RV burns at Camper Corral

Business owner loses Excursion in the blaze

By PHIL ATTINGER
STAFF WRITER

AVON PARK — The black column of smoke shooting up Wednesday afternoon from alongside U.S. 27 came from a burning motorhome at Camper Corral.

Business owner Anthony Cozier said he lost a Ford Excursion in the blaze. It was pulled alongside the motorhome in an attempt to jump start the recreational vehicle, he said. The fire started sometime before 2:30 p.m., but how the blaze actually started, however, is yet to be determined.

Fire departments from the city of Avon Park and the West Sebring volunteer district, station 9, arrived on scene with engines and a tanker. Avon Park Fire Chief Brad Batz was also on the scene.

It took nearly two hours to put out the blaze and find the hot spots hiding within the compact camper, designed with pull-out rooms that folded in on themselves.

The right rear tire of the Excursion continued to flame and smolder long after fire crews put out the main blaze. Batz said the fuel tank had ruptured, and he opted to let the leaked fuel burn off.

It was a total loss, Batz said, of an estimated $200,000 motorhome.

Cozier was thankful the fire took place near the back fence of his lot, and not in the building. A fire in 2013, caused by lightning, destroyed the showroom.

Motorists and onlookers gathered on vacant land to the south of the property to catch images on their phones, but kept their distance. Shifting winds kept folding the smoke column southward toward the ground, swinging left and right.

Members of the Highlands County Sheriff's Office SWAT team responded when a man known to be armed holed up in an apartment after a domestic abuse call.

Brief standoff leads to arrest

AVON PARK — What began as a standard domestic call Wednesday, ended up with dozens of Highlands County deputies converging on the area, as a man believed to be armed refused to exit an apartment.

However, the man, George West Brown, 55, of Avon Park, came out of his apartment within a few minutes and was arrested without further incident by Highlands County deputies.

West was charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon and battery — charges relating to the domestic call — and possession of a firearm or ammunition by a convicted felon. He was placed on probation in 2014 after being convicted of possession of oxycodone without a prescription and possession of drug paraphernalia.

The situation leading to Wednesday's arrest began when the Highlands County Sheriff's Office received a complaint of domestic abuse. When deputies arrived, Brown and a woman were outside arguing, said Scott Dressel, public information officer.

At that point, he said, Brown ran into the apartment. Deputies were told that Brown had a firearm inside the living unit, Dressel said.

That resulted in members of the SWAT team, the Crisis Negotiation

ADA compliance at issue

'People with disabilities are invisible'

By KIM LEATHERMAN
STAFF WRITER

LAKE PLACID — After an unsuccessful day recently of trying to shop and have lunch in the Town limits, disabled veteran James "Randy" Reinhardt became frustrated with the many stores that he could not enter because he could not get his wheelchair in them.

Reinhardt brought his concerns to the Lake Placid Town Council during the regular monthly meeting on Jan. 8. Reinhardt was first injured in a helicopter crash; being thrown by a horse caused the disability.

During his allotted time before the Council, Reinhardt said that most of the stores downtown are inaccessible to wheelchairs. Reinhardt formerly practiced law in Kentucky where he handled cases with Americans with Disabilities Act issues, which requires equal access to the handicap.

Reinhardt named several restaurants and florists he visited but could not gain entrance to because there was no ramp. Ironically, the Urgent Care facility where he attempted to obtain a flu shot was also inaccessible because there was no ramp.

According to Reinhardt, Highlands County is ranked third in the amount of disabled people in the state behind Charlotte and Citrus counties. He cited the results from an informal survey of businesses he explored. The boundaries he used were between U.S. 27 to the east and Main Avenue to the west and from Observation Street to the north and Washingtonia Street to the south. Reinhardt has lived on Washingtonia Street for about 10 years.

"There are 43 businesses that have entry barriers," he said.

Reinhardt said that the business owners were sympathetic but said that they were denied permission to build the ramps unless they had plans drawn up that were stamped by an engineer; something he said would be about $2,500. Reinhardt has not been able to find that ordinance; Town Administrator Phil Williams was unfamiliar with the ordinance as well.

The veteran said that there are serial ADA lawyers that sue companies for an average of $5,000 in compensation.

"If I sued 43 businesses, for $5,000, that's 200,000. The problem with that is some of these mom and pop places go out of business," Reinhardt said. "I don't want to do that, I just want to get in there and shop ... Lake Placid is going to become a sanctuary city for ADA law breakers."

Reinhardt did offer some solutions. A portable ramp was one suggestion. Reinhardt

Duke to use tax savings to cover hurricane tab

By JIM SAUNDERS
NEWS SERVICE OF FLORIDA

TALLAHASSEE — Duke Energy Florida customers will be spared paying more than $500 million in costs related to Hurricane Irma because of the utility's savings under the new federal tax overhaul, Duke said Wednesday.

Duke, the state's second-largest electric utility, announced the decision slightly more than a week after Florida Power & Light said its customers would avoid $1.3 billion in Irma costs because of the tax law approved in December by Congress and President Donald Trump.

"We are pleased that this solution will prevent a rate increase for our customers," Harry Sideris, Duke Energy Florida state president, said in a prepared statement. "Hurricane Irma was the worst storm to ever hit Duke Energy Florida and impacted many lives. Redirecting the tax reform savings against the storm costs ensures that our customers will reap the benefits of this new law."

Duke filed a petition last month with the Florida Public Service Commission seeking to recoup $513 million in Irma-related costs over a three-year period. That included money to cover restoration costs and the replenishment of a $132 million storm reserve.

52nd annual LP Arts and Crafts Country Fair is Feb. 3-4

By KIM LEATHERMAN
Staff Writer

FILE PHOTO

The shade of oak trees in DeVane Park will help keep the weekend enjoyable for fans of the Lake Placid Arts and Crafts Country Fair. This year's event is Feb. 3-4.

LAKE PLACID — Calling all artists and crafters: It's time to grab your paint brushes, hot glue guns and best recipes and head over to the Arts and Crafts Country Fair office to register for the fair's competitions.

The office is in the back rooms of the Caladium Arts and Craft Cooperative at 132 E. Interlake Blvd. The town's longest-running annual event will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Feb. 3-4 at DeVane Park. Admission is free to this fun-filled and family-friendly event. Student artwork and adult art entries will be displayed at Lake Placid Elementary School. Complimentary shuttle rides are available to ferry visitors from Town Hall to LPE.

Opening ceremonies will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 3. Rev. Ray Cameron of First Presbyterian Church will say a blessing over the event and Mayor John Holbrook will say a few words of welcome. Lake Placid High School JROTC will present the colors and the national anthem will be sung by LPHS alumni Jacky Fernandez.

More than 100 vendors will canvas the park and showcase their talents. The crafters and artists are locals and out-of-towners who come to participate in the fair.

Every conceivable art medium will be on display, from hand-woven hats to painted palm fronds, photography, steel drums, jewelry, woodwork, metal sculptures and oils and acrylics. Vendors will sell specialty foods such as dips, fudge and wines. Chairwoman Vann Peeples is not surprised that the fair has enjoyed such a long run. She credits the quality of the artwork and the volunteers who organize it.

"The success of the fair is due, in part,to the country fair volunteers, many of whom have volunteered for over 20 years," Peeples said. "Additionally, our volunteer board has worked diligently to ensure that we have remained true to the original concept envisioned by Cole and Pearl Danley."

The colorful sights and sounds surrounding the gazebo in the middle of the park are a treat to the senses and the sounds of live music will entertain throughout the weekend. The smell of barbecue from Eddie Mae Henderson's Sharing and Caring tent and deep fried Oreos from Placid Lakes Baptist Church will tempt the crowds. The Lion's Club will have fresh vegetables for purchase again this year. About 14 local churches and civic groups will be serving up meals and treats.

Cash and ribbon prizes will be awarded in several different classifications. The adult winners will receive their prizes at 3 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 3 at the gazebo. Awards for the children's division and People's Choice awards will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 4 at the gazebo.

"The country fair offers a family-friendly environment that continues to draw people from all walks of life to our beautiful town," Peeples said.

Deadlines for artwork and poetry competitions are soon. The student poetry entries are due no later than 4 p.m. Monday, Jan. 29 at the LPE front office at 101 Green Dragon Drive. Art entries should be delivered between 3:30-5:30 p.m. Feb. 1-2 to the LPE cafeteria. No early submissions will be accepted as school will be in session. Fragile items and perishable foods are to be dropped off between 3:30-5:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 2. Pick up of items is between 4-5:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 4.

Participants should register soon with volunteers that staff the Country Fair office from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday-Friday. Peeples said vendors can still enter, but must not delay. For more information, call 863-465-3963.

Board approves revised calendar

Erroneous leap day removed

By PHIL ATTINGER and MARC VALERO
Staff Writer

SEBRING — With no discussion or fanfare, The School Board of Highlands County approved a revised school calendar for the 2018-19 school year.

The new calendar removes an erroneous leap day in 2019 and resets the last day of school on May 24, one day later.

Board member Jan Shoop made the motion, seconded by board member Donna Howerton. The vote was unanimous, without comments from the board or public.

The School Board approved the flawed calendar, with an erroneous 2019 leap year, at the Jan. 9 meeting. Board secretary Marlene Welborn then listed the calendar again on the School Board's agenda for Jan 23. When asked, she said no one on the calendar committee noticed the 2019 mistake of 29 days in February.

The revised calendar moves the last day of school for students from May 23 to May 24, 2019 — still a two-hour early release day as it was already.

However, because the last day lands on a Friday just before the Memorial Day weekend, teachers will have to come back after the holiday to serve their last in-service day on the following Tuesday — May 28, 2019.

Other than those adjustments, the calendar appears to have no other changes. The first day back for teachers remains Aug. 2 and classes start Aug. 13.

The last leap year was 2016 and the next one is 2020. Since the solar (tropical) year is a few hours longer — 5.8104 hours — than 365 days, calendars add a day — Feb. 29 — every four years to bring the calendar back in sync, sort of.

According to History.com, the Egyptians were the first to realize that a leap year was needed, but one wasn't created until the Roman Empire. Julius Caesar and the astronomer Sosigenes revamped an ill-fitting lunar-based Roman calendar to include 12 months and a leap day every four years.

However, with the solar year only 0.242 days longer than the calendar year, not an even 0.25, adding a leap year every four years left an annual surplus of 11 minutes.

Thus, the Julian Calendar drifted off course by one day every 128 years, and by the 14th century, it had strayed 10 days, History.com states.

To fix that glitch, Pope Gregory XIII implemented a revised "Gregorian Calendar" in 1582. Leap days would occur every four years except for years evenly divisible by 100, but not by 400, History.com states.

1900 was not a leap year because it was divisible by 100, but not 400. 2000 was a leap year because it was divisible by 400.

Pope Gregory's updated calendar remains in use, but isn't perfect. Experts note we will need to address remaining time discrepancies in approximately 10,000 years.

By then, Highlands County will have a different set of school board members.

said that the ramps cost between about $65-$150 each.

Elizabeth Rados, owner of Creative Design on Main Avenue, is adamant that every business should have ramps.

"When I first bought this place, I was determined that it would be wheelchair accessible. I had a client fall one day who was 94 years old. I didn't want anything like that to happen again so I ripped out the plumbing behind the hair stations and put them in the walls. The chairs come down off the platforms."

Rados is upset with the ramp that connects her building's sidewalk to the parking lot because the sides are too steep.

"I also have customers who fall when they step out of their cars and onto potholes in the pavement," Rados said. "I had a client fall over the ramp yesterday and split his shin open. He had to go to the emergency room."

Concerns from the Council include the ramps extending out into the sidewalks and causing a hazardous situation. Council member Arlene Tuck agreed to be the liaison between the Council and the Greater Lake Placid Chamber of Commerce in regards to ADA matters. Mayor John Holbrook said that the town is working on solutions on the accessibility problems.

Republican Sen. Denise Grimsley's new office in Lake Placid got a ramp retrofitted to one of the doors.

Ramps must have one foot of run, or ramp length, for every inch of rise at a doorway, according to the ADA.

"The ADA requires 1:12, so, because all of the businesses are so close to the sidewalk, that means if the rise is four inches high, the ramp is going to be out on the sidewalk four feet," Bill Brantley, chamber president said. "[Sen.] Denise Grimsley recessed hers but that was probably over $3,000."

The wheelchair ramps must be 36 inches wide between the handrails, according to the 1990 legislation signed by then-President George H.W. Bush.

Of course, there are a few exceptions but historic buildings are not grandfathered in and exempt.

"It's like they have signs up," Reinhardt said. "Like their saying 'We don't want you here and the other 399 people like you here.' All the public buildings are great here; all of the government buildings are fine."

Reinhardt said that many ramps are not ADA compliant, including the one leading to his home.

"I don't care it is exact," Reinhardt said. "I just want to be able to use it. Disabled people are invisible and we have to make ourselves visible. If that means that you have to shake things up then that's what has to happen.

KIM LEATHERMAN/STAFF

This office building has several steps leading up to the porch and the front door. Without a ramp, the business is not ADA compliant.

"We try real hard," Williams said. "We still have some failings but we are working on it."

Holbrook said the Town Council will work with members of the chamber of commerce to bring businesses into compliance.

Reinhardt emailed a request to speak at the next Town Council meeting on Monday, Feb. 12. He has been added to the agenda. His request states "the lack of any substantive progress in compliance with ADA and Florida state law pertaining to access to businesses serving the public."

Reinhardt also says in his email to the town administrator: "provide information regarding the filing of the initial federal lawsuits."

"We will listen to his concerns and do what we can to help him, where we can and where we are legally required to," Williams said in response to the potential lawsuit.

"The way I have learned to handle lawsuits, is that when they file a lawsuit, it's a lawsuit and if you're doing the right thing then you don't have to worry about it," Williams said. "That goes with anything in this job, like public record laws, HIPAA laws and anything else that concerns the town."

Team, K9 unit members, Highlands County Sheriff Paul Blackman and EMS arriving at the scene.

They also had the Sheriff's Office's robot in case it was needed.

More than 20 law enforcement and emergency response vehicles were parked inside or just outside of the Las Palmas apartments just behind Avon Park High School. The school was not affected by the incident.

However, 10 residents of the apartments were evacuated. Some had family pick them up and transport them elsewhere, while others waited outside a cordoned off area.

One man who works a job with a night shift arrived at the scene and found he could not get home. "People are crazy," he said, as he drove off. A woman who said she lived down the street from the situation also was blocked from reaching home.

In seeking to resolve the situation so that people could return home, Dressel said deputies communicated with West through a loud speaker. But they were prepared to send in the robot with a cell phone for him, if necessary, Dressel said.

Deputies were prepared in case the situation involved a mental health situation, Dressel said.

The crisis negotiation team typically "tries to diffuse the situation so that no further steps are necessary," Dressel said. "The best thing is what this guy did (exit the residence with his hands up)."

DUKE

In its announcement Wednesday, Duke said using the tax savings to cover the costs will save average residential customers $187 over the three years. It had projected that residential customers who use 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity a month would see a $5.20 increase in their bills.

Tampa Electric Co. also filed a petition last month with the Public Service Commission to recover about $87.4 million in restoration costs and to replenish a storm reserve. Most of that money is related to Hurricane Irma, but Tampa Electric also included small amounts related to tropical storms and hurricanes dating back to 2015. When asked Wednesday about whether Tampa Electric would use tax savings to cover storm costs, a spokeswoman said in an email the company is "evaluating that option."

Utilities are typically allowed to recoup storm costs from customers, with the issue addressed in FPL, Duke Energy Florida and Tampa Electric rate agreements that were approved in 2016 and 2017 by the Public Service Commission. Duke's 2017 rate agreement also included a section addressing the potential that changes in federal corporate-income taxes could lead to adjustments in the amounts customers pay for electricity. That agreement was approved by the Public Service Commission before Congress and Trump passed the tax overhaul.

The announcement Wednesday from Duke did not specify how the savings from the wide-ranging tax law would flow through to customers. It said the Public Service Commission will review the utility's storm costs and the tax benefits.

The utility, which has about 1.8 million customers in Florida, said it brought in crews from other parts of the country to help restore power after Irma made landfall Sept. 10 and barreled up the state.

OUR VIEW

Restoring vote rights for felons in Florida

It appears increasingly likely that voters this year will be able to address the vestige of a shamefully regressive political system that denies voting rights to a targeted class of Floridians.

An astoundingly large class at that. Estimated to be nearly 1.5 million adults.

The adults excluded from exercising voting rights are felons. Or ex-felons who, despite serving prison time and otherwise satisfying their debt to society, are automatically denied the right to participate in elections for all offices, from tax collector to county commissioner and school board member, senator and president.

Movement toward abolishing the current system — which is highly unusual in the modern U.S. — is proceeding on two fronts. Both involve referendums on a constitutional amendment, something we typically resist.

However, 2018 presents a special circumstance and an opportunity to right a wrong.

In 1968, voters ratified a constitutional amendment that authorized the formation of a Constitutional Revision Commission every 20 years to re-examine the Constitution, in light of changing societal expectations and needs. Potential amendments might follow.

The first commission convened in 1977-1978, the second in 1997-1998. The third commission, which will complete its work in coming months, is chaired by Carlos Beruff, a Manatee County-based developer appointed to the post by Gov. Rick Scott.

Among the amendments passed by a sub-committee last week were two items dealing with the denial of voting rights to felons. As the current system operates, felons looking to put their names back on the voter list must petition the governor and the Cabinet after they have completed jail terms, parole and probation. Under some past administrations — Gov. Jeb Bush and Gov. Charlie Crist, for instance — the procedure, thankfully, was fast-tracked. Under Gov. Rick Scott, the numbers have dwindled to a trickle. For a large number of felons — now an estimated 1.5 million — the sticky procedure has become equivalent to a lifetime voting ban.

As we have argued before, this is not only unfair but counterproductive. It counteracts the aim of rehabilitation and full reintegration of felons into society. In addition, it leaves the question of civil rights to a handful of elected officials, whose party might benefit or suffer from the existence of more, or fewer, voters. It is particularly sensitive, given the imbalance of minorities in the court/prison system.

