AP Christmas parade draws big crowd

By MARC VALERO

AVON PARK — It looked a lot like Christmas Monday evening on Main Street as the Avon Park Christmas Parade delighted a large crowd enjoying the sights and sounds of the holiday season.

There was a lot to see from floats to dancers to beauty queens to clowns and businesses, church groups, school groups, cars, motorcycles, fire engines and Santa Claus.

Kids were excited and couldn't wait to see Santa and many were waiting to spot a family member in the parade.

Blayse Brown, 2, was ready for the parade and anxious to see her sister and brother who were in it.

Blayse's mother, Krystal, said Ty will be walking with his father in the parade and Payton will walking as a Park Elementary School leader.

The parade was sponsored by the Avon Park Chamber of Commerce.

Just before the parade started, Chamber Executive Director George Karos said the parade would have nearly 70 floats/entries and many people walking.

"It is kind of returning back to its older days when it had 80 floats," he said. It is more than last year.

He noted the many spectators, hundreds, on both sides of east Main Street.

"It is a beautiful night," Karos said. "It is a really wonderful time that brings together all facets of the community to celebrate and usher in the holiday season."

The holiday spirit continues with the annual Christmas in the Park, starting at 6 p.m. Monday, Dec. 4 in Donaldson Park.

It is a free event, sponsored by the Avon Park Chamber of

Also, the Avon Park High School Grenadier Band will close out the evening's music.

Sebring is up next in the parade lineup at 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 1.

The parade will encompass the downtown area and Circle Park and can be viewed from sidewalks along Ridgewood Drive and Commerce Avenue and, of course, the park on the Circle.

Lake Placid will wrap up the parade season with the theme "There's No Place like Home for Christmas," sponsored by the Greater Lake Placid Chamber of Commerce at 7 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 9.

Man with gun detained at SFSC, arrested

AVON PARK — Highlands County Sheriff's deputies detained a man with a gun on the campus of South Florida State College on Tuesday afternoon. Two people, a man and a woman, were arrested in connection with the incident and no injuries were reported.

A 911 call went out at about 1:30 p.m. Tuesday reporting an armed man on campus. Within 10 minutes the suspect, Kevin S. McHargue, 20, of Sebring was disarmed without incident and placed in Sheriff Office's custody before he could walk off of the campus,

The make of the gun has not yet been released; a Sheriff's Office press release states a revolver was recovered "in the parking lot of the center within yards of where McHargue was taken into custody."

McHargue served time in prison from January 2015 to May 2017 on charges of carrying a concealed firearm by a delinquent felon. He was also arrested on drug charges in August 2017.

County continues burning debris

By PHIL ATTINGER

SEBRING — Highlands County residents concerned about the continued burning of storm debris will see it continue until the middle of December, at least.

County Engineer Clinton Howerton Jr. said county crews are still burning debris at county land on Skipper Road, at the Highlands County landfill on Arbuckle Creek Road and at the old county landfill on State Road 17, east of Avon Park. Winds at the Skipper Road and State Road 17 locations have sent smoke toward U.S. 27 and downtown Avon Park, respectively. However, he said burning is the only way the county can dispose of debris quickly and affordably.

"We're trying to reduce (smoke) as much as possible," Howerton said. "Other options are too expensive."

For example, running wood chippers would cost the county $15,000 per day, and county crews would still have to load the chips into dump trucks and haul them to debris piles at the Arbuckle Creek landfill.

"We are sensitive to the inconveniences," said Howerton, who also said he was "beating my head against a wall" trying to help residents with debris removal but also trying to get solid answers from the Federal Emergency Management Agency on what types of debris collection will or won't get reimbursed.

As of Monday, contracted crews had collected 824,102 cubic yards of storm debris. Howerton has estimated the county will pick up 900,000 cubic yards before it's done, at an estimated cost of $10.6 million. A big part of LAKE PLACID — Burger King will soon be opening in the Town of Murals — again. Several years ago, the previous Burger King went out of business and the building sat empty for a while. It is now the site of Dunkin' Donuts.

The new location will be at the front of the parking lot in the South Highlands Shopping Plaza adjacent to Bank of America. The plaza is located on the corner of Dal Hall Boulevard and U.S. 27.

The new location looks to be nearly complete and this week contractors are constructing the large parking lot and

"We wanted it opened already," Gregory said. "We are shooting for Christmas at this point.

Our contractor says Jan. 1 but we are trying for earlier."

Hurricane Irma impeded the progress of the construction, like it affected so many other aspects of life this summer and fall.

"We were delayed with the hurricane and not so much our site, and dealing with everybody's issues with the hurricane, personally but the energy company and getting power out to the site," Gregory said. "It has really been an issue; it has held us up a lot. It would be safe to say that we will be open by the first of the year, no matter what comes."

Man charged with stalking wife

By JAY MEISEL
STAFF WRITER

AVON PARK — An Avon Park man was arrested after being accused of stalking his wife, despite having a court order requiring him to have no contact with her, according to an arrest report released Monday.

Juan Ramon Sanchez Tevenal, 39, no address given, was arrested by the Highlands County Sheriff's Office and charged with violation of an injunction and aggravated stalking.

Authorities say that Tevenal, despite the injunction, repeatedly called his wife, the report said.

During one call, Tevenal left a message that said "I will come to your house tonight and kill you," the report said.

Later, deputies arrested Tevenal at a city park, the report said.

Highlands County Circuit Court records show Tevenal was arrested twice previously on a domestic violence charge. One case is pending. The other was dismissed.

SPECIAL TO
HIGHLANDS NEWS-SUN

AVON PARK — Detectives are looking for information about an attempted armed robbery in Avon Park on Thanksgiving night.

The victim told deputies he was sitting on the tailgate of a truck at his mother's home on South Carolina Avenue at 11 p.m. on Thanksgiving when a black male, about 5-foot-4 and 120 pounds and wearing all black with a red bandanna, approached out of the darkness and pointed a gun at him, demanding money.

The victim did not have any money, and the suspect made him stand up and turn out his pockets to prove it. The suspect then left the area and headed north on South Carolina Avenue.

Anyone with information about this case is asked to call Detective Jody Stowers at 863-402-7387 or email detectives@highlandssheriff.org. Peanut grass still on order

FDOT: Will plant after holidays

By PHIL ATTINGER
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — Motorists upset or perplexed by dead grass in some medians of U.S. 27 may get their wish after Christmas, when the state replants new grass.

Low-maintenance peanut grass will be installed in the highway medians between Hammock Road and Sparta Road in Sebring. The contractor hired has a year to complete the job, according to an email from Christopher R. Hiehle Sr. E.I.T., the maintenance contracts manager for Florida Department of Transportation Heartland Operations, to Highlands County Engineer Clinton "Gator" Howerton Jr. In the email, Hiehle said installation of the peanut grass will begin after the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

Residents such as Michael Lathrem of Sebring have asked in letters to the editor of the Highlands News-Sun why grass in that median was dead, with no sign of it being replanted soon. Highlands County Commissioner Greg Harris, at the Nov. 21 meeting, was a little more than irritated at the wait.

"When are we getting the stinking peanut grass?" Harris asked.

Howerton told commissioners that the holdup is Hardee County. Once the contractor finishes a job over there, crews will come over to Highlands.

"I understand that you are receiving pressure from the local citizens, and I apologize for any inconvenience this may be causing," Hiehle wrote in his email. "We are working diligently with the contractor to usher his efforts in the replacement of the median vegetation."

U.S. 27 medians already have peanut grass in other locations. Back in March, FDOT completed a $540,000 landscaping project from Old State Road 8 to South Main Avenue in Lake Placid, which also included irrigation and several types of trees. Zachary Burch, FDOT District 1 communications manager, reported that most of the money was for irrigation and the trees, as well as two years of maintenance. Peanut grass is also in place on U.S. 27 just north of the Sebring Parkway/Schumacher Road intersection.

Typically, medians have drought-resistant and heat-tolerant Bahiagrass, but it grows knee high very quickly. Harris, at several county commission meetings, voiced his anger about how badly the medians looked to visitors because the grass had gotten ahead of FDOT maintenance schedules. Burch, however, has touted peanut grass for its reduced maintenance costs: Only needing two mowings per year versus 10 or more for Bahiagrass. Also, the peanut grass will flower, decorating medians.

Harris said in July, although he wasn't fond of peanut grass at first, it's grown on him. Howerton, however, is less convinced.

"I'm not sold on it," Howerton said Monday. "It grows up in weeds, (because they) don't mow it as much."

CORRECTION
A story on the front page of the Saturday, Nov. 25 edition of the Highlands News-Sun incorrectly quoted Fred Arch of Placid Lakes. He told county commissioners that water backed up in the canal into Lake Diane and flooded homes, thanks to narrow pipes creating a bottleneck. After culverts and roads washed out, the canal handled the surge, which kept downstream homes from flooding. The Highlands News-Sun regrets the error and appreciates the opportunity to set the record straight.

OUR VIEW

Is it time for a new administrator?

In the past nine years, Highlands County has had three county administrators, and it looks as though we are soon going to be searching for a fourth one.

Carl Cool served as the county's first administrator and did so successfully for 16 years, retiring in May 2008. Michael Wright succeeded Cool, but his tenure was short-lived. After just two years, Wright was put on administrative leave when commissioners determined the direction Wright was taking was not good for the county, citing an all-time low morale of county employees and employees being directed to not speak with commissioners.

One week later, Wright's contract was terminated.

Rick Helms, who was the county's assistant administrator, was vaulted into the top county seat, but he too would hold the reins for a short two years. The reason for his termination was deemed a lack of communication.

In June Fisher, whose long-term experience in the county dated back to her years in high school. She also had held positions as manager in Citrus, DeSoto and Glades counties, resigning the top spot in Citrus County in 2008 to come back to Highlands County as the community services director.

Fisher's experience and government knowledge made her the county commissioner's top choice to replace Helms in late 2012.

Fisher has outlasted her two predecessors in the county administrator's seat. However, her time there seems to be drawing near and Fisher knows it.

Before Thanksgiving, county commissioners raised questions about Fisher's quality of leadership. They said they had heard rumblings among county staff about long-standing matters that came to a head during and after Hurricane Irma.

More recently, Commissioner Ron Handley said complaints concerned how well the Emergency Operations Center was manned during Hurricane Irma and whether or not Fisher was at the EOC at the time.

Commissioners said they also heard that some key employees, who were unnamed, were looking for other jobs. Assistant County Administrator Randy Vosburg, who has four years of experience in Highlands County, has already accepted a position as general manager of The Meadows, an independent district in Sarasota County. He begins there Dec. 11.

Rather than discuss any of those concerns at the Dec. 5 meeting as planned, commissioners will hold a special meeting at 4 p.m. Thursday at the Highlands County Government Center, 600 S. Commerce Ave. in Sebring. This is an opportunity for the county commissioners to retain a knowledgeable and experienced employee rather than usher another administrator to the door. Perhaps a time table could be established to accomplish expected improvements and Fisher could be re-evaluated again in a few months.

Commissioner Don Elwell is the only one of the five commissioners who voiced a concern during Fisher's most recent evaluation, rating her performance as satisfactory while the other four rated her performance as exceptional.

Perhaps Fisher is burned out, or maybe she is just giving up. She told commissioners before the Thanksgiving holiday that she has already met with staff, gotten good feedback and brainstormed on some measures, addressing several of the concerns she was aware of. Her next statement, however, says to us that she has already checked out of the top role: "You have a lot of qualified employees who could take over (during a search)."

That doesn't sound like a something one would say if they are ready to enter a battle for their job.

A reminder of America's capacity for moral renewal

Even in a political season of routine marvels, few developments are more spectacularly incongruous than this: America has seen a swift, dramatic shift in attitudes toward sexual harassment with Donald Trump as president.

It is sometimes assumed (including by me) that the presidency sets a moral tone for the nation, influencing what society considers normal and acceptable in a kind of trickle-down ethics. But the sexual harassment revolution emerged from society in spite of — or even in defiance of — a president who has boasted of exploiting women and who stands accused of harassing more than a dozen.

This is a reminder that the moral dynamics of a nation are complex, which should come as no surprise to conservatives (at least of the Burkean variety). This is a big country, capable of making up its own collective mind. Politics only reaches the light zone of a deep ocean. It is a sign of hope that moral and ethical standards can assert themselves largely unaided by political, entertainment and media leaders — except when they serve as cautionary tales of egregious behavior.

We are seeing an example of how social change often (and increasingly) takes place. Advocates of a cause can push for a long time with little apparent effect. Then, in a historical blink, what seemed incredible becomes inevitable. Over a period of years, this is what happened with the gay marriage movement. A type of inclusion that initially appeared radical and frightening became an obvious form of fairness to a majority of Americans. Politicians, including President Obama, were left catching up to the new social consensus.

GUEST COLUMN

Over a period of weeks, this is the story of the revolt against sexual harassment. What seemed for generations the prerogative of powerful men has been fully revealed as a pernicious form of dehumanization. Men such as Bill O'Reilly, Harvey Weinstein and Charlie Rose have been exposed at their moments of maximum cruelty and creepiness — just as their alleged victims (on credible testimony) experienced them. An ethical light switch was flipped. Moral outrage — the appropriate response — now seems obvious.

Such rapid shifts in social norms should be encouraging to social reformers of various stripes. Attitudes and beliefs do not move on a linear trajectory. A period of lightening clarity can change the assumptions and direction of a culture. The movement against capital punishment, for example, may be reaching such a point. Advocates of gun control, in contrast, seem to have an endless wait. But the record of our times counsels against despair.

On sexual harassment, our country is now in a much better ethical place. And how we got here is instructive. Conservatives have sometimes predicted that moral relativism would render Americans broadly incapable of moral judgment. But people, at some deep level, know that rules and norms are needed. They understand that character — rooted in empathy and respect for the rights and dignity of others — is essential in every realm of life, including the workplace.

And where did this urgent assertion of moral principle come from? Not from the advocates of "family values." On the contrary, James Dobson, the founder of Focus on the Family (now under much better management), chose to side with Roy Moore against his highly credible accusers.

"I have been dismayed and troubled," said Dobson, "about the way he and his wife Kayla have been personally attacked by the Washington establishment."

It is as if Dobson set out to justify every feminist critique of the religious right. Instead of standing against injustice and exploitation — as the Christian gospel demands — Dobson sided with patriarchal oppression in the cause of political power. This is beyond hypocrisy. It is the solidarity of scary, judgmental old men. It is the ideology of white male dominance dressed up as religion.

This is how low some religious conservatives have sunk: They have left me sounding like an English professor at Sarah Lawrence College.

Conservatives need to be clear and honest in this circumstance. The strong moral commitment to the dignity of women and children recently asserting itself in our common life has mainly come from feminism, not the "family values" movement. In this case, religious conservatives have largely been bystanders or obstacles. This indicates a group of people for whom the dignity of girls and women has become secondary to other political goals.

We are a nation with vast resources of moral renewal. It is a shame and a scandal that so many religious conservatives have made themselves irrelevant to that task.

"Hi, Tom, I called to thank you."

"Thank me?"
"Do you remember the data breach at the credit-rating agency Equifax last summer? You were among the 143 million people whose personal data were compromised."
"I was?"
"That's right. I gained access to your Social Security number, driver's license number and credit card accounts."

"Who are you?"
"Your worst nightmare, Tom. Using your personal information, I opened credit card accounts that funded a spending spree — thousands of dollars, in your name. Cancun is especially relaxing with you footing the bill."
"You dirty rat."
"It gets worse, Tom. With your personal information, I located your online bank accounts and drew out all your cash."

"My bank accounts are password-protected!"
"Good one, Tom. It took less than a minute to crack your code. Only a fool would use '123456,' the worst password for several years running, according to

"I'd also like to thank you for the big fat tax refund. I filed a return in your name. Your fraudulent refund covered my entire tour of Europe!"

"You won't get away with this, fraudster."
"Regrettably, Tom, it is you who won't get away with what I did. I committed dozens of felonies using your driver's license, which I forged. Skipping out on hotel bills was one of my favorites. The cops will be calling!"

"I'll sue to get my good name back!"
"That's a laugh, Tom. Few people have the time or money to hire expensive lawyers to sue big companies like Equifax. As for me, after I'm done pretending to be you, I'll disappear."

"There must be something I can do!"

"It's a little late, Tom, but you should have done three things: Check your credit reports to learn if your information was breached; freeze your credit files, so that credit agencies require your authorization before creditors may access them; and sign up for a credit-monitoring service."

"Our government should do more to stop criminals like you!"

"Funny you mention that, Tom. According to MarketWatch, the Trump administration is exploring ways to replace the Social Security number as a primary means of identification."

"How will that help?"
"Your Social Security number has more than 40 congressionally approved uses. You can't drive, vote, apply for a job or open a bank account without revealing that number. A lifelong, unchanging identifier like the Social Security number is a godsend to people like me!"

"I really dislike you, fraudster!"
"The Trump administration wants to replace the Social Security number with modern identification technologies. As MarketWatch reports, "the new identifier would be a unique number known only to the user that changes periodically and automatically."

"You won't be able to gain access to it?"

"That's right, Tom. MarketWatch says it could include 'biometric identification or non-numeric identifiers like birth date, occupation, and other unique facts about an individual.' Such modern measures will put fraudsters like me out of business."

"I can't wait. But right now, I want you to man up and give me two things: your real name and your phone number."

"Sorry, Tom, but that information is private."

A glaring loophole for fugitives

When gun-control and gun-rights advocates clash after the latest mass shooting, you can usually count on two rhetorical chips being thrown onto the table:

"What new law would have stopped the latest massacre?" gun-rights advocates will ask.

That'll inevitably be followed up with the assertion that if we put limits on gun ownership, then only the bad guys will have guns.

But thanks to a law enforcement turf war, we know know the latter is probably untrue.

That's because, back in February, 70,000 people were purged from an FBI database over a disagreement over the definition of "fugitive from justice," leaving them legally able to purchase firearms.

As The Washington Post reported last week, people wanted by law enforcement were removed from the National Instant Criminal Background Check System when the FBI "changed its legal interpretation of 'fugitive from justice' to say it only [pertained] to people who crossed state lines."

The background checks system, which is run by the FBI, made headlines when it was revealed that the Air Force followed to fail policies that would have added Texas church shooter Devin P. Kelley to the system.

The Charleston church shooter, Dylann Roof, was wrongly able to legally purchase the weapon in his murderous rampage after his name was not added to the database because of an arrest for drug possession. The mistake in the Roof case has been referred to as "The Charleston Loophole."

Gun owners, spurred by on the National Rifle Association, have opposed efforts to expand background checks, seriously arguing they "don't necessarily stop criminals from getting firearms."

Taking a break from forgetting things about Russia and trampling on the rights of America's LGBTQ citizens, U.S. Attorney General Jeff Sessions at least had the presence of mind last week to send a letter to the FBI and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms calling on the two agencies to fix the system.

The NICS system is "critical for us to be able to keep guns out of the hands of those ... prohibited from owning them," Sessions said. He also reportedly ordered the two agencies to report back to him on measures ensuring that "people who are prohibited from purchasing firearms are prevented from doing so."

The problem is that Sessions' own Justice Department is part of the problem here.

Last year, before President Donald Trump took office, The Post reported the DoJ's Office of Legal Counsel sided with the ATF (which had narrow definition of fugitive) against the FBI (which had historically had a broader one), agreeing that gun purchases could only be denied to fugitives who crossed state lines.

Then, after Trump took office, the DoJ further narrowed the definition, confining it to those who had crossed "state lines to avoid prosecution for a crime or to avoid giving testimony in a criminal proceeding."

And faster than you could say "shall not be infringed," what had once been a list of 500,000 fugitives in the database had been trimmed to ridiculously small 788.

Robyn Thomas, executive director of the Giffords Law Center to Prevent Gun Violence, called on the FBI and ATF to "correct this self-inflicted loophole," and also called on the government to recover the weapons that had been illegally purchased by people purged from the database.

That's a tall order, since the folks with the guns are, well, fugitives, and are presumably pretty good at evading contact with law enforcement. One also imagines that taking the weapons back might not end well for at least one side of that discussion.

David Chipman, a former ATF official who now advises the Giffords group, says Congress should pass a law cleaning up the definition of fugitive so that the current legal logjam won't repeat itself in the future.

"I would imagine 99 percent of Americans don't want people who have a warrant out on them to be able to buy a gun," Chipman told The Post. "I can't believe there is a constituency for wanted people. Wanted people are particularly dangerous. They've already proven that they'll break the law."

With Congress unwilling to take even the most minor of steps to expand background checks or limit the sale of devices that enable mass slaughter, those on both sides of the debate should be able to agree that this "fugitive loophole" should be closed as soon as possible.

Panel supports term limits for school board members

By MARC VALERO
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — School board members would be limited to eight years in office, and school superintendents would be appointed in all 67 school districts under measures advanced Monday by a panel of the Florida Constitution Revision Commission.

In a unanimous vote, the commission's Education Committee backed a measure (Proposal 43), sponsored by Commissioner Erika Donalds, that would impose an eight-year term limit on school board members, who now serve four-year terms without limits on running for re-election.

