Remembering George H.W. Bush

Local groups haven't met on memorials

SEBRING — The late George H.W. Bush caught most of his local affiliates between meetings.

The late 41st President of the United States died Friday at age 94 at his Texas home. The Highlands County Republican Party, the Military Officers Association of America (MOAA), the Veterans Service Council and the Sea Services Museum Board still have not had meetings this month, but will meet in the next two weeks to decide how best to remember him.

Kathy Rapp, chair of Highlands County Republican Party, said its board will meet on Tuesday night.

Freddie Carino, U.S. Navy veteran, said MOAA will meet at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Sea Services Museum on Kenilworth Boulevard. The Museum Board, he said, will meet at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 12, also at the museum.

For now, the museum has flags at half-staff, as they are at all public buildings, parks, banks and private flag poles.

President Donald Trump directed flags to fly at half-mast to honor President George H.W. Bush for 30 days. Gov. Rick Scott subsequently ordered flags in Florida to be flown at half-staff until sunset Monday, Dec. 31 at all local and state buildings, installations and grounds statewide.

President Trump has designated Wednesday as a national day of mourning and was invited to attend the late president's funeral.

Bush, who died Friday, Nov. 30, 2018, was one of two presidents inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame.

The Veterans Services Council won't meet again until two weeks from now, Tuesday, Dec. 18, said Highlands County Veterans Services Officer Denise Williams. She also said no veterans organizations have contacted her yet to say what remembrances they will have, but she feels confident they will call.

"(Bush) really served our country well," Williams said. "He served our country on the forefront."

Born in Milton, Massachusetts, on June 12, 1924, Bush became a student leader at Phillips Academy in Andover, and enlisted in the armed forces on his 18th birthday.

The youngest pilot in the U.S. Navy when he received his wings, he flew 58 combat missions during World War II. On one mission over the Pacific as a torpedo bomber pilot, he was shot down by Japanese anti-aircraft fire and was rescued from the water by a U.S. submarine.

He received the Distinguished Flying Cross for bravery in action.

"Not only was he an incredible president, he also was a veteran who understood what it meant to serve his country," Williams said. "He has 'walked the walk' that the combat veteran has walked."

Ten people attended a driver safety course Monday designed for people 50 and older. Four of the people who were interviewed stated that lower insurance rates was the primary reason for attending the class.

Seniors learning to drive safer

By MELISSA MAIN
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — This week is national Older Driver Safety Awareness Week. The U.S. Census estimates that 35 percent of people in Highlands County are 65 years of age or older, and AARP offers drivers classes for this age group to minimize crashes and improve driving performance.

Today's drivers are living longer and driving longer. Although this age group tends to have fewer fatalities and serious injuries than any other age group, the number of incidents are increasing for seniors, according to Safe Mobility for Life Coalition.

The latest class, AARP Smart Driver Course, was Monday at Emmanuel United Church of Christ with instructor Alfred Nolton. Nolton has a degree in electrical engineering and technology from Florida International University, and he worked for the Florida Department of Transportation for 17 years.

Part of Nolton's job involved working with traffic signals and improving the flow of traffic, so Nolton felt that teaching the course on traffic safety was a natural progression to his career at FDOT.

Since Florida leads the nation in the number of people over age 65, FDOT is encouraging people to understand the impact aging has on driving, including reduced hearing, vision and reaction times. The FDOT is encouraging people to take classes such as the ones offered by AARP to improve driver performance and reduce crashes.

Alfred Nolton taught an AARP Smart Driver Course Monday at Emmanuel United Church of Christ. This safety course was designed for drivers age 50 and older, and completion of this course often reduces drivers' insurance rates.

During the AARP Smart Driver Course, drivers received books that provided tips on safe driving as well as laws they must follow in Florida. One of the books offered during the course was "Florida's Guide for Aging Drivers" that can be downloaded at http://safemobilityfl.com/Outreach.htm. The Safe Mobility for Life Coalition has developed this free book.

During the course, Nolton talked to the drivers about changes in their driving experiences. All of the participants had driven for over 25 years and had seen many changes to the roadways in Sebring, such as increased number of traffic lanes and signals.

Nolton also mentioned that as people get older, their bodies change and older drivers do not respond as quickly. He offered helpful tips such as planning trips so that drivers avoid driving during peak rush hour times.

The six-hour course that Nolton taught is part of the nation's largest classroom and online driver safety course, according to AARP. This is just one of 200 driver safety classes taught every day, Nolton said.

"The biggest reason we take it [the driver safety course] is for the reduction in the insurance," Sandra Gruber said.

Diana Maisonet agreed. "I take it to get money off insurance," Maisonet said. She gets a $30 a year reduction on her GEICO insurance for three years.

Another participant had a speeding ticket, and he said, "Taking the course helps reduce points."

To sign up for a AARP Smart Driver Course, visit aarp.org/auto/driver-safety/. A driver education course can help a driver decrease insurance costs and the risk of a crash while also increasing confidence and driving skills.

Second roundabout suggested for Parkway

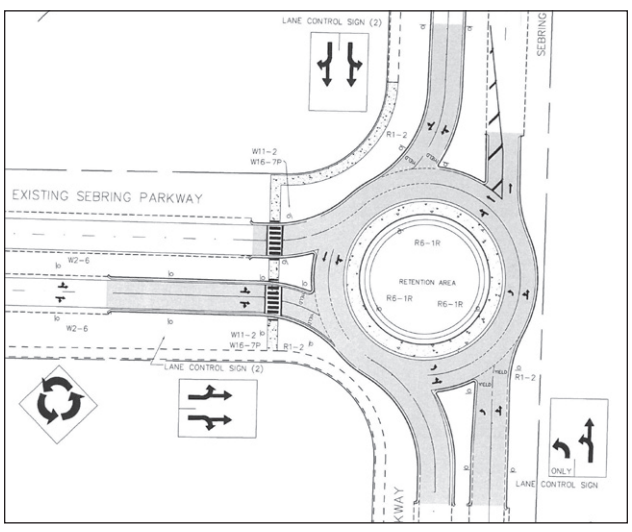
Topic to be discussed at today's commission meeting

By PHIL ATTINGER
Staff Writer

SEBRING — There's one in downtown Sebring, one on Summit Drive, two on Sun 'n Lake Boulevard and a relatively new one at the entrance to Lake June Park.

If people haven't driven a roundabout before now, they may want to get in some practice. Highlands County may soon have not just one more, but two, on Sebring Parkway Phase 3, if county commissioners are willing to split the cost with the City of Sebring.

Road plans already call for a single lane roundabout where the Parkway connects with Memorial Drive and College Drive in Avon Park. Today's agenda of the Highlands County Board of County Commission includes an item from County Engineer Clinton Howerton Jr., at request of the City of Sebring City Council, to consider a roundabout at the 90-degree turn instead of a three-way traffic signal.



COURTESY GRAPHIC/HIGHLANDS COUNTY BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSION

The Sebring City Council has given support to a proposed two-lane roundabout on Sebring Parkway at the current 90-degree turn. Cost would be $426,000 more than a signalized intersection, but the city and county would split the cost for $213,000 each. If approved by the Highlands County Commission, the roundabout would get built this next summer, when traffic is low enough to close the intersection.

The council gave full support for a roundabout at its Nov. 19 meeting, citing several advantages: less delay, greater safety, less cost to maintain signals and no need to have law enforcement direct traffic in a power outage, such as after a hurricane.

Preliminary cost estimates are $606,000. The county already has $180,000 in the Parkway Phase 3 budget for a signalized intersection.

The City of Sebring has offered to pay 50 percent of the cost increase: $213,000 of a total $426,000 increase. The county would need to pay the same amount.

In his agenda item, Howerton said if commissioners agree, staff would begin design work, initiate permitting and work with the city on an interlocal agreement.

Howerton is concerned about delays, however. The county is under deadline from Florida Department of Transportation to finish Phase 3 by Dec. 31, 2019, or face losing a $3 million grant committed approximately a decade ago for the project.

In a letter to Sebring City Administrator Scott Noethlich, Howerton said he'd need to close the 90-degree turn during low-peak summer months to build a roundabout.

With the $3 million FDOT grant, and the funding from the county, the Phase 3 budget is slightly more than $11.5 million, Howerton wrote. With the project already at the budgeted amount, commissioners would have to consider carefully any extra costs, he wrote.

"If we are able to work together on this project, I will also reach out for any potential additional funding sources, as well," Howerton wrote.

Given that roundabouts function without electricity, they are gaining popularity with road planners in a state plagued regularly by power outages from annual hurricanes and seasonal lightning storms. Florida's Heartland will soon take part in an Intersection Control Evaluation, said Pat Steed, staff services director for the Heartland Regional Transportation Planning Organization. It may call for more.

Steed said FDOT District 1 will conduct a study of area intersections to see if stop signs, signals, separated right-turn lanes or roundabouts work best for certain locations. FDOT, she said, plans to evaluate all intersections that way in the future.

"One will not fit all," Steed said. "I will say it's eye-opening."

Fire department doesn't notify fire victims

Bashoor: Fire notification usually done by others

By PHIL ATTINGER

SEBRING — Kay Johnson of Rochester, Michigan, expressed some relief that she was not at her Florida home Oct. 30, destroyed when a gyrocopter crashed in Sebring Falls Mobile Home Park.

However, she expressed dismay that a neighbor told her of the fire, not a local fire department official.

"If my neighbors hadn't called me, I never would have known my house was gone," she said.

Marc Bashoor, Highlands County Public Safety director and chief of Highlands County Fire Rescue, said he has talked with Johnson at least four times since the fire, but also said that those same neighbors

Don't wait for the consequences

After skimming along the Everglades on a campaign airboat tour with Broward County's venerable "Alligator Ron" Bergeron in September, Ron DeSantis, gubernatorial candidate, vowed to halt the green algae that oozes into the state's canals and rivers, study the cause of red tides plaguing the state's beaches, continue Everglades restoration and bar fracking and drilling for oil offshore.

Back onshore, Bergeron, an avowed conservationist who once led the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission, endorsed DeSantis, a three-term Republican congressman, and predicted the two men could work together on restoration.

But there was something notably absent that day: An acknowledgment by the candidate that human activities are contributing to rapidly changing climate patterns worldwide, causing untold damage in the form of more severe floods, fires and heat waves, as well as rising seas along the coastlines, including Florida's.

As the state's newly elected governor, DeSantis shouldn't remain silent for long. On Friday, less than a month after his narrow victory over Andrew Gillum, 13 U.S. government agencies released an unsettling major scientific report that warns of grim economic consequences if nothing is done to curb global warming — a report President Trump is downplaying.

It is commendable that Florida's new governor is willing to commit time, money and attention to conservation. During the campaign, he characterized himself as a conservationist in the mold of President Theodore Roosevelt, whose breakaway Progressive Party, also known as the "Bull Moose" Party, championed conservation as a platform plank in the 1912 presidential election.

Decades later, conservation has done little to slow development in Florida. And that's a critical point to note as the governor-elect heads toward his inauguration in January. Uncontrolled growth in Florida cannot continue unabated, given the environmental volatility facing the state today. And tighter, not diluted, regulatory enforcement must take precedence over aggressive development.

DeSantis' predecessor, Rick Scott, now headed for the U.S. Senate, resisted accepting scientific conclusions pointing to climate change, though he has long boasted about his environmental credentials. While he budgeted $4 billion for environmental and water quality management for 2018-2019, prior expenditures failed to curb the red tides and algae blooms that have strangled state beaches and waterways. And during his tenure, he folded a growth-management agency into an economic development agency, cut staff for water management districts and shrank funding for the enforcement of anti-pollution laws.

Paul Owens, president of the 1000 Friends of Florida, a Tallahassee-based nonprofit that advocates sustainable communities and natural resource preservation, says the state needs to pay more attention to growth management instead of awaiting the environmental consequences of unbridled development.

"SERIOUSLY, WHAT TIPPED YOU OFF?"

Just how would my life change

NEVER A DULL MOMENT
Mike Lee

The question on the docket today is, "How would your life change if you spent the next five days doing what you know you should and not doing what you shouldn't?" I know, it's a pretty heavy question for this time of year but just humor me, OK?

Now, I've had a bit of a head start here so I'm going to tell you some of the things I've considered this past week. I do need to confess that while I have been considering, I haven't exactly been changing. It is quite an interesting experiment, to be certain.

In no particular order, here are some of the things I've noticed that would certainly need to be changed. At the top of the list is getting more sleep. Yeah, I know. It seems so trite, doesn't it? Anyway, I don't really care to put this out in public but in the interest of full disclosure, my youngest daughter, Whitney, brought this one to my attention.

Lately, my blood pressure has been a bit high (161/93, for those of you who know these things). Whitney says, "I don't think you get enough sleep." Being a dad, I replied, "Of course I do!" Well, I committed to getting more than 5.5-6 hours of sleep just to prove my point. After a few weeks of not proving my point, and getting 7-8 hours of sleep, my blood pressure dropped (to 127/77, for those of you who know these things). I guess I'll be getting more sleep.

This does bring up an interesting point, however. My schedule seems to be pretty full already. What gets squeezed if I "should" be getting 7-8 hours of sleep? We all have things on the schedule that are non-negotiable, right? We have to work, fulfill our social and family commitments, exercise (hopefully), plus the time we spend eating, getting ready, etc. But, I bet if you took inventory of the non-negotiables, you'd still have somewhere between 3-5 hours of daily discretionary time. Where does it all go?

Back to the topic at hand. Some of the other more practical things that would change in my life are that I would spend more time reading my Bible and in prayer. I would tell more people of the deep love God has for them. I would certainly drink less Coke, eat fewer unhealthy foods, and spend more time reading. I would watch less TV and spend less time checking social media. Do any of those resonate with you? What else would you have to include in your lists?

How much time do you spend at work compared to time with your family? Do you allow people to devour your time and energy for meaningless reasons? How about social media? Alright, enough of that. I'm sure you don't need me to point out the time-wasters in your life. Or do you? Let me know. I'm glad to help.

The most difficult, and challenging, aspects of this kind of exercise is what to do with it once the numbers and facts are revealed. I have no scientific data to back this up but I would say many of us do 70-80 percent of what we should. So, we are about 70-80 percent (give or take a little) of our best selves. What if ... oh, never mind! You already know what I'm going to ask, don't you?

shot down, she said, he almost made the ultimate sacrifice.

Historic records state nine airmen escaped from their planes after being shot down during bombing raids on Chichi Jima, a tiny island 700 miles (1,100 km) south of Tokyo, in September 1944. Eight were captured. The ninth, the only one to evade capture, was Bush, then a 20-year-old pilot.

"It's so hard to fathom what was going to happen," Williams said. "He had no promise of the next day."

But he had another 75 years.

First, he married Barbara Pierce, who lived until April this year. They had six children: George W., Robin (who died as a child), John (known as Jeb), Neil, Marvin and Dorothy.

According to whitehouse.gov, he excelled at Yale University in both sports and academics, played as captain of the baseball team and was a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Williams said, like most of his generation, Bush "stepped right out of one book (military service) and started another book called 'Life.' I can't say enough about them. They did not miss a beat."

