

Lorida church still recovering after Irma

By JAY MEISEL
STAFF WRITER

LORIDA — When on Thursday, members of the The Church of God of Prophecy learned that two families living in apartments were virtually without food, church member Brenda Crews eagerly delivered food to grateful family members.

Crews delivered food from a church food pantry that contained rice and beans, bottled water, chocolate milk, pancake mix and various other items that were donated by the Convoy of Hope, a national Christian organization.

At the same time the church was helping those who needed help, the church itself was also in need of help. Two months ago, Hurricane Irma ripped through the church peeling off a rubber roof from part of the building, flooding the church and causing other damage.

“We lost the church, but we opened a food bank,” said Elmer Moore, a member.

It’s been only through the generosity of other churches that members have been able to hold services.

Camp Florida Resort honors WWII vets with Pearl Harbor Memorial

LAKE PLACID — Thursday, Dec. 7, marked the 76th anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor that launched America into World War II. Those same attacks killed 2,400 soldiers and wounded hundreds more.

Camp Florida Resort in Lake Placid continued its long standing tradition of honoring World War II and all other veterans by hosting its annual Pearl Harbor Memorial ceremony. The ceremony was held on Thursday morning at the park’s clubhouse.

Hundreds of park residents and their families attended the memorial service led by Ron Hazelton. The service honored four WWII veterans: Lucy Andersen, United States Navy; Dick Spencer, United States Navy; Daniel Kinder, U.S. Marines; and George White, United States Navy.

The park’s Honor Guard began the ceremony by presenting the Colors and leading the audience in the Pledge of Allegiance. A flag folding ceremony was performed while narrators explained the 13 folds that go into properly folding the American flag. The Missing Man Table ceremony explained what each item on the Prisoner of War/Missing in Action table stood for as loved ones await the return of their soldiers.

Several patriotic poems were read and songs of “Amazing Grace” and “I am

Sebring wants to make recycling more convenient

Council has no plans to go to curbside recycling

By JAY MEISEL
STAFF REPORT

SEBRING — The city of Sebring may eventually make recycling more convenient for its residents.

Earlier this week, a majority of the Council came to a consensus that the city should do something to facilitate recycling, short of offering residential curbside recycling.

Before Highlands County went to curbside recycling, it had multiple recycling bins where people could dispose of recyclable materials.

Now in Sebring the only remaining one is at Sebring City Hall, city officials say.

Councilman Charlie Lowrance said he would like the city to look at adding on its own two or three recycling bins that would make recycling more convenient for residents who don’t live near City Hall.

Councilman Thomas Dettman said he also believes that would be a good idea.

Currently, unincorporated Highlands County and the city of Avon Park have curbside recycling. But the city of Sebring and the town of Lake Placid do not.

County approves Sun ‘n Lake code changes

By PHIL ATTINGER
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — Changes that Sun ‘n Lake of Sebring supervisors approved in October have now, officially, been added to their building and minimum maintenance codes.

The Highlands County Board of County Commission voted fully in favor of the changes at Tuesday’s meeting. All changes to the special improvement district’s building and maintenance regulations must get approval from the county, since those codes are recorded in the Highlands County Code of Ordinances. In 2003, the county gave the district the power to enforce minimum maintenance standards.

Tanya Cannady, general manager for Sun ‘n Lake of Sebring, told commissioners the changes represent stricter enforcement for Sun ‘n Lake Code Enforcement officials.

Commissioner Ron Handley, liaison to Sun ‘n Lake, called it a necessary tightening.

“People have been letting their property go, so they need to be given some more teeth to police this,”

Man arrested on gun, drug charges

GRIFFIN

AVON PARK — The odor of marijuana from a car led to the arrest of a man on drug and gun charges, according to an arrest report released Wednesday.

Quincy Jermaine Griffin, 34, 14440 Hellenic Drive, Apt. P205, Tampa, was arrested by the Highlands County Sheriff's Office and charged with possession of a weapon or ammunition by a convicted felon, possession of 20 grams or less of marijuana and possession of drug equipment.

The arrest came as members of the Highlands County Sheriff's Office TAC Team patrolled an area in Avon Park that's considered a high crime area, the report said.

A deputy smelled the odor of marijuana coming from one vehicle and talked to the owner, the report said. After a K9 unit member detected the marijuana, deputies found a bag of marijuana and a handgun with a magazine carrying nine unspent bullets, the report said.

At the time of the search, Griffin was not legally allowed to have a gun because of felony convictions.

Florida Department of Corrections records online show that on June 16, 2010, he was charged with fleeing/eluding a law enforcement officer, child abuse and sale/delivery of cocaine.

He served time in prison from Jan. 13, 2011 to Aug. 22, 2012, the FDOC record states.

Two wrecks in morning fog, one with bus

By MARC VALERO and PHIL ATTINGER
STAFF WRITERS

SEBRING — Motorists had to contend with crashes in thick morning fog Thursday. One of them involved a Highlands County School bus.

Fortunately, neither of the accidents had injuries. In some places, motorists could not see major intersections until they were within a few car lengths of them, and still could not see traffic lights above them.

Florida Highway Patrol reported the first wreck occurred at 6:35 a.m. on County Road 731. A southbound 2011 school bus, driven by 60-year-old Sheryl L. McGee of Lake Placid, was turning right into a driveway on that road. Meanwhile, a 2009 Toyota Camry, driven by 21-year-old Rich J. Reichelt of Lake Placid, was northbound on CR 731.

The driver's side door mirror of the Camry collided with the left rear of the bus. There were 11 students on the bus at the time, but no one was injured, in either vehicle.

Both vehicles had moved from the road by the time FHP arrived, and no charges have been filed.

Another wreck between 7:45-8 a.m. appeared to involve a school bus at U.S. 27 and Golfview Road, but it turned out that a vehicle crossing the median caused that wreck, and the bus was not hit.

School Board of Highlands County Transportation Director David Solomon said the school bus, which had no passengers, was not involved in that accident. The bus was headed to pick up students going to Hill-Gustat Middle School, he said.

The bus was in the northbound lane on U.S. 27 when there was an accident in the southbound lanes of the highway, Solomon said. One car that was hit in the southbound lane crossed the median in front of the bus where it stopped. There was no contact with the bus.

Other buses were sent to pick up the Hill-Gustat Middle School students the bus was going to pick up that morning.

Sebring Police reported that it was a two-vehicle accident with no injuries.

The fog was pretty dense, Solomon noted.

Due to the fog, the buses were sent out early to wait near their first stop and then run on their scheduled time, he said.

"If it is real dense we make a decision to hold the early buses that go out because we have some buses that leave at 5:45 a.m.," Solomon said. "We hold them for about 30 minutes and once it clears out then we send them out."

The later buses run on schedule because there is enough daylight when they begin their routes, Solomon said.

When visibility is bad and falls under 200 feet, the bus drivers are instructed to find a safe location to park the bus and then inform transportation dispatch.

Man accused of threatening a witness

GOLDEN

AVON PARK — A man already arrested on a shooting charge now is accused of threatening a witness.

Isaiah Tyre Golden, 18, of 2849 W. Gaffney Road, Avon Park, was arrested by the Highlands County Sheriff's Office and charged with intimidating a witness, victim or an informant.

Golden had been arrested in November and charged with discharging a firearm in public, discharging a firearm from a vehicle and shooting a missile into a dwelling, vehicle, building or aircraft.

The witness had told authorities that he believed he received from Golden a message via SnapChat threatening him. It said, "bra, didn't I tell you if I find out u threw anything on us im atcho head?? yeah its det bra, I read the sh-- and its up from here, don't let me catch u."

Golden read the original arrest affidavit regarding the shooting charges, which led him to believe that the witness gave information to authorities.

Recovery Centers (BRCs) in Highlands, Broward and Palm Beach counties will cease operations at 6 p.m., close of business, on Saturday, Dec. 9.

5 THINGS That Will Make You SMARTER

1. Fog is a cloud that touches the ground.
2. Fog can be thin or thick, meaning people have difficulty seeing through it. Even monuments like the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco are almost impossible to see in thick fog.

3. Fog shows up when water vapor, or water in its gaseous form, condenses. During condensation, molecules of water vapor combine to make tiny liquid water droplets that hang in the air. You can see fog because of these tiny water droplets.

4. Fog happens when it is very, very humid. There has to be a lot of water vapor in the air for fog to form.

5. Fog is not the same thing as mist. Fog is denser than mist, meaning it is more massive and thicker than mist.

December begins Florida's dry season

It's December, and that doesn't just mean that the twinkling of lights are all around us, shoppers are bustling around, wonderful aromas of baking fill the air and everyone is preparing for Christmas.

It also doesn't just mean that the end of the year is coming soon and the last chance is near to make a tax-free donation to your favorite charity.

One thing that people tend to forget is that December also marks the beginning of Florida's dry season. Why should we be concerned? All one has to do is think back to earlier this year when the muck fires were burning in the southern end of the county and in our neighboring counties.

The wildfires in the Indian Lake Estates area in Polk County made local and national headlines.

Thousands of acres burned. In the short period from February to April this year, wildfires swept across 68,000 acres in the state. That amount was higher than the average acreage burned over the past five years.

People lost their homes, while many more structures suffered some kind of damage. Law enforcement closed down major roadways to help keep motorists safe from driving in smoke and fog conditions.

Firefighters and Florida Forest Service came from the Okeechobee district, Jacksonville district, the Waccasassa Forestry Center, the Suwanee Forestry Center, the Perry District and the Chipola Forestry Center. The last time help was sent to the Okeechobee district to help protect our county lands from wildfire was 2011.

Florida has a 12-month wildfire season. We always have to have our guard up, but do catch an occasional break like we did these past couple of months.

However, the most active part of the wildfire season coincides with our dry season, which is December through June. We most often see wildfire activity at its peak due to the occurrence of lightning with dry thunderstorms that are common in March, April and May.

Typically, fires get larger as the dry season continues. That's because grass, plants and trees lose water. The drier the vegetation gets, the more the susceptibility to wildfires. And that also means more fuel for the fire to encompass a larger area.

With the temperatures expected to drop this weekend and cooler temperatures to be with us off and on for the next couple of months, each of us need to be watchful and careful. About 90 percent of the fires earlier this year were sparked by humans.

Highlands County dealt with the wildfires in the southern part of the county earlier this year, then we dealt with Hurricane Irma just three months ago. Let's hope the wildfire activity we are likely to be facing is manageable. Our public safety officials may be tired, but they aren't too tired to keep protecting the citizens and our property. For that, we are thankful.

Golf Hammock has drainage problems

1. The proposed drainage work in Golf Hammock is a mix of long-overdue maintenance, along with the addition of some new drainage structures. Before embarking on a new drainage design, we should first see how the original drainage design will perform once the overdue maintenance work has been carried out. We shouldn't be spending on a new design with new drainage structures, except to the extent the original design was not fully implemented in the beginnings.

2. Especially in 2018, while we are facing obvious drainage problems, we should not be spending $168,702 on repaving roads with essentially non-existent problems.

3. Realtors tell us that modest property assessments have been one of many pluses supporting strong Golf Hammock property values in the past. In addition to imposing the duty to pay $500 in assessments in at least each of the next three years, the proposed assessments might also impose the double hit of a decline in fair market values to the extent buyers looking in Golf Hammock are on fixed incomes.

Lots of problems, very few answers

"My Impressions," the article in Highlands News-Sun (Dec. 4) by Tim Smolarick, was one of more unpleasant news. I, like a lot of people, read newspapers, listen to news on TV, etc. and at the end of the day I am more disheartened than the day before.

Mr. Smolarick pointed out issues that definitely need to be addressed. It is so sad when we hear about the waste our nation is guilty of, corruption in government and the list goes on and on. How did this great country get to this point? I love the USA and want the best for it.

Rather than reading about the problems we have, I wish we could read about someone who, like Tim S. was referring to the "high-powered minds," whoever they are, would step up and really create programs to feed the hungry, stop the waste, get rid of the corrupt politicians and create good-paying jobs. But, I am sorry to say, I think this well-written article by the publisher will get read, stir up some emotions like it did in me, and that'll be it. His final question, "Shouldn't we have to do it?" Mind is "How do we do it?"

Treason by our past

A slap in the face to millions of American voters who elected Donald Trump as our new president. America's last president, who served for the last eight years, aided and abetted the Mexican drug cartels in killing thousands of people. The Obama administration and his first attorney general aided the Mexican drug cartels with millions of weapons that they used to destroy and kill thousands of people, and it also allowed millions of dangerous drugs to be dumped on these United States American families in every state, killing and destroying millions of American families.

That same president is now going worldwide bad mouthing our new president.

This same past president and his first attorney should be charged with treason. No one is above the laws of our nation.

He also aided Hillary and Bill Clinton in a uranium deal with Russia. They should also be charged with high treason.

Plenty of sleep equals brighter futures

I have been a co-director and now a director of Child Learning Centers for over 30 years and have raised two children of my own. After all of my years of experience and training, I have realized that most parents just don't understand how important sleep is for their preschoolers.

According to the National Sleep Foundation, it is recommended that they get 10-13 hours of sleep per day including a 1- to 3-hour nap. Their brains need this time to develop and their bodies need this time to rejuvenate. Also, hormones that are vital for growth and development, increased blood supply to the muscles, and tissue growth and repair are released during sleep. Getting enough sleep is crucial as it directly impacts mental and physical development!

It's almost as important to be consistent about bed times and habits. Figure out if your child likes to sleep in the dark or with a nightlight, in a crib or full-size bed, with a toy or other security blanket or nothing at all. Some kids like a noise machine, others like total silence. If your first bed time routine isn't working, try something else.

But remember, co-sleeping with your child only satisfies your sleep needs but makes the transition to sleeping alone that much harder for your little one. So, do yourself and your kids a favor and put your children to bed.

Mom, I'm home

Along with my brother and two sisters, that was our typical daily greeting when arriving home from school at 4 p.m. Our mother was always at home waiting for us.

Our daily routine was having breakfast together as a family, lunch at school, and a light snack before dining together again. We living in an apartment complex with our grandmother, on my father's side, living with us; and on the second floor lived my grandmother on my mother's side. Several other neighbor families lived there for many years that became like family for us, too. All those moms were at their homes too.

My mother was like our guardian angel. When we were playing, she guided us to always use the right tone and words in our conversations. On Saturdays, and on our long summers of almost three months, she prepared snacks for the whole group.

Cooking was my mom's expertise. She excelled also in baking cakes for every occasion; but for our birthdays, we had to be careful to be sure she would make us "the every-day-cake" which we enjoyed so much, and that's how that recipe of her cake passed on to us. I have her two cookbooks, with her comments in them.

On Sunday, we all went to church and continued sharing with the family.

We grew up on a solid family foundation, showing respect toward our parents and toward other adults as well. We learned how to play together, and did our chores at home and our school work in a responsible way.

What kind of torch are your children receiving from your hand?

Delivery was not pleasant

I was totally humiliated in my own house by a furniture delivery man whose body language became threatening and refused to work with us when we tried to send back a damaged foot board to our $5,865 brand new delivery. He insisted on just taking everything back with the rest of the order.

My wife and I felt unsafe, as if there was a strange hostile man in our home.

The company has done very little to compensate us for this behavior. We really wanted to buy our furniture there as the store sales staff were wonderful. We felt extremely unsafe in our own home when the furniture store's delivery people, who was intimidating and scare tactics, showed up to our house with their thug-like mentality. So we canceled our bedroom set and had to call the Highlands County Sheriff's Office to start a case file on the delivery man, as we are afraid for our safety.

The store offered no help when we called during this difficult time.

We left to get our furniture at Turner Furniture, where the delivery people are kind and local.

It's a shame and I'm still up in the air as to what further action I may or may not take.

I contacted 8 on Your Side and waiting to hear back. I also wrote on my social media. I also feel that someone may be in danger if this is not reported to warn the public about the local store that clearly has no control over or accountability over those who deliver third party for them. Very scary!!! Please take this as seriously as I do.

The city of Sebring has no plans to start curbside recycling. And Council members did not indicate support for that. "We're kind of waiting to see how the county does," Lowrance said. "When we do implement one and — I believe we will eventually — hopefully it will go a bit smoother than it has for the county."

Dettman said that while he's been recycling from even before he moved to Sebring, he believes the city needs to wait and review the experience of the county. He also believes curbside recycling would have to pay for itself, he said.

COUNTY

Handley said. Cannady said changes to the code, in brief, include:

Elimination of mulch as an appropriate vehicle parking surface.

Reduction of the maximum acceptable height for grass, weeds and other vegetation on improved lots to 12 inches down from the county's 18 inches.

Requirement of a fitted cover for cars, boats and/or recreational vehicles, versus tarps, blankets or sheets.

Allowance of only one recreational vehicle, 18-foot or shorter boat, or a utility trailer, not both, with acceptable dimensions changed for recreational vehicles and boats.

Cannady said homeowners associations may have stricter rules. Residents will want to be familiar with both sets of rules.

The changes did not include minimum house size regulations. When the Sun 'n Lake Board of Supervisors last voted on the matter, their attorney, David Schumacher, said those would be part of the county zoning changes.

