SEBRING — The Heartland Family Fall Festival at the Lakeshore Mall brought joy, laughter and countless happy memories to families in Highlands County. The festival also provided needed funds for the Children's Museum of the Highlands, which is in the process of renovating its building downtown.

Jessica Hartline Insurance, sponsor of the pumpkin patch at the festival, donated the proceeds from the sale of pumpkins to the Children's Museum. Hartline said, "It was an amazing event on Saturday. People enjoyed being able to come out of the heat and pick out a pumpkin.

"I started coming to the Children's Museum with my younger brothers and sisters," Hartline said. "We were always at the museum. Later, I took my own children there."

Hartline wanted to donate the proceeds to the Children's Museum, because the museum has been such an integral part of her life and the lives of children in Highlands County.

Kelly Dressel, executive director of the Children's Museum, accepted the donation of $914 from Jessica Hartline Insurance.

"Thank you, every dollar helps with rebuilding the museum," Dressel said. "We hope to reopen downtown by the summer of 2019."

VOTER EDUCATION

An in-depth look at Amendment 13

Florida TaxWatch has provided the 2018 Voter Guide to Florida's Constitutional Amendments in order to help educate voters on the issues before them on this November's ballot. Highlands News-Sun has shared with readers the in-depth analysis of the 12 amendments to help you better understand the often confusing amendment language so that you can make an informed decision on Election Day. This is the final analysis to be printed for readers.

Readers should note Amendment 8 was removed from the ballot by the Florida Supreme Court on the grounds that the ballot title and summary were "misleading."

Amendment 13

Title

Ends Dog Racing

Placed By

Constitution Revision Commission

Amending

Creates new sections in Articles X and XII

Ballot Summary

"Phases out commercial dog racing in connection with wagering by 2020. Other gaming activities are not affected."

A Yes Vote Means

Beginning Jan. 1, 2021, pari-mutuel facilities would be prohibited from racing greyhounds or any other dogs for wagering, and wagering on the outcome of live dog races would also be prohibited. The greyhound pari-mutuel permit holder would still be able to operate a cardroom or (if the permit holder has a slot machine license) operate slot machines.

A Note Vote Means

Greyhound racing and wagering on the outcome of live dog races would remain permissible.

Pros

Animal rights advocates say that the greyhound racing industry's treatment of the dogs is cruel and inhumane, citing hundreds of greyhound deaths in Florida and the banning of commercial greyhound racing in 40 states. Proponents say that the greyhound racing industry is in decline, as evidenced by declining tax revenues. Proponents assert that the kennel clubs make their money through the operation of cardrooms, and that the state law that allows dog tracks to operate cardrooms as long as they offer dog races perpetuates an activity that would otherwise cease to exist.

Cons

Opponents say the greyhounds are treated well and that greyhound racing fully complies with American Veterinary Medical Association guidelines governing the housing, feeding and treatment of the dogs. Some have expressed concern that there are not enough adoption programs to take in the 8,000 or more racing greyhounds, many of which will have to be euthanized as a result. Opponents cite the projected loss of tax revenue and fee revenue associated with greyhound pari-mutuel permit holders if racing is banned. Opponents assert that a ban on dog racing would just lead to the expansion of other types of gambling.

Analysis

Florida is the leader in greyhound racing in the United States with 19 permit holders operating at 12 tracks throughout the state. A review of historical pari-mutuel activity from 2008 to 2017 shows a steady decline in the total handle from greyhound wagering. During the 2007-08 fiscal year, the total handle from greyhound races was $406.3 million. By the end of the 2016-17 fiscal year, the total handle had declined to $226.5 million.

A similar decline is shown in the total amount of

First Responder's Appreciation Lunch held Wednesday

By KIM LEATHERMAN

SEBRING — The hickory smell of barbecue permeated the air at the Highlands County Sheriff's Office parking lot on Wednesday. The Sebring Sunrise Rotary Club fired up the grills early in the morning to feed hundreds of people during the third annual First Responder's Appreciation Lunch.

Greg Griffin grilled and smoked pork for some 12 hours to get the meat tender enough for pulling. According to fellow Rotarians, Highland County Tax Collector Eric Zwayer was responsible for the shredding of the pork. Traditional sides were present such as baked beans and potato salad. A dessert and ice-cold beverages were included.

Club President Matt Griffin said the event was being held on World Polio Day.

"This is for all of our first responders throughout the county," he said. "We just want to say thank you to the first responders. They are the people that are there when things go wrong."

The lunch cost over $1,000 to put on. Griffin said fundraisers held throughout the year helped to pay for it.

General Counsel for HCSO and Rotarian member Garrett Roberts coordinated how many people and meals were needed.

Avon Park's Brickell Building problems persist

AVON PARK — The mold and mildew issues continue with the Brickell Building after a subcontractor declined to take on the remediation project citing the large scope of work.

A year ago after Hurricane Irma, the City Council and Main Street CRA Advisory Board spoke of the mold and mildew problems with the Brickell Building.

The roof of the city-owned two-story building on Main Street incurred a major failure allowing water intrusion leading to mold and mildew.

The roof was repaired, but the mold issue has not gone away and has made its presence known, with an unpleasant odor at an adjacent building housing a new restaurant at 3 S. Lake Ave.

A Sept. 17 Highlands News-Sun story noted the Southern Charm restaurant's efforts to cope with the condition.

Responding to an email query from Highlands News-Sun on Oct. 4, City Manager June Fisher said, "We received a preliminary mitigation plan and are waiting for an estimate on cost."

On Monday by email, Highlands News-Sun asked Fisher if the city had received a cost estimate and if the work has started in the building.

Fisher responded, "We have not received a quote on the Brickell Building yet, the first subcontractor declined, we are waiting on another."

Responding to a followup question from Highlands

News-Sun, Fisher stated by email, "The first sub-contractor was concerned that they may not have the resources to do the job."

Councilman Jim Barnard said he hadn't heard the latest on the building.

He emailed Fisher a couple of months ago stating that the city shouldn't wait on insurance money from the storm claims and should go ahead to correct it.

Because of the mold or smell of mold issue with the restaurant next door, Barnard said, Fisher agreed not to wait on the insurance money and get somebody to clean it up as soon as possible.

Armed man arrested after short standoff

By KIM LEATHERMAN
STAFF WRITER

LAKE PLACID — John Allan Thompson, 68, of Lake Placid, was arrested after he holed himself in his Placid Lakes home on Saturday, Oct. 20 in the afternoon.

The situation was tense as Highlands County Sheriff's deputies knew Thompson was armed with a shotgun and he was threatening a woman inside the house with it. Because of the domestic nature of the crime, the victim's name will not be released.

Thompson has been charged with one count felony domestic aggravated assault without intent to kill; one count felony domestic aggravated battery using a deadly weapon and one count felony domestic kidnapping/false imprisonment.

According to an arrest report, Thompson threatened several times to kill the victim with the shotgun he had in his possession. The deputy wrote that Thompson hit her several times with the double barrel and the butt of the shotgun.

The woman called 911 and told dispatch that Thompson was threatening her life with the gun. The dispatcher overheard Thompson shouting that he would blow the victim's head off if she called the police or if he saw any appear. Dispatch warned deputies that Thompson was armed.

When deputies arrived they saw Thompson break the front window of the home. The report states deputies heard a sound they felt was a shotgun being loaded. It was several minutes before the dispatcher was able to reason with Thompson and get him to leave the house via the garage with his hands in the air. The deputy said Thompson obeyed commands to lay on the ground where he was put in handcuffs.

When Thompson broke the window out, he cut his hand. Highlands County Emergency Medical Services checked it out and declared it a small scratch.

AP council challengers lead in campaign donations

By MARC VALERO
STAFF WRITER

AVON PARK — The challengers in the race for three Avon Park City Council seats have much larger campaign coffers than the incumbents according to campaign treasurer reports filed with the city.

Avon Park voters will have seven candidates to choose from to fill three City Council seats in the Nov. 6 General Election.

The race will include the three incumbents — Brenda Gray, Terry Heston and Dora Smith — and four challengers — Charles Howell, Craig Marans, Stanley Spurlock and Maria Sutherland.

The incumbents — Gray, Heston and Smith — have a total of $1,336 in contributions.

Marans, Spurlock and Sutherland have a total of $3,083.87 in contributions.

Howell is near the bottom in campaign contributions.

Councilman Jim Barnard contributed $50 a piece to three of the challengers — Marans, Spurlock and Sutherland. The Marans donation lists both Barnard and his wife, Victoria.

Avon Park Human Resources Director Juana Ayala said the candidates who are running for office fill out the campaign treasurer report forms.

This may account for some clerical inconsistencies.

The forms include a "contributor — type and occupation" and a "contribution type."

On some forms the "contributor type" shows an "I" likely meaning individual while the "contribution type" shows "che" apparently meaning check.

But, on other forms it is reversed with "che" under "contributor type" and the "I" under the "contribution type."

One report shows "contribution type" as "ink" for in-kind with the "in-kind description" showing campaign signs and flyers.

Spurlock has a listing of a contribution from an individual who owns a business, but the "contributor type" (individual or business) is not specified and there is no amount specified.

Spurlock could not be reached for comment/clarification by press time.

The campaign contribution totals for the seven candidates follows:

- Gray — $636
- Heston — $100
- Howell — $197
- Marans — $733.87
- Smith — $600
- Spurlock — $1,300
- Sutherland — $1,050

5 THINGS That Will Make You SMARTER

1. Boot and shoemakers are often commonly called "cobblers," although the word cobbler is more properly applied to shoe repairmen.

2. Those who actually make footwear are known as "cordwainers."

3. St. Crispin is the patron saint of shoemakers. Since medieval times, Oct. 25 has been celebrated as St. Crispin's Day and the Shoemaker's Holiday.

4. Northampton, England was, for many years, the center of shoemaking in England and Europe.

5. The cowboy boot, in its several variations, does not derive from Spanish or Native American influence as is commonly thought, but is, instead, a direct descendant of the boot style made popular by Arthur Wellsley — the Duke of Wellington.

Here is a Question ? for you to consider today. WHY DO PEOPLE LISTEN TO THE RADIO?

They either listen to be entertained or simply to have background noise while driving or doing household chores. For those who listen to be entertained, advertising is considered an interruption. For those who have the radio on simply for background noise, the advertisement goes completely unnoticed.

The radio industry itself recognizes listeners don't want to have their music interrupted by advertising, which is why many stations promote themselves as the station that "plays more music, less commercials."

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

Newspapers have had their fair share of ups and downs since the emergence of digital media, but despite this, they have steadily maintained their local readership base and strength for local marketing.

Let's take a look at the many advantages of newspaper advertising:

1. Advertising in a newspaper is not seen as an interruption. In fact, numerous surveys have shown one of the reasons people buy newspapers is to view the ads for their local stores and businesses. Consumers do want and need to be exposed to advertising; they simply want ads on their own terms.
2. A newspaper ad can be cut out and saved for later. This means your coupon or contact information can and usually will land on someone's refrigerator or in their wallet or purse.
3. Unlike radio, whose market share is often far less than first calculated, local newspapers consistently deliver to households 365 days out of the year.
4. Unlike radio, which is often playing in the background and not really heard, newspapers can deliver true consumer engagement. When a person reads an advertisement it's because they choose to do so. They give their full attention to your message and will remember you when they need your product or service.
5. You've probably heard newspaper subscriptions and readership have dropped in the last five years or so, and that's somewhat true, but not to the extent that many would like you to believe. The other side of that coin is, the readership of the online versions of newspapers is growing rapidly, much faster than the 7% or so losses in the physical subscriptions.

The Highlands News-Sun, your hometown newspaper since 1919, not only delivers the news but also delivers major returns on your advertising dollars.

LP man arrested for domestic violence, kidnapping

By KIM LEATHERMAN STAFF WRITER

ROBLES

LAKE PLACID — Highlands County sheriff's deputies were dispatched to a residence in Lake Placid where a woman was telling the dispatcher that Josue Rojas Robles was hitting her and trying to kill her. The call was made Monday shortly after 1:30 a.m. Robles, 26, of Lake Placid, was arrested and charged with a felony domestic aggravated assault with a deadly weapon without intent to kill, domestic battery and a felony domestic kidnapping or false imprisonment.

that she was not leaving. The report states Robles allegedly pulled the victim's hair and "began punching her in her face." Eventually, the victim got back into the car when he stopped punching her, but the gate was still closed. She got back out of the car to open the gate but her assailant was faster and shut it so she could not leave, the report states. The victim told deputies that Robles picked up a brick from the yard and threw it at her and shouted his plans to kill her. The brick missed its intended target and the victim picked it up and tossed it out of Robles' reach. When Robles went to fetch the brick, the victim managed to get the gate open and get back in her car. The victim did not get far however; her car broke down just outside the gate and she called 911. The officer that Mirandized Robles asked him about the brick. Robles said he threw it at the car, not the victim. He also told the deputy that he may have accidentally "struck" her with his hand and that it was dark, so he may have accidentally "hit her with his hands."

No fault in semi wreck, yet Police investigating failed brakes

By PHIL ATTINGER STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — Police have found no fault yet, and thus no citations issued, in a wreck between a Freightliner semitrailer and a Honda Accord sedan on Tuesday. Police are still looking into claims by truck driver Osmay Hernandez Rodriguez that his brakes failed when he tried to stop for a red light, just as Luis Rosado, the other motorist, was making a left turn, said Sebring Police Sgt. Paul DeShazo. Neither Rodriguez nor Rosado had serious injuries, DeShazo said. Although Rosado declined to be transported by Highlands County Emergency Medical Services, DeShazo said he did go to nearby Highlands Regional Medical Center of his own accord. The wreck happened at or a couple of minutes after noon. DeShazo said police were paged at 12:02 p.m. Fire and EMS units were paged a minute or two later. In addition to EMS, Sebring Fire Engine 15 and Ladder 14 arrived on scene, as did Fire Chief Robert Border. DeShazo said Rosado was northbound in a champagne-tan 1990 model Honda Accord sedan and had a green arrow to make a turn into Alan Jay Ford/Lincoln. As he made his turn, the Freightliner — southbound in the right-hand lane — ran through the red light, allegedly from failed brakes, and hit the car. The car showed damage on both the front and rear, with more damage on the front. DeShazo didn't have details Tuesday evening as to which end got hit first and whether or not the car went into a spin. However, the car spun onto the paved shoulder and into a paved roadside display area of the dealership, shearing off parts of the front and rear of the car.

The semi-trailer veered right and ran along the rim of a swale in front of Marmer Construction's main office. The trailer detached and rolled onto its right side, spilling its entire load of shell rock into the basin. The truck cab plowed across the curb and sidewalk in front of the business, which sheared off its front wheels and tore gashes in both side-mounted fuel tanks. Fire Lt. Dirk Riley stated the driver told them he had 45 gallons of fuel, and they estimated it all spilled in the soil and sod, based on foot-long gashes in the tanks. The cab stopped just a few feet away from the business' front stoop. DeShazo said police have the case still open while they verify the truck's brake failure. Meanwhile, anyone who may have information about this case is urged to contact Officer Brandon Low, investigating officer, at 863-471-5108.

AP moves to annex in Pincrest

By MARC VALERO STAFF WRITER

AVON PARK — The City Council took the first step to annex about 110 acres of property in the Pincrest Golf Club area. The annexation is predominantly in Pincrest with property owned by Crews Groves, which is planning a big subdivision there, said Mayor Garrett Anderson. At its Monday meeting, the City Council approved Ordinance 07-18 for the voluntary annexation of about 109.74 acres generally located southeast of Lake Lotela, northwest of Lake Letta and north of Little Bonnet Lake, which is contiguous to the city limits. The Ordinance includes a unanimous written consent of the members and manger of Pincrest

Golf Club LLC. Also, the agenda package includes a petition for voluntary annexation signed by Robert Crews II and Timothy Devlin. An annexation of parcels in August 2017 expanded the city limits to a point where they were adjacent to Pincrest Golf Club. That annexation agreement was with Crews Groves Inc. and C. Elton Crews Family LLLP. The 14 parcels of land that were annexed totaled 221.3 acres. The properties that were annexed are located west of State Road 17, west of Lake Letta and east of Lake Lotela and northeast of the CSX Railroad, according to Ordinance 11-17. The annexed parcels are located on the following streets: Hollyhurst Drive, Lake Lotela Drive, Little Lake Bonnet Road, Golfview Drive and State Road 17.

ANOTHER VIEW

Constitutional Amendments 11, 12, 13

The last three constitutional amendments on the ballot this year range from clearing obsolete language from the Constitution, to lobbyists and to dog racing.

An odd assortment.

These were placed on the ballot by the state Constitution Revision Commission, which meets every 20 years to review the state's foundational governing document and recommend changes. For any amendment to be adopted, it must receive more than 60 percent of the vote. It's a high bar, there for the simple recognition the state Constitution shouldn't be trifled with willy-nilly.

Still, there is a lot of willy-nilly trifling on this year's ballot. Many amendments could be and should be dealt with through the legislative process.

The first under review today, Amendment 11, does not fit neatly into that category. This proposal "bundled" three initiatives into one – an offensive practice that puts voters in a position of voting for an overall package, even things they don't like, because they feel strongly about one specific piece.

As far as Amendment 11 is concerned, we can't discern an egregious motive. Beware, though: This amendment is confusing.

The amendment would do three things:

Repeat an arcane provision that allows the Legislature to restrict property rights of non-citizens. According to the League of Women Voters, this can't actually be enforced, regardless.

Delete a section of the Constitution dealing with high-speed rail. The provision was repealed by voters, but never deleted from the document. The obsolete language should be cleaned up.

Allow the Legislature to apply reduced sentencing requirements retroactively to prisoners who had committed crimes before the new laws were enacted. This could mean earlier release for some, in accordance with updated legal standards determined by legislators. Note that it wouldn't allow tougher sentencing retroactively — that is a violation of federal law.

While we don't like bundling, the last item brings something relevant and necessary that has no other means of redress. As the group Florida TaxWatch noted, ours is the only state that prohibits retroactive sentencing. "Taxpayers will benefit significantly from the reduced criminal justice system costs," TaxWatch wrote. So, a "yes." It seems right and just.

This proposal would prevent public officials from lobbying for pay during their term of service and for six years after leaving office. As it stands now, they may not lobby while in office or two years afterwards.

According to TaxWatch, no state has a lobby law longer than two years. Six is too much. And the provision not only applies to state officials' activities with state government, but local officials and local governments.

While sounds nice to "get tough" on ethics, this goes too far. And then, the Legislature already has the ability to enact tougher ethics law and restrict themselves — if compelled by the people who elect them. A constitutional amendment isn't needed and should not be supported.