Carino said Bush had at least four U.S. Navy veterans among his contemporaries in Highlands County, three of which still drive:

• Jack Moore, 97, who sprayed machine-gun fire at a jeering Japanese pilot at Pearl Harbor, later served on Patrol Boat (PT) Sacramento. He still drives and doesn't sit still for long, Carino said.

• Delbert "Dell" Smith, 97, served with the Navy as a dive bomber pilot in the Pacific, flying on and off the USS Hornet. He still plays two rounds of golf a week, Carino said.

• Tom Monteith, 94, served on the destroyer USS Wadsworth.

• Charlie Wiggins, 94, faced down a typhoon and a kamikaze pilot while on the USS Wisconsin in the Pacific.

After graduation, Bush started a career in the oil industry of West Texas, and eventually became interested in public service and politics, serving in the Senate, as vice president to Ronald Reagan, and then as president for one term immediately after Reagan.

His invitation to President Trump to attend his funeral, despite reported antipathy between the Bush family and the current president, put the institution of the presidency above personal animosities, according to CNN.com.

Trump has confirmed he will attend and canceled a news conference at the G20 summit in Argentina on Saturday out of respect for Bush, CNN.com stated. Trump also sent one of the iconic blue-and-white 747 jets that serves as Air Force One to Texas to carry Bush's casket to Washington, D.C., for the state funeral, which will be held Wednesday.

Applicant Bill Lawrence is the town manager of Warren, Maine (population 4,700).

The majority of the City Council wants the next city manager to be from Avon Park.

Highlands News-Sun asked Councilman Stanley Spurlock on Monday about the residency requirement.

The council wants applicants who are "currently" living in the city, so someone from Maine wouldn't be close enough to be considered?

With a laugh, Spurlock replied, "I don't think that would quite be in the 33825 zip code and that is what we decided on, I believe at our last meeting."

The intent was to hire someone from this area, he said. "I am confident that is where we are going to hold it to."

The advertised annual salary for the position is "$90,000 plus excellent benefit package."

The job description's education requirement states: equivalent to a bachelor degree from an accredited college or university with major course work in public administration, business administration or a related field. An advanced degree in public administration or a closely related field is desirable.

The experience requirement states: five years minimum of increasingly responsible experience in municipal government, including administrative and supervisory responsibility.

The deadline for a completed application and resume is 5 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 12.

A candidate will be selected at a special City Council meeting at 6 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 20.

told him and other emergency responders on scene that they'd already called or would call Johnson.

He said it's not actually standard protocol for a fire department to call the homeowner.

"Ultimately, we will make sure before we leave that the homeowner knows," Bashoor said.

However, since a neighbor had already told him and other officials that they had or would inform Johnson, that notification was done, as far as firefighters were concerned, Bashoor said.

They could then concentrate on putting out the fire, he said.

Typically, fire departments either have the resident in front of them at the scene, ask a neighbor to call the resident, or in the case of a mobile home park, ask park management to call.

If they have to leave an unsafe structure, Bashoor said, the fire department will have the building department post the building as unsafe and then send a letter to the resident/owner.

The only time that the owner would get called by the fire department, he said, is if they have to investigate the fire to find out its source.

The source was obvious in the Oct. 30 fire: A gyrocopter crash killed two on the aircraft and burned Johnson's home.

Fatalities in the fire also took the notification process out of local fire department hands, Bashoor said.

Fatalities made it a case for the Florida Division of State Fire Marshal, and, thanks to involving a gyrocopter, the National Transportation Safety Board and Federal Aviation Administration.

Bashoor said the county does have a fire marshal responsible for enforcing the local fire code. If electrical components or other fire hazards are not in order, that official can post the building as unsafe.

The same is true for the structural code, Bashoor said. Highlands County Building Official Eric Longshore inspects for those issues.

However, Bashoor said the building official usually checks on commercial buildings and multiple-family units, not single-family homes — unless they are vacant.

In Johnson's case, unfortunately, there was no building left to inspect.

Once all inspections and investigations are done, Bashoor said, officials turn the scene over to the homeowner, who can then deal directly with his or her insurance company.

In this case, those officials happened to be state and federal employees.

Pistons & Props concludes in style

Great weekend of racing at Sebring International Raceway

A determined and deserving group of Historic Sportscar Racing (HSR) competitors broke through for victories this weekend in the Third Annual HSR Classic Sebring 12 Hour, Pistons & Props, Presented by Alan Jay Automotive Network that concluded Sunday with the presentation of custom-made HSR Classic Sebring 12 Hour edition B.R.M. format featured each of the four Run Groups taking to the track four different times the past two days.

Saturday's schedule included the first three 42-minute rounds for each Group — appropriately within the span of a 12-hour period — while the fourth and final segment races Sunday determined the overall winners.

Group A was controlled from the start by a pair of McClendon International Lolas that scored a 1-2 group finish and all four segment wins.

Toni Seiler drove the 1969 No. 77 Lola T70 to the overall Group A win that was fueled in part by first-place finishes in Rounds 1 and 3. The victory finally put Seiler, a regular "HSR Classics" competitor from Switzerland, on the top step of the Sebring podium after finishing second in Group A in the previous runnings of the HSR Classic Sebring 12 Hour in 2016 and 2017.

The McClendon International sweep was completed by the second-place 1969 No. 127 Lola T165 of Italian driver Mauro

Mariners are in a rebuilding stage

It's the right decision for Seattle's future

Seattle reliever Alex Colome is just one of several players the Mariners have traded away as they go through the rebuilding process.

By LARRY STONE
Associated Press

Two things about the impending trade of Robinson Cano and Edwin Diaz to the Mets, on top of all the other foundation-ripping moves the Seattle Mariners have made and the inevitable ones still to come.

Dark, desolate times are ahead, no way to sugarcoat it. The Mariners will be a lousy baseball team in 2019 and 2020. Then we'll take inventory and see how the rebuild is going, but you can probably add on a couple crummy years on top of that. That's if they're lucky.

This is nevertheless the right way for the Mariners to go, weighing all the circumstances at play.

Reconciling those two opinions will be difficult, maybe impossible, for Mariners fans, who have been beaten down by so many years of bitter disappointment and management malfeasance. And it's important to note that it's the right way for the Mariners to go only because of a tidal wave of bad decisions they've made over the years.

But that's where they are. And there's salvation in squarely facing reality.

This is a potential path out of the vast middle ground they have found themselves mired in. I've gone over this before, but they are light years behind the Astros in their own division, and the Red Sox/Yankees in the wild-card race. So for the foreseeable future, their best-case scenario was the second wild card.

On top of that, the 2018 Mariners were an 89-win team in name only. Their path to that total last year was so fluky, and so unsustainable, that I give Jerry Dipoto credit for not clinging to the wishful delusion that they were better than that. Anyone with any baseball acumen could see the Mariners were headed for a fall in 2019.

So now Dipoto has started the process, with the fervent hope that when it all gets rebuilt, they will be in a far better place than they would have been by muddling along, hoping for miracles.

They've traded their ace pitcher, James Paxton. They've traded their defensive-whiz catcher, Mike Zunino, and one of their shutdown relievers, Alex

Casedei and Seiler's Swiss countryman Andy Feigenwinter. The No. 127 won Rounds 2 and 4, leading the No. 77 to the line in both segments, but in the end Seiler had enough overall pace to maintain first place throughout the race. The Lolas were the only competitors in Group A to complete a total of 68 laps.

Third-place went to the British-based 1965 No. 66 Ford GT40 of Karsten LeBlanc and Christopher Milner while the Cobra Automotive 1965 No. 69 Ford Mustang 2+2 of Adam Lindemann and Jim Pace was fourth, the highest-finishing GT car in Group A.

The Group B victory went to the Phil Reilly Co. 1974 No. 26 Chevron B26 of Gray Gregory and Randy Buck that rebounded from an early-weekend hit from another competitor for their first HSR Classic Sebring 12 Hour race win.

The No. 26 team initially battled with the similar Chevron of John Harrold, Ryan Harrold and Kevin Wheeler who saw their chances for a third-straight HSR Classic Sebring 12 Hour win in the Team Mean/KMW Motorsports No. 94 entry end in Round 2.

After winning Round 1 and leading the second segment, the No. 94 Chevron ironically suffered electrical issues similar to what knocked Gregory and Buck from contention in last year's HSR Classic Sebring 12 Hour.

After the Harrolds and Wheeler retired, the biggest threats the No. 26 team faced came from some quick GT entries.

Swiss driver Alain Rüede kept his 1982 No. 21 Chevy Camaro IROC on the lead lap the entire race, joining the winning Chevron as the only Group B competitors to complete 68 laps.

Rüede finished second overall and took GT class honors while second in GT and third overall in Group B for the second-straight year was Todd Treffert in his Speedconcepts 1974 No. 141 Porsche 911 IROC.

After a narrow loss in 2017's Group C race, John Reisman and the Hudson Historics 2010 No. 33 Coyote Corvette Daytona Prototype team were determined to win this year's HSR Classic Sebring 12 Hour.

Leading the majority of last year's race only to slip to second in the final segment, Reisman convincingly held first place for the entirety of this weekend's HSR Classic Sebring 12 Hour. He led the standings for all four segments to take the victory despite serious challenges from several potent prototypes.

Second place went to the GMT Racing 2005 No. 2 Audi R8 LMP of Travis Engen while Tommy Dreelan and Aaron Scott were a close third in their Sebring debuts in the Celtic Speed 2009 No. 68 Oreca FLM09 "PC" car. The podium trio all completed 70 laps.

The top GT finisher in Group C was the Steve Cohen and Ray Snowdon driven Sundry Racing 1995 No. 5 Oldsmobile Aurora GTS. Cohen and Snowdon co-drove the Aurora to an overall Group victory in last month's HSR Classic Daytona presented by IMSA and backed it up with the GT win and sixth-place overall Group C finish this weekend in the HSR Classic Sebring 12 Hour.

The Group D battle was the most competitive of this year's HSR Classic Sebring 12 Hour with a different leader on top of the charts in each of the four segments.

The leader up front when it counted was Wisko Racing Enterprises driver Nigel Greensall — who co-drove to a Classic Sebring 12 Hour Group A win last year in a 1966 No. 96 McLaren M1b — and his 2018 co-driver Gary Ball.

After a trio of Porsche GT3 Cup entries split the first three segment wins, Greensall made up a more than 30-second deficit in Round 4 to steal the Group D victory by a scant 1.743 seconds in the No. 67 Radical SR3.

Second-place went to Round 1 winner Shaun McKaigue in his Pfaff Motorsports 2013 No. 34 Porsche 997 GT3 Cup while segment three winner Jim Bernier was third in his Alex Job Racing 2011 No. 152 Porsche 997 GT3 Cup.

The podium trio all completed 70 laps, as did Round 2 winner and fourth-place finisher Robert Ames in his Boulder Classics 2004 No. 99 Porsche 996 GT3 Cup.

Next up for HSR is 2019's season-opening event that brings the series right back to Sebring International Raceway, March 28 — 31, for the all-new HSR Spring Fling Weekend.

And now, once the deal is officially announced, they'll be without their unparalleled reliever, Edwin Diaz, and their superstar second baseman, Robinson Cano. After that, you can pick names out of a hat to see who's next to go: Jean Segura? Mike Leake? Dee Gordon? Kyle Seager?

Health is always a top priority

An epidemic that continues to influence people of all ages in all communities is smoking. Nicotine addiction is something that many people deal with, and many companies capitalize on this addiction by creating new methods of smoking.

Some of these methods are e-cigarettes such as Juuls and Juul pods. I know several people who use Juuls, specifically people between the ages of 17-23.

Recently, according to the New York Times, Juul has faced pressure to stop selling their e-cigarette pods in stores, and to also stop promoting through advertisement. Though there will be some Juuls still sold in stores such as menthol and tobacco flavored pods, all other flavored pods will not be sold in stores and possibly not even in gas stations.

This ban on Juul pods is just another step towards attempting to curb the Vaping trends that many younger people are taking part in. In the last few years vaping is something that has become more and more mainstream. I can actually remember when friends I knew were made fun of for vaping. Now however you can find someone vaping outside of a coffee shop or even in a library (despite the obvious 'no vaping' signs).

It was at first advertised as a healthier alternative to smoking, however research has suggested that there are actually serious health issues associated with long-term vaping. These are issues we shouldn't want anyone to deal with, but especially not teens and children who are attracted to vaping through novelty and flavors.

Many believe that the companies like Juul that make these products are not concerned enough with preventing the sale of nicotine to minors and youths. The FDA has put pressure on these companies, in an attempt to make it more difficult for minors to use these products.

I'm sure we can all agree that this is a step in the right direction. Hopefully it will have as much of an impact as the FDA is hoping for. There should be limits put on who can buy certain products, especially if there is proof that the product is harmful.

Some might argue that another step that should be taken is for Juul and other companies to take the novelty out of the product. By creating flavors that children and teens might like, specifically candy and fruit flavors, the company is luring in young people who might not

Home for the Holidays

By FAMILY FEATURES

As another busy travel season approaches, road-weary parents and families can hold on to holiday cheer a little longer by counting on tech as their preferred travel companion.

Every year, tens of millions of travelers brave planes, trains and automobiles to celebrate year-end holidays and exchange goodwill with family and friends. Consider these ideas for using tech to make this year's travel a little easier.

Electronic Entertainment

Nearly every parent is wary of excess screen time, but holiday travel is a good time to set aside those concerns. Hours of chaotic travel, unfamiliar scenery and overall disruption to typical daily schedules can wreak havoc on kids. One way to keep those stressful feelings at bay is entertainment, and there are plenty of options that can serve as aides to keep kids calm and collected when travel gets tiresome. Handheld video games, portable DVD players and tablets can all be customized with kid-friendly content to make it from point A to point B with your sanity intact, or to simply enjoy an uninterrupted hour catching up with loved ones.

Savvy Smartphones

It's a trend on the rise: More than 70 percent of U.S. travelers responding to Google Consumer Insights agreed they "always" use their smartphones when traveling to research activities or attractions, locate shopping areas and restaurants, or look up directions.

For value-conscious travelers, a smartphone like the Alcatel 7 offers robust talk time, nonstop streaming and lightning-fast charging. Up to 28 hours of talk time makes it ideal for connecting with family and friends down the street or around the globe, and after just 22 minutes of charging, it can be used for up to six hours. With more than 10 hours of nonstop streaming in a single charge, kids won't have to miss out on any social media stories or updates from their favorite bloggers while waiting for grandma's pecan pie to cool. Sleek and compact, the phone also features a large six-inch Full HD+ display and dual cameras that let you shoot in portrait mode. Learn more at alcatel7.com.

Power Up

You've heard the tongue-in-cheek adage that technology is great when it works. One thing is sure: it won't work if it isn't properly charged. Take time to lay out all your

Half the woman she used to be

By DOROTHY HARRIS
CORRESPONDENT

Fay Steele felt as though she had a weight problem most of her life. She slimmed down for her son's wedding, but typically carried extra pounds. "I had knee pain and ankle pain. It kept me pretty sedentary," she admitted.

Steele's health markers like cholesterol, blood sugar and blood pressure were also a mess. After reading about a health improvement program in the local newspaper, she attended a free informational session and decided to try again to get healthy. "I've actually gained weight on other weight loss programs so I wasn't sure what to expect."

