DeSantis seeks end to Common Core

By MARC VALERO
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — The controversial Common Core/Florida Standards are on Gov. Ron DeSantis' chopping block to be replaced with a yet-to-be developed new set of curriculum standards.

DeSantis issued Executive Order 19-32 on Thursday, "Outlining a path for Florida to improve its education system by eliminating Common Core and paving the way for Florida students to receive a world-class education to prepare them for jobs of the future," according to a press release.

"I have heard parents from across the state loud and clear and they all agree that it is time to finally end Common Core," DeSantis said.

The executive order directs Florida Department of Education Commissioner Richard Corcoran to comprehensively review the academic standards for Florida's kindergarten through 12th-grade students and provide recommended revisions to Gov. DeSantis.

The recommendations would address how Florida will eliminate Common Core (Florida Standards) for a return to the basics of reading, writing and arithmetic and provide a roadmap to make Florida's standards number one in the nation.

Highlands Deputy Superintendent Andrew Lethbridge said a quick change

Helping first responders cope in crisis

Critical Incident Stress Management team came to help in Highlands

SEBRING — When John McMahon started as a firefighter in 1973, his bosses had served in World War II.

"They'd say 'Suck it up, Buttercup,'" McMahon recalls of anytime the work got to someone. Today, however, McMahon serves on the Critical Incident Stress Management (CISM) Team out of Fort Myers, which provides defusing services to emergency responders right after major incidents in DeSoto, Hendry and Lee counties.

They came to Highlands County, immediately after Jan. 23.

Their visit was arranged through the Emergency Operations Center and the Highlands County Public Safety department. It was either their team or the one out of Polk County.

Sebring Police Chief Karl Hoglund said there was a mandatory meeting with the CISM Team after the incident at the Highlands County Sheriff's Office. He scheduled each of his officers on duty that day to talk with team members.

"We feel like we're invincible," Hoglund said. "The reality is, that's just not true."

Having the team there helped Hoglund ensure they were healthy and well.

Did he have a preference between the Fort Myers or Polk County teams? Not at all, Hoglund said.

"I don't have a preference where, just

Sebring chamber event sees community give back

SEBRING — The Greater Sebring Chamber of Commerce celebrated its annual banquet and award ceremony Thursday and raised $7,500 for the families of the victims involved in the SunTrust shooting.

Approximately 200 business and community leaders were dressed in their finest cocktail or black tie attire as they mingled with each other and learned about the different organizations that make an impact in Highlands County. The festive night began with cocktails, appetizers and Lotela Gold singing classic rock hits such as "You Don't Own Me" and "When a Man Loves a Woman."

The Sebring chamber presented new awards this year to the heads of local law enforcement agencies. Sebring Police Chief Karl Hoglund and Highlands County Sheriff Paul Blackman were recognized for their service in protecting the citizens of Sebring and received plaques as a reminder of the chamber's support. In addition, Highlands County Commissioner Don Elwell, who served as auctioneer for the night's live auction, encouraged the crowd to show their support for the families of the SunTrust victims. Alan Jay Automotive Network donated six meals and transportation to the Melting Pot in Sarasota in exchange for donations to a verified SunTrust fund for families. A member of the crowd gave $1,000 for the tickets, two people gave $1,000 donations, one person gave a $500 donation and 40 people pledged $100 each to be added to the fund. The entire amount raised for families of Suntrust victims totaled $7,500, according to chamber President and CEO Liz Barber.

Before enjoying delectable prime rib, chicken or vegan entrees, people viewed the silent auction items and placed their bids. Businesses and organizations competed in a contest for the best table decorations.

Complaints close website functions

City, county pull videos, PDFs from sites

Officials with both the Highlands County and City of Sebring governments said they had to take down the video and portable document format (PDF) files from their websites because of a recent accessibility complaint.

SEBRING — If you tried to access a video recording of public meetings or view documents on government sites, those items were taken down this week.

Officials with both the Highlands County and city of Sebring governments said they had to take down the video and portable document format (PDF) files from their websites because of a complaint from an entity described as a "group of Florida residents" who have approached Florida municipalities and local governments about accessibility to their websites.

Similar cases throughout both Florida and the nation have made news regarding complaints of inaccessibility for hearing and vision-impaired users, such as a lack of closed-captioning on archived and live meeting videos or incompatibility of documents with screen-reader programs that would read the text aloud.

Gloria Rybinski, public information officer for the Highlands County Board of County Commission, said there have been some cases of municipalities, typically those with tight or limited budgets, not being able to accommodate those requests.

In such cases, they either have to remove the incompatible content or shut down their sites altogether, she said.

"That's why we had to take the video and audio down," Rybinski said.

Clerk of the Courts Robert Germaine said there were, or at least are now, some board meeting files that the website will read aloud to users, but not all of them.

"We are working on it," Germaine said.

As for how long or how much it will cost in work hours or new software, he said that's still a variable.

"We don't know how much it's going to cost yet," Germaine said.

Currently, Highlands County has removed all archived video and audio files of meetings from its site, hcbcc.net, Rybinski said.

Also, the county's IT department, contracted through the Highlands County Clerk of the Courts, is having to look at and will test all 800 PDF documents on the site, she said.

"It will take a while," Rybinski said.

This is all going on while Highlands County has been in a

Crash sends drivers to hospitals

U.S. 27 down to one lane for two hours

By PHIL ATTINGER

SEBRING — Thursday evening saw southbound U.S. 27 funneled into one lane at Golfview Road after an apparent two-car left-turn crash.

Police were still investigating the crash into the night, for at least two hours, during the busiest part of the day for traffic. Initial reports were that drivers were transported from both vehicles, but with no life-threatening injuries.

Later reports on Friday confirmed that one driver, Maria Zuluaga, was airlifted to Lakeland Regional Medical Center that evening, and was in stable condition as of Friday afternoon.

The wreck occurred at 4:42 p.m. Thursday.

Smith charged with more child porn

By PHIL ATTINGER
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — William "Billy" Lee Smith, already facing 15 charges of possession of child pornography, has 185 more charges from files on his phone and laptop.

Polk County deputies found 20 files on his Apple iPhone and at least 165 more files on his Apple MacBook Pro laptop computer. Smith was originally arrested Dec. 21, 2018 based on tips from the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children about blog messages he allegedly posted through Yahoo! Oath and Tumblr about looking for and trading child pornography as well as having sex with children.

At the time, the 28-year-old Bartow man was working both as a substance abuse master's intern at Behavioral Choices Inc. and as a Children in Need of Services/Family in Need of Services counselor for Youth and Family Alternatives Inc.

He also had previously worked as a child protection case manager at Gulf Coast Youth Jewish Family & Community Services (Gulf Coast JFCS) in Lakeland.

His work with children

and the nature of the case raised the matter to high priority for Polk deputies, who arrested him on the same day they got the tips, when he and his wife arrived at their home for the day.

In the initial arrest report, Smith allegedly told deputies he used the videos in sexual fantasy and masturbation and as a "protection" against actually touching a child.

After examining his phone, deputies found 20 additional images and/or video files depicting child pornography involving children 6-12 years old.

Deputies wrote out an arrest affidavit on Jan. 17 and issued it to Smith at Polk's South County Jail.

Last Tuesday, deputies began examining his laptop computer and found more than 150 images and/or videos of child pornography.

The video and/or image files, according to Polk County Sheriff's Office reports, depict prepubescent children, boys and girls, displaying their genitals in a lewd manner and/or engaged in sexual conduct with other children, adults or animals.

Victims' ages range from 12 months to 13 years old.

Deputies then wrote an additional affidavit charging Smith with 165 more counts of possession child pornography.

Under Florida law, any violation of the child pornography statute is raised to a higher-level charge if the offender possesses 10 or more images of any form of child pornography, regardless of content, and the content has one or more of the following:

- A child younger than age 5.
 - Sodomasochistic abuse involving a child.
 - Sexual battery involving a child.
 - Sexual bestiality involving a child.
 - Any movie involving a child, regardless of length or whether or not it involves sound.
- His total bond was previously $150,000, but has now jumped up to $1.08 million, based on the enhanced charges.
- One notation in his jail information also states that he's on a detention hold for GPS, which is commonly defined as being required to wear a global positioning system monitor if he does make bail.

5 THINGS That Will Make You SMARTER

1. Trees never die of old age – trees are only ever killed by elements outside of their control, including insects, diseases and people.
2. The terms softwood and hardwood describe the leaves, seeds and structure of the trees rather than the type of wood they produce.
3. In the United States the shade and wind-proofing that trees deliver reduce annual heating and cooling costs by a whopping $2.1 billion.

4. Some trees talk to one another. When willows are threatened by insect pests, they emit a chemical warning to nearby trees, who secrete more tannin to put the invaders off.

5. The world's shortest tree is the dwarf willow, which lives in northerly and Arctic Tundra regions and rarely grows more than a couple of inches high – roughly up to your ankle.

months-long upgrade of its website, she said.

Rybinski said the county already has either protocols in place for new construction or plans in place to retrofit existing buildings for physical standards required by the Americans with Disabilities Act.

However, she said, there are no specific standards set for web compatibility, a statement backed up by news coverage on the topic.

The Daily Business Review by law.com, states that Florida has become a new battleground for lawsuits under Title III of the Americans with Disabilities Act.

A separate organization, known as the Bureau of Internet Accessibility (BOIA), which states its mission is to make the internet accessible to everyone, reported in July 2018 that the year had already seen around 1,000 lawsuits filed that are related to website accessibility.

The BOIA blames the lawsuits on the Department of Justice's delay in releasing new federal accessibility guidelines.

Companies have been expected to comply with existing technical standards, such as the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) 2.1 until the federal accessibility guidelines are released, the BOIA states.

However, with the lack of a federal directive, law firms are actively pursuing suits, resulting in a large spike in web accessibility claims.

The challenge exists in needing to have written content coded in such a way that screen-reader software can translate the text to voice for vision-impaired users.

Videos must include on-screen captions for the deaf and video descriptions for the blind.

In addition, all interactive functions must be operable through keyboard commands for people who can't use a mouse. This requires updated and upgraded coding.

For this Tuesday's upcoming County Commission meeting, Rybinski said the county will still broadcast live. However, it will take some time before all video and text files are ready for repost to the site, and unless that problem is fixed, any new audio or video files may not be immediately available.

the awards at the banquet.

However, Drury-Smith spoke to the crowd through a pre-recorded video speech that appeared on television screens in the venue. She told attendees that one of the goals during the previous year had been to provide more educational opportunities for members. Drury-Smith also told the crowd that chamber luncheons were growing in attendance.

Past Chair Rob Bullock received a plaque to show the chamber's appreciation for his years of service as a director.

Vazquez described Marie Krenisky, who won the Thelma Pyle Volunteer award, as a person who deeply loves the chamber and never shies away from helping.

Dave Springsteen received the Ambassador of the Year award for promoting the chamber, volunteering and recruiting many new businesses into the chamber. Vazquez said he takes new ambassadors under his wing and rarely misses an ambassador meeting.

J.C. Shoop was not present to receive the Director of the Year award. During Hurricane Irma and other chamber events, Shoop provided support to chamber members.

The Humane Society of Highlands County received the Business of the Year Award.

President Judy Spiegel accepted the award on behalf of the organization. During the previous year, the Humane Society made many improvements to its facility, including a 40-run kennel, a zero entry pool and huge fans to keep mosquitoes away from dogs.

The George Hensley Citizen of the Year award went to Mike Souther, who Vazquez described as a person who always helped others in need. She said, "He excels at bringing people together." In addition, Souther has made significant community service efforts, including helping with recovery after Hurricanes Irma and Michael.

so they come," Hoglund said.

Team members

The team consists of a small cadre of mental health professionals and approximately 50 who serve or have served in police, fire, emergency medical, dispatch or other forms of emergency services.

"We're made up of peers," McMahon said. "We're trying to give normalcy to an abnormal situation."

They meet individually, discreetly, with members of the responding agencies who want to talk about what they've seen and experienced.

Emergency responders are very action-oriented, McMahon said. "They need to be in control."

They have to "switch off" human emotion and fear, to some extent, to run into an active shooter situation, a burning building or a traffic crash site with multiple casualties or deaths.

They go on autopilot, he said. Once they're no longer on the scene, the brain starts to process what they've been through. They have typical human reactions to the stress.

"We start 'what-iffing,'" McMahon said. "I try to tell them, 'If it was meant to be, you would have done it.'"

Typical stressors

It's not easy by any standard to be a first responder, he said.

"You sign up for a job that doesn't have many successes," McMahon said, whether it's a house that burns down or people get murdered. "You can't stop that."

Emergency responders are like any other person. They have home stress and daily work stress, what McMahon refers to in general as "politics and drama."

"Then you run a bad call," he said, and as much as you try, you end up taking that home.

"I ran horrific calls in 1973," McMahon said. "Coping was a lot different."

McMahon said one horrible call was when his partner on the fire truck died in a fire in 1981. That was 38 years ago on Jan. 18.

"Back in the day, you put a bottle on the table and started drinking," said McMahon, adding that there are better ways to handle it now.

A better way

When a CISM Team arrives, they bring the peers first — no psychotherapists. They want to give first responders a chance to defuse and open up to people in their line of service.

Later on, the team will have those who came to them follow up with how they are doing. If they need it, the team will return with the counselors.

"We let them talk," McMahon said, but with that talk comes some explanation of what they will experience:

- Physical stress — Trouble eating or sleeping and having nightmares.
- Cognitive — Problems with concentration, memory or reasoning.
- Emotional —

Anger, sadness and/or withdrawal.

- Behavioral — How they act toward others or themselves.

Sometimes the emergency responder gets triggered into these areas of stress when they make a personal connection to an incident, McMahon said. It happened for him when he ran a call on an attempted suicide of a person who was dying of a disease his aunt also had.

However, he never got down bad enough from bad calls to go that route.

"I got help. I've been fortunate — very lucky," McMahon said.

Some others, he said, did not get help and were not so lucky, which he said has become an epidemic in emergency services — more than line-of-duty deaths.

A real need

"It's going to get worse," McMahon said. "We're not teaching kids today good coping skills."

They need to learn them before they get on the job, he said, if they want to serve as firefighters, police or emergency medical personnel.

For now, he said, he tries to remind those on the job that they are human and they can't second-guess themselves beyond a certain point.

"You can't change what happened," McMahon said. "It's done. It's over with. What you can change is how you handle that."

He and nine of his colleagues were only too ready to come up to Highlands when they got the call to help, especially since Highlands County doesn't have its own CISM Team or one dedicated to come when needed.

There has been talk of training emergency responders here to serve on the team. It works best when all the emergency agencies buy into the idea and support it with their personnel, McMahon said.

"We're willing to train in Highlands County," he said. "If you want it, all you have to do is call."

of the standards would be a concern and would have to take into account the Florida Standards Assessments, which are based on the current Florida Standards that are very closely aligned with Common Core.

So if there is no more Common Core what does that mean for the testing? Lethbridge asked. There are many more questions than answers from the information that has been released on the governor's executive order.

Superintendent Brenda Longshore has already contacted Corcoran, Lethbridge said. They are eager to work on solutions for the new standards.

The standards are a list of skills that students should know by certain grade levels, he explained. There are many different opinions with some believing a certain skill should be learned by second grade and others believing it is developmentally appropriate to be learned at fourth grade.

So there is much discussion in developing standards and there is no right or wrong standard, Lethbridge said. "I realize Common Core itself ended up extremely controversial, but in the end it was a list of skills, knowledge and abilities that students should be able to do by a specific grade level."

School Board Vice Chair Donna Howerton said she has definitely had concerns over the years.

"Would love to give control back to teachers," she said. Teachers have told her they would like to get back to basics.

In Florida, Common Core/Florida Standards were phased in starting with kindergarten in the 2011-12 school year.

DeSantis said he has instructed Corcoran to develop new state curriculum standards over the next year that will then be presented to the 2020 Legislature.

AP to rebid for City Hall generator

By MARC VALERO
STAFF WRITER

AVON PARK — The City of Avon Park will rebid for various sized generators for City Hall in the event of a power outage.

After Hurricane Irma in 2017, Avon Park purchased some portable generators, but has cancelled the order for a nearly $51,000, 125 kilowatt generator that would have powered the entire City Hall.

In recent weeks, Councilman Stanley Spurlock had questioned the cost. Most of the council members decided the city's procurement policy was not followed when the generator was ordered under a previous administration.

At Monday's City Council meeting, City Manager David Flowers said he believes there is a need for a generator, but maybe not to the specifications of the last one (that was cancelled).

"In speaking with city employees, yes there were some issues after [Hurricane] Irma, five or six days with no power, which made it very difficult for them to get the tasks done that they needed to get done," he said. "Some people were excused from work because it was too hot in the building."

Flowers sought direction from the council to seek bids for a permanent generator for City Hall or use a smaller portable with an extension cord.

Mayor Garrett Anderson said the city needs to be able to function in the event of an emergency. The city may not have another hurricane in 30 years, but may get one next year, and it is up to council to decide if the city needs that safety net.

