Organization that saves dogs seeks help

By JAY MEISEL
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — One of many dogs that Sebring Angels has rescued from an uncertain fate at Highlands County Animal Services is Poe.

Poe got that name because a police officer found Poe running loose, said Sebring Angels President Denise Beuparlant.

Sebring Angels found a home for Poe, but it only proved temporary because of problems.

It seemed that Poe showed aggression if someone approached him while he was eating. Though that's not unusual for a dog, Poe became more aggressive than what is typical.

As a result, Poe, the dog found by the officer, was sent to a sort of doggy reform school.

"That proved costly," Beuparlant said.

And the money factor has come into play with many of the dogs rescued by Sebring Angels. A high percentage have heartworms or other medical problems that require costly treatments, including Brodie, who ended up needing a leg amputated.

That's a large part of the reason why the organization is seeking help from the public, Beuparlant said.

And the need never ends, she said. "There are so many dogs out there needing help," she said.

Sebring Angels is a foster-based organization. With the exception of having a temporary shelter during the hurricane, Sebring Angels typically places the dogs into foster homes, with the goal of finding permanent homes, Beuparlant said.

Some of the dogs also are housed with rescue organizations, she said. "We provide the medical care for the dogs."

While many of the dogs are rescued from Highlands County Animal Services, some come from homes of elderly people who have died or homes where the dog's owner can no longer take care of the canine, she said.

Sebring Angels also helps people who have trouble affording dog or cat food for their animals, she said.

Through the Pet Project, she said, they can travel and obtain cat and dog food, but they must maintain a working vehicle that can transport pallets of food.

Changes last year at what was Highlands County Animal Services have helped Sebring Angels save more dogs from being euthanized.

Beuparlant said that the relationship between Highlands County Animal Services and the organization has improved since the Highlands County Sheriff's Office took over what was animal control.

Now, Animal Services seems more focused on finding homes for the dogs, she said.

Lt. Clay Kinslow said that 89 percent of the dogs are being adopted. Kinslow said Sebring Angels is particularly helpful when someone from out of the county sees a photo of one of the dogs and wants to adopt it.

Internet sites have greatly helped in getting the animals adopted, he said.

But, for Sebring Angels to continue succeeding, money is needed, Beuparlant said.

SEBRING — Country music superstar Craig Morgan will be in concert at 8 p.m. Friday, March 16 at Sebring International Raceway's Spring "Brake" Party Zone. The concert is part of what is being dubbed as Alan Jay Day because the Alan Jay Automotive Network is sponsoring most of the day's events.

Wayne Estes, Sebring International Raceway president and general manager, knew race fans would love to have Morgan play in their backyard but needed some extra support to get the renowned singer and television celebrity to Sebring. So he called Alan

Jay Wildstein, CEO of the automotive network that bears his name. "He's been a valuable partner, not just to the racetrack but to the entire community," Estes said. "When an opportunity to host a Craig Morton concert presented itself, we needed some support. We called Alan and he was very receptive to what we were trying to accomplish."

Morgan isn't just a pretty face with a smooth voice and slick lyrics. He was inducted to the Grand Ole Opry in 2008, has several songs on the Billboard hit list and is a 17-year veteran of the U. S. Army and Army reserves. Some of his 25 Billboard hits are "This Ole Boy," "That's What I Love About Sunday" and "Redneck Yacht Club."

If that wasn't enough to put on a resume, Morgan can add host to the popular series "Craig Morgan: All Access Outdoors" on

Former student arrested after making threats

By JAY MEISEL
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — A student at the Youth Academy was arrested this week after making threats to kill other students, according to an arrest report.

Kasey A. Baldwin Jr., 18, of 1 E. Wolf St., Avon Park, was arrested by the Highlands County Sheriff's Office and charged with making a bomb threat.

Scott Dressel, public information officer for the Highlands County Sheriff's Office, said Baldwin was arrested after he made specific threats against students. He said Baldwin also referenced the shooting incident in Parkland where 17 students were killed by a student who had been expelled.

The Sheriff's Office arrested Baldwin after the Highlands County School District notified the Sheriff's Office of the threats. The notification came at a time when the nation has reacted to the shooting in South Florida and debated how to prevent more mass shootings at school.

When he was being arrested, Baldwin said he could not understand why he was being arrested and that "everyone feels the same way as he does about the shooting," the arrest report said.

Dressel said Baldwin was referring to the South Florida shooting.

Several students told authorities they were troubled by threats made by Baldwin, the report said.

County trying to fill vacant job posts

By PHIL ATTINGER

SEBRING — County Engineer Clinton Howerton Jr. has shoes to fill, but not his predecessor's; it's his employees'.

He had a new geographic information system (GIS) coordinator lined up to start with Highlands County, including all the paperwork signed to start work. The candidate called a week before needing to report to work to beg off. He'd gotten another job offer on the coast at a rate Highlands County couldn't match.

In hopes of holding onto the next candidate, the Highlands County Board of County Commission approved Howerton's request to a bump up the job title, with the associated raise in pay to a GIS manager — $8,864 more in salary and benefits.

The new rate will be a salary of $84,000, versus $75,500, Howerton said.

When Commissioner Don Elwell asked how many employees the new manager would supervise, once found and hired, Howerton said it's just one, for now.

He has other positions to fill, as well. Howerton told the Highlands News-Sun he also had an engineer on the line to fill a slot, but lost that candidate the same way.

County administration still has holes to fill. Both County Administrator Randy Vosburg and County Attorney Joy Carmichael recently ascended to top seats from their respective assistant positions. They now need to find assistants.

Commission Chair Greg Harris asked Carmichael how it was coming for her. Carmichael said she's sketching out a job description.

Sebring golf course gets new fencing, thanks to school

By JAY MEISEL

JAY MEISEL/STAFF

These students are from various states and Canada learning to build fences.

SEBRING — Last week, a group of men from several states and Canada arrived at the city of Sebring golf course, but they weren't there in hopes of hitting a hole in one.

Instead, they learned how to build fences from different materials, as well as welding.

The North American Fence Contractors Association Field Training School has been using the Sebring golf course as its campus for the past six years.

Mart Prost, the head of the fence school, said that the relationship between the city and the school is mutually beneficial.

During the six-year-old period, Prost estimates, the school has provided more than $150,000 of fencing material and labor at no cost to the city.

On the other side, he said, the golf course provides one suitable location for the students to learn how to build fences. And it's close to a motel, he said.

Having a single location is important because the class is held for three days. That limits the time that would be available for the students to move to multiple locations, Prost said.

This year, the class had 17 students, three from Canada and 14 from the United States.

They worked on chain link, wood, vinyl and wrought iron fences. They also built a solar-powered gate between the golf course and some private property.

As part of that work, they installed a 20-foot back stop at the baseball diamond near the golf course, and replaced dilapidated chain link fence with new aluminum fence donated by Alumni-Guard.

Prost started the school in Sebring after buying a house near the golf course. He lives part of the year in Sebring and the remainder of it in Canada.

Six years ago, Prost met with former City Councilman John Griffin and proposed that in exchange for the city allowing the use of the golf course for the class, the students would build the fences at no cost to the city.

2 former district teachers face suspension of certification

By MARC VALERO

SEBRING — Two former School Board of Highlands County teachers face suspension of their Florida educator's certificate — one for an "inappropriate relationship" with a 17-year-old former student and the other for an "inappropriate, sexual manner" via social media communication with a 16-year-old student.

Former Sebring High teacher Matthew Hutchinson and former Avon Park High teacher Bridget Ramona Silva both have signed settlement agreements that are going before the Education Practices Commission on March 9.

Hutchinson resigned with prejudice on May 25, 2016.

Silva resigned with prejudice on May 27, 2016.

The administrative complaint against Hutchinson states that in or around December 2015 through March 2016, he had an "inappropriate relationship" with a 17-year-old former student.

This relationship included, but is not limited to, Hutchinson buying and sending various clothing items to the former student's Ohio address and calling and/or text messaging the former student several hundred times during this period of time, the report states.

The petitioner, Florida Education Commissioner Pam Stewart, charges Hutchinson with a statute violation related to the Principles of Professional Conduct for the Education Profession and

Toilet paper involved in kitchen fire

SEBRING — West Sebring Volunteer Fire Department responded to a kitchen fire on Friday morning at 3929 Mendoza Ave. A Highlands County ambulance arrived and was thankfully, not needed. Charissa Fischnich, her 2-year-old son and their three puppies all escaped without injury.

The fire started when Fischnich arrived home from Walmart and put her bag of purchases on the stove, including her son's diaper bag.

"The bag must have turned on the burner," Fischnich said.

Her neighbor took the baby while she grabbed the garden hose from the side of the house and tried to put the fire out by herself. The neighbor had to call 911 as Fischnich's phone was melting in the diaper bag. One of the bags contained toilet paper rolls, which caught on fire and refused to be extinguished.

"The toilet paper wouldn't go out," Fischnich said. "I couldn't get it to stop burning. Eventually, the smoke got to be too much and I had to get out of the house."

One member of the WSVFD took the smoldering items outside and used the garden hose to put it out. Another firefighter took an industrial fan and turned it on at the front door.

Fischnich said, "I will get a fire extinguisher now."

Two Sebring drivers injured in Hardee County crash

WAUCHULA — Four Highlands County residents, including two West Sebring Volunteer Fire Department firefighters, were injured Thursday in a three-vehicle accident in Hardee County, according to a press release from the Florida Highway Patrol.

Allison Slager, 22, of Sebring, a volunteer firefighter and one of the three drivers, was transported to Highlands Regional Medical Center with serious injuries and then taken to Lawnwood Regional Medical Center in Fort Pierce for further treatment. The passenger, Joshua Young, 36, of Sebring, also a volunteer firefighter, was transported to Highlands Regional Medical Center where he was treated for minor injuries and then released.

Meanwhile, Omar Patino, 51, of Sebring, the driver of a second vehicle, was transported to Lakeland Regional Medical Center with serious injuries, while his passenger, Gerald Ledezma, 31, of Lake Placid, was taken to HRMC with minor injuries. Patino was driving a 2016 Ford van for Miller's Central Air.

Roman Pineda, 30, of Homestead, the driver of the third vehicle, was not injured in the accident, the press release said.

The FHP press release said that Pineda was heading west on State Road 66 and failed to react to Patino slowing his vehicle.

Pineda's vehicle hit Patino's vehicle, pushing it into the path of Slager's vehicle, which was traveling east on State Road 66.

That caused Slager's vehicle to go off the road and overturn into a ditch, the press release said.

Assistant Fire Chief Billy Kingston said that both Highlands and Hardee County emergency workers, including Emergency Management Director Scott Canaday, responded to the accident.

Slager and Young were returning from a trip to loan Hardee County firefighters a fire truck to use during a funeral

Schools need heightened campus security

As we debate the issues of gun control and mental health funding in the weeks after the shooting massacre at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, a central focus will remain: School security.

We need to do something to ensure that Florida's schoolchildren are safer and feel safer.

But what? How much will it cost? Who will pay? And how will we reach consensus on appropriate responses throughout state and within local communities?

The following security measures have been suggested:

- Allow teachers to carry firearms.

An armed teaching corps brings with it the risk of unintended consequences and accidental shootings by teachers, even those willing and able to undergo firearms training.

Do teachers want that? We doubt it. Regardless, the potential risks posed by nonprofessionals returning gunfire in hallways and classrooms crowded with children seem obvious. More law-enforcement professionals? Perhaps. More para-professionals? No.

- More armed guards/SROs.

Reasonable. But how many officers are enough to create a real deterrent or careful, swift response? Most schools now have an on-site deputy working as a school resource officer. Additional officers would bring more coverage. And higher personnel costs.

Highlands County Superintendent of Schools and Sheriff Paul Blackman spoke earlier this week to the County Commission and the School Board about a desire to see a SRO at every school, not just the middle and high schools.

Currently, Blackman has eight deputies at secondary schools, including two at Sebring High School. Adding another 11 SROs at various elementary schools will cost an additional $950,000 per year.

The city of Sebring has three public schools and two private schools within city limits and provides one SRO for all of those schools. The City Council will discuss at its March 6 meeting the possibility of adding two more SROs.

- Hardening campuses.

Building walls around school grounds? Prohibitively expensive and impractical.

Better fencing? Possible. But it is not always feasible to fence off a large, sprawling campus, like Douglas High School. And while many of our newer schools do try to funnel visitors through a main entrance, they are hardly foolproof. Hard to believe this would work for someone with ill-intent.

- Airport-style security.

Metal detectors at a central entrance point? Again, wildly impractical to insist that anyone entering school property, at any time, submit to screening at one point. And then, walls and screening make the educational campus seem prison-like. For many students, school already is an emotional prison; must we make it a physical prison also?

- Cost.

Any heightened security will bring more expense to school systems already struggling with inadequate funding. Nevertheless, we believe taxpayers expect it and will demand a higher level of security.

We need to look to the state, which has dropped the ball.

As the Tampa Bay Times noted this week, designated state funding for school safety has decreased in the past decade. Once at $75 million, it dropped to $64.5 million with Gov. Rick Scott's recession budget of 2011-2012. There it remains. The head of the state's school administrator's association estimated $112 million would have been needed to keep pace with inflation and rising enrollment.

And that was last year — before Parkland and what we expect will be higher security demands.

More money and more focus is needed for mental health screening and treatment. Greater limitations should be placed on the availability of firearms, especially assault-style weapons used in massacres.

But local school officials and law enforcement need to respond with practical, well-conceived security measures. The governor and the Legislature need to do the same — with minimal grandstanding — and they need to provide the funding that will bring greater security, and a sense of security, for Florida's vulnerable schoolchildren.

A 'Wicked' experience

LAURA'S LOOK

Laura Ware

Paul Harvey would say, "the rest of the story."

I gave the book a try. I regret to say that while it is well written, it wasn't to my taste. The book is dark and gloomy, with very little light to lessen the weight of it. At one point (I think about 2/3 in) I realized I was working to read the book, not enjoying it. At this stage of my life, I have too much to read to spend time working at reading a novel I don't enjoy, so I skipped to the ending and put it down.

The musical is a much lighter take on things. It focuses on the friendship between Elphaba (the "wicked" witch of the west) and Glinda, the good witch who helps Dorothy in "The Wizard of Oz."

Yes, they become friends. Initially loathing each other, a friendship grows between them that lasts until the end of the show. They influence each other, as friends do.

Well, not too long ago, my younger son James and his wife got to see "Wicked" on stage. I admit I was jealous. Then my marvelous daughter-in-law discovered that it was playing in Fort Lauderdale, a mere 2 1/2 hours away.

Between us, Paul and I plotted to go. Don, who isn't into this particular musical, agreed to stay home and take care of his mom that day. So last Saturday found Paul and I setting off for Fort Lauderdale, armed with my phone's GPS and my iPad filled with music to entertain us on the journey.

We managed to get to the Au-Rene Theater at the Broward Center without getting killed by the traffic and got into the theater. The place was huge. Look, I love Highlands Little Theatre — honestly — but it is tiny compared to this venue. The stage stretched out below us, and Paul and I were excited before things even got started.

The musical itself? The soundtrack only gives you a taste of it. The show was marvelous as it told the tale, employing some special effects including rain, which impressed me a lot. The actors had Broadway experience and it showed.

Afterwards, Paul insisted on getting me a T-shirt as a souvenir. We got back to Sebring that evening happy with the day we shared.

So, yes, I am going to recommend that you see "Wicked." It's a great story about misunderstandings and what is truly evil. And the music is fabulous.

And if you do get through the book, let me know. Maybe I'll give it another shot. After I read everything else I want to read. But maybe not. Life is too short to waste on books I don't enjoy.

New American normal

A Feb. 19 letter mirrored my thoughts exactly on the problem of gun violence in America.

The writer hits home with their concern over the types of weapons in the hands of the public and are carbon copy responses to each of the horrific shootings in our schools, churches, theaters, etc. We are free with "thoughts and prayers" but then life goes on until the next occurrence and the cycle starts again. Gun violence in America has become all too regular.

The U.S. far exceeds other countries in gun ownership and mass gun violence. It's obvious that more guns don't keep us safe. This is an embarrassing accolade for a country that professes to be civilized. Is this what we've become? Thoughts, prayers and more guns aren't the fix. Maybe we could snub the gun lobby long enough to pass some legislation that might curb some of this violence. We are "law abiding" until we are not.

The sign at the Gosford Anglican Church in Australia says it best. "When will they love their kids more than their guns?"

When economy hurts, we all hurt

At last month's school board meeting, David Bollenback from Evergreen Solutions presented the results from his company's study on the salaries of School Board employees. His company compared similar counties with Highlands County and determined that our overall salaries were a whopping 8.8 percent below the other counties. This figure was actually low due to the fact that Bollenback's company under estimated the time that teachers work. But for this article, I will stick with the low figure of 8.8 percent to show how even this affects Highlands' economy.

The School Board is by far the largest employer in the county. Their total budget is $95 million and 61 percent of this is dedicated to salaries or $57.95 million in salaries. Consequently, if the county was 8.8 percent behind in salaries, we were shorted by the State of Florida to the tune of $5,099,600.

So how is this happening? Why do other comparable counties have so much more money than Highlands? Well, you have to turn to what our state legislatures have been doing and in particular, how our Representative, (Cary) Pigman, has been "representing" Highlands County.

If you recall, last year Pigman actually voted to take a half a million away from the county. He voted for $200 million to go to charter schools. As we all know, Highlands County has no charter schools. There are a myriad of examples about how Pigman has voted against the county's interests and this is a problem that has been occurring since he was first elected.

Remember, this $5,099,600 is not money that Pigman helped save for the State of Florida; no, it just went to other counties. The study by Bollenback was with comparable counties; they got the money and Highlands County got noncompetitive pay and employee shortages.

If you are not a school board employee, should you be concerned about this? Absolutely, every business will be affected and even our churches will get less from tithing because of the lowered salaries. Money in an economy has a snowball effect or what is know as the multiplier effect. If the government injects money into the economy and the individuals who receive it then spend it, more and more folks in the economy benefit from it. In our case, had the school board employees spent this $5,099,600 and paid taxes on it, the multiplier would be 5. So the value of this money to Highlands County would actually be five times the original amount, or $25,498,000.

Highlands County never got the money, so we all suffer. Unfortunately, this lack of funding is going to get worse. Representative Pigman has already voted for House Bill 7055. This bill is just chock full of giveaways and will hurt all of Highlands County. Remember, we are all in this together and when Pigman hurts parts of the economy, he hurts us all.

JOBS

Commissioner Ron Handley asked how soon it'd be published. She did not know.

Meanwhile, Vosburg said he's working on a short list for three or four candidates.

Just after approving Howerton's request, commissioners got a request from Development Services Director Benjamin Dunn to fill a volunteer seat on the Tourist Development Council with Vicki Pontius, recently retired from the county as director of Parks and Natural Resources.

Dunn has absorbed some of Pontius' duties, including that of tourist development.

Pontius has taken the seat of John Ruggiero of the Highlands County

She'll complete his term, which ends May 2, 2019.

The county has 12 other jobs still open. Unless stated, they are open until filled:

- Senior manager of Office of Management and Budget
- Purchasing Analyst
- Fire Services Supervisor
- Project Manager Transportation
- Paramedic (two separate positions)
- EMS Billing Technician
- Tractor Mower Operator
- Equipment Operator I Dump Truck
- Equipment Operator II
- Laborer (open until Wednesday, Feb. 28)
- Custodian Business Services Manager Tasha Morgan

told the Highlands News-Sun that the previous OMB senior manager, Tim Mechling, has resigned for personnel reasons. The new manager would, as he did, be responsible for the accounting and budgeting tasks to prepare, secure adoption of and implement the county budget, including fund accounting for all county departments, elected officials and various outside agencies. The OMB senior manager would also serve as designated county budget officer under Florida Statutes, Chapter 129.

The fire services supervisor position opened after the retirement of former fire supervisor Charles Andrews, said Fire Services Manager Tim Eures. The new supervisor would, along with two existing supervisors, report directly to Eures and oversee fire prevention, fire/rescue services, fire service training programs and the enforcement of county and state fire prevention codes.

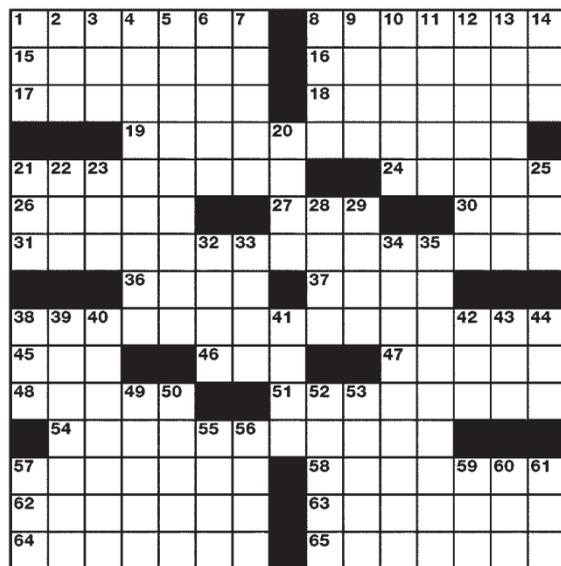

Eures said that position might not be filled this year, given budget constraints.

The transportation projects manager, reporting to Howerton, would prepare and/or review of plans, designs and specifications for public works projects and oversee construction of such projects, including but not limited to roadways, intersections and drainage systems.

This wasn't the first time that Baldwin has made threats, according to the arrest report.

However, the threats made during the first time, on Nov. 8, 2017, were less specific, Dressel said.

At that time, he said, Baldwin, who was then a student at Avon Park High School, was taken into custody and received a mental evaluation. As a consequence of that he was placed in the Youth Academy.

In a letter written on Nov. 8, 2017, Baldwin said, "All of you should be afraid of me. All I am waiting for is the perfect chance to kill everyone. So know if you give me a gun, I will kill who every(sic) you ask me to. If you give me bombs, I will blow up anything you ask me to. I was a kid who thought 9/11 and the shooting in Las Vegas was funny and give them credit for trying to end multiple lives. The only mistakes they had was they died in the process. a rule violation for failing to make reasonable effort to protect the student from conditions harmful to learning, the student's mental health, physical health and/or safety.

A settlement agreement, which was signed by Hutchinson in October, calls for a three-year suspension of his Florida educator's certificate.