Joining the Complete Health Improvement Program (CHIP) in September 2017, she lost 20 pounds during the first month. Steele also discovered her biomarkers dropped into normal range and over the past year, she has lost 110 pounds.

"I went from a size 24 to a size 12. I haven't worn a size 12 in 20 years," she laughed. Steele was surprised to see pounds slowly melting off her frame. It takes a lot of willpower and determination, but she insisted after the first four weeks, new choices become second nature. "It's still hard work, but all you have to do is change your eating habits and get active."

Steele enjoyed learning to cook healthier during CHIP classes and benefited from educational sessions on nutrition. "You learn to exercise. It gives you incentive and so much encouragement."

Though she lost lots of weight, Steele gained camaraderie. She now helps during the CHIP session each fall. "I worked in the kitchen crew and also was a table host for new CHIPPERS because the first few weeks are pretty intense. There is a lot to learn." She still attends alumni meetings throughout the year and enjoys all the new friends who are also focused on improving their health too.

She works out three days a week at Florida Hospital's Lake Placid fitness center. "It's open 24 hours, very reasonable and the staff is just wonderful." Steele keeps a pretty strict schedule because she's learned it works. "If I miss a day, I just make it up."

Riding 12 miles on a stationary bike, she enjoys exercise in the air conditioned comfort of the gym. She adds 15 minutes on the rowing machine and then utilizes 12 other machines. "My Mondays and Fridays include three fitness classes and then the machines. Wednesday is my light day."

By the time Steele takes her classes and finishes her machine work, she's been active a total of four hours. "I need to do this," she

The market for Christmas collectibles

ART & ANTIQUES

Dr. Lori Verderame

Many of us will be displaying our collection of Christmas collectibles — both old and new — this holiday season. Personally, I am going to display a new holiday collectible, this Byers Choice Ltd. Caroler in my likeness, which I expect will become a cherished holiday collectible for my family as time goes by. I have many of these popular handmade caroler figures made near my home in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. Annually, they make their way onto window sills, shelves, and holiday tables as seasonal decorations.

While this is the time to revisit Christmas collectibles, it is also the best time to sell off these items. The value for your Christmas collectibles is high right now and if you are a seller, you can help yourself drive up the market prices by offering objects for sale that are seasonally themed for Christmas and in good shape. Here are some of the popular holiday antiques and collectibles.

Ornaments

Antique ornaments, produced from circa 1880 to 1940, are highly collectible. Since some of the most beautiful and handmade ornaments were made in that period of hand-blown glass, these ornaments are very difficult to find. So, if you discover one entangled in the garland, hold onto it. One antique ornament may be valued at $100 or more at Christmas time.

COURTESY PHOTO

Dr. Lori Byers Choice Caroler by Byers Choice Ltd.

Starting your own holiday ornament collection will cost you a pretty penny. Some of the most popular ornaments are those made after World War II and represent everything from astronauts to zebras. While seasoned collectors are looking for kugels and other glass-blown figural ornaments from Germany, new collectors are especially interested in vintage pieces made in America in the 1940s to the 1970s.

Caregivers of people with dementia at greater risk for loneliness

By AARP

WASHINGTON, D.C.—A new AARP poll on dementia care takes a closer look at the experiences of family caregivers for those with dementia and found more than half say their social life has suffered and nearly 45 percent say they feel alone. In addition, they are more likely to grow further apart from the ones they care for and other family members because of their caregiving responsibilities. Both social isolation and loneliness are linked to poorer physical and mental health outcomes.

"Family caregivers take on big responsibilities that can be physically, emotionally and financially challenging. AARP's new research shows that this can be particularly true for those caring for loved ones with dementia," said Nancy LeaMond, AARP Chief Advocacy and Engagement Officer. "That's why AARP has developed resources to help family caregivers balance their own needs with the needs of their loved one."

Not only are the millions of family caregivers for those with dementia less socially connected, they are significantly more likely to put off medical care — over half (55 percent) have done so, compared to just 38 percent among the total caregiver population. However, there were positive health behaviors identified in the poll as well – 79 percent took steps to maintain or improve their brain health and 47 percent exercised more.

This is especially true for Latinos, as nearly seven million Latinos in the U.S. provide unpaid care to an aging or older loved one. Many Latino family caregivers see caregiving responsibilities simply as something family members do for one another, and do not seek outside help. AARP and the Ad Council offer support with a new PSA campaign, encouraging Latino caregivers nationwide to access free Care Guides, self-care tips, planning resources, legal and financial guidance, and more.

"Juggling work, personal and caregiving responsibilities can be highly stressful, often putting caregivers at risk for depression, anxiety, heart disease and financial challenges," said Yvette Pena, AARP Vice President of Multicultural Leadership, Latino Audience Strategy. "It's vital that Latino families not only recognize the role of family caregivers, but also have access to culturally relevant resources and support."

Six in 10 family caregivers juggle caregiving responsibilities with full- or part-time jobs. That rate is even higher among Latino caregivers: nearly 7 in 10 work an average of 36 hours per week outside the home, and 1 in 4 provide more than 40 hours of care each week. Family caregivers spend an average of $6,954 a year — nearly 20 percent of their income — on out-of-pocket costs related to caregiving. Latino and low-income family caregivers spend even more with an average of $9,022, representing 44 percent of their total income per year.

"Caregivers dedicate so much of their time, energy and their hearts to making someone else's life better. They're an inspiration," said Lisa Sherman, Ad Council President and CEO. "By bringing these incredible partners together to make such beautiful work, we can reach caregivers across the country to help them access the support they need and deserve."

AARP helps family caregivers find the information and support they need to manage their own care along with their loved one's care. Visit www.aarp.org/caregiving for more resources and information on family caregiving, including AARP's Dementia Care Guide and the Community Resource Finder.

explained. "It keeps the weight off. Otherwise you're just sitting around all day anyway." She also cleans her house too.

The best part of exercising may be best expressed by Steele's 8-year-old granddaughter. "She tells me 'Grammy, I can get my arms all the way around you now when I hug you.'" When her granddaughter visits, they go all over town and once she even accompanied Steele to an exercise class. Steele is also proud of the compliments from her sons. "They tell me how good I look now." If she has guests visiting, they go to Highlands Hammock State Park and walk trails. "The more you do the more energy you have."

Steele eats carefully when dining out. "I usually get a wrap with a little turkey and vegetables." Breakfast, her favorite meal, is usually oatmeal and scrambled tofu, waffles or pancakes. On holidays she will eat a little meat, but sends leftovers home with her guests.

"If I want something, I'll taste it. My granddaughter sells Girl Scout cookies. I'll eat one or two, but give the rest to others. Portion control is key."

She hadn't had a slice of pizza in over a year, but recently felt entitled to indulge. "I told myself to enjoy it. I'll just go to the gym tomorrow and work it off."

Clearly her focus has paid off because all Steele's biometrics are still normal and where she used to hurt all over, her pain is greatly relieved. Weighing in near what she had before children, she expects to lose another 10 pounds. "The holidays might delay that a bit," she admitted. "I still have some age-related infirmities and may need knee surgery eventually, but it's so much better. I exercise every single day and I'll be 70 next summer. I want to tell everyone about CHIP; it's been priceless for me."

devices and their respective charging equipment before you pack your bags. Fully charge all devices, install new batteries and, when you're done, stash the cords and extra batteries in your carry-on bag where you can access them easily later.

Connectivity Crashes

If you're planning to rely heavily on your tech devices while traveling, be sure you're aware of any potential connectivity issues that may limit your access to certain apps and features. Remember that in certain areas signals can be spotty. If there's essential info you may need, download it directly into your device so you can retrieve it with or without a good connection.

Protective Care

Away from home, you're likely to encounter situations and environments that put your family's tech devices in precarious places. Even a suitcase with liquid toiletries can pose a hazard, but a simple plastic bag can prevent damage from spills en route. Before you embark on your trip, also take steps to safeguard your tech devices with screen protectors and snug-fit covers or cases.

and village displays in the early 1900s. A Sears & Roebuck miniature Christmas village would have cost only 69 cents in the mid- 1930s.

After World War II, Bachmann Brothers introduced the Plasticville line of miniature buildings to accompany model train set ups. These miniature Christmas villages command high prices today at auction and online such as the Bliss Company village of lithographed cardboard featuring a pharmacy, opera house, bank, and post office sold for $16,500 recently. That's big money for some little cardboard houses.

Toys and games

Major board game companies like Milton Bradley introduced games featuring Santa including the seasonal favorite, The Santa Claus Game. Today, this holiday game in excellent condition is worth more at Christmas time.

When you decorate or display antique treasures during the holiday season, remember to consider pets, direct sunlight, warm fireplace hearths, and new traffic patterns made by hosting guests in your home so you retain those cherished objects in good condition for years to come.

Happy holidays.

Something that we should make a priority is our health. Specifically, important is the health of the community's young people, because they will be the ones to shape the community in the future. These are just the first changes we will see as far as the vaping and e-cigarette industries go.

Since they have grown to be so big and have so much of an impact, these companies will now have to work out a way to stay relevant when people are against their harmful products.

At Capitol, Bush saluted as 'gentle soul,' 'great man'

WASHINGTON — The nation's capital embraced George H.W. Bush in death Monday with solemn ceremony and high tributes to his service and decency, as the remains of the 41st president took their place in the Capitol rotunda for three days of mourning and praise by the political elite and everyday citizens alike.

With Bush's casket atop the Lincoln Catafalque, first used for Abraham Lincoln's 1865 funeral, dignitaries came forward to honor the Texan whose efforts for his country extended three quarters of a century from World War II through his final years as an advocate for volunteerism and relief for people displaced by natural disaster.

President from 1989 to 1993, Bush died Friday at age 94.

In an invocation opening Monday evening's ceremony, the U.S. House chaplain, the Rev. Patrick J Conroy, praised Bush's commitment to public service, from Navy pilot to congressman, U.N. ambassador, envoy to China and then CIA director before being elected vice president and then president.

"Here lies a great man," said Rep. Paul Ryan, the House speaker, and "a gentle soul. ... His legacy is grace perfected."

Vice President Mike Pence and Republican Senate leader Mitch McConnell also spoke.

But political combatants set aside their fights to honor a Republican who led in a less toxic time and at times found commonality with Democrats despite sharp policy disagreements. Democratic Rep. Nancy Pelosi, past and incoming House speaker, exchanged a warm hug with George W. Bush and came away dabbing her face. Bush himself seemed to be holding back tears.

3 astronauts safely aboard International Space Station

By DMITRY LOVETSKY
Associated Press

BAIKONUR, Kazakhstan — Three astronauts who were launched into space aboard a Russian Soyuz spacecraft Monday entered the International Space Station nearly eight hours later, a relief to relatives and scientists months after a rocket failure aborted another mission.

The hatch of the capsule carrying NASA astronaut Anne McClain, David Saint-Jacques of the Canadian Space Agency and Oleg Kononenko of Russian space agency Roscosmos was opened while the station was flying over the southern coast of Yemen.

The three were greeted upon arrival Monday by the station's current crew members, who had waited outside the hatch after the astronauts' capsule docked and underwent safety checks.

Their Soyuz MS-11 spacecraft launched from the Russian-leased Baikonur Cosmodrome in Kazakhstan on Monday at 5:31 p.m. (6:31 a.m. EST) then entered a designated orbit just under nine minutes later. The spacecraft made four orbits over six hours as it chased down the space station for the docking.

Trump praises witness who refuses to testify against him

By MICHAEL BALSAMO and ERIC TUCKER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump praised a key witness in the Russia investigation Monday for having the "guts" not to testify against him, and said his former lawyer — who cut a deal with prosecutors — should head straight to prison.

In a pair of politically charged tweets, Trump made clear that he is closely watching those who turn on him in the special counsel's probe, which has ensnared some of the president's closest advisers. So far, five people in Trump's orbit have pleaded guilty to federal charges.

The tweets add to mounting questions about whether Trump is taking steps to improperly influence witnesses in an investigation that has enraged him and shadowed his administration. Some legal experts, though, say they may not amount to witness tampering if Trump didn't directly tell others what to say or not say.

Trump already has come under scrutiny from critics who fear he may use his executive power to protect himself as well as friends and supporters. Last week, Trump told the New York Post that a pardon for his former campaign chairman Paul

US urges Europe to impose sanctions on Iran

By MATTHEW LEE
Associated Press

BRUSSELS — The Trump administration is urging Europe to impose tough new sanctions on Iran over its ballistic missile program.

The call comes as Secretary of State Mike Pompeo is to meet European officials in Brussels this week and after the U.S. and others condemned an Iranian missile launch over the weekend.

Iran was also a topic of conversation when Pompeo met Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu in Brussels on Monday night.

Pompeo plans to talk about Iran when he meets his counterparts from Britain, France and Germany on Tuesday while he is in Belgium for a meeting of NATO counterparts.

U.S. special envoy for Iran Brian Hook rejected Iran's insistence that its missile program is defensive.

He told reporters traveling with Pompeo that Iran's continued missile development and testing is a threat to the region and beyond and in defiance of U.N. Security Council demands.

Hook said U.S. discussions with the Europeans about missile sanctions are gaining traction. Those talks center on slapping penalties on companies and people involved in Iran's program.

"It is a grave and escalating threat, and nations around the world, not just Europe, need to do everything they can to be targeting Iran's missile program," Hook said.

Hook's comments on Monday were the latest salvo in an escalating U.S. campaign against Iran since President Donald Trump pulled out of the 2015 nuclear deal in May.

"Iran is on the wrong track, and our campaign of maximum economic pressure is designed to starve the regime of revenue it needs," he said.

On Thursday, Hook accused Iran of violating a U.N. ban on Iranian arms exports by sending weapons to its proxies in Afghanistan, Iraq, Lebanon, Syria and Yemen.

On Saturday, Pompeo denounced Iran for test-firing a medium-range ballistic missile capable of carrying multiple warheads that could reach parts of Europe.

"We are accumulating risk of escalation in the region if we fail to restore deterrence," Pompeo said.

World leaders stress need to win support for climate measures

The UN's annual summit gathered in Poland for global climate talks

By FRANK JORDANS and MONIKA SCISLOWSKA
Associated Press

KATOWICE, Poland — As leaders attending the U.N.'s annual climate summit heard fresh warnings about the dire consequences of leaving global warming unchecked, a new issue emerged Monday as a pressing concern: how to persuade millions of workers their industry can't have a future if humanity is to have one.

Hosting the talks in the heart of its coal region of Silesia, Poland tried to set the tone for the two-week meeting by promoting the idea of a "just transition" for miners and other workers facing layoffs as countries adopt alternative energy sources.

"We are trying to save the world from annihilation, but we must do this in a way that those who live with us today in the world have the best possible living conditions," Polish President Andrzej Duda said. "Otherwise they will say, 'We don't want such policy.'"

The issue of a "just transition" isn't restricted to workers in energy industries who might lose their jobs. Many economists argue that ambitious curbs on greenhouse emissions require raising the cost of carbon fuels — one of the measures that triggered large-scale protests in France by motorists feeling the squeeze at the pump.

