Bay City Point phase 2 unveiled

Burlington Coat Factory, Ulta, Five Below and Hobby Lobby all named

PANAMA CITY — More than two years after developers started discussing plans for Bay City Point, phase two has been submitted to the city — naming several new businesses.

A Burlington Coat Factory, Ulta Beauty, Five Below and Hobby Lobby were named as tenants in the plans R H Ledbetter Properties Inc. submitted Monday to the city. The site plans also show several spaces that still are open.

“This is five years in the making,” said Panama City Planning Director Mike Lane. “I’m excited about it. ... When it is completely filled it really will be a significant asset for us.”

While the process might have taken a while — Five

Below, for example, has been slated to come to Panama City since before the one was announced in Pier Park — Lane said from here the construction timeline is relatively fast.

Burlington Coat Factory wants Ledbetter to have its development pad ready by about April, at which point the site would be turned over to a Burlington’s Coat Factory’s crew to go vertical, Lane said. Hobby Lobby wants its pad ready by early August.

Work was underway Tuesday as more trees were being cleared from the site of phase two.

PANAMA CITY — An alcoholic for much of her life, Ruby Collins swore off drinking about three weeks ago and decided to make a positive change.

The disease has left her homeless, but she is a long way from hopeless.

So when the chance arose Monday night to get a symbolic clean start and be baptized in front of a crowd of onlookers, Collins was the first in line.

“I’m tired of living the way I do,” she said. “I think the only thing that can help is God. This is my renewal.”

Collins was among about eight other people, homeless or otherwise in need, who one by one stepped into a metal wash tub outside the downtown Panama City law office of Carroll McCauley and took the plunge toward a new lifestyle.

It was the first time baptisms had been incorporated into the monthly gathering — which takes place every first Monday — outside the law office.

Somewhat controversial in its origins, Gather at Our Table Ministries president Misty Sexton said the decision to host baptisms along with distributing food and a message of hope to the homeless came as a demand from some of the regular attendants of the monthly meeting.

“These are the lost and forgotten,” Sexton said. “They’re the ones that think they have no one and nobody loves them. Our goal is to send the message that

NICEVILLE IS MOSLEY’S BIGGEST TEST YET

NY Times: Trump got $413M from his dad

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The New York Times reported Tuesday that President Donald Trump received at least $413 million from his father over the decades, much of that through dubious tax dodges, including outright fraud.

The 15,000-word Times report contradicts Trump’s portrayal of himself as a self-made billionaire who started with just a $1 million loan from his father.

The Times says Trump and his father, Fred, avoided gift and inheritance taxes by setting up a sham corporation and undervaluing assets to tax authorities. The Times says its report is based on more than 100,000 pages of financial documents, including confidential tax returns from the father and his companies.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 3, the 276th day of 2018. There are 89 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 3, 1995, the jury in the O.J. Simpson murder trial in Los Angeles found the former football star not guilty of the 1994 slayings of his former wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and Ronald Goldman (however, Simpson was later found liable for damages in a civil trial).

On this date:

In 1863, President Abraham Lincoln proclaimed the last Thursday in November Thanksgiving Day.

In 1941, Adolf Hitler declared in a speech in Berlin that Russia had been "broken" and would "never rise again." "The Maltese Falcon" — the version starring Humphrey Bogart and directed by John Huston — premiered in New York.

In 1962, astronaut Wally Schirra became the fifth American to fly in space as he blasted off from Cape Canaveral aboard the Sigma 7 on a 9-hour flight.

In 1967, folk singer-songwriter Woody Guthrie, the Dust Bowl Troubadour best known for "This Land Is Your Land," died in New York of complications from Huntington's disease; he was 55.

In 2001, the Senate approved an agreement normalizing trade between the United States and Vietnam.

In 2003, a tiger attacked magician Roy Horn of duo "Siegfried & Roy" during a performance in Las Vegas, leaving the superstar illusionist in critical condition on his 59th birthday.

In 2008, Amid dire warnings of economic disaster, a reluctant Congress abruptly reversed course and approved a historic $700 billion government bailout of the battered financial industry; President George W. Bush swiftly signed it.

Trump taps fears of #MeToo run amok

By Catherine Lucey
and Jill Colvin
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Men of America, be afraid. This could happen to you.

That's the alarm President Donald Trump and his GOP allies are increasingly sounding as they try to defend their Supreme Court nominee from sexual assault allegations. The three-decade-old accusation facing Brett Kavanaugh is not only false, they argue, but an example of the #MeToo movement gone too far in its call to believe the women — and not the men. It's a message that looks to channel the frustration and anxieties of the party's bedrock voters — white men — just weeks before an election.

This is "a scary time," Trump said Tuesday. "It's a very scary time for young men in America when you can be guilty of something that you may not be guilty of. You can be somebody that was perfect your entire life and somebody could accuse you of something ... and you're automatically guilty."

Trump's comments came as Republicans stare down a challenging midterm election and need to motivate their most reliable voters. All signs suggest Democratic women are energized by opposition to Trump's presidency. The primary season yielded record numbers of female candidates. Kavanaugh's confirmation battle and the national soul-searching over sexual consent it has provoked threaten only to further motivate liberal female voters, leaving Republicans searching for a counterweight.

In his warning, Trump echoed some of his allies. Rep. Steve King of Iowa said "if Kavanaugh is not confirmed, every man is subject to seeing their life's work and their reputation destroyed by an unsubstantiated allegation." Sen. John Kennedy of Louisiana declared: "This is no country for creepy old men. Or young men. Or middle-aged men. But this is no country at all." And Trump's oldest son, Donald Trump Jr., told the Daily Mail this week: "I've got boys, and I've got girls. And when I see what's going on right now, it's scary," adding that right now he fears more for his sons.

The rising frustration came as the Kavanaugh confirmation process played out before the country, with both Kavanaugh and one of his accusers, Christine Blasey Ford, appearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee last week to discuss her claim that he sexually assaulted her at a high school party more than 30 years ago. Kavanaugh's confirmation continues to hang in the balance as the FBI investigates the allegation, which Kavanaugh has forcefully denied.

With the midterm elections just weeks away, Republicans risk losing the House and possibly the Senate as they face an energized Democratic party — particularly educated, suburban women and minorities — and a wave of GOP retirements, as well as the president's sagging approval ratings and the tide of controversy around his White House.

Trump's GOP badly needs to motivate men, especially the white, working-class men who fueled the president's political rise, experts say.

Trump's electoral strategy has long revolved around the argument that men "are somehow victims or they're losing out to other people or they're unfairly persecuted in an age of political correctness," said Julian Zelizer, a political historian at Princeton University.

The November elections are "all about turnout, enthusiasm and motivation," which Democrats have shown they have. "The question is: How can Trump or the Republicans counter-balance that? And this is the way that can do that," Zelizer said. "It's another way to shore up his base."

Indeed, a Quinnipiac University poll released Monday found a gaping gender gap when it comes to support for Kavanaugh's nomination. The poll found 55 percent of women do not believe the Senate should confirm him, versus just 40 percent of men. And 52 percent of men believe Kavanaugh has been treated unfairly, versus just 43 percent of women.

"The disparity is stunning," said Jim Malloy, assistant director of the Quinnipiac University Poll. "You usually don't see this kind of divide between men and women on seminal, important issues."

Polls show Republicans are more likely to be skeptical of the #MeToo movement, which has spurred women to come forward with their stories of sexual assault and harassment, and to believe it has gone too far.

Man free after arrest on refuted shooting accusation

A man who spent nearly two months in jail after being accused of shooting at a Louisiana police officer was freed Tuesday, as evidence indicated that only the officer fired a gun.

Raheem Howard, 21, had faced a charge of attempted murder of a Baton Rouge police officer. But, about three weeks after the arrest, a prosecutor later said there was insufficient evidence for the charge. The Advocate reported that — although the officer claimed Howard fired first — audio from the police car's rear camera and a neighbor's surveillance video supported Howard's claim that only one gunshot was fired after the Aug. 7 traffic stop.

Group: 34 migrants feared dead in waters off Morocco

A Spanish nonprofit group said 34 migrants were feared dead after their group waited for more than 36 hours to be rescued from a semi-sunken boat in waters off Morocco. The Moroccan Interior Ministry said Tuesday 11 bodies were recovered and the boat's teenage skipper had been detained.

The migrants continuously pleaded for help from Spanish and Moroccan authorities for at least 12 hours Sunday before their mobile phones lost power, Walking Borders founder Helena Maleno said.

The Morocco-based Spanish activist said she alerted Spain's maritime rescue service about the sinking dinghy and its approximate location and that 26 survivors, all from sub-Saharan African countries, were brought ashore 1½ days later in the northern Moroccan town of Nador.

Jury picked for W.Va. Justice Loughry's trial

A federal jury has been selected for the criminal trial of West Virginia Supreme Court Justice Allen Loughry.

The jury of 10 women and two men was chosen Tuesday. They'll listen to opening arguments Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Charleston.

A 25-count indictment includes allegations that Loughry repeatedly lied about using his office for personal gain. He's also charged with making personal use of a state vehicle and credit card, and of trying to influence an employee's testimony and a federal grand jury investigation. He has pleaded not guilty to the charges earlier.

Melania Trump opened her first big solo international trip as U.S. first lady on Tuesday with a wave, a smile and a baby in her arms, aiming to promote child welfare during a five-day tour of Africa.

She arrived in the West African nation of Ghana after an overnight flight from Washington and quickly made her way to the Greater Accra Regional Hospital.

The first lady saw how babies are weighed — they're placed in sacks that are then hung from a hook attached to a scale. She also watched a nurse demonstrate how vitamins are administered to babies by mouth and toured the neonatal intensive care unit.

Iraq tasks Shiite independent with forming new government

Iraq's new president has tasked veteran Shiite politician Adel Abdul-Mahdi with forming a new government nearly five months after national elections were held, state TV reported late Tuesday.

Abdul-Mahdi is an independent who previously served as vice president, oil minister and finance minister. He is not allied with either of the two Shiite-led blocs that each claim to have the most support after May's elections, in which no party won an outright majority. He was previously a member of the Supreme Islamic Iraqi Council, a large Shiite party with close ties to Iran.

Blacks see a double standard in case

By Jesse J. Holland
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Marcus Dixon was sentenced to 10 years behind bars in Georgia for having sex with an underage white girl when he was 18. Dayonn Davis, another black youth, got a five-year prison sentence for stealing a $100 pair of shoes at gunpoint when he was 15.

It's cases like those that minorities and others point to with frustration when they hear some of Brett Kavanaugh's defenders say the sexual assault and underage-drinking accusations against the Supreme Court nominee fall under the category of "Boys will be boys."

Some see a racial double standard at work, complaining that when young blacks get into trouble, their actions rarely are viewed as youthful folly in the way that the misdeeds of privileged whites are.

"I think there is a very distinct difference between the benefit of the doubt that is extended to black males and to white males," said Jarvis DeBerry, columnist and deputy opinion editor of NOLA.com/Times Picayune.

Studies show young blacks are often perceived as older and less innocent than whites their age, a phenomenon some say translates all too often into African-American youths being demonized as "thugs," arrested, incarcerated and sometimes killed.

Kavanaugh's accuser, Christine Blasey Ford, says a drunken Kavanaugh held her down, tried to take off her clothes and covered her mouth to muffle her screams when they were high school students in the 1980s. Kavanaugh has forcefully denied doing any such thing to anyone, and many supporters say they believe him.

Others have suggested that if it did happen, he might deserve a pass.

"Let's say he did this exactly as she said. Should the fact that a 17-year-old, presumably very drunk kid did this, should this be disqualifying? That's the question at the end of the day, isn't it?" Bari Weiss, a New York Times opinion editor, said on MSNBC.

Minnesota state Sen. Scott Newman tweeted: "Even if true, teenagers!"

Some black commentators and others have recoiled at that line of argument, pointing to the killings of 12-year-old Tamir Rice, who was shot by a white Cleveland police officer in 2014 while carrying what turned out to be a pellet gun; Michael Brown, the unarmed 18-year-old whose shooting by police that same year touched off violence in Ferguson, Missouri; and 17-year-old Trayvon Martin, who was gunned down in 2012 by a neighborhood watch volunteer while carrying iced tea and a bag of Skittles.

"The right wants Brett Kavanaugh to get another chance because, hey, he was just a teenager, but they also believe teenagers like Trayvon Martin and Michael Brown got what they deserved," author and critic Toure tweeted.

He and two friends — Ger-tavious Montrez Canada, 25, and Rodney Racquez Jones, 19 — were arrested after authorities arrived Aug. 20, 2017, to the CVS at 7112 U.S. 98 to find Jason Ian Price had been shot almost point blank in the chest with a Draco AK-47 during an attempted robbery for marijuana. Giddens was convicted last week of first-degree felony murder with a firearm and attempted robbery with a deadly weapon, for which Circuit Judge Michael Overstreet sentenced him to life in prison.

Lora Schoonover, mother of Price, gave an emotional speech before Giddens' sentencing. With her husband, Ryan, and her younger son, Cameron Price, on either side of her, she told the court of Ian Price's kindness and generosity.

"He was always willing to help anyone in need, and that's exactly what he did until his dying breath — protect, choosing selflessness and love," Schoonover said, turning to address Giddens directly. "If that would've been you or any of those other young men that Ian saw in trouble, even though he didn't know you, he would've tried to help you. It wasn't about having to know someone deeply, it was about knowing someone was in need."

Giddens, who seemed jovial and was smiling when he entered the court, did not look at Schoonover during any of her testimony. At the end, Giddens gave a brief statement.

"I just want to say I'm sorry for the family's loss," he said.

After Overstreet sentenced Giddens, Schoonover said she was satisfied with the punishment. She added that she was conflicted by Giddens' apology.

"I have mixed emotions," Schoonover said. "I appreciate it, but I don't know if that was from his heart. I just hope that is how he feels."

During Giddens' trial, the prosecution laid out the case that Giddens and company had taken the four-hour drive from Auburn, Alabama, to Panama City Beach with the intention of robbery. They ran into a group of local high school students at a nearby Taco Bell and arranged to buy an ounce of marijuana from their source. Price's role was as a driver for the marijuana dealer, 17-year-old John Pyle, and he remained behind in his truck until he saw the deal was going bad.

Giddens conceded that he killed Price, and took the stand on the final day of his trial in an attempt to persuade the jury that he shot Price in self-defense. He called Price "the said victim" during his testimony and claimed that a physical fight escalated to a struggle over the AK-47 and ended in gunfire.