Also, when Sun 'n Lake supervisors last voted on the matter, they asked how long it would take to get compliance. Facilities and Security Director Mike Hurley said violators have 21 days to comply or pay a fine. If they don't, the district can have a magistrate hearing and put a lien on the property — a two-month process. Everything was spelled out in the code, which was updated by then-county attorney Ross Macbeth.

Each veteran who served in the room received an American flag pin. The response was impressive and about half the room moved to the front when their branch was called.

a Veteran" were sung. Tears filled many eyes as 200 collective voices sang "I am proud to be an American..." by Lee Greenwood.

The names of veterans who passed away during the year were read as were the names of 16 park members and 13 family members of residents. As the deceased names were called, a family representative received a balloon and carnation.

"We have been doing this memorial for the past 10-15 years," Hazelton said. "We like to honor all of our vets that protect us and also honor the loved ones we have lost over the past year. We hope that this is the first step to help them in their healing process."

The balloons were released outside with silent prayers and wishes for their loved ones after the ceremony. The four WWII vets released red, white and blue balloons in honor of all fallen veterans. The service concluded with the playing of "Taps" by Thomas Kainz.

The Rev. Mike Hill, pastor of the church for almost 15 years, recalled that upon learning how much damage Irma caused he was somewhat depressed.

"After praying, seeking God, everything started looking better," he said.

For the entire 24 years the church has existed, around this time of year, it gave out food and clothes and gifts on a larger scale.

"I kind of feel bad we're not able to do that this year," he said.

Instead, with a lack of insurance for the church building, church members have to spend a lot of time working to get the building restored inside so services can resume. They've already replaced the rubber roof and hope to begin installing new drywall soon so the sanctuary can be used.

Crews was the first member of the church to see the damage following Irma.

"When I pulled up, my heart stopped," she said. Crews said she saw the damage to the church and that water was everywhere in the structure.

Still, she said, she was confident that God would help them.

Part of the roof of The Church of God of Prophecy was ripped off during Hurricane Irma.

Moore said that immediately after the hurricane, he perceived that the Rev. Hill was close to giving up.

"I told him we don't give up and that now we have to work," Moore said.

And, indeed they did work. Church members put up in one day a new roof over the part of the building where the rubber roof was destroyed. They believe they can reopen the church by the middle of January.

To help raise money to fix the remainder of the building, the church will have a baked good sale on Dec. 15 that's expected to start before 9 a.m. and a fish fry beginning at 11 a.m. on Dec. 16.

Tickets to the fish fry are $8 and the meal will include fish, coleslaw and baked beans.

Spring Lake hosting Heartland Games

Owner Vowels plans to compete in golfing event

BY NEIL SIMPSON

SPECIAL TO HIGHLANDS

Spring Lake, with its two 18-hole courses, Panther Creek and Cougar Trail, plus the nine hole Bobcat Run has been the source of a great deal of talk by area golfers over the past few years. The previous owner got into financial difficulties and Wauchula Bank took back the course. They were looking for a buyer while the facility fell into disrepair. If not sold by May 2015, the golf complex was simply going to close the courses.

Edd Vowels, a member at Spring Lake for many years, knew that he and his friends might lose their golf course. Having the financial resources he agreed to purchase it then hired Bill Davis and quickly promoted him to director of golf.

Davis says that working on courses is all he's ever done, starting at age 12 with a weed eater and a gas can. He earned a degree in golf complex management and worked locally at The Bluffs, Harder Hall and Golf Hammock before being snatched up by Vowels.

Together, they set about improving the course. After the first year, Davis said they were still working to get processes right. Improving the greens was priority No. 1. Better mowing was implemented and proper water management was needed.

In October 2015, Ryan Chandler was brought on

The KART class get larger and more competitive each year at the NASGRASS Lawnmower Race held at the Avon Park Mower Plex.

NASGRASS to hold third event of the mower racing season

BY JIM TAYLOR

CORRESPONDENT

AVON PARK – Dirt and clay will be flying at the Avon Park Mowerplex this Saturday as NASGRASS will be presenting the Merry Mowdown, the third race of the 2017-18 season.

The December races bring extra delights for the fans and children as Santa will be present and kids will get to ride the Christmas Mower Train around the track during the intermission between the heat and main races.

Also during the intermission, kids that bring their motorized ride on toy and a helmet will have the opportunity to participate in a special "Power Wheels" race.

With eight classifications, there will be a total of 16 races scheduled with the heat and main races.

A new classification for racing points this year is the KART classification. Sam Foster pulled out his first win of the season, edging out Christian Galan. Foster also posted the highest lap speed of just over 30 mph.

Despite finishing second, Galan holds an early overall points lead in the KART class.

The Mini-Mow class features the youngest racers in the most regulated class that often produces some of the most competitive and exciting racing of the night as they can reach speeds of 18-20 mph.

Reed Wallace posted the highest lap speed at just over 19 mph last November, but finished in second place to Rylan Turner as consistent driving and minimizing mistakes around the track at this level will usually trump speed.

With the win in

JIM TAYLOR/CORRESPONDENT

Randall Gandy takes the win in November and looks to pad his points lead in the GP class. The Merry Mowdown is Saturday.

November, Turner was able to jump into first place in the overall standings, holding a slight lead over Morgan Vaughn and Wallace.

In the FX-Lite Class, Sam Foster padded his points lead with a win in November with Becky Kuhfeldt holding second place. The field is packed in this class and the points are tight as Foster and Kuhfeldt have Stacey Wallace, Martine Vaughn, Chanea Turner and Tom Hodges within striking distance to make a move.

IMSA finishes Daytona test

SPECIAL TO HIGHLANDS NEWS-SUN

With an initial two-day Rolex 24 At DAYTONA test completed on Wednesday, teams immediately switched their collective focus to the annual Roar Before the Rolex 24 testing on Jan. 5-7 at Daytona International Speedway.

The focus must be adjusted from past years. On the last day of the Roar, pit boxes and garage stalls for the 56th running of the Rolex 24 will be determined by a special qualifying session. Each IMSA WeatherTech SportsCar Championship class – Prototype, GT Le Mans and GT Daytona – will have a 15-minute qualifying session.

"As we've seen over the past several years, every second counts in the Rolex 24 At DAYTONA, placing a premium on the location of a team's pit box and garage," said IMSA Vice President of Competition Simon Hodgson.

"This really adds a sense of urgency," said reigning Prototype co-champion Ricky Taylor, part of a powerhouse Team Penske Racing/Acura DPi lineup in 2018. "Now there's a chance to win something at the Roar ... before, everyone would go home early. This is also going to be good for the fans who come out to watch."

This past season, Ricky Taylor co-drove with his brother Jordan Taylor – for their father's team, Wayne Taylor Racing. Jordan Taylor is back with his dad's group, co-driving the No. 10 Konica Minolta Cadillac DPi with Renger van der Zande. To him, the special qualifying addition means one thing – recalibrate.

"I'm not sure how it's all going to shake out at the Roar for us," Jordan Taylor said. "The Roar has always been when we've tested a bunch of different items and running things to prepare for the race itself. We've never put a [competitive] package together for the Roar."

This new wrinkle is complemented by another on the Roar Before the Rolex 24 schedule. On Jan. 6 (1:25 p.m. ET) the IMSA Prototype Challenge Presented by Mazda series will make its Daytona International Speedway debut with a one-hour, 45-minute race.

Concurrent with the end of Rolex 24 testing on Wednesday – there were two WeatherTech Championship sessions – was a one-day test for IMSA's popular production-based Continental Tire SportsCar Challenge. That series' season-opening 2018 race is also at DIS, the four-hour BMW Endurance Challenge on Jan. 26.

Also, the popular Scout Boys returns to the Roar Before the Rolex 24, as boy scouts and girls scouts camp for two nights (Jan. 5-6) in the DIS infield, with access to all Roar activities.

Tickets for the Roar Before the Rolex 24, Scout Days, the Rolex 24 At DAYTONA, the 60th annual DAYTONA 500 and all other speedway events can be purchased online at www.daytonainternational-speedway.com or by calling 1-800-PITSHOP.

Fans can stay connected with Daytona International Speedway on Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, Pinterest, YouTube and Snapchat, and by downloading Daytona International Speedway's mobile app, for the latest news throughout the year.

Snow Bike Series returns

Motorcycle organization to recognize races as Championship Series

SPECIAL TO HIGHLANDS NEWS-SUN

PICKERINGTON, Ohio — After much success in its inaugural year sanctioning with the American Motorcyclist Association, the AMA Championship Snow Bike Series will be recognized as an AMA National Championship series in 2018, and will award AMA National No. 1 plates to the top finisher of each national class at the end of the seven-round series.

"We are excited to continue working with R & R Promotions to provide an AMA National Championship series for snow bike racers in 2018," AMA Motocross Manager Ricky Rickords said. "The expansion of snow bike racing during the past year has been very promising, and we look forward to the continued growth and popularity of the sport in the future."

The first round of the AMA Snow Bike National Championship Series kicks off on Dec. 9 in Hill City, Minn.

"We are very excited to become an AMA National Championship series," R & R Promotions Owner Ron Dillon said. "We will continue working hard to grow the sport and provide high-quality racing events for all snow bike competitors."

Snow bikes swap out wheels and knobby tires for a ski in front for steering, and a high-performance snowmobile-style track in the rear for traction. Riders compete on a motocross-inspired half-mile track of jumps, banks, right and left hand board as golf pro. He had worked previously at Sun 'N Lake, Highlands Ridge South and The Bluffs. Ryan is excited about the opportunities provided at Spring Lake. He likes the links style layout of the course with its palm trees that give it a real Florida look.

Vowels, a Sebring resident, was originally from Louisville, Kentucky but came to Florida in 1972 to escape the cold. He started working for McDonald's in 1973 as a store manager then as a field consultant working with franchisees. In 1983 he opened his first McDonald's in Bradenton and added a second store in Arcadia.

He subsequently sold the Bradenton franchise back to the corporation and bought the North Sebring and Fort Meade restaurants, growing to a total of six locations before his son, Tim, took over. Tim now has stores in Arcadia and Okeechobee.

Vowels sees the highway 27 and 98 area as a place of the future and he intends to have Spring Lake Resort be central to that bright future. He knows that golfers went to other courses as Spring Lake deteriorated but says that after just one year, the course was 100 percent improved and golfers started returning.

With a handicap in the very low teens, he used to play four or five times a week but only manages to get out on the course a couple of times weekly now.

Davis and Vowels were eager to host the 2018 Heartland Games golf tournament and will be doing their part to encourage Spring Lake members to register. As well, they are challenging male and female golfers 50 and over from courses in Highlands, Hardee and DeSoto Counties to sign up. Competition will be in five-year age/gender groupings. Those who place in the top five in their bracket will be eligible to compete in the Florida Senior Games in late 2018.

Edd plans to play in the tournament and challenges owners and staff of other local courses to come to compete against him. Men aged 50 to 69 will play from the whites with a total yardage of 5,971 yards. Edd and others in the 70 to 79 group will play from the golds with a yardage of 5,560. Those 80 and older will play from the greens over a distance of 5,123 yards. Ladies will play from the pinks which play 4,518 yards.

The GP and GP Twin classes are highly competitive as the speeds increase. In the GP Class, Randall Gandy won in November to maintain his point lead, though Randall Scott, Cavin Turner, Ken Wayman and Harold Pollhill are poised to takeover.

Gandy posted the best lap speed of 28.897 mph with Turner finishing second in November and posting a lap speed of 28.415 mph.

Marc Sweetman won last month's GP Twin race, edging out Ramiro Avalos in his first race of the season. Sweetman currently holds the points lead with Jeffrey Francis and Michael Graves battling for second.

the CP Class, winning the November races and holding a sizable lead.

Runyon also won the November FXS race, which helped him move to within 10 points of current points leader, Robert Vaughn with Kuhfeldt nipping at their heels in third.

Steve Black shook up the FXT Class last month with a win in the main race over Wes Pyburn. Pyburn still narrowly holds the points over Black, Matt Garner and Tom Hodges as the fastest class of mowers gets deeper and more competitive.

Practice on Saturday is 12-5pm and races begin at 6 p.m. Tickets are $7 for adults and kids 10 and under are free. Pit passes are $12.

Saving the Florida Scrub Jay

protect this charismatic bird and the habitat it depends upon.

Mr. Scrub Jay

Fred Hunter is a woodsman. Born in 1931 and raised in Orlando, he played, fished and hunted when it was a small town in a wild paradise. As it grew into a city, Fred wanted a place that was still wild. He bought 600-acres abutting Seminole State Forest on the west, east and south of his property and Ocala National Forest on the north. In 2003, the retired Navy commander built a log house on it for his kids and grandkids to visit, and to be with his jays. Ann, his wife for 55 years has been beside him all along, helping make the land acquisitions possible and providing hospitality for all the visitors associated with protecting the Florida Scrub-Jay on this important wildlife corridor.

Enter Fred and Ann's log house and a plush scrub-jay stuffed toy, framed photos, a mug, hat, a poem and awards dedicated to the Florida scrub-jay adorn walls and tables. Fred promptly whips out his maps to show visitors his property and plans to restore it. A tour of his scrub and the scrub-jays living there will be offered in his ancient Isuzu Trooper II and you will be captive to Fred's exhortations of the exceptional qualities of the state's finest bird. About 300-plus acres of his property is scrub, and about half is suitable for Florida scrub-jays. These remarkable birds are curious and friendly. They mate for life, forming small families that live in 20-acre territories. A juvenile helper stays with the parents and helps raise and protect new fledglings until it goes off to establish its own family.

ARCHBOLD BIOLOGICAL STATION

Collaboration is increasingly a key to successful science and conservation. Many of Archbold Biological Station's research collaborations occur at local or regional scales, involving working with other scientists or institutions who can offer complementary expertise, or share facilities, resources, or study sites. Some questions, however, are best answered through larger collaborative networks. The Nutrient Network (NutNet) is bringing together grassland researchers from around the world to contribute data from individual locations to a multi-year planet-wide ecology experiment, and Archbold is part of the network and the project.

Archbold's Director of Agro-ecology Research, Dr. Betsey Boughton oversees the NutNet experiment at Archbold's MacArthur Agro-ecology Research Center (MAERC) at Buck Island Ranch. She explains, "We are participating in a grassland experiment where the same experiment is being conducted in more than 60 grasslands around the globe."

The network was founded by a group of young scientists twelve years ago, who were frustrated that there had been no globally coordinated experiment to track changes in grasslands. These scientists explains that, "NutNet's strength comes from conducting exactly the same experiment at partner sites who volunteer to participate. Ecology is a powerful tool for describing Earth's systems of living and non-living things that we call ecosystems, but field work is site specific and so are many of its findings.

Many ways to keep yourself in shape

METRO CREATIVE SERVICES

Many people find it easier to maintain their beach bodies during summer than they do throughout the rest of the year. Summer weather encourages people to get off the couch and enjoy the great outdoors, and many people prefer to eat lighter meals during the summer to combat the heat and humidity.

But once the dog days of summer give way to autumn, the motivation to stay in beach shape tends to wane. Couple that dwindling motivation with the tendency to eat larger, heartier meals as the weather gets colder, and it's easy to see why so many people gain weight over the last several months of the year and into the new year. But maintaining a healthy weight year-round promotes long-term health and reduces a person's risk for various ailments and diseases, including heart disease and diabetes. The following are a handful of strategies men and women can employ as they try to turn their beach bodies into the bodies they see in the mirror all year long.

Keep setting goals. As winter heads toward spring, many people set short-term goals to motivate them to get back into beach shape. That's a highly effective strategy that need not be exclusive to late winter. Setting short-term fitness and dietary goals throughout the year can keep you from falling back into bad habits. Tie your goals into the season to increase your chances for success. For example, resolve to run outdoors or cycle a certain number of miles each week in autumn, when the weather is still conducive to physical activity and the scenery is idyllic. When winter arrives and exercising outdoors is no longer viable, commit to attending a few fitness classes per week at your gym. Switch up your workout routine every few weeks. Boredom also can affect people's ability to maintain healthy weights year-round. Adhering to the same exercise routine for months on end can grow tedious.

The body can even grow accustomed to the same workout routine, meaning

The "Wasp" airplane.

JOHN ROUSCH
Flightline

The 'Wasp'

Advances in propulsion are what drive aviation development. Innovative airplanes almost always start with innovative engines, and the airframes follow. In 2016, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers celebrated just such an engine. The society designated the Pratt & Whitney R-1340 Wasp a technology landmark, the organization's highest award, because the Wasp singlehandedly brought about a leap forward in aircraft performance and economics. The tale of its development is still fascinating.

The story can be told as a series of meetings among ambitious young designers, dealmakers with burning needs, and inflexible government contractors. The Wasp's manufacturer, Pratt & Whitney, was at the time a humble machine tool company with no connection whatsoever to aviation. Thanks to a risky bet on an unproven technology, today it's one of the world's dominant builders of airplane engines.

At the center of the Wasp's creation was Frederick Rentschler, scion of a well-connected Ohio industrial family. The story of the development is fully detailed in the recent issue of "Air & Space" magazine, and is more than I can share here, but here are a few nuggets of the "Wasp".