The administrative complaint against Silva states that during the 2015-16 school year, she communicated in person and over social media in an "inappropriate, sexual manner" with a 16-year-old male student.

The student sent Silva a photograph of a private part of his body upon which she replied to him in an inappropriate manner by messaging "Wow!" "Shocking!" or words to that effect, the complaint states. Silva failed to report to the school administration that the student had sent her a picture of himself exposed.

The petitioner, Stewart, cited the same statute violation and rule violation for Silva as in the Hutchinson complaint. The complaint also cites that after resigning from the School Board of Highlands County in lieu of a dismissal hearing or termination, Silva submitted a fraudulent employment application with the Polk County School District, by answering "no" to the question of "have you ever resigned in lieu of discipline." A settlement agreement, which was signed by Silva in October, calls for a one-year suspension of her Florida educator's certificate and a two-year period of probation.

FLORIDA REPORT

After shooting, return to school brings teachers to tears

By JENNIFER KAY

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — In the right-hand drawer of a desk at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School is a file that teacher Ernest Rospierski desperately wants back.

It's full of thank-you letters from his students and their parents over the years.

"It's my bad-day file, my it's-been-a-long-day file," Rospierski said. "If I have a bad day, I open it up."

The last time he was in his classroom at the Parkland school was a horrific day: Valentine's Day, when a former student shot and killed 17 people on campus.

The building where 14 students, a teacher, a football coach and the school's athletic director were slain will be torn down. Before that happens, 30 classrooms must be cleared of teaching materials, personal items and memories.

"Teachers spend half their lives in their rooms," Rospierski said.

His desk was full of lesson plans, family photographs and souvenirs his students have brought him from their travels. His students would expect to see these things when they return to class to next week, even though he'll have to relocate his courses in world geography and AP European history.

Preparing to return to campus Friday, he said he needed to read his bad-day file.

"I want that back," he said.

Broward County Schools Superintendent Robert Runcie said some teachers and staff met for breakfast before returning Friday to the high school, where therapy dogs and other counseling services were available.

Spanish teacher Alicia Blonde could only bear a brief visit to campus. Her classroom wasn't affected by the shooting, but she's been focused on speaking out for gun control and she's haunted by the memories of 17 people who won't return to school.

She called the therapy dogs "angels."

"I bent down to hug one, and I was crying, and the dog comforted me," Blonde said, breaking down in tears in a phone interview. "I had the thought, I am going to have to do for my students what this dog is doing for me."

Blonde said the building where the shootings took place was surrounded by a fence covered in supportive banners sent from other schools.

Officers on campus held assault rifles, which she found unnerving.

"I know that's going to be a frightening thing for a lot of students," she said.

The Miami Herald reported that Assistant Principal Denise Reed stood at the school's entrance Friday. "It's great to see your smiling faces," she said, leaning into the driver's window of an arriving employee.

Teachers maneuvered their vehicles through a heavy police presence, orange cones blocking off parts of the road and a swarm of TV trucks and cameras. The school's flags flew at half-staff, and the parking lot was still full of bicycles left behind in a panic as students fled the shooting on foot.

"Good morning! Love you guys," Reed told a car full of teachers.

No one has been allowed inside the building where the shooting took place because it remained a crime scene, Runcie said.

"We would work with the victims and their families to figure out what would be an appropriate memorial," Runcie said.

The school plans an orientation Sunday for teachers and students, and classes were scheduled to resume Wednesday.

Following the shooting last week, the building where several students, a teacher, a football coach and the school's athletic director were slain will be torn down. Before that happens, 30 classrooms must be cleared of teaching materials, personal items and memories.

"I sat in the Publix parking lot and cried for 10 minutes before I even drove closer," English teacher Nicole Blands said of her first return inside the school Friday.

She's feeling confused, devastated and a range of emotions.

"It was heartbreaking."

In some ways she feels it's too soon to return to the sight of so much bloodshed and grief, but she said the teachers know they need to be strong and "ready to be there for the kids."

"I don't know if many people are ready for it," she said.

History teacher Ivy Schamis said she planned to put off returning until Monday, after processing all the funerals she attended over the last week and exploring the possibility of bringing a therapy dog.

"Give me another room and I'll teach," she said.

She had been teaching a class about the Holocaust when the shooter fired into her classroom. A big yellow banner stating "Never Again" had been hanging in her classroom even as students hid from gunfire beneath their desks.

Schamis wants the same banner hanging in her next classroom.

"That's a Holocaust banner and now that's what our slogan is becoming after this tragedy," she said.

Fate of generator rules remains unclear

By CHRISTINE SEXTON

NEWS SERVICE OF FLORIDA

TALLAHASSEE — With only two weeks left in the 2018 legislative session, proposed rules requiring generators for long-term care providers continue to await action, in part because of the financial impact on assisted living facilities.

House Health & Services Chairman Travis Cummings, R-Fleming Island, continues to struggle with ratifying a rule requiring, among other things, nearly 3,000 assisted living facilities to have back-up-power generators on site. Unlike nursing homes, assisted living facilities can't offset the costs with Medicaid funding.

Agency for Health Care Administration Secretary Justin Senior told The News Service of Florida on Thursday that his agency has been meeting with House members to discuss the proposed rules for ALFs and nursing homes and said ratification was one of his agency's top priorities this session.

"We're hopeful, obviously, next week that the rules will start moving," Senior said. "And we've talked to the members and answered their questions, so that's where we are."

Gov. Rick Scott's administration has pushed for generators at ALFs and nursing homes since the deaths in September of residents of The Rehabilitation Center at Hollywood Hills, a Broward County nursing home that lost its air-conditioning system in Hurricane Irma. But long-term care providers have raised repeated concerns about issues such as costs and requirements to store fuel.

Assisted living facilities are designed to provide services in a less-restrictive and more home-like environment than nursing homes. They range from one resident to several hundred residents and offer various types of personal and nursing services.

One of the proposed rules would mandate that ALFs have generators on site, but the equipment wouldn't have to be installed. ALFs with 16 or fewer beds would have to keep onsite 48 hours of fuel, and facilities with 17 or more beds would have to keep onsite 72 hours of fuel, unless barred by local ordinances. During declared emergencies, they would have to obtain another 24 hours of fuel.

An estimate shows

it would cost the 2,951 assisted living facilities in the state more than $243 million to comply with the rule.

Those are costs that providers cannot absorb, said Doug Adkins, owner of two assisted living facilities in Nassau County. Adkins said ALFs are facing rising overhead costs and are providing services to people with higher levels of medical needs than ever before.

"People are struggling, so the reality is the dollars are not there. So the question is who pays? And there's no answer to that question," Adkins said.

Senior said this is the first time the Agency for Health Care Administration has proposed rules that require legislative ratification because of the fiscal impact. Since 2010, any rule that increases the costs of regulation by $1 million over a five-year period has required legislative ratification to take effect.

That process usually starts with a bill in a legislative policy committee, but there aren't any hard and fast rules, which means an issue that appears stalled in the process can suddenly spring to life.

"We're learning about the process as it goes along, and we've had good conversations about it with everybody," Senior said. "So we're still feeling very hopeful about it."

The ALF rule, along with a similar mandate on nursing homes, was agreed to by long-term care providers and the Scott administration, which had been in a legal tussle following the deaths of the Broward nursing-home residents.

The House has included in a proposed tax package a $6.7 million sales-tax exemption for generator purchases by nursing homes and assisted living facilities.

But the overall generator issue likely will come down to funding. Also, Cummings said lawmakers will have less discretionary money available as they increase spending for mental health and school safety after the mass shooting Feb. 14 at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland.

"However, we know it's important, with Hurricane Irma, in trying to be better prepared moving forward to care for our elderly citizens in the state of Florida," he said. "So we haven't made a decision, is my point. We have got to revisit that."

Ex-deputy caught stealing on his own body cam gets probation

DAYTONA BEACH (AP) — A former Florida sheriff's deputy who was caught by his own body camera stealing cash from a driver he arrested has been sentenced to four years of probation.

The Daytona Beach News-Journal reports 35-year-old former Volusia County deputy John Braman entered no contest pleas to petty theft, official misconduct and grand theft Thursday. Braman was caught on video swiping two $100 bills from Thomas French's wallet last August while arresting French. French's attorney noticed the theft while reviewing arrest footage and reported it to prosecutors. Braman is also accused of stealing from another man while investigating a disturbance last January.

Braman was also sentenced to time served for misdemeanor charges, though computer records don't show Braman spent any time jailed on the charges, and ordered to pay restitution to victims.

Florida man gets 60 years for DUI deaths of 4 Ohio men

PANAMA CITY (AP) — A judge has sentenced a 22-year-old Florida man to 60 years in prison for running through a stop sign and killing four visiting Ohio softball players from Ohio who were riding in a van.

It took jurors two and a half hours Thursday to find Cody Austin Shirah guilty in the 2016 deaths of 30-year-old Anthony Gouge, 25-year-old Eric Young, 29-year-old William Gouge II and 33-year-old Josh Martin.

The News Herald reports Circuit Judge Michael Overstreet heard statements from victims' family members. Shirah wept as they called for the maximum penalty of life in prison, then pleaded for leniency and forgiveness.

Shirah was convicted on DUI manslaughter charges.

Before issuing the verdict, the judge took some blame for the crash, saying he'd released Shirah on drug offender probation months before the crash.

Woman hospitalized after crashing into house

FORT PIERCE (AP) — Authorities say a woman was hospitalized after crashing her car in to a Florida home.

Treasure Coast Newspapers reports that the crash occurred Thursday morning in Fort Pierce.

A St. Lucie Fire District spokeswoman says the woman's injuries weren't life-threatening.

No one was in the home at the time of the crash.

Avon Park football players selected to prestigious team

By MARK PINSON

The Avon Park football team had an outstanding year on the gridiron and the players are still reaping the benefits.

Red Devil senior running back Thurlow Wilkins was named to the Class 4A First Team Offense, junior defensive end Dah'Quan Braswell was selected to the Second Team Defense and senior running back Montrae Braswell was named to the Honorable Mention Offense on Thursday.

Wilkins, who rushed for more than 1,400 yards and scored 17 touchdowns to help the Red Devils make it to the second round of the state playoffs, capped his high school career by signing to play football at Tusculum College last week.

SEBRING – The Sebring baseball team lost its home opener to Winter Haven by a score of 2-1 in a pitcher's duel that lasted 10 innings on Thursday night at Firemen's Field.

The loss evened the Blue Streaks record at 1-1 overall on the season.

"We did not make adjustments at the plate," said Sebring head baseball coach Jasone DeWitt. "We stayed selfish at the plate, we were very undisciplined it looked like. That is just not what we are about and it is disappointing, it really is."

Winter Haven scored first in the top of the second inning on a leadoff single into left field, the next batter reached on an error on the left fielder and a hit batter loaded the bases with one out.

Trey Ranka hit a slow roller to second base and was able to beat out the double play attempt by Sebring, allowing Rivera to score to give the Blue Devils a 1-0 lead.

Held to just two hits over the first five innings, Sebring managed to tie the game in the bottom of the sixth.

A leadoff single by Hunter Martinez led to Martinez reaching second on a fielder's choice throwing error by Winter Haven's first baseman on a bunt attempt by Dayvon Terry. Terry reached first base.

A sacrifice bunt by Charles Petty moved Martinez and Terry into scoring position, followed by Damian Lusby, who loaded the bases after being hit by a pitch.

With two outs, Drew Morris walked to drive in Sebring's only run of the inning and game.

After seven innings, the game remained tied as the Sebring pitchers, Dalton Baker and Petty held the Blue Devils to just two total hits and combined for 11 strikeouts.

The Blue Streaks brought in Carson Angell in the eighth inning, pitching two scoreless and hitless innings before giving up a run on two hits in the tenth inning.

Winter Haven's Ranka hit a one-out double into right field followed by a single by Justin Hobbs into centerfield that gave the Blue Devils a Tuesday's softball games had hot weather and a lot of hot hitting on the diamond.

Royal Palms outlasted the Alan Jay team in a slugfest by a score of 24-20. Gary (tank) Tankersley and Norm (Roadrunner) Grubbs lashed out five hits each. Gallo Gonzalez, John Miller and David Reed all contributed with four hits apiece.

Gary (Spider) Snyder, Ted Navarro and Fred Moore banded out three hits apiece.

Alan Jay had a big day from Ken (Missionary) LLOYD, Chuck Detore, Todd Martin and Pablo Pantoya all with four-hit games.

On the other diamond, Hines Sporting Goods had to score late to upend a tough Buttonwood Bay team 24-12. Scoring 10 runs in the 8th.

Hines had Dale Balcom, Bob Richards, Bill Scrase and Jerry Kaufman all with four hits. Winning pitcher was Bill Todd and he added a double and home run to the attack.

Buttonwood Bay had rookie Greg Pasovic knocking out four hits. Fred Richardson continued his hot hitting with three hits. Tony (ageless) Cristo and John Degnen added triples. VFW 4300 had a bye.

Thursday games again played under the hot sun. The Alan Jay team stormed back to upend VFW 4300 by a score of 22-17.

The win moved the Alan Jay team to a half game out of first place.

Alan Jay was led by Chuck Detore, (2 doubles), Todd Martin, winning pitcher Rudy Pribbe and Kyle Saunders all with four hits. Dave Lahue and Phil Lucas had three hits each.

The Losing VFW team saw Don (slam-bam) Cunningham, Chet Johnson, J C Brown and Marv Knutella all with three hits. Bill Cirillo had a home run and Don Lavaiviere a triple for the losers.

Diamond Royal Palms had a tough game again with the improving Buttonwood Bay squad but won by a score of 18-13.

Gary Snyder (2 doubles) and John Miller both had four hits. Ross Anderson was perfect at the plate with three hits and two walks. David Reed had four hits including a homer.

Gallo Gonzalez, Ken Elston and Dan Webb each with three hits. Winning pitcher was Vic Rodriguez and Big Jim Noviss added a triple and a pair of homers. Fred Richardson added two doubles and Tony Caristo a double that scored two runs.

With eight weeks to go in the season the standing are: VFW 4300 12-2, Alan Jay 11-3, Royal Palms 8-5

Lots of action at Sebring Raceway

IMSA teams preparing for 12 Hours of Sebring

Special to Highlands News-Sun

SEBRING – As United Autosports co-owner Richard Dean put it, the European team's first foray into IMSA WeatherTech SportsCar Championship at last month's Rolex 24 At Daytona drew plenty of attention.

"Daytona was a huge event to try and go do from Europe with two cars for the first time, and what felt like the spotlight of the motorsport world on us," Dean said Thursday at Sebring International Raceway in a two-day test to prepare for next month's Mobil 1 Twelve Hours of Sebring Presented by Advance Auto Parts. "It was quite a pressurized situation, and I thought by the time we got to the race, we were quite competitive."

The pressure came primarily from the fact that two-time Formula 1 World Champion Fernando Alonso was part of the team's driver lineup in the No. 23 United Autosports Ligier LMP2 car alongside youngsters Lando Norris and Phil Hanson. But it was the team's other car, the No. 32 Ligier shared by Will Owen, Paul Di Resta, Hugo de Sadeleer and Bruno Senna, that was the top performer, finishing just off the podium in fourth place.

It was a strong start for the team in its first WeatherTech Championship race. But the veteran team that regularly competes in the European Le Mans Series would have liked an even better result.

"We were a little bit disappointed in the end, even though we finished fourth because I think with three hours to go we sat in third place and the two Cadillacs were looking like they were struggling, we felt like we had an opportunity that 24-hour races can give you," Dean said. "But everybody's got a story, so we came out of there with a fourth place."

Even before that fourth-place result, the team announced plans to field the No. 32 Ligier in this season's remaining three races of the Tequila Patrón North American Endurance Cup season, which reaches its halfway point next month in Sebring.

On Thursday, Hanson and Di Resta were busy familiarizing themselves with the quirky, 3.74-mile Sebring circuit alongside Alex Brundle, who the team brought in for this week's test in place of Senna, who will drive for the team in the Twelve Hours but was battling an illness this week.

"Bruno couldn't travel, he wasn't well enough, and there was just no point in him getting on a plane and being ill here," Dean said. "He knows the track. Of the three drivers we've got, he's the one who needed the least laps around here."

"We're new as a team here to Sebring, and the two drivers then that we're going to run with - which is Phil Hanson, who just turned 18, and Paul Di Resta, who, while massively experienced, he's not experienced in LMP2, Daytona was his first experience."

"We've got a relationship with Alex, we ran him in LMP3, he won the European championship with us, he's been here before, he knows the team really well, and we thought it would be sensible to have somebody as a reference here. Alex was available, so he's here at the test to help us."

What also has been helpful to the team is its alliance with IndyCar powerhouse Andretti Autosport. The Indianapolis-based Andretti team has provided significant operational assistance, and the team also secured some temporary workspace in Florida as it prepares for the Twelve Hours.

Dean said the team would keep this No. 32 Ligier in the U.S. for the remainder of the year for the Patrón Endurance Cup rounds as it fields two other Ligiers in the ELMS.

"We feel a little bit more organized, we've got our own truck now, and we've got a little base here, and Andretti have been helping us out an awful lot, so our little collaboration or alliance with Andretti has certainly steadied the ship a little bit for us and helped us," Dean said. "We're excited to do these remaining races, and now that we've got Daytona experience with us, it's definitely going to help us do a much better job in the approach for Sebring, Watkins Glen and Petit."

New Tires

Among the myriad of things WeatherTech Championship teams are working on during the two-day test at Sebring - in the Prototype and GT Daytona (GTD) class - are brand-new tires from Continental Tire. No. 44

Magnus Racing Audi R8 LMS driver Andy Lally offered his initial feedback on the new rubber on Thursday afternoon.

"We've got a new tire this year from Continental," he said. "They've just introduced not only a new construction but a new compound, so all the teams are going through the process of feeling out what air pressure it likes, what camber it likes, what toe it likes and the combination of all three of those put together."

"Basically, we're all going through sweeps right now and feeling things out. What does the tire feel like when you're in qualifying mode versus full-fuel mode? There are all sorts of stuff when you get such a change like what we've got here. This is a relatively big change for the GT cars. Maybe for the Prototypes, it's not as big a change, but for the GT3 cars, it's quite a different feel on the platform. We're just going through that."

"It's the first day and everybody's fairly calm about it now. I'd imagine midway through tomorrow, you're going to start to see guys throwing down and really trying to squeeze every last hundredth out of it. The Audi feels pretty balanced right now with it, so we're pretty happy, handling-wise, how we've been able to integrate this tire and evolve the past setups that we've had into what we've got today."

Dah'Quan all selected to the Class 4A All-State Football Team," said former Avon Park head football coach Wade Jackson. "Thurlow would have led the state in rushing if we had been able to play all 10 games on our schedule I feel. He had a great season and did everything we asked. He's fast and strong, is a hard worker and I can't say enough good things about him. He deserves the honor and I'm looking forward to seeing what he does in college."

Montrae Braswell, who rushed for more than 1,000 yards and scored 14 touchdowns, recently signed a scholarship to play football at Central Michigan University.

"Montrae had a great season at running back," said Jackson. "He also played cornerback and I think he should have been better than honorable mention. "He played offense, defense, special teams and never came off the field. He's definitely one of the top players in Class 4A."

Dah'Quan Braswell,

a 6-foot-2, 240-pound junior, and younger brother of Montrae, was a force at defensive end for the Red Devils with 33 tackles and three sacks.

"Dah'Quan is a young man that has worked hard and gotten better and better," Jackson said. "He puts in his time in the weight room and on the field and wants to improve. He is big, fast, physical and is going to have a big season as a senior."

Jackson stepped down after six years as the Avon Park head football coach in December. He helped to turn the Red Devils program around in his time and has confidence that the team will continue to achieve great things under new coach Jerry Hudnell. "Our kids worked hard and did everything we asked," said Jackson. "The credit goes to them for our success. I love these kids so much, but me leaving was the best thing for my family. There are a lot of talented players coming back and I can't wait to see how the Red Devils do this fall because I know they will play hard for coach Hudnell."

2-1 lead.

Sebring had an opportunity in the bottom of the tenth inning as Drew Smith came off the bench to hit a leadoff single into centerfield, but the Blue Streaks were unable to capitalize, falling in the end by a 2-1 score.

"The three guys that came in tonight pitched very well," said DeWitt. "We should have won. We had opportunities to win and just did not get it done. We have to make adjustments and get better. Tomorrow we are going to get back at it and get ready for Saturday. That is the great thing about baseball, you don't have to wait very long to get another chance to play."

Sebring plays Gulf Coast High School today starting at 2 p.m. in a JV/Varsity doubleheader in honor of cancer survivor

David Hermoso. "He is going to throw out the first pitch and the day will be about him," said DeWitt.

Deterrents or extremes

No one likes to find the evidence of a mouse in the house. Especially ladies. We shiver, scream and run the other way.

I've written before about the mouse that found refuge in our home and how inadvertently by bringing the birdfeeder in (so some nocturnal animal would stop eating all the seed!) and leaving it in our foyer, we had provided for the mouse.

Once we discovered all the shells in the back of our sofa bed, we realized just how much we had been duped.

Though we bought the typical mouse trap devices, we didn't like the idea of the extremes... finding dead mice. Then we discovered a non-toxic, natural product that deters mice up to 200 square feet from entering. So we purchased this product and for weeks didn't hear or detect any mouse invasion.

Then one night we were trying to sleep, but could hear activity in the wall. So, my husband Ken got up and placed the pouch of deterrent against the wall. Voila! Once again, no mice.

That is why we laughed out loud when weeks later on a wintry, snowy day, my husband pulled his snow boots from the closet and began putting them on. But, he noticed he had birdseed shells sticking to his socks.

"Jan," he called. Where are these birdseed shells on the rug coming from?"

I shrugged as I knew we'd just vacuumed. But, each time he put his foot into his boot, there'd be more birdseed residue.

A closer look into his boot revealed a stash of birdseed shells from our past mouse intruder who had found the warmest, coziest places to enjoy his meals. I'm so thankful for the deterrents we now use.

How about our daily lives? Do we find ourselves weighed down by habits we want to shun? Finding an alternative action can be a great deterrent, replacing the old habit with a wholesome new one.

Other times, only an extreme extinction of a sinful action will do the trick. At those times, we must repent...turn around and go the other way...so that we walk in the light of God's truth. Hebrews 12: 1 & 2 NKJV reminds us to "lay aside every weight and the sin which so easily ensnares us, and let us run with endurance the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith."