"For several days it was quite hellacious for the city employees to get their jobs done and I don't think they were able to do everything they should have been able to do during that time because of the loss of power," he said.

But, the city probably doesn't need the type of generator that was previously called for in the specifications, Anderson said.

Flowers said there are options that are considerably cheaper than the last generator and he is sure the electrical work will be cheaper.

Anderson said he would like to see another round of bidding.

Council decided to get bids for three sizes of generators — one that would power the entire building, a downsized unit and a portable unit.

A P man allegedly harasses neighbors

By MELISSA MAIN
STAFF WRITER

AVON PARK — An Avon Park man allegedly harassed his neighbors, accused them of being drug dealers and threatened them with bodily harm.

Robert Morrison, 55, of Avon Park, was arrested on Thursday by the Highlands County Sheriff's Office. Morrison was charged with threatening to do violence, battery (touch or strike); burglary of an occupied dwelling unarmed (entering a house without permission); and possession of not more than 20 grams of marijuana.

A deputy responded to a harassment complaint on Thursday at approximately 7:15 p.m.

According to one of the victims, an older male matching Morrison's description stood outside the victim's mother's house and yelled "about how his family was all drug dealers," the report states.

The suspect allegedly threatened physical violence on one of the victims and balled up his fists at the victim, but once the victim started calling 911 he began walking towards his home.

Two other people told the deputy the suspect entered the house without permission. He reportedly shoved one of the victims out of the way to enter the house.

When the deputy entered Morrison's home, he allegedly smelled like alcohol. Morrison was arrested, and the deputy searched him. A small plastic bag held a green plant-like substance that reportedly field-tested positive for cannabis.

ANOTHER VIEW

A commonality of interest

If the war in Afghanistan has been anything, it has been a disappointment.

After 17 years of fighting that has seen thousands of deaths and nearly a trillion dollars in expenses, Americans are sick and tired of the interminable conflict.

Fortunately, serious and substantive negotiations are finally closer than ever to bringing the endless war to an end. Though uncomfortable and not without risk, the new framework to cease hostilities deserves the support of both major political parties and the American people.

Many voters will be irritated by the central feature of the agreement: for the first time, the Taliban has been formally included in negotiations, and their interests will be represented in any final agreement. Doubtless, leaving the Taliban in Afghanistan would be a sharp rebuke of the democracy-spreading agenda that dominated the past 20 years. On the other hand, the United States has simply failed to move enough Afghans away from the Taliban, whether by force, money or cultural influence. And the Taliban is now prepared to honor a negotiated settlement that strikes an uneasy but real compromise.

Specifically, both sides have now agreed in principle to ensure that terrorist organizations do not operate out of Afghanistan after the U.S. leaves the country.

That, lest we forget, was the main — some would say only — strategic objective justifying the original invasion of Afghanistan in the wake of 9/11.

Critics will caution that peace agreements are made to be violated in the minds of fanatics and ideologues, among which the Taliban must be counted.

This is an obvious concern. But using the fear to justify open-ended conflict with unattainable goals is foolish and fruitless. The truth is there is important evidence that this kind of agreement can hold.

Each country with a stake in Afghanistan wants peace, starting with Afghanistan itself. Significantly, this includes China.

The Chinese are very worried about the spread of militant Islam — so much so that they have accepted real reputational damage in the West opening up massive re-education camps and filling them with their millions-strong Muslim Uighur population.

At the same time, Beijing is worried about threats to the safety and stability of its massive international Belt and Road economic plan. Reports now show that China wishes to take as proactive a role as it can in taking Afghan disorder off the global chessboard. It wishes to see peace succeed, the better to stabilize the core area where its economic strategy will live or die.

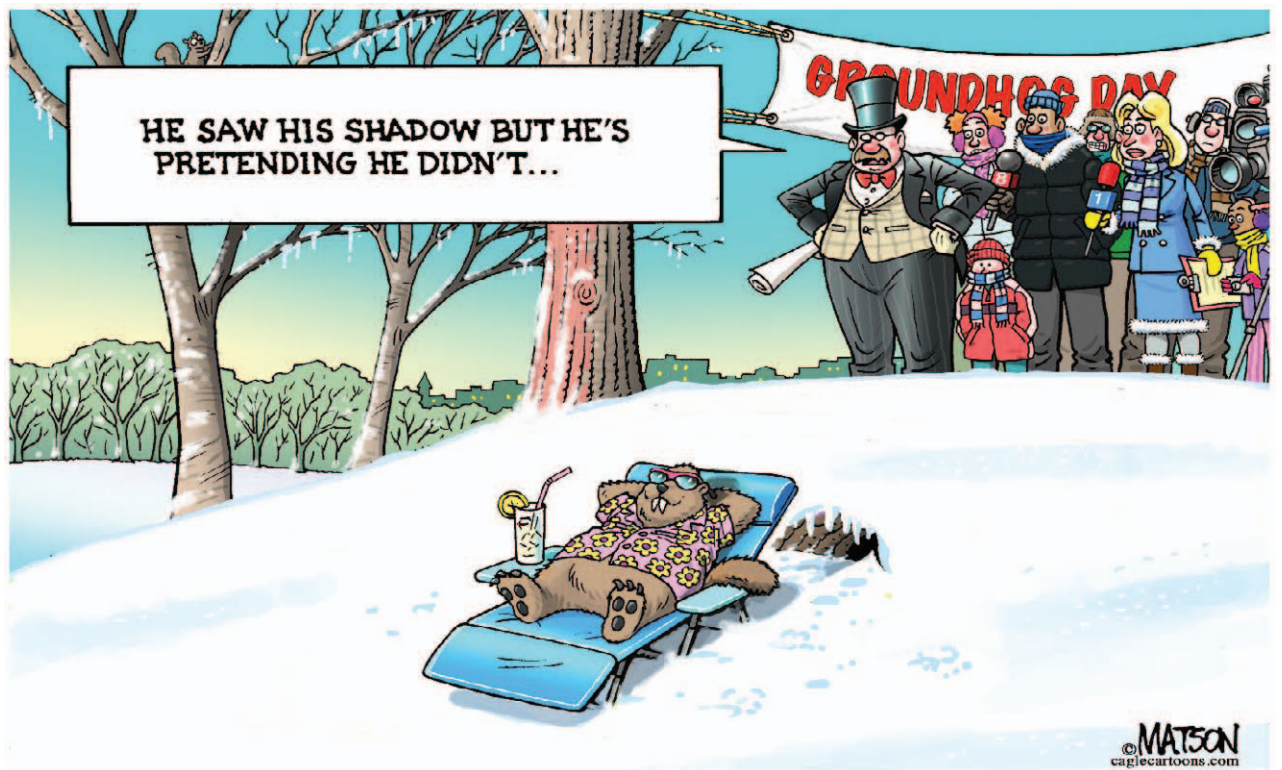

And while the U.S. and China are often at odds, neither Washington nor Beijing wants the relationship to spiral into outright hostility and open conflict. Afghanistan offers an important way to establish limited but valuable commonality of interest between the two great powers without the U.S. sacrificing any core objectives.

Unfortunately, in Washington, some members of both parties have a selfish interest in portraying peace in Afghanistan as irresponsible or isolationist.

Neither of these claims could be further from the truth. No serious official who supports the peace policy believes the U.S. can or should cut itself off from the world and flourish. None takes a naive view toward the continued threats posed by terrorist groups and their state sponsors.

Peace in Afghanistan is long overdue. Americans will be grateful when it comes, and reward those in Washington who make it happen.

Do not test God

From the time we're children, we test.

Children are born testers — it's how they figure out the world around them. When a toddler picks up a glass figurine and throws it, it's likely he's conducting tests — how far it goes, the sound it makes when it shatters, and his mom's hold on her temper.

Children test their limits. They want to know how far they can go before a parent will step in and say "no." Some apparently carry this trait into adulthood, and see how close they can come to breaking the law before they get into trouble. This is not being mature.

But let's admit it: as adults, we test. Have you ever seen a sign that said "Wet Paint" and had the urge to touch it to see if it's true? If so, raise your hand (and those of you who went ahead and touched it can go wash your hands now).

LAURA'S LOOK

Laura Ware

Some things do not need to be tested, because they are well established. Gravity is not something one should test now and again to see if it still works. I can assure you it does. I don't need to taste salt and vinegar potato chips, because I've already conducted that experiment and know I loathe them.

Even the Bible talks about testing, adding a big no-no. When Jesus was tempted (some would even say tested) in the wilderness by Satan, he quotes a verse from the Old Testament to parry one of Satan's attempts: "Jesus answered him." It is also written: "Do not put the Lord your God to the test." (Matthew 4:7, NIV)

Fairly straightforward, right? But we know people who constantly test God with their lives by seeing how close they can get to sin. It's like seeing how close you can stand to a fire without getting burned — sooner or later, you're going to take one step too many and get singed.

But, some people find unique ways to test God. Just ask Alec Ndiwane, a Christian "prophet" who was with a group of people at South Africa's Kruger National Park.

According to an article at www.dailymail.co.uk, Mr. Ndiwane apparently was trying to demonstrate to his fellow church members that God would protect him. He allegedly fell into a trance and began to babble, or as the article put it, "speak in tongues." After that he apparently charged a pride of lions feeding on an impala.

The lions did what you would expect them to do — they defended their kill. When Mr. Ndiwane realized that God wasn't going to step in he made a run for it, but before he could get back to the car a lion got hold of his rear end.

The article states that a game ranger fired shots to scare off the pride, though the park claims they never heard about the incident. Mr. Ndiwane was rushed to a hospital, where his wounds were stitched up.

According to the article, he said, "I do not know what came over me. I thought the Lord wanted to use me to show his power over animals. Is it not we were given dominion over all creatures of the earth?"

I'm not sure what came over him either. Surely a true prophet would know better than to test God, right? He's lucky he didn't become cat food.

I could go on, but right now I'm testing how close I can get to deadline and get this column to the paper. Wish me luck.

Wall makes the most sense

All the disagreement and discussion between Republicans and Democrats as to what methods of border security is best should really boil down to one criterion: What method will prevent the most alien foot traffic and vehicles from illegally crossing our southern border.

Stopping unauthorized aliens at the border line (preventing crossing) eliminates any further need to apprehend the aliens, place them in containment camps, feed them, cloth them, provide shelter and bedding for them, administer medical care to them, etc. — for many months until they can go before an immigration judge for adjudication — where historically the majority will be deported back to their home countries — all at taxpayer expense. This, in my opinion, is a ludicrous method of border security.

The new prototype walls that the Department of Homeland Security and U.S. Border Patrol has asked President Trump for were tested by the U.S. military special forces — and they couldn't climb over them. These walls are 30 feet high, lacking hand and foot holds, and they are also buried 6 feet deep in reinforced concrete.

While any method of border security can be defeated, I believe a properly constructed wall is the most effective. A wall also serves as a deterrent, and is proactive, as it eliminates any further costs to process illegal aliens, deal with family separation issues, etc. Drones, sensors, cameras, etc., are needed where a wall isn't practical, but these are inherently reactive methods that require human (border patrol agents) intervention to apprehend aliens only after they have crossed into the U.S.

I say, build that wall!

Faith alone loses

We live in an age of "Give me, give me, give me." The late President Kennedy said, "Ask not what your country can do for you; instead ask what you can do for your country." This means taking individual responsibility.

We are all responsible for every action we take, every word we utter. Please remember no child is born with a belief system. We all develop our own individual belief system within the first 12-20 years of our life. We are taught by our parents, our siblings, our religious leaders, our government, our teachers but it is each individual's responsibility to think, "Is this the best path to a happy and good life?"

The blame game must stop — blame is for weaklings. We each choose to be strong or weak. Some religions, especially Christianity, teach a good path to a good and happy life. Following the 10 Commandments is a good road map and prayer is a pleasant way to cement faith into your mind. It takes individual responsibility to create action out of one's prayers.

Our individual actions or words must be structured to benefit not only us but also those around us. When we find ourselves in a negative situation it is our responsibility to protect ourselves with distance and not contribute to the problem, i.e. walk away. It is not our responsibility to bring about change in others. Others must seek change or rote in their barrel. Live by example.

Country Club gets golf cart signs

FEMA funds, tire buy-back, Vaughn Road in limbo

By PHIL ATTINGER
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — If they haven't gotten them already, residents in Country Club of Sebring should soon have signs designating them as a "golf cart" community.

However, Highlands County is still waiting on funds from the Federal Emergency Management Agency, waiting to finalize an agreement with the state on closing Vaughn Road and is considering whether or not to schedule another tire buy-back event.

On some good news, as of last week, the county had completed repairs on 142 of the 152 overhead lights on U.S. 27 between Highlands Avenue and Flare Road in Sebring. County Engineer Clinton Howerton Jr. said it took two weeks of replacing wire and kinked conduit, which had resulted in wire being burnt in two.

Howerton said the Florida Department of Transportation has $6 million in its five-year plan to redo lighting on the highway.

Also, the county is ready to move forward on requesting bids for Sebring Parkway Phase 2, once legalities are complete on the purchase of extra right of way on the southeast corner of Highlands Avenue and DeSoto Road.

Assistant County Attorney J.D. Langford said, to his understanding, the developer for the proposed Wawa station at the U.S. 27 junction seems open now to funding the addition of a second left-turn lane from the highway onto the Parkway.

Commissioner Ron Handley asked if that would hold up building the Wawa convenience store/gas station. Langford said he hoped to hear by Jan. 24. He said Thursday he had heard nothing new. It's not feasible to extend the mast arm for traffic signals, he said, but one option includes extending one from the opposite side.

Golf cart signs
Over in Country Club of Sebring, residents will get four signs — two at each entrance to the subdivision — warning visitors coming in and residents already there they are either entering or leaving a golf cart community, respectively.

The price tag ran a bit higher than anticipated, however. When representatives of the Property Owner Association originally asked how much the signs would cost, Howerton said $150.

The actual price tag worked out as $771.27, or $192.82 per sign, which is approximately $150 each, plus installation costs.

The county will maintain them once they are in place.

Commissioner Greg Harris, a resident of the subdivision, said it didn't sound like a "minimal" cost, as presented to the County Commission by Howerton.

Commission Chair Jim Brooks asked if the county could find $800 in the budget for the signs, but Commissioner Don Elwell said it seemed fair to have the initial cost covered by the residents, since the county would maintain them afterward.

Commissioner Arlene Tuck asked if the county could split cost with the residents. County Administrator Randy Vosburg said that would be up to the board.

Gordon Hessel, with the Property Owners Association, said if he told people the price had gone up from $150 to $800, they would insist the county cover all the cost, since the signs are on county-maintained roads, and residents don't pay for stop signs.

"It is a burden on the association and makes me look foolish," Hessel said.

Vosburg said the county's position was that golf cart signs don't fall under "normal operation" of a roadway. Brooks also pointed out that whatever the board decides to do in one part of the county will become policy for the whole county.

Ultimately, commissioners voted 4-1 to have the property owners pay for all signs, with the county maintaining them afterward. Harris dissented.

Vaughn Road
As for Vaughn Road, the county has restored the one-lane bridge over Charlie Creek on the one-lane sand and grass road, and is ready to vacate the right of way to control by the Florida State Park Service and Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission.

However, no agreement has yet been signed.

Howerton said there was a powerline easement that got missed in previous surveys and all involved parties need to sign off on that part of the right of way.

FEMA funds
With FEMA, Vosburg said the county has already received small reimbursements, and everything seems favorable to get the largest single receipt — $8 million to cover debris collection and other recovery expenses after Hurricane Irma.

It was submitted to the state by federal agencies.

He said state auditors needed to confirm that the contractors paid their employees. Assistant County Administrator Tasha Morgan said that had been confirmed, but no new developments have been reported and no new payments have been received.

Is buy-back back?

Finally, commissioners don't know yet if they will schedule another tire buy-back this spring. The event, held twice a year, encourages people to bring tires in from illegal dump sites in the woods, swamps and scrub for $2 per tire.

They are limited to bringing 25 tires per load — the limit for non-commercial loads — that must be covered with a tied-down tarp. Also, no commercial use of junk tire haulers can participate.

Commissioners voiced concern that participants don't use the incentive to clean up dump sites and instead bring loads from outside the county.

They also asked if the Highlands County Sheriff's Office's environmental deputy is still active.

"We try to keep him busy," Howerton said. "There's not as many piles as there used to be."

Howerton said he gets a lot of calls from people asking if one will take place.

Elwell said the county spent a half hour arguing over $800 in regard to golf cart community signs. If the budget is that tight, he said, they can hold off for now.

Brooks said if the county sees they need to do one, they can still schedule one before the end of the year.

Preserving history through photos, documents and artifacts

LAKE PLACID — Lake Placid, Florida is a fascinating town. In 2013 it was named America's Most Interesting Town by Reader's Digest.