In a 6-2 vote Monday, the commission's Education Committee also adopted another Donalds measure (P33) that would require all school districts to appoint their superintendent rather than have them elected.

In 2010, Highlands County voters, by an almost 2-1 vote (65.1 to 34.8 percent), said "no" to a referendum that would have changed the superintendent of schools from an elected to an appointed position.

At the time, proponents of an elected superintendent noted the costs associated with an appointed superintendent such as conducting a search to fill the position, a higher salary and contract payouts in the event of termination.

Those who favor a superintendent appointed by the school board believe it opens the position to many more qualified candidates who reside outside of the county.

Highlands School Board Member Donna Howerton, who is in her sixth term, said Tuesday, "While term limits sound appealing, I believe it is better to give the voters the opportunity to select their representatives and not be restricted by government intervention."

Howerton remembered the "appointed superintendent" referendum being defeated.

"I think we have been very blessed with who we had in those positions," she said. "I first started [on the School Board] under Richard Farmer who was a numbers man; Wally Cox was a numbers man and now Dr. [Brenda] Longshore has a more curriculum and administrative background and not maybe as much a numbers person."

"I always feel if you have weakness somewhere, you make sure you have good people in those areas that you have weaknesses," she said.

With an appointed superintendent, the board can find someone with strengths in the needed areas, Howerton said.

Donalds, a Collier County School Board member, said her term limits proposal was patterned after the eight-year term limit for members of the Legislature, which was adopted by voters in 1992. "Term limits provide fresh faces and new ideas to elected office," Donalds said. "Longtime politicians become entrenched with the status quo and develop a pride in ownership of the bureaucracy they helped to create and sustain."

Donalds said limiting terms will reduce the influence of special-interest groups in elections and remove the power of incumbency, making it easier for new members to join school boards.

But the measure drew opposition from a number of education advocates.

Chris Doolin, representing a coalition of 38 rural school districts, said imposing term limits would be "a giant leap" from the current system and could hurt smaller districts where there is "a limited pool of folks willing to run and serve on their boards."

The 37-member Constitution Revision Commission, which meets every 20 years, has the power to place proposed constitutional amendments directly on the 2018 ballot. Its committees are considering dozens of proposals, with the commission expected to whittle the list of ballot measures in the coming months.

Any proposals that go on the ballot would need approval from 60 percent of voters to change the Constitution.

Concerning the appointed superintendent proposal, currently, 26 districts, including all of Florida's major metropolitan areas, appoint their superintendents, while 41 districts, representing largely smaller, more rural counties, elect superintendents.

Donalds said Florida is out of step since the overwhelmingly majority of school systems across the nation appoint superintendents. She said only Alabama and Florida still allow elections.

Donalds and other supporters also said allowing the appointment of superintendents would broaden the pool of potential school administrators, rather than restricting the job to county residents through the elections process.

Pasco County Superintendent Kurt Browning, who is elected, opposed the measure.

"My fundamental concern is the loss of local control," Browning said.

Noting the statewide average for the tenure of appointed school superintendents was about three years, Browning said there is "much more" stability with an elected superintendent, who serves a four-year term.

Routine vital for those with dementia during holidays

By KIM LEATHERMAN
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — 'Tis the season to be jolly, for large family gatherings, feasting, glittering lights and Christmas carols. However, for those suffering with dementia or Alzheimer's disease and their caregivers, the season lends itself to a new set of concerns and trials.

Changes in a routine for those who suffer from dementia or Alzheimer's disease can lead to anxiety, depression and anti-social behavior. Cora Schwingel is the administrator of Change of Pace, an adult daycare in Sebring. She explained why sticking to a routine during the holidays is of the utmost importance.

"If those with dementia are in a routine, their lives and those of their caregivers are more peaceful," Schwingel said. "It helps everyone to remain calm. When you go from a dinner setting of two to 22, it is overwhelming. They may not participate in conversation, become anxious and want to leave." Schwingel suggests having families over in smaller groups and the Alzheimer's Association suggests telling family members of any changes in their loved one since the last visit.

"Never argue with the person with dementia," Schwingel said. "You won't win because in their world, they are correct."

Sundowning is a period of time, usually at dusk, where those with dementia become anxious or agitated, and may display inappropriate behavior. Some victims of the disease can even become violent. Despite the monicker, Schwingel said that sundowning can occur any time of the day.

"Watch for behavior and journal it," Schwingel said. "If you know that they have a specific time that sundowning happens, you can plan around it and be better prepared."

Certified Dementia Practitioner and author Lisa Rodriguez includes these helpful tips for getting through the holidays as peacefully as possible.

- Include the person with dementia as much as their ability will allow.

- Ask them to stir a pot or fold napkins and set the table, giving them a sense of purpose.
- Include them in conversation.
- Encourage reminiscing.
- In later stages, encourage with a simple word or touch.

Knowing that they are still a valued member of the family can heighten the self worth of those suffering with dementia. Following these tips may help to ensure that glad tidings are had by all.

The Florida Department of Elder Affairs's 2013 report estimated that there were around 4,107 people diagnosed with "Probable Alzheimer's Cases." Nu-Hope Elder Care Services Executive Director Ingra Gardner said the numbers are probably higher because the incidence of dementia or Alzheimer's disease increases with age.

Florida Health Charts reports 52 deaths from dementia in Highlands County in 2016, or a rate of 17.4 per 100,000.

Four buddies help homeless vets

By KATHY LEIGH BERKOWITZ
SUN NEWSPAPERS

WINTER HAVEN — Carl Newman remembers when he was homeless. For one year and three months, he lived in his mini van. His parents begged him to move home with them. But he would not.

"Mom and Dad visited me every day," he said. But he told them, "I got myself into this mess and if I don't get myself out of this mess, I will learn no lessons."

Fast forward many years. He and three military buddies were hanging out and noticed a homeless man who said he was a veteran.

He and his friends decided to watch the guy to see if he was homeless. So they did. And sure enough, they saw him find a place on the ground and go to sleep when nightfall hit.

"Why don't we do something for him?" he asked his friends.

So they bought a cheap little trailer and made arrangements at a campground to put his trailer not really on its own lot, but just sort of tucked away. And stipulated that he could work a few odd jobs around the campground to pay toward the spot.

At first, he protested the help. He didn't want a hand out. But eventually, they talked him into living in the camper.

"Today, he's got a job," said Newman.

That was just a beginning for Newman and his friends.

Food drives begin

Hunger and homelessness being a problem for many vets, Newman said last year they started doing a bunch of food drives. They did not advertise. It was just the four veteran buddies looking to help others.

"If you've never been in the military, you don't realize how hard it is to transition," he said.

Everyone sees a homeless vet, he notes, and says "go get a job."

But there are two things you need.

"A shower is necessary," he said.

And if you have no vehicle, you are stuck to working anywhere in a 10 block radius, he added.

"It doesn't take much," he said, to deal with the plight of true homelessness.

On one hand, a person can give a homeless person $5, and they have fed them for a night, but not really fixed the issue at hand.

Newman remembered all too well what it was like to be hungry.

"I remember the day I walked one and a half miles to buy a can of ravioli," he said.

So he did local jobs. He bought his can of ravioli. Starving, he suddenly realized, "I didn't have a can opener."

And all he could do was cry.

Now, he said, all he is trying to do is take the "unofficial" work he and his friends do, to help others.

Veterans are hard folks, he noted.

They are not signed up at food banks.

"They would rather sit there and be hungry than ask for help," he said.

Enter Santa's Village

Newman and his friends decided to do a Santa's Village for four days last week. Starting in Winter Haven, the event was from 5-10 p.m. Thursday through Sunday. This week, it will be held in Lakeland at Merchant's Walk on Florida Avenue, same hours, same days. While admission is free, people are encouraged to bring non-perishable food items for homeless vets. There was a live nativity scene in Winter Haven, along with pictures with Santa and carriage rides. There are fees for both of those activities. He is hoping the event takes off and gets bigger.

His goal this year is to reach 50 to 75 families with food. And if they have any left over, it will go to local food banks. Meanwhile, Newman believes he is helping a good cause, a man who served as a Marine (non-combat) during the first Gulf War. He spent four years in the military.

"The friendships and bonds you develop in the military are lifelong," he said.

Bartow passes homeless ordinance

By JEFF ROSLOW
SUN NEWSPAPERS

BARTOW — No longer can people sit and block city streets and rights of way in Bartow by a voice call vote was OK'd by all five commissioners on Monday, Nov. 20.

This is the second ordinance the city of Bartow has passed to combat homelessness in the city in the last month. And while the laws are not aimed at a homeless couple that has been living on various streets in Bartow for more than a year, it was their presence that directed them toward making the laws.

At the Nov. 6 meeting, commissioners OK'd on a second public hearing an ordinance against allowing people from camping in a public area on a permanent basis. However, at the same meeting, a law not allowing sitting in a permanent place was tabled as Polk County Public Defender Rex Dimmig urged commissioners not to pass the Sit/Lie ordinance as written because it was too vague. Following that meeting, Dimmig and Bartow Attorney Sean Parker worked together to make the law less vague. After no comment from the public, and some discussion from commissioners, the second ordinance was passed on Nov. 20.

Parker said the old ordinance, as written, could mean if someone argued in court that if he or she was sitting on a lawn chair on their porch and "their toes were on the sidewalk," that person would not be obstructing anyone.

The ordinance also points out seven circumstances where it is not a violation. Someone sitting or lying in a park, sitting or lying due to a medical emergency, utilizing an object supplied by a public agency for which it was intended such as a bench, sitting or lying on a wheelchair, baby carriage or vehicle, participating or viewing an activity such as a parade, festival or rally, patronizing a sidewalk cafe or sitting or lying down in part of a protest accompanied by incidents of speech such as signs or literature explaining the protest.

The ordinance, it states, is to protect against threats to public health and safety, and to ensure the free and safe flow of traffic through publicly owned rights of way.

A violation of the ordinance will be a warning, the second would be a judicial proceeding in county court which could mean imprisonment for 30 days or a fine not to exceed $500.

The ordinance further states this will be in effect from 7 a.m.-10 p.m. to which Commissioner Trish Pfeiffer asked why there is a time.

Parker said that is in response to traffic concerns on sidewalks and streets.

"If you are sitting at 2 in the morning you're probably not in anyone's way. We want to avoid being overly broad if we go to court."

He added the use of this ordinance is rare, being that it is most modeled after the one in Orlando, and the other anti-camping ordinance.

"The feedback we got on their ordinance, which is broader than ours, is that it is used sparingly," Parker characterized it by referring to it as similar to a tool police officers have in case they need it.

Pfeiffer was also concerned with the trash situation. There have been instances where the homeless couple — Jeffrey McGinty and Tabitha Drake — have left garbage and human waste in the street, causing potential health problems. That, Parker said, has been left out of the ordinance because there are state littering laws that cover that.

"The intent of this law is that people don't stay on the sidewalk 24-7," he said.

With those questions dealt with, Commissioner Leo Longworth asked if there was anything else new in the ordinance since the Nov. 6 meeting. At that meeting, Longworth was the lone commissioner who voted in favor of the Sit/Lie ordinance saying if corrections had to be made, it could be done later, and the commissioners could vote again.

"There is nothing else that is new," Parker said. "But this is like the (Bartow Police) chief (Joe Hall) said last time. This is a last option. It gives law enforcement an extra tool. The sense is these are not used on a daily basis to enforce, but it is something that is in the books and used when it is needed."

And in reference to the homeless couple — the same day as the meeting they were taken off the streets for at least the eighth time, and in court they were ordered to be mentally evaluated under the Baker Act at Lakeland Regional Health Medical Center.

While McGinty and Drake have been arrested a number of times, they have repeatedly refused any help from the public to help their situation. They have even refused donated housing from a local apartment complex, and continued to live in the street. In the times they have been arrested, they were released and went back to living in the street only days later.

In the past in court it was ruled that the couple was incompetent to stand trial. The state is not able to do anything about the living situation for which they refuse help. And they continue to live in the street.

Sheriff Judd: Holiday shopping safety

By GRADY JUDD
POLK COUNTY SHERIFF

Holiday shopping seems to start earlier every year ... and that is not only for honest citizens. Like the Grinch, criminals are already making plans to steal your holiday joy. Whether you choose to shop in person or online, consider the consequences of your choices so you have a safe and enjoyable season. Please keep the following tips in mind:

Never post your shopping plans or your current purchases on social media. Instead, call or text your friends and family to invite them to go shopping with you or to discuss your recent purchases.

Be aware. Know your surroundings and locate the emergency exits in each store. Do not let your cell phone be a distraction while you are out and about. Pair up with a friend — there is safety in numbers.

Only carry the credit cards you will use as well as any cash you may need.

Leave all other documents and store credit cards in a safe place at home.

Consider keeping your credit cards and money in a front pocket instead of carrying a purse; purses can be snatched from you and/or you may be tempted to leave it in an unattended shopping cart. If you must carry a purse, use one that crosses over your chest to deter thieves.

Men should also keep their wallets in a front or zippered pocket to avoid being a victim of a pick-pocket.

If it's dark when you arrive at a store (or even in daylight), park in well-lit, well-traveled areas.

Keep your valuables in your vehicle out of sight or leave your items at home.

When you return to your vehicle, have your keys in hand, get in quickly and immediately lock all doors.

Never approach your vehicle alone if there are suspicious people standing by; instead ask a store employee or security guard to escort or watch you walk to your vehicle. If you feel like you are being followed, go to the nearest well-lit public location and contact local law enforcement.

If you need to store your purchases in your vehicle in between stores, consider moving your vehicle to a different location. This will deter any thieves, who may have been watching you, from breaking into your vehicle and stealing your merchandise.

For information on this topic or others, please contact the Crime Prevention Section at 863-298-6677.

GUN

Burglary, grand theft and battery are some of the other charges on McHargue's record since 2014.

The press release states that McHargue, who is not a student, entered the campus where his girlfriend, 18-year-old Essence Marc, a GED student, attends. According to witnesses, McHargue got into a verbal argument with another male student in a classroom above the gym where McHargue challenged the student to a fight. According to the report, McHargue obtained a gun from his girlfriend's purse and tucked the pistol in his waistband and threatened to shoot the other man. McHargue and Marc left the area as other students stated to intervene, according to the press release. The students called authorities. McHargue was found within minutes walking towards the Tri-County Human Services addiction treatment center and a revolver was found in the parking lot. He is being charged with possession of a weapon by a convicted felon, with more charges expected to follow, according to the press release.

Marc, no address provided, was found a short time later on campus and was charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

Vice President of Administrative Services Glenn Little said everything happened very quickly in part, thanks to Sheriff's Deputy Zachary Lehman who is stationed at the school full time.

Little said Deputy Lehman called in back up right away.

"They detained the person who actually pulled the gun out," Little said. "I don't think he actually aimed it at anyone, but he had a gun and they detained the weapon. It was just an individual who got mad at someone else. It was just a couple people arguing; that's the impression I had, was that there was some kind of altercation between two people. I don't know the names of anyone involved at this point. I believe one may have been a student and the other one not, but I don't know."

Little admitted the details at that point were sketchy because the Sheriff's Office had taken over everything. It was not known who called 911.

It would seem that the students would have appreciated a warning, Student Government Association President Maya Elias told the Highlands News-Sun.

"It was unnerving to learn that a gunman was on campus," she said. "And the students were not notified."

The school was not put under lockdown nor were the students notified at the time. A text alert was issued at 2:54 p.m. and read as "SFSC: A person with a firearm was detained on the Highlands Campus. The weapon was secured. No injuries reported. College classes and activities not impacted."

Little explained why there was no lockdown of the school or text alerts sent to students. "No, no, this was so sudden and handled so quickly with the Sheriff's deputy here on campus, they immediately searched for him and found him and arrested him," he said.

"There wasn't time. By the time we were notified, they basically found the guy in just a few minutes. Frankly, we weren't even notified until they were looking for the guy," Little said.

When asked what the normal procedures were for this type of incident, Little said that they "had never had anyone do this before, so you do it on an individual basis depending on the circumstances."

"Had there been an immediate threat, we would have sent out a timely warning in a text message to students to stay where they are, hunker down, that kind of thing. Then we would have done what we did and bring law enforcement in," Little said.

"We rely on the Sheriff's Department to do that and they are very well trained and, of course, we work with them with our security but they are unarmed, so we rely on the Sheriff's Department and that's why we have such a good partnership with the local sheriff's office and have them here," he said. "That is the procedure; but in this case, there wasn't even time to send a notice out because we had the guy in custody in very short order and it was considered no longer a threat."

jobs for crew members and managerial staff.

"Each one of these stores that we open creates a number of jobs for young people and

The Burger King will be about 3,800 square feet and is one of the larger models that the corporate company, Quality Dining Inc., builds. It will not have a playground like the Sebring location.

When Burger King that will go to contracted crews, who have to pay their employees.

Howerton said he plans to ask county commissioners next Tuesday for authorization to seek a low-interest, short-term loan, in hopes that FEMA will pay the county back in a short time: 30-60 days.

"They're telling us they're going to pay us quickly," Howerton said of FEMA. "We're trying to get in as many invoices as possible."

As for a definite answer, Howerton said he hasn't gotten one.

"We've got a lot of 'definite maybes,'" Howerton said.

Community Safety Director Scott Canaday said record-keeping for FEMA isn't easy. They want original receipts, although the common thermoscan receipts in use today tend to fade within a year, and all files must be carefully organized and stored such that future staff can find them and interpret them. FEMA tends to wait as long as five years before coming back to work with local government, he said.

"I got beat up for (Hurricane) Wilma," Canaday said of records keeping. "I wasn't in Florida for Wilma."

Currently, Canaday has six cardboard storage boxes full of files on Emergency Operations. He said he wants to transfer it all to heavy totes that he can zip-tie shut. Howerton has a similar situation for debris removal.

Meanwhile, residents keep bringing debris — and even bulk garbage — to the roadways for collection, especially on roads that have already been cleared. Two weeks after the deadline to get storm debris to the edge of a county right of way, Howerton said people are still bringing out debris. Some have cut as many as 10-20 trees in their yards and brought the limbs out.

It's hard to tell if it's storm-related, Howerton said. At this point, once roads have been cleared, disposal of any new debris may fall on the homeowner or landowner.

Of course, Howerton said once debris is on a roadway, it needs to get dealt with.

Howerton said he gets a lot of calls for large piles of storm debris or bulk garbage, many of which turn out to be small ones that didn't require the full-size debris trucks.

He's also had requests from private road residents to pick up debris along their roads. He's trying to find out if FEMA will reimburse it.

"So, do we go in as taxpayers of Highlands County and put our money on 'maybe' FEMA will pay us back?" Howerton said. "If we're willing to risk it, OK."

Howerton said the contracted crews shut down last Wednesday for the Thanksgiving Day holiday, and only got back up to full speed on Tuesday. He still hopes to have them done in time to get home for Christmas.

High flying and rough falls: Stunt camp opening in Florida

By MIKE FERGUSON
LAKELAND LEDGER

HAINES CITY (AP) — High falls, fight scenes and men on fire...oh, my.

The John Zimmerman Stunt Camp, 200 Cumbie Drive, gave media members a glimpse of some of the work it will be doing when the camp officially opens Jan. 6. Zimmerman, 67, the founder and owner of the camp, has appeared as a stuntman in more than 130 movies and television shows.

"They were doing a lot of film work in Florida in the 1980s and 1990s and that's how I got into it," he said. "If you can somehow get onto a movie set and get to know people, you can make it in this business."

Some of Zimmerman's more notable appearances include "Edward Scissorhands," "12 Years a Slave," "Iron Man 3" and television shows "Burn Notice" and "Miami Vice."

Zimmerman got his start as a trapeze artist with Ringling Brothers before getting into stunts and, after retirement, decided to share his knowledge.

"I was always a good coach," Zimmerman said. "My career before this was as a trapeze artist and I had an aptitude for teaching. That carried over into stunts."

The camp won't only teach how to perform the stunts, but other important aspects of being in the business. They include learning how to find out where films are being made, etiquette on the set, relationship building and resume' building.

"I know it has the potential to give the basic fundamentals of this business," stuntman Mike Ortiz said of the camp. "This is a place where people can learn important aspects of film making and get to work with some equipment you otherwise wouldn't be able to."

Ortiz, 46, has been in the business for about 15 years. Ortiz was set on fire for a demonstration and has appeared in films such as "The Magnificent Seven." Ortiz said it is a tough business.

"I enjoy making new friends and how every day brings something new," he said. "I enjoy seeing the younger people succeed. I live to see people grow and improve. If you can survive 10 or 20 years in the business, you can be successful and that's rewarding."

Michele Waitman, a former gymnast at East Tennessee State University, said she fell into the business 23 years ago after she auditioned for the Indiana Jones stunt show at Walt Disney World's Hollywood Studios. Waitman has gone on to be a stunt double for Jennifer Aniston, Sarah Michelle Gellar on the series "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" in addition to Mary Kate and Ashley Olsen.

It has been a great experience," Waitman said. "I fell into what I love and what I think I was supposed to do."