To stay on God's righteous path, turn to Jesus trusting him to provide deterrents or radical measures as needed. Selah

A place of remembrance

Beauty, meditation and education highlighted

The Highlands American Israeli Initiative led by President Justine Devlin has the mission "to support vigorously the long standing partnership between the U.S. and Israel at the grass roots level." The group meets monthly for a luncheon where speakers are invited to discuss various timely topics in regard to that relationship.

The February meeting was special however. At 6:55 a.m. last Thursday, 49 friends of Israel boarded a bus in Sebring and headed to Miami Beach to visit the Holocaust Memorial that was dedicated Feb. 4, 1990 to the over 6 million Jewish victims (over 1 million children under the age of 12) of the Holocaust.

The group consisted of many retired men and women who were youngsters in the 1940s. Six high school students, four from Lake Placid and two from Avon Park, joined the group. They were met at the memorial by Executive Director Sharon Horowitz, who said that over 120,000 visitors come each year to pay their respects.

The memorial was created via commission by architect, photographer, author and lecturer Kenneth Treister, who lived most of his life in Coconut Grove but now lives in Winter Haven.

Leader of movement to remember Holocaust victims dies at 93

ROSENSAFT

NEW YORK — Holocaust survivor Sam Bloch, who dedicated his life to preserving the memory of the victims of Nazi atrocities, has died at age 93.

He died of congestive heart failure on Feb. 4 at his home in New York, said his son-in-law, Menachem Rosensaft.

Bloch, who grew up in an area that was then Poland but is now part of Belarus, was 16 when his father was killed in a mass execution by Nazi forces in 1941. After taking shelter with a Polish farmer, Bloch joined a guerrilla brigade called the Bielski partisans, who hid in the woods and attacked German soldiers.

COUNSELING CORNER

It doesn't always have to be a teen vs. parent fight

AMERICAN COUNSELING ASSOCIATION

Parents and teenagers are always going to disagree about some things. It's simply the nature of the beast.

You, as the parent, are the half of the relationship with experience, who knows the limits, who wants to protect your child and who hopes to help guide him or her in positive ways.

Your teenager is the half of the relationship who is not only dealing with physical and emotional changes, peer pressure, and the normal developmental growth of desiring more independence, but who has to also put up with all the rules, "totally unfair rules" that you, the parent tend, to impose.

Yes, some conflict between parent and teen is inevitable, but there are things you can do to minimize the disagreements.

Start by remembering that you are the adult. Stay in control. Your teen may be trying to act grown-up, but often realizes deep down that protection and guidance are needed. Children want to be reassured that their parents are still in control, helping to guide the teen's life and development.

Most importantly, learn to listen! It's easy to be the busy adult, ignoring or misunderstanding your child. Instead, remember your own teen years and try to understand what your child is feeling and trying to communicate. Really listening to your child, understanding and respecting what is being expressed without being judgmental, can help strengthen and improve overall communication.

You also want to set limits, but limits with options. Your teens may argue, but they also understand that there are always limits to what is allowed. Instead of being a dictator, offer options

What a life!

"What a life!" Those were the words spoken by the minister one week ago at her memorial, and what a life it was.

I have attended many memorials and preached countless funerals over my years as a minister. I am accustomed to hearing kind words spoken about the deceased, and on this occasion, I expected nothing less. However, as I listened to her life in review, I found myself in overwhelming agreement with the speaker. What a life!

She was born in 1922. In one more month, she would have turned 95 years old. She married the man of her dreams in 1942, and I was blessed to be present as they both celebrated their 75th wedding anniversary earlier this year. She had three children of her own and later added a daughter "of the heart." In addition (and here is where the numbers get impressive!), she had 11 grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren, and 14 great-great-grandchildren. Can you imagine that? Here I am looking forward to the day when I will just have grandchildren, and this woman had 43. What a life!

Yet, the most memorable "statistic" mentioned at the service had nothing to do with her earthly family. Rather, it described her spiritual family and the priority she had placed on it many years before. When she was about 13 years old, she put her faith into practice and was baptized "in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit" (Matthew 28:19). Why? The Bible teaches that one is baptized for the "forgiveness of sins" (Acts 2:38), to "wash away" one's sins (Acts 22:16), and to bury the old person of sin with Christ and rise to "walk in newness of life" (Romans 6:3, 4). In 1 Peter 3:21, the apostle agreed with Jesus (Mark 16:16) when he declared that "baptism now saves you — not the removal of dirt from the flesh, but an appeal to God for a good conscience — through the resurrection of Jesus Christ." When she was old enough to understand the consequences of her sins and the importance of a living faith according to the biblical pattern, she did not hesitate. She took God at His word and "clothed" herself with Christ (Galatians 3:27). And, from that day so long ago until the day she left this world, she served her Master lovingly and obediently. What a life!

Before she ever had any children or grandchildren, she became a child of God. Before she ever married the man with

Having a special love for the Highlands American Israel Initiative, he arranged to have Lior Haiat, consul general of Israel in Miami, welcome the group.

"I've seen a lot of Holocaust Memorials but this one is special," Haiat said. One reason is that South Florida has more Holocaust survivors than any other area of America. This memorial is a place for them to visit, to remember their families, to meditate and to especially educate our youth to "Never Forget." The walls of the memorial carry the names of over 183,000 victims of Hitler's terror. More are added as surviving friends tell of new names to be engraved.

Visitors then sat in awe, many with tears flowing down their cheeks, as 88-year-old Holocaust survivor David Schaecter told of his life as an 11-year-old boy living through years of hell as a prisoner at the Auschwitz and Buchenwald concentration camps.

Schaecter's Jewish family was taken away and all murdered except him and his brother. They were chosen to live because of their youth and forced to clean train after train of the cattle cars that carried Jews to their deaths. "Those cars that fit 40 to 50 people were packed with 90 to 100. Over 15 percent died in the cars on the way," Schaecter said. The remaining were put into one of two lines — one leading to death by machine gun, the others worked to death by hard labor.

Schaecter lived at Auschwitz prior to the use of the gas chambers as an extermination method. He daily had to watch women forced to disrobe, march naked to stand before deep holes where they viewed victims lying dead in the holes, knowing that in a few seconds they too would be shot dead by machine gun and fall atop the bodies of other dead Jews. The guards then filled the mass grave hoping the outside world would never discover it.

He talked of his escape when the U.S. Air Force came in 1944 and began bombing train cars thinking they were filled with supplies for the Germans. He was able to jump from a bombed train, ran and seek shelter for weeks inside oak tree stumps he carved out as a hiding place in the forest.

"I weighted 75 pounds when found," Scaecter said

Eventually he was sent to an orphanage where he said, "I was fed and joined humanity."

In 1947, Schaecter qualified as an international exchange student. He came to New York in 1948 via the Queen Mary, attended college in Colorado, eventually graduating in 1952 from UCLA. In 1995, he settled in Miami.

His story is one of destiny. Today he leads the Holocaust Survivors Foundation — USA, and has spoken to over 5,000 children, asking them to be forever mindful of the 6 million Jews who died, of which 1.5 million were children like them.

the conference room in silence and awe as they then began their walk through the memorial.

The first image as the group began their journey was a sculpture of a mother and two fearful children. The expression on their faces asks, "Can it happen?"

The guests were then led to the Memorial Wall where they viewed photos of "suffering that transcends suffering." It was a silent walk past granite panels etched with photos of the concentration camps atrocities.

They then pilgrimaged through a narrow passage with a decreasing ceiling height tunnel creating the feeling of a diminished self. Along the wall the names of many of the Nazi concentration camps were engraved.

This all led to the circular plaza paved in pink-hued Jerusalem stone to view a 42-foot bronze sculpture designed by Treister. The flier given to each visitor says, "The sculpture depicts close to 100 figures in different family groupings. They cry out in anguish, they tell of pain, of despair, of life and of death in a man-made hell. A hand evolves out of the sculpture bearing numbers like the one's tattooed onto each Jew entering Auschwitz."

Each visitor has his own interpretation. Some saw despair, others hope, and some asked God, "Why?" Throughout the memorial were many sculptures of parents and children that literally summoned you to touch them or just pause to look into their fearful faces and wonder how anyone could cause such anguish in another human being.

Tresiter wrote of his thought process in building the memorial. "I built it as a series of outdoor spaces in which the visitor is led through a procession of visual, historical, and emotional experiences with the hope that the totality of the visit will express in some small way, the reality of the Holocaust ... 6 million moments of death cannot be understood, but we must try."

Tresiter autographed framed photos of his exhibit and presented them to Highlands American Israeli Initiative President Justine Devlin to give to each of the 49 people who traveled with her to the memorial.

Before heading home the group stopped for a wonderful luncheon at the Versailles, the world's most famous Cuban restaurant in Miami. There during lunch the guests reflected and shared with each other the emotions they experienced as they quietly moved through the memorial.

The next meeting will be at noon Wednesday, March 14 at Chicane's in Sebring. Rabbi Mendel Firedman will speak on "Things Jewish: Culture, Customs and Chicken Soup."

Brothers Joe and John Lunn, originally from Pittsburgh and now living at Camp Florida, were moved by the talk of Holocaust survivor David Schaecter. Joe Lunn said he could have listened to Schaecter for hours and John Lunn said, "We were so blessed to hear him."

Avon Park High School sophomore Hassan Javed shared his thoughts at lunch. "I always heard of the number of Jews who were killed, but today I saw and was moved by one person who experienced the terror."

On the trip home a movie was shown on the bus's TVs highlighting the building of the memorial. The bus then pulled into Highlands County around 5 p.m. with 49 passengers deeply moved by the experience.

A visit to the memorial should be on the bucket list so we always remember. There is no charge to visit. The memorial is at 1933-1945 Meridian Ave. in Miami Beach. Further information is available online or by calling 305-538-1663.

The next meeting of the Highlands American Israeli Initiative will be at noon Wednesday, March 14 at Chicane's in Sebring. Rabbi Mendel Firedman will speak on "Things Jewish: Culture, Customs and Chicken Soup." # Concert celebrating movie magic to feature well-loved themes

LAKE PLACID — The Heartland Pops, one of Highlands County's two premier concert bands, will present a concert titled "The Magic of Music in the Movies" in the sanctuary of First Presbyterian Church of Lake Placid at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 8. Selections will include favorites from movie musicals, award-winning classics, and children's films.

The concert at First Presbyterian Church will feature musical selections from "The Man of LaMancha," famous for its theme, "To Dream the Impossible Dream," "Mary Poppins," and a number of medleys. A medley celebrating Pixar movies will feature themes from five well-known films by the Disney-owned studio that created such children's favorites as "Toy Story," "Finding Nemo," "Cars," and "Ratatouille." Another medley celebrating Star Wars composer John Williams will feature the prologue from "Hook," the theme for "E.T.," and the famous "Raiders March" from the Indiana Jones film "Raiders of the Lost Ark." A third medley will celebrate themes by prolific British composer Andrew Lloyd Webber, including a salute to his most recognizable work, "The Phantom of the Opera."

The Heartland Pops was formed in August 2009, and is an all-volunteer concert band featuring some of the best musical talent in the Heartland. The group nurtures advanced student musicians by creating an environment in which they can enjoy the pleasure of playing with and learning from more experienced musicians, some of whom have more than 50 years of musical experience. In addition, the Pops provides an avenue for adult musicians to present high-quality music to the public by using their musical talents and abilities. While the group takes up donations for student scholarships, instruments, and music, its website proudly declares, "Your applause

LEADER

Bloch spent the years after the war's end in 1945 at a displaced-persons camp at the former Bergen-Belsen concentration camp in Germany.

Moving to the U.S. in 1950, he became a leader of efforts to remember the Holocaust with museums, memorials and gatherings of survivors.

Bloch organized one of the first major reunions of Jewish survivors of the Holocaust to mark the 20th anniversary of the liberation of Bergen-Belsen in 1965. He was among the leaders of gatherings of thousands of survivors in Jerusalem in 1981 and in Washington, D.C., two years later.

In a speech at the U.S. Capitol on April 13, 1983, he said of the survivors of the Holocaust: "The belief in God, in tradition, in humanity, expressed in secret prayers, even in Auschwitz, kept broken spirits from losing their complete faith. This is resistance, too."

Bloch was appointed chairman of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Council's board of advisers in 1981 and was a founder of the American Gathering of Jewish Holocaust Survivors.

He spent more than 50 years working for the World Zionist Organization, where he served as director of publications.

whenever possible that keep things within limits but do allow your teen some freedoms. Choices are important to a growing teen, even if sometimes the wrong choice might be made.

You also want to build a relationship with your teen, not one where you are your teen's best friend, but rather one as an adult who can be depended upon and trusted. Get to know your child, his or her friends, interests and feelings. Let your child know that as an adult you have your own feelings, values and rights.

As teens move toward adulthood there will always be some conflicts and disagreements. But by respecting your child's growing maturity and independence, and showing you're aware of those changes, you can help build a more positive relationship for both of you.

KOMMENTS

whom she would share nearly 76 years of life, she became the bride of Christ (Revelation 19:7-9). Most of us wonder if we will ever reach the age of 80, but for over eight decades, she lived with loyalty and dedication to "He who is the blessed and only Sovereign, the King of kings and Lord of lords" (1 Timothy 6:15).

Were any truer words ever spoken? What a life!

The question for each of us is simple. It has nothing to do with how long we will live, whom we will marry, or how many children we will have. With whatever time God grants us in this world, the question is, "How (or for Whom) shall we live it?" She answered that question many years ago by making Jesus Christ first and foremost in her life. Today, will we do the same? If so, then maybe the statement, "What a life!" will be said of us one day.

Her name was Lois, and what a life she lived!

Kevin's Komments is written by Kevin Patterson and presented by the Sebring Parkway church of Christ assembling at 3800 Sebring Parkway. Visit on the internet at www.sebringcoc.com, or e-mail sebringparkway@sebringcoc.com.

8 truths no one ever told us about grief

1. The five stages of grief (denial, anger, bargaining, depression, acceptance) are not linear.

I thought that grief was to be experienced in neat stages, ranging from denial right through to some rose-colored version of acceptance at a far-off point in the future. But of course, this is not the case. Certainly, these stages do fall upon us at some point or another as we grieve, but they are not linear, passing conveniently from one state to the next and ending in a neat conclusion under the banner of acceptance.

In the space of one day you may well go from denial, to acceptance, with a detour into anger.

2. People haven't a clue what to say to you.

You've probably already experienced that your newfound ability to stop conversations in their tracks and transform normally calm people into nervous babblers is astounding (and depressing). At social gatherings you may start to feel like the uninvited cousin turning up unannounced with a nasty case of halitosis.

Conversations fade to an unsteady halt when you join a group. Lifelong friends may become strangely formal around you and chatterboxes will talk about the weather, their day, anything apart from asking you how you are really feeling.

Frankly, people haven't got a clue when it comes to dealing with death. Ironically, it's often the bereaved that are most comfortable not only saying the dreaded "d" word, but actually talking about the person who has passed. Our society's inability to deal with death can make for an isolating grieving experience.

People don't seem to realize that we who grieve are sad 24/7 even many months and possibly years down the line. They feel that by not mentioning the deceased to us, they are helping us to move on. But of course, this is as insulting to the memory of the deceased as it is unhelpful to us. Grief is relentless and even if we are smiling and laughing on the surface, chances are we are barren inside.

3. Grief can be intensely physical.

For some, the physical pain can be relentlessly oppressive, the bleakness of grief in those early months can be simply too awful for our mind to accept, so possibly our bodies take on this pain instead. Certainly, as my mind adjusted over the months to my new reality (not accepted!), my physical pain subsided.

So, for what it's worth, please be reassured that these strange and very intense physical reactions are not only entirely normal; they are quite predictable physical manifestations of grief.

JOMARIE GRINKIEWICZ
GRIEF AND HEALING

And watch out for colds, coughs, gastro bugs and every other ailment under the sun. I was never so sick or physically run down as I was in those months after my losses. Be nice to yourself. When you can try to remember that you truly are not alone.

4. Crying can be daunting at first.

Put simply, because a part of you worries that once you start crying, you'll never stop.

Grief can be like walking down a set of steep steps. Each time we cry, we give in to our aching pain and it's like taking another step down the fear is that you may not be able to ever get back up again.

Honor your tears if they are there. They will stop. Then again, you may not want to cry at all. Or you may want to cry, but not be able to. Have faith that your body, and God, are looking after you and allowing you to grieve in the way that is most appropriate for you at this moment.

5. Everything feels meaningless, at least for a while.

When someone close to you dies, your understanding of life as you knew it often goes right out the window. Thoughts are scattered, and life's meaning is futile at best and at worst, completely devoid.

Through death, we realize how deceptive being alive is. Life fools you into thinking that you are going to just go on forever, suspended by this wonderful energy, this life-force of happiness. And yet at times like these, whether we want to realize it or not, we are acutely aware of the mortality hidden in the shadows of everyone's life.

6. Family and finances are two unexpected hurdles.

Life can be a curious thing sometimes just when you are trying to deal with your insurmountable loss, practical issues suddenly barge into your world, demanding your immediate and undivided attention.

The mountain of bills, debts and paperwork (not to mention lawyers' fees!) that you are probably facing right now feels possibly like a very cruel joke. Not only do you not have the energy to deal with all this, but having to sit in meetings with faceless people discussing your deceased loved one is, at best, sad to observe and, at worst, completely devastating.

Grief is messy and family members are the most likely people to hurt and be hurt. Not only are our families a delicate framework of different personalities with a shared, complex history, the old saying that you hurt the ones closest to you rings true at a time like this as unfair as it is.

Many psychologists and counselors are skilled in grief counseling and it needn't cost you any money. I started with prayer. Prayer is free. Jesus is and always will remain the Great Physician. Go to Him. Tell Him what you are feeling. Ask Him for help. Knock on His door — trust me, He will indeed answer you.

7. You may go (a little bit...) crazy!

A family friend who has lost several people close to her gave me this reassuring nugget of advice. I laughed when I heard it, not because it was wrong, but because I could identify to it. I was relieved that someone else had felt this too.

Whether you find yourself talking to the one who has passed as you walk down the street. Perhaps you ask them to flicker the light for your benefit. Maybe you can't sleep until dawn arrives, or you now sleep with the light on, or maybe you just find yourself obsessively thinking about them every minute of every day.

Whatever you are doing, it is completely normal; no matter how surreal it may feel to you (and others!) in your quieter moments.

8. Grab the good moments when they do come along.

Grief, as I've mentioned before, can come in waves. I wonder if our bodies do this to protect ourselves from the intensity of our emotion. While we may not have particularly 'happy' peaks, we may feel 'OK' or 'flat' for a while, before the next trough hits once again.

Try to ride these waves for what they are and don't waste precious energy feeling guilty for having a good day or even a good few hours. Enjoy the break before the next wave hits.

So there you have it, my summation of what grief is and can do to us. Your experience will no doubt be entirely different.

May you continue to feel the presence of God beside you every step of the way on your journey toward healing. Jesus holds your hand. Feel Him. Accept the love He offers you. Know that He feels your pain as deeply, if not deeper, than you.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING TO CONSIDER COUNTY ORDINANCE NO. 17-18- NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

NOTICE is hereby given that the Highlands County Board of County Commissioners will hold a public hearing to consider for the purpose of enactment the following ordinance on March 6, 2018, at 9:00 a.m. or as soon thereafter as possible, in the County Commissioners' Board Room of the Government Center, 600 South Commerce Avenue, Sebring, Florida:

AN ORDINANCE OF THE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OF HIGHLANDS COUNTY, FLORIDA, AMENDING SECTION 8-221 OF THE CODE OF ORDINANCES, HIGHLANDS COUNTY, FLORIDA, PROVIDING FOR THE COLLECTION, ADMINISTRATION, DISTRIBUTION AND ENFORCEMENT OF THE TOURIST DEVELOPMENT TAX; PROVIDING FOR CONFLICT; PROVIDING FOR SEVERABILITY; PROVIDING FOR INCLUSION IN THE CODE; AND PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

A copy of the ordinance is available for inspection in the office of the County Administrator, 600 South Commerce Avenue, Sebring, Florida 33870. All interested persons may appear and be heard at the time and place specified above. Any person who might wish to appeal any decision made by the Board of County Commissioners of Highlands County, Florida, in public hearing or meeting is hereby advised that they will need a record of the proceedings, and for such purpose, they may need to ensure that a verbatim record of the proceedings is made which will include the testimony and evidence upon which such appeal is to be based.

The Board of County Commissioners of Highlands County, Florida, does not discriminate upon the basis of any individual's disability status. This non-discriminatory policy involves every aspect of the Board's functions, including one's access to, participation, employment or treatment in its programs or activities. Anyone requiring reasonable accommodation as provided for in the Americans with Disabilities Act or Section 286.26, Florida Statutes, should contact Ms. Pam Rogers, ADA Coordinator, at (863) 402-6509 (voice), 863-402-6508 (TTY), or via Florida Relay Service 711, or by e-mail: progers@hcbo.org. Requests for CART or interpreter services should be made at least 24 hours in advance to permit coordination of the service.

Family travel five: Civil rights tour

By Lynn O'Rourke Hayes FAMILYTRAVEL.COM

Embark on a journey of discovery and understanding when you and your family visit the destinations and landmarks that play a part in the American civil rights story.

Here are five to consider:

1. Rosa Parks Museum, Montgomery, Ala.

"In 1955, when I was arrested ... I had no way of knowing what the future held," observed the woman who would become known as the Mother of the Civil Rights Movement when this museum was named in her honor. Set in front of the bus stop where the historic moment took place, the Rosa Parks Museum features a video re-enactment of her refusal to give up her seat to a white man and other interactive presentations. A children's wing provides age appropriate history lessons for youngsters.

2. Alexandria, Va.

Rising on the banks of the historic Potomac River, Alexandria, founded in 1746, is steeped in African-American history. Visit the city to seek an understanding of civil rights from colonial times to the Civil War, illuminated by a compelling collection of sites. Originally the segregated library for Alexandria's African-American residents, the Alexandria Black History Museum documents the local and national African-American experience through exhibits, speakers and interactive programs. Visit the Donald W. Reynolds Museum and Education Center to learn about those enslaved at nearby Mount Vernon. This exhibit explores household furnishings, artworks, archaeological discoveries and documents, and demonstrates how closely intertwined the lives of the Washington family members were with those they enslaved. Walking tours of Old Town Alexandria, offered by Manumission Tour Company, provide additional insight by sharing little-known stories from the era of slave trade.

