Parent pickup safety issues being addressed

By MARC VALERO
STAFF WRITER

AVON PARK — The Park Elementary School parent pickup and safety concerns issue discussed by the Avon Park City Council and The School Board of Highlands County have been addressed with a low-cost measure.

Assistant Superintendent of Business Operations Mike Averyt said the safety issue at the school was that students were walking on the sidewalk next to the road and the parents would move their cars from the line and go onto the grass or sidewalk to wait and pick up their children.

"We have a sidewalk that is down the hill that goes the whole length of the school," he said. "So instead of allowing them to walk on that sidewalk, we forced them to walk on the other sidewalk and it seems to be working. We don't seem to be having any safety issues at this point."

A gate is closed so students will walk on the sidewalk that goes to the end of the school property and not to the sidewalk at the top of the property.

Avon Elementary earns 'Lighthouse School' designation

By MARC VALERO

AVON PARK — It was exciting news for students and staff on Wednesday at Avon Elementary School near the end of the school day with the holiday break approaching.

No, Santa Claus wasn't coming, but the announcement did involve something large and red with black letters that spelled out, "Lighthouse."

With students and staff assembled on the black-top physical education area, in a Duke Energy bucket truck, unfurled the "Lighthouse" banner to cheers and shouts.

The prestigious "Lighthouse School" designation is bestowed on schools that have rigorously followed and exemplified the Leader in Me Program, which includes the Seven Habits of Highly Successful People.

Prior to making the announcement, Assistant Principal Isaac Durrance took the opportunity for a little kidding as he told the students that the Christmas break had been canceled.

The students responded with a bit of a groan and likely knew Durrance was just having fun. Later he did say he was joking about the break being canceled.

But then, wearing a Santa hat and standing near a basketball

Save-A-Lot now open in Lake Placid

LAKE PLACID — There is now more competition for grocery dollars in Lake Placid with the soft opening of Save-A-Lot on Thursday morning. Crowds gathered early to grab a peek and some bargains at the new grocery store at 70 Plaza, the site of the old Winn-Dixie.

Winn-Dixie left the plaza years ago. Rumors persisted on what would replace it and another grocery store was poised to take it over but the deal fell through. The space has been empty until now.

Customers were able to sign up for email coupons and were given a free key chain. Directions for using the quarter for a cart and the return of the cart for a refunded quarter were handed out.

The shelves were well stocked and included everything that larger stores may offer. There is a dairy, fresh meat, and large frozen food sections. The aisles are packed with non-perishables, cleaning supplies, baby needs, and even a beer and wine section.

While no exact size measurement was available for this store, the average Save-A-Lot is about 16,000 square feet, according to spokesperson Chon Tomlin. District Manager John Bowers said it was about half the size of the old Winn-Dixie that they took over.

Store Manager Gordon Ellery explained the philosophy behind the savings at the grocery chain.

"Save-A-Lot is a limited assortment grocery company," Ellery said. "That's how we keep our prices low. Our prices are about 40 percent on their groceries."

The shoppers seemed

Chainsaw sparks fire in Leisure Lakes

By KIM LEATHERMAN

LEISURE LAKES — A resident of the Leisure Lakes subdivision in Lake Placid accidentally caught his double-wide trailer on fire Thursday evening while trying to demolish it. The resident told Leisure Lakes Volunteer Fire Department's Chief Danny Holmes that his trailer was destroyed by Hurricane Irma.

"The guy was demoing the trailer on his own property," Holmes said. "He had already cut half of it down and dumped it. He was on the roof of the other half, using a chainsaw to cut into the material. Something got too hot and started a fire."

Holmes said that the fire did not spread past

AP Council waits on accepting donated property

By MARC VALERO

AVON PARK — The City Council took a temporary pass on accepting a donated property so the city attorney could check for encumbrances and prepare an agreement.

Jerry Brokaw

purchased the property at 18 E. Pine St. in 2002 with plans on renovating its single-story house. But, he lives in Cocoa Beach with his wife who has Alzheimer's, so he decided to donate the property to the city.

At the Dec. 11 City Council meeting, City Manager Julian Deleon said there would be no cost to the city in accepting the property donation.

But, Councilman Jim Barnard said he had concerns about the city accepting the property.

It is "wonderful and great" that someone wants to donate a piece of property to the city, he said. The only reason the city would need the property is to build a parking lot and the city doesn't need another parking lot.

Also, the people living behind the property probably would not appreciate being next to a parking lot, Barnard said. It may be a good investment, but the city doesn't need to be a property investor, so he has concerns.

In an email to Highlands News-Sun, Deleon said the house seems to be in "OK" condition. It is a large parcel conveniently located across from the Brickell Building parking lot.

"If the Brickell Building takes off, this lot could be very valuable to us in enhancing the visit downtown Avon Park experience," he said.

City Attorney Glinda Pruitt has provided him with a contract to review for the property donation, Deleon said Tuesday.

Man arrested on child porn charge

The reports are created by investigators with internet service providers suspecting that someone may be using the service to download child pornography, the warrant said.

The investigator also determined that Jorgensen had stored chat logs from sites used for pedophile-related fetishes, the warrant said. Typically people go to those sites to share child pornography in hopes their activity won't be detected by law enforcement.

LAKE PLACID — A Lake Placid man is accused of molesting a 7-year-old girl, according to a warrant released Thursday.

Epifanio Alfaro, 65, no street address given, Lake Placid, was arrested by the Highlands County Sheriff's Office and charged with lewd/lascivious behavior involving a child younger than the age of 12. Deputies arrested Alfaro after the 7 year old told her mother that a family acquaintance had molested her.

The mother told a Highlands County School Board social worker that the child said the man molested her.

Although the incident was reported in October, the arrest did not happen until this past week.

Ethics issues need some consideration

In Tallahassee, the concept of nudge-nudge wink-wink employment deals is by no means unfamiliar. It is, after all, home to one of the Southeast's athletic powerhouses — and the Florida Legislature, where the potential for shenanigans can be as boundless as the imaginations of the public servants who toil there.

Of course, most public servants take care not to cross ethical or legal boundaries. But some do. That's why legislators, and legislative employees, should take extra care to avoid even the appearance of impropriety.

An investigation by The Associated Press' Gary Fineout bears that out. Fineout reviewed a year's worth of requests by legislative staff to "moonlight" in second jobs. Many were unremarkable — tutors, flight instructors or restaurant servers. But other outside employment showed significant potential for conflict, including employees accepting work at public colleges and universities that routinely seek legislative funding, and legislative aides working for companies that handle political social media.

One of the most notable cases: Fred Piccolo, a spokesman for House Speaker Richard Corcoran, did graphic-design work for Florida Politics, a leading political-journalism website. There's no evidence of any "play for pay" in Florida Politics' feisty coverage of Corcoran, but the relationship was not disclosed as House rules require.

As incoming speaker, Corcoran made a name for himself championing sweeping ethics reforms. As he's entering his last session (and apparently setting up a run for governor), Corcoran should work with Senate President Joe Negron to whittle away at this potentially problematic practice of moonlighting.

He'll face some pushback. But even the lowest-paid legislative staffers have access to lawmakers who wield enormous power, and Floridians have a right to know that lobbyists and favor-seekers aren't currying favor by providing cushy second jobs for staff.

Moonlighting isn't the only ethics issue the Legislature should consider this session. In fact, the Florida Commission on Ethics approved a list of suggested reforms in August, and many of them merit serious consideration.

The commission's suggestions include:

- An expansion of the state's conflict of interest laws. Under current rules, government officials are prohibited from having a "contractual relationship" with companies doing business with their agency. This proposal would block a fairly obvious dodge to that rule — extending the prohibition to corporations formed or owned by government officials. It makes so much sense that it's surprising to learn it wasn't already the law.

- Expanded financial disclosure rules for local officials. Florida has two financial disclosure forms; the one that most local officials file is far vaguer and less informative than the "full and complete disclosure" required of state and some county constitutional officers.

- Better disclosure of potential conflicts. Under current law, local officials aren't required to disclose a potential conflict of interest until a particular matter is put to a vote. "That means the official can make every effort to persuade his or her colleagues without telling them (and the public) about the conflict," the commission noted.

The commission also suggested a formal legislative inquiry into the rules governing private companies that contract to perform government functions — a considerably bigger issue to bite off in just three weeks, this issue is far too big, and too complex, to address this year. But Florida has outsourced hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of government services — everything from prison operation to foster care — and taxpayers certainly deserve more oversight.

Fare thee well Brewster's

LAURA'S LOOK

Eleven years ago, a coffee shop opened here in Sebring. Brewster's served coffee and an atmosphere that cheered the soul and stirred the artist's soul. It stood apart from the chain coffee places in the county and offered something refreshingly different.

Alas, nothing lasts forever. By the time you read this, the place will have shut its doors for good. Please note I am in mourning for the time being.

I have been a fan of Brewster's since I first discovered it years ago. Their signature drink was a Brewster's Mocha, a tasty concoction made up of caramel and white chocolate. You could get it hot, over ice, or frozen. I've had it all three ways, though lately my keeping an eye on calories had me leaning towards the hot version with skim milk. But even then I always had to have whipped cream.

Many a column and a lot of fiction has been written at Brewster's. I would bring in my laptop and set up shop at a tall table, preferably near an outlet. There I could let the outside world fall away as I played in my fictional realms. By rights I should be sitting at Brewster's now writing this column, but my car and I had a run-in with a pole the other day and the pole won, leaving me with a car at the shop and no way to get out of the house.

Bruce, the owner of Brewster's, supported the arts and the artists who created them. I remember one time he told me I didn't have to buy anything to come and write. I usually tried to purchase something while there, a drink or a cookie or whatever baked goods he had available. But knowing I could go there and work even if I was broke or full was lovely.

I also had book signings at Brewster's. Bruce celebrated my victories and commiserated over my setbacks. He was part of my cheering section, and I am grateful for his support over the years.

You just had to walk into Brewster's to know he supported the arts. A writer's group met there frequently to do readings. Artwork and photography decorated the walls. There were even books there you could sit and read, at least for a while.

I admit I haven't been able to visit Brewster's as often as I once did. Life went and got in the way, which it sometimes does. I did try to stop in from time to time, but it was almost impossible for me to sit and stay awhile. I hope that didn't contribute to the shop's demise.

It's hard for me to think of a viable alternative to Brewster's. No offense if you're a Starbucks lover, but I don't see myself heading over there for coffee and a place to write, at least at the moment. It's too soon to find another coffee place — the wound is still raw.

But I have a travel mug from Brewster's that will help keep the place in my memory. I will miss Brewster's Mochas, the tall tables where I could sit and type, and the kindness Bruce infused into the place. For me, it wasn't just a coffee shop — it was a haven where I could create to my heart's content.

Thanks for 11 years, Bruce. May you find your spirit refreshed wherever you go. Thank you for all the times you refreshed mine.

Christmas traditions are the best, eh

It's the Monday before Christmas, and my daughter, her hair tied up snugly in a bun, plops herself down in the front seat of my car. And as I aim my trusty German import in the direction of her ballet school, she turns to me, her face aglow in the gray afternoon light, a plea in her eyes.

"Can you turn on your Christmas playlist, Daddy?" she asks.

"Of course," I tell her.

At a stop sign, I fiddle with my phone, tap the Spotify app, and in a couple of seconds my 12-year-old and I are singing along at the top of our lungs to an absolute holiday classic:

"Fiiiiivveeeee golden ... toookssss ..." we bellow.

I'm talking about, of course, the Bob and Doug McKenzie version of "The 12 Days of Christmas."

This cheeseball piece of 1980s holiday brilliance foisted on the world by comics Rick Moranis and Dave Thomas never fails to reduce my child to a molten pile of giggles.

That cracked chestnut of a carol comes after Band Aid's "Do They Know It's Christmas," but before the Bing Crosby/David Bowie version of "Peace on Earth/The Little Drummer Boy."

We sing along — unapologetically — to all of them. She knows all the words. So I've done my job as a father, I think, as we drive along, our New Wave carol sing in full force.

COLUMNIST

John Micek

And it occurs to me that it's those little moments, the rituals we observe at this time of year, that are the glue that are the glue that binds us together. They're the north stars that help us find our way back to each other, no matter how fractious our times.

We have plenty of holiday traditions in my house. There's the elf that magically appears after Thanksgiving, migrating from room to room every morning, popping up in the most unlikely of places. We go together for our tree, decorating it as Vince Guaraldi's soundtrack to "A Charlie Brown Christmas" plays in the background.

Because my wife and I are a mixed-faith couple, we've been lighting Hanukkah candles every night, reciting the prayers that my wife recited as a little girl, and that my daughter recites now.

She's excited about the presents, of course. And the fact that our new house has a chimney that Santa can actually come down this year, instead of engaging in the creative acts of B&E that allowed him to drop off presents at the old place.

In the middle of it all, I'll try to swim upstream, fighting the tides of commerce, to tell my skeptical, science-minded child the biblical Christmas story that I grew up with.

I'll grab a quiet hour, too, for midnight mass.

There are latkes and Christmas dinner. It's the Italian-style meal of my youth: Soup, pasta, some kind of roast meat and vegetable. Salad at the end, because my Nonna didn't raise a savage. Then dessert and coffee.

At night, we'll go for a drive through the darkness and gawk at the lights, that Christmas playlist playing softly in the car, because those were the songs that soundtracked a million Christmases of my youth, when my nose was pressed against cold window glass as the lights whizzed by.

My wife, I think, indulges me a bit. And that's a gift by itself.

We're forging new traditions in the midst of the old ones, just like we all do when we grow up, and Christmas becomes about way more than just toys and racing downstairs to see what's under the tree.

It's an appreciation tempered by age, and sometimes loss. Because we want to honor the rituals and traditions passed onto us by people who are no longer with us, like my Italian immigrant grandparents, but who are ever-present nonetheless.

Memory is a powerful thing. And it's the memories that my daughter is forging now, at this time of year, that will keep her warm in the years to come, that will provide a through line from the little girl she is now to the woman she has yet to become.

And that makes me hope that someday, when she's older, and her own child plops into the front seat beside her, that my daughter will smile cryptically, hit a button, and that the strains of Bob and Doug McKenzie's "12 Days of Christmas" will blast out of the speakers.

At first, her child will look at her like she's insane, like my daughter did, and then, she (or he) will just give in and sing along.

At the top of his or her little lungs.

— sometime next summer — volunteer firefighters who want to get hired on as full-time paid personnel will need that training.

Canaday said Tuesday he has six who have applied for EMT classes, and he already had a class full of firefighters getting that training.

“We’ll do another (class) once this class has graduated,” Canaday said.

Meanwhile, Marmer Construction has nearly completed the four-bay, metal-roofed station on Sun ’n Lake Boulevard on an outparcel of the Florida Hospital Heartland Medical Center campus, one of the locations earmarked to receive full-time staff, given its access to a large part of the county’s population.

The station sits between the boulevard and the hospital’s public access road to its Emergency Department entrance and parking lot. A cut-through in the median of the boulevard will allow engines and ambulances to leave the station and head straight to U.S. 27.

On Thursday, crews were working on the parking areas and driveways, including striping and markings for the parking and handicapped spaces.

Capital Projects Manager Suzanne Hunnicutt said Tuesday that it should be done by the end of this month, and ready for use by the end of January. Hurricane Irma held up some of the work, she said.

In the aftermath of the storm, with so many local contractors busy with recovery efforts, it was difficult after that Once finished, the $694,000 Sun ’n Lake station will replace the former paid Sun ’n Lake Fire Department, which kept its engines in a Quonset hut outside and equipment inside the special improvement district’s town hall. It will also replace the Valerie Boulevard EMS station, an old residence converted to a station that, like other such stations in the county, is now inadequate.

their children because of safety concerns in today’s communities, Averyt said. In the past, everybody walked to school.

“Ideally we would have bus riders and walkers, that was the intent of neighborhood schools,” he said. Parents don’t feel safe letting their children walk.

To change that the state would have to lower the two-mile distance so the district would get more money for busing students who live within two miles of school, Averyt said. But, that probably will not happen.

Constructing a vehicle stacking lane on the back part of the school’s property would be very expensive, he noted.

“There is a crossing guard there so everything seems to be quieting down as far as the safety is concerned; there are still a lot of cars,” Averyt said. “Sun ’n Lake and Cracker Trail elementary schools have similar issues so we are working on something to possibly bring back to the [School] Board, a suggestion.”

At an October School Board meeting, the Park Elementary student pick-up issue was discussed after the Avon Park City Council noted damage had been occurring to the pavement and sidewalk along East Palmetto Street where parents were waiting for their children instead of going through the parent pickup line.

City officials noted that parents parking on the road while waiting for their children to leave school is also a safety issue with children crossing the street to get to their parents’ vehicle.

Shuhrovec said she was worried that the store wouldn’t be ready for Thursday’s opening. The company held a meeting earlier this week and the store didn’t look any where near ready, according to Shuhrovec.

“They put in a lot of work in order to be ready for today,” she said. “The store looks great.”

Thursday is considered a soft opening for Save-A-Lot said Bowers. A Family Fun Day is planned.

“We will have our grand opening celebration on Jan. 5 and 6,” Bowers said. “There will be face painters, coloring book giveaways, sample stations and grill one of those days.”

Save-A-Lot has some 1,400 stores in 37 states. Shuhrovec said the company is always taking applications and the easiest way to apply is by visiting savealot.com/careers.

The store hours are 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Sunday.

OBITUARIES

John A. MacPhail

John A. MacPhail, 93, of Spartanburg, South Carolina, died Friday, Dec. 15, 2017. Born Jan. 20, 1924 in Johnstown, Pennsylvania, he was the son of the late Donald C. and Marie T. MacPhail.

Surviving are his wife of 70 years, Jeanne Spangler MacPhail; four children; four grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. MacPhail resided in Sebring, Florida in the late 1990s where they belonged to the Spring Lake Presbyterian Church. He served as a volunteer with Habitat for Humanity, the Sebring Public Library, and The Salvation Army. He was also among the first to volunteer as a mediator for the Highlands County Court.

An active Presbyterian, MacPhail was appointed to the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Presbytery while serving as an elder of the church.

He was a veteran of the U.S. Army during World War II, a member of various Masonic bodies and a retired judge of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

A service honoring his memory will be conducted at 4 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 28, 2017, in the Chapel at First Presbyterian Church, 393 E. Main St., Spartanburg, SC 29302, by Holt Andrews.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests memorial gifts be made to Habitat for Humanity, 159 S. Commerce St., Sebring, FL 33870, or Spring Lake Presbyterian Church, 5887 U.S. 98, Sebring, FL 33876.

Floyd’s North Church Street Chapel is in charge of arrangements.

Brian Peat

It is with great sadness that we announce the passing of our beloved Brian Peat. Brian passed away on Friday, Dec. 8, 2017 at the age of 78.

Brian was originally from Huddersfield, Yorkshire in England. Brian served his country in the Royal Army Service Corps (RASC) where he met his wife, Corinne, while stationed in Nassau in the Bahamas. Brian and Corinne emigrated from England to Miami in September 1973 before moving to Avon Park, where they lived for many years. Brian, Corinne and his sister-in-law, Faye, were all members of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church in Sebring and loved their church family.

He is predeceased by his mother, Martha; his beloved wife, Corinne, and his brother, Lesley. He is survived by his two brothers, Gerald and David, and their eight children and 16 grandchildren; his eldest stepdaughter, Linda, her husband John, their three children and five great-grandchildren; his youngest stepdaughter, Sandie, and her wife, Sharon, and one more grandchild and two great-grandchildren.

There will be a memorial service at Sebring Seventh-Day Adventist Church, 2106 State Road 17 N, Sebring 33870 at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 30, 2017.

Services entrusted to Stephenson-Nelson Funeral Home, 4001 Sebring Parkway, Sebring, FL 33870. Online condolences may be left at www.stephensonnelsonfh.com.

Audi looking for strong 2018

Audi Sport customer racing program coming off solid season

ALLEN MOODY/Staff

The No. 57 Audi R8 LMS GT3 races at Sebring International Raceway.

Special to Highlands News-Sun

Audi Sport customer racing paid tribute to a successful 2017 racing season last weekend in Neuberg, Germany.

Among the manufacturer's many highlights from a successful season globally were a pair of IMSA WeatherTech SportsCar Championship GT Daytona (GTD) class victories — the Mobil 1 SportsCar Grand Prix at Canadian Tire Motorsport Park by co-drivers Andrew Davis and Lawson Aschenbach in the No. 57 Stevenson Motorsports Audi R8 LMS GT3 and the Motul Petit Le Mans at Road Atlanta with the No. 29 Montaplast by Land-Motorsport Audi co-driven by Connor De Phillippi, Christopher Mies and Sheldon van der Linde.

Audi also claimed an IMSA Continental Tire SportsCar Challenge victory in 2017, taking the Street Tuner (ST) class win in a four-hour race at Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca with Roy Block and Pierre Kleinubing co-driving the No. 75 C360R Audi S3. Kleinubing also started that race from the pole position.

The stage is set for potentially an even bigger year in 2018. While several team and driver announcements are still to be confirmed, fans of the four rings will have plenty to root on in both the WeatherTech Championship GTD class, which will see the continuation of the R8 LMS GT3, which made its debut in the 2016 WeatherTech Championship season.

The manufacturer also will bring its brand-new R8 LMS GT4 to Continental Tire Challenge competition in the Grand Sport (GS) class, as well as the Audi RS3 LMS race car to the new-for-2018 TCR class.

"Audi Sport customer racing has seen tremendous growth over the past three years and has successfully launched new cars in GT3, GT4, and TCR - globally homologated platforms," said Tristan Herbert, senior manager, Motorsport & Customer Racing Audi Sport. "More than any other OEM currently.

Avon Park pulls away from Mulberry after slow start

By JIM TAYLOR
CORRESPONDENT

AVON PARK — A competitive first quarter quickly turned into a one-sided affair as the Avon Park Red Devils boys basketball team cruised past the Mulberry Panthers 64-33, in a Class 5A-District 8 matchup on Thursday.

With the win, the Red Devils improved to 6-2 on the season and 3-1 in the district, as Mulberry dropped to 3-6 on the season and 1-3 in the district.

"They came out ready to play and we did not," said Avon Park coach Marty O'Hara. "The best part about having a young team is that we have a lot of underclassmen, but you can't do that, you form bad habits. When you get into the playoffs, you can't do that against great teams."

Mulberry and Avon Park both came out shooting long distance beyond the arc as the Red Devils made three 3-pointers, two by Malcolm Dewberry and one by Isaiah

Lee's comeback top fish tale of 2017

Special to Highlands News-Sun

Let this simple statement sink in again: Jordan Lee completed the biggest comeback in Classic history on Texas' Lake Conroe.

After Day 1, the 25-year-old felt he had no shot as he stood 37th with three fish for 8 pounds, 6 ounces. He was one fish better on Day 2, climbing to 15th place but still 13-14 back of the lead.

"I thought there was no way, no way going out today I had a shot at winning this," he said after weighing 27-4 for his winning total of 56-10.

In his shock of winning, Lee understandably rambled a bit, saying he was at a loss for words. Then he uttered "Unbelievable." Emcee Dave Mercer ran with it, emphasizing his name when he summed up his finish on stage, hollering,

Spring Lake golf action

By JIM FOOTE
SPECIAL TO HIGHLANDS NEWS-SUN

On Tuesday, the Spring Lake Men's Golf Association held a Pick Your Partner competition on the Panther Creek golf course. There were three flights, with A Flight having seven teams with team handicaps of 17 to 23, B Flight having seven teams with team handicaps of 24 to 29, and C Flight having six teams with team handicaps of 30 and over.

First place in A Flight went to Bill Scullin and Fred Brune with a net 62 — 10 under par; as Brune had eight birdies and Scullin had 2 with no bogeys.

Second place was won by Bill Brown and Don Cunning with a net 64, with Brown having four birds of his own, Cunning with three of his own and sharing a net bird on the par-3 seventh hole.

There was a tie for third place at net 65 strokes between Pat Jaskowski and Gordon Reid and the team of Paul Benden and Bill Kingshott with Jaskowski's team winning a flight last place tie-breaker with a better score on the back nine.

In B Flight, Jerry Brown and Steve Cavaney won with a net 62, also 10 under par. Cavaney's hot hand included five birds and a net eagle of his own, along with Brown's two birds and one shared bird for that 10 strokes.

Second place — at 63, 9 under par — went to resort owner Edd Vowels and Steve Gorham, with Mr. Vowels leading the way with a net eagle on the par 6 No. 4 hole and five other birdies of his own. Two bogey holes messed up a real good round.

Bill Lawens and Rich Ellison finished third at 64 strokes; one more stroke back. Their 8-under-par included nine birdies and one bogey.

A net 62 also won the C Flight for Larry Carlson and Gary Lueck. Their 10-under-par included nine birdies and an eagle, offset by one bogey. Second place went to Mike Custer and Gene Hearn's net 64.

Third place in C Flight went to Ed Thorsen and Gary Wessel, with a net 65 — 7-under-par that included a net eagle by Wessel on the par 4 12th hole.

Late in the first quarter, the game took a turn as steals by Javariuss Smith and Coombes led to fast break points for both that became the catalyst of a 24-2 run that gave Avon Park a 37-14 lead at the half.

"Mulberry played tough tonight," said O'Hora. "They were down a few varsity players. We got our act together in the second quarter, they only scored two points, defensive intensity got better and we shot the ball well tonight. If those 3's were not dropping, it could have been a different game."

The Red Devils maintained a 35-point lead to end the third with the score being 55-20.

Avon Park finished the final quarter with nine points compared to Mulberry's 13 to win the game by a final of 64-33.

Despite the win,

"We have to adjust that, but a district win is a district win and we will take it," he said.

"Un-be-Leeeeeee-vable!"

Lee had been out of the conversation. He and everyone else in the country never considered he could recover from a poor Day 1, or make up his deficit after Day 2.

