residents, and developed reuse and cost reduction options for household hazardous waste. In 2002 the company's focus changed to forest management and invasive plant control and received two USDA Small Business Innovative Research grants. I have been a supervisor for the Bradford Soil and Water Conservation District since 2004. I managed two Pulling Together Initiative grants that focused on invasive plant education and control. I have been collecting data on Bradford County's surface water since Tropical Storm Debby. This data collection includes major floods that impacted Starke and Lakes Sampson and Crosby. I helped Bradford County apply for the $2.5 million Emergency Watershed grant the county just received. An aggressive program of flood mitigation is needed throughout House District 19.

One of my concerns is the St. Johns River Water Management District Black Creek project that would pump water from Black Creek to Keystone Heights and has an estimated cost of $43 million. The color and phosphorous content of Black Creek water could have negative impacts on the Keystone lakes. Proposed withdrawal rates could cause serious harm to Black Creek. The Bradford Soil and Water Conservation District has proposed that the water discharged by Chemours be pumped into a natural flow system that would carry water directly to the Keystone lakes. The cost for this option would be under $500,000 and reduce flooding in Starke.

I believe ecotourism could be a significant economic driver in House District 19. Area lakes, creeks, rivers, wetlands, springs and the largely undeveloped forested lands could be turned into tourist destination points. In Bradford County, Brooks Sink between Graham and Brooker is more impressive than the Devil's Millhopper in Gainesville and should be a State Geological Park. A study of the economic impact of returning the Ocklawaha River to a free-flowing river indicates a free-flowing river would generate more revenue than a dammed river.

Past mining by Dupont (Chemours) has had significant environmental impacts in Bradford County.

The proposed phosphate mine could have significant environmental impacts if adequate limits are not set in the various permits required for the mining operation and if the responsible governmental entities do not enforce the conditions in the permits. Bradford County's inability to manage its permitting responsibility for the mining project has led me to change my stated support for the phosphate mining concept to opposition for the mine proposed for Bradford and Union counties.

My goal is to be available to listen to the citizens of House District 19 and to initiate legislation where needed to protect our environmental resources, support our public education system and make ecotourism an economic driver. We all need to work together to address the challenges we face in House District 19 while protecting the rural character that makes it unique.

Indians rally in 7th to punch ticket to state

At the start of the softball season, Keystone Heights High School Head Coach Jessica Marquart and Assistant Coach Tyler Jolley had to tell the players not to get ahead of themselves. They kept talking about making it to the state tournament, but the coaches knew a lot of softball had to be played before even thinking about that.

"We finally had to say, 'Hey, we do not say state anymore, and they haven't said it since,'" Maquart said. "That's all they were focused on. They weren't focused on one game at a time."

Well, the players can talk about state now because that's just where they're heading, thanks to rallying in the seventh inning to defeat host Hernando 3-2 in the Region 2-5A championship game on May 11 in Brooksville.

"It's such an awesome feeling to win a game like this," Marquart said. "It was nerve-racking, but so awesome."

The Indians (20-10) had two on with two outs in the top of the seventh when senior catcher Bailey Story hit a hard grounder up the middle for a single that plated both runners.

"We knew we could do it," Story said. "It's the best feeling."

Moncrief and Daelynn Eatmon combined to allow three hits, with Eatmon, a freshman, earning the win with four shutout, no-hit innings.

"I'm just so happy," said Eatmon, who gave up no walks and had six strikeouts. "We've worked so hard all year for this."

The state tournament will be hosted by Historic Dodgertown in Vero Beach. Keystone, which is making its first trip to state since 2012, will play a semifinal game against West Nassau (22-6) at 1:35 p.m. on Saturday, May 19. Reigning state champ

Baptists on the square

The members of Madison Street Baptist Church met on Starke's square for a picnic after their morning service on May 6.

Senior Pastor Justin Kirksey said the highlight of the afternoon was the baptism of two of the church's newest members: Caleb Zapp and Darsyn Brooks. After Pastor of Discipleship for Students Callihan Helms baptized the two teenagers, Kirksey told the crowd: "Throughout the rest of this day, if there's anybody here that needs to be baptized, we've still got water here. Now, just because you're hot, you can't come and get baptized."

BHS' Phillips to play softball at St. Johns River State College

BY CLIFF SMELLEY
Telegraph Staff Writer

When the Bradford High School softball team's season ended April 24, senior center fielder Harli Phillips figured that was the last game she'd play.

Now, she has put herself in position to play again after receiving a scholarship from Palatka's St. Johns River State College.

"I'm very nervous because as of two months ago, I never would've thought I'd be doing this," Phillips said after a May 11 signing ceremony in the BHS media center. "I waited until a month before my senior year's over. I finally decided maybe I do want to do this."

"It's very exciting, but I'm very nervous at the same time. I think it'll be a great opportunity."

Bradford High School graduate Lainie Rodgers, who was the varsity team's assistant coach this past season, was a senior during Phillips' freshman year. During the signing ceremony, Rodgers said when she first saw Phillips, her thought was, "This girl has incredible potential, and she doesn't have a clue how good she is."