A visit to this quaint place is a must for snow-birds and natives who have never spent time discovering its magic. Over 45 buildings in the town are covered with gorgeous hand-painted murals illustrating various times and famous people from the past.

Your first stop should begin at the chamber of commerce office at 18 N. Oak Ave. There you can view a short film introducing you to the town of 47 murals and learn why Lake Placid is called the Caladium Capital of the World.

Once done, you can pick up a map of the 47 mural locations and either walk or drive, visiting and viewing the splendor of each one.

Plan your visit for either a Wednesday, Thursday or Friday. The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Wednesday and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday and Friday. The history of Lake Placid will come alive with a visit and tour of The Depot Museum, just off Main Street at 12 Park St.

Volunteers, many of whom were born and raised in the area, will give a guided tour. Like most natives, they will tell story after story of how the town came to be and of some of its other visitors, like Edison, Firestone and even a gangster like Al Capone.

Visitors will learn about Melvil Dewey. Yes, he is the same man who developed the Dewey Decimal system and was the forerunner of the word abbreviations used by people today as they text their friends.

A short creative film where two high school girls are taken on a trip to the past, meeting "Dewey" and learning a history they might never get in school, will set the stage for the visit.

Visitors will discover the great influence Dewey had on the development of the area. He was from Lake Placid, New York and the area reminded him so much of his hometown that in 1927 he was able to have the town renamed from Lake Stearns to Lake Placid, Florida.

Adjacent to the museum visitors can view a steam engine that once ran local saw mills, as well as the jail from yesteryear. A visit to the last car of a train, the caboose, will captivate guests when they discover the actual sleeping and eating quarters — the home away from home for the conductor and his crew. The cupola on the caboose allowed the brakeman to view the track ahead and signal the engineer, via a lantern, alerting him to any problems along the route.

The museum boasts the actual dress that First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy wore to a party in 1961. Older folks who remember the most highly decorated soldier of World War II, Audie Murphy, will be impressed to see a display of his actual dress uniform.

The lithograph machine used by the Lake Placid Journal newspaper staff to typeset the paper takes up a side of a room. Compare that to the iPads and iPhones used today where correspondents write their stories and take photos and send them to the publisher online without even going to the office.

You'll learn about the local turpentine industry and how the sap from pine trees became the tar that sealed the hulls of giant ships.

Stories of Native Americans and pioneer life come alive with display after display. You'll view old Singer sewing machines, wind up telephones, switchboards, adding machines, phonographs, tools, stoves, a miniature of the Arcade Hotel built in 1925, where for $2 you could rent a room for the night and $10 for the week.

The museum is in the former Lake Placid railroad station where the last passenger train made a stop in 1954 and the last freight train in 1964. A perfectly timed visit in the morning will give visitors a chance to hear the whistle of the CXS train passing through, bringing sugar cane south from Okeechobee to DeSoto City and then further north for processing.

A photo of the Tropical State Bank, scene of Lake Placid's first bank robbery, and photos of all the former town mayors will give one a sense of Lake Placid's rich history.

A visit and tour of the three rooms filled with thousands of artifacts is free. However a request for a nominal donation of $2, $5 per family is requested. Memberships with benefits are offered starting at $10 for individuals, $18 per couple and $25 per family.

Depot Museum coffee mugs and jars of raw unfiltered local honey are offered for sale so guests can remember their visit to the town of a clown school, 27 fresh water lakes and as mentioned, The Caladium Capital of the World. While in town, don't miss the many boutiques, a health food store, Mexican grocery and tasty eateries, including a 'have to try' frozen custard treat on Main Street and Interlake Boulevard before you head home.

Bassmaster Elite Series set to begin

Season starts on the St. Johns River

Special to Highlands News-Sun

PALATKA — The St. Johns River has been a familiar destination for the Bassmaster Elite Series since the circuit first visited there in 2011. But this year's Elite Series visit will be different than all the rest.

Really, really different.

The 2019 Bassmaster Elite at St. Johns River is scheduled for Feb. 7-10 with daily takeoffs at 7:30 a.m. from Palatka City Dock and Boat Ramp and weigh-ins at 4:10 p.m. each day at Palatka Riverfront Park. It will be the season opener for the new-look Elite Series, which now features a smaller field of 75 anglers — down from more than 110 in years past — and a new payout scale that assures every competitor in the field will leave with a check.

The anglers will also find a new-look fishery, since much of the eelgrass the St. Johns River has long been famous for was decimated by Hurricane Irma last summer and has yet to return.

“To say that I’m excited for this tournament would be an understatement,” said Cliff Prince, a Palatka, Fla., resident and an eight-year Elite Series veteran. “Not only am I starting the season on my home water, but this is also a whole new ballgame, a whole new Elite Series. B.A.S.S. has given us an opportunity to really showcase what we can do — and I can’t wait!”

With that said, Prince knows the wealth of knowledge he’s acquired from living on the fishery may not help as much as it has in year’s past when he finished sixth, 56th and 16th in three

Plenty of offense in Lake Placid softball

By ED ENGLER

SPECIAL TO HIGHLANDS NEWS-SUN

In Monday action in Lake Placid senior softball, Conley Insurance upset Central Security 19-14 to tie for the league lead.

Ron Kilburn set the table for The Insurers with a first inning grand-slam homer. “Wild Bill” Destefano added the finishing touches with a bases-loaded triple in the seventh. Manager Elston Hedges was a one-man wrecking crew for The Securitymen with four roundtrippers, all of them inside-the-park. Good thing he can run well — and often. Jim Radcliff also homered.

863 Bar & Grill defeated Lake Placid Marine 20-17. Bill Martin (double) and Cliff Bluml paced the Barmen with four hits each. Don Cunningham logged a single, double, and triple in the win.

For The Mariners, Ron Gary notched four hits. The trio of Bill Gallagher, Ron Melia, and Richard Rivera Ortiz all homered in the loss.

Miller Air entered the winners circle for the first time with a convincing 20-8 triumph over Seminole Tire. Mike Kratt and Norm Grubbs recorded five hits each and got support from Gene Welbaum with four.

On Wednesday, Central Security (6-1) squeaked by Lake Placid Marine (2-5) in a low scoring affair. Jim Friend singled, doubled, and tripled to pace a quartet of Securitymen with three hits apiece. Bill Gallagher homered for The Mariners, and Richard Rivera Ortiz (triple) had three hits.

Feisty Miller Air (1-6) took Conley Insurance (6-1) into extra innings before falling 14-10. Larry Oser’s bases-loaded double tied the game in regulation, then Ron Kilburn again hit a grand slam, this time in extras, to win it for Conley. “Wild Bill” Destefano and Ellis Howard had four hit each. Howard’s nifty double play snuffed out the last Miller rally. Cisco Hernandez had five RBIs on a double and home run for Miller. Ed Engler, Darrel Richards, and Dana Amundson had four hits each for The Airmen.

863 Bar & Grill (4-3) knocked off Seminole Tire (2-5) 21-12. The Barmen scored ten runs in the last inning to put the game out of reach. Cliff Bluml (two doubles) had five hits for 863. Bill Scrase (double) added four more, with Dick Cook slugging two doubles.

Pacing The ‘Noles was Dan Rasmussen with three doubles and stellar outfield play, snatching four difficult fly balls. Jeff Stanley pounded out four hits in the losing cause.

Central Security beat Lake Placid Marine by the score of 7-6 on Wednesday.

AVON PARK — The Avon Park Red Devils boys basketball team took a bite out of the Frostproof Bulldogs with a 77-41 win on Thursday night.

Avon Park improved its season record to 12-7.

“Nice way to finish our last regular season game at home,” said Avon Park Head Coach Marty O’Hora. “Now we head to DeSoto on Friday and Hardee next week. Little bigger schools in bigger districts, we beat them both here, but now we have to go there.”

It took little time for the Red Devils to display who was going to be in charge as they dropped 23 points in the first quarter, nine by Malcolm Dewberry and five by Rickey Lovette to open up a double-digit lead at 23-12 by the end of the first quarter.

The Red Devils continued to build on their lead in the second quarter as they outpaced the Bulldogs 15-4 to double their advantage at the half by a score of 38-16.

Rams’ Donald a disruptive force

Los Angeles defensive tackle one of the best

ATLANTA — As someone who moved from Texas to Minnesota to cover the Vikings, the first Vikings practice I witnessed was on the grass fields at Winter Park in the spring of 1990. Randle, then about 250 pounds, ran circles around the team’s excellent, veteran offensive line, which became aggravated by Randle’s quickness and relentlessness. It was like watching elephants swatting at a mosquito.

Randle would bulk up to a reported 287 pounds while retaining his best athletic attributes. He would become one of the best interior pass rushers in NFL history, and a previous Elite Series events on the river. The hurricane changed things in ways that might force many anglers with experience on the fishery to start from scratch. "In 2016, there was a lot more grass up and down the river from one end of it to the other," Prince said. "When that storm came through last year, it just dumped so much rain. What grass didn't get torn up by the storm got shaded out by the high water. "This river was as high as I've seen it in my lifetime, and it stayed that way for a long time. Our tides are really just now getting back to normal." The number of bass that are spawning could play a major role in how much weight it takes to win the event's $100,000 first-place prize. With the absence of eelgrass, anglers will likely turn to dollar pads, wood, reeds, lily pads and even boat docks. Despite all the changes, Prince said he expects the usual tactics to play — topwater lures, bladed jigs, swim jigs, lipless baits, swim-baits and even standard Texas-rigged worms. One thing he doesn't expect, however, is the signature five-bass limits of big bass that have anchored the four-day weights of past winners. "In 2016, Rick Clunn had a 31-pound bag and then three more good, solid days that helped him win," Prince said. "That's usually the way it works here. But if you look at the results from tournaments around here since the grass has disappeared, we just haven't been having those 30-pound days. "If you have a 25- to 27-pound bag and then back it up with a 20-pound bag and a couple of 15-pound bags, that's gonna be strong." The St. Johns tournament, like all Elite Series events, is a free, family-friendly celebration of bass fishing, with activities for all ages. Fans can meet the Elites at Angler Alley on Saturday from 1 to 3 p.m., and on Championship Sunday, they can join the Elite LIVE Watch Party and hang out with anglers and other special guests as they watch the final hours of Bassmaster LIVE. Elite angler clinics will be held onstage from 1 to 3 p.m. Saturday, which is also Military and First Responder Appreciation Day.

Hall of Fame inductee. In his most prolific season, he produced an NFL-leading 15 1/2 sacks. Today, Rams defensive tackle Aaron Donald is expected to become the third player in NFL history to win consecutive Defensive Player of the Year awards. On Sunday, Donald might be the Rams' most important player in the Super Bowl, tasked with pressuring New England quarterback Tom Brady and controlling the Patriots' surging running game. With his blend of power, speed and technique, Donald is paying homage to a trio of Vikings defensive tackles. Alan Page won the NFL's first Defensive Player of the Year award and played at a listed 245 pounds, back when NFL players were more rangy than massive. Keith Millard set the record for sacks in one season by an interior lineman, with 18, in 1989. Tall and lean, with powerful arms, Millard played at a listed 260 pounds. Randle excelled more because of explosiveness, technique and attitude than sheer size. Over the past two years, Donald might be eclipsing any player produced by the Purple People Eaters or the Rams' similarly legendary Fearsome Foursome. Donald is listed at 6-foot-1 and 280 pounds. Teammates say he's more like 6-0, 265. As his Instagram account demonstrates, those pounds are strapped on him like armor. "The dude has an eight-pack," said fellow defensive lineman Michael Brockers. "Makes me jealous." Rams cornerback the offense can't even get much work done." Donald grew up in Pittsburgh and attended Pitt. The Rams chose him with the 13th pick in the 2014 draft. In three consecutive drafts, the Rams chose Donald, star running back Todd Gurley and quarterback Jared Goff. In 2017, the Rams hired Sean McVay as their coach, and McVay hired Phillips, the legendary defensive coordinator. That's how you build a champion. Donald is building a resume that might be one of the best in NFL history. He's also facing a guy who coached Taylor. "Aaron Donald is a great football player," Patriots coach Bill Belichick said. "But I wouldn't put anybody ahead of Lawrence Taylor. Taylor's the best I've ever seen, certainly the best I've ever coached."

Small in the third. Avon Park held a 34-point lead by the end of the third, 61-27. Seniors Travis Hill and Nacaris Nance led the Red Devils in the fourth quarter with Hill showing his diversity of not just hitting the short jumpers, but to score the final points of the game on a 3-pointer to make the final score 77-41. "It was a great night for senior night," added O'Hora. "Each senior scored a couple of times, the energy was good tonight and this is the first week in a while in which we only had one game, so it was nice to get some rest. So we look forward to finishing out the season and getting ready for the playoffs." Artavius Jordan led the Bulldogs with 11 points and was the only Frostproof player to break double digits. Lovette led the Red Devils with a game-high 17 points and Dewberry added 14 more. Hill led the seniors with 11 points and Small scored 7. Smith and Jones finished with 6 and 4 points respectively. Avon Park played DeSoto on the road Friday night. The Red Devils finish out the regular season on Monday night when they travel to Wauchula to face the Hardee Wildcats. Avon Park will compete in the Class 5A-District 8 tournament in two weeks.

Tumbling over myself

My entrance was less than graceful. In fact, it was downright clumsy. Tripping while trying to straighten out my rumpled clothes, I pressed in without a second thought. I veered from side to side with ungraceful, bumbling footsteps. I may have been bold in my approach, but I was also irreverent and expectant in an entitled sort of way.

These images floating through my mind reminded me of a child rushing in where angels fear to tread. I wasn't ushered out, just gently convicted.

So, I backed up and began again.

This time I first recognized who I would be approaching. My stride was not clumsy and pushy, rather it was like I was on tip-toe ... expectant, quiet ... and yet totally confident.

Here I was welcomed with open arms. Here I belonged always. Here I could be myself.

But my approach revealed my heart ... and I wanted it to be genuine ... not anxiously tumbling over myself.

This picture that I have tried to sketch with words actually went through my mind one morning while praying. First, I must say, it was really convicting as our ladies' Sunday school class had been considering how important it is to not rush into God's presence; but, to consider to Whom we would be talking.

This is the King of kings. The Lord of lords. This is my Savior who leads me into the presence of God the Father who sees me as righteous because of my faith in his Son, Jesus Christ.

As I barreled in that morning words spilling out, I saw the picture above play out in my mind ... distracting me from my prayer. There was God seated on his throne eagerly awaiting me ... yet, wondering at my pushy, disrespectful behavior.

And, so, the Holy Spirit took over convicting me by this mental picture.

That's when I backed up, asked forgiveness and started over.

As I recounted God's faithfulness, his goodness, mercy and grace ... my soul quieted so that I could approach him as he deserved and yet with a quiet confidence at his amiable approachability.

Goals to live by

Achieving success through discipline and faith in God

By MELISSA MAIN
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — Dennis Mallen, the 49-year-old actor who lives in Sebring, said, "I'm a blessed man to do what I do and show God's grace through my skill."

Mallen has acted in an ESPN Monday football commercial and will be in the following productions this year: "Beauty is Skin Deep," "Triggered" and "Survival of the Apocalypse." "Beauty is Skin Deep" should be out by Valentine's Day, he said.

Mallen believes that faith in God and discipline are essential to achieving goals in life. He sees God's hand of blessing in his life. He was eight blocks away from the Twin Towers when they fell on Sept. 11, 2001 but he should have been only two blocks away, he said. "It was divine intervention that I was uptown," Mallen said.

As he looked overhead, he saw the planes hit the towers. Thankfully, he had gone to a different gym that morning to work out because his workout partner was sick. If Mallen had gone to his normal gym, he would have been in the shadow of the first tower when it hit. He said, "It was all God."

Although he sees God's hand of intervention and blessing in his life, Mallen also believes in disciplining himself to achieve his goals. He has developed a routine where he only sleeps five to six hours a night so that he has 18 hours to make his dreams a reality. After he wakes up, he stretches, eats oatmeal, reads his affirmations and goals, and then reads a daily devotional from Joyce Meyers. If he doesn't have an early call time to the set, he heads to the gym.

"I read two books a month, but I'd like to read four," Mallen said. If a movie he is acting in is based on a book, he tries to read the book. Some of his favorite books include "The Power of Habit" and Brene Brown's books on leadership. He believes that basic disciplines serve as building blocks for success.

"Human experience is generally negative," Mallen said. "We have to work at it every day. We have to get over negative self talk." Sometimes people beat themselves up and think they are not capable or good enough, he said. This type of negative self talk must be shut down and people must focus on their vision for the future.

"I have a vision board and goals, but a lot of success is God opening up doors," Mallen said.

"How many people die with so much music left in their soul," he said. "I've got a lot left and a lot more to do. Life is not just cherries and rainbows. Every time I've went through something, I've come out stronger." His strength comes from his dependence on God and determination to make his life count.

