PANAMA CITY BEACH — After hours of watching and waiting, Subtropical Storm Alberto finally made landfall in Laguna Beach about 4 p.m. Monday, bringing with it a last lashing of wind as it pulled ashore.

The storm's track yo-yoed back and forth during the weekend and into Monday, swinging wildly from potential landfall in Mobile, to the Destin/Fort Walton Beach area, to Panama City, then back west again. In the end, the storm would end its long, meandering trek through the Gulf of Mexico in the Laguna Beach neighborhood either ahead of or behind schedule, depending on who you asked.

Winds howled through the high-rise condos along Front Beach Road, palm fronds spinning across the road and cars rocking precariously in their parking spots.

For residents who spent Sunday and much of Monday morning wondering just when the

Trump-Kim summit expectations raised

By Catherine Lucey, Matthew Lee, Hyung-Jin Kim and Foster Klug
The Associated Press

A U.S. team was in North Korea to plan a summit with North Korean leader Kim Jong Un, according to President Donald Trump, raising expectations that the on-off-on meeting would indeed take place.

Both the State Department and South Korea's Foreign Ministry said the American and North Korean officials have been engaged in talks at the Korean village of Panmunjom, which straddles the border inside the Demilitarized Zone, or DMZ. The border can be crossed simply by stepping across a painted line, but moving beyond several

READER FEEDBACK

As Alberto spun its way though the region over the holiday weekend, the News Herald regularly posted Facebook Live videos and updates about the storm, which downed some trees, caused double red flags to fly and in general put a damper on local festivities. Here is what some people had to say about the first tropical weather of the year.

Barrett Crispen Brown: What is so hard to understand about double red flags and staying out of the water?
Scott Elder: Of course theres epic surf when im not in town
Susan Ezell: Get out of the water, they need to enforce it
Lyna Hickman:I love when the water is churned up! It is beautiful!
Todd Austin: or everyone is enjoying the regions "indoor" entertainment?
Amy Leigh: Saw Jim Cantore getting off a flight today at the airport!
Bobbie Cayce: Just enough stormy weather to keep me drowsy all day.
Cora Busch: We live on a canal near Bailey bridge, hasn't been bad at all. Hasn't even breached the sea wall.
Lisa Shockley: Ah. It's rain I hear
Sandi Arnett: Wow that surf is beautiful.
David Bulger Sr.: We Can hear everything you're saying not a hurricane. Go home stop scaring the tourist.
William Spencer Blanks Jr.: great fishing day!
Beach Kristal: This storm is a joke.. It's just a little rain and a little wind..what a joke. Alberto go home and come back when you gain some muscal
Lynde Gibbs: Any bets as to whether they'll have to close the bridge?
Linda Skidmore: Hope that weather is short-lived. Stay safe
Richard Weber: Double Red Flags and these numskulls are in the Gulf. Where are the police??????
Stephanie Gretchen Gibson: It's sad that people don't follow the flags. They are there for a reason!
Our photographers have been at every high school graduation this past week taking pictures to run on both A2 of the newspapers and in photogalleries online to create more opportunities to see someone you know. An album from the Rutherford graduation drew praise online.

footsteps into the North at Panmunjom would be rare for U.S. officials.

Trump withdrew from a planned June 12 Singapore summit with Kim last Thursday, but quickly announced it could still happen. His tweet Sunday afternoon, which offered praise for the longtime U.S. adversary, was the latest signal that his concerns about the North's stance toward the summit had been allayed.

"Our United States team has arrived in North Korea to make arrangements for the Summit between Kim Jong Un and myself," he tweeted Sunday. "I truly believe North Korea has brilliant potential and will be a great economic and financial Nation one day. Kim Jong Un agrees with me on this. It will happen!"

South Korean President Moon Jae-in gave details about his surprise meeting Saturday with Kim in Panmunjom, saying Kim had committed to sitting down with Trump and to a "complete denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula."

U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo tapped veteran American diplomat Sung Kim, the U.S. ambassador to the Philippines, to handle pre-summit negotiations. On a separate but complementary track was the CIA team Pompeo set up last year when he headed the spy agency. And on a third track was a White House logistical group sent to Singapore on Sunday to prepare in case the summit takes place. It was led by Joe Hagin, White House deputy chief of staff for operations.

South Korean President Moon Jae-in writes on a visitor's book as North Korean leader Kim Jong Un, left, stands at the northern side of Panmunjom, Saturday in North Korea. [SOUTH KOREA PRESIDENTIAL BLUE HOUSE VIA AP]

The Korean leaders' second summit in a month saw bear hugs and broad smiles. But their quickly arranged meeting appeared to highlight a sense of urgency on both sides of the world's most heavily armed border.

The talks, which Moon said Kim requested, capped a whirlwind 24 hours of diplomatic back and forth. They allowed Moon to push for a U.S.-North Korean summit, which he sees as the best way to ease the animosity that had some fearing a war last year.

Kim may see a meeting with Trump as necessary to easing pressure from crushing sanctions and to winning security assurances in a region surrounded by enemies.

Moon told reporters that Kim said he's willing to cooperate to end confrontation and work toward peace for the sake of the successful summit with Trump.

Moon said he told Kim that Trump has a "firm resolve" to end hostile relations with North Korea and initiate economic cooperation if Kim implements "complete denuclearization."

"What Kim is unclear about is that he has concerns about whether his country can surely trust the United States over its promise to end hostile relations (with North Korea) and provide a security guarantee if they do denuclearization," Moon said.

"During the South Korea-U.S. summit, President Trump said the U.S. is willing to clearly put an end to hostile relations (between the U.S. and North Korea) and help (the North) achieve economic prosperity if North Korea conducts denuclearization," he said.

Kim, in a dispatch issued by the North's state-run news service earlier Sunday, "expressed his fixed will" on a North Korea-U.S. summit.

During Saturday's inter-Korean summit, the Korean leaders agreed to "positively cooperate with each other as ever to improve (North Korea)-U.S. relations and establish (a) mechanism for permanent and durable peace."

They agreed to have their top officials meet again June 1. Moon said military generals and Red Cross officials from the Koreas will also meet separately to discuss how to ease military tensions and resume reunions of families separated by the 1950-53 Korean War.

storm would arrive, it was its parting shot, the back end of the storm, that would be the most noticeable, with 30 mph winds and 40 mph gusts recorded at the Panama City Marina on Monday afternoon. The wind brought pockets of power outages to Bay County, with more than 5,000 customers without power at some points, according to the Gulf Power outage map. The largest swath, about 2,000 customers, were recorded in the Parker and Callaway area. The Cove neighborhood also was hit hard, the sprawling live oaks that normally shelter residents from the sun becoming a liability in all the bluster.

By 5 p.m. Monday, preliminary rain totals for Panama City was about 1.75 inches, according to the National Weather Service, with much of Panama City Beach seeing between 2 and 3 inches, and isolated pockets of up to 4 inches.

Hitting the roads Monday morning in a patrol Charger that gets a little "squirrelly" in rainy conditions, Lt. Andy Husar with the Bay County Sheriff's Office said he was grateful that, for the most part, people were staying off the roads. During a storm, deputies mostly roam the county, making sure roads aren't underwater, checking on disabled vehicles and securing downed power lines. Though the storm never was going to be one for the history books, law enforcement was out in force for the holiday, and if anyone questions the response, Husar points to Hurricane Ivan.

"I always refer back to Ivan," Husar said. "We were supposed to get rain and all those tornadoes spawned. You just never know what the weather will do. You've got to be prepared for the unknown."

Husar was patrolling around Callaway when the tornadoes began forming during Ivan and had a near miss when the roof off a storage unit was ripped off and hurled at his cruiser.

"When all those twisters started touching down, that was a bad feeling," Husar said.

Throughout the weekend, The Weather Channel and other national news outlets had a robust presence on the Beach, broadcasting from several locations. Jim Cantore, who left Panama City Beach empty-handed a few weeks ago when a potential storm fizzled out in the Gulf, was even back in town to cover his first named system of the season.

With several days still to go until the official start of hurricane season, which commences June 1, Husar wasn't sure what to think about the early bird Alberto while watching the impressive surf kicked up along the beach, his uniform, and socks, soaking through in the pelting rain.

"It's not a good sign, getting hit by a storm before hurricane season," he conceded.

Prepare your home for severe weather

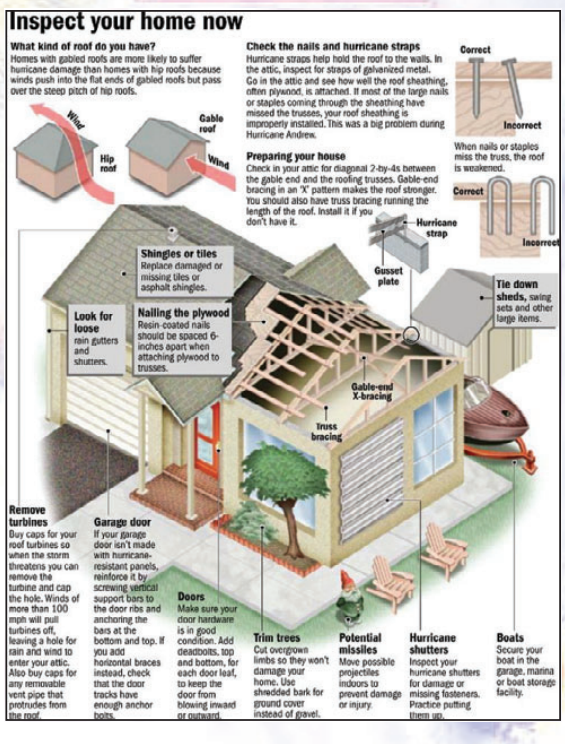
June 1, 2018 marks the first day of Hurricane Season and time to prepare your home for possible severe weather that could include wind damage, flooding and tornados. Your home is your largest investment so protecting it from a natural disaster is important.



Inspect your home starting with the roof because this is the largest potential opening on your home. You want to make sure that all the shingles are secure and none are cracked or missing. Your safety is the most important thing so if you do not feel comfortable or safe getting on your roof, call a licensed Roofing Company to come to your house and inspect the roof…Do not put yourself in an unsafe situation.

Anchor / secure carports, porches or any structure that is attached to your home because wind can get underneath an open structure like this and tear a hole in your house. Tie down any sheds and garages that you have as well.

Make sure you have adequate window protection for your home and replace any shutters or plywood that may need to be replaced.

Move items in your yard that could possibly become projectiles and cause damage to your home or injury to you and your family.

Trim the trees and cut any dead limbs and branches throughout your yard to protect your home, sheds, cars, ect. from damage.

One still missing in Maryland flooding

By David McFadden
The Associated Press

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. — One man remained missing after flash flooding tore down historic Main Street in Ellicott City, Maryland, and left a community heartbroken at seeing severe damage less than two years after another devastating flood.

Howard County Executive Allan Kittleman said Monday morning that his priorities are finding the missing man and assessing the condition of buildings that house shops, restaurants and families.

"We're certainly making every effort to locate that individual," he said.

Howard County police identified him Monday as 39-year-old Severn resident Eddison Hermond, an active member of the Army National Guard.

Hermond was reported missing to police about 12:30 a.m. Monday, but has not been seen since about 5:20 p.m. at the height of the flooding, when raging, brown waters ripped through the town.

The area remained blocked off Monday, even to residents and business owners, as Kittleman surveyed the debris.

"If you look at the devastation and the damage, I would certainly say it's worse than 2016," he said. "We've had areas that were not even damaged at all two years ago terribly damaged this time."

Residents gather by a bridge Monday to look at cars left crumpled in one of the tributaries of the Patapsco River that burst its banks as it channeled through historic Main Street in Ellicott City, Md. Sunday's destructive flooding left the former mill town heartbroken as it had bounded back from another destructive storm less than two years ago. [DAVID MCFADDEN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

At a news conference Sunday night, Kittleman and Gov. Larry Hogan vowed to help people rebuild their lives again.