Last week, the commission's Ethics and Elections Committee approved a measure sponsored by former Sen. Chris Smith of Fort Lauderdale that would automatically restore voting rights to felons who have served their prison time and completed any probation or parole requirements. People convicted of murder or sexual offenses would be excluded.

An alternate version was also approved. This measure, sponsored by Sen. Darryl Rouson, D-St. Petersburg, had a longer list of exclusions. Rouson's measure would keep the current system for more types of felonies, including murder, sex crimes, carjacking and burglary.

Our impression is that Rouson's harsher measure might be more palatable with more voters. In order to pass, constitutional amendments must get more than 60 percent of the vote.

Meanwhile, a petition drive led by a group called Floridians for a Fair Democracy is nearing the 766,220 signature threshold needed for a spot on the November ballot, according to the News Service of Florida. If the threshold is exceeded, as expected, Smith will withdraw his proposal. The state Supreme Court has already signed off on the group's ballot language.

The denial of felon voting rights is a vestige of Florida's 1868 Reconstruction Constitution, which rigged the system to deny voting rights to freed African-American slaves, big time. And still, in a state that saw a turnout (in 2016) of roughly 9 million voters, an estimated 1.5 million are denied participation, despite otherwise fulfilling their obligations to society.

This is a question of fairness. It is, in a sense, a question of respect for one of the basic underlying principles of western civilization:

Citizens are presumed innocent until found guilty by a jury of peers. As a result, they lose certain liberties. They are imprisoned. They make restitution. In all but the most egregious cases, they are freed and reintegrated back into society, sometimes using protective systems such as parole.

Eventually, human beings pay what is considered their debt to society and are released from that debt. A civil society restores individual rights to participate in the civil activities of that society.

The restoration of those rights should be automatic. It's time to put an end to a system that operates otherwise.

HARRIS & CO.
Dorothy Harris

Dogs are pack animals, according to Cesar Millan. They want to belong to a group, whether it's dogs, people or other animals. If they lose a member of their pack, they keenly feel the loss. Our dingo is a perfect example of this.

When our child began full-time college along with a job and life of a busy young woman, the dog learned to pout. As our girl breezed in from one activity only to depart for another, the dog stopped responding with her customary crazy. Instead of eight minutes of excited mayhem, she became a lump with big, melty eyes.

We tried explaining this new normal, but she's a dog. Knowing she was missing her kid, we tried to make up the loss. Dogs are affectionate creatures and Millan asserted that dogs want to be a contributing member of their pack.

Knowing this and also how her lack of dexterity would hamper any assistance with paying bills or loading the dishwasher, I tried to think of other ways our dingo could assist us and fill some of the gaps the kid left behind. Washing the car was out because Sadie Girl hates getting a bath and seriously loathes the hose. Sanitizing bathrooms isn't really a job for dogs because those little sprayer nozzles are hard to manage. Cleaning the cat boxes went, well, let's just say — a little too well. How could our dingo prove her pack worth and lift her malaise at the same time?

Prior to our daughter's transformation into adulthood, she fed the dog, solidly maintaining her position as pack leader. To feed however, you've got to be home and what college student ever is? Thus, as the woman about the home — also known as she who now feeds —I moved into this position. It took me by surprise however, that in spite of this, my place in the pack became where Sadie Girl set her sights.

Our hierarchy wrinkle began with Mr. Harris sharing his food with the dog. This culinary bonding coupled with the fact that I never have any meat, began to forge a connection reminiscent of what she had shared with her kid. Sadie Girl soon was at the man's side whenever food was involved. Sitting quietly, she'd wait. Eventually, her patience would be rewarded.

As we have grown laissez-faire in dog control, the dingo has stealthily moved up in rank. I realized we had a problem when I moved in for a smooch — to Mr. Harris — and found Sadie Girl giving me serious "what-for" as I snuggled up. This "don't touch my man thing" was pretty funny. Our initial response was poor dog parenting until we realized what was really going on.

It's clear the dingo now sees herself level with me in the pack and I'm working on fixing this. In the meantime, she has chosen her new person and it is Mr. Harris. Her adoration for him is remarkable, but it's really no surprise. They have broken bread together far too many times for it to be any other way. Apparently her pack contribution is to dispense of all bread crusts and protect Mr. Harris from unexpected kisses. That's pretty crummy if you ask me.

Bill Nelson's vote wasn't surrender on DACA

FLORIDA POLITICS

JOE HENDERSON

It is a popular story line to excoriate Senate Democrats, including Florida's Bill Nelson, for caving in to Mitch McConnell and Republicans to end the government shutdown.

Those angered by the compromise that ended the stalemate for at least three weeks say Republicans can't be trusted to find a fair solution for so-called Dreamers – the children of immigrants who came to America illegally.

Dreamers, for the most part, know nothing but life in this country, but immigration hawks want to kick them out anyway.

It's a moral issue. It's a cause worth fighting for Democrats – or for people with a conscience, for that matter.

But take a deep breath. The fight isn't over.

Ten Senate Democrats face re-election battles in November in states Donald Trump won in 2016 – Nelson among them. The fact that nine of those senators, including Nelson, voted to accept the short-term compromise to re-open the government ought to speak loudly about what a majority of voters want.

The same insanity that forced Republicans into extreme positions in order to satisfy the almighty "base" is infecting Democrats from the left.

No wonder mainstream Americans keep tuning out politics, because so much of what comes out of Washington is shrill rhetoric that has almost nothing to do with the daily lives of most citizens.

So, Republicans "win" this battle because Democrats didn't stand on principle and keep thousands of government workers at home while being accused of caring more for illegal immigrants than the military?

Hardly.

Three weeks from now, I think there is a real good chance they'll padlock the government doors again.

I think some Republicans are driven by such blind zeal on immigration that they are more than happy to deport thousands of Dreamers without regard to compassion or common sense, and that's how they will approach a "solution" to this issue – everybody out!

At that point, Nelson, facing a tough re-election fight against likely challenger Gov. Rick Scott, can say he tried in the name of fairness to find a workable path to citizenship for these people, but Republicans just want to round 'em all up and ship 'em out – so it's time to plant the flag.

I think Americans in the middle would size that up and agree, and we would steam merrily toward the mid-term elections.

There are still millions more people in the middle than on the fringe of either major party, and the 2016 election proved that – albeit in a warped way. Somehow, Donald Trump duped many in the middle that he was their guy.

OK, so he fooled everyone. These things can be corrected.

The majority of Florida voters live in the middle – voting sometimes for Democrats, sometimes for Republicans. They can believe in guns and charity. They don't look at every immigrant as a threat. They want jobs, but not at the expense of clean air and water.

They believe in the quaint notion of working together and, when necessary, compromise. Nelson and the other Democratic senators who voted to temporarily end the shutdown can't win without them.

The base doesn't like to hear that, but it happens to be true.

FLORIDA REPORT

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In this Dec. 27, 2017, photo, Community Council health care navigator Fidel Castro Hernandez, left, hands a Spanish help line phone to legal U.S. resident Maria Ana Pina, right, as she signs up for the Affordable Care Act with her son Roberto Pina at the Community Council offices in Dallas.

Deportation fears have legal immigrants avoiding health care

By KELLI KENNEDY
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — The number of legal immigrants from Latin American nations who access public health services and enroll in federally subsidized insurance plans has dipped substantially since President Donald Trump took office, many of them fearing their information could be used to identify and deport relatives living in the U.S. illegally, according to health advocates across the country.

Trump based his campaign on promises to stop illegal immigration and deport any immigrants in the country illegally, but many legal residents and U.S. citizens are losing their health care as a result, advocates say.

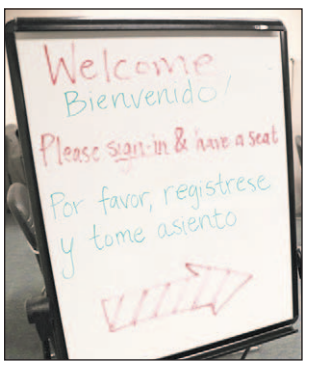
After Trump became president a year ago, "every single day families canceled" their Medicaid plans and "people really didn't access any of our programs," said Daniel Bouton, a director at the Community Council, a Dallas nonprofit that specializes in health care enrollment for low-income families.

The trend stabilized a bit as the year went on, but it remains clear that the increasingly polarized immigration debate is having a chilling effect on Hispanic participation in health care programs, particularly during the enrollment season that ended in December.

Bouton's organization has helped a 52-year-old housekeeper from Mexico, a legal resident, sign up for federally subsidized health insurance for two years. But now she's going without, fearing immigration officials will use her enrollment to track down her husband, who is in the country illegally. She's also considering not re-enrolling their children, 15 and 18, in the Children's Health Insurance Program, or CHIP, even though they were born in the U.S.

"We're afraid of maybe getting sick or getting into an accident, but the fear of my husband being deported is bigger," the woman, who declined to give their names for fear her husband could be deported, said through a translator in a telephone interview.

Hispanic immigrants are not only declining to sign up for health care under programs that began or expanded under



In this Dec. 27, 2017, photo, a sign welcomes people to sign up and join the Affordable Care Act with the help of health care navigators at Community Council in Dallas.

Barack Obama's presidency — they're also not seeking treatment when they're sick, Bouton and others say.

"One social worker said she had a client who was forgoing chemotherapy because she had a child that was not here legally," said Oscar Gomez, CEO of Health Outreach Partner, a national training and advocacy organization.

My Health LA provides primary care services in Los Angeles County to low-income residents and those who lack the documents to make them eligible for publicly funded health care coverage programs, such as state Medicaid. According to its annual report, 189,410 participants enrolled in the program during Fiscal Year 2017, but 44,252, or about 23 percent, later dis-enrolled. It's not clear how many of those who dropped out are Hispanic; the report did not describe ethnicity.

Enticing Hispanics to take advantage of subsidized health care has been a struggle that began long before Trump's presidency.

Hispanics are more than three times as likely to go without health insurance as are their white counterparts, according to a 2015 study by Pew Research Center. Whites represented 63 percent, or 3.8 million, of those who signed up for Affordable Care Act plans last year compared to 15 percent, or just under a million, Hispanics, according to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services. The reasons vary, but some have always feared deportation, regardless of who is in office.

Recent events have not helped. Despite initial signs of a compromise agreement, Trump now isn't supporting a deal to support young people who identified themselves to the federal government so that they could qualify for protections against deportation despite being brought to the U.S. illegally as children.

Last fall, Border Patrol agents followed a 10-year-old immigrant with cerebral palsy to a Texas hospital and took her into custody after the surgery. She had been brought to the U.S. from Mexico when she was a toddler.

And in Okeechobee, a small rural city about an hour and a half north of Miami that is home to many immigrant farm workers, green-and-white-striped immigration vehicles were spotted driving around town and parking in conspicuous places last spring and summer. After a few immigrants were picked up and deported, health advocates said patients canceled their appointments, waiting until immigration officials left to reschedule them.

In Washington state and Florida, health workers report that immigrant patients start the enrollment process, but drop out once they are required to turn in proof of income, Social Security and other personal information. The annual report from My Health LA noted that it denied 28 percent more applicants in Fiscal 2017 than it had the year before, mostly due to incomplete applications.

In a survey of four Health Outreach Partner locations in California and the Pacific Northwest, social workers said some of their patients asked to be removed from the centers' records for fear that the information could be used to aid deportation hearings.

The dilemma has forced social workers at Health Outreach Partner to broaden their job descriptions, Gomez said. Now, in addition to signing people up for health insurance or helping them access medical treatments, they are fielding questions about immigration issues and drawing up contingency plans for when a family member is deported.

"That planning is seen as more helpful and immediate to their patients than their medical needs right now," he said.

Nursing home generator battles end after changes

By CHRISTINE SEXTON
NEWS SERVICE OF FLORIDA

TALLAHASSEE — Four months of legal wrangling over requirements that nursing homes and assisted-living facilities install backup generators and have 96 hours of fuel on site came to an end Tuesday.

Gov. Rick Scott's administration over the last two weeks has published new proposals addressing many of the concerns that long-term care providers had raised, including that the generators be installed at the facilities.

Under the new rules, nursing homes and assisted-living facilities would not be required to have the generators installed. Instead, the generators would have to be on site, which means they could be portable. The rules still would require the facilities to be able to keep an ambient temperature of 81 degrees if electricity and air-conditioning systems are knocked out.

The Scott administration and industry officials announced Tuesday that the changes had ended a series of legal battles between the governor's office and long-term care providers.

The battles started following the administration's issuance in September of a pair of emergency rules after the deaths of eight residents of The Rehabilitation Center at Hollywood Hills, a Broward County facility that lost its air conditioning in Hurricane Irma. State officials later placed the number of deaths associated with the facility losing its cooling system at 12.

"My goal throughout this process was to ensure that every facility in Florida can provide a safe environment for its residents. These rules accomplish this important goal by having generators and fuel supply resources at every nursing home and ALF in Florida," Scott said in a prepared statement Tuesday.

The News Service of Florida reported last week in its health-care newsletter, The Weekly Check Up, that the Scott administration proposed a new backup generator rule for assisted living facilities, most likely signaling an end to the legal challenges.

The new rules still require legislative ratification. But, for example, one of the rules would require assisted-living facilities with 16 or fewer beds to keep onsite 48 hours of fuel, while homes with 17 or more beds would be required to have onsite 72 hours of fuel unless local ordinances ban such storage.

An assisted-living facility in an area of a declared state of emergency would be required to secure 96 hours of fuel. To meet the mandate, assisted-living facilities could use portable fuel-storage containers.

Similarly, under the new nursing-home rule, providers would be required to have 72 hours of fuel onsite and have the ability to maintain safety systems, critical systems and equipment necessary to maintain safe indoor air temperatures for 96 hours after a loss of electricity.

The new proposal would set the ambient temperature at 81 degrees and require facilities to have 30 square feet of cooled space for each resident. A previous version required 50 square feet for each resident.

The emergency rules issued in September by the state Agency for Health Care Administration and the state Department of Elder Affairs were successfully challenged by three long-term care industry groups and were invalidated in October by an administrative law judge. The judge ruled on a number of grounds, including that an emergency did not exist when Scott issued the rules.

The Scott administration appealed the administrative law judge's decision on the emergency rules to the 1st District Court of Appeal in Tallahassee and later issued proposed permanent rules, which also were challenged.

Campus Free Expression Act advances

TALLAHASSEE — College students in Florida may soon be able to exercise free speech anywhere on a state campus.

The Florida House's Post-Secondary Education Subcommittee approved the Campus Free Expression Act on Tuesday. The legislation (HB 909) would end free-speech zones. Students and some free-speech advocacy groups have said the zones restrict student's rights under the First Amendment because it restricts where they can gather or hand out literature. These zones are often away from high-traffic areas on campus.

Toddler dies in bathtub when left with 3-year-old sister

FERNANDINA BEACH — A Florida mother found her 14-month-old toddler submerged in water after leaving the child and her 3-year-old sister alone in the bathtub "for a few minutes."

The Florida Times-Union says emergency crews started CPR on the child at the Fernandina Beach home on Tuesday afternoon, but she was declared dead a short time later at a hospital.

Nassau County Sheriff Bill Leeper told reporters that the death was "totally preventable" and is a "sad reminder that when your child is in or near the water, you need to keep your eyes on them at all times."

Rolex 24 features strong GTD class

Competitive racing set for Saturday at Daytona Speedway

Special to Highlands News-Sun

DAYTONA BEACH – Heading into this weekend's 56th running of the Rolex 24 At Daytona, which features FOX network television coverage beginning at 2 p.m. on Saturday, a highly competitive IMSA WeatherTech SportsCar Championship GT Daytona (GTD) field has been assembled. Here's a quick look at some of the teams in the Pro-Am class, which will have the largest field of the three competing classes:

Max van Splunteren/ Ezequiel Perez Companc/ Christian Engelhart/ Christopher Lenz/Louis Machiels

Three of the five drivers on the No. 19 team – van Splunteren, Lenz and Machiels – are making their first appearance in the Rolex 24 this year. Companc is returning for his second race, while Lamborghini factory driver Engelhart will be making his fifth Rolex 24 start. Among drivers, van Splunteren posted the fifth-quickest time in GTD during the Roar Before the Rolex 24 At Daytona.

The No. 29 team heads into the Rolex 24 looking to extend a WeatherTech Championship winning streak to two consecutive races, as it closed out the 2017 season by winning the GTD class at Motul Petit Le Mans. The No. 29 Audi was third quickest in the GTD class at the Roar courtesy of an opening-practice flyer by South African Kelvin van der Linde, the 21-year-old elder brother of 18-year-old Sheldon van der Linde. Avon Park's Farless to swim at South Georgia State College

BY MARK PINSON
Staff Writer

AVON PARK – Avon Park senior swimmer Kristen Farless looks forward to challenges in and out of the pool and overcoming them to achieve great success.

Farless, who combined a tireless work ethic with plenty of ability, capped a remarkable high school career by winning the district championship in the 100 backstroke, 100 butterfly, and was a key member of the district-winning 200 and 400 medley relay teams.

Her abundant ability didn't go unnoticed as the talented and goal-oriented Farless realized a dream when she signed to swim at South Georgia State College on Friday.

"Ever since I was a little girl I dreamed about swimming in college," Farless said. "Swimming has been my whole life, I worked very hard for this and I'm really happy."

South Georgia State College, which is located in Douglas, Ga., is a two-year college that offers some four-year degree programs.

The Hawks' swimming program has been in existence for eight years and in that short time has grown in numbers and national rankings.

South Georgia State College has had 14 swimmers in the last five years who have gone on to become scholarships swimmers at four-year institutions.

Farless met South Georgia State College swim coach C.M. Jenkins on a tour of the college and felt very comfortable with everything she saw.

"It felt like a family atmosphere at the school," said the Red Devil athlete. "I could see myself there for the next two years, living in a dorm, swimming in the pool and being on the team. I fell in love with

Weather limits action on the diamond

Special to Highlands News-Sun

The cold weather took its toll on last week's softball games as all of Thursday's contests were called.