"If opportunity knocks, you have to meet it halfway," Mallen said. He views Sebring as a perfect place for meeting opportunities, because it is less than two hours from Orlando and Tampa and around three hours to Miami. He can drive to casting calls in various places from a central location. Although it may seem odd for an actor to settle in Sebring, Mallen is a member of Grace Bible Church and attends Gold Gym six days a week. He seeks a stronger relationship with Christ and constantly strives to reach bigger and bigger goals. His smile is contagious and his upbeat, charismatic personality helps encourage those around him to start planning their own journey towards success.

INSPIRATIONAL CORNER
James Fansler

Jesus is in the jailhouse

Being a big fan of country singer George Strait, I found myself tapping along to a newer song called "I Found Jesus on the Jailhouse Floor." If you have never heard it, I encourage you to take a moment and listen to it. The message is pretty clear – a man found Jesus while in jail.

Unfortunately, many will scoff at the idea of an inmate finding Jesus while incarcerated. But we see it quite often, a person reportedly finding Christ while they sat in a cell. This may be a spoiler alert for some, or maybe I am alone in this thought, but I believe Jesus spends a bit more time in the jails than churches. It is mentioned a few times throughout the New Testament about Jesus coming for the sinners not the righteous. For instance, in Luke 5:32 Jesus said, "It is not the healthy who need a doctor, but the sick. I have not come to call the righteous, but sinners, to repentance."

Granted, there are a number of sinners in the pews each Sunday. But compare the attendance on Sunday to the growing numbers of those incarcerated. Jesus is very busy meeting each of them after they are booked in and silence begins. Walls of confinement can leave very little else to do but listen to the still small voice that begins to pull at the soul and convict actions.

Most jails and prisons have some form of ministry. Amazingly, it can call out some of the hardest criminals. Some may believe these inmates are only trying to offer a different version of themselves to gain mercy. For some that may be true, but for a good number of them God got a hold of them much the way Jesus shook Saul, a man we now know as the Apostle Paul, before his conversion to become the author of nearly two-thirds of the New Testament.

Back to George's song. It starts off with a statement many of us have once felt. It opens up with "There once was a time when I was dead inside." Before we accepted Jesus' calling to allow Him into our hearts, we were essentially dead inside.

The song goes on: "Someone opened up the door — The King of kings, Lord of lords, I found Jesus on the jailhouse

Young pastor asks older generations to help Dr. King's legacy endure

By DENISE CROSBY
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

A year ago on the 50th anniversary of Dr. Martin Luther King's assassination, when I interviewed a number of local African-Americans about the memories they still carried of the day, I felt honored to be getting such a personal history lesson about a monumental time in our nation's history.

At the time of King's murder, some were children living in the segregated South and deeply affected by the racism they experienced. Others were adults, settled into jobs and personal lives in the Chicago area.

All their recollections were fascinating, insightful — and five decades later, still so very vivid.

But one thing that really stuck out in my mind was their collective sense of sadness, of disappointment, and yes of frustration, that King's legacy is fading — gradually being lost, especially to younger generations who never had a chance to hear or see King, nor fully appreciate the sacrifice he and others involved in the Civil Rights Movement made that changed the course of history and still so profoundly impacts our country.

One prominent African-American leader told me that when she sees parents and grandparents share Dr. King's story, "I can tell from the expressions it does not stay with the young."

Said another Aurora man, who moved here after serving in Vietnam, "Too many young people don't appreciate the sacrifices that have been made."

At age 27, the Rev. Teddy Matthews would like to help change all that.

Matthews is a dynamic young black minister with a growing African-American congregation — raised in Maywood by his grandmother and a single mom who went on to get her doctorate after instilling in her only child the importance of education, as well as God, in his life.

Matthews studied at Aurora University, where he became involved in campus organizations and joined Boys II Men, a mentoring group founded by city of Aurora communications manager Clayton Muhammad.

It was also at AU, Matthews told me, where he received the calling to ministry, to do something special in his life that could help make a difference in this world.

Goodsons celebrate 50 years of marriage

Spending 50 years married to one person is an accomplishment that deserves recognition.

Mike and Peggy Goodson of Avon Park, Florida celebrated this milestone of 50 years on Feb. 1, 2019. Their journey started back on Feb. 1, 1969 when they were united in marriage at the Sembach Air Force Base Chapel in Sembach, Germany. Their early adventures together took them many places, but their last assignment was to the Avon Park Air Force Range, Avon Park, Florida ... with two children in tow — Tesha (Goodson) Baker (Jimmy) and Keith Goodson (Jennifer). The Goodsons have now resided in Avon Park for 43 years.

Mike Goodson retired March 1, 1985 from the United States Air Force with 20 years of service. He continues to work at the Avon Park Bombing Range, calling it his continued "tour of duty." "Our loving mom has been with each of us all the way," said their children.

The Goodsons are proud to also be the blessed grandparents of eight grandchildren: Michael, Ashlynn and Alyssa Goodson and Landon, Karlee, Karissa, Lynlee and Kaitlyn (Baker) Clemons (Clint); and two great-grandchildren, Annsie and Britton Clemons.

"Mom and Dad, we thank you for your ongoing example of love and devotion. We are grateful for everything you have done for us. We love, honor and cherish you both and we are truly blessed by God to be a part of your legacy. May God's blessings be upon you both as you continue on life's journey through your golden years. God's love has prevailed," wrote their children, Tesha and Keith.

Continuing with the lyrics: "Now, if you're in trouble friend, let me tell you what to do — I'll tell you what he's done for me — And I know what he'll do for you. Dreamin' big about the Super Bowl? This woman scored by faith

By LUCY LUGINBILL
TRI-CITY HERALD

Super Bowl weekend has a lot of people dreamin' big — the New England Patriots and the Los Angeles Rams for the big win, fans for the best tailgate party ever. At kickoff it's a fervor you can almost taste.

But beyond what the TV cameras catch for anxious viewers nationwide on game day, there's a different "dreamin' big" that is about kicking hunger for millions of Americans. The Taste of the NFL celebrity fundraiser held on the eve of the Super Bowl — this year in Atlanta — works toward that goal, having raised $25 million during its more than 25 years.

When Dallas chef Israel Voinin was selected to participate in this charity event three years in a row, his wife tells how she was dreamin' big too.

"Each year I wanted to go and I never got to go and I'd say, 'Can you put me in your suitcase?'" Brandy said with a smile, recalling the excitement surrounding the 2016 Super Bowl 50 event. "My husband said, 'I'd like you to come with me this year, be by my side to

No wonder Jesus taught his disciples to pray in a certain way. Not so much to repeat the prayer by rote, but to realize that his name is to be holy on our lips and in our hearts.

We acknowledge his purposes, his provisions, his forgiveness and sovereignty.

The NLT version of 'the Lord's prayer' in Matthew 6:9 says it this way, "Our Father in heaven, may your name be kept holy."

Consequently, as I gracefully entered into his presence, joy and assurance filled my soul. Selah

Don't talk so much

LIVING WITH CHILDREN
John K. Rosemond

Feelings are a wild card. On the one hand, the ability to experience deep emotion is one of the things that defines us as human. On the other, feelings can be and often are destructive to relationships and even to self. Like thoughts and behavior, feelings begin in chaos (check out the toddler), and like thoughts and behavior, feelings require firm discipline lest they become ever more chaotic.

In the 1960s, the profession of psychology — my profession — began to focus on and obsess about feelings, especially children's feelings. In graduate school, I learned that children raised in the 1950s and before (me!) had not been allowed to express their feelings freely. Their "bottled-up" feelings, starved of ventilation, rotted and became putrid, causing all manner of problems, most notably low self-esteem. Through various bogus therapies (e.g. hitting their parents with foam rubber bats as encouraging therapists looked on and asked the parents how they felt about being hit by their child), children were supposedly assisted toward "getting in touch with" and liberating their long-repressed emotions, thus cleansing their psyches of accumulated flotsam. (It is true, by the way, that we baby boomers were not allowed to express our feelings freely. For that, we are forever indebted to the common sense of our elders.)

America is now 40 years into this movement, enough time to have figured out that not one speck of good has come of it. Ah, but the mainstream mental health community has yet to figure this out. Its true believers continue to encourage children to talk about their feelings. The answer to "How do you feel about that?" is, apparently, more important than the answer to "What is the right and proper thing to do about that?"

This sort of approach verifies that the child's emotions are in some way valid. Now, hear me clearly: I am not saying that a child's emotions are never valid. I'm saying that children are, by nature, soap opera factories. As such, giving a child the impression that every emotion that wells up inside of him is worthy of serious discussion (and that people should adjust their behavior accordingly) is destructive to the child. Just as children must be told that certain behavior is inappropriate, so must they be told that the expression of certain emotions is inappropriate.

These days, it is psychologically incorrect to say to a child, "You're being silly. There are children in the world who have real problems, like not having enough food. If the worst problem in your life is that someone called you a name, well, sorry to tell you, but I'm not going to give that the time of day. I've got much better things to do. Get a grip, kiddo."

Those approximate my mother's words to me on occasions when I was making emotional mountains out of mole-hills. Most people of my generation can testify to similar experiences, for which we are thankful.

Which is the happier, more well-adjusted child: one who expresses his feelings freely when he doesn't like the way things are or one who has learned to accept that things will not always be as he would wish? The latter, of course!

Parents routinely seek my counsel concerning the former, describing children who become apoplectic at, say, the word "no." Invariably, the parents in question are attempting to solve the problem by talking to their kids about — you guessed it — their feelings. And, predictably, the more they talk, the worse the problem becomes. When they stop talking and begin to demonstrate calm, purposeful intolerance — in the form of penalizing consequences — for inappropriate emotional outbursts, the outbursts gradually stop and, lo and behold, the happiness quotient of the children in question begins to rise.

Which is a good thing for all concerned, especially the child.

Enjoy Valentine's Day when the babysitter's busy

By Metro Creative

Come Valentine's Day, couples are anxious to enjoy time spent with the one they love — whether it involves a dinner at a restaurant or a few hours of uninterrupted conversation at home. Parents who rely on babysitters and caregivers to tend to children while they get a night out may find that their sitters are also celebrating on Valentine's Day. This leaves parents of children of all ages potentially wondering how to celebrate with kids in tow. Here are some ideas to get started.

Breakfast celebration
Who says Valentine's Day love and affection is restricted to the evening? Make use of your time by tinkering with the schedule so that you can enjoy one-on-one moments in the morning or afternoon while children are in school or at daycare. Enjoy a couple's breakfast or brunch, followed by a

- massage.
- Meet for lunch
If you can't spare a day off from work, make a point to meet for
- lunch at a place halfway between your offices. This is yet another kid-free opportunity to enjoy meaningful conversation and time spent as a couple. Let the kids help Enlist the kids to give you the night off from dinner, or have them select the perfect take-out menu for a Valentine's Day dinner. Children do not always have the opportunity to give back to their parents, and on Feb. 14 they can step up their game. Move up bed times a little so the kids are tucked in early enough to allow you to cuddle on the couch.

Catch up on family time
Children are a shining example of their parents' love for one another. Use Valentine's Day as an opportunity to skip other obligations, including extracurricular activities, and have a family day. Watch a movie together and enjoy a picnic.
On Valentine's Day, there are many workarounds if the babysitter is unavailable.

After attending classes at Moody Bible College, three years ago Matthews founded — and became senior pastor — of Empowerment Church in Bellwood, where his mission is not only to restore hope to all but to "revive" a young generation that he insists is hungry for ways to make an impact. "We have the desire to carry on King's legacy but we don't know how to go about doing it," he insisted, when I talked to him recently about the feelings of his elders in the black community. "We have to be willing to be the student, but they have to be willing to be the teacher."

Matthews, who is continuing his studies at Concordia College, sees the issue as a "disconnect" between who King was and how his legacy should be carried out today. And while the young generation "has expectations placed on them," he is concerned "the mantle has not properly been passed." Which means more training and mentoring is needed because we are, unfortunately, "living in a culture that promotes individuality above connectivity and collaboration."
And Matthews sees the need for more effective mentoring by groups that not only have strong leadership and a proven plan in place but the financial resources to pull it off. That means providing

"new faces with more opportunities," he said, "not just by highlighting their gifts, but showing them the way and opening the door."
What it all comes down to, he continued, is that "we can do so much more together than apart."
Matthews considers himself lucky because he had models — especially his late grandmother Azzie — who helped mold him "into the person I was capable of being."
King himself was only in his 20s when, in 1954, he took on the role as senior pastor of Dexter Avenue Baptist Church in Montgomery, Alabama. There, a year later, he would begin to emerge as a national leader after coming to the aid of a woman by the name of Rosa Parks, who was arrested for civil disobedience after refusing to give up her seat on a bus to a white passenger. Matthews says one of his favorite speeches by King was to a group of students who he asked to think seriously about the blueprint of their life. "That blueprint is not just what you become but what you do," Matthews said. "This is the conversation we need to do more of ... how do we become a champion of good?"

With messages like that, it's no wonder this young preacher is beginning to make a name for himself in the Chicago area, not just as a black faith leader but as a motivational speaker. "There is so much untapped potential that lies within," said Matthews, who is married with two small children but still comes to Aurora to mentor young people when his schedule allows it. And that's the message this young pastor wants to pass along to the older generation who feel King's legacy has diminished. His number one request? "Don't give up on us."

Number two? "Meet one and raise one," Matthews said. "There is more talk about how they feel about w us for $ there."

Getting the most from that visit to the doctor

By American Counseling Association

This time of year tends to bring on more illnesses. So it's especially important to pay attention if you have an elderly parent or other relative or friend who may need help facing the flu or other illnesses. Influenza, for example, is a much more serious health issue than many of us realize. It's estimated that 80,000 Americans died of influenza last flu season, over 700,000 were hospitalized, and that the vast majority were elderly. Of course, as we get older, it's not just the flu but a variety of health issues that can prompt a doctor visit, a visit that can often be stressful, anxiety-producing and confusing for someone older. You may even be aware that you, regardless of your age, face the same problems when visiting your doctor. A doctor visit should be helpful and productive, and there are things you can do, for yourself or an elderly relative, to help minimize stress and maximize the help the doctor has to offer. One starting point is being what a professional counselor would call "appropriately assertive." Rather than being intimidated by that white coat and stethoscope, you want to be able to speak up clearly and directly about the reasons for your visit. Establish a climate of mutual respect that acknowledges the doctor's busy schedule but also your need to get information. It usually helps, prior to that office visit, to write out any questions that you'd like answered. That's especially true if you're going with someone older who may be nervous or forgetful about bringing up all the issues that need addressing. Write down the doctor's answers and instructions, and don't be afraid to politely ask to have things restated if you haven't fully understood what was said. Your goal is to get all the information you need and that's especially important if the patient is someone elderly who may forget or be confused about what doctor's diagnosis and advice. To make sure you've understood it yourself, take a moment to repeat what was said, and give the doctor the chance to correct or add to what you've heard. Open communication between doctor and patient makes it easier for both to work as partners. Whether the visit is for yourself, or to help a senior close to you, building effective communication will result in less stress and confusion, and better care for the patient. concert follows up on a highly successful and memorable concert of movie music presented at the church last spring, including selections from "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and "Phantom of the Opera." In addition to the musicals mentioned above, the concert will also feature a performance by the Heartland Pops Clarinet Quartet, which recently performed two Dixie-land pieces at the annual Gospel Sing on Jan. 26, and local harpist Vicknell Berrios. A native of Puerto Rico with extensive background in musical conservatory and children's choirs, Berrios is the music teacher at Lake Placid Elementary School. Berrios will be featured as a soloist during the course of the evening, performing an exciting flamenco for harp, and will also be playing flute and piccolo with the Pops. The Heartland Pops was formed in August of 2009, and is an all-volunteer concert band featuring some of the best musical talent in the Heartland. The group nurtures advanced student musicians by creating an environment in which they can enjoy the pleasure of playing with and learning from more experienced musicians, some of whom have more than 50 years of musical experience. In addition, the Pops provides an avenue for adult musicians to present high-quality music to the public by using their musical talents and abilities. While the group takes up donations for student scholarships, instruments, and music, its website proudly declares, "Your applause is our musicians' pay." First Presbyterian Church of Lake Placid will host the Heartland Pops for a special concert celebrating themes from movies and Broadway musicals in its Genesis Center at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 12. This event is part of the church's concert series. As is customary with this concert series, there is no charge for admission, but a love offering will be collected. The Genesis Center at First Presbyterian Church is located at 218 E. Belleview St. between Interlake and Dal Hall Boulevard. support me.' " It would be a very short getaway for the couple, a time for Brandy to see the annual strolling wine and food event featuring chefs from each NFL city. But shortly before purchasing her ticket to San Francisco, their plan for Brandy to come along got sacked. "We owned our restaurant and I never thought that we weren't going to have enough money. To me, buying the plane ticket was easy. We already had the hotel," the 37-year-old said, reflecting on a problem they couldn't have foreseen. "We had a client who paid us to do a huge catering event, but the bank held the check." Their cash flow was suddenly tight. The money was needed to purchase groceries in advance of the fundraiser for food preparation in San Francisco, plus there was the restaurant to run. To top it off, planned care for their kindergarten son, Sebastian, fell through too. An airplane ticket for Brandy was off the table, but she still searched for bargain flights. The couple even offered extended restaurant hours hoping to come up with enough money for her trip. As the Super Bowl approached, this woman of faith was on the offense, holding determinedly onto her dream and believing "it would take a miracle," she said. And that's when the first of two astonishing incidents happened. First, Brandy received a telephone call from a new church acquaintance, Jeanniene Lee Maki, a lady that was aware Israel would be a chef at the Super Bowl charity event, but unaware of the latest stressful money development. Brandy had only met her casually three or four times — and wasn't a close friend — but insisted she take the young mom shopping for new clothes at Jeanniene's expense. It would include a visit to the hair salon, even though Brandy protested vehemently.