Scientists say the only way to keep average global temperatures from rising above 1.5 degrees Celsius (2.7 F) by the end of the century is to phase out the use of fossil fuels by 2050. That is the most ambitious goal set in the 2015 Paris agreement, which negotiators from nearly 200 countries have come to Katowice to finalize.

U.N. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres issued a dramatic appeal to leaders Monday to take the threat of global warming seriously, calling it "the most important issue we face."

"Even as we witness devastating climate impacts causing havoc across the world, we are still not doing enough, nor moving fast enough, to prevent irreversible and catastrophic climate disruption," Guterres told delegates from almost 200 countries on the second day of talks.

Famed British naturalist Sir David Attenborough echoed his warnings, telling the gathering that the "collapse of our civilizations and the extinction of much of the natural world is on the horizons" if no urgent action is taking against global warming.

The 92-year-old TV presenter blamed humans for the "disaster of global scale, our greatest threat in thousands of years."

Without naming specific countries, Guterres chided the nations most responsible for greenhouse gas emissions for failing to do enough to meet the goals set in Paris.

Citing a recent scientific report , the U.N. chief urged governments to aim for net zero emissions by 2050. Net zero emissions mean that any greenhouse gases emitted need to be soaked up by forest or new technologies that can remove carbon from the atmosphere.

Such cuts would require a radical overhaul of the global economy. But Guterres said governments should embrace the opportunities of shifting to a "green economy" rather than cling to fossil fuels such as coal, which are blamed for a significant share of man-made greenhouse gas emissions.

AP PHOTOI

Leaders and negotiators from almost 200 nations from around the globe listen to speeches during the official opening of the key U.N. climate conference that is to agree on ways of fighting global warming in Katowice, Poland, Monday.

U.S. officials have kept a low profile at the talks so far. President Donald Trump has announced Washington's withdrawal from the Paris accord, saying it's a bad deal for Americans, and repeatedly questioned the science behind climate change.

By contrast, action film star and former California Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger drew crowds and applause at the U.N. conference Monday for insisting that many in the United States remain committed to the agreement.

"America is more than just Washington or one leader," he said, calling Trump "meshugge" — Yiddish for "crazy" — for deciding to withdraw from the Paris accord. Schwarzenegger said he wished he could travel back in time — like the cyborg he portrayed in "The Terminator" — to stop fossil fuels from being used.

The Netherlands, a country with a long history of pumping oil and gas from the ground, is also among the places most at risk from rising sea levels caused by global warming.

With millions of people in the Netherlands living in low-lying areas, "you have your evidence and your case in point to make, sure, that you prevent sea levels from rising even further" Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte told The Associated Press.

Asked about the recent protests in France, one of which turned into a riot in Paris on Saturday, Rutte said politicians must work to get all of society to back the measures needed to tackle climate change.

More talk is doubtlessly necessary, including at the international level. Poland's President Duda told reporters that his country, which relies on coal for 80 percent of its energy, would work to reduce its reliance on coal but never entirely give up its "strategic fossil fuel."

Among those addressing conference participants this week is a 15-year-old Swedish activist, Greta Thunberg, who has inspired students around the world to campaign against global warming.

Thunberg criticized leaders, such as Trump and German Chancellor Angela Merkel, who failed to come to the climate talks.

"I think that in the future we will look back and we will either laugh at them or we will hate them," she told The Associated Press. "It's very sad, but if they don't do anything right now that is the truth."

WHO says it can fight Ebola outbreak despite US withdrawal

By JAMEY KEATEN
Associated Press

GENEVA — The head of the World Health Organization said Monday it can fight the deadly Ebola outbreak in Congo despite the withdrawal of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, insisting: "We can cover it."

The comments by WHO Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus came in the wake of commentaries in two medical journals appealing to the CDC to return to the epidemic zone in Congo — saying its expertise is needed. The U.S. experts have been sidelined for weeks, ordered away from the region because of State Department security concerns.

Violence by rebel groups has complicated efforts to battle what is now the second-deadliest Ebola outbreak. The CDC — which is twice as large as WHO — has said its staff would return to the epidemic area once it is safe.

Tedros said the U.N. health agency mostly needs the United States to continue the financial and other support it has provided. He noted the U.S. and many other developed countries have security guidelines that prevent deployments in conflict-ridden zones like the Ebola-hit area of eastern Congo.

"We can mobilize from other parts, from those institutions who don't have very strict security provisions like that," Tedros told reporters at WHO headquarters. "We can cover it."

Tedros praised a commitment from U.S. President Donald Trump, expressed at the Group of 20 summit in Argentina over the weekend, about his administration's "support in any way possible" in the fight against the outbreak.

"They promise to continue supporting us in finance and other (ways), and that, I think, would suffice," Tedros said.

He said experts from the CDC are still helping, sharing data and analysis.

The Ebola response director for the International Rescue Committee, Dr. Stacey Mearns, said the absence of CDC experts can be felt acutely, telling The Associated Press on Friday that they have rich experience in tracking cases, testing and treatment.

According to a WHO announcement, Congo's deadly Ebola outbreak is now the second largest in history, and predicted it will last at least another six months before it can be contained.

Tedros said WHO has now counted some 440 cases of Ebola and 255 deaths from the outbreak in Congo's North Kivu regions that first emerged in August. He said the risk of international spread remains.

Unlike the far-deadlier outbreak in West Africa that killed more than 11,000 people from 2014 to 2016, international health experts have this time deployed a new experimental vaccine to fight Ebola. Tedros said some 39,000 people have been vaccinated during the current outbreak.

Doctor, Navy reservist among 103 arrested in sting operation

BARTOW, Fla. (AP) — Investigators in central Florida have arrested 103 people on prostitution and human trafficking charges during a week-long sting.

Polk County Grady Judd told news outlets investigators focused on both prostitutes posting online advertisements and "johns" seeking prostitutes online.

Judd said those who were arrested were charged with 44 felonies and 130 misdemeanors. Detectives identified three women who could be victims of human trafficking.

Those arrested include 54-year-old Dr. Sarat Sabharwal of Winter Park on charges of soliciting a prostitute. A lawyer wasn't listed on jail records for him.

Others arrested include a U.S. Navy reservist and a server at Disney's All Stars Movie Resort.

Judd said investigators worked closely with One More Child and the Department of Children and Families to provide services for those identified as victims.

Florida Highway Patrol says trooper hit by car on I-95

HOBE SOUND (AP) — The Florida Highway Patrol says a trooper has been seriously injured while investigating a crash along Interstate 95.

Lt. Alvaro Feola said the trooper was standing in a northbound lane early Monday when he was struck by a car.

Feola said the trooper was taken as a "trauma alert" to St. Mary's Medical Center in West Palm Beach.

The trooper's name hasn't been released. No additional details were available.

Man attacked by gator, not seriously injured

LAKELAND (AP) — An elderly man was attacked by an alligator in Florida but didn't have serious injuries.

Polk County Sheriff's Office spokesman Brian Bruchey said the alligator attacked the man's foot near a lake in Lakeland, Florida on Monday.

Bruchey said the man was taken to a hospital as a precautionary measure.

Officers with the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission were searching for the alligator at the lake in a retirement community.

US citizen says he was illegally arrested for ICE

KEY WEST (AP) — A Florida man is suing a local sheriff whose deputies detained him on behalf of federal agents who wanted him deported to Jamaica, even though he is a U.S. citizen.

Peter Brown filed the federal lawsuit on Monday, accusing the Monroe County Sheriff's Office in the Florida Keys of violating his constitutional rights.

Brown wasn't deported after a friend provided the federal Immigration and Customs Enforcement agency with proof of his citizenship.

Brown, who resides in the Keys, said he was arrested last April by deputies at the request of ICE agents. He said he repeatedly told deputies he was a U.S. citizen and offered to produce a birth certificate showing he was born in Philadelphia.

A spokesman for the sheriff's office said they don't comment on pending litigation.

Sheriff: Deputies revive overdose victim twice in 12 hours

PALM COAST (AP) — Deputies in Florida rescued the same overdose victim twice in 12 hours.

Flagler County Sheriff Rick Staley said in a news release that deputies used Narcan to revive the man.

The Daytona Beach News-Journal reports a friend called deputies to the home of David Fisher after finding him motionless inside his bathroom. Deputies applied Narcan, which is an opiate antidote. It took three doses for Fisher to become responsive.

He was taken to a hospital where he was treated and released. But soon he was back in the hospital again, after deputies had once again revived him with Narcan.

Staley says so far this year, deputies have responded to 54 overdose calls and used Narcan dozens of times.

He said more treatment is needed for people struggling with drug addiction.

Woman killed while helping panhandler was known for kindness

By DAVID McFADDEN
Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Relatives of a Maryland woman who was knifed to death in front of her family while trying to help a panhandler said Monday that she died the way she lived: looking out for others and trying to be kind.

Authorities say Jacquelyn Smith, an electrical engineer from Maryland's Harford County, lowered her car's front passenger side window in Baltimore early Saturday to give money to a young woman who appeared to be holding a swaddled infant and carried a cardboard sign reading: "Please help me feed my baby." Authorities say a man approached the car with the woman for the cash handoff. After a struggle over Smith's wallet, he stabbed Smith and fled on foot with the panhandler.

Smith's grieving 19-year-old son, college sophomore David Hood, described his mother as a strong-willed woman who always taught her children about the importance of generosity and family. He told The Associated Press that she was in the car with her stepdaughter and her husband when she was fatally stabbed in the torso. Her husband, Keith, was behind the wheel at the time.

"I think it was a split-second decision of wanting to help somebody else. She really cared for everybody. She loved everyone and was very compassionate," her son said in a phone interview from the family's home in Aberdeen, a suburb some 25 miles northeast of Baltimore.

There have been no arrests in the murder of the Good Samaritan. A law enforcement team went Monday to the East Baltimore intersection where Smith was slain to hand out flyers and canvass residents. The young woman investigators are seeking appeared to be about 20 and the man was roughly 30.

Mayor Catherine Pugh described Smith's slaying as a "terrible tragedy" and said the city was "deploying all available resources within our police department to find and bring to justice those responsible for this senseless act." She urged altruistic people to be cautious.

"Particularly in this season when we are inclined to give to those we perceive to need a helping hand, we urge all to exercise extra judgment and caution," Pugh said in a Monday email.

Smith's husband, Keith, told WMAR-TV that she felt moved by the sight of what appeared to be a struggling young mother with a baby standing by an intersection on a cold drizzling night. After his wife waved the young woman over, he said a man emerged "out of nowhere" and came walking over to their car alongside the panhandler. With the car's windows down, he said the man asked him if he could thank his wife.

"And within that split second this guy commences to stab my wife," he told WMAR.

The Baltimore Police Department said the male suspect "reached in to grab the female victim's wallet when a struggle ensued." He stabbed her during the struggle, according to a police statement.

Jane Piliavin, a professor emeritus of sociology at the University of Wisconsin who authored a book on emergency intervention, said women are more likely to respond to a child in trouble than are men. She didn't believe there would be any sustained local impact making people less inclined to assist panhandlers after the Good Samaritan's murder.

"Probably there is a brief impact on others' interventions. Since most intervention is impulsive, I would not expect much of an effect," she said in a phone interview.

Exam: Black man killed by officer shot 3 times in back

By JAY REEVES
Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — A forensic examination shows a black man was shot three times in the back side of his body when an Alabama police officer mistook him for the shooter after gunfire erupted at a crowded shopping mall, the man's family said Monday.

The results of a report commissioned by the family are "devastating" to relatives of Emantic "EJ" Bradford Jr., their lawyer, Ben Crump, said at an emotional news conference.

Emantic Bradford Sr. angrily jabbed his finger at the TV cameras as he addressed the unnamed officer, saying: "You're a coward!"

The officer in the Birmingham suburb of Hoover should be charged with homicide, Bradford said, "because this is murder."

The Rev. Jesse Jackson also attended the news conference at The Rock, a small church EJ Bradford attended in north Birmingham. Jackson said authorities' refusal to release video evidence smacks of a cover-up.

Police in Hoover reiterated Monday that they won't release officer video or other evidence about the Thanksgiving night killing until the state investigation is complete.

Report: Maria had $43B impact on Puerto Rico's economy

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A report from Puerto Rico's government says Hurricane Maria had a $43 billion impact on the U.S. territory's economy, $1 billion more than originally estimated.

The Puerto Rico Planning Board's report says its calculations took into account millions of dollars received so far in federal hurricane recovery funds and insurance money.

Overall, the board found that the capital of San Juan was among the six most affected cities on the island after the Category 4 storm hit in September 2017, causing more than an estimated $100 billion in damage.

"Given the magnitude of the natural disaster, the economic sectors will keep feeling the impact for an undetermined amount of time," the report says.

The board said it came up with the $43 billion figure in part via questionnaires issued to the public and private sectors as well as statistics provided by professional associations through October.

Health chief: Pediatric deaths show communication problem

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Nearly two dozen children at a long-term care facility showed symptoms of a viral infection and two had died by the time New Jersey's health department was notified about the outbreak this fall, said Dr. Shereef Elnahal, the department's top official.

At a hearing Monday on the deaths of 11 children at the facility, Elnahal told a legislative committee that he has formed new internal policy requiring him and his principal deputy to be notified of any outbreaks where pediatric deaths have occurred.

"Leadership at the highest levels in the department need to be made aware of severe facility outbreaks immediately, in case deviations from protocol are warranted," Elnahal said.

Trump now wants $778,000 in legal fees and sanctions from Stormy Daniels

LOS ANGELES — Lawyers for President Donald Trump asked a court Monday for nearly $800,000 in lawyers' fees and penalties from porn actress Stormy Daniels for a failed defamation lawsuit against him.

Attorney Charles Harder defended ringing up a nearly $390,000 legal bill for the president and asked for an equal amount in sanctions as a deterrent against a "repeat filer of frivolous defamation cases."

Judge S. James Otero didn't immediately rule. He noted that fees by Harder's firm — as high as $840 an hour — were reasonable but the 580 hours spent on the case appeared to be excessive and might be trimmed in his eventual award. He didn't indicate how he felt about the requested penalties, but had questioned whether attorneys' fees alone would serve as a deterrent.

Harder had not put a dollar figure on sanctions he was seeking before the hearing and Daniels' attorney Michael Avenatti objected vehemently, calling it "absurd and outrageous."

"You can't just pick a number out of thin air in an effort to put my client under Donald Trump's thumb and intimidate her," Avenatti said.

Concerned parent seeks advice about vaping teenagers

Dr. Roach

DEAR DR. ROACH: My teens keep smoking all these flavored, ethereal wand vapors. They claim it tastes good and even try tricks with the vapor. I'm a concerned parent as I hear these are dangerous magic cigarettes. I would like to know more about them and get your advice on how to deal with these unruly teens. — H.R.

ANSWER: Vaping has become increasingly prevalent, with 1.7 million high school students (and almost 11 million overall adults in the U.S.) using these devices. One popular brand is called JUUL, but they also are called vape pens, e-cigarettes or e-hookahs. They are essentially drug delivery devices for nicotine, an addictive and highly toxic substance. (Not all liquids used for vaping contain nicotine, although some labeled "nicotine free" were found to have nicotine. Cannabis also may be used in a vaping device.)

Although teens and young adults perceive them as being not at all dangerous or only minimally so, the extent of health dangers is not well known yet. While it's clear that vaping is not as dangerous as smoking, that's hardly a stellar recommendation.