"He approaches me in a very, very hostile manner — did nothing to slow down," Giddens told the jury. "He's fixing to literally take the gun out of my hand. It's survival, period. Survive and stay alive."

Both of Giddens' friends testified otherwise, though, and received lighter sentences for their testimony.

Canada told the jury there was no physical fight happening when he watched Giddens abruptly draw the AK-47 from a book bag and demand the marijuana from Pyle. Canada said he did not stick around for the gunfire to start.

"Everybody was talking at once ... and he was like 'give the s up,' "

Canada told the jury. "As soon as I heard that gunshot, I ran because I was scared."

Jones additionally told the jury that Giddens had unveiled his plot to rob the group of teens beforehand. As they fled the scene and went to change clothes, Giddens showed no remorse when asked why he shot Price for coming to the aid of his friend, Jones said.

"He looked at me and said 'f that n, bro,'" Jones told the jury. "I told him he was tripping."

Since Giddens and the others had a disagreement with their ride from Alabama in the hours before the shooting, they could not immediately leave the state. They were arrested later that night while waiting at a nearby hotel for a ride home.

Canada was sentenced Monday to four years in prison and Jones was sentenced to 15 years.

Giddens' family was not in court during his sentencing. Canada's family was there to see the sentencing of the man who also cost them the next four years of their relative's life.

Schoonover said she and her family regularly drive past the CVS parking lot where Price was slain. She said Giddens' actions not only deprived her family of Price but also of the others involved of years with their loved ones. Schoonover said the sentence came as relief to her but the heartache of losing her eldest son lingers on.

"Every day I've been forced to walk around with a hole in my heart," she said. "However, I refuse to allow that hole to be filled with hate. This was never about vengeance or hate, always justice. ... This is going to be a hard journey for us all. But this is a step toward closure, although nothing will ever bring Ian back."

they know they're cared for and loved."

Sexton said six people expressed a desire to be baptized in order to start a new chapter in their lives. Some had substance abuse issues while others were being invited back into their families.

When the chance arose Monday night, though, a few more people sporadically joined them in the ceremony.

Five churches participated, some members wearing shirts that read "the Church has left the

They played guitar, sang, passed out food and prayed with the homeless and elderly attendants. Debra Laminack, a co-founder of Gather at Our Table Ministries, said that embodies the goal of the group.

"God called us to take the church out of the building and bring it to the people," Laminack said. "There's different places that make people feel different ways. We bring the church to the streets."

Gatherings on the property have been the subject of controversy for some time, as Panama City has been working on the homeless issue downtown for years. In 2011, Mayor Greg Brudnicki made cleaning up the downtown a key part of his campaign.

City officials later passed a panhandling ordinance and tried to stop the "feedings" at McKenzie Park by requiring churches and nonprofits to get a permit.

Some downtown business owners have expressed concerns that the "feedings" at McKenzie, the proximity of the Panama City Rescue Mission and Greyhound bus station, and current policing sustained a vagrant lifestyle.

However, the charitable groups found a new home in the parking lot at McCauley's law offices.

Sexton said the needs of many homeless and elderly otherwise would go unaddressed.

She said some of the Rescue Mission's policies — a limit on stays and breathalyzer tests — leave several people in need without options for a hot meal.

Sexton said that realization is what led her to begin in January distributing food outside the law office.

She has since expanded to serving meals five nights a week — tallying 7,800 meals by counting every plate she has passed out along the way — and offering assistance with laundry and getting paperwork in order for job searches.

"It gives them a sense of hope — that there is someone who cares for them," Sexton said. "That's what it's all about — love. We just want to show them love and give acceptance."

Collins said that without the group bringing the opportunity to commit to a clean lifestyle to her, she would be stuck in the pattern of depression and substance abuse that led her to destitution.

She said she's hopeful it will result in a positive change.

"I don't know what's next," Collins said. "I've done it my way, and it hasn't worked. So now I'm going to turn it over to God."

Studies in healthy older people aim to prevent Alzheimer's

By Marilyn Marchione
The Associated Press

PHOENIX — It may be too late to stop Alzheimer's in people who already have some mental decline. But what if a treatment could target the very earliest brain changes while memory and thinking skills are still intact, in hope of preventing the disease? Two big studies are going all out to try.

Clinics throughout the United States and some other countries are signing up participants — the only studies of this type enrolling healthy older people.

"The excitement in the Alzheimer's field right now is prevention," said Dr. Eric Reiman, executive director of the Banner Alzheimer's Institute in Phoenix, which is leading the work.

Science so far has failed to find a drug that can alter the progression of Alzheimer's, the most common form of dementia; 146 attempts have failed over the last decade, a recent industry report found. Even drugs that help remove the sticky plaques that clog the brains of people with the disease have not yet proved able to stave off mental decline.

It may be that they were tried too late, like lowering cholesterol after someone has suffered a heart attack whose damage can't be undone, Reiman said.

"What we have been learning, painfully, is that if we really want to come up with therapies that will modify the disease, we need to start very, very, very early," said Dr.

Eliezer Masliah, neuroscience chief at the National Institute on Aging.

His agency is funding the prevention studies with the Alzheimer's Association, several foundations, and Novartis and Amgen, makers of two experimental drugs being tested.

The goal is to try to block the earliest steps of plaque formation in healthy people who show no symptoms of dementia but are at higher risk for it because of age and a gene that makes it more likely.

To participate, people must first join GeneMatch, a confidential registry of folks interested in volunteering for various Alzheimer's studies who are ages 55 to 75 and have not been diagnosed with any mental decline.

They are checked for the APOE4 gene, which doesn't destine someone to develop Alzheimer's but raises that risk. About one in four people have one copy of the gene and about 2 percent have two copies, one from each parent.

More than 70,000 people have signed up since the registry began three years ago, said Jessica Langbaum, one of the Banner study leaders.

"Most of them have been touched by the disease personally," either by having a family member or close friend with it, she said.

Langbaum's 67-year-old mother, Ivy Segal, gave a DNA sample through a cheek swab and joined the registry in August. Her father was a patient at Banner and died of Alzheimer's in 2011 at age 87. Watching him go from a mild-mannered man whose smile could light up a room to what he was like when he died was devastating, she said.

Being in GeneMatch doesn't necessarily mean you'll find out if you have the gene — folks with and without it may be contacted about various studies. But to be in one of the two prevention studies, people must agree to learn their APOE4 status and have at least one copy of the gene.

Bay City Point represents the first major retail space built in the city in about 30 years, officials have said. In 2016, representatives from Ledbetter said they plan to spend $49 million developing what was a vacant 35-acre parcel into a “shopping epicenter.”

Overall, the project is anticipated to bring about 800 jobs to the area.

A tax agreement with the city requires Ledbetter to recruit mostly businesses that are new to the city in order to receive a portion of the merchant tax back through a tax increment financing plan to reinvest back in the project.

And while many of the businesses are new, some, such as Hobby Lobby and in the prior phase Chick-fil-A, are relocating from other parts of town.

Lane said the city already is talking to other companies that might want to move into Hobby Lobby's current location on 23rd Street next to the Publix shopping center, and thinks they have some “good” leads.

In the first phase of the project, a new Chick-fil-A, an Aspen Dental, Discount Tire, Chipotle, Mission BBQ, Dunkin' Donuts, Which Wich, and most popularly, a Cracker Barrel, set up shop.

A lawyer for Trump, Charles J. Harder, told the Times that there was no “fraud or tax evasion” and that the facts cited in the report are “extremely inaccurate.”

The New York state tax department told The Associated Press that it is reviewing the allegations in the Times and “is vigorously pursuing all appropriate avenues of investigation.” The department typically refers findings to the state attorney general's office.

The Times says the Trump family hid millions of dollars of transfers from the father to his children through a sham company owned by the children called All County Building Supply & Maintenance. Set up in 1992 ostensibly as a purchasing agent to supply Fred Trump's buildings with boilers, cleaning supplies and other goods, the father would pad invoices with markups of 20 percent or even 50 percent, thereby avoiding gift taxes, the newspaper reports.

The Times says that before Fred Trump died in the late 1990s, he transferred ownership of most of his real estate empire to his four living children. The value of the properties in tax returns summed up to $41.4 million, vastly less than the Times says they were worth.

The same properties would be sold off over the next decade for more than 16 times that amount.

In total, the president's father and mother transferred over $1 billion to their children, according to the Times tally. That should have produced a tax bill of at least $550 million, based on a 55 percent tax on gifts and inheritance at the time.

Instead, the children paid $52.2 million, or about 5 percent.

Tax experts cited in the report say that Trump is unlikely to face criminal prosecution in helping his parents evade taxes because the maneuvers occurred long ago and are past the statute of limitation.

The president's brother Robert Trump said that “all appropriate gift and estate tax returns” were filed. “Our family has no other comment on these matters that happened some 20 years ago,” he said in a statement to the Times, “and would appreciate your respecting the privacy of our deceased parents, may God rest their souls.”

The Times report says documents it reviewed show that the future president was earning $200,000 a year in today's dollars at the age of 3. By the time Trump had graduated from college, the report says, he was getting the equivalent of $1 million a year from his father.

AP: Lawmakers buy industry fix to stop school shootings

By Reese Dunklin and Justin Pritchard
The Associated Press

Security companies spent years pushing schools to buy more products — from “ballistic attack-resistant” doors to smoke cannons that spew haze from ceilings to confuse a shooter. But sales were slow, and industry’s campaign to free up taxpayer money for upgrades had stalled.

That changed last February, when a former student shot and killed 17 people at a Florida high school. Publicly, the rampage reignited the U.S. gun-control debate. Privately, it propelled industry efforts to sell school fortification as the answer to the mass killing of American kids.

Since that attack, security firms and nonprofit groups linked to the industry have persuaded lawmakers to elevate the often-costly “hardening” of schools over other measures that researchers and educators say are proven to reduce violence, an Associated Press investigation shows.

The industry helped Congress draft a law that committed $350 million to equipment and other school security over the next decade. Nearly 20 states have come up with another $450 million, and local school districts are reworking budgets to find more money.

Most everyone agrees that schools can be more secure with layers of protection, such as perimeter fencing, limited entrances and hiding spaces inside classrooms.

But there’s no independent research supporting claims that much of the high-tech hardware and gadgets schools are buying will save lives, according to two 2016 reports prepared for the U.S. Justice Department. As with high-profile shootings in the past, that has not stopped industry representatives from rushing in, some misusing statistics on school violence to stoke fears that “soft target” schools could be victims of terrorist attacks or negligence lawsuits.

“School safety is the Wild, Wild West,” said Mason Wooldridge, a security consultant who helps school districts assess their vulnerabilities. “Any company can claim anything they want.”

Wooldridge knows from experience. Several years ago, he helped outfit an Indiana high school with a $500,000 security system that includes smoke cannons. Now out of sales, he says a school that wanted a system with the same level of security could get it for about $100,000, using less expensive but equally effective equipment.

Many proponents of hardening a school like an airport or police station have backgrounds in law enforcement or the military. Some have little experience or qualification. The Ohio man dubbed “Joe the Plumber” during the 2008 presidential campaign has been appearing on school safety conference panels to hawk a cheaper lockdown alternative.

Educators worry that hardening will siphon focus and money from programs that prevent bullying and counsel at-risk kids. Students have reported in government surveys that visible security measures like metal detectors and armed officers make them feel less safe.

Industry representatives say they support other solutions to preventing school gun deaths, but insist hardening hasn’t gotten the chance it deserves.

Packages with suspected ricin sent to Pentagon

By Robert Burns
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Authorities at a Pentagon mail screening facility found two envelopes suspected of containing ricin, a poison made from castor beans, and turned them over to the FBI for further analysis, officials said Tuesday.

One envelope was addressed to Defense Secretary Jim Mattis, who is traveling in Europe this week, and the other to the Navy's top officer, Adm. John Richardson, a defense official said.

The official spoke on condition of anonymity because the official wasn't authorized to speak publicly ahead of FBI release of its findings.

Neither envelope entered the Pentagon. The mail screening facility is on the Pentagon grounds but separate from the main building.

Pentagon spokesman Chris Sherwood said the envelopes had been found on Monday.

Another Pentagon

spokesman, Col. Rob Manning, said all U.S. Postal Service mail received at the screening facility on Monday is under quarantine and "poses no threat to Pentagon personnel."

Ricin is part of the waste "mash" produced when castor oil is made. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, if it is made into a partially purified material or refined, ricin can be used as a weapon capable of causing death under certain circumstances.

Optimism of youth

Poll: Half of young Americans see better financial future

By Sarah Skidmore Sell
The Associated Press

About half of young Americans expect to be financially better off than their parents, according to a new poll, a sign that the dream of upward mobility is alive but somewhat tempered.

The poll, by The Associated Press-NORC Center for Public Affairs Research and MTV, found that half of 15- to 26-year-olds think they eventually will be better off than their parents in terms of household finances. About 29 percent expect to do as well as their parents, and 20 percent expect to be worse off.

Parents were slightly more optimistic: 60 percent think their children will do better than they did, a view that held true for parents across all income groups. Overall, only 12 percent of parents said that they felt their children might do worse.

It's no longer a guarantee that children will achieve upward income mobility. About half of the Americans born in 1984 earned more at age 30 than their parents, down from 92 percent in 1940, according to the study by famed economist Raj Chetty and others that was released in 2016.

Jennifer Narvaez, 23, is among those who anticipates her financial future will be a bit brighter than that of her parents. Narvaez said she expects to have more opportunities as a college graduate to get a job and own a home than her parents, who grew up in Nicaragua and immigrated to the United States. The Miami resident holds an undergraduate degree in biology and is planning on attending medical school to become a cardiologist.

Narvaez is less certain about the prospects of the U.S. economy, particularly as the nation appears to be marching into a trade war with China.

"It's a weird time," she said. "I feel like it's hard to predict what will happen because of the kind of administration we have."

Alex Barner, 20, also felt optimistic that he might fare better than his mother, who had him at age 18 and raised him as a single mother. He is attending college in New Mexico and is considering a future career in business management.

While Barner is hopeful he will do well in life, he also has some concerns about the trajectory of the nation and its economy. Like Narvaez, he's concerned by the trade policy of President Donald Trump's administration.

Barner also said he feels politicians need to focus more on matters that affect people in the here and now, such as health care and student loan relief.

Respondents were divided about how they expect the nation's economy will fare in the year ahead. About 29 percent of young people expect the economy to improve, 30 percent expect it will get worse and 41 anticipate it will stay the same. Similarly, 35 percent of parents expect improvement, 27 percent expect conditions to get worse and 38 percent expect the economy to stay as is.