Zimmerman said his classes will last seven days. Five will be spent in a gymnasium in Longwood and two will be at the stunt ranch in Haines City. To begin, Zimmerman said, he'll hold at least one class per month, but he expects that to increase over time. The website lists the cost is $1,750.

"All of my instructors are currently working professionally in the stunt business," Zimmerman said. "It's a tight-knit community. They're getting insight and connections into the business."

Like Waitman, Tom Akos, 53, said he fell into the business. Akos has been in the business for 32 years after starting

"I had two older brothers and I was basically a crash test dummy growing up," Akos said. "I'm pretty much an all-around stunt man. The one thing I've never done is a full body burn."

His first notable television series was "Superboy." He went on to serve as a stunt double for Hulk Hogan. He also did test stunts for roles played by John Cena and Dwayne Johnson, but never doubled for either one.

"It's all a calculated risk," Akos said. "We're a bunch of kids who never really have to grow up. It's playing army and it's playing cops and robbers all over again."

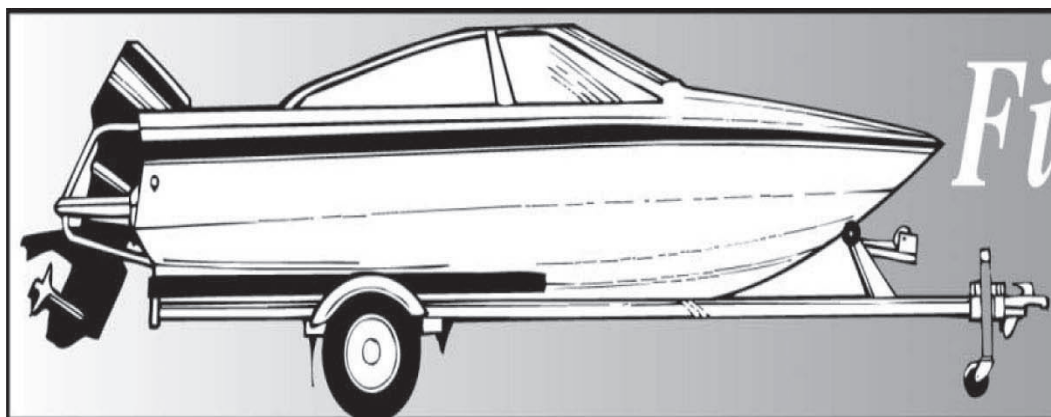

Zimmerman said instructors will have extensive knowledge of the field. Zimmerman expects to have one instructor for every four students and each of them will have at least 50 International Movie Database credits to their name.

"The sky is the limit for this camp," Waitman said. "We're bringing in people who want to learn and they're learning from the best in the business."

Although it wasn't a camp previously, Zimmerman's property was used as a place to train and practice stunts. Akos sees the camp as not just a place for those serious about getting into the industry, but for "weekend warriors" who have always wanted to try it. The camp website is www.stuntcamp.us.

"It gives the average guy a fantasy camp and it gives those genuinely interested insight into the industry," Akos said. "This property has been producing stuntmen for 30 years. This backyard right here has produced some of the best in the business."

Red Devils lasso Cowboys

Avon Park girls beats LaBelle in season opener

BY JIM TAYLOR
CORRESPONDENT

AVON PARK — The Avon Park Red Devils girls basketball team beat the LaBelle Cowboys by a score of 57-36 on Monday night to start the season on a positive note.

Throughout the past several years, the Red Devils have established a reputation for playing an aggressive defensive style that creates turnovers. They also had a propensity to turn those turnovers into fast breaks that often resulted in failed layups and missed easy points.

That deficiency seemed to dissipate on Monday night as the Red Devils, a year more mature, made most of those transition baskets for easy points.

"This was our first game of the regular season," said Avon Park Head Coach Paulette Daley. "Layups were made, defense was played, but we still had a few lapses."

Though the Red Devil defense created numerous turnovers, they also had several unforced errors, mostly being off target in passing the ball, which Daley noted is expected this early in the season until the chemistry of the team begins to gel.

"A lot of turnovers are due to the rush and the speed of the first game of the season," the Red Devils coach said.

Avon Park jumped ahead of the Cowboys, scoring the first eight points of the game. LaBelle fought back in the second half of the first quarter to cut the Red Devil's lead to 3 at 10-7.

What would become a theme of the night, Avon Park started the second quarter scoring twelve unanswered points, with Tajenay Vassell scoring six of her game-high 16 points. The sophomore point guard capped off the run with a steal that she converted into a layup to give the Red Devils a comfortable 22-7 lead.

The Cowboys outscored the Red Devils 7-5 in the last four minutes of the first half as Avon Park went into the intermission with a 13-point lead at 27-14.

Avon Park increased its lead to 22 points after starting the third quarter with a 10-1 run and built its lead to a game-high of 26 points at 46-20.

LaBelle scored the final seven points of the third quarter as the Red Devils headed into the fourth quarter with a 46-27 lead.

Super full moon fishing this weekend

The Florida freshwater fishing forecast for the end of November and beginning of December gives anglers the first half of the super full moon phase and an ideal weather forecast. All fishing factors considered, if you've ever wanted absolutely perfect fall full moon fishing in Florida, the next seven days will deliver exactly that dream-fishing scenario.

The full moon occurs on Sunday and the moon arrives closest to earth in its twenty-eight day orbit path, seventeen hours and fifty-four minutes later on Dec. 4. The 'Super Moon' designation technically occurs when the lunar perigee occurs within twenty-four hours of the arrival of the full moon, which happens at 11:49 on the morning on Dec. 3.

The super full and super new moon events produce the greatest level or rate of interruption of the daily solar energy rays entering the earth's atmosphere, than at any other time of year. Therefore all living beings on earth experience the highest and lowest amounts of solar energy of the year during the three-day period centered on the full-moon day.

Thirty-six hour before and after the arrival of the full moon at 11:49 a.m. on Sunday, will produce an annual high-energy state of being for humans and animals. For anglers and hunters this means the 'need to feed' periods of the day will be at the top of the ratings chart during Saturday noon through Monday noon feeding-hours.

Since the weather forecast is predicting clear nighttime skies, fish will be feeding heavy during the three hours prior to the moon overhead period and three hours afterward. This will produce the 'only negative fishing factor' albeit a minor one, for daytime anglers. It should be noted that the full moon does occur however when the moon is underfoot here in Florida, which means it arrives full over China at that time.

You're 'Solunar Class of the Day' is dismissed. Time to plan a fishing trip.

By the way, all fishing factors are ideal. From water temperatures to wind speed and direction, to wave-action and atmospheric pressure change, all will provide the ideal amount of 'wildlife adjustment activity'. About the only factor which could be improved is the ratio of clouds to sun. Today and Thursday it will be ideal, but Friday, Sunday and Monday fish will be holding tight to cover due to 100 percent sunshine.

Best Fishing Days: Saturday through Monday will be one of the best three-day periods to fish all year. However all fishing factors will be absolutely perfect on Saturday due to an even mix of clouds and sun during the day. And Sunday night will be off the charts, don't miss it.

Alan Holmes believes in exercising to help you stay in shape.

Focused on reducing risk

Stay in good shape as you age

BY NEIL SIMPSON
SPECIAL TO
HIGHLANDS NEWS-SUN

In the fall of 2015, when the Heartland Games organizers started looking for sponsors, Alan Holmes of Edward Jones was the first to step forward. He believes that being a Gold Sponsor of the Heartland Games For Active Adults is a tremendous fit with his role as a financial advisor. Holmes is concerned about his clients' health, both physical and financial and asks, "What good is financial wealth if you haven't got your health?"

Holmes believes that seniors must lower the risk of health problems and feels that the activities promoted through the Heartland Games help to improve overall health by reducing the odds of suffering from diabetes, heart attack or stroke. Holmes encourages everyone to; adopt a routine of steady exercise, maintain a healthy diet, monitor beverage intake and refrain from smoking. Similarly, one's financial plans need to be set to mitigate against risk. With the stock market at an all time high, Holmes knows that a market downturn can't be avoided but wants his clients prepared to deal with it. When reviewing their portfolios, Holmes looks to eliminate toxic investments and to seek those which best fit current and future needs. With careful planning, seniors should be able to take the cruises, visit the kids and grandkids, go to the theatre and enjoy life to the fullest.

Holmes is concerned that Americans have gotten soft and is pleased to see that South Florida State College runs the Heartland Games to provide additional opportunities for those 50 and better. He urges all eligible Highlands County residents to consider signing up for the Games whether it be in low, medium or high impact level competition.

Thanks to generous sponsors like Alan Holmes, the Heartland Games has been able to continue to offer competitors a dri-fit shirt, medals for men and women in each five year age group and lunch at many of the events. All this for only $15 for one event or $25 for multiple events.

This year's events will be held in February. 2nd bridge, 3rd golf, 5th swimming, 6th shuffleboard, 8th euchre, 10th & 11th pickleball, 12th & 19th bowling, 13th go kart racing, 15th table tennis, 16th mah jongg, 17th cycling, 24th track & field, 27th & 28th tennis.

Registration forms may be downloaded from the South Florida State College website www.southflorida.edu/heartlandgames. They may also be picked up at the SFSC Campus in Avon Park, Lake Placid, Bowling Green or Arcadia. Forms are also available at the Avon Park, Sebring, Lake Placid, Hardee and DeSoto Chambers of Commerce.

Holmes has made a commitment to his own health and believes others should do the same to ensure that they can continue to be in good shape as they age.

Major Fishing Period: Today the moon is underfoot at 8:42 a.m. today and will produce a feed rating of 5-6 from 7-11 a.m. Daily this period will move later by 50 minutes. Also, atmospheric pressure increases have been in harmony with this lunar period and I expect this to remain true for the next seven days.

Minor Fishing Period: The moonrise occurs today at 2:49 p.m. and will produce a rating of 4-6 from 2-6 p.m. The water temperature will be highest during this period and the sunset at 5:31 p.m. along with a slight atmospheric pressure increase, will trigger plenty of feeding activity today and Thursday. Daily this period moves later by 50 minutes.

From Saturday through Monday, the sunrise and sunset periods' feeding activity declines significantly as the effects of the super full moon start to cause two major feeding migrations 12 hours apart, during the midday and midnight hours.

Prime Monthly Periods: December

1-5 full moon, 15-21 new moon, December 30-January 5 full moon, 14-20. November through January will have strong full moon periods due to the lunar perigee influence. Note: A full or new moon in orbit perigee is almost 31,000 miles closer to earth than during an orbit apogee position.

Highlands Bass Angler Bass Guide-Trips are $250.00 for one or two anglers. All gear, bait and tackle included for an artificial-bait six-hour trip. Cold water, Gatorade and weather protection provided. Custom bass fishing charters available. Call to plan and book

This is a critical time for all of us and we need to mobilize the support of our customers.

As many of you already know, we have been in business for almost 15 years helping seniors and the uninsured get their prescription medication from International pharmacies. SPEED FREAKS

A few questions we had to ask ourselves

The confetti is still being swept from Victory Lane, but gotta ask: Will Truex and the No. 78 repeat next year?

GODSPEAK: That was a once-in-a-career season. All the top teams will figure out the No. 78's secrets by Speedweeks. Short answer — no.

KEN'S CALL: It would be tough even in perfect circumstances, but assuming the Toyota teams aren't as dominant next year, the odds are even longer. Let's say no.

Any chance Danica's plans for 2018 will change?

GODSPEAK: If somebody shows up with a big checkbook, yes, things can change, but it looks like Danica is out of asphalt here.

KEN'S CALL: With all the moving parts in auto racing, things change with the wind sometimes, so yes, there's a chance. I put it at 50-50 things stay as planned.

Tony Stewart got engaged last week. Surprised?

GODSPEAK: This was the biggest move of NASCAR's "Silly Season." Didn't see this one coming. Oh, and congrats, "Smoke."

KEN'S CALL: Only in America. Pudgy kid from the Midwest reaches middle age and now has plans to marry a former Playboy "playmate of the month."

Late bloomer

Martin Truex Jr. does a monster burnout in his No. 78 Toyota after winning the NASCAR Cup Series championship at Homestead. [NASCAR GETTY IMAGES/JARED C. TILTON]

By Godwin Kelly, godwin.kelly@news-jrnl.com

Martin Truex Jr. defied the odds in this age of millennials flooding into NASCAR's top series by winning the Cup Series championship at the ripe old age of 37 and after a dozen years in the top tour.

It's hard to believe that just four short years ago Truex didn't know if he would have a job as a race driver.

And if this sounds like a reboot of another driver's career, you are correct. But first, the Truex saga.

The year was 2013, and Truex had just made the cut into the Cup Series playoffs at Richmond, and a few days later was removed from the field of championship contenders.

The team he was driving for at the time — Michael Waltrip Racing — was found guilty in NASCAR "court" for tampering with the final regular-season race.

Teammate Clint Bowyer "spun" his car to bring out a caution while the third teammate, Brian Vickers, was summoned to pit road for service.

Because of those two actions, Truex finished high enough in the race to score enough points to earn a post-season slot.

Truex had no knowledge of MWR's mischief-making during the race.

When the scheme was uncovered, NASCAR pulled Truex out of the playoffs, then known as "The Chase." Waltrip lost the multimillion-dollar sponsorship package from NAPA, and eventually Truex lost his ride.

When Kurt Busch announced near the end of the 2013 season that he was leaving Furniture Row Racing to drive for Stewart-Haas Racing, that opened the door for Barney Visser to nab Truex from the waiver wire, so to speak. At that point in his career, Truex had made some strong runs and had two Cup Series wins, but 2014 was a struggle for the one-car independent based in Denver, Colorado.

Visser hired Cole Pearn as the crew chief for 2015. The following season, the car owner started a deep relationship with superteam Joe Gibbs Racing. The results were good.

Truex scored four wins and about 10 near-misses, including losing the 2016 Daytona 500 by less than a foot to Denny Hamlin. The team took that momentum into the 2017 season, and Truex won more races (eight) than he had the previous 11 years (seven) and, of course, the championship at Homestead-Miami Speedway.

"It's just overwhelming," Truex said after claiming the crown.

This story of struggle, persistence and late-career payoff is not new. Dale Jarrett struggled in racing until he found the right mix of chemistry at Robert Yates Racing and Todd Parrott as his crew chief.

Jarrett, who had just four career Cup wins in his first eight seasons of full-time Cup racing, blasted out of the box in 1996 with Yates' new team, the No. 88 Ford. He opened the year by winning the Daytona 500 and added three more wins along the way, which equaled his career total up to 1995.

Four years later, Jarrett won the Cup Series championship at the age of 42, ending Jeff Gordon's domination of three titles over a four-year span.

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling questions ... and maybe a few actual answers

With the dust cleared, how did "stage racing" work out?

In the end, it seems easier to appreciate than it was to understand. At a few different points along the way, a TV commentator spent a couple of laps explaining how the bonus system fit into the normal points system — nothing should be that complicated. Stage racin' was designed to create more action in the middle stages of each race and, importantly, reward the drivers who got up front and stayed there more often than others.

Is that how Truex won it all?

Not directly. He obviously won the championship by winning Homestead. But it was his large pile of bonus points that lessened any stress he may have had regarding his advancement to Homestead as one of the final four. The competitors took note of this, naturally, and will work hard to employ that strategy as often as possible once the green flies in 2018. Here's a tip: It helps to have the best car on a near-weekly basis.

What's next on the news wires?

It's a bit of "inside baseball," but we'll now watch the shuffling of team charters to see who's buying, who's selling, and who's leasing. Sorta like stages and bonus points, the whole charter system was done for simplification, but has inherent confusions. That's racin', you could say. There seems to be more charters (36) than funded teams, so this could get interesting. And oh, by the way, Kurt Busch is still in limbo.

JC's Tin Cup Grill: A new beginning

By JERRY MEISENHEIMER
CORRESPONDENT

SEBRING — Alexander Graham Bell's famous quote, "When one door closes, another opens!" certainly holds true for this week's featured restaurant. Hurricane Irma tried to claim another victim business, but its owner, Judy Capp, wouldn't let that happen.

The Placid Lakes Country Club Restaurant, in Lake Placid, was voted first place for the best dinner in Highlands County in 2017. It was a busy eatery with a fun atmosphere. But, then came Irma! Overnight, destiny changed everything. The building was badly damaged and the restaurant was forced to close down.

Owner Judy Capp envisioned all of her loyal employees out of a job and not able to provide for their families. She couldn't let that happen. That's when the second door opened. She learned that the restaurant at the Country Club of Sebring was available. So, she moved everyone to what is now called JC's Tin Cup Grill. That included her regular customers as well.

JC's Tin Cup Grill is located at 4800 Haw Branch Road, about a quarter-mile south of the entrance to Highlands Hammock State Park, on County Road 635, west of Sebring. You can also take CR 66 to CR 635 and head north until you see the entrance to the County Club of Sebring. If you need help, call (863)-382-3500 for directions.

The menu at the Tin Cup is similar to Capp's previous menu. That includes the popular all-you-can-eat catfish on Friday nights. Thursday, Friday and Saturday the slow-roasted prime rib takes the spotlight. If you like surprises, dine there on a Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday and order the 'Chef's Choice.'

Besides those favorites, dinner entrées offer a host of seafood, combos, steaks, chops, ribs, chicken and several Italian dishes. You'll see why they were voted No 1. Handmade pizzas are another choice at the Tin Cup. They come in 12-inch and 16-inch sizes, with a bunch of topping selections.

Derek and Marysue Willeke live in Tropical Harbor in Lake Placid. They're happy they can again get Derek's potato soup and Marysue's pork tenderloin sandwich at the Tin Cup Grill.

Since golfers get really hungry after a round in the morning, they head right for the restaurant at lunch time. They get to park their golf carts out back and have their own entrance as well. But, first a stop at the bar for an ice-cold beer is almost a must. The lunch menu has great choices, like a grilled quarter-pound hot dog and cheeseburgers. Then, there's a huge hand-breaded pork tenderloin sandwich, a French dip made with prime rib, a Tin Cup club, or a delicious Atlantic Cod sandwich, plus many more treats.

JC's Tin Cup Grill makes its own homemade potato chips and cole slaw. Four big salads: grilled chicken, country club chicken salad, taco salad and salmon salad are a good pick too. The dressings are wonderful as well. How about baked French onion soup, or their famous prime-rib soup for lunch or before dinner? Plus, every day they come up with a soup-of-the-day. You can even order a quart to go to enjoy at home later on.

Kids are very welcome at the Tin Cup. They have things on the menu that will make them happy. Where most restaurants offer a couple desserts, Capp's restaurant has ice-cream sundaes, brownie fudge, chocolate torte, Limoncello Marscapone cake, sweetheart delight, caramel Dulce de Leche and chocolate hazelnut. If you live in this golf community, you can jump on your golf cart after dinner at home, and just come in for dessert.

Speaking of dinner at home, JC's Tin Cup Grill, specializes in 'to go' chicken dinners. These fresh, never frozen, fried chicken family dinners come in 8-piece or 16-piece sizes. They are accompanied with a choice of large side dishes, or you can get 'chicken-only.'

Frank and Kaye Pytlowany live in Sebring, but for the past four years, they drove to Placid Lakes once a week to have dinner at Judy Capp's former location. They were thrilled to find out that she has moved up to the Sebring area. They love the prime rib. They're going to come even more often now.

Three Country Club of Sebring lady golfers are happy again that they have a place to relax for lunch. Long-time friends, Onnalee Schmalzried (Michigan), Jackie Sheldon (Wisconsin) and Sheila Bolan (Ohio) have been stopping in three times a week or so since the new restaurant came here. They said the 'food is great,' especially the Tin Cup Club, which is ham, turkey, cheese, lettuce, tomato and bacon on toast. The ladies are impressed with the prime-rib too.

Derek Willeke absolutely loves the hearty potato soup he used to get in Placid Lakes. His wife, Marysue enjoys the pork tenderloin. They've been married 57 years and live in the Tropical Harbor mobile home community in Lake Placid. They escaped to Nashville during Hurricane Irma and were sad to hear that their favorite restaurant was damaged and closed. As soon as they learned that Judy Capp had reopened in Sebring, they headed that way. Willekes' plan to bring the men's and woman's social groups from their park here for their monthly eat out.

Judy Capp loves her new location. But, even more, she's proud to say that of her 16 employees, 15 of them followed her and have kept their jobs. Even Chef Danny Egozve, is still on board. He learned to cook in Miami Beach and attended the Culinary Institute in Hyde Park, New York for his training. Another happy person is Jennifer Shafer. She's a server and bartender. So, the food and the friendly service haven't changed, just the location.

Capp said, "Irma can't stop us. It stopped some people; but, not us."

JC's Tin Cup Grill is open Monday through Saturday, 11 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Closed on Sunday.

Credit cards accepted. Call 863-382-3500 for the country club, then, press 2 for the restaurant.