After the ceremony, Rodgers told the Telegraph-Times-Monitor that Phillips' confidence has grown.

"I saw that she had grown from a somewhat timid freshman to a dynamic, hard-working and influential senior on our team this year," Rodgers said.

In regard to playing beyond high school, Phillips said, "I've always known I had the potential and always knew I could do it. I guess it just took me a while to realize that people did believe in me, that I really could do it and I had the talent."

She said she had no particular college in mind when she began thinking of trying to play at the next level. Phillips knew she wanted to go somewhere that was close to home. St. Johns River College fits the bill.

"I went over there and looked at their school," Phillips said. "I really loved it. I just knew that was kind of going to fit me."

Phillips played all four years of high school at the varsity level. This past season, she batted .319, had a slugging percentage of .425 and was second on the team with five doubles.

As a freshman, Phillips made 21 starts, playing in right field and finishing the season with a perfect fielding percentage. She then moved to center field, which is where she's been since.

"She has a great arm in the outfield as far as throwing people out at the plate," Rodgers said. "Not many people can beat her arm."

Phillips said she could make a position change at St. Johns River.

"The coach that they have right now, she's seen me in the outfield," Phillips said. "She really likes me as an outfielder, but she told me as of right now, they don't have a starting catcher. She might make me into a catcher, so we'll see how that goes."

She seemed a little nervous

about that idea, but she's also open to whatever is asked of her as long as she can play at the collegiate level.

"I'm just excited for the opportunity," Phillips said.

Rodgers said there's no doubt that Phillips has the ability to play at a four-year college after two years at St. Johns River. It all depends on if she wants to.

Phillips said that's not in her future plans...yet.

"As of right now, no, but my answer might change as I progress," she said.

What's for sure is she'll play for St. Johns River. When asked what it'll feel like to step onto the field for the first time as a college player, Phillips said, "I think it'll be very nerve-racking. I remember my first game as a freshman here at Bradford. I remember being so nervous. I didn't even start that game. I remember thinking, 'Oh, my goodness. It's a whole different world from middle school to high school.' I can't imagine high school to college."

Rodgers thinks Phillips will do fine and envisions her being a positive influence on others.

"I think wherever she goes, she'll definitely have a huge impact on whoever she's around," Rodgers said.

Team Bradford takes part in Fun Shoot, Southeastern Regionals

Submitted by Tara Hildebran

Team Bradford, the Scholastic Clay Target Shooting Team, participated in the March 18 State Fun Shoot at Quail Creek Plantation in Okeechobee, which was the first competition for new members Eli Stewart of Wilkinson Jr. High School and Colton Padgett of Middleburg High School — both of whom joined in January.

This event was for sporting clays only. Results were: Drew Hildebran 61/100, Krista Hildebran 53/100, Stewart 29/100 and Padgett 45/100.

Winds were the biggest threat to the shooters as they averaged 11-15 mph throughout the event. The event had 144 shooters.

On April 21-22, the team attended the Southeastern Regionals at Forrest City Gun Club in Savannah, Georgia. More than 230 shooters from states such as Florida, Tennessee, South Carolina and Georgia competed.

Team Bradford added new member Wyatt Greenbaum of St. Johns for this event along with his father, coach Scott Greenbaum.

Shooters competed in skeet and trap as well as sport clays. Super Sport was added this year as an option.

Team Bradford's sporting clay squads were Greenbaum, Drew Hildebran and Krista Hildebran as Squad 1 and Padgett and Stewart as Squad 2. Squad 1 placed sixth out of 21, while Squad 2 placed 16th.

In trap, the squad of Greenbaum, Padgett, Stewart and Drew Hildebran placed 15th out of 21.

Greenbaum decided to shoot the optional Super Sport, a 50-clay course set up similar to sporting clays. His score was 43/50, which tied him for fourth.

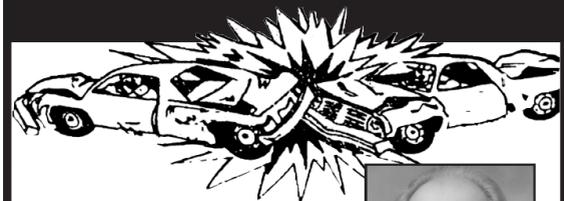

By attending the Southeastern Regionals, all Team Bradford members are now eligible for nationals should they decide to attend with a coach. The national event, which consists of more than 3,000 shooters, is held every summer in Marengo, Ohio.

Mother's Day observance turns into arrest

BY TRACY LEE TATE
Telegraph-Times-Monitor

A local woman seemed to be thinking of her mother on Mother's Day last week, but her intended recognition turned out to become an arrest at the Starke Walmart.

According to a report from the Starke Police Department, Officer Kelli McMahan was called to Walmart to investigate a report of retail theft. McMahan arrived at the scene at approx. 6:30 p.m. and met with Walmart employees in the Loss Prevention Office. At the time of McMahan's arrival, a white female, identified as Adrienne Leigh Jones was observed by her to also be present in the office.