Tuesday's schedule had Alan-Jay over Royal Palms by a score of 24-16.

Chuck Detore went 5-for-5 on the day with a pair of doubles, giving him 10-for-10 at the plate to begin the season.

Winning pitcher Rudy Pribble along with Bob Roth and Ken LLoyd banged out four hits each. Dan Jaso added a triple to the attack.

Royal Palms hall of famer David Reed went an impressive 5-for-5 at the dish.

Ken Elston, Ed Lindberg, John Miller and Gary Tankersley had three hits apiece.

The other field saw Hine Sporting Goods over the school right then and there."

Farless, who has the ability to swim a number of different events well, was a key member of a very successful Red Devils team this past season.

"Kristen is an athlete who has unbelievable determination, motivation and dedication," said Avon Park swim coach Tracy Lee. "I am so proud of her. I remember when she moved to Avon Park from Japan three years ago and said she was interested in swimming and I was so happy. She has a great work ethic and does a lot for our school, community and her church. She's also a great student and a wonderful role model for all of the kids."

South Georgia State College finished as the third-ranked women's swim team in the National Junior College Athletic Association for the 2016-2017 season and has a strong team this year.

Farless is looking forward to the new challenges that await her as she moves to Georgia to continue to compete in the sport she loves and begins her college education.

JIM TAYLOR/CORRESPONDENT

Avon Park senior Kristen Farless broke five school records, including the 100 backstroke during her stellar high school career.

"I'm excited for what's ahead of me," she said. "I get to swim in college and earn a degree in nursing and I couldn't be happier. I got to meet a lot of the teachers at the school on my visit and they have a very good nursing program. I feel very blessed."

The South Georgia State College women's swim team is currently second in the latest NJCAA rankings.

The versatile Farless, who broke five Avon Park school records, will focus on the individual medley and backstroke events in college.

"South Georgia State College has a really good swim team and I have to keep training hard and work to lower my times," Farless said. "I enjoy the challenge of swimming because it's not easy and I have a lot of faith in myself. I like to set goals and one of my goals is to break a school record before I graduate. It's going to be a lot different at college and I'm excited about my future."

Hine Sporting Goods was led by Bob Richards, Bill Scrase and Dale Baughman who had three hits each. Scrase belted a home run as one of his base hits.

Jerry Kaufman and Bob Fahnestock helped with key hits in the victory.

Buttonwood Bay was paced by Jim Nova and Jim Munroe with two home runs each. Nova and Munroe slugged three hits apiece on the day.

Dan Pohlman, Van Curran, Jack Grasso and John Degnan contributed key base hits to aid in the scoring.

The weather is supposed to improve and there should be a full schedule of games this week.

The softball games are held on Tuesday and Thursday morning's in Sebring. Spectators are invited to come out and enjoy the action on the diamond and cheer on the players.

four pairings rated A, B, C and D. Each pair plays against all four of the opponents partnerships during the day. Matches are generally the best two of three games to 11 points.

Ladies Action

On Saturday, Jan. 13, the Highlands Ridge ladies played at Lily Lake Golf Resort against Frostproof's Gator Gals who are in the league for the first time this year. Highlands Ridge newcomers Judy Brogden and Celia Klassen, joined by veteran players Karen Dorman, Candy Gilles Judy Majick, Theresa Master, Ellen Nesbitt, Susan Price, Phyllis Reeves and Sue Schinderle won 12 of the 16 matches played during the day.

Ladies action continued on a very chilly Thursday, Jan. 18 when the team new to the league, Buttonwood Bay, played at Tanglewood. The Buttonwood team, led by Pam Moore, included Jean Brown, Colette Charlebois, Linda Danek, Joan Fuller, Deb Herman, Ardel Huntington, Darlene Jollimore, Jan May and Cindy Thomas. Tanglewood, league champions in both 2016 and 2017, fielded a team of veteran players including Alisa Blackburn, Joyce Boivin, Sylver Hunter, Michelle King, Sandie March, Cheryl McCullough, Betty Schleis, Tracy Smith, Marcie Taylor and Tracy Vernest with newcomer Jess Anundson rounding out the roster. The visitors arrived ready to meet strong competition but never expected to be competing against the elements with bone-chilling temperatures and extremely strong winds. Tanglewood came out on top with 11 wins, many of which were tightly fought contests. Despite the weather everyone enjoyed the friendly competition and Buttonwood proved to themselves that they belong in the league.

Best of 8 Play

Veterans on the Highlands Ridge squad were Chris Donaghy, Mickey Dorman, Doug Eberling, Dave Majick, Sue Price, Dave and Sue Shaner. They were joined by Dwight Berg and Jerry Armstrong, playing in the league for the first time. At the end of the day, the Ridgers had amassed eleven wins and the Gators five.

On Wednesday, Jan. 17 Sun 'N Lake visited Tanglewood where the two teams were tied with 20 points apiece after the first three rounds of play. Tanglewood took the win with victories in the final four games when the most evenly matched pairings faced off against one another. Sun N Lake team members returning from 2017 were Sheldon Hamilton, Jim Jones, Ted Klassen, Dave Kontowsky, Tom Kryston, Sam Machotka, Ross Myles, Joe Oblon, John Prentice. Linda Kramer returned to the team after missing a season with Jeff Lindskoog making his first appearance in the league. The Tanglewood Tigers returning from 2017 were Aart Devos, Clint Hunter, Jim Maynard, Mike March, Grant McLaughlin, Dan Pilitteri, Gary Sewell, Gene Timmerberg, New on the 2018 lineup were Sylver Hunter and Lee Snyder.

LOCAL MOVIE REVIEW: 'THE SHAPE OF WATER'

'The Shape of Water' lives up to hype

By ROBERT MILLER
CORRESPONDENT

Last week I talked about the Oscar buzz that was swirling around "Darkest Hour" and Gary Oldman's performance. Not my usual fare but a stellar movie nonetheless. This week, we discuss another movie with just as much Oscar buzz, but more down my alley. Guillermo del Toro's "The Shape of Water" is an equally stellar movie but for different reasons.

Anyone who has seen a del Toro movie will tell you to expect creatures of some sort and a bit of weirdness. While this movie has both, that's not what makes it special. Our protagonist, Elisa (Sally Hawkins) is a mute cleaning lady at a secret government facility in 1962 Baltimore. Her routine of cleaning and sticking close to her friend Zelda (Octavia Spencer) is disrupted the day that the new specimen (Doug Jones) arrives. This South American sea creature is being studied and abused by Colonel Richard Strickland (Michael Shannon) but Elisa easily befriends the monster.

Throughout the course of the movie, Elisa begins to see something in the creature and falls in love with him. The creature, which never gets a name other than "him" or "it," falls in love with Elisa. This is the heart and soul

Plan for Vacation Day is Jan. 30

By BETH J. HARPAZ
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Stop making excuses. Start making plans.

That's the message behind the second annual National Plan for Vacation Day. It's an effort by the travel industry to persuade Americans to use Jan. 30 as a day to schedule their vacations for the year and take advantage of any paid time off they are entitled to from their jobs.

Destinations, tourism agencies and others in the travel industry are expected to offer promotions in conjunction with the effort. It will be promoted on social media with a #PlanForVacation hashtag.

Alamo, for example, will publicize vacation-planning tips and offer a 10 percent discount on base rates for weekly car rentals (bookable Jan. 23-Feb. 6, for travel March 1-Aug. 30).

Las Vegas is also taking part in the campaign, planning a video showing entertainers taking over jobs of bartender and card dealer. A couple of visitors to the city will get a surprise trip as part of the promotion, including airfare to Las Vegas from Allegiant along with two hotel nights and show tickets.

Last year, more than 600 organizations from all 50 states participated in National Plan for Vacation Day. Among them was Visit California, which used the campaign to publicize its annual California visitors guide.

"Our social media posts were liked and shared 29,000 times, all driving traffic to VisitCalifornia.com to get a guide and plan your trip," said Visit California spokesman Ryan Becker. "The payoff was immediate. Our website traffic spiked to nearly 200,000 page views on Jan. 31, about double its normal traffic for January."

Plan for Vacation Day is part of Project Time: Off , an effort by the U.S. Travel Association to get Americans to use up their paid vacation days. "We as Americans do not take enough time off," said TV travel show host Samantha Brown, a spokeswoman for the effort. "Unfortunately we do need a project to tell people to take time off. Americans leave on the table over 659 million paid vacation days. They let them go unused every year."

Research for Project Time: Off, conducted online by GfK, found just 49 percent of workers with paid time off plan their vacations out for the year. The top three impediments to planning ahead cited by respondents were uncertainty with personal schedules (64 percent), work schedules (57 percent) and kids' schedules (50 her. He appreciates her for the person that she is. Something that Elisa has only received previously from Zelda and her gay best friend Giles (Richard Jenkins), who lives next door.

The relationship between Elisa and the creature is weird, yes, but simultaneously sweet and beautiful and pure. Unable to communicate through speech, the two talk via sign language and body language. Eventually Elisa breaks him out of the facility and keeps him at her apartment, where the two become closer. The ending isn't too surprising, but the way it plays out is touching and beautiful.

It's being called a fairy tale and a love story. It's both and more. There's plenty of commentary on the time the movie is set in, such as racism, sexism and chauvinism. It's both a tribute to old Hollywood and the monster movies of the 1930s. But that's all dressing, some of which moves our plot along, but in the end just helps the love story stand out. Elisa and the creature steal the show.

As a storyteller and a fan of great storytelling, this movie hit all the right beats and pushed all the right buttons. It's easy for me to recommend this movie. Having said that, I recognize that it is not for everyone. The two who accompanied me to the theater were less impressed than I was. I don't think they understood it. But I still recommend it to anyone over 18. It's a lovely story under the dressing of an old monster movie. If I were voting for the Oscars, this would be my Best Picture.

percent).

Brown, who just launched a new travel series on PBS called "Places to Love," is promoting Project Time Off in four videos in which she chides viewers for putting off vacations because they're too busy at work. "There's no perfect time," she says in the videos. "Work will always be busy."

Brown also talked about the campaign in a recent AP Travel podcast, noting that travel has an economic impact as well: "You are supporting an incredible industry of hotel workers and restaurant workers and bell people. So to not take your time off is ... psychologically not the best approach to your professional and personal life, but it also has an effect on our economy."

Project Time Off estimates the lost spending from unused vacation days cost the U.S. economy $236 billion in 2016, money that would have supported 1.8 million jobs.

8 popular tourist destinations that still pack a lot of local culture

By LARA GRANT
OYSTER.COM

One of our common travel woes is excitedly visiting a new destination, only to be met with a tourist trap that's lost most of its culture (we're looking at you, Bali and Cancun). Fortunately, there are many destinations that are able to attract millions of visitors each year while retaining the region's way of life. Read on for our picks of eight cities that are popular tourist spots, but still pack a lot of local culture.

1. New Delhi

India's capital attracts millions of visitors each year with its stunning temples, spice- and handicraft-filled flea markets and immersive museums. Although not the easiest city to visit — expect unpredictable driving, the worst pollution on earth and massive crowds — travelers are rewarded with a culture-packed experience that's sure to stay with them. It may lack the Taj Mahal (that's a four-hour drive north) and the beaches of Goa, but tourists will have enough sights to fill several days in New Delhi. Top attractions include the gold-topped Gurudwara Bangla Sahib, the beautiful and peaceful Lodi Gardens and National Gandhi Museum. Delicious food ranges from cheap street eats to Michelin-starred dining.

A luxury hotel pick: The Leela Palace New Delhi

2. Jerusalem

A significant religious city for Christianity, Judaism and Islam, Jerusalem is a holy city west of the Dead Sea. Its positioning in the Middle East mean it's close to unrest, but approximately 3.5 million travelers head to this historic city each year. The walled Old City is home to many sacred sights, including the Western Wall, Dome of the Rock, Church of the Holy Sepulchre and Temple Mount. Yad Vashem — The World Holocaust Remembrance Center — is a can't-miss museum a 20-minute drive west of the Old City. While important religious and historic places fill the city, Jerusalem is also overflowing with cozy coffee shops, bustling markets with incense, dried fruit and scarves, and striking art galleries.

A luxury hotel pick: The King David Hotel Jerusalem

3. Tokyo

Tokyo embodies a modern metropolis with centuries-old history. Between historic temples and well-manicured gardens that burst with cherry blossoms in the spring are towering skyscrapers, bright billboards and buzzing — yet immaculate — sidewalks. After exploring the sacred Senso-ji Temple and Samurai Museum, tourists can take in modern-day offerings like cat cafés, conveyor-belt-delivered sushi restaurants and iconic shopping and street fashion. Reliable public transportation, world-renowned dining and polite locals add to the city's appeal, though beware of high prices and prepare for overcrowding.

A value hotel pick: Dormy Inn Premium Shibuya Jingumae

4. Florence, Italy

Despite some tourist-trap restaurants and brand-name hotels occupying its center, Florence is an undeniably charming city in Italy's Tuscany region. Rich in history, this cobblestone city is home to the 13th-century Duomo, 1442-opened Basilica di Santa Croce and medieval Ponte Vecchio (Old Bridge). Art lovers will be particularly excited to visit the over 80 museums here, some of which house works by Michelangelo and Botticelli's "Birth of Venus." Italian cuisine is unsurprisingly top-notch — head to the outskirts of the city for the most authentic fare — and fine goods sold here include leather, gold and silver. Sports bars and raging nightclubs also fill the streets.

A romantic hotel pick: Grand Hotel Baglioni

5. St. Petersburg, Russia

A port city of about five million, St. Petersburg is the cultural center of Russia. Established by Peter the Great in 1703, its history is on display at the multicolored Church of the Savior on Spilled Blood that's rich with mosaics, the Grand Palace with exquisite gardens dotted by gold sculptures and fountains and the Kazan Cathedral, designed in 1811 to resemble St. Peter's Basilica in Rome. The State Hermitage Museum and Winter Palace has a magnificent display of art, while the Mariinsky and Alexandrinsky Theatres put on exquisite ballets, plays and operas. Every type of nightlife venue can be found here, plus ample green spaces and charming cafés.

A luxury hotel pick: Belmond Grand Hotel Europe

6. Istanbul

Straddling both Europe and Asia, Istanbul showcases its long history of being ruled by the Greeks, Romans, Venetians and Ottomans in ancient and modern sights. A prime example is the breathtaking Hagia Sophia, a Byzantine church that became a mosque and then a museum, and the Blue Mosque wows with its domed structure adorned on the inside with hand-painted tiles. There are no shortage of historic and beautiful sights, but travelers should plan on seeing performances of the Whirling Dervishes and belly dancers, as well as getting an authentic scrub at a Turkish hammam. Also shop for handmade goods at the Grand Bazaar and feast on fresh fish, yummy kebaps and mezes.

A luxury hotel pick: Swissotel The Bosphorus

7. Barcelona, Spain

Arguably Spain's coolest city, Barcelona seamlessly melds jaw-dropping Gothic and Modernist architecture with a hopping beachfront, large expanses of greenery and a party vibe. History and art buffs will be drawn to the Basilica of the Sagrada Familia, Casa Batllo and world-class MACBA museum, while foodies can sample cuisine by renowned chefs like Ferran Adria. Shopping is a popular pastime here, as is taking advantage of the vibrant nightlife that spans the whole city (though particularly El Raval neighborhood). There's a slice of life for everyone in this cosmopolitan city.

A boutique hotel pick: Hotel DO

8. Paris

Paris is often regarded as the most romantic city in the world, and though it's always one of the most visited, it still retains that "je ne sais quoi." Days here consist of enjoying baguettes and croissants with espresso on sidewalk tables facing the street and strolling charming streets lined with couture fashion boutiques, while evenings see groups drinking wine at the Champ de Mars park under the light of the Eiffel Tower. Add in renowned museums like the Louvre, d'Orsay and Rodin, not to mention beautiful architecture like Notre Dame, Arc de Triomphe and Palais Garnier opera house, and it's easy to see why the City of Lights is such a beloved city.

A romantic hotel pick: Hotel Plaza Athenee

Travel dilemmas: Staying at a hotel? Be ready for fire by making exit plans

By CATHARINE HAMM
Los Angeles Times

Question: During the recent Christmas holidays, I spent two nights at the Encore hotel in Las Vegas. A beautiful property, and the amenities are over the top. But I didn't notice any fire sprinklers in my room. Shouldn't newer hotels (Encore opened in December 2008) be required to have them? I did see smoke alarms, but I doubt that they would be enough in the case of a fire. Am I missing something?

— David Tulanian, Las Vegas

Answer: Tulanian may have missed them, and you can probably blame that on aesthetics.

But first, to Tulanian's question. Michael Weaver, a spokesman for the property, said in an email, "All of our rooms are equipped with sprinklers and smoke detectors. It is required by law."

Why Tulanian may not have seen them became clearer in an interview with Charles Carroll, a senior vice president for Idemia, a company that specializes in security.

By coincidence, he was staying at the Encore during a visit to the recent Consumer Electronics Show, so I asked him whether he could see sprinklers in his room.

He could, he said, and he texted me photos of the sprinklers, which were almost indistinguishable from the ceiling.

These sprinklers don't look like the metal spider-like devices, known as pendant sprinkler heads, which are the most common, according to a blog by Fireline, a Maryland fire equipment distributor.

Instead, flat disks, called concealed pendant heads, are "recessed into the ceiling and covered with a decorative cap to make them blend into your ceiling," the blog said.

"While it may seem like the cap could get in the way of the fire protection aspect, this cap is specifically designed to fall away … (before) the activation of the sprinkler system. Once the sprinkler head is activated, it will drop down from the ceiling and the water is dispersed."

Which is probably more than anyone who is not in the business of protection wants to know about sprinklers.

But they're an important part of the safety package — a package of which travelers must be increasingly aware, Carroll said.

"Everybody has to understand that they have to take control of their own safety and … security," said Carroll, formerly a police officer who has spent his career in protection.