3. Martin Luther King, Jr. Memorial, Washington, D.C.

Families can seek ongoing inspiration from the words and work of clergyman and civil rights leader Dr. King, through a visit to this monument in Potomac Park. Sixteen quotes extracted from his eloquent messages of

How to make blended families work

By DANIELLE BRAFF
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

When two people decide to become a family, it's tricky blending lifestyles, finances and personalities.

But when you add in unrelated children to create a blended family, chances are high that there will be a few issues before the family gels.

Still, more and more families are trying to make stepfamilies work today.

In 1960, only 13 percent of married adults were in a second marriage, but by 2013, about 40 percent of new marriages included a partner who had been married before, according to the Pew Research Center. And 63 percent of women who remarry come into blended families, with half of those involving stepchildren who live with the new couple, according to the National Center for Family & Marriage Research.

Jessica Schwartz, an infant massage educator in Chicago, formed her own stepfamily five years ago when she remarried, bringing her two children together with her husband's singleton.

Today, their three children are between the ages of 11 and 17, and two of the children live with them full-time, while the middle child lives in a different state for most of the year.

For the two families to blend well, Schwartz, said, the key is communication.

"We have a lot of communication, and we never treat any of the kids differently," she said. "There's no his and no yours."

A challenge for them was helping the middle child (her stepdaughter) feel like she belongs, as she only lives with them over the summer and during some major holidays, so they make sure to FaceTime frequently.

"We moved recently, but she wasn't with us for the move, so we did FaceTime with her when we were packing to see what she wanted donated, and we did FaceTime with her to ask her where she wanted her things put," Schwartz said.

Communication is key, especially among the adults, who need a unified front for the children, said Deborah Gilboa, author of "Get the Behavior you Want without Being the Parent you Hate."

She said that while all the children should be treated equally, they shouldn't be treated equally by both parents.

"Your biological parent is the parent, and while you should be respectful of the other parent, they can't punish you," Gilboa said.

If an older child moves into a home with a new adult, you can't just add water and become an instant family, she said, explaining that stepfamilies simply work differently than traditional families, and these blended families take time to function.

If your goal is a complete blend, you may be setting yourself up for failure, however, said Patricia Papernow, a Massachusetts-based author of "Surviving and Thriving in Stepfamily Relationships."

In a traditional family, a couple will get to know each other before they have children, so everything happens very gradually.

But in a stepfamily, the longer, more established system is the parent-child relationship, while the couple is much newer, which makes the relationships very different.

"The first thing to know is that the adult couple will be stuck insiders: They are more connected to their kids and partners and ex-partners, and they have to connect to them all," Papernow said.

The stepparents are on the outside. At the same time, the kids need much more time to adjust than the grown-ups do, and typically, this adjustment takes more time for them after separation or divorce.

"Change piles up for kids," Papernow said.

Children also feel loyalty bonds: If I care about my stepmother, I'm being disloyal to my mother, Papernow said.

In order to combat these blended family issues, Papernow suggested giving the children time to adjust, in addition to spending plenty of one-on-one time with each child, honoring every relationship that's being formed.

Blended families could also create new holidays to celebrate together.

Papernow also suggests celebrating a virgin holiday: A regular holiday that your family didn't already celebrate together, such as Memorial Day or Valentine's Day.

Go all-out for this big blended family celebration, and make this a new annual tradition, Papernow said.

But don't create new traditions too quickly, warns Ron Deal, director of Little Rock, Ark.-based FamilyLife Blended, and author of "The Smart Stepfamily."

"When first moving in together, try not to make a lot of changes in daily routines, traditions or rules," he said. "The family merger is a huge change; don't add more unnecessary ones on top of it."

Keep the same chores, visitation schedules, decor, bedtimes and even birthday traditions, advocates Deal.

"Every change says, 'Your family is gone,'" Deal said. "This creates insecurity in a child, and makes accepting the new family more difficult."

The key throughout the entire process should be to take everything slowly, and not to get frazzled if everything doesn't go the way you expect it to go, said Christina Roach, a Tampa, Fla.-based stepfamily coach and psychotherapist.

"Think of it as bringing together two separate corporations," Roach said. "Each has their own protocols and ways of doing things."

Parents adopting children to see higher fees, new rules

By DAVID CRARY
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The U.S. government has raised fees and made a series of regulatory changes recently for American families adopting children overseas, fueling resentment toward the State Department among agencies who fear further reductions in the already dwindling number of foreign adoptions.

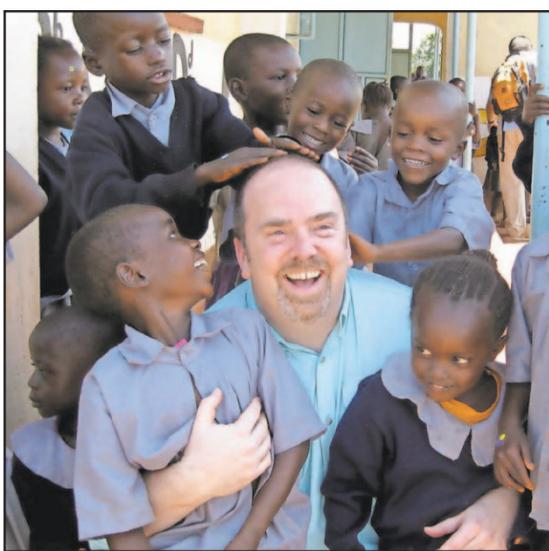

The number of foreign children adopted by U.S. parents has plummeted steadily since a peak of 22,884 in 2004. The total for the 2016 fiscal year was 5,372, a decrease of more than 76 percent.

The National Council for Adoption, which represents scores of adoption agencies, is leading a campaign against the new fees. They were announced Feb. 1 as part of broader changes in how the agencies offering international adoptions undergo a required accreditation process.

Chuck Johnson, the council's CEO, said the new policies will make adoptions too costly for many families and force agencies out of business "due to the burdensome costs of maintaining accreditation."

The ranks of international adoption agencies in the U.S. already has dropped from more than 200 a decade ago to about 160 now.

Many of the remaining agencies are faith-based, and view adoption as a means of carrying out a Christian mission. Leaders of some of these agencies have voiced frustration over their strained dealings with the State Department under President Donald Trump at a time when several other departments in the White House are taking steps welcomed by Christian evangelicals.

The process for American families seeking to adopt foreign children has been surrounded by turmoil lately.

Corruption scandals have led to suspensions of adoptions from a few countries, contributing to the drop in international adoptions. In China, which accounts for the most children adopted in the U.S., the numbers have plummeted as more Chinese people adopt domestically. Russia used to account for hundreds of U.S. adoptions a year, but has halted them due to political strains.

In November, the organization that oversaw the accreditation process for nearly a decade, the New York-based Council on Accreditation, announced it was withdrawing from that role after a public exchange of differences with the State Department.

The State Department said its most recent performance review of the council revealed "numerous concerns and deficiencies," including alleged laxity in enforcing regulations governing the adoption agencies' foreign employees and partners.

The council, in turn, accused the State Department of unilaterally altering their business agreement and pushing for fee increases.

"This will have a chilling effect on families coming forward to engage in the process," said Richard Klarberg, the Council on Accreditation's president.

Officials of several leading adoption agencies said they respected Klarberg's council and were sorry to see it relinquishing its duties.

Klarberg says his organization handled the adoption dossier with a full-time staff of four, making use of volunteers from the adoption industry to help carry out its investigations in a collegial manner. The State Department has recruited a brand-new agency, the Intercountry Adoption Accreditation and Maintenance Entity (or IAAME), to take over from Klarberg's council; it is expected to have a bigger budget and a staff of at least 20 to carry out a more aggressive regimen of investigations.

Suzanne Lawrence, the State Department's special adviser for children's issues, said the new fees were necessary to fund those activities.

"Monitoring and oversight of the intercountry adoption process today is critical to ensuring that families and children are protected and that safe and ethical adoptions continue in the future," she said in an email.

Adoptions require rigorous scrutiny largely because of corruption that has surfaced in various ways. An Ohio-based adoption agency recently was shut down due to allegations it charged families for services it did not provide. Overseas, there have been scandals involving bribery, false documents and baby-selling.

Estimates vary widely as to how much adoption agency costs might rise under the new State Department policies. Most of those providing input to The Associated Press said accreditation-related costs would at least double, and they worried that a new non-refundable fee of $500 for prospective adoptions — which would be passed on to parents — would be a deterrent for some families.

The State Department noted that the new fee would represent less than a 1.5 percent increase for families whose foreign adoptions cost more than $35,000. However, Johnson said the burden on families could worsen as other new accreditation-related costs also are passed on.

Totaled up, the $500 fees are expected to generate more than $2 million in annual revenue for IAAME. Klarberg said that far exceeded the Council on Accreditation's typical annual budget.

Greg Eubanks, CEO of a large adoption agency known as WACAP, said he was dismayed that the fee increase was imposed without an opportunity for public comment.

"We all have confusion," he said. "It feels like it's being rushed."

He said agencies might face other higher costs due to being billed by IAAME for travel and per diem expenses related to a beefed-up regimen of on-site inspections in the U.S. and overseas.

WACAP — based in Renton, Washington — processed more than 300 international adoptions in 2010, Eubanks said. That number has dropped to about 170 — mostly children with special medical or psychological needs.

"For some of these kids, this is a life-and-death issue," he said.

Critics of the new policies are puzzled why the State Department is tightening regulation of international adoptions at a time when the administration is deregulating other sectors.

"We're hopeful Congress and the administration will take a look at this issue and confirm if this is the direction they want to go — a direction that I believe will virtually end intercountry adoption as an option for U.S. families," he said.

Both families coming into the blended family need to compromise, be flexible and have a lot of patience to facilitate an environment where everyone feels heard and is open to trying new things, Roach said.

"Loyalty bonds plus outside variables that are out of your control, create a very complex dynamic that each person involved is trying to figure out simultaneously," Roach said. "If that doesn't sound difficult, I don't know what does."

But Schwartz, who is five years into her blended family, said that it can work.

"Overall, it was really smooth for us," she said.

Schwartz said they had more problems as the kids got older, especially because they had to figure out how to make her stepdaughter feel like she was getting enough attention, despite living in another state — but not too much attention that the other two would get jealous.

They've been working on solving that issue by doing one-on-one time with every child.

Schwartz said they have also been talking about the family rules, making sure everyone has clear expectations and appropriate consequences, even if they don't live in the home full-time.

"My biggest thing was that I never wanted anyone to feel like they didn't belong, or that they weren't getting the full treatment," she said.

It's a balancing act, but when they get it right, the blend is perfect.

Former top campaign aide to Trump pleads guilty in Russia investigation

By CHRIS MEGERIAN, DAVID WILLMAN and JOSEPH TANFANI
TRIBUNE WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — Richard W. Gates III, who helped manage Donald Trump's presidential campaign after making millions of dollars advising Ukraine's pro-Kremlin government, pleaded guilty Friday to conspiracy against the United States and lying to federal agents, becoming the latest former Trump aide to cooperate with prosecutors in the sprawling Russia investigation.

The guilty plea is unusual because court papers reveal that Gates lied to special counsel Robert S. Mueller III and the FBI as recently as Feb. 1, when he already was negotiating with prosecutors about the raft of criminal charges he was facing.

Gates' original three lawyers applied to withdraw from the case the same day, a hint of a behind-the-scenes personal drama that preceded Friday's denouement. Gates, 45, looked haggard, with dark circles under his eyes, when he appeared in court before U.S. District Judge Amy Berman Jackson.

Gates is the fifth person to plead guilty to charges stemming from the Mueller probe, and the first to confess to more than one criminal charge. While Gates could face more than five years in prison on the two charges, he is expected to be sentenced to about 18 months, according to a person familiar with the plea negotiations.

Mueller has proven adept at securing cooperation from Trump's former associates as he investigates Russian meddling in the 2016 election, and whether anyone in the Trump campaign assisted in that operation or committed other potential crimes, including obstruction of justice while in the White House.

Gates' plea poses the biggest immediate risk to Paul Manafort, who was Trump's campaign manager and Gates' longtime business partner.

Prosecutors had filed several dozen charges against Manafort and Gates, including tax evasion, bank fraud and conspiracy, mostly stemming from their alleged attempts to hide more than $30 million from their consulting and lobbying work for the Kremlin-backed government in Ukraine.

They both pleaded not guilty when the first indictment was unveiled on Oct. 30. Gates now is expected to testify against Manafort, who said Friday that he is innocent of the charges.

"Notwithstanding that Rick Gates pled today, I continue to maintain my innocence," Manafort said in a statement. "I had hoped and expected my business colleague would have had the strength to continue the battle to prove our innocence. For reasons yet to surface he chose to do otherwise. This does not alter my commitment to defend myself against the untrue piled up charges contained in the indictments against me."

Several hours later, the special counsel's office unveiled a superseding indictment against Manafort that also accused him of secretly paying former European politicians to advocate for Ukraine, part of an undisclosed effort to lobby members of Congress and the

A look at the guilty pleas so far in Mueller's probe

ASSOCIATED PRESS

A former senior adviser on President Donald Trump's election campaign pleaded guilty Friday to charges from special counsel Robert Mueller's investigation. With his plea on federal conspiracy and false-statements charges, Rick Gates became the fifth person to plead guilty in the Mueller probe into Russian meddling in the 2016 presidential election and possible coordination with Trump's campaign. Here's a look at the four others:

Michael Flynn

Trump's former national security adviser, a retired general who had led the Defense Intelligence Agency, was the first White House official charged in Mueller's probe. The plea on Dec. 1 to one count of lying to the FBI requires Flynn to cooperate with prosecutors. The favorable deal suggests that prosecutors thought Flynn's cooperation was key to other parts of the probe. Flynn was a national security surrogate during the later parts of the campaign. He was charged with lying about conversations with Russia's ambassador to Washington during the transition.

George Papadopoulos

Papadopoulos, a former Trump campaign aide whom the White House has described as a low-level volunteer, became a major figure in Mueller's probe when he pleaded guilty on Oct. 30 to lying to the FBI. Papadopoulos was arrested in July and has been interviewed repeatedly by authorities, according to court documents. After entering his guilty plea, he was ordered not to contact other Trump officials and prohibited from foreign travel. Papadopoulos, in fact, appears to have been the trigger for the whole investigation. In a conversation with an Australian diplomat, Papadopoulos told him he had learned the Russians had "dirt" on Hillary Clinton in the form of "thousands of emails." The conversation was prior to that information becoming public and the diplomat informed U.S. authorities.

Trump administration to open US Embassy in Jerusalem in May

TRIBUNE WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — Accelerating controversial plans, the Trump administration will open a small U.S. Embassy in Jerusalem in May to coincide with the 70th anniversary of Israel's declaration of independence, a State Department official said Friday.

Secretary of State Rex Tillerson approved preliminary security plans for a limited contingent, including the ambassador, David Friedman, and a skeleton staff, to move into a section of the American Consulate in the Arnona neighborhood of Jerusalem, said Steven Goldstein, the under secretary for public diplomacy and public affairs.

"The goal is to open a small footprint in May, and, over time, open a more full embassy by the end of 2019," Goldstein said in an interview.

The May 14 date — the date Israel originally declared independence — significantly accelerates the schedule for transferring the U.S. Embassy from Tel Aviv, where it always existed along with the rest of the world's diplomatic missions, to the disputed holy city of Jerusalem. (According to the Hebrew calendar,

AP-NORC Poll: People feel better about economy, not country

By LAURIE KELLMAN and EMILY SWANSON

WASHINGTON — Chester Trahan's grandchildren are working, so he's feeling better about the economy these days. But his view of the country's overall direction is pretty grim, darkened by what he sees as a surge in racism and violence fueled by President Donald Trump.

"He stimulated it. Those people were always there, but he gave them a voice," said Trahan, a 78-year-old retiree from Palm Coast, Florida. He's not about to give Trump credit even for the good stuff. "I don't think he's really done anything to help the economy out. It's been doing pretty well for awhile."

Trahan's conflicted outlook of America under Trump — the economy is headed in a better direction than the country overall — is widely shared. A majority in a new poll, 52 percent, say they think the country's direction has

UN to vote Saturday on humanitarian cease-fire in Syria

By EDITH M. LEDERER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

UNITED NATIONS — The U.N. Security Council delayed a vote on a resolution demanding a 30-day humanitarian cease-fire across Syria until Saturday in hopes of closing a gap over the timing for a halt to fighting.

Russia's U.N. Ambassador Vassily Nebenzia has called an immediate cease-fire unrealistic.

After six hours of negotiations, Kuwait's U.N. Ambassador Mansour Al-Otaiba, the current council president, told reporters Friday evening that members "are so close" to agreement, and negotiations are continuing.

He said the council will meet at noon EST on Saturday and there will be a vote.

The resolution sponsored by Kuwait and Sweden calls for a cease-fire to take effect 72 hours after its adoption, followed immediately by access for humanitarian convoys and medical teams to evacuate the critically ill and wounded.

It states that 5.6 million people in 1,244 communities are in "acute need," including 2.9 million in hard-to-reach and besieged locations.

A Russian-proposed amendment, which the sponsors rejected, would have ruled out an immediate cease-fire. Instead, it would have demanded that all parties "stop hostilities as soon as possible" and work for a "humanitarian pause" for at least 30 days.

Sweden's U.N. Ambassador Olof Skoog echoed Al-Otaiba, telling reporters that council members have been "very, very close" to agreement — "but we have not been able to close the gap completely."

This photo released on Friday by the Syrian anti-government activist group Ghouta Media Center, which has been authenticated based on its contents and other AP reporting, shows smoke rising after Syrian government airstrikes hit Ghouta, suburb of Damascus, Syria.

"We all agree there needs to be a cease-fire and it has to be urgent, immediately," he said. "There are still some discussions on exactly how to define that. So that's what we're working on."

Skoog said he was "extremely frustrated" that the council was unable to adopt the resolution on Thursday or Friday because the situation on the ground is dire and demands immediate council action.

U.S. Ambassador Nikki Haley, who did not participate in Friday's negotiations, tweeted: "Unbelievable that Russia is stalling a vote on a ceasefire allowing humanitarian access in Syria. How many more people will die before the Security Council agrees to take up this vote?"

Sweden and Kuwait, and their council supporters, have been pressing for immediate action as deaths mount in a Syrian bombing campaign in the rebel-held suburbs of Damascus known as eastern Ghouta.

"It is about saving lives," Sweden's Skoog said earlier. "U.N. convoys and evacuation teams are ready to go. It's time for the council to come together and shoulder its responsibility to urgently avert a situation that is beyond words in its desperation."

The draft resolution would authorize one exemption from the cease-fire.

It would allow attacks directed at extremists from the Islamic State group and all al-Qaida affiliates including the Nusra Front to continue. The Syrian government and its Russian allies say they are pursuing Islamic extremists they call "terrorists" — and U.S.-backed forces are also going after IS and al-Qaida militants.

The latest draft resolution does include several other Russian proposals. It stresses the need for "guarantees" from countries with influence on government and opposition forces to support and create conditions for a lasting cease-fire. The sponsors also added language expressing "outrage" at the shelling of Damascus, including on diplomatic premises, which is a proposal Russia wanted.

Earlier this week, U.N. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres urged an immediate suspension of "all war activities" in eastern Ghouta, where he said 400,000 people are living "in hell on earth."

INTERNATIONAL NEWS BRIEF

EU official says UK seems delusional over post-Brexit ties

BRUSSELS (AP) — A top European Union official says Britain's view of its future ties with the EU after Brexit seems delusional.

European Council President Donald Tusk said Friday that "if the media reports are correct, I am afraid that the U.K. position today is based on pure illusion."

He spoke after an EU leaders' summit. They have been appealing for Britain to explain its vision of future ties, so Tusk can draft negotiating guidelines on the issue for next month.

Tusk said the EU will adopt the guidelines "whether the U.K. is ready with its vision of our future relations or not. Naturally it would be much better if it were, but we cannot stand by and wait."

Tusk holds talks with British Prime Minister Theresa May next Thursday.

Money-laundering watchdog: Close North Korean banks

PARIS (AP) — The watchdog that monitors

global and illicit misuse of funds has cited North Korea as a top source of "ongoing and substantial" money laundering and terrorist financing and urged countries to close North Korean banks.

The Financial Action Task Force said in its report Friday after a plenary session that North Korea has failed to address "significant deficiencies" in its system to combat the ills that pose a risk to the international financial system. It also expressed concern over illicit activities linked to the proliferation and financing of weapons of mass destruction.

Iran was singled out but the task force chose to maintain its suspension of counter-measures. Pakistan escaped mention, despite speculation that it could be listed.

French customs officials find stolen Degas in luggage on bus

PARIS (AP) — French customs officers have found an impressionist painting by Edgar Degas stowed on a bus, more than eight years after it was reported stolen.

The French Culture Ministry said Friday that customs agents in Marne-la-Vallee were surprised to find a work of art bearing the signature "Degas" inside a suitcase in the bus' luggage compartment. The ministry says none of the passengers claimed the suitcase during the Feb. 16 search.

Experts verified the artwork as Degas' "Les Choristes" ("The Chorus Singers"), which depicts a scene from Mozart's opera "Don Giovanni."

French Culture Minister Francoise

Nyssen said she was delighted by the recovery of a work "whose disappearance represented a heavy loss for the French impressionist heritage."

Obama administration.

None of the charges against Gates and Manafort cite Russian meddling in the presidential election, which was the impetus for Mueller's investigation. But the allegations extended through 2017 and thus overlapped with the pair's work in the top ranks of the Trump campaign, according to court documents.

It's unknown whether Gates has more to offer beyond testimony against Manafort. He served as a senior adviser to the Trump campaign after Manafort stepped down as campaign manager in August 2016, helped organize Trump's inauguration in January 2017, and had access to the White House as an outside adviser in the early weeks of the administration.

Gates' guilty plea marks an emphatic fall for the married father of four. The son of a career Army officer, Gates had maintained an appearance of wealthy prestige while living in an upscale neighborhood of Richmond, Va.

After breaking with his original three lawyers, Gates was represented by Thomas C. Green, who negotiated the plea deal with two prosecutors, Andrew Weissmann and Greg D. Andres, from Mueller's team. The Los Angeles Times first reported an expected deal on Sunday.

Gates is scheduled to return to court on May 14 for a status hearing.