Netflix: Marvel's "The Punisher"

By ROBERT MILLER
CORRESPONDENT

Netflix has had a mostly solid record when it comes to Marvel television series. "Daredevil" was a hit, which paved the way for "Jessica Jones," "Luke Cage," "Iron Fist," and "The Defenders." But the most recent releases ("Iron Fist" and "The Defenders") were less than home runs, couple that with the violent shootings in the country as of late (most recently Las Vegas) it makes for a lot of trepidation going into a series about a vigilante who takes care of criminals with bullets instead of super powers. Yet, that's what "The Punisher" is: ultra-violent, brutal and doesn't shy away from the gun issue. I admit that even though I knew the character going in, I was still worried that this was going to be at least untimely given real world circumstances. I watched episode one wondering if I had picked the wrong series to talk about, or if I was being overly paranoid. I'm pretty sure it was a bit of both, and that might have been a good thing.

By that, I mean it might have allowed me to see both sides. I watched from the perspective of someone who has loved at least three of the five Marvel series so far (let's not get started on "Iron Fist"), but I also could watch it from the mind of someone who might think we shouldn't be vilifying a man who hunts down and shoots bad people.

But let's make that distinction now. He does only shoot criminals and other all around nasty dudes. Frank Castle (Jon Bernthal), a.k.a. The Punisher, is a man who watched his wife and two kids get gunned down in front of him and then takes matters into his own hands and goes after everyone involved in the deed, shooting them all down one by one.

Most of that happens in "Daredevil" season two, with this series picking up as Castle takes down the final piece in the puzzle of who killed his family.

One of the intriguing aspects of this series is that there seems to be a lot of work put into making sure we don't cheer for Castle. He is the hero of this story, yes, but he is not A hero. At times, we are on his side and we want to root him on, but then he goes to work doing what he knows, killing and torturing, and we step back a little. We question whether we should be rooting for him. He is a vigilante, an anti-hero. Yet, not a hero. He's no Daredevil or Luke Cage. He's probably the furthest thing from Captain America, and the show keeps telling us that.

The 13-episode series has a great cast who do a phenomenal job bringing this grim story to life. Bernthal is perfect as Frank Castle.

He embodies the man, the soldier and the man better than anyone else to have played the character. If you've seen him in "The Walking Dead," it's that character turned up to 10.

The writing pretty good throughout and the usual Marvel attention to detail is evident. While it happens often and can be rather gruesome, the violence and gore are all in-line with what the character would do, but really sets the tone and mood of the series. There's a reason Castle is violent and does most of his carnage with a gun. It's not necessarily right or appropriate, but those are the questions and issues that the series tries to address, and gives us some satisfying answers, at least in my opinion.

Overall, gun issues and morality talks aside, the series is entertaining and well thought out. As a writer, I appreciated the writing and how deftly some of the issues were handled. I still stand by the argument that "Daredevil" and "Luke Cage" are the best of the Marvel series, but "The Punisher" is worth a look and holds up to those two series to come in a close third. If you liked any of the Netflix Marvel stuff, see this one. I give this Netflix original series 4 out of 5 stars. "The Punisher" is Not Rated and contains 13 episodes.

What's new in fiction this week

By ROBERT MILLER
CORRESPONDENT

What an interesting week for fiction. We get another "Fifty Shades" book, new Danielle Steel, new Debbie Macomber and new Tom Clancy. From erotic romance to sweet family drama to political thriller, this week is just the start of the holiday reading season. Christian tries to win back Anastasia, as we get his journey back to her from his perspective. Next, Danielle Steel gives us a charming and beautiful story of two families, a hundred years apart, learning from each other how to be the best they can be. Then there is a new Tom Clancy novel, written by Marc Cameron. Jack Ryan is having a hard time as President of the United States and a Chinese spy might be just part of the problem. Finally, we have a new novel by Debbie Macomber about four women who meet once a week for breakfast and discuss their lives and what could be.

"Darker" by E.L. James

E L James revisits the world of "Fifty Shades of Grey" with a deeper and darker take on the love story that has enthralled millions of readers around the globe. Their scorching, sensual affair ended in heartbreak and recrimination, but Christian Grey cannot get Anastasia Steele out of his mind, or his blood. Determined to win her back, he tries to suppress his darkest desires and his need for complete control, and to love Ana on her own terms. And if Christian does win Ana back, can a man so dark and damaged ever hope to keep her? Told from Christian's point of view.

"Past Perfect" by Danielle Steel

Sybil and Blake Gregory have established a predictable, well-ordered Manhattan life: she is a cutting-edge design authority and museum consultant, he is in high-tech investments, raising their teenagers Andrew and Caroline and six-year-old Charlie. But everything changes when Blake is offered a dream job he can't resist as CEO of a start-up in San Francisco. He accepts it without consulting his wife and buys a magnificent, irresistibly underpriced historic Pacific Heights mansion as their new home.

The past and present suddenly collide for them in the elegant mansion filled with tender memories and haunting portraits when an earthquake shakes them the night they arrive. The original inhabitants appear for a few brief minutes. In the ensuing days, the Gregorys meet the large and lively family who lived there a century ago.

All long since dead. All very much alive in spirit, and visible to the Gregorys and no one else. They have much to teach each other, as the Gregorys watch the past unfold while living their own modern-day lives. Within these enchanted rooms, the Gregorys gratefully realize they have been given a perfect gift, beloved friends and the wisdom to shape their own future.

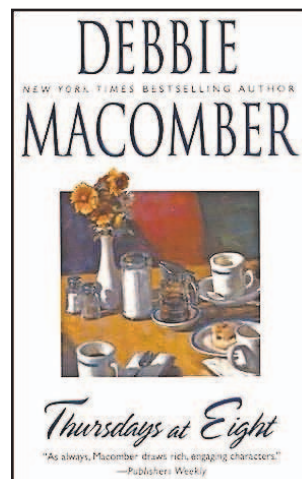

"Tom Clancy's Power and Empire" by Marc Cameron

The No. 1 bestselling series continues... Jack Ryan is dealing with an aggressive challenge from the Chinese government. Pawns are being moved around a global chessboard: an attack on an oil platform in Africa, a terrorist strike on an American destroyer and a storm tossed American spy ship that may fall into Chinese hands. It seems that President Zhao is determined to limit Ryan's choices in the upcoming G20 negotiations.

But there are hints that there's even more going on behind the scenes. A routine traffic stop in rural Texas leads to a shocking discovery, a link to a Chinese spy who may have intelligence that lays bare an unexpected revelation. John Clark and the members of the Campus are in close pursuit, but can they get the information in time?

"Thursdays at Eight" by Debbie Macomber

Every week, four women have an unmissable appointment in their calendars: they meet for breakfast.

Clare has just been through a devastating divorce. She's driven by anger and revenge until she learns something that forces her to question her own actions, and to look deep inside for the person she used to be.

Elizabeth is a successful professional. A widow, she's determined not to waste another second of her life. And maybe that includes romantic possibilities.

Karen is in her 20s, and she believes these should be the years for taking risks. She's working on her dream of being an actor, despite her mother's severe disapproval.

Julia is turning 40 this year. Her husband's career is established, her kids are finally teenagers and she's just started her own business. Everything's going according to plan, that is until she discovers she's pregnant.

Petula Clark playing at SFSC

SPECIAL TO
HIGHLANDS NEWS-SUN

Petula Clark, who started singing at age 7, hasn't toured in a solo show in the U.S. in more than 50 years. Her new album, "Living for Today," was released on Nov. 10 and Clark will perform live at South Florida State College's Alan Jay Wildstein Center for the Performing Arts on Sunday, Dec. 10 at 7 p.m. in support of the album and the holiday season. Tickets are $55, $40, $35 and $30.

Petula Clark, who was called the "British Shirley Temple," was so popular in Great Britain that she sang at the national victory celebration in Trafalgar Square in 1944. Her first hits were children's songs like "Where Did My Snowman Go" (1952) and "The Little Shoemaker" (1954). To date, she has sold well in excess of 68 million records.

In 1957, she was invited to perform at the famed Olympia Theater in France and the audience went wild, so Clark began recording in French launching a new career as a French "chanteuse." Travelling throughout Europe, Clark performed in German and Italian garnering No. 1 hits throughout the continent.

Her recording of "Downtown" skyrocketed to No. 1 in the United States and she earned her first Grammy Award. Her follow-up hit, "I Know a Place," went to No. 3 and she received her second Grammy in 1965. In the U.S., Petula has had 15 Top 40 hits and internationally she has charted in the top 40 in various other countries with 159 recordings.

Clark was dubbed the "First Lady of the British Invasion," selling more than 68 million records. Her U.S. hits include: "A Sign of the Times," "My Love," "Don't Sleep in the Subway," "Colour My World," and "This is My Song." In 2004, her recording of "Downtown" was inducted into the Grammy Hall of Fame. She has appeared in films such as "Finian's Rainbow" with Fred Astaire, where she was nominated for a Golden Globe for Best Actress, and "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" with Peter O'Toole. Starring in numerous television programs in both the U.S. and Great Britain, she was voted as the "Most Popular TV Star" by TV

Time. In 1998, Her Majesty the Queen of England honored Clark with the Commander of the Order of the British Empire (CBE), which is one rank below knighthood.

In the early 1980s, her stage career was launched in the West End with featured roles in "The Sound of Music" and "Sunset Boulevard." She starred on Broadway in the highly successful production of Blood Brothers. "Ms. Clark has done it all," said Cindy Garren, director of cultural programs at SFSC. "This performance is definitely a once-in-a-lifetime event."

Petula Clark's performance is sponsored by Joe and Suzanne Wright, and Dr. C.B. and Ranjan Patel. Funding is also provided in part by the State of Florida, Department of State, Division of Cultural Affairs and the Florida Council on Arts and Culture.

The SFSC Box Office, which is located on the Highlands Campus in Avon Park at 600 West College Drive, is open Monday through Friday, 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Tickets and videos of upcoming productions are available online at sfscarts.org. Telephone orders can be placed by calling 863-784-7178.

'Santaland Diaries' — a snarky side of Christmas

From VENICE THEATRE

Venice Theatre's Stage II Series will present humorist David Sedaris' one-man comedy, "The Santaland Diaries," Thursday Nov. 30 through Saturday Dec. 23. Performances begin at 8 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays and at 2 p.m. on Sundays.

Tickets are $30 for adults, $17 for college students and $15 for high school students. The show is not recommended for children or pre-teens due to strong language and adult themes. Seating is general admission.

All seats are on sale now by contacting the box office at the theater, 140 W. Tampa Ave., 941-488-1115, or at VeniceStage.com.

Box office hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday; 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday; and one hour before show time.

"The Santaland Diaries" is a hilarious, sardonic, and sometimes quite touching one-man show that will delight David Sedaris fans and surely create new ones. The 1996 script, adapted by Joe Mantello from Sedaris' 1992 comic essay and popular NPR broadcast, is about an out-of-work writer who applies to become a Macy's elf during the holiday crunch.

As he encounters thousands of Santa's visitors, he becomes battle-weary and bitter, occasionally taking out his frustrations on the children and parents.

Dennis Clark directs Venice Theatre's productions and says, "It's here just in time for the holidays. I love that Venice Theatre produces Dickens' A Christmas Carol every year on the MainStage while making room for something edgier like "Santaland" in Stage II.

"The show is a true tour de force by Tim Wisgerhof. We definitely don't recommend this show for kids, but older teens and adults will have a riotous good time and the bar is open during the whole show!"

When asked if he had a particular connection to his character, Wisgerhof said, "I've never been an elf, but I've worked retail during the holidays and I know how crazy it gets." He adds, "The world is such a small place. One of my best friends is the Creative Director at Macy's in New York and he actually hires the elves for the Santaland display."

Service Above Self

ROTARIANS ARE THANKFUL FOR FELLOWSHIP, AND OPPORTUNITIES TO LIVE BY THE "SERVICE ABOVE SELF" MOTTO

This is an appropriate time of the calendar year to pause and reflect on why Rotarians are thankful for the many opportunities to serve our local and world wide community. Rotary was founded on fellowship by business men who came together through their commitment to ethical business principles. (Note, women became full members in 1987). As they continued to meet, and grow in membership, it soon became apparent that this naturally led to looking at the needs of their communities and ways to improve the lives of those living in their area, and adoption of "Service Above Self" as the motto. The organization grew quickly into Rotary International with clubs established all over the world. The awareness of global needs led to thousands of service opportunities by Rotarians in all parts of the world.

Skimming through recent issues of "the rotarian" magazine, are reports of projects and actions taking place all over the world.

- The closing in of the goal of a world without polio with only 8 new cases this year.
- Canadian Rotarians helping Syrian refugee families build a new life.
- In Italy a Rotary scholar training engineers around the world to make buildings safer in earthquakes.
- In Mexico's migrant shelters a Rotary scholar puts his education into action.
- Projects to help children in Guatemala, and Rotarians in Atlanta fill a gap in services to help homeless families.

To bring this closer to home are excerpts from the recent District newsletter report on local humanitarian aid to Puerto Rico:

Rotarians of District 6890 are working wonders to help bring relief to Puerto Rico. The first of three 40-foot containers loaded with relief supplies left from Plant City, bound for Orocovis. Mike Rodriguez from Lake Wales Breakfast Rotary was boots on the ground in Puerto Rico early on, identifying some of the worst hit areas. Communication via satellite phone was established between Puerto Rico and Rotary on the Ridge member Terri Miller, who coordinated with Felix Hernandez of Orocovis.

Orocovis is high in the mountains and many lost everything. The most important needs are food, water and water filtration systems. Many Rotarians offered help. This included Josh Jimenez, a new member from the Plant City Rotary Club. His logistics company, Star Distribution, had pallets of supplies ready to go to Puerto Rico. Carlos Roman from Sebring Noon Rotary Club assisted Terri with coordination. Using connections with the Puerto Rico Chamber of Commerce in Lakeland, Terri contacted Ana Rivera who organized a group - "Band-Aide for Puerto Rico". Their ability to organize relief supplies was staggering. Terri volunteered with their group to package the supplies on a Saturday morning. It was soon clear that containers loaded onboard ships was the best way to get supplies to Puerto Rico.

Rotary 7000 District Governor for Puerto Rico, Jose Lucas Rodriguez, also was part of the coordination, providing information about Fresh Exports, a company in Puerto Rico that can coordinate container shipments.

What a whirlwind of good work! It is certainly a testament to Service Above Self. Clubs wishing to help with the efforts can contact Terri Miller at 863-528-2941. If any Rotarian would like to join the relief committee, please reach out. We are also in need of gathering clothing.

It is a sweet note to this grand effort that Rotary on the Ridge has made Felix an honorary member of their club for his efforts to help his community. Felix has made a commitment to start a Rotary club in his town as soon as he can.

THE PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER

AMERICAN MADE. 3 stars. Tom Cruise stars in this fun but heavily fictionalized portrait of Barry Seal, a drug smuggler who found himself at the intersection of drug cartels and CIA adventurism in Central and South America in the 1970s and '80s. Directed by Doug Liman. 1 hr. 55 R (violence)

A BAD MOMS CHRISTMAS. 2 stars. The three R-rated moms (Kristen Bell, Mila Kunis and Kathryn Hahn) must put up with their own mothers (Cheryl Hines, Christine Baranski and Susan Sarandon) over the fraught holidays. What once was transgressive has become reflexive. With Peter Gallagher. 1 hr. 44 R (language)

BATTLE OF THE SEXES. 2.5 stars. Women's tennis champ Billie Jean King (Emma Stone) and aging male star Bobby Riggs (Steve Carell) square off in a publicity stunt tennis match that ends up proving King's point about the value of female athletes. Some fun moments, but aside from the two leads, is given to caricature and some on-the-nose dialogue. With Andrea Riseborough, Sarah Silverman, and Bill Pullman. 2 hrs. 1 PG-13 (nudity)

BLADE RUNNER 2049. 3.5 stars. An imaginative, visually stunning if overlong sequel from Denis Villeneuve that embraces and embellishes Ridley Scott's original 1982 dark vision of a future Los Angeles where police (Ryan Gosling) hunt down synthetic humans, even as the latter grow more like us. With Harrison Ford, Jared Leto, Ana de Armas and MacKenzie Davis. 2 hrs. 44 R (violence)

THE FLORIDA PROJECT. 3 stars. Engaging slice-of-life look at residents of an Orlando motel, the adults living paycheck-to-paycheck, their free-range kids having an improbably wonderful time on the ragged fringe of the Magic Kingdom. Written and directed by Sean Baker. With Willem Dafoe, Brooklyn Prince. 1 hr. 45. R (language)

JUSTICE LEAGUE. 2 stars. This dour, down-beat corner of the DC Universe finds Batman (Ben Affleck) and Wonder Woman (Gail Gadot) recruiting superheroes Aquaman (Jason Momoa), Flash (Ezra Miller) and Cyborg (Ray Fisher) to combat an invading alien army and an interstellar bad guy (Ciaran Hinds). Directed with a heavy hand by Zack Snyder. With Amy Adams, Diane Lane. 1 hr. 59 PG-13 (violence)

THE KILLING OF A SACRED DEER. 2 stars. Yorgos Lanthimos provocation about a prosperous surgeon (Colin Farrell) with a young fan who turns out to be a stalker and a sociopath, forcing the physician into a sick game of gruesome choices. The movie's icy affections and snarky asides get in the way of whatever humanity it's intended to have. With Nicole Kidman. 1 hr. 59 R (violence)

LADY BIRD. 4 stars. Funny, touching coming-of-age story about a Sacramento high school senior (Saoirse Ronan) who quarrels with her mother (Laurie Metcalf) about her determination to leave California for a more sophisticated life at an Eastern college. Written and directed with great affection, wisdom and skill by Greta Gerwig. With Tracy Letts, Lucas Hedges, Beanie Feldstein. 1 hr. 33

R (language, sexuality)

LAST FLAG FLYING. 2.5 stars. Three Vietnam war buddies (Steve Carell, Laurence Fishburne and Bryan Cranston) reunite to bury one man's son, killed in the line of duty in Iraq. The performances of the leads are uneven, but supporting players, including Cicely Tyson, help the movie build to a strong conclusion. Directed by Richard Linklater. 2 hrs. 5 R (language)

MUDBOUND. 2 stars. The harsh realities and race/class complexities of post-WWII Jim Crow South play out in the lives of white and black families farming the same parcel of Mississippi land in Dee Rees' thoughtful adaptation of the Hillary Jordan book. With Carey Mulligan, Mary J. Blige, Garrett Hedlund and Jason Clarke. 2 hrs. 15 R (violence)

MURDER ON THE ORIENT EXPRESS. 3 stars. Kenneth Branagh's appropriately hammy adaptation of the classic 1930s Agatha Christie mystery about a murder aboard a snowbound train in Yugoslavia, under the nose of master detective Hercule Poirot (Branagh) who finds himself inundated with likely suspects — the all-star cast includes

Judi Dench, Johnny Depp, Willem Dafoe and Michelle Pfeiffer. 1 hr. 54 PG-13 (violence)

SUBURBICON. 1.5 stars. Misfired black comedy from director George Clooney, adapting a Coen brothers script, about a post-war suburban father (Matt Damon) reacting brutally to a home invasion. Related storylines about racism are poorly handled, and the movie's garish tonal shifts are jarring. With Julianne Moore, Oscar Isaac. 1 hr. 45 R (violence)

THOR: RAGNAROK. 3 stars. Mercifully funny diversion into a quirky corner of the Marvel universe, with Cate Blanchett as the vengeful and power mad sister of Thor (Chris Hemsworth) ascending the throne, banishing her brother to a prison planet, where he recruits the Hulk (Mark Ruffalo) and Valkyrie (Tessa Thompson) to his cause. With Jeff Goldblum, Tom Hiddleston. 2 hrs. 10 PG-13

VICTORIA & ABDUL. 3 stars. Judi Dench stars as Queen Victoria, who late in life develops a rejuvenating friendship with an Indian servant (Ali Fazal) who teaches her about the customs of his native land, to her delight and to the consternation of her scandalized staff. With Eddie Izzard, Olivia Williams. Directed by Stephen Frears. 1 hr. 52 PG-13 (language)

Farm-to-table is changing the restaurant business

METRO CREATIVE SERVICES

Fresh, local foods are the hallmark of farm-to-table restaurants.

Farm-to-table is a movement that promotes serving local products, preferably food and beverages acquired directly from a producer.

Farm-to-table eateries source ingredients locally as much as possible, and diners are increasingly expressing a preference for these establishments.

According to the National Restaurant Association's "What's Hot in 2015" survey, locally sourced meats and seafood, locally grown produce, environmental sustainability, and natural ingredients/minimally processed foods were among the most popular food trends.

Farm-to-table establishments reduce carbon footprints by cutting back on the amount of resources necessary to get food from the farm to the restaurant. The farm-to-table movement began as a countermeasure to big agriculture and chemically controlled produce. Although there is no hard data on just how many restaurants can be considered farm-to-table, organic farming in general is big business. In its

Farm-to-table is a movement that promotes serving local products, preferably food and beverages acquired directly from a producer.

2014 Organic Survey, the U.S Department of Agriculture's National Agriculture Statistics Service reported that sales of organic products increased by 72 percent since 2008. California, Washington, Pennsylvania, Oregon, and Wisconsin were the top five states for organic farming, accounting for 78 percent of organic sales in the United States at the time of the survey. Supporting farm-to-table establishments can benefit the planet, but consumers should know that there are additional advantages to patronizing such businesses.