Recently uncoupled: Transitioning through the GAP

Margaret McDowell

Author's Note: This is the second in a two-part series.

"I'd love to rest my weary head on somebody's shoulder; I hate to grow older ... all by myself."

"All By Myself" as performed by Eric Carmen

Recently uncoupled women often evolve through three stages after the death of a spouse. The acronym GAP, which stands for grief, adaptation and perseverance, accurately describes the stages of transition that many women experience. During this time there is a significant disruption in normal lifestyle and familiar living patterns.

The first stage is grieving. Most recently widowed women are far too unsettled to tackle any major financial issues immediately. In some cases, women are living alone again for the first time in decades and find themselves feeling literally unmoored. Not only are they grieving the loss of a loved one, they are challenged on multiple fronts with new responsibilities.

Everyone is different, but in general, we recommend no major life changes be made immediately following the death of a spouse. However, some basic financial issues must be addressed and if a woman already has established a relationship with a trusted advisor prior to her husband's passing, she can rely on the advisor to handle most of these tasks, such as changing names on accounts and filing for benefits from pensions and life insurance policies. If not, it's often during this period that widows hire an advisor.

The second stage is adjustment. After a time, many women begin a period of financial and emotional adaptation. They might still grieve, but they become more comfortable thinking about selling their home or moving near family. Some begin to take a significant interest in their financial future at this juncture. Most understand intuitively that their money must last a lifetime, and they become more engaged about discussing with their advisor things such as how their portfolio can provide additional income. They also usually reach a comfort level with living on only one Social Security check, as well as living alone on a budget.

Lastly, women in transition must persevere. The recognition that they alone are responsible for their financial future is a significant awakening, one that many women acknowledge in various ways year two. About 700,000 women become widowed

Retailers sink as Amazon raises pay

By Marley Jay
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Retailers sank Tuesday after Amazon said it will raise hourly wages for U.S. employees, and smaller companies continued to stumble. Several big industrial companies rose, pushing the Dow Jones Industrial Average to a record high.

Amazon, one of the largest private employers in the U.S., said it will raise the minimum wage for its U.S. workers to $15 an hour in November.

Amazon also said it will advocate for an increase in the federal minimum wage, which has been $7.25 an hour since July 2009. Its stock fell, but other retailers suffered bigger losses.

"The question is, do other companies have to follow suit?" said Quincy Krosby, chief market strategist at Prudential Financial. "This is the argument that what's good for Main Street is not necessarily good for Wall Street."

The bad news for retailers didn't end there. Stitch Fix, an online clothing company, plunged 35.2 percent $28.94. Stitch Fix had almost tripled since its IPO in November.

Pepsi fell after it said the strong dollar will take a bigger chunk out of its annual profit. General Motors and Ford both fell after they reported their sales.

The S&P 500 index fell 1.16 points to 2,923.43. The Dow added 122.73 points, or 0.5 percent, to 26,773.94. The biggest gains came from industrial companies Boeing, 3M and Caterpillar.

annually in the U.S. Many rely on their church and other structured groups for social outlets. Not all want to remarry. In fact, older widowers are 10 times more likely than women to remarry after the death of a spouse. As people are living longer, many women will find themselves living alone for upward of 20 years. Smart couples prepare for such an eventuality before the death of a spouse.

Supreme Court opens latest term with only 8 justices

For the second time in three years, the U.S. Supreme Court begins a term shorthanded. The high court opened a new session Monday with only eight justices, as the Brett Kavanaugh nuclear conflagration continues.

When the justices were in a similar situation in 2016, they indicated a preference for taking on less divisive cases. That cautious approach is likely to be duplicated today, given the heated emotions currently raging over the panel.

"It's a little bit of a fraught period for the court," Justice Elena Kagan admitted during a September conference in New York. "We should be aware of the environment and not unnecessarily exacerbate the divisions that unfortunately exist."

That's all well and good, but the justices mustn't ignore their duty for fear of inflaming passions. The court is charged with ensuring the executive and legislative branches operate within their constitutional authority — and that shouldn't change simply because the Trump presidency has disrupted the body politic. In fact, the court at this point has more than three dozen cases on its docket, and the justices heard a potentially significant dispute right out of the gate. The first case argued Monday involved the Endangered Species Act, a rare frog and property rights. The decision will have ramifications for how far the administrative and regulatory states can go to limit a private landowner's use of his own property.

Other cases set for this term address the constitutionality of civil forfeiture against a backdrop of the Eighth Amendment's prohibition on excessive fines, the extent of a defendant's protections against double jeopardy, conflicts between state laws and federal land restrictions and efforts to punish sex offenders even after they've served their time.

In addition, the cases already accepted will have a bearing on the separation of powers, the Fifth Amendment's takings clause, the Fourth Amendment's protections against unreasonable government searches and seizures and the scope of class-action lawsuits. It's also a good bet the justices will eventually decide to hear appeals involving the president's immigration policies, including the DACA controversy, and the partisan battle over state redistricting and gerrymandering.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Time to sound the alarm on protecting North Florida's waters

For the last two years Stand Up North Florida has raised concerns about the Legislature sending the vast majority of state water project money to South Florida while North Florida takes a "back seat" in the fight to protect our valuable water resources.

Those resources include the majority of Florida's springs and a dominant role in the recharge of the state's drinking water.

South Florida continues to be plagued with both green algae in Lake Okeechobee and surrounding canals and coastal waters, as well as red tide along the west coast, both of which feed on high nutrient levels in the water coming from urban storm water, over fertilized backyards, septic tanks and farms. Clearly, current practices are having a profound impact on water quality. Red tide has been reported in Florida's coastal waters since the 1500s, so it's no stranger to our shores.

What is not acceptable is the increase in its severity as a result of increased nutrients in our waters. Now red tide has come to North Florida too, bringing fish kills and tourist industry concerns with it. The recent brush with red tide along Panama City Beach, and the potential for it to spread across Northwest Florida's coast, should alarm us all.

Whether it's in South Florida or what many thought were our "insulated" beaches in the Panhandle, high nutrient levels in our inland surface waters are beginning to show their effects as runoff into our coastal waters — and it's feeding red tide like the stray dog that hangs around once you start leaving food out for it!

Now is the time for our residents, business leaders and North Florida legislators to demand funding for our problem as well, before nutrients and their effects, from whatever source, become completely unmanageable.

A good place to start would be increased funding to the Northwest Florida Water Management District's programs that protect and enhance our water bodies and coastal estuaries.

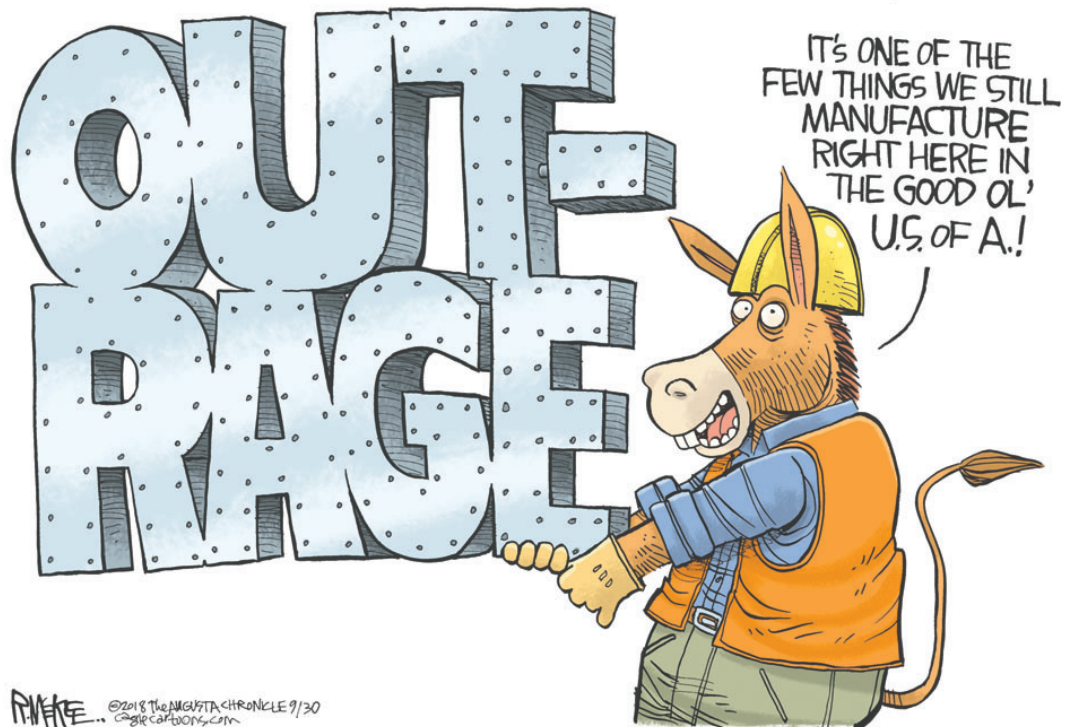

The district offers the opportunity to approach the problem in a multi-faceted manner across the Panhandle dealing with all water bodies and tributaries.

What might work for Escambia County might not be optimal for Bay County, and the "overview" which the district possesses can be the basis of a coordinated effort to protect all of our rivers, lakes, beaches and shores. Unfortunately, the Northwest Florida District receives a pittance in comparison to the money sent to South Florida year after year. If those of us in North Florida don't demand we start getting our fair share of water funding, we never will.

As I've said many times before — we must all stand up for North Florida!

Editor's note: Steve Southerland is a sixth generation North Floridian and former member of Congress. He is the chairman of Stand Up North Florida, a nonprofit grassroots coalition of Floridians from North and Central Florida that believe the vital water resources of our region must be protected.

Compelling case against Kavanaugh

Stephen Chapman

Christine Blasey Ford and Brett Kavanaugh appeared before the Senate Judiciary Committee with different purposes — she to offer an account of violent behavior that would disqualify him from the Supreme Court and he to counter her allegations and prove himself suitable for the post. But it was the nominee who offered the most irrefutable evidence of his unfitness.

Kavanaugh was a spectacle in belligerence and self-pity, vilifying Democrats for having the utter gall to take seriously the woman who says he attacked her at a party when they were in high school.

He furiously condemned the supposed injustice visited upon him, raging through his tears at a process he called "a calculated and orchestrated political hit" and "a national disgrace." He even blamed the Clintons.

The studious judge and mild suburban dad Americans saw before was replaced by a bitter partisan warrior with a butane lighter and a box of matches, scorching the earth as he went.

In the absence of the FBI investigation that Democrats wanted and Republicans rejected, viewers were left to ponder which witness to trust.

"Why don't you believe him?" demanded Sen. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C.

Glad you asked. People who knew Kavanaugh in his younger days remember him as a frequent drunk, not the conventional social tippler he purports to have been. His insistence that as a teen he was occupied entirely with academics, sports and church is at odds with the rambunctious misogyny advertised in his yearbook entry.

His defenders think that in the absence of definitive evidence, we are obligated to dismiss Ford's claim. If this were a criminal investigation, they would be right. But it's not. He stands to lose nothing but a prized federal office.

The presumption is not that the Senate should confirm any Supreme Court nominee unless there is a slam-dunk reason not to. The burden is on the nominee and his advocates to demonstrate he belongs in that exalted post.

Republicans once acknowledged as much. When George W. Bush chose Harriet Miers in 2005, many conservatives opposed her because she lacked impressive credentials and a well-developed conservative judicial philosophy. GOP senators didn't want someone who could eke out a passing grade.

Reasonable doubts about Kavanaugh are ample grounds for rejecting him. He was not entitled to be chosen, given the many outstanding candidates The Federalist Society could identify, and he is not entitled to be approved.

Ford made deeply alarming allegations that have not been supported by independent evidence or testimony. No one could doubt she was sexually assaulted and suffered lasting harm.

The weight of what we know makes her story more believable than his. She talked about what happened several times with confidants over the years. She has no record of lying, and she has no motive to lie.

Coming forward gained her nothing and cost her much.

He's a different case. People who knew Kavanaugh then say he was a hard drinker; he claimed as much in his high school yearbook and in speeches as an adult. Drunks often forget their drunken transgressions.

He has told brazen falsehoods. There was his claim that his yearbook reference to being a "Renate Alumnius" was to "show affection" for a female acquaintance — but Renate Schroeder Dolphin and others took it to falsely imply he had sex with her.

Federal courthouse design contract set

By Collin Breaux
747-5081 | @PCNHCollinB
CollinB@pcnh.com

PANAMA CITY — Progress continued on the new federal courthouse Tuesday after the Bay County Commission set a dollar amount on an architectural design contract.

The commission approved a $459,378 contract with JRA Architects for design services for the new federal courthouse, which will go in the current juvenile justice courthouse on 11th Street. JRA Architects was selected in August out of three applicants because of courthouse design experience, and costs have been negotiated since then.

“We’re excited to get the design kicked off. They’ve got meetings coming up with GSA (U.S. General Services Administration) and getting ready to put some plans together,” said Commissioner Robert Carroll, who’s been involved with the courthouse project. “We’ll get a contractor on board and get the conversion moving forward. ... This is yet another step in the process, and we’re excited that it’s moving forward. We’ve got a great architect on board, and now we move onto the next step.”

The federal government has a lot of control over certain courthouse details and renovations. The juvenile justice courthouse on 11th Street has to be vacated by January and the new courthouse has to be ready for occupancy by October 2019. A new juvenile justice courthouse will be built at 314 Harmon Ave., north of the county courthouse.

Boat ramp grant

The commission also approved a “pass-through/subrecipient” grant for the city of Panama City to replace the Carl Gray Park boat ramp and improve access to the Gulf of Mexico. Panama City will receive $500,000 from the RESTORE Act, which awards money to the Gulf Coast region affected by the 2010

Deepwater Horizon oil spill.

“They have a tremendous project planned for the boat ramp. They’re improving the boat ramp, as well as the area around there,” County Commission Chairman Bill Dozier said. “It’s going to be beautiful when it’s finished. It’s going to benefit us all very well, anyone who wants to use that as a boat ramp or just to go out on an afternoon to kick around out there at Carl Gray Park.”

PANAMA CITY — Cancer is a common affliction for firefighters, and that’s unacceptable to state fire marshal and Panama City native Jimmy Patronis.

To help firefighters who frequently encounter smoke and contaminants, Patronis is giving cancer-fighting decontamination kits to every fire station in Florida and stopped at his hometown fire station Tuesday to talk about the effort.