An employee told officers that she had observed Jones selecting three Mother's Day cards from a display near the grocery entrance of the business and place them in her shopping cart. According to the report, after selecting the cards, Jones proceeded to the general merchandise exit of the store, where she passed all points of purchase and proceeded out of the exit.

Jones was stopped by employees after she had exited the store and she was asked to proceed back into the store and to the loss prevention center and she complied. According to the report, Jones said she was looking to see if a friend of hers was working and had intentions of returning inside to pay.

After being read her rights, the report states that Jones admitted to walking past all final points of purchase, but still said she was just looking for her friend. She stated that she had done this on several previous occasions and had all intention of turning back to purchase the items in her cart.

The items in her cart included a variety of items, from alcohol to the cards, and total $136.82 in value. Jones was arrested for retail theft and transported to the Bradford County jail.

PAID OBITUARY

in domestic incident

BY TRACY LEE TATE
Telegraph-Times-Monitor

A Starke man was arrested for aggravated battery by police on May 12 after throwing a skillet at his domestic partner during an argument.

Officer Courtney B. Personette was dispatched to Shands at Starke in reference to a battery. According to a report, she made contact with the victim, who stated he was just involved in a physical altercation with his live-in boyfriend Jeremy Foster at their residence. The victim said he had been awakened by Foster yelling at him in reference to a message on his phone from another male. He said he went to the bathroom to get away from the situation and when he came back out of the bathroom he was struck in the left shoulder by a skillet thrown by Foster.

The victim then said Foster exited the residence and went down the road. The victim said he also left the residence and went to a friend's house, then to the hospital to have his shoulder x-rayed because it was really painful.

The victim stated he wanted to press charges against Foster. The report notes that this incident was not the first domestic violence incident involving the two individuals.

After being read his rights, Foster admitted to questioning the victim about "random guys" texting his phone and that the victim had entered the bathroom. Foster said he then left the residence and never threw anything at the victim or hit him with anything.

Foster was arrested for aggravated battery and transported to the Bradford County jail.

Football teams to conclude spring with May 17 games

BY CLIFF SMELLEY
Telegraph Staff Writer

For approximately four weeks, football players at Bradford, Keystone Heights and Union County high schools have been getting a jump start on the 2018 season. Now, they get to block and tackle players from other teams as all three teams will play games on Thursday, May 17, at 7 p.m.

Bradford will travel to play Lake Weir, while Keystone will host Union and P.K. Yonge. The jamboree at KHHS will have the teams playing each other for two quarters, though Keystone Head Coach Dickinson said the times of the quarters could vary. The game will start with Keystone playing P.K. Yonge, followed by Union playing P.K. Yonge. Keystone and Union will then play each other.

Though participating in spring practices is old hat for all three head coaches, it's a bit of a different feeling this year for Bradford Head Coach Brian Tomlinson. Tomlinson, who was an assistant at Union, took the reins of the Bradford program last year, but he didn't work with the team for a full spring due to a late hire and didn't even have a full staff in place in the spring.

Therefore, it has been exciting to start this year's spring practices from day one with an intact staff and a group of players eager to build upon last year's success of reaching the region finals.

"The kids are all ready to go," Tomlinson said. "They were chomping at the bit."

Last year's success has led to new kids coming out for football, with Tomlinson saying, "There are some kids out here I didn't even know went to school here."

In all seriousness, an average of 70 (current ninth- through 11th-graders) have been attending practices, which is impressive considering 22 players from last season are graduating.

It's certainly a far cry from last spring. Tomlinson said the Tornados probably had half the number they have now.

"I think we're probably ahead of where I wanted to be numbers-wise and 1 million times ahead of last year," Tomlinson said.

Though Tomlinson feels good about the number of returning players in skill positions, he and coaches are focusing on three areas where the need is great because of graduating seniors.

"Replacing the quarterback, replacing four of five on the offensive line and replacing every linebacker — that's probably our big three right now," Tomlinson said.

Returning players such as defensive lineman Jaquez Mosley and running back Jeremiah Vaughn, who will both be seniors, have stepped up into leadership roles this spring, which surely was no surprise to Tomlinson. However, the coach has also seen newcomers like junior Malik Hankerson try to make their marks as well.

"He was a JV guy last year," Tomlinson said of Hankerson, but he's come out here this year trying to be a leader."

Every coach wants to win every game played, but in regard to the spring game, the overall goal is to use it as just another part of the learning process in preparation for fall.

"Just getting better," Tomlinson said when asked what his goal was for the game. "We have guys in new spots and new players."

Indians facing lack of depth again

Approximately 60, including incoming freshmen, have been participating in Keystone practices, but Dickinson anticipates the varsity team consisting of numbers only in the mid-20s.

The coach said he's seen an increase in the core group of younger players, but at the varsity level, it's going to be about identifying those players who can fill multiple spots.