Early aircraft engines were often engines adapted from early automobiles and tractors, being water cooled and having in-line cylinders. They were heavy, had lots of "plumbing" and did not produce that much power compared to their weight. Not a good combination for an aircraft.

The Washington Naval Treaty, which limited navies from expanding their fleets of capital ships, had caused work to stop on the battle cruisers Saratoga and Lexington. It was determined that the treaty allowed him to convert both ships to aircraft carriers. The Navy would need hundreds of airplanes to equip the ships for fleet service. The Navy was keenly aware of the liquid-versus-air-cooled controversy and even more sharply focused on reducing the size and weight of all its aircraft. Radial engines lacked all the plumbing of the big V-12s and could take the pounding that comes with landing on a carrier deck without cracking brazed joints in radiators—since there was no radiator—and springing leaks. Radials weighed less, provided faster climb rates, and simplified maintenance: In short, they were the very engines the Navy needed.

The radial engine Rentschler developed with his team had a crankcase was forged as two halves, the split between them coinciding with the plane of the all-steel cylinders. Accessories were all grouped in the back, leaving the front of the engine clean. It was this design that created an engine of high power and low weight. More importantly, the engineers had happened upon a balance, whether they were aware of it or not, that would distribute the internal forces upon the working engine in such a way that each part was configured in the optimal way for the job it had to do. It would be, in a word, dependable.

The engine passed its endurance tests with ease and got its name when Rentschler's wife Faye learned that the team was ruminating about a name related to the buzzing noise of bees; she came up with "wasp" and Wasp it became. It had come in at 650 pounds, and the third time it was started up on the test stand, it delivered 425 horsepower. It made its first flight on May 5, 1926.

In his portraits, even those taken at what should have been moments of triumph, Rentschler looks grim. Then again, back in the 1920s, people didn't smile when they posed for photographs. But in his memoirs, his words are those of a happy man. Of his beloved Wasp, he wrote: "It ran as clean as a hound's tooth and was actually just the thoroughbred that it looked. These characteristics had never been previously achieved in an aviation engine." The team knew they had built something special, but even then, they couldn't have known that they had, in fact, built an American landmark.

Coming in January, you will get the opportunity to hear and fly behind not one, but three of the famous "Wasp" engines as they come to the US Sport Expo in EAA's Ford Tri-Motor aircraft.

This is a chance to fly in one of the most historic aircraft that began the commercial aviation system we take for granted today. Flight fees are used to continue to preserve the aircraft and a portion will go to our local EAA Chapter 1240 to support our youth aviation programs. Rides will be available daily January 24 through 27.

Don't forget about the EAA pancake breakfast tomorrow at the EAA 1240 Aviation Development Center, Gate 24 at the Sebring Regional Airport. The youth will be there working on the AirCam with astronaut Story Musgrave, and at 10 AM there will be the program on the Japanese Zero shot down during the attack on Pearl Harbor. It is the story of the pilot and the recovery of the aircraft. Lots to see and do, don't miss it.

For information about our EAA Chapter 1240 programs, call or text John Rousch at 863-273-0522, or e-mail: jhr@stratmail.net.

Popular Canadian tourist attractions

METRO CREATIVE SERVICES

Bustling cities, awe-inspiring vistas, abundant wildlife, and a friendly population have solidified Canada as one of the most popular tourist destinations in the western hemisphere. Canadians understand the wealth of riches their land and culture can provide, and the scores of visitors who venture onto Canadian soil quickly understand the appeal of this vast and awe-inspiring country as well.

Coast to coast, Canada is no stranger to natural wonders and vibrant urban centers. Although just about any area of the country is worth visiting, certain points of interest stand out as perennial favorites.

Niagara Falls: Niagara Falls straddles the border of Canada and the United States and is marked by impressive waterfalls that boast the highest water-flow rate of any waterfall in the world. The falls are actually comprised of three different falls: the Bridal Veil Falls, the Horseshoe Falls, and the American Falls. The falls are along the Niagara river. Visitors can ride the Maid of the Mist boat to get up close and personal with the falls. Parks, shopping and the Casino Niagara are other points of interest.

Calgary: A booming metropolis, Calgary is situated between prairies and the foothills of the Canadian Rockies. Discovery of oil helped solidify Calgary as a popular place to live in the 1900s, and helped it become the largest city in Alberta. Thousands of visitors flock to Calgary for the world-famous Calgary Stampede rodeo.

Quebec City: The second most popular French-speaking area behind Montreal, Quebec City is the only fortified city north of Mexico. The Citadel is a popular place for visitors, and tourists can witness Canadian troops staging a military ceremony. Cuisine offerings are numerous in Quebec City, and one shouldn't miss the opportunity to try poutine, a French-Canadian staple.

Banff National Park: Nestled

within the majestic Rocky Mountains in the province of Alberta, this park exemplifies the beauty of the Canadian landscape. Snow-capped mountains, glaciers, turquoise lakes, and a bevy of wildlife are on display in this picturesque park.

Vancouver: Offering West Coast appeal, this city in British Columbia has repeatedly been named the best place to live in the world. It is culturally and ethnically diverse and has a cosmopolitan feel. Garibaldi Provincial Park offers Vancouver residents and visitors impressive scenery and recreation.

Old Montreal: Described as a European city on North American land, Montreal is lined with old, historic buildings, fine dining and plenty of shopping. Some of the must-see places in Old Montreal include Rue Bonsecours and the landmark March Bonsecours.

Of course, one shouldn't miss the beautiful Notre-Dame Basilica, which is an accurate reproduction of the building of the same name in France.

Toronto: A bustling city, Toronto is the largest mecca in Canada and located in the heart of Ontario. It's home to the CN Tower, the tallest freestanding structure in the western hemisphere. World-class theater, shopping and dining put Toronto on par with other big cities around the world, including New York and London.

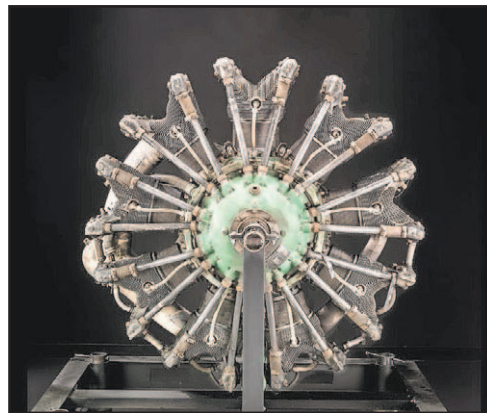

Mount Logan: Billed as the highest mountain in Canada, Mount Logan is located in an area of sparse peaks in the Yukon. Adventure and wildlife seekers should include this destination on their itineraries.

Bay of Fundy: Located between New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, this natural wonder is known for its amazing tides. Tides in the Bay of Fundy are some of the largest in the world.

Canada is filled with impressive sites to visit. Tourists can return year after year, never seeing the same thing twice yet still being amazed each time they visit.

For example, even if you can show that conditions in one place resulted in an observable outcome, how do you know for sure that the same is true elsewhere? NutNet's grassroots approach to collaboration solves that problem, because the same questions are being asked in different places and the results can be compared. Betsey Boughton adds, "I really enjoy being in the network because I get to interact with ecologists all over the world. Sharing data with others is a fulfilling part of my job."

Highlands County's grasslands support some of the highest numbers of cattle in the state. These working ranches provide us with jobs, food, and community, as well as wildlife habitat and water management. Archbold's Education Coordinator, Dustin Angell leads swamp buggy tours at Buck Island Ranch. He says, "Florida's ranches look more like parks than they do most people's expectations of agricultural lands. When I give tours for people who are new to Florida's heartland, they are surprised by the beauty of the ranch landscape. They even ask me where all the cows are. We have 3,000 head of cattle, but they have a lot of room to spread out over our grasslands and woods."

People in Florida and around the world rely on grasslands and these ecosystems are changing due to human activities. NutNet scientists say they, "want to understand how land management practices like fertilizer use and grazing techniques are affecting grassland ecosystems." Archbold is stepping up their involvement in NutNet. Betsey Boughton says, "2017 was our third year in the network, but our second year of adding different combinations of nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium fertilizer and excluding deer and rabbits from some of the plots. All plots will be exposed to occasional cattle grazing and prescribed fire every 2 or 3 years. The plots are also valuable for our research interns to conduct short-term projects. One of our current interns, Jaide Allenbrand from Kansas, is going to investigate the role of beneficial root fungi of the grass in the experimental plots." The University of Florida Range Cattle Research and Education Center in Ona is also participating in Ona.

Archbold Biological Station's interest in understanding and preserving Florida's ranches and their ecosystems is part of their long-term commitment to Buck Island Ranch. For nearly 30 years, Archbold has operated the 10,500-acre ranch as a working cow-calf operation and biological field station. Researchers study plants and wildlife, water and air quality, and the environmental effects of ranching practices. The ranch also hosts visiting researchers from around the country and it partners with scientists, agencies, and neighboring ranchers toward conservation goals. NutNet is an example of how collaboration is making Highlands County ranches part of a global effort towards sustainable management.

you won't be getting as much out of your exercise sessions as you might if you switch things up. If you find your daily workouts taking a turn toward the mundane, switch up your routine by changing exercises or signing up for classes that interest you.

Find healthy seasonal foods. Many people prefer to buy locally sourced and/or in-season foods, recognizing the positive impact that such dietary habits can have on the environment.

That commitment to buying healthy, locally grown foods can be tested as the seasons change and the offerings at your local market change along with them. Educate yourself about which foods are in-season in your area throughout the year, opting for the most nutritious foods you can find. Buying in-season foods saves you money, and you will also feel good about staying on a nutritious, eco-friendly track.

Join an exercise group or sports league. The buddy system is an effective way to stay committed to a fitness regimen, but if you cannot find a friend or family member to brave cold winter treks to the gym with you, then consider joining an exercise group or competitive sports league.

As summer turns to autumn, join a road runner's club to motivate you to run. When harsh weather makes running outdoors too difficult, sign up for a winter sports league. Such groups or leagues get you off the couch and provide great opportunities to meet like-minded men and women who have made their own commitments to staying fit.

Staying fit all year long is a challenge for many people. But maintaining that beach body even after summer has come and gone need not be so difficult.

Why honeybees need protection

METRO CREATIVE SERVICES

Honeybees flitting from flower to flower is one of the first signs that warm weather has arrived. Honeybees are a welcome presence in the garden, pollinating plants and contributing to local honey supplies.

Despite their importance in the ecosystem, honeybees are in grave danger. In 2014, U.S. President Barack Obama created a task force comprised of various agencies to address the growing issue of rapidly diminishing honeybees and other pollinating insects. This initiative was a response to reports from American beekeepers indicating hive deaths have been on the rise, gravely affecting the honeybee population. Honeybees pollinate many fruit trees, nut plants and vegetables, playing a crucial role for many nations food industries.

In addition to government involvement and honeybee conservation methods designed by environmental agencies, there are many things that regular citizens and homeowners can do to protect honeybees this summer. The Environmental Protection Agency and the Pesticide Action Network offer these tips.

Use caution when applying any pesticides to home gardens. Be especially cautious when applying pesticides when bees are likely to be flying. If you must apply pesticides, do so only after dusk.

Stagger your planting throughout the growing season. Rather than planting everything at once, stagger planting for flowers and other plants that have blooms. This gives bees plenty of pollen sources throughout early summer and into fall.

Provide clean sources of water. A small garden feature or a rainwater collection is enough to provide bees with a drink when needed.

Honeybees and other bees require some sort of shelter. Dead trees and plants provide adequate shelter, so don't be so tempted to pull out all of the undergrowth in the name of aesthetics.

Plant a garden that will

METRO CREATIVE SERVICES

Honeybees are a welcome presence in any garden.

attract bees. Resources for planting a bee-friendly garden can be found by visiting http://www.panna.org/sites/default/files/Bee-FriendlyGardening_PAN.pdf.

If you come across a hive, leave it alone. It's best not to disturb a hive and honeybee colony. If bees are located where they can become a nuisance, contact a local bee expert to see if the hive can be moved.

Think about becoming a beekeeper yourself. There are many different resources available to help you get started.

Bees are being threatened at an alarming rate. Educating yourself about what to do to protect honeybees can help to restore the valuable honeybee population.

After Fred restores his scrub, he could have up to as many as 14 territories for scrub-jays, each accommodating a family group. Right now he has four families. "They are so smart. I like their military bearing — they are alert and at attention. They are so friendly and family oriented," he says.

Into The Scrub

Fred frequently ventures out to visit his scrub-jays, check his restoration efforts and show visitors this amazing bird. Bumping over narrow, sandy dirt roads twisting through dense scrub and palmettos, Fred stops his old Isuzu Trooper at a patch of bare white sand.

He waits. "They recognize the vehicle, or if not, I can call them," he says. The sun is high and hot, and not the ideal time of day for them to make a showing.

"They are very friendly, and remember you," he says.

Fred shoves a cassette tape into the player on his dash and climbs out while tiny scrub-jay calls peel from the car speakers.

It doesn't take long before a scrub-jay swoops out of a tangle of scrub oak branches and hops onto the sand right in front of Fred. About 11-inches long with cerulean blue and pewter plumage, the jay cocks his head and confronts Mr. Hunter with piercing black eyes. Fred knows most of the jays on his property, and offers stories about those that greet him. "They are the most interesting bird, but they are only in Florida and have declined 90 percent," he says.

The Florida scrub-jay is going extinct in some parts of the state.

In the 1920s, roughly 100,000 scrub-jays were counted in Florida. A 1992 Archbold Biological Station census counted 10,000 and in 2011 another count saw a population reduction to 6,000 according to Ralph Risch, a biologist specializing in the species for the Florida Forest Service.

"Fred has a pervasive and infectious passion for the Florida Scrub-Jay. I cannot remember not being with Fred when he didn't start talking about his love for this bird and his views on how he can help to preserve and protect it," he says. Ralph first met Fred in 2006 when he was setting up survey points for the first Jay Watch on Fred's property. Jay Watch is a volunteer organization that surveys populations each year.

Initially the citrus industry displaced scrub; now development encroaches. Decades of fire suppression has left the remaining scrub too overgrown for the jays to forage and reproduce successfully. "At this point every little bit of scrub we can get is critical, and Fred's property is so important because it creates a habitat corridor," Ralph says. For the long-term survival of a Florida scrub-jay population, the species requires 750 acres of contiguous scrub. The juvenile females must disperse to form new families, and they need somewhere to go. Scrub-jays do better with multiple territories next to each other. Even though they fight, he says, they also cooperate, like a neighborhood.

Each morning the jays go out and taunt each other, flying along the borders of each other's territory and verbally sparring. One bird at a time from each family group stands "sentinel," looking for predators and gives an alarm call to alert the rest of the group. Two different alarm calls distinguish between aerial predators and ground predators. When the sentinel gets hungry and flies down to feed, another well-fed bird immediately takes its place. But if a Cooper's hawk or snake approaches, they all gang up on it. Everyone cooperates to drive an intruder out of their territory, Ralph says.

"It is easy to anthropomorphize the scrub-jay. They behave very much like humans," he says.

Ralph has observed three families go together as a group to a horse trough on the Seminole State Forest to bathe, standing guard while each takes a bath. When they have all had a turn, they go home.

Scrub-jays have astonishing memories. Each will store 6,000 to 9,000 acorns individually in the sand and mark every location with a pebble, leaf or twig to find later in the winter. And they do, recovering more than half. Its curiosity and fearlessness makes it easily hand tamed. "It isn't unusual for one to spontaneously decide to land on your head," Ralph says.

The male and female scrub-jays look alike to the human eye, but their plumage reflects colors in the ultraviolet spectrum, which birds see. In the UV spectrum males and females look very different. The best way to spot a female is her call: a fast hiccup sound, which varies with each population.

Not very good flyers, they hop between scrub bushes and walk. "It's an endearing bird because it has such a personality. People love it and want to protect it," Ralph says.

Home Sweet Home

What is prime scrub-jay real estate? Three scrubby oak species make up 67 percent of the plant community: 34 percent sand live oak, 26 percent myrtle oak and 7 percent Chapmans oak.

Florida scrub-jays build their nests in these oaks, preferring Chapman's or sand live oak with various vine species growing over and through the branches to provide a screen for nests. Saw palmetto, rusty lyonia, silk bay and sand pine comprise the rest of the vegetation.

Density is important. Jays flourish in small oak clumps standing about waist high interspersed between diverse vegetation with open sand comprising one-third of the space. These open areas allow the jays to see their predators while the clumps make it difficult for snakes to find the nests. Black racers, yellow rat snakes, red rat snakes and eastern coach-whip snakes seek out the jays and their nests, along with crows, hawks and the occasional raccoon and possum.

Scrub is fire dependent. It must be chopped or burned or both for the jays to use, preferably every eight to 16 years, depending on how fast it grows. "You have to treat it. If you just let it sit, or prevent it from burning naturally, its scrub-jays will go extinct," Ralph says.

Chopping and burning is what Fred is doing. District Conservationist Suzy Daubert is helping Fred restore the scrub with financial and technical assistance through the Working Lands for Wildlife and Conservation Stewardship programs through USDA's Natural Resource Conservation Service.