PANAMA CITY — AMIKids Panama City Marine Institute honored the late Norm Gulkis — a longtime board member and volunteer — Friday evening by dedicating the school’s main building in his honor.

“I was very blessed to have him as a mentor,” PCMI Executive Director Ron Boyce said Friday. “If it was the right thing to do for the kids, he would find a way to do it.

“We always say, what’s in the best interest of our kids? And then we do that.”

After retiring from the Air Force and being stationed at Tyndall Air Force Base, Gulkis settled in Panama City. According to Boyce, he was a board member at the school from the first year the institution was established and served as chairman several times.

Bond set for PCB condominium robbery suspects

By Zack McDonald

PANAMA CITY BEACH — A second suspect in the beating, binding and robbing of a Panama City Beach man inside his condo has been returned to answer for the crime, according to arrest reports.

Rogerdale Richard Forehand, 27, appeared in court Sunday to have a bond set on charges of armed robbery and false imprisonment. He had been sought since Feb. 14 after a resident of Laketown Wharf Resort, 9902 S. Thomas Drive, woke up in his closet to find he had been robbed of about $2,000 in cash and miscellaneous cards. Forehand, of Vanleave, Mississippi, was given a bond of $40,000 in the case while his co-defendant, Edwin Frederick Reynolds, 27, of Panama City, remains in custody on a $350,000 bond, court records show.

Both men have been ordered to not have contact with the victim. It was unclear from court records if a third person is being sought, although a third participant is named in connection with the robbery.

According to Panama City Beach Police Department reports, authorities tied the two suspects to the crime scene by DNA collected from a water bottle and beer can from which the suspects drank.

Officers reported the incident started when the victim was at a nearby bar about 11:30 p.m. Feb. 13 and met an unknown woman. An unknown man, claiming to be the woman’s brother, also was at the bar, and the victim eventually invited the woman back to his condo, police reported.

“On the way to his condo, (the victim) stopped at McDonald’s to purchase food for the female,” officers wrote. “Upon arrival at McDonald’s, (the victim) was met by the man claiming to be the female’s brother as well as an additional white male.”

DIANN CUTCHINS

Diann Cutchins, 62, was called home by the Lord after a long struggle with cancer on Sept. 28, 2018.

Diann was well loved by her family and community. Anyone who knew her would tell you that she met no strangers.

She became friends with everyone she met and would go out of her way to help anyone in need.

Although she only birthed two kids, she was a mother to many more.

The world has lost a truly wonderful person who will be dearly missed by many.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Jefferson Herman and Niza Lee Bozeman; and brothers, Kenneth, Herman and Tommy. She is survived by her loving husband of 44 years, Harold; her son, Wayne; daughter and son-in-law, Latisha and Mike; grandkids, Michael and Robin Sentz, Halie Sentz, Dylan Cutchins and Corey Cutchins; great-granddaughter, Millicent Sentz; siblings, Judy Linton, Joann Bulger, Doshe Cutchins, Brenda Register, Jerry Bozeman and John Bozeman; as well as a host of other loving relatives and friends.

Please join us in celebrating her life and going home to be with the Lord with a service being held at 10 a.m. Friday, Oct. 5, 2018, at Kent-Forest Lawn Funeral Home.

This is a come-as-you-are comfortable ceremony, because that's how she would want it.

In lieu of flowers, please send donations to Covenant Hospice in Diann's name.

L. Charles Hilton, Jr.

Lawyer, Contractor, Businessman, Hotelier, Developer, Entrepreneur, Statesman, Citizen

1931 - 2018

L. Charles Hilton, Jr., a lawyer, contractor and businessman for over six decades, and hotelier, developer and entrepreneur for over half a century, took the ultimate journey to complete his life on Friday evening, September 28, 2018. Fourscore and seven years ago (87), he was born on August 24, 1931 in Helena, Georgia. Charles made the world a better place through courage, authenticity, and perseverance and mentoring others to do the same.

As the son of an asphalt finish man, Charles remembers his early family life as moving from job to job like "gypsies" in a trailer that was towed behind the family car. He considers joining the Boy Scouts and the wisdom of his father as the biggest influences in his youth. Becoming an Eagle Scout at 14, delivering newspapers to help his family financially from age 12, and graduating from high school at 16, Charles saw his first streak of luck as getting the chance to run a roller before he could even drive because the operator did not show up Sunday. Attributing his tenacity and honesty to his mother and his fairness and strong work ethic to his father, Charles thought he wanted to be a mechanic, but his dad suggested lawyers in small towns were always successful. So Charles took on three jobs while attending the University of Florida full time to earn a B.S. in Business Administration in 1952 and a Law Degree (L.L.B.) Cum Laude in 1954. A member of the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi and other academic fraternities including Beta Gamma Sigma, Delta Sigma Phi, and Phi Alpha Delta, Charles especially valued his membership in the University of Florida Collegiate Living Organization from 1948 - 53 (serving as president and other offices) (UF CLO named L. Charles Hilton, Jr. Dining Hall - 2011).

Hilton served as Judge Advocate in the U.S. Air Force from 1954-56 trying one or two cases daily throughout Western Europe and he later became an avid civilian pilot. He practiced law in Panama City beginning in 1956 with Fitzpatrick and Barron (later becoming Barron and Hilton and then Barron, Hilton and Redding). Charles initially primarily did trial work, and later on business and corporate practice became dominant. Earning the highest rating (AV) as an attorney, Charles was willing to become a legal expert at any specialty and later became the senior partner in Hilton, Bennet, Logue, Paulk and Burke. When his daughter, Julie and two fellow law students graduated and came to Panama City in the early 80's, Charles lead the Hilton, Cleavinger, Barron, Hilton, Kolk & Laing legal firm (later Hilton, Hilton, Kolk, Penson & Roesch).

While practicing law full time, taking on his partner's workload while he served in the Florida Legislature, Charles started a grassing business with his dad, Loyd, and four employees in 1958. He was challenged to get in the asphalt paving business to pay for the grassing equipment when, after two jobs making $5,000, a high state official with interests in a competing company used his influence to cut the Hiltons out of the market. When Charles' dad went to an established asphalt contractor asking for help and suggesting he would have to become a competitor in the asphalt paving business if he would not help, the contractor replied, "Come on in Loyd, the water's fine." Charles took on the challenge, got equipment on credit, borrowed money to meet the first week's payroll, and grew GAC Contractors, Inc. (formerly Gulf Asphalt Corporation and Bay Grassing and Landscaping) to become a formidable competitor in the industry.

Charles, Chairman and CEO, and the major shareholder with his wife of 63 years, Lela, built an award-winning construction company in Panama City, Florida. In 2012 when Charles was inducted into the Florida Transportation Builders' Association (FTBA) Hall of Fame, GAC had completed more than $1 billion in construction projects, including roads (laying over 3.5 million tons of asphalt equivalent to a four-lane highway from Panama City, Florida to Seattle, Washington), bridges, buildings and structures of all types and sizes. Described as a "teacher beyond compare" and leading by example, Charles mentored, guided and inspired committed workers with little education or training to become skilled heavy equipment operators and promising team members to become managers and partners and industry, community and State leaders.

Hilton served as FTBA President from 1986-88 and Secretary/Treasurer from 1982-84 and was instrumental in the construction of FTBA's current headquarters building in Tallahassee. Under Charles' leadership in the mid 1980's and 1990's, the FDOT and Florida Legislature standardized the taxing formula so that asphalt production cost was taxed consistently among all road contractors, the FDOT's bidding process became computerized two years ahead of schedule, and the Florida Transportation Commission improved the distribution formula for Florida gas tax proceeds among the counties so that that monies were more equitably distributed.

Charles worked with equal tenacity in other industries to make improvements that benefitted his competitors and the community. In his numerous business ventures as well as community and political activities, he established a reputation for taking on continuing challenges with unbridled determination when others said it could not be done, working innovatively with modest resources to grow the family businesses, doing whatever it took to get the job done, regardless of personal sacrifice, repeatedly "getting up before the count of nine," and standing up for what he believed in even if it was unpopular, often succeeding in urging others to consider new ways of looking at things with his colorful, poignant LCH Truisms.

Hilton has been involved, both for himself and others, in the development of hotels, apartments, commercial buildings, and residential communities. For 51 years, Charles, Chairman, and his wife, Lela, President of Hilton, Inc., Hilton Hospitality, LLC and related companies, and children, Julie and Chip (until 2011 when he contracted terminal cancer), were involved in the development and management of award-winning hotels, and the Hilton Family and associates currently own and operate five hotel properties (950 units) and two golf courses (Holiday Golf Club). Charles was President of a bank holding company (with partner, Dick Arnold), owned and operated an automobile dealership (Bay Lincoln-Mercury-Dodge) and a state of the art broad band cable television company (Beach Cable which sold to Knology and then WOW).

Hilton has been active in civic work and community affairs throughout his career, and among other things, was Charter President of the First Optimist Club of Panama City, active in Optimist Club development in Northwest Florida, Optimist International Parliamentarian, Florida Tax Watch Chairman, James Madison Institute Chairman and Chairman Emeritus, Bay County Resort Council Chairman (twice), Bay County Motel & Restaurant Association President, Miracle Strip Council President, Executive Board Member of the Gulf Coast Council of Boy Scouts of America and member of the National Eagle Scouts Association (2002 Class of Eagles Award), University of Kansas Medical Center Orthomolecular Medicine Advancement Board Founding Member, Citizens for Health Freedom founding Board Member (authored and successfully lobbied for Florida law giving patients the right to receive complementary and alternative health care), and a 1996 Olympic Torch Bearer. He was very active in the Methodist Church, serving as a Lay Leader, for 15 years. Charles has served on the Governor's Tourist Advisory Council, Florida Chamber of Commerce Board, Florida Hotel & Motel Association Board, Bay County Resort Council Executive Committee, National Taxpayers Union Board, and State Tax Reform Task Force.

For over six decades, Hilton has been a strong supporter of free enterprise, fiscally responsible government and an active leader in numerous economic development civic projects, including promoting beach nourishment (awarded 2001 Best of the Coast Leadership Award, Coastal Living Magazine), facilitating a public/private partnership leading to the development of Pier Park in Panama City Beach (L. C. Hilton, Jr. Drive was named in his honor) as well as envisioning and expediting development and construction of the Panama City Beach Russell-Fields Pier and land acquisition for Panama City Beach's Frank Brown Park (named Pioneer of the Year 2012 - Panama City Beaches Chamber). As the Panama City Beach CRA Project develops its trolley system in the future, few may remember that it will become a reality because Charles Hilton insisted they should abandon the project if a trolley system were not included, and the planners were challenged to redesign the project to make it happen.

In 2014, the Florida Legislature established the L. Charles Hilton, Jr. Distinguished Professorship in Economic Prosperity and Individual Opportunity at Florida State University. Speaker Will Weatherford stated, "Charlie Hilton has been a titan in Florida's movement to preserve and expand free enterprise." Senate President Don Gaetz said, "There are a thousand stories about Charlie Hilton and his advocacy of economic freedom. One of my favorites is his letter to a politician who offered him some government help, in which Charlie famously wrote, 'All I want from government is less of it.' That ought to be chiseled into granite."

Among Charles and his wife's numerous philanthropic contributions to a broad range of charities, individually and through GAC and other companies and the Hilton Family Foundation, they contributed significant funding to the construction of the University of Kansas School of Medicine (KUSM) Integrative Medicine Clinic (dedicated to L. Charles Hilton Family) and development of KUSM Integrative Orthomolecular Medicine Chair and Program, Panama City Beach Senior Center, Bay County L. Charles Hilton, Jr. Boys and Girls Club Teen Center, Girls Inc. Teaching Kitchen Project, Hutchison Beach Elementary Gymnasium, Sacred Heart Hospital - Port St. Joe, Holy Nativity Episcopal School Computer Program, Boy Scouts of America and Option Institute Training Facility, as well as purchase of the James Madison Institute Headquarters and International Schizophrenia Foundation projects.

Charles is preceded in death by his parents, Loyd Charles Hilton, Sr. and Emma Delacey Hilton, and his son, Loyd Charles "Chip" Hilton, III. He is survived by his wife, Lela Griffin Hilton, daughter, Julie Katherine Hilton (Richard Whitsitt), granddaughter, Ava Symone Katherine Whitsitt Hilton, sister, Patricia Tolbert, nieces, Teri Tolbert (Joe Strouse) and Tami Tolbert, and nephew, Tripp Tolbert (Joy).

A Celebration of Charles' Life will begin with a visitation on Thursday, October 4th from 5 to 7 pm at Wilson Funeral Home ("Wilson") and services on Friday, October 5th at 3 pm in the Wilson Chapel, followed by interment at Evergreen Memorial Gardens. Dr. Henry E. Roberts, Ph.D., will be officiating at the services and interment. Pallbearers are: Speaker Allan Bense, Richard Dodd, Nick Humble, Cody Khan, Robert McClure, Ph.D., and Derwin White.

Honorary pallbearers include: Judge Richard Albritton, Jr., Carol Atkinson, Jeanne Drisko, MD, Arthur Dyson, AIA, CID, Senate President Don Gaetz, Senator George Gainer, Danny Gonzalez, Bill Grimsley, Jacalyn Kolk, JD, Francisco Matos, George Norris, Judge Laura Roesch, Tripp Tolbert, Richard Whitsitt, GAC Employees, Hilton Hospitality Employees, and Holiday Golf Employees.

Contributions in lieu of flowers are encouraged to the James Madison Institute (P.O. Box 37460, Tallahassee, FL 32315), Boy Scouts of America, Gulf Coast Council (9440 University Parkway, Pensacola, FL 32514), or Hilton Family Foundation (13200-B Panama City Beach Parkway, Panama City Beach, FL 32407).

OBITUARIES

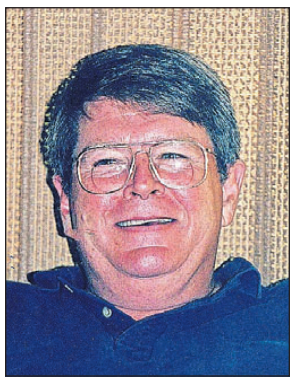

LESLIE HOLT MCNABB

Leslie Holt McNabb passed from this life to his heavenly home on Friday, Sept. 28, 2018. He was a man of great kindness and loved his family dearly as we did him.

Leslie was born in Erwin, Tennessee, on Sept. 11, 1946, to Raymond Holt McNabb and Pauline Banner McNabb but Panama City, Florida, was his home.