"I don't even know what to say. I'm a little bit in shock," Lee said. "I can't believe it. I'm at a loss for words. Unbelievable (There it was)."

Lee put a ding in the old adage that "you can't win the Classic on the first day, but you sure can lose it."

He had weighed in only three fish from a rough Lake Conroe on Friday and was 37th with 8-6. There were seven anglers with more than 20 pounds and another 15 with twice his weight.

Talk all week was that Conroe was finicky — its giants were few and far between. An angler might be able to blast 25 to 27 pounds one day then zero the next day, or vice versa. That panned out.

Lee's second day came together late. At noon, he had yet to catch a fish — he was still at 8-6 while others were near 40 pounds — but he would bring four fish to the scales for 21-0. On stage, Lee even dropped one of them, embarrassing himself immensely. He apologized profusely because he's always been critical of anyone who allowed that to happen.

"I've never done that before, and I always make fun of people who do," he said, "and I just did it in front of thousands and thousands of people."

"I guess I got it out of the way." Maybe it was a good omen, but don't expect Lee to drop a fish again anytime soon, accidentally or purposefully.

Not many writers approached Lee in the media room, where the anglers conducted interviews and grabbed a bite before reuniting with their rigs. Lee left, not knowing who would lead going into Championship Sunday, or how far back he was. No point; he felt he wasn't in the hunt. He was just glad to make the Top 25 cut.

No angler had ever climbed from as far back as 15th, and no Classic champ had ever faced his 13-14 deficit. A second 20-pound day kept Brent Ehrler in the lead with 43-4. Lee had 29-6.

But Lee was on the juice.

"It was a dream spot," he said. "I thought in practice that I had found something, but it just didn't pan out the first day. The last couple days, it did."

Championship Sunday got off to a rocky start as Lee experienced lower unit issues that required him to set up a ride back in. Rules allow for that, as long as no fishing occurs on the other boat.

Lee was pretty much stuck fishing his point, but from Wednesday's final practice and subsequent days he knew it held good-sized bass. A bunch of them. So it was probably a good thing he couldn't run to another spot.

Dock talk was that Conroe likely wouldn't be conquered on a single spot, while others held out hope of finding a winning school. Many lamented they had not. Lee had found one; now the trick was catching them.

Although his final day was slow, Lee climbed the BASSTrakk standings with 5-pounder after 5-pounder. Along with Steve Kennedy, Lee closed within ounces of Ehrler's lead in the 47th Bassmaster Classic.

Surely he'd fall down the leaderboard once others filled their limits, but the fickle nature of Conroe struck: Ehrler, Dave Lefebvre, Edwin Evers, James Elam, Bradley Roy, Mike Iaconelli and Kevin VanDam all started Sunday more than 6 pounds ahead of Lee, but none could manage a charge of their own. Elam had that group's biggest bag at 12-7.

Lee's bag was estimated at 25-0, although there's always wiggle room on the unofficial standings entered by the angler's cameraman or Marshal. On Day 2, Lee's biggest fish weighed a 7-7, but it was entered as a 6-0. Could this have happened again? An underreporting of just 3 ounces on each of his fish and he's leading. It was mentioned twice on Bassmaster LIVE as was Lee's potential to pull off the greatest comeback in Classic history.

Lee's 27-4, the biggest bag of the tournament, pushed his three-day total to 56-10. It was a couple pounds below the lowest winning weight guessed by the competitors four days earlier. Lee had predicted 66.5 would win it.

Steve Kennedy cringed when his 21-15 sack came up just 1-9 short, leaving him second to Lee. Ehrler managed only 11-10 in falling to third. Jordan Lee, who gained his first Classic berth through the Carhartt (his main sponsor) College Series, had won the world championship.

And he had no inkling he might win until he was well off the water.

"I had no clue," he said. "I really thought there was no shot of me winning. What a day. It didn't happen quick for me. It was a slow day, but when I set the hook, [they] were obviously big."

Lee is considered the top young angler on the Elites who has the natural gift of catching bass. Many knew he would break through someday. So while the manner in which he did it was spectacular, stunning, remarkable and "un-be-Leeeeeee-vable."

PAUSE & CONSIDER

Jan Merop

Poised to be our Savior

Sanctuary. A sacred or holy (set apart) place. A place of refuge. Have you ever needed such a place where you could focus...be quiet, undistracted, away from the mainstream of life, peaceful...even when all around you is anything but tranquil? I recall a time when God had compelled me to take 15 years of my weekly columns and select some for a devotional book. It was quite scary and exciting all at once. The process was arduous. The more I moved ahead, the less I knew. Finally, I declared, "I can't do this!" Then the Lord whispered to my spirit, "No you can't. But I can. With Me all things are possible." I was poised to complete the project, but first I needed a place to be. And so we headed to the mountains where I regained my focus and cleared my thoughts through prayer and meditation on God's Word... Psalm 121: 1 and 2, NKJV in particular, which says, "I will lift up my eyes to the hills - from whence comes my help? My help comes from the Lord, who made heaven and earth." Peace flooded my soul. I read the rest of the psalm and leaned into his keeping and preserving power. We would write this book together. I was now poised to really complete this endeavor. My heart had rediscovered its sanctuary.

When Jesus left heaven and all its glory and took on the form of a human being...starting out as a baby...just like us, he came poised to be our Savior. No one else could do what he was about to do because no one else was sinless.

As he went from childhood through adulthood, his mission never wavered. He had come to live among us, be the substitutionary sacrifice for sinful mankind and rise again to give eternal life to all who believe.

His heart's refuge was with the Father in heaven. The Garden of Gethsemane was his place to be...to commune with his Father and eventually say, "Not my will but yours."

He came willingly so that God the Father could give us the most indescribable present that first Christmas. He gave us his presence through Jesus Christ, God the Son. And, he continues to gladly come into the heart of anyone who trusts him as Savior filling them with his presence.

If you want to know true peace, the only sanctuary for your soul is found in Jesus. He personifies all you're longing for and more.

This Christmas, be poised to belong to him. Selah

SFSC graduates balancing college, work, and family through Teamwork

Special to Highlands News-Sun

AVON PARK — Angelo and Coren Russo have been married for five years and are a testament to teamwork in every sense. Over those five years, they've been working on degrees at South Florida State College. During SFSC's commencement Thursday, the Russos earned their Bachelor of Applied Science degrees in Supervision and Management (BAS-SM). In fact, Angelo was the college's student commencement speaker.

"I always wanted to have a degree," Coren said. "I had children first, and then I wanted to accomplish something else. I wanted an associate degree, but then I thought, 'Let's keep this going.' Now that I have my bachelor's degree, I'm feeling like 'Let's keep this going.' I've been tossing around the idea of database administration. I want a master's degree in something just to say I could."

"Coren started college to better herself, so she encouraged me to go as well so that we were each other's rocks in this effort," Angelo said. In fall 2014, he received an Associate in Science degree in computer information systems, and Coren earned her Associate in Arts degree from SFSC.

For many students, college, work, and family become a balancing act. "We missed out on family and friend get-togethers and some holidays," Angelo said. "We both took three courses while working full time. You have to give up some of your life when you go to college. It requires a sacrifice in some areas of your life, but it's worth it in the long run."

Coren and Angelo Russo, residents of Highlands County, in December 2014.

As a previous non-traditional student, Dr. Tina Adams, lead instructor for the BAS-SM program, understands the challenges students face as they attempt to balance academics, work, and family. "This couple did an excellent job supporting each other and making sacrifices when necessary to ensure that they successfully finished the program," she said.

INSPIRATIONAL CORNER

James Fansler

Jesus vs Santa Claus

Warning: In the event you read my articles at home with your families, there will be some content in this message you may not want to share with your young children. Since I am pretty sure young children are not buying the paper to read my article, I will continue. Before you gasp and scoff at the idea I have placed anything in this message that would make you want to set the paper on fire, I am referring to the revelation of Santa's existence or lack thereof.

Recently I watched a video of a pastor who visited a mall where children were to visit Santa. The pastor began his live video feed with an explanation of why he believed children should never believe in Santa and how it was up to him to get parents to stop spreading lies to their children. Maybe for some, this is a confusing concept or have questions about when to reveal the truth about Santa. Mind you, this is just my opinion not that of anyone else, just mine. It is a truth that should be up to the parent to reveal, not a pastor, teacher, or anyone else.

There is no set time or age of a child to reveal to them the fact that Santa is not real, that he is a fictional character that does not magically make his way down chimneys to place toys under the Christmas tree. Do I believe that allowing children to believe in Santa is a disgrace to Jesus, not at all. Most families have some kind of major tradition that includes Jesus, His birth, and ultimately His death for us. Children hear these stories while attending Sunday school or a Christmas Mass or whatever your tradition may be. You may think they are not listening to the message but I guarantee they are hearing it and their memories are filing it away. How many songs can you recall all the words to, yet never really listened to them? Kind of the same concept.

Children believing in Santa gives them some excitement and a drive to be good. The decorations of trees, homes, and towns also lends to the giving spirit in us all. It is touted as the "Most wonderful time of the year." We exchange gifts, just as the three wise men brought to Jesus as He lay in the manger. It comes down to what you make of it. If you make Christmas time a selfish "what am I gonna get from everyone else" then it is sending the wrong message. However, if you are teaching your children a message that Christmas is a time of giving, and giving from the heart not just because it's what is and has been done, then you are teaching a valuable lesson

COUNSELING CORNER

Don't let a holiday family visit become a holiday disaster

During the holiday season, advertisers and the media are constantly portraying families as all having these perfectly wonderful, caring and loving relationships. Unfortunately, for most of us, our families are probably less than perfect.

When it comes to holiday gatherings with our families, there's always the chance it's going to be less than perfect times. It's not uncommon to feel stress and anxious about an upcoming family visit. But if you take the time to understand the sources of the stress that can come with a family get-together, it often can help at least minimize those feelings.

A common problem is that you've become a different person than the image of you that parents, siblings and other family members still carry with them. For them you may still be that little kid or immature teen, and they can't see how you've developed and matured. It's a source of annoyance when others can't recognize the changes that have made you who you are today.

Another source of anxiety for many is not having met family expectations. You may have faced a recent job loss, a financial problem or a relationship that has ended badly. It can feel awkward and difficult to be back with family knowing you're not the success you think you family expected of you. Family visits also bring with them family history. There may be memories of stressful times, past disagreements, awkward relationships or an unhappy childhood. It's not uncommon for family arguments or misunderstandings to rekindle once again.

One starting point in minimizing such issues is simply recognizing that the stress you're feeling is a very normal reaction. When you try to understand why an upcoming family gathering is feeling stressful, you can begin to find ways to minimize such feelings. This might mean avoiding certain situations or people, or simply accepting that you won't have a wonderful time with everyone.

Seek out people to see and things to do that will make your visit more enjoyable. Try to avoid the trouble spots. When cornered in an awkward situation use the cell phone excuse "Oops, I forgot I have to call Sharon by 4." to walk away from potential problems.

And if you find that the whole trip is really going to be significantly traumatic, consider shortening, or even avoiding the visit completely. Don't let old problems ruin your current holiday enjoyment.

The World Famous
Glenn Miller Orchestra
 LIVE IN CONCERT JANUARY 31, 2018
 AT THE HIGHLANDS NEWS-SUN CENTER
 781 Magnolia Avenue • Sebring, FL 33870 • 7:00pm showtime

The legendary Glenn Miller was one of the most successful of all dance bandleaders back in the Swing Era of the 1930s and '40s with a matchless string of hit records which built and sustained the momentum of popularity.

Today, the 18 member ensemble continues to play many of the original Miller arrangements both from the civilian band and the AAFB libraries. Additionally, it also plays some more modern selections arranged and performed in the Miller style and sound. Just as it was in Glenn's day, the Glenn Miller Orchestra today is still the most sought after big band in the world!

The support for each other throughout their academic careers was invaluable. "Coren and I would quiz each other on the way to the campus," Angelo said. "We bounced ideas off of each other for some of our class projects."

"We wouldn't let the other one procrastinate," Coren said. "If one of us wanted to watch TV or go out to dinner, Angelo or I would finish writing our assignment for class first. We held each other accountable."

Coren indicated that she and Angelo had a particular BAS-SM class together in which Dr. Adams separated them because, "Apparently, Angelo and I are both strong leaders. We're both Type A."

"There were times I wanted to quit," Coren said. "But not because of school." Coren's father passed away a few years ago, she lost one of her best friends, and her best friend lost her father. "I needed to focus on something, so I took the semester off. Dr. Adams was definitely a positive influence. She told me that I could take some time off, but that I must come back to finish the program."

Although Angelo could have graduated in May 2017, he held off and waited to graduate with Coren. The final course in the BAS-SM program, the capstone course, was coming up and they wanted to take the class together. "We heard that people were stressing out about it, that the projects are crazy hard," Angelo said.

"But it's not. It's just that the structure of the class is different from others. We had to create a strategic profile of a company — what problems they're having, pick a problem, do research, surveys, and make recommendations on how to fix the problem," he said. "Every class we've had throughout this program, everything we've learned is rolled up in the capstone course. It helped me develop leadership skills and to work with groups and teams to find a solution to a problem."

Although Angelo's final GPA in college classes is 3.94 and Coren's is 3.65, they never considered each other academic rivals. "We wanted to show our son, Ronnie, the importance of good grades because he had a problem with grades when he was younger," Coren said. "We wanted him to have something to be proud of, something that he accomplished, with a little nudge from us."

Apparently, the Russos inspired their son. Currently, Ronnie takes honors classes and college classes at Atlantic Technical College and High School in Broward County. He has a 4.14 GPA.

After graduation, Angelo will continue to work in the Information Technology Department at the Avon Park Correctional Institution, and Coren recently accepted a position as a project manager with a company in Fort Myers. For the time being, she and Angelo simply want to enjoy life. "I want to read books that I choose, not assigned reading, and play my video games," she said.

But Coren takes great pride in her educational accomplishments and believes, "People can take your house, your money, but no one can take your education. It's yours and yours alone."

CAP helps with 'Wreaths Across America'

Civil Air Patrol cadet airman Alexandria Mulvaney pays tribute to a deceased veteran on 'Wreaths Across America' Day, Dec. 16.

SEBRING — Civil Air Patrol cadet airman Alexandria Mulvaney, granddaughter of 1st. Lieutenant Ron and Mary Bower of Sebring, pays tribute to a deceased veteran on "Wreaths Across America" Day, Dec. 16. All across America, volunteers place donated wreaths to honor military veterans.

Alex is a member of Squadron 051 and her grandfather is a member of the Highlands County squadron.

As the wreaths are placed, the volunteers typically render a hand salute and verbally thank the veteran for their service using their name.

Although the wreaths are only placed on the gravesites one time a year, wreaths may be purchased for $15 throughout the year by contacting one of the CAP members listed below.

Information about joining the Civil Air Patrol can be obtained by contacting Major Clancy at mclancyCAP@gmail.com or phone 863-441-4737 or Lieutenant Bower at rbower@flwg.us or phone 863-214-8152. Meetings are conducted weekly from 6:30-8:30 p.m. Thursdays in the Sebring airport FBO.

about how Jesus lived.

No, Virginia, there isn't a Santa Claus per se, but the fictional character is based on a real life man named Nicholas. His origins have a direct connection to Jesus. Obeying the word of God to "sell what you own and give the money to the poor," Nicholas used his whole inheritance to assist the needy, the sick, and the suffering. He dedicated his life to serving God and was made Bishop of Myra while still a young man. Bishop Nicholas became known throughout the land for his generosity to those in need, his love for children, and his concern for sailors and ships. (www.stnicholascenter.org).

Are you wrestling with the idea of telling your child about the difference between Santa Claus and Jesus? I truly don't believe it harmful to allow young children to believe Santa Claus is coming to town, and it is always the right time to tell them about Jesus. Most of us believed in Santa for a short time while we were very young and later realize he was mostly a tradition not made to be thought of as a deity. As long as you are not trying to replace Jesus with Santa, I don't see that we need to go into malls and ruin a fun time for families and children. Children believing in Santa has a bit of innocence to what the world has in store for them as they grow older. As we grow we learn truth. So I say, if your children still believe in Santa, let them, but allow them to believe in Jesus as well. Let Him be the foundation in which everything else stands.

Merry Christmas to all.

Merry Christmas! Merry Christmas?

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. He was with God in the beginning. Through him all things were made; without him nothing was made that has been made. In him was life, and that life was the light of all mankind. The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness has not overcome it. The Word became flesh and made his dwelling among us. We have seen his glory, the glory of the one and only Son, who came from the Father, full of grace and truth. John 1:14 flesh. God came among us, not only to bear our sin and pain, but also to enjoy this life with us. You'll recall, no doubt, that Jesus' detractors were critical because He spent so much time partying with "tax collectors and sinners." He didn't fit the stereotype of the ascetic holy man. He was having too much fun enjoying this life for that.
Merry Christmas!

JOMARIE GRINKIEWICZ
GRIEF AND HEALING

So, as you make merry today, make merry with Jesus, thanking Him for the goodness in life and for being present with you today.

If today accentuates your pain, if you feel even lonelier or sadder today than you did yesterday, if you are suffering physically or emotionally, Christmas brings the good news of God's presence. In Jesus, the Word Incarnate, God became human. Jesus knows both physical and emotional suffering. He experienced loneliness and sadness. He hurt even as you hurt. And he continues to hurt with you today.

So, as you grieve today, grieve with Jesus, sharing with him the reality of your pain and thanking Him for knowing how it feels and for being present with you.

The story of Christmas focuses on the baby born in a stable. The truth of Christmas focuses on God becoming human, the Word of God made flesh. Jesus is Emmanuel, God with us, God with us in our rejoicing, God with us in our weeping, God is with us always.

Thanks be to God!
Merry Christmas, indeed!

There's a very good possibility that you are feeling truly merry today. It's (almost) Christmas Eve, after all. Not only are you celebrating the birth of the baby Jesus, but also you are gathering with friends and family for feasting and fun. If you're united with loved ones whom you don't see very often, then today is an especially merry day for you. So ... Merry Christmas!

Merry Christmas? But I'm also aware that among people who read this Christmas reflection, today is not what you'd call a merry day. Perhaps you are separated from your loved ones by way too many miles. Perhaps this is the first Christmas you've spent without a beloved friend or relative who passed away during 2017. You miss this person more than ever today. Perhaps being together with family and friends underscores the pain in your life and the brokenness in your relationships. Or, maybe you don't have the financial means to celebrate with fine foods and generous gifts. Maybe you must work today just to survive. No matter your exact situation, you're not feeling very merry, that's for sure. So ... Merry Christmas?

I believe Christmas offers good news to all of us, to those of us who are making merry and to those of us who are feeling sad, and to those of us who fall somewhere in between. If you're celebrating today with joy, Christmas is a time to remember that God entered into the fullness of human life in Jesus, the Word made

Misbehavior snowballs roll downhill rapidly

Q: My parents recently told me that my husband and I are letting our toddler run our family and that it's becoming increasingly uncomfortable for them to visit or have us visit with them — they live 10 miles away — because of her misbehavior. Mind you, she is only 28 months old. They told me, for example, that she should be toilet trained already. Her pediatrician, however, told us to wait until she was closer to 3.

In addition, she throws frequent tantrums and often refuses to do what we tell her to do. That's normal for this age, right? Anyway, my parents told me that I ought to begin reading your column and books so I thought I'd just write you and get your opinion on all this. By the way, my parents had me when they were older and are sort of stuck in the old ways of doing things.

A: Saying that your daughter is only 28

months old may go a long way toward explaining this situation. Your parents, being "stuck in the old ways," understand that the most advantageous time to deal with any given misbehavior is on the part of a toddler is when it first appears — by nipping it in the bud, so to speak. This very active approach to discipline recognized that misbehavior snowballs roll downhill very rapidly (and yes, I realize I'm mixing my metaphors).

For better or worse,

Celebrating Our Lady of Guadalupe

CORRESPONDENT

AVON PARK — On Tuesday, Dec. 12, the Our Lady of Grace Catholic Church in Avon Park celebrated the 586th anniversary of the apparitions of the Virgin Mary to Juan Diego on the Hill of Tepeyac with the Feast of Our Lady of Guadalupe.

According to sources, the apparition of the Virgin Mary first appeared to Diego on December 9, 1531, asking him to build a church where people could experience her compassion.

Juan Diego went to the Archbishop of Mexico City that day and went back a second time on Dec. 10 in which the Archbishop asked for a sign.

Missing a meeting with the apparition on Dec. 11 to care for his uncle, Diego attempted to avoid the apparition on Dec. 12 when she appeared before him.

Upon hearing that the Archbishop requested a sign, she had him go to the hill to gather Castilian roses, though they were not native to Mexico during this time of year. He found the flowers and she arranged them in his tilma (cloak) and he took them to the Archbishop.

Upon opening his Tilma, the flowers fell to the floor and the fabric of his coat was covered in her image, calling her the Virgin of Guadalupe. Upon seeing this, the Archbishop agreed to build the church on Dec. 12, 1531.

According to the National Catholic Register, Diego's tilma is Mexico's most popular religious symbol and can be seen today in a large basilica built to house up to 10,000 people.

It also states that St. Juan Diego is a story of faith, that this man had faith and his faith impacted millions of people around the world and led to the conversion of Mexico to the Catholic faith.

Though this is the short version, there is plenty of content about Our Lady of Guadalupe available from various sources online.

That faith was on display Tuesday night as the Our Lady of Grace Catholic Church celebrated this event with the Feast of Our Lady Guadalupe that packed the church to standing room only and some people were standing outside the church.

The festivities included children dancers and drummers, mass, more dancing displays after mass as well and music and free food for all those who attended.

JIM TAYLOR/CORRESPONDENT

JIM TAYLOR/CORRESPONDENT

Drummers bring in the children dressed in various traditional outfits.

JIM TAYLOR/CORRESPONDENT

The children are brought to sit in front of the altar just before the communion portion of the mass.

major disciplinary precedents are set during the third year of life (24 to 36 months). These precedents determine, to significant degree, whether the child's discipline will be relatively easy or extremely difficult from that point on. I'm going to guess that your parents are concerned that by excusing your daughter's behavior on the basis of her age that you are creating a significant disciplinary "debt" that will create ever more stress down the road for all concerned.

I'm sure you want nothing more than for your daughter to be a happy child. Consider, then, that obedient, well-behaved children are much, much happier than disobedient, ill-behaved children. Common sense confirms that and so does the best research into parenting outcomes. I urge you to get a move on before your daughter becomes a full-blown family tyrant.

First, create a "tantrum place" — a safe and relatively isolated place where you put your daughter as soon as a tantrum begins. A half-bath works well. When screaming commences, in she goes until the screaming stops.

Time-out does not generally work well with older children or major discipline problems, but it can be very useful with a toddler. The child's room, assuming it is not a self-contained entertainment complex, will do. Five or 10 minutes in relative confinement for disobedience sends a powerful message to a child this age. Use a timer set outside her door to let her know when her time of repentance is up.

Your parents are also correct concerning toilet training. Just as it is easier to house-train a 4-month-old puppy than it is a 1-year-old dog, it is easier to train an 18-month-old than a 3-year-old. Do not wait a day longer to begin teaching your daughter the inestimable benefits of clean underwear.

My book, Making the "Terrible Twos" Terrific, is a treasure-trove (if I do say so myself) of helpful tips on discipline with toddlers. I'm sure your local library, if they don't have a copy in stock, can obtain one for you. The same goes for Toilet Training Without Tantrums, which has saved many a parent lots of money they would have otherwise spent on disposable diapers.

Concerning the "old" ways of raising children, which we abandoned beginning in the late 1960s and began listening to mental health professionals tell us how to "parent," it is now plain as day that professional advice, based on psychological theory, has resulted in a parenting catastrophe. Over the past fifty years, for example, the mental health of America's children has been in free fall, with no end in sight.

The Book of Ecclesiastes, one of the so-called "wisdom" books of Jewish scripture, says "there is nothing new under the sun." Concerning children especially, that is spot on.

Trump signs tax cut in Oval Office event

By LAURIE KELLMAN and JONATHAN LEMIRE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — In the end, Donald Trump's top achievement as president—a $1.5 trillion tax overhaul—was finalized in a "rush job" of an affair. And that was OK with him.

None of the members of Congress who muscled through the biggest tax overhaul in 30 years were in the Oval Office on Friday as Trump signed the measure into law. That's because the president was not pleased with news coverage that morning questioning whether he would get the bill signed before Christmas. So he ordered up a spur-of-the-moment signing event where he ticked through what he described as the "tremendous" accomplishments of his first year in office.

"This is the capper," Trump said of the tax package, using his last moments of the year in the White House to sign the bill before flying to Florida for the holidays. He also signed a temporary spending bill to keep the government running and provide money to upgrade the nation's missile defenses.

But the tax cut was at the top of Trump's mind after months of struggling to deliver his agenda through a Republican-controlled Congress. Trump on Friday thanked the absent GOP leaders and called the bill "something I'm very proud of."

Then, with no legislators on hand, he offered to distribute pens from his signing event to reporters assembled in the Oval Office. Clearly feeling some end-of-year cheer, the president who loves to decry "fake news" gave reporters and camera crews credit for "working very hard" and said, "We really appreciate that."

Starting next year, the new tax law will deliver big cuts to corporation and wealthy Americans and more modest reductions to other families. The tax law is the largest since 1986, but far from the biggest in American history, as the president repeatedly claims.

The first major overhaul of the nation's tax laws since 1986 could add $1.5 trillion to the national debt over the next decade, according to the Congressional Budget Office. Republican leaders have said they're willing to

UN Security Council imposes new sanctions on North Korea

By EDITH M. LEDERER

UNITED NATIONS — The U.N. Security Council unanimously approved tough new sanctions against North Korea on Friday in response to its latest launch of a ballistic missile that Pyongyang says is capable of reaching anywhere on the U.S. mainland.