- Support for local businesses: Local restaurateurs who embrace farm-to-table can support and promote other local operations. Restaurants can help farmers by purchasing excess crops or simply providing the demand for farmers' products.

- Greater control over ingredients: In some instances, chefs can travel to nearby farms during harvest to personally select items for their restaurants, ensuring excellent quality.
- Better taste and quality: Fresh food is picked at its peak instead of being forced to ripen during a long journey. This typically translates to more flavorful foods.

- Evolving and updated menus: Because farm-to-table means sourcing in-season ingredients, restaurants must have fluid menus that change based on the availability of ingredients and fishing and harvesting quotas. This can lead to greater variety and prevent menus from becoming dated or overly familiar.

Hyper-local sourcing that fuels farm-to-table operations continues to be an in-demand restaurant trend. Diners can rest easy knowing that patronizing such establishments benefits both the environment and the local economy.

Lake Placid Hardware awards shopping sprees

By JERRY MEISENHEIMER CORRESPONDENT

LAKE PLACID — What could be more exciting this time of year than to receive a phone call from Lake Placid Do it Best Hardware telling you that your name was picked for one of two $500 shopping sprees?

That's the call two Lake Placid residents received recently. They are Tim Inman and Justin Cook. Each filled out an entry form and dropped in a box at the store sometime between Aug. 28 and Nov. 13. Do it Best Corporation was running its nationwide fall "Shopping Giveaway." Inman and Cook were selected at random from over 750 local entries.

Store manager Robert Tillis said that Lake Placid Do it Best Hardware is delighted to provide two of its customers with the opportunity to make their Fall projects a little more affordable.

"Everyone has a few extra chores this time of year and we're glad that our winners will be able to choose whatever tools and supplies they want to get the jobs done," Tillis said. "We thank all of those who entered the giveaway for their participation."

Tim and Barbara Inman moved to Lake Placid from Ona, but are originally from Indiana. They shop at the Lake Placid hardware store about once a week for things for their homes.

Tim plans to use their $500 for plumbing and painting projects, especially now that the weather is a little cooler.

Meanwhile, Cook wants to use his good fortune toward getting more tools for his job. He moved here from Georgia recently and is a handyman. He brags he can fix anything and everything, including locksmith jobs. Cook says he purchased something nearly everyday at Lake Placid Do it Best Hardware.

The store is located at 190 Plaza Ave. just off U.S. 27 behind Dunkin' Donuts. The phone number is 863-465-1999. It carries a full line of paints, tools, lumber, hardware and garden items. They are open daily at 8 a.m. and closes at 7 p.m. except on Sunday, when it is 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The World Famous
Glenn Miller Orchestra
LIVE IN CONCERT JANUARY 31, 2018
AT THE HIGHLANDS NEWS-SUN CENTER
781 Magnolia Avenue • Sebring, FL 33870 • 7:00pm showtime

The legendary Glenn Miller was one of the most successful of all dance bandleaders back in the Swing Era of the 1930s and '40s with a matchless string of hit records which built and sustained the momentum of popularity.

Today, the 18 member ensemble continues to play many of the original Miller arrangements both from the civilian band and the AAFB libraries. Additionally, it also plays some more modern selections arranged and performed in the Miller style and sound. Just as it was in Glenn's day, the Glenn Miller Orchestra today is still the most sought after big band in the world!

New Concepts by Visions shows Thanksgiving spirit

SPECIAL TO
HIGHLANDS NEWS-SUN
It started early in the morning with the New Concepts by Visions staff making and baking the items needed for a traditional Thanksgiving dinner. As the staff arrived with the meal, individuals assisted by carrying it in. When the company first started in 2003 it was called Visions ADT, and the employees wanted to have a party. Staff members all pitched in and they celebrated a traditional Thanksgiving dinner. Throughout the years it has grown into what is now a day all friends, family members and community partners can look forward to enjoying good food and companionship.

STATE POINT MEDIA

When it comes to entertaining ourselves at home, there are more options than ever before. Whether you are looking to upgrade your family's existing movie night experience or you are just getting started in assembling a home theater system, here are five reasons to consider doing so now.

1. There is more media available. With so many streaming services accessible, more movies and shows are available at your fingertips than ever before, making it possible to instantly enjoy everything from recent blockbusters to classic favorites to a marathon of your favorite TV series.

2. You can find high-quality tech. Today's high-quality tech makes it possible to get an up-graded movie theater-like experience at home. For example, the projectors from Casio's LampFree line-up offer quick, easy set-up and reliable, brilliant images that include models that work well in any size room or home theater.

3. It allows you to get cozy. When the weather outside is frightful, why head to a drafty movie theater? Nothing beats staying-in and enjoying the comfort of your own home -- you can even wear your PJs if you want!

4. You can make it a party. With a home theater system, you can invite all your friends and family over for movie nights. Ask everyone to bring a treat inspired by the movie that you'll be watching for some fun, quality time together.

5. You can save time. Sports practice, homework, the school play; your kids are busy and so are you, which means you may not always find time for the entire family to head to the movie theater for a specific showing. However, with a great theater in your own home, you can plan a spur-of-the-moment movie night whenever it works for your family.

North Korea launches ICBM in possibly its longest-range test yet

By KIM TONG-HYUNG and FOSTER KLUG
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEOUL, South Korea — After 2 ½ months of relative peace, North Korea launched its most powerful weapon yet early Wednesday, a presumed intercontinental ballistic missile that could put Washington and the entire eastern U.S. seaboard within range.

Resuming its torrid testing pace in pursuit of its goal of a viable arsenal of nuclear-tipped missiles that can hit the U.S. mainland had been widely expected, but the apparent power and suddenness of the new test still jolted the Korean Peninsula and Washington. The launch at 3:17 a.m. local time and midday in the U.S. capital indicated an effort to perfect the element of surprise and to obtain maximum attention in the United States.

The firing is a clear message of defiance aimed at the Trump administration, which had just restored the North to a U.S. list of terror sponsors. It also ruins nascent diplomatic efforts, raises fears of war or a pre-emptive U.S. strike and casts a deeper shadow over the security of the Winter Olympics early next year in South Korea.

A rattled Seoul responded by almost immediately launching three of its own missiles in a show of force. The South's president, Moon Jae-in, expressed worry that North Korea's growing missile threat could force the United States to attack the North before it masters a nuclear-tipped long-range missile, something experts say may be imminent.

"If North Korea completes a ballistic missile that could reach from one continent to another, the situation can spiral out of control," Moon said at an emergency meeting in Seoul, according to his office. "We must stop a situation where North Korea miscalculates and threatens us with nuclear weapons or where the United States considers a pre-emptive strike."

Moon, a liberal who has been forced into a more hawkish stance by a stream of North Korean weapons tests, has repeatedly declared that there can be no U.S. attack on the North without Seoul's approval, but many here worry that Washington may act without South Korean input.

The launch is North Korea's first since it fired an intermediate-range missile over Japan on Sept. 15, and may have broken any efforts at diplomacy meant to end the North's nuclear ambitions. U.S. officials have sporadically floated the idea

Powell says he favors loosening some bank regulations

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
AP ECONOMICS WRITER

WASHINGTON — Jerome Powell, President Donald Trump's pick to be chairman of the Federal Reserve, told senators at his confirmation hearing Tuesday that he believes some bank regulations can be rolled back — something the administration and Wall Street favor. But he stressed that he will protect the central bank's political independence, calling it vital for the Fed's role.

Powell also strongly hinted in his appearance before the Senate Banking Committee that the Fed would hike rates again in December.

Powell said he believed that the Dodd-Frank Act, passed in the wake of the devastating 2008 financial crisis, had succeeded in making the financial system stronger, including ensuring that no major institution now is too big to fail.

But in some areas such as regulation of smaller banks, the law had imposed unnecessary burdens that should be eased, he said.

Powell's comments pleased many GOP senators, who have complained for years that Dodd-Frank was hurting the economic recovery by making it harder to get bank loans. Democratic senators, however, pressed Powell to say whether

After a brutal hurricane season, there's a silver lining: better forecasts

By JENNY STALETOVICH
MIAMI HERALD

MIAMI — About a month before Hurricane Harvey slammed Texas with an amount of rain so immense forecasters said it could not happen more than once in a thousand years, a University of Miami scientist developing a new weather tool knew what might be in store for the Gulf Coast.

"I can't claim 'problem solved' or anything like that," said Ben Kirtman, an atmospheric scientist at the Rosenstiel School of Marine and Atmospheric Science. But his experimental model could "preemptively improve your chances of not having a catastrophe."

The 2017 Atlantic season will be remembered among the 10 worst on record, blamed for killing hundreds, costing billions and producing hurricanes with unprecedented fury. Harvey, the first major hurricane to hit the U.S. mainland in a dozen years, set a new U.S. record for rainfall. Irma followed, hammering Florida and Puerto Rico with fierce winds that made it the strongest hurricane ever recorded outside the Caribbean or Gulf of Mexico. Then Maria pounded Puerto Rico, further crippling it.

But for hurricane researchers, the season that ends Nov. 30 will also be remembered as a grueling run for prediction models and emerging forecast tools like Kirtman's that up to now had not seen such monster storms.

So how did they perform?

The good news is the chief model produced by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and used by the National Hurricane Center helped produce the best track forecasts since the center began issuing tracks. Earlier warnings came for storms nearing land, and new maps provided the

AP EXCLUSIVE: Big contracts, no storm tarps for Puerto Rico

By TAMI ABDOLLAH and MICHAEL BIESECKER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — After Hurricane Maria damaged tens of thousands of homes in Puerto Rico, a newly created Florida company with an unproven record won more than $30 million in contracts from the Federal Emergency Management Agency to provide emergency tarps and plastic sheeting for repairs.

Bronze Star LLC never delivered those urgently needed supplies, which even months later remain in demand by hurricane victims on the island.

FEMA eventually terminated the contracts, without paying any money, and re-started the process this month to supply more tarps for the island. The earlier effort took nearly four weeks from the day FEMA awarded the contracts to Bronze Star and the day it canceled them.

Thousands of Puerto Ricans remain homeless, and many complain that the federal government is taking too long to install tarps. The U.S. territory has been hit by severe rainstorms in recent weeks that have caused widespread flooding.

It is not clear how thoroughly FEMA investigated Bronze Star or its ability to fulfill the contracts. Formed by two brothers in August, Bronze Star had never before won a government contract or delivered tarps or plastic sheeting. The address listed for the business is a single-family home in a residential subdivision in St. Cloud, Florida.

One of the brothers, Kayon Jones, said manufacturers he contacted before bidding on

Secretary of State Dennis Richardson shakes hands with Oregon Kid Governor Dom Peters. MOLLY J. SMITH/STATESMAN JOURNAL

'Kid Governor' speaks from no-bully pulpit

In front of a pair of television cameras, a cluster of young students and a few teachers taking pictures with their phones, Secretary of State Dennis Richardson leaned down to give a fifth-grader his first class in media training.

"Tell them your name, you've just been elected Kid Governor, and what you want to do," Richardson said, his hand on the kid's shoulder.

Dom Peters, 11, relayed these suggestions into the microphones in front of him, answering the final questions of his inaugural news conference as Oregon's Kid Governor-elect.

His year-long term will begin Jan. 9 with an inauguration at the State Capitol.

During an assembly in front of his classmates at Willamette Valley Christian School in Brooks on Monday, Richardson announced Dom as Oregon's first ever Kid Governor, elected by 1,350 voting fifth-graders from across the state.

In his two-and-a-half-minute campaign video, Dom spoke of his desire to end bullying and promote kindness, drawing on his personal experience being bullied at his former school. As Kid Governor, Dom wants to write and publish a short book to teach kids about bullying, then share that book with classrooms across the state.

He suggested creating a club for students to write their own stories about bullying to raise awareness.

"Together, I hope we can help stop bullying in the state of Oregon," Dom said to his school during the announcement. His remarks were met with loud cheers and applause from the assembled student body of about 175 students.

"He has a big heart," his mother, Concetta Maceira, said. "He genuinely cares about how other people are treated."

Dom, who lives in Gervais, was one of eight students selected as a finalist for fifth-graders in the state to choose between. Other finalists' campaign videos covered issues such as ending child abuse, increasing access to health care and helping foster children.

Oregon's Kid Governor Program was developed this year from an initiative created in Connecticut a few years ago. Oregon is only the second state to adapt the curriculum, which consists of 15 lessons on civics in addition to promoting the Kid Governor election.

"If we teach it, they'll understand it," Richardson said. "This is a great way to get kids involved."

DeVos: Mobile app coming for federal student aid application

By MARIA DANILOVA
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — College students will soon be able to file their applications for federal student aid through a mobile app, Education Secretary Betsy DeVos said Tuesday.

Speaking at a conference of student aid professionals in Orlando, Florida, DeVos said the Free Application for Federal Student Aid should “keep pace” with an era in which people commonly order food, get a ride, transfer money and find romantic partners with apps.

She made the bold claim that “the goal is a customer experience that will rival Amazon or Apple’s Genius

Students and parents have long complained that the current federal student aid form is too long and cumbersome: 10 pages, including instructions. The procedure was further complicated this year when security and privacy concerns forced the government to take down an online data retrieval tool that automatically populated the form with a student’s IRS data. The tool went up again this fall.

DeVos said the changes also envision enhancing cybersecurity to protect personal data. “Overall, the next generation system will be the most significant change to the student aid process ever.”

Shortly after DeVos spoke, the Senate committee overseeing education held a hearing on simplifying the application process.

Justin Draeger, president of the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators, told the panel that it is important to strike a balance while revising the application form. “Put more simply, the challenge before us is to put together an application that is as simple as possible but yet allows us to distinguish the truly needy from those who are not,” Draeger said.

Draeger added that the process would be made easier if financial information that the government has is automatically populated on the form.

Elaine Genise Williams, a recent graduate of Virginia Commonwealth University, who was homeless in her youth, told the committee that the federal student aid process was “my number one hurdle in completing my education.” She suggested it should not require homeless students to have their status re-determined every year, because it is a major burden and adds to trauma. She also called for reducing the requirements to prove that a youth is homeless or unaccompanied. Finally, she called for requiring colleges and universities to designate a specific employee to deal with homeless students.

Police chief ‘optimistic’ detectives are interviewing man with ties to Seminole Heights slayings

TAMPA (Bradenton Herald) — Police Chief Brian Dugan says he is “optimistic” that a tip that led officers to an armed man at a McDonald’s in Ybor City is connected to the four murders that have shaken the Seminole Heights neighborhood.

There was a heavy police presence at the McDonald’s on East 13th Avenue on Tuesday after police confronted a man who was armed and may be linked with the shooting deaths in Seminole Heights, according to Tampa police.

Dugan said they received the tip at about 2:45 p.m. Tuesday, during a news conference just after 5 p.m. at Tampa Fire Rescue Station #4.

“We are interviewing this person now,” Dugan said. “This is very early in the investigation. This person might be completely innocent.”

Dugan said while he remained “guarded,” he was “optimistic” about this new development.

“I believe this has something to do with Seminole Heights,” Dugan said.

The spree of killings believed to possibly be the work of a serial killer began on Oct. 9, when 22-year-old Benjamin Mitchell was shot and killed in front of his home. The second victim, Monica Hoffa, 32, was killed Oct. 11. Her body was found two days afterward by a city employee in a vacant parking lot half a mile from where Mitchell died.

On Oct. 19 a third victim, Anthony Naiboa, an autistic 20-year-old who had just graduated from high school, was found shot dead about 50 feet away from the bus stop on 15th Street where Mitchell was killed.

The latest victim, Ronald Felton, 60, was found shot dead on Nov. 14 in the area of North Nebraska Avenue and East McBerry Street just moments after an officer had passed by.

Dugan said Tuesday evening he anticipated a long night ahead for his department. He also asked the community to continue to be cautious.

“We will be in the neighborhood tonight,” the chief assured residents.

At the McDonald’s, police tape surrounded a red Mustang, according to broadcast reports. Police have blocked off the parking lot.

Remains of Florida man missing for months found in trash can HOMOSASSA (AP) — The remains of a Florida man who had been missing since September have been found in a trash can.

Investigators on Monday said they identified 33-year-old Ryan Michael McClellan through dental records. The remains were found Saturday in a wooded lot in Citrus County, which is north of Tampa.

Citrus County Sheriff’s officials told news outlets McClellan suffered trauma to his upper body.

WFLA reports neighbors said the trash can had been in the area since the week of Sept. 11, when Hurricane Irma ravaged much of Florida.

Investigators said McClellan has two daughters and worked for Halliburton at one time.

A reward of $3,000 has been offered for information leading to an arrest.

Florida paratrooper dies in barracks at North Carolina base

MIAMI (AP) — A paratrooper from Florida died in his barracks on an Army base in North Carolina.

The Miami Herald reports 22-year-old Spc. Carlton Butler of North Miami Beach died Saturday evening at the base in Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

Lt. Col. Graham White, who is commander of the 2nd Battalion, said in a statement that Butler’s death is under investigation. No further details were immediately available.

White says Butler was an energetic and motivated paratrooper. He says his thoughts now turn to his family and fellow paratroopers.

Butler joined the Army in June 2014 and was assigned to B Company, 2nd Battalion, 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment.

of direct talks with North Korea if it maintained restraint.

The missile also appears to improve on North Korea's past launches.

If flown on a standard trajectory, instead of Wednesday's lofted angle, the missile would have a range of more than 8,100 miles, said U.S. scientist David Wright, a physicist who closely tracks North Korea's missile and nuclear programs. "Such a missile would have more than enough range to reach Washington, D.C., and in fact any part of the continental United States," Wright wrote in a blog post for the Union for Concerned Scientists.

Japanese Defense Minister Itsunori Onodera said the missile landed inside of Japan's special economic zone in the Sea of Japan, about 155 miles west of Aomori, which is on the northern part of Japan's main island of Honshu. Onodera says the missile could have been an upgraded version of North Korea's Hwasong-14 ICBM or a new missile.

A big unknown, however, is the missile's payload. If, as expected, it carried a light mock warhead, then its effective range would have been shorter, analysts said.

An intercontinental ballistic missile test is considered particularly provocative, and indications that it flew higher than past launches suggest progress by Pyongyang in developing a weapon of mass destruction that could strike the U.S. mainland. President Donald Trump has vowed to prevent North Korea from having that capability — using military force if necessary.

In response to the launch, Trump said the United States will "take care of it." He told reporters after the launch:

AP PHOTO

South Korean President Moon Jae-in speaks as he presides over a meeting of the National Security Council at the presidential Blue House in Seoul, South Korea, Wednesday, Nov. 29. Moon has called North Korea's latest missile test a "serious threat" to global peace and stressed the need for stronger sanctions and pressure against Pyongyang to discourage its nuclear ambitions.

"It is a situation that we will handle." He did not elaborate.

Pentagon spokesperson Col. Rob Manning said the missile was launched from Sain Ni, North Korea, and traveled about 620 miles before landing in the Sea of Japan within 200 nautical miles of Japan's coast. It flew for 53 minutes, Japan's defense minister said.

South Korea's responding missile tests included one with a 620-mile range, to mimic striking the North Korea launch site, which is not far from the North Korean capital.

The U.N. Security Council scheduled an emergency meeting for Wednesday afternoon at the request of Japan, the U.S. and South Korea.

he would cut key consumer protections in the 2010 law, a measure that Trump often attacked on the campaign trail as a disaster.

Powell stressed that he was "strongly committed" to the political independence of the Federal Reserve. He said he has not had any conversation with anyone in the administration that concerned him.

During two hours of testimony, Powell sought to convey a sense of stability and praised his predecessors Janet Yellen and Ben Bernanke. He said that the Fed would continue on a gradual path of raising interest rates and shrinking the Fed's massive $4.5 trillion balance sheet, which grew five-fold in the wake of the Great Recession as the Fed bought government bonds to push long-term interest rates lower.

Powell said he expected the balance sheet to shrink to around $2.5 trillion to $3 trillion over the next three to four years under a program set in motion by Yellen.

On interest rates, Powell said, "I think the case for raising interest rates at our next meeting is coming together."

When pressed for specifics on a December rate hike, Powell deferred, citing Fed policy not to talk about possible outcomes before officials gathered and heard all views.

Trump tapped Powell on Nov. 2 to succeed Yellen, the first woman to head the nation's central bank and the first Fed leader in four decades not to be offered a second term as chair. Yellen's term ends on Feb. 3. She said last week she will leave the Fed once Powell is confirmed by the Senate.

Private economists said there were no surprises in Powell's testimony. He sought to bolster the reputation he built in his five years as a Fed board member as a centrist in pursuit of the Fed's dual goals of promoting maximum employment and stable prices.

"I have had the great privilege of serving under Chairman Bernanke and Chair Yellen and, like them, I will do everything in my power to achieve those goals while preserving the Federal Reserve's independent and nonpartisan status that is so vital to their pursuit," he said.

economist at Capital Economics, said Powell gave "away little new on either the economic or policy outlook."

There was little market reaction to Powell's testimony, although some big bank stocks did move up, as investors cheered his comments that some bank regulations could be loosened.