He is survived by his love of 51 years, Kathryn Forehand McNabb; and his daughter, Leslyn McNabb and husband Robert Swain of Atlanta, Georgia. The lights of his life are his daughter, grandson Luke Holt Swain, who he called "Pal," and his granddaughter Dylan Shelby Swain, who was his "Princess." They will dearly miss their Papoo.

He also is survived by his sister, Della McNabb Wing of Oxford, Mississippi; brother, Aaron McNabb and wife JoAnna of Chillicothe, Missouri; brother, Reginald Martin "Marty" McNabb and wife Lisa of Panama City; sister-in-law, Suzanne Wood (Bill) of Port St. Joe, Florida; and brother-in-law, Keith Forehand and wife Martha of Panama City. Numerous nieces and nephews, aunts and uncles also survive.

Leslie was a 1964 graduate of Bay High School, attended Gulf Coast Community College, and was in the U.S. Army Reserves, armor unit. He worked in the retail flooring industry for 35 years at Custom Floors, Inc., as job foreman. He was a master at his trade and trained many in this field. He had certifications from many of the leading manufacturers in the retail flooring industry. He also was a state certified general contractor.

Leslie was active with the Shaddai Shrine Club. He was a member of #212 Masonic Lodge, Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, York Rite and St. Johns Commandry #29 Knights Templar. He was a member of Shaddai Roadrunners motorcycle unit and also a founding member of Shaddai Bikers. He loved to ride motorcycles, especially his Harley.

Leslie was a member of Lilly Dale Church of Christ in Erwin, Tennessee, where he was baptized at an early age. He lived his life as his testimony to his love of God and family and all who knew him.

Memorial services will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 4, 2018, in the Wilson Funeral Home Chapel with Masonic rites conducted at the service. The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 1-2 p.m. Thursday prior to the service.

“When we look at 2016 alone and talk about deaths in the line of duty, 70 percent of them are cancer-related, and that is an unacceptable number,” said Patronis, also Florida’s chief financial officer (CFO), as firefighters lined up around him. “I’ve seen what goes into your job day in and day out. ... With it being such a large contributing factor to shortening the lives of our first responders, solutions had to come forth.”

The decontamination kits were created in partnership with the University of Miami’s Sylvester Comprehensive Cancer Center and will help mitigate firefighters’ exposure to contaminants that could cause cancer, according to a news release. The decontamination kits were awarded through a $1 million grant to the firefighter cancer mitigation grant program.

Panama City Mayor Greg Brudnicki said the risk of cancer for firefighters is 15 percent greater than the average job, based on recent discussions.

Panama City Fire Chief Alex Baird thanked Patronis and Gov. Rick Scott for supporting first responders. Several Panama City firefighters have dealt with cancer, and the fire department is taking steps to handle cancer, including body scans to detect it, Baird said.

“We’ve put together a cancer prevention committee to address those issues,” Baird said. “We’ve given our inspectors respirators so when they do their inspections, they have protection. ... We appreciate the work the Sylvester Center at the University of Miami is doing and the research into cancer prevention.”

Patronis said the idea for the kits came about when he learned about a firefighter stricken with cancer shortly after Patronis started his current role. Thousands of kits will be rolled out statewide.

“You’re trying to eliminate the possibilities of contaminants getting in their lungs and on their skin,” Patronis said.

Patronis, a Republican, is challenged by Democrat Jeremy Ring for the CFO position in the November election. Patronis was appointed to the CFO position in 2017 by Gov. Rick Scott.

The group then went to his condo, where the victim cooked the two men a pizza and provided them with drinks. Shortly after, one of the men pulled a pistol and demanded the combination to the victim’s safe, police reported.

“Next thing (the victim) remembered was being struck by the two males until he lost consciousness,” officers wrote. “A short time later, (he) woke up in a closet with his hands tied together.”

After looking around his condo, the victim realized $2,000 in cash and several miscellaneous cards had been taken. He then called police. As crime scene investigators went over the evidence, they collected DNA samples from the mouth of a water bottle and a beer can the suspects drank from while at the victim’s condo.

The DNA was sent off for testing and came back matching that of Reynolds and Forehand. A warrant was issued for the men’s arrests, PCBPD reported.

Reynolds was taken into custody about a month afterward, but PCBPD officers only recently were able to arrest Forehand. The woman was not identified in police reports and does not appear to have been arrested as a co-defendant in the case.

Gulkis was one of the leaders in deciding to purchase the building on East Beach Drive in Panama City next door to the much smaller original PCMI building, which then could hold only about 30 students. After the building expansion, the program expanded as well. The institution offered to take in about 100 at-risk students for Bay District Schools, more than tripling the original number of students.

“I’ll never forget the day he popped into my office and said, ‘Ron, I’m having so much fun doing this,’” said Boyce. “That was the greatest thing for me.”

Gulkis’ passion was working to improve the lives of children and contributing to his community, which inspired many along the way. He was a member of Rotary International and Crime Stoppers, but might be best known for his tireless work with the at-risk youth at PCMI.

Gulkis passed away in January, leaving behind a huge legacy, including creating a scholarship for at-risk youth to attend Gulf Coast State College.

“Dozens of kids have gone over there and started their college careers thanks to him,” said Boyce.

Gulkis also is credited with obtaining a specialty license plate, which has raised more than $1 million dollars since it was released more than 10 years ago. The plate dons a brown horse to the left of the plate number and says “Horse Country” underneath. Gulkis decided on the horse design because the plate and design originally was the idea of a much-smaller, struggling rehabilitation program in Holmes County, which has since closed.

Gulkis’ passing occurred only weeks after his last term as chairman.

According to Boyce, one of his last wishes was to ask how “his horse” was doing.

Panama City Mayor Greg Brudnicki said the city is happy to get the grant after an “arduous” process

“This is a long time coming,” Brudnicki said. “We’ll turn Carl Gray into a viable place to launch your boat.”

Brudnicki said the goal is to get the new boat ramp open in April.

Jedrick Wills Jr. has Tua Tagovailoa's back

By Terrin Waack
Sports Writer

A quarterback's blind side, typically, is his left side. Most ball-slingers are right-handed — every active NFL quarterback right now is — so when they go to throw, they face the opposite way. That leaves the left tackle, who's on the outskirts of the offensive line, responsible for protecting his quarterback's back.

But not at Alabama, where starting quarterback Tua Tagovailoa throws with his left hand and right tackle Jedrick Wills Jr. is tasked with protecting

Betts, Yelich clear choices for MVP awards

NEW YORK — Now that the regular season is finally in the books, time to bestow baseball's biggest individual prizes. It took one extra day to sort out the playoff bracket, but these debates have been underway for weeks.

Christian Yelich seems a cinch for NL MVP, but is it Mookie Betts or Boston teammate J.D. Martinez in the American League?

Jacob deGrom or Max Scherzer for the NL Cy Young Award?

Shohei Ohtani or Miguel Andujar for AL Rookie of the Year?

Mosley facing biggest test yet in Niceville

By Dustin Kent

The recent history of the Mosley-Niceville series is not very flattering to the Dolphins. Last year's 37-0 shutout loss in Niceville was the first meeting between the teams since 2012 when the Eagles routed the Dolphins 42-10 at Tommy Oliver Stadium.

They also faced off in 2011, with Niceville winning 14-13. In 2010, it was 35-14; in 2009, 63-23. All were Eagles victories, with all but one coming by huge margins. Panhandle in recent years.

The Dolphins (6-0) look like a different team this season, outscoring opponents by 25.8 points per game thanks to a balanced offense and a stingy defense. The Eagles (5-1), however, look very much the same as they usually do, according to Mosley coach Jeremy Brown.

"They got after us pretty good last year and this year their team is very similar as far as being big and physical with good athletes," he said. "They're definitely the best team that we've played so far this year."

Niceville is led by junior quarterback Will Koch and senior running back TJ Pope, with senior wide outs Marc Graff and Jack White giving the Eagles a talented duo on the outside. The Eagles are coming off of a 42-0 win over Fort Walton Beach, a squad that Mosley defeated 42-14 on Sept. 21.

Patrick Reed's passion for Ryder Cup turns poisonous

By Doug Ferguson
The Associated Press

SAINT-QUENTIN-EN-YVELINES, France —

What the Americans need is a Ryder Cup team filled with guys like Patrick Reed.

As long as Patrick Reed isn't one of them.

Three days on Le Golf National went bad enough for a powerful U.S. team that lost its way off the tee and on the scoreboard. Europe won eight consecutive matches, built a four-point lead going into Sunday's singles session and never gave the Americans much hope on its way to another victory on home soil.

And then Reed managed to make them look even worse.

In a telephone interview with The New York Times later Sunday, Reed blamed Jordan Spieth for them not playing together and U.S. captain Jim Furyk for twice leaving Reed on the bench.

"The issue's obviously with Jordan not wanting to play with me," Reed told the Times. "I don't have any

Judy The Beauty wins Gold Collar

The News Herald

EBRO – Ebro Greyhound Park has entered its simulcast only winter season with matinee and evening offerings today from a number of tracks.

The Washington County pari-mutuel facility ended its live racing season on Saturday night with Judy The Beauty winning the Luther “Ludy” Hess Gold Collar stakes.

Judy The Beauty won her 11th race of the meeting by defeating other notables that included Flying Terri, TF Moe Can Fly and Even Keel.

She paid $13.20, $6.40 and $2.60. Flying Bourbon returned $10.80 and $2.20 and produced a $28.20 quiniela. AJN City Limits was third, the trifecta box worth $157.50.

The final race of the 2018 season was the Au Revoir. It was won by JD Blossom, $6, $2.10, $2.40, with Atkins second, $2.10, $2.80; and PJ By The Moon third. The quiniela returned $37.80 and the trifecta box $282.10.

At Derby Lane, favorite Jiminy Reno prevailed in the finals of the Husker Magic Fall Sprint Stake. The race was dominated by the top betting choices as Kentucky Boy, $4.40, $4.20, was second and Hi Noon Pursuit, $2.80, finished third.

The quiniela returned $19.40, the exacta $32.20 and the trifecta $72.60.

Today’s matinee simulcast has thoroughbreds from Belmont, Finger Lakes, Gulfstream West and Delaware as well as greyhounds from Derby Lane, Jacksonville and Palm Beach.

The evening program starts with jai alai from Dania and continues with greyhounds from Derby Lane and Jacksonville.

WILLS

him from the unseen.

“It’s kind of shocking to me that I actually am the blind side, but I’ve never thought about it before,” Wills said. “I just try to protect either way.”

And he has done a good job of it so far this season.

“He’s a physical, aggressive player,” UA coach Nick Saban said. “I think he’s much more confident in knowing what to do, how to do it, why it’s important to do it that way. His mental errors have gone way down.”

Wills is just a sophomore. He saw action in 11 of the Crimson Tide’s 14 games last season while Matt Womack was the starter. Womack is still around, only he injured his foot during fall camp and is just now making a return to the field. Womack actually

In fact, the 6-foot-5, 309-pound lineman is better than fine.

“He’s improved a lot,” defensive lineman Raekwon Davis said. “He’s good at run blocking. His run-blocking skills are great. Pass rushing, his pass protecting is great, too. So he’s very good at what he does. He’s been helping the team a lot.”

The Crimson Tide is averaging 217.4 rushing yards per game, which is good for fifth-most in the SEC. Through five games, the offensive line has only allowed the quarterback, regardless of who it is, to be sacked four times.

After finishing with just 109 rushing yards against Texas A&M two weeks ago, Alabama increased its total to 268 this past weekend. Its season high so far is the 278 against Arkansas

State.

“I’m just trying to fix everything from week to week (offensive line) coach (Brent) Key points out on film and just trying to practice that throughout the week,” Wills said, “so when it comes to game time, I try to get better (and) stay technically sound.”

Despite taking reps at both guard and tackle during practice in the past, Wills has settled in at right tackle. That’s where he was listed on Alabama’s first depth chart as the No. 1 guy. That’s where he has started every game this season.

And he has Tagovailoa’s blind side, even if it’s unorthodox.

“It’s no difference at all,” Wills said. “I feel like, blind side or not, you’ve still got to protect. If he’s from behind or he’s on the front side, you still have to do your job and make sure that you keep him safe.”

issue with Jordan. When it comes right down to it, I don’t care if I like the person I’m paired with or if the person likes me as long as it works and it sets up the team for success. He and I know how to make each other better. We know how to get the job done.”

Reed doesn’t care about relationships forged during the week.

He cares only about winning.

That’s the European way. That’s what America needs.

Sam Torrance, who won the clinching match in 1985 when Europe won for the first time since 1957, said in one of the inspirational videos for Team Europe leading up to the matches: “It’s not about taking part. It’s about winning. Nothing else.”

They win as one. They don’t lose very often.

European captain Thomas Bjorn said poignantly after Europe built a 10-6 advantage going into singles: “This is 12 players, and we do this together. We’ve been playing with eight in every session, but it’s about 12, and we felt like we’ve been a whole team on the golf course every session.”

But the passion of Reed came off as poison with his remarks to the Times.

He made it clear that he is one of 12 only if he gets his way.

Reed didn’t get to play with Spieth, the only partner he has had in two previous appearances. He said he was blindsided when Spieth was paired with Justin Thomas, a longtime friend making his Ryder Cup debut before a European crowd.

PREP ROUNDUP

Bay sweeps Port St. Joe

The News Herald

PORT ST. JOE – The Bay High girls volleyball team picked up its 10th victory of the season Tuesday night by knocking off Port St. Joe 25-10, 25-10, 25-22. The Tornadoes are now 10-11 on the season. The Tiger Sharks fell to 1-18.

Kamera Johnson led the Tornadoes with 11 kills, followed by Kylie Smith with 10 kills, Yasmine Trammell with nine, and Kilee Hudson with eight. Hailey Dunningan had five kills and a team-high three ace serves. Ashleigh Koch led Bay with 25 assists, followed by Kaylee Thompson with 23, while Tressa Carpenter led the way with eight digs.

Bay will next play host to North Bay Haven on Thursday at 6 p.m. Port St. Joe is home Thursday against Franklin County.

Arnold girls win 9-hole match

PANAMA CITY BEACH – The Marlins took the match at the Bay Point Meadows Course with a team score of 177, followed by Mosley at 214, and Bay at 233. Rutherford didn’t have enough golfers to qualify for the team competition. Danielle Humphrey of Mosley was the low individual golfer with a score of 40.