The resolution adopted by the council includes sharply lower limits on North Korea's refined oil imports, the return home of all North Koreans working overseas within 24 months, and a crackdown on ships smuggling banned items including coal and oil to and from the country.

But the resolution doesn't include even harsher measures sought by the Trump administration that would ban all oil imports and freeze international assets of the government and its leader, Kim Jong Un.

The resolution, drafted by the United States and negotiated with the North's closest ally China, drew criticism from Russia for the short time the 13 other council nations had to consider the draft, and last-minute changes to the text. Two of those changes were extending the deadline for North Korean workers to return home from 12 months to 24 months — which Russia said was the minimum needed — and reducing the number of North Koreans being put on the U.N. sanctions blacklist from 19 to 15.

U.S. Ambassador Nikki Haley said after the vote that "the unity this council has shown in leveling these unprecedented sanctions is a reflection of the international outrage at the Kim regime's actions."

Mattis: 'Storm clouds gathering' over Korean Peninsula

By ROBERT BURNS
AP NATIONAL SECURITY WRITER

FORT BRAGG, N.C. — "Storm clouds are gathering" over the Korean Peninsula, Defense Secretary Jim Mattis declared Friday. And as diplomats try to resolve the nuclear standoff, he told soldiers that the U.S. military must do its part by being ready for war.

Without forecasting a conflict, Mattis emphasized that diplomacy stands the best chance of preventing a war if America's words are backed up by strong and prepared armed forces.

"My fine young soldiers, the only way our diplomats can speak with authority and be believed is if you're ready to go," Mattis told several dozen soldiers and airmen at the 82nd Airborne Division's Hall of Heroes, his last stop on a two-day pre-holiday tour of bases to greet troops.

Mattis' comments came as the U.N. Security Council unanimously approved tough new sanctions against North Korea, compelling nations to sharply reduce their sales of oil to the reclusive country and send home all North Korean expatriate workers within two years. Such workers are seen as a key source of revenue for North Korean leader Kim Jong Un's cash-strapped government.

President Donald Trump and other top U.S. officials have made repeated threats about U.S. military action. Some officials have described the messaging as twofold in purpose: to pressure North Korea to enter into negotiations on getting rid of its nuclear arsenal, and to motivate key regional powers China and Russia to put more pressure on Pyongyang so a war is averted.

For the military, the focus has been on ensuring soldiers are ready should the call come.

At Fort Bragg, Mattis recommended the troops read T.R. Fehrenbach's military classic "This Kind of War: A Study in Catalan vote does little to clarify Spanish region's future

By BARRY HATTON and ARITZ PARRA
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BARCELONA, Spain — Spain's worst political crisis in decades showed few signs of abating Friday after Catalan separatist parties clinched a parliamentary majority in an exceptional election called by the country's prime minister, who remained steadfast in his refusal to consider independence for the prosperous region.

The outcome of Thursday's election, in which an anti-secession party also made its best showing to date, did yield a sign of possible movement: Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy and the pro-independence regional president he removed from office said they were ready to talk.

However, the two men made clear they were working off different sets of presumptions for a potential dialogue.

Speaking from Brussels, where he fled nearly eight weeks ago to avoid being arrested on possible rebellion and sedition charges, ex-Catalan President Carles Puigdemont said he would talk with Rajoy under one condition — their meeting would have to be outside Spain.

34 of the regional parliament's 135 seats, making it the most popular separatist party.

As the leading separatist candidate, Puigdemont could try to become president of Catalonia again. The new parliament would not be able to elect him for the post unless he returns to Barcelona, the regional capital, but he is likely to be arrested when he turns up on Spanish soil.

The election results nonetheless strengthened Puigdemont's hand, as separatist politicians won 70 of the parliament seats altogether. Rajoy's conservative Popular Party secured just three seats, a major embarrassment for the prime minister who took unprecedented steps to put down the Catalan independence movement.

"More than 2 million people are in favor of Catalonia's independence," Puigdemont said, referring to the election results. "Recognizing reality is vital if we are to find a solution."

Rajoy ignored his adversary's appeal for a meeting, declaring instead that the election showed a "new era based on dialogue" was beginning in Catalonia. He also set out a condition of his own for any talks: separatist officeholders must abide by the Spanish Constitution, which says the country is "indivisible."

Austria: Trains collide near Vienna, about a dozen injured

BERLIN (AP) — Two passenger trains collided near a station north of Austria's capital Friday, injuring several people, authorities said.

The two regional trains collided near the station in Kritzendorf, about 18.2 kilometers (11.3 miles) north of Vienna, a little before 6 p.m. Two cars turned over, and a third was leaning to one side.

The point of impact appeared to be the sides of both trains, which then derailed.

The Red Cross and Austria's federal railway said eight people were slightly hurt and another four more seriously injured, the Austrian Press Agency reported.

US warns Kosovo against changing law on war crimes court

PRISTINA, Kosovo (AP) — The United States ambassador to Kosovo said Friday that he opposes a petition to amend a law governing a war crimes court, calling it a "terrible idea" that would isolate the young country.

Former fighters in Kosovo's independence movement have allegedly collected more than 10,000 signatures for a petition on a 2015 law that governs the Kosovo Specialist Chambers court, based in The Hague, Netherlands, seeking to extend its jurisdiction to include Serbs, their former adversaries in a war for independence.

Russia to host Syria talks in Sochi in late January

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia, Turkey and Iran agreed Friday to hold Syria peace talks in Russia's Black Sea resort of Sochi next month, a move that the U.N. Special envoy for Syria said should be assessed based on its contribution to the mandated political process under the United Nations in Geneva.

Russian news reports cited Kazakh diplomat Aidarbek Tumanov who said that during Friday's meeting in Kazakhstan's capital, Astana, the parties agreed to hold the so-called Congress for National Dialogue in Sochi on Jan. 29-30.

Earlier attempts to convene the congress were thwarted by disagreements over possible participants, primarily the involvement of the Kurds which Turkey has opposed. Russian envoy Alexander Lavrentyev told the Interfax news

US ups border training in Syria to prevent IS resurgence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is developing an expanded training program for local Kurdish and Arab border guards in Syria, the top U.S. commander for the Middle East said, to help head off the "significant risk" of Islamic State fighters regrouping in the country. It's an effort that could entail a longer term American and allied commitment.

Army Gen. Joseph Votel, head of U.S. Central Command, said in a recent telephone interview with The Associated Press that the border control training would reflect major combat operations in Syria ending and the U.S.-led coalition shifting focus to stabilizing areas seized from IS. Washington also wants to root out the remaining insurgents in Syria.

Poland donates sum to preserve Warsaw Jewish cemetery

By VANESSA GERA
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WARSAW, Poland — The Polish government has donated 100 million zlotys ($28 million) to restore and protect a major Jewish cemetery in Warsaw, one of the country's largest public contributions toward preserving the Jewish culture nearly wiped out in the Holocaust.

The Okopowa Street Jewish Cemetery, established in 1806, is the resting spot of 250,000 Polish Jews — Yiddish writers, rabbis, philanthropists, scholars, bankers and regular citizens who once belonged to a vibrant community that made up one-third of Warsaw's population before World War II.

Street cemetery are Ludwik Zamenhof, the creator of the Esperanto language (1859-1917), and Samuel Orgelbrand, publisher of Poland's first modern encyclopedia (1810-1868).

Today, decades after Germany uprooted and destroyed that community, many sections of the cemetery are a desolate sight. Some tombstones are broken or disappearing below decades of decomposing vegetation, and others bear inscriptions rendered unreadable by erosion.

"It's a disaster. It's a large territory in the middle of the city which looks like a jungle," said Michal Laszczkowski, the head of the Cultural Heritage Foundation, a private organization that preserves Polish heritage sites. "That's why we decided to do something."

The foundation will oversee the preservation work at the Jewish cemetery. Catholic churches, monuments and cemeteries have been among the organization's focus.

In Warsaw on Friday, Polish Culture Minister Piotr Glinski signed a contract with Laszczkowski that formalized the government donation. The money established an endowment, returns from which are supposed to go to cleaning the cemetery, preserving its tombstones and monuments and reinforcing an outer wall.

Congress' GOP, Dems face divisions in run-up to '18 midterms

By ALAN FRAM
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Their tax bill triumph in the rear-view mirror, Republicans running Congress face a 2018 in which they'll need Democratic votes to get almost anything done. And that won't be easy. Short of a few must-pass items, divisions within both parties plus a natural election-year tendency to draw distinctions with the other side means achievements and cooperation will be minimal.

The pressure will be on the GOP, which controls the White House, Senate and House and would probably be blamed by voters for any major screwups. Since Republicans will have just a 51-49 Senate majority next year — well shy of the 60 votes needed to pass most bills — Democrats will have leverage for most things, including a deal to prevent a politically jolting January federal shutdown.

"There's not much you can do on a partisan basis in the Senate," Senate Majority Leader McConnell, R-Kentucky, conceded to reporters Friday.

Topping McConnell's immediate list will be a spending bill averting a shutdown and providing big boosts for the Pentagon. In exchange, Minority Leader Chuck Schumer, D-New York, will be demanding comparable increases for domestic spending. Schumer also wants a deal to extend protections that President Donald Trump has threatened to halt for immigrants brought to the U.S. illegally as children, the so-called Dreamers.

Factored into Democrats' thinking: Their recent momentum-building successes swiping a Senate seat in Alabama, holding governorships in Virginia and New Jersey and grabbing unexpected local legislative seats. With Trump's profound unpopularity weighing down the GOP across the country, Republicans face a legitimate risk of losing House and Senate control in the November midterm elections. McConnell said he'll be looking for bipartisan cooperation on immigration and an effort to ease parts of the Dodd-Frank law that regulates financial market, but Democrats won't be eager to shake hands quickly.

Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Kentucky, discusses the GOP agenda for next year and touts his accomplishments in the first year of the Trump Administration on Friday.

Sen. Patty Murray, D-Washington, Sen. Dick Durbin, D-Illinois, Sen. Debbie Stabenow, D-Michigan, and Senate Minority Leader Sen. Chuck Schumer of New York, hold a news conference on Capitol Hill in Washington.

"For Democrats, there's no reason to cut a deal just for the sake of cutting a deal, especially with the Republican Party as weakened as it is right now," said Jim Manley, a Democratic consultant.

Also in play in January will be money to keep nearly 9 million low-income children in all 50 states covered by the Children's Health Insurance Program, an extension of a law allowing U.S. surveillance of foreigners overseas and tens of billions of dollars for recovery from storms and other disasters in Texas, Florida, Puerto Rico and elsewhere.

Even as GOP leaders plot their broader 2018 agenda, they'll need to cautiously seek a sweet spot between showing hard-core Republican voters that they're pursuing conservative goals and protecting their more centrist and vulnerable members from damaging votes.

That will be complicated by internal divisions. Already, McConnell and his House counterpart, Speaker Paul Ryan, R-Wisconsin, seem to be contemplating divergent pathways.

Ryan, whose Republicans are generally more conservative than GOP senators, has talked about overhauling benefit programs like welfare, Medicaid and parts of Medicare. Reining those ever-growing programs has long been a priority for Ryan and his party, but targeting popular entitlements in an election year can be risky. McConnell signaled this week that he's not likely to do that.

"We'll not be doing entitlement reform unless we have enough Democratic support to achieve it," McConnell said in an interview, citing a condition that seems just shy of implausible.

Tax overhaul leads to end-of-year rush to pay property bills

By GEOFF MULVIHILL

CHERRY HILL, N.J. — In a season of sales, homeowners in affluent towns across the country are rushing to take advantage of a deal that they hope will save them big.

On taxes. Tax collectors in many communities are seeing a surge in property tax prepayments before 2018 in an effort to cash in — for one last year — on a deduction that the coming tax overhaul will limit.

The tax office at the Cherry Hill Township building in New Jersey saw a steady stream of property owners on Friday.

One man said his buddies at an early-morning hockey game said it would be a good idea to prepay. A couple was there because their accountant called to recommend it. And Ron Brand — an accountant, though he doesn't do other people's taxes — was there with $15,000 to pay a full year's worth of 2018 property taxes.

"I'm hoping to get a 22 percent return on my money," he said, calculating that every dollar he could deduct from his income this year would mean 22 cents less in federal taxes.

Since a national income tax began more than 100 years ago, people have been allowed to deduct from their income the amount they've paid for state and local taxes.

But under the tax legislation President Donald Trump signed into law Friday, there's a $10,000 cap on the deductions.

That's going to hit hard in states such as California, Connecticut, New York and New Jersey — states where the average state and local deductions in 2015 all topped $17,000. In New Jersey, the average property tax bill alone was nearly $8,300 last year and there are scores of towns where the average bill is above the $10,000 threshold.

Dutoit out at 7 symphonies amid sexual assault accusations

SAN FRANCISCO — The stellar career of world-renowned conductor Charles Dutoit has come crashing down in the wake of sexual assault accusations by three singers and a musician. Symphonies from Boston to Sydney have severed ties with the maestro, and he has cancelled guest appearances with other major orchestras.

The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra in London, where the 81-year-old Dutoit is artistic director and principal conductor, issued a statement early Friday saying the symphony and Dutoit "have jointly agreed to release him from his forthcoming concert obligations with the orchestra for the immediate future."

The Royal Philharmonic statement says the facts should be determined by a legal process and that Dutoit "needs to be given a fair opportunity to seek legal advice and contest these allegations."

Meanwhile, orchestras in New York, Chicago and Cleveland announced that Dutoit has withdrawn his services for upcoming concerts. In addition to Sydney and Boston, the San Francisco Symphony cut ties with Dutoit, citing the "serious nature of the allegations" detailed by The Associated Press. He had been set to appear at the New York Philharmonic next month; the other performances were scattered through 2018.

Former US attorneys, GOP officials come to Mueller's defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 40 former U.S. attorneys and Republican and conservative officials are pushing back against efforts to discredit the special counsel investigating Russian interference in the 2016 election.

In a pair of letters, the groups say Robert Mueller and his team must be allowed to continue their work, unimpeded.

The 22 former U.S. attorneys, who served under presidents from Richard Nixon through Barack Obama, say it is "critical" to the "interests of justice and public trust to ensure that those charged with conducting complex investigations are allowed to do their jobs free from interference or fear of reprisal."

Seeking Mueller's removal "would have severe repercussions for Americans' sense of justice here at home and for our reputation for fairness around the world," they wrote in a letter to President Donald Trump on Friday.

Suit: iPhones Apple slowed forced owners to buy new phones

CHICAGO (AP) — Apple iPhone owners from several states are suing the tech giant for not disclosing sooner that it had issued software updates deliberately slowing older-model phones so aging batteries lasted longer.

Lawyers filed a class-action lawsuit Thursday in Chicago federal court on behalf of five iPhone owners from Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and North Carolina. They say they would not have purchased newer, pricier iPhones had Apple disclosed that simply replacing the batteries would have sped up their older phones.

The 20-page lawsuit accuses Apple of trying "to fraudulently induce consumers to purchase" new phones.

Apple acknowledged in a Wednesday statement that it introduced a fix so batteries wouldn't suddenly die. But it said its goal was improving "overall performance and prolonging" the life of the phones.

Officials lift most California wildfire evacuations

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — The worst appears to be over for a massive wildfire that plagued a wide swath of the Southern California coast for 2½ weeks.

The last mandatory evacuation orders for the fire were called off by Thursday. At its peak, the fire drove about 100,000 people from their homes in Ventura and Santa Barbara counties. Only a remote wilderness valley remained under a voluntary evacuation warning.

The so-called Thomas Fire could very well still grow to become the biggest wildfire in California history, but it would do so as a gentle giant, not a raging beast.

The blaze was 65 percent contained and had burned just over 426 square miles making it the second-largest in California's history. As of Friday morning it was within 500 acres of overtaking the size of the record holder, a blaze that struck San Diego County in 2003.

Alabama to officially end its scandal-tinged US Senate race

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Alabama election officials say they will certify Democratic candidate Doug Jones' upset victory over Republican rival Roy Moore next week.

The Alabama Secretary of State announced in a statement Friday that the election results would be finalized next Thursday.

Jones defeated Moore on Dec. 12 to become the first Democrat elected to the Senate from Alabama in a quarter-century. Moore was besieged by decades-old accusations of sexual misconduct involving teenage girls when he was in his

Moore has not conceded the race. In a Thursday fundraising letter to his supporters, Moore said he needs donations to investigate what he calls reports of fraud and irregularities in the election.

Sen. McConnell mocks Steve Bannon's 'political genius'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell used a holiday season press conference Friday to deliver a lump of coal to Steve Bannon, mocking the former White House adviser's "political genius" for costing Republicans an Alabama Senate seat.

McConnell, R-Kentucky, made the remark 10 days after the Bannon-backed Roy Moore lost a special election to Doug Jones, giving Democrats their first victory in an Alabama Senate race in a quarter century. Moore faced multiple allegations of improper conduct with teenagers decades ago and touted extremist views that repelled many women and minorities.

"The political genius on display, throwing away a seat in the reddest state in America, is hard to ignore," McConnell told reporters.

Poll: Most say sex misconduct victims are underprotected

By LAURIE KELLMAN and EMILY SWANSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Most Americans say sexual misconduct is a major problem and that too little is being done to protect victims, according to a new poll by the Associated Press-NORC Center for Public Affairs Research. But some — particularly Republican men — are concerned about the rights of the accused.

The sheer speed with which an accusation of sexual misconduct can sink a career rattles some men, and not just Republicans. Bart Cassida, a 40-year-old Democrat from Indiana, said he tends to believe the accusers. But he's concerned about employers "immediately dismissing people without proper investigation."

"People think that men don't mind being that kind of guy," someone physically assertive with women, said Dan Lee, 65, a Palm Springs, California, Democrat who retired after a four-decade career in computer science. "I think that's wrong ... men are concerned with their reputations."

The poll shows that nearly 6 in 10 Americans think there is too little protection for the rights of people who have been victims of workplace sexual misconduct. By contrast, just 37 percent think there's too little protection for people accused of sexual misconduct, 35 percent think there's the right amount and 26 percent think there's too much.

Majorities of women of all political persuasions, as well as male Democrats and independents, think too little is done to protect victims, but only about a third of male Republicans think the same. Among Republican men, by contrast, 52 percent think there are too few protections for the accused. Just 33 percent of Democratic men and 39 percent of Republican women think that's the case.

Whether there's a balance to be struck between protections for accusers and the rights of those accused of sexual misconduct is part of America's reckoning with the problem. Women and some men have come forward in recent months with allegations credible enough to topple titans of entertainment, news, and members of Congress — often with blinding speed.

Just what is an unwelcome sexual advance, and whether there should be life-altering consequences for what some might see as just a dumb remark, have ignited ferocious exchanges across U.S. society.

A third of working Americans say sexual misconduct is a very serious problem in their own workplace, a feeling most common among women, minorities and lower-income Americans. Three in 10 women and 1 in 10 men say that they've personally experienced sexual misconduct at work.

The tense discussion goes to the pinnacle of American government. Americans elected President Donald Trump even after they heard a recording of him boasting of groping women and knew he stood accused of assaulting or harassing more than a dozen women. He has denied any wrongdoing and has vowed to sue his accusers. Nearly a year into his presidency, that hasn't happened.

Misconduct allegations have been made against several members of Congress, including Sen. Al Franken, who plans to step down due to sexual assault accusations.

Allegations of sexual misconduct, many of them denied, have forced a reconsideration of lifetimes of work by accused men, such as former President Bill Clinton, actor Kevin Spacey and Hollywood mogul Harvey Weinstein. And voters in overwhelmingly Republican Alabama on Dec. 12 elected a Democrat, Doug Jones, to the Senate for the first time in a quarter century. The Republican candidate, Roy Moore, stood accused of sexual misconduct with teenage girls while he was in his 30s. Moore denied the charges. Trump endorsed Moore.

The poll shows that majorities of Americans think broad sectors of society are not doing enough to prevent sexual misconduct, including institutions including the entertainment industry, colleges and universities, state and federal governments, the military and the news media.

The sweeping nature of the national reckoning shows no sign of being resolved soon, the poll found.

Overall, two-thirds think sexual misconduct happens in most or even all workplaces and more than 8 in 10 say false accusations happen at least some of the time.

take that step in pursuit of a boost to the economy. But some in the GOP worry their party could face a political backlash without an aggressive public relations tour.

Trump continued to pitch the new law as a win a for the middle class, insisting that even though polling indicates the tax cut is unpopular, the results will win people over.

"I don't think I'm going to have to travel too much to sell it" during the 2018 midterm elections, Trump said. "I think it's selling itself."

failures during his first year in office. Trump also ended the year with his sights still trained on his treatment by the press, tweeting that the mainstream media "NEVER talk about our accomplishments in the end of year reviews."

"We are compiling a long (at) beautiful list,"

he tweeted.

Trump did celebrate passage of the tax bill at with a big ceremony on the South Lawn of the White House earlier in the week. But he scrapped plans for a more formal signing ceremony in the new year to get it signed before heading to his Mar-a-Lago resort in Florida.

"I said that the bill would be on my desk before Christmas," Trump said, as a Marine helicopter whirred outside, waiting to ferry him to Air Force One. "I didn't want you folks to say that I wasn't keeping my promise."

There were more big promises to come, including Trump's suggestion that he'll work with Democrats in the election year to rebuild the nation's roads and bridges. Infrastructure, he said, is "easy."

And there was no looking back.

Asked if he had any regrets, Trump shook his head and said, "No."

The Security Council has stood united for the 10th time "against a North Korean regime that rejects the pursuit of peace," she said.

President Donald Trump tweeted the 15-0 vote, adding: "The World

China's deputy U.N. ambassador, Wu Haitao, said it's "imperative" to pursue a peaceful settlement and resume dialogue and negotiations at an early date, warning that resorting to force "will only lead to disastrous consequences."

Deputy Russian Ambassador Vladimir Safronkov also demanded that key parties display "openness to genuine, meaningful political dialogue." Stressing the importance of "creative approaches," he said that "isolation and pressure must give way to dialogue and talks."

U.N. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres also called for a political solution, "which requires de-escalation and open communication channels now," his spokesman said.

Haley recalled that the previous sanctions resolution approved in September, when combined with earlier measures, would ban over 90 percent of North Korea's exports reported in 2016.

That resolution, adopted in response to North Korea's sixth and strongest nuclear test explosion on Sept. 3, banned North Korea from importing all natural gas liquids and condensates. It also banned all textile exports and prohibited any country from authorizing new work permits for North Korean workers — two key sources of hard currency for the northeast Asian nation.

on troops' minds as they and their families wonder whether war looms.

Asked about recent reports that families of U.S.

service members in South Korea might be evacuated, Mattis stressed his belief that diplomacy could still avert a crisis.

He said there is no plan now for an evacuation.

"I don't think it's at that point yet," he said, adding that an evacuation of American civilians would hurt the South Korean economy. He said there is a contingency plan that would get U.S. service members' families out "on very short notice."

Mattis said he sees little chance of Kim disrupting the Winter Olympics, which begin in South Korea in February.

"I don't think Kim is stupid enough to take on the whole world by killing their athletes," he said.

Mattis repeatedly stressed that there is still time to work out a peaceful solution. At one point he said diplomacy is "going positively." But he also seemed determined to steel U.S. troops against what could be a costly war on the Korean Peninsula.

"There is very little reason for optimism," he said.

Beer biosphere? Air tests positive for booze at frat party

BALTIMORE (AP) — There was so much drinking at a frat party in Maryland that police say even the air tested positive for alcohol. Montgomery County Police wrote in charging documents that an officer who tested the air in the Bethesda home with a breathalyzer got a reading of .01. Because of that, officers had to test dozens of mostly underage partygoers outside.

The Nov. 14 party was first reported by WJLA-TV.

Police were called to the house for reports of a loud party.

Police say six men who lived at the house, all 20, were each charged with providing more than 100 counts of providing alcohol to minors.

Court documents show residents said most of the partygoers were students at American University in Washington.

Health care and bank stocks pull indexes lower

By MARLEY JAY
AP MARKETS WRITER

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks finished slightly lower Friday in subdued trading ahead of a three-day holiday weekend. Health care companies and banks slipped.

President Donald Trump signed the Republican-backed tax bill into law, but for the fourth day in a row, stocks didn't move much. They had made strong gains in recent weeks as investors became more sure the $1.5 trillion package would pass.

High-dividend stocks made small gains even as bond yields remained near their recent highs.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 1.23 points, or less than 0.1 percent, to 2,683.34. The Dow Jones industrial average lost 28.23 points, or 0.1 percent, to 24,754.06. The Nasdaq composite fell 5.40 points, or 0.1 percent, to 6,959.96.

The Russell 2000 index of smaller-company stocks dipped 4.18 points, or 0.3 percent, to 1,542.93. Those companies, which stand to benefit more than others from lower tax rates, outpaced the market this week.

Stocks are below the record highs they reached Monday but still finished higher for the fifth week in a row.

Markets will be closed Monday in observance of Christmas, and with just four days of trading left in 2017, stocks are on pace to finish every month of the year with gains, when dividends are included.

Nike slumped $1.48, or 2.3 percent, to $63.29. The company had a strong quarter overall, as its profit and sales both beat Wall Street projections. But Nike's North American business continued to struggle.

Bond prices were little changed. The yield on the 10-year Treasury note remained at 2.48 percent.

Banks took modest losses. They've done far better than the rest of the market as the tax bill has been at the forefront of investors' minds and interest rates have moved higher.

The S&P 1500 banking index, which tracks small, medium and large-sized banks, has soared 9 percent over the last month. The S&P 1500 is up about 3 percent over that time.

Benchmark U.S. crude rose 11 cents to $58.47 a barrel in New York. Brent crude, which is used to price international oils, rose 35 cents to $65.25 a barrel in London.