"We're going to have a lot of guys playing both ways," Dickinson said. "For us, again, the key's going to be getting in great shape."

The strength of the team, despite lack of depth, should be the offensive line, which returns all five starters from last year.

"Offensive line I feel good about," Dickinson said. "We should be ahead of the game in knowing what to do. I thought last year they blocked well, so we're hoping for even more improvement there."

Positions he and his staff are really focusing on are quarterback and running back. Adrien Ciena, who was last year's starting quarterback, transferred to Bradford, while the backfield lost running backs Alex Cruz and Blake Sanders to graduation.

With Ty Friedlin returning to the backfield, Dickinson said he probably has 5-6 who can play the tailback and fullback positions.

Linebacker is also another area coaches are looking at. Some kids who are getting looks there could end up helping on the defensive line, which right now basically consists of the players who also play offensive line.

"We're trying to find out who can play there," Dickinson said of the linebacker positions. "We've got some guys playing there that might play there in the spring. They might become linemen, but we're giving them a chance to see if they can play linebacker."

A lot of time this spring is being devoted to the fundamentals of the Wing-T offense, which the Indians mainly ran last season.

"We spend a lot of time on taking the correct steps," Dickinson said. "Everybody's got to do their steps correctly because a lot of the plays you run in that type offense come off of each other. You've got three or four plays that look the same — you just might hand off to a different guy."

As for the jamboree, it's a chance for Dickinson and his staff to evaluate if they're making the best use of their personnel.

"I just want to see where we're at and make sure we work on what we need to work on and make sure we've got people in the right positions," Dickinson said.

Tigers see increase in numbers

Union Head Coach Ronny

Bradford Head Coach Brian Tomlinson gives some pointers to quarterback Adrien Ciena.

Pruitt said practices have consisted of approximately 70 players, which includes incoming freshmen. The coach said it's the most players the program's consisted of in four years or so.

Right: Keystone's Andrew Cox drops back to pass.

"The numbers are better than they've been in a long, long time," Pruitt said. "We've got a lot of young kids, but we've got some talent in spots."

Pruitt said what's stood out to him this spring is how many returning players have benefitted from their work in the weight room as well as just going through their normal maturation process.

"A lot of these guys are starting to grow into their bodies and are getting stronger, too," Pruitt said. "A lot of them are sprouting up. A lot of them have grown an inch or two vertically since last year."

He's impressed with the strength of such returning players as lineman John Manning, tight end/linebacker Allan McClellon, safety/running back Hosea Robinson and lineman Agelu Nunu, who was the state runner-up in the heavyweight class at the state weightlifting finals.

"He can bench a house," Pruitt said of Nunu.

Union gets a boost this spring with the return of some players who were injured last season, such as defensive end Tyler and the victim. According to the report, he was advised of several unauthorized transactions completed on the victim's debit card. The transactions totaled nine successful and 28 attempted transactions. The victim stated that she believed the card had been taken by her daughter, Tamara Sprinkle, when she had visited her mother's residence.

During the course of the investigation, Riles obtained security video from the locations where transactions had been attempted and obtained a subpoena from the Bradford County State Attorney's Office to assist in gathering this film footage.

According to the arrest report, Sprinkle called Riles on February 12 and said she would like to speak with him in regard to the fraud and would contact him the next day to arrange for a meeting. She also is reported to have admitted using her mother's card without permission and said she had intentions of paying the money back to the bank.

According to the report, Sprinkle was interviewed on Feb. 13 and read her Miranda rights. She is reported to have said she took the card from her mother's residence on Feb. 9 because she had relapsed on heroin and needed the money for drugs. She said part of the money was wired to a friend and the rest used to buy narcotics.

Sprinkle said she returned the card to her mother's residence after the ATM transactions, but did not let her mother know she had used the card. She stated that she got into an argument with her mother and then took the card a second time. She said she could not remember the PIN number this time, so she used it as a credit card to make purchases, including cigarettes and gas. She stated that she eventually returned the card to her mother and told her about the charges she had made.

On April 20, Riles received a DVD from the TD Bank Fraud department which contained video footage taken from the walk-up ATM. The video showed Sprinkle walking up to the ATM and using the card. She was arrested on May 11.

New BHS basketball coach brings 20 years of experience

UCHS graduate Sampson Jackson will join Brent Roberts' staff as assistant and head JV coach

BY CLIFF SMELLEY
Telegraph Staff Writer

He retired and moved from his home state of Kentucky to Florida, but Brent Roberts could not stay away from the sport he loves to coach. Now, after almost 20 years since he was last a head coach, Roberts is ready to take the reins of a program once again after being hired as Bradford High School's new varsity boys' basketball coach.

Roberts, either as a head coach or as an assistant, has 20 years' experience — most of it in Kentucky — and has been a part of six district championships, three regional championships and three state tournament appearances. In his return to coaching this past season, he was an assistant at Jacksonville's Creekside High School, which won district and regional titles en route to finishing as the Class 8A state runner-up.