The Yellen Fed has raised rates four times starting in December 2015, including two rate hikes this year. Economists expect a third rate hike to occur next month, and they're projecting at least three additional rate increases in 2018.

arrival times for damaging winds.

"It's more than just making a better mousetrap," said Frank Marks, director of NOAA's Hurricane Research Division at the Atlantic Oceanographic and Meteorological Lab in Virginia Key. "It's actually pulling all the pieces together and making them work together like an orchestra."

The bad news is forecasting intensity remains a problem. The hurricane center correctly predicted the rapid intensification for six out of seven storms, a forecast they have been reluctant to give in the past because they lacked confidence in the models, Marks said. But another 19 storms quickly intensified without a forecast.

"There's progress but we have work to do," he said.

achievements worth noting:

- Hurricane center forecasters using NOAA's "workhouse" model made the most accurate track predictions yet. During Hurricane Irma, they beat their average by 30 percent with every forecast, according to UM hurricane researcher Brian McNoldy. An experimental version tested throughout the season improved forecasts another 10 percent. The model was created in 2007 to improve track and intensity predictions by 50 percent in 10 years.

- A UM ensemble model, used to create seasonal forecasts, accurately called for an increase in the number of major storms and a spike in storm energy for the season, which eventually produced 10 hurricanes in a row for the first time in more than a century.

- A Princeton-based NOAA model and the Climate Prediction Center correctly produced Harvey's extreme rain days before the hurricane struck. Another experimental model that issues hourly forecasts for hazardous weather predicted the spot where Irma would make landfall 28 hours in advance.

All these improvements add up to better forecasts which, for emergency managers and the public, can mean better preparation. In flood-prone cities like New Orleans and Houston, or states like Florida that are wrapped by a coast vulnerable to storm surge, a month's warning about potential hazards could mean saved lives.

The advances also go beyond hurricane research. Kirtman's new monthly model, dubbed SubX, extends forecasts out to 34 days. Coupled with the ensemble model that predicts seasonal weather, it could allow meteorologists to make forecasts further into the future.

"Suppose you're planning a trip to Disney," he said. "I can't tell you definitely, but I can tell you there's a 20 percent chance the whole five days it's going to rain, or there's a 70 percent chance."

The models could also fill another critical gap: forecasting more imminent threats from climate change.

A warming planet that traps more moisture is expected to produce more intense hurricanes, but so far impacts like hurricanes and sea rise are generally forecast on global scales over years. Earlier this month, the U.S. government's National Climate Assessment warned more intense hurricanes with heavier rain will likely increase in the coming decades. Oceans, which have risen globally by 7 to 8 inches since 1900 and continue to rise faster than at any time in the last 2,800 years of records, could also trigger more extreme flooding, the report said.

But that's not the kind of information that could help ongoing work, like the $16 billion Everglades restoration project or a new voter-approved $400 million bond to address sea rise in the city of Miami. Impacts are not expected to rise along a straight line, but bobble up and down between wetter and drier and colder and warmer years, like a roller coaster that steadily rises. Predicting the bobbles will be critical.

"It's these shorter term fluctuations on top of the climate change signal where the real vulnerability kicks in," said Kirtman, director of the Cooperative Institute for Marine and Atmospheric Studies, a research partnership between 10 universities and NOAA.

"You have this chronic problem, but then all of a sudden you have an acute problem on top of that chronic problem and that makes it catastrophic. It's these risk multipliers and hazard multipliers and the interaction of timescales and that's where we're really trying to help."

CONTRACTS

the contracts assured him they could provide the tarps but later said they could not meet the government's requirements. Jones said supplying the materials was problematic because most of the raw materials came out of Houston, which was hit hard by Hurricane Harvey. He said he sought a waiver from FEMA to allow him to order tarps from a Chinese manufacturer and for more time, but FEMA denied the request.

FEMA canceled the contracts Nov. 6, Jones said. The government notified his brother and him a few days later that it would seek $9.3 million in damages unless they signed a waiver releasing the U.S. from any liability. The brothers agreed.

"We were trying to help; it wasn't about making money or anything like that," Jones said.

FEMA awarded the company two contracts Oct. 10 to provide 500,000 tarps and 60,000 rolls of plastic sheeting. More than a half dozen others also bid, but FEMA said it could not provide details about their bids.

"The award of a government contract to a company with absolutely no experience in producing the materials sought obviously raises very bright red flags," said Dan Feldman, professor of public management at the John Jay College of Criminal Justice at City University of New York. "I would hope and assume that the inspector general for the Department of Homeland Security would begin immediately to take a very hard look at this process."

A FEMA spokesperson, Ron Roth, said the agency's review process was "somewhat expedited" after Hurricane Maria to respond as quickly as possible to the emergency. But he said the agency did perform its due diligence.

"Submissions from potential contractors are objectively evaluated, and a contract is awarded based on the highest-rated submission," Roth said.

Such "best value" competitive solicitations take into account past performance and a contractor's ability to deliver as well as price, said Alan Miller, an attorney who spent 22-years advising federal contracting officials until retiring last year.

"In every circumstance, regardless of the award, whether it's $400 to the local stationery company for envelopes, or it's $400 million for a construction contract, the contracting officer is required to make a responsibility determination," Miller said. "Does this company have the infrastructure; do they have the inventory processes, the production processes, the financial capability, for performing the work?"

Nine bids were received on the first contract for plastic sheeting and eight bids on the second contract for tarps. Roth said Star was determined to be the most qualified.

"FEMA's initial technical evaluation determined Bronze Star could do the jobs based on their proposals, which confirmed that they could meet the product specifications and delivery dates," he said.

Kayon Jones, the co-owner of Bronze Star, served in the U.S. Navy from 1997 to 2000, finishing his duty as a seaman storekeeper on the USS Gettysburg, a guided missile cruiser. The contract solicitation gave preference to veteran-owned companies. According to Navy records, Jones was never awarded a Bronze Star, a medal earned by service members who serve heroically in combat.

SUDBURY, Mass. (AP) — Police in a Massachusetts town are showing residents how not to transport their holiday trees.

Sudbury police posted a picture Friday of a vehicle with a large tree on top of it. Almost the entire car appears to be hidden.

Police on Facebook reminded people to transport holiday trees "responsibly."

It's unclear if the driver was cited. The department did not immediately respond to a request for additional details on Monday.

Banks power solid gains for US stocks

By ALEX VEIGA
AP BUSINESS WRITER

Banks led a broad rally in U.S. stocks Tuesday, lifting the market to a milestone-shattering finish.

Gains by industrial stocks, retailers and health care companies also helped drive the major stock indexes to record highs.

Investors were encouraged by news that a Senate committee cleared the way for a tax reform bill to go before the full Senate. Financial stocks also got a boost from Federal Reserve chair nominee Jerome Powell, who told another Senate committee that the Fed would consider easing up on bank regulations.

Encouraging economic data and the latest batch of company earnings and deal news also helped drive the rally, which gave the Standard & Poor's 500 index its best day since Sept. 11.

"When you're in a market where you're at new highs with the averages, in theory, nobody has losses," said Mark Chaikin, founder of Chaikin Analytics. "Given seasonal patterns, I expect that we'll see the market strong into year-end."

The S&P 500 index rose 25.62 points, or 1 percent, to 2,627.04. The Dow Jones industrial average gained 255.93 points, or 1.1 percent, to 23,836.71. The Nasdaq composite added 33.84 points, or 0.5 percent, to 6,912.36. The Russell 2000 index of smaller-company stocks picked up 23.12 points, or 1.5 percent, to 1,536.43.

1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Early on, investors had their eye on Washington, where the Senate Budget Committee weighed the chamber's version of a sweeping tax bill. The committee voted 12-11 to pass the Republican tax plan late Tuesday afternoon. The sweeping measure, which would lower corporate tax rates, now advances to the full Senate. GOP leaders hope to have the Senate take it up later this week.

Another panel, the Senate Banking Committee, drew the spotlight early on as it heard testimony from Powell, who has been a member of the Fed's board since 2012 and is expected to win confirmation to succeed Janet Yellen.

In written testimony released before the start of the hearing, Powell said that, if confirmed as the next Fed chairman, he expected the central bank to continue raising interest rates gradually.

Powell also said that, under his leadership, the Fed would consider ways to ease the regulatory burdens on banks while preserving the key reforms Congress passed to try to prevent another financial crisis.

"Powell's testimony basically said that he's a Janet Yellen on steroids," said Chaikin. "His testimony gave the market a lot of confidence."

Banks and other financial stocks had their best day since March. The sector is up 15.2 percent this year.

JPMorgan Chase and Bank of America notched their gains since April. Shares in JPMorgan rose $3.43, or 3.5 percent, to $101.36. Bank of America added $1.05, or 3.9 percent, to $27.64.

Investors also got a double dose of encouraging data on the U.S. economy Tuesday.

The Conference Board said that its consumer confidence index rose this month to its highest level since November 2000. Economic growth clocked at a healthy 3 percent annual pace in the third quarter, and the unemployment rate has fallen to a 17-year low of 4.1 percent.

A separate index showed U.S. home prices rose at the fastest pace in more than three years in September, fueled by a record-low supply of homes for sale. Homebuilder shares rose, led by KB Home, which gained $1.17, or 4.1 percent, to $30.

The latest corporate deal news also moved the market.

Buffalo Wild Wings jumped 6.3 percent after it agreed to be acquired by Arby's for $157 a share. Buffalo was at $117.25 a share before reports about a possible deal emerged two weeks ago. The stock added $9.20 to $155.60.

Emerson Electric rose 3.7 percent after the company withdrew its bid for Rockwell Automation. Emerson shares climbed $2.27 to $64.15. Rockwell added $6.09, or 3.2 percent, to $197.13.

Companies with strong quarterly results or outlooks also got a lift.

Thor Industries surged 13.3 percent after the RV maker reported quarterly earnings that were much higher than analysts were expecting. The stock gained $18.12 to $154.37. Rival Winnebago Industries rose $3.95, or 7.8 percent, to $54.60.

Tax bill advances, final Senate vote uncertain

and MARCY GORDON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A key Senate committee advanced a sweeping tax package to the full Senate on Tuesday, handing Republican leaders a victory as they try to pass the nation's first tax overhaul in 31 years.

The Senate Budget Committee voted 12-11 to advance the bill as two committee Republicans who had said they were considering voting against the measure — Bob Corker of Tennessee and Ron Johnson of Wisconsin — backed the legislation.

President Donald Trump personally lobbied Republican senators at the Capitol on Tuesday and the bill passed with little fanfare other than a few protesters who tried to disrupt the vote. All 11 Democrats were opposed.

The White House celebrated the vote. "The momentum driving our shared priorities of job growth, economic competitiveness, and fiscal responsibility through tax reform is undeniable," White House press secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders said in a statement.

As a sweetener for such Republicans, the budget committee added a provision to the tax bill that would allow oil drilling in Alaska's Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. Drilling in the refuge has long been a contentious issue, pitting environmentalists against those who want to increase domestic oil production.

Senate Finance Committee Chairman Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and members Sen. John Cornyn, R-Texas and Sen. Patrick Toomey, R-Pennsylvania., back left, walk from the the West Wing to speak to reporters after a meeting with President Donald Trump at the White House in Washington on Monday.

The bill still faces hurdles in the Senate with at least six senators raising sometimes contradicting concerns.

It got a boost Tuesday when Sen. Susan Collins, R-Maine, won support to amend the bill to allow homeowners to deduct at least a portion of their local property taxes on their federal tax returns.

The current Senate bill repeals the entire state and local tax deduction, which helps more than 43 million families reduce their federal tax bills. Collins said Trump and Senate GOP leaders agreed to amend the bill to allow homeowners to deduct up to $10,000 in property taxes, which is similar to a provision in the House-passed bill.

When asked if she is now more likely to support the bill, Collins said that is a "fair assumption."

Johnson has grinned that the package doesn't cut taxes enough for business owners who report business profits on their individual tax returns. Corker said he is concerned that the package will add to the federal government's $20 trillion debt.

After Trump's meeting with Senate Republicans, Corker said, "I think we're getting to a very good place on the deficit issue."

Corker and other deficit hawks want the package to include a "trigger" that would automatically increase taxes if the legislation fails to generate as much revenue as they expect.

An estimate by congressional analysts says the Senate tax bill would add $1.4 trillion to the budget deficit over the next decade. GOP leaders dispute the projection, saying tax cuts will spur economic growth, reducing the hit on the deficit.

Many economists disagree with such optimistic projections. The trigger would be a way for senators to test their economic assumptions, with real consequences if they are wrong.

The provision, however, is drawing opposition from some Republicans.

Yesterday's deal featured famed Norwegian expert Geir Helgemo. South in today's deal was Norwegian Stig Dybdahl, who is not nearly so well known. North's raise to slam is hard to understand. Perhaps we were given the wrong auction. Had South cue-bid four diamonds instead of bidding five clubs, it would have been quite reasonable for North to bid six clubs. Anyway, the play's the thing.

Dybdahl won the opening diamond lead in his hand perforce and immediately led a heart to dummy's ace. Had West been issued a crystal ball at the start of play, he would have played his queen on this trick, but he made the normal play of his low heart. Dybdahl ruffed dummy's remaining diamond and cashed the king and ace of clubs, drawing trumps.

When West played the queen on the ensuing heart lead, Dybdahl played low from dummy and allowed West to win the trick. West was not at all happy about this. He had to play a diamond or a spade. A diamond would yield a ruff-sluff and the hand would be over immediately, so he tried a low spade. Dybdahl made no mistake. He inserted dummy's 10 of spades and claimed the rest when East covered with the king. Nicely played!

Should you ever travel to Norway, don't play bridge for money.

How bad is the burn?

Dear Heloise: Does "freezer burn" on food indicate that the food is no longer fit for human consumption? Is it actually bad for you where it could kill you if you eat it, or does it just lose some of its flavor? — Joe G. in Florida

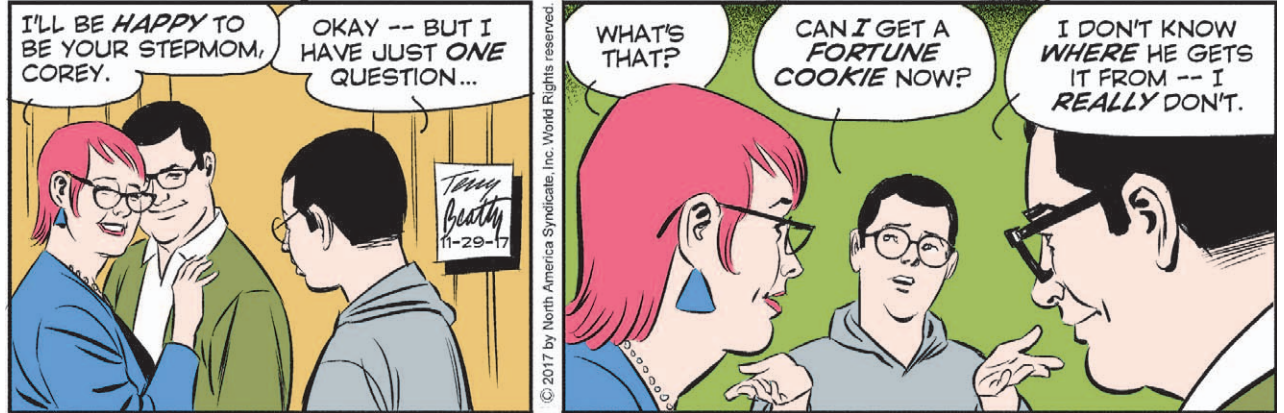

Hints from Heloise

Joe, freezer burn is a matter of quality, not safety. Freezer burn is moisture loss, which can produce white spots or dark discoloration. In all likelihood, it won't make you sick, but it's not going to taste very good. You also might notice a different texture to the food if you eat it. — Heloise lengthwise until I had four spears. I laid the spears side by side and sliced across the spears until I had the zucchini cut into quarter-size pieces. It was quick and easy. This also works well for large carrots and cucumbers. — Rusti S. in Houston

New idea on an old favorite

Dear Heloise: Want a simple dessert with a new flavor? Try coffee ice cream with raspberry topping, then top that with a cloud of whipped cream and maybe a few chocolate sprinkles. My guests love it, and my husband, who is an ice-cream fiend, could eat it six nights a week! — Marcee M., Tega Cay, S.C.

Who knew?

Dear Heloise: I read in your column about someone who wrote about heating pizza in a frying pan. Wow! I would never have thought of that idea. I take it out a half-hour before cooking and heat it on low for about 10 minutes, and it's always nice and crispy. There's no other way to warm pizza. — Cheryl D., via email

Keeping it fresh

Dear Heloise: The best way to preserve fresh marshmallows is to put them into freezer bags and then into the freezer. They do not stick together, and they will be fresh and soft. — Darlene M., New Braunfels, Texas

Basket case

Dear Heloise: I have a drip coffee maker, and recently I found an easy way to clean the part that holds the coffee basket. I used a spray bottle, set to steam, and hit the nooks and ridges with streams of water. The grime and coffee residue flowed down the center hole, where I had placed a tall glass to catch the drips. It takes only a minute to clean this part of the coffee maker. — Yvonne in Falls Church, Va.

Stir-fry trick

Dear Heloise: I needed only half of a small zucchini for a stir-fry, so I started by cutting off the stem end, then I cut the zucchini

Wife's private photo album makes its way onto the web

DEAR ABBY: Six months ago, I asked a close female friend to help me prepare a gift for my husband for our fifth wedding anniversary. I wanted to create a photo album of sexy nude photos of myself. Her excellent camerawork provided me with a wonderful collection, and my husband loved it.

Dear Abby

I recently found out on social media that my girlfriend's husband viewed and copied my private photos, and shared them online with mutual male friends of ours. I'm devastated. My girlfriend is sorry to the max.

My husband isn't yet aware of my exposure to others. I don't want to happened because he needs to hear it from you.

Your friend's carelessness in allowing her husband to see — and share — the photos was deplorable. It is nearly impossible now that those images have been posted online to stop their proliferation. That your friend's husband would display such immaturity and poor judgment by showing them around is shocking.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are at opposite ends of the political spectrum: I am conservative; she is liberal. We do our best not to argue about our strongly held views, but sometimes we are unsuccessful.

My problem is, she'll have three TVs going, all tuned to her favorite political channel, while doing housework. I find it annoying. I usually leave the room when she's going to do prolonged work in our home office and informs me that she will be listening to her channel. It's the three-TV thing that I would like stopped. What do you suggest? — INUNDATED IN WASHINGTON

DEAR INUNDATED: Your wife should show you the same consideration that you show to her. In this case, she does not have to have three TVs blaring "her" channel throughout your home while she does housecleaning. She should have ONE television set on in the room she is in.

DEAR ABBY: My husband had not seen a dentist in 18 years. I come from a family of dentists, and dental health is very important to me. When I finally convinced my husband to go to the dentist because he'd broken a front tooth, he ended up needing eight extractions!

I'm happy he finally saw a dentist, but he rarely wears the bridges the dentist made for him. He looks like a jack-o'-lantern, and I'm embarrassed to be with him in public. I am having such a hard time with this that I no longer know if I can stay in this marriage.

He is a good man and a great husband and father, but his lack of teeth is almost more than I can handle. Any advice on how I can get him to wear his dentures daily? — EMBARRASSED IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Your husband may not be wearing the bridges the dentist made because they are uncomfortable. You may be able to convince him to wear them by encouraging him to return to the dentist who made them and have them adjusted until they fit properly.

Any true underdevelopment of male genitalia is rare

DEAR DR. ROACH: Can you give any reason why a penis wouldn't grow or form like it is supposed to? My penis is undersize. It is not regular size for a man. I'd just like to know what could cause this. — V.P.

Dr. Roach

ANSWER: I hear this question frequently, and most of the time when I perform an exam, the penis size is in the normal range (I examine a lot of men, and have a better appreciation of normal variation than most). However, there are medical conditions that can cause male sexual organs not to develop properly. The most important is failure of male hormones to work at the time of puberty, so in that case, many male characteristics are decreased or absent, including facial and body hair and deep voice. Both the penis and testes will be small. However, it is very unusual for this to go unrecognized and untreated into adulthood.

Many men are embarrassed to ask about this, but please do see your medical provider and get an exam. Let me just add that you should ignore advertising about penile enlargement, as there are no treatments I know of that are both safe and effective.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am 60 years old, and for years have had trouble with a Bartholin cyst on one side. It is sore in that gland again, after taking turmeric for two months. It would bother me whenever I took hormone replacement a few years ago. Is it normal to still have trouble at this age? It doesn't get big anymore, just sore sometimes. — M.L.R.

ANSWER: The Bartholin glands are small structures located in a woman's vulva. They secrete fluid that acts as a lubricant during sexual activity. The most common problems with Bartholin glands are cysts and abscesses. If these are symptomatic, they usually are treated with drainage, performed by a woman's health specialist, usually in the office.