Gates' guilty plea for lying to investigators stems from his account of a dinner discussion on March 19, 2013, between Manafort and Rep. Dana Rohrabacher, R-Calif., who has been a strong advocate for better U.S. relations with Russia.

Three weeks ago, as he was negotiating his plea deal, Gates told the FBI that Manafort and an unnamed lobbyist had told him they didn't talk to Rohrabacher about Ukraine.

But, according to a court filing Friday, Gates had helped Manafort prepare a report that "memorialized for Ukraine leadership the pertinent Ukraine discussions that Manafort represented had taken place at the meeting."

Last year, Manafort and Vin Weber, a former Minnesota congressman and a partner in the Mercury Public Affairs business in Washington, filed belated reports to the Department of Justice under the Foreign Agents Registration Act, listing the Rohrabacher meeting as part of their lobbying work on behalf of Ukraine government interests.

Rohrabacher acknowledged to The Times in an interview last year that he had discussed Russian and regional issues at what he called "a nice little dinner" at the Capitol Hill Club. Three days after the meeting, Manafort contributed $1,000 to Rohrabacher's re-election campaign.

Rohrabacher declined to comment when contacted by a reporter on Friday, saying, "I can't do any interviews off the cuff" before hanging up.

Weber did not immediately respond to requests for comment. A statement from Mercury said the company is cooperating with prosecutors and "confident (they) have acted appropriately throughout."

Rohrabacher spokesman Ken Grubbs said Friday that Ukraine only came up "in passing" because the men "reminded and talked mostly about politics."

"As the congressman has acknowledged before, the meeting was a dinner with two longtime acquaintances — Manafort and Weber — from back in his White House and early congressional days," Grubbs said in an email. "It is no secret that Manafort represented (then-Ukrainian President) Viktor Yanukovich's interests, but as chairman of the relevant European subcommittee, the congressman has listened to all points of view on Ukraine. We may only speculate that Manafort needed to report back to his client that Ukraine was discussed."

The Podesta Group, a business with high-level Democratic connections, also last year reported doing lobbying work for the Ukraine interests under Manafort's direction. Tony Podesta, whose brother John Podesta was the chairman of Hillary Clinton's 2016 presidential campaign, left the company after the initial indictment of Manafort and Gates last year. The company disbanded soon after. Tony Podesta did not respond to messages left for him late Friday.

In two major indictments, prosecutors painted a detailed picture of how Manafort and Gates used offshore accounts to illegally funnel tens of millions of dollars into the United States to purchase real estate and finance luxury lifestyles.

Their income dried up after political unrest forced Yanukovich to flee to Russia in 2014, and the indictment says they turned to fraud to obtain more than $20 million in loans.

Richard Pinedo

The California man had the misfortune to unwittingly sell bank accounts to Russians meddling in U.S. elections. Richard "Ricky" Pinedo pleaded guilty to using stolen identities to set up bank accounts that were then used by the Russians. The U.S. government acknowledged that Pinedo did not know that he was dealing with Russians.

The plea was announced on the same day that Mueller's office charged 13 Russians, including a businessman close to Vladimir Putin, in an elaborate plot to interfere in the 2016 U.S. presidential election. The federal indictment was the most direct allegation to date of illegal Russian meddling during the campaign.

Alex Van der Zwaan

The 33-year-old attorney pleaded guilty to lying to investigators about his interactions with Gates. Van der Zwaan was fired last year by law firm Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom. A Dutch citizen who lives in London, he is the son-in-law of a Russian billionaire. Van der Zwaan admitted to lying to federal investigators while they questioned him about the production of a legal report that Paul Manafort and Gates are accused of secretly funding by funneling $4 million through an offshore account. The charge does not involve election meddling or relate to the Trump campaign's operations.

EMBASSY

Independence Day this year will be celebrated on April 18.)

President Donald Trump in December announced he was recognizing Jerusalem as the capital of Israel and ordering the embassy transfer, reversing decades of U.S. and international policy and enraging the Arab world and many allies.

While Israel claims Jerusalem as its "eternal and undivided" capital, Palestinians also claim the eastern part of the city as their capital in a future independent state.

The status of Jerusalem was to be decided in final peace talks. The Palestinians now contend that the U.S., once the broker of such talks, has disqualified itself as a mediator by taking Israel's side.

The move has been celebrated in Israel, which has long had its ministries, parliament and government offices in Jerusalem. But it generated a wave of furious, weekly protests in Palestinian territories.

Vice President Mike Pence, visiting Jerusalem last month, gave the first sign that the embassy transfer was being accelerated, when he announced to the Israeli Knesset, or parliament, that the move would take place by the end of 2019.

U.S. officials say the 2019 deadline would see a substantial annex of the consulate in Jerusalem becoming the embassy. A new building to house a full embassy, however, will still take several years to establish, the officials said.

Israel Katz, the Israeli minister of intelligence, congratulated the Trump administration in a tweet Friday. "There is no greater gift than that!" he said. "The most just and correct move."

Majdi Khaldi, diplomatic adviser to Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas, decried the "unfortunate announcement" that he described as "illegal, irresponsible and unacceptable to Palestinians."

Trump's move, Khaldi said in an interview, "gave the Israelis a pretext to say that Jerusalem is unified under Israeli rule," contravenes international law and will impede peace efforts.

"It cancels any peace offer," Khaldi said.

Trump, speaking at the White House on Friday alongside visiting Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull, reiterated a claim he has made that his administration is making "great progress" on promoting peace in the Middle East. Several former ambassadors to Israel say, in fact, peace has never been further away.

Jerusalem, a 6,000-year-old city, was divided for 19 years, from the date of Israel's 1948 founding until the war of 1967, when Israel seized the eastern half of the city from Jordan.

The embassy move is scheduled to take place on the date marking Israel's Declaration of Independence in 1948, which Palestinians call Naqba Day, or the day of the catastrophe.

State Department lawyers, meanwhile, were examining whether it is legal to accept private donations to fund a diplomatic mission, following a proposal by Las Vegas casino magnate and pro-Israel hawk Sheldon Adelson to pay for the new embassy.

Adelson is a major contributor to the Republican Party, a loyal supporter of Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and owner of a popular tabloid in Israel. Trump's Jerusalem decision was seen in part as a gesture to Adelson as well as to evangelical Christians, a key component of the president's base of political support.

However, Goldstein said there were "no formal talks" between the State Department and any private citizen for financing the embassy, and no formal requests made to the State Department for such an arrangement.

Trump has promised the "ultimate deal," a final agreement on Israeli-Palestinian peace, and placed the negotiations under the direction of his 37-year-old son-in-law, Jared Kushner.

None of the parties to possible future negotiations, however, has seen any part of the plan that the Trump administration periodically declares is imminent, and the Palestinian Authority cut off all contact with the United States following Trump's Jerusalem announcement.

Daniel Shapiro, a former U.S. ambassador to Israel under President Obama, agrees that the embassy belongs in Jerusalem but that the Trump administration has failed to give the proper assurances especially to the Palestinians.

"Before May 14, the administration should do what it failed to do in December: describe this decision in the context of a broader, credible plan for two states, including a Palestinian capital in East Jerusalem," Shapiro said.

POLL

national economy as having improved rather than worsened in the past 12 months, 39 percent to 24 percent, according to a survey released Friday by The Associated Press-NORC Center for Public Affairs Research. Another 36 percent said they don't see much difference.

"Well, I hold a job again," said Republican-leaning David Peterson of Torrance, California, 67, a quality assurance manager at an aerospace company who was forced to work at a security job for a year. "But recent events would point toward things getting worse ... It's a lot of violence in the news. A lot of violence in the country. A lot of natural disasters."

Can-do optimism has been a feature of American culture since the nation's founding. But the poll suggests it's been challenged in the 13 months since Trump took office, amid devastating mass shootings, a deadly race riot in Charlottesville, Virginia, record-setting hurricanes and Trump's volatile White House. Not contributing to a sense of safety has been Trump's feud with North Korea.

But Trump also has the improving economy in his pocket, low unemployment and a stock market that has only recently begun to wobble. He and the Republican-led Congress scored a major policy victory at the end of 2017 by passing tax cuts into law.

That's important to how Americans feel about the lifelong businessman and his presidency. His base of support remains historically low but solid, with about about 35 percent of Americans saying they approve of how Trump is handling his job overall. Nearly two-thirds disapprove.

Yet 45 percent say they approve of Trump's handling of the economy. That's higher than the 34 percent who approve of how he's handling foreign policy and 37 percent who say the same of Trump's handling of immigration.

Even among Democrats, just 8 percent of whom say they approve of how Trump is handling his job overall, 21 percent say they approve of his handling of the economy. Among Republicans, three-quarters approve overall while 82 percent back his performance on the economy.

Republicans stand far ahead of Democrats and independents in terms of optimism about how things are going in the country.

For example, 57 percent of Republicans but just a tenth of Democrats think the direction of the country will improve in the next year. Nearly 7 in 10 Republicans — but just 13 percent of Democrats — believe the national economy is likely to improve. Republicans are even more optimistic than Democrats when it comes to thinking their personal finances will improve, 54 percent to 27 percent.

And in general, 64 percent of Republicans but just 11 percent of Democrats think the country is headed in the right direction. Overall, just 32 percent of Americans think the country is headed in the right direction, while 68 percent think it's on the wrong track.

The AP-NORC poll of 1,337 adults was conducted Feb. 15-19 using a sample drawn from NORC's probability-based AmeriSpeak panel, which is designed to be representative of the U.S. population. The margin of sampling error for all respondents is plus or minus 3.9 percentage points.

Today is Saturday, Feb. 24, the 55th day of 2018. There are 310 days left in the year.

Today in history

On Feb. 24, 1868, the U.S. House of Representatives impeached President Andrew Johnson by a vote of 126-47 following his attempted dismissal of Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton; Johnson was later acquitted by the Senate.

On this date

In 1582, Pope Gregory XIII issued an edict outlining his calendar reforms. (The Gregorian Calendar is the calendar in general use today.)

In 1761, Boston lawyer James Otis Jr. went to court to argue against "writs of assistance" that allowed British customs officers to arbitrarily search people's premises, declaring: "A man's house is his castle." (Although Otis lost the case, his statement provided early inspiration for American independence.)

In 1920, the German Workers Party, which later became the Nazi Party, met in Munich to adopt its platform.

In 1968, "Fleetwood Mac," the group's debut album, was released in the United Kingdom on the Blue Horizon label.

In 1983, a congressional commission released a report condemning the internment of Japanese-Americans during World War II as a "grave injustice."

In 1988, in a ruling that expanded legal protections for parody and satire, the Supreme Court unanimously overturned a $150,000 award that the Rev. Jerry Falwell had won against Hustler magazine and its publisher, Larry Flynt.

Church: Cardinal's 'nighty-night, baby' tweet was for sister

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A New Jersey archbishop raised a few eyebrows when he tweeted "Nighty-night, baby. I love you," but his spokesman says it was an errant message intended for his sister.

Cardinal Joseph Tobin's spokesman says the leader of the Newark Roman Catholic archdiocese later deleted Wednesday's tweet because it was being misinterpreted.

Spokesman Jim Goodness says Tobin has eight younger sisters and "they're all his baby sisters." Goodness said he doesn't know how the siblings were communicating before the message was tweeted out. Tobin's Twitter account shows he tweets infrequently.

The full tweet read: "Supposed to be airborne in 10 minutes. Nighty-night, baby. I love you."

The 65-year-old Tobin was installed as Newark's archbishop in January 2017.

More companies end ties with NRA as pressure mounts

By DAMIAN TROISE and ALEXANDRA OLSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Three more companies said Friday they had ended discount programs with the National Rifle Association, as U.S. corporations take a closer look at investments, co-branding deals and other ties to the gun industry after the latest school massacre.

Petitions are circulating online targeting companies that offer discounts to NRA members on its website. #BoycottNRA has trended on Twitter.

Members of the NRA have access to special offers from partner companies on its website, ranging from life insurance to wine clubs. For a second consecutive day, companies listed on the site have cut ties to the group as it aggressively resists calls for stricter gun control in the wake of the mass shooting last week at a Florida high school that left 17 dead.

The insurance company MetLife Inc. discontinued its discount program with the NRA on Friday. The car rental company Hertz and Symantec Corp., the software company that makes Norton Antivirus technology, did the same.

Insurer Chubb Ltd. said Friday it is ending participation in the NRA's gun-owner insurance program, but it provided notice three months ago. The program that provided coverage for people involved in gun-related incidents or accidents had been under scrutiny by regulators over marketing issues.

Those defections arrived a day after car rental company Enterprise Holdings, which also owns Alamo and National, said it was cutting off discounts for NRA members. First National Bank of Omaha, one of the nation's largest privately held banks, announced that it would not renew a co-branded Visa credit-card with the NRA.

Other companies, including Wyndham Hotels and Best Western hotels, have let social media users know they are no longer affiliated with the NRA, though they did not make clear when the partnerships ended.

The swiftness of the corporate reaction against the NRA has differed from that of past shootings, including the 2012 Sandy Hook Elementary School massacre that claimed 26 lives and the killing of 58 people in Las Vegas last fall, said Bob Spitzer, a political scientist at SUNY Cortland and a scholar on gun politics. Spitzer said the reaction was likely a reaction to the student mobilization that followed the Florida shooting, but he said it was too soon to tell how significantly it will sway the country's wider gun debate.

"If this is as far as it goes, it probably won't have any measurable effect. If other companies continue to (cut ties) it can start to have an adverse public relations effect," Spitzer said. "Usually what happens is that the storm passes, and the NRA counts on that."

Spitzer noted that it was not the first time big business has been pulled into the gun debate. In 2014, Chipotle asked customers not to bring firearms into its stores after gun rights advocates brought military-style rifles into one of its Texas restaurants. A year earlier, Starbucks Corp. made a similar statement after the Newtown, Connecticut, shooting.

Larry Hutcher, an attorney who specializes in commercial law and litigation, said companies are reacting to a perception that public opinion is shifting on gun regulation. Polls show growing support for gun control measures, including 97 percent backing for universal background checks in a Quinnipiac University survey released Tuesday.

"It's based on the fact that these companies and their marketing officers are reading the tea leaves. It makes economic sense to get on the side of the majority of Americans," said Hutcher, co-managing partner of Davidoff Hutcher & Citron LLP.

NRA Executive Vice President Wayne LaPierre said this week at the Conservative Political Action Conference, that those advocating for stricter gun control are exploiting the Florida shooting.

President Donald Trump has aligned himself with the NRA, suggesting some teachers could be armed so that they could fire on any attacker. However, Trump has also called for raising the minimum age for purchasing semi-automatic rifles, a move the NRA opposes.

On Friday, a large Wall Street money management firm said that it wanted to engage with major weapons manufacturers about what comes next.

Blackrock Inc., which manages $6 trillion in assets, has become one of the largest stakeholders gun manufacturers like Sturm Ruger & Co., American Outdoor Brands Corp. and Vista Outdoor Inc. through indirect investments. The money is placed in index funds, so Blackrock cannot sell shares of individual companies within the index. Its fund clients invest in indexes that might contain companies like Ruger.

On Friday, spokesman Ed Sweeney said Blackrock will be "engaging with weapons manufacturers and distributors to understand their response to recent events."

Blackrock, through indirect investments, holds a 16.18 percent stake in Sturm Ruger, an 11.91 percent stake in Vista, and a 10.5 percent stake in American Outdoor, according to the data firm FactSet.

US asks judge to approve seizure of Pharma Bro's assets

By TOM HAYS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — "Pharma Bro" Martin Shkreli appeared in court Friday for the first time since a judge locked him up for his on-line antics, and the brash former pharmaceutical CEO had a new look since his bail was revoked in September: a scruffy beard that made his appearance less boyish.

He also was wearing a loose-fitting jail uniform instead of street clothes as he listened to the government argue that he's on the hook for more than $7 million for his securities fraud conviction.

"Under the circumstances, I think he's doing remarkably well," his attorney, Ben Brafman, told reporters when asked about his client's stint in a fortress-like federal jail in Brooklyn.

Shkreli was convicted on charges he cheated investors in two failed hedge funds.

U.S. District Judge

Kiyo Matsumoto didn't immediately rule on the government's demand that Shkreli should have to forfeit $7.3 million in assets, including a one-of-a-kind Wu-Tang Clan "Once Upon a Time in Shaolin" album that he has boasted he bought for $2 million.

Prosecutors also want him to give up $5 million in cash in a brokerage account, his interest in a pharmaceutical company and other valuables including a Picasso painting. The defense has argued that Shkreli owes nothing, because the hedge fund investors actually ended up making a profit off drug company stock he gave them. It also says that unlike most securities fraud cases, Shkreli himself never made anything off the scheme.

"This case was never about money as far as Mr. Shkreli is concerned," the defense said in court papers. The papers added: "Simply put, Mr. Shkreli was not indicted because he stole anyone's money."

Shkreli, 34, is perhaps best known for boosting the price of a life-saving drug and for trolling his critics on social media, where he became known as "Pharma Bro."

Shkreli was out on bail during his trial last year. But the judge decided to jail him for violating his bail conditions because of a social media posting offering a $5,000 bounty to anyone who could get a lock of Hillary Clinton's hair while she was on a book tour.

Five things you probably didn't know about the Oscars

By SANDY COHEN and LYNN ELBER

AP ENTERTAINMENT WRITERS

LOS ANGELES — You have a firm grip on this year's Oscar nominees, last year's winners and what host Jimmy Kimmel will undoubtedly joke about (and the best picture award goes to ... oops).

But there are aspects of Hollywood's stellar night that may be a surprise. Let's pull the curtain back a bit on a ceremony that strives for effortless glamour but, like any machine, is made up of nuts and bolts and simple human need.

Besides stars, designer duds and lots of close-ups, here's what else the 8 p.m. EST Sunday, March 4, telecast on ABC will include:

Stand-ins, aka sit-downs

troop of seat-fillers at the ready to occupy any chair vacated by a bathroom- or bar-bound guest. A parade of extras in tuxedos and gowns arrive hours before the show begins and are ready to swoop in and sit once the cameras start rolling. Getting the gig, like so much in Hollywood, depends on who you know: Seat-fillers are family and friends of movie academy staff and accounting firm. Are there polite tussles to sub for Streep, Hanks or other A-listers, earning bragging rights? We can only hope.

Stomach pains

Oscar guests are often hungry. It may be self-imposed, either because of nominee nerves or a skin-tight gown with no room for error or eating. Attendees do have a chance to nibble during a pre-show cocktail hour that includes hors d'oeuvres trays, but skip that and it's three hours or more until a post-ceremony dinner at the Governors Ball. Not all are invited, which means some famished guests end up asking their limo driver to head to fast food, fast. Advice from an insider: carry a clutch roomy enough for a ham sandwich and don't fret that you'll get busted by security.

Stay in your lane

There are two paths on the Oscars red carpet:

one for famous people, and one for everyone else. Stanchions and velvet ropes separate the recognizable from the not. Famous folks walk on the side of the carpet closest to the cameras and reporters, and stars often collide or share impromptu carpet greetings. The non-famous, meanwhile, walk along the carpet closest to the fan bleachers, with beefy-looking security guards ushering them along to reduce star-gazing across the aisle. There's everything to see, folks, but move along.

Writers, stat!

Live shows inevitably hit speed bumps, such as last year's super-sized one in which Warren Beatty and Faye Dunaway presented "La La Land" with the top trophy that belonged to "Moonlight." Such gaffes and other standout moments become fodder for the host, with a village of comedy writers backstage to help craft witticisms. The best, like Kimmel's teasing rebuke to Beatty ("Warren, what did you do?") feel spontaneous and are out quickly so the audience doesn't lose the thread. Hosts also need to be ready with "savers" to follow a joke that bombs, says longtime awards writer Bruce Vilanch, who offers up an example: "That was about as funny as a screen door on a submarine."

Winners, meet media

Oscar recipients are shepherded backstage for photos and video and to face a rapid-fire Q&A session with a packed room of journalists (yes, "how does it feel to win" and "where will you keep your trophy" are staple queries). While the winners clutch their award and, in some cases, a celebratory glass of booze, reporters hold up numbered cards to be called on by an academy representative. This has caused more than one star to exclaim they feel like they're at an auction and playfully call out numbers. Reporters giggle. With backstage monitors showing the ceremony, some winners ask to pause the questions to hear outcomes for nominated friends or colleagues. Reporters oblige.

Hollywood readies movie inspired by Flamin' Hot Cheetos

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

This could get cheesy. Hollywood has more than warmed up to the idea of a biopic about the inventor of the ever-popular Flamin' Hot Cheetos.

Following a heated bargaining process that saw multiple film studios wanting to get their hands covered in spicy red snack dust, Fox Searchlight walked away carrying the bag, Variety reports.

The film will tell the true story of Richard Montanez, an immigrant's son who started life picking produce around Southern California before he landed a job as a janitor at a Frito-Lay plant.

Inspired by the Mexican dish elote (corn dusted with spices), the then-55-year-old thought to add some chili powder to unflavored Cheetos, producing a fiery iteration of the popular snack food that would turn out to be an incredibly profitable idea and get him a job as the head of Multicultural Sales & Community Promotions at PepsiCo.

"I had two weeks to prepare a presentation for the company executives," Montanez told Fox News Latino, describing how he had to go to the library to learn about marketing strategy from a book.

Besides the promotion and instant lifestyle upgrade, the invention also earned Montanez the title of "Godfather of Multicultural Marketing."

"Many times, greatness will come in ridiculous forms," he said. "A ridiculous idea might be a billion-dollar idea."

"Ghosts of Mississippi" screenwriter Lewis Colick will author the script, having developed the pitch for the movie alongside Montanez and producer DeVon Franklin.

Manage pain to protect yourself from opioid addiction

Headlines declaring that life expectancy in the U.S. has declined for the first time since 1993 because of deaths from opioids are the latest red-flag warning that, as a nation and individually, we need to change both our approach to managing pain with opioids and how we address illicit drug use.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reports that between 2015 and 2016, there was a 28 percent increase in fatal opioid overdoses! In 2016, more than 63,000 Americans died of drug overdose — and 42,249 of those deaths involved opioids. Those drugs are now killing more folks than guns or breast cancer!

To focus the country's health care providers and YOU on the problem, the Food and Drug Administration asked the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering and Medicine to develop a plan to curb the epidemic. Their report, "Pain Management and the Opioid Epidemic: Balancing Societal and Individual Benefits and Risks of Prescription Opioid Use," is out, as are additional publications, Congressional testimonies and journal editorials based on the findings.