"We will be there for them as we were in 2016," Kittleman said.

Hogan promised "every bit of assistance we possibly can."

"They say this is a once every 1,000-year flood and we've had two of them in two years," Hogan said.

Sunday's flooding swept away parked cars in the city, which sits along the west bank of the Patapsco River, about 13 miles (20 kilometers) west of Baltimore.

Jessica Ur, a server at Pure Wine Cafe on the city's Main Street, told The Baltimore Sun that she watched as gushing waters swept three or four parked cars down the street.

"It's significantly higher than it was before," she told the newspaper, comparing the floodwaters to those of 2016.

Mike Muccilli, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Sterling, Virginia, said Sunday it was too early to make comparisons between the two floods. But he said both were devastating. In the July 2016 storm, Ellicott City received 6.6 inches (17 centimeters) of rain over a two- to three-hour period. On Sunday, the community received nearly 8 inches (20.32 centimeters) of rain over a six-hour period, but most of it fell during an intense, three-hour period, Muccilli said.

"In a normal heavy rain event, you wouldn't see this amount of flooding, where you see cars floating down the road," Muccilli said. "This was a true flash flood."

Some people reported hearing a blaring alarm during the flooding. Others said they gathered in the second story of a building and anxiously watched the seething waters. One sight during the flood: a handmade, white flag hung from an upper story of a Main Street building bearing the letters SOS.

"If you are trapped, we are coming," the Howard County Department of Fire and Rescue Services tweeted at one point.

Ellicott City has been rebuilding since the 2016 flooding damaged and destroyed businesses. Local officials recently said 96 percent of the businesses were back in operation and more than 20 new businesses had again opened in the Main Street area. Just two weeks ago, Hogan announced that the Federal Emergency Management Agency had awarded the state and county more than $1 million to pay for projects aimed at reducing the flood risk in areas around Main Street.

Some are already asking whether enough was done after the last flood to prevent a similar catastrophe. Hogan said temporary improvements were in place and more things were in the works to reduce the community's vulnerabilities. But he said big changes take time, and no one expected such a huge flood so soon after 2016.

Senator who freed Holt urges Venezuela dialogue

The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is urging engagement with Venezuela's socialist government after he traveled to the South American nation to bring home a Utah man jailed for two years without a trial.

Joshua Holt is scheduled to return to Salt Lake City on Monday night after receiving medical care and visiting President Donald Trump in Washington. He was released over the weekend following secret, backchannel negotiations between members of the U.S. Congress and Venezuelan officials.

Republican Sen. Bob Corker of Tennessee traveled to Caracas on Friday to seal the deal with President Nicolas Maduro that would bring Holt home.

Mexico train robberies rise as thieves block tracks

Freight train robbers in Mexico are increasingly blocking tracks or loosening rails to stop trains and steal the contents, causing increasing danger.

The federal rail agency said Monday the number of cargo thefts increased from 532 in the last quarter to 561 in the first quarter of 2018. While that's only a 5 percent increase, thieves are using more dangerous ways to stop the trains.

In the past they often triggered the brakes on freight cars or uncoupled them. But thieves blocked tracks with rocks or vehicles over 250 times, a 42 percent increase. And they loosened or stole rail clips or other pieces of track 222 times, almost triple the fourth quarter total.

Flight school employees accused of kidnapping

Two employees of a Northern California flight school were arrested on suspicion of kidnapping a student pilot and trying to send him back to his native China, authorities said.

Jonathan McConkey, general manager at IASCO Flight Training, and his assistant, Kelsi Hoser, were taken into custody May 25 at the municipal airport in Redding, police said.

Tianshu Shi, a trainee in the United States on a student visa, sustained minor injuries, investigators said.

McConkey and Hoser showed up at Shi's apartment the evening of May 24 and told him he was going to be "shipped back" to China the following morning, said Redding Police Corporal Rob Peterson.

NOBLESVILLE, IND.

Teacher who stopped attack says he had to save students

A suburban Indianapolis teacher who was shot while tackling and disarming a student inside his classroom said Monday that his swift decisions "were the only acceptable actions" to save his seventh-grade students.

Seaman is credited with stopping an armed student who entered his classroom at Noblesville West Middle School. Witnesses said the 29-year-old former college football player ran toward bullets as he tackled the student. Seaman was shot three times, according to his brother.

"I want to make it clear that my actions on that day, in my mind, were the only acceptable actions I could have done given the circumstances," Seaman said Monday.

Shooting survivors name baby after Vegas hockey player

A couple who survived the October shooting at a Las Vegas country music festival has named their newborn after one of the Vegas Golden Knights hockey players, saying the team brought positivity into their lives after the tragedy.

Lauren and Brad Sugars' girl was born May 18, the same day the Golden Knights beat the Winnipeg Jets to advance to the NHL Stanley Cup playoffs, KLAS-TV reported .

The Las Vegas couple originally had Austin in mind as their daughter's name, but decided to go with Riley — named after Knights player Reilly Smith.

Trump lauds the fallen on 'sacred soil'

By Catherine Lucey
The Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Va. — President Donald Trump paid a Memorial Day tribute at Arlington National Cemetery on Monday, saying he came to "sacred soil" to "honor the lives and deeds of America's greatest heroes."

The commander in chief, speaking before an audience of Cabinet members, military leaders, veterans and families assembled in the marble amphitheater near the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, said, "We mourn alongside their families and we strive to be worthy of their sacrifice."

Trump's somber tone contrasted with a self-promotional tweet earlier Monday in which he said fallen soldiers would be "very proud and happy at how well our country is doing today," citing the economy and low unemployment.

During his second Memorial Day trip to Arlington as president, Trump laid a wreath at the tomb before making his remarks. He recognized military figures, including Bob Dole, the former senator and 1996 Republican presidential nominee, who served in World War II. And he spoke warmly about a number of military families in attendance, including a young boy named Christian Jacobs, whose father is buried at Arlington.

Trump said the boy showed him his father's grave last year, calling it "a moment I will always remember."

Before heading to the hallowed grounds across the Potomac River from the nation's capital, Trump tweeted that "those who died for our great country would be very happy and proud at how well our country is doing today."

But the president then veered from the somber to the self-congratulatory in the tweet, citing what he said was the "Best economy in decades, lowest unemployment numbers for Blacks and Hispanics EVER (& women in 18years), rebuilding our Military and so much more. Nice!" The president also posted quotes in line with his criticism of the Justice Department and investigations into ties between his winning campaign and Russia.

He was criticized for his tone by a number of people, including a former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff during the Obama administration, retired Army Gen. Martin Dempsey, who wrote, "This day, of all days of the year, should not be about any one of us."

Memorial Day messages from first lady Melania Trump and Ivanka Trump, the president's daughter, struck to a theme of remembrance and thanks.

"As we remember our fallen servicemen and women, our hearts are filled with gratitude for their sacrifice and awe of their courage," Ivanka Trump tweeted.

And Melania Trump thanked service members and their families for helping safeguard the country. "We honor the many Americans who laid down their lives for our great country. As one nation under God, we come together to remember that freedom isn't free," she tweeted.

At Arlington, Trump said the heroes who died for America "rest in these hallowed fields, in cemeteries, battlefields and burial grounds near and far, and are drawn from the full tapestry of American life."

He said they came from "every generation, from towering cities and windswept prairies, from privilege and from poverty. They were generals and privates, captains and corporals of every race, color and of every creed, but they were all brothers and sisters in arms. And they were all united then, as they are united now, forever, by their undying love of our great country."

Gen. Joseph Dunford, the current chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, honored the more than a million Americans he said "gave their last full measure so we could live in freedom and raise our children in peace."

He also honored the families "they left behind and for whom every day is Memorial Day."

Those who fought and died for America, he said, "shared a commitment to something greater than themselves and they were people who understand what we have in this country is worth fighting for."

Those who attended the Memorial Day tribute included Trump's chief of staff, John Kelly, whose son, Marine 2nd Lt. Robert M. Kelly, was killed in November 2010 after he stepped on a land mine while on patrol in southern Afghanistan. He is buried at Arlington.

What to know about the missing children

A look at how and why the US lost track of almost 1,500 immigrant kids, and the ensuing fallout

By Amy B. Wang
The Washington Post

Reports of federal authorities losing track of nearly 1,500 immigrant children in their custody. Scathing criticism over children being taken from their migrant parents at the border. Proposed rallies.

In the past week, outrage about treatment of children taken into U.S. custody at the Southwest border has reached a fever pitch, exploding in a barrage of tweets and calls to action with the hashtags #WhereAreTheChildren and #MissingChildren.

How accurate are certain claims circulating online? What do those children have to do with the Trump administration's new immigration enforcement policies? How many families are being separated? And why is there so much outrage about it now? We take a look at how the story has snowballed.

• Did the United States really lose track of 1,475 immigrant kids?

In short, yes. During a Senate committee hearing late last month, Steven Wagner, an official with the Department of Health and Human Services, testified that the federal agency had lost track of 1,475 children who had crossed the U.S.-Mexico border on their own (that is, unaccompanied by adults) and subsequently were placed with adult sponsors in the United States.

As the Associated Press reported, the number was based on a survey of more than 7,000 children:

From October to December 2017, HHS called 7,635 children the agency had placed with sponsors, and found 6,075 of the children were still living with their sponsors, 28 had run away, five had been deported and 52 were living with someone else. The rest were missing, said Steven Wagner, acting assistant secretary at HHS.

Health and Human Services officials have argued it is not the department's legal responsibility to find those children after they are released from the care of the Office of Refugee Resettlement, which falls under HHS's Administration for Children and Families. And some have pointed out that adult sponsors are sometimes relatives who already were living in the United States and who intentionally may not be responding to contact attempts by HHS.

However, neither of those arguments has done much to quell outrage surrounding the testimony by Wagner, a principal deputy at HHS who oversees the Administration for Children and Families.

Sen. Rob Portman, R-Ohio, chairman of the Senate subcommittee, has repeatedly argued that it was a matter of humanity, not simply legal responsibility, citing a case in which federal officials had turned over eight immigrant children to human traffickers.

"These kids, regardless of their immigration status, deserve to be treated properly, not abused or trafficked," Portman said in the subcommittee. "This is all about accountability."

Portman reiterated his stance in an April 24 PBS "Frontline" special called "Trafficked in America," which documented the plight of the eight children who were forced to work on an egg farm in Ohio.

"We've got these kids. They're here. They're living on our soil," he told PBS. "And for us to just, you know, assume someone else is going to take care of them and throw them to the wolves, which is what HHS was doing, is flat-out wrong. I don't care what you think about immigration policy, it's wrong."

In a written statement to The Washington Post, DHS stated that approximately 85 percent of sponsors who ultimately acquire custody of unaccompanied minors are parents or close family members.

• Were these 1,475 children separated from their parents at the border?

No. The children unaccounted for in last year's HHS survey all arrived at the Southwest border alone. The government refers to these children as "unaccompanied alien children," or UACs.

- Are children being taken from their parents after they cross the border into the United States?

Yes. On May 7, Attorney General Jeff Sessions announced that the Justice Department would begin prosecuting every person who crossed the Southwest border illegally - or at least attempt to prosecute "100 percent" - even if some of them could or should be treated as asylum seekers, as the American Civil Liberties Union has argued.

Remember the fallen

Memorial Day is the traditional, if unofficial, start of summer. For most, it's a time to relax — or worry about sub tropical storms as was this case this year.

But Monday also should have been a time to reflect on the sacrifices that secured our freedoms and made such opportunities for leisure possible. Although Memorial Day pays tribute to those who died in service to their country, in recent years it has morphed into a kind of second Veterans Day, honoring those who have served, and are serving. And that's OK. They deserve to be thanked beyond one day in November.