Wholesale gasoline picked up 1 cent to $1.76 a gallon. Heating oil rose 2 cents to $1.97 a gallon. Natural gas jumped 7 cents to $2.67 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Gold rose $8.20 to $1,278.80 an ounce. Silver climbed 21 cents to $16.44 an ounce. Copper gained 2 cents to $3.24 a pound.

The dollar fell to 113.31 yen from 113.35 yen. The euro fell to $1.1852 from $1.1873. Spain's IBEX fell 1.2 percent after a group of pro-independence parties won a majority in elections to Parliament. The DAX in Germany fell 0.3 percent and the French CAC 40 lost 0.4 percent. In Britain the FTSE 100 slid 0.1 percent.

Bitcoin goes on wild ride and it may only get crazier

NEW YORK (AP) — What's a bitcoin worth? Lately nobody knows for sure, but after a wild ride on Friday, it's worth a good deal less than it was Thursday.

After losses over the last few days, the digital currency fell as much as 30 percent overnight in Asia, and the action became so frenzied that the website Coinbase suspended trading. It later made up much of that ground, and slumped 9.5 percent to $14,042 Friday, according to the tracking site CoinDesk.

Experts are warning that bitcoin is a bubble about to burst, but things might get crazier before it does: A lot of people have heard of bitcoin by now, but very few people own it.

"Bubbles burst when the last buyers are in," said Brett Ewing, chief market strategist for First Franklin. "Who are the last buyers? The general public, unfortunately."

Ewing said 40 percent of bitcoin belongs to just 1,000 people, and hedge funds and other major investors are going to start buying it soon. But those funds may buy bitcoin and also protect themselves by placing bets that it will fall. Retail investors may just buy it only to see it fall.

"I think investors should approach it with caution and I think many people will dive into it not understanding what it is," he said.

As bitcoin skyrocketed this month, the volume of trading was unprecedented as investors hoping to catch a ride up piled in. Prices have risen so fast, the Friday returned the price of bitcoin only to where it was trading two weeks ago.

The volatility has created a circus-like atmosphere. Some companies that have added the word "bitcoin" or related terms to their names to get in on the action. The craziest thing is, it's worked.

Long Island Iced Tea Corp. until this week had been known for its peach-, raspberry-, guava-, lemon- and mango-flavored drinks. Then, on Thursday, the company announced a radical rebranding. It's changing its name to Long Blockchain Corp., shifting its primary focus from iced tea to "the exploration of and investment in opportunities that leverage the benefits of blockchain technology."

Blockchain is a ledger where transactions of digital currencies, like bitcoin, are recorded.

Shares in Long Island Iced Tea soared 200 percent in one day.

The Hicksville, New York, company did what investors are doing, hitching a ride on a currency that raced from less than $10,000 at the end of November to almost $20,000 on Sunday. And it cost less than $1,000 at the beginning of the year.

The rise of price of bitcoin, which is still difficult to use if you actually want to buy something, has led to heated speculation about when the bubble might burst.

The currency has been, if nothing else, highly elastic, bouncing back every time it crashes, which occurs about once every quarter.

Yet Friday's decline was its biggest one-day drop this year. It fell 11.5 percent over two days in early December and 21.5 percent over five days in November.

Fiat Chrysler recalls nearly 1.8M trucks for shifter problem

DETROIT (AP) — Fiat Chrysler is recalling nearly 1.8 million Ram trucks mainly in North America because they can be shifted out of park without the driver's foot on the brake or possibly without the key in the ignition.

The recall is mainly in North America and largely covers heavy-duty trucks. All have shifters on the steering column.

Included are certain 2010 through 2017 Ram 2500 and 3500 pickups, many 2011 through 2017 Ram 3500, 4500 and 5500 chassis cabs, and 2016 and 2017 Ram 3500 chassis cabs that weigh less than 10,000 pounds. Also covered are some 2009 through 2017 Ram 1500 pickups. Trucks from 2017 built after Dec. 31, 2016 are not included.

The company says the brake-transmission shift interlock device can fail due to long-term exposure to high interior temperatures linked to an electrical problem. That can let the shifter move out of park without the brake pedal being pressed or without a key in the ignition. The problem increases the risk of the trucks rolling away accidentally.

FCA says it knows of seven injuries that may be related, plus a small, unspecified number of crashes. The company says drivers should always use parking brakes as a safeguard.

Fiat Chrysler is working on a fix. Owners will be notified when service is available. Customers with questions can call 866-220-6747.

STOCKS LISTING CHANGE - REQUESTS WELCOME!

The Sun Newspaper is tweaking the way stocks are listed in the daily paper. We will continue to run a wide range of stocks, but we're trying to eliminate stocks our readers don't want. If you do not see your stock in the paper, please let us know and we will put it in the listings. Email the name of the company and the symbol to nlane@sun-herald.com, or call 941-206-1138. You can leave the stock name and symbol on voice mail. When requesting a stock, please include where you live so we can run the listing in the appropriate edition. If you reach voice mail, please leave your contact information so your call can be returned.

Making sure your water's safe

We are a water-crazy country, with more than 195 brands of bottled water. We drink 12.8 billion gallons of it each year, enough for every American to down almost 40 gallons annually. Fortunately, whether filtered from your local water supply or shipped halfway around the world from some South Seas island, bottled water generally is safe, although there are occasional recalls for contamination with bacteria, like . coli. Often, it's no cleaner than your local water supply.

Dr. Mehmet Oz & Dr. Michael Roizen

on-the-books regulations would go a long way to reducing the risk. Allowing stricter regulation would be even better. Here's why: Columbia University's Mailman School of Public Health has released a study showing that after the EPA instituted a regulation on maximum levels of arsenic in drinking water, urinary arsenic levels declined for 17 percent of folks drinking municipally supplied water. The authors estimated that that can eliminate between 200 and 900 cases of lung and bladder cancer every year.

In private wells, it's another story. There's no regulation of well water; it's up to the 45 million folks in the U.S. who use well water to monitor its safety. And if it is contaminated, as it can be from agricultural or industrial runoff, or inherent contaminants in soil and rocks, it can be hard to figure out how to clean it up.

In homes supplied with municipal water, it's possible that contamination happens when the water reaches the pipes in your house or apartment building. They may leach lead, copper and rust. So testing your water is smart even if you believe your basic water supply is safe. You can find a reliable lab by calling the Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 800-426-4791 or visiting www.epa.gov/safewater/labs.

Well water should be tested at least once a year. To find out what you should test for, go to cdc.gov and search for "well testing." Shallow wells that use surface water should be tested seasonally. Test the water at the source and coming out of your tap.

If you find your water needs purification, install a filter. They're not all created equal. To find out what type of filter eliminates which contaminants, check out the NSF International certification on the filter's label and look up specific products in the NSF database at www.nsf.org. And don't skimp on the cost. A good filter could save your health, your life.

So, let's look at water you get from the tap at home, either from a community water service or a well.

The water in municipal systems is regulated, but there are ongoing rollbacks to the Clean Water Act (signed into law in 1972), and that comes at a time when our knowledge of contamination problems and their health risks is increasing.

By now, most folks are aware of the lead contamination in the water supply of Flint, Michigan, but that may just be the tip of the iceberg. A National Resources Defense Fund report last year found that 18 million Americans are served by water systems that are in violation of Environmental Protection Agency standards for lead and copper. Serious violations affect more than 1,100 community water systems serving 3.9 million people. Excess copper can damage the liver and kidneys, and lead (there is no safe level) causes permanent brain damage in children and nerve and immune system damage in adults.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Just because you can read the signs doesn't mean you will follow them. They seem geared toward guiding you down the conventional route. But that's not the only way. You'll be in the mood to explore and find your own way.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20). The struggle is between you and you today. If you're too strict with yourself, you'll rebel and do nothing. So be gentle. Encourage yourself. You're doing so much that's right.
GEMINI (May 21-June 21). The people around you may heartily agree, but it's time to take your idea wider, keeping in mind that there are those in the world at large who believe much, much differently from the way you do.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Clear the air in these last days of the year so you can go into 2018 without baggage. Argue and persuade if you must, but ultimately it's negotiation and a fair compromise that will serve you best.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Regarding a rocky relationship: There's so much that's possible here, so don't give up unless you're truly unwilling to do things differently. Change can still happen.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You're disarming, and you'll be in the perfect company to exercise your charms. There are those who really need to drop their defenses! They'll be much better for knowing you today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Today, if you were a bird, you'd be a peacock. You have some colorful stuff to strut! And since birds of a feather flock together, you may be a part of a truly impressive show and tell.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You'll have to call up some powers of diplomacy to deal deftly with the group today. These guys aren't going to get along unless there's someone in the middle to buffer the conversation. That person is you.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Look on the bright side — not into the sun though, or you'll damage your eyesight. The bright side isn't the extreme positive. It's a light filtered through the clouds, trees, buildings and people that exist in the real world.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You have something on your mind, but it's not like your mind is "consumed" by this. Yours is a strong intention. This is better for you now, as it leaves room to work with what others want. Oblivious ambition is dangerous.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Some say you should master your thoughts to master your actions, but this isn't always the order that works. Your thoughts can be feral and powerful as wild horses, but do things differently and your thoughts will calm down.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Circumstances don't define you. Circumstances are opportunities. What defines you is always your reaction to these opportunities. Really good things can come out of less than ideal situations.
TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Dec. 23). Three weeks of luck will change your mind. Your needs are met but this only satisfies you if the ones around you are doing well, too. You'll dedicate yourself to bringing up the whole group. This quest makes your life great — even magical. January brings an exciting discovery. Loved ones surprise and delight you. Virgo and Aries adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 40, 33, 37, 1 and 26.

BIBLE

"And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." — John 17:3.
 God is not in hiding. He has revealed Himself in His Son, everything around us and the desire within us to know Him. Meet the one who made you and learn why. Let his will be your way.

Teenage mom still bears brunt of her father's anger

DEAR ABBY: I'm 18 years old and I have a son who's 3. I'm still in school and live with my parents. My parents treat me like I'm a nobody and always bring up how I got pregnant. They barely allow me to take my son anywhere. I still have to ask them if I can go to certain places.

Dear Abby

My dad takes it out on me when someone makes him mad. I'm always getting yelled at for everything, even if I did nothing wrong. My dad sees me as a failure even when I do something good for me and my son. Because I have a kid, he's never proud of me. I don't know what to do or how to make this better. — OLD ENOUGH IN THE SOUTH

DEAR OLD ENOUGH: Your parents are still punishing you for having the baby. I'm glad you stayed in school, because the more education you can attain, the better able you will be to support yourself and your child.

It is important for your future that you quit looking to your father for approval. He's wrong to take his frustrations out on you. You may have disappointed him, but you are not a failure. If there are other relatives with whom you and your child can live while you complete your education, please look into it.

DEAR ABBY: So often we learn from your column what a good marriage is NOT — how not to treat someone we love. Could you please describe for my granddaughter just what a strong, loving marriage IS? Paint a picture of what to look for in a husband and how to create a marriage that will last while bringing joy to both parties. Your experience can help me explain this to her. — PONDERING STILL IN HONOLULU

DEAR PONDERING: I can try. But before I do, I should mention that a good marriage may mean different things to different couples. To me, a good marriage is a solid partnership between two people who respect each other, care about each other and are mutually attracted. It helps if both have similar goals and values, and are willing to support each other in good times AND IN BAD. Like anything that's worthwhile, marriage takes work, patience and willingness to compromise. And of course, communication — which includes listening — is key.

DEAR ABBY: I have a workplace challenge that requires your expertise. Our company sends greeting cards for every event that you can imagine. It's an effective way to show the employees that we are a team and care about each other. The problem is, one staff member has a habit of writing a "manuscript" (heavy sarcasm) on the inside of every card, whether or not she personally knows the individual. This leaves little space for anyone else.

I have jokingly asked the young lady to please be conscious of space, but she doesn't get it. I don't want to hurt her feelings, but people here are getting fed up. Would it be rude to take the card to her only after everyone else has signed it? — PLEASE SIGN HERE

DEAR PLEASE: Rude? Not at all. It's a practical solution. Bravo!

Dental dog

Dear Readers: brushing your dog's teeth is a good idea. Here are some hints from the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (www.aspc.org):

The dog will need to become comfortable with brushing. Massaging the gums gently for a short period for a week or two is a good start. Get a toothpaste and toothbrush specifically for dogs. "People paste" can make a dog ill. There are brushes that fit over your finger — these work well.

Small, circular strokes are gentle and effective. The side teeth collect the most tartar and yucky stuff. Use short downward strokes here.

Watch for swelling and infection during these sessions, and report it to your veterinarian. The doctor also can professionally clean teeth. Ask about this, too. — Heloise

Hints from Heloise

Here's what I wear: faux leather, microfiber and cotton are fine, as are all synthetic fibers. Absolutely no leather, suede, snake-skin, fur or wool. Silk is out, as is cashmere.

There are good resources online to find manufacturers that don't exploit animals. Again, I know, people may find this extreme, but it has made me more at peace. Thank you! — Heather P. in Philadelphia

Warmth in the cold

Dear Heloise: It's not too late to deliver warmth this time of year. Each Christmastime, I take blankets, shawls, slippers, zip-up sweaters and sweatshirts and, of course, new socks to folks at my neighborhood long-term care facility.

I don't have a family of my own, so sharing makes me feel good, and the residents appreciate it. — Jennifer Ann in Michigan

Vegan do's and don'ts

Dear Heloise: I've adopted a vegan lifestyle, and here are some things to know: Vegans believe that animals are not here to serve people; therefore, we don't eat, wear or use animals or products derived from animals.

I understand that not everyone agrees with me.

Toxic Trouble: Hundreds of Superfund sites face flood risks

By JASON DEAREN, MICHAEL BIESECKER and ANGELIKI KASTANIS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

TARPON SPRINGS — When Anthony Stansbury moved down the street from the Anclote River in Florida last year, he didn't know his slice of paradise had a hidden problem.

The neighborhood is adjacent to the Stauffer Chemical Co. Superfund site, a former chemical manufacturing plant on the list of the nation's most polluted places. It is also located in a flood zone.

"Me and my kids fish here a couple times a week. Everyone who lives on this coast right here, they fish on this water daily," said the 39-year-old father of three.

Stansbury is among nearly 2 million people in the U.S. who live within a mile of 327 Superfund sites in areas prone to flooding or vulnerable to rising seas caused by climate change, according to an Associated Press analysis of flood zone maps, census data and U.S. Environmental Protection Agency records.

This year's historic hurricane season exposed a little-known public health threat: Highly-polluted sites can be inundated, potentially spreading toxic contamination.

In Houston, more than a dozen Superfund sites were flooded by Hurricane Harvey, with breaches reported at two. In the Southeast and Puerto Rico, Superfund sites were battered by driving rains and winds from Irma and Maria.

The vulnerable sites highlighted by AP's review are scattered across the nation, but Florida, New Jersey and California have the most, and the most people living near them. They are in largely low-income, heavily minority neighborhoods, the data show.

Many of the 327 sites have had at least some work done to help mitigate the public health threat, including fencing them off and covering them in plastic sheeting to help keep out rainwater.

The Obama administration assessed some of these at-risk places and planned to guard them from harsher weather and rising seas. EPA's 2014 Climate Adaptation Plan said prolonged flooding at low-lying Superfund sites could cause extensive erosion, carrying away contaminants as waters recede.

President Donald Trump, however, has called climate change a hoax, and his administration has worked to remove references from federal reports and websites linking carbon emissions to the warming planet.

"The current administration appears to be trying to erase these efforts in their climate change denials, which is a shame," Phyllis Anderson, an attorney who worked as EPA's associate director of the division that manages Superfund cleanups until her retirement in 2013.

EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt has said he intends to focus on Superfund cleanup, and appointed a task force that developed a list of high-priority sites.

The task force's 34-page report makes no mention of a flood risk to Superfund sites from stronger storms or rising seas, but eight of the 21 sites on EPA's priority list are in areas of flood risk. The Stauffer site in Florida is not on it.

Despite EPA's announced emphasis on expediting cleanups, the Trump administration's proposed 2018 spending plan seeks to slash Superfund program funding by nearly one third. Congress has not yet approved it.

Across the nation, more than 800,000 homes are located near flood-prone toxic sites. Houses are at risk of contamination from flooding, but many more people could be affected if the contamination seeps into the ground, finding its way into drinking water.

At the Stauffer site in Florida testing showed the lot's soils were contaminated with radium, the banned pesticide DDT, arsenic, lead and other pollutants that over the years have fouled the area's groundwater and the river.

Environmental regulators say the site, which was hit by Hurricane Irma, now poses no threat to people or the environment because the current owner, the pharmaceutical company AstraZeneca, paid to treat contaminated soils, and cover the pollution with a "cap" of clean earth. Still, residential development and use of groundwater on the site are prohibited.

Covering toxic waste is a cheaper option than removing the pollutants, said Jeff Cunningham, a civil engineering professor at the University of South Florida.

"As a long-term strategy, capping only works if the contaminants degrade to safe levels before the capping system eventually fails. What if it takes centuries for some of these contaminants to degrade to safe levels?" Cunningham said.

Trump endorses GOP Rep. DeSantis for Florida governor

By GARY FINEOUT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

TALLAHASSEE — President Donald Trump jolted Florida's still-evolving governor's race by throwing his support Friday to Republican congressman Ron DeSantis.

Trump tweeted that DeSantis is "a brilliant young leader" who "would make a GREAT governor. He loves our Country and is a true FIGHTER!" The president made the endorsement even though DeSantis has not officially jumped into the race to replace Gov. Rick Scott. Scott leaves office in early 2019 due to term limits.

DeSantis, a U.S. Navy veteran and graduate of both Yale and Harvard, has represented a northeast Florida congressional district since 2013. He planned to run for U.S. Senate last year but dropped out of the race after Marco Rubio decided to seek re-election following his unsuccessful presidential bid.

In August, the 39-year-old congressman proposed a time limit on funding for special counsel Robert Mueller's investigation into potential collusion between Russia and Trump or his associates. DeSantis's House website has a link to a column he signed on FoxNews.com.

DeSantis also joined Trump during a campaign-styled event that the president held in Pensacola just before the recent Senate election in Alabama. At that rally, Trump urged voters in the neighboring state to vote for Roy Moore, who had been dogged by allegations of sexual misconduct.

In a statement DeSantis said he was "grateful to have the President's support" and that he appreciated Trump's push for tax cuts and for recognizing Jerusalem as Israel's capital and other efforts to "get our country back on track."

Citrus money passes House but could stall in Senate

NEWS SERVICE OF FLORIDA

TALLAHASSEE — Federal relief for Florida citrus growers cleared the U.S. House on Thursday, but its fate remained unclear in the Senate, which may not take up the package until January.

Before the House vote, leaders separated an $81 billion disaster-relief package that includes citrus money from a short-term funding resolution needed to keep the government open through mid-January.

The move drew protests from some members of Florida's congressional delegation, as they believe the relief package, which includes $2.6 billion for crop losses, became less likely to win Senate approval without the "must-pass" label of the funding bill.

U.S. Rep. Tom Rooney, a Charlotte County Republican who helped lead efforts to get the crop-damage money into the relief package this week, was among those who voted against the short-term funding bill.

"I have been repeatedly told and promised that federal aid would be on the way," Rooney said in a prepared statement.

"The bill released this week containing my request to help Florida's farmers recover from the storm became a piece in a political and partisan game. The political reality is that the only way this disaster funding was going to be signed into law before Christmas was for it to be combined with the continuing resolution."

U.S. Rep. Dennis Ross, a Lakeland Republican, also voted against the gap funding, noting that "despite our efforts, help is not yet on the way" for Florida's farmers.

"Today's continuing resolution says to Florida farmers: You're on your own," Ross said in a prepared statement. "It neglects Florida's citrus producers who needed something — anything — to help them stave off this devastation."

The vote on the relief package came after Republicans cobbled together enough support to narrowly approve the continuing resolution, which is aimed at keeping the government funded through Jan. 19.

State officials and members of Florida's congressional delegation have pursued citrus-industry funding through a series of previous disaster packages.

Florida deputies investigating beating of Muslim girl

FORT LAUDERDALE (AP) — A Florida sheriff's office said Friday that it is investigating the videotaped beating of a Muslim teenager by three other girls that was posted on Facebook.

Palm Beach County sheriff's spokeswoman Teri Barbera said deputies are working with school officials to investigate the beating of the 14-year-old and added charges could be filed. She said Thursday's fight may have been over a boy and not religion, but didn't elaborate. It happened at a park near West Boca High School, which the Muslim girl attends.

Her father posted the video taken by another student, writing it happened because his daughter is a Muslim. The Associated Press is not identifying the teen or her father to protect her identity.

Omar Saleh, an attorney for the Council on American-Islamic Relations-Florida, said Friday he had a brief conversation with the girl's mother, who said her daughter was receiving medical treatment. He didn't know the severity of her injuries. The group is calling for the three other girls to be charged.

Fish tale: Truck collision sends fish spilling onto highway

ORLANDO (AP) — Hundreds of live fish were left flopping on Interstate 4 in Florida when one tractor-trailer rear-ended another, making a mess that forced troopers to close part of the highway.

Florida Highway Patrol spokeswoman Kim Montes tells The Associated Press that several bins filled with fish tanks "sloshed forward" when the flatbed truck carrying them hit the other vehicle early Friday near Orlando. The crash happened as traffic ahead of the trucks slowed down around 5:30 a.m.

Montes says several hundred live tilapia and other fish spilled onto the road and other vehicles ran over them.

She says troopers had to close two lanes of the road for several hours to clean up the "slimy situation."

The incident report says 39-year-old truck driver Mayel Perez was ticketed for careless driving.

Florida woman accused of starving pit bull

EDGEWATER (AP) — A Florida woman is accused of starving a dog and then bringing it to an animal shelter where she tried to pass it off as a stray animal that had wandered into her yard.

But an investigation by Edgewater police revealed the emaciated pit bull belongs to 37-year-old Sarah Wells. She was charged Thursday with one count of felony animal cruelty and remains in the Volusia County Jail.

The Daytona Beach News-Journal reports the director at Edgewater Animal Shelter called police Wednesday after a woman had surrendered the sickly dog. Shelter staffers were skeptical because the dog was so malnourished it couldn't stand alone.

An arrest report says police contacted Wells, who admitted to lying to shelter officials about the dog, named Wiggins.

Nicole Hallingstad and her husband returned to Fort Lauderdale on Friday aboard Royal Caribbean's Serenade of the Seas. The Washington, D.C., couple was on the same tour by a different bus than the one that crashed in Costa Maya, Mexico, on Tuesday.

Hallingstad says their guide checked to see if they should help as the crash held up traffic. She says she saw sheets covering bodies in the ditches.

Authorities have said driver negligence and excessive speed caused the crash that killed eight Americans, two Swedes, a Canadian and a Mexican tour guide as they traveled from cruise ships to visit Mayan ruins south of the beach destination of Tulum.

NFL: Bucs

A Christmas Eve tale of what went wrong

LOREN ELLIOTT | TIMES

Tampa Bay Buccaneers kicker Patrick Murray (7) misses a field goal on the final play of the game as the Tampa Bay Buccaneers lose to the Atlanta Falcons at Raymond James Stadium in Tampa Dec. 18.

By RICK STROUD
Tampa Bay Times

TAMPA — If the Bucs were to be visited by the Ghost of Christmas Past, they would be shown a confident team at the Mercedes Superdome exactly one year ago, needing a win over the Saints to reach the postseason.

Since that 31-24 loss at New Orleans last Dec. 24, with Doug Martin's benching that day foreshadowing his eventual suspension, things that have happened to Dirk Koetter's team have surprised the Dickens out of almost everyone.

Hard Knocks to Hurricane Irma. Two erratic kicking legs. Jameis Winston's injured shoulder. The curse of Ryan Fitzpatrick. Uber and an NFL investigation.

Trying to eat W's and a handful of consecutive L's. Suspense and suspensions. Reports of frustration and the case of the falling umpire. Seven starters on injured reserve.

On this Christmas Eve, the Bucs visit Carolina. At 4-10. Hum bug doesn't begin to describe the mood.

"We've had our share of unfortunate events," Winston said.

FROM HARD KNOCKS TO IRMA

Coming off a 9-7 record in which they missed the playoffs by the third tiebreaker, the Bucs won the offseason.

They were selected to appear on HBO's Hard Knocks, the reality series that followed the Bucs through training camp.

The Bucs had reason to be excited, especially on offense. They added deep threat DeSean Jackson. Alabama tight end O.J. Howard fell to them with the 19th pick. But sometimes, talent alone doesn't win. Players have to buy into their roles.

Deep balls to Jackson were never completed in preseason games and that would continue. Incorporating Howard took a frequent Winston target, Cameron Brate, off the field at times. Even Howard's selection, while a safer investment, meant the Bucs would be stuck with Martin another year since the plan was to take Florida State running back Dalvin Cook, who went in the second round to Minnesota.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL: Seminoles

AP PHOTO

Former Florida State head coach Jimbo Fisher, right, meets Delaware State's head coach Kenny Carter at midfield before the start of an NCAA college football game in Tallahassee Fla. The latest issue in a mostly forgettable season for Florida State is a possible administrative error, apparently discovered by a Reddit user, that calls into question the Seminoles' bowl eligibility. The Independence Bowl between Florida State and Southern Miss will go on, regardless, and Seminoles fans can only hope that they can finally put 2017 to rest.

Bowl comes with more issues for Florida State in sad season

By RALPH D. RUSSO
Associated Press

Florida State has faced one problem after another since starting the season ranked No. 3.

Now, on the verge of putting a forgettable season behind them, there are questions whether the Seminoles are actually bowl eligible.

Florida State will play Southern Mississippi in the Independence Bowl in Shreveport, Louisiana, on Wednesday. But a possible administrative error, apparently discovered by a user of the website Reddit, called into question whether the Seminoles' victory against Delaware State should count toward the NCAA's bowl-eligibility requirement.