"Suzy—I can't say enough about her, for the plans she puts together and work she does," Fred says.

Jay Watch

Every July Jay Watch volunteers and field biologists survey populations with Fred on his property.

Beginning an hour after dawn when the jays are most active, Logan McDonald, regional volunteer coordinator for Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission, stops at a site marked with a pink ribbon tied to a scrub oak and holds a speaker aloft playing scrub jay calls for a full minute. She and volunteers wait two. If they don't spot any jays, she repeats the process two more times.

When jays respond, volunteers record the number of adults and juveniles, the colors of bands if they have them and their behavior. Over three days McDonald and volunteers monitored 13 survey points marking known scrub-jay family territories.

This is the 12th year Jay Watch has done a count on Fred's property.

There were hardly any scrub-jays when Fred moved there.

Last year they identified three family groups, adults with juveniles.

This year Jay Watch observed four families on Fred's land.

Land managers use the survey results to determine trends in populations and identify where to improve their habitat.

The Nature Conservancy began Jay Watch in 2002, with Audubon Florida taking the lead in 2010.

Reed Bowman, Ph.D. research director of avian ecology at Archbold Biological Station has dedicated his career to the Florida scrub-jay.

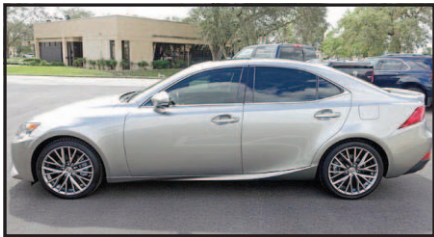

Next year is the 50th anniversary of researching and monitoring the scrub jay population on Archbold, where 120 families are located.

Reed has been part of that study since 1990. "They had me when the first jay landed on my shoulder," he says.

Palestinians burn a poster of U.S. President Donald Trump and a representation of an American flag, during a protest against the U.S. decision to recognize Jerusalem as Israel's capital, in Gaza City Thursday, Dec. 7.

Palestinians protest Trump move, more unrest feared

By JOSEF FEDERMAN

JERUSALEM — Thousands of Palestinian protesters clashed with Israeli forces in east Jerusalem and the West Bank, demonstrators in the Gaza Strip burned U.S. flags and pictures of President Donald Trump, and a top Palestinian official said Vice President Mike Pence would not be welcome in the West Bank, in a show of rage Thursday over the American decision to recognize Jerusalem as Israel's capital.

Israeli forces were bracing for the possibility of even stronger violence on Friday, when tens of thousands of Palestinians attend weekly prayers at Jerusalem's Al Aqsa Mosque, the city's most sacred Islamic site. In Gaza, the supreme leader of the Hamas militant group called on Palestinians to launch a new uprising against Israel.

The Palestinians were blindsided by Trump's move to depart from decades of U.S. policy on Jerusalem and upend longstanding international assurances that the fate of the city would be determined in negotiations.

The Palestinians seek east Jerusalem, captured by Israel in 1967, as their capital. Israel claims the entire city, including east Jerusalem, home to sensitive Jewish, Muslim and Christian holy sites, as its undivided capital. The opposing claims lie at the heart of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and have often spilled over into deadly violence.

The Palestinians declared three "days of rage," shuttering schools and businesses, and staging angry demonstrations at Damascus Gate, one of the entrances to Jerusalem's Old City, and cities across the West Bank and Gaza.

Al Franken says he will resign from the Senate

By CATHLEEN DECKER
LOS ANGELES TIMES

WASHINGTON — Al Franken announced Thursday he will resign his Senate seat, falling to a whirlwind of sexual misconduct allegations like those that have enmeshed other politicians, business leaders and media figures across the country in recent months.

The Minnesota Democrat, a second-term senator once seen as a potential presidential candidate in 2020 or beyond, earlier had said he would not leave office but would submit to a Senate ethics investigation into his behavior. He had acknowledged some misconduct, but denied other allegations.

His fate appeared sealed, however, on Wednesday, when more than half of Senate Democrats issued calls for his resignation in an uprising led by female senators. The choreographed move came as yet another woman came forward to accuse Franken of unwanted advances before he was elected to the Senate, and Senate Democratic leader Charles E. Schumer of New York privately met with Franken to tell him the time had come to quit.

Franken's announcement marked the second departure this week of a once-heralded Democrat caught in unsavory accusations. On Tuesday, the senior member of the House, Rep. John Conyers Jr. of Michigan, quit after multiple complaints by aides that he had sexually harassed them.

The departure marks the end of the legislative career that began when Franken squeaked into office on an exceptionally narrow win, was reelected more easily and had emerged as a well-regarded

Michigan doctor gets 60-year prison sentence

ASSOCIATED PRESS

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — A former elite sports doctor whose sexual assault cases have rocked Michigan State University and the group that trains U.S. Olympic gymnasts was sentenced Thursday to 60 years in federal prison for possessing thousands of images of child pornography.

It's the first of three prison sentences for Larry Nassar, who will learn his punishment in state court in January after pleading guilty to using his hands to molest girls at his campus office, his home and at a gymnastics club near Lansing, Michigan, sometimes with parents in the room.

McKayla Maroney, a member of the 2012 gold medal Olympic team, attended the court hearing after describing Nassar as a "monster" in a letter to U.S. District Judge Janet Nassar said he has an addiction.

Town known as 'Shangri-La' threatened by California fire

By BRIAN SKOLOFF and AMANDA LEE MYERS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

OJAI, Calif. — The biggest and most destructive of the windblown fires raking Southern California shut down one of the region's busiest freeways Thursday and threatened Ojai, a scenic mountain town dubbed "Shangri-La" and known for its boutique hotels and New Age spiritual retreats.

Most of Ojai's 7,000 residents were warned to clear out late Wednesday and patients unable to walk were moved from the Ojai Valley Community Hospital because of unprecedented, hurricane-force Santa Ana winds in the overnight forecast.

The winds turned out to be less fierce than expected, but firefighters still had to contend with gusts that fanned the fire to 150 square miles and put thousands of homes in jeopardy.

and three major fires in the Los Angeles area, a blaze in rural San Diego County grew rapidly to 1,000 acres in hours.

Two people were burned in the blaze that destroyed five buildings and threatened 1,000 others around Bonsall, a small picturesque hilly community known for its equestrian facilities.

Along the coast between Ventura and Santa Barbara, tiny beach communities were under siege as fire leapt from steep hillsides across U.S. Highway 101.

"We drove through a wall of flames," Wendy Frank said, describing her ordeal after evacuating her horses from Ojai on Wednesday night. "I didn't know if we'd make it. I just put the accelerator down. I know we were going over 100 mph, we could have been going much more, and just hoped for the best."

House speaker backs tougher texting while driving law

By LLOYD DUNKELBERGER
THE NEWS SERVICE OF FLORIDA

TALLAHASSEE — Texting while driving would become a “primary” traffic offense under legislation backed by House Speaker Richard Corcoran.

The legislation, expected to be unveiled Wednesday, would allow law-enforcement officers to pull over motorists if they see them texting or emailing. Currently, texting while driving is a secondary offense, meaning officers can only charge motorists with texting violations during traffic stops for other offenses, such as speeding.

Corcoran said in an interview Tuesday that as the father of six children, including two teens who have driver licenses, he has become convinced by statistics showing the dangers of texting while driving, particularly for younger drivers.

“The statistics have just become overwhelming. This has reached a national crisis,” Corcoran, R-Land O’ Lakes, said.

The state Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles reported nearly 50,000 distracted driving crashes in Florida in 2016, including 233 deaths.

“You see the under-30 population are the greatest violators of engaging in texting and driving behavior,” Corcoran said. “All of us have driven down the road and looked over to the car next to us and watched them fully engaged in email or texting. It has reached an epidemic.”

Corcoran’s support is significant because it makes the legislation much more viable during the upcoming 2018 session, after similar proposals failed to make it through the Legislature in past sessions.

The new House bill will be a variation of legislation already filed in the House (HB 121) by Rep. Emily Slosberg, D-Boca Raton, and a Senate measure (SB 90), sponsored by Sen. Keith Perry, R-Gainesville.

Corcoran said the new bill will be co-sponsored by Slosberg, who was injured in a 1996 crash that killed her twin sister along with four other teenagers, and Rep. Jackie Toledo, R-Tampa. Slosberg’s father, former Rep. Irv Slosberg, D-Boca Raton, led an effort to make violations of the state seat-belt law a primary traffic violation.

While making it easier for law enforcement officers to pull over motorists for texting, Corcoran said the bill would still protect “civil liberties.”

Motorists would not have to turn over their phones until warrants are issued. And motorists could not be detained while authorities seek warrants.

Officers would “have to witness the event, issue the ticket, and then that person is entitled to their day in court,” Corcoran said.

Under the texting-while-driving bill, first-time violators would face a $30 fine plus court costs for a non-moving violation. Second-time offenders would face a $60 fine plus court costs with a moving violation.

The bill would include additional penalties for texting violations for motorists involved in crashes and while driving through school zones, Corcoran said.

At least 39 states make texting while driving a primary traffic offense.

Florida police shoot, kill suicidal 71-year-old man

CORAL SPRINGS (AP) — Police say officers shot and killed a suicidal 71-year-old man who came out of his home in Florida and refused commands to drop his shotgun.

The Broward Sheriff’s Office said in a news release that Coral Springs police received notification Wednesday that Roger Page was threatening suicide and that he had weapons inside this home in a Fort Lauderdale suburb.

The SWAT team responded to the home and negotiators were able to get him to come out of his house. He was shot by two officers when he refused commands to drop his weapon.

He died at the scene. No officers were injured. The names of the officers weren’t released.

The sheriff’s office is investigating. No additional details were available.

Pedestrian fatally struck by freight train in Florida

OAKLAND PARK (AP) — A freight train fatally struck a pedestrian in Florida.

The Broward Sheriff’s Office said in a news release that the crash happened early Thursday morning in Oakland Park, which is north of Fort Lauderdale.

The crash caused traffic to snarl in the area and is also affecting passengers on a commuter train, which shares the track with the CSX train.

Additional details

Authorities confiscate 41 dogs amid investigation

DELTONA (AP) — Three Florida residents are under investigation after authorities confiscated 41 dogs from two locations.

The Daytona Beach News-Journal reported Wednesday the city of Deltona is investigating whether or not three people violated a city cruelty to animals ordinance. No one has been charged.

Deltona spokesman Lee Lopez said that after a monthlong investigation into complaints of sick pedigree dogs being sold, animal control officers on Monday confiscated 33 adult dogs and eight puppies from two locations.

Lopez told the newspaper that one resident was breeding and selling sick Yorkshire terriers, Pomeranians and Yorkie-Pom mixes both domestically and internationally. He said some of the puppies were sold for $1,000 each.

The dogs were all taken to Halifax Humane Society in Daytona Beach to be examined for health issues.

White ex-cop gets 20 years for Walter Scott slaying

By MEG KINNARD
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLESTON, S.C. — One by one, relatives of the late Walter Scott urged a judge to mete out a significant punishment for Michael Slager, the white former police officer who fatally shot Scott, an unarmed black man, in the back after a 2015 traffic stop.

Through tears, Scott's family told Slager they felt sorrow for him and the loss his young children would feel in his absence. In the end, a judge sentenced Slager to 20 years in prison, giving the Scott family the justice they had sought ever since a stranger came to them with the shocking video of Scott being killed.

"I forgive Michael Slager. I forgive you," Scott's mother, Judy, said as she turned toward her son's killer. "I pray for you, that you would repent and let Jesus come in your life."

Sitting just a few feet away, Slager wiped tears from his eyes and mouthed: "I'm sorry."

The punishment wrapped up a case that became a rallying cry for the Black Lives Matter movement. Slager, 36, is one of only a few police officers to go to prison for a fatal shooting, and his sentence is by far the stiffest since the shootings came under extra scrutiny in recent years.

Attorneys for the former North Charleston officer said he shot the 50-year-old Scott in self-defense after the two fought and Scott grabbed Slager's stun gun. They said race didn't play a role in the shooting and Slager never had any "racial animus" toward minorities.

Still, Slager pleaded guilty in federal court to violating Scott's civil rights. As part of a plea agreement reached in May, prosecutors dropped state murder charges.

"This is a tragedy that shouldn't have happened," U.S. District Judge David Norton said.

Slager apologized to the Scott family, calling Scott's mother and brothers by their names.

"With my actions that day, Walter Scott is no longer with his family, and I am responsible for that," Slager said. Of their forgiveness, he added: "I am very grateful for that."

Slager's emotions stood in stark contrast to his stoic demeanor during his state murder trial when jurors deadlocked over a verdict. He has several weeks to appeal his sentence and will be housed at the Charleston County jail until he's assigned to a federal prison.

After the sentencing, Judy Scott and Walter's two brothers told reporters that, while they had made peace with the case, they remained adamant the officer should pay for his crime.

"Who are we not to forgive?" Rodney Scott said.

A bystander recorded the shooting on a cell-phone, and it was shared around the world, setting off protests across the U.S. as demonstrators said it was another egregious example of police officers mistreating African-Americans.

Slager fired at Scott's back from 17 feet away. Five of eight bullets hit him.

The video was seized on by many as vivid proof of what they had been arguing for years: that white officers too often use deadly force unnecessarily against black people.

When the jury failed to reach a verdict in the state murder case, many black people and others were shocked and distressed, because the video seemed to some to be an open-and-shut case. Some despaired of ever seeing justice.

The shooting angered local African-Americans who complained for years that North Charleston police harassed blacks, pulling them over or questioning them unnecessarily as they cracked down on crime. But after the shooting, the Scott family successfully pleaded for calm, asking everyone to let the justice system run its course.

NJ advances bill barring drunken drone flying

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey lawmakers passed legislation that would make it illegal to operate a drone while drunk.

The Democrat-led Senate approved the legislation 39-0 on Thursday.

The National Conference on State Legislatures says at least 38 states are considering drone legislation this year, going beyond the Federal Aviation Administration's regulations.

The New Jersey bill would make operating a drone under the influence of alcohol a disorderly persons offense, which carries a sentence of up to six months in prison, a $1,000 fine or both. It also would make using a drone to hunt wildlife and endanger people or property a similar offense.

The legislation has already cleared a committee in the Democrat-controlled Assembly.

Officials: Prisoner info used to get $580K in US student aid

DENVER (AP) — Prosecutors say an Arizona man has been found guilty of conspiracy to defraud the government after using state prison inmates' information to get more than $580,000 in federal student aid money.

Colorado United States Attorney Bob Troyer said Thursday that a jury convicted Tramell Thomas last month.

Troyer's statement says Tramell and others looked up details about inmates in Arizona, Colorado, Florida, Illinois and Ohio.

Prosecutors say another conspirator worked at a bank and found the inmates' Social Security numbers. The group then filed student aid requests totaling $1.3 million.

The Department of Education paid out about $582,000, including $419,000 in debit cards intended for living expenses.

The rest of the money went to community colleges listed on the aid applications.

Three other people have pleaded guilty to related charges.

Rescuers save Colorado teenager who fell into mine shaft

GOLDEN, Colo.

(AP) — Officials rescued a Colorado teenager Thursday after he fell into an old mine shaft that his friends said he was trying to explore.

Karlynn Tilley, a spokeswoman for the city of Golden Fire Department, said the 15-year-old injured his leg but wasn't otherwise seriously hurt. Video showed rescuers using a system of ropes and pulleys to lift a stretcher holding the teen out of the mine shaft.

Tilley said rescuers found him about 100 feet inside the narrow, jagged mine shaft. It took rescuers about two hours to retrieve the teen, whose name has not been released.

Friends who were with him when he fell told rescuers that a rope snapped while he was trying to explore the mine shaft.

Tilley said the teen was using a nylon rope that wasn't safe for any type of climbing or spelunking and didn't have a helmet or other safety gear. She urged people to use proper equipment and wear protective gear when climbing.

She also urged anyone who finds a collapsed mine shaft to stay away.

"Collapsed mine shafts are extremely dangerous, and no one should attempt to enter them," she said. "Instead, we ask people to report them to authorities."

Tilley said rescuers believe the mine shaft had collapsed recently. It is southeast of the city of Golden, close to a hiking trail.

Congress averts shutdown, sends Trump stopgap spending bill

By ANDREW TAYLOR
and ALAN FRAM
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Congress on Thursday passed a stopgap spending bill to prevent a government shutdown this weekend and buy time for challenging talks on a wide range of unfinished business on Capitol Hill. The shutdown reprieve came as all sides issued optimistic takes on an afternoon White House meeting between top congressional leaders and President Donald Trump. The measure passed the House 235-193, mostly along party lines, and breezed through the Senate on a sweeping 81-14 tally barely an hour later. It would keep the government running through Dec. 22, when another, and more difficult, shutdown problem awaits.

The bill now heads to Trump for his signature.

Topics at the White House session included relief from a budget freeze on the Pentagon and domestic agencies, extending a key children's health program and aid to hurricane-slammed Puerto Rico, Texas and Florida. The trickiest topic, and a top priority for Democrats, involves protections for immigrants brought to the country illegally as children.