But if storm worries and family responsibilities stopped you from setting aside a few moments Monday to meditate on those who didn't return home, or who arrived in a flag-draped casket, it is never too late and they deserve it.

Memorial Day initially was established to honor the Union dead of the Civil War (the former Confederate states set aside a separate day in remembrance of their fallen soldiers). After World War I, it was expanded to include all of America's war deaths, which total more than 650,000.

America's last surviving World War I veteran died in 2011. According to the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, of the 16 million Americans who served during World War II, fewer than 560,000 are alive today, and we are losing 362 each day. Please join them in honoring the 405,399 Americans who died in service from 1941-45, as well as those veterans who remain with us.

Observe a moment of silence for the 36,516 killed in Korea, and the 58,209 who died in Vietnam.

This year marks the 50th anniversary of bloodiest year of the Vietnam War: 16,529 Americans were killed in 1968.

More recently, more than 6,700 American servicemen and women have died in Afghanistan and Iraq since 2001.

The Military Times has a website, Honor the Fallen, that documents each and every death in those theaters. Click on those faces. Study them. So many exhibit youth, enthusiasm and confidence. They aren't cold statistics. They are individuals, each with a story.

If you didn't make it to one of the Memorial Day ceremonies held at area and cemeteries and pay public tribute to the fallen, please at least take a private moment to solemnly contemplate on the tremendous human cost of the nation's wars and the dedication to service of those who fought and died. Discuss the meaning of the holiday with your children, so they can understand and appreciate what it took to secure these blessings that we as Americans enjoy.

From Yorktown to Gettysburg, the Marne to Guadalcanal and the Ardennes Forest, Inchon to Khe Sanh to Fallujah, the nation should be eternally grateful for those who sacrificed — not just on Memorial Day, but every day.

Putnam keeps his deep-pocketed friends happy

Carl Hiaasen

Adam Putnam, the Publix candidate for Florida governor, just put out a new TV campaign ad blaming "liberal elites" for pressuring young people to go to college and take on crippling debt.

The Republican agricultural commissioner promises to do more to prioritize vocational training, saying, "College is not the only path to success and it's OK to say it." Actually, lots of people in both parties have been saying it for a long time.

Putnam's sudden concern about predatory student-loan practices is especially curious. As a young U.S. congressman, he was one of only 71 representatives who in 2007 voted against the College Student Relief Act, which aimed to cut the interest rates on student loans.

Putnam's nay vote came not long after he'd accepted a $1,000 donation from the Navient Corporation Political Action Committee.

Navient is the country's largest servicer of private and federal student loans. The company was recently sued by the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau for allegedly cheating and deceiving young borrowers who were trying to repay their college debt.

Navient has denied any wrongdoing. It was among three big student-loan companies that donated heavily to federal candidates, their PACS and political parties in 2016. And guess who received about three out of every four dollars in contributions from the student-loan industry?

Republicans.

As the fund-raising reports begin rolling in for this year's gubernatorial race, voters will see for themselves if Putnam is hypocritical enough to cash another check from Navient, SLM Corp. or one of the major student lenders or their lobby groups.

This time around he doesn't really need their money, not with megabucks corporate supporters such as Publix. The huge grocery chain has contributed $670,000 to Putnam's campaign entities over the last three years, and it has also donated generously to several business groups that have given millions to Putnam.

As agriculture commissioner, Putnam's office is in charge of regulating grocery outlets, and you probably won't be stunned to learn of his big-hearted leniency toward Publix.

In 2016, WFTS-Channel 28 in Tampa reported that seven Publix markets in the area had failed health inspections. The next day Putnam yanked the results from his department's website and scotched the pass-fail grading system that had been in place for some time.

Months later, a friendlier new system was put in action. Now, thanks to Putnam, if a storage room at a store is found freckled with rat droppings, the worst rating the store can receive is "re-inspection required."

(Full disclosure: For years my family has bought almost all our groceries at Publix, and we haven't encountered even one dubious lentil.)

Friday, in the face of a growing boycott threat because of Putnam's full-throated support of the NRA and his Trump-ish immigration philosophy, Publix announced that it has ended all corporate political contributions.

Here's another line from his new campaign commercial that drips with unintended irony:

"Today, liberal elites look down on people who work with their hands."

First of all, many of the folks that Putnam wants to deport (or keep out) of the country work with their hands, and the literal fruits of that hard work are displayed in the produce section of your local grocery store.

Domestic crop agriculture would die without migrant labor, legal and otherwise.

Second, many American laborers who "work with their hands" are paid minimum wage. Guess who was one of only 82 House Republicans who voted against raising the minimum wage in 2007?

Rep. Adam Putnam of Bartow.

He's selling himself hard as a fifth-generation rancher and citrus farmer, but it's been awhile since he picked much fruit. He graduated from the University of Florida in 1995 and the following year got elected to the state House at the ripe old age of 22.

So now, at 43, Putnam officially qualifies as one of those "career politicians" that his own party warns us to distrust. And, unless a grapefruit fell on his head when he was a kid, he should know better than to run campaign ads that leave himself open to such easy dismantling.

And it's OK to say that.

Possible solution for lack of local employees

I am no stranger to doing business in Panama City Beach having owned a retail store in Pier Park South for 5 years.

When I decided to open my second Boomerang Pizza Kitchen in Pier Park North, I already knew hiring was going to be my biggest challenge. The local population just doesn't support the number of employees needed for all the restaurants and retail stores that cater to our ever-growing number of visitors.

I think most business owners and managers here would readily agree that employees quitting without notice suffer no consequences because they can go down the street and get a job when they feel like working again. And we're often forced to hang on to problem employees longer than we'd like because it takes so long to replace and train them. The only option once local help is depleted seems to be going through a hiring agency that offers foreign workers. I don't want to go that route.

So here's my thought ... Would it be feasible or affordable to build dorms and encourage college students (even from out of state) to work here for the summer? It would have to be affordable living. I know national parks have programs like this. I grew up going to Callaway Gardens in a very small Georgia town where the FSU college students were our camp counselors.

I urge the local government to research this and I would be happy to provide any insight from a business owner's point of view. This is a great town, showing wonderful progress over the past 10-15 years. The Panhandle has the most beautiful beaches bar none. If we had a larger pool of employees to choose from, it will become a business owner's paradise as well!

SQUALL LINE

The GOP attack on education is in full swing for the Fl gubernatorial election with Adam Putnam denigrating college educated people as "Liberal Elites" that look down on workers that are not college educated. Funny, Putnam himself is a college grad!

There is a shortage of local labor since so many sit on their butts, not wanting to work and satisfied with welfare benefits.

The biggest triumph for our country will be when Trump is indicted or impeached and thrown out of office. That will be cause for a real celebration.

Hallelujah! Ireland finally moved into the 21st century. Overturning a ban on abortions is long overdue. The church don't OWN women's bodies. They have far too much say in politics anyway. Don't pay a dime in taxes. Yet have SO much to say and demand of others! ENOUGH!

If the rain bothers you stay indoors. If you can't and must go out be sure to wear a wet suit, flippers and goggles. With the torrential downpours we get the latter is highly recommended.As a senior I don't feel or act like one. No need to give up the ghost when you reach a certain age. Plenty of life left in me yet. I can kick it with the best of them. Or at least I try.

Free market debate at heart of Brazil truckers' strike

Brazilian cabinet ministers on Monday called on truckers to end a crippling eight-day strike that has led to major shortages and disruptions in Latin America's largest nation, saying the government had gone as far as it could to meet their demands.

The ministers spoke in Brasilia hours after President Michel Temer announced a series of measures aimed at getting truckers back to work. Late Sunday, Temer said the government would subsidize a 10 percent drop in diesel prices for 60 days.

He also said measures were being crafted to cut tolls for truckers and establish minimum freight rates, both key demands.

China approves 13 new Ivanka Trump trademarks

By Erika Kinetz
The Associated Press

SHANGHAI — Ivanka Trump's brand continues to win foreign trademarks in China and the Philippines, adding to questions about conflicts of interest at the White House, The Associated Press has found.

On Sunday, China granted the first daughter's company final approval for its 13th trademark in the last three months, trademark office records show. Over the same period, the Chinese government has granted Ivanka Trump's company provisional approval for another eight trademarks, which can be finalized if no objections are raised during a three-month comment period.

Taken together, the trademarks could allow her brand to market a lifetime's worth of products in China, from baby blankets to coffins, and a host of things in between, including perfume, makeup, bowls, mirrors, furniture, books, coffee, chocolate and honey. Ivanka Trump stepped back from management of her brand and placed its assets in a family-run trust, but she continues to profit from the business.

"Ivanka Trump's refusal to divest from her business is especially troubling as the Ivanka brand continues to expand its business in foreign countries," Noah Bookbinder, executive director of Citizens for Responsibility and Ethics in Washington, said in an email Monday. "It raises significant questions about corruption, as it invites the possibility that she could be benefiting financially from her position and her father's presidency or that she could be influenced in her policy work by countries' treatment of her business."

Experts: Starbucks training a first step in facing bias

By Terry Tang
The Associated Press

Starbucks, trying to put to rest an outcry over the arrest of two black men at one of its stores, is closing more than 8,000 stores for an afternoon of anti-bias training, a strategy some believe can keep racism at bay.

After the arrests in Philadelphia last month, the coffee chain's leaders apologized and met with the two men, but also reached out to activists and experts in bias training to put together a curriculum for its 175,000 workers.

That has put a spotlight on the little-known world of "unconscious bias training," which is used by many corporations, police departments and other organizations to help address racism in the workplace.

The training is typically designed to get people to open up about implicit biases and stereotypes in encountering people of color, gender or other identities.

The Perception Institute, a consortium of researchers consulting with Starbucks, defines implicit bias as attitudes — positive or negative — or stereotypes someone has toward a person or group without being conscious of it. A common example, according to some of its studies, is a tendency for white people to unknowingly associate black people with criminal behavior.

Many retailers including Walmart and Target said they already offer some racial bias training. Target says it plans to expand that training. Nordstrom has said it plans to enhance its training after issuing an apology to three black teenagers in Missouri who employees falsely accused of shoplifting.

Anti-bias sessions can incorporate personal reflections, explorations of feelings and mental exercises. But one expert says training of this kind can have the opposite effect if people feel judged.

According to a video previewing the Starbucks training, there will be recorded remarks from Starbucks executives and rapper/activist Common. From there, employees will "move into a real and honest exploration of bias" where, in small groups, they can share how the issue comes up in their daily work life.

Starbucks has described it as a "collaborative and engaging experience for store partners to learn together." "

Developed with feedback from the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund, the Perception Institute and other social advocacy groups, the four-hour session will give workers a primer on the history of civil rights from the 1960s to present day. Workers will also view a short documentary film.

Alexis McGill Johnson, Perception's co-founder and executive director, says anti-bias training is about awareness.

"The work that we want to do is not say you're a bad person because you have a stereotype about a group, but say this is why your brain may have these stereotypes," she said.

Johnson declined to elaborate on the details of the Starbucks training. But she said Perception's workshops typically include mental exercises to show participants how bias creeps into situations. A session can include personal reflections, she said, such as, "'I was socialized to think about a group this way.'"

Johnson said the real work is for employees to apply what they learn in their everyday lives. She likened it to exercising a muscle. Some ways to practice counter-stereotyping, she said, are to look for something unique about a person that is beyond their social identity.

"It could be having a question that elicits something more interesting than, say, the weather or the traffic," Johnson said, stressing the need to "go well beyond the superficial."

In the Philadelphia incident, Rashon Nelson and Donte Robinson were asked to leave after one was denied access to the bathroom. They were arrested by police minutes after they sat down to await a business meeting. The incident was recorded by cellphones and went viral.