Bartholin glands normally get smaller after menopause. I could not find any reports of, nor any reason why, turmeric might make a Bartholin cyst abscess more likely (turmeric can act as an anti-inflammatory, and appears to have some anti-estrogen activity, so I wouldn't expect it to cause problems). The one concern I have is that although cancer of the Bartholin gland is very rare (0.001 percent of cancers in women), it can happen. I would suggest that you get an evaluation.

DEAR DR. ROACH: My friend refuses to get a flu shot because he says it has mercury in it, which builds up in the body. Is this true? — M.A.S.

ANSWER: Some flu vaccines do contain a preservative, when they come in a multidose vial. This is to prevent contamination of the vaccine, something that can lead to serious infection. The preservative, thimerosal, has a small amount of ethyl mercury, which the body is, in fact, able to get rid of and which does not build up in the body the way methyl mercury can (that's the kind that is consumed in some fish, such as tuna). Neither of these is elemental mercury (the kind in a thermometer), which can be dangerous when its fumes are inhaled.

The chemistry is important to understand. For example, cobalt metal can cause nerve and heart damage, but cyanocobalamin is an essential cobalt-containing vitamin, commonly known as B-12. There is no reason to be concerned about the tiny dose of thimerosal in a vaccine, but people can get a thimerosal-free single-dose vaccine as a prefilled syringe or vial.

BIBLE

"The Lord is good, a stronghold in the day of trouble; and he knoweth them that trust in him."
— Nahum 1:7

Don't despair if it has been one of those days filled with trouble. The Lord is good and He is able to meet your need. Take time to tell Him all about it.

HOROSCOPE

WE want to be close to one another, but how close? The average distance kept between people in a public social setting varies by culture. The emotional distance varies with personal preference. With the change of Venus imminent, we may fumble the transition, overstepping, bumping into one another, fleeing. Don't worry; it will resolve.
ARIES (March 21-April 19). Your goal really is to find the solutions that are best for everyone, and that's what you'll do — just as soon as people understand that your aim is true. Trust and rapport are built slowly. Put the other person first.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You've been compromising quite a lot lately, mostly effectively, causing satisfaction throughout the group. This is excellent for your social life, but it's time to do something just for you, exactly the way you like it.
GEMINI (May 21-June 21). The feeling that you'd like to escape will likely come when circumstances seem either too boring or too exciting. So go. If you can't remove yourself physically, a book or movie will do the trick.
CANCER (June 22-July 22). There will be no lone geniuses today. Any greatness that happens will be a group effort. It doesn't even have to be a particularly good group to bring out your best today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You want to be seen in a certain way. Making that happen will be grueling, tedious, expensive and thankless work. So think about whether the result is really worth going all in, because that's what it will take.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You don't have to like what you're asked to do to approach the request with good cheer. Your attitude will be what helps you rise to a new level of respect and prominence.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You'll have your reasons for doing more today. You're not trying to impress anyone. This is about finding out what your limits really are. So go on and push yourself into uncomfortable (but not painful) territory.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You'll switch the channel in your mind from the doubt and worry network to the action channel.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You think you're arguing about the truth, but if you're like most people, you aren't. The truth is inarguable.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Oscar Wilde once put it like this: "The world was my oyster, but I used the wrong fork!" Ignore social formalities at your own peril. If you don't know then read, ask or observe until you pick up on what you're supposed to do.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). When people want what you have, it's both flattering and frustrating. They often act as if you got there by luck. Outsiders just don't realize the effort that went behind all this. It will be your job to enlighten.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Think it over; write about it; talk about it with a trusted friend. Self-reflection will help you uncover your motivation for upholding bad habits.
TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 29). Happiness is not the goal. To change something, help someone, make a lasting impression on the world and set up a future you can be proud of — that's the goal. Happiness will be a byproduct of your efforts. The more you tolerate, the richer you'll be. Leo and Pisces adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 8, 40, 11, 19 and 32.

Trump gets blowback for his 'Pocahontas' jab at Navajo event

By FELICIA FONSECA and LAURIE KELLMAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. — Families of Native American war veterans and politicians of both major parties are criticizing President Donald Trump for using a White House event honoring Navajo Code Talkers to take a political jab at a Democratic senator he has nicknamed "Pocahontas."

The Republican president on Monday turned to a nickname he often deployed for Massachusetts Sen. Elizabeth Warren during the 2016 presidential campaign to mock her claims about being part Native American. He told the three Navajo Code Talkers on stage that he had affection for them that he doesn't have for her.

"It was uncalled for," said Marty Thompson, whose great-uncle was a Navajo Code Talker. "He can say what he wants when he's out doing his presidential business among his people, but when it comes to honoring veterans or any kind of people, he needs to grow up and quit saying things like that."

Pocahontas is a well-known historical figure who bridged her own Pamunkey Tribe in present-day Virginia with the British in the 1600s. But the National Congress of American Indians says Trump wrongly has flipped the name into a derogatory term, and the comment drew swift criticism from American Indians and politicians.

"Our nation owes a debt of gratitude to the Navajo Code Talkers, whose bravery, skill & tenacity helped secure our decisive victory over tyranny & oppression during WWII," Arizona Republican Sen. John McCain, a decorated veteran of the Vietnam War, tweeted Tuesday. "Politicizing these genuine American heroes is an insult to their sacrifice."

Warren said Trump's repeated references to her as "Pocahontas" will not keep her from speaking out.

"Now he seems to think that that's somehow going to shut me up, maybe keep me from talking about the consumer agency today," Warren said Tuesday after a protest outside the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau. "Or keep me from talking about the tax bill that would favor giant corporations instead of working families."

"He's wrong. It's not going to make any difference," Warren said.

All he "had to do was make it through the ceremony," she said. "But that wasn't possible for Donald Trump. He had to throw in a racial slur."

White House spokesperson Sarah Huckabee Sanders, asked Monday about criticism of Trump's remarks, said a racial slur "was certainly not the president's intent."

Trump made the comment as he stood near a portrait of President Andrew Jackson, which he hung in the Oval Office in January. Trump admires Jackson's populism. But Jackson is an unpopular figure in Indian Country because he oversaw the forced removal of American Indians from their southern homelands.

The Navajo Nation suggested Trump's remark was an example of "cultural insensitivity," and they resolved to stay out of the "ongoing feud between the senator and President Trump."

"All tribal nations still battle insensitive references to our people. The prejudice that Native American people face is an unfortunate historical legacy," Navajo Nation President Russell Begaye said in a statement.

Still, Begaye and relatives of Navajo Code Talkers said they're honored the story of the men recruited from the vast Southwest reservation to become Marines could be told on a national stage. Peter MacDonald, a former Navajo chairman and trained Code Talker, who stood beside Trump, also took the opportunity to ask for support for a Navajo Code Talker museum. Trump obliged.

Michael Smith, a Marine whose father was a Code Talker, said most of the Code Talkers would be skeptical about going to the White House because it could be construed to mean they support a political cause.

"So, why did they go? Why were they there? He's putting them in the Oval Office to say 'You did a good job, and say hi to Pocahontas?'" Smith said. "They should be taken care of as heroes, not as pawns."

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Andrei Vasilevskiy made 34 saves in his second shutout this season, and the Tampa Bay Lightning ended a two-game skid with a 2-0 victory over the Buffalo Sabres on Tuesday night.

Defenseman Dan Girardi and rookie Mikhail Sergachev had goals for the Lightning in the third of a four-game trip. Tampa Bay is off to the best start in franchise history (17-5-2) but had lost consecutive games for the first time this season.

Vasilevskiy leads the NHL with 16 wins and has six career shutouts in 101 starts.

Robin Lehner stopped 24 shots for the Sabres, who were held scoreless for the second straight game and have lost nine of 10.

Sergachev scored his sixth goal of the year on a power play to give the Lightning a 1-0 lead late in the first period. Tampa Bay has scored a power-play goal in nine of its last 10 games and leads the NHL in conversion rate.

Girardi got his first goal of the season midway through the second period. Girardi's slap shot from the top of the right circle deflected in off Buffalo's Marco Scandella.

Rosier not Miami's typical title QB

MONICA HERNDON/TAMPA BAY TIMES

Miami quarterback Malik Rosier (12) celebrates with teammates after the Hurricanes won in the closing seconds at Florida State. Rosier doesn't conjure thoughts of past Miami quarterbacks who put the Hurricanes in title contention while earning a host of accolades.

When Miami contends for championships, the Hurricanes historically have elite quarterbacks.

Craig Erickson, Gino Torretta and Ken Dorsey won major awards during their careers. Bernie Kosar and Steve Walsh both finished

And then there's Malik Rosier

The 6-foot-1, 216-pound redshirt junior isn't among the top 15 nationally in any major categories.

It doesn't matter. He has already led his No. 7 'Canes to their first ACC Coastal Division title. If Rosier can rebound from last week's rough outing at Pitt, UM has a chance at upsetting No. 1 Clemson in Saturday's ACC title game and earning its first trip to the College Football Playoff.

PISCATAWAY, N.J. — CJ Walker scored 24 points and Phil Cofer added 19 to lead unbeaten Florida State past Rutgers 78-73 on Tuesday night in the ACC/Big 10 Challenge.

Walker was 6 of 11 from the floor and made 10 of 11 free throws. Cofer was 7-of-11 shooting and made four 3-pointers. Ike Obiagu grabbed 10 rebounds and chipped in five points for Florida State, which is 6-0 for the first time since the 2008-09 season.

Eugene Omoruyi scored 22 points to lead Rutgers (6-1). Corey Sanders added 20 points, and Deshawn Freeman followed up his first double-double of the season with 15 points and 16 rebounds. Freeman energized the crowd when he was fouled by Mfiondu Kabengele, raising his arms several times to get the crowd to its feet with 14:35 remaining. Rutgers went on to take a 44-41 lead after Omoruyi converted the 3-point play and Freeman made a pair of free throws.

Walker then scored the next 11 points for the Seminoles, hitting 5 of 7 from the line and a pair of 3-pointers. Trent Forrest made a layup and Florida State led 53-45 with 12:28 to play.

The Scarlet Knights pulled to 69-66 after Omoruyi's layup with 1:56 to go, but they didn't get closer.

NO. 2 KANSAS 96, TOLEDO 58:

In Lawrence, Kan., Devonte Graham scored a career-high 35 points, Malik Newman added 17 and the Jayhawks extended their best start in seven years.

Svi Mykhailiuk hit five 3-pointers and added 15 points for Kansas (6-0), which built a 59-30 lead by halftime and pushed the advantage to more than 50 points before coasting down the stretch.

The Jayhawks were 12 of 20 from beyond the arc and shot 59 percent from the field, though emptying the bench early kept them from hitting the 100-point mark for the third consecutive game. They also forced 20 turnovers by a Toledo team that had committed 25 total over its last three games.

Tre'Shaun Fletcher and Nate Navigato scored 12 points apiece to lead the Rockets (3-3), who have lost three straight this season and 12 straight against ranked teams.

NO. 21 XAVIER 76, NO. 16 BAYLOR:

In Cincinnati, Ohio, J.P. Macura scored 15 of his 19 points in the first half as the Musketeers surged ahead to stay to the the Bears their first loss of the season.

Xavier (6-1) controlled the boards and put together decisive runs in each half. The Musketeers never trailed after an opening 21-8 spurt.

Kaiser Gates also had 19 points for Xavier, including a 3-pointer that blunted the Bears' final comeback attempt. The Musketeers now have a road win at Wisconsin and a home win over Baylor, both by double digits.

Terry Maston led the Bears (5-1) with 15 points, all in the first half. Manu Lecomte went 4 of 13 from the field for 11 points after coming in with a 19-point average.

NO. 8 WICHITA ST. 112, SAVANNAH ST. 66: In Wichita, Kan., Samajae Haynes-Jones scored a season-high 31 points to lead the Shockers rout. Five other Shockers (5-1) scored in double figures against the fast-paced Tigers (2-6). Leading scorer Landry Shamet did not play in the second half after re-injuring his right ankle.

Darral Willis had 14 points and 12 rebounds for Wichita State, while Rashard Kelly had 12 points and 10 rebounds. Austin Reaves scored 12 for the Shockers, and Conner Frankamp and Rauno Nurger added 10 each.

Savannah State was led by Alante Fenner's 18 points.

NBA: RoundupLove scores 38, LeBron ejected as Cavs beat Heat

Associated Press

Kevin Love scored 32 of his 38 points in the first half, LeBron James was ejected for the first time in his career and the Cleveland Cavaliers extended their longest winning streak since 2015 to nine games by downing the Miami Heat 108-97 on Tuesday night.

Love had his way with every defender Miami put on him, finishing 10 of 16 from the field and 14 of 17 on free throws. He scored 22 in the first quarter and the Cavs opened a 27-point lead before halftime. James added 21 points before he was slapped with two technical fouls by referee Ken Fitzgerald and tossed with 1:59 left in the third quarter and the Cavs leading by 23. It was the first time James was thrown out in 1,082 career games.

Dwyane Wade added 17 points for Cleveland, which has shaken off a slow start and is again playing like the team to beat in the Eastern Conference.

Dion Waiters scored 21 and Bam Adebayo had 19 for the Heat, who had won three in a row. Goran Dragic finished with just seven points — 12 below his team-leading scoring average. With the Cavs leading 93-70, James drove to the basket and missed a layup while getting bumped by James Johnson and Waiters.

WIZARDS 92, TIMBERWOLVES 89:

Otto Porter Jr. hit a 22-foot jumper with 25 seconds remaining to lift the Washington Wizards to a 92-89 victory over the Minnesota Timberwolves on Tuesday night in Minneapolis. Washington trailed for nearly the entire fourth quarter. After Porter's jumper, Minnesota had two shots at the other end but couldn't convert.

The Wizards got the ball back with 4.2 seconds remaining when the ball went out of bounds off Timberwolves forward Taj Gibson. Officials originally ruled that Minnesota maintained possession, but a review overturned the call and gave the ball to Washington.

Porter led Washington with 22 points, and Kelly Oubre had 16. Jodie Meeks and Mike Scott each scored 12 points. Karl-Anthony Towns had 20 points and 15 rebounds for Minnesota for his league-leading 18th double-double. Jimmy Butler had 17 points and 10 rebounds, and Gibson finished with 16 points and 11 boards.

SUNS 104, BULLS 99: Devin Booker scored 33 points, and the Phoenix Suns held off the Chicago Bulls for a 104-99 win on Tuesday night in Chicago. Booker looked just fine after sitting out a game because of inflammation in his right big toe, nailing five 3-pointers and grabbing nine rebounds. T.J. Warren scored 25 for Phoenix, and Alex Len tied a career high with 18 rebounds. The Suns dominated on the glass 57-41 while snapping a three-game losing streak. The rebuilding Bulls are a league-worst 3-16 after dropping their sixth straight.

Calvin de Haan and Jordan Eberle scored goals one minute apart in the first period to spark the New York Islanders to a 5-2 win over the Vancouver Canucks. Eberle now has goals in three straight games and recorded his 400th NHL point as New York improved to 15-7-2 overall and 8-0-2 at Barclays Center. The Islanders are the only team in the league not have lost a game in regulation on home ice this season.

SHARKS 3, FLYERS 1:

Joe Thornton scored the go-ahead goal late in the first period and the San Jose Sharks extended the Philadelphia Flyers' longest losing streak in nearly 10 years to nine games with a victory. Chris Tierney and Marc-Edouard Vlasic also scored and Logan Couture had two assists for the Sharks, who kicked off a four-game trip with their second straight win. Claude Giroux scored 48 seconds in before the Flyers were blanked the rest of the way by backup Aaron Dell, who made 22 saves.

PANTHERS 5, RANGERS 4:

Denis Malgin scored with 1:09 left and the Florida Panthers recovered after giving up two three-goal leads to beat the New York Rangers. Jonathan Huberdeau had a goal and an assist, and Aleksander Barkov, Jamie McGinn and Micheal Haley also scored for Florida. James Reimer finished with 33 saves. On the winning goal, Malgin fired a shot from the inside edge of the left circle to beat Rangers goalie Ondrej Pavelec for his first of the season.

BLUE JACKETS 3, HURRICANES 2, SO:

Cam Atkinson and Artemi Panarin scored in the shootout to give the Columbus Blue Jackets a win over the Carolina Hurricanes. Zach Werenski had a goal and an assist, and Josh Anderson also scored for the Blue Jackets, who won their first game after their season-best six-game winning streak ended. Columbus has won five in a row at home. Joonas Korpisalo, making a rare start in place of Sergei Bobrovsky, made 29 saves in regulation and overtime.

KINGS 4, RED WINGS 1:

Dustin Brown and Anze Kopitar scored 2:10 apart late in the second period to put the Los Angeles Kings ahead and they went on to beat the Detroit Red Wings. Jonathan Quick made 23 saves, including some spectacular stops in the second period that kept the Kings within a goal. His teammates took advantage. After Brown and Kopitar puts the Kings ahead, they pulled away in the third.

PREDATORS 3, BLACKHAWKS 2:

Pekka Rinne made 37 saves to lead the Nashville Predators to a win over the Chicago Blackhawks. Filip Forsberg, Austin Watson and Roman Josi scored goals for the Predators, who have won 10 of 12. Tommy Wingels and Lance Bouma had the goals for Chicago, which had its two-game winning streak snapped. With Nashville clinging to a one-goal lead late in the third, Rinne made his best save of the night when he denied Nick Schmaltz's backhand from just outside the crease on a shorthanded breakaway.

Manning benched for Raiders

Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Eli Manning is not going to be the starting quarterback for the New York Giants for the first time in more than 13 years.

And yes, he is not happy about it and hurt. Tears welled in his eyes talking to reporters and his chin quivered when asked about how much this hurt.

The Giants announced on Tuesday that Geno Smith will start in place of Manning when the Giants (2-9) face the Raiders in Oakland on Sunday.

Coach Ben McAdoo gave the 36-year-old Manning the option of starting to keep his streak of 210 consecutive starts alive, but the two-time Super Bowl MVP didn't want any part of that.

"You start knowing you're going to come out of the game to keep a streak alive, maybe, that's not what it is about," Manning said.

"It's not a preseason game where you're going to start to the half, the next week a quarter, a series, that's not fair. That's not fair to me, not fair to Geno, not how you play. You play to win. When you are named the starting quarterback you think it's your job to go win the football game.

"If you are going to play a little bit, I didn't think it was the right way to play," said Manning, who become the Giants starting quarterback 10 games into his rookie season in 2004, which was about a month or so before Eagles quarterback Carson Wentz turned 12 years old.

Manning's face and eyes got redder the more he talked, adding it's been a hard day for him and he needs time to figure it out. He then took his backpack and left the locker room.

BUCS CUT STOCKER: Tight end Luke Stocker, whose seven-year run with Tampa Bay was the third-longest on the current roster, was waived on Tuesday as the team takes a look at younger players in the final five games of the season. Stocker, 29, had been inactive the last two games, and had just three catches for 18 yards and a touchdown this season. The Bucs also waived veteran DE Darryl Tapp, promoting rookie DE Pat O'Connor and second-year TE Alan Cross from the practice squad to take their place on the roster.

Among the current Bucs, only OT Demar Dotson

(2009) and DT Gerald McCoy (2010) have been with Tampa Bay longer than Stocker, a fourth-round pick out of Tennessee in 2011. He finishes his Bucs tenure with 52 catches for 400 yards and three touchdowns.

MCFADDEN RETIRES: Running back Darren McFadden has announced his retirement two days after his release by the Dallas Cowboys. McFadden posted on Twitter on Tuesday that he made the decision "not with sadness or without further opportunity, but with a couple of days to reflect on how I feel and where I am at this stage in life."

The 30-year-old McFadden, who was in his 10th season, was an afterthought for the Cowboys even after 2016 NFL rushing leader Ezekiel Elliott started his six-game suspension over alleged domestic violence. McFadden was the fourth overall pick by Oakland in 2008 out of Arkansas.

Justin Thomas holds the trophy after winning the FedEx Cup after the Tour Championship golf tournament at East Lake Golf Club in Atlanta.

Thomas forgets FedEx payoff

By DOUG FERGUSON
Associated Press

NASSAU, Bahamas — Justin Thomas walked away with the richest payoff in golf when he was runner-up at the Tour Championship and captured the FedEx Cup. With the $10 million bonus, he made $10,945,000 that day.

And then he forgot all about it.

Thomas said he was at the Presidents Cup the following week when Kevin Chappell said to him, "You get it yet?"

Thomas didn't know what he was talking about.

"He said, 'Did you get the bonus?' I never even thought about it," Thomas said. "I asked my dad to look and was like, 'Oh, there it is.'"

What does a 24-year-old do with such a bonus?

"I maybe got a little nicer bottle of wine at dinner a couple of times," Thomas said.

MILESTONE FOR MICKELSON: Phil Mickelson was 23 and finishing up his first full year as a professional when he went to Japan for a pair of tournaments to end the 1993 season. He finished eighth in the Dunlop Phoenix and then was runner-up to Tom Lehman in the Casio World

Open. That was enough for Mickelson to move into the top 50 in the world ranking for the first time. And he never left.