That doesn't mean you don't follow instructions if there is a fire in your hotel. But you also do some homework to ensure you have the information you need to save your life, and you can start at check-in, said Annmarie Feeley Jones, a senior risk specialist with Chubb Insurers.

Hotels will usually have an alarm system, but do you know what it sounds like? Is there a loudspeaker system that will give instruction?

Ask these questions at the front desk and tuck the answers away in your mental file.

After you settle in your room, check the escape route, which is usually posted on the back of your room's door. Then go find the nearest exit, she said, and as you are doing so, count the number of steps between your room and that exit door.

Make sure the exit door is unlocked, and if it's not, let the front desk know pronto because you will not be using the elevator.

Among Feeley Jones' other rules to live by:

Listen for instructions over a loudspeaker or by a human being.

If you cannot get out of your room, wet towels and stuff them in cracks in the door.

Turn off fans or air conditioning.

Call the fire department and let them know where you are.

Stay by a window with a white cloth or flashlight (a smartphone flashlight app can be a big help) so you can signal.

Grab your room key and your wallet, which you have thoughtfully left by the bed.

Leave your shoes by the bed too, so you can find them.

To Feeley Jones' ideas I would add this: Many years ago in the middle of the night, someone tried to break into my hotel room by breaking down the door. Fortunately for me, it was a metal door. Unfortunately for me, my next visitor was hotel security, and I wasn't dressed to receive guests.

Since the night after this happened, I have stopped sleeping in regular night gear and started sleeping in knit pants or shorts and a T-shirt. This ensemble is presentable enough for appearing in public, whether it is to escape or to dash to the lobby to feed the need for caffeine.

The coffee craving is far more likely than a fire in a place that's not a home, statistics show.

In 1977, 374,500 non-home fires killed 640 civilians, injured 4,670 and did $8.2 billion in damage in 2015 dollars, the year of the National Fire Protection Association's report.

By 2015 those numbers had dropped to 136,000 fires, 125 deaths, 1,925 injuries and $3.3 billion in damage. (The report does not break out hotels.)

A good trend line, but until that number is zero, you must be on your guard — for anything.

As the tragic events of Oct. 1 show, anything can happen in Las Vegas or anywhere else. Fifty-eight people were killed and more than 500 were wounded that night when a man opened fire on concertgoers from his room at Vegas' Mandalay Bay.

Whether it's a madman with weapons or a fire, staying calm is key.

But how?

Mental preparation will provide information on how to make sound decisions, Carroll said. You know where the exits are; you know the exit door is open; you know which direction to go to move away from danger.

As with most things in travel — or life — you are your own best resource when things look grim, especially if you have a plan. With luck, you'll never have to use it.

Too much trouble to scope out exits and such? No, it's not. Make it a rule — a rule to live by.

‘“Forever My Girl” tells the story of Liam Page (Alex Roe), a budding country singer who leaves his Louisiana hometown to pursue his dreams. He also leaves behind his high-school sweetheart, Josie Preston (Jessica Rothe), who was waiting at a church in a wedding dress. Eight years later, a world-famous Liam returns to town and finds that Josie is still single. Can Liam make amends and win back the love he threw away?

The movie spins a fantasy that seems to me distinctly male: the ex-girlfriend who never got over you. That’s all Josie is — an old flame, frozen in time, waiting patiently for her man’s return. Just about anyone with a level head would see “Forever My Girl” as the story of a narcissist manipulating a naive doormat. But the film’s creators — Heidi McLaughlin, who wrote the source novel, and writer-director Bethany Ashton Wolf — see it as the stuff of romance.

The movie asks us to pity Liam, a brooding rock star (the slick songs are by Brett Boyett and Jackson Odell) who sates himself with groupies but wallows in regret over Josie. Can she ever forgive him? Luckily, God gave Liam two sparkly blue eyes, which is about all it takes to soften Josie’s heart. What’s more, Josie has a present for him: their daughter, Billy (Abby Ryder Fortson). No diaper changing necessary, because Billy is already an adorable mini-adult, ready for mentoring (she has her daddy’s gift for music, natch).

It hardly matters that Roe’s Liam is a photogenic bore, or that Rothe’s girl-next-door beauty makes Josie’s low self-esteem all the more exasperating. There’s no getting around the story, which embraces some of the most warped ideas about love since “Fifty Shades of Grey.” One reason Josie can’t resist Liam, by the way, is because he’s rich. When Josie asks to be taken on a fancy date and paraded in front of the paparazzi, we know she’s a goner.

Spoiler alert: In the end, Josie gets a wealthy husband and Billy gets a famous father. As for Liam, he gets eight years of world travel and casual sex, then returns home to take his place as the head of an adoring family. I guess everybody wins.

Infuses heart into war, but doesn’t dive too deep

By KATIE WALSH
Tribune News Service

If you’re doing your job right in the U.S. Special Forces, it likely means no one will ever know. It’s a tough, elite and highly classified position, where acts of incredible heroism never get the ticker tape parade, and that’s kind of the point. “12 Strong” tells just one of those extraordinary stories, fought in the mountains of Afghanistan in the winter of 2001.

The film is based on Doug Stanton’s book “Horse Soldiers,” which describes one of the ways a special forces team adapted to the rugged landscape of Afghanistan — on horseback, like the Afghani warriors with whom they embedded — while battling the Taliban in the shadow of 9/11.

Directed by Danish photojournalist Nicolai Fuglsig, with a brisk, efficient script by “Silence of the Lambs” screenwriter Ted Tally and “The Town” screenwriter Peter Craig, “12 Strong” unfolds as a procedural, taking protocol and bureaucracy swiftly in stride. The men simply execute the mission. They don’t ask too many questions, and they train their minds on personal vendettas and the reasons they have to go home.

Chris Hemsworth stars as Mitch Nelson, a highly-trained new captain who’s never seen war. He impresses the higher-ups enough to send his team, Task Force Dagger, to embed with the Afghani General Dostum (Navid Negahban), who’s been fighting the Taliban as part of the Northern Alliance. The task is to call in airstrikes on the Taliban, while fighting through an unforgiving territory. Nelson promises he can do it in three weeks with 12 men, which would require an enormous amount of trust, goodwill and generosity on the part of Dostum.

Fuglsig brings an eye for systems and detail to the film, but this is a Jerry Bruckheimer production after all, and he never skimps on the bombastic pyrotechnics. The blistering firefights are increasingly brutal to the point of numbness. It never delves deep enough to examine the larger involvement of the U.S. and those ramifications, but “12 Strong” manages to infuse heart and character into this adrenaline-fueled war film, exploring how and why men fight.

Mayors boycott meeting with President Trump

The Justice Department ramped up pressure on so-called sanctuary cities seeking public safety grant money, warning that they could be legally forced to prove they are cooperating with federal immigration authorities. See page 2

President Donald Trump speaks to a gathering of mayors in the East Room of the White House in Washington on Wednesday. Trump says he's "looking forward" to being interviewed by special counsel Robert Mueller. Speaking to reporters, Trump says he'd be willing to answer questions under oath.

Trump: Would 'love to' face Mueller questions

By ERIC TUCKER and CHAD DAY
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump declared late Wednesday he's "looking forward" to being questioned — under oath — in the special counsel's probe of Russian election interference and possible Trump obstruction in the firing of the FBI director.

Trump said he would be willing to answer questions under oath in the interview, which special counsel Robert Mueller has been seeking but which White house officials had not previously said the president would grant.

"I'm looking forward to it, actually," Trump said when asked by reporters at the White House. Ad for timing, he said, "I guess they're talking about two or three weeks, but I'd love to do it."

He said, as he has repeatedly, that "there's no collusion whatsoever" with the Russians, and he added, "There's no obstruction whatsoever."

The full scope of Mueller's investigation, which involves hundreds of thousands of documents and dozens of witness interviews, is unknown. And there have been no signs that agents aren't continuing to work on ties between Trump's campaign and a Russian effort to tip the 2016 election.

But now that Mueller's team has all but concluded its interviews with current and former Trump officials, and expressed interest in speaking with the president himself, the focus seems to be on the post-inauguration White House. That includes the firing of FBI Director James Comey and discussions preceding the ouster of White House National Security Adviser Michael Flynn.

The timing and circumstances of a Trump interview are still being ironed out. But soon it will probably be the president himself who will have to explain to Mueller how his actions don't add up to obstruction of justice. And that conversation will be dominated by questions tied whether he took steps to thwart an FBI investigation.

So far, witness interviews and the special counsel's document requests make clear Mueller has a keen interest in Comey's May 9 firing and the contents of Comey's private conversations with the president, as well as the ouster months earlier of Flynn and the weeks of conversations leading up to it.

A focus on potential obstruction has been evident almost since Mueller's appointment as special counsel. And recent interviews with administration officials, including Attorney General Jeff Sessions, have shown that Trump is dealing with prosecutors who already have amassed a wealth of knowledge about the events he'll be questioned about.

Prosecutors have interviewed numerous White House aides including Trump's closest confidants such as Counsel Don McGahn, former chief of staff Reince Priebus and the president's son-in-law, Jared Kushner.

Sessions, who had urged Comey's firing, was interviewed for hours, becoming the highest-ranking Trump administration official known to have submitted to questioning. Mueller also wants to interview former adviser Steve Bannon, who has called Comey's firing perhaps the biggest mistake in "modern political history."

In an Aug. 21, 2013, file photo, former FBI director Robert Mueller speaks during an interview at FBI headquarters, in Washington.

The White House initially said the firing was based on the Justice Department's recommendation and cited as justification a memo that faulted Comey's handling of the Hillary Clinton email investigation. But Trump himself said later he was thinking of this "Russia thing" and had intended to fire Comey anyway.

Dollar tumbles after US treasury chief welcomes weaker value

Associated Press

DAVOS, Switzerland — The U.S. treasury chief welcomed a weaker dollar on Wednesday, breaking with a decades-long commitment by the U.S. government to back a strong dollar.

The comments led to an immediate, sharp drop in the value of the dollar in currency markets.

"Obviously a weaker dollar is good for us as it relates to trade and opportunities," Steven Mnuchin said during his visit to the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland. Mnuchin was in Davos to seek investment from businesses and to talk to trade partners ahead of a highly-awaited speech by President Donald Trump on Friday.

Investors were struck by Mnuchin's comments because for most of the past two decades, U.S. Treasury chiefs regularly stated that a "strong dollar is in the best interests of the United States."

Then-Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin began using that phrase when he became Bill Clinton's Treasury secretary in 1995 and it has since been repeated by every Treasury secretary — whether under Democratic or Republican administrations.

Mnuchin's words could be a signal that the Trump administration is prepared to try to talk down the dollar's value to boost exports. A weaker dollar makes U.S. products more competitive in international markets.

The dollar dropped by a cent against the euro, hitting a three-year low of $1.2406. It

Puerto Rico awaits foreclosure wave as moratoriums expire

By DANICA COTO
Associated Press

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Aylsa Torres sighed in relief when she received a letter from her bank two weeks after Hurricane Maria hit. She was among the hundreds of thousands of Puerto Ricans awarded a three-month moratorium on their mortgage payments as the U.S. territory reeled from the storm's destruction.

Believing she was temporarily freed from those financial obligations, the 46-year-old government worker drained her savings to pay for a $750 generator and $786 worth of repairs for storm damage. But when Torres visited her bank in December, she says, she was shocked to hear that she was behind on payments and that officials threatened to foreclose on her apartment and ruin her credit rating.

Confusion and panic is spreading across this U.S. territory as the majority of moratorium agreements expire this month, with many people discovering they never qualified for the moratorium in the first place or struggling to obtain extensions because they cannot pay what is owed to the banks.

"It's incredibly frustrating," Torres said. "You feel like everyone is closing a door in your face. No one has a genuine interest in helping you."

Legal experts say it is a scene that will repeat itself in the coming weeks and months on an island that already was seeing a sharp rise in foreclosures before the hurricane as a result of an 11-year-old recession that has forced government austerity measures.

Even worse, experts say, many Puerto Ricans stopped making payments on their mortgages after the Sept. 20 storm because they thought the moratorium was automatic, when it was not. The storm knocked out power across the island, the largest blackout in U.S. history, preventing many from learning that they had to contact their bank to request a moratorium, said Ariadna Godreau, a professor and human rights lawyer.

"The big concern now is that mortgage foreclosures are going to spike," she said. "We're going to see more homeless people, more homes foreclosed."

Over almost a decade, the number of repossessed homes in Puerto Rico grew from more than 2,300 in 2008 to above 5,400 in 2016 and an estimated 6,200 or more last year.

Scientists successfully clone monkeys; are humans up next?

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK — For the first time, researchers have used the cloning technique that produced Dolly the sheep to create healthy monkeys, bringing science an important step closer to being able to do the same with humans.

Since Dolly's birth in 1996, scientists have cloned nearly two dozen kinds of mammals, including dogs, cats, pigs, cows and polo ponies, and have also created human embryos with this method. But until now, they have been unable to make babies this way in primates, the category that includes monkeys, apes and people.

"The barrier of cloning primate species is now overcome," declared Muming Poo of the Chinese Academy of Sciences in Shanghai.

In a paper released Wednesday by the journal Cell, he and his colleagues announced that they successfully created two macaques. The female baby monkeys, about 7 and 8 weeks old, are named Zhong Zhong and Hua Hua.

"It's been a long road," said one scientist who tried and failed to make monkeys and was not involved in the new research, Shoukhrat Mitalipov of Oregon Health & Science University. "Finally, they did it."

Poo said the feat shows that the cloning of humans is theoretically possible. But he said his team has no intention of doing that. Mainstream scientists generally oppose making human babies by cloning, and Poo said society would ban it for ethical reasons.

Instead, he said, the goal is to create lots of genetically identical monkeys for use in medical research, where they would be particularly valuable because they are more like humans than other lab animals such as mice or rats.

The process is still very inefficient — it took 127 eggs to get the two babies — and so far it has succeeded only by starting with a monkey fetus. The scientists failed to produce healthy babies from an adult monkey, though they are still trying and are awaiting the outcome of some pregnancies. Dolly caused a sensation because she was the first mammal cloned from an adult.

The procedure was technically challenging. Essentially, the Chinese scientists removed the Mayors boycott Trump meeting after sanctuary cities threat

By SADIE GURMAN and JILL COLVIN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department ramped up pressure Wednesday on so-called sanctuary cities seeking public safety grant money, warning that they could be legally forced to prove they are cooperating with federal immigration authorities. The move prompted immediate backlash, with mayors from across the country boycotting a planned meeting at the White House with President Donald Trump on Wednesday afternoon.

Trump responded by accusing the boycotting mayors of putting the needs of "criminal illegal immigrants over law-abiding Americans."

Officials sent letters to roughly two dozen jurisdictions threatening to issue subpoenas if they don't willingly relinquish documents showing they aren't withholding information about the citizenship or immigration status of people in custody. The department has repeatedly threatened to deny millions of dollars in important grant money to communities that refuse to comply with a federal statute requiring information-sharing with federal authorities, as part of the Trump administration's promised crackdown on cities and states that refuse to help enforce U.S. immigration laws.

Many cities have been openly defiant in the face of the threats, with lawsuits pending in Chicago, Philadelphia and California over whether the administration has overstepped its authority by seeking to withhold grant money.

AP PHOTO

President Donald Trump speaks to a gathering of mayors in the East Room of the White House in Washington on Wednesday.

The move angered members of the U.S. Conference of Mayors who had been set to meet with Trump on Wednesday to discuss infrastructure, drug addiction and other topics.

New Orleans Mayor Mitch Landrieu, the conference president, said in a statement that "the Trump administration's decision to threaten mayors and demonize immigrants yet again — and use cities as political props in the process — has made this meeting untenable."

"The U.S. Conference of Mayors is proud to be a bipartisan organization. But an attack on mayors who lead welcoming cities is an attack on everyone in our conference," he said.

New York's Bill de Blasio and Denver's Michael Hancock announced their boycotts on Twitter.

"I will NOT be attending today's meeting at the White House after @realDonaldTrump's Department of Justice decided to renew their racist assault on our immigrant communities," de Blasio wrote, adding that the move "doesn't make us safer and it violates America's core values."

Hancock said he had "better things to do than be part of a photo op for 45 as he threatens cities again."

Still, many mayors did attend. In remarks in front of the group, Trump blasted those who had boycotted.

"My administration is committed to protecting innocent Americans and the mayors who choose to boycott this event have put the needs of criminal illegal immigrants over law-abiding Americans," he said.

Trump spokeswoman Sarah Huckabee Sanders added that if mayors have a problem with the Justice Department's actions, "they should talk to the Congress, the people that pass the laws. The Department of Justice enforces them, and as long as that is the law, the Department of Justice is going to strongly enforce it."

As for the mayors, she said the White House would love to work with them, "but we cannot allow people to pick and choose what laws they want to follow."

"If we have a country with no laws, then nothing matters," Sanders added.

Federal agency says Eastern puma extinct, drops protections

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — Federal officials have declared the Eastern puma extinct 80 years after the last confirmed sighting.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced this week it's removing the animal from the endangered species list.

The move completes a process that began in 2015, when the agency proposed dropping federal protections for the Eastern puma, which is also known as the cougar, mountain lion and catamount. Its territory ranged from Michigan to New England, the Carolinas and Tennessee.

PHOTO PROVIDED

The now-extinct Eastern Puma

The agency says pumas have turned up in some Eastern states in recent years. But genetic and forensic testing shows they had been released or escaped from captivity, or had wandered in from the West.

Officials say they considered feedback from scientists and the general public before making their decision.

The Florida panther is the only breeding puma or cougar population east of the Mississippi River.

Maine shaken by fifth earthquake in week span

HARRISON, Maine (AP) — An earthquake has been recorded in Maine for the fifth time in a week.

The U.S. Geological Survey confirms a magnitude 2.3 earthquake struck around 2 a.m. Wednesday. The earthquake was centered near Harrison, and multiple people reported shaking.

Another minor earthquake was recorded in Dresden on Jan. 17. The agency says the 2.6 magnitude quake struck before 7 p.m., and it was followed by two other minor quakes.