Nelson and Robinson settled with Starbucks this month for an undisclosed sum and an offer of a free education. They also reached a deal with the city of Philadelphia for a symbolic $1 each and a promise from officials to establish a $200,000 program for young entrepreneurs.

Starbucks has since announced anyone can use its restrooms even if they are not buying anything. According to documents Starbucks sent to store workers, employees should also think carefully when dealing with disruptive customers. A guide advises staff to consider whether the actions they take would apply to any customer in the same situation. They should dial 911 only if the situation seems unsafe.

Starbucks said the arrests never should have occurred and announced the mass closures of its stores for the afternoon of training.

Calvin Lai, an assistant professor of psychological and brain sciences at Washington University in St. Louis, said people should not place high expectations on this one day.

"We find that oftentimes diversity training has mixed effects, and in some cases it can even backfire and lead people who are kind of already reactive to these issues to become even more polarized," Lai said.

One afternoon wouldn't really be "moving the needle on the biases," especially when it's a company with as many employees as Starbucks, he said. "A lot of those employees won't be here next year or two years or three years down the line."

Starbucks has said Tuesday's sessions serve as "a step in a long-term journey to make Starbucks even more welcoming and safe for all." It is working with volunteer advisers including Heather McGhee, president of social advocacy organization Demos, and Sherrilyn Ifill, president and director-counsel of the NAACP Legal Defense Fund.

"One of the things Starbucks has to wrestle with is how to incorporate this kind of training into the onboarding of every employee," Ifill said.

That takes a sustained effort, McGhee added.

"We have really made it clear that one training is not enough, and this needs to be part of an ongoing review of their policies," McGhee said. "They really need to commit."

Prenups under fire as tax law boosts cost of alimony

By Ben Steverman
Bloomberg

President Donald Trump's tax overhaul could wreak havoc on prenuptial agreements across the country — and maybe even his own.

Prenups often contain provisions about how much a partner would pay in alimony, also known as spousal support. The agreements can be thrown out if judges deem them unfair, signed too quickly or under duress. Now the tax revamp offers another avenue for challenges because courts will likely have to consider how the law has changed since the contracts were created. Starting in 2019, taxpayers will be no longer be able to deduct their alimony payments.

For divorcees in the top tax bracket, the change could mean they effectively pay double in post-tax costs compared to what they had previously agreed to in their prenups.

"We made a deal, and now Congress messed it up," said Linda Ravdin, a partner at law firm Pasternak & Fidis, who's written reference books about premarital agreements.

Divorce lawyers are in an awkward position and weighing whether to alert happily married clients with decades-old prenups of the change. Ravdin said she was concerned that an unexpected letter or call from a divorce attorney could be unwelcome. Instead, she put the information in an emailed client newsletter.

The obvious fix for married couples is to amend their agreements, but that's almost always a bad idea, said Christopher Melcher of Walzer Melcher who specializes in the divorces of ultra-wealthy Californians.

"It's doubtful that anyone would want to mess with that thing" if they're happily married, Melcher said. "It would open up a huge can of worms."

While Trump told New York Magazine in 2006 that his prenup with Melania Trump made his marriage stronger despite being a "hard, painful, ugly tool," he didn't disclose any details of the agreement. A White House spokeswoman didn't respond to a request for comment.

There aren't hard numbers, but it's fair to say that prenups have become more popular in recent years as younger Americans delay marriage, and the divorce rate has skyrocketed for people over 50 who often use prenups if they remarry. More than 60 percent of divorce attorneys said they had seen a rise in the number of clients seeking prenups in the previous three years, while just 1 percent reported a drop, according to a 2016 survey by the American Academy of Matrimonial Lawyers.

Some prenups may specify that in the event of divorce, one spouse is owed, say, $10,000 a month for half the length of time the couple was married. Other agreements set alimony based on a formula, such as a percentage of the payer's income. Child support is often calculated in tandem with alimony. If agreements aren't amended to factor in the tax changes, it will be up to divorce attorneys to settle — or judges to decide — whether the amounts or formulas still stand for couples who divorce starting next year.

Even if both parties agree to an adjustment in alimony, they'll need to agree on exactly how much to cut the payers' obligations. Divorcing couples could end up hiring rival accountants as expert witnesses to sway judges.

"No one knows the outcome of that kind of dispute," Ravdin said. "When you go to court, it's like rolling the dice."

St. Andrews printing press brings back memories for father, son

PANAMA CITY — With the stain of ink on his fingertips, Gilberto Hurtarte's rediscovered a piece of his childhood as he bent over the vintage machines at the St. Andrews Publishing Museum on Friday.

The machine was just like the one the 85-year-old Italian had grown up with, setting the tiny rows of type.

"He started working in print shops when he was eight years old during World War II," said Publishing Museum Director Michelle Price.

Italy wasn't safe during World War II and his parents sent Hurtarte and his siblings to live in other parts of the world. As an eight-year-old, Hurtarte was sent to a print shop in Guatemala where he used to work around the shop, Price said. Then, when it was safe to return to Italy, Hurtarte took a job in a print shop in his homeland.

Andreas Romero grew up listening to his father tell nostalgic stories about working the letterpress machines, so when he came to Panama City about a month ago with his wife Bianca, who is originally from Bay County, he was ecstatic to discover the printing museum after lunch one day.

His dad, he said, simply had to see it.

C.C. Washington, Rosenwald could face restructuring

By Eryn Dion

edion@pcnh.com

PANAMA CITY — Facing changes to how AMIKids Panama City Marine Institute will operate in the future as well as populations of alternative placement students with separate needs, district officials have proposed a restructuring of Rosenwald High School and the adjacent C.C. Washington Academy.

Presenting to Bay District School Board members last week, Assistant Superintendent Gena Burgans and Director of Secondary Instruction Suzanne Farrar put forward a plan that would see both Rosenwald and C.C. Washington converted into grade 6-12 centers, with C.C. Washington serving students with disciplinary problems and Rosenwald focusing on credit recovery.

Currently, C.C. Washington serves as an alternative placement school for middle school students and Rosenwald for high school students.

The change would play to each school's strengths and ensure each student receives the instruction and attention they need, Farrar said. Students focusing on credit recovery at C.C. Washington can be derailed by classroom disruptions, while students with disciplinary issues can focus on learning social and behavioral skills. Over the years, Rosenwald has developed a robust credit recovery program, with 95 percent of its 176 students on the credit recovery track. C.C. Washington currently has 71 students, with 79 percent participating in credit recovery.

DHS to issue 15,000 more guest worker visas

By Nick Miroff
The Washington Post

The Department of Homeland Security said Friday it will issue 15,000 additional guest worker visas for 2018, facing an outcry from business owners who say they're being hurt by the country's labor squeeze.

It was the second year in a row that DHS agreed to allocate an extra 15,000 guest worker visas, on top of the 66,000 annual cap established by Congress. Lawmakers have granted DHS the authority to exceed the cap, and in recent weeks they have urged DHS said Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen to allow more foreigners to alleviate the tight labor market, with the unemployment rate at 3.9 percent.

The H-2B visas are for foreigners who take seasonal jobs in seafood, tourism, landscaping, construction and others industries — but not farm workers. Critics of the guest worker program say such jobs should pay more, in order to attract more teenagers and American workers who have dropped out of the labor force.

In a statement, Nielsen determined there were not enough "qualified, U.S. workers available ... to satisfy the needs of American businesses."

Court sides with FSU in weapons dispute

By Jim Saunders
The News Service of Florida

TALLAHASSEE — An appeals court Friday backed Florida State University in much of a legal battle with a gun-rights group about weapons on campus — but also sent back to a circuit judge an issue dealing with the university's student conduct code.

The long-running lawsuit, filed against Florida State by the Second Amendment advocacy group Florida Carry, has drawn attention mostly because of incorrect firearm information published in a 2015 football "game day guide." That information inaccurately said football fans could not stow guns in cars when attending games.

But the complicated 16-page ruling Friday by a three-judge panel of the 1st District Court of Appeal focused heavily on other issues, including a university ban on students carrying stun guns and questions about information in the student conduct code. It also dealt with issues such as a state law that blocks government agencies and officials from imposing restrictions on firearms and a 2013 ruling that said the University of North Florida could not prevent students from keeping guns in vehicles.

While state law bars people from carrying concealed firearms on college campuses, Florida State's student conduct code also included a prohibition on a wide range of weapons. Among other things, the student conduct code addressed firearms, stun guns, knives and swords, according to Friday's appeals-court ruling.

Florida Carry alleged, at least in part, that Florida State and top school officials knew or should have known that they were prohibited from regulating possession of firearms on campus, including in vehicles, the appeals court ruling said. Florida Carry also alleged that the university had improperly barred students with concealed-weapons licenses from carrying stun guns and other "defensive devices."

So one month later, the whole family found themselves in the shop setting type so small the volunteers don't usually use it, with special permission to use the 1915 Chandler & Price Press while a Frank Sinatra record crooned in the background.

"It was amazing," said volunteer Deborah Kivett. "It was a work of art just to see his composition."

While the volunteers usually stick to fonts 18 points and up, Hurtarte picked a size 12 font to write a letter with sentences from each of his family members in a language of their choosing — Italian, Spanish or English — summing up their life. Hurtarte wanted it to be something timeless.

"It took them a long time to lay it out," Price said. "They spent one day just laying the letters. Each letter had to be placed individually and backwards."

The next day, they all came back to print 30 copies to distribute to family members.

"When he first started inking up the plate, you could see he was a little unsure," said Kivett. "It was a little like roller skating, he had to remember how to do it."

But soon they fell into a comfortable groove, and when the last sheet was printed, Romero, a tenor, broke into song.

"It was like we were part of an opera," Kivett said. "I got the chills."

Price said the experience spoke to the true mission of the museum as a way to preserve and showcase a dying art form.

"It was so cool and nice to see someone so excited to come in," Price said.

ROSENWALD

"What we love about Rosenwald was the ability to recover credits very quickly and return to their home-zoned school if they want," Farrar said, adding that many students opt to stay at Rosenwald, even after they complete credit recovery, because of the supportive environment.

The proposal would bring several changes to the C.C. Washington/Rosenwald campus, creating a much stricter, "boot-camp" like atmosphere at the former and closing off movement between the two schools. C.C. Washington students would have a strict uniform policy to distinguish them from Rosenwald students, and would go through their day with minimal class changes and movement from room-to-room. Cellphones would not be allowed on the C.C. Washington campus and lunch would be served in classrooms rather than a cafeteria.

Rosenwald would see a "full implementation" of the Edgenuity blended classroom curriculum, and technology would be provided to students to ensure accessibility. Eighth-graders would be able to dual enroll in middle and high school courses to earn credits.

The Department of Juvenile Justice last month announced that it no longer would include an educational component and funding for its contracts with day treatment facilities offering probation services. AMIKids operates the Panama City Marine Institute, along with other day treatment facilities in Northwest Florida. Bay District Schools had a contract with AMIKids PCMI to provide educational services to 100 of their students on track for expulsion. With AMIKids no longer an option, the district needed a new plan to serve students needing alternative placement.

In searching for a solution, Burgans said they explored several options, including possibly bringing in a charter to run the alternative placement school, or contracting with a company to manage that school. With the approval process for a charter taking upwards to a year, Burgans said the timeline didn't fit with the district's needs. Several years ago, she said she contacted a company about the possibility of them managing their alternative placement school, but with such a small number of students, the company said it would not be financially feasible.

"The limitations on H-2B visas were originally meant to protect American workers, but when we enter a situation where the program unintentionally harms American businesses it needs to be reformed," said Nielsen, whose statement urged lawmakers to pass legislation to establish an appropriate number of seasonal visas.

"We are once again in a situation where Congress has passed the buck and turned a decision over to DHS," her statement said.