These "Dreamer" immigrants are viewed sympathetically by the public and most lawmakers but face deportation in a few months because Trump reversed administrative protections provided to them by former President Barack Obama.

In back-to-back statements, both Democratic and GOP leaders declared the meeting "productive." The White House called it "constructive." Privately, congressional aides said little progress had been made.

"We had a productive conversation on a wide variety of issues. Nothing specific has been agreed to, but discussions continue," said Capitol Hill's top Democrats, Sen. Chuck Schumer of New York and Rep. Nancy Pelosi of California, ticking off a roster of Democratic priorities, including domestic spending increases, funding for veterans and money to battle opioid abuse, immigration and health care.

GOP leaders said they agreed with the need to address immigration, including the almost 1 million immigrants given protections by Obama, many of whom have only known America as their home.

Spokesmen for House Speaker Paul Ryan, R-Wis., and Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., said GOP leaders "stressed the need to address border security, interior enforcement and other parts of our broken immigration system," adding that the tricky immigration issue "should be a separate process and not used to hold hostage funding for our men and women in uniform."

Negotiations are sure to be challenging. Pelosi staked out a hard line Thursday and insisted that any year-end deal solve the immigration issue.

Pelosi told reporters before the meeting that "we will not leave here" without helping the "Dreamers." Her stance was noteworthy because GOP leaders are likely to require Democratic votes for the pre-Christmas spending bill.

The White House said "negotiations on immigration should be held separately on a different track" and not slow down funding increases for the Pentagon.

Jerusalem, the capital for the Palestinian people," declared Rania Hatem, a protester outside the Old City.

The Israeli military reported demonstrations in some 30 locations across the West Bank on Thursday, saying Palestinians had hurled stones and firebombs at troops. A military official, speaking on condition of anonymity under briefing guidelines, said troops were instructed to use minimal force and avoid live fire to avoid escalating tensions.

In the West Bank, troops fired water cannons and tear gas to disperse a crowd in Bethlehem, the biblical town of Jesus' birth, just weeks before thousands of foreign tourists are expected to visit for Christmas celebrations. In Ramallah, the seat of the Palestinian government, protesters set tires on fire, sending thick plumes of black smoke over the city.

Palestinian officials said dozens of protesters were slightly wounded, most from tear gas inhalation.

Spontaneous protests also took place in Gaza, with angry youths burning tires, American and Israeli flags and Trump posters.

A senior Palestinian official said the Palestinians would not meet with Pence during his visit to the region later this month when Pence is expected to visit Israel and make a stop in the Palestinian city of Bethlehem. "We will not receive him in the Palestinian territories," said the official, Jibril Rajoub.

However, a White House official said Pence still plans to meet with Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas as scheduled and said it would be "counterproductive" to cancel. The official spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss upcoming plans.

Israeli security officials were preparing for more unrest on Friday. In a pre-emptive move, the military said it would deploy several battalions to the West Bank, while other troops were put on alert.

Israeli officials said Friday prayers at the Al Aqsa Mosque, along with the expected unrest in the West Bank, would set the tone for the coming days.

Palestinian officials in the West Bank said they had no interest in bloody violence but warned that individual attacks were possible.

Israeli police were considering whether to impose age restrictions on worshippers at Friday's prayers, but as of Thursday evening, had made no changes.

In Gaza, Ismail Haniyeh, the Hamas supreme leader, called on Palestinians to launch a new uprising. "We want the uprising to last and continue to let Trump and the occupation regret this decision," he said.

member of the party's growing liberal wing.

Franken's resignation will not change the balance of power in the Senate, where Republicans hold the majority with 52 seats. Minnesota Gov. Mark Dayton, a fellow Democrat, will appoint a replacement to serve until a special election can be held in November 2018. The winner of that election will hold the seat until what would have been the end of Franken's second term, in January 2021.

Franken had recent star turns on Capitol Hill: It was his questioning of then-Sen. Jeff Sessions at Sessions' nomination hearing in early 2017 to become attorney general that spurred the Alabamian to assert that neither he nor others on the Trump campaign had any conversations with Russian officials during the campaign. That has been shown to be false. Sessions and Franken had another televised go-around at a hearing last month that centered on Russia's involvement in the election.

A politician with an unusual entree into politics — an occasionally raunchy comedy career that included his years on "Saturday Night Live" — Franken's fall was as swift as his rise.

The first claim against him came from Los Angeles radio host Leeann Tweeden, who on Nov. 16 accused him of aggressively kissing and groping her during a 2006 USO tour of the Mideast in which the two worked as performers. She also made public a picture taken of Franken with his hands outstretched near her breasts while she slept on a military plane as the performers returned from overseas, as if mocking the act of groping her.

Franken issued two statements apologizing to Tweeden and expressing disappointment with his own actions.

"I respect women. I don't respect men who don't," Franken said. "And the fact that my own actions have given people a good reason to doubt that makes me feel ashamed."

Four days later, a woman named Lindsay Menz said that Franken placed his hand on her buttocks as they posed for a picture at the Minnesota state fair in 2010, when he was a senator.

Franken, in a statement, said that he had taken thousands of pictures at the fair and did not specifically remember Menz. He was sorry that she felt "disrespected," he said.

Additional accusations continued through Wednesday, when Politico reported that a former congressional aide had come forward to claim that Franken had kissed her when she accompanied her boss to an appearance on Franken's radio show in 2006. The incident, like Tweeden's, occurred before Franken was elected senator.

to try to better myself."

Neff followed the government's recommended sentence, saying Nassar "should never again have access to children."

She said the federal sentence won't start until he completes his sentences for assault, which effectively means the 54-year-old won't be free again. Nassar faces at least 25 years in prison in the other cases.

"He's devastated, obviously," defense attorney Matthew Newburg said outside court.

The child porn was discovered last year. Nassar acknowledged that he dumped computer hard drives and paid $49 to have a laptop's memory wiped clean to try to outfox police. The hard drives were found by investigators because the trash truck on his street was late.

The courtroom was filled with many women who said they were assaulted years earlier by Nassar. In her letter to the judge, Maroney said she was assaulted in Texas, London and Tokyo.

"She has transformed from a bubbly, positive, loving, world-class athlete into a young adult who was deeply depressed, at times suicidal and essentially descended into an emotional abyss," Maroney's mother, Erin Maroney, said in a separate letter.

Beyond the criminal cases, more than 100 women and girls are suing Nassar. Michigan State and USA Gymnastics also are defendants in many cases.

In a statement, Michigan State said the 60-year sentence "represents another important step toward justice for the victims." But victims and lawyers have been deeply critical of the school, claiming campus officials failed to recognize years ago that Nassar was a threat.

John Manly, an attorney representing many women and girls in lawsuits, said negotiations with Michigan State and a mediator failed to lead to an agreement this week. The university declined to comment on the litigation but said it "unequivocally denies" any suggestion of a cover-up.

"MSU trustees and other high-ranking officials have characterized all of us as ambulance chasers looking for a payday," Rachael Denhollander of Louisville, Kentucky, said at a news conference after the court hearing.

Nassar has admitted assaulting Denhollander when she was a teenager in 2000.

FIRE

Fires flared up Thursday along the highway, forcing an evacuation of the dozens of homes at Faria Beach.

"Anyone in your homes still, you need to leave now," a California Highway Patrol officer said through a loud-speaker while driving down a smoke-shrouded street. "The fire is here, you need to leave."

Joseph Ruffner had left earlier in the week but returned and said he was staying put this time.

"This morning there was a wall of fire back right over here," he said. "I didn't think it was no big deal, but it's coming back to burn what it didn't burn yesterday."

The highway, which runs the length of the state and is a major commuter corridor to Los Angeles, was closed intermittently along the 28-mile stretch between Ventura and Santa Barbara.

The Ventura and LA-area fires have put tens of thousands of people under evacuation orders and destroyed nearly 200 homes and buildings, a figure almost certain to rise.

A woman was found dead in a wrecked car in an evacuation zone near the city of Santa Paula, where the Ventura County blaze began Monday night, but officials could not immediately say whether the accident was fire-related.

In Ojai, the normally bustling town was practically vacant as an ominous dark plume hovered high above and flames glowed in the hills. Known as "Shangri-La," both for its role as the stand-in for a Himalayan utopia in the 1937 Frank Capra movie "Lost Horizon" and for the magical vibe it is said to have, the town has attracted artists, hippies and spiritual thinkers for generations.

Ash fell like snowflakes on citrus orchards scattered around town and on Spanish-style architecture as fire-fighters parked their trucks around houses in anticipation of winds picking back up.

Some businesses were closed, but staples could be found at Pat's Liquor, where Hank Cheyne-Garcia loaded up with supplies to fuel through another edgy night keeping sentry on the fire.

"It got a little too intense yesterday with the wind kicking up," he said.

Bigfoot sculpture erected where some search for creature

WHITEHALL, N.Y. (AP) — A nearly 12-foot-tall sculpture of Bigfoot has been erected in an upstate New York town where some say the legendary creature stalks the woods.

Paul Thompson told The Post-Star of Glens Falls that he got the idea for the statue after meeting people looking for Bigfoot around Whitehall, New York, located on the Vermont border between the Adirondacks and the Green Mountains.

Thompson paid a local artist for an 11-foot-8-inch-high, half-ton steel sculpture that depicts Bigfoot in full stride. He placed the sculpture in front of his business, the Vermont Marble, Granite, Slate & Soapstone Co.

Bigfoot's head is covered with a large red-and-white Santa Claus hat.

Thompson says people driving by have pulled over to get a better look at the towering ape-like figure since its unveiling Saturday.

Blood pressures in arms don't have to match, but should be close

DEAR DR. ROACH: At a routine follow-up at my doctor's office, the nurse took my blood pressure on my left arm, and it was 143/73. This seemed high, so I asked her to check it on my right arm. It was 104/62 on that arm. She said she had never seen anything like that. Is there a logical reason or explanation for this? — L.B.

Dr. Roach

ANSWER: There are several possibilities for having different blood pressures in the arms, all with logical explanations. The first to come to mind is not the most common in adults, but one we are taught to look for, called coarctation of the aorta. This is a congenital heart defect where there is a narrowing of the aorta (the main blood vessel that comes straight out of the left ventricle). It can occur in the area between where the blood vessels for the left and right arms originate. It usually is found in children, but sometimes can be missed until adulthood. However, since the right side originates closer to the heart than the left, it's the left side that should have lower blood pressure.

A blockage in the artery going to the arm (there are three: the brachiocephalic, subclavian and brachial arteries; the larger ones, listed first, divide into the smaller ones) can reduce the blood pressure in one arm. An inflammatory disease of the blood vessel, Takayasu arteritis, can preferentially affect one limb, so it's important to measure blood pressures in both arms and legs if concerned about this diagnosis.

However, it is prudent to be sure about the measurements before either getting worried or embarking on a search for these conditions. Blood pressure can change suddenly. I recommend carefully measuring the blood pressure three times in each arm and comparing the average of each arm's values against the other. A difference of five to at most 10 points is normal; more than 10 is not normal.

DEAR DR. ROACH: In a recent column, a 63-year-old woman complained about her eyebrows starting to disappear at the outer edges. The same thing happened to me (I am about the same age). My blood tests were normal. I think for many, it's simply aging. I disliked it so much that I tried Latisse, which many people use for eyelashes. One drop each night, and my eyebrows are back, as though I were a 20-year-old. — A.K.M.

ANSWER: As an internist, I think about what skin, nail and hair problems may mean as far as diagnosing medical problems. That's why I recommend evaluation of the thyroid gland — loss of the outer part of the eyebrow can be a clue to this important problem. However, I recognize that it can be a cosmetic issue as well.

Bimatoprost (Latisse) is a prescription medication indicated for people with decreased eyelash volume. I have found case reports and anecdotal evidence that it is effective for eyebrows as well. This is an off-label use of the medication. It is expensive, on the order of $140 per bottle at the time I write this, and might not be covered by insurance for this purpose. Any improvement in eyebrows is likely to go away when the use of the product is stopped.

READERS: The booklet on back problems gives an outline of the causes of and treatments for the more-common back maladies. Readers can order a copy by writing: Dr. Roach, Book No. 303, 628 Virginia Dr., Orlando, FL 32803. Enclose a check or money order for $4.75 U.S./$6 Can. with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Q: Who tries things a thousand unsuccessful ways before getting one winner? A: Winners. You're attempting something that's not guaranteed, and easy results are not a part of this endeavor, but keep going anyway.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20). The aim is to make decisions based on your vision for your life, not the moment-to-moment minutiae of moods. This is made much easier when it's a strong, juicy vision. You'll work on that today.
GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Some will be very aware of rank and order and who's coming in first place and last place, etc., but you can be assured that your gut feeling on the matter is 100 percent correct: It's not about all that. It's about the work.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Though you'll be tempted to take on a task that is as challenging as it is ridiculous, consider this: Don't teach a pig to sing; it frustrates you and annoys the pig.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Even though you're the cat of the zodiac — i.e., the top predator and, it follows, king of the jungle — you have a merciful side. That's what will come into play today as you walk out of your house more the shepherd than the lion.
VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Everyone has a secret — something to remember when you're bored with social interactions. Persist. Guaranteed, there is something interesting to know here if you hang on and pay attention.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Though it's not wise to measure your progress by someone else's standards, it's also the way the world works, more or less, in the practical order of things. Think about what they'll be judging, and gear up for it.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Are you getting the feeling that the perfectly right moment you're waiting for is never going to happen? Well, you're absolutely right about that. It's information that could also be your golden ticket to move forward regardless.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Since you have baggage around being socially accepted today, you can act out (without trying, because it's just who you are), and you can enjoy the way it pushes everyone's boundaries, including your own.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). To notice then react — this is how an awake world operates. To notice and not react — well, that's the usual. You're different. Prove it today. There's a lot at stake, actually.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You're not so worried about becoming something these days. It's more about un-becoming those things that were imposed on you. Things that served other people's interests, not yours.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You've mined the gold in your mistakes before, but this vein is deeper than you imagined. It's a good time to look back and consider how you might have done it differently, and how you'll do it next time.
TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Dec. 8). You don't shy away from goals just because they push you into uncomfortable territory. You know what's worth doing, and that will be the guiding principle of this solar return. There's a favorable change in February bonding you with another. You'll continue along a path of beautiful vistas and beatific scenery. Cancer and Virgo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 6, 3, 8, 38 and 4.

BIBLE

"But he that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord. For not he that commendeth himself is approved, but whom the Lord commendeth." — 2 Corinthians 10:17, 18.

You can depend on the Lord to give a fair appraisal and a final and just reward. All He requires of us is to be faithful not successful. "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life."

Expectation of an early death puts man's life in a tailspin

DEAR ABBY: I spent an evening with a guy I've been wanting to date for some time. After a few drinks he confided to me that he has a serious heart condition. He said he doesn't expect to live past age 23 and he could die any day.

Dear Abby

I don't know the details of his condition, but I'm sure he believes what he told me. Because of this his life has taken a downward spiral. He has been drinking a lot, failed multiple classes last semester and feels like studying is futile if he may only live a year after graduating.

For lack of evidence to the contrary, I accepted his statement as accurate. I don't think he'd make up something like that. What can I say or do to show my support? How can I encourage him not to give up on his dreams and his goals? He's only 19. How can I be strong for him?

Since he told me about his heart I haven't been able to think about anything else. I don't know how to process this information. How do you comfort someone you care about who's facing mortality at such a young age? — BROKENHEARTED GUY IN THE SOUTH

DEAR BROKENHEARTED GUY: If you want to be a friend to this young man, ask how many doctors have told him about his poor prognosis. If the answer is only one, urge him to get a second opinion because there are medical advances in cardiology happening every day, and he may not be nearly as close to the end as he fears.

You say he's still in school. Suggest he talk to someone at the student health center about his depression because it is interfering with his grades. And while you're at it, suggest he stop drinking and neglecting his studies because, in the end, he might LIVE.

DEAR ABBY: My best friend of more than 20 years is a busy person. She has a demanding job, a husband, two children and extended family she cooks for on most holidays. She also cares for an elderly distant relative. She has a heart of gold and is wonderful to me and my family.

When I'm invited to her house for dinner, she refuses to let me help her clear the table. I'm not happy with that, but I accept it. The problem arises when I invite her over for dinner. Because we don't get to visit often, I'll pile the dishes in the kitchen so I can spend time with her and wash them later. But she cannot sit still and just have a conversation with me or anybody. You will find her in the kitchen scraping plates, soaking pans and hand-washing the wine glasses.

This has become a point of contention because I like to unwind and clean my kitchen after my guests have left. I have tried working with her, but she prefers to power through the mess by herself, which gives us less time to sit and talk. How can I get through to her? — ANXIOUS IN NEW YORK

DEAR ANXIOUS: Assuming that you have spoken to your friend more than once about this, I think it's time to accept her the way she is, rather than the way you would like her to be. Some people are unable (notice I didn't say unwilling) to just sit still and have a conversation, and she appears to be one of them. If this is her only flaw, consider yourself blessed to have a sparkling kitchen when she leaves.