Amendment 13

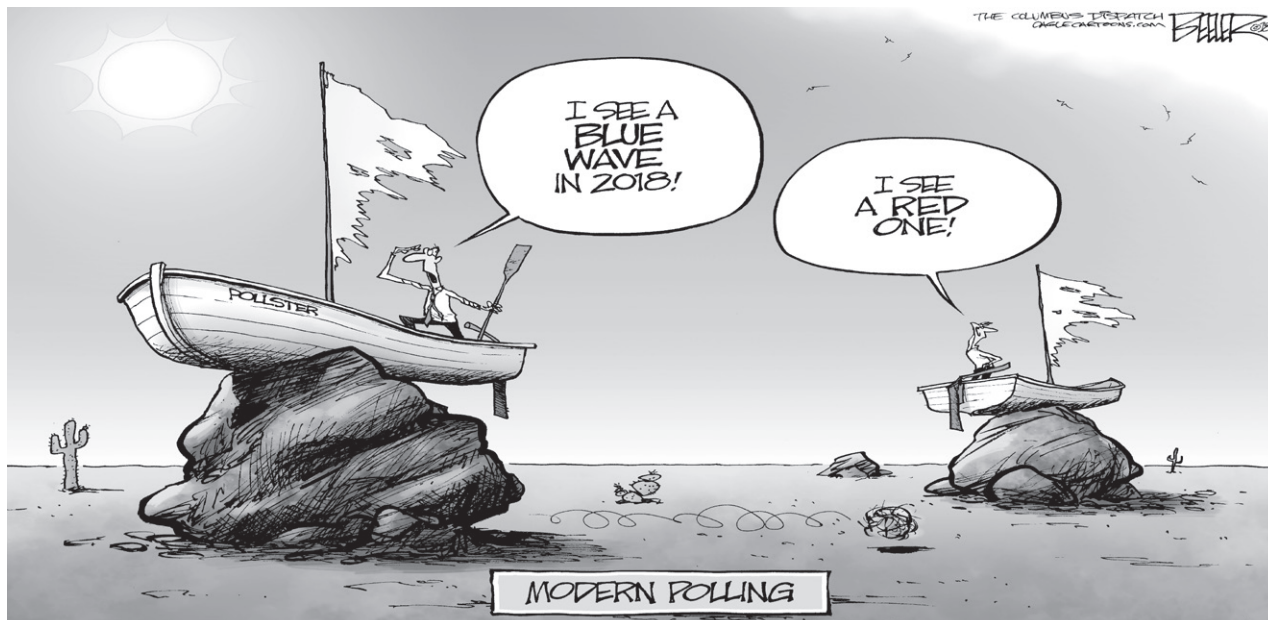

As opposed to the first amendment discussed above, this one is clear: A "yes" vote would end greyhound racing by 2020.

Argue among yourselves whether dog racing is inhumane or not. Proponents insist it is. Opponents disagree, and they maintain there aren't enough adoption options for the thousand of greyhounds now racing.

Regardless, a dog-racing ban could be enacted through the legislative process. Or not. But that's the proper venue.

The Sun recommends "yes" on Amendment 11, "no" on Amendments 12 and 13.

Passing along the gift of the bond

With a student in college one gets used to late night texts about classwork. My gal is taking a writing class and running a few things across my Smartphone to clarify or verify she's typing in the right direction. When she messaged me the other night, I did not realize I would also be offered a glimpse of the gift stirring within.

Tasked to write vividly about an experience in nature, she chose to recall one of our family's sea turtle hikes. Sebastian Inlet State Park on the Atlantic Coast offers these remarkable excursions on a nightly basis throughout the sweltering summer months. I'd book nearly a year ahead to ensure we'd participate each season. Due to the late night activity, we'd camp for a week or two around the turtle walk date.

Depending on which family member you speak to, it was either the vacation of our dreams or a punishment from H.E. Double Hockey sticks. If you've been reading me a while, you already know who's who, but let's just say the estrogen-fueled members of the family think beach bumming in mid-summer is heavenly. Mr. Harris, eh, might not speak as sunnily about it.

Between sweating our guts out, we'd sun, surf and fish. Rarely, we'd hike or bike, but beachfront in July is just too dang hot for such nonsense. Even so, Sebastian was always an otherworldly experience for me and as I read my daughter's draft, I found myself editorially stopped in my tracks. Her memories, vibrantly shared, brought so much back.

Hikes start around 9 p.m. with an educational program by a park naturalist at the McLarty Treasure Museum. After learning all about sea turtles, conservation and management, we'd mull around anxious for the call. Most times it took an hour or so; only one year had us hiking out after midnight. Racing to our vehicles we followed the ranger to the beach cut. So excited that initial time, after the first year we no longer raced around astute to what would be a lengthy experience. Turtles are slow to climb the beach, methodical while digging their nest and lethargic as they cover the tomb of eggs. It's a long, dreamy night.

That she remembered the nuances of those moments all these years later was a delight. Her descriptive expressions of the Loggerhead's body lumbering across the beach completely enveloped me. From the sighting of the surf to the slippage of time, her story was like a snapshot stolen from my own thoughts. It appears brown eyes, sharp wit and a propensity for logic are not the only things passed on. My heart swelled to read of these moments captured by her mind and treasured in her own heart, now typed on the page for others.

She spoke of stars peeking from the blanket of night, surf crashing and bioluminescence glowing in humid air heavy with mosquitoes. Through her writing I journeyed across damp sands with her to where the turtle furiously dug. Eyes stinging with nostalgia and warmth for solid childhood memories settled deep, I was overjoyed they had ensured a lasting bond between nature and my child to now be shared with others.

A civics test to graduate high school? Absolutely

It was an inspiring lecture. One of my finest. And then, I brought up D-Day.

Spend enough time in the classroom and you learn to read students' faces. They say so much.

"I'm bored." "I'm thinking about something else." "I just broke up with my girlfriend." "I'm homesick." "I'm hungry." And, of course, "I have no idea what you're talking about."

The latter — along with the unmistakable sound of crickets — was the reaction to my mention of the day Allied forces invaded Europe in 1944.

This particular encounter with students took place several years ago at another university but I haven't forgotten it. It went something like this.

"So, on D-Day...."

Nothing.

"Does everyone know what D-Day is?"

Still nothing. Not one hand in the air.

"The invasion of Europe by the Allies?"

Blank stares. "Anyone? Anyone?"

"How about World War II?"

"Oh, yeah!" one student exclaimed, as if we'd made some great breakthrough.

Those few moments in that classroom were indicative of a much broader and very disturbing issue — the appalling knowledge gap among young people about American history and America in general.

A study released earlier this month by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation showed that in a sample of 1,000 American adults, only 36 percent would pass a U.S. citizenship test. Those 65 and older who were surveyed scored the highest. But only 19 percent of those 45 and younger passed the test. Oh yeah, and 60 percent of those surveyed did not know which countries the U.S. fought against in World War II.

If you're not terrified yet, consider that the questions on the test aren't exactly what you would find on the Mensa admissions exam.

Here are a few actual questions on the citizenship test: What does the Constitution do? What is one right or freedom from the First Amendment? Name one branch or part of the government? Who makes federal laws?

You get the idea. Not a lot of heavy lifting.

And yet, at least if this study is any barometer, most Americans would fail a rudimentary civics test.

This would seem to be a searing indictment of our public schools. How a student can graduate high school, not to mention college, knowing virtually nothing about a world war that claimed the lives of 418,500 Americans and 50 million others is stupefying.

But here we are.

Kentucky is the most recent state to require all high school seniors to pass a U.S. citizenship test to graduate. Students have to score a 60 on a 100-question test to pass. Kentucky is one of nine states that require students to pass a civics test to graduate high school.

Bravo.

It's hard to imagine that anyone would object to such a basic requirement but alas, the naysayers are out there. Chief among the pooh poohers, of all things, is the National Council for the Social Studies whose tagline, ironically enough, reads "Preparing Students for College, Career, and Civic Life."

"While the Naturalization Test as presently constructed does assess a surface level of civic knowledge that may be quickly forgotten, it ignores the skills and dispositions component so necessary for true civic literacy and learning," according to an NCSS position statement posted in March, 2018. "Indeed, rote knowledge of civics content does not equal understanding of what it means to be a citizen."

I'm not naive enough to believe that passing a simple civics test to graduate high school is the remedy for the multi-leveled failure to teach our young people the basics of what it means to be an American. But it's something.

I would argue that our elementary and secondary school students would be much better served learning about why America had to fight World War II instead of being taught hogwash such as "School Climate Reform" or "Action Civics."

Every state should pass a law requiring high school students to pass a civics test to graduate. The question, "Who knows about D-Day?" should never be met by unraised hands in any high school or college classroom. But it is. And that's more than a failure. It's a tragedy.

in waves," Roberts said. "It's from the different shifts that EMS, fire and police officers work. We had to have food ready early to be delivered in time for lunch."

It was estimated that the Rotarians would feed about 350 people. The grillers said they always prepare extra in case.

By 11 a.m. club members had delivered about 175 meals. This year, the delivered meals included the School Resource Officers, the Sheriff's substation, the Emergency Operations Center and the northern and southern ends of the county that could not easily drive to Sebring for the feast.

to partnering with Jessica Hartline Insurance and doing wonderful things with the Children's Museum in years to come," Smolarick said.

Besides putting smiles on the faces of hundreds of children and adults, the fall festival also brought the community together in a spirit of celebration. "The turnout for the festival was phenomenal," Kellee Lewis, special events coordinator for the Highlands News-Sun, said.

Some events were so popular that they will now become traditions. Both children and adults participated in the pie eating contest, which featured mouth-watering cherry pies from the Village Inn. Pie-stained faces, streaked with red, made memorable pictures and brought peals of laughter from onlookers.

Leonard Cochran won the adult pie eating contest, and Hannah Pearl and Enrique Parker won the contest for the children's division. Winners will be receiving free pies for the holiday season from Village Inn.

Another popular feature was the costume contest. Although a few adults dressed for the occasion, this event was most popular among children.

"I was happy the community was able to come together for a fun-filled day," Lewis said. "The pie eating contest and the costume contest were highlights of the festival, and they will become traditions in the years to come. The festival exceeded our expectations, and we are looking forward to the festival again next year."

state tax revenue generated from greyhound races. During the 2007-08 fiscal year, $10.5 million in state tax revenue was generated from greyhound races. By the end of the 2016-17 fiscal year, the total amount of state tax revenue generated from greyhound races had declined to $2.2 million.

Cardroom activity at greyhound racing facilities, on the other hand, has shown a steady increase over the same period. During the 2007-08 fiscal year, cardrooms at greyhound permit holders generated $7.2 million in state tax revenue. By the end of the 2016-17 fiscal year, the total amount of state tax revenue generated from cardrooms at greyhound permit holders had increased to $12.2 million.

Absent some extraordinary measure, there is every reason to believe the decline of greyhound industry witnessed over the past 10 years will continue. Decoupling the operation of cardrooms from the requirement to conduct live racing would allow the pari-mutuel permit holders to focus on their cardroom operations and discontinue greyhound racing. This can be done by action of the legislature. Previous decoupling efforts by the legislature have failed, not from opposition by the greyhound racing industry, but from opposition by those that fear another form of gambling will take the place of greyhound racing.

Fiscal Impact

The Department of Business and Professional Regulation (DBPR) projects a loss of tax and fee revenue and fee of approximately $1.1 million in fiscal year 2019-2020, and approximately $1.3 million in fiscal year 2020-2021. A portion of this projected loss may be mitigated if patrons of greyhound wagering move to wagering on horse racing or jai alai.

Prize money from winning tickets that goes unclaimed for one year after the date the pari-mutuel ticket was issued become the property of the state. These moneys are deposited into the State School Fund to be used for the support and maintenance of public schools. The DBPR projects an annual decrease of approximately $400,000 from unclaimed prize money associated with greyhound racing.

The DBPR projects that the prohibition of wagering on greyhound or dog racing may result in a reduction of approximately $325,000 to $400,000 currently associated with the agency's licensing and sample collection responsibilities at greyhound permitholder facilities.

Conclusion

The constitution loses much of its significance as the foundational instrument of government when the process of constitutional amendment or revision is used as a substitute for legislation. Incorporating what is essentially a legislative matter into the constitution undercuts the legislative process and limits the area of legislative responsibility and discretion. Once incorporated, it is extremely difficult to remove what is essentially a statutory provision from the constitution.

The contents of the Florida Constitution should be limited to matters that are essential or fundamental. Matters that are ordinarily handled through the legislative process, such as the banning of greyhound racing, should be excluded from the Constitution.

Healthy Heart run a huge success

Annual event held at Highlands Hammock State Park

Special to Highlands News-Sun

SEBRING – Runners and walkers, friends and family, and numerous sizes and breeds of dogs were at the Hammock State Park on Saturday, Oct. 6 for the 5th Annual Healthy Heart 5K Run/Walk and this year's addition of the Paws 4K.

Held in memory of Jimmy Polatty, a local athlete and Sebring High School graduate who suffered a fatal heart attack in 2013 at the young age of 23, this event raises funds to support Sebring High School scholarships and the Garden of Joy that is located next to the Champion for Children's Circle Theatre.

With perfect weather, racers and canines alike enjoyed the beautiful Hammock course and friendly competition. Runners and walkers of all ages, including several local high school athletes and Polatty family members, completed both races.

The 5K award recipients for the women were: Darlene Christensen took the trophy for first place overall. Finishing second was Sharon Pridgeon-Fennell, who also won the 45-59 age group. Third place overall was Karin Van Rougen.

Other age group winners for the women were: Taylor Leidel won the 13-18 age group, Sara Kelly won the 30-34, Kate Adams won the 40 to 44, Lisa Berish won the

Lane Crosson Memmorial Golf Tournament has great turnout

By RUTH ANNE LAWSON

AVON PARK- The inaugural Lane Crosson Memorial Golf Tournament was a huge success on Saturday at Pinecrest Golf Club.

The Lane Crosson Golf Tournament is in honor of a young man that grew up in Avon Park and graduated from Avon Park High School. Lane tragically passed away in a work accident while helping clear power lines in the aftermath of Hurricane Irma.

Crosson passed while doing what he was known for, helping others. The tournament is a fundraiser for another Avon Park native local, the beautiful Jade Jackson, who has been battling cancer for the last several years.

The tournament had an excellent turnout with 116 golfers participating in the four-person scramble format. There were a total of 29 foursomes.

Lane Crosson was a remarkable man that loved to help others. In an online quote Lane once said "Help someone every chance you can. It all comes back in the end."

"It was a great turnout," said Pinecrest Golf Professional Joe Staffieri, PGA Pro. "We have three flights and there are about ten teams in each flight. This tournament is to benefit Jade Jackson. This is a big event that the whole community has gotten behind. Lane Crosson and Jade Jackson are both from Avon Park. The course is in great shape and everyone is having a good time. We have raffles, a corn hole tournament, and some

In Flight A, the foursome of Ryan Adair, Joey Desimone, Bruce Beumel and Nick Maloyed finished in first place in low gross with a score of 55. The quartet of Brad Ruetz, Rande Allen, Leigh Furnel and Dorrell Herron came out on top with a low net score

In Flight B, low gross went to the team of Mike Davis, Jordan Bassett, Jordan Dean and Cory Watt with a 60. The low net went to the squad of Cash Jackson, Lamar Jahna, Brody Griffith and Will Bennett with a 48.4.

Dolphins take on surging Texans

Banged-up Miami on the road at Houston tonight

By STEVEN WINE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Miami Dolphins' defense will have a different look this week.

"I got a haircut," linebacker Raekwon McMillan announced, "just to make myself feel good."

Change is needed after a decidedly ragged showing at home last week. The Dolphins gave up 248 yards rushing and forced only one punt in a 32-21 loss to Detroit, and they must regroup quickly for tonight's game at Houston.

The Texans (4-3) have a top-10 offense and a four-game winning streak. That bodes badly for the Dolphins (4-3), who rank fourth-worst in the NFL in yards allowed per play and gave up seven scores against the Lions.

"It was bad," coach Adam Gase said. "We have to clean up a lot of stuff. We have to get on the same page, and everybody needs to make sure they play as a group. They gutted us."

But Gase ruled out a lineup shake-up. "It's not about lineup changes," he said. "It's about everybody being on the same page and doing the right stuff to make sure that we have a chance to stop the run."

Run defense has been a recurring problem during Gase's three years as coach. Over the final 10 weeks of the 2017 season, his team allowed 127 yards per game rushing, and won only twice. Even in 2016, when the Dolphins made the playoffs, they gave up more rushing yards than 29 other teams.

This season Miami ranks fourth-worst in rushing yards allowed, and the Lions repeatedly took advantage of gaping holes. Among Miami players, there's cohesion in the locker room that the problem is a lack of cohesion on the field.
"We just have to tighten up all around, everybody in their gaps, making sure that we're sound, playing our technique and not trying to do too much, not trying to make too many plays," McMillan said. "We have to play better. That's all there is to it."
Another problem is the pass rush. The Dolphins have just 11 sacks, fourth-lowest in the league. Ends Cameron Wake, Robert Quinn and Andre Branch, who are drawing a lot of attention from blockers, have only one sack apiece.

"My job is to get to the quarterback," Wake said. "If I don't do it, it's a failure."
Injuries have been an issue up front. Wake returned to the lineup last week, but end Charles Harris has been ruled out against Houston for the third game in a row with a calf injury.
The Dolphins are tied for the league lead with 11 interceptions, but had no takeaways against the Lions. Cornerback Xavien Howard narrowly missed coming up with a late pick when it was a one-score game.
"If we want to consider ourselves one of the best secondaries, we've got to make plays when they come," Howard said. "I had the opportunity."
A few takeaways by the defense would be a big boost for a Miami offense missing two starting receivers and relying on backup quarterback Brock Osweiler for the third game in a row.

The Texans are sure to test the Dolphins' run defense — Houston is second in the NFL in rushing plays. The versatility of quarterback Deshaun Watson compounds the challenge, as safety Minkah Fitzpatrick can attest.
Fitzpatrick played for Alabama against Watson and Clemson two years in a row in the national championship game, and calls him the best quarterback he faced in college.
"He made some amazing plays," Fitzpatrick said. "He's a tough player. He can take some hits and make some amazing throws. It's definitely going to be a challenge for us."

Plan, be positive, unplug 5 ways to make family meals more enjoyable

BRANDPOINT

With our busy lifestyles today, finding time to shop for groceries, cook, then meet as a family to enjoy a meal together can be a major challenge.

A Harris poll shows only 30 percent of American families share dinner each night. Yet the benefits of maintaining that family time are so substantial that it's well worth your while to make it happen.

Research shows, for example, that kids and teens who share meals with their families three or more times per week are significantly less likely to be overweight, more likely to eat healthy foods and less likely to have eating disorders. Further, such togetherness is linked with higher grades, better self-esteem and positive behaviors such as sharing, fairness and respect among children who participate.

In that spirit, we asked actress, host, food lover and mom of two Courtney Lopez for some helpful tips on how she gets her family together for mealtime. Lopez has recently teamed up with Eggland's Best, a proud supporter of the American Heart Association's Healthy For Good(TM) movement, to challenge families across America to pledge to stay at the table for an additional "dozen" minutes.

1. Unplug and unwind. Make your table a phone-free zone, encouraging everyone to talk about their day. This will help your family grow closer together and become more and more involved in each other's lives. You might be surprised what you will learn!

2. Try new dishes. Comfort food can be a great thing, but so can the sense of adventure that comes from trying new dishes. Eggland's Best eggs can be incorporated into an endless spectrum of family-friendly recipes like this Southwestern Quinoa and Egg Breakfast Bowl. EB eggs are the only eggs good enough for my family meals, with superior nutrition like 25 percent less saturated fat and 6 times more vitamin D than ordinary eggs.

3. Make it a team effort.

Your family will feel more involved if they share the work. My little guys love helping out by cracking eggs, stirring, sprinkling spices or setting the table. Allowing little ones to help out can also get them excited about the meal, even if they tend to be picky eaters. And as the old saying goes, many hands make light work.

4. Plan ahead. It can be tough to have nutritious meals ready to go with a busy schedule, but spending just a few hours of your weekend buying, prepping or even cooking the components of your weekday meals will go a long way. You'll thank yourself when you're hungry and tired at the end of a long day; having everything nearly ready to serve reduces the chances you'll opt for fast food or other less-healthy food options.