Creekside played in the Lake Area McDonald's-Kiwanis of Starke Holiday Tournament, which is hosted by BHS annually. Roberts was impressed with what he saw there and then impressed when he decided to learn more about BHS athletics.

"I'm real happy to be here," said Roberts, who's also been working as a paraprofessional in Creekside's ESE department. "It reminds me of several of the coaching jobs I had in Louisville in terms of a lot of community support. I was at Creekside this past year, and we came for the Bradford holiday tournament. The atmosphere was very impressive. It just seemed like a real nice, community type school. That's number one.

"Number two, I did a little research. They've had good athletes and good athletic programs here. That's definitely a plus when you're looking for a coaching job, especially when you're basically coming out of retirement to do it again."

Bradford Athletic Director Lamar Waters said Roberts' experience was the number-one thing that stood out. That includes a stint as the head coach at Louisville's Fern Creek Traditional High School from 1995 until 1999. Roberts said Fern Creek is one of the better basketball programs in Kentucky, but it wasn't when he took over. The program hadn't had a winning season since 1984, but it experienced three under Roberts. Fern Creek was ranked last among Louisville public schools in terms of wins and losses, but vaulted into the top 20 after Roberts had been there two years. The program eventually reached the top 10 in Louisville and top-15 status for the whole state.

"Turning a program that was 3-19 or whatever they were over there into a consistent top-20 program in the state of Kentucky, where there's only one classification, certainly pops out at you, to start with," Waters said.

Roberts said building a program is an exciting part of coaching, but added that at Bradford, he's not walking into

A passion for basketball

BY CLIFF SMELLEY
Telegraph Staff Writer

Justin Powell is one of the nation's top basketball prospects in the Class of 2020. He's not a Bradford High School student, but he is making an indirect impact on that school's boys' basketball program with the hiring of Brent Roberts as head coach.

From 1999 until 2017, Roberts had been out of coaching. However, he did work as a personal shooting coach. It was the experience of working with Powell, a guard who is transferring from Louisville's Trinity High School to Florida's Montverde Academy, that led Roberts to get back into coaching a team as an assistant at Jacksonville's Creekside High School last season.

"I stared working with one of the premier high school players in Louisville," Roberts said. "After working with him, it really renewed that passion of what I like to do, which is teach the game of basketball."

Roberts' wife, Lilianna, gets some credit, too, for him ending up at BHS. It was her desire to live in warmer weather that brought the couple from Kentucky to Florida.

Now, Roberts is preparing for his third stint as a head coach. What excites him the most is the chance to pass on what he knows.

"It's coming in and putting in your ideas," Roberts said. "You've got all this basketball knowledge, all these Xs and Os. Everything looks great on paper, but the exciting part is seeing how it fits with the players that you have and watching everything kind of develop out on the floor. If it doesn't mesh exactly right, then you make some changes."

Roberts began gaining his basketball knowledge as a player. He was a shooting guard at Louisville's Moore High School, earning All-State status as a senior. He was also first-team All-7th Region and 27th District selections and was a top-10 scorer among Louisville players with a 20.3 points-per-game average.

"My coach in high school always called me a light shooter, which meant as soon as it was daylight, I'd shoot the ball," Roberts said. "I never was accused of playing much defense."

Roberts said the irony is that as a coach, he places an emphasis on the defensive end of the game.

After high school, Roberts went to Hannover College in Indiana. He played one year before devoting his full attention to his studies.

"I was a pre-med student," Roberts said. "Basically, it was time to start studying."

Roberts said he wasn't convinced going on to medical school was in his future, so after graduation, he got a job working in a hospital laboratory. As he put it, he began to inch his way back into basketball.

"I did some volunteer assisting in basketball," Roberts said. "The next thing I know, I'm on a staff. It kind of took off from there."

He got to work as an assistant at such schools as his alma mater and Louisville Male. Roberts said both schools were perennial basketball powers in the 1980s and 1990s. Louisville Male produced Darrell Griffith (aka Dr. Dunkenstein), who played in the NBA after helping the University of Louisville win its first national championship.

"Louisville basketball's turned out a lot of professional players," Roberts said, adding, "I've coached with some of the best coaches in Kentucky."

Roberts said the sport is really no different in Kentucky than it is in Florida. Schools in each state consist of excellent athletes. What was different in regard to his experience coaching in Kentucky was that Louisville consists of 18-19 high schools within a 45-50-mile radius.

"Every game is a grind," Roberts said.

A grind is what Roberts wants opposing teams to experience when they play Bradford. He said his teams will play with a "good, clean toughness."

"We basically want the perception that when you come to Bradford, you're going to be in for a war, a good, clean war," Roberts said, adding, "We want teams to not want to come play us."

Roberts said he also wants his teams to play under control and recognize the difference between a good shot and a bad shot.

"We're not going to be afraid to shoot," he said, "but we're going to understand the difference between points and possession."