The basics of 'travel wear'

Dear Heloise: I have a suggestion for young travelers: Pick out one basic color when planning your travel wardrobe, such as gray, black, brown or even navy, and build around that one color. I use black — black jeans with a red or white blouse, maybe a black sweater and a white one, a black pencil skirt and black low-heeled shoes. You can switch your clothing around to create new looks every day as long as you stick to one basic color. — Emma G., Bakersfield, Calif.

Hints from Heloise

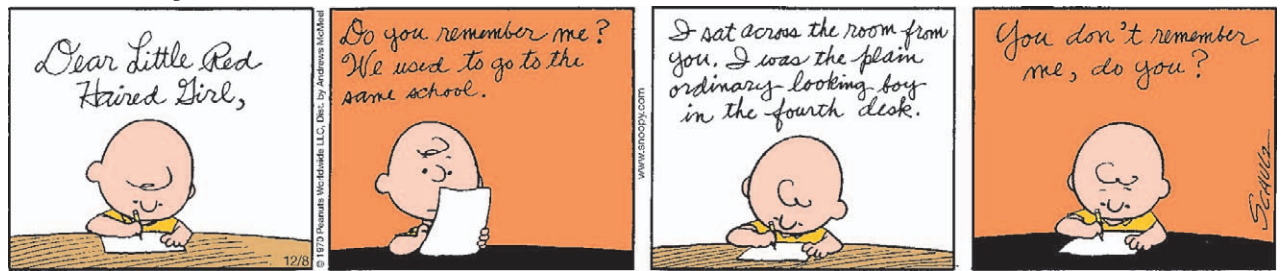

Spread the news

Dear Heloise: I have a suggestion I'd like to pass on for those who travel: Let a close relative or friend know when you're leaving and when you'll be returning, and, if possible, leave a phone number where you can be reached. My dad passed away when I was out of town, and no one had a way to reach me. My brother had to handle everything, and I never got to say goodbye to my Dad. — Lorrie S., Benbrook, Texas

Rolling along
Dear Heloise: I have kitties, so I use a lint roller a lot. Each time after removing the used sheet on the lint roller, I turn up a small corner to make it easier to find the place to remove the next sheet. I enjoy your column and have found many great hints! — Martha Q., Villa Park, Calif.

Going solo
Dear Heloise: I've been invited to a wedding on New Year's Eve. It sounds like fun, and I really like the couple, but the invitation was addressed only to me, not to me plus one. That means I can't bring my date. How can I ask if my girlfriend can come with me? Or is that a no-no? — Greg L., Slidell, La.

Three no trump was the popular contract when this deal was played at a tournament some years ago. 11 tricks would have been easy in a heart contract, but that was too difficult to bid. Most declarers won the first or second spade, depending on East's play at trick one, and crossed to dummy in clubs. They led a diamond to their jack and lost that trick plus four spades to finish down one.

The few successful declarers took some time after winning the spade to consider what they knew about the hand. The opening lead made it look like East started with five spades. East surely had the ace of hearts for his opening bid, and probably the queen of diamonds as well. What would East have to discard if South ran his club suit right away? Assuming East played the jack of spades at trick one, he would have to come down to seven cards. He would have to keep all four of his remaining spades, or it would be safe for South to knock out the ace of hearts. He would also have to keep the ace of hearts, which meant that he could only keep two diamonds. The diamond finesse, at that point, would not be necessary.

Declarer cashed all five of his club winners. This left him with no entry to dummy, but that didn't matter. He saw East discard one heart and three diamonds. South cashed the ace and king of diamonds and claimed his contract when the queen fell from West. Well done!

UN condemns 'heinous' sale of migrants as slaves

By EDITH M. LEDERER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

UNITED NATIONS — The U.N. Security Council on Thursday condemned the sale of African migrants into slavery in Libya as "heinous abuses of human rights" that may constitute crimes against humanity.

A presidential statement approved by all 15 council members and read at an open meeting called for speedy investigation to bring the perpetrators to justice.

The statement comes after an emergency council meeting on Nov. 28 held amid global outrage over CNN video showing African men being sold at a slave market in Libya.

The Security Council urged Libyan authorities and all U.N. member states to comply with their obligations under international law, including respect for the rights of migrants.

Britain's deputy U.N. ambassador, Jonathan Allen, said the council welcomes that Libya is "making strong efforts to resolve this individual case but the council statement makes clear that we need to do more to support Libya."

He said the British-drafted presidential statement marks a rare focus on slavery in a specific country.

U.S. Ambassador Nikki Haley said in a statement

National Emergency Management Agency officials register Nigerian returnees from Libya upon arrival at the Murtala Muhammed International Airport in Lagos, Nigeria, Tuesday, Dec. 5. Hundreds of Nigerians arrived in Lagos on Tuesday, having been repatriated from Libya by the African Union (AU) amid outrage over recent footage that showed migrants being auctioned off as slaves.

that "the United States denounces modern slavery in all its forms and will continue to work with the international community to eradicate it from the globe."

"All countries must do everything they can to end this barbaric practice," she said.

The presidential statement urges local and regional authorities to fight human trafficking and calls for close cooperation with Libyan authorities.

William Lacy Swing, the head of the U.N. migration agency, told the council Nov. 28 that as part of an effort to tackle smuggling and enslaving of migrants, the United Nations planned to try to empty government-controlled detention centers in Libya holding about 15,000 people.

But he cautioned that emptying the 30 or so centers would not end the problem because some Libyan militias also have detention centers.

Libya fell into chaos after the ouster and killing of longtime dictator Moammar Gadhafi in 2011. Since 2014, the oil-rich country has been split between rival governments and parliaments based in the western and eastern regions, each backed by different militias and tribes.

A U.N.-brokered deal in December 2015 to create a unity government failed, though talks have been taking place to form an administration to lead the country ahead of elections.

The Security Council statement calls on all Libyans to support the political process, saying that "a stable Libya is the only way to help improve the living condition of all people in Libya, including migrants."

Canada-US trade deal possible if NAFTA fails

By CHRIS FOURNIER
BLOOMBERG NEWS

GUANGZHOU, China — Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau said he would consider one-on-one talks with the U.S. on trade, if negotiations to update the North American Free Trade Agreement fail.

"We will always look at different opportunities," Trudeau said this week in response to a question about a two-way U.S. trade deal at the Fortune Global Forum in China.

"We're ready for anything, when things come forward. The new administration has shown a willingness to disrupt the patterns of past behavior and look for new models, and we're willing to entertain next steps forward."

The prime minister, who was in the southern Chinese city of Guangzhou to wrap up a five-day visit, said the 23-year-old NAFTA "needs to be updated" and warned that canceling the pact would harm Canadians. "We're still very confident in the kinds of support and response that we've gotten from friends, partners, colleagues in the U.S. who recognize that trade is a powerful driver of growth and benefit to citizens," he said.

While the Canadian government has repeatedly said it was committed to working with Mexico to renew NAFTA, officials have sometimes signaled a willingness to consider a two-way pact of the kind U.S. President Donald Trump prefers.

Trump has threatened to scrap NAFTA, which underpins $1.2 trillion of trade, if the other two signatories don't accept proposals that the administration argues will reduce U.S. trade deficits.

Canada and the U.S. had a bilateral trade deal that was superseded and suspended by NAFTA. Canada's chief NAFTA negotiator told lawmakers this week that the old agreement would kick in again if NAFTA failed, although would have to be re-implemented.

Weekend of Paris tributes for late rock star Johnny Hallyday

By SYLVIE CORBET
ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS — French President Emmanuel Macron and hundreds of thousands of fans are expected to pay tribute to the late French rock star Johnny Hallyday on Saturday as his funeral procession weaves through Paris.

Hallyday died Wednesday at age 74. The news has prompted a wave of emotion in France, where the singer, often described as the country's Elvis Presley, seduced generations of fans.

His funeral procession will start at the Arc de Triomphe monument in Paris and go down the city's grand Champs-Elysees Avenue. Up to 700 bikers will follow the coffin — since motorcycling was Hallyday's great passion.

The singer's band is expected to play some of his hits on a stage in front of the Madeleine Church, where a religious ceremony will follow. Macron plans to make a brief speech during the ceremony. Fans will be able to follow the ceremony on giant screens.

AP PHOTOS

French newspapers with portraits of late rock star Johnny Hallyday are displayed in a street news stand of Paris, France, Thursday, Dec. 7.

Paris police head Michel Delpuech told reporters he expects "hundreds of thousands of people" to attend the tribute. About 1,500 police officers will secure the area.

"Johnny showed deep affection for his public and his fans and I think it's important for people to be allowed to be close to the funeral procession," said Hallyday's manager, Sebastien Farran.

French radio RTL and the Le Parisien newspaper reported that Hallyday will be buried in the French Caribbean island of St. Barts where he owned a house.

Other tributes are planned. The words "Thank you Johnny" will be displayed on the Eiffel Tower over the weekend and all soccer stadiums hosting games in the top two divisions of the French league plan to play Hallyday's songs before kick-off.

The soccer league noted that Hallyday had "lit the fire" among fans in many of its stadiums.

Flowers brought by fans lay outside Johnny Hallyday's house in Marnes-la-Coquette, outside Paris, Thursday, Dec. 7. Johnny Hallyday, France's biggest rock star for more than half a century and an icon who packed sports stadiums and all but lit up the Eiffel Tower with his pumping pelvis and high-voltage tunes, has died. He was 74.

World Bank funds $200M economic project in Western Balkans

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — The World Bank has launched a $200 million project to support economic integration in the Western Balkans.

Bank CEO Kristalina Georgieva told a meeting of leaders in Bulgaria on Thursday that their countries will see transportation costs reduced and trade expanded under the bank-financed project.

Besides Bulgaria, the other countries are Albania, Bosnia, Kosovo, Macedonia, Montenegro and Serbia.

Bulgaria takes over the European Union's rotating presidency next month and has made furthering the Western Balkans' presence in the EU a priority.

Bulgarian Prime Minister Boiko Borisov told fellow leaders: "It is only up to us to demonstrate that the countries of our region bring prosperity rather than problems to the EU."

Trump administration praises Honduras amid election crisis

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — The administration of President Donald Trump is certifying Honduras' progress in protecting human rights and attacking corruption even as the country struggles with a deepening electoral crisis.

The move comes two weeks after a presidential election, but Hondurans still don't know who won. President Juan Orlando Hernandez narrowly leads in the vote tally, but challenger Salvador Nasralla alleges fraud.

Troops and police units are patrolling in the capital and have been accused of killing and wounding demonstrators. Hernandez has declared a dusk-to-dawn curfew and suspended some constitutional rights to tamp down protests.

If accepted by U.S. congressional appropriations committees, the certifications by U.S. Secretary of State Rex Tillerson would ensure that Honduras receives millions of dollars in U.S. funds that are conditional on progress in human rights and corruption.

Liberia court says presidential runoff vote can go ahead

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Liberia's supreme court cleared the way Thursday for the presidential runoff to go forward, saying there was not enough evidence to support allegations of fraud.

The second-round vote between soccer star George Weah and Vice President Joseph Boakai had been put on hold last month after the Liberty Party alleged irregularities in the first round of voting on Oct. 10.

But the court said Thursday those violations were not sufficient to overturn the vote's outcome. The National Elections Commission has been ordered to clean up its voter rolls before the second round can be held.

The court challenge had been raised by the Liberty Party, whose candidate Charles Brumskine had placed third.

Putin to visit Egypt next week

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin says President Vladimir Putin will visit Egypt next week to discuss expanding political, economic, energy and trade ties.

During Monday's trip the Russian leader will hold talks with Egyptian President Abdel-Fattah el-Sissi on issues related to stability and security in the Middle East and North Africa.

Putin's visit follows the Russian government's announcement last week that Moscow and Cairo have drafted an agreement for Russian warplanes to use Egyptian military bases.

The deal comes as part of Moscow's efforts to further expand its military foothold in the region following its military campaign in Syria.

Under el-Sissi, Egypt has expanded military ties with Russia and signed a slew of deals to buy Russian weapons.

Ukraine parliament removes anti-corruption official

KIEV, Ukraine (AP) — Ukraine's parliament has removed the chairman of its anti-corruption committee, a move likely to stoke rising tensions over corruption in the country.

The vote Thursday comes after this week's attempts to arrest former Georgian president Mikheil Saakashvili, who has become a high-profile anti-corruption campaigner in Ukraine. Saakashvili supporters freed him from a police van after he was detained on Tuesday.

The arrest attempt and a police raid on a small supporter tent encampment raised concerns that Ukraine is facing its worst political crisis since the 2014 protests that drove the pro-Russia president out of the country.

The ousted committee head, Yegor Sobolev, said: "The former and present corrupt elite have colluded. Their plan is to break the independence of anti-corruption bodies and replace them with fake ones."

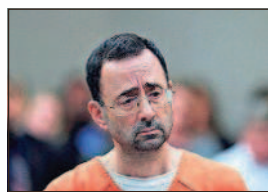

UN says 230 reportedly killed in Yemen in recent conflict

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. humanitarian coordinator in Yemen says some 230 people have reportedly been killed and over 400 injured in six days of intensified conflict in the capital Sanaa.

Jamie McGoldrick told reporters by phone from Sanaa Thursday that a halt to airstrikes and military activity has enabled civilians to venture out to seek supplies and help.

He called the humanitarian situation "desperate" and expressed hope that calls by President Donald Trump, U.N. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres and others to Saudi Arabia to end its blockade immediately will produce results.

McGoldrick said 15 ships with humanitarian aid and commercial cargo are currently in the Red Sea waiting for permission to unload.

Stamkos leads Lightning over Avalanche

By MARK DIDTLER
Associated Press

TAMPA — Steven Stamkos had a goal and two assists, and the Tampa Bay Lightning became the first NHL team with 20 wins by defeating the Colorado Avalanche 5-2 on Thursday night.

Stamkos, who entered with one goal and two assists over his previous eight games, got his 12th goal early in the first. He also assisted on Vladislav Namestnikov's tiebreaking goal at 8:09 of the second and Alex Killorn's third of the season 4:57 into the third.

Chris Kunitz and Brayden Point also scored for the Lightning, and backup Peter Budaj made 28 saves in his fifth game this season.

Colorado left wing Gabriel Landeskog, back in the lineup after serving a four-game suspension for cross-checking Calgary's Matthew Tkachuk in the head on Nov. 25, eluded Nikita Kucherov and scored on his first shift 1:21 into the game.

Erik Johnson also scored for the Avalanche, who were coming off a 1-4 homestand. Semyon Varlamov stopped 27 shots.

Stamkos tied it at 1 on a breakaway just 25 seconds after Landeskog's goal. Killorn scored on a power play, and Point had a short-handed empty-netter late in the third.

Varlamov made a number of big saves during the opening 20 minutes, including one on Point from the low slot when the red goal light was put on in error.

NOTES: Namestnikov added two assists. ... Colorado D Patrik Nemeth returned after missing 12 games with a lower-body injury.

Mayfield named AP Player of the Year

By RALPH D. RUSSO
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Baker Mayfield is The Associated Press college football Player of the Year, becoming the fourth Oklahoma quarterback to win the award since it was established in 1998.

Mayfield easily outpointed Stanford running back Bryce Love, who came in second. Louisville quarterback Lamar Jackson, the other finalist and last year's Heisman Trophy winner, was third in the award announced Thursday.

Mayfield received 51 first-place votes from the 56 AP college football poll voters who submitted player of the year ballots, and a total of 157 points. Love (83 points) and Jackson (39 points) each received two first-place votes and Penn State running Saquon Barkley received a first-place vote and came in fourth.

Mayfield, Love and Jackson are also the finalists for the Heisman, which will be handed out Saturday night in New York.

Mayfield is a former walk-on who has led the No. 2 Sooners to the College Football Playoff, where they will play No. 3 Georgia in the Rose Bowl on Jan. 1. Mayfield leads the nation in passer efficiency rating and has thrown for 4,340 yards and 41 touchdowns.

He joins Josh Heupel (2000), Jason White (2003) and Sam Bradford (2008) as previous winners from Oklahoma. No other school has had more than two players win AP Player of the Year.

"I'm on this awards trip right now with a lot of great players from OU and other schools, and every one of them deserves to be recognized. To receive this award is an honor and it's something just a few years ago I never thought would happen," Mayfield said. "Obviously I'm very happy and thankful that I'm being recognized with this."

Brate has earned Winston's trust in clutch situations

By GREG AUMAN
Tampa Bay Times

TAMPA — NFL teams are full of situational players: the third-down pass-rusher, the deep-threat speed receiver, the short-yardage back.

And as specific roles go, there are worse to be saddled with than being one of the NFL's most reliable go-to targets in the red zone.

If the Bucs are inside the opponent's 20-yard line, that team knows Jameis Winston is likely throwing to Cameron Brate in the end zone, and they still struggle to stop it.

"We have a pretty good feel for what the other wants in any situation, but especially in the red zone," the 26-year-old Harvard graduate said of his connection with Winston. "That just comes through more reps together and experience playing with each other."

Since the start of the 2016 season, Brate has 13 red-zone touchdown catches — across the entire NFL, Green Bay's Jordy Nelson (16) is the only player with more. When Brate caught a 28-yard touchdown pass Sunday against the Packers, it was the first time in his four NFL seasons that he scored from outside the 20.