5. Focus on the positive. No one wants to share a table with fellow diners who are grouchy and unpleasant to each other — although sometimes that can be unavoidable with kids. To keep it positive during this relatively short time each day, avoid judgments, lectures, sarcasm and snarky comments. Ask each person about the highs and lows of his or her day, setting aside this space and time to celebrate victories and help each other through life's challenges.

Sharing great food together can be an

BRANDPOINT

At America's restaurants, you may have noticed more appetizers and entrees draped with pickled onions in the last couple of years. You may have been adventurous enough to try them, learning how their tartness coupled with onion flavor kick every dish up a notch, bringing tired flavors into a new era.

Pickling has been around some 4,000 years as a way to preserve vegetables. It became popular in 18th century England as a way to preserve food, according to savoringthepast.net, and today is traditionally served with fish and chips or with what is called a ploughman's lunch, a dish of bread, cheese and onions — part of the English diet for centuries.

Today, pickled onions are used all over the world in a variety of

Nutritious meals for busy school nights

FAMILY FEATURES

When school is back in session, the real test for parents is not in the classroom, but in the kitchen. Between breakfast, lunch and dinner — not to mention snacks — meal planning seems endless and daunting.

With convenient options like canned ingredients on-hand, parents can have the makings of a wholesome homemade meal right at their fingertips.

Canned foods not only help cut down on prep time in the kitchen, but also deliver nutritional benefits. In fact, kids and adults who use six or more canned foods per week are more likely to have diets higher in 17 essential nutrients, according to a study published in "Nutrients." Plus, cans provide year-round access to seasonal fruits and vegetables, and keep food fresh and flavorful without the need for preservatives and additives.

From on-the-go breakfasts like Vegetable Frittata Minis to hearty dinners like this Beef and Vegetable Soup and everything in-between, a well-stocked pantry — or your "cantry" — full of canned proteins, fruits, vegetables and soups can help busy parents get through the week with creative meals they can feel good about serving their families.

Veggie freezing guide

DINNER DIVA
Leanne Ely

All sorts of nutritious edibles are being tucked from the ground across North America at this very moment. Yes, October is harvest time. Even if you haven't grown your own vegetables this year, you should still make the most of all that great local organic produce that can be so difficult to source (depending on where you live) during the rest of the year.

Preserving produce is an excellent thing to do, but if you're not into pickling, you should know that one of the easiest ways to hang onto those veggies is to freeze them. Fresh produce, freezing fresh veggies, freezer friendly. Freezing is a great way to lock in

Italian-Inspired Dishes

FAMILY FEATURES

Italy is one of the world's great food nations, and many dishes have Italian roots. In honor of Italian heritage, light up the dinner table and impress your friends and family with sophisticated, traditional Italian recipes.

Creating a true taste of Italy means including an abundance of smooth, high-quality extra-virgin olive oil, like Carapelli Olive Oil. Tracing its roots to the heart of Tuscany in 1893, the line of olive oils is designed to lift cooks out of the everyday cooking experience with high-quality olives nurtured by nature, selected at the optimal harvest time and handled delicately.

The ease and simplicity of shared dishes like Marinated Roasted Portobello Mushrooms with Olive Oil Agrodolce – a traditional Italian sweet and sour sauce – focuses on quality ingredients inspiring quality memories. The artistry behind the olive oil shines in Creamy Potato Leek Soup with Olive Oil Pistou and Sicilian Lamb Meatballs with Whipped Feta-Olive Oil Spread, each recipe celebrating the embodiment of Italian cuisine.

Celebrate the best of Italy in your own kitchen by incorporating Italian artisan-inspired dishes ideal for memorable moments with loved ones. Find more Italian flavors and recipes at carapelliusa.com.

Marinated Roasted Portobello Mushrooms with Olive Oil Agrodolce

Prep time: 10 minutes
Cook time: 30 minutes
Servings: 4

Roasted Mushrooms:

- 2 pounds Portobello mushrooms
- 1/2 cup Carapelli Organic Extra Virgin Olive Oil
- 2 teaspoons fresh sage, minced
- 2 teaspoons fresh rosemary, minced
- kosher salt, to taste
- freshly ground black pepper, to taste

Agrodolce:

- 1/2 cup red wine vinegar
- 2 tablespoons honey
- Carapelli Organic Extra Virgin Olive Oil

To make Roasted Mushrooms: Clean and destem mushrooms, cutting large mushroom caps in half.

In large bowl, toss mushrooms with olive oil, fresh sage and fresh rosemary. Let mushrooms marinate 1 hour, tossing occasionally to absorb oil.

Heat oven to 400 F. Line two large baking sheets with parchment paper.

Spread marinated mushrooms on baking sheets, making sure mushrooms are in single layer and not crowded. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper.

Roast 30 minutes until mushrooms are crisped and golden brown at edges.

To make Agrodolce: In small saucepan over medium-low heat, bring vinegar and honey to simmer, stirring occasionally until honey dissolves.

Continue simmering 15-20 minutes until vinegar is reduced by half and is thick and syrupy.

To serve, place roasted mushrooms on platter and drizzle generously with Agrodolce and olive oil. Serve with choice of side.

Sicilian Lamb Meatballs with Whipped Feta-Olive Oil Sauce

Prep time: 15 minutes
Cook time: 15 minutes
Servings: 4

Sicilian Lamb Meatballs:

- 1 pound ground lamb
- 1 tablespoon Carapelli Unfiltered Extra Virgin Olive Oil
- 1/3 cup panko breadcrumbs
- 3 tablespoons pine nuts
- 2 tablespoons golden raisins
- 1 large egg, lightly beaten
- 3/4 teaspoon kosher salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper

Feta-Olive Oil Sauce:

- 1/2 pound feta cheese, crumbled
- 2 tablespoons Carapelli Unfiltered Extra Virgin Olive Oil
- 2 tablespoons plain Greek yogurt

To make Lamb Meatballs: Heat oven to 375 F. Line large rimmed baking sheet with parchment paper.

In large bowl, mix lamb, olive oil, panko bread crumbs, pine nuts, raisins, egg, salt and pepper. Use hands to mix all ingredients together.

Roll mixture into approximately 36 meatballs about 1 inch in diameter and place on baking sheet.

Bake 15 minutes until sizzling and golden brown.

To make Feta-Olive Oil Spread: In food processor, blend feta cheese, olive oil and yogurt 30-45 seconds until creamy.

Serve Lamb Meatballs with Feta-Olive Oil Sauce for dipping or scooping.

Rustic Tuscan Potato Leek Soup with Olive Oil Pesto

Prep time: 15 minutes
Cook time: 50 minutes
Servings: 6

Potato Leek Soup:

- 3 medium-large leeks
- 2 tablespoons Carapelli Unfiltered Extra Virgin Olive Oil
- 1 large garlic clove, coarsely chopped
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt, plus additional, to taste (optional)
- 2 pounds Yukon gold potatoes, peeled and diced into 2-inch cubes
- 6 cups chicken or vegetable broth

Pesto:

- 1 packed cup fresh basil
- 1 packed cup flat-leaf parsley
- 1 medium-large garlic clove, roughly chopped
- 3 tablespoons pine nuts or 1/4 cup walnuts
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt

1/4 cup Carapelli Unfiltered Extra Virgin Olive Oil

To make Potato Leek Soup: Trim bulb ends and tough, dark green stems off leeks. Slice tender white and light green stems in half lengthwise then soak in cold water 10-15 minutes to remove dirt. Drain leeks, rinse well and slice into thick half-moons.

In large Dutch oven or stockpot over medium-low heat, heat olive oil. Add leeks, garlic and salt. Cook, stirring occasionally, until leeks are soft, about 10 minutes.

Add potatoes and broth. Cover and increase heat to medium. Bring soup to simmer then uncover and continue cooking 30 minutes.

Using immersion blender, puree soup until smooth, or carefully ladle into standing blender to puree in batches. Taste and add more salt, if desired.

To make Pesto: In food processor, pulse basil, parsley, garlic, pine nuts, salt and olive oil to make chunky herb sauce.

To serve, ladle soup into bowls and spoon Pesto on top of each serving.

Sweet and smoky pork tenderloins are ready in 30 minutes

DETROIT FREE PRESS

Test Kitchen recipe: Sweet and smoky pork tenderloins are ready in 30 minutes

By Susan Selasky, Detroit Free Press (TNS)

While getting dinner on the table is often a struggle, coming up with what to make is problematic, too. Especially during the week. I hear all too often that people are looking for simple recipes with simple ingredients.

"Simple foods that taste delicious and are easy to make" is the prediction that came out of the Next Big Bite event held Oct. 1 in New York, according to restaurantnews.com. The event featured food-industry experts who reflected on what we will crave and how we will cook in 2019. Those making the predictions included noted chefs Carla Hall and Jacques Pepin and pastry chef Christina Tosi.

A quest for simplicity is how I came across today's recipe. While rifling through some recently arrived cookbooks (there are lots), I came across "Milk Street: Tuesday Nights" by Christopher Kimball (Little, Brown, $35). Kimball is the driving force behind Milk Street, a venture he started after leaving America's Test Kitchen a few years ago. His mission with Milk Street involves "simplifying cooking techniques yet delivering bolder flavor," say publicists for the book. This is Kimball's second Milk Street cookbook.

It offers 400 pages of easy-to-do recipes that look and sound delicious, and it's divided into sections cleverly labeled "fast," "faster" and "fastest." Recipes in the fast section generally require 40 minutes or less. Those labeled faster take 30 to 35 minutes, and those dubbed fastest are done in less than 30 minutes. There are also chapters on specific dishes, such as easy additions (sides), supper salads, pizza nights, one-pot dishes, roast-and-simmer offerings and sweets. In all, recipes are ready in an hour or less. All the main dishes serve four.

The only caveat involves the ingredients. Not everyone has fish sauce or a jar of capers in the pantry. Some cooks would cringe at the thought of figuring out fresh ginger or lemongrass. However, Kimball's use of boneless and skinless chicken thighs, bone-in pork chops, and cuts of meat like sirloin and flat-iron make sense. These are readily available and should be in anyone's cooking repertoire for ease and convenience. There are also plenty of recipes using canned beans, pasta and fish and seafood.

The only semi-obscure ingredient in today's recipe for Paprika-rubbed Pork Tenderloin is smoked paprika. The rest of the ingredients are standard.

What makes the recipe work is that the tenderloins are seared in an oven-proof skillet and then finished in the oven. It's important not to overcook the tenderloins. Have an instant-read thermometer at hand. Cook the meat until the internal temperature hits 135 degrees at its thickest point. It will be slightly pink if you cut into it, but it will continue to cook if you tent it with foil and let it rest a good 10 minutes.

A word of caution: The recipe calls for two pork tenderloins — each 1 1/4 pounds. That's a lot of pork if you're not a big eater. Plan on having leftovers.

Paprika-Rubbed Pork Tenderloin

Serves: 4 / Prep time: 10 minutes / Total time: 30 minutes

1 tablespoon sweet paprika
2 teaspoons hot smoked paprika
2 teaspoons fresh thyme, minced
Kosher salt and ground black pepper
2 pork tenderloins (about 1 1/4 pound each), trimmed of silver skin and halved crosswise
2 tablespoons grapeseed or other neutral oil
6 medium garlic cloves, sliced
2 teaspoons honey
3/4 cup low-sodium chicken broth
2 tablespoons sherry vinegar
6 tablespoons (3/4 stick) salted butter, chilled and cut into 10 pieces
2 tablespoons chopped fresh flat-leaf parsley

Preheat the oven to 450 degrees, with a rack in the middle position.

In a large bowl or dish, mix together both paprikas, thyme and 2 teaspoons salt. Add the pork to the bowl, turn to coat and massage it into the meat.

Let stand at room temperature for 15 minutes.

In an oven-safe 12-inch skillet over medium-high heat, heat the oil until it shimmers. Add the pork and cook, occasionally turning with tongs, until browned on all sides, about 4 minutes. Transfer the skillet to the oven and roast until the center of the thickest piece reaches 135 degrees, 9 to 12 minutes. (If don't have an ovenproof skillet, transfer the pork to a sided sheet pan.)

Using an oven mitt, transfer the skillet from the oven to the stovetop. Transfer the pork to a large plate and let rest 10 minutes. Meanwhile, add the garlic to the skillet and cook over medium-high, stirring constantly, until toasted and fragrant, about 1 minute. Add the honey and stir until it slightly darkens in color, about 30 seconds. Pour in the broth and simmer until reduced and thickened slightly, about 2 minutes.

Add the vinegar and simmer for 30 seconds. Add the butter 1 piece at a time, swirling the pan to emulsify the sauce before adding more butter. Remove from the heat and stir in the parsley. Taste and season with salt and pepper. Cut the tenderloin crosswise into thin slices and arrange on a platter. Spoon the sauce over the pork.

1 can (14 1/2 ounces) cut green beans
1 can (14 1/2 ounces) stewed tomatoes
1 teaspoon dried basil
1 cup cooked egg noodles

In 4-quart saucepan over medium-high heat, in hot oil, cook ground beef until well browned on all sides, stirring frequently. With slotted spoon, remove beef to bowl.

In drippings remaining in saucepan over medium heat, cook onion and garlic until tender-crisp.

Add beef broth, carrots, green beans, stewed tomatoes, basil and ground beef; over high heat, heat to boiling. Reduce heat to low; cover and simmer 10-15 minutes to blend flavors, stirring occasionally. Stir in cooked egg noodles.

Vegetable Frittata Minis

Recipe courtesy of Cans Get You Cooking

Servings: 36
Nonstick cooking spray
8 large eggs
1/2 cup milk
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
1/4 teaspoon dried basil

1 can (8 ounces) mixed vegetables, drained
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
Heat oven to 375 F. Spray mini muffin tins with nonstick cooking spray.

In large bowl, beat eggs, milk, salt, pepper and basil to blend well. Stir in mixed vegetables and Parmesan cheese.

Fill prepared pans with egg mixture. Bake until egg mixture puffs and is just set in center, about 8-10 minutes.

With rubber spatula, loosen frittatas from muffin cups and slide onto platter.

Just as with fashion, foods come and go, and the pickled onion has made a resurgence in the United States in recent years. According to a Datassential survey on menu trends, the use of pickled onions has grown 191 percent in restaurants and diners in the U.S. in the last four years. From 2016-17, their use grew 8 percent. It seems chefs are on to something. They've learned the pickled onion adds an interesting twist when paired with burgers and dogs and salads and sandwiches.

Adding pickled onions to your dishes doesn't have to be the work of a 5-star restaurant chef. In fact, pickling onions is easier than expected, and it adds a delicious kick to any old dish you're working on for dinner, lunch or even your tailgating dogs.

Pickled onions are great make-ahead options for garnishing your meats, adding to salads or sandwiches. While healthier for you, you'll not be giving up the flavor.

Pickled Ginger Onion Relish

Recipe provided by the National Onion Association.

Yields: 3 cups
Ingredients:
3 cups onions, red,

sliced 1/8-inch thick
3/4 cup rice wine vinegar
2 tablespoons honey
1 teaspoon sea salt
1/8 teaspoon ground red pepper
1/2 cup pickled ginger with juices
Directions:

Place onions into a bowl and cover with icy water for 10 minutes. Drain when ready to use. In a saucepan, heat vinegar, honey, salt and pepper over low heat just until boiling. Remove from heat. Pour over drained onions and mix well. Stir in ginger with juices and mix. Cover and cool to room temperature, stirring occasionally. Place in a covered container and refrigerate at least 24 hours before using.

that you might never have considered freezing before. You'll notice that some vegetables need to be partially cooked before freezing. That's because a bit of blanching is required in order to stop the enzyme activity that decays veggies.

Green and yellow beans. Simply snap the tops off the beans, rinse them under running water and cut into one-inch pieces. You can keep smaller beans in one piece if you like. Blanch them in boiling water for about 3.5 minutes, and then put the beans immediately in an ice bath for 3.5 minutes. Pop them in a freezer bag and voila!

Beets. Cook the beets until they're fork tender, then let them cool before removing the skins (if you will be using your beets for juicing and they're organic, you can leave the skin on). Cut the beets into chunks before packing into freezer bags.

Broccoli and cauliflower. Method is the same for both of these veggies. Cut the heads from the stalks. You should have a diameter of roughly 1-inch per head. Soak in salt water to remove any dirt or insects, and then drain well. Blanch for 4 minutes and then place in an ice bath for 4 minutes before freezing.

Brussels sprouts. Wash the sprouts by soaking in salt water. Rinse before blanching for 4 minutes. Place immediately in an ice bath and chill for 4 minutes before freezing.

Carrots. Peel your carrots and slice them into coins. Before you freeze them, blanch for 3.5 minutes and chill for 3.5 minutes in an ice bath.

Pumpkin. Scoop the seeds out of the pumpkin, peel it and cut it into pieces. Steam or bake until tender. Mash the pumpkin flesh or blend it until smooth. Freeze in one-cup portions.

Spinach. You can freeze raw spinach or you can blanch it for 1.5 minutes and chill in an ice bath for 2 minutes before freezing.

Sugar peas. Wash, blanch for 2.5 minutes and chill for 3 minutes in an ice bath. Then place in freezer bags.

Peppers. Wash bell peppers and cut into slices. Freeze in bags.

Zucchini. Wash the zucchini, slice it and then blanch for 2 minutes. Chill in an ice bath for 2 minutes before freezing. Alternatively, you can grate the raw zucchini into one cup portions and freeze.

Tomatoes. Freeze whole for fresh tomato sauces all winter long.

Tips for bonding with kids over cooking

By BRANDPOINT

Cooking with your kids is just plain fun. Everyone likes good food, and being in the kitchen offers an excellent opportunity to work together toward one common (and hopefully delicious) goal. And the added benefit, of course, is that your kids can learn to follow directions, are exposed to healthier food choices, brush up on their math skills, find creativity and gain a solid sense of accomplishment.

"Getting kids into the kitchen to cook with you is a win-win situation, no matter how old they are and no matter what you make," Tracey Seaman, author of "Real Food for Healthy Kids," recently advised on food site Epicurious.com. "You will have the opportunity to foster a greater sense of intimacy between you and your child. Cooking together strengthens feelings of responsibility and being a valued member of the team will form a lifetime of good memories and help to strengthen bonds."

Consider these suggestions as you get ready to cook up a storm with your child.

Expect messiness. As young kids brush up on motor skills while measuring and mixing, spills, stains and a little waste will be the norm. Dress in old clothes, wear aprons and make a lesson of the adage, "Good cooks clean up after themselves."

Choose fast and easy options. At least initially, select simple recipes. UNCLE BEN'S READY RICE(R) is a known family favorite, offering up perfectly cooked rice in just 90 seconds and providing a quick base for a number of global cuisine choices. Consider the easy and tasty recipe below or see beginners.unclebens.com for other options.

Experience trumps outcome. Some projects may not come out as planned, presenting the opportunity to teach your child to deal with (and rebound from) disappointment. Share a laugh together, discuss what may have gone wrong and try again next time.

Don't be afraid to experiment. Does your child want to try a new flavor combination or cooking technique? Bring it on, perhaps doling out a small portion of a family-sized dish with which to pursue his idea. That's how new and better recipes are discovered.

Keep the conversation flowing. Something about focusing your attention on a shared task can make it easier to talk about subjects that might seem forced or awkward in other settings. As you prepare food together, use the time to casually ask your kids about their thoughts, feelings and life in general, taking time to listen without judgment. They may appreciate the chance to share, and you may be surprised what you learn.