Arnold: Courtney Langdon 42, Chaelyn Chong 43, Ella Dubose 45, Sydney Polanin 47, Anna Morris 49. Mosley: Humphrey 40, Ava Roberts 56, Haley Daniel 58, Hannah Felix 60, Meredith Conrad 61. Bay: Taylor Moody 46, Hannah Laird 62, Fisher Boyd 62, Emma Skipper 63, Maddie Mae Marshall 63. Rutherford: Quynh Vu 62, Alasia Lawrence 63, McKenzie Seale 62.

defeated Arnold 28-7 at Tommy Oliver Stadium to move to 2-0 and into the driver’s seat in the District 1-5A race. Another league win over Pensacola on Oct. 19 would all but lock up the district title for the Dolphins, with only a victory over a struggling Bay team Oct. 26 standing in the way of a perfect league season.

Even though Friday’s game is a non-district affair, Brown stressed that it was no less important for his club with the new points-based playoff system, and that it could play a big role in the Dolphins’ postseason fate even if they win the district.

“Obviously we want to win district games, but with the new system now every game is pretty much a play-in game,” he said. “The more games you win the better chance you’ve got to get in. If we can go over there and figure out a way to beat Niceville, it not only gives us another chance to get in, but it would help us with seeding if we got in the playoffs. They’re a bigger school and made the playoffs last year, so it’s a good chance to get some really good points.”

If they’re going to do that, the Dolphins will need to get off to a much better start than they did in last year’s game when a series of mistakes allowed the game to get away from them early, with the Eagles jumping out to a 17-0 first quarter lead and never looking back.

“We’ve got to protect the football,” Brown said. “We’ve done a good job of that this year, but we didn’t do a good job of that against them last year. We had an early turnover, a blocked punt they returned for a touchdown. Their first three possessions they had the ball inside our 30.”

“We’ve got to execute better and we’ve got to tackle better. If we can do those things, we can keep it close and maybe have a chance in the fourth quarter to sneak out of there with a win. If we don’t do those things, it won’t be close.”

Whatever the result, Brown said that Friday’s game will provide perhaps the team’s best evaluation for just how far it has come this season and how serious a threat the Dolphins can be in Class 5A.

“That’s one of the reasons we played Niceville last year and why we’re playing them this year,” he said. “We putting our kids out there and we’ll see where we’re at as a team and a program. If you can go over there and find a way to beat Niceville at their place, it’s a big deal and would do a lot for the kids’ confidence. I don’t know if we’ll play anybody in our region that is better than Niceville. It will give us an idea of where we’re at and what steps are needed take from here to the end of the year to be a legitimate playoff team.”

Dolphins get back Gay, lose Gray

Mosley got a big boost against Arnold with the return of senior center Castor Gay, who Brown said is “100 percent” after missing three games with an ankle injury. The Dolphins suffered a significant loss against the Marlins, however, with explosive sophomore receiver Nyjah Gray leaving the game late in the first half with a collarbone injury.

It’s the same injury he suffered against the same team he hurt it against last season, though Brown said he believes that Gray will be back this year, with hopes of him returning as soon as the Bay game Oct. 26.

MVP

Martinez has been a monster at the plate in his first season with the Red Sox after signing a $110 million, five-year contract. He launched 43 home runs and led the majors with 130 RBIs. He compiled a 1.031 OPS and hit .330, finishing second to Betts (.346) in the batting race.

All big reasons why Boston had the best record in baseball at 108-54.

Hitting at the top of the order, Betts had 32 homers, 80 RBIs, 129 runs and a whopping 1.078 OPS.

But on defense and the bases, it’s no comparison. Martinez started 57 games in the outfield but 93 at designated hitter. Betts, a sensational defender, started 115 games in right field and 13 in center. Plus, he stole 30 bases in 36 attempts.

All those elite skills. That’s why he led the majors in wins above replacement with 10.9 (per baseball-reference.com).

“I’d vote for Betts,” Baltimore manager Buck Showalter said. “The impact that he has defensively is what sets him over the top for me. I told people, he’s the best right fielder I’ve ever seen. He makes plays that people in the stands don’t realize are not routine. Throws well. Steals a base when he needs to. He’s special.”

Angels star Mike Trout merits his annual look, along with Houston third baseman Alex Bregman, Cleveland infielder Jose Ramirez and Indians shortstop Francisco Lindor.

But in the end, Betts is the clear winner after being runner-up to Trout two years ago.

Voting by the Baseball Writers’ Association of America is conducted before the postseason opener Tuesday night, and results will be announced in November.

Here are our selections for the other top awards:

NATIONAL LEAGUE MVP: With a huge second half, Yelich practically carried Milwaukee to an NL Central championship and the best record in the league during his first season with the team. He came within a wisp of becoming the first Triple Crown winner in the National League since Joe “Ducky” Medwick in 1937. Yelich won the batting title with a .326 average and had 36 homers to go with 110 RBIs, 118 runs, 22 steals in 26 tries and a 1.000 OPS that led the league by a wide margin. He came through with three hits and an RBI as the Brewers beat the Cubs 3-1 on Monday in a one-game tiebreaker for the division crown at Wrigley Field.

That’s how MVP awards are won, and this election won’t be close. Could be unanimous.

“Down the stretch, he’s been willing that team it seems like. One night it’s the cycle, one night it’s a homer late, another night he walks five times. I think it’s Yelich,” said Don Mattingly, manager of the Miami Marlins team that traded Yelich last offseason.

AL CY YOUNG: Young lefty Blake Snell of the Tampa Bay Rays wins with a 21-5 record and league-leading 1.89 ERA in 180.667 innings. But it should be a tighter vote than projected. The guy getting overlooked a bit is Houston ace Justin Verlander (16-9, 2.52), who had a lower WHIP than Snell in 214 innings. Verlander struck out a league-high 290 hitters and walked only 37. Incredible.

NLCY YOUNG: At one point late in the season, this was a close and compelling three-way race between deGrom, Scherzer and Aaron Nola. And then deGrom left everyone in the league, finishing with a major league-low 1.70 ERA in 217 innings.

EASTERN PREVIEW

Teams listed in alphabetical order. Capsules by The Associated Press

ATLANTIC

BOSTON BRUINS

LAST SEASON: 50-20-12, 112 points. Second in Atlantic Division. Lost to Tampa Bay Lightning in Eastern Conference semifinals.

COACH: Bruce Cassidy (second full season, third full NHL season).

ADDED: D John Moore, D Steven Kampfer, G Jaroslav Halak, F Joakim Nordstrom, F Chris Wagner

LOST: F Tommy Wingels, F Rick Nash, F Riley Nash, D Adam McQuaid, F Tim Schaller

PLAYER TO WATCH: Patrice Bergeron. The Bruins No. 1 center had 63 points in 64 games last season but, at 32, he had offseason groin surgery and back spasms have kept him off the ice for part of training camp.

OUTLOOK: The Bruins are poised for another strong regular-season run behind the core of Zdeno Chara, Bergeron and goalie Tuukka Rask.

BUFFALO SABRES

LAST SEASON: 25-45-12, 62 points. Finished last in NHL standings for third time in five years.

COACH: Phil Housley (second season, second NHL season).

ADDED: LW Jeff Skinner, LW Conor Sheary, C Tage Thompson, C Patrik Berglund, C Vladimir Sobotka, rookie D Rasmus Dahlin, D Matt Hunwick, D Lawrence Pilut, G Carter Hutton.

LOST: C Ryan O'Reilly, G Robin Lehner, LW Benoit Pouliot, D Victor Antipin, D Josh Gorges, C Jordan Nolan, G Chad Johnson.

PLAYER TO WATCH: All eyes will be on Dahlin, the 18-year-old Swedish-born smooth-skating, play-making defenseman selected with the first pick in the draft.

OUTLOOK: The Sabres can't get much worse than the overpriced and under-achieving squad that won three straight games just once.

DETROIT RED WINGS

LAST SEASON: 30-39-13, 73 points. Fifth place in Atlantic Division.

COACH: Jeff Blashill (104-105-37, fourth NHL season).

ADDED: F Thomas Vanek, G Jonathan Bernier, F Filip Zadina, assistant coach Dan Bylsma.

LOST: F Henrik Zetterberg.

PLAYER TO WATCH: Dylan Larkin. The 22-year-old center was given a $30.5 million, five-year contract to lead the franchise on and off the ice. Larkin led the team with 47 assists and 63 points, surpassing the career highs he set as a rookie two years ago. Without Zetterberg, he will have to do even more this season.

OUTLOOK: The rebuilding Red Wings will likely miss the playoffs for a third straight year, their longest drought since 1979-83. Zetterberg's career-ending back injury was a hit for a franchise that simply can't replace him this season.

FLORIDA PANTHERS

LAST SEASON: 44-30-8, 96 points. Fourth in Atlantic Division.

COACH: Bob Boughner (second season, second NHL season).

ADDED: LW Mike Hoffman, RW Troy Brouwer.

LOST: C Connor Brickley, RW Radim Vrbata.

PLAYER TO WATCH: C Aleksander Barkov. He's coming off a career-best 78-point year, is now the team's captain and is simply electric in shootouts with 16 scores in 22 attempts over the last three seasons. Barkov just turned 23, and Florida sees him as its cornerstone for years to come.

OUTLOOK: It's playoffs-or-bust for the Panthers, who have been saying for years that they have a young and promising core. It's time to deliver on that promise.

MONTREAL CANADIENS

LAST SEASON: 29-40-31, 71 points. Finished sixth in Atlantic Division and missed playoffs.

COACH: Claude Julien (third season, 17th NHL season)

ADDED: F Max Domi, F Tomas Tatar, C Tomas Plekanec, F Joel Armia

LOST: LW Max Pacioretty, F Alex Galchenyuk

PLAYER TO WATCH: Carey Price. The all-world goaltender could be the difference between Montreal being one of the worst teams in the NHL and a playoff contender. He has the ability to steal games and will have to stay healthy and be at his best to have the Canadiens even dreaming about returning to the postseason.

OUTLOOK: Absent a heroic performance from Price, the Canadiens are in rebuilding territory after trading Pacioretty and Galchenyuk and counting on Domi and a youth movement to generate some optimism in hockey-mad Montreal.

OTTAWA SENATORS

LAST SEASON: 28-43-11, 67 points. Finished seventh in Atlantic Division and missed playoffs.

COACH: Guy Boucher (Third season, sixth NHL season)

ADDED: F Mikkel Boedker, C Chris Tierney, D Dylan DeMelo

LOST: D Erik Karlsson, RW Mike Hoffman

PLAYER TO WATCH: Mark Stone. Karlsson is gone, Hoffman is gone and the high-scoring 26-year-old forward is one of the only stars left with the Senators as they go into what owner Eugene Melnyk is unafraid to call a rebuild.

OUTLOOK: Pain. It's going to be a rough season in Ottawa and likely several of them after trading two-time Norris Trophy-winning Karlsson to San Jose for spare parts, prospects and draft picks. The Senators are in for a lot of losing and more trades, including pending free agents like Matt Duchene and maybe even Stone.

TAMPA BAY LIGHTNING

LAST SEASON: 54-23-5, 113 points. Won Atlantic Division. Lost to Washington Capitals in Eastern Conference Finals.

COACH: Jon Cooper (sixth NHL season, 242-143-40, 36-28 playoffs).

ADDED: F Andy Andreoff.

LOST: F Chris Kunitz, G Peter Budaj, D Jake Dotchin.

PLAYER TO WATCH: Nikita Kucherov. Kucherov has taken the mantle from Steven Stamkos to become the Lightning's most dynamic player. He scored a career-high 40 goals in 2016-17 and followed it up with 39 goals and 100 points last season. Kucherov signed an 8-year, $76 million contract extension in July.

OUTLOOK: Even with the surprising announcement of Steve Yzerman stepping down as general manager, it's business as usual for the Lightning. The roster remains largely unchanged from last season and another deep playoff run is expected.

TORONTO MAPLE LEAFS

LAST SEASON: 49-26-7, 105 points. Finished third in Atlantic Division. Lost to Boston Bruins in first round of playoffs.

COACH: Mike Babcock (Fourth season, 16th NHL season)

ADDED: C John Tavares, F Tyler Ennis

LOST: LW James van Riemsdyk, C Tyler Bozak, F Leo Komarov, F Matt Martin, D Roman Polak

PLAYER TO WATCH: Tavares. Even on a team with Auston Matthews, all eyes are on Tavares after the Toronto native signed a $77 million, seven-year contract to play for his hometown Leafs.

OUTLOOK: The Maple Leafs are a legitimate Stanley Cup contender for the first time in the salary-cap era that began in 2005. The goaltending of Frederik Andersen has to be on point, and the suspect defense has to perform.

METROPOLITAN

CAROLINA HURRICANES

LAST SEASON: 36-35-11, 83 points. Sixth in Metropolitan Division.

COACH: Rod Brind'Amour (first season, first NHL season).

ADDED: F Andrei Svechnikov, D Dougie Hamilton, D Calvin de Haan, G Petr Mrazek.

LOST: G Cam Ward, F Jeff Skinner, F Elias Lindholm, D Noah Hanifin.

PLAYER TO WATCH: C Sebastian Aho. The 21-year-old led the team last season with 29 goals and 65 points. He's entering his third season, and figures to be the team's top offensive threat especially now that Jeff Skinner has been traded to Buffalo though it will be worth watching to see how he adjusts to playing center instead of the wing.

OUTLOOK: With each passing year, the Hurricanes grow more tired of talking about their lengthy run of playoff absences.

COLUMBUS BLUE JACKETS

LAST SEASON: 45-30-7, 97 points. First wildcard in Eastern Division.

Lost to Washington Capitals in first round of playoffs.

COACH: John Tortorella (fourth season, 18th NHL season.)

ADDED: F Anthony Duclair, F Riley Nash.

PLAYER TO WATCH: Artemi Panarin. The Russian forward, acquired in a trade with Chicago in the summer of 2017, had a career year with the Blue Jackets, leading the team with 27 goals and 55 assists for 82 points.

OUTLOOK: Tortorella was signed to a two-year contract extension, but the organization was unable to lock up Panarin and star goaltender Sergei Bobrovsky with both entering the last year of their contracts. If the team can avoid that distraction, the Blue Jackets should be back in the NHL playoffs.

NEW JERSEY DEVILS

LAST SEASON: 44-29-9, 97 points. Fifth in Metropolitan Division. Lost to Tampa Bay Lightning in first round of Eastern Conference playoffs.

COACH: John Hynes (fourth season).

ADDED: D Eric Gryba, D Egor Yakovlev.

LOST: F Patrick Maroon, D John Moore, F Brian Gibbons, F Michael Grabner, F Jimmy Hayes.