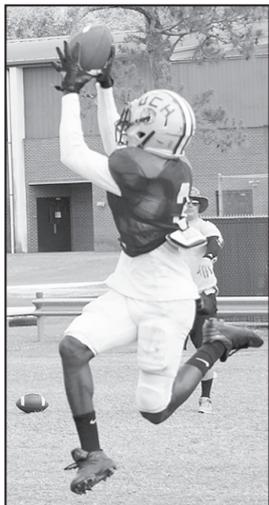

As for his overall goals at BHS, Roberts said it's to get the players to play to their best of their abilities, while also getting them to learn from their losses, which will help them in basketball and life.

"We want to win as many games as we can and learn from the losses — how to make adjustments and go on. In the big picture, how do we use that for life? I want the kids to understand the adversity builds the endurance, which builds the patience, which leads to hope. With hope, there's a solution to whatever problem you have in life.

"That's my responsibility — to wrap basketball up into all of that."

Alexander, lineman J.B. Godwin and fullback/linebacker Trevor Rogers.

One position that's being evaluated closely this spring is quarterback as the Tigers lost Brian Scott and Dawson Johns to graduation.

The offensive line is also getting looked at heavily, but not so much because coaches are trying to figure out who can play there. It's because the Tigers are continuing to move away from the spread offense and toward the Wing-T.

"We're focusing on the offensive line, kind of reprogramming their blocking," Pruitt said. "When you run the spread, it's more upright. The Wing-T's a whole lot harder to coach because everything is on angled steps, aiming points and hand placement."

Pruitt said when the Tigers play in the jamboree in Keystone, he wants to see players show the coaches they know how to do what is being asked of them and put themselves in the best positions to make plays.

"Just play assignment football," Pruitt said. "Make sure they're blocking the right person and taking the right angles and just playing assignment football. Whether you win the battle or not, make sure you're in the position to win the battle."

The Weekly Paw Print:

Have you ever wondered why small dogs live longer? New research suggests life expectancy is determined during the early stages of development.

The effects of aging are related to the formation of free radicals created by your pet's metabolism. These free radicals are molecules that cause damage to the cell and it's DNA. Cellular damage leads to disease and cancers. Fortunately, the body has a defense mechanism-antioxidants. Antioxidants roam the body, stopping free radicals from damaging cells. Vitamin E and vitamin C are good examples of antioxidants.

Research shows that when dogs are adults there is no proportional difference in the production of free radicals between small and large breeds. There was however, a significant difference found in growing puppies of different breed sizes. Smaller breed puppies produced less free radicals during growth than large breed puppies. The damage done to cells during growth creates the difference in life expectancy. Less damage equals longer life span.

We can counter balance these effects by feeding diets that are boosted with appropriate antioxidants while puppies are growing throughout their life. Selecting the best diet for your puppy is the best way to increase the time you will have to spend with them.

Tigers' season ends with 8-0 loss

Matthew Starling (right) successfully steals second base in the second inning.

BY CLIFF SMELLEY
Telegraph Staff Writer

Lafayette pitchers Chi Chi Purcell and Dylan Mock limited the Union County High School baseball team to three hits as the Hornets shut out the Tigers 8-0 in a Region 3-1A semifinal game on May 9 in Lake Butler.

Purcell, who started, gave up one hit through five innings as the Hornets (15-8) earned the right to play Madison County for the Region 3 championship this past Tuesday night.

Union Head Coach Boo Mullins said Purcell was just too much for his team, which is young overall, consisting of players who have yet to experience the gains of weight training and physical maturation. Four of the Tigers' starting nine are freshmen.

"The Purcell kid's good," Mullins said. "With our lack of strength and our age, we just couldn't catch up to his fastball."

Union (18-9) actually had its chances to score, putting seven on base by drawing walks. That included loading the bases with one out in the bottom of the sixth when the score was 5-0.

Defensively, the Tigers committed four errors.

Union had some hard luck in that Caden Cox, who was slated to start on the mound, came down with a stomach bug and didn't play. Once Garrett Mullins moved from shortstop to relieve starting pitcher Tripp Davis, almost every infielder wasn't playing in his usual spot.

Still, Mullins couldn't fault his team's effort overall.

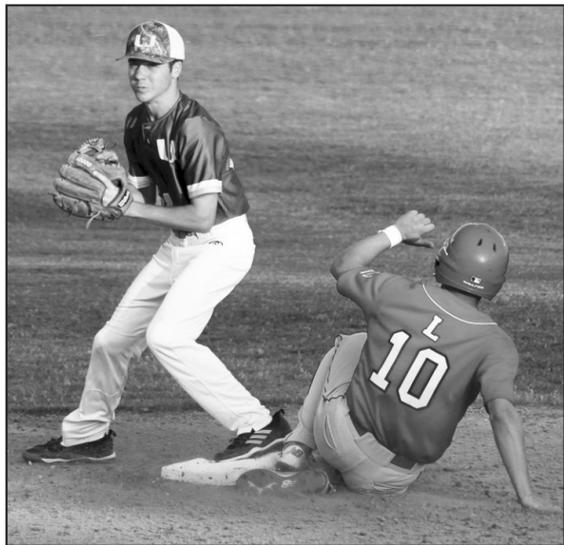

"This is the worst game we've played this year, and it wasn't out of hand until the seventh inning," he said.