"I think Cam is very consistent," offensive coordinator Todd Monken said. "He spends a lot of time with Jameis, which usually is the case when you develop that rapport. The consistency of his route-running and the rapport he has with Jameis, I think, are the biggest part of it. He'll make contested catches down there."

Bucs coach Dirk Koetter said Brate's ability to get open in the end zone is a by-product of defenses respecting Pro Bowl receiver Mike Evans with consistent double coverage near the goal line, giving Brate a one-on-one.

'Hard to beat anybody' when Florida misses shots

By MARK LONG
Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — Florida coach Mike White walked through the basketball facility Thursday carrying a cup of coffee in one hand and an ink pen in the other.

Given how the fifth-ranked Gators have played recently, the need for both was obvious: Late nights ahead and new ideas to draw up.

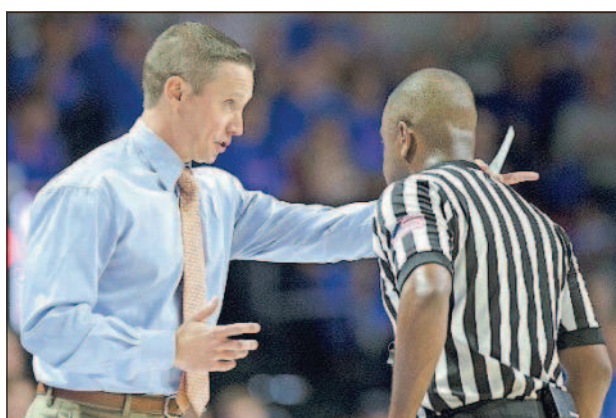

Florida (5-3) has lost three consecutive games, including two in three days to unranked opponents at home. It's a significant slide that has White reassessing everything about his seemingly overrated team.

"None of it's been shocking," White said. "We're just a very average defensive and rebounding team, and when we're not making shots, it's hard to beat anybody."

Bucs defense: NFL's most points allowed on road, fewest at home

By GREG AUMAN
Tampa Bay Times

The Bucs return home to Raymond James Stadium on Sunday, playing three of their final four games at home, and that's excellent news for their defense.

Most teams play better at home — it's only natural. But the Bucs defense has a polar and nearly inexplicable disparity: They have allowed the fewest points at home (76) of any NFL team this season, and they've also allowed the most points on the road (212) this season.

"I wish I could tell you why we can't play at the same level when we are at Raymond James Stadium and we take our show on the road," defensive coordinator Mike Smith said on Wednesday.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL ROUNDUP

No. 10 WVU beats archrival Pitt

Associated Press

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — Teana Muldrow had 20 points and 11 rebounds as No. 10 West Virginia beat archrival Pittsburgh 73-52 in the first matchup between the schools since 2012.

The Mountaineers (8-0) cruised to the victory after opening the game on a 12-0 run.

Pitt (5-4) was out-scored 26-13 in the first quarter, but battled back to bring the game within six points, 29-23, halfway through the second quarter.

West Virginia closed the half on a 7-0 run to take a 36-23 lead and the Panthers never recovered.

Katrina Pardee added 15 points for the Mountaineers, on 3-pointers, while Kristina King had 14 points and Naomi Davenport 13.

Yacine Diop led Pitt with 18 points and seven rebounds while Kyla Nelson added 14 points.

NO. 4 LOUISVILLE 79, VANDERBILT 57: Asia Durr scored 25 points and No. 4 Louisville overcame a first-half lull to beat Vanderbilt. The Cardinals (10-0) held the Commodores scoreless for more than a quarter, turning a 33-29 deficit with 4:38 left in the first half into a 24-point lead with 3:56 left in the third. Rachel Bell made a 3-pointer with 3:28 left in the third period to end the Commodores' drought. Durr scored 14 points in the third quarter as the Cardinals built a 31-point lead late in the period. Bell scored 16 of her 21 points in the third quarter.

NO. 13 FLORIDA STATE 84, STETSON 39: AJ Alix hit five 3-pointers and scored 19 points as Florida State cruised. Nicki Ekhomu added 16 points, Imani Wright had 13, and Chatrice White and Ama Degbeon added 12 points apiece for the Seminoles (9-0). White also had 11 rebounds and five blocks. Brittney Chambers scored 19 points for Stetson (6-5).

NO. 14 DUKE 85, UNC GREENSBORO 54: Erin Mathias scored a career-high 24 points and Lexie Brown was close to a quadruple-double for Duke. Mathias was 12 of 18 from the field for the Blue Devils (7-2), who shot a season-high 62 percent in the first half and finished at 57 percent for the game. Brown had 20 points, nine assists, eight steals, which tied her career high, and seven rebounds. Alexis Willey had 15 points for the Spartans (4-5), who shot 31 percent and trailed 44-29 at the half.

NO. 24 MICHIGAN 82, MARQUETTE 76: Katelynn Flaherty scored seven of her 27 points in the final 2 minutes for Michigan. Marquette (4-4) led by as many as nine points in the second quarter but the Wolverines (7-2) scored the last five points to close within 33-29. The run continued for another seven points in the third quarter. Hallie Thome had 17 points for Michigan and Jillian Dunston had 14 rebounds. Erika Davenport led Marquette with 23 points, matching her career high. Allazia Blockton had 19 points and 11 rebounds and Danielle King scored 19.

Haley breaks tie in 3rd, Panthers top Jets

Associated Press

SUNRISE — Micheal Haley scored the go-ahead goal midway through the third period to lead the Florida Panthers over the Winnipeg Jets 6-4 on Thursday night.

Vincent Trocheck had two goals, and Denis Malgin, Mark Pysyk and Aaron Ekblad also scored for the Panthers, who snapped a three-game skid. James Reimer made 35 saves.

Patrik Laine had a goal and two assists for the Jets. Blake Wheeler, Adam Lowry and Nikolaj Ehlers also scored. Eric Comrie stopped 30 shots in his second career start.

The Panthers took a 5-4 lead when Haley redirected a shot by Derek MacKenzie 9:58 into the third. Trocheck added an empty-netter with 10.1 seconds left.

Trocheck gave the Panthers a 4-3 lead 48 seconds into the third when he poked in a rebound during a power play. The Jets tied it again 1:03 later on Laine's goal.

The Panthers tied it at 3 when Malgin took a pass from Colton Sceviour from behind the net in front and poked it past Comrie with 4:13 left in the second.

The Jets took a 3-2 on a power-play goal by Wheeler. The Panthers had successfully killed off a 5-on-3, but six seconds later Wheeler took a nice pass from Laine and fired a shot from the right circle at 3:50 of the second.

Pysyk and Ekblad put Florida up 2-0 with goals 29 seconds apart in the first period, but Ehlers and Lowry tied it before the first intermission.

PENGUINS 4, ISLANDERS 3: Matt Hunwick scored 1:29 into overtime, lifting the Pittsburgh Penguins over the New York Islanders 4-3 on Thursday night.

Pittsburgh led 3-1 in the third period, but the Islanders tied it with goals in the final 4:53. Hunwick ended the game with his third of the season by pushing one in during a scramble in front of the net.

Phil Kessel got his team-leading 14th goal on a power play, and Jake Guentzel and Riley Sheahan also scored for Pittsburgh. Rookie Tristan Jarry made 23 saves. Pittsburgh has won five of six since a three-game losing streak.

Jordan Eberle got his 12th goal for New York, and Mathew Barzal and Brock Nelson each got their eighth in the third period. Nelson tied it with 1:10 left. Jaroslav Halak stopped 28 shots.

New York has lost three of four since a four-game winning streak.

BRUINS 6, COYOTES 1: David Backes scored his first two goals of the season, helping the Boston Bruins beat the Arizona Coyotes. It was Backes' third game back after he missed 12 straight following surgery to remove part of his colon. The veteran forward scored his first goal with Boston on a tip-in 13:54 into the second period and then added another goal with 54 seconds left in the period. Brad Marchand scored 15 seconds into the game for the Bruins, who won for the seventh time in nine games. David Krejci, Danton Heinen and Anders Bjork also scored, and Tuukka Rask made 20 saves.

Ingram's 3-pointer lifts Lakers over 76ers

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Brandon Ingram scored 21 points including the game-winning 3-pointer with 0.8 seconds remaining to lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a 107-104 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers on Thursday night. Julius Randle and Jordan Clarkson added 16 points apiece for the Lakers, who snapped a five-game losing streak.

Joel Embiid scored 33 points and Ben Simmons had a triple-double with 12 points, 13 rebounds and 15 assists for Philadelphia.

The 76ers battled back from a 16-point second-half deficit to tie the game on Embiid's two free throws with 39.8 seconds remaining.

Lonzo Ball missed a 3 on Los Angeles' ensuing possession and Embiid then missed a chance to give Philadelphia the lead.

On the winning play, Ball drove to the basket before dishing back to Ingram on the right wing. After a timeout, Richaun Holmes' tying attempt at the buzzer was way off.

The winning basket sent Ball's dad, LaVar, into a wild celebration in a suite.

Saturday against No. 17 Cincinnati in New Jersey, they almost certainly will become the second team this season to fall out of The Associated Press Top 25 in a week after a top-five ranking. Then-No. 2 Arizona did it last month.

"We can't panic," White said. Definitely not, but White also rattled off a list of improvements the Gators need to make quickly: Fewer mental mistakes on both ends. More drives in hopes of getting to the free-throw line. Faster pace of play. Improved perimeter defense. Heightened awareness in regards to help defense.

At the top of the list: Better shot selection. Florida made 16 of 64 shots (25 percent) from 3-point range during the three-game slide, including a 2-of-19 performance in a 65-59 loss to Loyola-Chicago on Wednesday night.

Egor Koulechov, a graduate transfer from Rice who was lighting it up three weeks ago, has missed 15 of his last 18 shots from behind the arc.

"No way I saw this coming," White said. "We've tried to hammer the point home, especially in the past 48 hours: 'Let's make sure your first shot is a really good one.'"

Florida's tailspin started in Portland, Oregon, on Nov. 26. The Gators led top-ranked Duke by 17 points with 10 minutes remaining when defensive lapses and missed shots became the norm.

The Blue Devils rallied for a three-point victory, and White's team hasn't been the same since.

The Gators delivered a lackluster effort in a 17-point loss to rival Florida State on Monday, a performance White called "the epitome of soft." Players, coaches and fans expected a rebound performance against Loyola-Chicago two nights later.

Michigan doctor gets 60-year prison sentence for child porn

Associated Press

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — A former elite sports doctor whose sexual assault cases have rocked Michigan State University and the group that trains U.S. Olympic gymnasts was sentenced Thursday to 60 years in federal prison for possessing thousands of images of child pornography.

It's the first of three prison sentences for Larry Nassar, who will learn his punishment in state court in January after pleading guilty to using his hands to molest girls at his campus office, his home and at a gymnastics club near Lansing, Michigan, sometimes with parents in the room.

McKayla Maroney, a member of the 2012 gold medal Olympic team, attended the court hearing after describing Nassar as a "monster" in a letter to

Dr. Larry Nassar, 54, appears in court for a plea hearing in Lansing, Mich. Nassar, a sports doctor accused of molesting girls while working for USA Gymnastics and Michigan State University, pleaded guilty to multiple charges of sexual assault and will face at least 25 years in prison.

U.S. District Judge Janet Neff. She and Olympic gymnasts Aly Raisman and Gabby Douglas say they are among his assault victims. Nassar said he has an addiction.

"You go back and you wonder how I got down this path to begin with," he told the judge. "I really did try to be a good person. ... I hope one day I can be forgiven, and I'm going to take every day of your sentence to try to better myself."

Neff followed the government's recommended sentence, saying Nassar "should never again have access to children."

She said the federal sentence won't start until he completes his sentences for assault, which effectively means the 54-year-old won't be free again. Nassar faces at least 25 years in prison in the other cases.

"He's devastated, obviously," defense attorney Matthew Newburg said outside court.

The child porn was discovered last year. Nassar acknowledged that he dumped computer hard drives and paid $40 to have a laptop's memory wiped clean to try to outfox police. The hard drives were found by investigators because the trash truck on his street was late.

The courtroom was filled with many women who said they were assaulted years earlier by Nassar. In her letter to the judge, Maroney said she was assaulted in Texas, London and Tokyo.

"She has transformed from a bubbly, positive, loving, world-class athlete into a young adult who was deeply depressed, at times suicidal and essentially descended into an emotional abyss," Maroney's mother, Erin Maroney, said in a separate letter.

Beyond the criminal cases, more than 100 women and girls are suing Nassar. Michigan State and USA Gymnastics also are defendants in many cases.

MAYFIELD

Mayfield played high school football in Austin, Texas, but did not receive a scholarship offer from the Longhorns. He was at Texas Tech, and played as a freshman, but ended up transferring to Oklahoma. With the Sooners, he has become a three-year starter and one of the most productive passers in college football history.

He has 129 career touchdown passes and 14,320 yards.

The AP award is the first of what could be several won by Mayfield. He was in Atlanta for the ESPN's college football awards show at the Hall of Fame. Mayfield was up for the Walter Camp Player of the Year Award, Maxwell Award and Davey O'Brien Award. He is also a finalist for the Manning Award.

Other winners at the awards show:

Chuck Bednarik

Alabama strong safety Minkah Fitzpatrick won the Bednarik as the nation's top defensive player. Also the winner of the Jim Thorpe Award as the top defensive back, he followed up his All-America season in 2016 with 52 tackles, seven pass breakups, three quarterback hurries, an interception, a forced fumble and blocked field goal.

Doak Walker

Stanford's Bryce Love leads Power 5 running backs in rushing (164.4 yards per game) and has gone for 100 or more in 11 games this season to tie the school record. His 12 runs of 50 or more yards are an FBS record. He set a school record with 301 yards on 25 carries against Arizona State.

Outland Trophy

Houston defensive tackle Ed Oliver was voted the nation's top interior lineman after making 69 stops from the middle of the Cougars' three-man front. That ranks second in the nation among defensive tackles.

Biletnikoff

Oklahoma State's James Washington is first in the nation with 1,423 receiving yards, and his 20 career 100-yard games are tied for most in school history. He scored 12 touchdowns this season and has caught a pass in 44 straight games, the second-longest streak in the nation. He joins Justin Blackmon (2010 and '11 winner) as a Biletnikoff winner.

NFL: Steelers

Steelers turn to versatile Moats in place of injured Ryan Shazier

By WILL GRAVES
Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — This is not the way Arthur Moats or anybody else wanted the veteran linebacker to get back into the regular rotation for the Pittsburgh Steelers defense.

As teammate Ryan Shazier rested in a hospital on Thursday recovering from surgery to stabilize his injured spine, his long-term prognosis still uncertain, Moats set about getting familiar with Shazier's spot at inside linebacker in preparation for Sunday night's game against Baltimore.

It's a position Moats hardly considers "his" for the rest of the season.

"That's the last thing I'm concerned about," Moats said.

Not when there's still so much unknown about Shazier.

The 25-year-old left Paul Brown Stadium in an ambulance on Monday night after injuring his spine while hitting Cincinnati wide receiver Josh Malone in the first quarter of Pittsburgh's 23-20 victory.

Shazier spent about 36 hours in a Cincinnati hospital before being transported to Pittsburgh on Wednesday. Team doctors and neurosurgeons Drs. David Okwunow and Joseph Maroon performed surgery to stabilize Shazier's spine on Wednesday night.

Pittsburgh Steelers inside linebacker Ryan Shazier (50) is carted off the field after an injury in the first half of an NFL football game against the Cincinnati Bengals, in Cincinnati. The Steelers are spending this week trying to figure out who to play at inside linebacker in place of injured Ryan Shazier.

"If they say that's the best thing for him, we're all for it," Moats said. "Admittedly that's our brother. You're always nervous seeing him go down on Monday and at the end of the day we're just praying for him."

The Steelers signed linebacker Sean Spence — who spent three seasons with the team after being selected in the third round of the 2012 draft — on Wednesday to provide depth.

Spence, however, hasn't played since being released by Indianapolis in October. And with backup Tyler Matakevich dealing with a shoulder injury, Moats will line up next to Vince Williams when the Steelers (10-2) look to clinch the AFC North against the Ravens (7-5).

Moats moved frequently between inside and outside linebacker after the Buffalo Bills took him in the sixth round of the 2010 draft, but has worked exclusively on the outside since signing with Pittsburgh in 2014. That changed this week, when the coaches called him on Tuesday and told him to get ready to move inside.

"If you're a linebacker on this team you should know what everybody on the field is doing every defense," defensive coordinator Keith Butler said.

"The reason (Moats) has stayed around as long as he has is because he does know that. Knowing it and doing it are two different things. We hope he can help us."

Something Moats has done regularly when called on. He rolled up 11½ sacks from 2014-16 before taking on a lesser role this season behind Bud Dupree and rookie T.J. Watt.

Though he lacks Shazier's elite speed — Moats joked he runs a 4.3 40-yard dash like Shazier but it's "wind-aided" — at 246 pounds he has the size to be effective against the run and the institutional knowledge so that being forced into the lineup so quickly shouldn't be an issue.