PLAYER TO WATCH: Taylor Hall. Won NHL MVP in breakout season. Had team highs of 39 goals, 54 assists and 93 points, 41 points more than closest teammate.

OUTLOOK: Devils didn't change much. They believe there is a good mixture of rising stars in Hall and Hischier and solid role players in Marcus Johansson, Kyle Palmieri and Miles Wood. The question remains the defense and goaltending.

NEW YORK ISLANDERS

LAST SEASON: 35-37-10, 80 points. Seventh in Metropolitan Division.

COACH: Barry Trotz (first season, 20th NHL season).

ADDED: F Leo Komarov, F Valtteri Filppula, F Tom Kuhnhackl, F Jan Kovar, G Robin Lehner, D Luca Sbisa.

LOST: F John Tavares, D Calvin de Haan, G Jaroslav Halak.

PLAYER TO WATCH: Mathew Barzal. The reigning Calder Trophy winner as the league's top rookie will be looked on to fill a bigger role with Tavares' departure.

OUTLOOK: The Islanders have made just three playoff appearances in the last 11 seasons, missing out by 17 points last season after finishing with 30 losses in their final 45 games (15-24-6). The regression cost general manager Garth Snow and coach Doug Weight their jobs, replaced by three-time champion executive Lou Lamoriello as president of hockey operations and Trotz.

NEW YORK RANGERS

LAST SEASON: 34-39-9, 77 points. Eighth in Metropolitan Division.

COACH: David Quinn (first season, first NHL season).

ADDED: D Adam McQuaid, G Marek Mazanec, G Dustin Tokarski, D Fredrik Claesson.

LOST: G Ondrej Pavelec, D Steven Kampfer, C David Desharnis.

PLAYER TO WATCH: Henrik Lundqvist. The veteran goalie, who turns 37 in March, is coming off a 26-26-7 season with a 2.98 goals-against average the highest of his career.

OUTLOOK: After being perennially expected to compete for the Stanley Cup, the Rangers missed the playoffs for the first time in eight years. The team is rebuilding after dealing several veteran stars in a youth movement at the trade deadline last winter. Quinn was hired from Boston University to lead a youthful team that has some veterans remaining.

PHILADELPHIA FLYERS

LAST SEASON: 42-26-14, 98 Points. Third in Metropolitan Division. Lost to Pittsburgh Penguins in first round of Eastern Conference playoffs.

COACH: Dave Hakstol (fourth season, fourth NHL season).

ADDED: F James van Riemsdyk, D Christian Folin.

LOST: F Matt Read, D Brandon Manning.

PLAYER TO WATCH: Nolan Patrick. The Flyers bet their future on the 20-year-old Patrick when they made the center the No. 2 pick of the 2017 draft.

OUTLOOK: The Flyers have won between 33 and 42 games each of the last five years, a streak of mediocrity that sometimes gets them in the playoffs and sometimes it doesn't. The Flyers would like to not have to wait until the final week of the season to qualify for a playoff berth.

PITTSBURGH PENGUINS

LAST SEASON: 47-29-6, 100 points. Finished second in Metropolitan Division. Lost to Washington Capitals in Eastern Conference semifinals.

COACH: Mike Sullivan (fourth season, sixth NHL season).

ADDED: D Jack Johnson, C Matt Cullen.

LOST: F Conor Sheary, F Tom Kuhnhackl, D Matt Hunwick, F Carter Rowney.

PLAYER TO WATCH: G Matt Murray. The 24-year-old endured an up and down first season as the franchise's full-time starter.

OUTLOOK: Pittsburgh's bid to become the first team in more than 30 years to "threepeat" ended with a loss to Washington. They opted to tinker than totally retool in the offseason, splurging on Johnson and bringing back the 42-year-old Cullen to provide depth down the middle.

WASHINGTON CAPITALS

LAST SEASON: 49-26-7, 105 points. Won Metropolitan Division and Stanley Cup.

COACH: Todd Reirden (First season, first NHL season)

ADDED: C Nic Dowd, G Ilya Samsonov

LOST: C Jay Beagle, G Philipp Grubauer, D Jakub Jerabek

PLAYER TO WATCH: LW Alex Ovechkin. Coming off scoring an NHL-best 49 goals and winning the Conn Smythe Trophy as playoff MVP, Ovechkin has nothing left to prove as one of the best players of his generation.

OUTLOOK: Stanley Cup hangovers are real, and the Capitals will have to manage that and goaltender Braden Holtby playing more games because they don't have a proven backup. Washington has the talent on paper to make another deep run, but all those games deep into last June could have an effect.

Trial puts spotlight on dark side of college basketball

By Tom Hays and Larry Neumeister
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Big time college basketball was cast at the opening of a criminal trial Tuesday as a corrupt enterprise where major schools and their heralded coaches rely on athletic gear giants to do their dirty work, paying cash to struggling families of top-tier high school athletes to guide them to their doorstep.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Eli Mark repeatedly said the schools are victims and urged a Manhattan federal court jury to convict an Adidas executive and two other men of fraud charges, saying their lies put multiple schools at risk of NCAA sanctions and the loss of millions of dollars.

Defense lawyers, though, placed the blame largely on the schools' lust for basketball glory, saying universities were not innocent in their quest for top athletes who could help attract tens of millions of dollars in donations and revenues.

Mark began his opening statement colorfully, describing how $20,000 in cash provided by former Adidas executive James Gatto was stuffed in an envelope and handed to the father of a highly sought-after high school prospect from Michigan, Brian Bowen Jr., at a 2017 meeting in a New Jersey parking lot.

It was a down payment on $100,000 owed to get Bowen to attend Louisville, an Adidas-sponsored program, that could launch him to the NBA, where aspiring agent Christian Dawkins could represent him, Mark said. When the payment to the Bowen family was uncovered, Louisville pulled his scholarship and fired its legendary coach, Rick Pitino.

"This is what corruption in college basketball looks like," the prosecutor told the jury. He said cash was sometimes passed to family members in Manhattan and Las Vegas hotel rooms. Prosecutors say recordings from wiretaps and testimony of cooperators will show that Gatto, Dawkins and Adidas consultant Merl Code were behind similar payoffs to players sought by Kansas and North Carolina State.

The prosecutor said payouts were offered in the recruitment of other highly regarded athletes, including $20,000 to a guardian for Silvio De Sousa, who went to Kansas, $90,000 to the family of Billy Preston, a Kansas recruit drafted this year by the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Mark said another $40,000 was paid to the family of Dennis Smith Jr. to gain his commitment to N.C. State and up to $150,000 was offered to the family of Nassir Little, a top recruit who will play for North Carolina this year. Smith was drafted by the Dallas Mavericks last year in the first round.

Gatto's attorney, Casey Donnelly, argued major college basketball programs were complicit because they stood to make so much money themselves. And she said Gatto believed he was in bidding wars against competitors Nike and Under Armour.

Her client "was not trying to hurt these universities, he's trying to help them. ... He's supposed to help these schools shine," Donnelly said. "When Jim was helping these families, he felt he was doing his job."

Donnelly said her client had no intention to harm Louisville because steering top athletes to schools was a "win, win, win," good for the school, good for Adidas and good for the athlete.

The lawyer said Gatto was driven by the knowledge that some schools sponsored by Adidas would do almost anything to build "a nationally renowned basketball program, one that has the entire campus cheering."

"A successful basketball program is the equivalent of a winning lottery ticket," she said, noting that Louisville's program generated nearly $40 million in 2017 while Pitino earned $7 million, more than he had made coaching in the NBA. The NCAA, she said, made $1 billion.

MINNEAPOLIS Twins fire Molitor, eye new leader to grow team

The Minnesota Twins fired Paul Molitor on Tuesday, one season after he won the American League Manager of the Year award, in pursuit of more productive development by their younger players.

Molitor has been offered an undefined position in baseball operations with the organization. Chief baseball officer Derek Falvey and other club executives expressed confidence that Molitor would accept it and remain with the Twins.

"I fully respect that decision," Molitor said in a statement distributed by the team. "I will forever be grateful for the opportunity they gave me to serve in the role as manager for these past four years."

The Twins went 305-343 under the 62-year-old Molitor, with one appearance in the playoffs in 2017. They were 78-84 this year, long out of postseason contention after a series of early setbacks to several key players.

TORONTO Maple Leafs lose 2 goalies; Capitals claim Jaskin

Toronto Maple Leafs goalies Curtis McElhinney and Calvin Pickard were claimed off waivers Tuesday.

McElhinney was claimed by the Carolina Hurricanes, whose projected starter Scott Darling is injured and set to miss a few weeks. McElhinney has a 62-71-13 record in 10 seasons among six teams.

The Philadelphia Flyers claimed Pickard and placed him on non-roster status, while placing goalie Michal Neuvirth on injured reserve because of a groin injury. Pickard had a 21-9-1 record with the Toronto Marlies, the Maple Leafs' American Hockey League affiliate.

Toronto opens the season against Montreal on Wednesday with no experience behind starter Frederik Andersen and backup Garret Sparks.

The Washington Capitals added St. Louis forward Dmitrij Jaskin, the odd man out after the Blues restocked their forwards this offseason.

NEW YORK WNBA President Lisa Borders steps down

Lisa Borders stepped down as WNBA president on Tuesday, the third executive to leave the league in six months.

She will become the first president and CEO of Time's Up — an organization dedicated to safe, fair and dignified work for women.

NBA Deputy Commissioner Mark Tatum will oversee the WNBA on an interim basis while a search begins for a successor. Borders ran the league for three seasons, joining in 2016 as its fourth president. She will stay until Nov. 1.

Her departure follows that of Jay Parry, the WNBA's chief operating officer who left in April, and Ann Rodriguez, the senior vice president of league operations who left last month.

Before things get wild, the postseason from A to Z

By Jake Seiner

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Last year's World Series between the Astros and Dodgers was a thriller, ending in Houston's Game 7 victory for its first championship.

Might they have an encore in store? Perhaps one with a Hollywood ending this time?

Time to find out. After two tight NL division races stretched the regular season to a pair of Game 163s, the Rockies and Cubs are set to begin the playoffs Tuesday night with the NL wild-card game at Wrigley Field.

Before they do, a look at the 2018 postseason, from A to Z:

A: ACES OUT — Good news for NL hitters: Cy Young Award favorites Jacob deGrom, Max Scherzer and Aaron Nola won't throw a postseason pitch. Same for Patrick Corbin and 18-game winner Miles Mikolas.

B: BETTS IN SHOW — Mookie Betts enters his third postseason as the AL MVP favorite, though Boston's dynamic leadoff hitter has a rather ho-hum playoff resume. Betts has yet to deliver a playoff homer in seven games.

C: CONTROVERSIAL CLOSER — The reigning World Series champs have a different look at the back of their bullpen after a midseason move met by some criticism. The Astros acquired Roberto Osuna from Toronto while he was serving a 75-game ban for violating Major League Baseball's domestic violence policy.

D: DEBUTS — This will be the first postseason for Yankees slugger Giancarlo Stanton and Brewers star Christian Yelich after years with the floundering Marlins. Stanton will face another powerful first-timer in the wild-card game in Oakland's Khrist Davis. The Baby Braves are loaded with playoff rookies.

E: EXTRA DRAMA — This year's postseason got a special prelude — a pair of division tiebreakers. The Brewers beat the Cubs 3-1 on Monday to claim the NL Central title, and the Dodgers topped Colorado 5-2 for the NL West crown.

F: FREDDIE AND THE KIDS — Freddie Freeman leads a young Atlanta squad back to the playoffs for the first time since 2013. Freeman is a career .400 hitter in the postseason, but the Braves are just 1-4 with him in the lineup. He has a whole new supporting cast this time.

G: GOOD GARY? — Yankees catcher Gary Sanchez batted just .208 in his postseason debut last year and followed that up with a .186 average during an injury-plagued 2018. New York has stayed patient with Sanchez's defensive shortcomings because of his potential impact on offense.

H: HOME RUN KINGS — Speaking of New York ... No team has ever clubbed more homers than this year's Yankees. With 267, they beat the mark of 264 set by the 1997 Seattle Mariners. New York is the first squad with 12 players who reached double-digits in homers.

I: INSTANT REPLAY: Every call matters that much more in the postseason, and that goes for managers just as much as umpires. Last year, Yankees skipper Joe Girardi was maligned after failing to ask for a review when the plate ump incorrectly awarded Cleveland a hit by pitch. Girardi was replaced by Aaron Boone at season's end.

J: JULY PICKUPS — The Dodgers added Manny Machado and Brian Dozier before the trade deadline. Same for the Brewers with Jonathan Schoop and Mike Moustakas. J.A. Happ will be a crucial piece for the Yankees, and Kevin Gausman will get big innings for the Braves. The most surprising player who could make an impact? Luke Voit, acquired by New York without much fanfare from St. Louis.

K: KENLEY OK? — Kenley Jansen might be a point of concern for the Dodgers. After giving up two homers in Monday's 5-2 tiebreaker win over Colorado for the NL West title, Jansen has allowed 13 homers this season, besting his career high of six.

L: LONG RELIEF — Andrew Miller made the middle innings a must-watch event two seasons ago with Cleveland, and last year, starters Justin Verlander, Chris Sale and Clayton Kershaw were ready for relief in big spots. Expect to see aces in play early and often, especially in elimination games.

M: MVPs — Houston's George Springer was last year's World Series MVP, while the Cubs' Ben Zobrist is back after winning the 2016 honor. David Freese took the 2011 award with the Cardinals — he's a bench piece now with the Dodgers — and the Cubs also have Phillies 2008 Series MVP Cole Hamels.

N: NO NOVEMBER — The past two World Series have gone to Game 7s on Nov. 1, but if this year's finale goes the distance on schedule, it'll have to carry past midnight to stretch beyond October. Game 7 is scheduled for Halloween.

O: ON THE MEND — Aaron Judge and Trevor Bauer hit October trying to shake late-season DL stints. Bauer got a few tuneup appearances for Cleveland after breaking his right leg. Judge hit just .220 in 13 games after being out with a broken right hand.

P: PITCHING TO ROCKTOBER — Wild-card game starter Kyle Freeland set the franchise season ERA mark at 2.85, while German Marquez, Jon Gray, Tyler

Anderson and Antonio Senzatela round out the rotation.

Q: QUITTING WHILE AHEAD? — Dodgers second baseman Chase Utley is planning to retire after the season, but first LA will try to get him a second World Series ring. The Braves are doing the same for Brandon McCarthy.