Bring some celebrity power into the kitchen. Encourage healthy eating by asking your kids to join you on Team FNV (fruits 'n' veggies). Show off the celebrity roster on fnv.com/team with all the superstars who love their fruits and veggies. Be sure to post a photo using #TeamFNV to share your favorite fruit or veggie with the team.

Are you already bonding with your children over cooking? Consider entering the BEN'S BEGINNERS(TM) contest sponsored by UNCLE BEN'S(R). The annual initiative invites families with kids in K-8th grade to submit photos of themselves preparing a rice-based dish to beginners.unclebens.com. Contestants vie for the chance to win $15,000 for their families and $30,000 for school cafeteria makeovers.

Sweet and Spicy Chicken Kebabs with Rice

Makes 4 servings. Prep time: 15 minutes. Cook: 15 minutes.

Ingredients:
 2 tablespoons brown sugar
 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
 1/8 teaspoon black pepper
 1 tablespoon lime juice
 1 tablespoon low-sodium soy sauce

1 tablespoon vegetable oil

1 package UNCLE BEN'S READY RICE(R) Garden Vegetable

1 pound boneless, skinless chicken breast cut into 32 chunks

1 medium red pepper, seeded and cut into 1-inch pieces

1 small red onion, peeled and cut into 1-inch pieces

1 cup fresh pineapple cut into 1-inch chunks

Vegetarian option: Replace chicken with broccoli florets and yellow squash

Directions:

Prepare your grill, soaking wooden skewers for at least 10 minutes.

Combine the first 6 ingredients in a large bowl, then add the chicken, bell pepper and onion. Cover and let sit 10 minutes.

Skewer the pineapple, lightly spray with cooking spray, grill 3 minutes on each side, then remove from heat.

Skewer the chicken, bell pepper and onion, spray with cooking spray and grill 10 minutes on each side (or until done).

Remove the pineapple from the skewer, then chop it coarsely and add it to the rice you've prepared according to package directions. Serve with kebabs.

New research links refrigerator staple to teenage height

Study finds drinking more milk growing up is associated with increased height at 17

By FAMILY FEATURES

Drinking real dairy milk is especially important for growing kids, and new research suggests regularly drinking more milk throughout childhood is associated with an increase in teenage height, according to a new study in "The Journal of Nutrition."

Researchers followed more than 700 kids from the time they were born, analyzing their height and diet from ages 2-17, and found each additional glass of milk kids drank per day throughout childhood increased their height at age 17 by around 0.39 centimeters. That means the more milk kids drank regularly growing up, the taller they were. Water and other beverages, including 100 percent juice and sugar-sweetened beverages, didn't have the same effect.

These findings add to a growing body of research that suggests regularly drinking milk during the growing years is associated with greater height in the teen years, while regularly skipping milk or drinking non-dairy milk alternatives, like almond or soy milk, is linked to shorter height.

The 2015-2020 Dietary Guidelines for Americans recommend two cups of milk and milk products each day for kids ages 2-3, two and a half cups each day for kids 4-8 and three cups each day for kids 9-18. While it's hard for kids to get nutrients they need to grow strong without milk in their diets, eighty-five percent of Americans fall short of these daily recommendations, which includes most children over 3 years old.

Serving an eight-ounce glass of milk alongside meals or snacks is an easy way to give kids nine essential nutrients, including high-quality protein, and get them closer to these recommendations.

Homemade Cereal Bars

Recipe courtesy of Jamielyn Nye, author of iheartnapttime.net, on behalf of Milk Life

Servings: 16
 1/2 cup peanut butter
 1/2 cup honey
 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
 3 1/2 cups dry cereal
 Line 8-by-8-inch pan with parchment paper and set aside.

In a medium size sauce pan, combine peanut butter and honey and cook 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat and stir in vanilla.

Add in dry cereal and stir until completely coated then press into lined pan. Use piece of parchment paper to press firmly down on bars.

Refrigerate bars 1 hour, or until ready to serve.

Serve with eight-ounce glass of milk.

Nutritional information per serving: 180 calories; 4 1/2 g fat; 1 g saturated fat; 5 mg cholesterol; 10 g protein; 26 g carbohydrates; 1 g fiber; 160 mg sodium; 306 mg calcium (30% of daily value).

Nutrition figures include an eight-ounce glass of fat free milk.

Bomb threats highlight risk of violent political rhetoric

By STEVE PEOPLES and KEN THOMAS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — The discovery of pipe bombs targeting prominent Democratic politicians and CNN is raising the threat of election-season violence largely unknown in the U.S. — and prompting uncomfortable questions about the consequences of leaders' increasingly vitriolic rhetoric.

Coming two weeks before midterm elections, the thwarted attacks Wednesday caused renewed soul-searching — and finger pointing — about whether President Donald Trump has fanned passions to dangerous levels. Democrats swiftly pointed to his remarks seeming to condone violence against reporters and belittling political opponents, including some apparently targeted by the devices. Trump decried all political violence and issued a broad call for unity.

Some voters expressed concern the country was spiraling into new territory.

"It almost seems like we're in the middle of a civil war without the shots being fired," said Bobby Dietzel, a 45-year-old information technology worker from Kansas City who is registered with neither party. From a Denver coffee shop, he said he watched the political conflict with alarm. "It's almost scary to talk politics with people."

Law enforcement officials did not comment on the possible motives behind the crimes or whether political ideology may have played a role. Those involved have all been targeted by Trump and the right.

The thwarted attacks — revealed in rapid succession Wednesday — added volatility to midterm elections poised to be a referendum on Trump's tumultuous two years in office.

Long before the explosives were discovered, violent rhetoric had emerged as a central theme in the closing days of the midterm elections, particularly for the GOP. Republicans derided protesters for disrupting GOP lawmakers or Trump officials at restaurants or other public places. While campaigning, Trump and leading

What we know about the explosive devices targeting Democrats, See page 8

Republican candidates have increasingly warned of a rising Democratic "mob" prepared to inflict physical harm upon its adversaries.

But even some Trump allies saw the events of Wednesday as a moment for reflection and urged Trump to tone it down.

"You gotta calm it down," said

Man wakes from coma just in time for birth of son

His wife, at 39 weeks pregnant, saved him from cardiac arrest

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A Minnesota man awoke from a medically-induced coma just in time for the birth of his son after his wife, at 39 weeks pregnant, saved him from cardiac arrest.

Ashley Goette says she awoke Oct. 16 to hear her husband, Andrew Goette, gasping for air in their West St. Paul home. She called 911 and a dispatcher guided her through administering CPR. First responders arrived and rushed Andrew to United Hospital in St. Paul, where he was placed in a coma to minimize possible brain damage.

Doctors told Ashley it wasn't clear if her husband would survive or if he would suffer brain damage. Ashley told her husband she wouldn't have the baby until he awoke, and he did several days later, neurologically intact and in time for the birth of their first child, Lennon.

Although Andrew couldn't be wheeled into the room to be at his wife's side during the Caesarean section, her sister streamed the birth to him on FaceTime so he could watch it from outside the door.

Green bean casserole creator dies

HADDONFIELD, N.J. (AP) — The woman who created a Thanksgiving staple enjoyed by millions — the green bean casserole — has died at age 92.

Dorcas Reilly died on Oct. 15 of Alzheimer's disease, said Ken Tomlinson of the Hinski-Tomlinson Funeral Home in Haddonfield, New Jersey.

Campbell Soup officials said the New Jersey resident was the driving force behind the popular dish, made with green beans and cream of mushroom soup and topped with crunchy fried onions. The company said it is the most popular recipe ever to come out of its corporate kitchen. The recipe's website got 2.7 million visits during last year's holidays, the company said.

"Dorcas was an incredible woman, whose legacy will live on for years to come. She will be missed by her Campbell colleagues and all those who were impacted by her creativity and generous spirit," the company said in a statement.

Reilly was a Campbell Soup kitchen supervisor in 1955 when she combined the ingredients of the now-legendary green bean casserole. She also helped create a tomato soup meatloaf, a tuna noodle casserole and Sloppy Joe-like "souperburgers."

$1.5 billion lottery jackpot sold in Simpsonville, SC

SIMPSONVILLE, S.C. (TNS) — C.J. Patel stood outside KC Mart No. 7 in Simpsonville and told a crowd of locals and media that the store "is always lucky to me."

He owns the store in a suburban section of Simpsonville that borders on rural. But for a Mega Millions ticket holder, it's also a lucky store for them. Patel's store sold the winning ticket in Tuesday night's $1.5 billion Mega Millions jackpot.

The store sold the lucky ticket with the numbers 5, 28, 62, 65, 70 and the mega number 5.

State lottery officials announced Wednesday that the winning ticket was sold at KC Mart #7 at 303 Lee Vaughn Road in Simpsonville. The winner has 180 days to collect the jackpot.

The person or persons with the lucky numbers has yet to come forward and has the option to remain anonymous, said Tony Cooper,

Didn't win Mega Millions? Powerball jackpot hits $620M

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Never has the sixth-largest lottery jackpot in U.S. history seemed so small.

Wednesday night's $620 million Powerball jackpot looks sort of puny given all the attention lavished on the $1.537 billion Mega Millions jackpot won in South Carolina on Tuesday.

Only five lottery jackpots have been larger, but with two giant prizes in one week, it's hard not to compare.

The odds of winning the Powerball jackpot is 1 in 292.2 million. Despite the tough odds, they're actually a little better than the odds of winning the Mega Millions jackpot.

No one has won the Powerball jackpot since Aug. 11, when a man from Staten Island, New York, won $245.6 million.

Powerball's current estimated $620 million prize refers to the annuity option paid over 29 years. Most winners take the cash option, which would be $354.3 million.

DeSantis, Gillum exchange insults in final debate

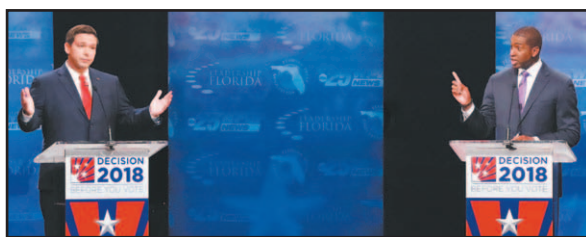

Candidates decried political divisiveness, then immediately started name-calling

DAVIE, Fla. (AP) — The candidates for Florida governor decried extreme political divisiveness on a day when pipe bombs were mailed to Democratic leaders, but then they immediately began intense name-calling during their final debate Wednesday.

Republican former U.S. Rep. Ron DeSantis and Democratic Tallahassee

Mayor Andrew Gillum agreed that some people are being pushed over the edge by extreme political rhetoric.

DeSantis pointed out that last year he had just left a Republican congressional baseball practice before a gunman starting shooting at his teammates.

Trump to headline rally for DeSantis in Fort Myers next week

By ANITA KUMAR

McCLATCHY WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump is expected to headline a Make America Great Again rally in the Fort Myers area on Oct. 31 to help Florida Republicans, including GOP gubernatorial candidate Ron DeSantis, in the final days before the election, according to two people familiar with the plans but not authorized to speak publicly.

Trump had been widely expected to make another appearance in Florida before Election Day to help DeSantis, who won the primary after a presidential endorsement and faces an unexpected opponent, liberal Democrat Andrew Gillum. The race has attracted attention on both sides: Both former Vice President Joe Biden and 2016 Democratic presidential nominee Hillary Clinton are publicly supporting Gillum, and major donors from both parties are contributing vast amounts of money to the race.

DeSantis has tied himself to Trump throughout the race, gambling that the connection will pay off in a state the president narrowly won in 2016.

On Thursday, Vice President Mike Pence will speak at an event for DeSantis in Jacksonville and headline a Vero Beach fundraiser for Gov. Rick Scott, who is running against Democrat Sen. Bill Nelson. It's unclear whether Scott, who says he is focused on helping North Florida recover from Hurricane Michael, will attend Trump's rally, which will be in the conservative southwest part of the swing state.

Trump has been headlining boisterous Make America Great Again rallies several times a week in states that backed him in 2016, including North Dakota, Missouri and Arizona, trying to boost Republican candidates next month. He estimates that a third of rally attendees are not traditional Republican votes, according to someone familiar with his strategy.

He plans to headline at least 10 more rallies before Election Day, according to his re-election campaign. He will hold rallies this week in Mosinee, Wisconsin on Wednesday, Charlotte on Friday and Murphysboro, Illinois on Saturday. Trump has hosted 37 rallies since he came in office in January 2017.

Trump didn't know DeSantis well — though he did endorse him when he first ran for Congress in 2012 — but was impressed with him after watching him appear frequently on FOX News supporting the president's agenda, aides say. The president endorsed him on Twitter after the two shared a flight together on Air Force One to a rally in Pensacola.

Adam Putnam, the state's agriculture commissioner and establishment Republican candidate, was leading until Trump tweeted his support and appeared at a rally with DeSantis in Tampa.

Trump's campaign also will launch a $6 million national TV and digital advertising campaign Monday that will run through Election Day.

"President Trump is all-in for the midterms to lead the GOP to victory on Election Day," Trump campaign manager Brad Parscale said in a statement. "His winning spirit is energizing Americans across the country to get out the vote and keep the momentum of our America First agenda going strong."

Satan-worshipping girls plot stabbing attack at school

BARTOW, Fla. (AP) — Two middle school girls in central Florida brought knives to school in a foiled plot to kill classmates, cut them up and drink their blood before killing themselves, police officials said Wednesday.

The two girls, ages 11 and 12, were armed with knives Tuesday at Bartow Middle School before they were caught, according to arrest affidavits released by the Bartow Police Department. No one was hurt.

The girls face charges of conspiracy to commit first-degree murder and possession of a weapon at school, among other charges. It will be up to prosecutors to decide whether the girls will be charged formally as juveniles or adults, Deputy Police Chief Bryan Dorman said in an email.

The girls planned to stake out a school bathroom and wait for smaller students to enter, according to the police affidavit. They planned to cut their victims' throats, cut up their bodies, eat the flesh and drink their victims' blood, authorities said. The students then planned to fatally stab themselves.

"The plan was to kill at least 1 student but were hoping to kill anywhere from 15-25 students," the affidavit said. "Killing all of these students was in hopes it would make them worse sinners ensuring that after they committed suicide ... (they) would go to hell so they could be with Satan."

Detectives said the girls devised the plot while watching "scary" movies at one of their houses over the weekend.

The alleged plot was foiled when administrators searched for them after they didn't show up for class Tuesday. The administrators found them in a bathroom stall and brought them back to their offices where they found the girls in possession of four knives, a pizza cutter and a knife sharpener, police said.

Farm cited, faces fines in worker's lightning death

fatally struck by lightning has been cited for failing to protect workers.

A U.S. Department of Labor news release says Occupational Health and Safety Administration inspectors determined that C.W. Hendrix Farms exposed employees to lightning strikes as they picked vegetables in inclement weather. The company faces a penalty of $12,934, the maximum amount allowed.

Authorities say 53-year-old Maria Francisco Pascual was working at the Parkland farm in May when a bolt of lightning killed her. Two others were reported injured.

College professor arrested on child porn charges

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A math professor at a Florida community college is facing child pornography charges following a federal investigation.

U.S. Attorney Maria Chapa Lopez said in a news release sent Thursday that 35-year-old Howard Joseph Vorder Bruegge III was arrested Tuesday and charged with possession and distribution of child pornography.

He faces up to 20 years in prison for each of the charges.

The news release says a federal judge denied Vorder Bruegge's request for bond.

Vorder Bruegge is a mathematics professor at Hillsborough Community College. The complaint said someone using the screen names "JoeBlow73" and "JoeBlowFL" distributed the pornography on Kik Messenger.

Retired fireman sought in wife's death found dead

YULEE, Fla. (AP) — Authorities in Florida say a retired fire lieutenant sought for DUI manslaughter in the death of his wife earlier this year has been found dead of a self-inflicted gunshot wound in the cemetery where she's buried.

The Florida Times-Union reports the body of 48-year-old Curtis Alan Bollinger was found Tuesday in the Live Oak Baptist Church cemetery.

Nassau County Sheriff Bill Leeper says Bollinger was wanted on a DUI manslaughter warrant for the April death of his 29-year-old wife Shannon Marie Bollinger.

Officials say Bollinger lost control of a motorcycle he and his wife were riding and it went through the median. The Bollingers were thrown from the motorcycle and onto the road. A passing vehicle hit and killed Shannon Bollinger.

Officials: Power to be restored by early November

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Electric utility providers in the Florida Panhandle say they're hoping to have nearly all power restored to customers whose homes are equipped to receive it by early November. That's roughly a month after the area was hit by Hurricane Michael.

Gov. Rick Scott announced the goal Tuesday. This includes the hardest-hit areas of Mexico Beach and towns in Calhoun and Jackson counties where the electrical infrastructure required a complete rebuild.

A governor's office news release says fewer than 47,700 accounts remain without power, down from the more than 400,000 immediately after Hurricane Michael.

Florida sheriff won't pay man left paralyzed by deputy

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A Florida sheriff's office says it has not settled a lawsuit and won't pay millions to a black man who became a quadriplegic when a deputy shot him.

The Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office issued a statement Tuesday saying it would oppose paying 25-year-old Dontrell Stephens more than the $200,000 it has already paid him. That contradicts a Monday story by The Palm Beach Post saying the lawsuit had been settled.

Sgt. Adams Lin shot Stephens in 2013 after stopping him for riding his bike into traffic, saying he mistook Stephens' cellphone for a gun.

A federal jury in 2016 ordered the sheriff's office to pay Stephens $22 million but under Florida law, government agencies cannot pay more than $200,000 without the Legislature's approval. The sheriff's office said Tuesday it would oppose such a bill.

Florida man faces 10 years in prison for cruise assault

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A Florida man has been sentenced to 10 years in prison for sexually abusing an intellectually disabled woman on a cruise ship.

Brian Holland was sentenced Tuesday in federal court in Jacksonville, Florida. He was convicted of aggravated sexual abuse in July.

Federal prosecutors say the 23-year-old man from Jacksonville assaulted the woman during a Carnival Cruise Line trip to the Bahamas in February.

Prosecutors say Holland touched the woman underneath her bathing suit in a hot tub on the ship, Elation.

The woman reported the abuse to her family, who notified ship security. A ship doctor examined the woman and said abrasions were consistent with the woman's report. The woman's age and hometown were not released.

Holland was arrested when the ship returned to port in Jacksonville.

2 charged with destroying owl nests while building home

CAPE CORAL, Fla. (AP) — Authorities say two Florida men have been charged with destroying the nests of burrowing owls while building a house.

The News-Press reports that 39-year-old Joaquin Bernal was arrested Friday and charged with a felony count of damaging the nest of a protected species.

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission says Bernal was supervising a landscaping crew that was working on a Cape Coral lot with six owl burrows. Officials say Bernal and the primary contractor, Jerlis Villalba, knew about the nests but ordered workers to operate construction equipment close to the burrows, causing all six to collapse.

Villalba was previously charged in August.

It wasn't known if any owls were injured.

Bernal was freed on $5,000 bond. Jail records didn't list an attorney.

Saudi crown prince denies killing journalist, calls it a 'heinous' crime

ISTANBUL (TNS) — Trying to stem global condemnation, Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman on Wednesday spoke for the first time about the murder three weeks ago of a U.S.-based Saudi journalist, calling it a "heinous" and "unjustified" crime.

Prince Mohammed, speaking in the Saudi capital of Riyadh, denied what is widely suspected — that he was involved in killing Jamal Khashoggi, a Saudi writer critical of his nation's regime — and vowed to find and punish the people responsible.