In addition to nicotine, there are several other health risks in the aerosolized liquid that is inhaled into the lungs. Toxic chemicals, including lead and formaldehyde, are present in the vapor. The usual liquid used, propylene glycol, can cause asthma and allergic symptoms in some users. Similarly, the flavoring agents used can act as lung irritants, both to the user and to those who inhale the vapor secondhand.

It is concerning that the flavors and packaging used in vaping liquid may be appealing to young people. It is possible but unproven that people who vape are more likely to take up smoking. Thus, vaping has modest dangers in itself, but also might lead to tobacco smoking with its much greater risk of heart disease and cancer, neither of which is yet described with vaping.

I am not an expert on unruly teens. I can provide data and education, which may not be the most effective way of stopping underage use of e-cigarettes. However, as of this writing, the Food and Drug Administration is looking at a host of regulatory actions, which may be more effective in reducing vaping among young users.

DEAR DR. ROACH: What are your thoughts on the effectiveness of oregano oil on the cold or flu? — D.L.G.

ANSWER: There is almost no evidence on the effectiveness of oregano oil for any condition. However, there are substances found in oregano that are known to have beneficial biological effects. It's not clear how well these beneficial substances are absorbed or whether they have helpful or harmful effects.

The known side effects of oregano oil seem to be mild; stomach upset and allergic reactions are reported.

The main concern I have about the use of alternative therapies is that it may prevent people from using traditional effective therapies. For colds, since there really aren't any therapies that significantly speed healing, I have no objection with using oregano oil if it helps with symptoms. However, since there is moderately effective prevention for the flu (the vaccine) and modestly effective treatment (oseltamivir), I wouldn't recommend that oregano oil be used instead of effective treatment for influenza. The flu was estimated to have killed 80,000 people in the U.S. last year.

Men's friendship changes when one finds a new job

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I thought I had a best friend. We got to know each other when we worked together for almost four years.

When I went to rehab for six weeks, he came to visit me. But when I celebrated my first year of sobriety a few months back, he never congratulated me. I found a new job almost a year ago, so we stopped seeing or contacting each other.

I feel hurt that he hasn't checked in with me, but I feel like my friendship should be valued and that friendships should be a two-way street.

Is it too late to reach out? — Friendless Guy In California

DEAR FRIENDLESS GUY: The fact you no longer work together may have something to do with his silence — out of sight, out of mind.

It's possible he may have met someone and be involved in a romance, or just busy. If you were the heavy lifter in your relationship, you should not expect him to change. I think it's time YOU reached out and checked in.

DEAR ABBY: Lately I have been feeling torn between staying in my relationship or leaving. I have always maintained I was doing the right thing for my kids by staying with their father. He's a good man, but he has always said he never wanted kids.

I don't want my kids to miss out on a full and memorable childhood, but he is more focused on his own wants and needs. We have a family vacation trip planned with my family, and he has chosen not to go and instead take a week for himself to do what he wants.

I don't know what to do. Help, please. — Wants What's Best In Idaho

DEAR WANTS: What you need to do is evaluate your options and not overreact. Discuss this with someone who is rational. Be careful before making any rash decisions. No one's perfect, and he may become more hands-on as the kids get older.

Your pipes under pressure

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: Temperatures should be chilly over most of the country now. Have you given thought to the PIPES in your home? Water expands in the cold weather — this can put pressure on your pipes.

Which pipes are at risk for freezing?

Pipes on exterior walls with little insulation, pipes in unheated areas of your home such as the basement, and outdoor pipes for your pool or sprinkler system. Here are some hints to help keep pipes running and warm:

* Keeping kitchen and bath cabinet doors open can allow warm air to circulate.
* When temperatures outside plummet, a dripping faucet can help prevent frozen pipes.
* Going away? Don't let the temperature in your home drop below 55 degrees Fahrenheit.

For more hints on pipes, contact a licensed plumber in your area. — Heloise

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The way it goes with patterns is that the elements have to repeat at some point. No repetition, no pattern. If things go on too long without repetition, it makes you uncomfortable. But maybe this is just a really involved pattern.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). When you love someone, you want that person to be happy even if their happiness doesn't happen with you or as a direct result of anything you've done. Right now, another person's happiness might even come as a relief.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Some of the things you've been through now seem a little unbelievable to you. But just because an experience is uncommon doesn't make it less real. The unbelievable things are the best part of your story. Remember them now.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Loss is a regular part of life, though not significantly impactful, as there is always something to be gained, too. You won't notice today's loss, and you'll benefit from what takes its place.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The best part of a long journey will be the first and the last mile. The middle offers challenges and tests, which you'll overcome by remembering why you wanted to do this in the first place.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The saying "No good deed goes unpunished" may come to mind as your kindness leads you down a complicated path. This is the stuff that makes you a broader, wiser and more knowledgeable person.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). How can you be happier at work? This is the question that will lead you to make a few small adjustments that are the start to what will ultimately lead to more smiles in your lifetime.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Has caring too much ever been a problem for you? Of course. In fact, it's a problem right now. And though it might be impossible not to care at all, it will help you to loosen your grip just a little... then, perhaps, a little more.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Puppy dog eyes are more adorable than spider eyes, though they may be no less dangerous. This is because humans can't help but be disarmed by cuteness — a fact you'll use to your advantage today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Each person is a subject to be learned. It takes time, objectivity and focus. It takes seeing someone in many different kinds of scenarios.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You'll come across those whose relationship with the truth is tenuous at best. Maybe half of what they say is real, but which half? Take the whole expression as metaphor and you may just understand it all.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You want to fulfill the requests of people you like, but it's not always possible or practical to do so in the long run. Consider the bigger picture before committing to something.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Dec. 4). Your appreciation of beauty could inspire you to travel or to take personal and emotional risks that you will never forget. The great loveliness you witness will be richly rewarding. Other glories of this solar return will include a wad of money you stash away, a brush with fame and a legendary comedy of errors. Libra and Capricorn adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 7, 20, 4, 44 and 18.

Doubling a good player just because you have five trumps is usually a bad idea, especially when they are low trumps. You send a telegraph about the bad trump split that your opponent will use to help him. South in today's deal was Jill Meyers, from California, a seven-time World Champion. North was California expert Ed Davis, a longtime partner.

Note Davis's excellent three-heart bid. He would have raised earlier with three, so two good ones were enough to raise now. West continued with a second spade at trick two, forcing dummy to ruff with the queen of hearts. Meyers led a club to her jack and a heart to the king. When West followed with the 10, she started playing high clubs from the dummy. East ruffed the third club as Meyers discarded her last spade.

East led his last spade. Meyers ruffed and led a diamond to dummy's 10, another play suggested by the double. East won with his ace, but with only hearts and diamonds remaining, there was nothing he could do. He chose to return a diamond, which Meyers won in dummy and led high clubs. Eventually, East had to ruff and Meyers picked up all of East's trumps to bring home her contract. Well played, but East gave her the telegraph.

BUSH

placed wreaths in the short ceremony before the rotunda was to be opened to the public. It was to remain open overnight.

Sent off from Texas with a 21-gun salute, Bush's casket was carried to Joint Base Andrews outside the capital city aboard an aircraft that often serves as Air Force One and designated "Special Air Mission 41" in honor of Bush's place on the chronological list of presidents.

Cannon roared again outside the Capitol as the sun sank and his eldest son, former President George W. Bush, stood with his hand over his heart, watching the casket's procession up the steps.

Bush was remembered just feet away from what he called "Democracy's front porch," the west-facing steps of the Capitol where he was sworn in as president.

He will lie in state in the Capitol for public visitation through Wednesday. An invitation-only funeral service is set for Wednesday at Washington National Cathedral. President Donald Trump and first lady Melania Trump are to attend.

Although Bush's funeral services are suffused with the flourishes accorded presidents, by his choice they will not include a formal funeral procession through downtown Washington.

The younger President Bush, his wife, Laura, and others from the family traveled on the flight from Houston.

On Sunday, students, staff and visitors had flocked to Bush's presidential library on the campus of Texas A&M University, with thousands of mourners paying their respects at a weekend candlelight vigil at a nearby pond and others contributing to growing flower memorials at Bush statues at both the library and a park in downtown Houston.

Former President George W. Bush, Laura Bush, left, and other family members watch as the flag-draped casket of former President George H.W. Bush is carried by a joint services military honor guard to lie in state in the rotunda of the U.S. Capitol, Monday.

After services in Washington, Bush will be returned to Houston to lie in repose at St. Martin's Episcopal Church before burial Thursday at his family plot on the library grounds. His final resting place will be alongside Barbara Bush, his wife of 73 years who died in April, and Robin Bush, the daughter they lost to leukemia in 1953 at age 3.

Trump has ordered the federal government closed Wednesday for a national day of mourning. Flags on public buildings are flying at half-staff for 30 days out of respect for Bush.

Trump, who has not always uttered kind words about the Bush family, offered nothing but praise in the hours after the former president's death was announced.

"He was just a high-quality man who truly loved his family," Trump said Saturday while in Argentina. "One thing that came through loud and clear, he was very proud of his family and very much loved his family. So he was a terrific guy and he'll be missed."

Bush's passing puts him back in the Washington spotlight after more than two decades living the relatively low-key life of a former president. His death also reduces membership in the ex-presidents' club to four: Jimmy Carter, Bill Clinton, George W. Bush and Barack Obama.

A humble hero of World War II, Bush was just 20 when he survived being shot down during a bombing run over a Japanese island. He had joined the Navy when he turned 18.

Shortly before leaving the service, he married his 19-year-old sweetheart, Barbara Pierce, and forged the longest presidential marriage in U.S. history. Bush enrolled at Yale University after military service, becoming a scholar-athlete and captaining the baseball team to two College World Series before graduating Phi Beta Kappa after just 2½ years.

After moving to Texas to work in the oil business, Bush turned his attention to politics in the 1960s. He was elected to the first of two terms in Congress in 1967. He would go on to serve as ambassador to the United Nations and China, head of the CIA and chairman of the Republican National Committee before being elected to two terms as Ronald Reagan's vice president.

Soon after he reached the height of his political popularity following the liberation of Kuwait, with public approval ratings that are the envy of today's politicians, the U.S. economy began to sour and voters began to believe that Bush, never a great communicator — something even he acknowledged — was out of touch with ordinary people.

He was denied a second term by Arkansas Gov. Clinton, who would later become a close friend. The pair worked together to raise tens of millions of dollars for victims of a 2004 Indian Ocean tsunami and of Hurricane Katrina, which swamped New Orleans and the Gulf Coast in 2005.

"Who would have thought that I would be working with Bill Clinton of all people?" he joked in 2005.

In a recent essay, Clinton declared of Bush: "I just loved him."

SPACE

The astronauts were the first sent to be sent to the space station since a crewed Soyuz launch was aborted in October after a booster rocket failed to separate properly, crippling the rocket. The families of the crew, other astronauts and space officials from several nations breathed a sigh of relief after observing the flawless launch.

NASA and Roscosmos said all onboard systems operated normally and the astronauts felt fine during the six-hour trip the space station. After two hours waiting in their capsule to confirm their ship was firmly docked to the station, they exited the capsule to join three astronauts already aboard the orbiting outpost at 1:37 a.m. (2:40 p.m. EST.)

The station's current crew of NASA's Serena Aunon-Chancellor, Russian Sergei Prokopyev and German Alexander Gerst were waiting to greet the newcomers. They are scheduled to return to Earth on Dec. 20.

McClain, Saint-Jacques and Kononenko will spend more than six months at the space station doing research and experiments in biology, Earth science, physical sciences and technology.

A Soyuz-FG rocket carrying NASA astronaut Nick Hague and Roscosmos' Alexei Ovchinin failed two minutes into its flight on Oct. 11, activating an automatic rescue system that sent their capsule into a steep ride back to Earth. They managed to emerge safely despite the harrowing ordeal.

A Russian investigation attributed the failure to a sensor that was damaged during the rocket's final assembly.

NASA announced Monday that Hague and Ovchinin will now launch to the space station on Feb. 28, along with NASA astronaut Christina Hammock Koch.

The Soyuz accident in October was the first aborted crew launch for the Russian space program since 1983, when two Soviet cosmonauts safely jettisoned after a launch pad explosion.

Russian space officials took measures to prevent the repeat of such a rocket failure. Since the October mishap, four successful unmanned Soyuz satellite launches have been conducted to clear the path for the crew's launch on Monday.

After Monday's successful launch, NASA Administrator Jim Bridenstine tweeted his thanks to his Russian counterpart Dmitry Rogozin and to NASA and Roscosmos space teams "for their dedication to making this launch a success."

The Soyuz spacecraft is currently the only vehicle that can ferry crews to the space station, but Russia stands to lose that monopoly in the coming years with the arrival of SpaceX's Dragon and Boeing's Starliner crew capsules.

TESTIFY

Manafort was not off the table.

Prosecutors say Manafort torpedoed his plea deal with special counsel Robert Mueller by repeatedly lying to them, although Manafort denies that he lied.

In one of Monday's tweets, Trump took aim at Michael Cohen, his former personal attorney who once grandly declared he would "take a bullet" for the president but ultimately took a plea deal.

Cohen pleaded guilty last week to lying to Congress about negotiations he had on Trump's behalf for a real estate deal in Moscow.

Though he told lawmakers the talks were done by January 2016, he admitted they actually lasted as late as June — after Trump had clinched the Republican nomination and after Russians had penetrated Democratic email accounts for communications later released through WikiLeaks.

Cohen said he lied out of loyalty to Trump, who insisted throughout the campaign that he had no business dealings in Russia, and to be consistent with his political messaging.

On Monday, Trump ripped into Cohen on Twitter.

"You mean he can do all of the TERRIBLE, unrelated to Trump, things having to do with fraud, big loans, Taxis, etc., and not serve a long prison term?" Trump added that Cohen "makes up stories to get a GREAT & ALREADY reduced deal for himself."

Trump added: "He lied for this outcome and should, in my opinion, serve a full and complete sentence."

Minutes later, Trump lavished praise on his former campaign adviser Roger Stone. Mueller's prosecutors are investigating Stone to learn whether he had advance knowledge of WikiLeaks' plans to release hacked material damaging to Hillary Clinton's presidential effort.

Trump lauded Stone for saying he'd never testify against the president.

"This statement was recently made by Roger Stone, essentially stating that he will not be forced by a rogue and out of control prosecutor to make up lies and stories about 'President Trump,'" he tweeted. "Nice to know that some people still have 'guts!'"

Stone then posted a screenshot of Trump's tweet with a caption that said he was proud of their 40-year relationship and "prouder still of the amazing job he is doing making America Great Again!"

Sen. Mark Warner, the top Democrat on the Senate intelligence committee, said Trump's tweet was inappropriate.

"The President of the United States should not be using his platform to influence potential witnesses in a federal investigation involving his campaign," Warner said in a tweet.

Stone said the idea that Trump's tweet amount to witness tampering is "hysterical."

"I'm not a witness to any proceeding," he said.