If you or a loved one is dealing with acute, chronic or surgery-related pain, it's important to understand the risks and benefits of using opioids and to learn about the full range of pain-management alternatives that are available. A new study shows that 60 percent of opioid overdose deaths involve people who suffer from chronic pain.

The Benefits: Severe pain interferes with healing, quality of life and overall health and well-being. Opioids can eliminate severe pain and allow you to heal or participate in activities that will help you banish the source of pain.

The Risks: Unless pain medicines are administered within a pain-management plan that targets tapering off the drugs as you heal and feel better, it is possible to become addicted even at low doses. (Management of chronic pain associated with end of life is another matter; hospice targets comfort for whatever time remains.)

1. If opioids are the right medication for your pain control, ask your physician to refer you to a pain-management specialist who will guide you through your medication regimen and protect you from addiction.

2. Be conscientious about physical therapy, changing diet to decrease pain/inflammation, adding stress management and other at-home activities when prescribed. It may seem counterintuitive that the strain (and sometimes pain) of physical therapy, along with diet and meditation, can ease chronic pain, but it can!

3. Ask your doctor about taking non-opioid analgesics, including ibuprofen and prescription NSAIDs like celecoxib (Celebrex) and indomethacin (Indocin). A recent study in JAMA found that for "patients presenting to the ED [emergency department] with acute extremity pain, there were no statistically significant or clinically important differences in pain reduction at 2 hours among single-dose treatment with ibuprofen and acetaminophen or with 3 different opioid and acetaminophen combination analgesics." That matters because it's reported that nearly 19 percent of people leave EDs with an opioid prescription — and even short-term use can trigger dependence. We suggest that even for persistent pain, some NSAIDs are more or less equivalent in effectiveness to low-dose opioids.

4. Consider acupuncture; pain-management group therapy; gentle stretching; water therapy; and tai chi or yoga.

Boyfriend's behavior raises questions of his sexuality

DEAR ABBY: I am 19 and love my boyfriend a lot. He is very sweet and would do anything for me. I am beginning to think there may be someone else. The someone else is male.

Dear Abby

My boyfriend has become very secretive lately with his phone, and I've noticed he's followed a lot of male modeling accounts on Instagram. Should I confront him about it, or am I overthinking things? — Conflicted In Iowa

DEAR CONFLICT-ED: You are not overthinking. Because you are having doubts about your boyfriend's faithfulness, ask him why he has become secretive with his phone and why he is viewing male models on Instagram. Unless he's trying to become a model, it is possible that he may be bisexual. If that's the case — and you are correct that he would "do anything" for you — he should level with you about it.

P.S. If you have been having unprotected sex with this young man, I urge you to be tested for STDs.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 15-year-old girl in my sophomore year. School is going really good, I'm getting my grades up, I made the varsity lacrosse team, and I have amazing friends. But our school tells us that during our sophomore school year, we should start to look at colleges. Neither of my parents went to college, and I'm not sure what I should be doing to prepare. I'm only an average student, and I don't really know what I should ask my guidance counselor or look for in a college. What do you think I should do? — Student In New York

DEAR STUDENT: That your parents didn't go to college doesn't mean you can't or shouldn't. If your grades need improvement, ask your teachers what you need to do to earn better grades. Make an appointment with your guidance counselor and explain exactly what you have told me. When you do, I am sure the person will be glad to help you.

Scrap bones are no good

Dear Readers: Dogs and bones? They seem to go together like birds of a feather. But are LEFTOVER MEAT BONES good for your dog? Experts like the Humane Society of the United States (www.humanesociety.org) and the Food and Drug Administration (www.fda.gov) say "No."

Hints from Heloise

Chicken bones are particularly bad. They are a softer bone, and can break apart and get stuck in a dog's throat or intestines. Bones also can lead to broken teeth and mouth lesions. This can result in painful.

them bones is a definite no-no. — Heloise

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19). People do not stay interested in the same thing forever. Interests change on scale with personal growth. When your interests change rapidly, it's not that you're flaky — you're just growing quickly into someone new. TAURUS (April 20-May 20). While it's possible to love someone with whom you have little in common, that love will have a limited means of expression compared with the many ways love is expressed between people with more common ground. GEMINI (May 21-June 21). A secret talent is like an illicit love affair, occupying a dream space outside of place and time, not fitting into normal life. But sooner or later, the passion must integrate into daily living or it will fade away completely. CANCER (June 22-July 22). People are not standards. They are not behaviors. They are flexible beings who can show up in many different ways. Much will depend on what you expect of them. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You were not adequately supported or tended to. So you worked harder, developed yourself further... and came to a realization. They are never coming around. It's not you; it's them. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Faces diverted into glowing screens — a very uncharismatic look. Unnecessary phone usage is such a turnoff to you that a person's screen addiction could be relationship deal breaker. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). An informational tidbit has the potential to set you spinning down a winding road for hours. Try to stick to your original intent. Tonight, your connection with a water sign (Cancer, Scorpio, Pisces) will refresh your soul. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You'll jump into a project in the manner of the Looney Tunes cartoon character Tasmanian Devil. In your tornado whirl, obstacles will be uprooted, and they never even saw you coming. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). With so many distractions of late, taking back the control of your time will feel terrific. Though you feel there's not a moment to waste on the mundane, some of it is more crucial to the big picture than it would seem.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). If you don't make your work important, they won't either. It's about time to up the ante. This could mean asking for more attention, responsibility or money. It could mean claiming a better role. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). It's not fair that you were born with so much social intelligence at your disposal you don't even see it as being a talent. It is. And people need your help. All you have to do is show up. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). There are benefits to low self-esteem and benefits to high self-esteem. The most advantageous belief to hold about yourself is a flexible one that allows you to settle into the role and attitude that best serves all. TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (FEB. 24). The year brings a quickening — you feel somehow more alive. The next three months bring ideas to invigorate your body and animate your life. There's a turn of power at work. The start of summer presents a choice that will affect domestic life. There's no wrong way, but life will be very different with each option. Aries and Sagittarius adore you. ## Trump, Turnbull praise each other on immigration and taxes

By DARLENE SUPERVILLE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump and Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull put their “mateship” on full display Friday at the White House as they took turns praising each other’s approaches on immigration and taxes.

Their relationship got off to a rocky start a year ago, but none of that was evident as they prepared to field questions from journalists in the East Room after an afternoon of talks, including about jobs.

Trump congratulated Turnbull on “your immigration reforms and on Australia’s commitment to merit-based immigration.

“Are my friends from Congress listening to that? Merit based,” said Trump, who has been arguing for changes to turn the U.S. immigration system into one that is more focused on merit and the skills bring to the U.S., and less focused on family ties. His immigration demands have upset lawmakers, mostly Democrats.

“We want to do merit-based immigration also,” Trump said, adding that such a system “really protects the interest of Australia and its people. “It’s the way to go.

And you’ve been very successful with it,” Trump continued. “Here, we’re working very hard to do the same. In that sense, we’re going to, hopefully, follow in your footprints.”

When it was his turn to speak, Turnbull complimented Trump by calling the president’s decision to cut taxes “one of the most powerful arguments” he is using to persuade lawmakers to further reduce business taxes back home.

Trump signed a $1.5 trillion tax cut into law in December, significantly shaving taxes for corporations and the wealthy while providing more modest breaks for middle-class individuals. The Republican president and his economic advisers have argued that dropping the corporate tax rate from 35 percent to 21 percent will benefit workers through greater investment in the U.S. and in those companies, and through the creation of good-paying jobs. No Democrats voted to cut taxes.

Turnbull, who was accompanied by the largest Australian political and business delegation ever to visit the U.S., said he and Trump spent a lot of time talking about jobs. Turnbull told Trump that Australians have been “inspired, I have to say, by your success in securing the passage of the tax reforms.”

Turnbull said some corporate taxes in Australia have been cut, “but we’ve got more work to do.”

“The economic stimulus that your reforms have delivered here in the United States is one of the most powerful arguments that we are deploying to persuade our legislature to support reducing business tax,” the prime minister told Trump. “Because, as you are demonstrating and as we all know, when you cut company tax, most of the benefit goes to workers. It produces more investment. And, when you get more investment, you get more jobs.”

Trump opened the news conference with good news for Turnbull, announcing that a still-to-be built U.S. combat ship will be named the USS Canberra to honor an Australian cruiser that was lost fighting alongside the U.S. Navy during World War II. Canberra is Australia’s capital.

Trump said the ship will symbolize the “enduring friendship” between the U.S. and Australia as it sails the open sea. “There is no closer friendship,” he said.

Turnbull appeared elated by the announcement, noting that the ship will be built by an Australian company in Mobile, Alabama.

“What a great example of a hundred years of mateship,” he said, referring to when the U.S. and Australia first fought together in World War I.

Relations between Trump and Turnbull got off to a tumultuous start within days of Trump taking office in January 2017 after they sparred by telephone over a plan for the U.S. to accept hundreds of mostly Muslim refugees that Australia didn’t want to take in itself.

Trump had campaigned against immigration, including by Muslims, and disliked the deal, which was arranged by Trump’s predecessor, Barack Obama.

But Joe Hockey, Australia’s ambassador to the U.S., said the former businessmen now “understand each other” and enjoy each other’s company.

Both leaders dismiss speculation that their relationship had been damaged by that telephone call. Since then, Turnbull has met Trump in New York, but Friday’s meeting in Washington was their first in the context of an official visit.

Trump has not been to Australia yet as president. Asked if he’d like to visit when he and Turnbull appeared in the Oval Office, Trump said: “We will be there, yes. Great place.”

Washington lawmakers exempt themselves from records law

By RACHEL LA CORTE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

OLYMPIA, Wash. — Washington state lawmakers have overwhelmingly approved legislation that will make some of their records public in the future, but will circumvent a recent court ruling that found they were already fully subject to the state’s public disclosure laws.

The measure retroactively removes the legislative branch from the state’s voter-approved Public Records Act so that lawmakers are able to attempt to shield records sought by a coalition of media groups, led by The Associated Press, who prevailed in court last month.

It passed the Senate on a 41-7 vote Friday, and then was quickly approved by the House 83-14. The bill heads to Gov. Jay Inslee with a veto-proof margin.

The quick action comes just two days after the bill was introduced. Only four lawmakers spoke during the brief debates in both chambers, all saying that the measure is intended to increase transparency.

The bill, co-sponsored by Democratic Senate Majority Leader Sharon Nelson and Republican Senate Minority Leader Mark Schoesler, allows the release of some lawmaker correspondence, including those with lobbyists; information from lawmaker calendars; and final disciplinary reports beginning on July 1.

However, because of the retroactivity language, it would prohibit the release of the records being sought by the coalition of news organizations that sued last September.

“This bill is a significant and major step forward for the people of Washington and this institution as we step into the sunlight, requiring what I believe are the most important disclosures for the people of Washington to hold their elected representatives accountable,” said Democratic Rep. Gerry Pollett.

The Legislature is appealing the Jan. 19 ruling of Thurston County Superior Court Judge Chris Lanese, who ruled state representatives and senators and their offices are fully subject to the same broad public disclosure requirements that cover other local and state elected officials and employees at state agencies.

Senate Republican Minority Leader Mark

Schoesler said the ruling was too broad and “completely unworkable.”

“Just as important as transparency is the ability of lawmakers to effectively work on behalf of those who sent us here,” he said.

Republican Sen. Mark Miloscia, who voted no, said that the rushed process and ultimate outcome “feeds into the cynicism that we see, that we can’t trust politicians.”

“The Legislature should be leading on transparency, not giving the impression that it’s hiding stuff,” he said.

Under the measure, exemptions from disclosure would include records of policy development, as well as any records that would “violate an individual’s right to privacy.” While final disciplinary reports against lawmakers would be subject to disclosure, emails or other documentation of allegations of things like sexual harassment or misconduct that doesn’t result in an official report — which were among the records the news coalition was seeking — would not.

Any person wanting to challenge a records denial would have to seek review by the Senate Facilities and Operations Committee or the House Executive Rules Committee, whose rulings would be final. Unlike denials under the state’s Public Records Act, no review by the courts would be allowed.

An attorney for the media coalition said the group’s litigation would continue, and that the effort to make the law retroactive would be part of the ongoing case.

California parents face new charges in kids’ torture case

ASSOCIATED PRESS

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — A Southern California couple suspected of starving and shackling some of their 13 children pleaded not guilty Friday to new charges of child abuse.

David and Louise Turpin previously entered not-guilty pleas to torture and a raft of other charges and are being held on $12 million bail.

Louise Turpin also pleaded not guilty to a new count of felony assault.

Louise Turpin, dressed in a blouse and blazer, looked intently at more than a dozen reporters in the courtroom. David Turpin, wearing a blazer, tie and black-rimmed glasses, kept his eyes on the judge during the hearing. Both said little except to agree to a May preliminary hearing.

The couple was arrested last month after their 17-year-old daughter escaped from the family’s home in Perris, California, and called 911. Authorities said the home reeked of human waste and evidence of starvation was obvious, with the oldest sibling weighing only 82 pounds.

The case drew international media attention and shocked neighbors who said they rarely saw the children, who appeared to be skinny, pale and reserved.

Authorities said the abuse was so long-running the children’s growth was stunted. They said the couple shackled the children to furniture as punishment and had them live a nocturnal lifestyle.

The children, who range in age from 2 to 29, were hospitalized immediately after their rescue and since then Riverside County authorities, who obtained temporary conservatorship over the adults, have declined to discuss their whereabouts or condition.

Attorneys representing the adult siblings told CBS News, however, that the seven are living at Corona Medical Center, where they have an outdoor area for sports and exercise, and are making decisions on their own for the first time.

experience for them, understanding that they do have rights and they do have a voice,” attorney Jack Osborn said.

He said that making daily decisions such as what to read or wear is empowering.

“I just want you to understand just what special individuals they are,” Osborn said. “They all have their own aspirations and their own interests and now they may have an opportunity to address those, which is really exciting.”

The attorneys said the older siblings want to do things such as go to the beach, the mountains and to movies, as well as attend college and have careers.

CBS reported that the adults communicate by Skype with the younger siblings, who are being cared for separately.

Corona Mayor Karen Spiegel, who works closely with the siblings’ nurses, told CBS that the nurses “talk about how warm and loving these kids are, and so appreciative.”

Corps: Agency worked to inform on Harvey flood risk

HOUSTON (AP) — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers says that leading up to and during Hurricane Harvey it “worked diligently” with officials to inform the public on flooding risks from Houston reservoirs that ended up inundating thousands of homes.

The Corps’ statement Friday comes in response to a Houston Chronicle report earlier this week that the agency failed to share with the public a forecast ahead of Harvey’s arrival that Barker and Addicks reservoirs would flood adjacent neighborhoods.

The Corps’ forecast was made Aug. 24, the day before Harvey made landfall. Local officials didn’t issue flood advisories for areas adjacent to the reservoirs until the next two to three days.

Houston Mayor Sylvester Turner said Friday he didn’t see the forecast and the possibility it might not have been released was concerning.

US deportations targeting more people with no crime records

SAN DIEGO (AP) — New government figures show people arrested by deportation officers increasingly have no criminal backgrounds, reflecting the Trump administration’s commitment to cast a wider net in its push to expel people in the U.S. illegally.

U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement said Friday that 65 percent of the arrests its agents made from October to December were of people with criminal records.

That’s compared to 82 percent during the same period of 2016. In other words, criminal arrests rose but arrests of non-criminals jumped at a much faster rate.

Overall, there were more than 39,000 deportation arrests from October to December, up from about 27,000 during the final full three months of the Obama administration.

Judge agrees to halt construction of Louisiana oil pipeline

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A federal judge has agreed to suspend construction of a crude oil pipeline that is being built through a swamp in Louisiana’s Cajun country.

U.S. District Judge Shelly Dick’s order Friday is a victory for environmental groups challenging the Bayou Bridge pipeline project.

Dick granted the groups’ request for a preliminary injunction halting pipeline construction in the environmentally fragile Atchafalaya Basin until their lawsuit over the project is resolved.

The judge’s two-page order bars the company that is building the pipeline “from taking any further action on the project” pending a trial on the merits of the case.

It wasn’t immediately clear if the order is limited to work in the basin or applies to the entire length of the 162-mile-long pipeline from Lake Charles to St. James Parish.

Can the Lightning win the Stanley Cup?

(DIRK SHADD | TIMES)

By TOM JONES
Times Sports Columnist

When it comes to the Tampa Bay Lightning these days, there's only question that really matters: Can the Lightning win the Stanley Cup?

That's it. That's the big question. That's the only thing on everyone's mind. Will it or won't it?

Does this team, which has been in position to lift Lord Stanley's Cup for a few years now, have what it takes to finally win hockey's Holy Grail? Is this the year?

It has only 21 regular-season games left. It has just a couple of days before the NHL trade deadline, meaning time is running out to tinker with the roster.

Then all that's left is getting down the business of the most grueling tournament in sports — a two-month marathon filled with blood, sweat and tears.

In fact, once the Lightning got off to the red-hot start to this season, making the playoffs seemed a foregone conclusion. Now it's a waiting game. It has been since Christmas. Most people in Tampa Bay, including anyone who wears a lightning bolt on his or her jersey, would love to hop into a time machine and fast forward to April 8 and get this postseason thing cranked up already.

But the question remains:

Will the Lightning win the Stanley Cup?

The first instinct is to say no because it's hard to say any one team will win the Cup. If your choice is one particular team or the field, it's always smarter to take the field.

There's another reason to be a little skeptical about the Lightning these days.

GANGNEUNG, South Korea — First curling, now this.

It has been a rough few days for Canada at its best Winter Olympics ever because of struggles in the two sports that are most tightly woven into its national identity.

In perhaps the biggest blow of all, the men's hockey team didn't even make it to the final courtesy of a stunning 4-3 loss to Germany on Friday night in the semifinals. For a nation already in despair over no men's or women's curling medals and the women's hockey team losing to the rival Americans in a shootout in the gold-medal game, this one won't be easy to swallow as Canada's bid to win three consecutive

New details of payments to players in a federal investigation that has lurked in the shadows since first rocking college basketball last fall mark the latest threat to the sport's basic foundation, showing the breadth of alleged corruption.

Bank records and other expense reports that are part of the investigation list a wide range of impermissible payments from agents to at least two dozen players or their relatives, according to documents obtained by Yahoo Sports.

The depth of the violations raises questions about the structure of college athletics, a business funded primarily through college football and basketball, including $19.6 billion in TV money for the NCAA Tournament over the

Honeywell likely to have Tommy John

PORT CHARLOTTE — According to Brent Honeywell, the seven pitches he threw Thursday morning were the hardest seven pitches he's thrown in his life.

Unfortunately for the highly-touted Tampa Bay Rays prospects, it'll be the last seven pitches he throws for quite some time. Honeywell tore the ulnar collateral ligament in his elbow, and has been recommended for Tommy John surgery, meaning he won't be seen in a Rays uniform until midway through the 2019 season.

"It's like my dad tells me, it's the nature of the beast," Honeywell said. "We signed up to be pitchers. Bad things happen every now and then. There's a couple of things you can prevent, but this isn't one of them. Either it's going to go or it's not. That's the way I look at it. I signed up to be a pitcher. Whenever I signed up to be a pitcher, this was one the rise. TJ was on the rise. I'm looking ahead. I've watched my brother go through

PALM BEACH GARDENS — Even with a tee shot into the water for another double bogey, Tiger Woods could see the big picture in the Honda Classic.

He was four shots out of the lead going into the weekend.

Luke List delivered a round not many others found possible in such difficult conditions Friday, a 4-under 66 that gave him a share of the lead with Jamie Lovemark (69). They were at 3-under 137, record. That's ridiculously good. There was no way to keep up that kind of pace.

Since then, the Lightning has gone 12-9-1. That's not bad. That's not exactly reason to panic.

But it's the way the Lightning has played over that stretch that has Tampa Bay feeling a little uneasy. It looks vulnerable. It looks beatable.

Look, maybe the Lightning is bored. Maybe it is just biding time until April. Maybe it is just waiting until then to flip the switch.

If you're a Lightning fan, you'd better hope so. Otherwise, maybe there's something a little more serious going on here.

If you watch this team of late, you can see it gives up way too many shots and scoring chances. The Lightning gives up more shots than it takes, which is stunning considering how loaded Tampa Bay is offensively.

And, because it gives up so many chances, it is giving up way too many goals even though goalie Andrei Vasilevskiy has been absolutely phenomenal. It's hard to imagine where this team would be without him. Even when the Lightning wins, there are moments when it feels like it makes it harder than it needs to be, that the games end up closer than they should be.

The easy thing to do is to blame the defense-men. They get the most fingers pointed at them, especially younger blue-liners such as Mikhail Sergachev, Jake Dotchin, Slater Koekkoek and Andrej Sustr.

But there's more to the Lightning's struggling defense than just struggling defense-men. The team's overall defense, which includes the forwards, needs to improve if the Lightning wants to be playing well into May. Maybe it's not a coincidence that some of the Lightning's defensive woes became more noticeable when two-way forward Ondrej Palat went down with an injury.

Meantime, there are some scary teams out there in the Eastern Conference. The Bruins have been as good as any team in hockey over the past two months. They are 21-3-3 in their past 27 and the Lightning has never done well in Boston. The Maple Leafs are young and hungry. Both of those teams are in Tampa Bay's division and the Lightning likely will have to go through one or both just to get to the Eastern Conference finals.

The East also has the Capitals and the white-hot Flyers, and does anyone want to play the two-time defending champion Penguins?

But here's the positive news. After all this, the Lightning still has the best record in the NHL. It still has a roster full of elite offensive skill, led by Nikita Kucherov, Steven Stamkos and Brayden Point. And it has like 10 other guys who can win a game by themselves.

As far as getting a boost for the final stretch, don't be surprised if general manager Steve Yzerman makes a move to patch up the defense. It probably won't be a big blockbuster, like a trade for Ottawa's Erik Karlsson, but it could be a reliable veteran who can proved consistent play in the playoffs.

But what if Yzerman stands pat? Again, it's smarter to take the field than one team when picking the Cup. But if you had to pick one team, which team would it be?

I don't feel quite as strongly as two months ago, but my money is still on the Lightning.

DETROIT — Kyrie Irving scored 18 points and rookie Daniel Theis added a career-high 19 to lift the Boston Celtics to a 110-98 victory over the Detroit Pistons on Friday night.