Saudi, Turkish and U.S. officials have said that members of the prince's inner circle, including his security team, formed part of an execution hit squad dispatched from Riyadh to Istanbul, where Khashoggi was killed inside the Saudi Consulate on Oct. 2.

The United States on Tuesday revoked the U.S. visas of 21 Saudi officials and security agents identified as suspects. It was the first reprisal by Washington, though critics called it barely a slap on the wrist since the suspects were not likely to be planning trips to the United States.

Saudi officials, after denying for weeks that Khashoggi had been killed, now acknowledge the crime, but blame it on officers exceeding their authority. The desert kingdom is struggling to shield the crown prince from blame, though most of the suspects reported to him, and he had already earned a reputation for rash, reckless behavior.

"The incident that happened was painful for all Saudis, and especially because (Khashoggi is) a Saudi citizen, and I believe it's painful for every person in the world," Prince Mohammed said.

"It's a heinous incident, totally unjustified."

He was speaking to a Saudi-sponsored conference of high-profile international investors in Riyadh. Many big-name participants, including from the United States, dropped out of the conference because of the Khashoggi case. But several thousand people, including more Saudis than in the previous year, were on hand to give Mohammed — the kingdom's de facto ruler — a standing ovation.

Treasury Secretary Steven T. Mnuchin also pulled out of the conference, ostensibly in protest of the killing, but showed up at a parallel meeting with Prince Mohammed on Monday.

Putin says Russia will target nations hosting US missiles

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian President Vladimir Putin warned Wednesday that if the United States deploys intermediate-range missiles in Europe, Russia will have to target the nations that would host them.

The stern statement follows U.S. President Donald Trump's announcement over the weekend that he intends to opt out of a 1987 nuclear arms control pact over alleged Russian violations.

Putin said he hoped the United States wouldn't follow up by positioning intermediate-range missiles in Europe. Such a move would be a repeat of a Cold War showdown in the 1980s, when the U.S. and the Soviet Union both deployed intermediate-range missiles on the continent, the Russian leader said.

"If they are deployed in Europe, we will naturally have to respond in kind," Putin said at a news conference after talks with visiting Italian Prime Minister Giuseppe Conte. "The European nations that would agree to that should understand that they would expose their territory to the threat of a possible retaliatory strike. These are obvious things."

Super Typhoon Yutu hits Northern Marianas

HONOLULU (AP) — As Super Typhoon Yutu crossed over the U.S. Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the walls shook in Glen Hunter's concrete home, a tin roof over the garage blew away and howling winds terrified his cats.

"At its peak, it felt like many trains running constant," Hunter, of Saipan, wrote in a Facebook message to The Associated Press. "As its peak, the wind was constant and the sound horrifying."

Maximum sustained winds of 180 mph (290 kph) were recorded around the eye of the storm, which passed over Tinian and Saipan early Thursday local time, the National Weather Service said.

On Wednesday night, the weather service in Guam issued dire warnings of possible destruction of homes and others buildings. "Collapse of some residential structures will put lives at risk," the update said. "Airborne debris will cause extensive damage."

Injuries of diplomats in China differ from those in Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fourteen of 15 U.S. diplomats pulled from China for medical testing this year have been found not to have the same set of injuries as personnel evacuated earlier from Cuba, the State Department said Wednesday.

The department said 14 of the 15 brought to the U.S. for medical testing earlier this year did not present the "constellation" of symptoms suffered by more than two dozen diplomats in Cuba that it blames on mysterious health attacks. Results for the 15th were inconclusive, it said.

The diagnosis of an initial patient from China found to have Cuba-like injuries stands. But the new findings may ease fears that whatever affected the diplomats in Havana has spread.

In May, a diplomat posted in China was confirmed to have Havana-like symptoms, sparking fears the alleged Cuba attacks had also occurred on another continent. Some 300 diplomats and family members in China sought preliminary testing from State Department medical staff. Fifteen of them were identified as needing additional evaluation in the U.S.

"Of those 15, 14 were found not to have a constellation of symptoms and objective findings similar to that of the Havana Cohort," the department said.

Tech companies lead another steep sell-off in US stocks

By ALEX VEIGA

AP BUSINESS WRITER

Another torrent of selling gripped Wall Street Wednesday, sending the Dow Jones Industrial Average plummeting more than 600 points and erasing its gains for the year.

The Nasdaq composite, with a hefty roster of tech stocks, bore the brunt of the sell-off, leaving it more than 10 percent below its August peak, what Wall Street calls a "correction."

Disappointing quarterly results and outlooks

continued to weigh on the market, stoking investors' jitters over future growth in corporate profits. Bond prices continued to rise, sending yields lower, as traders sought safe-haven investments.

"Investors are on pins and needles," said Erik Davidson, chief investment officer at Wells Fargo Private Bank. "There has definitely been a change in sentiment for investors starting with the volatility we had last week. The sentiment and the outlook seems to be turning more negative, or at the very least, less rosy."

Investors have grown concerned in recent weeks that Corporate America's tax cut-fueled earnings growth this year will be arrested in coming months amid rising inflation, uncertainty over the escalating trade conflict between the U.S. and China and the likelihood of higher interest rates. Recent data showing the housing market is slowing have also fueled speculation that U.S. economic growth will start to slow next year.

The outlooks from some of the companies that reported third-quarter results this week, including Caterpillar, 3M and United Parcel Service, only stoked those worries.

"You've seen more discouraging (company) commentary this quarter than you have the last two," said Tom Martin, senior portfolio manager with Global Investments. "You're really starting to get more of a groundswell of caution. There's some concern about the fourth quarter and what that's going to look like."

The S&P 500 lost 84.59 points, or 3.1 percent, to 2,656.10. The index is now off about 9.4 percent from its Sept. 20 peak.

The Dow tumbled 608.01 points, or 2.4 percent, to 24,583.42. The Nasdaq slid 329.14 points, or 4.4 percent, to 7,108.40. That's the Nasdaq's biggest drop since August 2011, but it's still up 3 percent for the year.

The Russell 2000 index of smaller-company stocks gave up 57.89 points, or 3.8 percent, to 1,468.70, and is down 4.4 percent for the year.

Bond prices rose, sending the yield on the 10-year Treasury note down to 3.12 percent from 3.16 percent late Tuesday. The slide in bond yields came as traders sought out lower-risk assets.

Technology stocks and media and communications companies accounted for much of the selling. Banks, health care and industrial companies also took heavy losses, outweighing gains by utilities and other high-dividend stocks.

Trump signs measure to confront opioid crisis

President pledges to put "extremely big dent" in scourge of drug addiction in America

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Donald Trump pledged on Wednesday to put an "extremely big dent" in the scourge of drug addiction in America as he signed legislation intended to help tackle the opioid crisis, the deadliest epidemic of overdoses in the country's history.

Nearly 48,000 people died last year from overdoses involving opioids. Overall, U.S. drug overdose deaths have started to level off, but Health and Human Services Secretary Alex Azar says it's too soon to declare victory.

The legislation will add treatment options and get the U.S. Postal Service to screen overseas packages for a synthetic form of opioids called fentanyl that are being shipped largely from China.

The measure mandates advance electronic data on all international packages, including those delivered by the Postal Service, and set deadlines for the screening to be put into place by the Department of Homeland Security, Customs and Border Protection and the Postal Service.

The Obama administration secured a commitment to expand treatment and Congress provided $1 billion in grants to states. Trump declared the opioid epidemic a national emergency and two major funding bills have passed under his watch.

"My administration has also launched an unprecedented effort to target drug dealers, traffickers and smuggler," Trump said. "We are shutting down online networks, cracking down on international shipments and going after foreign traffickers like never before."

President Donald Trump listens as first lady Melania Trump speaks during an event on the opioid crisis, in the East Room of the White House, Wednesday.

The White House says the Justice Department has shuttered a large "Darknet" distributor of drugs, and in August indicted two Chinese nationals accused of manufacturing the shipping fentanyl and 250 other drugs to at least 25 countries and 37 states.

Fentanyl is inexpensive but some 50 times more powerful than heroin, according to Sen. Rob Portman, R-Ohio., who was recognized at the East Room event along with other lawmakers instrumental in getting the bill passed.

The legislation covers not only opioids but also any kind of substance abuse. It expands Americans' access to treatment and changes the law that prohibited Medicaid from reimbursing residential treatment at certain facilities with more than 16 beds.

It includes $60 million for babies born dependent on these drugs and authorizes a variety of programs, such as drug courts that work to get offenders into treatment instead of behind bars.

Judge removes robe, chases handcuffed prisoners who made a run for it

CHEHALIS, Wash. (AP) — A judge removed his robe and gave chase after two handcuffed prisoners made a run for it from his Washington state courtroom.

Video obtained by The Daily Chronicle shows Judge R.W. Buzzard leap into action Oct. 16 when the men identified as 22-year-old Tanner Jacobson and 28-year-old Kodey Howard bolt for the door and down a stairwell.

Jacobson was in the lead while bounding down four flights of stairs, but the judge closed in on Howard and grabbed him just as he was about to exit the courthouse.

Authorities say they apprehended Jacobson a few blocks away from the Lewis County Courthouse in Chehalis, about 85 miles southwest of Seattle.

Both prisoners have been charged with second-degree escape.

Initial surveillance video shows four prisoners being escorted from court by one deputy, who is out of the frame for most of the footage.

Howard and Jacobson are last in line, and rather than walk through an exit to the right of the judge's seat, they pivot and run for the public door at the back of the courtroom.

Cameras in the stairwell show that Jacobson sometimes took several steps at a time.

Buzzard is seen grabbing Howard and going out of frame just as the prisoner is about to go through an open emergency exit door on the ground floor.

Several people, who aren't clearly seen on camera, converged on the scene in seconds.

"These things don't happen very often," Sheriff Rob Snaza said.

US approves first new type of flu drug in 2 decades

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — U.S. health regulators have approved the first new type of flu drug in two decades.

Wednesday's approval of Xofluza for people age 12 and older comes ahead of the brunt of this winter's flu season.

Xofluza is a pill that can reduce severity and shorten duration of flu symptoms after one dose. It was developed by the Roche Group and Shionogi & Co.

It works about as well as Tamiflu, Roche's older flu treatment, which is also available in cheaper generic versions. Tamiflu is taken twice daily for five days.

Health officials have said an estimated 80,000 Americans died of flu and its complications last winter, the disease's highest death toll in at least four decades. The severe flu season increased demand for Tamiflu and led to spot shortages.

Roche's Genentech unit plans to launch Xofluza within a few weeks. It will cost $150 without insurance.

The need for only one dose is an advantage since patients don't always take all their medicine, said Dr. Mark Eisner, Genentech's head of development of infectious disease medicines.

Pope forcibly removes Memphis bishop after investigation

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Francis has forcibly removed the bishop of Memphis, Tennessee, Monsignor Martin Holley, following a Vatican investigation into the diocese.

The Vatican didn't say why Holley was removed. In a brief announcement Wednesday, the Vatican said only that Francis had "relieved (Holley) from the pastoral governance" of the diocese and named Louisville Archbishop Joseph Kurtz to replace him temporarily until a new bishop is named.

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Horror writer Stephen King is giving a deal to student filmmakers at the Blaenau Gwent Film Academy in Wales.

King sold them the movie rights to a short story, "Stationary Bike," for $1.

Kevin Phillips, a tutor at the school, tells The Boston Globe the deal is "great for our students who are fans of his writing and a great scoop for the academy."

The story is about a man who begins using a stationary bike after his doctor tells him to lose weight because of high cholesterol. He gets in shape but begins "having strange thoughts" about being followed on his daily rides.

FCC: Company created fake accounts, misused funds to buy jet

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A telecommunications company faces a potential $63 million fine for misusing government money meant to help low-income people get phone and internet service and instead spending it on a yacht and private jet, federal regulators said.

The Federal Communications Commission accused Toledo-based American Broadband and Telecommunications Co. of creating fake accounts by using the identities of dead people and manipulating the information from existing customers to get government reimbursements.

The company's founder, Jeffrey Ansted, used the money to buy country club memberships, a Ferrari convertible, a Florida condominium and an $8 million Cessna jet, the FCC said.

A federal audit of Lifeline released last year couldn't verify whether 1.2 million people who were signed up were eligible. The U.S. Government Accountability Office also found nearly 6,400 dead people had re-enrolled.

During the past five years, the FCC has proposed fines against at least nine companies involving its Lifeline program.

County pays nearly $5M over heroin withdrawal death in jail

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A small Pennsylvania county will pay nearly $5 million to the family of a teenager who collapsed and died after four days of heroin withdrawal in jail. The family's lawyer said jail staff ignored her dire medical needs for days and then lied about it.

Victoria "Tori" Herr, 18, was arrested for the first time on March 27, 2015, after police looking for her boyfriend found drugs in their apartment. Herr told intake staff at the Lebanon County Correctional Facility she used 10 bags of heroin a day, and confided to a cellmate that she feared the withdrawal process would be tough.

She went through severe bouts of vomiting and diarrhea over the next four days, and was given Ensure, water and adult diapers, according to the lawsuit. But she could not keep the fluids down and collapsed of apparent dehydration as she was being brought back to her cell from the medical unit on March 31. She died in a hospital on April 5.

Death toll hits 7 in viral outbreak at pediatric center

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Another young person has died in a viral outbreak at a pediatric rehabilitation center, bringing the death toll to seven, officials said Wednesday.

Most of those who died in the adenovirus outbreak were under 18, but at least one was a young adult, the state Health Department said. The seventh victim died Tuesday, officials said.

There have been 18 cases overall at the Wanaque Center for Nursing and Rehabilitation in Haskell, about 30 miles (50 kilometers) northwest of New York, officials said. The 227-bed, for-profit facility cares for children and elderly residents.

"We're taking this outbreak very, very seriously," New Jersey Health Commissioner

Dr. Shereef Elnahal said in an interview with The Associated Press. "I've been personally directing a lot of the work based on the information that we're getting from the facility. ... The outcome has been absolutely tragic — the age of the folks who died and their condition, and we're working really hard until hopefully this resolves."

Adenoviruses are common and typically cause mild cold or flu symptoms in otherwise healthy people, including sore throats, fever, coughs and sneezes. Some strains also cause diarrhea and or pinkeye.

But the strain found in the rehab center outbreak, adenovirus 7, is among the more potent types and can sometimes cause more serious respiratory illness, particularly in people with weak immune systems or who have lung conditions.

Bodies of 2 women found floating in NYC's Hudson River

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City police say the bodies of two women have been found bound together and floating in the Hudson River off the west side of Manhattan.

Police say the unidentified bodies were found around 3 p.m. Wednesday in the water near West 71st Street.

Police say the bodies were bound together. Additional details including the women's cause of death were not immediately available.

Police say dating app behind increase in sexual assaults

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Police in a North Carolina city say a dating app is behind an increase in sexual assaults in 2018.

WBTV in Charlotte reports Charlotte-Mecklenburg Police told a news conference Wednesday that there have been 20 cases of sexual assault this year involving a dating app, compared to 15 in all of 2017. The app wasn't identified.

In one instance, police said the victim told officers she was given an unknown narcotic and sexually assaulted. Another victim told police they were kicked in the groin and abdomen before being held down and forcibly attacked.

In yet another case, the victim said her assailant fired a shotgun into the air.

Police: Multiple people shot in Kentucky grocery store

JEFFERSONTOWN, Ky. (AP) — Multiple people were shot at a Kroger grocery store Wednesday on the outskirts of Louisville, Kentucky, and one suspect was detained, police said.

A dispatcher with the Jeffersontown Police Department who spoke to The Associated Press did not give details on the extent of the victims' injuries and would not give his name. He also did not release the name of the suspect.

Eric Deacon, an emergency medical technician who was shopping at the store when gunfire broke out, said he heard a "loud bang."

"It almost sounded like a pallet hitting the floor," he told WDRB-TV in Louisville.

Deacon said he saw two men run out of the store into the parking lot, shooting at each other. He said he saw a woman in her mid-50s or early 60s get hit as he was calling 911, and he ran to help her.

"I looked at her and she was, she was gone," he said. "I knew there was nothing I could do."

As police officers swarmed the scene and blocked off the area with yellow crime tape, a man identified by the Louisville Courier Journal as Tim King stood in the parking lot waiting for his wife to come out. He said he drove to the store after she called him sobbing to tell him what had happened. King said his wife said she heard popping noises, then someone ran around a corner and said, "Oh my God, he's killed her."

Customers were moved to the back of the store, she said.

Minimizing risk of keloids after getting a new piercing

DEAR DR. ROACH: At around 4-6 years of age, I got the chickenpox and, of course, had a lot of itchy bumps on my body. One bump in particular did not heal right; I scratched it so much that it formed into a small (smaller than a dime) keloid on my inner thigh. This happened no place else.

This was confirmed by my former pediatrician, who also told my parents and I that I should never get my ears pierced. Ever since then, I have never attempted to have anything pierced on my body nor get any tattoos. I am now 30 years of age, and I was really wanting to pierce my ears and cartilage. I have never had any major surgeries or huge cuts, so I'm not sure how my skin will react if I decide to get my ears pierced.

I played sports my entire life, so I have had floor burns, minor cuts and bruises, and a gash on my face without developing a keloid. I would really appreciate your insight on this matter, as this has been bothering me for a long time. I've always wanted my ears pierced, but I also don't want to risk my outer appearance changing because of a decision that could have been avoided. — A.C.

ANSWER: Because of your previous keloid, you are going to be at higher-than-average risk for developing a keloid, but I can't even offer a guess on what the likelihood might be of getting one. The advice not to get your ears pierced remains the most conservative option, and the only one to guarantee you won't get a keloid from piercing.

However, if you choose to try piercing, I can offer some advice on how to minimize your risk. Keeping the area meticulously clean with alcohol and sterile cotton and never touching it with your bare hands are good ideas. Pressure earrings reduce the risk, but they need to be worn at least 16 hours a day for six to 12 months for maximum effectiveness. Age seems to be important: Getting ears pierced between age 11 and 30 may have lower risk.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I have a small but persistent scab on my thumb, and my primary care doctor referred me to a dermatologist. A biopsy showed squamous cell cancer and I was scheduled for Mohs surgery.

A friend recommended I see a radiation oncologist. He read the biopsy and told me the treatment with radiation would be a "piece of cake" and no surgery is necessary. He also advised that radiation would be easier than surgery for a person of my age (68). The dermatologist said the recurrence rate is higher for radiation than for surgery, but the radiation oncologist said that was "patently untrue." Is there a correct answer? — R.B.

ANSWER: Both surgery and radiation treatment are considered reasonable for squamous cell cancer on the skin. The recurrence rate in a large series of pooled studies was similar: 5.4 percent for surgery and 6.4 percent for radiation.

There are certain situations in which one would be preferred over the other. Radiation may have better cosmetic results. However, most authorities recommend surgery as the first choice for squamous cell cancer on the hand. Radiation can damage blood vessels, and the wear and tear on the skin of the hand makes it more likely to have skin breakdown with radiation. Radiation should be avoided in younger people (less than 40), due to the risk of secondary cancers years later. Radiation is much, much more expensive and requires numerous visits.

An employed millennial worries about her resume

DEAR ABBY: I'm a millennial, and it seems these days people stay at jobs for only a few years before moving on. That has been my experience in the past, but now I'm in a position that's fulfilling and where I am satisfied.

Dear Abby

All my friends are always looking for their next gig, but for once, I don't feel that way. They keep sending me job postings they think I would be interested in, which would be right up my alley if I was looking, but I'm not.