David Weinstein, a former Justice Department prosecutor in Florida, said he was surprised by Trump's comments Monday, but didn't believe the tweets alone rose to the level of obstruction or witness tampering because Trump did not explicitly tell anyone what to say or not to say. Subjects of an investigation can still communicate to others entangled in a probe, and though they can encourage them to tell the truth, they cannot coach them to lie, he said.

"What he seems to be saying is that people who continue to show support for him, in some way, may be rewarded for that support," Weinstein said. "I don't think it rises to the level of obstruction yet, but it certainly would cause people who are conducting the investigation to start asking questions about whether or not the target has reached out to them."

Trump's message had an immediate effect on supporters. His remarks prompted Michael Caputo, the president's former campaign aide and a longtime Stone friend, to launch a "GoFundMe" account to help pay Stone's mounting legal fees.

Stone said he's paid about half a million in legal fees already and is projecting that total to reach $2 million.

"I require a small platoon of excellent lawyers and they're not inexpensive," he said.

A conservative author, who is an associate of Stone and in the crosshairs of Mueller's investigation, filed a complaint Monday with the Justice Department, alleging prosecutors tried to coerce him to give false testimony and threatened to indict him.

Investigators are looking into whether Jerome Corsi had contact with WikiLeaks or knew about their plans to release emails damaging to Clinton. Corsi has released documents showing Mueller's prosecutors offered him a deal to plead guilty to a false statements charge but he's rejected the offer. Corsi said he didn't knowingly mislead investigators and wasn't in contact with WikiLeaks. The Justice Department declined to comment on his complaint.

The Russia investigation has dogged Trump for two years. In recent weeks, Trump has sharpened his criticism, accusing Mueller's prosecutors of dirty tactics and pressuring witnesses to lie.

Bucs-Panthers: Meet the castoff crew that shut down the Panthers

By RICK STROUD
Tampa Bay Times

TAMPA — Andrew Adams worked out for five NFL teams after being cut Sept. 1 by the Giants. He had been a starting safety in the league, but every trip ended the same.

Thanks, but no thanks. We'll call you if we have something.

"It's very nerve-wracking," Adams said. "You know you're a good football player and don't know why you're watching football games on Sunday and why you're not playing. It's a little demoralizing but you can't let it get to you.

"So I think that was the hardest part, to keep your head locked in and keep grinding. Just praying every day and knowing it's going to come."

Adams' prayers were answered Sunday. He had three of the Bucs' four interceptions of quarterback Cam Newton in Tampa Bay's 24-17 victory at Raymond James Stadium.

Certainly, the Bucs needed some divine intervention. All five players who started the season in the secondary were on injured reserve or inactive by the time safety Justin Evans left Sunday's game at halftime.

Adams joined the Bucs in Week 3 after safety Chris Conte was stiffed-armed to the I.R. list by Pittsburgh tight end Vance McDonald. But on Sunday, he was the leader of a rag-tag band of pickups that included Javien Elliott and Devonte Harris.

Brent Grimes, Carlton Davis and M.J. Stewart were all inactive with injuries, meaning the Bucs were down to their fifth, sixth and seventh cornerbacks. When Evans reinjured his foot, they were playing their third, fourth and fifth safeties.

"All those guys who came in and we're role players today, and stars today," Bucs coach Dirk Koetter said. "The D was fantastic today. Four turnovers, four interceptions, four sacks."

It was the Bucs (5-7) second win in a row. The turning point came with Carolina trailing 10-7 and driving at the Tampa Bay 25. Elliot jumped a sideline route to D.J. Moore, intercepted the pass and somehow maintained his footing to race 50 yards. That set up Jameis Winston's 13-yard TD pass to Chris Godwin with 13 seconds left in the half.

"I thought he was going to go down right after the catch," Koetter said of Elliott, who was cut just six weeks ago. "I told him at halftime that was a hell of a job just staying up. Then if he had any speed, he would've scored."

Koetter related how Elliott left the team in October to be with his family in Panama City after Hurricane Michael tore through the Florida Panhandle. The Bucs released him shortly after that because they need a roster spot, Koetter said, but resigned him to the practice squad by the end of the week.

"And here he is with the interception today," Koetter said. "That's perseverance by him."

Perseverance is the story of the Bucs revitalized defense that until last week, had not had a turnover since Sept. 24. Under Mark Duffner, serving his seventh game as defensive coordinator, the defensive line has come alive. The Bucs notched their third straight game with four sacks Sunday.

Lady Bobcats get heat check win over Lady Mantas

By Jacob Hoag
Staff Writer

ENGLEWOOD — The first two goals were identical for the Lady Bobcats. Same through ball, same left juke past the keeper and same finish to the center of the net.

Most importantly, same result as the North Port High girls soccer team quelled Lemon Bay's hot start on Monday night with a 3-0 victory.

Both teams came in to the matchup with high confidence. Lemon Bay was 5-1 with 25 goals on the year. On the other side, North Port had yet to lose in four games and have averaged four goals per game.

Getting the win gives the Lady Bobcats (4-0-1, 1-0) a surge of momentum as they prepare for a momentous district game against a 6-0 Venice team on Friday.

North Port's Seraiah Bailey (7) denies Lemon Bay's Hannah Cislo's (11) offensive move with excellent defense.

"I can tell you that the whole team and staff here are very excited," first-year North Port coach Hans Duque said. "We've had a couple (of) tests so far. Our advantage is that we have enough players of good quality that we can play with in different formations. That will help against Venice too because I know they're coming on fire, but so are we."

Coach Gase's improbable Dolphins hang on in playoff race

By STEVEN WINE
AP Sportws Writer

DAVIE, Fla. — Only one NFL team has been outgained by nearly 1,200 yards and is still in the playoff picture — the underwhelming, overachieving Miami Dolphins.

They're 6-6 and part of the crowded AFC wild-card race despite statistics that would sink most teams. The Dolphins rank 29th in the NFL in offense and 29th in defense, 29th in third-down conversions and 28th in red zone scoring.

So how have they managed a lofty .500 record?

"Turnover margin," coach Adam Gase said Monday. "The amount of turnovers our defense is getting is what we need, and then we don't turn it over a whole bunch."

He's right. The Dolphins are tied for seventh in turnover differential at plus-eight, and third in takeaways with 25. The impact on the scoreboard has been "insane," Gase said.

Turnover differential was the difference Sunday, when Miami was outgained by Buffalo 415 yards to 175 but won the turnovers battle, 3-1, and the game, 21-17.

It also helped that the Bills' Charles Clay dropped a fourth-down pass at the goal line in the final minute.

"It's better to be lucky than good," Miami linebacker Kiko Alonso said.

Luck might play a small role in explaining the Dolphins' knack for outperforming the stats. It dates back to Gase's first season in 2016, when they were outgained by 798 yards but went 10-6. That's their only playoff team in the past decade.

Someone reminded Gase his team has been outgained this year by 1,168 yards.

Dan Mullen wasn't thinking about a potential UCF matchup

By MATT BAKER
Tampa Bay Times

While fans (and sports writers) were clamoring for the possibility of a Florida-UCF matchup in the Peach Bowl, Gators coach Dan Mullen wasn't worried about it either way.

"I'm just thrilled for the opportunity to be in a New Year's Six bowl," Mullen said Monday.

That bowl pits his 9-3 Gators against 10-2 Michigan, whom Mullen praised during a teleconference. He hasn't been able to break down a lot of film yet but said the Wolverines' defense is "very aggressive and attacking" and rushes from many different angles.

That's quite a different matchup than the one the Knights would have presented. UCF has the nation's No. 6 scoring offense and is tied with Ole Miss for the sixth-most explosive plays in the country.

Not that Mullen was interested in talking about them.

"I don't care who we're playing. I didn't really care…" Mullen said. "If they rolled out anybody, we would go ready to play. I don't care who it was; they could roll out Notre Dame, Clemson, Oklahoma, Alabama; we're going to show up ready to go play."

Also Monday, Mullen said he doesn't expect any NFL-bound players to skip the bowl game. That includes defensive back Chauncey Gardner-Johnson, who has already declared his intention to enter the draft.

■ NHL: Philadelphia Flyers

Flyers hire Fletcher as new general manager

By DAN GELSTON
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA — The Philadelphia Flyers hired Chuck Fletcher as their general manager on Monday in hopes that he can resuscitate one of the worst teams in the NHL.

Fletcher, who will replace the fired Ron Hextall, had been working as a senior adviser to the New Jersey Devils after spending the last nine seasons as GM of the Minnesota Wild. The Wild had only two playoff series victories under Fletcher, a 25-year veteran of NHL management, and did not renew his contract in April. They went 15-29 in the playoffs during Fletcher's tenure, enough evidence that the roster wasn't built well enough despite all the success the team enjoyed in the regular season.

That didn't dissuade Flyers President Paul Holmgren from pursuing the 51-year-old Fletcher a week after he cut ties with Hextall following 4½ seasons. The Flyers are 11-12-2 and only the Devils are worse in the Eastern Conference. Holmgren fired Hextall citing "philosophical differences" and an "unyielding" approach toward sticking with his methodical rebuilding plan.

Holmgren and parent company Comcast Spectacor want to win now and have squirmed as the Flyers have seen attendance dip while they lose a popularity contest to the 76ers, their fellow Wells Fargo Center tenant.

"Chuck has earned success throughout his impressive NHL career and offers the right mix of expertise, business acumen and leadership qualities that the Flyers need today as we work to achieve our ultimate goal, the Stanley Cup Championship," Comcast Spectacor Chairman and CEO Dave Scott said in a statement.

The Flyers also purged the organization of their longtime assistant general manager and an assistant coach considered close confidants of Hextall. Hextall had distanced himself from many key figures inside the organization and cut off alumni access to the team, factors that led to his dismissal.

Fletcher will have to do more than play nice with the old Broad Street Bullies to bring the Flyers their first championship since they won consecutive Stanley Cups in 1974-75.

Holmgren said the new GM would decide the fate of coach Dave Hakstol, who is on the hot seat in his fourth season. Hakstol was hired by Hextall out of North Dakota and has led the Flyers to two first-round playoff exits. He has tried to mesh a roster heavy with pricey veterans like Claude Giroux, Wayne Simmonds, Jake Voracek and James van Riemsdyk with potential blossoming stars in Ivan Provorov, Shayne Gostisbehere and Nolan Patrick. The Flyers desperately need a true No. 1 goalie; they've already matched a franchise record with five this season.

Will Fletcher want to trade prospects for veteran help or will he start breaking up a core — Simmonds is a free agent at the end of the season — that hasn't won a playoff series since 2012?

Fletcher, son of longtime NHL executive Cliff Fletcher, also has worked for the Pittsburgh Penguins, Anaheim Ducks and Florida Panthers. With the Wild, he signed Zach Parise and Ryan Suter to 13-year contracts in 2012. Holmgren, Hextall's predecessor, made a serious run at both players and now seems to have found a GM aligned with his hockey philosophies.

"Throughout his career he has helped shape teams that have consistently competed in the playoffs," Holmgren said. "In addition, Chuck's tireless work ethic, wealth of knowledge and experience in the hockey community will be instrumental in leading our team into the future."

Penguins send struggling forward Daniel Sprong to Ducks

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Daniel Sprong experiment is over for the Pittsburgh Penguins.

The Penguins sent Sprong to the Anaheim Ducks on Monday for defenseman Marcus Pettersson.

Pittsburgh selected Sprong in the second round of the 2015 draft, but the 21-year-old struggled to find a secure spot in Pittsburgh's forward group. He thrived at the American Hockey League level, scoring 32 goals in 2017-18 for Pittsburgh's AHL affiliate in Wilkes-Barre/Scranton, but had trouble duplicating that success in the NHL. Sprong has four goals and five assists in 42 NHL games, including no goals and four assists in 16 games this season.

Pettersson, 22, had six assists this season for the Ducks and one goal in 49 career games after making his debut with Anaheim last season.

Maple Leafs trade forward Josh Leivo to Canucks

TORONTO (AP) — The Toronto Maple Leafs traded forward Josh Leivo to the Vancouver Canucks on Monday for forward Michael Carcone.

Leivo had six points (four goals, two assists) in 27 games for the Maple Leafs this season. Carcone has 17 points (6 goals, 11 assists) in 20 games with AHL Utica this season.

In a corresponding move, the Maple Leafs recalled defenseman Travis Dermott from their AHL affiliate.

■WRESTLING:

Hit the mat, wreslting season is upon us

By JACOB HOAG
COMMENTARY

I've been good at a lot of things in my young life, but there is usually something that has stood in my way.

That could be injury, boredom, having to get a job — the usual suspects of a high schooler.

If you've read my columns during football season, you know by now that I was a standout, NFL-bound left tackle at age 14, but my future Hall of Fame career was tragically cut short before high school due to an ACL tear (and also due to my desire to be in the marching band.)

I've been plagued by injuries.

By my 18th birthday, I had two reconstructed knees, a repaired shoulder and back issues stemming from a jump rope and trampoline accident. Don't ask.

I've always loved to play sports — either organized or backyard fun. Even now as an overweight, out of shape 24-year-old, I regularly drive up to Tampa to meet up with a group of friends and play football and ultimate frisbee.

Having joined the marching band as a freshman, the only sport I could compete in was wrestling, which I joined in the summer before my sophomore year.

I was athletic, but needed to cut weight to get down to 220 pounds, and knew nothing of the condition and technique accompanying the sport. Boy, was I in for a shock at the first practice.

We did what they called "25-20s." It started with 25 wide-set pushups, then 25 military pushups, 25 tricep pushups and finishing with 25 squat thrusts.

Take a breath.

Then do 24, then do 23, all the way down to 20. Then curl up into a ball and cry.

By my first match, I had gotten stronger and picked up a few moves from wrestling our best guy, who was 10 pounds heavier then I was. Wrestling at a preseason tournament at Brandon High School, a program known for its 18-year state championship streak, I only wrestled one kid that day and beat him 6-4.

And, in true Hoag fashion, the next practice I tore my labrum in my right shoulder and didn't come back to the team, thus ending my undefeated wrestling career.

Oh well.

This week, area wrestlers start their bid for an undefeated season as the high school wrestling season kicks off.

Last year, Charlotte wrestler Donnie Cataldi did just that, going undefeated on his way to a state title. Teammate Lucas Willis joined him on the title hunt as well, winning a second consecutive state championship.

But don't be surprised if the next state title season comes from Lemon Bay.

Last season, in Mike Schyck's second season as head coach, the Mantas won their second consecutive regional championship and sent seven wrestlers to the state meet. Now, his son Lance Schyck joins the team from Imagine School, where he competed last year as an 8th grader.

The Tarpons and Mantas also look to be among the top area teams, with plenty of firepower returning.

How will they fare? I don't know, I haven't been around these parts long enough to have a gauge. But from what I hear, south Florida should be on the lookout.

The world will never know how good I could've been (probably not great), but wrestling is a very unique sport that you can't really grasp until you participate.

It's tough, but rewarding, and anyone who does it will tell you the same. Good luck to all who lay it all on the mat this year.

Try to make it more than one match.

calculated passes helped find lanes.

In the 16th minute, the Lady Bobcats finally got their chance as sophomore Aleena Purvis streaked down the center of the field. Getting the pass, she charged into the box before cutting left past keeper Taylor Mason and finding the center of the net.