"She said, 'God never gets his channels mixed up. If God told me to take you shopping and get your hair done then that's what we're going to do. I'll pick you up in an hour,'" Brandy said, remembering her own uneasiness. I said, "Listen, I believe in God too — and I don't want to talk negatively — but I don't feel comfortable about you doing this ... and then I tell you later that I really didn't go." Jeanniene told her to keep on having faith, and to prepare as if she were going, but Brandy's hopes sunk to a new low as the next couple of days passed. Then, with her husband's departure the very next morning, a thought — one she felt was from God — came strongly to mind as she angrily packed her husband's bag late evening. She heard clearly that she should read the biblical parable about the 10 virgins, a lesson about not being ready — and the consequences. "And I got up and read the Bible — I didn't even know where to find the story — and in it I read how five virgins were ready to go and five weren't ready," Brandy said, realizing right then that if a 'miracle' happened and she did get the opportunity to make the trip, she had better be ready. "It lit a fire under me and I packed my clothes," And that's when the second surprising thing happened. "Three hours later I got a call from the same lady who bought me the clothes," Brandy said, remembering Jeanniene's exact words about hearing a heaven-sent directive to purchase a plane ticket. "She told me, 'I wanted to do it before, but I don't do it unless God tells me to do it. I'm not about to do something just to be nice.' " With the late hour and no one to watch their son while the couple was on the trip, Jeanniene also offered to purchase a ticket for their 6-year-old. Not surprisingly, his big dreamer mom had already packed his suitcase. "What's so crazy is that Jeanniene bought the last two tickets on Virgin Atlantic! Like the virgins I was reading about in the Bible!" Brandy said, her voice full of excitement. "The last two tickets! And we were all on the flight together."

US pulls out of arms treaty

Trump bows out of nuclear accord to focus on China, Russia threats

By DEB RIECHMANN, ROBERT BURNS and MATTHEW LEE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Trump administration is pulling the plug on a decades-old nuclear arms treaty with Russia, lifting what it sees as unreasonable constraints on competing with a resurgent Russia and a more assertive China. The move announced Friday sets the stage for delicate talks with U.S. allies over potential new American missile deployments.

In explaining his decision, which he had foreshadowed months ago, President Donald Trump accused Moscow of violating the 1987 Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces treaty with “impunity” by deploying banned missiles. Moscow denies it is in violation and has accused Washington of resisting its efforts to resolve the dispute.

Democrats in Congress and some arms control advocates criticized Trump’s decision as opening the door to an arms race.

AP PHOTO

Secretary of State Mike Pompeo speaks at a news conference at the State Department in Washington on Friday.

“The U.S. threat to terminate the treaty will not bring Russia back into compliance and could unleash a dangerous and costly new missile competition between the United States and Russia in Europe and beyond,” the private Arms Control Association said. It argued that Washington had not exhausted options for drawing Russia back into compliance. Trump said in a statement that the U.S. will “move forward” with developing its own military response options to Russia’s banned deployment of cruise missiles that could target western Europe.

“We cannot be the only country in the world unilaterally bound by this treaty, or any other,” Trump said. Other officials said the treaty could still be saved if Russia reverses course and returns to compliance, but that window of opportunity will close in six months when the American withdrawal is due to take effect.

The Trump decision reflects his administration’s view that the arms treaty was an unacceptable obstacle to more forcefully confronting not only Russia but also China. China’s military has grown mightily since the treaty was signed, and the pact has prevented the U.S. from deploying weapons to counter some of those being developed in Beijing.

Leaving the INF pact, however, risks aggravating relations with European allies, who share the administration’s view that Russia is violating the treaty but who have not endorsed a U.S. withdrawal.

Secretary of State Mike Pompeo, speaking to reporters after Trump’s statement, said Russia will be formally notified on Saturday that the U.S. is withdrawing from the treaty, effective in six months. In the meantime,

Florida’s new governor wants tax cuts, more for schools

DeSantis outlines $91.3 million budget for coming year

By GARY FINEOUT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

TALLAHASSEE — Declaring he was “setting up the state for future success,” Florida’s new governor on Friday recommended a $91.3 billion budget for the coming year that boosts spending on schools and environment while avoiding some of the deep cuts pushed by his predecessor.

Republican Gov. Ron DeSantis’ spending plan is nearly $2 billion larger than the current year’s budget, but it also includes a large amount of federal money intended to help with hurricane recovery efforts in a state that has been battered by storms the last two years.

State legislators will consider the proposal during their annual session that starts in March.

Vice President Mike Pence and Gov. Ron DeSantis shake hands before Pence speaks at Iglesia Doral Jesus Worship Center on the political crisis in Venezuela on Friday, in Doral.

DeSantis, who was elected in November, crafted his first-ever budget plan in a way that will likely avoid any major spending battles with the Republican-controlled Legislature, while also steering clear of items that could spark loud objections from Democrats.

“We want a budget that is using taxpayer dollars wisely and that’s what we’ve done here,” said DeSantis.

He did not suggest any wide-ranging cuts to health care services as fellow

Republican former Gov. Rick Scott had done during his eight years. DeSantis did set aside money for what he called “tax relief,” although most of the $335 million is targeted at property owners by using state money to offset potential local property tax hikes for schools.

DeSantis also wants to keep tuition rates at current levels at colleges and universities, and he is proposing enough money to cover the rising

Robust January job gain shows economy’s durability

Employers ignored government shutdown, ramped up hiring

By CHRISTOPHER RUGABER
AP ECONOMICS WRITER

WASHINGTON — U.S. employers shrugged off last month’s partial shutdown of the government and engaged in a burst of hiring in January, adding 304,000 jobs, the most in nearly a year.

The healthy gain the government reported Friday illustrated the job market’s resilience nearly a decade into the economic expansion. The U.S. has now added jobs for 100 straight months, the longest such period on record.

The unemployment rate did rise in January to 4 percent from 3.9 percent, the Labor Department said, but mostly U.S. Sen. Cory Booker, D-NJ, leaves ABC studios in New York after an appearance on The View on Friday.

Sen. Cory Booker launches 2020 bid

By ELANA SCHOR
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — U.S. Sen. Cory Booker on Friday declared his bid for the presidency in 2020 with a sweeping call to unite a deeply polarized nation around a “common sense of purpose.”

The New Jersey Democrat, who is the second black candidate in a primary field that’s already historically diverse, delivered his message of unity amid an era marked by bitter political division. He announced his run on the first day of Black History Month, underscoring his consequential status as America’s potential second black president after Barack Obama.

“I believe that we can build a country where no one is forgotten, no one is left behind; where parents can put food on the table; where there are good-paying jobs with good benefits in every neighborhood; where our criminal justice system keeps us safe, instead of shuffling more children into cages and coffins; where we see the faces of our leaders on television and feel pride, not shame,” Booker said in a video message to supporters, subtly jabbing at President Donald Trump.

WASHINGTON — The Trump administration’s top health official asked Congress on Friday to pass its new prescription drug discount plan and provide it to all patients, not just those covered by government programs like Medicare.

The plan would take now-hidden rebates among industry players like drug companies and insurers and channel them directly to consumers when they go to pay for their medications.

Patients with high drug copays stand to benefit from the proposal, while people who take no prescription drugs, or who rely on generics mainly, would probably pay somewhat more, since premiums are expected to rise.

A day after unveiling the plan as a proposed regulation, Health and Human Services Secretary Alex Azar raised the stakes by calling on Congress to make it law and broaden it to include people covered by employer health insurance, not just Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries.

“Congress has an opportunity to follow through on their calls for transparency ... by passing our proposal into law immediately and extending it into the commercial drug market,” Azar said in a speech at the Bipartisan Policy Center think tank.

Ahead of next week’s State of the Union speech, President Donald Trump is under political pressure to show results for his promise to slash prescription drug costs. Data show that prices for brand-name drugs have continued to rise, though at a somewhat slower pace. Polls show consumers across the political spectrum want government action.

Northwest US measles cases prompt look at vaccine exemptions

By GILLIAN FLACCUS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

VANCOUVER, Wash. — A measles outbreak near Portland, Oregon, has revived a bitter debate over so-called “philosophical” exemptions to childhood vaccinations as public health officials across the Pacific Northwest scramble to limit the fallout.

At least 43 people in Washington and Oregon have fallen ill in recent weeks with the extraordinarily contagious virus, which was eradicated in the U.S. in 2000 as a result of immunization but arrives periodically with overseas travelers. More than a dozen more cases are suspected, and people who were exposed to the disease traveled to Hawaii and Bend, Oregon, raising the possibility of more diagnoses in the unvaccinated.

Washington Gov. Jay Inslee last week declared a state of emergency because of the outbreak.

“I would hope that this ends soon, but this could go on for weeks, if not months,” said Dr. Alan Melnick, public health director in Clark County, Washington.

The outbreak has lawmakers in Washington state revisiting non-medical exemptions that allow children to attend school without vaccinations if their parents or guardians express a personal objection. Liberal-leaning Oregon and Washington have some of the nation’s highest statewide vaccine exemption rates, driven in part by low vaccination levels in scattered communities and at some private and alternative schools.

Foster parents of slain toddler take in his newborn sister

LARGO (AP) — The newborn sister of a 2-year-old Florida boy who police say was killed by his mother is now in the care of his former foster parents.

Jordan Belliveau lived with Sam and Juliet Warren for most of his life until he was returned to his biological parents. His body was found in a wooded area near St. Petersburg in September. His mother initially told Largo Police a stranger abducted him, then said she hit the boy.

The Warrens have asked for a “fundamental re-examination” of the state’s child protective services system.

Jordan’s mother gave birth while in custody on a murder charge. The Tampa Bay Times reports the Warrens said in a statement Friday they are working toward adopting the baby with her mother’s cooperation.

New sheriff calls for better training after school shooting

FORT LAUDERDALE (AP) — The new sheriff in the Florida county where last year’s high school massacre happened says he’ll improve training for deputies assigned to protect campuses.

Broward County Sheriff Gregory Tony said in a statement Friday that school resource officers must be highly trained.

The deputy assigned to Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School last year failed to enter the building where a gunman was killing 17 people. Other deputies also stayed outside. Some said they could not remember when they last had active shooter training, even though it had been in the previous few years.

Tony said he will also push to improve the agency’s radio system, which crashed after the shooting.

Gov. Ron DeSantis appointed Tony on Jan. 11 after suspending Sheriff Scott Israel for allegedly mishandling the shooting.

Florida track ends greyhound races ahead of 2021 deadline

PENSACOLA (AP) — A Florida Panhandle dog track has ended its greyhound racing well ahead of a 2021 deadline.

The Pensacola Greyhound Track and Poker Room’s fall greyhound racing season ended Sept. 30, and races were supposed to resume Jan. 18.

But in November, Florida voters approved an amendment that will phase out live greyhound races statewide by 2021.

In a Pensacola News-Journal report, the track’s owner said its poker room and simulcast betting will continue operations, but the dog races won’t return.

In a statement, PCI Gaming said all the greyhounds that raced at the track have been placed “in good care.” Employees affected by the change were offered new jobs within the company.

PCI Gaming will continue its operations at a separate Panhandle facility with live quarter horse racing, poker and simulcast betting.

Man charged with dragging officer during traffic stop

BOYNTON BEACH (AP) — Authorities say they’ve caught a Florida man who dragged a police officer about 350 feet while trying to flee a traffic stop.

The Sun Sentinel reports 47-year-old Timothy Tristan Jones was arrested

Wednesday and charged with aggravated battery on a law enforcement officer and driving on a suspended license.

Boynton Beach police say Jones was pulled over Jan. 17 for driving with an expired license plate tag. Following repeated commands to step away from his car, Jones and the officer began to fight as Jones started his car to leave. Investigators say the officer became pinned by the door but managed to free herself from the accelerating car. She suffered road rash from hitting the pavement.

Police later identified Jones as the driver and determined where he lived.

Air Force plans to spend $3 billion to rebuild Florida base

PANAMA CITY (AP) — Air Force officials say they are committed to spending $3 billion during the next five years to rebuild a Florida base heavily damaged by Hurricane Michael.

The assistant secretary of the Air Force for installations, environment and energy announced the Tyndall Air Force Base reconstruction plans Thursday to local officials in Florida’s Panhandle.

The News Herald reports Assistant Secretary John Henderson said the plans will be submitted to Congress this spring.

Bay County officials said the effort likely will create up between 4,000 and 5,000 jobs.

The October hurricane hammered the base, with roofs torn from airplane hangars and cars tossed around.

An apparent tornado last month did even more damage.

Tyndall is home to the nation’s 325th Fighter Wing. More than 3,600 men and women are stationed there.

Venezuela opposition leader rejects mediation offers

By SCOTT SMITH
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CARACAS, Venezuela — Venezuelan opposition leader Juan Guaido said Friday he has turned down offers from the presidents of Mexico and Uruguay to negotiate with embattled Nicolas Maduro, a day before nationwide street protests called to escalate pressure on the socialist leader to step down.

In a letter to both presidents, Guaido urged them to back Venezuela’s struggle, saying to remain neutral aligns them with Maduro.

“At this historical moment that our country is going through, to be neutral is to be on the side of the regime that has condemned hundreds of thousands of human beings to misery, hunger and exile — including death,” he said.

Guaido declared himself interim president last week before tens of thousands of cheering supporters and vowed to topple Maduro’s administration, which he labeled a “dictatorship.” His claim to the presidency is backed by the United States and some two dozen other nations. The opposition’s priority is to end Maduro’s grip on power and usher in a transition by holding democratic elections, Guaido said in the letter to Uruguayan President Tabare Vazquez and Mexico’s President Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador.

The United States also rejects offers from Mexico, Uruguay and the Vatican to mediate a dialogue. President Donald Trump’s national security adviser John Bolton tweeted Thursday that Maduro and his top advisers should retire to “a nice beach somewhere far away from Venezuela.”

Bolton’s talk turned tougher Friday in an interview with conservative radio talk show host Hugh Hewitt in which he warned that it could be a beach area more like Guantanamo.

A defiant Maduro remains dug in, blaming the White House for openly backing what he calls a coup to remove him from power and exploit his country’s vast oil wealth. He retains support from powerful allies, including Russia and China, but is growing increasingly isolated as more nations back Guaido.

Amnesty International: Boko Haram kills at least 60 in Nigeria attack

By AMELIA NIERENBERG
ASSOCIATED PRESS

DAKAR, Senegal — Boko Haram has killed at least 60 people in a “devastating” attack on the northeastern Nigeria border town of Rann, Amnesty International said Friday, calling it one of the deadliest assaults by the extremist group in its nearly decade-long insurgency.

Fighters on motorcycles drove through the town near the Cameroon border on Monday morning, setting houses on fire and killing people left behind, the international rights group said in a series of Twitter posts. The fighters also chased residents fleeing the “massive attack” and killed several outside town.

Amnesty published satellite imagery that it said showed “hundreds of burned structures.” Many likely served as shelters for displaced people who had arrived in recent months seeking protection. Most of Rann is “now destroyed,” the group said.

The attack came as Nigeria faces what it has called an extremist resurgence, posing a serious challenge for President Muhammadu Buhari as he seeks re-election in two weeks’ time. His administration once claimed Boko Haram had been “crushed” or “technically defeated,” while the military has faced questions over low morale and support.

Cuban evangelicals push back against legalizing gay marriage

By ANDREA RODRIGUEZ
ASSOCIATED PRESS

HAVANA — A Cuban government push to legalize gay marriage has set off an unprecedented reaction from the island’s rapidly growing evangelical churches, whose members are expected to widely reject a state-proposed constitutional referendum in a nationwide referendum this month.

The reform is almost certain to pass by a broad margin of Cuba’s 7 million voters — language opening the door to gay marriage is only one element of the reform — but the evangelical vote could shave hundreds of thousands of votes from its victory.

With many pastors promoting “no” votes from the pulpit, the swelling evangelical rejection of the constitution is a novel development for a state that prides itself on projecting an image of ideological unanimity. Cuban government-endorsed candidates and proposals typically receive ‘yes’ votes well above 90 percent in one of last communist nations on earth, now in the 60th year of its socialist revolution.