How should I respond? Does it say I'm lacking motivation or goals if I don't have the desire to leave the company where I am currently working? In this day and age, is it OK to stay longer at a company, or does that actually hurt your resume? — Seeking Guidance

DEAR SEEKING: Remaining with a company you like, being appreciated and fairly compensated for what you do, should not create a black mark on your resume. It's a sign of stability.

In terms of a resume, it's not just your work history that has importance or value, it's also your acquired skills, your community participation and relevant hobbies. These elements let potential employers get a well-rounded view of the person who's being hired.

DEAR ABBY: I was widowed this spring and seem to recall hearing, years ago, that I should not send out greeting cards for the first year. Is this still proper etiquette? With the holidays approaching, I need to know whether I should or should not be sending Christmas cards. For some people, it will be the only way they'll learn of his passing. Thank you for your help. — Carolyn In Virginia

DEAR CAROLYN: Please accept my sympathy for the loss of your husband. If you feel up to sending holiday cards and would like to do so, by all means send them. I have never heard of any rule of etiquette that says you shouldn't.

Dishwasher pod problems

Dear Heloise: I enjoy reading your column in our (Warren, Ohio) Tribune Chronicle. A question came up after a friend had to REPLACE HER DISHWASHER.

She was advised not to use the new soap pods; the plastic wrappers could become trapped in the mechanisms. She now uses a gel-type liquid. What say you? — Alice C., Warren, Ohio

Consumers have voiced concerns on this subject; here's what a leading detergent pod maker advises:

* There may be a blockage in the dishwasher, which can prevent water from dissolving the pod, or

Hints from Heloise

* The pod may adhere to the wall of the dishwasher. This usually happens if your hands are wet when you put the pod in the dishwasher. Dry hands are a must.

A plumber we contacted advised: Clean the dishwasher once a month. A commercial cleaner is fine, or use vinegar. — Heloise

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You know what you can do, and you're confident in that. Since you don't need others to validate your worth, you may forget to validate theirs. But here's the thing: Other people need to hear it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Look around and you'll notice that this place wasn't in your life plan. In fact, you couldn't have imagined you'd be here, and now it seems like the most natural fit that could be. Trust that fortune will favor you similarly in the future.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). People open up to you whether you want them to or not. You'll hear secrets. You'll hear stories that don't make sense. But that's OK. You'll form an opinion based on what you feel, not what you understand.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). While it would be foolish to launch your ship straight into a storm, it's also true that there's always a storm out there somewhere. Those who wait for calm seas everywhere will never launch.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The meal can start a lot of ways — with soup, a salad, a cheese platter — but it almost never starts with candy. Maximum sweetness is something to work up to because there's nowhere to go from there.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). A fun friend would be thrilled to monopolize your afternoon, and if you take this route, you'll have the kind of good time that will make you wonder why you didn't do it sooner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Would you rather be weak and look strong or be strong and look weak? Don't answer — you're too smart to commit to one look. You play each situation as needed, and you let neither pride nor modesty get in the way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). What looks pretty in pictures may only be happening in the instant of a camera click. Can it be sustained over time? This remains to be seen. Keep the principle in mind while you peruse today's images.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You know that you are enough just as you are. You don't have to prove yourself by showing what you can do or spending lavishly. If you chose to do these things, it will be out of enjoyment, not insecurity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Those on the inside seem to know more than those on the outside, but this is only a social illusion. You can be a part of any group you want to be a part of today. Introduce yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You're building something new. Without firm, hard, strong principles, this thing can't stand. You also need open clearings for light, air, and a good flow of people and ideas to come in and out.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Someone who believes in you and encourages you — this is no small luxury to have in your life. Many never get this and live without feeling particularly understood or valued. Celebrate your supporters.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Oct. 25). The solar year will be marked by your determination and tenacity. You'll apply it mostly to things outside of the personal realm, and your love life and relationships will naturally fall into place. Know what your work is worth and be sure to charge that and you'll be well on your way to a financial goal in 2019. Gemini and Sagittarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 39, 29, 48, 13 and 20.

Opening lead: Five of ♠ Another expert is featured in today's deal. Anders Morath, from Sweden, was South. North's two-diamond cue-bid was to make sure the partnership played in a 4-4 fit rather than a possible 4-3 fit. This was good bridge, but it would have worked out better to just bid game in his strongest major, as a four-spade contract would have been much easier. Once gaining the lead, declarer would cash two high spades and then four rounds of hearts. It wouldn't matter whether a defender ruffed a heart or not. Declarer would have an easy 10 tricks either way.

This deal is from a team game where the auction and early defense was the same at both tables. The opening diamond lead went to East's 10 and the trump shift went to dummy's nine. At the other table, declarer played the ace, king, and another spade, setting up his long spade. West won and led another trump. Declarer came up a trick short after cross-ruffing, as he could never enjoy the long spade that he set up.

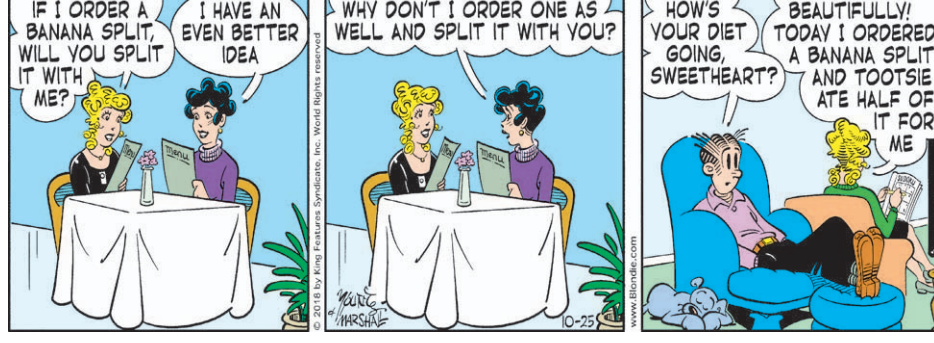

Morath also cashed the ace-king of spades but then he started on a cross-ruff right away. The last four ruffs were all with high trumps with no chance of being over-ruffed. He ended up with seven trump tricks, two spades, and the ace of clubs. He never needed a third spade trick. Nicely played!

What we know about the explosive devices targeting Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — The packages arrived in familiar manila envelopes affixed with lots of stamps, some bearing the American flag. But what was inside was alarming: crude pipe bombs wrapped in black tape, with wires sprouting from each end.

None of the explosives detonated, and no one was hurt. But authorities quickly launched a wide-ranging investigation into the devices that targeted multiple Democrats — including two former presidents — and foes of President Donald Trump's administration ahead of the Nov. 6 midterm elections.

HILLARY CLINTON AND TWO FORMER PRESIDENTS

All the confirmed bombs appeared to come from the same person or persons, said John Miller, the New York Police Department's head of intelligence and counterterrorism, who briefed reporters in New York.

The Secret Service intercepted a bomb addressed to Hillary Clinton at the Chappaqua, New York, home she shares with former President Bill Clinton, and another that was sent to former President Obama at his home with Michelle Obama in Washington.

Neither the Clintons nor the Obamas received the packages, and none had been at risk of receiving them because of screening procedures, the Secret Service said.

CNN

A bomb squad removed another device from CNN's New York headquarters, which was evacuated.

Overhead TV shots showed that device, which law enforcement officials said was linked to the other explosives, being driven away. The package contained a live explosive and an envelope with white powder, and the substance was being tested to see if it was dangerous, authorities said.

Two law enforcement officials, speaking to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity to discuss an ongoing investigation, said the device was crude but operational. It was addressed to former CIA Director John Brennan, who regularly appears as a television contributor and who has publicly clashed with Trump.

Trump and his aides routinely criticize CNN over its coverage, and the president calls the network an example of "fake news."

GEORGE SOROS

A suspicious device was found Monday at the New York compound of billionaire George Soros, a major contributor to Democratic causes. A U.S. official told the AP that investigators believe the explosive discovered near the Clintons' home was linked to the one at the compound.

DEBBIE WASSERMAN SCHULTZ

All of the envelopes listed Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz as the return address. The FBI also said it was responding to a report of a suspicious package at one of Schultz's offices in Florida.

She is the former chairwoman of the Democratic National Committee who was accused by Clinton rivals of secretly boosting the former secretary of state to the party's 2016 presidential nomination.

The envelopes, only a few inches long, had typed letters and six stamps that bore no cancellation mark.

MAXINE WATERS

Rep. Maxine Waters said her Washington office was also the target of a suspicious package. It was not immediately clear if that package was related to the other devices.

The outspoken Democrat is frequently criticized by Trump. He has called her "an extremely low IQ person" and has pegged her level of intellect as "somewhere in the mid-60s," which is considered the range for a mental disability. She has called him "the poster boy for what a mob protester looks like."

WHAT WE DON'T KNOW

How dangerous the bombs were. It's unclear what, if anything, was inside the pipes. Also unclear is whether they were actually processed through the mail or delivered some other way. Officials on Wednesday did not know if there are other devices out there, undelivered.

"MOB" POLITICS

The discovery of the devices comes at a tense time, with Republicans and Democrats casting each other as a "mob" that would do anything to win or keep control of Congress in two weeks.

Trump has a history of advising supporters to "knock the hell out of" protesters and saying that he would like to see opponents carried out "on a stretcher." Last weekend, he said at a rally in Montana that a congressman who had body-slammed a reporter was his kind of guy.

As the scope and targets of the device deliveries became clear, Trump called them "despicable acts."

"Acts or threats of political violence of any kind have no place in the United States of America," he said Wednesday during an event at the White House.

"This egregious conduct is abhorrent to everything we hold dear and sacred as Americans," he added. "We're extremely angry and upset and unhappy about what we witnessed this morning, and we will get to the bottom of it."

Waters in June called on supporters to harass Trump's cabinet members in public, while Clinton this month said: "You cannot be civil with a political party that wants to destroy what you stand for, what you care about."

Clinton is among a handful of top Democrats, including former President Barack Obama and his Attorney General Eric Holder, who were targeted with explosive devices, authorities said Wednesday. The New York offices of CNN, the cable network frequently attacked by Trump and his supporters, was evacuated after receiving an explosive device and an envelope containing white powder. Billionaire Democrat George Soros, a regular focus of conservative conspiracy theories, was targeted on Monday.

In a written statement, CNN President Jeff Zucker decried what he called "a total and complete lack of understanding at the White House about the seriousness of their continued attacks on the media."

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Authorities offered a $25,000 reward Wednesday for any information leading to the location of a Wisconsin girl who disappeared last week after her parents were gunned down in their home.

Thirteen-year-old Jayme Closs has been missing since early on the morning of Oct. 15, when deputies responding to a 911 call from her mother's cellphone found Jayme's parents, James and Denise, dead inside the home. Jayme was nowhere to be found, and investigators believe she was abducted.

Justin Tolomeo, special agent-in-charge of the FBI's Milwaukee office, announced the award during a news conference in Barron on Wednesday afternoon.

"Please, if you have information, we want to hear from you," Tolomeo said.

Jayme's aunt, Jennifer Smith, used the news conference to speak directly to Jayme. She said the family misses her giggles, her grandpa needs her to draw fresh artwork to hang on his refrigerator and she still wants to take Jayme on a shopping date the two of them had planned. She even held up a bottle of Jayme's favorite iced coffee for the cameras.

"Jayme, not a moment goes by that we're not thinking of you and praying for you," Smith said. "We need you here to fill that hole in our hearts. We will never stop looking for you."

Investigators sometimes employ remarks from missing people's family members in the hopes of humanizing them in their captors' eyes and making them pause before inflicting harm.

Scores of law enforcement officers have been working around the clock to find Jayme. Barron County Sheriff Chris Fitzgerald said at the news conference that investigators had received 1,550 tips so far and have closed out 1,250 of them. The only lead authorities have discussed publicly is a vague description of two vehicles that might have been in the area the night Jayme disappeared — a red or orange Dodge Challenger and a black Ford Edge or Acura MDX.

US regulators OK plan for 1st oil, gas production in federal Arctic waters

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The first oil and gas production wells in federal Arctic waters have been approved by U.S. regulators.

The Bureau of Ocean Energy Management on Wednesday announced it issued a conditional permit for the Liberty Project, a proposal by a subsidiary of Houston-based Hilcorp for production wells on an artificial island in the Beaufort Sea.

The approval follows through on President Donald Trump's promise of American energy dominance, said Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke.

"Responsibly developing our resources, in Alaska especially, will allow us to use our energy diplomatically to aid our allies and check our adversaries," he said in the announcement.

Environmental groups oppose Arctic offshore drilling and have expressed concerns about the production record of Hilcorp Alaska LLC. State authorities in 2017 year fined the company $200,000 for violations at another production site.

Kristen Monsell, ocean legal director for the Center for Biological Diversity, said approval of Liberty sets the country down a path of destroying the Arctic.

"An oil spill in the Arctic would be impossible to clean up and the region is already stressed by climate change," she said.

The gravel island would be built in 19 feet of water about 5.6 miles off shore. The site is 15 miles east of Prudhoe Bay, North America's largest oil field.

The base of the gravel island would cover 24 acres of ocean floor, about the size of 18 football fields, with sloped sides leading to a work surface of 9 acres, the size of nearly seven football fields.

To create the island, trucks would travel by ice road to a hole cut in sea ice and deposit 83,000 cubic yards of gravel. A wall would fend off ice, waves and wildlife, such as polar bears.

The surface would have room for 16 wells, including five to eight conventional production wells. At peak production, Hilcorp anticipates extracting 60,000 to 70,000 barrels per day for a total recovery of 80 million to 130 million barrels over 15 to 20 years.

Gillum then called DeSantis a liar, and DeSantis called Gillum corrupt, pointing at Broadway tickets to "Hamilton" that were supplied by an undercover FBI agent investigating corruption at Tallahassee City Hall.

Gillum admitted taking the ticket, but said he received it from his brother and he thought his brother swapped them for concert tickets.

DeSantis at one point angrily responded to moderator Todd McDermott's question about his decision to speak at events organized by someone who has made racially inflammatory comments.

"How the hell am I supposed to know every single statement somebody makes?" DeSantis said, his voice rising. "I am not going to bow down to the altar of political correctness."

Gillum responded, "My grandmother used to say a hit dog will holler, and it hollered through this room."

"I know firsthand that when we start going down that road, it can be very, very deadly," DeSantis said. "It is important that we try to unify."

"We've really seen the collapsing of political discourse," Gillum said.

That's when the discourse between DeSantis and Gillum turned nasty.

Gillum, who is seeking to become the state's first black governor, mentioned that DeSantis said the day after the primary that Florida voters shouldn't "monkey this up" by supporting Gillum. And Gillum added that DeSantis was endorsed by President Donald Trump.

"My opponent ... has run this race very, very close to the Trump handbook, where we call each other names, where we run false advertisements."

he said.

It's not just a win for one or more ticket holders, but for South Carolina as well, Cooper said. The state is set to receive about $70 million stemming from the win.

"It's a big, big win for South Carolina," Cooper said.

Those earnings are likely to increase too, Cooper said, as a climbing Powerball lottery is set to be drawn Wednesday night. The jackpot for Powerball had climbed to $620 million by Wednesday afternoon.

Lottery officials are anticipating higher sales of Powerball tickets following the record drawing on Tuesday.

The stakes could also be a boon for Simpsonville, Mayor Janice Curtis said.

The winner doesn't stand much chance of staying anonymous if he or she is local, Curtis said.

"Everyone knows your business and what they don't know they make up along the way," she said.

Customers, shocked and giddy about the community's sudden notoriety, lined up to buy tickets for the next Mega Millions and for the growing Powerball pot.

The Gulf Coast Sharks girls volleyball team knew they would need a lot to go their way if they were to get past Venice in the 8A Region-3 quarterfinals on Wednesday night at the TeePee.

Though the Sharks had their moments, they were unable to overcome the Indians' offensive barrage as Venice swept Gulf Coast (25-10, 25-11, 25-11) in just under an hour to advance to the regional semifinals.

"They're a good team," Gulf Coast coach Christy Wright said of Venice. "It's the kind of team we struggle the most against, is the team that doesn't make mistakes. What we've typically done all year is play good defense until the other team makes a mistake. Well, when they don't make mistakes, what are you gonna do?"

After losing several hitters to graduation last season and then losing top outside hitter Sydney Lawhon to a head injury in the district finals last week, Gulf Coast lacked the offensive firepower to keep pace with Venice.

The Lady Indians started off with a quick 5-0 run and

While the Sharks strung a few points together, Venice held them at bay with ease on the way to an early 1-0 advantage.

"We're playing our best ball of the year," Venice coach Brian Wheatley said. "It's kind of like going to one of those pinata parties when you were little. You beat on it and beat on it, and all of a sudden the candy breaks out. You just gotta grab what's yours. There's

On to the next one Lady Pirates comfortable from behind, open playoffs with sweep

In practice, the Port Charlotte volleyball team plays scrimmages where they start down 15-0 and have to claw themselves back. More often than not, they do.

Coming off a district finals comeback win over Charlotte after trailing two sets to one, the Lady Pirates (22-6) found themselves in another tight place.

Up a set, Port Charlotte fell down 10-5 in the second as Osceola outside hitter Kalli Cors began to heat up with five kills.

Poised and controlled, Port Charlotte tightened their defense and ended the set on a 20-8 run, taking the set 25-18.

"We don't really panic," senior Laticia Nina said. "We just keep it calm and we always say one point at a time. When we're behind, none of us really freak out, which is the best thing because if we were to freak out, we could automatically lose it. But instead we go out there and fight."

Port Charlotte cruised in the first set, opening on a 10-2 run and holding a steady lead throughout in the 25-16 set win.

Nina and senior Alani Qualls combined for 11 kills and three blocks in the set with Qualls leading the team with 11 total kills.

"It was good, I was happy with the way they played," Port Charlotte coach Kevin Krause said. "I'd prefer not to get into these tough spots, so hopefully we won't put ourselves in that position. They are confident though. We're gonna come out ready to play next week."

Gators look to contain Georgia's Holyfield

By EDGAR THOMPSON
ORLANDO SENTINEL (TNS)

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Evander Holyfield always looked for the knockout blow. The former heavyweight boxing champion's son, Elijah, is no different running the football for Georgia.

The No. 9 Florida Gators (6-1, 4-1 SEC) are ready to go toe to toe with the No. 7 Bulldogs' hard-charging tailback on Saturday at Jacksonville's TIAA Bank Field.

The last man standing will have a leg up in the SEC East race.

Known for bowling over would-be tacklers like his father mowed down would-be contenders, the younger Holyfield will look to land the first punch for the Bulldogs against the Gators' defense.

During a surprising 36-16 loss Oct. 13 at LSU, the 5-foot-11, 215-pound junior made highlight shows nationwide when he steamrolled Tigers' safety John Battle — or "trucked," in football parlance — to pick up an additional five or six yards.

Jackson said the Gators plan to put the brakes on Holyfield, who averages 7.5 yards a carry and leads Georgia with 488 rushing yards.

Holyfield and sidekick D'Andre Swift form a formidable 1-2 punch for an offense that scored at least 38 points in every game prior the LSU loss.

The Bulldogs (6-1, 4-1) were undone by four turnovers in Baton Rouge. Coach Kirby Smart also was second-guessed for abandoning the run game.

Swift finished with 72 yards on 12 carries, while Holyfield 56 yards and a score on just eight carries. Meanwhile, quarterback Jake Fromm attempted 34 passes and had two interceptions and suffered three sacks.

The Bulldogs' running game was expected to take a step back without tailbacks Sony Michel and Nick Chubb and All-SEC lineman Isaiah Wynn.