Eleven minutes later, sophomore Emily Idoyaga found herself in the exact same scenario. Getting the feed in the center of the field, she charged in, cut left and shot right to give the Lady Bobcats a 2-0 lead.

"Our goal for tonight was to be able to finally control the midfield," Duque said. "If it's a through ball, they figure it out. Those first two goals were a photocopy of each other and it's not just because we practice that play. You see a lot in high school they will play back and send a ball in the air and hope the forward scores. We keep the ball on the ground and that's what worked today."

Despite the 2-0 hole, Lemon Bay was even in shots with five in the first half.

Just before halftime, the Lady Mantas (5-2, 1-0) got two prime opportunities on a pair of free kicks, but North Port keeper Jordan Wyatt was able to stop both attempts.

"It was kind of disappointing because I know we can play feet a lot better," Lemon Bay coach Katie Cooke said. "It seemed like every time we got the ball we were giving it away. We just couldn't get anything to fall our way. We weren't being patient enough on our one on ones. We were just firing them off without really looking for the pointers. A lot of just not doing what we should be doing."

After the break, North Port wasted little time, scoring on a kick just outside the box by Idoyaga in the first 45 seconds of play.

North Port finished with a slim 11-8 edge in shots on goal, but was able to make more with the opportunities they earned. Mason finished with eight saves. Wyatt had six.

With this test now behind them, the Lady Bobcats now look toward their road match against Venice with the district lead in the balance.

Chicago Bulls fire coach Fred Hoiberg; Boylen takes over

By ANDREW SELIGMAN
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO — The skidding Chicago Bulls fired coach Fred Hoiberg on Monday and promoted associate head coach Jim Boylen in hopes of lifting the team from the bottom of the standings.

Chicago is averaging 103.4 points — 28th in the NBA — and is getting outscored by 9.6 per game.

Hoiberg, who had to deal with a veteran roster that didn't fit his style early on and then injuries to key players starting in training camp, never found his footing in Chicago. It added up to a 115-155 mark with one playoff appearance in three-plus seasons — 5-19 this year. The only teams with worse records were Cleveland and Phoenix.

Even so, executive vice president of basketball operations John Paxson insisted this decision went beyond wins and losses, citing a lack of "energy and spirit."

"We were in a similar situation last year at this time," Paxson said. "But the entire energy about this group was different back then. We felt that here in the last several weeks, that something's different. What we're lacking ... is a spirit about our team."

Paxson also said the Bulls are committed to Boylen as their long-term head coach and that general manager Gar Forman is "absolutely safe."

"We can own 'Bulls' across our chest better," said Boylen, who will be serving as an NBA head coach for the first time.

Hoiberg was in a tough position with four of the team's top players getting injured, a run that started early in training camp.

Forward Lauri Markkanen, the centerpiece of their rebuilding plan, missed the first 23 games after spraining his left elbow at practice in late September. His first appearance this season — a loss at Houston — came in Hoiberg's final game for Chicago.

Guard Denzel Valentine will miss the entire season because of a left ankle injury. Forward Bobby Portis (right knee) has played in four games and point guard Kris Dunn (left knee) has appeared in one, though both are expected back soon.

"For us to sit here and think that just because we're getting guys back, I think that would mask the problems that we've seen," Paxson said. "We gave Fred an opportunity. He did a lot of good things for us. But I'm tasked with, Gar's tasked with, looking at the underlying things in the organization."

Hoiberg played four seasons in Chicago and had a long history with Forman. He was hired as the Bulls' head coach in June 2015 after spending five seasons at Iowa State, where the former player was nicknamed "The Mayor." Hoiberg went 115-56 with the Cyclones, including four straight NCAA Tournament appearances and back-to-back Big 12 tournament titles.

He replaced Tom Thibodeau, who was fired after five seasons, and the hope was that the free-wheeling style he used with the Cyclones would work in the NBA and that he would fare better than another former Iowa State coach, Tim Floyd, who went 49-190 record in three-plus seasons with the Bulls.

The circumstances were different, but the results were just as disappointing. Derrick Rose, Jimmy Butler, Pau Gasol and Nikola Mirotic were among the departures as the Bulls tried to find the right formula.

Butler called out Hoiberg in his first year, saying the team needed to be "coached a lot harder." The Bulls then signed veterans Dwyane Wade and Rajon Rondo — odd fits for Hoiberg's offense — and got knocked out by Boston in the first round of the playoffs.

The Bulls finally went all-in on rebuilding when they dealt Butler to Minnesota in a 2017 draft night trade. They got Markkanen, Dunn and Zach LaVine and appeared to be on the right track last season, with their competitiveness and player development.

Boylen becomes the sixth coach hired by the current front office. He spent four years as the head coach at the University of Utah. Over 20 years in the NBA, he also has been an assistant in Houston, Golden State, Milwaukee, Indiana and San Antonio.

Dodgers and Dave Roberts agree to a four-year contract

By JORGE CASTILLO
Los Angeles Times (TNS)

LOS ANGELES — The Dodgers maintained their objective was to sign manager Dave Roberts to a long-term contract since their season ended in late October. They were confident they would cross it off their lengthy offseason to-do list. It was just a matter of time. And on Monday, over a month after the team's season ended with another World Series appearance under Roberts, the Dodgers announced they signed their manager to a four-year deal.

Roberts was already under contract for the 2019 season after the Dodgers picked up the $1.1-million team option on his previous contract in early November. The new pact runs through the 2022 season, giving Roberts an additional three years under contract.

"When I was hired to lead this team three years ago, I said at the time that managing the Dodgers is truly the opportunity of a lifetime and I feel the exact same way today," Roberts said in a team-issued statement. "We've worked hard to develop a team and culture that will put us in position to win the World Series every season, but we still have yet to achieve our ultimate goal and that is what drives me each day."

Roberts, 46, stands to become the first person to manage the Dodgers for more than five seasons since Tommy Lasorda, who managed the club for 20 years. Roberts has led the Dodgers to three straight National League West titles and two consecutive National League pennants — becoming the first Dodgers manager to do so since Lasorda in 1977 and 1978. He was named the NL Manager of the Year in his first season in 2016.

"Keeping Doc as our leader on the field was a top priority this offseason and now that we've accomplished that we are excited to collectively shift all of our focus to doing all we can to bring a World Championship to our passionate fans," Dodgers president of baseball operations Andrew Friedman said in the team-issued statement.

Mets get Cano, Diaz and cash from Mariners in 7-player trade

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets have acquired longtime star second baseman Robinson Cano and major league saves leader Edwin Diaz from the Seattle Mariners in a seven-player trade.

The Mets also got cash from the rebuilding Mariners in the deal Monday.

Seattle received outfielder Jay Bruce, reliever Anthony Swarzak and three prospects: former first-round draft picks Justin Dunn and Jarred Kelenic plus right-hander Gerson Bautista.

Japanese star lefty Kikuchi available to MLB teams

NEW YORK (AP) — Star Japanese left-hander Yusei Kikuchi will be available to major league teams starting Tuesday, with the New York Yankees expected to be among those interested.

The 27-year-old Seibu Lions ace will have until Jan. 2 to sign a contract with a big league club. The Lions would then receive a posting fee based on the dollar amount of the pitcher's contract.

If Kikuchi doesn't reach a deal with an MLB team, he remains with Seibu.

Kikuchi was 14-4 with 3.08 ERA this season, and was 16-6 with a 1.97 ERA the previous year.

Kikuchi, who played for the same high school as two-way star Shohei Ohtani of the Los Angeles Angels, is 73-46 with a 2.77 ERA in eight seasons in Japan.

Yankees owner Hal Steinbrenner said last month that he was aware of Kikuchi's ability.

"I saw film on him during the pro scouting meetings," Steinbrenner said. "We talked about that individual. We've always been paying attention to that area of the world — some unbelievably great players came out of there. So it won't be any different this year."

■ COLLEGE FOOTBALL: Alabama Crimson Tide

Tagovailoa produces everything but singular Heisman moment

By JOHN ZENOR
AP Sports Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Tua Tagovailoa hasn't produced a so-called Heisman moment this season.

He didn't have one in the Southeastern Conference championship game. Hurt and not quite himself, the Alabama quarterback was sidelined for the climactic final minutes of the top-ranked Crimson Tide's comeback, 35-28 win Saturday over No. 6 Georgia in Atlanta.

So Tagovailoa, hampered by a high ankle sprain, didn't produce a defining play or performance in the biggest game of a season that Alabama has mostly dominated .

To Tagovailoa's teammates, that shouldn't matter.

Though obviously somewhat biased, they may be right.

He's still expected to be among the Heisman finalists announced Monday evening.

"Tua's the best football player in the country," Alabama tailback Damien Harris said after the title game. "I don't think he needs a Heisman moment. That's some made-up thing, criteria, that people have invented to try to get people an award if they necessarily deserve it or not.

"Tua's the most deserving of the Heisman and I hope everybody sees it that way because what he's done for our team, for our university, for our community, for our fans, for everybody, is just irreplaceable. I hope that everybody realizes that."

Truth is, Tagovailoa started 2018 with a Heisman moment — just in a different season.

The second-half comeback and winning, 41-yard touchdown pass to DeVonta Smith in overtime just happened to come at the end of last season in the national title game.

It gave the sophomore from Hawaii national name recognition and made him the betting favorite for the Heisman even before he started a game. He has lived up to the hype .

Tagovailoa delivered possibly the most dominating season of any quarterback at Alabama, which has never had a Heisman winner at the position. He was named AP's SEC offensive player of the year on Monday and was a unanimous pick as the first-team quarterback.

Tagovailoa has led the Tide back to the playoffs and a matchup with Kyler Murray and Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl on Dec. 29.

It was a season of terrific performances when Alabama was so dominant that Tagovailoa threw only three fourth-quarter passes during the first 12 games. There were plenty of dynamic plays from the left-hander, starting on the season's opening drive when he threw for a touchdown after spinning away from one Louisville defender and launching an off-balance, midair touchdown pass just before taking a hit.

Tagovailoa has passed for 3,353 yards and a school-record 37 touchdowns against just four interceptions. But two of those picks came near Georgia's goal line in the SEC title game in Atlanta's Mercedes-Benz Stadium.

He came into the game as the nation's most efficient passer and widely regarded as the Heisman front-runner but rolled his left ankle early and mostly struggled. Tagovailao was helped off the field after his own offensive lineman landed on his right foot in the fourth quarter.

Jalen Hurts, who had started the past two years before Tagovailoa's emergence, ended up being the game's hero in a role reversal from the national title game in the same building against the same opponent.

Tagovailoa's day ended with a pedestrian 10-of-25, 164-yard, one-touchdown stat line. It remains to be seen how much it weighed into the decisions of Heisman voters.

It also remains to be seen how swiftly he'll be able to practice after having the ankle scoped, a process coach Nick Saban perhaps optimistically said could take about two weeks.

Tagovailoa hasn't talked to reporters since the game, but teammates voiced hopes that their star quarterback would be judged more on the first 12 games.

"I feel like he's one of the best players in the country," tight end Irv Smith Jr. said. "He showed it all season long. He went through some adversity (Saturday) night with some injuries and he couldn't really extend the plays with his legs. But he still did a great job."

Tagovailoa piled up five 300-yard passing games this season and accounted for a school-record six touchdowns — five passing, one rushing — in the regular season finale against Auburn. Despite all that, Harris calls him "the most humble guy that I know."

Even after completing 67.7 percent of his passes, Tagovailoa last week reflected on how many bad passes he's thrown by his own estimation.

"I've thrown a lot. A lot," Tagovailoa said. "Probably thrown more incompletions than I've thrown completions. You want to include practices, summer practices, spring practices?"

Just games.

"I'd say I've thrown some balls that weren't catchable," Tagovailoa said, "but the receivers made me look good."

Florida State defensive end Brian Burns declares for draft

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State defensive end Brian Burns has declared for the NFL draft.

Burns announced his decision Monday on Twitter. He told Yahoo! Sports his time at Florida State was "some of the best years of my life" but also says he can't pass up the opportunity to turn pro.

The 6-foot-5, 235-pound Burns was named a first-team All-ACC pick has been projected by some draft analysts as a potential first-round selection.

Burns had 23 career sacks, which places him in a tie for seventh on Florida State's all-time sack list. He had 10 sacks in his junior season and also set career highs with 52 tackles and 15.5 tackles for loss. He was often one of Florida State's most consistent players on a defense that struggled in the second half of the season as the Seminoles (5-7) missed out on a bowl game.

Florida State coaches are still waiting on decisions from a small group of draft-eligible juniors, including quarterback Deondre Francois, linebacker Dontavious Jackson and cornerback Levonta Taylor.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State junior Kelvin Harmon is entering the NFL draft and won't play in the Gator Bowl.

Harmon announced his decision Monday through the school, with the receiver saying he and his family have decided "it is time for me to proceed to the next chapter in my football life."

Harmon caught 177 passes for 2,665 yards in his career, and his 1,186 yards receiving this year marked the fourth-best single-season total in program history.

Harmon's decision was expected. He took part in the Wolfpack's Senior Night ceremonies before the Wake Forest game last month.

"Great," Gase responded, meaning the opposite of great. His team is on pace to surpass the franchise record disparity of 1,321 in 1967, the Dolphins' second season.

This year only Cincinnati (5-7) and Arizona (3-9) have larger yardage deficits. To which the Dolphins say: So what.

"It's all about us putting the ball in the end zone and having the most points at the end of the game," running back Kenyan Drake said.

Oddsmakers aren't impressed by that approach: Miami is a touchdown underdog at home Sunday against AFC East leader New England (9-3).

Gase believes the Dolphins actually should be 8-4. They blew double-digit fourth-quarter leads in losses at Cincinnati and Indianapolis.

As it is, Miami is tied with three other teams in the AFC, one game behind the Baltimore Ravens for the sixth seed and final wild-card spot in the AFC.

"Obviously, in order to stay in the hunt, we've got to win," receiver Kenny Stills said. "And we know that."

For a change, the Dolphins begin the week with no significant new injuries. Ryan Tannehill, playing in his second game since returning from a shoulder injury, shook off several jarring hits to throw three touchdown passes against Buffalo.

"He's as tough as they come," Gase said.

The Dolphins have endured so many injuries that Gase said it's a different team from the one that lost to New England 38-7 in Week 4.

The obvious goal this week will be to keep the score closer, and if the Dolphins do that, don't discount their chances. In one-score games Gase is 6-1 this year, and 19-6 in his three seasons with the Dolphins.

In other games he's 3-17. Sometimes relying on turnovers isn't enough.

Guy, Hunter lead No. 4 Virginia past Morgan State, 83-45

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — De'Andre Hunter and Kyle Guy scored 15 points each and Virginia beat Morgan State 83-45 on Monday night.

Nine different Cavaliers scored during a 24-6 first-half burst that turned a 23-14 lead into a 47-20 runaway. Virginia (8-0) then kept the defensive clamps on the Bears, who didn't make their third field goal of the second half until 1:57 remained.

Malik Miller and Victor Curry led the Bears (2-5) with seven points apiece. Morgan State was 5 for 28 (19.7 percent) from the field in the second half and missed all eight of its 3-point tries. For the game, the Bears shot 14 for 54 (25.9 percent).