R: ROOKIE STANDOUTS — Rookie of the Year contenders Ronald Acuna Jr. of Atlanta and Miguel Andujar of the Yankees could contribute some big swings. Acuna led all rookies with 3.8 wins above replacement (per Fangraphs) behind 26 homers, 16 stolen bases and a .293 average. Andujar tied for the rookie lead with 27 homers and led the pack with 92 RBIs.

S: STILL SLICK? — Perhaps nothing got more attention in last year's World Series than the supposedly slick basebells. The Dodgers and Astros combined for a record 25 homers while pitchers for both teams complained they couldn't get a grip.

T: TRIPLE THREATS — Boston's J.D. Martinez and Milwaukee's Christian Yelich both took serious runs at a Triple Crown this year.

U: UNHITTABLE — There have been just two no-hitters in postseason history — Don Larsen's perfect game in the 1956 World Series, and Roy Halladay's no-hitter in the 2010 NLDS. Considering this was the first regular season with more strikeouts than hits, though, the majors may be due for a third.

V: VENTERS' WILD RIDE — The last time Jonny Venters pitched in the postseason was the 2012 wild-card game with Atlanta. That 6-3 defeat to the Cardinals was Venters' final appearance in the majors until this season due to four major elbow operations.

W: WILD, WILD VET — Jon Lester is set to become the first pitcher to start two wild-card games. He pitched in the 2014 AL game for Oakland, in a 9-8, 12-inning loss to the Royals. He'll face Colorado in Tuesday's postseason opener.

X: XBH MONSTERS — Boston's Mookie Betts was the first player to lead the AL in extra-base hits and batting average since Mickey Mantle in 1956. Meanwhile, Yankees slugger Miguel Andujar tied Fred Lynn's AL rookie record with 47 doubles.

Y: YANKEE WAY, WITH A TWIST — New York was notorious for stocking its title contenders by combing through the free agent pool. Well guess who's borrowed the blueprint? The Oakland Athletics. Khrist Davis, Jed Lowrie and Blake Treinen highlight the A's lineup.

Z: ZACH BRITTON — The former Orioles closer was famously left in the bullpen by manager Buck Showalter during a tense 2016 wild-card loss to Toronto. Now he is a setup man with the Yankees.

Earl Thomas injury could have ripple effects in Pittsburgh

By Arnie Stapleton
The Associated Press

Any hope of recalcitrant running back Le'Veon Bell returning to the football field in the black and gold — or any other team's colors — any time soon took a major hit when Seattle star safety Earl Thomas broke his lower left leg, illustrating the dangers of playing without the security of a long-term deal.

Thomas and Bell each held out this summer, but while Bell continued to work out on his own, Thomas returned to the Seahawks in time for the season opener without a trade or a new contract in hand.

That move didn't pay off financially or otherwise.

He got hurt in a game at Arizona, and when he was carted off the field at State Farm Stadium, he raised his middle finger toward the Seahawks' sideline.

"Earl wanted an extension and at the end of the day he didn't get that," Seahawks defensive end Frank Clark said. "It sucks to see a guy who puts his heart into something, put his all into his team and he doesn't get what he deserves."

Seahawks linebacker Bobby Wagner said in an Instagram post, "If he doesn't come then he's not a team player. If he does come and gets hurt, then it's he shouldn't have come. If I was him, I'd be (ticked) off."

ESPN posted the quote and a photo of Thomas' obscene gesture, and that's when Bell chimed in, suggesting he wouldn't be back on the field anytime soon.

"Smh, exactly ..." wrote Bell. "Get right bro bro (Earl Thomas)! I'll continue to be the 'bad guy' for ALL of us."

Bell has refused to sign his $14.54 million one-year tender, concerned that he'd get overused in a contract year, either subjecting him to the risk of injury or to a devaluation of his talents.

NFL Network reported earlier Sunday that the Steelers were shopping Bell.

Trading him is a tricky proposition because Bell would have to first sign his tender. Because he can't negotiate a long-term deal until after this season, he'd still be taking on the injury risk with a new team.

Bell can return in Week 10 and still accrue a full season to become a free agent in March.

Other takeaways from Week 4 include a fourth-down gamble that backfired on Colts coach Frank Reich, the "Big Four" rookie QBs going 0-4 Sunday after the hype meter cranked up to high last week and the Ravens tricking the Steelers and the officials on a trick play in their 26-14 win over Pittsburgh.

Reich earned kudos from both his players and the Texans for his decision to go for it on fourth-and-4 from his 43 with 27 seconds left in overtime rather than punt, bury Houston deep and settle for the NFL's third tie game.

ACES ON BRIDGE: BOBBY WOLFF

"Dream on, but don't imagine they'll all come true. When will you realize Vienna waits for you?" — Billy Joel

One of the more basic elements of technique required in squeeze play is called a Vienna Coup. The idea is that, occasionally, communication problems between your hand and the dummy require you to cash a high honor from one hand or the other to allow you to exercise a squeeze.

Mons Iver Hestnas of Norway was playing in Tenerife (in the somewhat surprisingly named Norwegian January Bridge Festival) when he had the opportunity to make such a play. Note South's restraint in the auction: His sequence was invitational to game facing a minimum overcall, and clearly North had nothing to spare.

South combined his discretion in the bidding with a nice play. West led a low club to East's ace, and the run of the clubs meant that declarer and dummy each had to discard a heart and a spade.

Declarer needed to bring in the rest of the tricks, and when West exited passively in diamonds, South won in hand. He knew the spade finesse would fail in view of West's opening bid; but similarly, West was marked with the heart king.

Had declarer run five diamond tricks immediately, he would have cut communications between his hand and dummy, and West would simply have kept the same length as South in the majors. Instead, declarer unblocked the heart ace before running the diamonds, pitching hearts from hand. When the heart king did not appear, Hestnas led a spade to his ace and dropped West's king, scoring his queen at trick 13.

ANSWER: You seem to have just enough to balance with two diamonds. Since you did not act directly at your first turn, there has to be a limit to your suit and high cards. You could also make a case for a call of two spades, but I'd prefer a slightly better doubleton. Also, the suggested sequence might help partner judge what to lead and whether to compete further.

Couple wonders if being 'swingers' is for them

Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been married for years. We married young, and I'm the only man she has been with. Although we seem to have a good sex life, she's now saying she wants more. She wants to experiment and is suggesting we try a "swinging" lifestyle — a threesome or four-some — swapping partners.

I think she wants to experience a stronger, more physically attractive man. I'm not against it. I fantasize about watching her with another man, and it could be exciting to make love with other women. However, my question to you and your readers is, does this lifestyle enhance a marriage or does it usually lead to severe marriage

issues? — CONSIDERING IT IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR CONSIDERING IT: Depending upon the people involved, the swinging lifestyle can either enhance or destroy a marriage. If the couple is honest with each other from the beginning, establishes firm ground rules and adheres to them, it won't hurt the marriage. However, if one partner feels coerced into participating, it can be destructive, which is why I do not recommend it.

DEAR ABBY: One of my very close friends self-harms. She constantly slits her wrists and forearms. I desperately want her to stop, but I don't know how to convince her not to hurt herself.

I would talk to her parents about it, but she doesn't feel comfortable around her dad, and her mom is part of the reason she self-harms. She had a therapist she could talk to, but not anymore.

I want her to feel loved, but so far, all I've been doing to help is listen when she talks. She needs to be able to see herself as others do. What can I do to help her? I don't want to sit idle while she struggles. — GOOD FRIEND IN KANSAS

DEAR GOOD FRIEND: You are a caring person, but your friend has serious emotional problems you don't have the training or experience to handle. She will need professional help to get to the root of her emotional pain before she can stop cutting.

Because she no longer has a therapist and her parents are part of the problem, tell a counselor at school that your friend is self-harming. Perhaps there can be an intervention if her problem is approached that way.

HOROSCOPES BY HOLIDAY MATHIS

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You're really good at processing what's offered to you. You do it quickly, based on priorities you've established and re-established along the way. But don't go on automatic mode today. Something will need more attention.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — The others came in at a different time, an earlier time, and they have the advantage of already knowing the space. Other than that, they don't have anything extra that you don't have. Don't be intimidated. Go for it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21) — Emotionally healthy people don't often find themselves in the middle of drama. Though you're a fan of excitement, you'll take the peace of health over the cheap thrill of drama any old' day.

CANCER (June 22-July 22) — Trust, hope and passion. These are the things that you'll be cultivating, building on and banking on in the weeks to come. See them as the important commodities they are.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Stars smile on your negotiations. Better arrangements can be hashed out with very little compromise because each party needs the same kind of change. How fortuitous!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — It's never "just business." Business and finance are woven with emotional threads. It's never "not personal" either, if it's a person who is acting or a person who is affected. Today calls for extra sensitivity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — What rituals are involved in your daily life that keep you on the path you want to be on? And what rituals take you off of the path? That second question may be a harder one to answer, but the answer is worth more than gold.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21) — You care, and you believe. It will lead you to an exclusive and coveted position. It will help you understand what needs to happen next and why it matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Inactivity is not always the same thing as rest. Sometimes it's just being stuck. Anyway, this is no day for it either way. Move. You'll find the excellent route soon after you start walking.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — People who have already decided are not very good candidates for hearing what's new and exciting. It's why you'll put off a decision in favor of first hearing all that's being offered.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) —

You have a gift for putting yourself in the other person's place and really understanding what it's like to be there. That's why you'll sort out the conflict that others couldn't seem to unravel.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You are loyal by nature and it's why you need to do more research up front to make sure you're getting into a situation where you're going to be loyal to the right people.

Celebrate Oktoberfest with German favorites

PANAMA CITY — Germany's Oktoberfest is underway, as Panama City area restaurants join in the celebration.

Alice's on Bayview, 1000 Bayview Ave., in St. Andrews hosts an Oktoberfest celebration from 4-10 p.m. Friday and Saturday with traditional German food, German beer, and oompah music on the back deck.

"This used to be Pappy's (German Restaurant), and it's a nod to that," said owner Alice Masker, who also has enjoyed celebrating at the Oktoberfest in Germany in years' past. "We've got the Checkers, a European oompah band, a 5-piece band with an accordion. They will be playing both nights. We want people to sing along. They'll be interactive."

German favorites will be served (in addition to a limited regular menu), including a pretzel with beer cheese dip, bratwurst on a bun or a plate with kraut and German fried potatoes, Schnitzel with gravy and red cabbage — and plenty of German beer.

"Oktoberfest in Germany starts in September," said Somethin's Cookin' owner Hannelore Holland, whose maiden name is Gerstle.

thin by hand. In a heavy 3½ quart pot, heat the 4 tablespoons of oil; add onions and saute until translucent. Add cabbage and one tablespoon of Altmeister vinegar. Top with sliced apple, bay leaf, Juniper berries and 1 tablespoon of sugar. Cook slowly covered on low heat for about 15 minutes. Add red wine, water and other tablespoon of vinegar as well as the Maggi, cover and cook for another 20 minutes, stirring occasionally until soft to taste. If necessary, add more water. Add 1 tablespoon of au jus at the end. You may add a little vinegar if desired. Add salt and pepper to taste. Remove the bay leaf before serving. This dish is better the next day.

Sept. 22 with Munich's mayor Dieter Reiter tapping the first barrel of Oktoberfest beer, and festivities continue through Oct. 7 with beer, music, food and friends — donned in lederhosen and dirndls.

Holland, who was raised in Germany near the French border by the Lorraine region, continues the German tradition by serving her Oktoberfest special (in addition to the regular menu) till just before Halloween at Somethin's Cookin', 93 E. 11th St.

"I came today specifically for the Bratwurst. There are not many places that serve German food, and I just like good Bratwurst," said Roger Schad, who has been a customer of Somethin's Cookin' since moving to the area in 1983. "It's one of my most favorite places to eat. I've never had a bad meal."

The bratwurst special features a plate with one or two bratwurst topped with brown butter and sprinkled with crispy onions on a bed of sauerkraut served with German mustard, cold potato salad made with ranch dressing, and bread. (The plate is gluten-free sans the bread.)

"Each region does it (bratwurst) a little different. In Bavaria, they turn it in beer before they put them on the grill or in the pan. I do them in a grill pan in a little butter," said Holland, who added the Bavarian sausage is called Weisswurst. "In Bavaria, they serve it with a pretzel. I have a twist because where I'm from, near the French border, I serve it with a baguette with butter with Champagne mustard and Gruyere. I heat it in the oven till the cheese melts or on a panini press — what I do. I also serve it with sauerkraut

Classic German Potato Salad

- 1 pound potatoes, cooked and peeled
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 3 tablespoons oil
- 4 tablespoons Altmeister vinegar
- Salt, pepper, little sugar, lemon dill
- 1 teaspoon Champagne mustard
- Parsley
- 1 egg, cooked
- 1 tomato
- ¼ cup beef broth

cooked with a little sweet white wine. The taste goes well with weisswurst."

Bratwurst and weisswurst are different varieties of German sausage, but bratwurst also can be referred to as sausage that is pan fried. Weisswurst traditionally is cooked in water.

Holland cuts slits in the bratwurst before soaking it in whole milk and pan frying it in a grill pan with butter.

"My grandmother used milk," said Holland, whose family owned a restaurant and guesthouse on more than three acres of land in the Pflaz area for more than 125 years. "It browns it better, or you can do it in beer."

Instead of the traditional German potato salad (recipe below), she is serving her restaurant special with a cold version of a German

Boil potatoes; cook, peel and slice. Saute onion, put over potatoes. Chop parsley; add to potatoes and onion. Heat broth; add oil, vinegar, mustard and seasoning. Pour broth mixture over potatoes. Stir and put in refrigerator. Garnish with egg, tomato and more parsley and serve. You may use bacon if you wish and also serve it warm.

potato salad featuring quartered skin-on new potatoes, her twist with ranch dressing, green onions, salt, pepper — and lots of bacon.

She also rinses and drains Boar's Head sauerkraut to make it her own.

"I rinse it and saute one onion to the 32-ounce package in 1 tablespoon canola oil and half of an apple (Granny Smith) peeled, cored and thinly sliced. Add five juniper berries and one bay leaf, a tablespoon of sugar and 1 cup sweet white wine — Riesling or Moscato — and cook it slowly for about an hour."

Although she buys it wholesale, Boar's Head sauerkraut is available at grocery stores, such as Publix.

"Sauerkraut may be served with pork roast," added Holland, who also shared her recipe for Rotkraut (red cabbage).

Bratwurst is soaked in milk, or beer may be used, to help it brown better in the butter.