After two seasons in the background, Holyfield has taken a big step forward to help offset the losses. Holyfield is not unfamiliar to UF, and not just because of his famous father. His 39-yard touchdown run capped the Bulldogs' onslaught during last season's 42-7 rout of the Gators.

But Holyfield expects this year's matchup to go 15 rounds.

Miami's Osweiler faces team that let him go in Texans

By KRISTIE RIEKEN
AP SPORTS WRITER

HOUSTON (AP) — When the Texans host the Miami Dolphins on Thursday night it will be a matchup of Houston's quarterback of the future in Deshaun Watson and one of the many failed quarterbacks of the team's past in Brock Osweiler.

It will be Osweiler's third straight start in place of Ryan Tannehill, who is out with a shoulder injury.

Watson is healthy after dealing with lung and rib injuries and helped the team to its fourth straight win last week after an 0-3 start to leave the Texans in first place in the AFC South.

The Texans traded up to draft Watson with the 12th overall pick in the 2017 draft to take over at the position after trading Osweiler to Cleveland just one difficult season after signing him to a $72 million contract. Osweiler spent last season with the Broncos before joining the Dolphins this year.

Osweiler was supposed to be the answer to Houston's longtime woes at quarterback, but instead ended up being the worst free-agent signing in the franchise's short history. He was benched in December of his first and only season with the Texans when he'd thrown three interceptions before halftime of a game against the Jaguars. Tom Savage started the next two games, but got a concussion early in the second one and the Texans looked to Osweiler again.

He played well to help Houston to a win in the wild-card game over Oakland. But his three interceptions doomed the Texans in a 34-16 loss to New England in the next round and he was sent packing a couple of months after that.

Osweiler, who is 1-1 as a starter this season, knows everyone will be talking about his time in Houston this week, but insists he isn't worried about it.

"There's going to be a lot of outside noise trying to make a situation bigger than what it really is; but at the end of the day ... my one season I had in Houston, I look at it as a successful season," he said. "We won our division and we won a playoff game."

He said he hasn't spoken to Houston coach Bill O'Brien since the trade, but that he has "great respect" for him and the Texans.

"There's no hard feelings," Osweiler said. "There's no ill-will ... (I'm) focused just on playing a good football game Thursday and doing whatever this football team needs me to do to help them get a win."

Los Angeles Dodgers' David Freese can't catch a foul ball hit by Boston Red Sox's J.D. Martinez during the second inning of Game 2 of the World Series baseball game Wednesday.

Price pitches Red Sox past Dodgers 4-2 for 2-0 Series lead

By JIMMY GOLEN
AP SPORTS WRITER

BOSTON (AP) — From playoff flop to World Series ace in one legacy-changing October, David Price earned his second postseason victory in a row Wednesday night and delivered the Boston Red Sox their second straight World Series win.

The Red Sox left-hander pitched six innings of three-hit ball, and major league RBI leader J.D. Martinez broke a fifth-inning tie with a two-run single during another two-out rally to lead Boston to a 4-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers and a 2-0 lead in the World Series.

Game 3 is Friday in Los Angeles. The Dodgers need a win to avoid an 0-3 deficit that no World Series team has ever recovered from.

The Red Sox have won 14 of their last 16 World Series games, dating to a four-game sweep of the St. Louis Cardinals in 2004.

Not bad for a team that went 86 years without a championship before then.

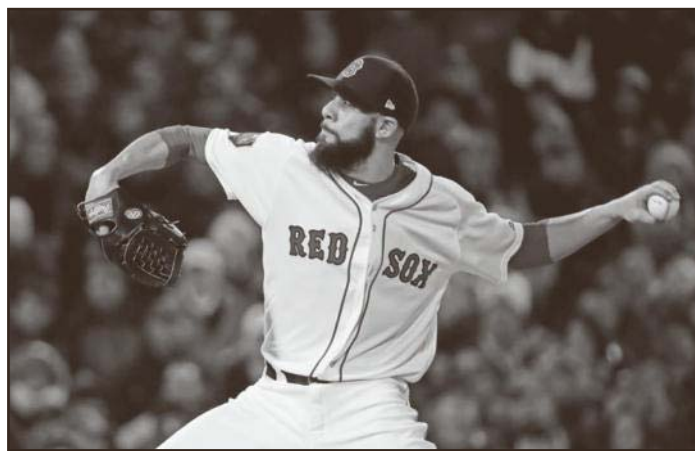

And Price had battled a curse of his own.

Price had been 0-9 in his first 10 postseason starts and his team had never won a playoff game he started before this year. Boston has now won his last three starts, including the ALCS Game 5 clincher against the defending champion Astros in which he pitched six shutout innings.

So what changed for Price, who said he found something while warming up in the bullpen late in Game 4 at Houston?

"I have," he said. "I take a lot of pride in being able to evolve from pitch to pitch or day to day or game to game. Being able to make adjustments on the fly, it's paid off."

On a frigid night at Fenway Park, Price held the highest-scoring team in the NL hitless through three innings and retired the last seven batters he faced. He struggled only in the fourth, loading the bases with nobody out on two singles and a walk, to give the Dodgers a 2-1 lead — their first of the Series.

Boston Red Sox's starting pitcher David Price winds up to throw during the first inning of Game 2 of the World Series baseball against the Los Angeles Dodgers game Wednesday.

But the 108-win Red Sox pulled ahead, and once again they waited until there were two outs to do it.

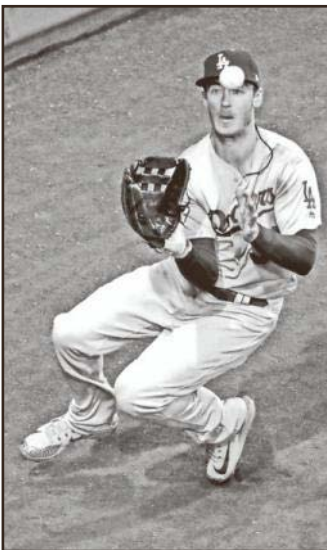

In an uncanny stretch of clutch hitting that has been their hallmark throughout the season, the Red Sox scored all four of their runs in Game 2 with two outs, including a three-run rally in the fifth that only started after Hyun-Jin Ryu set down Ian Kinsler and Jackie Bradley Jr.

Christian Vazquez singled, Mookie Betts did the same and Andrew Benintendi worked the count full before walking to load the bases, chasing Ryu. Ryan Madson walked Steve Pearce to tie the game before Martinez, who had 130 RBIs in the regular season, dropped a soft line drive in front of right fielder Yasiel Puig to score two more and give Boston a 4-2 lead. Price and three relievers retired the last 16 Los Angeles batters, with Craig Kimbrel closing the Dodgers down in a perfect ninth for his sixth save this postseason.

Boston's other run came on Kinsler's two-out single in the second. The Red Sox, who led the majors in two-out runs in the regular season, have scored 36 of their 68 runs this postseason — and nine of their 12 in the Series — with two outs.

And now it's the Dodgers in a hole.

The last 10 teams to win the first two games of the World Series — and 16 of the last 17 — have gone on to win it all. And the NL West champions will need to do it against a team that has won

GREAT CATCH

UP NEXT

The teams head to the West Coast for Game 3 at Dodger Stadium on Friday. Rookie right-hander Walker Buehler is scheduled to pitch for Los Angeles against likely Boston starter Rick Porcello.

Rays' Snell skewed Red Sox's numbers

By MARC TOPKIN
TAMPA BAY TIMES

BOSTON — The Red Sox looked all right in the opening game of the World Series against Dodgers lefty Clayton Kershaw scoring five runs on seven hits over his four plus innings.

The rap on them, though — if there is one for a team that led the majors in runs and most other offensive categories — is their dropoff in production against left-handers, about 100 points less of OPS, .817 to .719.

Whether Cora was taking a swipe at Kershaw, or simply giving credit, he had a point.

In a season the Rays believe worthy of a Cy Young award, including over Boston's Chris Sale, Snell dominated the Red Sox, going 3-0, 1.08 in four starts, allowing only three runs in 25 innings.

Price check

Former Rays ace LHP David Price takes the mound for Boston in Game 2 on Wednesday having shed the burden of being winless as a starter in the postseason and having regained the effectiveness with his changeup during his star turn in the ALCS.

Asked about the changeup in Tuesday's media session, Price made sure to give credit where deserved — to former Rays teammate James Shields.

"Just being with him early on in my career ... just being able to work on it every day with him," Price said. "One of the guys that had one of the best changeups in all of baseball, to work with me on it every single day, that was huge." Thanks, but ...

Dodgers manager Dave Roberts, as expected, got a warm reception from the Fenway faithful in acknowledgment of the role he played by stealing a base to spark the Sox comeback to win the 2004 ALCS, and eventually the World Series. But when the Sox trot out members of the 2004 curse-busting team to throw out the ceremonial first pitches before Game 2 Wednesday, Roberts will stay loyal to his current team. "I'm going to be getting ready for a game," he said. "So I'll have fun with those guys but, yeah, I won't be a part of it."

Charlotte rolls past Largo, earns fourth showdown with Port Charlotte

By DONNIE WILKIE
SUN CORRESPONDENT

LARGO – Best of four, anyone?

Charlotte High's girls got their wish Wednesday night, requiring barely an hour to steamroll Largo 25-11, 25-20, 25-13 in the Class 7A-Region 3 volleyball quarterfinals – and setting up a winner-take-all fourth showdown with Port Charlotte next Tuesday.

"Tonight was about winning and moving on," said stay-focused Tarpons coach Michelle Dill.

Charlotte (24-5) took advantage of eight hitting errors in the first set, and the combination of seniors Shelby Beisner and Kaitlyn Chavarria was too much for the nervous Packers (16-9), who had won 11 of 12 matches after a 7-5 start.

The victory matched a single-season high for the Tarpons under Dill and, most importantly, gave them one last crack at their Peace River rivals – just as impressive in a 25-16, 25-18, 25-20 sweep of Osceola – in the 7A-3 semifinals. The Pirates rallied from two sets down in last Thursday's two-hour marathon, winning 15-13 in the fifth to secure the district title and home-court advantage for Chapter 4.

"I think a good amount of (Wednesday) was getting another shot at Port Charlotte," Beisner said. "We're evenly matched with them, and that fifth set last week was a coin toss."

"Tonight was just a matter of working our way back up to (Port Charlotte)."

The Tarpons had won 15 straight before the district final, and have dropped only five sets in their 24 victories this season. But Port Charlotte (22-6) has prevailed in two of the rivals' three meetings.

Beisner (15 kills, 18 digs, five aces) called the latest setback "eye-opening," and seemed determined to make quick work of Largo. Her putaway from the back row sparked an 11-2 run that gave Charlotte an 18-7 lead in the first set.

The 5-foot-9 outside hitter and Florida Gulf Coast commit flashed her versatility with three more kills in the final five points – a smash that made it 21-8, a winner that glanced off the top of the net and a softly placed winner that pushed the lead to 24-9.

Chavarria (six kills, five blocks) put the finishing touches on the second set with a pair of vicious blocks, after Kelsey Nolan's back-to-back aces and two kills from fellow senior Skylar Gribben had allowed the Tarpons to maintain a 12-10 advantage early.

"It feels good to have another shot at Port Charlotte," Chavarria said. "I think when we had them down two sets, we figured we had already won and we kinda went with the flow. When we lost, it just reminded us that we have to keep pushing."

"It was nerve-wracking."

The 105-mile trip to Largo – 86 points shorter in duration – wasn't, even after Charlotte spotted the Packers a 4-0 lead to start the third set. The Tarpons scored 19 of the next 24 points to take command, then closed the show with sophomore Ashleigh Miller's tap, junior Eva Le's ace and another Beisner back-row kill down the stretch.

Now it's on to Port Charlotte.

"The biggest thing is going to be composure on the court, not letting anyone get in our heads," Dill said, looking ahead to next week. "Keeping our game face, coming out strong and staying strong throughout the entire match."

Charlotte diver Akins qualifies for regionals

By CHUCK BALLARO
SUN CORRESPONDENT

PUNTA GORDA — Though she said she can do better, Charlotte High School diver Lindsey Akins did just enough to qualify for Regionals Wednesday, at the Class 3A-9 Diving Championships at the South County Regional Pool.

Akins unofficial score of 281.4 just made it over the 280-point threshold necessary to qualify for regionals. The scores are not official until after the swimming meet Thursday.

"I thought I did better than I expected. I definitely had a few slip-ups, but I recovered," Akins said. "I started with an easier dive then go to a more difficult dive and alternate, doing a difficult dive toward the end before an easy one to finish to end it well."

Only the top two finishers in each District gain automatic berths to regionals. From there, the top scoring 18 divers gain at-large bids to compete next Saturday at the FGCU pool in Estero, provided they score at least 280.

That was no problem for Gulf Coast's Olivia Ricard, whose 449.6 score lapped the field and came close to breaking the pool record she set last year. Alex Igelesias of Fort Myers was second with 336.15 and Emma Sekula of Riverdale was third with 303.80.

"I could always improve on my optional dives, the more difficult ones, but the easier ones I did well on. I have a lot to work on," Ricard said. "I get nervous every meet, whether it's a smaller one or something like this."

For the boys, it was much rougher going, with only two of the six divers getting the score required to qualify.

Brandon Shephard of South Fort Myers won with a 372.95 score, with Sam Drew of Barron Collier finishing second with 285.5 points, making them the only ones to qualify.

Charlotte's lone diver, freshman Gage McCauley, finished fourth, but his score of 244.60 left him on the outside looking in for regionals.

"I did pretty good. I could have done a little better and definitely need to fix things for next year, add a little more difficulty," McCauley said. "I had some high-scoring dives and some low-scoring ones."

Charlotte diving coach Patti Oaks, said it was a good learning experience for McCauley, while the increased difficulty proved the difference for Akins.

"Gage has to get over his fear factor. He's a trampolinist so he needs to learn to dive in head first, but he has time to work on that," Oaks said. "Lindsey maybe didn't do as well as she could have, but we're proud of what she's done."

Know the Foe: Venice football at Palmetto

By VINNIE PORTELL
SPORTS EDITOR

Though it will still be the regular season when the Venice football team travels to play Palmetto this Friday, the playoffs have already started as far as the Indians are concerned.

Entering the penultimate week of the high school football regular season, Venice (7-1, 4-0) can wrap up the 7A District-11 championship with a win over the Tigers.

"I told the team, 'We're starting the playoffs now. Every game from here on out is a playoff game for us,'" Venice coach John Peacock said. "It has a lot of implications on what we're doing going forward."

However, while the Indians have yet to lose a district game in 2018, a loss to Palmetto (6-2, 3-1) would create a three-way tie atop the district standings between the Indians, Tigers and the Braden River Pirates (6-2, 3-1).

If that were to occur, the tie would be broken based off each team's season-long point totals, determined by the FHSAA.

But all of that can be avoided if Venice defeats Palmetto, a team which the Indians have beaten six times in a row since 2012.

Following a string of four seasons near .500, Palmetto turned the corner last season, finishing 10-5 and making it into the second round of the playoffs.

Led by a dynamic offense, the Tigers have scored the most points in 7A District-11 this season, averaging 44.75 points per contest.

Like many dangerous offensive units, it all starts at quarterback for Palmetto.

Senior Anthony Marino presents problems for opposing defenses. A dual-threat quarterback who has rushed for 11 touchdowns this year, Marino also has several weapons at receiver and running back at his disposal.

"He's a dual threat guy with a lot of grit," Peacock said of Marino. "He has a lot of passion for the game. He reminds me a lot of Bryce (Carpenter) with his throwing and running and just being a winner.

"They have receivers from A to Z. They really have some guys who can run. They've got two and three good running backs, too. We'll have our hands full."

The Indians have never won their district for three consecutive seasons — something that will be in reach against Palmetto. "It would be a huge accomplishment," Peacock said of winning the district three years in a row. "We talked about that (Monday) with the kids. There hasn't been a class that's ever done that, so it would be huge. We don't lose sight of that, because those things are certainly hard to come by."

ACC players balance football, married life

PITTSBURGH — The question arises regularly, usually after a Pittsburgh home game. And even though Dennis Briggs' teammates know the answer that's coming from the senior defensive back they jokingly and reverentially call "old man," they ask anyway because respect must be paid.

So when Briggs turns down their invitation to go out and either celebrate or commiserate, they don't complain.

"I have responsibilities," Briggs said. "They understand that. They don't give me a hard time about it."

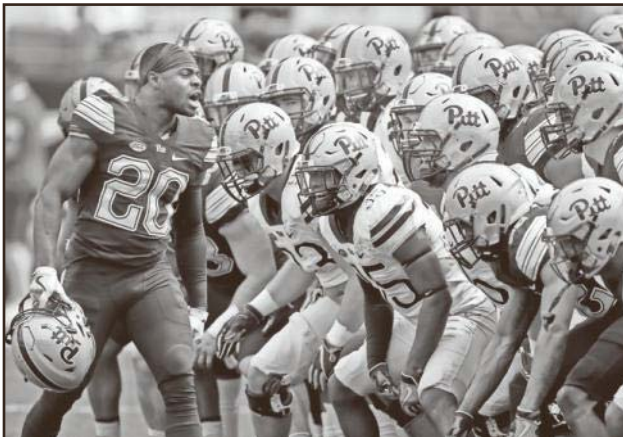

It's not that Briggs doesn't enjoy hanging out. He does. It's just that time is precious for players like Briggs, who is among a small fraternity in the Atlantic Coast Conference attempting to navigate the push-pull of academics, big-time college football and wedded bliss.

If anything, those few hours after home games might be only time all week during the fall Briggs and wife Loren have a chance to decompress together without school, work or football getting in the way. So while many of the Panthers go out and do what college kids do on the weekend, Briggs typically heads home to the small one-bedroom off-campus apartment he and his wife share and exhales.

One that the NCAA played a small role in. The organization's decision in 2015 to allow schools to provide "cost of attendance" payouts to players gave Briggs and Syracuse offensive tackle Koda Martin — who is married to Orange head coach Dino Babers' daughter Jazzmin — peace of mind before popping the question.

"My wife graduated before me and was getting a job as a teacher, but I didn't want her to be dealing with the pressure of pulling the weight for me and her," said Martin, who transferred to Syracuse after graduating from Texas A&M, where he met Jazzmin, a volleyball player. "Thankfully, with my scholarship check and the cost of attendance check that had been added around the time we got married, it was a big difference-maker. It definitely comforted me and made me feel like I was really going to be financially stable and that it was feasible to be able to get married and have the stability that we needed, not have to stress too much about money."

The ties that bind Martin and the Orange are complex.

The 23-year-old's father Kirk — a longtime high school coach in Texas — is now the quarterbacks coach at Syracuse. Oh, and then there's the whole "father-in-law" as head coach thing. It can be a tricky line to walk at times.

Babers insisted there was no nepotism involved when he announced Martin — who married Jazzmin in the summer of 2017 and currently lives in the basement of Babers' house — as a starter. Martin's play has backed it up for the surprising Orange (5-2), winning over the respect of his new teammates in the process.

"I'm not even close to thinking about marriage, but I hope he feels like he's comfortable with playing under his father-in-law," Orange defensive end Kendall Coleman said.

"Coming into a team that he really didn't know too much about, to come in here and immediately be an impact player for us is impressive."

The opportunity to be part of the renaissance Babers is trying to orchestrate at Syracuse is one of the reasons Martin wanted to join the Orange. Yet being married has helped provided him with perspective. The game can be all-consuming at times. Going home to his wife — even with his head coach living upstairs — gives him a reality check of sorts.

"I love football," Martin said. "It's a huge part of my life. I was raised in it. It's kind of hard to imagine my life without football, but at the same time it's not the end-all, be-all. My priorities are family, education and football. My faith gives me a lot of peace and comfort when things aren't going my way."