Virginia was sloppy early with six turnovers in the first 12 minutes, but shot well from the start. The Cavaliers made 15 of 23 shots (65.2 percent) in the opening half, including 7 of 11 (63.6) from 3-point range. Braxton Key began the long run in the first half with a pair of free throws, and by the time Cody Stattmann capped it with a 3-pointer, nine of the Cavaliers who scored in the half had done so during the run.

With the expected mismatch, Virginia coach Tony Bennett used his bench liberally, inserting 10 players in the first half.

The biggest cheer after halftime came in the closing minutes when team manager Grant Kersey, who gets to dress for home games, fed fellow walk-on Austin Katstra for a fast-break dunk. Moments later, Katstra fed Kersey for a layup and a three-point play.

Nick Ward scores 26, No. 10 Michigan State beats Iowa 90-68

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Nick Ward made all 10 of his shots, scored a career-high 26 points and grabbed nine rebounds to lead No. 10 Michigan State to a 90-68 win over No. 18 Iowa on Monday night.

The Spartans (7-2, 2-0 Big Ten) trailed for more than six minutes in the first half and were behind by as much as six points before a Ward-led surge gave them a 43-33 lead at halftime.

The Hawkeyes (6-2, 0-2) had no hope for a comeback because they missed 18 of 19 shots to open the second half.

Michigan State's Xavier Tillman scored a career-high 14 points and had eight rebounds off the bench. Nick Goins scored 19, surpassing his combined points from the previous five games, and Joshua Langford added 14 for the Spartans.

Iowa's Tyler Cook scored 15 points, Isaiah Moss had 13 points and Jordan Bohannon added 11.

The Hawkeyes, who came into the game averaging 82.6 points, made just 33 percent of their shots and allowed the Spartans to connect on 52 percent of their shots.

Niagara rides Towns, Tate to 71-67 upset over Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Keleaf Tate scored 17 points, James Towns added 12 points and a career-high nine assists and Niagara stunned Pittsburgh 71-70 on Monday night.

Dominic Robb, a Pittsburgh native and the nation's leader in blocked shots, finished with 12 points, five rebounds and four blocks for the Purple Eagles (3-4), who built a 12-point second-half lead and then fended off a late rally by the Panthers.

Xavier Johnson led Pitt (7-2) with 19 points but his layup just before the buzzer rolled out. The ball was batted to midcourt as time expired and Niagara's bench poured onto the court. Au'Diese Toney added 12 points and nine rebounds for the Panthers, but Pitt was outrebounded 38-31 and let Niagara shoot 48 percent (27 of 56) from the field.

The Purple Eagles, picked to finish ninth in the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, won despite playing their fourth straight game without leading scorer and rebounder Marvin Prochet, who sat out his fourth straight game with a toe injury.

No matter. The Panthers couldn't contain Towns, who got into the lane to set up teammates when he wasn't knocking down shots. A step back 3-pointer by Towns gave the Purple Eagles a 58-48 lead with just over nine minutes to go and Niagara did not wilt when the Panthers turned up the pressure.

The Panthers came in off perhaps their best 10 minutes of the season in the second half of a 74-53 victory over Duquesne in the City Game last Friday. Pitt used a late 15-0 run to put away their crosstown rivals, relying heavily on a defense that has proven physical and disruptive early in head coach Jeff Capel's first season.

Yet Niagara hardly played the role of push-over, using a 10-2 burst at the end of the first half to take a 34-33 lead at the break, just the second time this season the Panthers have trailed after 20 minutes. It wasn't a fluke.

Duncan, Lamb each score 19 as Vermont holds off George Mason

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — Ernie Duncan and Anthony Lamb scored 19 points apiece to help Vermont hold off George Mason for a 72-67 win Monday night.

Stef Smith added 10 points for Vermont, including two free throws that capped the scoring with six seconds left.

Duncan hit a 3-pointer that capped a 9-2 opening run and Lamb's 3 with 9:04 left in the first half pushed the lead into double figures at 18-8. The Catamounts (6-3) led by as many as 14 points in the second half and Duncan's foul shot with 2:56 to play made it 61-49 but Justin Kier scored 14 points from there, including a layup with seven seconds remaining, to pull George Mason within three before Smith's free throws sealed it.

Kier finished with a career-high 32 points on 12-of-15 shooting and Ian Boyd scored 12 for the Patriots (4-6).

Vermont shot 65 percent (15 of 23) from the field in the second half.

■ COLLEGE BASKETBALL: Michigan Wolverines

Impressive wins push Michigan to No. 5 in new AP Top 25 poll

By AARON BEARD
AP Basketball Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. — Maybe AP Top 25 voters were a bit too low on Michigan to start the season. That isn't the case anymore.

The Wolverines (8-0, 1-0 Big Ten) have made a rapid rise to reach No. 5 in Monday's latest poll behind Gonzaga, Kansas, Duke and Virginia after their latest impressive wins. They've beaten every opponent by at least 17 points, with three of those coming against ranked teams.

The Wolverines are off to their best start since winning the first 16 games of the 2012-13 season, a year that saw them play in the NCAA Tournament final. That's also the last time the Wolverines had cracked the top 5 before Monday.

The success has come amid the program's shift to a more defensive focus. Michigan ranks first in the country in KenPom's adjusted defensive efficiency, allowing an average of 86.8 points per 100 possessions.

"They're learning that sometimes you're not going to make a foul shot, you're going to turn it over, you're going to have a tough ref's call," Michigan coach John Beilein said after Saturday's home win against Purdue. "Your defense can be the one constant, as long as we keep embracing that, we can keep having success."

Michigan started the year at No. 19 but quickly leaped into the top 10 after beating reigning NCAA champion Villanova by 27 on the road on Nov. 14 in a rematch of last year's final.

Last week, Michigan was seventh before beating two more ranked opponents at home: North Carolina by 17 in the ACC/Big Ten Challenge, then Purdue by 19 in its league opener.

They also rank among the most efficient offenses in the country, while they've proven adept at defending without drawing whistles — ranking among the nation's best at avoiding fouls and keeping opponents off the foul line.

Yet Beilein chuckled when asked if he was having a difficult time finding things to critique with his team's play after the Purdue win.

"No, I'm finding things," Beilein said. "I'm the same way I'd always be: what can we do better?"

Same quartet

The top four remained unchanged in the poll, with Gonzaga earning 43 of 64 first-place votes. Kansas had 19, while Duke and Virginia each had one.

Top 10

Michigan jumped Nevada and Tennessee, which checked in at No. 6 and No. 7. Auburn, Kentucky and Michigan State rounded out the top 10.

Top risers

No. 12 Wisconsin and No. 13 Texas Tech made the biggest jumps of the week. The Badgers jumped 10 spots to No. 22, while the Red Raiders moved up seven from No. 20.

No. 11 Florida State and No. 17 Buffalo also had notable climbs, each moving up four spots.

Longest slides

Kansas State and Iowa had the biggest slides among ranked teams, with both falling four spots. The No. 16 Wildcats tumbled after a loss to Marquette , while the No. 18 Hawkeyes fell after losing to Wisconsin .

UNC and Ohio State each fell three spots. The No. 14 Tar Heels lost at Michigan a week after losing to Texas, while the No. 19 Buckeyes lost to Syracuse in the ACC/Big Ten Challenge.

Newcomers

There were three new teams in No. 20 Arizona State, No. 24 Nebraska and No. 25 Furman. It is Furman's first AP poll appearance and comes a little more than two weeks after the Paladins won at Villanova in overtime.

The Cornhuskers are making their first poll appearance since November 2014. Arizona State, however, spent much of last season in the poll and peaked at No. 3 last December.

Sliding out

Texas (No. 17), Oregon (No. 18) and Purdue (No. 19) fell out of the poll, with the Ducks and Boilermakers each losing twice last week.

While the Boilermakers lost against ranked FSU and Michigan teams, the Ducks and Longhorns each suffered surprising upsets. Oregon lost as a 24-point favorite at home to Texas Southern , while Texas lost at home to Radford .

Adams, Westbrook lead Thunder to rout of Pistons

DETROIT (AP) — Steven Adams scored 21 points, Russell Westbrook added 18 and the Oklahoma City Thunder ended the Detroit Pistons' five-game winning streak with a 110-83 victory Monday night.

Paul George added 17 points for the Thunder, who are 15-3 since losing their first four games.

Blake Griffin led Detroit with 20 points, while Andre Drummond added 13.

Detroit came into the game having won six straight at home, including the first five games on its current homestand, but fell six points short of its previous season low.

The Thunder led 50-40 at halftime behind 14 points from Adams and 10 from Jeremi Grant. Griffin had 15 points for Detroit, which shot 34.7 percent from the floor.

Detroit's offense continued to struggle in the second half without Reggie Bullock, who left the game in the first quarter with an ankle injury. The Thunder took a 71-51 lead midway through the third quarter and led by 28 at the end of the period. In the fourth, Oklahoma City led by as many as 35.

Adams made his first seven field-goal attempts, along with five free throws, and forced Drummond and Zaza Pachulia to the bench with four fouls each. The Pistons finished the third quarter with Griffin at center and 6-foot-7 Stanley Johnson at power forward.

Big Three leads Warriors to 128-111 win over Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Stephen Curry scored 30 points, Kevin Durant had 28 and Klay Thompson chipped in with 27 as the Golden State Warriors cruised past the Atlanta Hawks 128-111 Monday night, snapping a six-game losing streak on the road.

With Curry scoring 18 points in the opening quarter, this one was never in doubt.

Golden State raced to a 34-17 lead in the first 12 minutes — Curry outscored the Hawks by himself — and the defending NBA champions won for only the fourth time in 10 games.

Playing for the second time since missing 11 games with a groin injury, Curry hit his first six shots, four of them beyond the arc . He finished 6 of 10 from 3-point range

The Warriors led 61-47 at halftime and stretched the margin as high as 24 points, sending the rebuilding Hawks to their third straight loss.

John Collins led Atlanta with 24 points, and Trae Young added 20.

But it was a tough night for Young, the rookie guard who the Hawks are hoping to turn into their Curry-like centerpiece. He had seven turnovers and missed all five of his 3-point attempts.

Burks' late dunk seals Cavs' 99-97 win over slumping Nets

NEW YORK (AP) — Jordan Clarkson had 20 points and 11 rebounds, newcomer Alec Burks threw down a two-handed dunk with 3.2 seconds left in regulation, and the Cleveland Cavaliers avoided a fourth-quarter collapse and edged the Brooklyn Nets 99-97 on Monday night.

Tristan Thompson had 19 points and 14 rebounds for the Cavaliers, who snapped their four-game losing streak.

Cleveland led by 91-80 with 6:03 left in the fourth period after Rodney Hood hit an 18-foot jumper.

The Nets then went on a 17-6 run, tying it 97-all on rookie Rodion Kurucs' put-back layup with 18.9 seconds left.

Burks drove past Spencer Dinwiddie for the dunk that sealed it for Cleveland, which had been winless since beating Philadelphia and Houston on Nov. 23-24.

Dinwiddie's potential game-winning 3-pointer fell short of the rim.

D'Angelo Russell scored 28 points for Brooklyn, which has lost seven straight and nine of 11 overall, including their last six at home. Dinwiddie had 18 points off the bench.

TIP-INS

Cavaliers: Burks had 13 points and seven rebounds in 29 minutes off the bench.

Nets: G Joe Harris missed his third straight game with a strained left hip. ... Russell scored 20 points or more for the 11th time this season. That's the most by a Nets guard in the team's first 25 games since Deron Williams' 12 such games in 2011-12.

■ SURFING

With Olympics looming, surf star captures a bigger prize

By EDDIE PELLS
AP National Writer

If Australia's Stephanie Gilmore captures the gold medal when surfing makes its Olympic debut two years from now, it might not be her most meaningful win.

Gilmore, who is talked about as possibly the greatest athlete of all time in her sport, takes pride in being on the ground floor in the fight for a prize that could have a longer-lasting impact: equal pay for women on the professional tour where she and her rivals make their living.

The World Surf League put itself in rare company earlier this year with its decision to begin paying women the same as men, starting in 2019. While the majors and a few other tournaments in tennis have committed to paying women and men equal prize money, the WSL is the first U.S.-based global sports league to make that move.

The fight for equal pay begun decades ago by Billie Jean King on the tennis courts — and still waged daily in corporations across America that have nothing to do with sports — has found a toehold on the beach.

"Sports are the perfect platform to show equality," Gilmore said last week, after capturing her record-tying seventh season title. "In most workplaces, what people make is completely private. In ours, the prize money is public knowledge."

When the 30-year-old champion started surfing on tour, women typically made around $12,000 for a win, while men — led by 11-time champion Kelly Slater — would rake in around $40,000.

"Surfing was not a career path," Slater recalled of his youth, in the HBO surf documentary "Momentum Generation." ''It was just something you enjoyed doing."

Especially so for the women. And even next year, when women and men are both expected to make around $100,000 for a victory (men made $100,000 and women $65,000 in 2018), it's hard for anyone but those at the very top to get rich riding waves. Competitions are only a piece of the puzzle. Sponsorships, filming and free-surfing make up the rest.

Could the Olympics change that?

It's a debate coursing through the sport that is now experiencing some of the same growing pains as other so-called "lifestyle" sports — namely, snowboarding — two decades after their counter-culture vibe was welcomed into the stiff-suited, tradition-bound world of the Olympics. For the most part, snowboarders have accepted the Olympics and benefited from the platform it provides.

"It's definitely new territory, and some people are a little unsure about it," Gilmore said. "They think it's not authentic surfing. I think it's kind of cool. I grew up watching (Australian 400-meter sprint champion) Cathy Freeman, thinking 'I want to go to the Olympics.' But I thought that, as a surfer, I'd never get that chance."

AP PHOTO

Stephanie Gilmore of Australia competes at the Beachwaver Maui Pro, in Honolua, Hawaii.

Now she will.

Gilmore grew up only 400 meters (1,300 feet) from the beach. Her father loved surfing, and Gilmore and her sisters "really had no choice" but to learn how to ride, she said. By the time she was 11, she knew this was what she wanted to do for a living.

The moment that triggered the run to her seventh world title came at the exact same beach where she learned how to surf.

Gilmore finished a disappointing fifth in this year's season-opening event, the Roxy Pro Gold Coast in Queensland, Australia. Three years had passed since her last season title, and, she conceded, some doubt was starting to creep into her mind as to whether her best days were behind her.

"It sort of killed the confidence and made me think, 'Do you still want this? Do you still have it?'" Gilmore said. "I got quite overwhelmingly emotional. And that's when I realized, 'You obviously still really care about this.'"

Gilmore refocused. She won three events in 2018 and finished second in three more. After the season's final event in Maui last week, she had captured her seventh title, which ties her with another Australian, Layne Beachley, for the most for a woman. (The title came with a $150,000 bonus.) Only Slater, with 11, has more.

Already a household name among surfing fans and her peers, an Olympic gold medal would clearly go a long way toward expanding Gilmore's reach.

In many ways, though, she has already sent quite a powerful message.

"Women like Stephanie are competing in the same conditions, on same waves, showing the same bravery as the men," said the WSL's CEO, Sophie Goldschmidt. "It's incredibly inspiring. They are positive role models, pushing boundaries and gaining audiences. But it's not where it should be. There's still room to grow."