Fairfield was shaken by an earthquake two days after that, a magnitude 1.7.

No injuries or damage have been reported.

Earthquakes happen in New England but they're relatively rare.

A 4.0 magnitude quake in 2012 near Hollis, Maine, was felt as far away as Connecticut, and a 4.2 magnitude quake in 2006 struck Maine's Mount Desert Island, causing boulders to tumble.

NYC, Grammy officials sparring over expense of award show

NEW YORK (AP) — The return of the Grammys to New York City for the first time in 15 years has hit a sour note.

The Los Angeles-based Recording Academy says holding the show in New York has been costly, and the city hasn't met its commitment to shoulder the extra costs.

New York City officials say they've raised the money they promised and they expect a great show when the 60th anniversary Grammys ceremony takes over Madison Square Garden on Sunday.

But Recording Academy President Neil Portnow has said it's costing $6 million to $8 million more to produce the Grammys in New York than in Los Angeles.

The Grammys will return to Los Angeles for at least four years starting next year.

Navigation app steers car into Lake Champlain

When Tara Guertin loaned her Jeep to three friends from Connecticut who were doing some sightseeing in Burlington, she did not expect the car to end up at the bottom of Lake Champlain.

Guertin said they were following directions from Waze, a community-driven GPS navigation app owned by Google.

Waze pairs turn-by-turn GPS directions with user reports of accidents, traffic jams and police traps. Users can update roads and landmarks.

Waze users or "Wazers" can report accidents, traffic jams and speed and police traps. Using the online map editor, they can update road conditions, among other things. Waze sends anonymous information, including users' speed and location, back to its database to improve the service as a whole.

Julie Mossler, a spokesperson for Google, said it was glad to hear the passengers were all safe, but the company was unable to explain how the car ended up in the lake.

"It's impossible to comment here without seeing the user's driving file, and we haven't received permission to do so — generally speaking, Waze maps are updated with millions of edits to adapt to real-time road conditions daily, often making them the most accurate available," she said via email.

She said the company encourages "drivers to keep their eyes on the road and use all environmental information available to them to make the best decisions as they drive."

The app directed the drivers to turn onto a boat launch near a Coast Guard station. It was dark and foggy, Guertin said, and by the time they realized what was happening, the car had slid 100 feet onto the frozen lake. The three people in the car managed to climb out.

Guertin said she thought it was a fluke, but when she tried the app out after the car sank, she got the same results.

Burlington Police Chief Brandon del Pozo confirmed Monday the drivers had not been charged or cited by his officers. According to the incident report, the driver told officer Padric Hartnett he had a single beer at nearby Foam Brewery and willingly consented to field sobriety exercises.

Hartnett wrote that he did not believe the driver was intoxicated. The driver told police he had trouble seeing because of the weather. There was a "heavy fog and slight rain" at the time of the incident, and the boat launch was poorly lit, according to Hartnett's report.

NORTH CAROLINA Beaufort: Authorities have accused a former volunteer fire department treasurer of embezzling money by using the agency's ATM cards to pay personal bills.

US blacklists NKorea business interests in China, Russia

By MATTHEW PENNINGTON
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Trump administration slapped sanctions Wednesday on North Korean financial and business networks in China and Russia as it pushed to cut off revenues for the increasingly isolated nation's nuclear and missile programs.

The Treasury Department's Office of Foreign Assets Control also targeted five North Korean shipping companies and six of its vessels. That's part of an intensified effort by Washington to interdict ships that help the North evade sanctions.

The sanctions have been tightened significantly in the past year as Kim Jong Un's government accelerates toward perfecting a nuclear weapon that can threaten the U.S. mainland. While Beijing and Moscow have supported U.N. restrictions, they bristle at Washington imposing unilateral sanctions to bolster the pressure campaign.

The intensification of the U.S.-led campaign is a counterpoint to a thaw in relations between North and South Korea revolving around the North's participation in next month's Winter Olympics being hosted by the South. That has eased tensions on the divided peninsula, but the North shows no sign it's willing to negotiate over its nuclear program.

"The U.S. government is targeting illicit actors in China, Russia, and elsewhere who are working on behalf of North Korean financial networks, and calling for their expulsion from the territories where they reside," Treasury Secretary Steve Mnuchin said in a statement. Americans are barred from dealing with those who are designated.

Among those blacklisted were 10 representatives in China and Russia of the Korea Ryonbong General Corporation, which is already designated by the United States and the United Nations and is said to support the North's defense industry. The Treasury Department said the company's procurements also probably support North Korea's chemical weapons program.

Half of the individuals are located in the Chinese cities of Dandong, Ji'an, Linjiang and Tumen near the China-North Korea border. Others are based in Russia and Abkhazia, a breakaway province of Georgia. They include, Kim Ho Kyu, said to be a Ryonbong representative and North Korean vice consul in Nakhodka, Russia.

The Treasury Department also designated five individuals it said were linked to North Korean financial networks, and pointedly highlighted that several of them held accounts at Chinese banks.

North Korea conducts most of its trade through its northern neighbor China, and is believed to rely on banks and companies in that country to connect with the international financial system.

The department added to its blacklist two China-based companies, Beijing Chengxing Trading Co. Ltd. and Dandong Jinxiang Trade Co., Ltd. It said that between 2013 and 2017, the two companies cumulatively exported over $68 million worth of goods to North Korea and imported more than $19 million of goods from North Korea.

AP PHOTO

In this photo provided by the North Korean government, North Korean leader Kim Jong Un delivers his New Year's speech at an undisclosed place in North Korea on Jan. 1.

Also designated were North Korea's ministry responsible for crude oil and Hana Electronics JVC, one of North Korea's only electronics companies.

The sanctions imposed on North Korean shipping are the latest in a slew of restrictions the U.S. has declared against North Korean shipping companies. The administration is pressing China, Russia and other countries to prevent vessels from conducting illicit ship-to-ship transfers of oil and other cargo.

CIA Director Mike Pompeo said Tuesday that through the agency's efforts, the U.S. government has improved its ability to interdict shipments into North Korea. He warned that the North was moving "ever closer" to putting Americans at risk and that he believes Kim won't rest until he's able to threaten multiple nuclear attacks against the U.S. at the same time.

TRUMP

Sessions, the target of the president's ire since he stepped aside last March from the Russia investigation, would have been able to offer close-up insight into the president's thinking ahead of the termination. He also could have been able to speak to the president's relationship with Comey, which Comey documented in a series of memos about conversations with Trump that bothered him.

In one memo, Comey described a January 2017 meeting over dinner at which he said the president asked him to pledge his loyalty. Separately, a person familiar with the conversation said this week that Trump in a meeting last year with Deputy Director Andrew McCabe brought up McCabe's wife's political background following the revelation that she had accepted campaign contributions during a state Senate run from the political action committee of then-Virginia Gov. Terry McAuliffe, a close Clinton ally.

The Washington Post reported Tuesday night that Trump had also asked McCabe whom he voted for in the presidential race. McCabe replied that he did not vote. Trump said Wednesday he did not recall asking that question.

Another of Comey's memos centered on a February conversation at the White House in which he said Trump told him he believed Flynn, the fired national security adviser, was a "good guy" and encouraged Comey to drop an investigation into him. The FBI had interviewed Flynn weeks earlier about whether he had discussed sanctions with the Russian ambassador during the transition period between the election and the inauguration. Flynn pleaded guilty in December to lying to the FBI during that interview.

Mueller has been investigating the events leading up to Flynn's dismissal from the White House, including how officials responded to information from former acting Attorney General Sally Yates that Flynn had misled them by saying that he had not discussed sanctions. Despite that warning, and despite an FBI interview days after Trump's inauguration, Flynn was not forced to resign until Feb. 13 — the night of media reports about Yates' conversation with McGahn.

Mueller will likely want to know what Trump understood, before asking Comey to let the Flynn investigation go, about Flynn's interview with the FBI — and whether he had made false statements — and about his conversation with the Russian ambassador.

Four people have so far been charged in the Mueller investigation, including Flynn and former Trump campaign chairman Paul Manafort. Flynn and former campaign foreign policy adviser George Papadopoulos have pleaded guilty to lying to the FBI.

DOLLAR

fell 1.1 percent against the yen, to 109.13 yen.

In Washington, presidential press secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders did not specifically answer whether the Trump administration prefers a strong dollar or a weak dollar when she was asked about Mnuchin's comments.

"We believe in free floating currency," she told reporters at the White House briefing. "The president's always believed in that. And we have ... a very stable dollar in large part due to how well the U.S. economy is doing right now."

During the 2016 presidential campaign and since taking office, President Donald Trump has at times said he would prefer to see the dollar fall in value compared to other currencies as a way to boost U.S. exports.

PUERTO

were temporarily suspended, and banks in the U.S. territory offered a moratorium on mortgages for those who qualified, as did the federal government. Moratoriums offered by the U.S. government have been extended to March, but banks have ended theirs.

Banco Popular, which is Puerto Rico's largest bank, said more than 20,500 clients received moratoriums that expired in December and January. Bank executives say they are working with their clients, but stress that they still need to collect what is owed.

"Those clients that truly are not responding to the bank's letters are those who really will be at risk of facing a foreclosure," said Jose Teruel, first vice president of the consumer credit services division at Banco Popular.

Other large Puerto Rico banks declined to provide specific numbers. Oriental said only that 69 percent of its home loans were under moratorium by the end of November, while First Bank said about half of its clients were given moratoriums. Santander said 123,000 of its accounts, including both mortgages and personal and commercial loans, received moratoriums expiring in December and January.

"The three-month moratorium might have seemed generous at first, but in reality, it's not," said Maria Jimenez, director of the legal services clinic at the University of Puerto Rico. "There are still people without power, so the ability to generate revenue is not there."

More than 30,000 jobs were lost after Hurricane Maria, and some 30 percent of small- and medium-size businesses remain closed more than four months after the storm, according to the island's Treasury Department. Meanwhile, more than 30 percent of power customers remain in the dark and many struggle to pay rising utility bills.

AP PHOTO

This Friday photo shows one of multiple properties located in the Esperanza sector that are currently for sale, in Vieques, Puerto Rico. Hundreds of thousands of Puerto Ricans face losing their homes upon the expiration of a three-month moratorium on mortgage payments that banks offered after Hurricane Maria devastated the island.

Jimenez especially worries about people who cannot afford an attorney but make enough money to be disqualified from free legal services.

"A lot of times these people just freeze," she said. "There are many who don't even open the (bank) letters because they have no way to solve the situation."

Torres has hired a lawyer to handle her case, not an easy decision since most of her salary goes toward costly medication to treat her multiple sclerosis. She owes the bank more than $1,500 and is at a loss over how to pay.

MONKEYS

DNA-containing nucleus from monkey eggs and replaced it with DNA from the monkey fetus. These reconstituted eggs grew and divided, finally becoming an early embryo, which was then placed into female monkeys to grow to birth.

The scientists implanted 79 embryos to produce the two babies. Still, the approach succeeded where others had failed. Poo said that was because of improvements in lab techniques and because researchers added two substances that helped reprogram the DNA from the fetus. That let the DNA abandon its job in the fetus, which involves things like helping to make collagen, and take on the new task of creating an entire monkey.

The Chinese researchers said cloning of fetal cells could be combined with gene editing techniques to produce large numbers of monkeys with certain genetic defects that cause disease in people. The animals could then be used to study such diseases and test treatments. The researchers said their initial targets will be Alzheimer's and Parkinson's.

Mitalipov, noting the Chinese failed to produce healthy babies from adult cells, said he suspects attempts to clone babies from a human adult would also fail. "I don't think it would be advisable to anyone to even think about it," he said.

Jose Cibelli, a scientist at Michigan State University, said it might be technically possible someday, but "criminal" to try now because of the suffering caused by the many lost pregnancies the process entails.

If the procedure became efficient enough in monkeys, he said, society could face "a big ethical dilemma" over whether to adapt it for humans. The key step of transferring DNA might be combined with gene editing to correct genetic disorders in embryos, allowing healthy babies to be born, he said.

Of course, the familiar image of human cloning involves making a copy of someone already born. That might be possible someday, but "I don't think it should be pursued," said researcher Dieter Egli of Columbia University. "I can't think of a strong benefit."

Henry Greely, a Stanford University law professor who specializes in the implications of biomedical technologies, said the strongest argument he can think of would be the desire of grieving parents to produce a genetic duplicate of a dead child. But he doubts that's a compelling enough reason to undertake the extensive and costly effort needed to get such a procedure approved, at least for "decades and decades."

Police: Dog bites man, man bites dog, then man is arrested

BOSCAWEN, N.H. (AP) — A New Hampshire man has been charged with resisting arrest and biting a police dog.

Police say the man unsuccessfully tried to hide under a pile of clothes to evade arrest over the weekend and then put the police dog in a chokehold and bit it on the head.

State police were asked to help deal with a shooting on Sunday in Boscawen, a town of about 4,000 residents. They say two men in a home were wanted on outstanding warrants and both resisted arrest before one exchanged bites with the dog.

Police haven't released the men's names. They say the man who bit the dog faces charges including resisting arrest, interfering with a police dog and assaulting an officer.

The police dog is named Veda and has been cleared medically to return to duty.

Technology stocks sink, pulling indexes lower

By MARLEY JAY
AP Markets Writer

NEW YORK — U.S. stocks bounced up and down and finished mostly lower Wednesday as technology companies slumped. Commerce Secretary Wilbur Ross discussed a more nationalist trade stance, with uncertain effects for the market. The dollar, already at three-year lows, got even weaker.

Stocks got off to a strong start, but technology companies took heavier losses as the day wore on, led by chipmakers after Texas Instruments gave a disappointing forecast for the current quarter. Apple also fell.

The dollar sagged against other currencies after Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin said the currency's decline is good for U.S. exporters, suggesting he isn't likely to try to stop its slide. Airlines plunged after United Continental said it plans to ramp up passenger capacity.

Mnuchin and Ross are at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland. Mnuchin's comments sent the price of gold and silver higher, as investors often buy precious metals when they're concerned about inflation or softness in the dollar. Weakness in the dollar usually helps companies that export a lot of goods from the U.S., but it can hurt smaller, more domestic companies by driving up the costs of imported components.

"Small caps are much more domestically focused than large caps are, but (they are) still buying from foreign companies," said Mark Hackett, chief of investment research at Nationwide Investment Management.

Hackett said smaller U.S. companies will report faster profit growth this year than larger ones. That's because the benefit those companies will get from the recent corporate tax cut will outweigh the pain from the weaker dollar.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index lost 1.59 points, or 0.1 percent, to 2,837.54. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 41.31 points, or 0.2 percent, to 26,252.12. In the morning the Dow rose as much as 181 points and later fell as much as 103 points before turning higher again. That's an unusually large swing for the Dow given the market's recent lack of volatility.

The Nasdaq composite fell 45.23 points, or 0.6 percent, to 7,415.06. The Russell 2000 index of smaller-company stocks skidded 11.10 points, or 0.7 percent, to 1,599.61.

Investors have focused on global trade issues the last few days. On Tuesday, the administration placed tariffs on imported solar power components and washing machines.

On Wednesday Ross said the U.S. is fighting back against countries that have taken advantage of trade deals in the past.

"Trade wars are fought every single day," Ross said. "Unfortunately, every single day there are various parties trying to violate the rules, and trying to take unfair advantage of things ... the difference is that U.S. troops are now coming to the ramparts."

Toys R Us says 182 stores to close

By ANNE D'INNOCENZIO and MICHELLE CHAPMAN
AP Business Writers

NEW YORK — Toys R Us, a nostalgic favorite even as many shoppers moved to Amazon and huge chains like Walmart, plans to close up to 182 stores, or about 20 percent of its U.S. locations.

The company that once dominated toy sales in the U.S. has been operating under bankruptcy protection since last fall, when it filed for Chapter 11 under the weight of $5 billion in debt. Toys R Us operates about 900 stores in the U.S., including Babies R Us stores.

Loyal fans lamented the closing of their hometown stores. Many said they liked to shop at Toys R Us because of the atmosphere and the variety of toys they found.

"It's an experience," said Bryan Likins of Indianapolis, who takes his 4-year-old daughter there. "She likes to walk through the store and point to different toys she liked."

Likins says he remembers playing with the video games and trying out bikes with his brothers at Toys R Us, and liked continuing that with his child. He said he shopped on Amazon only for specific items that he wasn't sure if other toy sellers carried.

The store closings will begin in February and the majority of locations identified for closure, which include Babies R Us stores, will go dark by mid-April. At some other locations, Toys R Us and Babies R Us stores will be combined. The bankruptcy court still must sign off on the closings.

Toys R Us wouldn't say how many jobs will be cut. It said some employees will be moved to other stores and those who cannot be will get severance. Chairman and CEO Dave Brandon said Wednesday that tough decisions are required to save Toys R Us.

He acknowledged "operational missteps" during the critical holiday shopping season when shopping at its stores and online wasn't as easy as it should have been.

"The actions we are taking are necessary to give us the best chance to emerge from our bankruptcy proceedings as a more viable and competitive company that will provide the level of service and experience you should expect," he said in a letter to customers.

Gerrick Johnson, an analyst at BMO Capital Markets, had estimated that holiday sales at the company's North America stores were down more than 10 percent. He attributed much of the decline to people's confusion around the bankruptcy filing and a fear of buying gifts at Toys R Us because they thought they wouldn't be able to return them if needed. Johnson also blamed a weak marketing campaign and email promotions that didn't create a sense of urgency.

In this Sept. 19, 2017, photo, shoppers walk into a Toys R Us store, in San Antonio.

Toys R Us, based in Wayne, New Jersey, has struggled with debt since private-equity firms Bain Capital, KKR & Co. and Vornado Realty Trust took it private in a $6.6 billion leveraged buyout in 2005. The plan had been to take the company public again, but weak sales have prevented that from happening. With such debt levels, Toys R Us has not had the financial flexibility to invest in its business.

Meanwhile, other stores like Target have been increasing their assortment of toys.