During a congressional hearing last week, several senators prevailed upon Nielsen to offer more visas, telling her their constituents were desperate to find employees.

"There's not one manufacturing plant in Wisconsin, not one dairy farm, not one resort that can hire enough people," Sen. Ron Johnson, R-Wis., chairman of the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee, told her.

It was a near-repeat of what happened last year under then-Secretary John Kelly. At that time, DHS described its decision to allocate 15,000 extra visas as a "one-time" increase. There was no such wording in Friday's statement.

"It shouldn't become a habit, but I'm afraid it will," said Mark Kirkorian, director of the Center for Immigration Studies, who has written articles in recent weeks praising the labor shortages as a sign of the success of Trump's immigration crackdown.

Kirkorian said he was not surprised because Trump is not an opponent of the guest worker system, and has hired seasonal foreign labor for his golf courses and resorts.

"The president is for H2B visas, so this is one area where his 'Buy American, Hire American' doesn't apply — it's hire foreign," said Kirkorian.

Charles Dodson in May 2016 ruled that the issue about the "game day" guide was moot because Florida State had corrected it shortly after receiving a complaint. The appeals court Friday upheld that decision without explanation.

But other parts of Dodson's 2016 ruling drew more legal analysis, including his conclusion that the university was able to bar students with concealed-weapons license from carrying stun guns and other "defensive devices" on campus. The appeals court disagreed with Dodson's legal reasoning but upheld his ruling on the issue.

Florida Carry also sought fines against university President John Thrasher and university Police Chief David Perry because of information in the student conduct code, including information indicating firearms could not be kept in vehicles. The appeals court ruled in favor of Thrasher and Perry and pointed to an affidavit given by the police chief.

"As stated in Chief Perry's affidavit, and not challenged by any record evidence to the contrary from appellants (Florida Carry), until our UNF decision FSU believed it was permitted to regulate the possession of firearms in vehicles," said Friday's ruling, written by appeals-court Judge Ross Bilbrey and joined by judges Thomas Winokur and Harvey Jay. "As further stated in Chief Perry's affidavit, immediately after our UNF decision, FSU undertook action to comply with the decision. The undisputed facts are that any violation by President Thrasher or Chief Perry of the preemption (in state law of Florida State being able to regulate firearm possession) was not knowing and willful."

Florida State acknowledged in the case that the student conduct code improperly included a prohibition on firearms in vehicles, the ruling said. But Florida State also said it was not enforcing the prohibition. As a result, Dodson ruled that Florida Carry's challenge to the language in the student conduct code was moot.

But the appeals court Friday overturned that part of the ruling Friday, sending the issue back to circuit court for further proceedings to determine if the university could be held liable.

"Here, appellants brought suit over a year and a half after (the UNF decision on guns in vehicles), and the FSU Student Conduct Code at the time the complaint was filed still contained regulations contrary to the preemption (on universities imposing firearm regulations)," the ruling said. "While FSU may not be enforcing the challenged provisions of the code, those provisions remain. Accordingly, appellants' challenge to the student conduct code was not moot."

TripAdvisor ranks PCB a top snorkeling destination

PANAMA CITY BEACH — An analysis of every review on the travel website TripAdvisor has confirmed what many locals already know — Panama City Beach is one of the top snorkeling locations in the country.

TripAdvisor recently published a list of the top 15 snorkeling spots in the United States, using an algorithm that searched for snorkeling related keywords in reviews.

Shell Island and the pods of dolphins that frequent it are some of the top attractions, according to the website.

"A postcard-perfect uninhabited island, Shell Island boasts some of the best snorkeling spots in Panama City Beach," the description in the TripAdvisor article reads. "Take a shuttle to the island for a day of sun and snorkeling: hunt for seashells in the grass, watch the hermit crabs scuttle over the sandy bottom, and watch for the dolphins that play in the shallow coastal water."

Other Florida locations to make the list include Key West, which boasts the world's third largest barrier reef system; Crystal River, which has the largest manatee population in the state; Big Pine Key, which has a popular shipwreck to snorkel; and Key Largo, which had the first undersea park in the U.S.

Locations in Hawaii, California, Texas, North Carolina and the U.S. Virgin Islands also were listed.

In addition to Shell Island, the jetties at St. Andrews State Park are another popular place to snorkel. Easily accessed from the shoreline, snorkelers can expect to find delicate sea urchins perched on the rocks, schools of fish, crabs and snails tucked into the crevices, and even some color changing fluke for those paying close attention.

OBITUARIES

MARY VIRGINIA NEIMAN

Virginia was born Feb. 5, 1915, to Anne and John Davey in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. She grew up in Glenside, Pennsylvania, attended Abington HS and Strayer Business College. She then worked for the WPA in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, and later for the FBI in Philadelphia.

In 1942, Virginia married Maurice Scott Neiman. Their marriage lasted 67 years, until his death in 2009. They lived in Oreland, Pennsylvania, and had two children, Ruth Carol and Jonathan Scott. Later, she returned to work, first for McNeil Laboratories, then for Pitman-Moore, where she was administrative assistant to the director of research, until her retirement in 1980.

Virginia and Scott were founding members of St. Phillip in the Fields Episcopal Church in Oreland, Pennsylvania, where she served as assistant and then full-time organist and choir director. After retiring to Sunny Hills, Florida, they joined St. Andrews Episcopal Church in Panama City, where she was assistant organist and a member of the senior and bell choirs. Another move to Lynn Haven, Florida, brought them closer to the church they loved and continued to serve.

Virginia and Scott both loved to travel and were able to visit many interesting places during their retirement. Closer to home, they also enjoyed boating, camping with their RV and square dancing. Virginia, an experienced seamstress, made most of her square dance outfits.

Virginia moved to Provision Living in Panama City Beach in 2009, after Scott's passing. She celebrated her 100th birthday in February 2015, with many family and friends in attendance. During the celebration at Provision Living she was interviewed by a local news personality which was broadcast later that evening.

Virginia is survived by her children, Carol Spatz (married to Dean) and Jonathan Neiman (married to Carole); as well as three grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; six nieces; and a nephew.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. May 31, 2018, at St. Andrews Episcopal Church, 1608 Baker Court, Panama City, FL 32401. Flowers accepted or memorial donations to St. Andrews Episcopal Church, Emerald Coast Hospice or to the charity of your choice.

WINFORD B. FREEMAN

Winford B. Freeman, 76, of Panama City, Florida, passed away on Saturday, May 26, 2018, at Covenant Hospice Care.

He was a lifelong resident of Panama City and a 1959 graduate of Bay High School. He served in the U.S. Army during the Vietnam Conflict and retired from Chevron as a truck driver after 33 years of service. Mr. Freeman was a devoted husband, father and grandfather.

Mr. Freeman was preceded in death by his parents, Baylis "Shorty" Freeman and Vera Freeman. He is survived by his wife of 49 years, Bobbie Jean Freeman; daughter, Sara Freeman-Phillipp and her partner, Allie Prather; and granddaughter, Taryn Freeman. Also surviving is his sister, Carol Anne Freeman. Survived also by a brother-in-law, Buddy Byrd and wife, Gayle.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday, May 31, 2018, at Kent-Forest Lawn Funeral Home Chapel with Chaplain Chad Reister officiating. Burial will follow the service in Forest Lawn Memorial Gardens. The family will receive friends and visitors from 5-7 p.m. Wednesday, May 30, 2018, at the funeral home.

ROLL CALL

Thomas Voting Reports

WASHINGTON D.C. — Here is how area congressmen — Rep. Neal Dunn, Rep. Matt Gaetz, Sen. Bill Nelson and Sen. Marco Rubio— voted on major issues during the week ending May 25:

House

$717 BILLION FOR MILITARY IN 2019: Voting 351 for and 66 against, the House on May 24 authorized a $717 billion military budget (HR 5515) for fiscal 2019, including $69 billion for war-fighting in Afghanistan, Iraq, Syria and other theaters and $57 billion for active-duty and retiree health care. The bill sets a 2.6 percent pay raise for uniformed personnel; adds a 12th aircraft carrier to the Navy fleet; bars detainee transfers from the Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, military prison; funds a military parade in Washington requested by President Trump; bans the purchase or use of technology made by the Chinese telecom giant ZTE, which violated U.S. sanctions on North Korea and Iran; prohibits base closures but allows smaller installations to be shuttered if the state's governor approves; funds programs for military victims of sexual assault and approves tens of billions for conventional and nuclear weapons while lifting a ban on the development of low-yield nuclear weapons.

A yes vote was to pass the bill.

Voting yes: Gaetz, Dunn

DEVELOPING LOW-YIELD NUCLEAR WEAPONS: Voting 188 for and 226 against, the House on May 23 refused to restrict funding in HR 5515 (above) for a low-yield nuclear weapon — the W76-2 warhead — to be mounted on submarine-launched Trident ballistic missiles.

A yes vote was to restrict funding in the 2019 military budget for developing low-yield nuclear weapons.

Voting no: Gaetz, Dunn

BACKGROUND CHECKS ON GUN SALES: Voting 224 for and 191 against, the House on May 24 blocked a Democratic attempt to amend HR 5515 (above) to expand background checks on commercial gun transactions, requiring checks on sales over the Internet and between private parties at gun shows.

A yes vote was in opposition to adding language on background checks to the 2019 military budget.

Voting yes: Gaetz, Dunn

CHANGES TO FEDERAL PENAL SYSTEM: Voting 360 for and 59 against, the House on May 22 passed a bipartisan bill (HR 5682) intended to reduce overcrowding in the 180,000-inmate federal penal system, improve rehabilitation, and reduce recidivism. In part, the bill would establish individually tailored programs to improve work and educational skills and encourage inmates to earn credits toward early release to halfway houses.

A yes vote was to send the bill to the Senate.

Voting yes: Gaetz, Dunn

RELAXATION OF BANKING SAFEGUARDS: Voting 258 for and 159 against, the House on May 22 passed a bipartisan bill (S 2155) that would largely exempt community banks and credit unions from the 2010 Dodd-Frank financial-oversight law. The measure would also scale back restrictions the law placed on about 15 of the largest banks and 25 medium-sized regional banks, while leaving intact the authority of the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau to operate as an independent agency largely free of congressional oversight.

A yes vote was to send the bill to President Trump.

Voting yes: Gaetz, Dunn

DRUGS FOR THE TERMINALLY ILL: The House on May 22 passed, 250 for and 169 against, a bill (S 204) that would give the terminally ill broad access to experimental drugs that have not received Food and Drug Administration approval. The bill would grant legal protection to doctors, hospitals and drug firms promoting these unproven treatments, which, to qualify under the bill, must have passed one clinical trial and have a pending application at the FDA.

A yes vote was to pass the bill.

Voting yes: Gaetz, Dunn

Senate

VETERANS' ACCESS TO NEARBY HEALTH CARE: Voting 92 for and five against, the Senate on May 23 passed a bill (S 2372) that would upgrade a four- year-old "community care" program in which veterans who live far from Veterans Health Administration facilities or face lengthy waits for treatment can promptly receive publicly funded care from close-to-home providers in the private sector.

A yes vote was to send the bill to President Trump.

Voting yes: Nelson, Rubio

DANA BAIOCCO, CONSUMER PRODUCTS REGULATOR: Voting 50 for and 45 against, the Senate on May 22 confirmed Dana Baiocco, an attorney in private practice, for a seat on the five-member U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission.

A yes vote was to confirm the nominee.

Voting yes: Rubio

Voting no: Nelson

Knife-wielding man in wheelchair injures officers

Authorities said two Florida police officers were injured by a knife-wielding man in a wheelchair.

Emmanuel Ruiz Mejia, 29, is charged with cutting two Winter Haven police officers who responded to a disturbance at a bar Friday.