"Ever since my situation in Buffalo where I would switch positions sometimes in the middle of the year from inside to outside, whether it's 4-3 or 3-4, I've always been aware of what's going on at the position and helps me understand defenses in general."

NFL: Browns

Browns fire GM, stick with Jackson as coach

By STEVE DOERSCHUK
Gatehouse Media Ohio

BEREA, Ohio — Hue Jackson walked into a bubbling cauldron of fresh-brewed blockbuster.

The Browns (they were still his team) had been practicing for the Packers in a 25-degree wind chill.

"Oh, boy," the 52-year-old head coach said in what passed as shivering relief. "It's cold today. Very cold."

Sashi Brown was no longer with them. On the night the 2015 season ended in a wave of firings, owner Jimmy Haslam handed Brown power over the 53-man roster. On Thursday, he took it away, dismissing the 41-year-old executive vice president.

Twelve days after promoting Brown on Jan. 3, 2015, Haslam hired Jackson as head coach. On Thursday, Haslam announced Jackson is staying at least into the 2018 season.

Inside after Thursday's practice, Jackson was peppered with questions about Brown leaving and him staying amid their shared record, 1-27.

"The organization decided to do something different," said Jackson, composed, conversational and upbeat. "I stand behind that whole-heartedly."

"I'm just as big a part of it as Sashi is right now. We're a 1-27 team. I take my part of the responsibility for that, too."

Jackson frowned at a question presuming he has survived a power struggle.

He said Brown is "a good person and a heck of a worker." Jackson wouldn't talk about who let Carson Wentz get away, why the team is in such an epic slump, or what happened behind the scenes of the botched A.J. McCarron trade.

Jackson did touch on organizational glitches after someone implied he had leaked information designed to pin mistakes on Brown.

"This has been a leaky place for years," Jackson said. "This is not the first time you've heard leaks. Hopefully some of that will go away in time."

Jackson only hinted at clashes between his side of the football and Brown's.

Looking ahead, Jackson said, "The most important part is alignment. One thing [Haslam] truly wants is collaboration, everybody working together ... not that everybody wasn't."

Haslam, a sixth-year owner whose Browns are in a 4-45 slump, is supposed to give a press conference Friday. He explained himself in a statement today:

"We have great appreciation and gratitude for Sashi's commitment and leadership to our organization but believe transitioning to someone with strong experience and success in drafting and building consistently winning football teams is critical to the future of the Cleveland Browns."

"Today we informed Sashi that we were going in a new direction. The 2018 draft and offseason is pivotal for our franchise, we need to ensure that we maximize our opportunity for success; with our picks, free agency and building our roster."

"Hue Jackson will remain our coach and will return for the 2018 season, but we feel it is necessary to take significant steps to strengthen our personnel department. We have begun the process of having productive conversations regarding leadership of our football operations and will provide further updates when appropriate."

NFL: Man of Year

Bennett, Jenkins, Stills among nominees

By BARRY WILNER
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The NFL's Walter Payton Man of the Year Award honors a man's involvement in the community and performance on the playing field.

In this season marked by kneeling during the national anthem by some players as they protest social injustice, three of those demonstrators are on the list of 32 nominees announced Thursday.

Seattle defensive end Michael Bennett, Philadelphia safety Malcolm Jenkins, and Miami wide receiver Kenny Stills often have been in the spotlight for their actions and words.

honors appear to be showing support for that trio's advocacy as well as for those players' contributions on and off the field.

"I think the nomination comes from everything that has been going on, from having the courage we had last year to sit out for something we felt strongly about," Stills says.

"And then all the work we've done here in the community, trying to bridge the gap between the community and the police. And the everyday work we're doing trying to better the city of Miami and our country."

Stills felt no surprise that Bennett and Jenkins also were nominated.

"I think our teammates see the commitment and passion from us," he adds. "It is hard not to recognize guys who are so committed to trying to help others. That's all it's about."

BRATE

"For the last three years I've been here, basically Mike Evans gets doubled every time we get inside the 10-yard line," Koetter said. "If he gets doubled, unless they rush three, everybody else gets singled. Cam has taken full advantage of that."

On Sunday, Winston-Brate on third down from the 11-yard line gave the Bucs the lead on the Packers with six minutes left at Lambeau Field, but Tampa Bay couldn't hold on. Eight of Brate's 17 career touchdowns have come in the fourth quarter, so he's earned Winston's confidence in such clutch situations.

"He's one of the hardest workers out there on the field," said Winston, who frequently sticks around after practice for extra throws with Brate. "We have a lot of reps together. Any time you have a mismatch in the red zone, you want to try to take advantage of it, and Cam Brate vs. numerous linebackers and safeties is a huge mismatch for us."

No team in the NFL has given up more red-zone touchdowns than Detroit, which comes to Raymond James Stadium on Sunday. Brate had eight touchdowns last year, tying the team record for a tight end, and he has six now with four games to play.

The Bucs included the 6-foot-5, 245-pound Brate in their promotional materials for the Pro Bowl this past week. Seattle's Jimmy Graham and Philadelphia's Zach Ertz have better numbers, but if either can't go to Orlando on a Super Bowl conflict, you could make a case for Brate as the next-best NFC tight end.

As long as teams make covering Evans a priority in the red zone, Brate will be there to take advantage of the lack of attention on him. The Bucs have thrown 14 red-zone passes to Evans, getting three touchdowns; Brate has gotten 13 such passes and has scored on a team-best five of them.

The idea of Pro Bowl consideration is new enough to Brate that he had to be reminded that the game is now played in Orlando, not Hawaii, but he'd still like to go.

"It would be cool if it was in Hawaii. I've never been," he said. "Orlando's pretty nice that time of year, short drive over, so that'd be pretty cool."

DEFENSE

"We have not been able to handle the wear and tear of going on the road. It's a fact when you look at it. It's alarming in terms of what type of numbers we are giving up on the road (compared to) what we are doing at home. It's probably the biggest discrepancy of any team in the league."

Smith is correct — the Bucs allow 30.3 points per game on the road and 15.2 points per game at home. The difference of 15.1 points per game is easily the biggest home/road split in the NFL, with the Rams (+10.6) and Colts (10.4) the only other teams with a double-digit change on the road. The Patriots are at the other extreme, allowing 24.2 points/game at home and 13.0 on the road for an 11.2-point differential in the other direction.

Why? For one thing, the Bucs have faced tougher teams at home — their five home opponents have a combined winning percentage of .467, while their seven road opponents combine for .571. Every team they've faced on the road has at least five wins, while they've faced the Bears (3-9) and Giants (2-10) at home.

The Bucs offense has also scored less at home — they average 22.4 points on the road and 17.2 on the road, but some of that can be ascribed to falling behind and scoring late when a game is out of hand. They've scored almost as many points in the fourth quarter on the road (75) as in the first three quarters combined (82).

The Bucs have nearly two different defenses, depending on whether a game is in Tampa or not. At home, they've allowed more than 20 points just once, and 23 at that in beating the Giants. On the road, they've allowed at least 20 every game, and 26 or more points in six of the seven road games.

If that can continue, it would be well for the Bucs being able to finish the season with better play on defense, if not even a win or two.

"We've got three of the four at home," Smith said. "Hopefully we can keep eking up and doing enough things to help this football team win."

Pruitt believes he can restore Vols' reputation

Tennessee coach Jeremy Pruitt's mission is to get the Volunteers back to the status they enjoyed when his new boss was roaming the sidelines.

Pruitt took over as Tennessee's coach Thursday, capping a tumultuous search in which Phillip Fulmer replaced John Currie as athletic director. Tennessee is coming off one of its most disappointing seasons ever and hasn't won the Southeastern Conference's Eastern Division title since 2007, the year before Fulmer was forced out as the Vols' coach.

"There was a time and place that this university was feared among the SEC teams," said Pruitt, who has spent the last two seasons as Alabama's defensive coordinator. "My goal as the head football coach at the University of Tennessee is to get us back to that point."

Hall of Fame QB Moon sued for sex harassment

Hall of Fame quarterback Warren Moon has been accused of sexual harassment in a lawsuit filed in California by a woman who worked as his assistant at his sports marketing firm.

In the lawsuit filed early this week in Orange County Superior Court, Wendy Haskell alleges that Moon made "unwanted and unsolicited" sexual advances while she worked for Sports 1 Marketing. Moon, who played parts of 17 seasons in the NFL with Houston, Minnesota, Seattle and Kansas City, is the co-founder and president of the company.

Moon's attorney, Daniel F. Fears, issued a statement Thursday saying Moon has yet to be served with the lawsuit but is aware of the claims and denies them.

Garcia voted as European Tour's golfer of the year

Sergio Garcia has been voted as the European Tour's golfer of the year after claiming his first major title at the Masters and winning two more events in 2017.

The 37-year-old Spaniard, who also got married in July, says "I think both on and off the golf course it has been a unique and unbelievable year, and one that I will definitely remember my whole life."

Garcia held off Ryder Cup teammate Justin Rose to win at Augusta in his 74th appearance at a major.

Mr. Indispensable

Nothing like suspension to remind NFL who's essential to their team

By TERESA M. WALKER
Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Anyone can see just how much the Dallas Cowboys desperately miss Ezekiel Elliott.

Now the New England Patriots will get a reminder of life without Tom Brady's favorite target when Rob Gronkowski sits out his own suspension Monday night in Miami.

"He's a big focal point in our offense," Brady said of Gronk. "I mean, I think when he gets going, it's great for everybody, so it's been great having him in there this year. He's worked really hard and he's a great player. I love playing with him. We've got a great rapport."

Yes, even Brady has a teammate who makes him better.

And every NFL team has that one player that makes everything click, someone with so much ability and leadership who makes everyone else better, too. Or, in the case of tail-ending teams, a player who stands above the mess.

Sure, the quarterback is the most important, touching the ball every snap on offense. But take Mr. Indispensable off the field, and nothing works quite the same.

Nobody knows that better than Dallas, 1-3 since Elliott started serving his suspension and putting a serious crimp in the Cowboys' postseason plans. Dallas finally ended the skid last week, beating Washington. Surviving and staying in the playoff hunt until Dec. 24 when Elliott returns against Seattle may not be possible without what he brings to the field.

Washington linebacker Zach Brown says it's easy to see on film just how different the Cowboys are without Elliott's speed and ability to score on any carry.

"Now everybody's forcing them to pass the ball," Brown said.

Gronkowski leads the Patriots with 55 catches and seven touchdowns, and he just turned in his best game this season with nine catches for 147 yards. But his late hit on Bills cornerback Tre'Davious White means Gronk will miss his first game this season with the Pats chasing the AFC's No. 1 seed.

"He's obviously a guy that's super consistent when he's been out there for us, and he's really playing that same role this year," Brady said.

A quarterback's best friend can be a left tackle like Joe Thomas in Cleveland or David Bakhtiari in Green Bay. The Falcons didn't click on the offensive line until signing center Alex Mack last year, and then they went straight to the Super Bowl.

A talented wide receiver also can carry an entire team. Just look at Pittsburgh's Antonio Brown, or conversely what it's been like for the Giants without Odell Beckham Jr.

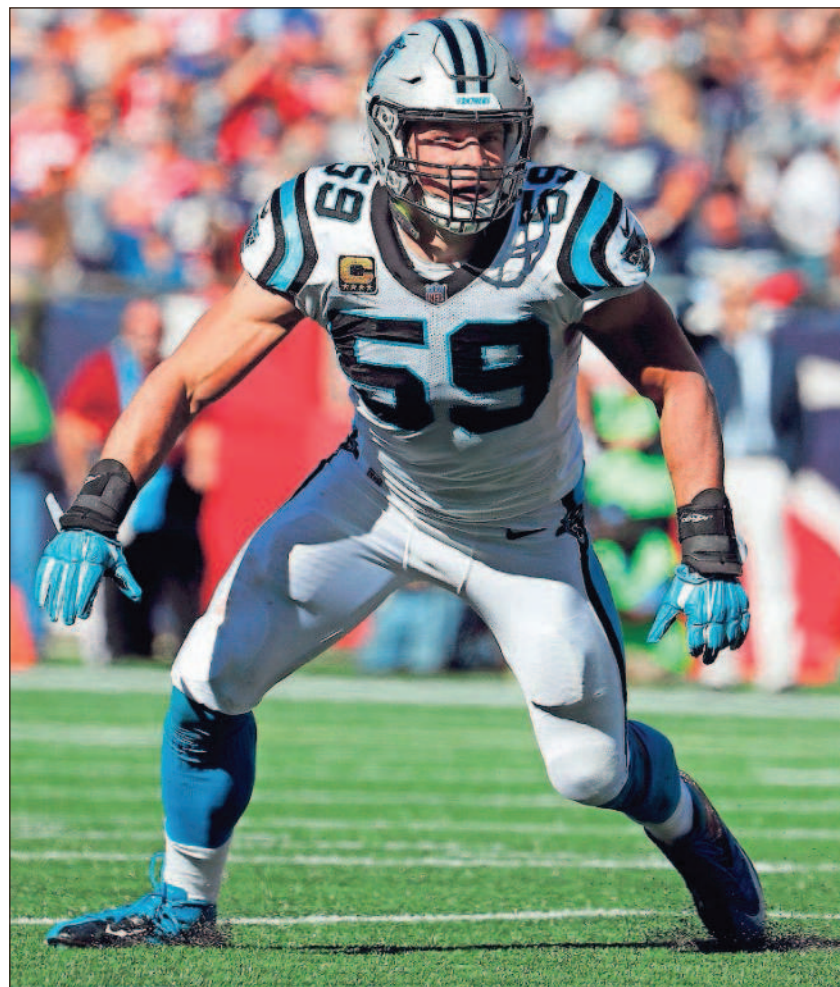

Defenders can be indispensable, too.

In Carolina, Cam Newton may do the Superman poses, but the Panthers' real MVP is middle linebacker Luke Kuechly. The Panthers aren't the same without the 2013 NFL Defensive Player of the Year, and he's missed time with three concussions over the past three seasons. When healthy, Kuechly rarely misses a tackle. He also usually Dallas Cowboys running back Ezekiel Elliott carries the ball for extra yardage after catching a pass in the first half in an Oct. 1 game against the Los Angeles Rams, in Arlington, Texas. Anyone can see just how much the Cowboys desperately miss Elliott.

knows what play is being called.

"When you watch his film against other teams, he's pointing where the run is going," Miami coach Adam Gase said. "It's really amazing to watch him play, because he's a tough guy to play chess with. For me, I'm on the sideline and he's on the field, so it makes it really tough."

Jacksonville had been spending millions on its defense that seemed wasted until end Calais Campbell arrived as easily the league's best free-agent acquisition of 2017. He's helped put the Jaguars (8-4) in the mix for their first playoff berth since 2007. Campbell leads the AFC in sacks and is a calming influence in the locker room.

"He's everything that's been advertised," Jaguars coach Doug Marrone said. "Just from the way to prepare, the leadership in the locker room, on the field, leads by example and, obviously, has been playing extremely well for us. A lot of times in free agency, maybe you don't get, sometimes, the value of what you would like, but that's not the case with Calais. We've gotten that, and I believe more, out of him."

Oakland may have one of the worst defenses in the NFL, but defensive end Khalil Mack — last year's Defensive Player of the Year — helped the Raiders contend again in the struggling AFC West despite being the defender each opposing offense focuses on most.

Back-to-back Heisman? Jackson looks even better this year

By GARY B. GRAVES
Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Lamar Jackson has looked even better than last year, when his performance was good enough to make him the youngest player to ever win the Heisman Trophy.

This year, the junior quarterback has posted remarkably similar, eye-opening statistics but the attention has been more muted after Louisville stumbled through a 1-4 midseason stretch in Atlantic Coast Conference play this year.

His skills, leadership abilities and prospects as a pro quarterback have been questioned, particularly after defending national champion Clemson and QB counterpart Kelly Bryant upstaged Jackson and the Cardinals in a 47-21 loss in September.

Jackson has side-stepped questions about his NFL future and remained focused on helping Louisville win. And while he doesn't have the same talent around him like last year, he has led Louisville (8-4) to a three-game winning streak and a berth in the Dec. 30 TaxSlayer Bowl against No. 24 Mississippi State.

He has earned a return trip to New York on Saturday as a Heisman finalist and can become just the second repeat winner and first since Ohio State's Archie Griffin did it in 1974, and '75. "I don't really think about all that," said Jackson, 20, a finalist along with Stanford running back Bryce Love and Oklahoma quarterback Baker Mayfield. "I just come into the game with a passion. I hate losing. I love to win, and that's it."

But the stats he has put up along the way have been impressive. He has:

- Passed for 3,489 of his 4,932 yards of offense, a total four yards better than last year.
- Scored 42 touchdowns (25 passing), just nine fewer than in 2016.
- Improved his completion rate from 56 percent to over 60 percent with just six interceptions.
- Led the nation in total offense per game with 411 yards (one more than last season).
- Become the first player in the Football Bowl Subdivision to surpass 3,000 yards passing and 1,000 rushing in consecutive seasons.
- Been named the ACC offensive and overall player of the year, with a school-record 12-game streak of 300-plus yards.

Former Alabama quarterback Greg McElroy has seen Jackson's development and believes he has even more upside at the pro level.