Toys R Us closed its flagship store in Manhattan's Times Square, a huge tourist destination, about two years ago. While its sales numbers have been shrinking, Toys R Us still sells about 20 percent of the toys bought in the U.S., according to Stephanie Wissink, an analyst at Jefferies LLC.

Competitive pressures will force the company to examine all its stores, and more will likely be shuttered over the next year or two, Wissink said. Moody's lead retail analyst Charlie O'Shea says the closings will let Toys R Us "focus all of its operating efforts on only its best locations."

Toys R Us reigned supreme in the 1980s and early 1990s, when it was one of the first of the "category killers"— a store totally devoted to one thing: toys. Its scale gave it leverage with toy sellers and it disrupted general merchandise stores and mom-and-pop shops. Children sang along with commercials featuring the mascot, Geoffrey the giraffe.

Now Toys R Us and other category killers like the now-defunct Sports Authority, Borders and Circuit City, are being upended by Amazon and online shopping. More than three dozen retailers sought bankruptcy protection last year, due in large part to radical shifts in where people shop, and what they buy.

GlobalData Retail estimates that nearly 14 percent of toy sales were made online in 2016, more than double the level five years ago.

STOCKS LISTING CHANGE - REQUESTS WELCOME!

The Sun Newspaper is tweaking the way stocks are listed in the daily paper. We will continue to run a wide range of stocks, but we're trying to eliminate stocks our readers don't want. If you do not see your stock in the paper, please let us know and we will put it in the listings. Email the name of the company and the symbol to nlane@sun-herald.com, or call 941-206-1138. You can leave the stock name and symbol on voice mail. When requesting a stock, please include where you live so we can run the listing in the appropriate edition. If you reach voice mail, please leave your contact information so your call can be returned.

Estrogen no longer recommended for brain benefits during menopause

Dr. Roach

DEAR DR. ROACH: My 78-year-old mother has taken compounded estrogen since menopause. She swears that it has kept her from getting Alzheimer's disease and other brain diseases.

I am 54 and have been in menopause for about a year. I've tried hormone replacement therapy, but I've had weight gain and other side effects. Eventually I decided that the hot flashes weren't so bad after all, and went off the pills altogether.

So far, I'm managing my symptoms just fine. But my mom thinks I should go back on the estrogen because of the long-term brain benefits.

Are the long-term brain benefits of estrogen clear enough for me to give the pills another chance? And if so, does it matter if the estrogen is compounded? — M.S.

ANSWER: For many years, physicians recommended estrogen (plus progesterone for women who had not had a hysterectomy) because of benefits seen in reduced heart disease risk, and some studies also showed reduced risk of developing Alzheimer's disease. However, that changed when good studies were published showing that there was more harm than benefit overall, and now estrogen generally is used only for symptoms of menopause, especially the "hot flashes" caused by abnormal regulation of blood vessels.

Those same studies on heart disease also have provided some data on the risk of dementia in women taking estrogen compared with those who do not. Some studies showed a little benefit; others showed none, or even some harm. The largest, a subset of the Women's Health Study, showed no benefit and a trend toward harm from estrogen.

I do not recommend estrogen to prevent Alzheimer's. The most effective interventions to reduce risk of dementia remain regular physical exercise; maintaining high levels of social contact and cognitive function (such as games, puzzles, etc.); and a Mediterranean-style diet high in fruits, vegetables, legumes, nuts, olive oil and whole grains. Future studies may show breakthroughs, but these interventions are considered safe and at least modestly effective.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I heard a cardiologist say that she no longer prescribes statins because "the calcium in statins clogged arteries, and instead of helping patients, we were killing them." I'm an 81-year-old man who had a very mild stroke, and was told by a doctor that he thought I had had two heart attacks and I should take atorvastatin calcium, 40 mg, daily. I like milk and consume at least 2 cups daily. I take a multivitamin with 200 mg calcium. Should I be concerned about taking the atorvastatin? — Anon.

ANSWER: Over 30 studies in the past 30 years have confirmed the effectiveness and safety of statin drugs in people with known coronary disease or who are at high risk. There still are those who doubt, but the evidence has long since been considered settled by the vast majority of experts.

It is not clear, however, whether calcium supplements increase the risk of heart attack or stroke. Some studies have said they do, and others have said they do not. If they do increase risk, it is only by a little bit. However, I would recommend against a calcium supplement, and would suggest that you stop your multivitamin completely (there is little evidence that they do any good in most people), or at least find a brand with no calcium.

Only about 1 mg of your atorvastatin tablet is calcium, so you need not worry about the calcium in it.

The booklet on heart attacks, America's No. 1 killer, explains what happens, how they are treated and how they are avoided. Readers can order a copy by writing:

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19). To avoid wasting your energy, be strategic in your placement of it. Go where you're likely to get the most cooperation. Together you'll accomplish more.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). The word "fan" comes from "fanatic," meaning "a person filled with excessive and single-minded zeal." It's a state of being responsible for great harm in the world. It's far better to be gently and open-mindedly supportive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Children make socially inappropriate statements because they have yet to learn what's acceptable in different situations. Then there are those who will never learn. You'll help them though. You'll be a guiding force of decorum.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You may feel as though you are swinging your arms and flailing about in an attempt to regain some kind of balance. In fact, this a rather accurate depiction of what everyone is doing. It is the very essence of "action."

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). In a cruel loophole, pointing out another person's rudeness is rude. And if there's anything to avoid at all costs today, it's rudeness — not because it will upset others, but because it will ultimately make you disappointed in yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Silliness can be the preservation of sanity. And even if the situation isn't in dire need of silliness, it's the ingredient that will make your time memorable and fun.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Excellent question of the day: "Who cares?" — not in a snarky or defeatist sort of tone, but an investigative one. The answer will be your best customer, your ardent supporter, your dear friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You've started many things with good intentions but life gets in the way of finishing. It doesn't make you a slacker; it makes you a person who tends to priorities. But do consider those priorities today. Is it time to adjust them?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Someone you look up to as a role model isn't fit for the job. (Maybe you've made the common mistake of casting a movie star in that position.) You will seek and find guidance from one with real-world accomplishments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Before you dive into a project or take things in a new direction, play it out in the theater of your mind. It will be easier to try new things if you first take away the potential consequences.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Here's an insane quest: Try and find the perfect partner, job or situation. The insanity will come at no extra charge. Accept imperfection, however, and you'll get brilliant results. Sanity will be included in the price.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). People who are hard to read can have you coming back for more. But once you feel you have them figured out, your fascination wanes. The one who intuits this and makes it a mission to keep you guessing will enthrall you.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Jan. 25). You'll be surprised at what you can do. Of course, it takes something incredible to sustain your high energy throughout the year, and the juicy prize you'll choose works wonders to keep your tenacity and desire burning. An investigation or deal concludes successfully in May. Let yourself be frivolous this summer. Leo and Libra adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 10, 3, 38, 32 and 12.

BIBLE

"Behold I stand at the door, and knock, if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to Him and will sup with Him, and He with me," — Revelation 3:20.

Our eternal destiny revolves around the response we make to that knocking. It will not always be... it could stop today "My Spirit will not always strive with man," — Let Jesus in, he is there to lift you up and let you out.

Celibacy before marriage puts extra urgency on setting a date

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 50-year-old male engaged to be married to my elementary school sweetheart, "Marie." This will be the second marriage for both of us. We've been dating for six years, three of which were a long-distance relationship.

During a time when her mother became ill and sadly passed, Marie told me God had spoken to her and told her not to be sexually active anymore until we're married. I respect and want to honor her and God, but my concern is that we haven't even discussed a wedding date. The earliest could still be six or eight months away. Am I wrong for feeling resentment toward Marie, and will this resentment create problems after marriage with our bedroom life? — ON HOLD IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR ON HOLD: You and Marie have known each other for many years, and know each other very well in every sense. Because Marie doesn't want to have intimate relations again until after you are married, you should not only discuss a wedding date, but also an elopement.

DEAR ABBY: My sister takes my nephews for modeling and acting assignments. They have been in print ads, websites for clothing, and even a movie.

I was shocked when she told me her 6-year-old is interviewed without a parent present in the room. The boy is bright, self-possessed and spirited, but still — he's only 6. Given the recent revelations about industry-wide problems with child sexual abuse ("An Open Secret" documentary), was I out of line to suggest she have a device to listen in and record? — CONCERNED AUNTIE

DEAR CONCERNED AUNTIE: Better than that, minor children should have a trusted and responsible adult present — whether it's a parent, another relative or the child's agent. That way, everyone would be protected.

DEAR ABBY: My 24-year-old son, "Jeremy," no longer speaks to me because I asked him to move out. I'm not a fan of his girlfriend, and I'm worried about drugs. Jeremy and I have always been super close. I am so sad and I want to do what's right for both of us. What should I do? — TRYING TO DO THE RIGHT THING

DEAR TRYING: I don't know how emotionally mature Jeremy is, but chronologically he's an adult. If you suspected that he was using drugs while living with you, you had the right to insist he be tested for them — the tests are easily obtainable — as a condition of his continuing to live with you. However, for you to have based living under your roof on the condition that you "liked" his girlfriend was heavy-handed. It was wrong, and for that you should apologize. If you do, perhaps it will give you a chance to mend fences.

DEAR ABBY: We have a relative who is a terrible cook. How can we refuse her invitations when she's only trying to reciprocate? We enjoy her company, but not her food. We have gone out to eat, but she wants to cook for us! What to do? — SORRY, NOT HUNGRY

DEAR SORRY: You have two choices. Either be honest with her or graciously eat her food as infrequently as possible (and when you do, bring along a dish of your own to add to her dinner).

Do your homework on schools

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: Do you have a child or grandchild who is looking at college or a trade school? If she or he is a sophomore or junior in high school, now is a good time to start doing your homework and researching schools.

Here are some hints to help with the application process, from the U.S. Department of Education (www.ed.gov):

• Have the student be honest on the application. It won't help to lie or exaggerate.

• Online applications are faster.

• Colleges can and do check social media sites — make sure the student's is pristine.

• If letters of recommendation are needed, these can take time to get. Give coaches, supervisors and teachers at least one month, if not two, to get those completed.

• The student should showcase his or her individual talents on the application. The school wants students who are bright, unique and skilled!

• Save copies of everything sent out. — Heloise

Windshield and vinegar

Dear Readers: This time of year, much of the country can be in a deep freeze — brrr! There's an old hint of my mother's, the original Heloise (1919-1977), involving my favorite household helper, vinegar, and windshields. This can prevent the windshield from icing over overnight.

Using a mixture of ⅔ cup white or apple-cider vinegar and ⅓ cup water, wipe or spray lightly the outside of the car windshield the night before a hard freeze, if you're parked outside. This should lessen the effect of ice and lower your defrosting time.

In San Antonio, we don't often get hard freezes, but the vinegar-and-water mixture will clean the windshield at least, and it certainly is safe! Label all spray bottles so you know what you're working with! — Heloise

Opening lead: Five of ♠

East-West were having a lot of fun in the bidding, but they wouldn't have had much fun in the play. A contract of three spades, doubled, would have seen the defense taking nine tricks rather than the declarer. We've often thought that there should be a bonus for the defense if they make declarer's contract, but the laws make no such provision. South was Andrew Robson, one of England's all-time greats. He couldn't possibly imagine such a successful defense so he made the aggressive game bid that his exciting distribution suggested. North must have been quite surprised to hear an aggressive bid from partner after all the East-West bidding, but he bid the slam that his high cards suggested.

Robson made no mistake in the play. He won the opening spade lead with dummy's ace and continued with the king of spades, shedding a club from hand. When he saw West follow with the six of spades, after leading the five, Robson cashed the queen of spades and discarded another club. He then cashed the ace of hearts, the ace of clubs, and the ace of diamonds, followed by a diamond ruff in his hand.

He cashed the king of clubs and ruffed his last club with dummy's eight of hearts. When that held the trick, he led the 10 of hearts and conceded a trump trick to West, making his contract. At the other table, one of the world's best declarers failed in the same contract. Surprisingly, the auction at his table also started with a weak two-bid from East.

South Carolina upsets No. 20 Florida

By MARK LONG
Associated Press

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Wesley Myers scored a season-high 22 points, Chris Silva added a double-double and South Carolina upset No. 20 Florida 77-72 on Wednesday night.

Silva finished with 18 points and 12 rebounds for the Gamecocks, who won the Elite Eight rematch from last year's NCAA Tournament.

South Carolina knocked off the Gators in that one thanks to 42 points in the paint. Coach Frank Martin's team won this one from the 3-point line.

The Gamecocks (13-7, 4-4 Southeastern Conference) hit 11 of 21 shots from beyond the arc, matching their most 3s all season. Myers was 5 of 7 from 3-point range, taking advantage of the league's worst team at defending the 3.

Four make Hall of Fame

By BEN WALKER
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Chipper Jones, Jim Thome, Vladimir Guerrero and Trevor Hoffman were elected to the baseball Hall of Fame.

Designated hitter Edgar Martinez came close after a grass-roots campaign to boost him. Barry Bonds and Roger Clemens, both tainted by the steroids scandal, edged up but again fell far short.

Jones and Thome made it 54 players elected in their first year of eligibility by members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Jones drew 97.2 percent (410 of 422) in results announced Wednesday, and Thome was at 89.8 percent.

"It was waterworks," Jones said after hearing the vote.

Jones was an eight-time All-Star third baseman for the Atlanta Braves.

The switch-hitter batted .303 with 468 home runs.

Woods confident back will hold up

By DOUG FERGUSON
Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Tiger Woods is more confident than ever that his return to the PGA Tour will be different this time.

It's not so much how he plays, but rather for how long.

"I have no more pain in my back," Woods said Wednesday.

That wasn't the case a year ago. Woods was coming off the longest break of his career following two back surgeries when he played the Hero World Challenge and showed promise by making 24 birdies against an 18-man field with no cut. But then he missed the 36-hole cut at Torrey Pines, and lasted one round in Dubai before withdrawing with back spasms.

Fusion surgery on his lower back followed two months later, and now Woods is on the same track as he was last year — with one exception.

"I was trying to manage the disk and the vertebrae," Woods said after his pro-am round in the Farmers Insurance Open. "But it's all finished now. It's fused, and the quality of life is infinitely better than it was last year at this point."

He looked just as strong, just as healthy, as he did in the Bahamas last month. Woods began and ended the pro-am with

Nassar scandal far from over

By ED WHITE and DAVID EGGERT
Associated Press

LANSING, Mich. — A decades-long sentence for Michigan sports doctor Larry Nassar ensures he won't be free again. But the conclusion of an extraordinary seven-day court hearing doesn't close the book on the scandal. Nassar, 54, was sentenced Wednesday to a minimum of 40 years in state prison, a punishment that's in addition to a 60-year term in federal prison for child pornography crimes. Michigan State University, where Nassar assaulted young gymnasts and other athletes, is under fire by victims, lawyers and lawmakers who want to know why he was able to get away with it for so long.

Here's where things stand while Nassar sits behind bars:

NOT DONE YET

Nassar will appear in an Eaton County, Michigan, court on Jan. 31 for another prison sentence. He pleaded guilty to assaulting three girls at Twistars, a gymnastics club. Victims said they were regularly molested after lining up

Tennys Sandgren blasts media in final shot at Aussie Open

By JUSTIN BERGMAN
Associated Press

MELBOURNE, Australia — After losing in the Australian Open quarterfinals on Wednesday, Tennys Sandgren saved his final shot of the tournament for the media.

Sandgren opened his news conference following a 6-4, 7-6 (5), 6-3 loss to Hyeon Chung by reading a prepared statement directed at the media that has scrutinized his Twitter feed during his unexpected run at Melbourne Park.

"With a handful of follows and some likes on Twitter, my fate has been sealed in your minds," Sandgren said, reading from his mobile phone. "To write an edgy story, to create sensationalist coverage, there are a few lengths you wouldn't go to to mark me as the man you desperately want me to be."

Sandgren refused to answer questions about his statement, saying that the focus around

Simmons helps 76ers top Bulls

The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Ben Simmons had 19 points, 17 rebounds and 14 assists for his fifth triple-double of the season to lead the Philadelphia 76ers to a 115-101 victory over the Chicago Bulls on Wednesday night.

Dario Saric added 21 points and 10 rebounds and Joel Embiid had 22 points for the 76ers, who have won seven of 10.

Bobby Portis scored 22 points and Zach LaVine had 21 for the Bulls.

PELICANS 101, HORNETS 96: Jrue Holiday and Anthony Davis each scored 19 points, DeMarcus Cousins had 16 points and 13 rebounds and the New Orleans Pelicans defeated the Charlotte Hornets for their sixth win in the last seven games. Cousins had 16 points and 13 rebounds for the Pelicans.

PACERS 116, SUNS 101: Thaddeus Young scored 22 points, Victor Oladipo had 21 points and nine assists and the Indiana Pacers pulled away from the Phoenix Suns. The Pacers have won five of six, blowing out the Suns for the second time in 10 days.

JAZZ 98, PISTONS 95, OT: Joe Ingles made a tying layup in the final seconds of regulation, then added two straight 3-pointers in overtime to lift the Utah Jazz over the Detroit Pistons. The Pistons lost their sixth straight by blowing a nine-point lead late in the fourth quarter.

MEN'S COLLEGE BASKETBALL: ROUNDUP

Miami beats Louisville in OT

By STEVEN WINE
Associated Press

CORAL GABLES — Lonnie Walker IV scored 25 points, including an acrobatic layup to force overtime, and the Miami Hurricanes edged Louisville 78-75 in overtime Wednesday night.

Dewan Huell's dunk on a follow put the Hurricanes ahead to stay in the extra period, 73-71.

Louisville coach David Padgett argued in vain that Huell should have been called for goaltending.

The Hurricanes missed 5 of 10 free throws in the final 22 seconds but hung on.

Walker blocked a 3-point try by Ryan McMahon, and a 30-footer by the Cardinals' Deng Adel at the final buzzer barely hit the rim.