Lafayette loaded the bases with no outs in the top of the third when Kerby Hanson singled, Jaxson Beach was hit by a pitch and Holden Richardson reached on an error. Garrett Mullins struck Mock out for the inning's first out, but Caleb Land and Purcell hit back-to-back doubles to drive in four runs.

The bottom of the fifth got off to a good start for the Tigers when Braxton Dukes drew a leadoff walk and advanced to second on Mullins' ground out. Jake Worthington then hit a double, with Dukes holding up at third. Purcell then recorded a strikeout of Skyler Shatto before forcing Trace Croft to ground out to first to end the inning.

Lafayette's Tyler Severance reached on an error to lead off the top of the sixth. He advanced to second on an error and scored when Hanson ground into a fielder's choice.

The Tigers then had their best opportunity to score when they loaded the bases in the bottom of the sixth. Whip Davis drew a leadoff walk, but was put out at second when Tripp Davis ground into a fielder's choice. With Tripp Davis on first, Trevor Rogers singled. Matthew Starling then drew a walk. Mock, who relieved Purcell to start the inning, struck out Dukes for the second out before fielding a ground ball by Mullins for the third out.

Lafayette added three more runs in the seventh. The Hornets loaded the bases with two outs on singles by Richardson and Land and a walk drawn by Joseph Perry. Austin Severance was hit by a pitch to force a run in. Christopher Crow drove in another run on single, with Perry scoring on an error on the same play to make the final score 8-0.

Bradford middle schoolers compete at state

Four Bradford Middle School boys' track and field athletes competed at the May 12 Florida Youth Running Association Middle School State Championship in Bradenton. Pictured (l-r) are Gavin Cook, Cecil Carway, Ronnie Ellis and Jaleal Thomas, who competed in the 4x100m relay, finishing 17th with a time of 48.69. Also, Ellis competed in the shot put, placing 22nd with a distance of 38-0.5.

Coach Isaiah Jamison (seated) is pictured with the Bradford Middle School girls' 4x100m relay team of (l-r) Bernaria Nichols, Aniyah Carroll, Caloni Lane and Andrea Lee. The team qualified for the Florida Youth Running Association Middle School State Championship in Bradenton and placed 16th with a time of 53.32.

a scenario where a program has had little success.

"Bradford has won three district titles in a row, so the coaches prior to me knew what they were doing," Roberts said. "They did a great job. It's my job to take (the Tornadoes) maybe one more step."

Waters also likes the fact that Roberts has been an administrator. He was assistant principal at Stuart Middle School in Louisville from 2000 until 2015.

"The fact that he was a principal for 15 years really kind of made you feel like whatever situation he's going to have to deal with, he can handle it," Waters said. "He's been there."

Roberts' coaching timeline includes one stint in Indiana at Providence High School as a head coach (1990-93), but the rest of his experience prior to retirement was in Louisville: assistant at Christian Academy of Louisville (1984-85), assistant at Southwest Christian High School (1985-86), assistant at Louisville Male Traditional High School (1987-89), assistant at Moore High School (1993-94) and finally at Fern Creek, first as an assistant (1994-95) before becoming head coach.

He and his wife, Lillian, have two daughters. One works in the accounting department for a Louisville flooring company, while the other recently graduated from Auburn University and will open a veterinary practice in Louisville.

UCHS grad Jackson to be JV coach

Assisting Roberts and taking control of the junior varsity program is Sampson Jackson, who is no stranger to the area. Jackson is a 2008 Union County High School graduate and has worked with some Bradford student-athletes through Advantage Point Performance, his nonprofit training program.

"Most of our kids know him already," Waters said. "He's worked with some of them. There's a little bit of familiarity with him. His basketball knowledge is tremendous."

Waters said Jackson, who applied for the varsity job, was rated very highly by the committee that reviewed applicants, so bringing him and Roberts on board is a "win-win" for BHS.

Jackson, who was the head JV coach and varsity assistant at Union from 2012 until 2015, said, "I'm excited to be here."

He's been to the biggest stage in high school basketball, with the Union varsity team advancing to the Final Four in 2012 and 2013. That's good experience to bring to a program, but Jackson feels his experience as a one-on-one trainer through Advantage Point Performance will be beneficial as well.

"One of the biggest advantages it gives me is being able to see individual abilities talent-wise," Jackson said.

Jackson also looks forward to learning from the Tornadoes' new varsity head coach.

"I think Coach Brent has a lot to offer as far as the game of basketball," Jackson said.

Braxton Dukes takes a lead at third in the bottom of the fifth.

Coral Springs Charter (28-2) will play Hardee (20-12) in the other semifinal game, which will be played at the same time.

The two winners will play for the championship on Sunday, May 20, at 12:35 p.m.