This week marks 24 full years that Mickelson has been among the top 50 in the world. He is the only player to achieve that. Mickelson is No. 35 this week and will not play again until the third week of January at the Career-Builder Challenge. Mickelson has never come close to falling out of the top 50 all these years. He ended 2015 at No. 34, slipped to No. 39 without playing the first few weeks, then tied for third in the California desert and three weeks later was runner-up at Pebble Beach.

Still eluding Lefty: He has never reached No. 1.

CHEAP LESSONS: Rickie Fowler is offering golf lessons for under $10. Fowler is working with Los Angeles-based Success Co. to launch a virtual reality coaching platform. Fowler is the first ambassador and already has three lessons on the site, along with two bonus videos in 2-D. "It's pretty cool," Fowler said. "With the virtual reality, I could be standing in a bunker and it feels like you're standing right next to me." Fowler plans to cover every aspect of the swing. The lessons are geared toward golfers from age 12 to 70 and feature simple, step-by-step tips. The cost to download each is between $4.99 and $6.99.

"Rickie was the only golfer we wanted to target for Success Series and that's because of who he is on and off the course," said Anthony Puntoriero, the CEO of Success Co. "Rickie's brand and character has defined the new era of golfer."

DIVOTS: Matt Kuchar and Dustin Johnson will be among the Americans who play in the Abu Dhabi HSBC Championship next month. Johnson was runner-up last year to Tommy Fleetwood. Also playing Abu Dhabi are Paul Casey, Justin Rose, Rory McIlroy and Henrik Stenson. ... Justin Thomas has a special trophy room in his house. The top shelf features the Wanamaker Trophy (PGA Championship), the FedEx Cup and his Jack Nicklaus Award bronze as the PGA Tour player of the year. ... Johnson has been working with a 64-degree wedge that he has in the bag this week at the Hero World Challenge.

STAT OF THE WEEK: From Kapalua in January through Sea Island in November, the PGA Tour had 120 players who shot all four rounds in the 60s without winning.

WOODS

that Woods is in a much better spot than when he returned a year ago in the Bahamas. According to those who played with him in recent weeks, his swing looks faster and more fluid, and Woods appears to be happy and healthy.

Woods reached a low point on Memorial Day when he was arrested in the middle of the night after Florida police found his car parked awkwardly on the side of the road about 15 miles from his home, with Woods asleep behind the wheel, the engine running and a blinker on.

Toxicology reports revealed that Woods had two painkillers (Vicodin and Dilaudid), a sleep drug (Ambien), an anti-anxiety drug (Xanax) and the active ingredient for marijuana in his system. He went through an in-patient treatment program to deal with prescription medication, and last month pleaded guilty to a reckless driving charge that allowed him to avoid jail time.

"I've come out the other side and I feel fantastic," Woods said. "A lot of friends have helped me. I didn't realize how bad my back was. Now that I'm feeling the way I'm feeling, it's just hard to imagine that I was living the way I was living with my foot not working, my leg not working and then the hours of not being able to sleep at all because of the pain."

Woods attributed the Memorial Day arrest to "trying to go away from the pain."

"I was trying to sleep, which I hadn't done in a very long time because of the things I've been dealing with," he said. "So as my back improved, I've been able to start sleeping again because I don't have the nerve pain going down my leg. I don't have my leg twitching all over the place. I don't have these issues anymore."

Woods hasn't won since the 2013 Bridgestone Invitational, his 79th title on the PGA Tour that leaves him three short of tying Sam Snead's record. That might have been the last time he had reasonable health.

There were small signs of back pain a week later at the PGA Championship, and what followed were three surgeries and a stop-and-start schedule. Woods had his first back surgery, a micro-discectomy, a week before the 2014 Masters. Since then, there have been four occasions where he returned either from back surgery or from taking time off to let his injuries heal.

The fourth surgery was to fuse two discs in his lower back. That was more about the quality of life than trying to win a golf tournament. The fact that Woods is even playing his holiday exhibition just over seven months after surgery, and six months after that embarrassing arrest, feels like a bonus.

"I missed playing golf for fun," Woods said. "I hadn't done that in two years. I played nine holes here and 18 holes here, and then I have to take three days off because my back was killing me."

moves. The person said Mullen parted ways with Shannon, offensive coordinator Doug Nussmeier, defensive backs coach Corey Bell, receivers coach Kerry Dixon, tight ends coach Greg Nord and defensive assistant Robb Akey.

Shannon had two years remaining on his contract that paid him $890,000 annually. So the Gators will end up with four head coaches on the payroll in the future: Shannon, who was the former interim coach, as well as Mullen, Jim McElwain and Will Muschamp.

Full details of Mullen's contract and McElwain's separation agreement were released Tuesday.

McElwain will get a $7.5 million buyout spread across six payments between this week and 2021.

He will receive the first installment, a $3.75 million "transition payment," Friday.

His original buyout would have been a little more than $12.5 million, an amount the team and coach negotiated after he failed to produce evidence of alleged death threats in late October.

Both McElwain and Florida also agreed not to disparage each other verbally or in writing.

Mullen signed a six-year, $36.618 million contract Monday to replace McElwain. Mullen can earn up to $925,000 more in bonuses and has a $5 million pool to pay assistants, up about $500,000 from McElwain's final year.

The new coach announced Tuesday the hiring of two of his long-time assistants, Billy Gonzales and John Hevesy.

Gonzales and Hevesy each spent at least 10 years working with Mullen, including several years in Gainesville.

Gonzales just finished his fifth season on Mullen's staff at Mississippi State and was in charge of receivers. Coming off his ninth season at Mississippi State, Hevesy spent the past three seasons as the Bulldogs' co-offensive coordinator.

Offensive line coach Brad Davis, defensive line coach Chris Rumph, running backs coach Ja'Juan Seider and linebackers coach Tim Skipper remain on Florida's staff, at least for now. They are expected to be on the road recruiting this week.

ACC honors Richt

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Miami coach Mark Richt has been voted the Atlantic Coast Conference coach of the year.

Richt received 41 of a possible 59 votes from a panel that included Atlantic Coast Sports Media Association members and the league's 14 head coaches. Clemson's Dabo Swinney was second with 10. Richt led the Hurricanes (10-1, 7-1) to their first Coastal Division title and a berth in this week's ACC championship game.

Also Tuesday, the league announced that Boston College running back A.J. Dillon and Virginia safety Brenton Nelson were voted the offensive and defensive rookies of the year, respectively. Dillon ran for 1,432 yards — second most among freshmen in league history.

make big plays at the big moments," coach Mark Richt said, "and he's done it over and over."

Richt didn't know if that was possible at the start of the season, when he was weighing replacements for career leading passer Brad Kaaya.

Rosier was the most experienced returning quarterback, but he faced stiff challenges from Evan Shirreffs, heralded freshman N'Kosi Perry and Jefferson High alumnus Cade Weldon.

"He earned it through competition," Richt said, "and I thought he really rose to the occasion."

He kept rising to it, after UM adjusted its offense to fit his strengths. While Kaaya was a more traditional drop-back passer, Rosier is a much better runner, so Miami opened its offense up by putting Rosier in the shotgun. The 'Canes called more zone-read options and plays that give Rosier the freedom to find an open receiver or tuck it and run. "That has been the biggest key," Rosier said. The numbers haven't been flashy. Rosier has completed only 55.3 percent of his passes (96th nationally), and his rating (138.69) ranks 45th. But it's working. His 18 touchdown passes and 292 yards of total offense per game both rank in the top 20. Defenses must respect his ability to scramble or draw, and that opens up some holes to attack with his arm.

More importantly, Rosier keeps making the big plays that have given UM its most successful season since 2003.

At Florida State, he converted two third-and-long passes before throwing a 23-yard touchdown with six seconds left to secure UM's first win in the rivalry since 2009.

Against Georgia Tech, he led the game-winning 85-yard drive by completing 7 of his 10 passes, including a miraculous fourth-and-10 conversion.

Against Virginia, he twice helped UM rally from 14-point deficits to keep its playoff hopes alive. Now Rosier faces a different challenge: bouncing back after things aren't so rosy.

He was a sloppy 15-of-34 passing and was pulled in the second half of Friday's 24-14 defeat at Pitt — the first loss of his career as a starter.

"The big thing was, we started off slow," Rosier said. "A lot of it had to do with me, my body language."

The early returns suggest that Rosier has fixed those problems. He's pushing the tempo in practice while trying to improve his accuracy. Rosier said his confidence remains high, despite his brief benching in the regular-season finale of what had been a perfect season. A text Saturday from Richt helped.

"Don't worry about the game," Richt said. "Let it go."

Whether Rosier can do that will help determine whether his name will be next in Miami's historic line of quarterbacks.

No. 1 Clemson has big-game experience edge

By PETE IACOBELLI

CLEMSON, S.C. — If you're looking for a team with big-game experience, Clemson is one of them.

The top-ranked Tigers (11-1, No. 3 College Football Playoff) are 39-3, including 13-1 against ranked opponents the past three seasons. Next up is No. 7 Miami (10-1, No. 2 CFP) for the Atlantic Coast Conference Championship and a spot in the national title playoff chase on the line.

Clemson coach Dabo Swinney is grateful his players understand what it takes to succeed in the biggest games. He believes, though, that this year's challenges have molded the current team more than past triumphs.

"We've had guys that have started in an ACC championship game and I think that's important," Swinney said Tuesday. "But I think it's more what their experience is with this team this year."

And they've been plenty of marquee games this season to toughen most of the newcomers, particularly on offense, with the Tigers on this latest run.

Clemson had a September that forged their championship dreams, defeating Clemson quarterback Kelly Bryant (2) and teammate Maverick Morris (69) celebrate against South Carolina on Saturday in Columbia, S.C.

No. 13 Auburn (14-6), No. 14 Louisville (47-21) and No. 12 Virginia Tech (31-17), the latter two on the road. "That's where this team's confidence comes from," Swinney said.

Still, players who gone through it know how to prepare and compete when the stakes are the highest, linebacker Dorian O'Daniel said.

"As far as been there, done that, we've been there and we know what it takes," he said.

That was particularly critical for a team that lost 11 starters from its national title season in 2016, seven of those coming on offense and including first-round NFL draft picks in quarterback Deshaun Watson and receiver Mike Williams.

Slowly, the team gelled into a unit that defied expectations, Swinney said. A couple of the newcomers earned spots on all-ACC teams: Center Justin Falcinelli, replacing mainstay Jay Guillermo this fall, was picked first team while freshman tailback Travis Etienne, who leads Clemson 720 yards and 12 touchdowns, made the third team.

The biggest question about Clemson centered on quarterback Kelly Bryant, who saw limited time the last two seasons as backup to Watson and second-string Nick Schuessler. Bryant struggled last spring at times in his earliest attempts to adjust to being the guy, Swinney said.

Once fall camp came around, there was no doubt that Bryant would take over the offense. He's completed 66 percent of his throws for 2,426 yards, 12 touchdowns and just six interceptions. Bryant's also rushed for 639 yards and 10 TDs.

Bryant felt his belief in his ability to lead the Tigers grew after each successful performance.

"I'm feeling a confidence there and I'm feeling confident on this team," Bryant said. "The coaches believed in me as the season progressed to get the job done."

Miami coach Mark Richt accepts that Clemson has the clear edge in recent post-season experience. He believes, however, the Hurricanes have had several crucial games this season that have given them moxie enough to compete with the defending national champs.

Richt said the Hurricanes' 41-8 home win over Notre Dame was a raucous atmosphere that his team handled well.

"That was about as big as it gets," Richt said. "It was good to have that experience."

Clemson cornerback Ryan Carter is happy for any edge the Tigers might bring to the title game — and experience is a major one. Many first-timers might get overwhelmed with the atmosphere and environment on Saturday night. Clemson will not.

"That's big for us," Carter said.

Nebraska fans prep for Frost return

From AP Reports

OMAHA, Neb. — Nebraska fans are gearing up for what to them seems the imminent arrival of native son Scott Frost as the Cornhuskers' new football coach.

The message board outside the Husker Hounds novelty store flashes "Come Home Scott Frost," and inside you can buy T-shirts reading "Nebraska Frost Advisory, Restore Glory" and, in a nod to the coming "Star Wars" movie, "May The Frost Be With You."

Bartenders around town are setting drinks on "Hire Scott Frost Now!" coasters, and Facebook pages in support of Frost have popped up.

Frost, whose Central Florida Knights are unbeaten and hosting Memphis in the American Athletic Conference championship game this week, has been the topic du jour every day for a month on the all-sports radio stations in Omaha and Lincoln. Even hosts on Omaha's 50,000-watt news talk station have Frost mania.

"I would compare it to a little kid on Christmas Eve who knows what he's getting. You can see the package, can see the wrapping paper on it, you know what it is, but you get so anxious to open it," said Joe Quinn, co-host of the afternoon show on Omaha's 590 ESPN, the flagship station for the Husker Sports Network. "You just beg your mom or dad. I want to open it. I know what it is. I just want to see it."

TENNESSEE: Numerous media outlets in Tennessee and Oklahoma have reported that the Volunteers have held discussions with Oklahoma State head coach Mike Gundy.

ARIZONA STATE: ESPN analyst and former New York Jets head coach Herm Edwards will meet with the Sun Devils on Thursday, the network reported Wednesday night. Edwards last coached in 2008.

PLAYOFF

slipped after taking its first loss of the season last week from No. 2 to seventh, just ahead of Ohio State at eighth.

Each of the top four teams plays a conference title game this Saturday against another top-10 team, creating potential play-in playoff games. Clemson faces Miami in the Atlantic Coast Conference championship; Auburn and Georgia play for the Southeastern Conference title; Wisconsin faces Ohio State for the Big Ten title; and Oklahoma faces No. 10 TCU for the Big 12 title.

If the top four win out, the semifinals likely would fall into place, Clemson would face Wisconsin in the Sugar Bowl semifinal on New Year's Day.

Hall of Famer Bud Moore dies at 92

DAYTONA BEACH — NASCAR Hall of Famer Bud Moore, a World War II veteran awarded five Purple Hearts and two Bronze Stars, has died. He was 92.

NASCAR announced the death of Moore, born Walter Moore Jr., on Tuesday. No details were given, but Moore lived in Spartanburg, South Carolina.

Moore won the NASCAR title in 1957 as crew chief for Buck Baker and car owner titles in 1962 and 1963 with Joe Weatherly. He was the oldest living member of the NASCAR Hall of Fame. He was inducted in 2011.

"Bud left an indelible mark on NASCAR. We are humbled that he considers his crowning achievement as his induction in the second class of the NASCAR Hall of Fame, one of our first 10 inductees," said Winston Kelley, the hall's executive director.

"Through all his professional racing success, Bud's most significant contribution was to his country. While we have lost one of NASCAR's and the United States' true pioneers and heroes, Bud's legacy and memory will always be remembered, preserved, celebrated and cherished."

Moore joined the military in 1943 as an 18-year-old machine gunner. He was assigned to the 90th Infantry Division, which landed on Utah Beach in France on D-Day. His unit was attached to General George W. Patton's "Third Army," which pushed to liberate Europe.

Wrestler says managers told him to throw match

An Iranian wrestler said his managers told him to intentionally lose to a Russian competitor to avoid facing an Israeli wrestler in the next round.

Ali Reza Karimi told the semi-official ISNA news agency late on Monday that only one minute before the end of a Sunday round of the U-23 World Championship in Poland his coaches told him to throw the match to avoid facing an Israeli wrestler.

"In a moment, my whole world seemed to come to an end," he said.

Israel and Iran are bitter adversaries and Iranian athletes traditionally refrain from competing against Israelis. Iran's government usually rewards such behavior.

Trump renews complaint about kneeling players

President Donald Trump is renewing his complaints about NFL players who kneel during the national anthem.

Players have been kneeling to protest racism and police brutality, particularly toward people of color. Trump says the act is disrespectful and is hurting the game.

Auburn hoping this run not a one-year Cam-eo

BY JOHN ZENOR

AUBURN, Ala. — Gus Malzahn has been part of several successful seasons at Auburn, one built around an otherworldly player and another on the strength of two surreal plays.

The fourth-ranked Tigers have soared into title contention this time with a pair of wins over top-ranked teams and a steady grind. The effort has been good enough to earn a Round 2 with No. 6 Georgia (11-1, 7-1 Southeastern Conference) in Saturday's league championship game with a playoff berth on the line.

Maybe this time Auburn (10-2, 7-1) is built for more than a one-year run.

"We're in a real good spot, and the future's very bright," Malzahn, who is in his fifth season, said Tuesday. "We have the ability to sustain it. Now, we've got to do it. You've got to do all the stuff, but we're a lot more stable right now than any other time that I've been here at Auburn so I feel good about where we're at."

In 2010, Auburn was viewed by some as a one-man team with Heisman Trophy-winning quarterback Cam Newton. The 2013 team benefited from some huge breaks.

These Tigers don't want to hear any of that.

They have decisively beaten two teams in the past three games that sat atop the College Football Playoff rankings at the time. The Tigers routed Georgia 40-17 and beat Alabama 26-14 to earn the trip to Atlanta and stretch their winning streak to five games.

The last time Auburn had beaten either one of those teams was in 2013, Malzahn's debut season. That year, the Tigers topped Georgia on a deflected pass for a long, game-winning touchdown and the Crimson Tide on the now-famous Kick Six to end the game before advancing to play for the national title.

Newton led the 2010 Auburn team to a national championship with Malzahn as offensive coordinator. It was coach Gene Chizik's second season.

In between, Auburn has lost at least five games every season. But now, Malzahn has had more time to build a sturdy foundation with a succession of solid recruiting classes.

"We have a lot of great players, a lot of superstars on the offense and defense," Auburn safety Tray

Matthews said. "Back in the day, Cam Newton was just the biggest superstar of them all. Now, as far as our team goes, in every position, everybody's pretty good and real solid."

Matthews said. "Back in the day, Cam Newton was just the biggest superstar of them all. Now, as far as our team goes, in every position, everybody's pretty good and real solid."

"We have a lot of weapons on offense, we have a lot of key players on defense. Pretty much every player on our defense is a key player."

Matthews was one of the two Georgia defenders in coverage on Ricardo Louis on that tipped 73-yard completion four years ago. Now, the transfer is one of Auburn's team leaders.

This team has been led by strong defense and an offense with emerging stars at quarterback (Jarrett Stidham), tailback (Kerryon Johnson) and wide receiver (Ryan Davis). All three of have eligibility left after this season.

Johnson, though, is nursing a right shoulder injury sustained against Alabama. Asked if the SEC's leading rusher would practice Tuesday, Malzahn said, "We'll see."

"I think it's going to be a day-to-day deal," the coach said. "He was better yesterday than he was the day before so we'll see where that goes when he's ready to get out there."

worried about is his team suffering an emotional letdown after a big Iron Bowl win.

"This team is a lot more stable," Malzahn said. "You're definitely concerned but I feel great about it because when we got in Sunday team meeting, it was flip the page. I mean that was over with. We'll think about how fun that was after the season. They've got the goal — they put it up there the very first day of fall camp — we want to win the SEC championship and they weren't like shy about it trying to hide it from outside people."

"They're not going to be distracted, I'll tell you that."

This team has already rebounded from a punchless offensive performance against Clemson and a blown lead versus LSU. The team overcame the dismissals of receiver Kyle Davis and former starting quarterback Sean White, the departure of onetime top recruit Byron Cowart and injuries to players like tailback Kamryn Pettway and linebacker Tre Williams.

"Everybody doesn't know what we've gone through," Matthews said. "We've gone through hell and back. And now, it's just a beautiful thing we have going on here at Auburn."

Buckeyes O-line is proving its worth

Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Coach Urban Meyer has long said that any successful offense starts with a rugged offensive line. And it was the big guys up front who absorbed much of the blame last year when the Buckeyes' attack sputtered at times.

With improvement in the passing game and running backs playing more significant roles this season, Ohio State's O-line is getting its props. And that has generated confidence as the No. 8 Buckeyes (10-2, 8-1 Big Ten, CFP No. 8) prepare to face No. 3 Wisconsin (12-0, 9-0 Big Ten, CFP No. 4) and its stout defensive line on Saturday in the Big Ten Championship game.

The Badgers' three-man front anchors the best defense in the nation. Last season, Ohio State took the field with three new starters on the offensive line. Freshman left guard Michael Jordan often was overwhelmed, and right tackle Isaiah Prince struggled in pass protection.

But a year has made a huge difference.

Jamarco Jones, also a first-year starter in 2016, and Prince have been standouts at the tackle spots. Meyer said the line has been the team's most improved unit this season, even with backup Demetrius Knox taking over for injured starting right guard Branden Bowen. Prince was credited with six knockdowns against Michigan and was named one of the Buckeyes players of the game.

"We were blessed for three or four years having the best (offensive line) in the Big Ten, then we didn't and it was hard," Meyer said. "Right now, they are one of the strengths of our team."

A play with less than two minutes left and Ohio State clinging to a 24-20 lead over Michigan Saturday showed how the offensive line can impose its will.

On first down from the Michigan 25, Ohio State center Billy Price blasted out left and displaced Wolverine defensive tackle Maurice Hurst. Knox and Prince double-teamed another lineman, forcing him back into a safety, while tight end Marcus Baugh boxed out his man.