As of Friday afternoon, no one was talking — not Florida State, Delaware State, the Atlantic Coast Conference or the NCAA had responded to requests for comment.

"We are continuing preparations for our game between Southern Miss and Florida State," Walk-on's Independence Bowl spokesman Stefan Nolet told The Associated Press in an email.

The NCAA has a waiver process for bowl eligibility and an issue like this could have been sorted out, likely in the Seminoles favor, had it been discovered sooner.

Instead, it's just the latest bad news for Florida State.

The Seminoles lost their high-profile opener to Alabama and their quarterback in week one, had two games postponed by severe weather, stumbled to a 2-5 start, needed to play Louisiana-Monroe on championship weekend to have a chance to get bowl eligible and did so a day after former coach Jimbo Fisher left the program to take the Texas A&M job.

Scrambling to finish 6-6 allowed the Seminoles to extend their record streak of consecutive years with a bowl appearance to 36. Or did it? The bowl game is still on but

SAN DIEGO — Dick Enberg, a Hall of Fame broadcaster known as much for his excited calls of "Oh my!" as the big events he covered during a 60-year career, has died. He was 82.

Enberg's daughter, Nicole Enberg Vaz, confirmed the death to The Associated Press. She said the family became concerned when her father didn't arrive Thursday on his flight to Boston, and he was found dead at his home in La Jolla, a San Diego neighborhood, with his bags packed.

His daughter said the family believes Enberg died of a heart attack but was awaiting official word.

 Fowler.

More important than his score was his form: Woods looked strong and fit with his swing and his posture all through the week. He has not said where he will play first in 2018. Unlike the previous three coaches employed by Woods — Butch Harmon, Hank Haney and Sean Foley — Como was not as steady a presence in public even when Woods played an 11-event schedule in 2015.

Magic lose 7th straight game

Associated Press

ORLANDO — Fifteen and counting.

Fifteen consecutive quarters in which the Orlando Magic haven't held a lead.

Struggling again with their 3-point shooting and unable to stop DeMarcus Cousins, Anthony Davis or Jrue Holiday, the Magic lost, 111-97, at Amway Center.

Orlando has lost seven straight games and 18 of its last 21 games — through a combination of a vicious schedule from Nov. 11 through Dec. 4; injuries to Evan Fournier, Aaron Gordon, Jonathan Isaac and Terrence Ross; overall talent and depth mismatches in most games; and, at times, a lack of fight.

The frustration showed Friday night against New Orleans (16-16).

Coach Frank Vogel, Bismack Biyombo and Elfrid Payton received technical fouls in the first half for arguing with referees, and Marreese Speights was whistled for a technical for making contact with Davis following a shot by Speights.

The Magic went just 4 of 20 from 3-point range, trailed by as many as 27 points and allowed the Pelicans to make 50 percent of their shots.

NETS 119, WIZARDS 84: Rondae Hollis-Jefferson had 21 points and 11 rebounds to lead the Brooklyn Nets to a 119-84 victory over the Washington Wizards on Friday night in New York.

Caris LeVert scored 17 points, while DeMarre Carroll, Spencer Dinwiddie and Nik Stauskas added 15 apiece to help the Nets snap a four-game losing streak. Kelly Oubre Jr. had 13 points for the Wizards. The Nets never trailed in the game, taking an early 10-point lead before settling for a 26-23 advantage after the first quarter.

A layup by Hollis-Jefferson with 2:36 left in the second quarter gave the Nets an 11-point lead, and they went into halftime ahead 53-43.

Hollis-Jefferson finished the first half with 15 points and eight rebounds. Dinwiddie, who did not score in the first half, scored 11 straight to give the Nets a 64-47 lead with 9:24 left in the third quarter. That was followed by a three-point play by Carroll as Brooklyn went up by 20.

Later in the quarter, Jarrett Allen put together a six-point streak to put the Nets up by 30 points and they went on to an 88-61 lead heading into the final quarter.

PISTONS 104, KNICKS 101: Andre Drummond had 18 points and 15 rebounds, and the Detroit Pistons rallied to beat the New York Knicks 104-101 Friday night. Tobias Harris scored 24 points for the Pistons, who won for the fourth time in five games. The Knicks tied the game with 3:45 left when Drummond was called for goaltending, and Kristaps Porzingis followed with a mid-range jumper to put New York ahead 95-93. After the teams traded baskets, Tobias Harris missed and Jarrett Jack hit a short jumper to make it 99-95 with 1:48 to play. Reggie Jackson's runner in the lane made it 101-101 with 44 seconds left, and Ron Baker turned the ball over at the other end.

No. 3 Arizona State rolls over Pacific

Associated Press

TEMPE, Ariz. — Guard U has become unguardable when it gets going.

Led by its dynamic guards, No. 3 Arizona State dominated from the start in a 104-65 victory over Pacific on Friday, extending the best start in school history.

The Sun Devils (12-0) have been plagued by slow starts in recent games, needing to turn on their guard-driven firepower to pull away from opponents.

Arizona State jumped on Pacific (5-8) early and didn't let the Tigers up, building a 10-point lead in the opening minutes and expanding it from there with a flurry of fast-break baskets and 3-pointers.

NO. 11 WICHITA STATE 75, FLORIDA GULF COAST 65: Landry Shamet scored 23 points to push No. 11 Wichita State past Florida Gulf Coast 75-65 on Friday night. Shamet was 8 of 12 from the field while the rest of his team went 14 of 44. Darral Willis finished with 15 points and 13 rebounds for Wichita State (10-2). Brandon Goodwin scored 20 points to lead Florida Gulf Coast (7-7), and Zach Johnson had 19. Goodwin and Johnson were a combined 15 of 38 from the field.

NO. 13 VIRGINIA 82, HAMPTON 48: Kyle Guy had 15 points, DeAndre Hunter had 14 and Ty Jerome added 10 as No. 13 Virginia wrapped up its nonconference schedule with an 82-48 victory over Hampton on Friday night. The Cavaliers (11-1) held Hampton to 20.6 percent from the field in the second half and bounced back from a cold start on the offensive end.

NO. 17 OKLAHOMA 104, NORTHWESTERN 78: Trae Young had 31 points and 12 assists to help No. 17 Oklahoma defeat Northwestern 104-78 on Friday night. Young, the nation's leader in scoring and assists, tied an NCAA record with 22 assists in a 105-68 victory over Northwestern State on Tuesday night.

NO. 21 TEXAS TECH 74, ABILENE CHRISTIAN 47: Zach Smith scored 16 points in his first game since not getting to start because of a violation of team rules and No. 21 Texas Tech beat Abilene Christian 74-47 on Friday in the Red Raiders' final tuneup for the rugged Big 12.

WOMEN

NO. 1 UCONN 104, DUQUESNE 52: Katie-Lou Samuelson scored a season-high 33 points, Kia Nurse had 24 and No. 1 UConn posted its biggest victory of the season, routing Duquesne 104-52 on Friday in Toronto. The game was a homecoming of sorts for Nurse. The senior forward from nearby Hamilton, Ontario, received a rousing ovation from the sellout crowd when she was introduced as UConn's final starter.

NO. 10 OREGON 85, HAWAII 44: Sabrina Ionescu had 19 points and eight rebounds in Oregon's victory over Hawaii in the Duel in the Desert in Las Vegas. Ruthy Hebard hit 8 of 10 shots and finished with 18 points and six rebounds for the Ducks (11-2). Julissa Tago had 11 points for the Rainbow Wahine (6-6).

NO. 16 MISSOURI 72, ILLINOIS 55: Sophie Cunningham scored 27 points to lead Missouri to its 12th straight victory in Columbia, Mo. Cunningham was 8 of 11 from the field, with three 3-pointers, and 8 of 8 from the foul line for the Tigers (12-1).

Flyers come out playing flat, fall to Sabres on road

Associated Press

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Addressing a reporter after the morning skate Friday, right winger Jake Voracek said the Flyers were able to bounce back from their recent 10-game losing streak when they went out for a team dinner and cleared the air in Calgary.

"We got drunk, that helped," he told NHL.com, adding that the players went over things they needed to do better and had some "heart-to-hearts."

Maybe they should have had a few alcoholic beverages the night before playing the lowly Buffalo Sabres at the KeyBank Center on Friday.

Sabres 4, Flyers 2. The Flyers, who got to within 2-1 on Michael Raffl's power-play goal with 2:10 to go, missed a chance to move within one point of a playoff spot.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL: Bulldogs

Smart directs quick turnaround at Georgia

By CHARLES ODUM
Associated Press

ATHENS, Ga. — Only one year ago, it was difficult to see the foundation for success Kirby Smart was building at Georgia.

This year's spot in the College Football Playoff seemed like a distant dream when the Bulldogs finished a disappointing 8-5 in Smart's 2016 debut as coach. Among the low points were home losses to Vanderbilt and Georgia Tech.

Wide receiver Terry Godwin says players expected this year's dramatic turnaround. He insists players' belief in Smart never wavered.

"Of course not," Godwin said Tuesday. "As a player, we never had any doubts in that locker room. We knew once everything got clicking and rolling and everyone bought in and knew what they were supposed to do and knew their assignments, it was going to be a special year, and that's what it turned out to be."

Smart has guided No. 3 Georgia to a 12-1 record, its first Southeastern Georgia coach Kirby Smart watches from the sideline during the second half against Vanderbilt in Nashville, Tenn. Smart has guided No. 3 Georgia to a 12-1 record, its first Southeastern Conference championship since 2005 and a Rose Bowl playoff game against No. 2 Oklahoma on Jan. 1. The Bulldogs are two wins away from their first national championship since 1980.

Conference championship since 2005 and a Rose Bowl playoff game against No. 2 Oklahoma on Jan. 1. The Bulldogs are two wins away from their first national championship since 1980.

It was most important that Smart won over the players he inherited from former coach Mark Richt. The crucial vote of confidence in Smart came after last season when four top players — running backs Nick Chubb and Sony Michel and linebackers Lorenzo Carter and Davin Bellamy — announced they would return for their senior seasons instead of enter the NFL draft.

"For everybody to stay ... it felt special because we knew coming into the season we were going to have something special," Godwin said. "With coach Smart bringing that grudge and physicality, it just went with our swagger and we knew that with this team staying together and those guys coming back we were going to have something special this year. That's what we're doing."

Smart celebrated on the field with his players as confetti fell from the roof of Atlanta's new Mercedes-Benz Stadium after Georgia beat Auburn 28-7 in the SEC championship game on Dec. 2.

Then Smart went to work to make sure his players understood there are bigger games ahead.

The coach is turning up the volume to make his point.

"That's probably why you hear my voice is hoarse right now," Smart said Monday. "I'm trying to make sure they understand that you can't acknowledge the pats on the back. You can't embrace that. You can't feel good about yourself because obviously ...

winning the SEC championship is a great honor and they'll have that for a long time. It will be on these walls for a long time, but they can't be satisfied."

With a spot in the national championship game on the line, Carter said players have been told to treat the Rose Bowl "like a business trip."

"Coach does a good job on keeping us locked in and focusing on getting better," Carter said. "A lot of teams get sloppy going into their bowl games, but he just wants us to make sure we are focused on ourselves and do what we need to do."

Business is good for Smart. The season already has earned the coach almost $1 million in contract incentives with the opportunity for another $900,000.

Smart, whose contract is worth $3.75 million annually, has earned bonuses of $500,000 for a spot in the playoff, $250,000 for the SEC title, $150,000 for a spot in the SEC championship game and $50,000 for being named SEC coach of the year.

He'd earn additional incentives of $100,000 for a spot in the national championship game, $400,000 for winning the national championship, $200,000 for Georgia finishing in the top five of the AP or coaches poll and $100,000 for being named national coach of the year.

really good games and Kliff (Kingsbury) has done a very good job with that team.

"It's a very explosive offense, can score at any time, very aggressive on defense."

Texas Tech's Kingsbury said there's a different look from those Texas teams because of personnel, including a dual-threat quarterback.

"I don't see too much carry over outside the fact that coach Strong's teams are always well coached and play very hard," Kingsbury said.

Strong is trying to finish his first season at South Florida by helping the Bulls reach double-digit wins and finish in the Top 25 for the second straight year.

Both defenses are tasked with defending dangerous quarterbacks, though they have different styles.

South Florida's Quinton Flowers is a running and passing threat while Texas Tech's Nic Shimonek is a prolific passer. Kingsbury said it's hard to find a scout teamer to simulate a player like Flowers.

"The quickness and athleticism that Quinton brings is a different animal," Kingsbury said. "He's like a very dynamic wide receiver who's a very athletic passer back there, trying to corral him."

The Red Raiders became bowl eligible with a comeback win over the Longhorns, who led by 10 points early in the fourth quarter. Strong said he didn't watch the game except while studying Texas Tech film.

"It was a really good football game," he said. Here are some things to watch in the Birmingham Bowl:

FLOWERS' RECORDS: With 11,385 total yards in his career, Flowers needs just 47 total yards to break the American Athletic Conference record held by Temple's Phillip Walker. He needs just 28 rushing yards to reach 2,500 passing yards and 1,000 rushing yards for the second time; only Louisville's Lamar Jackson had achieved that entering the postseason.

"It's not on my mind," Flowers said of the league record. "I just go out there and play the game. If it happens, it happens. I'm a team player. I'm always going to be a team player."

NIC IN CHARGE: Texas Tech quarterback Nic Shimonek is expected to be back in the starting spot after coming off the bench to lead that fourth-quarter comeback in the regular season finale against Texas. It was the only time the senior didn't start this season. Shimonek has passed for 3,547 yards and 30 touchdowns against just eight interceptions.

DEFENSIVE CHALLENGE: Texas Tech's defense, which ranks 99th nationally in total yards, faces an offense that's ninth in total yards at nearly 509 per game.

PROTECT THE BALL: Texas Tech has a plus-11 turnover margin, one shy of the school record set in 1997. South Florida, though, has lost a modest 12 turnovers, which is tied for 14th fewest nationally.

RETURN TRIPS: This is South Florida's second

even that has come with a catch.

A fan who moderates the college football section of Reddit posted data he claimed to have obtained from Delaware State that apparently showed the team didn't use enough scholarship funds to meet an NCAA minimum for FCS teams to count toward FBS bowl eligibility.

Delaware State, which lost 77-6 at Florida State on Nov. 18, was about two players short of meeting the minimum, according to the post.

The fan, an applied scientist from the San Francisco Bay Area who uses the nickname bakonydraco on Reddit, said fans in the community have studied bowl-eligibility rules the past two seasons as bowl organizers have struggled to fill games with teams that meet the six-win minimum.

The person spoke to the AP on condition of anonymity because he did not want his real-life details connected with his online identity.

He said the request process took several weeks and the moderators spent significant time analyzing the data, understanding the complexity of the rules and their implications.

The number of FBS vs. FCS games has skyrocketed since the NCAA approved 12-game schedules for major college teams in 2005. As the number of bowls also grew, the NCAA allowed FBS teams to count a victory against an FCS team toward six-win bowl eligibility if that FCS team had used 90 percent of its allotted scholarship money. The idea behind the rule was to deter FBS schools from playing FCS schools that had no chance to compete with an FBS school. In reality, though, most FBS-FCS games are lopsided contests.

Game contracts between FBS and FCS schools often stipulate that the FCS team meets the scholarship requirement. But, typically, that is a good faith agreement.

Tulane athletic director Troy Dannen said when he was AD at FCS power Northern Iowa that requirement was in every contract it had with an FBS school. He said only Wisconsin asked for verification of the numbers and that was done with a simple letter stating UNI was in compliance.

"They trusted the numbers we gave them," Dannen said.

This season, Tulane played Grambling State of the FCS and the scholarship requirement was in the contract. Dannen said Tulane did not ask Grambling for detailed documentation showing it met the scholarship requirement. Maybe that won't be the case going forward.

"This is a good example of you can't assume compliance," he said.

Dannen once was part of an NCAA committee that heard waiver requests dealing with bowl eligibility. That committee no longer exists after NCAA restructuring, but there is still a waiver process.

"I have no doubt a waiver would have been granted" to Florida State, Dannen said.

After the Independence Bowl, Florida State and its fans can fully move on to a new era under coach Willie Taggart, who said this week, "It's not how you start. It's how you finish. We're going to finish strong."

Just finishing the 2017 season — period — will likely be a relief to Florida State fans.

NFL: Quarterback rankings

Brady ranked No. 1 QB by AP panel

By HOWARD FENDRICH
Associated Press

There is little doubt the QB any NFL coach or player would want leading the way to win a big game right now is Tom Brady.

So it makes sense he was a nearly unanimous choice as the No. 1 quarterback in the league by an Associated Press panel.

Brady received nine of 11 first-place votes and was second on the other ballots for a total of 108 out of a possible 110 points in the rankings released Friday.

“Brady isn’t just No. 1 on this list of active players. He’s probably No. 1 on a list of all-time QBs that you’d want to start a game that you needed to win,” said the AP’s Dennis Waszak Jr., based in New York. “The likes of Joe Montana, Peyton Manning, Brett Favre and John Elway might have something to say about that, but it’s tough to argue against Brady.”

Still going strong at age 40, the New England Patriots superstar won by an even greater margin than he did back in September, when he was overwhelmingly voted No. 1 in the first of the weekly AP position rankings for this season.

QB is the only position being surveyed twice.

This time, Drew Brees of the New Orleans Saints was the runner-up with 81 points in the voting done by Pro Football Hall of Fame member James Lofton and 10 AP football writers on a 10-points-to-1-point system.

Showing zero signs of slipping, Brady heads into Week 16 with his Patriots at 11-3 and already having clinched a record ninth consecutive AFC East title.

“Nobody is better when the game is on the line,” said the AP’s Teresa M. Walker, based in Nashville, Tennessee.

New England Patriots quarterback Tom Brady (12) celebrates with center Ted Karras (75) as they leave the field after defeating the Pittsburgh Steelers in Pittsburgh.

Brady leads the NFL with 4,163 yards passing, is tied for second with a 104.0 rating, and has an impressive margin of 28 touchdown throws to only seven interceptions.

Brees is tied with Brady in passer rating; the only QB ahead of them is Alex Smith of the Kansas City Chiefs, who was named on only one ballot, collecting an eighth-place vote.

Aaron Rodgers of the Green Bay Packers finished third with 75 points and one No. 1 vote, followed by Ben Roethlisberger of the Pittsburgh Steelers with 73 points and the other first-place nod. Russell Wilson of the Seattle Seahawks was No. 5 with 61 points.

Each of those top five has won at least one Super Bowl trophy. Brady, of course, leads the group with five, along with four Super Bowl MVP awards, including last season.

The rest of the top 10, in order: Carson Wentz of the Philadelphia Eagles, Cam Newton of the Carolina Panthers, Jared Goff of the Los Angeles Rams, Philip Rivers of the Los Angeles Chargers, and Matt Ryan of the Atlanta Falcons, who was the NFL MVP last season.

This season’s initial QB ranking by the AP was much tighter at the top: Brady had eight first-place votes and 107 points, while Rodgers took the other three No. 1s and was second overall at 94 points, with Brees at No. 3.

Rodgers’ slip was due to his health issues: He went back on injured reserve this week after returning for one game following a two-month absence with a broken collarbone.

“Rodgers may be the most talented quarterback in the league,” said San Francisco-based AP writer Josh Dubow.

Other players whose standing might have been affected by season-ending injuries were Wentz and Houston Texans rookie Deshaun Watson, who appeared on only two ballots.

This time, a total of 19 quarterbacks received at least one vote, including Colin Kaepernick, who was 10th on the ballot of Rob Maaddi, who is based in Philadelphia. Kaepernick played in a Super Bowl for the San Francisco 49ers, but is not in the league this season after initiating the national anthem kneeling and sitting during last preseason.

“Matthew Stafford has 26 fourth-quarter comebacks but no play-off wins. Matt Ryan is Matty Ice but couldn’t protect a 25-point lead in the Super Bowl. Andrew Luck’s health is too iffy to trust him to win the annual family Turkey Bowl,” Maaddi said.

NFL: Jaguars

Jags rule out WR Lee, list Hurns as questionable for 49ers

Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — The Jacksonville Jaguars will be without leading receiver Marqise Lee and could be missing wideout Allen Hurns again at San Francisco on Sunday.

Lee, who has 56 receptions for 702 yards, was ruled out Friday because of a sprained right ankle. He rolled his ankle in the first quarter against Houston last week and missed practice all week.

Hurns returned to practice this week for the first time since Week 10 but was limited all three days. He’s second on the team with 36 receptions.

After missing the last five games, Hurns was listed as questionable on the injury report.

There’s a belief in football that you can’t have enough good players. But the truth is the teams that accept their limited roles, are unselfish and play together are the ones that win in the NFL.

On offense, Winston and Koetter felt pressure to get the football to Jackson, who became frustrated at the quarterback’s inability to throw the deep ball accurately.

On defense, safety T.J. Ward, who was signed a one-year, $4-million contract days before the start of the season, never accepted being a rotational player. That kept Keith Tandy off the field despite tying for the team with four interceptions a year earlier.

The Bucs were ready to open the season at Miami when Irma took aim at Florida. After destroying the Florida Keys, Tampa look to be ground zero. Fortunately, it turned a few degrees before landfall and crossed the state a little east of Tampa Bay.

The game in Miami was postponed until Nov. 19. There’s something about the rhythm of the NFL being disrupted. It would mean the bye week would come in Week 1 and there would be 16 straight games with no break, a virtual certainty that injuries would be a big story this year.

TIPPING POINTS

Injuries are a big part of the game, but the Bucs had starter-level players combine to miss 62 games.

The two biggest injuries belonged to defensive end Noah Spence and Winston and they occurred within the first five games of the season.

The Bucs pinned too much of their hopes to Spence. He played most of his rookie seasons with torn cartilage in his right shoulder. He still managed 5.5 sacks and opponents devoted extra attention to the Bucs’ only effective edge rusher.

Spence’s strip sack in the opener was one of three Bears turnovers in the Bucs’ 29-7 win. The next week he dislocated his right shoulder, tried to play the following week and was lost for the season.

At 32, defensive end Robert Ayers has been plagued again by injuries and has only two sacks. The Bucs have the NFL’s third highest-paid defensive line ($40.1 million) and an NFL low 18 sacks.

Four times Winston has rallied the Bucs back in the fourth quarter to tie or take the lead. They won once, against the Giants. You can’t close out games in the NFL unless you can rush the passer. This is what happens when you draft two defensive linemen in four years.

At 2-1, Winston nearly rallied the Bucs to a win over the Patriots. But three missed field goals by Nick Folk, who had won the job over second-round bust Roberto Aguayo in preseason, was the story in a 19-14 loss.

It’s important to note that Winston injured his shoulder the next week at Arizona holding onto the ball too long before he was sacked by Chandler Jones.

Winston played hurt the next three games. He didn’t practice until Friday before turning in one of his better performances at Buffalo. But with each hit, with limited reps in practice, Winston’s shoulder and performance got worse.

It became obvious he couldn’t make certain throws and wouldn’t attempt others.

He was knocked out of the loss to the Saints, went nuts on the sideline poking cornerback Marshon Lattimore and provoked Mike Evans into a suspension for retaliating.

The Bucs shut Winston down for three games. In retrospect, they should have gone with Fitzpatrick the first time he got hurt.

Of the eight starters on injured reserve, three are offensive linemen. A bunch more, including Kwon Alexander, Brent Grimes, Gerald McCoy, Lavonte David and Ayers, missed significant time.

CRISIS AND CONSPIRACY

Days after the disaster at New Orleans — which started with his odd finger-licking “eat a W” pregame speech and was capped the finger-pointing at Lattimore — came the BuzzFeed report.

News the NFL was investigating allegations that Winston groped a female Uber driver in Scottsdale in March of 2016 was followed by a Winston denial and a brief Bucs statement committing to cooperate with the NFL inquiry — but making no mention of Winston.

Winston returned in an overtime loss at Green Bay and played well, except for a crippling fumble that was returned for a TD.

Enberg’s wife, Barbara, already was in Boston and was expecting his arrival.

The family “is grateful for the kind thoughts and prayers of all of Dick’s countless fans and dear friends,” according to a statement released by Enberg’s attorney, Dennis Coleman. “At this time we are all still processing the significant loss, and we ask for prayers and respectful privacy in the immediate aftermath of such untimely news.”

Enberg got his big break with UCLA basketball and went on to call Super Bowls, Olympics, Final Fours and Angels and Padres baseball games as well as Rams football games.

He retired from his TV job with the Padres in October 2016, capping a six-decade career punctuated with countless calls of “Oh my!” in describing big plays. He also was well known for his baseball catchphrase of “Touch ‘em all!” for home runs.

“Dick was an institution in the industry for 60 years and we were lucky enough to have his iconic voice behind the microphone for Padres games for nearly a decade,” Padres owners Ron Fowler and Peter Seidler said in a statement.

Raised in Armada, Michigan, Enberg’s first radio job was actually as a radio station custodian in Mount Pleasant, Michigan, when he was a junior at Central Michigan. He made $1 an hour. The owner also gave him weekend sports and disc jockey gigs, also at $1 an hour. From there he began doing high school and college football games.

During his nine years broadcasting UCLA basketball, the Bruins won eight NCAA titles under coach John Wooden. Enberg broadcast nine no-hitters, including two by San Francisco’s Tim Lincecum against the Padres in 2013 and 2014.

He said the most historically important event he covered was “The Game of the Century,” Houston’s victory over UCLA in 1968 that snapped the Bruins’ dawned with the report Winston and Koetter’s relationship “was not in a good place.” Both dismissed it as false, but there’s a lot of smoke. Did the source of the story come from Winston’s camp or inside One Buc Place?

47-game winning streak. “That was the platform from which college basketball’s popularity was sent into the stratosphere,” Enberg said just before retiring from the Padres.

So the Ghost of Christmas Present finds the Bucs in Charlotte, trying to avoid their fifth-straight loss.