It has been quite a run for the Indians, who played on the road in every round of the regional playoffs.

"I honestly think we play better on the road," Story said. "Both of our pitchers like when we bat first. They don't like pitching first."

Marquart would've loved to have been at home at some point in the playoffs, but once the postseason starts, you're happy just to be playing.

"We'll play anywhere right now," Marquart said. "Vero Beach would be a great place to go to now."

The host Leopards (25-4) actually put runs on the board first. Madyson Lamp led off the bottom of the second with a home run, followed by Janea Mobley reaching on a double. Mobley moved to third on Sammi Burnette's sacrifice bunt before scoring on Nakayla Roberts' single to center field.

Keystone cut Hernando's lead to 2-1 in the third. Ashleigh Jennings reached on a bunt single and advanced to second on Ashton Ludwig's sacrifice bunt. Jennings then scored on Story's double to left field.

Hernando's three hits in the second were all it would get off of Moncrief, a senior, who gave up no walks in the three innings she pitched. She came out especially strong in the third before giving way to Eatmon, recording three outs on five pitches.

"It was a good combination of both of them," Marquart said of her two pitchers.

The Leopards actually got their first two batters on in the bottom of the fourth against Eatmon. Lamp drew a leadoff walk, while Mobley reached on an error. Eatmon then struck out the next three batters to get out of the inning.

"Daelynn is amazing," Story said. "She has so much fight. She wants to honestly destroy everyone who hits against her. She wants to be the best. She wants to prove to you that she's better than you."

Eatmon had to pitch her way out of a jam in the fifth as she put the first two batters on with walks. After a strikeout and a ground out, the Indians elected to intentionally walk Lamp, which loaded the bases. Eatmon then forced Mobley to fly out to Madison Heskett in right field.

"Almost everything was working," said Eatmon, who also earned the win in the Region 2 semifinals against Santa Fe. "I was really in the zone. I felt prepared, and my whole defense just had my back."

Still, the Leopards held the lead going into the final inning. Makayla Smith popped up to lead off the top of the seventh, but Lexi Northway then reached on a hit that arced over third base and dropped into shallow left field for a double.

"The fact that she stretched that into a double was game-changing," Story said.

Jennings then reached on an error on a grounder she hit to pitcher Ali Shenefield. That set the stage for Story. She took a ball on the first pitch and fouled off the second before delivering what would be the game winner on a ground ball past the second baseman.

Story, who finished the game 3-for-4, said she was looking for a pitch that was somewhere in the middle of the zone because she didn't want to hit it up in the air.

"I was just praying I was going to get it down in the dirt and that hopefully it would find its way through," she said.

Her prayer was answered. "It was amazing," Eatmon said. "I was so happy, jumping up and down."

The pitcher then had to enter the circle and record three more outs. She fielded a ground ball for the first out before shortstop Molly Crawford snagged a low line drive just off the dirt for the second out. Ludwig, who was playing second base, fielded a ground ball for the final out.

Thus the celebration began, and it was OK for the players to resume their talk about state. They made it.

"It's such a great feeling," Marquart said. "I never give up on these girls; they never give up on themselves."

previous evening. He stated that he had seen a black male riding a bicycle in the neighborhood recently, that he did not believe lived in the area. A canvas of nearby residents did not turn up any corroborating reports.

On May 11, Deputy Bradley Witt began an investigation and located a possible match for the stolen GPS at Lending Bear Pawn in Starke. The serial number of the unit was longer than that given by the victim, so Witt had to confirm that the item was the stolen GPS by asking the victim for a confirmation of the number. While at the pawn shop, he was told that the item had been pawned by Daronte Corbitt.

According to the report, a records check indicated that Corbitt has an outstanding warrant in Union County for violation of probation on a charge of grand theft. Deputy J. Ottomeyer went to the last known address for Corbitt and arrested him on the warrant.

When Ottomeyer brought Corbitt in to the sheriff's office, Witt interviewed him. According to the report, Corbitt was read his rights and admitted to pawning the GPS, but said he did not know that it was stolen and that it had been given to him by someone else. Corbitt eventually admitted to both the theft and the pawning of the item. He was asked the location he had stolen it from and he gave a detailed description of the location.

The serial number of the GPS was confirmed with additional information from the victim and a hold was placed on the item at Lending Bear. In addition to the Union County warrant, Corbitt was also charged with burglary of a conveyance, grand theft and false verification to a pawnbroker.

"We couldn't catch, and we couldn't hit," Head Coach Mullins said, adding, "You've got to tip your hat to (Lafayette). They're just better."

It was the ending to a season in which Mullins said he saw his team grow so much. That makes the coach eager to see what his players accomplish in the coming years as they benefit from this year's experience and mature physically as players.

"They're really babies, but they've grown up so much," Mullins said. "This playoff experience was critical for them. Next year, when we get this far, they won't be so nervous. Plus, every one of them is going to weigh 15 pounds more. They're going to run faster, they're going to hit it farther and they're going to throw it harder."