Police said they removed a sword-like knife strapped to the back of Mejia's wheelchair, but Mejia refused to show officers both his hands and kept one hand under his thigh.

Police said Mejia produced a large knife when an officer pulled out a stun gun. One officer was cut when they tackled Mejia, trying to get the knife.

Police said the stun gun was used on Mejia, who then picked up the knife and threw it at the other officer. Neither officer was seriously injured.

Why Haven't Senior Homeowners Been Told These Facts?

Keep reading if you own a home in the U.S. and were born before 1955.

It's a well-known fact that for many senior citizens in the U.S. their home is their single biggest asset, often accounting for more than 50% of their total net worth.

Yet, according to new statistics from the mortgage industry, senior homeowners in the U.S. are now sitting on more than 6.1 trillion dollars of unused home equity.[1] With people now living longer than ever before and home prices back up again, ignoring this "hidden wealth" may prove to be short sighted.

All things considered, it's not surprising that more than a million homeowners have already used a government-insured Home Equity Conversion Mortgage or "HECM" loan to turn their home equity into extra cash for retirement.

However, today, there are still millions of eligible homeowners who could benefit from this FHA-insured loan but may simply not be aware of this "retirement secret."

Some homeowners think HECM loans sound "too good to be true." After all, you get the cash you need out of your home but you have no more monthly mortgage payments.

FACT: In 1988, President Reagan signed an FHA bill that put HECM loans into law.

NO MONTHLY MORTGAGE PAYMENTS?[2] EXTRA CASH?

It's a fact: no monthly mortgage payments are required with a government-insured HECM loan;[2] however the homeowners are still responsible for paying for the maintenance of their home, property taxes, homeowner's insurance and, if required, their HOA fees.

Another fact many are not aware of is that HECM reverse mortgages first took hold when President Reagan signed the FHA Reverse Mortgage Bill into law 29 years ago in order to help senior citizens remain in their homes.

Today, HECM loans are simply an effective way for homeowners 62 and older to get the extra cash they need to enjoy retirement.

Although today's HECM loans have been improved to provide even greater financial protection for homeowners, there are still many misconceptions.

For example, a lot of people mistakenly believe the home must be paid off in full in order to qualify for a HECM loan, which is not the case. In fact, one key advantage of a HECM is that the proceeds will first be used to pay off any existing liens on the property, which frees up cash flow, a huge blessing for seniors living on a fixed income. Unfortunately, many senior homeowners who might be better off with HECM loan don't even bother to get more information because of rumors they've heard.

That's a shame because HECM loans are helping many senior homeowners live a better life.

In fact, a recent survey by American Advisors Group (AAG), the nation's number one HECM lender, found that over 90% of their clients are satisfied with their loans.

While these special loans are not for everyone, they can be a real lifesaver for senior homeowners.

The cash from a HECM loan can be used for any purpose. Many people use the money to save on interest charges by paying off credit cards or other high-interest loans. Other common uses include making home improvements, paying off medical bills or helping other family members. Some people simply need the extra cash for everyday expenses while others are now using it as a "safety net" for financial emergencies.

If you're a homeowner age 62 or older, you owe it to yourself to learn more so that you can make an informed decision. Homeowners who are interested in learning more can request a free 2018 HECM loan Information Kit and free Educational DVD by calling American Advisors Group toll-free at 1-800-791-3770.

At no cost or obligation, the professionals at AAG can help you find out if you qualify and also answer common questions such as:

1. What's the government's role?
2. How much money might I get?
3. Who owns the home after I take out a HECM loan?

You may be pleasantly surprised by what you discover when you call AAG for more information today.

[1]Source: http://reversemortgagedaily.com/2016/06/21/seniors-home-equity-grows-to-6-trillion-reverse-mortgage-opportunity. [2]If you qualify and your loan is approved, a Home Equity Conversion Mortgage (HECM) must pay off any existing mortgage(s). With a HECM loan, no monthly mortgage payment is required. A HECM increases the principal mortgage loan amount and decreases home equity (it is a negative amortization loan). AAG works with other lenders and financial institutions that offer HECMs. To process your request for a loan, AAG may forward your contact information to such lenders for your consideration of HECM programs that they offer. When the loan is due and payable, some or all of the equity in the property no longer belongs to borrowers, who may need to sell the home or otherwise repay the loan with interest from other proceeds. AAG charges an origination fee, mortgage insurance premium, closing costs and servicing fees (added to the balance of the loan). The balance of the loan grows over time and AAG charges interest on the balance. Interest is not tax-deductible until the loan is partially or fully repaid. Borrowers are responsible for paying property taxes and homeowner's insurance (which may be substantial). We do not establish an escrow account for disbursements of these payments. A set-aside account can be set up to pay taxes and insurance and may be required in some cases. Borrowers must occupy home as their primary residence and pay for ongoing maintenance; otherwise the loan becomes due and payable. The loan also becomes due and payable when the last borrower, or eligible non-borrowing surviving spouse, dies, sells the home, permanently moves out, defaults on taxes or insurance payments, or does not otherwise comply with the loan terms. American Advisors Group (AAG) is headquartered at 3800 W. Chapman Ave., 3rd & 7th Floors, Orange CA, 92868. V2017.08.23_OR

Walt Disney World's Blanketeers sew for the common good

By Gabrielle Russon
Orlando Sentinel

Albert Intenzo has been a Disney Blanketeer for five years. The Blanketeers volunteer their time making blankets, booties, hats, bags and dog beds which are donated to local charities. [SARAH ESPEDIDO/ORLANDO SENTINEL]

ORLANDO — They work for The Mouse, but since they spend countless hours crafting, they are dubbed the Blanketeers.

It started out small.

A few Disney World employees decided to use their talents for charity in 2007, following an initiative started by their Walt Disney Co. colleagues at Disneyland.

They knit hats that fit into the palm of a hand, small enough for a premature baby in an incubator at the hospital. They handmade dog beds for the pets in animal shelters, waiting to be adopted. They crafted hats to comfort cancer patients.

The knitters grew by word-of-mouth to include about 80 people.

Some Blanketeers take lunch breaks together every week to do their craft. Others squeeze it in whenever there's a spare moment at home — such as Beatriz Florence, a zookeeper at Animal Kingdom who works 10-hour shifts and then takes care of two children.

"It's relaxing," says Florence, 38, of Kissimmee, who can forget about the stresses of her job, such as worrying about a sick gorilla.

She braids a dog toy made out of donated company employee T-shirts with outdated logos.

"There's a lot of people who know how to crochet," said Sabine Jeunette, a Disney administrative assistant from Clermont.

And sew. Or knit. Or braid. Or tie knots. Or quilt.

There must be some standards — "We don't glue," said Kate St. Germain of Winter Garden, who works in merchandise at Epcot and volunteered 150 hours in one year alone with the Blanketeers.

Albert Intenzo, who works in information technology, doesn't mind being the only man in the room on a recent lunch break in a Disney conference room.

"I enjoy doing this stuff at home," Intenzo said, hoping to teach his 11-year-old son someday.

The Winter Garden resident proudly holds up a quilted blanket that took hours to assemble and points to three squares that contained unmistakable Mickey Mouse ears. It's the ultimate Hidden Mickey.

At a company that's the largest employer in Orlando County, unsurprisingly, the Blanketeers excelled at mass producing. In 2017, they crafted 8,500 items that were shipped mostly to Central Florida charities.

Pulse nightclub shooting victims and first-responders received quilts with hearts from the group.

In December, a shipment of several hundred little hats arrived for babies in the intensive care nursery, said Linda Sutherland, executive director of Healthy Start Coalition of Orange County.

Many of the moms from low-income backgrounds don't have much family support, which is why the Blanketeers' gifts meant so much, Sutherland said.

"The moms are just tickled to get something like that," she said. "Something homemade signifies love and caring for them."

Jeunette said as she is crocheting, she thinks of the little child who someday will sleep in her pale pink blanket.

"Mom's going to appreciate it," Jeunette said quietly as she keeps on working.

DESTIN — Skip the rental car, calling an Uber or sitting in traffic when you want to go out in Destin or Santa Rosa Beach — there's a new way to get around town with Gulf Coast Go.

The new transportation company advertises a "hop-on, hop-off style" service with 15 trolleys and double-decker buses that make stops along U.S. 98 and County 30A between Destin and Santa Rosa Beach.

"Basically what we are doing is from Grand Boulevard to 30A will be one route and from Grand Boulevard to Destin will be the other route," said owner Curtis Spagnola. "My goal is to have buses stop every 30 minutes, and eventually there will be an app and you will be able to track in real time and you will know with each stop when they are coming."

Spagnola said that the transportation service will give riders access not only to restaurants, attractions, shopping and activities in Destin and Santa Rosa Beach, but also will include a tour guide and the option to book tours such as dolphin cruises, fishing charters, parasailing, brewery tours, wine-tastings and other local attractions.

"We have 46 local partners already, and we are hoping to add more as we grow," Spagnola said.

When asked what spurred his idea for the company, Spagnola said his years living in Destin and working in tourism-based businesses opened his eyes to the need for alternative transportation options.

"It's something that we need here desperately, and as a business owner in Destin for many years, I just don't see why this hasn't been done earlier," he said. "The only way we can relieve parking and traffic problems in Destin is by pure numbers. Plus who doesn't want to ride a double-decker bus?"

With his fleet operating at full capacity, Spagnola said he can carry 1,000 people per hour.

To start off, Gulf Coast Go will offer eight stops in Destin and 17 stops in South Walton. Spagnola said more stops will be added in the near future. As for the pricing, Spagnola said he's offering a deal no one can refuse.

"It's going to be cheaper than getting a cab or an Uber or anything like that," he said. "It's not about making a profit the first year."

Prices for daily passes currently are $20 for adults and $10 for children ages 3-12, and children 3 and under are free. Unlimited all-day access will be offered for $5 to local residents with a valid ID. There also will be weekly and annual passes available in the near future.

"I'm from Chicago originally, and I see them everywhere," Spagnola said of buses like his new fleet. "Every big metro city has transportation, and it's time for Destin to have it."

Gulf Coast Go is planning for a June grand opening. For more information, visit www.gulfcoastgofl.com or call 850-499-7217.

ACES ON BRIDGE: BOBBY WOLFF

"To do a great and important work, two things are necessary: a definite plan, and not quite enough time."

— Anonymous

When South heard his partner show a limit or better spade raise, he took control with Key-card Blackwood. The response showed two key-cards and the trump queen, so South explored for the grand slam, then decided to account for diamonds playing better than spades by offering the choice at the seven-level. You can imagine that if North's spade four were the diamond four, the grand slam in diamonds would be where you wanted to play, absent a spade ruff.

After West's top heart lead, it might have seemed to declarer that he could claim 13 tricks. But it never does any harm to take a second or even a third and fourth look at your chances when playing a grand slam. The dangers of a 4-0 trump break were not all that significant, but South realized he could eliminate that risk by thoughtfully ruffing a heart to hand at trick two. Then he cashed the spade king, observing the bad break, and led a spade to the ace.

A second heart ruff allowed him to unblock the spade jack. Then he could lead a diamond to the king. The spade queen drew the last trump, and South was able to discard his losing club, then claim the rest with diamond and club winners. The 13 tricks came in the form of seven winners in the side suits, two heart ruffs and four spade tricks in dummy. If declarer doesn't take his heart ruffs at once, he does not have the communications to do so later in addition to drawing trumps.

ANSWER: There is a simple choice between bidding one spade and one no-trump here. In favor of bidding the four-card major is that you might miss the fit if you don't. Against it is that when partner responds one diamond, he probably does not have a major suit unless he has enough values to bid again over one no-trump. I would prefer to have real clubs before introducing spades in this auction.