They have not won a game in the NFC South and have two last shots today at Carolina and against the Saints in Tampa New Year’s Eve.

If the Bucs manage to lose these last two games, instead of contending for a playoff spot as they did a year ago, they would go winless in the division for the first time since it was created in 2002 and Winston will have lost nine consecutive starts.

Right now, they just wish the nightmare would end.

NEW YORK

Minaya returning to Mets as Alderson assistant

Omar Minaya is returning to the New York Mets as a special assistant to Sandy Alderson, who replaced him as general manager after the 2010 season.

Minaya was the Mets' senior assistant GM from September 1997 until February 2002, when he joined the Montreal Expos as major league baseball's first Hispanic GM. He returned to the Mets as GM after the 2004 season, helped put together a roster that reached Game 7 of the NL Championship Series in 2006, then was fired after consecutive seasons with losing records.

He was San Diego's senior vice president of baseball operations from December 2011 until January 2015, and since then has been senior adviser to players' association head Tony Clark.

Now 59, Minaya worked in scouting for Texas from 1985-87.

TOKYO

Tokyo cuts estimated tab for 2020 Olympics to $12B

The latest price tag for the 2020 Tokyo Olympics has been trimmed slightly, but is still nearly twice the initial estimate even after a major cost-cutting effort.

The organizers said Friday that the event will cost a total 1.35 trillion yen ($11.9 billion).

In their release, Tokyo 2020 officials said the U.S. dollar cost would be $12.6 billion. But at the current exchange rate of about 113 yen to the dollar it is just under $12 billion.

When Tokyo won the Olympics in September 2013, its bid was for 730 billion yen. That ballooned to over 3 trillion yen but was slashed to 1.4 trillion yen after Tokyo Gov. Yuriko Koike launched a cost-cutting campaign.

Organizers have managed to cut still more from the estimated cost by moving some events outside of Tokyo and using existing and temporary facilities.

Tokyo's games won't be the priciest ever: the 2012 London Olympics cost $19 billion, compared with the bid estimate of $6.5 billion.

GREEN BAY, WIS.

Fired food worker arrested after ramming vehicle at Lambeau

Police say a fired food service worker rammed a former co-worker's car at Lambeau Field, bringing numerous law enforcement agencies to the Green Bay Packers' stadium.

Green Bay Police Chief Andrew Smith told reporters that the suspect was fired after an altercation with the co-worker earlier this month. Smith says when the suspect saw the co-worker Friday, he smashed into that employee's vehicle, driving it under the back of a van.

Smith says the suspect then chased the employee into the loading dock area. He then drove into the stadium and crashed into a storage area, but did not get onto the field.

Pittsburgh Steelers tight end Jesse James (81) loses his grip on the football after crossing the goal line against the New England Patriots in the closing seconds Dec. 17 in Pittsburgh. While coaches, players, fans and broadcasters become puzzled or annoyed by the NFL's "catch rule," the people in charge of developing and refining it through the years also have struggled.

There's a catch to the catch

By BARRY WILNER
Associated Press

It's a catch. Wait, there's a catch to the catch.

While coaches, players, fans and broadcasters become puzzled or annoyed by the NFL's "catch rule," the people in charge of developing and refining it through the years also have struggled. They simply couldn't find language to simplify it, leading to the inconsistency and controversy seen for seasons.

Especially this season. When such NFL personages as Mike Tomlin and Sean Payton, both with strong ties to the powerful competition committee, seek re-examination and possibly changes to rules, it moves the issue front and center, just as much as the call on Pittsburgh tight end Jesse James did last weekend.

"I think that we all can acknowledge that all of this needs to be revisited," Steelers coach Tomlin said. "It's not just that play. We're having similar discussions week in and week out, so as a member of the committee, I acknowledge that we've got our work cut out for us this offseason regarding a number of those things."

"I'm just done talking about it, to be quite honest with you. You all know what we teach. Catch the football."

Some players do, yet discover they didn't. They're confused by some of the calls. Even worse, they aren't sure they understand the rules.

It should be simple, right? Receive the ball, hold onto it, get tackled and never have it move when you get to the ground.

Except there are instances when it can move as long as control is maintained. It's just another example of an NFL rule book with so many tangents that it would crush even the heftiest offensive lineman if it fell on top of him.

"Yeah, I don't even know what the language is at this point," said Bears tight end Zach Miller, who lost a TD reception by not "surviving the ground" on a play in which he was injured and sidelined for the rest of the Pittsburgh Steelers tight end Jesse James (81) runs after taking a pass from quarterback Ben Roethlisberger during the first half against the Green Bay Packers in Pittsburgh. While coaches, players, fans and broadcasters become puzzled or annoyed by the NFL's "catch rule," the people in charge of developing and refining it through the years also have struggled.

season. "I don't think a lot of people ... I don't even know if the rule-makers do at this point know what the language is. But they have it there and it's in place and they're trying to follow it as closely as they can. I just don't know if it's what it needs to be."

Even the current head of league officials, Alberto Riveron, and the man he succeeded, Dean Blandino, agree that getting the language right is difficult. Many others would add getting the call right is more difficult.

Two years ago, the league consulted with a group of players that included Hall of Famers Steve Largent and Tim Brown, plus current NFLers.

"And we went over this rule, a lot of the catch and no-catch situations, and at the end of the day — we had them in for two days — they decided the best way to keep the rule is where it is right now," Riveron says. "But that does not stop us from going over it again and taking suggestions from any of the clubs."

Those suggestions definitely will be coming. They already have begun.

Blandino got them during his tenure, too. Now an analyst for Fox, he's hardly surprised that the spotlight is on the catch rule again.

"Every year, plays come up — Calvin Johnson or Dez Bryant or the play Sunday — that look like catches and people think should be catches," Blandino said. "People don't think those passes should be incomplete."

"The committee tried to write a rule to make that a catch and allow officials to call it consistently and it's almost impossible. It was definitely one of the more difficult things to explain. You can explain the rule and reasoning and logic behind it, but a lot of people don't agree with it, that that should be the rule."

Oddly, the no-catch rule seems to bring little attention or controversy in the college game, even though the law is the same.

"The difference between control and possession" is how it is explained by Terry McAulay, a former NFL official who has worked Super Bowls and now is coordinator of officiating for the AAC. "He clearly had a control for much of the play, (but) he didn't have it long enough, the control was lost when the ball hit the ground, and by rule, and I'm speaking only college, he never established possession. Whether he was down or not, whether the ball crossed the plane of the goal line is irrelevant because he's not a player in possession yet."

McAulay surmises that the divergent level of skill from the college game to the pros is why the catch rule comes into play so much more in the NFL.

"I think the difference is the athleticism of the players involved," he said. "The NFL player appears to be able to do many more things once he gets his hands on the football than the college player, who is so focused just on bringing it in and making the catch."

"Now we do see this every once in a while in college, but not nearly as often as we do in the NFL."

For the first time in 15 years, Toyota's Camry midsize sedan won't be the top-selling vehicle in the U.S. that isn't a pickup truck.

The Camry will be dethroned this year by another Toyota, the RAV4 small SUV, as consumers keep buying utilities and trucks.

Through November, Toyota sold 343,750 Camrys, down 3.2 percent from a year ago despite a redesign. RAV4 sales are up 19 percent to 375,052. Camry also trailed Nissan's Rogue at 363,293 and Honda's Civic at 345,880.

Bob Carter, Toyota's top U.S. sales executive, isn't worried.

"When you look at the marketplace, small SUV has become a larger segment than midsize cars," Carter said.

Toyota won't lose money on the shift. The RAV4's $24,410 starting price is about $1,000 more than Camry, and both can run well into the $30,000s.

Midsize car sales are down 12.3 percent this year to 2.57 million, while smaller utility vehicles are up 9 percent to 4.8 million, says Autodata Corp.

Carter doesn't see midsize sedans retaking the top segment, but he predicts an uptick in 2018 with a full year of sales for Camry and a revamped Honda Accord.

Economy poised to accelerate

The U.S. economy is poised to achieve a new growth milestone: Three quarters of growth at an annual rate of 3 percent or higher.

It hasn't happened since 2005, but it could if economists' forecasts for the final three months of the year are accurate. The Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta projects the economy will expand 3.3 percent in the October-December quarter.

The economy grew 3.2 percent in the third quarter and 3.1 percent in the second.

There are several reasons for the pick-up: Consumers are more optimistic about the economy and are spending at a solid pace. Many businesses are looking forward to the Trump administration's corporate tax rate cut.

A broad global economic rebound is also boosting U.S. companies and lifting the economy.

Exports of U.S. goods and services, minus imports, added to growth for three quarters in a row this year, for the first time in roughly four years.

Businesses are also investing more, perhaps in anticipation of future expansion. They are buying more machinery, equipment and software, and investing more in office towers and other buildings.

'When Calls the Heart' Film Brings Favorites Back for the Holidays

BY CANDACE HAVENS
FYI Television, Now Part of Ericsson

The new season of "When Calls the Heart" begins in February, but it wouldn't be the holidays without a holiday movie set in Hope Valley. The cast and crew do not disappoint with this year's "When Calls the Heart: The Christmas Wishing Tree," debuting Monday at 8 p.m. on the Hallmark Channel. This time around the writers used some long-forgotten source material with a fresh twist.

"Alphonso Moreno and our writing staff found this terrific, out-of-print book from the 1920s, called 'The Wishing Tree,'" says executive producer Brian Bird. "I don't know if that's the origin of the tradition of Secret Santa, but it had such a beautiful message that it seemed like a perfect theme to complement the values and great virtues we love to hit on in our Hope Valley story-telling. The idea of giving a blessing to someone anonymously and random acts of Christmas kindness. We need more of that in our culture today. The theme is that giving is better than receiving. It's a simple concept that Dickens introduced in 'A Christmas Carol,' and that we often forget about, but it is still meaningful today. Perhaps even more needed now than ever in this self-absorbed age we live in."

The town is abuzz with news of the Wishing Tree. Elizabeth (Erin Krakow) wishes for the return of her fiancé, Constable Jack Thornton (Daniel Lissing). The town's mayor, Abigail (Lori Loughlin) heads the creation of Hope Valley's holiday parade, featuring a passionate band, led by sheriff Bill Avery (Jack Wagner). Abigail's newly adopted son, Cody (Carter Ryan Evancie), tries to make their first Christmas together special. Rosemary (Pascale Hutton) and Lee (Kavan Smith) discover how important traditions and treasured memories are.

"The Christmas story is about the Hope Valley community coming together to make one another's wishes come true," says Krakow. "In Elizabeth's case, though, she's trying to be strong, her greatest wish is for Jack to return home safely. I don't want to give too much away, but I will say that 'When Calls the Heart: The Christmas Wishing Tree' will be a heartwarming, moving, feel-good celebration of the power of love and kindness at Christmas. I predict happy tears."

Fans of the show, who call themselves Hearties, will be happy to know that the majority of the cast will re-says, "is either introduce a stranger to town or highlight somebody everybody knows and introduce them in a brand-new way by revealing something new about them."

If fans feel like these characters are especially close to one another, there may be a reason for that. "We really enjoy spending time with each other on set," says Krakow, "and more often than not we choose to spend our downtime together, as well. Also, they're all such talented, hardworking actors and I always feel excited by what they bring to the table. We've been working together for so long now that there's an ease and a great deal of trust between

Most of the film was shot over the summer months, even though it has a wintry feel. "It's the running joke in Vancouver for a lot of film production in the summer," says Bird. "Most of the movies are Christmas movies, so there is sometimes a shortage of fake snow, whether it be the foam that's sprayed on the streets and lawns, the soap-flakes used for closeups when it's snowing or the shaved ice that has to be imported from hundreds of miles away. It's beautifully sunny in Vancouver in summer, or there are summer thunder showers, so achieving a white Christmas is where the magic of Hollywood North comes in."

Elizabeth (Erin Krakow) has a special wish for "When Calls the Heart: The Christmas Wishing Tree," debuting Monday at 8 p.m. on the Hallmark Channel.

turn along with some surprises. "It's safe to say that the Hearties fans love every character who lives, breathes or dies in Hope Valley," says Bird. "It's challenging to spread the story love around equally when everybody in the show is a fan-favorite, but our writers are great at making it feel that way. I can say that Hearties everywhere have been especially worried about one character in particular since season four - those fans are going to be pretty happy on Christmas night."

The writers have a few surprises in store. "What we love to do," Bird us. We all really support each other. That chemistry and care is part of what makes "When Calls the Heart" such a pleasure to film and, if I may say so myself, a pleasure to watch.

"There are lots of funny moments that happen on set," continues Krakow. "Sometimes they're genuinely funny and sometimes we just find ourselves in a fit of giggles over nothing because we've been working for 12 hours and it's late, and we're loopy. That happens a lot, actually, and those are some of my favorite moments."

CELEBRITY EXTRA

BY CINDY ELAVSKY

Q: I was frustrated to see one of my favorite soap stars, Arianne Zucker, being dragged back into that “Access Hollywood”/Donald Trump fiasco recently. Can you tell me how she’s doing? — Barbara F., via email

A: Arianne is one classy lady, and she’s handling the renewed interest in the allegations of President Trump’s inappropriate sexual misconduct from years past with grace — and with a drive to try to effect change. Trump recently disputed the veracity of the “Access Hollywood” tape where he is talking with host Billy Bush about things rich men can do to women without asking. (That’s about all the detail I’m going to go into because it disgusts me.) Arianne was the actress they were on the NBC studio lot to meet for a backstage tour of “Days of Our Lives.”

Arianne told me: “I feel like there is some responsibility there (for me to speak up), but finding a way to do it is hard. I do know the first thing for anyone who has gone through any type of physical situation against their will is healing. How do you start that? Where do you go? Who do you talk to? You hear the way men spoke in the ‘60s and ‘70s about women; that was the way, and you dealt with it. How do we reprogram our children to not think that way? I’m in a position where I can help from the heart.”

But Arianne is not all about recent hot-button issues: She’s also starring in the Lifetime thriller called “Web Cam Girls,” which debuts Saturday, Dec. 30, at 8 p.m. ET/PT. According to Arianne, it’s “a psychological thriller based on family relationships. So many parents have these relationships with their children that go sour — how do you find that way back? How do you bring your kid back? That’s what I really love about this movie because, in some shape or form, every parent goes through something like this with their teenager.”

Q: Do you have any “House of Cards” news? — Brian K., Baltimore

A: Production on the hit Netflix drama was halted amid sexual harassment and assault allegations against series star Kevin Spacey. The streaming giant recently announced that Spacey will not be involved when production resumes in early 2018. The sixth and final season will consist of eight episodes instead of the usual 13. The story will center on Robin Wright’s character, newly elected President Claire Underwood.

Q: Is it true that “Big Little Lies” is coming back? — Rain F., via email

A: It’s getting closer to becoming a reality. Executive producer/writer David E. Kelley told TVLine.com: “We’re kicking around ideas and trying to lasso the talent (to) get the band back together. ... I’m optimistic because everyone wants to do it. We feel we still have storytelling to do.” Word has it that production could start as early as spring 2018.

SUNDAY HIGHLIGHTS

Snowed Inn Christmas
6 p.m. on LIFE

When two polar-opposite employees volunteer for the same writing assignment, a snowstorm forces their airplane to land in Santa Claus, Ind., where they have to set aside their differences to save the town's historic inn. (HD)

Altitude

6:30 p.m. on CINE

A headstrong FBI agent is flying to Washington, D.C., when her seatmate offers for millions of money to get him off the plane alive, as his former partners have staged a hijacking, and she soon finds herself in a fight for the lives of many. (HD)

90 Day Fiance
7 p.m. on TLC

As their disagreements began the moment he arrived from Spain, including disputes on where to live, the wedding attire, and family involvement, Evelyn and David consider whether a mere 90 days is truly enough time to get to know each other. (HD)

How Murray Saved Christmas

7:30 p.m. on NBC

An accident puts Santa Claus out of commission for Christmas, so a grumpy deli owner named Murray reluctantly agrees to take his place, and although the situation does not seem ideal, Murray turns out to have just what it takes to save Christmas. (HD)

Die Hard

8 p.m. on CINE

A New York cop, who is visiting Los Angeles, finds himself pitted against a group of ruthless terrorists who have taken a large number of hostages in a high-rise office building, and he is forced to fight for their survival alone. (HD)

Marvel's The Avengers
8:30 p.m. on USA

When Loki, a villainous and powerful god, threatens global security to enslave mankind, S.H.I.E.L.D., an international peace-keeping agency, commissions elite superheroes, like Iron Man and Captain America, to unite to prevent widespread disaster. (HD)

Finding Santa

9:30 p.m. on HALL

A young woman in charge of her town's Christmas events finds herself in a bind when the town's Santa Claus unexpectedly falls ill, so she is forced to rely on the talents of a driver who has no interest in becoming the replacement for Kris Kringle; Eric

MONDAY HIGHLIGHTS

Freaky Friday

6:30 p.m. on E!

An overworked, single mom and her rebellious teenage daughter wake up after a trip to a Chinese restaurant to discover that they have switched bodies, forcing them to see things from each other's points of view before they can get their lives back. (HD)

When Calls the Heart

8 p.m. on HALL

When Elizabeth's fiancé comes home, he brings along a young man searching for the Christmas spirit, so the entire town tries to help their new visitor; Abigail is busy as mayor; Rosemary and Lee discover the true meaning of the holiday. (HD)

Dr. Seuss' How the Grinch Stole Christmas

8 p.m. on NBC

A mean-hearted hermit (voiced by Boris Karloff) descends into an unsuspecting town, looking to act out his plan to ruin Christmas which involves stealing all of the presents, food and decorations, but he ends up learning the true meaning of the holiday instead.

American Dad!

8 p.m. on TBS

An overzealously patriotic agent with the CIA attempts to maintain security in his most beloved of nations, all the while attempting to keep his outlandish family matters safe from terrorist plots that are at times both real and imaginary. (HD)

Holiday Baking Championship

9 p.m. on FOOD

The hosts welcome back runner-up teams from previous seasons for another chance to win, in the pre-heat, the baking teams use letters to Santa to inspire a holiday dessert, and for the main heat, the teams assemble one giant edible holiday tree. (HD)

American Pickers: Bonus Buys

9 p.m. on HIST

Frank discovers a rare Harley Davidson Knucklehead V-Twin motorcycle while at a collector's hidden compound in California; bonus content added. (HD)

Teen Mom

9 p.m. on MTV

Amber, Catelynn, Farrah and Maci are followed as they face the unique challenges of being young mothers living in the limelight. (HD)

Floribama Shore

10:01 p.m. on MTV

As Aimee spirals into a complete loss of hope, the housemates help her recognize her good qualities; a friendly bet between the guys nearly splits the house up. (HD)

SOAP OPERA UPDATE

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL

Steffy learned that she was pregnant, but didn't know if the father was Liam or Liam's father, Bill. Brooke reminded Thorne that he needed to respect her relationship with Ridge if he planned on continuing to live under her roof. Steffy and Bill were having serious guilt about their one-night stand together. Katie surprised Wyatt by wearing some sexy Santa lingerie.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES

Will asked Paul if they could be friends. Eve eavesdropped on an argument between Brady and Victor. John surprised Marlena with a romantic gift. Kate and Eve battled over Gabi's company. A guilt-ridden JJ wrote letters to his loved ones and gave away his possessions as he prepared to take a drastic step. On Christmas Eve, Claire and Ciara caused quite the commotion during the traditional hanging of the Horton ornaments. Chad and Abigail shared a romantic evening together. Eli supported Lani, who was then encouraged by Valerie not to give up on JJ.

GENERAL HOSPITAL

Drew put everything on the table. Carly felt terrible for her friend. Sam lashed out. Sonny and Drew talked through potential scenarios. Jordan and Anna bonded. Drew and Jason shared a common goal, giving Drew the reassurance he needed. Griffin made an apology. Curtis comforted Jordan. Alexis took Danny to the park. Laura asked Lulu for a big favor. Molly was infuriated by Alexis. Nelle got a break. Nathan confronted Obrecht. Felicia put Maxie at ease. Laura hoped for the best. Jason paid his respects.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS

J.T. asked his son for another chance. Mattie finally agreed to meet with Cane to hear him out. Nikki warned Kevin that she was worried that J.T.'s audit would reveal that he helped her steal Victor's money. She then promised Kevin that she would protect him and suggested that he return to Seattle before things got out of hand. At Crimson Lights, Mariah quizzed Abby about her "friendship" with Scott. Abby was annoyed by Mariah's sudden interest in her personal life and dodged her questions.

TUESDAY

TV DISH

On Monday at 9 p.m. on BBC America, "Doctor Who" fans will rejoice when they see who stars in the Christmas Special, "Twice Upon a Time." David Bradley (First Doctor), Pearl Mackie (Bill Potts) and Mark Gatiss (The Captain) are on hand as Peter Capaldi's Doctor regenerates into the Thirteenth Doctor, played by Jodie Whittaker. Right after, there will be a new special "Doctor Who: Farewell to Peter Capaldi," narrated by actor Colin McFarlane. It features archive footage, interviews and looks back on Capaldi's era as the Twelfth Doctor - from his first script read through his last. It also features Steven Moffat reflecting on his time as a writer, and later an executive producer, revealing some of his best and worst moments from his tenure, as well as his favorite episodes. We know what we're doing Christmas night.

History enthusiast and explorer Don Wildman ventures back into the field to unravel the mysteries of 13 iconic and fascinating tales in new single-topic episodes of "Mysteries at the Museum." The first of the specials, "Race to the Antarctic: Mysteries at the Museum," premieres on Thursday at 9 p.m. on the Travel channel, and features the survival story of the polar explorer, and heroic leader, Sir Ernest Shackleton and his 27-man crew of the Endurance. "I'll explore some of the most studied and debated mysteries that continue to fascinate us decades after they occurred," says Wildman. "In many of the specials, I'll visit the actual places or spaces that sparked an uncommon experience, talk with the world's foremost experts to understand what really happened, and go deep inside museum collections that will forever allow us to study and memorialize these mysteries." In upcoming specials, Wildman treks through the ruins of Pompeii to the slopes of Mt. Vesuvius, and travels to Egypt in search of Cleopatra's tomb. He will delve into the true story behind the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln and the man who shot him, John Wilkes Booth, and explore the hidden routes of the Underground Railroad, the truth about Custer's last stand and the secrets behind Al Capone, Bugsy Siegel and more.

The new season of "Expedition Unknown" begins Wednesday at 9 p.m. on the Travel channel. "This season is all about icons," says host Josh Gates. "From discovering the true origins of Stonehenge to exploring beneath the enigmatic pyramids of the Mayan empire,

The Twelfth Doctor (Peter Capaldi) goes through a transformation in the new special "Twice Upon a Time," debuting Monday at 9 p.m. on BBC America.

we're making incredible discoveries at the world's most impressive landmarks. But, we're also tackling iconic items such as the lost treasure of America's most notorious pirate and the stolen ruby slippers from 'The Wizard of Oz.' Plus, we're hot on the trail of history's most infamous characters, from Wild West bandit Butch Cassidy to high-ranking Nazis in South America and the sunken tomb of Cleopatra. These are our biggest adventures yet, and I can't wait to take our fans with us on the journey." The season kicks off with a two-part episode focused on the mysterious and powerful Vikings. From Denmark and Iceland to the United States and Canada, Gates treads into Viking territory in an effort to unlock answers to their most enduring secrets. How did they attain and sustain their power? Why did the population in Greenland just vanish? How far did they really travel? Many believe the Vikings' lost settlement, "Vinland," established in 1000 AD, is in Canada, but could new evidence prove that it's actually here in America? It's a revelation that could rewrite history.

MOMENTS IN TIME

On Dec. 30, 1803, Francis Lewis, signer of the Declaration of Independence, dies in New York City, at the age of 90. Lewis' patriotism came at a high cost. The British army destroyed his Long Island estate and took his wife prisoner in 1776.

On Dec. 28, 1869, The Knights of Labor hold the first Labor Day ceremonies in American history. First established as a secret society of Philadelphia tailors, it pushed for an eight-hour workday during the labor movement of the late 19th century.

On Dec. 29, 1878, the Cuban professional baseball league holds its first game. Baseball was introduced in Cuba around 1864 by students returning home from studying in the U.S.

Barr thriving for Vikings while bracing for Packer-fan hate

By DAVE CAMPBELL
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. — Anthony Barr has scrolled through the social media hate messages directed at him from disgruntled fans of Aaron Rodgers and the Packers.

One of them even arrived in the mail.

When Barr and the Vikings visit Green Bay on Saturday night, the three-time Pro Bowl linebacker is bound to be the primary target of jeers at Lambeau Field. Barr, after all, delivered the hit that broke Rodgers' collarbone and sidelined him for nearly eight games, derailing a promising season for the Packers.

"It's inevitable. Aaron Rodgers is to Green Bay what LeBron is to Cleveland," Barr said. "You're responsible in a way for their guy going down, you're going to take some heat. It just comes with the territory."

No matter how profane or vile the sentiments on Instagram or Twitter, Barr has shrugged them off. That's befitting of his laid-back Los Angeles personality, a soft-spoken style that's a polar opposite of the strength, instinct and speed Barr has displayed on the field in Minnesota's dominant defense.

"He's having a great year. He's playing really good. He's been very active. He's on top of things. He makes a lot of checks for the defense," said coach Mike Zimmer, who helped make Barr the first draft pick of his tenure when the Vikings took him ninth overall out of UCLA in 2014.

With the athleticism of a running back that he started his college career as, Barr has represented the prototype for a linebacker in Zimmer's 4-3 scheme with the ability to blitz by the center, drop into coverage and roam from side to side in run support. He's third on the team with 84 tackles, eight for loss, according to statistics compiled from the coaching staff's film review.

"I didn't really know what to expect or where I was going to fit in, but I soon learned that there was a spot for me and that I could make an impact in different ways," Barr said, leaning his 6-foot-5, 255-pound frame back in a folding chair at team headquarters after a recent practice.