Miami (15-4, 4-3 Atlantic Coast Conference) snapped Louisville's four-game win streak. The Cardinals (15-5, 5-2) fell to third place in the conference standings behind No. 2 Virginia and No. 4 Duke.

Louisville shot 0 for 5 in overtime and finished at 42 percent. Miami won despite shooting 37 percent.

Walker's layup with five seconds left sent the game into overtime.

The Hurricanes missed their first six shots in the extra period before Walker fed Bruce Brown Jr. for a fast-break dunk and a tie at 71.

Brown otherwise had a rough night offensively, going 2 for 10 and missing all four 3-point tries. Huell had 18 points and 12 rebounds.

Quentin Snider led Louisville with 18 points. Anas Mahmoud had 15 points and four blocks off the bench. Junior Ray Spalding scored nine points, grabbed 13 rebounds and tied a career high with five blocks.

Xavier 89, Marquette 70: Point guard Quentin Goodin scored 13 of his team-high 15 points while No. 8 Xavier took control in the first half, and the Musketeers routed Marquette 89-70 on Wednesday night to remain unbeaten at home.

NO. 24 RHODE ISLAND 78, FORDHAM 58: Andre Berry scored 20 points on 9-of-12 shooting, Jared Terrell had 17 points and six assists, and No. 24 Rhode Island cruised past Fordham at historic Rose Hill Gym. Stan Robinson added 16 points, seven steals and six rebounds for the newly ranked Rams, who moved into the AP Top 25 this week. Rhode Island (16-3, 8-0 Atlantic-10) jumped out to an 8-0 lead 2:34 into the game after Berry assisted on a 3-pointer by E.C. Matthews. Fordham (6-14, 1-7) tied it at 22 with 5:14 left in the first half after back-to-back 3s by Ivan Raut. URI answered with another 8-0 run, capped by Berry's layup off a pass from Fatts Russell, before taking a 36-27 lead into halftime.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Napheesa Collier scored 19 points and grabbed 12 rebounds and top-ranked Connecticut routed Memphis 93-36 Wednesday to remain undefeated.

UConn (19-0, 8-0 American Athletic Conference) trailed only briefly in the opening minutes before beating Memphis for the ninth time overall and second time this season.

West Virginia 82, Texas Tech 52: Katrina Pardee hit six 3-pointers and scored 23 points, Teana Muldrow moved into the top 10 in career scoring and No. 20 West Virginia rolled to an 82-52 win over Texas Tec on Wednesday night.

Texas Christian 68, Kansas State 63: Amy Okonkwo scored 22 points, including the clinching layup with eight seconds left, and No. 24 TCU celebrated its first appearance in the Top 25 in seven years with a 68-63 win over Kansas State on Wednesday night.

Mann leads Florida St. past Ga. Tech

By JOE REEDY
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Florida State coach Leonard Hamilton referred to Terance Mann as a "stat stuffer" when he was a freshman two years ago because of his ability to play an all-around game.

On Wednesday night, Mann delivered one of the best games of his collegiate career.

The 6-foot-6 junior guard scored a career-high 30 points and led the Seminoles with five rebounds and five assists in an 88-77 win over Georgia Tech.

"I was just attacking, attacking, attacking. I want to be like that every game but tonight it just played out well," said Mann, who has seven games this season where he has scored 20 points or more. "Once you see the ball going through the net you want to keep going."

Florida State (15-5) lost three of its first four Atlantic Coast Conference games but has won two straight and three of its last four to even its conference record to 4-4.

Mann — whose previous career high was 25 points in games earlier this season at Florida and against Louisville — hit his first seven shots and was 10 of 13 from the field. He scored 21 points in the first half, including nine of the Seminoles' final 14 points in the frame as they led 50-36 at halftime.

FLORIDA

The Gators (14-6, 6-2) led by 11 in the first half and were up 48-39 early in the second. But they had no answer for Myers outside and Silva down low.

Frank Booker sealed the victory by hitting four free throws in the final 40 seconds.

Florida won eight of its previous nine games to return to the rankings for the first time in more than a month.

Egor Koulechov and Jalen Hudson led Florida with 16 points apiece. KeVaughn Allen added 15 for the Gators, who shot 6 of 23 from 3-point range.

Florida had a great chance to tie the game with two minutes to play, but teammates turned the ball over while fighting for a rebound. Silva sank a jumper a few seconds later to make it 73-68.

BIG PICTURE

South Carolina: The Gamecocks picked up an NCAA Tournament-boosting victory on the road against a ranked team. It was the team's first road victory against a ranked team since upsetting then-No. 8 Texas A&M on Feb. 6, 2016. This one came eight days after upsetting Kentucky in Columbia, but might do more for Martin's team come tourney time.

Florida: Gators center John Egbunu took part in pregame warmups for the first time this season, a positive step in his return from reconstructive knee surgery. Egbunu missed the final 10 games last year after tearing the anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee. He began non-contact practice last week and could be a huge help in the post for the Gators when he returns.

HINSON HURT

South Carolina guard Evan Hinson, also a tight end on the football team, left the game with what appeared to be cramping in his right leg midway through the second half.

Hinson had to be helped to the bench for treatment, but later returned. The sophomore was playing well before the injury, having tied a career high with eight points.

Stich, Sukova elected to hall of fame

NEWPORT, R.I. — Michael Stich and Helena Sukova have been elected to the International Tennis Hall of Fame.

The Class of 2018 was announced Wednesday.

Stich won the 1991 Wimbledon singles championship and paired with John McEnroe to win the doubles title at the All England Club the following year.

The German reached No. 2 in the rankings and was a two-time runner-up at major tournaments.

Sukova won a career Grand Slam in women's doubles, with four titles at Wimbledon, two at the U.S. Open and one apiece at the French Open and Australian Open.

She also won six mixed major titles in doubles titles and helped the Czech Republic win four Fed Cup championships.

The induction ceremony is scheduled for July 21.

TENNIS

him "has gone very far away from the tennis."

If one thing is clear after the past few days, it certainly has.

Given what he's accomplished on the courts at Melbourne Park, Sandgren's story was initially focused on his tennis. The 26-year-old Tennessee native has never come close to experiencing this type of success before. Prior to coming to Melbourne, Sandgren was a mainstay on the second-tier Challenger Tour — the minor leagues of tennis. He had only won two matches at the ATP Tour level - and never played in a Grand Slam.

But in Melbourne, Sandgren came out of nowhere to stun two top-10 players - Stan Wawrinka and Dominic Thiem - en route to being just the second man in the last 20 years to reach the quarterfinals on his Australian Open debut.

What started off as a fairytale story, though, began to change tenor when Sandgren's social media activity came to light.

Before he scrubbed his Twitter history on Tuesday, Sandgren's tweets had included one saying the unfounded "Pizzagate" conspiracy theory linking Democrats to a child-sex ring at a Washington pizzeria was "sickening and the collective evidence is too much to ignore."

He also tweeted in 2012, "stumbled into a gay club last night.. my eyes are still bleeding #nooneshouldseethat"

Among his recent retweets was a video by Nicholas Fuentes, former host of a podcast called "America First" who attended last year's white nationalist rally in Charlottesville, Va.

And he apparently targeted Serena Williams, calling a video of her yelling at Roberta Vinci during their U.S. Open semifinal in 2015 "disgusting."

Williams had taken notice, sending her own tweet during Sandgren's match, saying "Turns channel" - a message her followers interpreted as a response.

She later sent him a direct tweet, saying, "I don't need or want one. But there is a entire group of people that deserves an apology. I can't look at my daughter and tell her I sat back and was quiet. No! She will know how to stand up for herself and others - through my example."

Sandgren has defended his social media activity this week, denying being a supporter of the far right while saying he finds "some of the content interesting."

WOODS

an approach to a few feet for easy birdies.

The real test begins Thursday at a tournament he has won seven times, not including his U.S. Open title in 2008.

This will be only his second PGA Tour event since August 2015.

Woods is known for saying that he shows up at every tournament expecting to win, though time — not to mention four back surgeries in nearly four years — has tempered his expectations. He concedes he has competitive rust, at least compared with the players he will try to beat.

"I just want to start playing on the tour, and getting into a rhythm of playing a schedule again," Woods said. "I haven't done that in such a long time, so I don't know what to expect. Just go out there and just play. I'm going to grind."

Woods used to be able to look at a golf course and have a reasonable idea what kind of score it would take to win.

That's no longer the case, mainly because of the competition.

He has played only one tournament with Jon Rahm, the 23-year-old Spaniard who won last week in the California desert and can move to No. 1 in the world if he can defend his title at Torrey Pines. Woods met him for the first time this week.

"A lot of names I haven't seen, I haven't played with, I haven't seen their games," he said. "We'll see."

Woods begins on the South Course on Thursday with Charley Hoffman and Patrick Reed. The South is the stronger of the two courses, having hosted the U.S. Open, and it's where Woods has taken control the seven times he won the PGA Tour event here.

He was so predictably good that in late January 2008 — the year the U.S. Open was coming to Torrey Pines — caddie John Wood lingered behind the 18th green on the South course and watched as Woods finished off an opening-round 67.

"He just won two tournaments with one round," the caddie said, and he was right. Woods won the Buick Invitational by eight shots, and the U.S. Open for his 14th major.

Now, no one is sure what to expect.

He said he has been playing six days a week at home since the start of the year. There is no concern about his back giving out.

The next step is posting a score against a full field with a 36-hole cut.

Woods said he has a schedule in mind for the next few months, though he's not ready to reveal that publicly. The only other tournament on his schedule is the Genesis Open at Riviera in three weeks. Woods, at No. 647 in the world, is not eligible for a pair of World Golf Championships in March.

Jones was a force for most of the Atlanta teams that won 14 straight division titles — his election puts another member of those Braves clubs in Cooperstown, along with pitchers John Smoltz, Tom Glavine and Greg Maddux, manager Bobby Cox and general manager John Schuerholz.

Thome hit 612 home runs, putting him eighth on the career list. The five-time All-Star played mostly for the Cleveland Indians.

Guerrero was elected in his second try, getting 92.9 percent. The nine-time All-Star slugger played half his career with the Montreal Expos. The outfielder was a notorious bad-ball hitter, batting .318 with 449 homers and 1,496 RBIs.

Hoffman was chosen in his third year, getting 79.9 percent after missing by just five votes last time. The former San Diego Padres closer had 601 saves, second to Mariano Rivera's 652.

It took 75 percent for election, or 317 votes. Martinez made a big move up to 70.4 percent and fell 20 votes short. Mike Mussina climbed to 63.5 percent.

Clemens, winner of 354 games and seven Cy Young Awards, got 57.3 percent after drawing 54.1 percent last time. Bonds, the career home run leader and a seven-time MVP, reached 56.4 percent, up from 53.8 percent.

Clemens and Bonds each have four tries left.

The four new members will be inducted on July 29 . They will be joined by Jack Morris and shortstop Alan Trammell, who were picked last month by a committee that considered older players and executives.

Rivera heads the ballot next year, once again raising debate over whether any player will unanimously elected to the Hall. The late Roy Halladay also will be a first-time candidate.

New Prostate Pill Has an Amazing Sexual Side Effect

Key ingredients block the hormones that cause prostate growth and sexual dysfunction; men report sleeping more, going to the bathroom less and having incredible sex

Kris Stellum
Associated Health Press

Great Sleep, Great Sex and Less Running to Find a Bathroom: Published studies on the ingredients in ProstaGorx show that they block the hormones associated with prostate growth and sexual let downs.

AHP – Men taking a new prostate pill showed amazing improvements in both bladder control and sexual health, shocking researchers.

Innovus Pharmaceuticals, the company behind the new 2-in-1 pill, say its key ingredients block specific hormones in the body that trigger prostate growth and are tied to sexual dysfunction.

When taken daily, studies show they can reduce urinary urgency and frequency...dribbling and leaking...and help empty the bladder completely. It also boosts libido and sexual performance.

"Men say the first two things they notice is that they are waking up less for the bathroom and are having a lot more sex" says Dr. Henry Esber, Director of Science at Innovus.

"It's why they love the product. While most prostate drugs kill your sex life, our pill brings it to a whole new level no matter your age".

"It also addresses many of the urinary problems associated with prostate enlargement such as a straining, weak urine streams and the constant urge to urinate."

AMAZING IMPROVEMENTS IN THE BEDROOM

Sales for this new pill, called ProstaGorx, are exploding. And that's because ProstaGorx is not a drug. It's something completely different.

Its active ingredients are known as plant sterols, which have been shown in several published clinical trials to block prostate growth without side effects.

Research shows they help men regain control of their bladders and escape all the urinary discomfort that can make life miserable.

But perhaps more exciting, they also provide users a much-needed boost in sexual health, especially in performance and the ability to climax.

TARGETS THE REAL CAUSE OF PROSTATE GROWTH IN MEN

Research shows a healthy prostate is essential for urinary function and bladder control. That's why men with small prostates pee freely, forcefully and without hesitation.

There is no pain, discomfort or sense of urgency. The bladder will also fully empty during normal urination.

But men with enlarged prostates experience just the opposite. A relentless battle with enlarged prostate symptoms that can linger on for decades.

And that's why ProstaGorx is so effective. Its key ingredients have been clinically tested to block the hormones associated with prostate growth, restoring vital prostate health.

BOOSTS SEXUAL PERFORMANCE

According to research published by the Mayo Clinic, men with swollen prostates also have less sex, lower sex drives, and more problems with their erections.

It's estimated that over 8 out of 10 men end up suffering with erectile dysfunction!

"Most men have no idea that their prostate can impact their sexual performance" says Dr. Esber. "The prostate gland must be healthy to achieve a powerful orgasm. If its swollen, men can experience serious sexual let downs."

WORKS LIKE POPULAR PROSTATE PILLS BUT WITH NO SIDE EFFECTS

ProstaGorx ingredients target the same pathways targeted by drugs like Alpha Blockers but without any side effects . It is also available without a prescription.

As men age, their body's start to convert its remaining testosterone into estrogen through a process known as aromatase.

As more and more testosterone is converted, the body becomes imbalanced and signals the production of DHT – a growth hormone 10 times stronger than regular testosterone.

The Ingredients in ProstaGorx are Clinically Published To

- Reduce frequency and urgency
- Stop dribbling, dripping, and leaking
- Improve urine flow and force
- Assist in bladder emptying
- Reduce discomfort while urinating
- End late night bathroom trips
- Restore sexual health and optimal performance

But instead of correcting this imbalance, this enormous spike in DHT triggers the prostate to grow rapidly.

And eventually the prostate gets so large and places so much pressure on the bladder that the urethra clamps shut, which is what causes the painful and persistent prostate problems that have most men living their adult years around the bathroom.

The key ingredients in ProstaGorx are clinically published to block DHT, which restores phenomenal prostate health.

As levels of DHT decline, the prostate gets smaller, allowing men to regain control of their bladders and finally find relief from urinary discomfort.

CLINICALLY TESTED & PUBLISHED

In a new clinical study, the leading ingredient in ProstaGorx slashed lower urinary tract symptoms by a staggering 81% and was reported to be as effective as a top drug but without any of the associated side effects.

In a subsequent study, it was also shown to boost libido and sexual performance.

"Ever since I retired my prostate has given me hell" explains an early user of ProstaGorx.

"But since taking ProstaGorx everything has changed. I've stopped waking up for the bathroom in the middle of the night. I pee a lot less during the day. And out of nowhere my sex life's improved! I've tried everything and this is the only thing that's worked."

FAST AND EFFECTIVE RELIEF

ProstaGorx is an exciting new prostate pill that's helping men find real relief from prostate problems without any of the negative side effects from drugs.

By blocking the hormones in the body that trigger prostate growth, the ingredients in ProstaGorx work quickly and safely to relieve your worst symptoms.

With daily use, they'll help you sleep more, pee less, and have much better sex and are clinically proven to end the urgency and frequency, improve urinary flow and force, and give you an entirely new level of comfort that makes life easier and much more enjoyable.

NFL: PRO BOWL NOTEBOOK

Jaguars' Ngakoue, Bills' Incognito clear air after remarks

By MARK LONG
Associated Press

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. — Buffalo Bills guard Richie Incognito jogged off the practice field Wednesday, started signing autographs for kids and then declined all interview requests.

Incognito's version of what happened during a wild-card game at Jacksonville earlier this month remains unclear.

Jaguars defensive end Yannick Ngakoue accused Incognito of using "weak racist slurs" during the game. They ended up as Pro Bowl teammates this week, and Ngakoue said Wednesday they cleared the air and are good to go.

Ngakoue declined to get into specifics about their conversation at ESPN's Wide World of Sports complex, preferring to move on.

Jaguars defensive tackle Malik Jackson provided more insight, saying he saw Ngakoue and Incognito talking before practice.

"That was really cool, you know," Jackson said. "We have a huge respect for each other, and sometimes the heat of the moment can get to you and you can say things you might not really mean or do things you might not really mean and be apologetic for it.

"I think it shows the true character of a man to come and apologize and/or talk about it to clear the air."

Ngakoue called out Incognito on Twitter hours after Jacksonville's 10-3 victory on Jan. 7.

Ngakoue repeatedly has declined to disclose what Incognito said.

"I just felt like people needed to know what happened," Ngakoue said the next day. "He knows what he said. I don't got to repeat it."

NFL spokesman Brian McCarthy said Wednesday the exchange "remains under review."

Here are some other things of note from the first day of Pro Bowl practice:

BELL'S CONTRACT: Steelers running back Le'Veon Bell says he and the team are making progress on a contract extension . Pittsburgh has presented an initial offer, and Bell says "we are a lot closer than we were last year."

The 25-year-old back turned down a long-term contract in 2017, skipped training camp and then signed a one-year, $12 million franchise tender. The Steelers could franchise him again in March, a move Bell told ESPN would force him to consider retiring or sitting out the 2018 season. A second tag would be worth around $14.5 million.

"I think we'll get something done and it will be exciting for both sides, for the fans and everybody," said Bell, who led the NFL in touches (404) this past season.