“I can’t vote for something that goes against my principles. It’s sad but it’s a reality,” said pastor Alida Leon, president of the Evangelical League of Cuba. Hers is one of a dozen evangelical denominations that are actively speaking out against the reform. There are an estimated 100 evangelical denominations active in Cuba, 52 legally registered, and many are taking softer lines against the new constitution, or staying officially neutral. The same is true for many Catholic and non-evangelical protestant clergy.

US stocks eke out gains after bumpy day caps solid week

By DAMIAN J. TROISE and ALEX VEIGA
AP BUSINESS WRITERS

Stocks capped a bumpy day of trading Friday with modest gains, extending the market's winning streak to its third straight day.

Gains in technology companies, energy stocks and banks outweighed losses in retailers and elsewhere in the market.

Major indexes were higher much of the morning as investors applauded a burst of hiring in January by U.S. employers. That enthusiasm was tempered, however, by a disappointing revenue outlook from Amazon.

The solid jobs report came a day after investors got encouraging news from the Federal Reserve, which confirmed that it will be "patient" in deciding when to raise interest rates.

Friday's bout of up-and-down trading came a day after the market closed out January with its biggest monthly gain since 2015.

That strong finish to the month, in addition to the latest jobs report, may have given some investors reason to take a breather Friday, resulting in the market barely squeaking out a gain.

The S&P 500 index rose 2.43 points, or 0.1 percent, to 2,706.53. The Dow Jones Industrial Average gained 64.22 points, or 0.3 percent, to 25,063.89.

The Nasdaq composite dropped 17.87 points, or 0.2 percent, to 7,263.87. The Russell 2000 index of smaller companies picked up 2.64 points, or 0.2 percent, to 1,502.05.

hiring typically slows when unemployment is so low.

"The overwhelming conclusion from today's numbers is that the U.S. labor market remained incredibly strong at the start of 2019," said Leslie Preston, senior economist at TD Economics.

Diane Swonk, chief economist at Grant Thornton, said that many federal workers and contractors likely went out and found part-time work during the 35-day shutdown. The ability of many of them to do so is itself a sign of the job market's strength, Swonk said.

starting Saturday, the U.S. will suspend its obligations under the treaty.

Pompeo said that if, in the coming six months, Russia accepts U.S. demands that it verifiably destroy the cruise missiles that Washington claims are a violation, then the treaty can be saved. If it does not, "the treaty terminates," he said.

Administration officials have dismissed concerns that the treaty's demise could trigger a race to develop and deploy more intermediate-range missiles. U.S. officials have emphasized their fear that China, which is not party to the treaty, is gaining a significant military advantage in Asia by deploying large numbers of missiles with ranges beyond the treaty's limit. Whether the U.S. will now respond by deploying INF noncompliant missiles in Asia is unclear. In any case, it seems unlikely Beijing would agree to any negotiated limits on its weaponry.

Russia accused the U.S. of unilaterally seeking to neuter the treaty.

"I 'congratulate' the whole world; the United States has taken another step toward its destruction today," said Konstantin Kosachev, head of the foreign affairs committee in Russia's upper house of parliament.

INF was the first arms control measure to ban an entire class of weapons: ground-launched cruise missiles with a range between 310 miles and 3,400 miles. At the time, in the late stages of the Cold War, the U.S. and its allies were mainly concerned by the perceived threat of Russian medium-range nuclear missiles that were targeted at Europe. The U.S. deployed similar missiles in response, in the 1980s, leading to negotiations that produced the INF treaty.

Rep. Adam Smith, a Washington state Democrat and new chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, blasted Trump for raising the risk of nuclear war.

"The administration's ideological aversion to arms control as a tool for advancing national security is endangering our safety, as well as that of our allies and partners," Smith said. "The risk of miscalculation or misunderstanding is already higher than at any point since the end of the Cold War, and this decision only makes it worse."

U.S. officials say they have little reason to think Moscow will change its stance in the next six months.

costs of Bright Futures, Florida's popular merit-based financial aid program. He did not recommend across-the-board pay raises for state employees, but did recommend keeping health insurance premiums unchanged.

DeSantis wants to boost the amount spent on each public school student by 3 percent, or $224 more a year. Some of that increased money would go to school safety programs that were set up after a 2018 massacre at a high school in Parkland that left 17 people dead. But more than $400 million would go to a still-undefined bonus program for teachers and principals.

This new program, which could be announced as soon as next week, would replace the state's existing "Best and Brightest" bonus program created by legislators. It awards bonuses to teachers who received good evaluations and earned top scores on the test the teachers took in order to get into college. Florida's teacher union has sharply criticized the program and has a lawsuit pending against it.

DeSantis said rewarding teachers based on their scores on exams like the SAT "didn't make sense."

In his proposed budget, DeSantis is also pushing for increased spending on Everglades restoration as well as $100 million for Florida Forever, the state's land-buying program.

State Sen. Audrey Gibson, a Jacksonville Democrat, said in a statement that she "was encouraged to see the governor's commitment to priorities Democrats have long-embraced, especially the cleanup of our water, and increased funding for public education."

our water, and increased funding for public education."

Republican State Senate President Bill Galvano also praised DeSantis' first budget, saying the recommendations "reflect many of our shared priorities not only in terms of state spending, but also with regard to setting aside ample reserves." The governor recommended leaving more than $5 billion unspent.

Spread throughout the budget is a mix of both federal and state money intended to help Florida recover from the damage left behind by Hurricane Irma and Hurricane Michael. Some would be used for home repair, a voluntary home buyout program for homeowners in flood-prone areas and even a program to aid businesses being set up by Puerto Ricans who have migrated to the state.

Stressheimer's: memory problems triggered by anxiety

Whether you're worried about your health care (that's 78 percent of you), your finances (30 percent say it's a constant anxiety, while 40 percent go sleepless because of money woes) or your basic needs (40 percent of you believe that you're being underpaid in your jobs), you're a candidate for Stressheimer's — memory problems triggered by relentless anxiety.

Drs. Oz and Roizen

According to researchers from the Albert Einstein School of Medicine, among their study participants 70 and older, every 5-point increase in a person's perceived stress score boosted the risk of developing mild cognitive impairment by 30 percent! Folks who had the very highest estimation of their daily stress levels were 250 percent more likely to suffer from cognition problems than lesser-stressed folks.

In a 2007 study published in Acta Psychologica, researchers found that among 70 male students, acute psychosocial stress prevented them from remembering words they were tasked with memorizing when tested five weeks later. Peers not subject to acute stress recalled the words much more frequently.

A 2012 study by researchers from Dr. Oz's Columbia University Medical Center found that chronic stress affects type 2 ryanodine receptors in the hippocampus, the brain region that plays a central role in learning and memory. These receptors are channels that regulate the calcium levels in neurons, which cells need to function and survive.

Turns out, memory is also affected by gender. Guys' retrieval of declarative memory (facts and events) is more affected by stress than gals', suggesting that perhaps sex hormones play a role.

But here's the good news: You can alter your stress response so that it doesn't damage your brain and memory.

How to dispel stress and protect your brain:

1. Get around 60 minutes of aerobic exercise four or more days a week. It burns off stress hormones!
2. Meditate. Or learn deep breathing, guided imagery, progressive muscle relaxation or at least one of the 12 techniques that work for some for managing stress. Remember that stress isn't the event, it's your reaction to it. Discover the world of choices by starting with "What Meditation Technique Is Right for Me?" at sharecare.com. Meditation lowers blood pressure, eases anxiety, improves mood, increases sleep quality and boosts your outlook on life.
3. Identify stressors. Talk about them with friends or family, face to face, not facebooking. It's the most powerful way of not aging or decreasing brain function from stress. You may benefit from keeping a stress diary. (Download one at www.mindtools.com; click on "Toolkits," then "Stress Management.")
4. Get help from a trained counselor. Ask friends and doctors for recommendations.
5. The tough one: Remove unnecessary stressors from your life. This is hard because it means you have to recognize the financial choices, activities, habits and addictions that cause you unnecessary stress. If you're chronically late or frequently nervous about seeing someone, going somewhere, or doing something, those are tells that you need to do a house cleaning.

No pressure, we don't want to cause you stress. Download the free Cleveland Clinic Stress Free Now app at the App Store. Over several months you may see memory improvements.

Adult child sees too much togetherness in family trip

DEAR ABBY: This spring, my entire family will be traveling 15 hours away for a wedding. I was excited about it until my family started making plans.

Dear Abby

I'm 21 and live alone, so I'm pretty independent from my parents. The thought of being around them 24/7 for a week straight drives me crazy.

wedding. This is your chance to create some boundaries between you and your family in the future now that you are an adult.

They took it upon themselves to get a credit card in my name to rent me a hotel room on the same floor as everyone else, and even went so far as buying a camper so everyone could go together. Ideally, I'd like to travel there independently, spend time as a family during the wedding, then have some alone time and enjoy the trip.

This isn't a power struggle. It is an important milestone in the lives of your relatives.

I'm under so much pressure to please my family that I'm not even sure I still want to go. I know my family would be hurt if I don't go, but I feel like if I do, they will be upset because I won't be with them 24/7. Either I stay home and miss out, or go to the wedding and be annoyed. Advice? — Worried About The Wedding In Illinois

I hope you will attend the wedding and be present, accounted for and supportive. However, before you go, make plain to your parents that you will need some time to yourself so they won't be surprised when you're not with them 100 percent of the time. Then contact the hotel and arrange to pay for your accommodations with a credit card that YOU applied for, because you are canceling the one that was fraudulently opened in your name "for" you.

DEAR WORRIED: This isn't a choice between going or not going to the

And tell your parents to never "help" you out that way again.

Dogs staying with the pack

Dear Readers: Is your dog an "OUTSIDE DOG"? He shouldn't be. Dogs are pack animals, and they want to be with us. Yes, a dog can track muddy footprints inside, may have an occasional accident and may scamper up on the couch during a thunderstorm, but that's why paper toweling was invented.

Hints from Heloise

In some states, it is illegal to leave your dog outside in extreme hot or extreme cold.

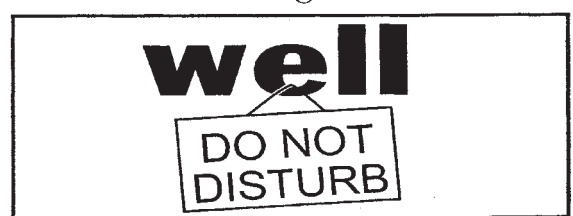

P.S. If your dog has issues, talk with your veterinarian.

Think of your dog as a member of the family, and let the dog inside, especially now, when some parts of the country are in a deep freeze. — Heloise

Dear Heloise: At my bank's drive-thru, they always give my dog a biscuit if he's in the car. Well, sometimes, believe it or not, I have my cat in the car, but there are no treats for the cat! Can we change that? — Ruth W. in Pennsylvania

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Hearing a little bit of a story is unsatisfying. You want the rest! You've time for it today, too. Your curiosity (rarer than you realize) will pave the way to learning interesting and even magical things.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You'll do as you wish. When it coincides with what others wish, great. When it doesn't, you won't worry too much about it. You're not put on this earth to please all people.
GEMINI (May 21-June 21). In deciding what to give your time to, the strongest consideration will be the other people involved. If you don't like the activity but prefer the participants, it's in. (Like an activity but don't prefer the participants, it's out.)
CANCER (June 22-July 22). You don't have to change your life all at once in order to change it completely. It only takes a few minutes a day to create life-enhancing habits. By this time next year, you could be a different person because of just one habit.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Due to new information, you may lack the certainty you once had about your situation, which is smart. It's time to learn, and you can't learn if you think you already know. So you'll toss that, remain open and absorb much.

VRIGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). What you want to do and what you're good at will come together at an intersection, and this is where life gets very exciting for you. Proceed carefully now. Watch out. Intersections can be dangerous.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Your emotional landscape is formed in a dialogue with your environment over time. So it's crucial that you interact in the right environments for you. You need positive and intelligent feedback.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). There are many items in the new vernacular that older people will despise — something to consider before uttering nonchalantly "no problem" or "let's grab dinner." Why use upsetting words when there are other options?
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). To enjoy the unsettling, well, that's not as unusual as it may sound. Tension can be delicious, and it's certainly more interesting than going through a problem-free day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). What you need isn't to comply with others or have others comply with you. What you need is a better idea. Start the dialogue, all as humble equals, and you'll come up with the answers together.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). It's weird that sometimes you don't know you're having a great time until much, much later when you look back on the experience and realize — wow. That was pretty great. Today will bring such a phenomenon.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). A continuing sense of mystery and wonder is a requirement for you and one that will be met and then some by today's strange and unpredictable series of events.
TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Feb. 2). Yes, you'll get a significant zing of good fortune at the top of this year. But the big gift is this: You realize that a way of being can improve all. You intend to embody love, generosity, graciousness, cheerfulness, optimism and ethics. With this aim at the center of your being every day, you'll change the world. Virgo and Scorpio adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 30, 15, 20 and 33.

Rodgers at home in Charlotte Harbor Regatta

Two-time Weta class champion, Hughes co-lead heading into Day 2

By BRIAN GLEASON
SUN CORRESPONDENT

Knox Rodgers and Bob Hughes traded wins in the first two races of the 10th annual Charlotte Harbor Regatta Friday to co-lead the Weta class going into today's racing. Rodgers is the two-time defending Weta champion.

The teams of Nicolas Liebel and Fabian Stapleton and Ken Hilk and Darcy Jensen each won a race in the Hobie 16 class, but Jason Sanchez and Faith Payne logged a second and third to lead by a point over Susan Korzeniewski and Kathy Miles, who took a second and a fourth Friday. Hilk's and Liebel's teams are tied for third.

In the F18 class, Clay and Guy Selsmeyer won all three races over Dick MacDonald and David Ingram to lead by three with two days of racing to go.

A steady 12-knot wind from the east in the late morning faded in the early afternoon to limit all but the F18 class to only two races.

Today's racing will feature a second circle with two classes, the 2.4mR and Harbor 20. The regatta wraps up Sunday. For complete results and photos, visit www.CharlotteHarborRegatta.com.

BOYS BASKETBALL: North Port 67, Lemon Bay 52

Bobcats gain the edge

Big second half propels North Port over Lemon Bay

By JUSTIN RAFFONE
SUN CORRESPONDENT

NORTH PORT — Coming off of four close finishes in the last week and a half, including two overtime games, the North Port boys basketball team was in the midst of another nail-biter against rival Lemon Bay on Friday.

The Bobcats led 11-10 after one and held a small five point advantage at the half before an explosive third quarter set them up for a less stressful 67-52 win over the visiting Manta Rays.

By the end of the first half, North Port pushed the lead to five before pouring on the scoring in the third quarter.

"In the first half, our perimeter shots weren't dropping the way they have the last couple games," said Bobcats coach Ryan Power. "I told our shooters to continue to take open looks. We hit three or four three's in the third quarter that allowed us to extend the lead."

At about the same time that Baker and Nick Passamonte started to find their stroke from behind the arc, the Lemon Bay shooters ran into a cold spell.

The opportunities were present for the Mantas, open shots were created, but not made and coach Sean Huber said that was the difference in the game.

"We couldn't score," said Huber. "We attacked some spots that we thought would give us good opportunities, we got those good opportunities and they didn't go in. When North Port got good opportunities, they went in."

"I was really proud of how we just kept scraping, that's what we do, but we shot probably 50 percent or less in free throws and probably 30 percent from the field, and you can't win games that way."

Passamonte and Baker were almost automatic from beyond the arc in the second half, as each contributed 13 points after the break.

The Bobcats were able to get points in the paint and at the line, not just from three-point range in the third quarter, and that's what really blew the game open.

North Port outscored the Mantas 22-13 in the third, but only scored six more points than Lemon Bay in the other three quarters combined.

"As soon as we got a little bit of a lead, we were able to spread them out," said Power. "Since they were in man we really wanted to get the court spread, and that opened up some driving lanes, but we did a great job of getting it in the paint and putting it up strong."

Rams are newcomers to Patriots' house party

By BARRY WILNER
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

ATLANTA — Hey, have you guys been here before?

If you're a New England Patriot, the answer pretty much is "all the time."

If you play for the Rams, the reply basically is "never in my life."

So if experience is a factor in Sunday's Super Bowl, the overwhelming edge is with the 2½-point favorites from Foxborough who are 5-3 in NFL title games with Tom Brady at quarterback and Bill Belichick in the hoodie on the sideline.

The Rams, whose past two Super trips were representing St. Louis in 2000 and '02, have four players who have gotten this far. New England has four on its defensive line alone.

"Probably, throughout the week, it gives them an advantage," Rams tackle Andrew Whitworth says — and he's finishing up his 13th NFL season, though it's his first that ends in February.

"They kind of know this week. They know when things are a little anxious, when to kind of, 'Hey, turn it on and get ready to play.' They probably have a process and plan for the week."