Smarts are another important asset.

"I'm very situationally aware," he said. "I feel like they've done a good job, the coaching staff and my teammates, of really easing the learning curve for me."

Near the end of the 2016 season that was a disappointment for most everyone in purple, Zimmer said Barr sometimes had a "tendency to coast a little bit." Perhaps that was simply part of the Southern California cool he carries, but the comment from the coach served as motivation for Barr to raise his performance in 2017.

Off the field, he's plenty inspired, too.

His mother, Lori Barr, is the engineer of the fledgling Raise The Barr foundation, which is designed to support single moms with college scholarships and day-care assistance, among other benefits. The focus is on applicants from California and Minnesota, for now. The goal is to one day spread the program nationally.

"You see these people and think we were once in their shoes. It just reminds you of where you came from and how you got to where you are," Barr said. "It just makes you appreciate everything that's come your way."

Barr's father is Tony Brooks, once a star running back at Notre Dame. He and Lori dated while they were in college, and Anthony was born the month before Brooks went to the Philadelphia Eagles in the fourth round of the 1992 NFL draft. They eventually broke up, though, and the Barrs moved to California to be near family.

Lori worked as a waitress to help continue her higher education, all the while raising Anthony on her own. She finished her degree, became a counselor and, later, a school principal. Anthony still tries to check in with Brooks from time to time, but they've never had a close relationship.

"My mom's been an educator almost her whole life and is a very selfless person," Barr said, reflecting on the impetus for starting his foundation last year. "I have a lot of those qualities, too."

Raise The Barr has reached double digits in scholarship awards.

"We do feel like education is the benchmark to breaking the cycle of poverty," Barr said. "Education is knowledge is power, as cliché as it sounds."

Rodgers won't have the opportunity for revenge on Saturday night, because he's been placed back on injured reserve with the Packers eliminated from postseason contention. Brett Hundley will start instead, with the NFC North champion Vikings (11-3) chasing a first-round bye for the playoffs.

The fans might not have forgotten Barr's takedown of Rodgers to the U.S. Bank Stadium turf on Oct. 15, but the Packers haven't exactly been dwelling on it more than two months later.

"It's football. You take hits like that, and things happen," Packers linebacker Nick Perry said. "You can't control those things."

Trash? Jaguars QB Bortles 'making guys eat those words'

By MARK LONG
AP SPORTS WRITER

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Jacksonville Jaguars quarterback Blake Bortles kicked Jadeveon Clowney's "trash" talk to the curb.

Clearly frustrated following a 45-7 loss at Jacksonville on Sunday, Clowney called Bortles trash after the game. Bortles got his first chance to respond Wednesday and handled the latest insult as well as he has opposing defenses in recent weeks.

"If how we're playing and how I'm playing is trash, then I'm fine with being trash," Bortles said.

Bortles is the NFL's most prolific passer in December. He has thrown for 903 yards, with seven touchdowns and no interceptions in three games in the playoffs-defining month. He completed 21 of 29 passes for 326 yards and three touchdowns against the Texans.

"I've heard a lot of stuff, and I imagine some of the stuff I didn't see somebody told me," Bortles said. "I'm sure there are things out there that I have no idea about, but I could care less."

The Jaguars (10-4) clinched a playoff spot with their seventh victory in eight games and can win the AFC South for the first time since its inception in 2002 with a win at San Francisco (4-10) on Sunday.

Bortles has been a big reason for the franchise's resurgence.

But that hasn't stopped opponents from taking shots at the fourth-year pro who entered this season with a reputation for turning the ball over at an alarming rate. Bortles began 2017 with the same number of wins (10) as interceptions returned for touchdowns. He also had 15 more passes batted down at the line of scrimmage than any other quarterback during his first three years in the NFL.

He was an easy target for critics.

New Orleans Saints defensive end Cameron Jordan took a shot at Bortles in August while praising Drew Brees. During an appearance on SiriusXM NFL Radio, Jordan said facing Brees in practice "helps the defense. It's not like we're going against Blake Bortles. It's not like Drew is giving picks away."

Winning has done little to silence Bortles' doubters.

Cincinnati Bengals linebacker Vontaze Burfict made headlines early last month by saying he was "not sure Blake can beat us. We want to put it in his hands and have him beat us, if he can." Bortles responded with a touchdown, no interceptions and no sacks in a 23-7 victory. He also jabbed back at the often-flagged and previously suspended Burfict afterward.

"I thought we did a good job playing as hard as we possibly can between the whistles and beating the crap out of them," Bortles said.

Two weeks ago, Seattle safety Earl Thomas called Bortles a "subpar quarterback" following a 30-24 loss in Jacksonville in which Bortles threw for 268 yards and two touchdowns.

"Those guys are just frustrated after the game and say whatever," Jaguars receiver Allen Hurns said, adding that Bortles is fighting to overcome perception. "That's what Blake's going to be known for until he accomplishes something big, like if we win the Super Bowl or anything like that."

"Blake has done a great job just tuning some of the things out and continuing to play, have his head down and not worry what everybody else is going to say. If he was paying attention to what everybody else is saying, it would have crushed him by now."

So Clowney's harsh comment wasn't the first and surely won't be the last.

"It's sad, man, because the teams that are speaking about it, he's just got done shredding them," Jaguars safety Tashaun Gipson said. "What he did to the Houston Texans, they should have arrested him for that, man. Dude was throwing off his back foot and making throws I've never seen before, right?"

"At the end of the day, dude's playing good football. ... He's making those guys eat those words and I'm happy for him."

AROUND THE LEAGUE

Overreactions: Refs to use stationery to make calls

By ROB MAADDI
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

Bust out the protractors and rulers, refs. All your old-school stationery supplies are fair game for measurements in the NFL.

Referee Gene Steratore's decision to use a folded index card for a first-down measurement that went in favor of Dallas against the Raiders will start a new trend. Football is a game of inches. Making the right call is crucial so refs need all the help they can get.

Give them calculators, erasers and No. 2 pencils, too. Perhaps the league's competition committee will change the rules to allow referees to carry these supplies onto the field.

After all, it worked so well for Steratore, who saw it one way while cameras suggested he was wrong.

Here are more overreactions following Week 15:

••• OVERREACTION: Spoiling a pity parade will spark the Browns (0-14) to finally win a game.

REALISTIC REACTION: Why not? Nothing else worked.

REALISTIC REACTION: He'd have to trade Cam Newton.

••• OVERREACTION: The Steelers (10-3) can't win without Antonio Brown.

REALISTIC REACTION: They almost beat the Patriots (10-3) with their star receiver missing most of the game.

••• OVERREACTION: Nate Sudfeld could toss four TD passes throwing in Philadelphia's offense.

REALISTIC REACTION: Carson Wentz and Nick Foles doing it in consecutive weeks doesn't mean whoever lines up under center for the Eagles (12-2) will have similar success. And, they don't want to find out.

OVERREACTION: Aaron Rodgers lost his magic touch.

REALISTIC REACTION: He was coming back from surgery on a broken collarbone. He's not Superman.

••• OVERREACTION: Playoff football will fill the seats in Los Angeles.

REALISTIC REACTION: Too many seats to fill in the Coliseum.

REALISTIC REACTION: It's already forgotten.

••• OVERREACTION: The Vikings are the scariest team in the NFC playoffs.

REALISTIC REACTION: Case Keenum is still their quarterback.

••• OVERREACTION: The Bills will end their 17-year playoff drought.

REALISTIC REACTION: They're not winning in New England and beating the Dolphins twice in three weeks will be a tough task. They could end up 8-8.

Panthers sale sparks buzz in political, business circles

By STEVE REED
AP SPORTS WRITER

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — The stunning news of the rare opportunity to purchase an NFL team has quickly garnered the attention of sports figures, business investors and politicians alike.

Amid reports of sexual and racial remarks made by Carolina Panthers owner and founder Jerry Richardson in the workplace, he has unexpectedly announced that he is selling the NFL franchise after this season ends.

It was a bombshell that rocked the Carolinas, and generated shockwaves inside and out of the organization. The team Monday promoted Tina Becker as COO and gave her full control of the day-to-day operations.

Becker said in a release that "these have been some of the most difficult days of my 19 years with the Panthers." She added that her immediate focus will be on corporate side of the organization, "while addressing the real concerns that have been raised in recent days."

Richardson, meanwhile, stepped away from daily responsibilities to focus on the sale of the team — which will come with a multi-billion dollar price tag.

That's what is known, but Richardson's decision to walk away after nearly 25 years as owner has left more questions than answers about the franchise's future — most notably, who will buy it and will they keep the team in Charlotte.

Charlotte Mayor Vi Lyles said she is committed to working to keep the team in Charlotte.

"The City of Charlotte values its long-running relationship with the Panthers after more than 22 seasons of NFL football," Lyles said in a statement to The Associated Press. "The Panthers are part of Charlotte's fabric. We've celebrated victories and anguished over defeats. We understand transitions are inevitable, and we look forward to working with current and future ownership."

The Panthers are tethered to Charlotte through the 2018 season because of an agreement on an $87.5 stadium renovation between the city and the team in 2013. That renovation is nearly complete.

But a buyer could potentially purchase the team and move it in 2019.

Former North Carolina Gov. Pat McCrory, who was mayor of Charlotte when the Panthers settled into their new stadium, has seen both sides. He also was the mayor when the Hornets left town. He said another question might be about Bank of America stadium.

"Will (the new owners) ask for government subsidy to continue to improve the stadium, or, in fact, even build a new stadium, like what's happened in Atlanta and Dallas?" McCrory said. "That would be a tall order."

He said it will be a business decision — and the highest bidder will get the team, to possibly do with it as they chose.

"Unless the NFL steps in and says, 'No, you need to have a local ownership group,'" he said, "which I'd encourage them to do."

Panthers coach Ron Rivera was "a little taken aback" when Richardson informed him Sunday night of his decision to sell the team. But he too believes the Panthers should remain in Charlotte.

"This organization has been a source of pride and goodwill and I would like it to continue," Rivera said Monday. "This is a great community with a very supportive fan base that has been out there for us. They have been here for me and this football team and I hope that somehow it is able to stay here."

Rapper and actor Diddy indicated his interest in purchasing the Panthers on Twitter moments after Richardson's announcement.

Two-time NBA MVP Stephen Curry, a Charlotte native, chimed in with "I want in!"

NFL quarterback Colin Kaepernick has also expressed interest.

Other businessmen with Charlotte connections could show interest as well.

Speedway Motorsports chairman Bruton Smith and his son, CEO Marcus Smith, have previously expressed interest in purchasing the Panthers should the opportunity arise.

And the Panthers are loaded with minority owners including real estate magnate "Smoky" Bissell, Family Dollar founder Leon Levine and members of the Belk family. Developer Johnny Harris, who was instrumental in luring the Wells Fargo Championship — and later the PGA Championship — to Charlotte, could also decide to increase his ownership stake in the team.

Let's not forget Michael Jordan. The six-time NBA champion owns the Hornets. However, Jordan's interest level is unknown and his representative Estee Portnoy said she had no comment on the Panthers sale.

More names will surely emerge over the next several weeks, but they need to be ready to write a big check. Forbes Magazine recently estimated the Panthers worth at $2.3 billion.

And those numbers could be low. Forbes estimated the Buffalo Bills at a net worth of $935 million in 2013, but the team wound up selling in 2014 for $1.4 billion — nearly 50 percent higher than the estimate — according to magazine's website.

Before any sale can be finalized, it will need the approval of 24 of 32 NFL owners.

The Panthers have a lot to offer potential suitors:

- They are on the cusp of reaching the playoffs for the fourth time in five seasons.

- They have sold out 225 of their 227 home games in team history, including 157 straight.

- They feature several recognizable stars including 2015 NFL MVP Cam Newton and 2013 Defensive Player of the Year Luke Kuechly.

Panthers tight end Ed Dickson said fans don't deserve to have a team ripped out from underneath them.

"It's growing, it's definitely been growing," Dickson said of the fan base. "We are striving to build something that Dallas has, and Pittsburgh has. We don't have that much history here. But one of the reasons I came here was to be a part of something special. When we do get to the top of the mountain and win a Super Bowl — then we have something to celebrate here" in the Carolinas.

At least in 2017 and 2018, after that, it's unclear where the party would be.

GAME OF THE WEEK

Buffalo vs. New England

Playoffs, Gronk hit backdrop matchup between Bills, Patriots

By KYLE HIGHTOWER
AP SPORTS WRITER

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. — For the better part of two decades, the second meeting of the regular season between the Buffalo Bills and New England Patriots has had only mild drama attached to it.

That won't be the case for Sunday's matchup.

New England (11-3) wrapped up its ninth consecutive AFC East title with last week's win over Pittsburgh. It can lock up a first-round bye this week with a victory over the Bills, combined with a loss by either Pittsburgh or Jacksonville.

If the Patriots win and the Steelers and Jaguars both lose, New England will secure home-field advantage throughout the playoffs.

Meanwhile, the Bills (8-6) are still alive in their quest to break a 17-year playoff drought, and would not be eliminated from contention even with a loss to the Patriots.

Buffalo's postseason absence is the longest active streak in North America's four major professional sports. In NFL terms, Buffalo is tied for having the fifth-longest drought, and the longest since the NFL merger in 1970.

"Of course, the big picture's there, but you can't move too far ahead," said Bills quarterback Tyrod Taylor, who was Joe Flacco's backup for the Baltimore Ravens' 2013 Super Bowl win.

"It's definitely tough, but one thing about it is you can't necessarily worry about what other teams are doing."

There is also the subplot of this being the first time the teams have met since Patriots tight end Rob Gronkowski's late, gratuitous hit on Bills defensive back Tre'Davious White late in New England's 23-3 win at Buffalo Dec. 3.

White was lying face down on the sideline after intercepting Tom Brady's fourth-quarter pass attempt to Gronkowski. Gronk — upset about a flag not being called on White for pushing off — dove into him, driving his forearm into White's back and head. Gronkowski was called for unnecessary roughness, but not kicked out of the game.

Afterward, Patriots coach Bill Belichick apologized to Buffalo coach Sean McDermott. Gronkowski also apologized, saying he let his frustration get the better of him.

In the days that followed, White condemned Gronk as "a dirty player." But he said this week that he has moved on.

"It's just getting over it," White said. "It was still lingering on me. But as I got a chance to think about it, that was childish. I got over it and I'm past it. I'm focused on winning."

Safety Devin McCourty said he is expecting a playoff atmosphere, but not because of any bad blood.

"I don't think either team is going to need what happened last game to get them going," McCourty said. "Two teams trying to win a football game at the end of the season is going to be chippy. It's going to be everything from pushing and shoving to fighting for extra yards. You're going to get all of that Sunday."

Here are some things to watch for when the Bills and patriots square off again:

One-man show

Most of the Bills' success this season has come via the legs of running back LeSean McCoy.

He leads the Bills with 1,057 yards rushing and six touchdowns. He also has two TD catches. In all, he has accounted for eight of the 26 touchdowns scored by the Bills' offense. His 1,407 yards from scrimmage (including 350 receiving) make up 33 percent of the net yards of offense Buffalo has produced.

McCoy has eclipsed 100 yards rushing four times this season. Buffalo is 3-1 in those games. New England has allowed a 100-yard rusher only four times and is 2-2 in those contests.

Defensive struggles

While McCoy has been the catalyst offensively when Buffalo has had success this season, Buffalo's defense has mostly struggled with stopping the run.

It has allowed 140 or more yards rushing six times and given up a league-worst 19 of its 32 touchdowns on the ground. That included two against New England and six in a 47-10 loss to New Orleans on Nov. 12.

By contrast, the Bills have allowed a league-low 11 touchdowns passing, and two or more in one game just twice this season (three in 30-27 win over Tampa Bay and two in 54-24 loss to the Chargers).

Tom Terrific

The Patriots have won four of the last five meetings with the Bills, but Buffalo has taken two of the last three games in Foxborough.

Brady was serving his four-game "Deflategate" suspension during Buffalo's 16-0 win at Gillette Stadium last season. But the 40-year-old QB has a 27-3 regular-season record against the Bills, his highest win total over any opponent. He has also thrown for more touchdowns (66) against the Bills than any other opponent.

Pittsburgh vs. Houston

Steelers prepare for Monday game at Texans without Brown

By KRISTIE RIEKEN
AP SPORTS WRITER

HOUSTON — Already in the playoffs after winning the AFC North, the Pittsburgh Steelers still have plenty to play for in their last two games, starting with Monday's matchup with the Houston Texans.

A win over the struggling Texans combined with a loss or tie by the Jacksonville Jaguars would assure the Steelers a first-round bye. They could also clinch the bye with a tie against Houston and a loss by Jacksonville.

Pittsburgh also has a chance to secure home-field advantage throughout the postseason if the team wins out and the Patriots lose at least one of their last two games.

The Steelers will have to try and do it without star receiver Antonio Brown, who leads the NFL with 1,533 yards receiving and is out indefinitely after injuring his left calf last week.

"A.B., you can't replace him with one man," Pittsburgh quarterback Ben Roethlisberger said. "A.B. is not human, so we will have multiple guys trying to fill that spot, but I know that we have guys that are excited, willing to try and fill those shoes."

Rookie JuJu Smith-Schuster, Eli Rogers, Darrius Heyward-Bey and Justin Hunter are among those who will try to pick up the slack with Brown out. Smith-Schuster has had a solid season, and ranks third among NFL rookies with 699 yards receiving. Heyward-Bey, Hunter and Rogers have been used sparingly this year, with Heyward-Bey grabbing just two receptions for 47 yards, Hunter with three catches for 17 yards, and Rogers with 16 receptions for 142 yards.

Roethlisberger could also rely more heavily on tight end Jesse James, who has 363 yards receiving, highlighted by a 97-yard performance in a win over Baltimore two weeks ago. Pittsburgh's powerful offense also has Le'Veon Bell, who leads the NFL with 1,222 yards rushing and has 80 receptions for 627 yards.

Houston cornerback Johnathan Joseph expects Pittsburgh's offense to be a little different without Brown, but knows slowing it down will still be a tall task.

"There's no shortage of weapons," Joseph said.

Some things to know about the first meeting between the Steelers and Texans since 2014:

Ending the skid?

The Texans need a win Monday to avoid their first five-game skid since dropping the last 14 games of their 2-14 season in 2013. Houston has lost seven of its last eight games, including going 1-6 since rookie quarterback Deshaun Watson sustained a season-ending knee injury. The Texans (4-10), who won the AFC South in each of the last two seasons, will finish with a losing record for the first time since 2013 after going 9-7 in each of the first three seasons under coach Bill O'Brien.

AP PHOTO

Pittsburgh Steelers running back Le'Veon Bell runs against the New England Patriots.

No break for Bell

With the Steelers still needing wins, Bell is unlikely to get much rest before the playoffs. Bell leads the NFL in touches with 387 and is within striking distance of finishing in the top five for most touches in a single season.

The Steelers are dealing with depth issues behind Bell after rookie James Conner was lost for the season with a right knee injury. Pittsburgh signed Stevan Ridley in case of emergency, but fans should expect to see a lot of Bell, the NFL's highest-paid running back.

"Whatever my team asks me to do, I'm going to go out there and do," Bell said. "That's the biggest thing about me. I want to win a Super Bowl. We win these next two games, we'll get a one or a two seed."

Watt's up

The first NFL meeting of Texans star defensive end J.J. Watt and his youngest brother, Steelers rookie linebacker T.J. Watt, never materialized thanks to a broken left leg in October that ended J.J.'s season.

T.J. has done a pretty decent impersonation of his big brother. Watt's six sacks are tied for third on the team and are the second most by a Steelers rookie. He's also played 13 of 14 games, and despite the long slog from training camp doesn't, he doesn't like he's run into the "rookie wall."

"There's no rookie wall at all," T.J. Watt said. "I think if I hit anything, I feel like I'm refreshed the back half of season. I'm great. I'm hungry."

Mutual admiration

When Roethlisberger was asked about Houston's defense this week, his entire answer was dedicated to his admiration for defensive end Jadeveon Clowney.

"When you got Clowney running all over the field, you're going to have to have eyes and understand where he is all the time because he is a very, very special football player," Roethlisberger said.

When Clowney was told of Roethlisberger's comments he called him a "special player," too. The top overall pick in the 2014 draft, has a career-high nine sacks, but hasn't had one in the last three games. He's hoping to get to Roethlisberger, but knows he'll still have work to do if he does.

"It's not really (about) chasing him, it's just getting him down," Clowney said. "It's like wrestling with a bear. It's more of a wrestle than a chase. When you get to him you have to hold onto him, because he's one of the biggest quarterbacks in the league."

L.A. Rams vs. Tennessee

Titans facing must-win with Rams close to clinching NFC West

By TERESA M. WALKER
 AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Tennessee linebacker Brian Orakpo has made it very clear to the rest of the Titans that their postseason already is underway.

Yes, two weeks early. "That's the mindset we have to have going into this game, and I believe the Rams are going to have the same mindset, as well, trying to win that division," Orakpo said. "It's going to be a great game."

The Los Angeles Rams (10-4) need a win or a Seattle loss Sunday to clinch their first NFC West title since 2003 and cap their amazing turnaround under coach Sean McVay in his first season. The Rams are coming off a 42-7 thumping of the Seahawks in Seattle for their third win in four games.

"We don't shy away from the opportunity to go in a tough atmosphere, try to come away with our 11th win," McVay said. "And we know that if we're able to accomplish that — that means a division championship as well. So it's a great opportunity."

The Titans (8-6) are home after back-to-back losses, the last one being 25-23 to San Francisco, cost them the AFC South lead.

Still, a win and losses by Buffalo and Baltimore would clinch the franchise's first playoff berth since 2008 before hosting division rival Jacksonville in the regular-season finale. The Titans are at home, where they have won nine of their past 10.

"Guys understand the situation," Titans quarterback Marcus Mariota said. "When it comes down to it, we messed up. We didn't play well, we obviously didn't accomplish what we wanted to do on our road trip. That's in the past, you can't change it, you can't fix it. All you can do is look forward to the next one, and kind of right the ship and get it going."

Here are some things to know about the Rams and Titans:

Hey you

The No. 1 pick in 2016 that the Rams used to select quarterback Jared Goff came in a trade with the Titans two weeks before the draft.

Now, Goff finally gets to face the team that didn't need a quarterback because the Titans already have Mariota, the No. 2 pick overall in 2015.

Goff has been so very good on the road this season, throwing for 1,547 yards with 14 touchdowns and only two interceptions with a 108.1 passer rating. He has been sacked only nine times away from home.

Goff said he hadn't thought of his Tennessee connection until asked. His take: "Awesome."

Slow down Gurley

Pro Bowl running back Todd Gurley leads the NFL with 17 total touchdowns and ranks second with

Los Angeles Rams running back Todd Gurley runs for a touchdown, his fourth of the game, after making a catch against the Seattle Seahawks.

1,817 yards from scrimmage. He's also coming off a game in which he scored four touchdowns. The Titans rank third against the run in the NFL, allowing only 87.2 yards rushing per game.

Watch out

This game features two of the NFL's top-five defenses at sacking quarterbacks. The Rams, led by Pro Bowl defensive tackle Aaron Donald, rank second with 47 sacks, with four having at least five apiece. The Titans now rank fifth with 40 sacks, thanks to piling up 26 in the past five games.

Linebacker Derrick Morgan has a team-high 7½ sacks despite missing the past two games with an injured knee, and he's one of four Titans with at least five sacks each. Jacksonville, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh are the only other teams in the league featuring four players with at least five sacks.

Rookie receivers

The Titans took the first receiver in this year's draft, selecting Corey Davis from Western Michigan at No. 5 overall. The Rams selected Cooper Kupp in the third round out of Eastern Washington.

Los Angeles got the much better deal — at least based on the early results. Davis missed most of the preseason with a hamstring injury that also cost him five of the first seven games this season. Davis still is looking for his first NFL touchdown after fumbling at the goal-line in November.

Kupp has started only five games, but he leads the Rams with 58 catches and 804 yards receiving. He also leads all rookies in yards receiving, and no rookie receiver has as many catches.

New kicker

The Rams will have a healthy kicker, but not their Pro Bowler and the NFL's leading scorer in Greg Zuerlein, who was placed on injured reserve Wednesday before surgery to repair a herniated disc.

The Rams signed Sam Ficken, an undrafted free agent from Penn State, after working out kickers. Ficken has been in camp with the Jaguars and Chiefs, but his first field goal attempt Sunday will be his first in the regular season.

Chiefs have clear playoff road, Dolphins need plenty of help

By DAVE SKRETTA
AP SPORTS WRITER

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Chiefs head into their regular-season home finale against the Miami Dolphins on Sunday with a playoff situation that is straightforward and favorable.

They're the AFC West champs if they win. Or if the Chargers lose to the Jets.

The Dolphins? Their path to the postseason is meandering and unlikely, a convoluted sequence of no fewer than seven dominoes that must topple perfectly for them to snag an AFC wild-card spot.

None of which matters if they don't beat the Chiefs on Sunday.

"We just want to win a game. That's what we're looking forward to," said Dolphins running back Kenyan Drake, who has flourished down the stretch. "We're trying to go up to play a great Kansas City team in a great environment with great fans, so we're just trying to go get a tough win."

The Dolphins (6-8) have proven they can play with the best during their rollercoaster season, never more evident than in their victory over the Patriots a couple of weeks ago.

"Anybody in the situation that we're in, in the NFL, you look back at some games, 'You should've won this. Felt like we should've won that,'" Dolphins quarterback Jay Cutler said. "It's not that case. We made a bed; we've got to keep working and look toward Kansas City right now."

The Chiefs (8-6) have piggy-backed a four-game losing streak with wins over the Raiders and Chargers to seize control of their division. And while it's not a must-win game against Miami, they would rather celebrate consecutive division titles for the first time in franchise history in front of their own fans, and then rest their key players in their regular-season finale at Denver.