Jayson Tatum scored 11 of his 15 points in the first half for the Celtics, who went into the All-Star break on a three-game losing streak but returned with a solid win on the road. Boston took control by outscoring the Pistons 38-21 in the second quarter.

Theis eclipsed his previous career high of 12 points.

He played an important role after Aron Baynes, the starting center for the Celtics, went to the locker room in the first half with left elbow soreness. Baynes

PACERS 116, HAWKS 93: Thaddeus Young scored 16 of his 20 points in the first half and the Indiana Pacers never trailed in a 116-93 rout of the hapless Atlanta Hawks on Friday night. The 11th-year pro had 10 points by the end of the opening quarter and the Pacers led by 17 by halftime. They were ahead 83-66 entering the final quarter. The Pacers (34-25) won their fourth in a row and improved to 15-6 since Jan. 6, the league's best winning percentage (.714) in that span.

HORNETS 122, WIZARDS 105: Frank Kaminsky scored a season-high 25 points, Kemba Walker had 20 of his 24 points in the second half, and the Charlotte Hornets beat the Washington Wizards 122-105 on Friday night. The Hornets (26-33) improved to 3-0 against the Wizards this season. Charlotte jumped out to a 20-point lead in the first half and matched its season high with 17 3-pointers. in its third consecutive win.

NEW YORK — Mikael Granlund and Eric Staal each scored twice and Devan Dubnyk made 22 saves in the Minnesota Wild's 4-1 victory over the free-falling New York Rangers on Friday night.

The Wild completed a three-game sweep of New York-area teams after beating the Monday night and New Jersey on Thursday night.

The Rangers lost for the sixth straight time in regulation. New York is 6-17-0 since beating Buffalo in the Winter Classic on Jan. 1.

PENGUINS 6, HURRICANES 1: Phil Kessel and Evgeni Malkin each had two goals and an assist and the Pittsburgh Penguins routed the Carolina Hurricanes 6-1 on Friday night for their season-best sixth straight victory. Jake Guentzel had a goal and two assists, Sidney Crosby scored a late goal and Olli Maatta also scored.

KINGSTON, Rhode Island — Jeff Dowtin scored 20 points, E.C. Matthews added 18 and No. 18 Rhode Island wrapped up its first outright Atlantic-10 regular-season title with an 81-56 victory over Dayton on Friday night.

Jared Terrell had 17 points to help the Rams (22-5, 15-1) win for the 10th time in 20 games. It was their third straight after their school-record 16-game winning streak was halted by St. Bonaventure last Friday night.

In 1980-81, the Rams tied Duquesne for a share of the conference title, their only other regular-season A-10 championship. When the game ended, blue and white confetti — the school colors — and streamers fell from the ceiling. Terrell climbed the scorer's table, waving to the crowd.

MEMPHIS 91, NO. 23 HOUSTON 85: Houston struggled offensively, and its usual tough defense was missing in the second half. It looks as if it might be a short stay in the Top 25 for the Cougars. No. 23 Houston, which entered the AP poll this week for the first time this season, gave up a season high in points and suffered through a dismal second-half shooting performance in a 91-85 loss to Memphis on Thursday night, ending a five-game winning streak.

NO. 8 OREGON 57, ARIZONA STATE 44: Sabrina Ionescu scored 16 points and No. 8 Oregon moved a step closer to its first Pac-12 title in 18 years, beating Arizona State 57-44 Friday night to end a 15-game losing streak in Tempe, Ariz. Oregon (26-4, 15-2 Pac-12) won the first meeting by shutting down Arizona State in the third quarter. The Ducks took control of the rematch with similar blueprint. Trailing by one at half-time, Oregon hounded the Sun Devils (19-10, 10-7) into one missed shot after another to build an 11-point lead. Arizona State scored eight points in the quarter and went 4 for 17 from the floor. The Ducks broke the school record for wins in a season and matched the mark for conference wins, set in 1998-99. They had not beaten Arizona State on the road since 2000.

NO. 22 GREEN BAY 78, OAKLAND 48: Jessica Lindstrom posted her 15th double-double this season with 16 points and 13 rebounds and No. 22 Green Bay defeated Oakland 78-48 on Friday night to win the outright Horizon League regular-season crown. Allie LeClaire scored 13 points to move into the program's top 10 all-time scoring leaders and Karly Murphy and Mackenzie Wolf added 10 points each for the Phoenix (25-3, 15-2), who have won 20 consecutive conference titles.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL: NCAA Tournament bubble watch

Oklahoma's chances are waning

By JOHN MARSHALL
Associated Press

Oklahoma took college basketball by Sooner storm over the season's first two months, winning with a freewheeling style and Trae Young's nightly one-man show.

Once the calendar flipped to 2018, the Sooners hit a Big 12 roadblock.

College basketball's toughest conference has taken a toll on Oklahoma and its fabulous freshman, pushing the Sooners onto the NCAA Tournament bubble.

"It's been tough for a while," Oklahoma coach Lon Kruger said. "We've got to keep battling. It's not going to get easier."

Picked to finish sixth in the Big 12 preseason poll, the Sooners were one of college basketball's biggest surprises early in the season behind Young.

Playing with a Steph Curry-like confidence and shooting range, Young racked up points, assists and highlight-reel plays as the Sooners rolled to one victory after another. Oklahoma opened the season 12-1 and climbed to No. 4 in the AP Top 25, appearing to be a serious threat to end Kansas' bid for a 14th straight Big 12 title.

Oklahoma won four of its first five Big 12 games, but has fallen into a rut since then. A blowout loss to the Jayhawks on Monday was the Sooners' sixth straight and ninth in 11 games.

Young still leads the nation in points per game (28.3) and assists (9.2), but teams have

ON THE RISE

North Carolina State. The Wolfpack (19-9, 9-6 ACC) were in bubble danger after losing consecutive games to Virginia Tech and then No. 21 North Carolina, but a three-game winning streak should put them in good position for an NCAA Tournament berth. North Carolina State avoided a resume-killing loss this week by rolling over Boston College.

Mississippi State. Losses to Missouri and Vanderbilt put a dent in the Bulldogs' NCAA Tournament chances. Wins over Ole Miss and fellow bubble team Texas A&M will help, but Mississippi State (20-8, 8-7 SEC) may still need to do a little more to get in.

St. Bonaventure. The Bonnies (21-6, 11-4 Atlantic 10) have picked the right time to go on a run. St. Bonaventure has won nine straight heading into Saturday's game against Virginia Commonwealth, a run that includes a victory over No. 19 Rhode Island. Keep winning and the Bonnies can distance themselves from earlier losses to Niagara and Saint Joseph's.

Utah. The Utes (18-9, 10-6 Pac-12) needed a win over UCLA to keep from bouncing off the NCAA bubble and pulled it off, beating the Bruins 84-78 in Salt Lake City. Utah has won five straight and gets another chance to resume boost on Saturday, facing fellow bubble team Southern California.

FADING HOPES

Louisville. The Cardinals (18-10, 8-7) had opportunities for resume-building wins their past two games, only to fall short against North Carolina and No. 5 Duke. Louisville has dropped five of seven and can't afford a loss to Virginia Tech on Saturday. A win over No. 1 Virginia next week would obviously be huge.

Nebraska. A loss to Illinois last Sunday could put a dent in the Cornhuskers' chances. They bounced back with a victory over Indiana, but a loss to an Illini team that's 3-14 in the Big Ten will not look good to the selection committee. Nebraska (21-9, 12-5 Big Ten) has no notable wins and a weak strength of schedule (286th).

Florida running out of time to improve resume

By MARK LONG
Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — Florida's postseason resume is about as shaky as the team's shooting right now.

The Gators (17-11, 8-7 Southeastern Conference) have lost three in a row and six of eight in league play. Little has gone right since early January, leaving coach Mike White's team in danger of missing the NCAA Tournament for the second time in three seasons.

This one would be a huge failing since Florida was ranked as high as No. 5 in December and looked as if it could play with any team in the country. No one would be surprised to see the Gators falter at this point, especially given the team's schedule down the stretch.

Florida hosts 12th-ranked Auburn (24-4, 12-3) on Saturday night and then plays at Alabama and against Kentucky to end the regular season. The Tigers can clinch at least a share of the SEC title and the top seed in the upcoming conference tournament with a victory.

"I'm really not looking forward to any matchups vs. Auburn," White said Friday. "They're terrific offensively, defensively. Who knows? ... With this current Gator team, it's more about our mindset, our level of edge, excitement, intensity, lack of entitlement. Those are the factors."

"A lot of our factors are between our ears — unselfishness, playing together, making the extra pass, how defense is affected by offense, our communication, which is outside the ears, of course. But sometimes it's listening."

Florida's inability to hit open shots has been the team's biggest downfall of late. The Gators are shooting just 40 percent from the floor over the last seven games.

PAYMENTS

past 22 years — a hoops extravaganza for American sports fans known as March Madness.

NCAA President Mark Emmert said in a statement Friday the allegations "if true, point to systematic failures that must be fixed and fixed now if we want college sports in America."

Yahoo said Friday that the documents obtained in discovery during the investigation link current players including Michigan State's Miles Bridges, Duke's Wendell Carter and Alabama's Collin Sexton to potential benefits that would be violations of NCAA rules. According to the report, players over the past several years and family members allegedly received cash, entertainment and travel expenses from former NBA agent Andy Miller and his agency ASM Sports. Line items in four pages of documents released by Yahoo showed some five-figure payments and two dinners for less than $40 each.

Don Jackson, an Alabama-based attorney who has worked on numerous college eligibility cases, said the root of the problem for the NCAA is that its model of amateurism doesn't work.

"This problem can be solved if players are compensated," Jackson said. "The NCAA is not capable of adequately policing tens of thousands of athletes around the country to determine whether or not they have violated the NCAA's model of amateurism."

"We're talking about in some instances kids receiving $30 meals from agents," Jackson said.

A balance sheet from December 2015 lists several payments under "Loan to Players," including $43,500 to Dallas Mavericks guard Dennis Smith, who played one season at North Carolina State in 2016-17. Another document says Smith received a total of $73,500 in loans, and indicated options to recoup the money after Smith didn't sign with ASM.

N.C. State athletic director Debbie Yow said the school disassociated itself from Miller in 2012, saying the agent's close work with a youth coach created a vulnerability for the school "that we cannot tolerate."

Isaiah Whitehead, a guard for the Brooklyn Nets, received $26,136 while a freshman at Seton Hall, according to the documents.

He received $37,657 and was setting up a payment plan, according to another document. Whitehead signed with ASM but later left the agency.

A balance sheet also said Tim Quarterman, now playing for the Agua Caliente Clippers of the NBA G League, received at least $16,000 while a junior at LSU.

The story says several families of players or handlers received more than $1,000 in payments from ASM Sports before turning professional.

Apple Jones, the mother of former Kansas player Josh Jackson, received $2,700, and current Southern California player Bennie Boatwright or his father Bennie Sr., received at least $2,000, according to documents.

The story says the mother of Bridges received hundreds of dollars in advances. Current Kentucky player Kevin Knox, Carter and Sexton are listed among players or families meeting or having meals with former ASM Sports associate Christian Dawkins.

golf course right now," Woods said. "Making pars is a good thing. I've done that, and I'm right there with a chance."

And he has plenty of company.

Tommy Fleetwood, who won the Race to Dubai on the European Tour last year, scratched out a 68 and was one shot out of the lead along with Webb Simpson (72), Russell Henley (70) and Rory Sabbatini (69).

Justin Thomas and Daniel Berger each shot

They were among only 10 players remaining under par.

Fleetwood laughed when asked the last time he was at 2 under after 36 holes and only one shot out of the lead.

"Maybe some junior event," he said. "It's good, though. These are the toughest test in golf. Generally, one of the best players prevail at the end of weeks like this. Weeks like this challenge you to the ultimate level."

So bunched were the scores that Woods was four shots out of the lead and four shots from last place among the 76 players who made the cut at 5-over 145. More importantly, he only had 13 players in front of him.

WINTER OLYMPICS

A ROUNDUP OF FRIDAY'S HIGHLIGHTS /// LOOKING AHEAD TO SATURDAY

BOBSLED

Four-man runs 3 and 4. Athletes will surely be sliding in memory of the late Steven Holcomb, who in 2010 drove the U.S. to its first four-man gold in 62 years. He was found dead on May 6.

HOCKEY

Men's final. Canada won the last two titles, but there will be no three-peat after a stunning upset by Germany. The lack of NHL players has made this year's Games wholly unpredictable.

SPEEDSKATING

Mass start. The semifinals and finals will wrap up what has been a dominant showing by the Netherlands.

American curlers go from 'Team of Rejects' to Olympic medals

By JIMMY GOLEN
Associated Press

GANGNEUNG, South Korea — John Shuster was already a three-time Olympian and the most successful American curler in history when he applied for the U.S. high performance program after the Sochi Games.

He didn't make the cut. So Shuster approached a couple of the other spurned candidates about putting together a foursome of their own.

"He said, 'Hey, let's form our own Team of Rejects and see what we can do,'" U.S. second Matt Hamilton said.

And here is what they did: They won the U.S. championship, beating those selected instead of them, to force their way into the program that directs funding to teams with the best chance of success. They won a bronze medal at the worlds, another national title and then finished first in the U.S. Olympic trials to earn a spot at the Pyeongchang Games.

Now at the Olympics for the fourth time, Shuster clinched no worse than a silver medal with a second straight victory over Canada on Friday. The Americans — Shuster, Hamilton, Tyler George and John Landsteiner — will play Sweden on Saturday in the gold medal match.

"It's a pretty good story," Shuster said with a smile after beating the three-time defending champions in the semifinals. "This is just another step."

A 35-year-old Minnesota native and now a father of two, Shuster was the 23-year-old lead, throwing the first two stones, for Pete Fenson's team that won the bronze medal in 2006. It was the first — and, before Sunday — the only Olympic medal an American curling team has ever won.

United States skip John Shuster (center) launches the stone during a men's curling semifinal match against Canada at the Winter Olympics Thursday in Gangneung, South Korea. The United States won.

Shuster reacts during the match against Canada on Thursday.

But Shuster left that team to form a new one he would serve as skip, the player who makes the biggest strategic decisions and throws the last and most important stones.

They won the gold medal at the World University Games on the same sheet of ice in Pinerolo, Italy, that hosted the Olympic bronze medal match.

Four years later, Shuster went back to the Olympics but played so badly that he had to bench himself.

The Americans finished last.

"I missed four last shots to win three games early and essentially took us out of the competition," he said.

After a year off from playing skip, Shuster was back calling shots the next year. They won the Olympic trials to earn a spot in Sochi; a second straight 2-7 record in pool play left them ninth in the 10-team field.

Fourteen men tried out for the high performance program designed to reverse the country's Olympic disappointments. (The U.S. women finished last for the second time in a row). Ten men would be split into two, five-person teams (one alternate) and given money to train and compete in tournaments.

Shuster, Hamilton and Landsteiner didn't make it. (George didn't try out.)

The foursome embraced the "Team of Rejects" label, using it as motivation and also basking in the underdog status that made them a crowd favorite.

After a year, they dropped it. "They don't call you 'rejects' any more after the three world championship appearances," George said.

The team qualified for the Olympics — a second for Landsteiner and alternate Joe Polo, and a first for Hamilton and George.

Again, the Americans struggled.

The team lost four of its first six matches in pool play, leaving them one more defeat from elimination. Their next match was against Canada, a curling power that has never finished worse than second — or lost to the United States — in the Olympics. That day, a story popped up on his Facebook timeline about Dan Jansen, the American speedskater who kept returning to the Olympics until he finally won a gold medal.

"His story is my story," Shuster said. "I just decided that, 50 years from now, when my kids are showing my grandkids — and maybe I'm dead and gone — video from the Olympics, I didn't want all my videos to be me failing."

Finn realized his chances for a medal were waning and instead of aggressively seeking the middle of the lane he stayed left, keeping the Dutchman's path clear. "Mika Poutala just saved my life," Nuis said after adding the 1,000 title to his 1,500 gold. "If he would have thrown himself in front of me, I would have been the fool. He didn't. That is so beautiful." As a result, Nuis kept his pace and finished 0.04 seconds faster than Havarð Lorentzen, who was anxiously watching from the infield. The Norwegian, himself the 500 champion, was also chasing a second gold. Nuis ended up winning in 1 minute, 07.91 seconds. Kim Tae-yun of South Korea took bronze.

BIATHLON

As Fredrik Lindstroem cruised to the finish line to secure gold for Sweden in the men's biathlon relay Friday night, the stadium announcer at the Alpensia Biathlon Center belted out "the king is on fire!" Swedish King Carl XIV Gustaf was in the stadium screaming and shouting as the Swedes crossed in 1 hour, 15 minutes, 16.5 seconds — more than 55 seconds ahead of second-place Norway, which took the silver. Germany finished third. The victory comes one night after the Swedish women's team took silver in team relay event with Gustaf also in attendance. It seems the monarch is a good luck charm for the Swedish biathletes. "Really good luck," Sweden coach Wolfgang Pichler said with a wide smile, "really good luck."

GAMES FACES

Shiffrin jokes about whether Vonn's Olympic career is over

Mikaela Shiffrin is not quite convinced Lindsey Vonn's Olympic career is done. "Whenever I hear anybody say something about this," Shiffrin said Friday, "it's like, 'most likely,' 'probably,' 'maybe,' 'we'll see,' 'not sure.' I'm like, 'Knowing Lindsey, I don't believe her.'" And with that, Shiffrin let out a big laugh. She is, without a doubt, the heir apparent to Vonn as the leader of U.S. ski racing. They were the only two members of the country's Alpine team to earn a medal at the Pyeongchang Games — and the only two to hold news conferences a day after the sport's last two individual events. First came Vonn, 33, wearing her downhill bronze medal. After she left the room, it was time for Shiffrin, 22, whose gold from the giant slalom and silver from the combined dangled from her neck. Vonn spent much of her session taking questions about her, um, extensive experience — "You're not getting any younger," was the way one reporter put it, to which the skier replied with a smile, "Come right out and say it, why don't you!" — and the emotions of her (presumably) last Olympics. Vonn's successor, Shiffrin was deferential. "I don't necessarily feel like I'm taking over something for the sport. I don't know if I could fill Lindsey's shoes, the way that she has worn them," Shiffrin said. "I'm going to do my best to help the sport grow in whatever way that I can. The best way that I can do that, as far as I see right now, is just to ski my best and to keep taking ski racing to a new level."

CANADA

Olympic golds fell horribly short.

Through 14 days, 10 of Canada's best-ever 27 medals are gold.

Losing to Germany guaranteed none will be in hockey.

"They came out ready to play," Canada forward Rob Klinskhammer said. "We didn't. They were the better team."

Without NHL stars Sidney Crosby and Drew Doughty, elite goaltender Carey Price — and no Stanley Cup-winning coach Mike Babcock, either — Canada was skated out of the building by coach Marco Sturm's team that now faces an even stiffer test in the favored Russians in Sunday's final.

After winning back-to-back gold medals in Vancouver in 2010 and Sochi in 2014, and three of the past four dating to 2002, Canada's self-described band of journeymen will play the Czech Republic for bronze on Saturday.

"We did not match their work ethic," Canada forward Derek Roy said. "It stings a lot. It is not a good feeling to lose a game like that."

Canada has only settled for a bronze medal twice in 21 previous Olympic men's hockey tournaments and took home gold or silver in each of the six games with women's hockey.

"Disappointed, for sure," coach Willie Desjardins said. "Everybody's disappointed. We knew what we wanted and we worked hard to get here and we came up a little bit short."

Canada will likely play for bronze without top-liner Gilbert Brule, who was ejected for a brutal hit to the head of David Wolf at center ice, one of several bad penalties by an uncharacteristically undisciplined team.

Desjardins and his staff made some adjustments at the first intermission, but never called a timeout when Germany went up 3-0 or 4-1. Kevin Poulin was starting in net because No. 1 goalie Ben Scrivens injured his shoulder/collarbone area in a collision in the quarterfinal against Finland, and he allowed goals scored by Brooks Macek, Matthias Plachta, Frank Mauer and Patrick Hager on 15 shots.

Poulin refused to speak to reporters afterward. There weren't many answers for what happened to the team that had looked dominant against Finland.

"I don't know," forward Andrew Ebbett said. "Just a couple penalties there early on. We were in the box the whole second period. It's tough to win a hockey game when you're killing penalties that whole time. We maybe needed two, three, five more minutes there at the end maybe to tie it up, but it was too late."

Canada outshot Germany 15-1 in the third period but couldn't climb all the way back after digging a deep hole. It started with high-sticking and faceoff violation penalties 36 seconds apart and unraveled when Macek scored.

MLB: Raising awareness

MLB honors shooting victims with special caps

By KRISTIE RIEKEN
Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH, — Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School baseball coach Todd Fitz-Gerald and his sons were guests of the Houston Astros for their spring opener against the Washington Nationals on Friday as Major League Baseball honored victims of the school shooting in Parkland, Florida, by having its teams wear caps with the school's initials.

Fitz-Gerald said it was a "relief" to get back to the sport he loves and to stop thinking, at least for a moment, about the Valentine's Day mass shooting that left 17 people dead and more than a dozen others wounded. "You can't put it into words," he said, fighting back tears. "I think it's great what Major League Baseball is doing to show support for our community and our school. It's been a rough week and just being out here ... (gives me) a sense of freedom."

Teams had the option of wearing the caps, which are black with "SD" in block letters, during the games or only during warmups. Both the Astros and Nationals wore them during Friday's game.

MLB ordered more than 2,500 of the caps from New Era, league spokesman Steven Arrocho said.

Many teams will have players sign them, and they will be auctioned to benefit the victims and families affected by the shooting.

Stoneman Douglas, which won a state title in 2016, counts several baseball players as alumni, led by Cubs star Anthony Rizzo. He left camp in Arizona to return to Parkland the day after the shooting, gave an emotional speech at a candlelight vigil and later visited victims in the hospital. He wasn't in the lineup for Chicago's game on Friday, but wore the hat bearing his high school's initials while working out.

Both Fitz-Gerald and his son Hunter, a junior, were on campus during the shooting, in which 14 students and three teachers were slain. The elder Fitz-Gerald wore a crisp white shirt that was adorned with the words "Douglas Strong" as he chatted with Astros manager A.J. Hinch and several other players and coaches during morning workouts. He and Hunter accompanied Houston general manager Jeff Luhnow on the field before the game to hoist the World Series trophy.