LAWRENCE'S DEAL: Cowboys defensive lineman Demarcus Lawrence is also in for a huge payday after finishing with 14½ sacks. Lawrence said following NFC practice that he would welcome the franchise tag , which would guarantee Lawrence around $17 million in 2018.

"It will get done eventually, so I'm not worrying about my contract," Lawrence told NFL.com. "I'm trying to have a good time with this group of guys and my family while I'm here. ... Franchise not bad. Contract not bad. So, like I said, I'm not worrying about nothing. I'll leave it up to my agent. He'll take care of me."

STILL REELING: Jaguars cornerback A.J. Bouye said he and his four Pro Bowl teammates are still trying to get over losing to New England in the AFC championship game.

"It's only going to motivate me to go harder and motivate our team," he said. "I already see the hunger. We're even talking about it here in Orlando. I know we've got to watch the (Super Bowl). But we'll be there next year. We're going to find a way."

TRASH KING: Jaguars cornerback Jalen Ramsey might be the NFL's best trash-talker. He upset Baltimore's Steve Smith in 2016 and agitated mild-mannered Cincinnati's A.J. Green so much in November that Green choked and body-slammed Ramsey . Ramsey doesn't plan on quieting down much, if at all, this week.

"I don't know if anybody out here is on my level with the trash talk yet. But, throughout the week, we're going to find out," Ramsey said.

"I'm going to cool it a little bit. But at the end of the day, I'm me. I'm always going to be me (and I'm) here in full effect this week."

NFL: PHILADELPHIA EAGLES

Schwartz turned Eagles' defense around

By ROB MAADDI
Associated Press

AP PHOTO

Philadelphia Eagles' Jim Schwartz watches from the sideline Nov. 5, 2017, against the Denver Broncos in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA — Jim Schwartz inherited one of the NFL's worst defenses and turned them into one of the best in less than two years.

When coach Doug Pederson hired Schwartz to be the defensive coordinator in 2016, the Philadelphia Eagles were coming off three straight seasons ranked in the bottom four in yards allowed.

Schwartz changed the scheme back to a 4-3 base and rebuilt the defense using many of the same players left from the old regime. He also brought a swagger that's reflected in his players.

Three-time Pro Bowl defensive tackle Fletcher Cox, two-time Pro Bowl safety Malcolm Jenkins, defensive linemen Brandon Graham and Beau Allen, and linebacker Mychal Kendricks were part of the unit that struggled under former coach Chip Kelly and former defensive coordinator Billy Davis.

But they've thrived under Schwartz because his system fits their skills.

"He always puts us in great position to make plays," Jenkins said.

Schwartz made an immediate impact last season, helping the defense go from 30th in yards allowed and 28th in points to 13th and 12th, respectively.

This season, they ranked fourth in both categories and had the league's No. 1 run defense.

While Minnesota's top-ranked defense got most of the attention, Philadelphia's unit has been excellent in the playoffs.

The Eagles have allowed only 17 points in two games — one touchdown drive was 18 yards following a fumbled punt. They dominated the Vikings in a 38-7 win in the NFC championship game last Sunday.

Now, Schwartz has to devise a plan to stop Tom Brady and the Patriots in the Super Bowl.

"No player stands on his own," Schwartz said. "The NFL in general, but particularly the Patriots, you can't scheme for one player. If you do, then they have plenty of other players that can make plays. You have to do a good job against their entire offense, and you can't really make it about one person."

Schwartz began his NFL coaching career in Cleveland as a research assistant for Bill Belichick in 1993. After three seasons with the Browns, he spent three years as outside linebackers coach in Baltimore and then went to Tennessee. Schwartz served 10 seasons with the Titans, the last eight as defensive coordinator.

He coached the Detroit Lions for five seasons, leading them to the playoffs in 2011. Schwartz was Doug Marrone's defensive coordinator in Buffalo in 2014, worked as a consultant for the NFL's officiating department in 2015 and came to Philadelphia after Pederson was hired to replace Kelly.

"I owe a lot to Bill Belichick. He got my career started," Schwartz said. "That's the last thing that we'll be thinking about in preparation. You think any of our players care that in 1993 I got hired as an unpaid intern? They are just going out and playing."

COLLEGE FOOTBALL: FSU

FSU quarterback Deondre Francois involved in domestic dispute with pregnant woman

By Safid Deen
Orlando Sentinel (TNS)

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Florida State quarterback Deondre Francois was involved in a domestic dispute with his pregnant girlfriend late Tuesday afternoon, but he is not being further investigated for his role in the incident.

Both Francois, 20, and the woman, 23, gave varying statements to the Tallahassee Police Department following the incident at Francois' apartment, where another member of the FSU football team was also present and spoke to police.

The officer was unable to establish probable cause to make an arrest for aggravated battery, according to an incident report.

No arrests were made, and no charges were filed after the incident.

Francois called police to his apartment after an argument ensued between him and his girlfriend.

Francois told police she had begun to break items in the apartment, including a vase, and tried to rip a television off a wall. He tried to pick the woman up and take her outside of the apartment, but she began to swing at him.

Francois told police the woman started to rip her shirt while saying "I'm going to call the cops for domestic violence."

The woman, who told police she is nine weeks pregnant, said she did not want Francois to get in "trouble, trouble." But she did want the police to speak with Francois to "scare him a little," according to the report.

The woman then asked police if Francois would get in trouble for smoking marijuana at the apartment before the incident.

The woman did not want to press charges against Francois, according to the report.

The woman said Francois broke his bedroom door after she locked herself inside, picked her up and threw her to the ground, cut her forearm and tried to kick her out of the apartment.

The woman stated the cut occurred when Francois tried to "drag her out of the house," while Francois told police the cut came from the woman breaking the vase.

The dispute began because Francois was upset a friend tried to "talk to her," the woman said in an incident report, while Francois told police it stemmed from a previous argument.

The woman told police she and Francois began dating about a year ago, and she had moved into his apartment roughly six to seven months ago. Francois told police the woman previously told him she was pregnant, but she did not provide documentation.

FSU running back Zaquandre White, who was at the apartment during the incident, told police the woman began breaking glasses, a vase, and she tried to break a television before locking herself in Francois' room.

White told police Francois only touched the woman while trying to prevent her from breaking more items and defending himself when she "swung at him."

The Florida State athletics department had no comment Wednesday when reached by the Orlando Sentinel regarding the incident.

Francois is expected to compete for FSU's starting quarterback position with James Blackman, a former true freshman who replaced Francois in the lineup last season.

Francois missed most of his redshirt sophomore season after tearing the patellar tendon in his left knee during the Alabama opener last season.

Francois has spent most of the season and offseason rehabbing the injury with hopes of being able to participate in FSU's spring practice this March.

As a redshirt freshman, Francois threw for 3,350 yards with 20 touchdowns and seven interceptions in 2016, helping the Seminoles to a 10-3 record, which included an Orange Bowl victory over Michigan at season's end.

NFL: MIAMI DOLPHINS

AFC receiver Jarvis Landry of the Miami Dolphins competes in the Drone Drop Event during the Pro Bowl NFL Skills Showdown, Wednesday in Kissimmee, Fla.

Ravens reportedly tried to trade for Dolphins' Landry

By Omar Kelly
Sun Sentinel (TNS)

MOBILE, Ala. — The Miami Dolphins know there will be competition for the services of Jarvis Landry, and one team that is reportedly interested tried to land the three-time Pro Bowl receiver last season.

According to the Baltimore Sun, the Ravens inquired about trading for Landry during the 2017 offseason. The Dolphins fielded offers for Landry and running back Jay Ajayi at the NFL trade deadline in October, but decided to only move Ajayi, who was traded to the Philadelphia Eagles for a 2018 fourth-round pick.

On Tuesday, during the Senior Bowl practices, Ravens general manager Ozzie Newsome could be heard joking with Dolphins vice president of football operations Mike Tannenbaum about a deal that could have been. Tannenbaum wasn't amused.

It appeared that Newsome, whose team needs help at receiver, might have been referring to Landry, an impending free agent.

The Dolphins and Landry's camp have exchanged contract offers, but have yet to reach a deal.

Landry, who caught a franchise-record 112 passes for 987 yards and a career-high nine touchdowns this past season, is seeking a contract that would pay him as if he's a top-10 receiver, which means an annual salary that's in the $14-15 million range.

Landry's agent, Damarius Bilbo, said last week that Landry, a slot receiver, wants to be paid as a No. 1 receiver.

"With all this, 'What type of receiver is he — slot or outside?' or all this, he's a No. 1 receiver," Bilbo said. "He's a No. 1 receiver.

"No matter what you classify him as, or how you use him in that offense, he's a No.1 receiver. ... So at the end of the day Jarvis understands his value and he wants to be compensated as such."

The new contracts given to Green Bay's Devante Adams and Philadelphia's Alshon Jeffery likely will set the bar for Landry. Jeffery, who signed a one-year deal worth $8 million with the Eagles last offseason, received a four-year extension in December worth $52 million. That new deal paid him $27 million in guaranteed money, and means he could potentially earn $60 million over the course of five years.

Adams signed a four-year deal worth $58 million in December, which will pay him $32 million over the first two years.

Adams' $14.5 million average annual salary will be the fourth-highest among NFL receivers next season behind those of Pittsburgh's Antonio Brown ($17 million), Houston's DeAndre Hopkins ($16.2 million), and Cincinnati's A.J. Green ($15 million).

According to a league source, the Dolphins and Landry aren't that far off, and plenty of ground could be closed before free agency opens in March.

The Dolphins could potentially place the franchise or transition tag on Landry, keeping him from becoming an unrestricted free agent. The last date to use the franchise or transition tag is March 6. Free agency begins on March 14.

AUTO RACING: ROLEX 24 AT DAYTONA

Ricky, Jordan Taylor split to race against each other

By JENNA FRYER
Associated Press

It was evident last year was going to be a special season for Wayne Taylor Racing when the organization rolled into Daytona International Speedway. The team had coaxed Jeff Gordon into joining its lineup for the Rolex 24 at Daytona, where they debuted the new Cadillac program.

Gordon was the headliner, but Ricky and Jordan Taylor were the stars and teamed together to give their father's team the overall victory in one of the most prestigious sports car races of the year. The brothers went on to win the first five races of the IMSA schedule and the series championship.

Then Ricky Taylor promptly left. He was offered a job to drive for Roger Penske in a new Acura program that would directly compete against his father and brother. His family knew he had to take the ride.

"If there was any time to leave Dad's program, it was after the season we had," Ricky Taylor said. "We did it, we won the championship, we won Daytona, so that made the transition a lot easier. To get an opportunity to go to Acura with Team Penske, I don't think anyone could turn it down."

Wayne Taylor understood — seeing a son drive for Penske is what every racing parent hopes for — and so did his little brother. The two have not always raced together, and Ricky was not on the team when Jordan Taylor helped the organization win the 2013 series championship.

The brothers will now be rivals beginning Saturday at the Rolex 24.

Jordan Taylor will try to defend the overall title in his Cadillac with new teammate Renger van der Zande and IndyCar star Ryan Hunter-Reay, the endurance race replacement for Gordon. Ricky Taylor is part of an eagerly anticipated Penske and Acura effort that has him partnered with three-time Indianapolis 500 winner Helio Castroneves and Graham Rahal, the IndyCar driver added for endurance races.

By MARC TOPKIN
Tampa Bay Times

ST. PETERSBURG - Rays infielder Christian Arroyo, the headliner in the trade return for Evan Longoria, worked out at the Trop on Wednesday and said the broken left hand that sidelined him last season is healed and he should be ready to go early in spring training.

Arroyo said he was cleared to resume baseball activities after a Jan. 9 visit to surgeon Donald Sheridan in Arizona. After a week of "dry swings" – with no ball involved – he hit off a tee on Monday and again Wednesday.

"First time I've actually swung a bat and it hasn't bothered me at all," Arroyo said. "The hand is great. Right now it's about getting back into baseball shape. I haven't swung a bat since (being in) the Dominican, which was the beginning of October. The second surgery was a great success. ... (Sheridan) was very pleased with my last X-rays, CT scan, the whole nine, and everything looked great."

Arroyo, 22, said the plan is to hit off the tee for two weeks, then advance to swinging at tossed balls and to begin taking live batting practice around the start of pitcher/catcher workouts Feb. 14 in Port Charlotte.

Arroyo, a Tampa native and Hernando High product, made his major-league debut last April with the Giants. He broke his hand after being hit by a pitch July 1 after going back to Triple-A.

Comfortable playing shortstop as well as second and third base, Arroyo is expected to compete for a job in spring training but may open the season at Triple-A.

Vonn, Shiffrin, Ligety lead US Alpine roster for Olympics

Associated Press

PARK CITY, Utah — Past Olympic medalists Lindsey Vonn, Mikaela Shiffrin, Ted Ligety and Andrew Weibrecht are among the 22 ski racers named to the U.S. Alpine team heading to the Pyeongchang Games.

U.S. Ski and Snowboard announced the roster on Wednesday.

Vonn won a downhill gold and super-G bronze at the 2010 Vancouver Games, then sat out the Sochi Olympics four years later because of a knee injury. Shiffrin won a slalom gold in 2014, while Ligety owns two golds and Weibrecht has one silver and one bronze.

A couple of familiar faces and multiple-medal winners who are not on the team because they have retired from competition are Bode Miller and Julia Mancuso.

The U.S. men's team includes David Chodounsky, Tommy Ford, Tim Jitloff, Nolan Kasper and Steven Nyman. The women's roster includes Stacey Cook, Megan McJames, Alice Mckennis, Laurenne Ross, Resi Stiegler and Jackie Wiles.

Lightning's Brayden Point named to All Star team

By JOE SMITH
Tampa Bay Times

PHILADELPHIA — Brayden Point had just wrapped up the Lightning's thrilling 4-3 come-from-behind overtime victory in Nashville on Tuesday night when he got some news that blew him away.

Point, 21, is going to his first NHL All-Star Game, a replacement for injured Lightning defenseman Victor Hedman on the Atlantic Division team for Sunday's game in Tampa. One of the first people Point phoned Wednesday was Todd Hudson, who was his billet family in juniors his four years with Moose Jaw.

"He had no idea this was coming," Hudson said. "He was in shock. Didn't have a clue. But he's pretty stoked now."

Point should be. He's very deserving, the second-year pro already one of Tampa Bay's best players, Point's 19 goals second to fellow All-Star Nikita Kucherov. The 5-foot-10, two-way center has been the key cog on the Lightning's shutdown line, a plus-19 despite facing other team's top lines. Columbus coach John Tortorella labeled Point the "heartbeat" of Tampa Bay.

Kings coach John Stevens said in November that Point will be a star. Now he's an All-Star.

"The story continues," Moose Jaw coach Tim Hunter said. "I never imagined he'd be an All-Star this early in his career. But I always envisioned he'd be a great player in the league someday.

"He's a smaller guy that people didn't think could make it. People didn't think he had enough skill. And he keeps proving people wrong. And he doesn't let people down that give him the opportunity."

Point has turned heads his entire career. There was his rookie season in Moose Jaw, a new teammate joking he thought Point was a younger brother of someone on the team. Point led the Warriors in playoff points.

Last season, Point, a third-round pick in 2014, became the only first-year pro in GM Steve Yzerman's tenure in Tampa Bay to make the team out of training camp.

Tampa Bay Lightning center Brayden Point (21)(center) celebrates his short handed unassisted goal along with defenseman Braydon Coburn (55) and center Yanni Gourde (37) after Point stole the puck behind the net to beat Dallas Stars goalie Ben Bishop (30) earlier this season.

NASSAR

for treatment for various injuries. The club is owned by John Geddert, who was suspended this week by USA Gymnastics, the sport's national governing body, and suddenly announced his retirement. He was U.S. women's coach at the 2012 Olympics. Geddert said he had "zero knowledge" of Nassar's crimes.

WHAT DID THEY KNOW?

One of Nassar's victims, Kyle Stephens, said Michigan State needs to be "accountable for everything that they've done." Judge Rosemarie Aquilina, too, is calling for an investigation of how years of allegations against Nassar were handled. Michigan State bowed to pressure last week and asked Attorney General Bill Schuette to conduct a review. A law firm hired by the university said no campus officials believed Nassar committed sexual assault before newspaper reports emerged in 2016.

But some victims said they complained to various staff as far back as the late 1990s. Dianne Byrum, a member of the school's governing board, says a "full accounting" is needed.

COMPENSATION FOR VICTIMS

More than 130 women and girls are suing Nassar. The litigation is mostly centered in federal court in western Michigan, although there are some cases in California. Michigan State and USA Gymnastics are also defendants, accused of negligence. In a recent filing, Michigan State asked a judge to dismiss the cases against the university on several technical grounds, not the merits of the allegations.

The school says it has immunity under Michigan law and that the majority of victims were not MSU students at the time of the alleged assaults. "These arguments can seem disrespectful" to victims but a defense is required by Michigan State's insurers, President Lou Anna Simon says. She says "we have the utmost respect and sympathy" for victims.

WILL SIMON SURVIVE?

Simon appears to be on thin ice as leader of the 50,000-student school. Two of Michigan State's eight publicly elected trustees want her to resign after victims accused the university of mishandling past complaints about Nassar. The Michigan House voted 96-11 in favor of her resignation after Nassar was sentenced. The leaders of the House and Senate also want her out. A victim, Rachael Denhollander, said Michigan State was "compounding the damage" by the way it responded to the scandal.

A Simon supporter, trustee Joel Ferguson, said there's more at Michigan State than "this Nassar thing."

He apologized.

Simon hasn't given any public indication that she's stepping down. Trustees meet again Friday.

MORE HEAT

Ferguson laughed during a radio interview when asked if the NCAA might investigate Michigan State.

"This is not Penn State," he said Tuesday, referring to sexual abuse by football coach Jerry Sandusky. But the NCAA says it has sent a letter of inquiry regarding potential rules violations. Separately, the U.S. Olympic Committee says it will investigate why Nassar's crimes went unchecked.

Olympic gymnasts Aly Raisman, McKayla Maroney and Jordyn Wieber said they were victims when Nassar was a doctor at USA Gymnastics.