After all, they've gone through enough stress this season.

There was the season-ending injury to star safety Eric Berry, other injuries on both sides of the ball and the antics by star cornerback Marcus Peters that earned him a suspension.

There was the four-game skid, part of a longer stretch in which they lost six of seven, and the surprising decision by coach Andy Reid to hand over play-calling duties to offensive coordinator Matt Nagy.

But after squandering a 5-0 start, the Chiefs are still in a desirable situation as their season hits the homestretch, needing just a win over the Dolphins to ensure a postseason spot.

"We've put ourselves in a good position," Chiefs quarterback Alex Smith said. "From day one, all the goals you set out, the first one is make the playoffs and win the division. That is what it starts with. We are in a situation to do that and we need to go take care of business."

2011, here's what to know:

Suh you

Dolphins defensive tackle Ndamakung Suh was passed over for the Pro Bowl this week, a slight that caught the attention of coach Adam Gase. "Every team we play there are two to three guys on him. I don't really understand that one," Gase said. "I know we haven't won enough games this year, but to me that guy should be penciled in before they even start voting."

Another snub

Smith was also passed over for the Pro Bowl despite leading the NFL in quarterback rating, setting career bests in yards and touchdown passes, and throwing just five interceptions despite playing with a suspect wide receiver group. "Listen," Reid said, "I'm a big fan of his, so I would tell you sure, I thought he should have been in. But that's neither here nor there. He's not."

Road woes

The Dolphins' playoff situation would be a lot rosier if they had played better on the road this season. They are 4-3 at home but just 2-5 away from Miami, including losses to the Panthers, Ravens and Patriots during a five-game losing streak. "

Speaking of the road

Even though the Dolphins haven't visited Arrowhead Stadium in six years, Gase knows how intimidating it can be. He was an assistant for AFC West-rival Denver from 2009-14, making more than one visit to the world record-holder for loudest outdoor sports stadium. "It's loud," he said. "It's a great environment, one of my favorite to go to. Those fans are into it. It's hard to hear. When it becomes a tight game, they try to affect the other team."

Happy hunting

Chiefs running back Kareem Hunt has run for 1,201 yards, trailing Steelers star Le'Veon Bell by 21 yards for the league lead. The third-round pick out of Toledo, who earned a Pro Bowl nod this week, is also coming off back-to-back 100-yard rushing games. "I just go out there and play football every game and really don't look at the big picture," he said. "Just go out there and try to control what I can control and make plays, and good things happen when you do that."

Miami has allowed 8 of 39 third-down conversions over past three weeks. ... Kansas City has won two straight after four-game skid. ... Chiefs are third in AFC and sixth in NFL in scoring at 25.6 points per game. ... Chiefs RB Kareem Hunt (1,201) trails Steelers' Le'Veon Bell by 21 yards for NFL rushing lead. ... Hunt is second in league to Saints' Mark Ingram with 4.96 yards per carry. ... Chiefs TE Travis Kelce has catch in 62 straight games dating to Sept. 7, 2014. ... Chiefs QB Alex Smith leads NFL in quarterback rating (105.4) and is third in TD-INT ratio (25 to 5). ... Chiefs have scored 115 points in fourth quarter, second only to Baltimore. ... Chiefs coach Andy Reid is 4-1 against Dolphins. ... Reid needs one win to tie Chuck Knox (193) for ninth in NFL history. ... Fantasy Tip: Roll with Landry at your own risk. Chiefs' defense was scorched by Jets three weeks ago, but has been solid against Raiders' Derek Carr and Chargers' Philip Rivers in past two games.

Oakland vs. Philadelphia

Nick Foles facing Raiders for first time since historic game

By ROB MAADDI
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

PHILADELPHIA — Since the last time the Philadelphia Eagles saw the Oakland Raiders, Nick Foles was traded, released, contemplated retirement and returned as a backup quarterback.

Foles tied an NFL record with seven touchdown passes in Philadelphia's 49-20 win at Oakland on Nov. 3, 2013. His performance sparked an impressive turnaround and the Eagles went 7-1 in the second half after a 3-5 start to win the NFC East title in Chip Kelly's first season.

"Our team was trying to figure out our identity at that point," Foles said. "We had ups and downs and we were trying to put it all together. I look back at that day as sort of our 'aha' moment, like we can do this, we know who we are, we know we can be explosive, and we took off at that point."

Kelly traded Foles after the 2014 season and was fired the following year. Foles spent one season in St. Louis, another in Kansas City and returned to Philadelphia to back up Carson Wentz.

Now, he's the starter looking to help Philadelphia (12-2) win a Super Bowl. The Eagles host the Raiders (6-8) on Christmas night needing a victory to secure the NFC's No. 1 seed. They would lock it up before taking the field if the Vikings (11-3) lose at Green Bay (7-7) on Saturday night.

Filling in

The Raiders will be missing a key piece on the offensive line after Pro Bowl left tackle Donald Penn underwent surgery on his injured right foot. Penn had started 170 straight regular-season games before the injury, but did miss Oakland's playoff game a year ago with a knee problem. The Raiders haven't decided whether they will replace Penn with rookie David Sharpe or by moving right tackle Marshall Newhouse to the left side and inserting Vadal Alexander. Sharpe has played three snaps on offense all year and struggled in that brief time earlier this month against the Giants when Penn went down.

"It made me want more," he said. "If I get the opportunity, I can't wait to get out there. It wasn't the best of snaps, but it was definitely a learning experience."

Lack of urgency

The Eagles haven't missed a beat on offense since Wentz tore his ACL against the Rams on Dec. 10. But the defense has allowed 36 points in five quarters. Defensive coordinator Jim Schwartz blamed it on a lack of urgency.

"We needed to come out with more fire," Schwartz said about the defense giving up three consecutive TD drives to start the game in last week's 34-29 win at the Giants.

Coach Doug Pederson suggested guys overlooked New York (2-12).

Philadelphia Eagles quarterback Nick Foles looks to pass against the New York Giants.

"We've all been in situations where sometimes you know you're probably going to win the football game, but at the same time, you either look past it or whatever," Pederson said.

Improved D

The Raiders' defense has shown major signs of improvement since firing defensive coordinator Ken Norton Jr. last month and replacing him as play caller with John Pagano. The change has been dramatic as Oakland has as many sacks the past four games (14) as in the first 10, and has all four interceptions this season since the change. The passer rating against the Raiders has dropped from 113.3 to 75.9.

"I think he's done a good job of providing clarity on assignments," coach Jack Del Rio said. "I think he's a good teacher. I think he does a good job with the group. I'm pleased with the way he's worked at it, but it's exactly what I expected him to do."

Run for it

Raiders quarterback Derek Carr used his legs for a change

last week in a development that pleased Del Rio. Carr scrambled four times for 47 yards in the loss to Dallas, including a 32-yarder that set up a touchdown. That run was his longest since a 41-yarder against Houston in the second game of his career in 2014, and the 47 yards were the most he's had since gaining 58 in that game against the Texans. Carr hadn't had more than one run in a game this season, excluding kneel-downs.

"That was an example of him being him, being aggressive and taking off and making some plays with his feet," Del Rio said.

Resting players

If the Eagles already have the No. 1 seed secured before kickoff, Pederson isn't saying whether he'll rest Foles or any of his starters. He talked like a guy who didn't want to lose momentum.

"You've got to maintain that confidence and that dominating swagger and you've got to keep that alive," he said.

NFC NORTH

Minnesota vs. Green Bay

Vikings look to get past Packers in final push to playoffs

By GENARO C. ARMAS
AP SPORTS WRITER

GREEN BAY, Wis. — If the Minnesota Vikings have their way, they won't have to take another road trip after this weekend, even in the playoffs.

For an opportunity for that to happen, the NFC North champions need to finish out the last two weeks of the regular season with victories over division rivals already out of the playoff picture.

The payoff could be sweet for the Vikings if they can safely navigate the postseason all the way to February — a Super Bowl played in front of hometown fans at U.S. Bank Stadium.

There is something to play for after all when Minnesota visits the Green Bay Packers on Saturday night.

"The only thing I've really told them is we'd like this to be the last plane trip that we have to take, but that's about the only thing I've said," Vikings coach Mike Zimmer said.

The Vikings (11-3) head into the second-to-final week of the season having already assured themselves of a home playoff game.

Minnesota wraps up the regular season with a winnable home game against the Chicago Bears on New Year's Eve, while the Eagles finish with home games against the Raiders and Cowboys.

But Philadelphia is also adjusting to backup quarterback Nick Foles, who will start the rest of the year with starter Carson Wentz out with a knee injury.

Green Bay (7-7) is handing the offense back to backup Brett Hundley after quarterback Aaron Rodgers went on season-ending injured reserve this week.

It was a decision that coach Mike McCarthy said was made in the best interest of Rodgers, who wasn't completely healed from a collarbone injury.

With the Packers out of the playoffs, it didn't make sense to further risk the health of their franchise quarterback, who was hurt the previous time these teams met in Week 6 in Minneapolis.

There have been gradual signs of improvement from Hundley since he was thrust into the starting job after Rodgers went down.

"I know for as many things that went wrong that day, he felt like he got better," McCarthy said. "But he'll be much better prepared for this opportunity."

The Vikings, of all teams, know full well how much a backup quarterback can succeed.

Subbing for the injured Sam Bradford, quarterback Case Keenum has kept the Vikings rolling with a 9-3 record in his starts. Keenum has completed 68 percent of his passes, with 20 touchdowns, seven interceptions and a career-best 98.9 passer rating.

Not bad for a player once considered a journeyman who first entered the league in 2012 as an undrafted free agent with the Houston Texans.

"Case has done an unbelievable job," Zimmer said. "I think the more he's played, the more confident he's been with making the correct decisions."

AP PHOTO

Spoiling it

Out of the playoffs for the first time in eight years, the Packers were a little subdued in the locker room this week. They're not used to playing games in late December that don't have postseason implications for themselves.

But don't call them "spoilers." "I'm not really interested in being a spoiler or an underdog. We're the Green Bay Packers. That doesn't change," McCarthy said. "I fully expect and demand that our team goes out to win the game."

Eyes on Barr

Don't expect a warm welcome from Packers fans for Vikings linebacker Anthony Barr on Saturday night. Rodgers' season nearly ended after landing on his right shoulder following a hard hit outside the pocket from Barr in Week 6.

"It's inevitable. Aaron Rodgers is to Green Bay what LeBron is to Cleveland," Barr said. "You're responsible in a way for their guy going down, you're going to take some heat. It just comes with the territory."

Adams out

Receiver Davante Adams seems to be OK after being spotted walking in the Packers locker room and chatting with teammates this week following a blindsight hit from Carolina Panthers linebacker Thomas Davis last week that put Adams in the concussion protocol.

But Adams, who is still in the concussion protocol, won't play this week to deprive the offense of its top receiving threat this season. Adams, who has 10 touchdown catches, has developed the kind of rapport with Hundley that fellow receiver Jordy Nelson has with Rodgers.

Thielen it

Packers cornerback Davon House (shoulder/back) returned to practice and was listed as questionable for Minnesota after missing the loss to Carolina. Getting the veteran back could help an already shaky and injury-depleted cornerback group that has to contend with speedy receiver Stefon Diggs and first-time Pro Bowler Adam Thielen (83 catches, 1,191 yards).

Heat on defense

The Packers are hurting at outside linebacker, where Clay Matthews (hamstring) is questionable and Nick Perry (ankle/shoulder) is doubtful after both players missed practice at midweek. Not having either starter on Saturday would further deplete a defense that already had issues generating a consistent pass rush off the edge. The run defense has trailed off too of late.

"Broad question, short answer," McCarthy said. "We need to play better on defense."

PACKERS DEFENSE — OVERALL (26), RUSH (20), PASS (24)

STREAKS, STATS AND NOTES — Teams' first meeting since Packers QB Aaron Rodgers broke right collarbone following hard hit by Vikings LB Anthony Barr in Week 6. Rodgers missed next seven games, returned for last week's loss at Carolina, and was placed on season-ending injured reserve this week. ... Vikings have clinched NFC North, second division title in last three seasons. ... Vikings have won three of last four in series. ... QB Case Keenum averaging 268.2 yards over last six games, with 13 TDs and four INTs. ... RB Jerick McKinnon has 184 scrimmage yards and two TDs in last two games against Packers. ... Pro Bowl WR Adam Thielen averaging 98.9 yards in last nine road games, including five scores. ... Pro Bowl DE Everson Griffen has seven sacks and two forced fumbles over last six road games. ... DE Danielle Hunter had 1 1/2 sacks in last meeting against Packers. ... Harrison Smith only safety since 2014 with at least five sacks (eight) and 10 interceptions (10). ... Packers eliminated from playoff race, first time to miss postseason since 2008. ... Brett Hundley takes over at QB for rest of year with Rodgers out. Hundley has six TDs and one INT for 102.9 rating in past three starts. ... WR Davante Adams second in NFL with 10 TD catches, but was in concussion protocol at midweek. ... WR Jordy Nelson has nine TD catches in last eight home division games. ... LB Clay Matthews made five sacks in last four games. ... DT Kenny Clark has 2 1/2 sacks in last three games, third among DTs since Week 13 behind Rams' Aaron Donald (five) and Jaguars' Malik Jackson (three). ... Fantasy Tip: Packers giving up average 143.2 yards rushing over last four games, which could bode well for Vikings RBs McKinnon and Latavius Murray (five rush TDs in last six games).

Atlanta vs. New Orleans

Kamara could change the equation in Falcons-Saints rematch

By BRETT MARTEL
AP SPORTS WRITER

NEW ORLEANS — For Saints rookie sensation Alvin Kamara, a rematch with rival Atlanta is all about unfinished business.

Kamara, who has 1,336 yards from scrimmage and a team-leading 12 touchdowns as both a runner and receiver, played little in New Orleans' first meeting with the Falcons.

He was knocked out of the Dec. 7 game in Atlanta with a concussion during the Saints' first offensive series and watched the rest of the game, which the Saints lost 20-17, on a television in the locker room.

"It was annoying, really. That's all I can say. Of course I wanted to play, but we've got another one," said Kamara, who was selected to the Pro Bowl this week along with fellow Saints running back Mark Ingram. "We can get some payback. So I think that's what we're kind of looking at."

If the Saints (10-4) do indeed get payback, they'll clinch their first playoff berth since 2013 and also could win the NFC South with a Carolina loss.

If Atlanta (9-5) wins, it'll have swept the season series with New Orleans for a second straight season and could move into a first-place tie with the Panthers.

The versatile Kamara is one of three Saints players — along with Ingram and receiver Michael Thomas — who have gained more than 1,000 yards from scrimmage this season.

Yet, it remains to be seen whether Kamara's return tips the balance against the Falcons, who've won five of their past six and have a dynamic running back tandem of their own in Devonta Freeman and Tevin Coleman.

"If you like running back play, this is the game," Falcons coach Dan Quinn said. "There's four good ones that all are unique that are all unique catchers, runners, (have) toughness, can make guys miss — all the ingredients that you're looking for."

Both teams also have elite quarterbacks in the Saints' Drew Brees and Falcons' Matt Ryan.

Both clubs have 1,000-yard receivers, with Thomas last week joining Atlanta's Julio Jones above that benchmark. Both teams are ranked 11th or better in total defense.

So this rematch is full of story lines. Here are some others:

Emotional rivalry

Atlanta leads the series 52-45 between these regional rivals since both teams were founded in the 1960s.

A little more than two weeks ago, they staged a highly competitive game, with New Orleans threatening to take a late lead until Falcons linebacker Deion Jones made a leaping interception of Brees' pass to the end zone.

Saints coach Sean Payton was so wound up that he was flagged — and later fined — for running onto the field to yell at an official a few plays later. The penalty allowed Atlanta to run out the clock.

"We definitely feel the pent-up energy when it comes to an Atlanta week and especially after the way we lost the last game" against the Falcons, Saints defensive end Cameron Jordan said. "Clearly, we know we have a chance at redemption."

Crying foul

Payton made a point of calling out officials for inconsistent enforcement after these teams' previous meeting, going so far as saying it's a problem the NFL's leadership needs to address.

Quinn said he did not believe Payton was trying to preemptively influence officials in this week's rematch. But Quinn also said he didn't recall anything unusual about the officiating during the teams' first meeting and added that he generally sees no point in complaining about it after the fact. "That's his prerogative and his opinion. I don't share it," Quinn said when asked about Payton's criticism of officials. "Every game is different. The plays are different. The crews are different."

Interception perception

The Saints have five interceptions in their past two games — including three against Atlanta's Ryan. They have 16 this season, which is tied for fourth most in the NFL.

Quinn says penalties have nullified six Atlanta interceptions. While Deion Jones had a crucial interception against the Saints, the Falcons have only four all season, tied with Oakland for fewest.

"We know that's going to be a factor in this game," Quinn said. "Who takes care of it better, who goes after it better, and who has more explosive plays."

Defensive attrition

The Saints placed two starting defensive players on injured reserve this week, both of them captains and leaders of their position groups. Middle linebacker A.J. Klein, who was the primary defensive signal caller, went on IR on Tuesday.

On Thursday, the same fate befell safety Kenny Vaccaro, a 2013 first-round pick who had three interceptions and who made or assisted on 60 tackles, including seven for losses.

New Orleans has lost starters at all levels of its defense in the past five weeks, starting with a season-ending Achilles injury to Alex Okafor in Week 11.

GAME OF THE WEEK

Seattle vs. Dallas

Seahawks, Cowboys face simple playoff scenario: win or else

By SCHUYLER DIXON
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

ARLINGTON, Texas — Dak Prescott knows about the stack of scenarios required to get the Dallas Cowboys in the playoffs.

There's no point in looking past the first one, especially since it applies to both teams when Seattle visits Sunday in the return of star Dallas running back Ezekiel Elliott from a six-game suspension over domestic violence allegations.

The winning team is still in the NFC wild-card race. The loser isn't.

"None of those scenarios mean anything if we don't win," Prescott said. "So we can talk about them all we want, but the most important thing for us to do is win this game and then we'll worry about it. Cross our fingers and hope on those scenarios, but all we can do is control this game against Seattle."

The Cowboys (8-6) lost their first three games without Elliott, forcing them into what they figured was must-win mode with five games remaining.

They were right, and now Dallas has matched the three-game winning streak from before Elliott finally started serving his suspension after weeks of legal battles.

Seattle (8-6) is coming off the most lopsided loss in eight seasons under Pete Carroll, a 42-7 defeat to the Rams that put Los Angeles on the brink of the NFC West title. The Seahawks, who have dropped two straight, haven't lost three in a row in December since 2010, when they made the playoffs at 7-9.

That won't work this time for Seattle and its injury-depleted defense, most notably stars Kam Chancellor and Richard Sherman. The Seahawks have made the playoffs five straight years.

"We have never really had to face adversity in the season like this," receiver Doug Baldwin said. "We've endured some pretty devastating losses before, but I think just the time frame in which we are in, the situation which we are in, the state of our roster, age-wise, so many different factors play into it. I think it's a different place for us."

Things to consider with the Cowboys seeking consecutive winning seasons for the first time since 2008-09:

Elliott's return

Last year's NFL rushing leader was terse in his first media session, abruptly ending it after a series of questions about his time in Cabo San Lucas, Mexico, during the suspension after saying he didn't want to talk about the saga any longer. The Cowboys say he's still the same fun-loving locker room presence from before the hiatus, and a motivated one at that.

"The fact that he probably never let his team down, never been in this position or situation, so to experience that, I know what it lit inside of him and, yeah, you'll see it," said Prescott, who was the NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year with his backfield mate a year ago when the Cowboys had an NFC-best 13 wins.

play. DL David Irving is likely to miss his third straight game with a concussion.

Run over

At one time this season, Seattle had one of the best run defenses in the NFL. Not so much the past two weeks. Led by rookie Leonard Fournette (101 yards), Jacksonville had 156 yards rushing.

The Rams had 244, the second-most under Carroll. "It's a situation where we've been down this road before and all it takes is focus and everybody doing their job to get back on the right track," linebacker Bobby Wagner said.

Cowboys injuries

LT Tyron Smith injured his right knee against the Raiders and missed the first two practices of the week. Just selected to his fifth straight Pro Bowl, Smith missed two games earlier this season with back and groin issues. Byron Bell replaced an ineffective Chaz Green in the first of those two games and will start if Smith can't

Protect Russell

Seahawks QB Russell Wilson was sacked seven times last week by the Rams. He was forced into a number of mistakes, including a costly fumble trying to spin away from one sack and a backward pass that lost 23 yards trying to avoid another. It was one of Wilson's uglier performances on a stage where he's excelled during his career. Wilson was 23-4 coming into last week following a Seattle loss.

Last gasp

It's been nearly six full seasons since the Seahawks played a meaningless regular-season game. That came in Week 17 of the 2011 season when Seattle finished the season 7-9 by losing at Arizona in overtime. "It's a game that they have to have and a game that we have to have, so we're going for it," Carroll said.

Playing key matchups to win a fantasy title

By JOE GALLINA

FANTASY SPORTS NETWORK

Welcome to Week 16 — time to win a fantasy championship.

You already have a good idea about your starting lineup, but some pretty big names suffered serious injuries in Week 15. If you have shares of Antonio Brown, Rex Burkhead or Davante Adams, you still have serious lineup decisions to make.

Start 'em

Quarterback

• Blake Bortles, Jacksonville at San Francisco

Bortles could incredibly be the starting quarterback for several fantasy football champions. He's averaged 23 fantasy points per game (FPPG) over the past four weeks, and has thrown multiple TDs and no interceptions in his last three games. The 49ers have given up the third most FPPG to QBs.

• Matthew Stafford, Detroit at Cincinnati

The Bengals have been dealing with several injuries to their defense, including CB Dre Kirkpatrick, who's missed the past two weeks due to a concussion. They've given up an average of 19.25 FPPG to QBs over the past four weeks. Stafford has averaged 329 passing yards in his last five road games.

Running back

• Jerick McKinnon, Minnesota at Green Bay

McKinnon has caught five or more passes in six games since Week 5. The Packers have given up the most receptions to RBs over the past month. McKinnon scored 24.9 fantasy points in point-per-reception (PPR) scoring formats in his first matchup against the Packers this season.

• Dion Lewis, New England vs. Buffalo

The Bills have given up the most FPPG to RBs. Lewis has averaged just over 14 FPPG in PPR leagues over the past six weeks, and with Rex Burkhead out because of a knee sprain, he should see a slight uptick in his workload this week.

• Alex Collins, Baltimore vs. Indianapolis

The Colts have given up an average of 193 rushing yards to RBs over the past two weeks. Despite a disappointing Week 15, Collins had scored double digit fantasy points in PPR formats in his previous four games. Among RBs with at least 130 carries, he's fourth with a 4.9 yards per carry average on the season.

Wide receiver

• Keelan Cole, Jacksonville at San Francisco

If you're in desperate need of a WR, Cole could be a sleeper. He's averaged six targets over his past six games and scored TDs in his last three. The 49ers have given up 385 yards and three TDs to WRs the past two weeks.

• Mike Wallace, Baltimore vs. Indianapolis six games in PPR scoring formats, averaging eight targets, four catches and 67 receiving yards during that span. With fellow receiver Jeremy Maclin unlikely to play, he'll continue to have a large role in the Ravens passing game. The Colts have given up the third most receiving yards to WRs this season.

• Larry Fitzgerald, Arizona vs. New York Giants

The Giants have given up the second most TDs to WRs over the past month (six), and over 11 catches per game to the position in their last five contests. Fitzgerald leads the Cardinals in targets.

Tight end

• Antonio Gates, LA Chargers at NY Jets

Chargers TE Hunter Henry, who's averaged six targets over his past five games, has been placed on the IR due to a kidney laceration. Expect Gates to be the recipient of the bulk of those targets.

• Jesse James, Pittsburgh at Houston

With Antonio Brown sidelined, QB Ben Roethlisberger may use James in scoring situations a bit more this week. The Texans are tied for allowing the third most TDs to TEs (eight).

• Cameron Brate, Tampa Bay at Carolina

up seven TDs to TEs.

Sit 'em

Quarterback

• Kirk Cousins, Washington vs. Denver

Cousins has an average of 13.3 FPPG over the past four weeks. During the same time span, the Broncos have yielded just under 11 FPPG to QBs.

• Dak Prescott, Dallas vs. Seattle

Prescott has averaged under 12 FPPG over the past six weeks. He should get a boost with Zeke Elliott blocking for him and of course, running the ball, but it may not be enough to make him a QB1 in Week 16. Todd Gurley exposed the Seahawks run defense in Week 15, and much of the Cowboys offense may flow through Zeke's ability to move the ball this week.

Running back

• Carlos Hyde, San Francisco vs. Jacksonville

Hyde hasn't rushed for 100 yards in a game since Week 2, and has 3.9 YPC on the season. The Jaguars haven't allowed a RB to score a TD in their last six games.

• Mike Davis, Seattle at Dallas

The Cowboys haven't allowed a rushing TD to a RB in four straight weeks and with Sean Lee active over the past two games it's been even harder to run against the Cowboys. Davis has shown good explosiveness as a runner, however he's yet to score a TD this season.

Wide receiver

• Marqise Goodwin, San Francisco vs. Jacksonville

Goodwin has been outstanding over the past several weeks, averaging five catches and 91 receiving yards over his last six games. But he faces a very tough Jaguars defense that has given up the second fewest FPPG to WRs.

• Robby Anderson, NY Jets vs. LA Chargers

The Chargers have an excellent pass defense anchored by CB Casey Hayward that has yielded just one TD to a WR over the past four games. Anderson has scored just over 7 FPPG over the past two weeks.

Tight end

• Jason Witten, Dallas vs. Seattle

The Seahawks haven't given up a TD to a TE, and have yielded the second fewest receptions to the position over the past four games.

Dallas Cowboys tight end Jason Witten catches a touchdown pass against the New York Giants.