DEAR ABBY

Family urges bride to choose flaky cousin as maid of honor

Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I have an extremely difficult decision to make. I recently got engaged to the love of my life. However, with this comes the decision of who should be my maid of honor.

Until a couple of years ago, the choice was obvious -- my cousin. Over the past couple of years, though, we've become distant. She's an extremely flaky person and can't be counted on for much. Now, I also have a best friend who is always there when I need her, but we've been friends for only a couple of years.

My immediate family says I should still ask my cousin to be my maid of honor because her feelings will be hurt if I don't. Abby, I don't want to give such a special title to someone I can no longer depend on. She has hurt my feelings countless times by not being there. She shouldn't get the honor just because I've known her forever. Please help. -- STUCK AT A CROSSROADS

DEAR STUCK: Talk to your cousin and also your best friend. When you do, remind your cousin there are serious responsibilities that go along with being a maid of honor and ask if they would create a problem for her. Tell her that if it's too much for her, she could be a bridesmaid. If she says she wants to be maid of honor, give her the chance. However, if she flakes EVEN ONCE, ask your best friend to step in.

DEAR ABBY: I feel much more comfortable eating gluten-free. But it creates problems when I'm invited to the homes of friends. What's the best way to deal with my dietary restrictions when invited to these affairs? -- RESTRICTED EATER

DEAR RESTRICTED: If catering to your dietary restrictions is a problem for your host, deal with it by asking if he or she will be serving salad and bring something with you that you can eat with it.

HOROSCOPES BY HOLIDAY MATHIS

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — In situations in which one person's preference or opinion is tacitly understood to carry more weight than everyone else's -- enough! This is getting old! You might dismantle the unjust power structure by simply refusing to take part in it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You'll invest your attention and hours in what makes you happy. It's a great strategy. You can't go wrong with this -- not in the long term, and not over the course of this day.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21) — What good is it to feel another person's pain unless one is also moved to help relieve it? Your compassion hits you like a call to action today, and this could significantly alter your original plans.

CANCER (June 22-July 22) — Technically, discoveries are made by those who got there first, though they are often credited to those who got there loudest, most powerfully and with great support. Question of the day: How important is it to stake your claim?

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You'll get together with people who happen to be in a different mood than you are. So, whose mood prevails? Do both meet somewhere in the middle? Hopefully, the better mood will lift the other.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Work fast so you can play slow, or at least play without distraction for nice blocks of time. This will be a reward to savor, and, better yet, it will lead to more of the same.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Loving people do not always get to choose how that love gets distributed. You'll set out to direct your focus on one who always rewards it, and yet there will be others who need you more. That's just how it goes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) — As much as you would like to be able to explore every option, there won't be time for meandering. Your intuition will come in the form of a preference. It will be practically impossible to miss this one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You'll be in a position to lead. The first order of business is to help the others see what there is to want. Create an appetite for what's in it for them. Tell a part of the story that will make people wonder what's next.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — While rejection is a necessary part of life, there's no reason to put yourself in the position to risk rejection today. You'll talk to people who want to be talked to.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Check in with each member of your group to make sure everyone is on the same page. When you all work together you'll turn out a result all will be proud to claim.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — When the situation doesn't feel right, that doesn't make it wrong; it's just not for you. Trust that enough to walk away so you can find something that is right for you.

Tiger Sharks capture 1A state title

By Dustin Kent

dkent@pcnh.com

FORT MYERS — The Port St. Joe baseball team was hoping it would get to celebrate a state championship Saturday in Fort Myers. Although a torrent of rain made that impossible, it turns out it only postponed the Tiger Sharks' celebration by a couple of days.

Port St. Joe got a complete-game, four-hit shutout from Chris Stockton and knocked off Madison County 4-0 on Monday to capture the second 1A state baseball championship in school history. The Tiger Sharks finished the season 18-12, while the Cowboys ended their year at 17-12.

It's a remarkable achievement for a program on its third coach in the past year, with current skipper Ashley Summerlin taking over in January less than a month before the start of the regular season.

"It's unbelievable," Summerlin said. "Really to be where we were when we started the year and to be where we are now is a testament to our seniors and to the hard work that they put in and what it means to come together as a team and be a part of a family. It's just unbelievable."

The Tiger Sharks won their first game in Fort Myers 7-3 over Blountstown on Friday before having Saturday's

Kyle Busch blows past field for 1st Charlotte points win

By Pete Iacobelli
The Associated Press

CONCORD, N.C. — Kyle Busch led 377 of 400 laps in a dominating Coca-Cola 600 run at Charlotte Motor Speedway to finally break through with a points-race victory at the only NASCAR Cup track that had eluded him.

Busch started on the pole, won every stage in the circuit's longest race and left everyone else fighting for second on the way to his fourth victory of the season.

The victory gave Busch a points-race win at every NASCAR track on the schedule.

"I don't know if it has ever been done before but the first one ever to check off all of the tracks and get it all done," Busch said. "I don't want to go to any new ones so now we just have to start the whole process over."

Martin Truex Jr. was second, some four seconds behind. Two years ago, Truex had his own mind-boggling performance, leading 392 of 400 laps for a NASCAR-record 588 of 600 miles to win at Charlotte.

Truex thought he might have enough to catch Busch in this one, but did not.

"We got up behind Kyle and I thought we were pretty close," Truex said. "But man he was just really stout on the long runs. On the last 30 lap run he could really check out."

Kevin Harvick's try for a third straight points win this month ended with an early accident.

Busch's Joe Gibbs Racing teammate, Denny Hamlin, was third, followed by Brad Keselowski and Jimmie Johnson.

Busch's victory ended a day of dominance on racing's single biggest day. Things began with Australia's Daniel Ricciardo taking the pole and leading every lap at the Monaco Grand Prix. It continued at the Indianapolis 500 with Will Power giving owner Roger Penske his 17th win at the Brickyard.

Once Busch took the track, he quickly proved he would not be kept out of Charlotte's Victory Lane again.

This race figured to be a match race between NASCAR's two hottest drivers in Busch and Kevin Harvick.

Harvick had won five times, including the past two points events and the All-Star race here last week.

Instead, Harvick's race ended early after an accident on Lap 83. Harvick hit the wall, cut a front tire and trailed sparks on the track toward the garage.

Harvick showed off one of the best cars, rallying from starting 39th due to inspection problems this week to get the fourth before his problems began.

"Happy" Harvick didn't sound too broken up about his quick night. "I can't complain about anything that's happened this year," said Harvick, who finished last. "We have to take the good with the bad."

Harvick last left the track early in the season-opening Daytona 500, then followed that with three straight victories.

Jamie McMurray was sixth, followed by Kyle Larson, Kurt Busch, Alex Bowman and Ricky Stenhouse Jr.

Who's hot

Things might be turning around for seven-time NASCAR series champion Johnson, who had his fifth top-10 finish this season and fourth in the past six races. Johnson rallied from a mid-race spin to get himself into the top five.

Who's not

Harvick wasn't the only contender to leave the track early. Defending champion Austin Dillon also hit the wall after blowing a tire. Smoke enveloped his pit area as Dillon's team tried to repair the damage and the car headed to the garage for extensive fixes before coming back to the track 52 laps down.

Gators are top seed in NCAA tourney

The Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. — Losses in six of its last seven games didn't diminish defending national champion Florida's overall body of work when it came to seeding the NCAA baseball tournament.

The Gators (42-17) are No. 1, and there never was much doubt, NCAA Division I Baseball Committee chairman Ray Tanner said Monday after the 64-team field was unveiled.

Kevin O'Sullivan's program is the first to earn the No. 1 overall seed three times since the tournament went to its current structure in 1999. The Gators also were top seeds in 2012 and 2016.

"They were incredible the majority of the season and didn't finish strong," said Tanner, athletic director at South Carolina. "As we were finishing up our data last week before coming to Indianapolis, I was curious to see if they were going to be a clear-cut (choice) once we got into the committee room, and they continued to be, despite not finishing the way coach O'Sullivan would have wanted them to finish. They clearly were the No. 1 seed with all the metrics considered."

Play begins Friday in 16 regionals. Winners advance to eight best-of-three super regionals. Those winners move on to the College World Series in Omaha.

The NCAA seeded 16 teams for the first time. There had been eight seeds previously.

Stanford (44-10) is the No. 2 seed, followed by Oregon State (44-10-1), Mississippi (46-15), Arkansas (39-18), North Carolina (38-18), Florida State (43-17) and Georgia (37-19).

Seeds nine through 16 are Texas Tech (39-17), Clemson (45-14), Stetson

LeBron's 35 help Cavs beat Celtics, reach NBA Finals

By Jimmy Golen
The Associated Press

BOSTON — With another Game 7 victory at stake, LeBron James would not miss. He would not sit out. And he would not be denied an eighth straight trip to the NBA Finals.

The four-time league MVP scored 35 points with 15 rebounds and nine assists on Sunday night, leading the Cleveland Cavaliers to an 87-79 win over the Celtics and eliminating Boston from the Eastern Conference finals in the decisive seventh game.

In the first close game of the series — and the lowest-scoring — James played all 48 minutes and had 12 of his points in the fourth quarter for his sixth straight Game 7 win.

The NBA Finals begin Thursday at either Houston or Golden State. The Rockets host the seventh game of the West finals on Monday night.

Jayson Tatum scored 24, Al Horford scored 17 and Marcus Morris added 14 points with 12 rebounds for the Celtics, who were looking to return to the NBA Finals for the first time since 2010.

Tatum had a dunk over James with 6:41 left — and stared down the Cavaliers star and bumped him with his chest — and then followed it with a 3-pointer that gave the Celtics a 72-71 lead. But that would be Boston's last basket for more than five minutes while Cleveland went on a 15-2 run to put the game away.

James and Horford embraced after the buzzer, then the Cavaliers donned NBA Finals hats and Eastern conference championship shirts before shuffling off the court to receive their trophy.

It's not the one they want.

James has been in the finals every year since 2011 — four with Miami, and now four straight with Cleveland.

This might be his weakest supporting cast year.

He had to do it without Kevin Love — Cleveland's only other all-star — who sustained a concussion in Game 6 and was replaced in the lineup by Jeff Green. Making his first start since the first-round opener against Indiana, Green scored 19 points and added eight rebounds — the star of James' starless supporting cast.

The Celtics have had more time to get used to their injuries: Gordon Hayward has been out since the first game of the season, and Kyrie Irving has been sidelined since March. With the rookie Tatum and second-year Jaylen Brown, Boston established itself as the team of the future in the East.

But the present still belongs to James.

And, for now, that means Cleveland, too.

Admiring his work

The Celtics led by as many as 12 points in the first half, and they had a 51-47 lead midway through the third quarter when James hit a long 3-pointer and then Green made a 3 of his own. James hit Tristan Thompson for an alley-oop to give Cleveland a 55-51 lead, but then James threw the ball away and sent Terry Rozier off on a fast break.

James tracked the Celtics guard from the far sideline, timing his attack. When Rozier went up for the lay-in, James blocked it off the backboard and right to Green. James did not run back down the court, resting up while Green drew a foul at the other end and made one free throw to give the Cavaliers their biggest lead of the game.

Djokovic advances, Wawrinka out at Open

PARIS — Like Novak Djokovic, Stan Wawrinka is a past French Open champion still working his way back into form after surgery.

Like Djokovic, Wawrinka is ranked lower than he has been in more than a decade. And like Djokovic, Wawrinka recently reunited with a coach who helped guide him to success earlier in his career.

Both men were in first-round action at Roland Garros on Monday, but unlike Djokovic, who won in straight sets, Wawrinka could not summon and sustain the sort of high-level play that has carried him to major titles in Paris and elsewhere. Returning to a place where he won the title in 2015 and made it back to the final a year ago, Wawrinka bowed out with a 6-2, 3-6, 4-6, 7-6 (5), 6-3 loss to 67th-ranked Guillermo Garcia-Lopez of Spain.