Fowler leads Phoenix Open after Day 2

Closes with four straight birdies for a 6-under 65, one-shot lead

By JOHN MARSHALL
AP SPORTS WRITER

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — After the opening round of the Phoenix Open, Rickie Fowler lamented a missed putt that would have given him the outright lead and household bragging rights.

Following an impressive string of birdies to close out his second round, Fowler will get his chance to trash-talk Justin Thomas, his roommate this week.

Fowler closed with four straight birdies for a 6-under 65 on Friday, draining an 8-foot putt on the final hole to take a one-shot lead over Thomas into the weekend.

“Getting to play with your buddies, those are the people you want to lose to the least,” said Fowler, who was at 13-under 129 after opening with a 64. “So having bragging rights right now — we have a long way to go, there’s a lot of golf to be played — that will be fun. I definitely don’t want him out in front of me.”

Branden Grace aced the 193-yard seventh hole after switching clubs at his caddie’s advice and was two shots back along with Trey Mullinax. Both shot 64.

Matt Kuchar and Cameron Smith were at 10 under after a second straight day of pristine weather and course conditions.

Phil Mickelson shot 75 and finished 1 over to miss the cut for the fifth time in 30 career starts at the Phoenix Open. He is a three-time champion, last in 2013.

A two-rime runner-up at TPC Scottsdale, Fowler misread a putt on his final hole Thursday that would have given him the outright lead.

Through 14 holes on Friday, it appeared Thomas, who shot 66 to reach 12 under, would again get the household bragging rights.

Fowler made a 4-footer for birdie on the par-3 12th, then two-putted for birdie on No. 15. He made a 10-footer on No.

AP PHOTO

Rickie Fowler hits from the 16th tee during the second round of the Phoenix Open on Friday.

16, two-putted for birdie on the drivable par-4 17th and smoked a 344-yard drive on the closing hole. Fowler dropped his approach shot on 18 just behind the hole and sank the 8-footer, sending a roar across TPC Scottsdale.

“I really did a good job of taking care of the holes coming in,” he said. “Just did a good job of staying disciplined, making good shots, good swings and made some good putts as well.”

Thomas dropped in a birdie putt that nearly went all the way around the hole on the par-5 13th, but gave it right back on the difficult 14th when he pulled his approach shot and missed a 9-footer.

Thomas reached the par-5 15th in two and two-putted for birdie to get back to 12 under, finishing with four straight pars to temporarily take the lead. Fowler passed him, but the friends will be in the final group on Saturday along with Grace.

Playing his first Phoenix Open, Grace opened with a 67 on Thursday and got to 5 under with a two-putt birdie on the par-5 fifth. The South African switched from a 7-iron to an 8 on the par-3 seventh at the behest of his new caddie, Craig Connelly, and then celebrated from the tee as another massive Phoenix Open crowd roared for his third career hole-in-one — his first on the PGA Tour.

Grace, who missed the cut at Torrey Pines last week, also chipped in for eagle on the par-5 13th and reeled off three straight birdies to overcome a double bogey on the difficult par-4 11th.

■ GIRLS BASKETBALL: Lemon Bay 53, DeSoto County 33

Lady Mantas hit stride

Lemon Bay ends regular season with victory

By BRUCE ROBINS
SUN CORRESPONDENT

ENGLEWOOD — Hoping for a win to close out the regular season on a high note, the Lemon Bay girls basketball team found a willing opponent in DeSoto County, as the Manta Rays rolled to a 53-33 victory in a non-district contest Friday night.

After a deadlocked first quarter, Lemon Bay opened up a nine-point halftime lead, withstood one brief Bulldog run in the third period, and pulled away in the fourth quarter for the victory.

DeSoto hit back-to-back three point baskets to take the early advantage, but the Mantas got their act together shortly after that.

“We found the shooters a little better and rebounded better in the second quarter,” Lemon Bay coach Mike Young said. “And then in the third and fourth quarters we did a good job of just handling the pressure and slowing ourselves down. We’ve just got to slow down the offense and we’ve got to move that ball. It’s cliches and it’s broken records but when the ball goes from side to side and we can get the ball in the post and get it out, all teams are successful.”

Lemon Bay outscored the Bulldogs, 16-7, in the second quarter to take a 28-19 halftime lead. DeSoto closed within six points in the third quarter, but the Mantas got back out to a nine point lead at the end of the period and extended the margin in the fourth quarter to avenge a loss to the Bulldogs earlier in the season.

“I thought our defensive effort was better in the second half,” Young said. “It’s a nice way to finish the week. We’ve had a tough stretch but we finished the week with two straight wins and we get to play a home game Monday night in the first round of the district tournament.”

The Mantas also picked up a forfeit win over Bradenton Christian to conclude the regular season with a 12-10 mark.

“I thought Olivia Gibb came to play tonight,” Young said. “We’ve been talking to Olivia about rebounding and making herself more assertive on the offensive glass and looking for her shot more.”

Gibb finished with 12 points and 11 rebounds while Abby Turner was the high scorer with 14 points and hauled in 7 rebounds. Katelyn Ziarnicki added 13 points for Lemon Bay.

Tanyah Smith did her best to keep the Bulldogs in the game with 17 points, but no one else could muster any consistent offense for DeSoto, now 7-14. The Bulldogs were also hurt by poor free throw shooting, sinking only 8 of 25 attempts.

“They pressed us last time and tonight we handled the pressure better,” Young said. “We’re getting better at moving the ball and cutting harder. We’re getting stronger with the ball and not getting knocked off the line, and we’ve been much stronger with our passes. So it’s the right time of the year to be feeling good and playing better. We’ll have a tough game Monday night and hopefully come out with a home win.”

Lemon Bay will host North Fort Myers in a district tournament quarterfinal Monday at 7:00. The teams split their regular season meetings with each winning on the opponent’s floor.

Hudson, Lady Pirates show future potential

By CHUCK BALLARO
SUN CORRESPONDENT

PORT CHARLOTTE — The Port Charlotte High School girls basketball team showed on Friday in its regular season finale that not only does it have a good team in the present, but the potential for a great team in the future.

Sharina Hudson scored 17 points, 13 of them in the third quarter, and the bench showed up to make its presence known in Port Charlotte’s 65-35 victory over Oasis of Cape Coral on senior night.

It was the starters who got Port Charlotte (14-10) on the right track. The bench, led by Emily Larson and Alisha Huggins came on in the second quarter to extend the lead.

Hudson took the team on her back in the third quarter with several steals leading to easy baskets, while The Pirates showed signs of success in the future with Ashley Plesky in the fourth as it came within an eyelash of forcing a running clock.

Madison Chaney led Oasis (5-14) with 14 points, much of it in garbage time.

Progl said Hudson has a chance to be a real good one next year as she gains more experience.

“Sharina is fast and athletic and can make up for a lot of errors that happen,” said Port

Charlotte coach Mike Progl. “She baits you to make that pass and when you do, she picks it off.”

Of course, the night was about the four seniors, though two of them were hurt and didn’t play. The two who did, Sandy Andre and Ashlyn Henderson, had solid nights, with nine and seven points, respectively.

For them, this season has been a great reward after suffering through three horrendous seasons, including a three-win season last year.

“I’m happy we won on senior night. I’m happy with the new coach and it’s been an amazing season,” Andre said. “Tonight is going to be my biggest memory. I pushed myself harder to reach my limit.”

“Going from three wins last year to (14) this year, it’s huge. We got a new coach and practiced and exceeded everyone’s expectations,” Henderson said. “He broke stuff down for us and showed us how to move and read the defense.”

Progl said the seniors have provided stellar leadership, particularly an injured Alani Qualls, who spent three years at Charlotte before coming across the river.

“We needed a culture change. The girls weren’t happy and we came in with a blank slate and made the senior year as memorable as can be,” Progl said. “Alani and Ashlyn are very mature and four-year varsity players. Alani is quiet and doesn’t say much and understands when to slow the game down or pick it up.”

Indians end district play on low note

Venice stumbles at Braden River, finishes as No. 4 seed for district tournament

By VINNIE PORTELL
SUN CORRESPONDENT

BRADENTON — For the first few minutes of the Venice boys basketball team’s game against Braden River, the Indians looked to be in total control.

Leading 9-0 and playing lockdown defense, Venice held its lead through the first quarter. But the Indians couldn’t stay in front as Pirates player Lonnie Brown exploded for 30 points in a 71-48 Pirates win at Braden River High School.

With the loss, Venice finishes district play at 4-6 and wraps up the No. 4 seed for the district tournament, while Braden River finishes at 6-3 and will be either the No. 2 or No. 3 seed.

“When you’re playing in these games of magnitude, every layup makes a difference,” Venice coach John Flynn said. “Every free throw makes a difference. Every turnover.

“When you’re struggling and you’re not the best team in your district, but you’re still going for wins, you have to execute everything. We get to points where it looks very good, and then we get to points where it doesn’t look good at all.”

Though the Indians’ lead began to unravel in the second quarter, it wasn’t until the second half that the game really slipped away.

Despite making just two baskets in the second quarter, and taking nearly six minutes to make the first, Venice trailed only 27-23 at halftime and was within range of retaking the lead thanks to a 3-pointer by Adam Gebel just before halftime.

However, the third quarter would be nothing short of a disaster for Venice.

The Indians again took almost a full six minutes to sink their first basket of the quarter and had trouble stopping Brown in the post.

The senior forward grabbed six of his nine rebounds and scored 14 of his 30 points in the third quarter alone, using offensive rebounds to get fouled or make a put-back layup.

“How many second and third opportunities did we give him under the hoop? It’s been that way the whole year,” Flynn said. “We haven’t rebounded the ball well at all.”

By the time Brown was finished putting on a show in the third quarter, his team held a 50-32 lead and was in full control — as Venice had appeared to be earlier.

However, the game wasn’t a total loss for the Indians as newly called-up guard Jayshon Platt was able to score his first point as a varsity player when he swished the first of two free throws with 2:25 to go in the game.

Morrill had an uneven performance for Lemon Bay, alternating missed open shots with making some beautiful contested layups in the lane, and that was the story of the game for the Manta Rays as a team after halftime.

“I had to try to change the tempo late to try to get us a few more opportunities,” said Huber. “North Port turned the ball over a few times and we still couldn’t score...Our kids know we’re a good basketball team. I think we’re playing our best X’s and O’s ball, but I don’t know what we have to do to get some more confidence shooting the ball.”

This is the third win in a row for the Bobcats after a 68-64 loss to a tough Charlotte team, and they are 5-2 over their last seven.

Lightning top Islanders 1-0 in shootout

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Victor Hedman scored the only goal in the shootout Friday night to lift the Tampa Bay Lightning past the New York Islanders 1-0 after both goaltenders put on a spectacular display through 65 minutes.

Hedman beat Thomas Greiss on the first attempt for the league-best Lightning.

The Islanders had a power play at 3:23 of overtime when Tampa Bay's Nikita Kucherov was called for cross-checking but couldn't convert.

Greiss and Tampa Bay's Andrei Vasilevskiy put on a save-for-save clinic before the shootout. Greiss made 41 saves while Vasilevskiy stopped 36 shots. Vasilevskiy turned away three more during the shootout.

The first-place Islanders came in having won 15 of their last 19 games, including five of six heading into the All-Star break and their subsequent bye week. They hadn't played since losing at Chicago in a shootout on Jan. 22.

Viktor Arvidsson scored twice, and the Nashville Predators scored all their goals in the third period of a 4-1 win over the Florida Panthers on Friday night.

Kevin Fiala and Roman Josi also found the net for the Predators, and Filip Forsberg had two assists. Juuse Saros made 27 saves as the Predators won their third straight game.

Jonathan Huberdeau scored for the Panthers, who had a three-game win streak snapped. Roberto Luongo stopped 22 shots.

CHICAGO 7, BUFFALO 3

Patrick Kane celebrated his latest homecoming with two goals and two assists to surpass the 900-point plateau in leading the Chicago Blackhawks to a 7-3 win over the Buffalo Sabres on Friday night.

Kane capped the victory with an empty-net goal while upping his career total to 903 points, moving ahead of Tony Amonte for 12th place among U.S.-born players. Kane is from south Buffalo and extended his point streak to 10 games, in which he has combined for nine goals and 16 assists.

Connor Murphy sealed the victory by converting Kane's pass into the middle and snapping in a 30-footer through a screen to put Chicago up 5-3 with 8:36 remaining.

WASHINGTON 4, CALGARY 3

Evgeny Kuznetsov

scored a power-play goal with 57 seconds left, and the Washington Capitals shook off the absence of suspended star Alex Ovechkin to end a seven-game losing streak with a 4-3 victory over the Calgary Flames on Friday night.

With Calgary's Mikael Backlund off for holding, Kuznetsov weaved his way into the Flames' zone before firing a wrist shot past goaltender Mike Smith.

An instant after the final horn sounded, several players traded punches before finally skating off the ice.

It was the first of six straight home games for the defending Stanley Cup champion Capitals, who hope to get back on track after their longest losing streak since 2013-14 dropped them behind the Islanders in the Metropolitan Division.

Ovechkin, who leads the NHL with 37 goals, received a one-game suspension from the league for skipping the All-Star Game.

He had played in 214 consecutive games, a streak that began in October 2016.

Walker, Hornets swarm depleted Grizzlies

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Kemba Walker scored 23 points, Marvin Williams hit two key 3-pointers and Bismack Biyombo swatted away a pair of late shots as the Charlotte Hornets beat the depleted Memphis Grizzlies 100-92 Friday night.

Memphis suited up just 10 healthy players and was minus star Mike Conley, who sat because of soreness in his left knee. Starters Kyle Anderson and Jaren Jackson Jr. also were sidelined.

Williams' 26-foot shot with 2:55 left tied it, and his deep jumper 38 seconds later gave the Hornets the lead for good at 93-90. Williams finished with 14 points.

Malik Monk, who scored 14 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter, had two 3-pointers in the period. The Hornets were shooting just 36.8 percent from 3-point land through the third quarter.

Biyombo had just one point but made a difference on the defensive end. The 6-foot-9 center blocked JaMychal Green's dunk attempt with 1:48 to go and swatted away a layup attempt by Shelvin Mack 20 seconds later. Biyombo finished with seven rebounds and three blocks.

Mack led Memphis with 19 points and nine assists and Justin Holiday and Ivan Rabb added 15 points each for the Grizzlies.

TIP-INS

Grizzlies: Memphis also was without Omri Casspi (right knee) and Garrett Temple (shoulder). Memphis has lost 28 of its last 36 games and 17 of its last 19 since Dec. 26. Marc Gasol, who averages 15.7 points per game, didn't score until late in the second quarter.

Hornets: Charlotte swept the series for the second year in a row. Tony Parker was listed as questionable ahead of the game after missing Wednesday's contest with an ankle issue but was cleared to play late Friday. He scored 15 points. Charlotte shot just 35 percent from the field in the first quarter and turned the ball over four times, resulting in nine points for Memphis. Starter Jeremy Lamb played just six minutes in the first half, missing his first four shots. Lamb finished with six points

CELTICS 113, KNICKS 99

Kyrie Irving had 23 points, 10 rebounds and six assists before a Madison Square Garden crowd eager to start the free agent wooing five months early, and the Boston Celtics beat New York 113-99 on Friday night in the Knicks' first game since trading Kristaps Porzingis.

The trade to Dallas gave the Knicks money to chase two top free agents this summer and fans showed Irving that they want him to be one of them, cheering him before and during his return from a two-game absence with a hip injury.

Marcus Morris added 18 points for the Celtics, who won for the eighth time in nine games.

Damyean Dotson scored 22 points and Kevin Knox had 21 for the Knicks, who dropped their 12th straight.

Irving is one of the headline names in the 2019 free agent class, and though he said at a Celtics fan event last fall that he intended to re-sign in Boston, that may be no guarantee. He told reporters at the morning shootaround to "Ask me July 1" if his plans had changed.

Irving got a loud ovation when starting lineups were announced and again when he touched the ball early in the game. A brief "We want Kyrie! We want Kyrie!" chant echoed through the arena in the third quarter.

The Knicks dealt Tim Hardaway Jr., Courtney Lee and Trey Burke to Dallas along with the injured Porzingis, getting Dennis Smith Jr., DeAndre Jordan and Wesley Matthews in return, plus two future first-round picks.

THUNDER 118, HEAT 102

Paul George scored 43 points and had a career-high 10 3-pointers, Dennis Schroder scored 24 of his 28 points in the second quarter and the Oklahoma City Thunder extended the NBA's longest current winning streak to seven games by beating the Miami Heat 118-102 on Friday night.

Russell Westbrook got his fifth straight triple-double and 18th of the season, finishing with 14 points, 12 rebounds and 14 assists. Steven Adams added 13 for the Thunder.

Oklahoma City beat Miami for the sixth straight time, and became the second team to have two separate winning streaks of at least seven games this season. Golden State is the other, with streaks of 11 and eight games.

Kelly Olynyk scored 21 for Miami, which fell to the No. 8 spot in the Eastern Conference. Josh Richardson scored 18 and Hassan Whiteside finished with 12 points and 16 rebounds for the Heat.