Rays, MLB show support for Parkland

By BRYAN LEVINE
Sports Writer

PORT CHARLOTTE — All Major League Baseball teams playing on Friday wore hats with the Marjory Stoneman Douglas logo on them to support the school.

Douglas was the location of the Feb. 14th tragic school shooting which took the lives of 17 students and teachers.

"Major League Baseball is proud to see our Clubs supporting the Parkland community and the students of Stoneman Douglas in a way that is both meaningful and natural to our sport," commissioner Rob Manfred said in a press release.

"The idea began with several of our Grapefruit League Clubs and quickly turned into a league-wide effort. We hope this demonstration by our teams, players, coaches and umpires helps contribute to the healing process of everyone affected by this horrible tragedy."

Tampa Bay Rays infielder Brad Miller is one of the few players on the team who is from Florida, making it mean just a little bit more.

"It's pretty special for all these teams to come together and show their support for what happened in South Florida," Miller said.

"You're almost numb to it with just how crazy it was. We're just showing our support. If we can bring just a little bit of awareness or some smiles, anything positive, it's a good thing."

In total, more than 2,500 hats will be worn by players, managers, coaches and umpires. The hats will then be signed and auctioned off to benefit runs related to assisting the victims and families of the tragedy. More information can be found at browarded-foundation.org.

SCARY MOMENT

was hit by a pitch on the hand and was immediately taken out of the game.

Good news, though, Robertson says other than a little swelling, he's fine, and there's no concern of a break.

"It pinched my hand when it hit the barrel," Robertson said.

"No (x-rays). Just have to throw a little cold stuff on it. It's fine."

THE OTHER GAME

It was a split-squad day for the Rays, as half the team was up in Sarasota to play the Baltimore Orioles. Mostly with Triple-A players in that game, Tampa Bay won (also) 6-3. Kevin Padlo hit a two-run home run in that game to help lead the Rays to a victory. Willy Adames also had an RBI. Yonny Chirinos threw a pair of scoreless innings, allowing just one hit with no walks and a strikeout.

ASTROS 3, NATIONALS 2

YANKEES 3, TIGERS 1

New Yankees manager Aaron Boone was a winner in his spring opener. Lefty Ryan Carpenter, signed to compete for the fifth starter spot, got the start for the Tigers, giving up a hit and issuing an eight-pitch walk to Giancarlo Stanton in two innings of work.

RED SOX 4, TWINS 3

Fernando Rodriguez worked two innings to get the win in relief of starter Hector Velazquez. Blake Swihart and Jeremy Barfield each doubled for Boston.

MARLINS 6, CARDINALS 4

Alex Wimmers picked up the win in relief and Javy Guerra worked the ninth for the save. Scott Van Slyke homered twice and drove in five runs for the Marlins.

BLUE JAYS 2, PHILLIES 1

Curtis Granderson homered to right in his first at-bat as the Blue Jays' leadoff hitter, taking starter Nick Pivetta deep. Joe Biagini started for Toronto and gave up one hit and striking out two over two innings, and seven relievers scattered five hits and struck out eight.

METS 6, BRAVES 2

Zach Wheeler started and worked an inning in the Mets opener, striking out two and giving up a hit after new manager Mickey Callaway told reporters he would treat the right-hander as a starter. Hansel Robles worked a solid inning, striking out two and giving up a hit and Tyler Bashlor got the win in relief despite walking two and giving up a run in an inning of work.

REDS 6, INDIANS 4

Sal Romano got the start and the win in the Reds' opener, giving up a second-inning home run to Yonder Alonso in his debut after signing as a free agent with the Indians.

BREWERS (SS) 2, CUBS 1

Corbin Burnes worked a scoreless fourth inning, striking out two, to earn the win. Nick Ramirez got the save. Christian Yelich, obtained in a trade with the Marlins, singled and struck out twice in his debut. Michael Roth struck out a pair in his two-inning start.

ATHLETICS 9, ANGELS 8

DODGERS (SS) 13, WHITE SOX 5

C.C. Lee gave up three earned runs in an inning of relief but still came away with the win. Justin Turner, Enrique Hernandez, Matt Kemp and Logan Forsythe each homered. Kemp's shot came with two men on and two out in the third.

BREWERS (SS) 6, GIANTS 5

Tristan Archer got the win after an inning of relief, striking out two. Lorenzo Cain had two hits in his first start back in a Brewers uniform. Ty Blach struck out two in his two-inning start.

MARINERS 3, PADRES 2

Ariel Miranda started the opener and got the win after two innings of work. Dan Altavilla struck out the side in the ninth for the save. Dee Gordon, acquired from the Marlins in December, made his debut in center field and doubled in the first inning.

HONEYWELL

What makes it even more frustrating was what I was throwing was tough to hit. I don't care who it is. That's the frustrating part."

Honeywell was facing big-league hitters for the first time in his life Thursday, something the ambitious No. 1 prospect has been waiting a long time for. He says he felt a pop in his arm immediately, and instantly knew he had torn something.

"It's very unfortunate. You feel for him more than anything, not necessarily for us, even though it is a loss, a guy we all had high hopes for and will continue to have high hopes for," manager Kevin Cash said. "I talked to him briefly yesterday. He's going to be fine. He's young. He'll bounce back. He'll work really hard to get back quick and follow what the doctors and trainers give him and make the most of it."

The 22-year-old likely wasn't going to break camp with the Rays, but an early-season call up seemed to be in store. Honeywell is the team's top prospect and the No. 12 future player in all of baseball.

Teammates of Honeywell's are no stranger to Tommy John surgery. Veteran Nate Eovaldi, who has been there himself, offered some advice for Honeywell.

"For him it's probably the worse-case scenario timing wise and all that," Eovaldi said. "I talked to him a little bit (about how he's) got to accept that it's happening, and that he shouldn't feel sorry for yourself or dwell on what could have. Just accepting the steps and moving forward from there and attack the process. He's going to get stronger and come back a lot better form this procedure because you learn so much from it."

In 24 starts with Triple-A Durham last season, Honeywell went 12-8 with a 3.64 ERA, 152 strikeouts and just 31 walks.

Honeywell will visit Dr. James Andrews for a second opinion, but says he believes Tommy John surgery will be the route he takes.

Down times for dividend stocks

Investors are powering down on utilities and moving out of real estate companies. As bond yields keep climbing, it's taking a toll on stocks that pay high dividends.

Some traditionally low-risk, income-producing stocks have fallen out of favor as investors expect not just continued economic growth, but rising interest rates. When bond yields are extremely low, as they have been for several years, investors seeking income turn to these stocks as bond substitutes.

These days, bonds are rapidly becoming more appealing because their prices are down and their yields are way up. The yield on the 10-year Treasury note is the highest it's been in four years, having jumped to 2.95 percent Wednesday. That's up sharply from the 2.04 percent it traded at in September.

While the Standard & Poor's 500 index has risen slightly this year, real estate investment trusts are down almost 10 percent, while utilities are down nearly 8 percent.

Animal kingdom

Fido, Fluffy and farm animals keep fueling revenue growth at top veterinary medicines maker Zoetis, which just topped $5 billion in annual sales.

A third of U.S. pet owners say money's no object for their four-legged friends, and Americans spent about $70 billion on pet products last year, up 68 percent in a decade. Meanwhile, farmers need more vaccines and drugs for cattle, pigs, poultry and fish to meet rising overseas demand.

Spending on pets and livestock production both are fairly recession resistant, says Kevin Ellich, Craig-Hallum

Ellich notes Zoetis has experienced management and strong research. Most veterinary drugs were first developed for people, but Zoetis created medicines for pets including arthritis pills and the first drugs for chronic itchy skin and anxiety from loud noises.

Zoetis shares zoomed 55 percent in the past year, yet two-thirds of analysts still recommend them.

"This is one of those stocks you could hold for five or 10 years and do very well," says Ellich. "Zoetis has either No. 1 or 2 market share in almost everything they do."

$1,000 Derby

High-dividend stocks had a tough week as bond yields rose to their highest levels in four years. Gold and health care stocks also fell. Crude oil was one of the few winners.

Performance benchmarks: industries - sectors of the Standard & Poor's 500 index; international stocks - MSCI indexes; bond returns - Barclays Capital and BofA Merrill Lynch indexes. Source: FactSet Data through Feb. 22 AP

A.P. BIO

A disgraced Harvard professor (Glenn Howerton) routinely runs over his new high school principal boss (Patton Oswalt) on NBC's "A.P. Bio," airing Sunday at 10:30 p.m. and then taking its regular time slot on Thursday at 9:30 p.m.

Before, when I looked in the mirror all I saw was my weight.
Now I see the real me. The happy, healthy, active me.

As I'm getting smaller, my world is getting bigger.

Weight loss surgery changed my life.

Self-Absorbed Scholar Treats Brainiac Students as Pawns

BY DAN RICE

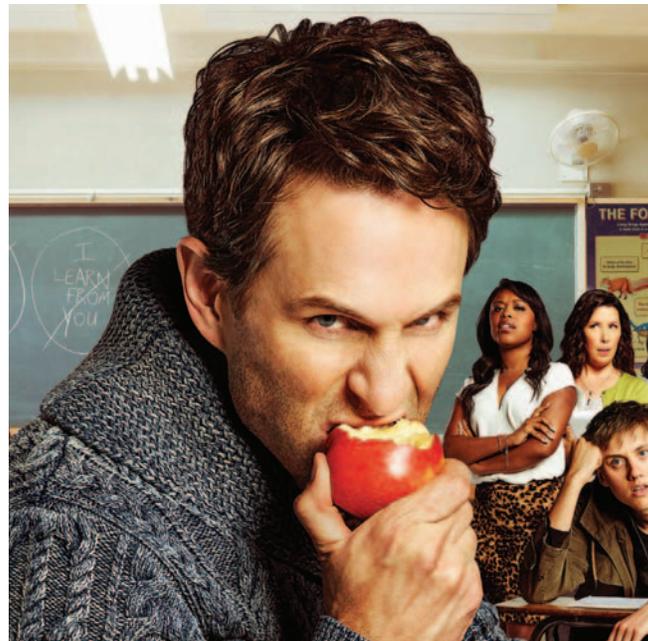

Fans of "It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia" and the deplorable (yet funny) behavior of its central characters will want to go back to school with co-creator and co-star Glenn Howerton on the new NBC comedy "A.P. Bio," airing Sunday at 10:30 p.m. and then taking its regular time slot on Thursday at 9:30 p.m. Howerton plays the disgraced Harvard philosophy scholar Jack Griffin, who is forced to take a post at a Toledo, Ohio, high school teaching Advanced Placement Biology. But Jack makes it clear from the start to his appalled honor roll students that he will not be teaching any biology. Instead he will use the kids to take his revenge on his imagined nemesis, Miles (Tom Bennett), who "stole" his dream job at Stanford.

Miles, however, is oblivious to Jack's animosity and only wants the best for him. The same is true for Jack's new boss, the much put-upon Principal Durbine (Patton Oswalt), who is thrilled to have a Harvard professor among his faculty and so painfully over-accommodates his rude and regulation-breaking actions. Far less impressed with Jack is the teacher trio of Mary (Mary Sohn), Stef (Lyric Lewis) and their former bullying victim turned cohort, Michelle (Jean Vilpique).

"First of all, I've not officially, like, left 'It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia,'" Howerton points out. "So, I hope people understand that. This is just a totally separate project that I'm doing. I think one of the tough things about doing a show for 12 years is people might have a hard time seeing you as anything else, and I realize that that could be a little bit of a struggle for me as an actor. But that's why it was important for me to get to do something with someone who has a distinctive voice like Mike (O'Brien, creator and executive producer). You know, I wasn't even planning on jumping into anything else. But when I read the script and saw it was Lorne Michaels and Seth Meyers (executive-producing), I couldn't pass it up. But mostly, I just loved the script and the character."

Of course, a cursory glance at Jack would perceive that he's every bit as superficial and self-absorbed as Dennis on "Sunny," and that the actor appears to have been typecast for this new role.

"Typecast? I think it's possible that that could start to happen," Howerton allows. "This character definitely shares some traits with the character on 'Sunny,' but I think he's distinct in other ways. I think there's some real heart to this guy. I think he really wears his heart more on his sleeve than he even realizes, where I don't think he's as hardened as, say, Dennis. No. I think there's a little bit more tenderness to this character,

A disgraced Harvard professor (Glenn Howerton) forced to take a high school position uses his students to get revenge on his perceived nemesis on "A.P. Bio," Sunday at 10:30 p.m. and then taking its regular time slot on Thursday at 9:30 p.m.

even though he wouldn't want people to realize that. But, yeah, he's snarky. I don't know. I like doing it. It's fun. I like playing that kind of character."

The initial traces of Jack's heart can be seen in the subtle signs of grief he displays for his late mother, although his only spoken references are of having to live in his "dead mom's apartment."

"The show is so jampacked with comedy as far as I'm concerned that I never tried for that stuff to be funny at all," Howerton says. "I mean, I'm always looking for some sort of a truth in everything. I wanted those moments to feel as though this is a man who is grieving, but who doesn't want to believe that he's grieving, someone who feels a terrible sense of loss and sadness but who, if you asked him, he'd be like, 'I don't care.' I like to think that he is the type of person who actually has such big feelings that he has to act like someone who doesn't care and has to act like somebody who doesn't have big feelings because everything hurts too much. That's my take on the character, because I think if you have been hurt enough in your life as a human being, you might start to put up a shell."

Another hint to the unseen depth of Jack Griffin are the reasonably valid philosophical truths he draws

"What I love is that Mike wrote a character who is intellectually smart but emotionally immature. And that's a very funny combination because he does some of the dumbest things a human being would ever do, but he has some smart reason for why it's OK that he did it, you know. And I always love watching characters justify ridiculous behavior because I think you can get behind that. A character can do something absolutely ridiculous and insane as long as the audience understands why the character thinks that's a good idea, and I think Mike did a really great job with that. Like, people will do ridiculous things for selfish reasons as long as they have a justification for it."

Q: My girlfriend and I recently binge-watched “American Vandal” on Netflix. Will there be more episodes? — Victor F., via email

A: The half-hour mockumentary, which spoofs shows such as “Making a Murderer” and “Serial,” has been renewed for an eight-episode second season by the streaming giant. Scheduled to air sometime this year (no date as yet), season two again will feature high school student and burgeoning documentarian Peter Maldonado (Tyler Alvarez) as he tries to solve a mystery at a different school with a new set of students.

As you'll recall, season one centered on the mystery of who spray-painted penises on 23 teachers' cars at Peter's school, with Peter's aim to vindicate accused vandal Dylan Maxwell. While the storyline might seem juvenile on the surface, the execution of the story is anything but. The series is a brilliantly amusing (and heartbreaking) look at high school life, social pressures and societal pigeonholing — all set against the backdrop of a fascinating mystery.

Q: With the recent reboots of “Will & Grace,” “Full House” and “Roseanne,” etc., are there any new/old shows to add to the redux list? — Michael T. in Florida

A: It seems that everything old is new again. The latest '80s/'90s sitcom to get the green light for another go-round is the astoundingly ahead-of-its-time newsroom sitcom “Murphy Brown.” CBS has given the order for a 13-episode season, which will star Candice Bergen and have creator Diane English on board. According to Deadline.com: “Talks are underway with original cast members to return.” Now all we need is a new iteration of “Family Ties” (imagine what intelligent writers could do to skewer the current administration) and “Designing Women,” and I'm all set!

Q: Do you have any news about “House of Cards”? I was so worried it would be canceled after the sexual misconduct news surrounding Kevin Spacey was revealed. — Wanda B., via email

A: As I've reported, “House of Cards” will be back for its sixth and final season, with Kevin Spacey having nothing whatsoever to do with the production. This last season will focus on Robin Wright's character, President Claire Underwood, and will have eight episodes instead of its usual 13. This season also

SOAP OPERA UPDATE

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL

Hope and her team met to discuss the Hope for the Future relaunch. Katie was happy to learn that Thorne would be collaborating with Hope. Wyatt and Bill argued about whether Bill deserved Liam's forgiveness. Hope was forced to stifle her feelings when Liam shared some important news with her. Brooke offered Katie comfort over her breakup with Wyatt.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES

Billie was rushed to the hospital. Tripp and Ciara found themselves in grave danger. Kayla tried to keep Steve in the dark. A hostage situation turned deadly. Steve and Tripp shared a heartfelt reunion. Marlena comforted a guilt-ridden John. Eric and Jennifer had a tense run-in with Brady and Eve. Maggie learned of Victor and Brady's plan. Kate ripped into John for putting Billie's life in danger. Chad warned Stefan to stay away from Abigail. A fed-up Maggie walked out on Victor. Lucas shared a warm moment with Will. Abigail made an unexpected move regarding Stefan.

GENERAL HOSPITAL

Jason was pitted against Drew. Anna paid Maxie a visit. Peter changed his mind at the last minute. Alexis was caught off guard. Sonny confided in an old friend. Molly lashed out. Monica surprised Michael. Olivia stood by her man. Drew looked to Curtis for help. Kim stepped in. Alexis ended up in a precarious position. Anna made a promise. Sam looked out for a friend.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS

Chelsea had a hostile exchange with Phyllis. Later, Nick accepted Chelsea's proposal but accused her of rushing it when she demanded they get married right away. They agreed to a compromise of getting married in July but starting the adoption process of Connor and Christian first. At Hamilton-Winters, Charlie copied files onto Devon's laptop. Devon was shocked to see that one of the files was footage of Juliet admitting that she lied about Cane sexually harassing her. Phyllis asked Sharon to help her dig up dirt on Chelsea.

TUESDAY HIGHLIGHTS

NCIS

8 p.m. on CBS

NCIS works a deal to give a convicted murderer a 48-hour furlough at where he used to live, which is now McGee's home, in exchange for any information that can be used to convict his former cellmate, who tricked Gibbs and Fornell.  (HD)

Fresh Off the Boat

8:30 p.m. on ABC

The Huang's are surprised in a positive way when they learn that Eddie has earned a spot in the Honor Society; Jessica is given a note from her book editor; on St. Patrick's Day, Kenny Rogers orders Louis to fire Matthew Chestnut.  (HD)

Bull

9 p.m. on CBS

The District Attorney hires Bull to help get a conviction against a notorious drug dealer who has been able to avoid going to jail for the murder of a police officer by pretending to have schizophrenia for the purpose of insanity defense.  (HD)

LA to Vegas

9 p.m. on FOX

Ronnie is forced to accept help from an unlikely source when she has a personal dental emergency; Colin tries training Capt. Dave for a flight that is scheduled with Capt. Steve, which prompts Artem and Nichole to take bets on the winning pilot.  (HD)

American Creed

9 p.m. on PBS

Pulitzer Prize-winning historian David M. Kennedy and former U.S. State Secretary Condoleezza Rice speak with activists on both sides of political issues to see if there are certain ideals that unify Americans despite their differences.  (HD)

The Mick

9:30 p.m. on FOX

The Many Faces of Competition

There are myriad forms of competition, with common levels of passion and determination, as reflected by several new and returning television series this week.

The nation's most thrilling and dangerous races are speeding into Discovery's Motor Wednesday lineup on the all-new series "Street Outlaws: No Prep Kings," airing a sneak peek Tuesday at 10 p.m. and then continuing Wednesday, March 7, at 9 p.m. Each week, "Street Outlaws" veteran Chuck Seitsinger will serve as race master in a new city and on a new "no prep" track, where 32 of the biggest names in no prep racing – including "Street Outlaws" favorites, as well as newcomers – will duke it out to become the ultimate "no prep winner" and receive a $40,000 first-place purse. With more than $320,000 up for grabs across eight episodes, the stakes are high, and the risks are even higher, as local crowds flock to each race to see which all-star drivers will show up, and who will win it all.

Wednesday at 8 p.m. on CBS, a group of 20 new castaways attempt to "reverse the curse" of bad past game decisions on the two-hour season premiere of "Survivor." This 36th edition, again set in the Mamanuca Islands of Fiji and hosted by Emmy winner Jeff Probst, features the new twist in which players may be sent to the separate "Ghost Island," filled with real idols and advantages from previous seasons, including from Brazil, China, Africa and Australia, serving as a haunted graveyard for unfortunate choices made by former players from the previous 35 seasons of the show.

Get your brushes and contour kits in hand for Lifetime's new beauty competition, "Glam Masters," hosted by Emmy nominee Laverne Cox and premiering Wednesday at 10 p.m. The eight-episode series puts beauty influencers and makeup artists through themed challenges allowing them to put their best face forward to impress Cox, celebrity makeup artist Mario Dedivanovic, YouTube makeup expert Kandee Johnson and Marie Claire Senior Fashion Editor Zanna Roberts Rassi. Each closed-ended episode will feature four beauty bloggers who will go head-to-head to prove they have the talent, charisma and vision it takes to be the next big name in the beauty world.

Hosted by Steve Harvey, the series premiere of "Showtime at the Apollo," airing Thursday at 9 p.m. on FOX, will showcase the Apollo's long-running, live talent competition, which provides a platform for up-and-coming artists to perform in front of the toughest audience in the world. Performers with various talents, from singing to juggling knives, will compete in hopes of winning over the Apollo crowd and having the opportunity to come back in the season finale for a chance at headlining their very own show at the legendary Apollo Theater. The Apollo audience is famed as one of entertainment's most boisterous and brutally honest, and those contestants who don't win over the crowd risk being booed off the stage.

Premiering Friday at 8 p.m. on FOX, season six of "MasterChef Junior" features award-winning chefs Gordon Ramsay and Christina Tosi, as well as the return of fan-favorite judge Joe Bastianich. On the special two-hour debut, the 40 junior home cooks are split up into two groups – girls and boys. All 20 girls are then tasked with making a flawless medium-rare filet mignon dish, while the boys must prepare the perfect chicken breast dish. Only 12 winners from each group will earn an apron and a chance to move on. The following week, the hit series makes its time period premiere on Friday, March 9 at 9 p.m.

MOMENTS IN TIME

On Feb. 27, 1776, Commander Richard Caswell leads 1,000 Patriot troops in the successful Battle of Moores Creek over 1,600 British Loyalists. It was the first American victory in the first organized campaign of the Revolutionary War.

On Feb. 28, 1784, John Wesley charts the first Methodist Church in the United States. Although he was an Anglican, Wesley saw the need to provide church structure for his followers after the Anglican Church abandoned its American believers.