SEC championship contenders face reality

By JOHN ZENOR
AP SPORTS WRITER

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Now, the Southeastern Conference is getting down to the nitty gritty.

Starting with the World's Largest Outdoor Cocktail Party this weekend, the division title contenders will be meeting over the next two weeks to sort things out.

No. 7 Georgia and No. 9 Florida get the big stretch going Saturday in Jacksonville, Florida. Then, the Bulldogs and No. 12 Kentucky tangle to further settle what's now a three-way logjam in the SEC East.

And the SEC West's two top-5 teams, No. 4 LSU and No. 1 Alabama, face off in Baton Rouge to start off November after both have an open date this weekend.

At Alabama, the lone unbeaten team, coach Nick Saban knows how hard it is to stay that way down the stretch. He pointed out to his players that the Tide has now started 8-0 eight times since his arrival, and 2014 was the only undefeated team.

No. 16 Texas A&M (5-2, 3-1) is still in the West running, too, despite an early loss to Alabama.

It's a harder road for some division contenders than others.

Georgia (6-1, 4-1) faces back to back games against the two East teams who have matched the Bulldogs' record.

The Bulldogs have had an extra week to regroup from a 36-16 loss to LSU that might have served as a wakeup call for the challenges ahead.

Dan Mullen's Gators, the only team to beat LSU, have an earlier loss to Kentucky that could prove costly in the head-to-head competition depending on how the coming weeks play out. Florida lost last year's meeting with Georgia 42-7.

"I mean, rivalry games, you love winning because it's bragging rights for that year," Mullen said. "That's what makes rivalry games so much fun for the players and especially for all the fan bases. So, I understand that aspect of it being a big game, but is one game going to define our season or our program? Probably not, but it's still a lot of fun to go play in it."

While the Gators and Bulldogs are on the field, LSU (7-1, 4-1) and Alabama (8-0, 5-0) will sit and wait for their own big divisional showdown.

The Tide has won the last seven meetings, but the Tigers feel confident things could be different this time against the defending national champions.

"This is a team that believes it can win and we can be on the field with Alabama," LSU defensive back Kristian Fulton said. "That's the biggest difference this year."

LSU is the only remaining Alabama opponent currently in the Top 25, though Mississippi State and Auburn both had been ranked for much of the season. Auburn knocked the Tide out of SEC contention last season though 'Bama still made it into the playoffs and won a fifth national title under Saban.

"It's all about how you finish," Saban said.

Armour poised for title defense

By DAVID BRANDT

JACKSON, Miss. — Ryan Armour's attempt at winning back-to-back Sanderson Farms Championships will involve fighting fatigue as much as what the golf course throws his way.

The 42-year-old will start his title defense at the Country Club of Jackson on Thursday just two days after flying back from South Korea, where he finished 29th at the CJ Cup at Nine Bridges.

Armour's Sanderson Farms victory last year was his first PGA Tour win, and he used it as a springboard for a late-career revival. He finished last season with nine top-25 finishes and three top 10s, including a second-place finish at the Quicken Loans National. He finished 49th in last year's FedExCup standings.

Armour's off to a solid start this year, making the cut in both Malaysia and South Korea before returning to the United States. He said getting back on the course in Jackson brought back plenty of good memories. He won by five shots over Chesson Hadley last year.

Now if he can shake the cobwebs from the international travel, he should be in the mix. It won't be easy.

Armour said he landed in Jackson on Tuesday evening, ate dinner and then went to bed around 9:30 p.m. About three hours later, he was wide awake. By 3 a.m., he had gone to the gym and ran six miles before getting to the course and playing in a pro-am in the morning.

By noon on Wednesday, the travel was catching up with him.

But Armour isn't complaining too much about the travel. He's one of several Sanderson Farms winners who have taken full advantage of the two-year winner's exemption, which allows Armour automatic entry into many PGA Tour events through 2020.

Sanderson Farms offers a winning opportunity for some of the tour's little-known players. The tournament is played at the same time as the World Golf Championship in China, which includes almost all of the top players like Justin Rose, Brooks Koepka and Dustin Johnson.

There are nine previous Sanderson Farms winners in this year's field in Jackson, including Armour, Cody Gribble, Peter Malnati, Nick Taylor, Scott Stallings, Chris Kirk, Bill Haas, Chad Campbell and DJ. Trahan.

Hit on Browns QB Mayfield expected to draw fine

By TOM WITHERS
AP SPORTS WRITER

CLEVELAND — Baker Mayfield's head snapped back violently from a nasty hit that seemed illegal and unnecessary.

The officials on the field didn't think so. The NFL feels otherwise.

Tampa Bay safety Jordan Whitehead is expected to be fined for his helmet-to-helmet hit on Mayfield, a person familiar with league discipline told the Associated Press.

Whitehead struck Mayfield in the fourth quarter of the Buccaneers' 26-23 overtime win Sunday, as Mayfield was starting to slide at the end of a 35-yard scramble. Whitehead should be flagged for unnecessary roughness or unsportsmanlike conduct, said the person who spoke Wednesday on condition of anonymity because the league has not commented on calls from last week's games.

Fines are typically announced on Friday.

After the play, Mayfield popped to his feet and jawed at Whitehead, saying later he wanted to "let the guy know he's gonna have to hit me a lot harder than that if he wants to affect me."

The play was initially flagged, but officials conferred and decided not to penalize Whitehead. First-year referee Shawn Hochuli added confusion by announcing to the crowd: "The quarterback is still a runner and therefore is allowed to be hit in the head. He had not yet begun his slide. There is therefore no foul."

The league implemented a "helmet" rule that prohibits players from lowering their heads to deliver a blow, and there has been a greater emphasis placed on protecting quarterbacks.

Following the game, Mayfield said he felt the play should have been flagged.

"There's a lot of stuff being put on protecting the quarterback, doesn't seem like the Browns are getting a lot of calls but they can review it and they can say I was a runner but I started my slide, that's helmet-to-helmet contact. I felt it."

On Monday, Browns coach Hue Jackson the non-call was "disappointing."

It's the most recent questionable call to go against the Browns, who had a potential defensive touchdown against Oakland on Sept. 30 nullified by a quick whistle — a play the league later acknowledged was called incorrectly.

Last week, defensive end Myles Garrett risked a fine by saying he was tired of the Browns not getting calls.

"Do your job just like we need to do our job," Garrett said. "If it's holding, call holding. If it's a false start, false start, whether it's us or them. ... If I get fined, so be it. Something needs to be said. If it keeps on going this way, this route, where it seems like we keep on getting the short stick."

Jaguars insist London is financial windfall, not future home

By MARK LONG
AP SPORTS WRITER

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — The Jacksonville Jaguars want to be London's team, at least on a part-time basis.

Playing an annual home game across the pond is imperative to the long-term viability of the franchise in Jacksonville. It boosts local revenue. It increases sponsorships. It masks some of the financial challenges associated with being in one of the league's smallest markets.

It's what the Jaguars (3-4) have done each of the last five years and what they will do for the sixth consecutive season Sunday against defending Super Bowl champion Philadelphia (3-4). It's also a game they hope to keep on the schedule well into the future.

It has nothing to do with the advantage Jacksonville believes it has against opponents unaccustomed to making the lengthy trip that tends to screw with internal body clocks. It's about the all-important bottom line.

"We're going to do everything we possibly can to make sure we don't lose London as a key contributor to what we're doing here in Jacksonville," Jaguars team president Mark Lamping said last week.

Owner Shad Khan tried to strengthen the franchise's foothold in London by bidding $790 million (£600 million) on Wembley Stadium in April. He withdrew his offer for the English Football Association's main asset last week after recognizing the extent of opposition to the sale.

Khan and the Jaguars insist the move was never intended to create a potential relocation spot for the NFL team but rather a way to gain more control over American football in the burgeoning British market. It also would have funneled more money back to Jacksonville.

"Owning Wembley was never the silver bullet to financial stability for the Jaguars," Lamping said. "It was one plank in a very long bridge that we're trying to build, so we have to find a replacement plank."

Nina, and it was visible.

After the two teams battled and were even at 6-6, Port Charlotte surged to a 21-11 lead with the clinching points right in front of them.

Qualls and sophomore Azyah Daily had shut down the net with three blocks a piece and the Lady Pirates were on the verge of a dominant close-out set.

But Osceola had one last flurry.

The Lady Warriors got key kills, mixed with Port Charlotte errors, as they went on an 8-0 run to bring the game within three points.

"Honestly, not gonna lie, I feel like we just got a bit sloppy," Nina said. "We were already looking to finish it and we forgot that we needed to play each point at a time. We weren't taking it as seriously as we should have."

Regrouping after a late timeout, the Lady Pirates closed out the set 25-20 and have now set up a fourth meeting with the Lady Tarpons, who swept Largo on Wednesday.

They did so getting production across the floor. Nina matched Qualls with 11 kills, Dailey had six with four blocks and Kiersten Tisdale added five kills.

no thinking, you just grab it, and that's what we did tonight."

By the time the second set came around, the Indians had found their groove.

While the Sharks erupted with joy at scoring the first two points of the set, Venice would soon take control. With hitters Sena Szczepaniuk (14 kills), Sadie Kluner (9 kills) and Aja Jones (13 kills) wreaking havoc at the net, the Sharks struggled to even get a hand on some shots, let alone return them.

Even miscues by Venice ended up working out in the Indians' favor as Gulf Coast found the match slipping out of reach.

"They have a solid program with a bunch of seniors," Wright said.

"They're big and we're tiny, so it's like, 'Hey, we're just gonna come in here and play hard.' That's what I told my girls. We're not scared, but there's only so much you can do when they're a lot bigger than us."

In the third and final set, Gulf Coast hung around for the first handful of points until the Indians pulled away once again. With Jones firing off nearly impossible spikes at the net, all the Sharks could do was spend most of the set diving around the floor.

With another sweep, the Indians have yet to drop a single set in the playoffs this year and has Wheatley feeling good about his team going forward into the "Sweet 16" of the playoffs on Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the TeePee.

"We've had a really tough schedule this year, which I think prepares us just for this. Records don't mean anything. It's just a matter of taking one step at a time. We'll see who we get on Tuesday."

former teammates don't have very fond memories of his time in Houston.

"He's not here anymore, so I don't really care for him," defensive end Jadeveon Clowney said. "We didn't win a lot with him. Trying to go against him now. Try to get after him this week up front make him rattled in the pocket, hope he'll throw a couple of interceptions."

While the Texans were certainly disappointed that Osweiler didn't work out after he signed that huge contract, they're happy with how things worked out considering that his failure led to them drafting Watson.

The 23-year-old Watson said he didn't know a lot about the revolving door the team had at quarterback in the years before he was drafted. But he does understand how excited fans are to have him and about his potential to be the franchise quarterback this team has long searched for.

"It's been awesome just to feel that love and just have people consider me as a franchise quarterback and they want me here," he said. "So, I've just got to continue to focus on what I can do to help this team win."

Some things to know about the Dolphins-Texans game.

Early arrival

The Dolphins flew to Houston on Tuesday, a day earlier than usual. Coach Adam Gase decided to tweak the schedule because in the Dolphins' two most recent Thursday night appearances, they lost at Cincinnati 22-7 in 2016 and at Baltimore 40-0 last year.

Gase conceded he's still trying to figure out the best way to prepare on a short week.

"I'm the wrong guy to ask on that, considering that I think we've scored seven points and given up 60-something," he said. "We're trying something new this year."

Miller's Miami ties

Houston running back Lamar Miller was born and raised in Miami, went to college at Miami, was drafted by the Dolphins in 2012 and spent his first four seasons there before signing with the Texans before the 2016 season.

Miller, who had his first 100-yard rushing game since 2016 last week, said he's trying to approach Thursday as any other game, but admitted it might mean a little bit more because of his history.

"Of course, I want to do good because I played there and I'm from there," he said. "So, I'm going to try and do whatever I can to put us in the best spot to win this game."

Key matchup

Miami cornerback Xavien Howard is likely to spend a lot of time covering DeAndre Hopkins, who is tied for third in the NFL with 707 yards receiving on 47 catches.

"I see he likes to push off a lot," Howard said. "He likes to get physical. That's going to be part of his game."

Howard said that's fine with him.

"Oh, yeah. I'm a physical corner," he said. Howard is tied for the league lead with three interceptions.

3 college basketball recruiting insiders convicted in NYC

NEW YORK — An Adidas executive and two other insiders from the high-stakes world of college basketball recruiting were convicted Wednesday in a corruption case that prosecutors said exposed the underbelly of the sport.

A federal jury in Manhattan found former Adidas executive James Gatto, business manager Christian Dawkins and amateur league director Merl Code guilty of fraud charges.

The trial centered on whether the men's admitted efforts to channel secret payments to the families of top recruits luring them to major basketball programs sponsored by Adidas was criminal. At stake was a fortune in revenue for the basketball programs and potential endorsement deals for the players if they went pro.

Evidence included text messages between the defendants and coaches from top-tier coaches like Bill Self of Kansas and Rick Pitino of Louisville and testimony from the father of prized recruit Brian Bowen Jr. describing how a Louisville assistant handed him an envelope stuffed with cash.

Prosecutors claimed the schools were in the dark about the payment schemes, including $100,000 promised to Bowen's family, that are outlawed by the NCAA. They accused the defendants of defrauding universities by tricking them into passing out scholarships to players who should have been ineligible.

In closing arguments, prosecutor Noah Solowiejczyk recounted testimony from co-operators and wiretap evidence about how the defendants took steps to create false invoices to Adidas, route funds through various bank accounts and convert it to cash for the families.

The behavior "tells you an awful lot about the defendants," the prosecutor said. "It tells you that what they were doing was wrong."

The defendants didn't deny they sought to make the payments. But they argued that was how the recruitment game was played by Adidas, Nike and other sportswear companies — and that talent-hungry coaching staffs knew it.

A lawyer for defendant Dawkins, who was instrumental in steering Bowen to Louisville, claimed his client thought he was helping the program succeed to the benefit of everyone involved.

"What proof did the government present that Louisville suffered any harm?" attorney Steven Haney said in closing arguments. In Dawkins' mind, "he thought what he was doing was OK."

Defense attorneys sought to convince the jury the text messages and phone records showing Self and Patinto were in touch with the recruitment middlemen aligned with Adidas proved they had to be aware of the payments. They said further proof the schools weren't blind to the schemes was testimony by Brian Bowen Sr. claiming he received $1,300 from Louisville assistant Kenny Johnson and other testimony by a cooperator, former Adidas consultant, Thomas "T.J." Gassnola, that he delivered $40,000 to North Carolina State assistant coach Orlando Early intended for the family of highly-touted point guard Dennis Smith Jr.

In the texts last year, Gassnola told Self he was in the touch with the guardian of player Silvio De Sousa, who prosecutors say was among recruits whose families were offered secret payments.

Self responded: "We good," according to an exhibit of the communication.

Gassnola said: "Always. That was light work."

Another exhibit showed how Dawkins texted Pitino as Bowen was nearing a decision about where he would play, asking, "Would you have any interest in Brian Bowen or are you done with recruiting?"

Pitino responded: "We would love to have him."

The exhibit showed Gatto also reached out to Pitino by text asking if they could speak on the phone, and records show there was a conversation afterward.

But there were no communications in which the coaches mentioned money. The coaches and the schools have either denied any wrongdoing or not commented on the case.

Self remains at Kansas, where De Sousa is still on the team. Kansas announced this week De Sousa is being held off the court until information that came out of the trial was reviewed. But at Louisville, the scandal resulted in the firing of Pitino and forced Bowen to leave the university and pursue a professional career.

The trial's most emotional moment came when a prosecutor first began questioning the elder Bowen about his son, who goes by the nickname "Tugs."

"Is Tugs in college?" asked prosecutor Edward Diskant.

"No, he's not," Bowen responded.

SUN PREPS

ATHLETES OF THE WEEK

LATICIA NINA
 Port Charlotte Outside Hitter

This week's Sun Preps Female Athlete of the Week is Port Charlotte volleyball's Laticia Nina. Only a sophomore, Nina has an aggressive nature that can change a match simply by adding her to the floor.

"(Nina) brings a lot of ball control and an explosive-ness," Port Charlotte coach Kevin Krause said. "She's an awesome passer and good all around."
 She's been a key component of the Lady Pirates' championship run in District 6A-10. She recorded 16 kills in Port Charlotte's 3-2 comeback win over cross-town rival Charlotte.
 The Lady Pirates went down 0-2, but won three straight sets to win the title.
 Nina was the Sun Sports Volleyball Player of the Year last year and is on her way to another standout season.

MARC KANEKO-FUJII
 Port Charlotte Golfer

This Week's Sun Preps Male Athlete of the Week is Port Charlotte Golfer Marc Kaneko-Fujii after a strong opening to the postseason. Kaneko-Fujii was a medalist, shooting a 70 at the 2A-19 district match. The Pirates won their fifth consecutive district title and took home a second-place finish at the regional match. Kaneko-Fujii shot a 74 in the regional match.
 "Marc is a solid, consistent golfer for our team but maybe more importantly, he is a true team player," Port Charlotte coach Rodney Taylor said. "We can always count on Mark to post a solid score. He is a leader for us and helps to elevate everyone's game by his example and positivity on and off the course."
 Kaneko-Fujii and the Pirates now head to the state match with hopes of capping the season on a high note.

Better than Par Vision

"After all these years, my vision is still fantastic, thanks to Dr. Frantz and his team at Frantz EyeCare."

- 1 — Name of the stock.
 - 2 — Ticker Symbol company trades under.
 - 3 — Dividend: A distribution of the company's earnings to shareholders, usually consisting of stock dividends, interest on bonds, or short-term capital gains on the sale of securities usually paid quarterly in the form of cash or stock.
 - 4 — Div. Yield: The dividend divided by the stock price. It helps gauge how well the stock is paying, compared to other investments such as CDs, bonds or savings accounts.
 - 5 — Price to earnings ratio: The price of a stock divided by its earnings per share. PEs are used to gauge the relative worth of a company's stock. When compared to other companies in the same industry, the companies with the lowest PEs are generally earning higher profits.
 - 6 — Range of closing prices in last year.
 - 7 — Sales in thousands (10 = 10,000 shares), and closing price.
 - 8 — Last trading price of the day.
 - 9 — Percent change for the year.
- ▲ Arrows, indicate new highs or lows.
 Underline: indicates top 100 stocks by volume rank.
 Bold stocks, designates which stocks have gone up or down 5%.

How to Read the Mutual Fund Tables

Here are the 4,300 biggest mutual funds listed on Nasdaq. Tables show the fund name, sell price or net asset value (NAV), daily net change and weekly net change. Underlining highlights the funds ranked in the top 20% in each of the last 5 years:

Name: Name of mutual fund and family. Obj: The fund's objective group. Abbreviations listed below. NAV: Net asset value. Chg: Net change in price of NAV from previous day. Rtn: The fund's total return, or percent change in NAV for the time period shown, with dividends reinvested. If period longer than 1 year, return is annualized. Rank: Fund's letter grade compared with others in the same objective group; an A indicates fund performed in the top 20 percent; an E, in the bottom 20 percent. Footnotes: e - Ex capital gains distribution. f - Previous day's quotation. n - No front end load or contingent deferred sales load may apply. p - Fund assets are used to pay for distribution costs - 12(b)(1) plan. r - Redemption fee or contingent deferred sales load may apply. s - Stock dividend or split. t - Both p and r. x - Ex cash dividend d.