"I won three Grand Slams in my career, and I know what it takes to do it," said Wawrinka, who was seeded 23rd and is ranked only 30th, territory unfamiliar to him since April 2008. "And my goal is to get to my top. Sooner or later, I will."

Wawrinka only recently returned to the tour after missing three months to rest his left knee, which was operated on twice last August. He's played 11 matches in 2018, going 4-7.

As Monday's match stretched to 3 hours, Wawrinka was hindered by the physical strain of playing in a fifth set for the first time since his French Open semifinal victory over Andy Murray a year ago. But that wasn't the biggest impediment to success.

"It was more the difficulty of continuing to go for it mentally," he explained.

The owner of one of the prettiest one-handed backhands in the sport, Wawrinka — who is again working with coach Magnus Norman — only managed 12 winners, compared with 35 unforced errors, with that shot. He finished with 72 unforced errors in all, 32 more than Garcia-Lopez, who never has been past the fourth round at a major tournament.

PORT ST. JOE

championship round rained out. Elijah Hester led PSJ on the mound in the semifinals with his fourth consecutive postseason victory, but it was fellow senior Stockton who got the ball Monday and delivered a dominant performance in his first start in almost a month.

Stockton allowed just four hits and two walks with one strikeout to earn his sixth victory of the season. It was an even more impressive display considering that he had pitched just ⅔ of an inning since starting in the team's 8-4 District 1 tournament semifinal win over Liberty County on May 1.

"(Stockton) has kind of been in Hester's shadow lately, but people forget that almost a month ago we had the biggest game of the year to get in the playoffs and Stockton got the ball and did a heck of a job for us," Summerlin said. "He's been kind of an unsung hero for us, but he's been there. I told him in practice last week that Hester was gonna pitch and win the first game and that you'll win the state championship. I'm excited that he got that opportunity and was able to finish it out."

Drew Herring started and took the loss for Madison County, giving up four earned runs on seven hits and six walks with seven strikeouts in five innings. PSJ got on the board first in the bottom of the second inning on an RBI single by John Gee, and then added to the lead with a two-run double to right field by Bryce Register in the third. An RBI single by Cameron Harmon in the fourth inning rounded out the scoring.

Register was 2 for 3 with two RBI and a run to lead PSJ, with Gee going 2 for 2 with a walk and an RBI. Harmon was 1 for 3 with an RBI, while Caleb Butts and Jaden Grantland both were 1 for 2 with a walk and a run. Josh Butts walked three times and scored a run. Jaebion Mitchell led Madison County with two hits, including a triple.

The Tigers Sharks' run to the title seems somewhat improbable in retrospect given that they were 9-11 following a three-game losing skid that culminated with a 10-7 home loss to district foe Bozeman on April 17. But PSJ was virtually untouchable from that point forward, winning nine of its last 10 games to finish the season. The Tiger Sharks run-ruled Bozeman in the district title game and again in the region final rematch, and eight of their last nine wins came by four runs or more.

"I knew that when we came together that we were playing really good ball at the end of the year," Summerlin said. "At the start of the year, we were trying to figure things out. The kids were trying to figure me out and I was trying to figure them out. It took a while and there was a learning curve there, but we played some really good teams and the kids never tucked their tails. They held their heads high and competed every day. They went with that win-every-day attitude and it just started falling into place for us.

"If you want to win a championship, you've got to catch some breaks and we caught some and we got hot at the right time. We're excited for the seniors because they left a legacy for what is expected for the kids coming after them. If you're going to continue winning like this, you're going to have to match their standard every day."

(45-11), East Carolina (43-16), Texas (37-20), Minnesota (41-13), Coastal Carolina (42-17) and North Carolina State (40-16).

Florida, the regular-season champion in the Southeastern Conference, is the only team to earn a national seed in each of the last five seasons.

"Obviously, we haven't played well lately, but coming home and having a full week of practice before the regional will certainly help," O'Sullivan said. "We'll try to get healthy ahead of the weekend and get some guys back on track before we play Columbia on Friday. At the end of the day, everybody has a clean slate now, and our guys will be as motivated as anyone to show everyone how good they are."

Florida State, at 41 appearances in a row, has the longest active streak, but no national championships to show for them.

"For me to say a national championship isn't important is as dumb a thing as anybody can say. Darn right it's important," said Seminoles coach Mike Martin, whose 1,987 career wins are an NCAA record. "Every coach that works is striving to be known as the top dog when it's all said and done. That is something our program is lacking and we're working very hard to achieve that."

The last four teams to make the field were Dallas Baptist (40-19), Northeastern (36-19), Oklahoma State (29-24-1) and Troy (41-19). The first four out were Arizona (34-22), Illinois (33-20), Kentucky (34-22) and Central Florida (35-21).

Perhaps the biggest surprise was Kentucky's exclusion and Northeastern's inclusion.

At No. 30, Kentucky had the highest RPI of any team not selected. The Wildcats went 3-0 in a March tournament in Houston, including a win over the host and American Athletic Conference regular-season champion Cougars. They won two of three each against national seeds Texas Tech and Georgia.

Northeastern, No. 35 in the RPI, lost two of three at Auburn, was outscored 56-12 in losing four straight at Texas Tech, and lost four of six to No. 65 RPI team UNC-Wilmington.

Kentucky was punished for going 13-17 in the SEC and losing its league tournament opener. Northeastern went 17-6 and was first in the Colonial Athletic Association.

Tanner said the committee placed emphasis on conference play perhaps more than previous committees. He pointed out that only one team in the field, Texas A&M, had a below-.500 conference record. The Aggies are No.15 in the RPI, though.

The SEC tied the tournament record with 10 teams in the field, including four top-eight seeds.

Big 12 regular-season champion Texas is making its record 59th appearance. Hartford (26-29), the America East regular-season and tournament winner, is in for the first time and will play host Stetson as a No. 4 regional seed.

Notable teams not in the field are Rice (26-31-2), which had made 23 straight appearances, and Virginia (29-25), which had made 14 in a row. TCU (33-23), which lost to Baylor in the Big 12 final, also will stay home after reaching the College World Series the last four years.

Chipola College loses World Series opener

The News Herald

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. — Chipola College was forced into a losers' bracket game on Monday after losing its opener on Saturday in the NJCAA Division I Baseball World Series.

The Indians, 43-17, fell 8-6 as Walters State scored the final five runs of the game to pull away. Walters State, 57-6, advanced to a second-round matchup with Jefferson on Monday while Chipola faced Temple in an elimination game.

Chipola led Walters State 6-3 following Jonathan Nieves' solo home run in the bottom of the fifth inning and third run batted in of the game.

A trio of relievers who followed starter Andrew Grogan and Jose Visaez, first out of the bullpen, couldn't hold the lead through the ensuing four innings.

Hunter Gilliland and Austin Henry each had two hits and two RBIs for Walters, which had 13 hits. Nieves had three hits and three RBIs and Morgan McCullough three hits and one RBI for Chipola.

Oklahoma, Oregon head WCWS field

The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY — Two-time defending champion Oklahoma and No. 1 seed Oregon highlight the Women's College World Series field.

The top eight seeds qualified, including four teams from the Pac-12. The games begin Thursday at ASA Hall of Fame Stadium in Oklahoma City.

No. 4 seed Oklahoma (55-3) will face No. 5 Washington (49-8). Oklahoma features pitcher Paige Parker and power hitter Jocelyn Alo. Parker has been Oklahoma's ace the past two seasons. Alo, a freshman, leads the nation with 28 home runs.

Oregon (52-8) will play Pac-12 rival Arizona State (48-11). Oregon and Oklahoma could meet Friday.

In the other bracket, No. 2 Florida (55-9) will play No. 7 Georgia (48-11) and No. 3 UCLA (56-5) will face No. 6 Florida State (52-11). Georgia's Brittany Gray leads the nation with a 0.48 ERA.

Florida won national titles in 2014 and 2015 and is expected to be a threat again with pitcher Kelly Barnhill in the circle.

Rose 20 under at Colonial for 3-stroke win over Koepka

By Stephen Hawkins
The Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Texas — Justin Rose got his first PGA Tour victory at Jack Nicklaus' tournament. His latest came after finishing 20 under at Hogan's Alley, three strokes ahead of defending U.S. Open champion Brooks Koepka.

"If you are able to win at a course that has great history, has had great champions, and if I begin to look at the courses I've won at, this definitely strengthens that group even more," Rose said after his closing 6-under 64 Sunday in the Fort Worth Invitational.

Along with the plaid jacket that comes with winning at Colonial, the longest-running PGA Tour event still played at its original site (since 1946), Rose added to an impressive list of traditional courses where he has won.

There was that victory at Muirfield Village in the 2010 Memorial, and the 2013 U.S. Open at Merion among his nine PGA Tour wins. His 11 international victories include the 2014 Scottish Open at Royal Aberdeen Golf Club, and the 2007 Volvo Masters at Valderrama in Spain.

"I'm very proud of the places I've been able to win," Rose said. "I'm not saying they suit my game, but happy my game has turned up and I've been inspired by some of these great venues."

In the final round at Colonial, where Ben Hogan won five times, Rose stayed aggressive while playing with Koepka even after starting the day with a four-stroke lead.

Koepka shot 63 on way to his sixth runner-up finish in three years. Both of his second-place finishes this season have been behind Rose, the 37-year-old Englishman and No. 5 player in the world who also won his 2017-18 debut in October at the HSBC Champions in Shanghai.

"It was very impressive the way he played all day. He never backed off," Koepka said. "Never really gave an opportunity for anybody to get in there."

Emiliano Grillo had a 64 to finish third at 16 under, his fifth top-10 in 16 starts this season.

While Rose missed matching Zach Johnson's 2010 tournament scoring record of 259 because of bogey on the 72nd hole, first-round leader Kevin Na matched the course record with a closing 61 and finished fourth at 14 under.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING TO CONSIDER PLAT APPROVAL

Notice is hereby given by the City Council of the City of Panama City Beach, Florida, that, having received an application from 68V Moonraker (FL) 2017, LLC it intends to consider the approval of a final subdivision plat for MOONRAKER which proposed subdivision is located at the intersection of Alf Coleman Road and Hutchison Boulevard. The City will hold a quasi-judicial public hearing to consider the plat at the City Council's meeting to be conducted at 6:00 P.M. on Thursday, June 14, 2018, at the George C. Cowgill City Hall Annex, 110 South Arnold Road, Panama City Beach, Florida 32413, in accordance with the Type II Procedures set forth in the City's Land Development Code for subdivision plats. A copy of the proposed plat may be inspected at the office of the City Clerk at City Hall.

Further information on this item may be obtained from Kelly Jenkins, City Engineer, by calling 850-233-5100. All interested persons are invited to attend and present information for the City Council's consideration. Anyone not appearing in person may submit written comments to the City Clerk at any time prior to the stated meeting time at City Hall or by email to jsmith@pcbgov.com. The meeting will also be live-streamed on the City website www.pcbgov.com.

Any appeal of the City Council's decision may be made to the Clerk of the Circuit Court in Bay County, Florida. If a person decides to appeal any decision made by the City Council with respect to any matter considered, such person will need a record of the proceedings and may need to ensure that a verbatim record is made, including the testimony and evidence upon which the appeal is to be made.

Any person requiring a special accommodation to participate in this proceeding because of a disability or physical impairment should contact the City Clerk, at City Hall, 110 South Arnold Road, Panama City Beach, Florida, 32413 or by phone at (850) 233-5100 at least five (5) calendar days prior to the meeting. If you are hearing or speech impaired, and you possess TDD equipment, you may contact the City Clerk using the Florida Dual Party Relay system which can be reached at (800) 955-8770 (Voice) or (800) 955-8771 (TDD).