Heat guard Dwyane Wade was announced as an All-Star earlier in the day for the 13th time, after NBA Commissioner Adam Silver decided Wade and Dallas' Dirk Nowitzki merited becoming special additions to the player pool for the Feb. 17 game in Charlotte. Fans roared when Wade entered the game for the first time and was introduced as an All-Star.

George finished 14 of 23 from the field and 10 for 16 from 3-point range — setting a franchise record for 3s in a game. He had 16 points in the first quarter to get the Thunder going.

Unranked Iowa romps over No. 5 Michigan

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Luka Garza scored 19 points, Joe Wieskamp added 16 and Iowa stunned fifth-ranked Michigan 74-59 on Friday night, handing the Wolverines their second loss of the season.

Ryan Kriener had 15 points and 10 rebounds for the Hawkeyes (17-5, 6-5 Big Ten), who snapped a two-game losing streak with their biggest win of the season.

Iowa blistered Michigan's top-notch defense and put the Wolverines in their biggest hole of the season, 14 points, late in the first half. The Hawkeyes used a 21-2 run to grab a 42-29 lead at the break — nearly matching the 49 points Ohio State put up against Michigan in a 16-point loss on Tuesday.

Michigan (20-2, 9-2) clawed back to within 54-49, but a 3-pointer by Garza and a three-point play from Wieskamp helped push Iowa's lead back to 67-51 with 5:18 left.

Ignas Brazdeikis and Jordan Poole each scored 16 points for Michigan, which allowed 70 or more points for just the second time this season. Big Blue shot just 32.3 percent and 8 of 33 on 3s.

Colin Castleton's 3 at the buzzer got stuck behind the rim and the backboard, a moment that encapsulated a lost night for the Wolverines.

Rams' Shields fights back from concussions

By GREG BEACHAM
AP SPORTS WRITER

ATLANTA — Sam Shields is one of just four Los Angeles Rams who has played in the Super Bowl before. He finds the privilege much sweeter the second time around.

In the big game against Pittsburgh eight years ago, Shields won a ring as an undrafted rookie defensive back making plays for Green Bay. He eventually became a Pro Bowl cornerback for the Packers before a fairly innocuous tackle in the 2016 season opener derailed his life.

Shields' fourth recorded concussion kept him out of football for nearly two full years. After months of pain and grueling rehabilitation, he joined the Rams last spring and gradually made one of the most unlikely comebacks on either roster at this Super Bowl — a former defensive star now thriving as a key special-teamer and steady veteran for Los Angeles.

Shields wants to beat New England on Sunday to earn a second ring, which would put him in elite NFL circles. He is also proud of his ability to stay in the game.

"It never crossed my mind that I could go this far," Shields said. "I was definitely out of it, in a dark situation. At first, it was tough. Now I'm getting rewarded."

Shields sought refuge in darkened rooms for months on end after his injury, unable to alleviate his pounding headaches any other way. He needed extensive, complicated rehab at UCLA before he could even contemplate a return to regular life, let alone football.

"The hardest part was not letting my family see everything I was going through," said Shields, who has three daughters back home in Florida. "I didn't want to talk to my kids about all I was going through, because I didn't want them to be going through it with me. All those things that I was going through, I had to deal with by myself. It definitely made me who I am now."

Shields was unable to handle bright lights or any prolonged mental concentration, let alone an NFL career. He went through months of physical and mental exercises, healing his brain.

He chuckles at the memory of running on a treadmill while "being asked a million questions so that I would remember how to cope while I'm tired. It's just training your brain to get back and rolling again, because I was in a dark moment. My brain wasn't alive."

Even after turning a corner on his health following months of guidance from UCLA's doctors, the former Pro Bowl cornerback thought for several more months about quitting.

He just couldn't do it, even after so much physical agony and soul-searching. He had to play again, even if another hit could take him back to the start — or even deeper down.

"He loves the game," Rams general manager Les Snead said. "He can't live without it. He could have easily moved on to that next chapter, but there was that itch inside."

Shields has recounted the details of his rehabilitation before, but he is more interested in focusing on its success. He hasn't missed a game for the Rams this season, contributing on defense while playing a major role on special teams.

"That's a really unique dude," Rams cornerback Marcus Peters said. "I really respect everything he's been through. He's an amazing father, an amazing person. You've just got to have ultimate respect for a guy who started off his career as a Pro Bowler and just killing the league. He went through the little concussion thing, and when you love and care about the game as much as you do, to see him come back and be the same explosive player that he was in the past, you just salute him."

Rivera awed by his first Hall of Fame visit

By JOHN KEKIS
AP SPORTS WRITER

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. — Mariano Rivera stopped at the entrance to the Plaque Gallery inside the Baseball Hall of Fame and just gazed at the walls, awestruck by the moment. He was a long way from Puerto Caimito, Panama.

"I can't comprehend it. It's just amazing. Too much," Rivera said Friday as he soaked in his first visit to the Hall of Fame. "It's quite a journey from a fishing village to a place where the best of the best is."

"For a man who loves the game of baseball, what all these men did and passed it on to us, there couldn't be a better day."

Rivera's appearance with his wife, Clara, on a sunny, frigid morning in upstate New York came less than two weeks after he became the first unanimous selection for the Hall of Fame. The former New York Yankees star relief pitcher received all 425 votes in balloting by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Edgar Martinez, Mike Mussina and the late Roy Halladay also were selected by the writers, while Harold Baines and Lee Smith were picked in December by a veterans committee. All six will be inducted July 21 in Cooperstown.

The son of a fisherman, Rivera signed with the Yankees in 1990 and took his 87 mph fastball north to the Gulf Coast League in Florida. Five years later, at age 25, he made his major league debut for the Yankees. After serving as a setup man and nearly being traded, Rivera emerged in 1996 under first-year manager Joe Torre as one of the game's best relievers.

"There were a line of men that saw abilities in me in different areas," Rivera said. "I wanted to start, yes, but I wasn't attached to it. I just wanted to be happy to play the game of baseball. Smarter people than me put me in a position where I would shine."

One pitch rendered Rivera almost unhittable — his nasty, bat-shattering cut fastball, which he discovered in 1997. Part of a core with shortstop Derek Jeter, left-hander Andy Pettitte and catcher Jorge Posada, Rivera helped lead the Yankees to five World Series titles from 1996-09.

Rivera saved his best for the postseason, saving 42 games with a 0.70 ERA and 11 earned runs allowed over 16 seasons, including 11 saves in the World Series. Rivera retired after the 2013 season as MLB's saves leader with 652 and will join Rod Carew as the only natives of Panama elected to the Hall of Fame, and just the eighth relief pitcher.

"He put us on the map the way he played the game, the way he went about the game," Rivera said of Carew. "He represented us in a great way that we can never forget no matter what I did. If it wasn't for him, it would have been different. He was a special man."

There were disappointments, too, for the hard-throwing right-hander — five blown saves in the postseason, the most glaring in Game 7 of the 2001 World Series against the Arizona Diamondbacks. Rivera gave up the Series-winning hit to Luis Gonzalez, a bloop single with the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth.

That's just part of the legacy.

"If I have to do it again, I don't regret any moment of my career," Rivera said. "No regrets. I always give my best and sometimes the other team is better than you that day. That's baseball. My best wasn't enough for those games, but I wouldn't change it because how will you enjoy victory when you don't know what it is to be defeated? How do you know what it is to be on top when you've never been on the bottom?"

And his greatest moment?

"Just putting the uniform (on), those pinstripes on day in and day out, year in and year out, for 19 seasons, that was amazing," Rivera said. "It was a privilege to do that."

There was one moment Rivera had to fight his emotions — when he contemplated his journey.

"I remember leaving Panama seeing my father and my mother, my wife, back then my girlfriend, a cousin, not knowing what will happen, just accepting the challenge given the opportunity that I had and do my best," he said. "Now, 29 years later, we're talking about the Hall of Fame?"

"I don't even think if I could write that I could comprehend it. It's something every player dreams of, but it seems so far to be reached. Now that I have reached it, thank God."

Rockies, Arenado agree on $26 million, one-year deal

DENVER (AP) — Nolan Arenado produces big numbers whether he steps into the batter's box or up to the negotiating table.

The All-Star third baseman and the Colorado Rockies agreed to a $26 million deal to avoid arbitration, the largest one-year salary for an arbitration-eligible player.

"It's a great number.

Very happy," Arenado wrote in a message to The Associated Press.

He and his side met with Rockies owner Dick Monfort and general manager Jeff Bridich to hammer out the historic deal.

Josh Donaldson set the previous mark at $23 million with Toronto last season. Arenado asked for $30 million earlier this month, while the Rockies offered $24 million.

"Means a lot, we had good dialogue," Arenado said. "Very honest, very straight forward. Everyone has tough skin and sometimes you have to in business and I realized that firsthand."

Arenado becomes eligible for free agency after the 2019 season and figures to be the top player on the market.

even more pronounced when it accompanies events such as the Super Bowl, which, for better or worse, transcends football.

Brady and most of his teammates, in their third straight visit, barely flinch at all the attention, media demands and alterations to the norm they encounter during Super Bowl week — although they were taken aback somewhat by the cacophony and circus atmosphere of opening night on Monday. Aside from Aqib Talib, C.J. Anderson, Brandin Cooks and Sam Shields, for the Rams this is uncharted territory.

Rams coach Sean McVay tends to dismiss that theory, however. Using quarterback Jared Goff as an example, McVay could have been speaking for his entire squad.

"He's an unfazed quarterback," McVay says. "I think his way to have success and handle adversity the same demonstrates that poise and confidence you want from your quarterback."

Nowhere is the experience matchup more uneven than at QB. At 41, Brady already is the oldest quarterback to start a Super Bowl. Goff is 24 and one of the youngest.

Well, maybe nowhere is an exaggeration, because Belichick, at 66, could become the oldest coach to win a Super Bowl. He has worked 41 postseason games, with 30 victories, most among head coaches in NFL history. He's the only head coach with five Super Bowl rings.

McVay is half his age and in his first NFL title game, the youngest Super Bowl head man.

Rams President Kevin Demoff hears all of that so-called evidence, then cites so many positives about McVay that he sounds like the next dominant coach.

Sunday will be a powerful acid test for McVay and his team.

Trio of Hall of Famers linked by tragedy

Gordon, Allison, Kulwicki inducted together Friday

By JENNA FRYER
AP AUTO RACING WRITER

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — A pair of aviation accidents in a span of 102 days altered NASCAR by claiming two stars in their prime.

Alan Kulwicki and Davey Allison died just over three months apart during the 1993 season, which also happened to be Jeff Gordon's rookie year. Kulwicki was the reigning Cup champion at the time of his death and Allison the best bet to end Dale Earnhardt's reign.

The verdict was out on Gordon, an outsider from the West Coast who had come from sprint cars to make his mark on a predominantly Southern sport. Wherever Gordon was headed in NASCAR, Allison and Kulwicki were going to be in his path.

Kulwicki died in an April 1 plane crash returning to Bristol Motor Speedway from a sponsor appearance. Allison died July 12 when he crashed the helicopter he was piloting in the infield at Talladega Superspeedway, where he'd gone with Red Farmer to watch Neil Bonnett's son test for his Busch Series debut.

Gordon had a quiet rookie year while Earnhardt went on to his sixth championship and added his seventh title the next season. Gordon did eventually take Allison's role as Earnhardt's nemesis by dethroning him in 1995.

Gordon won four titles over seven seasons. Earnhardt never won another.

Gordon, Allison and Kulwicki, forever intertwined in NASCAR history, were set for induction into the NASCAR Hall of Fame together on Friday night. Roger Penske and Jack Roush, Detroit-based stalwarts of the auto industry and champion team owners, complete the 10th class.

DAVEY ALLISON

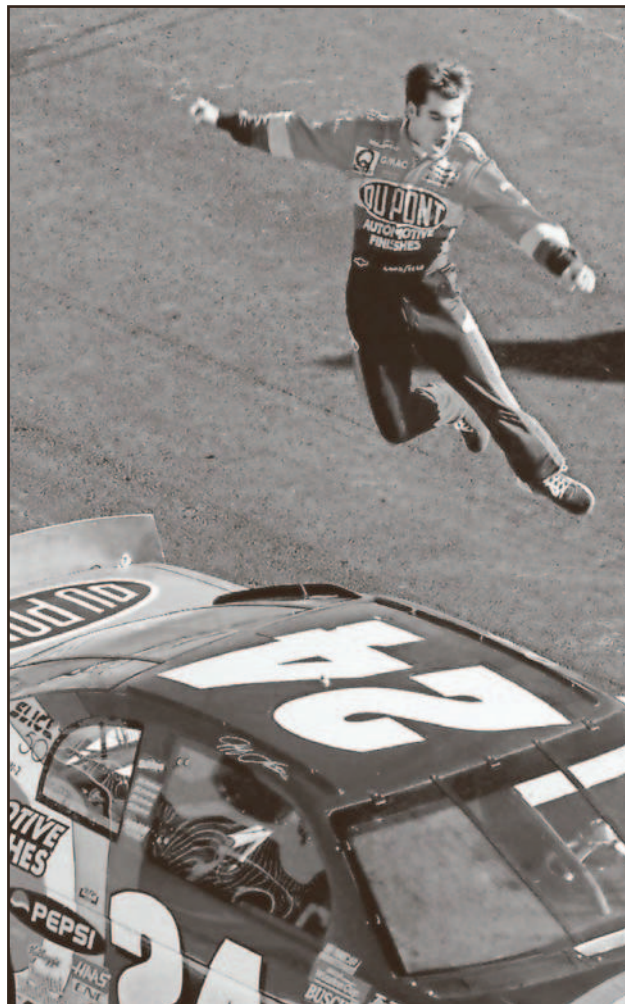

STEVE HELBER

Davey Allison checks into practice for the 1992 Winston Cup. He ranked first in the standings that year but crashed during the race. Allison, the son of Hall of Fame driver Bobby Allison, died in a helicopter crash in 1993.

Davey Allison was born into a racing family and although he preferred playing football, he was a member of NASCAR's vaunted "Alabama Gang" and settled on driving cars. He is the son of Hall of Famer Bobby Allison, a nephew of Donnie Allison, and he learned his skills at Alabama tracks. His break came in 1987 when he replaced Cale Yarborough in Ranier-Lundy's Ford Thunderbird and won two races and rookie of the year honors. The next season he finished second to his father for the only father-son 1-2 finish in Daytona 500 history. The 1992 Daytona 500 is among Allison's 19 career victories, and he entered the infamous 1992 season finale ranked first in the championship standings but crashed during the race. He fell to third in the final standings and his fatal helicopter crash was 16 races into the 1993 season.

JEFF GORDON

JOHN BAZEMORE

Jeff Gordon jumps from the roof of his DuPont Chevrolet after winning the 1997 NASCAR Winston Cup Championship at the Atlanta Motor Speedway in Hampton, Ga.

He made his Cup debut in the 1992 season finale, the last race of Richard Petty's career, and three years later was the youngest NASCAR champion in the modern era with his first title at the age of 24. Gordon added championships in 1997, 1998 and 2001, and his 93 Cup victories rank third on the all-time list.

Gordon won the Daytona 500 three times, the Brickyard 400 a record five times and holds NASCAR's "Iron Man" record with 797 consecutive starts. Gordon's rivalry with Dale Earnhardt drew new fans to NASCAR, and his charisma and savvy business sense pushed the sport beyond its regional boundaries.

He's largely credited with attracting global corporations to NASCAR as new sponsors.

ALAN KULWICKI

JOHN BAZEMORE

Driver Alan Kulwicki holds the 1992 NASCAR Winston Cup Championship trophy over his head after he won the championship at Atlanta Motor Speedway in Hampton, Ga.

He was a short-track racer from Wisconsin when he arrived in Charlotte in 1984 pulling a self-built race car with his pickup truck but Kulwicki was determined to make it in NASCAR. He was the 1986 rookie of the year driving for his own AK Racing team, which operated with limited sponsorship and small budget. Kulwicki overcame a 278-point deficit with six races remaining in the 1992 season to win the Cup title by 10 points over Bill Elliott in what was the closest final championship margin of its time. Kulwicki was named to NASCAR's 50 Greatest Drivers list five years after his 1993 death in a plane crash.

ROGER PENSKE

Team Penske celebrated its 50th year in racing in 2016, the same season the team owner earned his 100th victory in NASCAR's Cup Series. His drivers have won two Cup titles and two Daytona 500s, and Penske tied an Xfinity Series record with three consecutive owner championships from 2013 to 2015. His election last May came days before Penske won the Indianapolis 500 for a record 17th time and in a season in which the organization also swept the major races at Indianapolis Motor Speedway, won the Australian Supercars championship, the organization's 500th victory and the Cup title with Joey Logano. Penske also built the two-mile speedway in Fontana, California, in 1996, and at one time owned Michigan International Speedway.

Body 'broken,' Vonn retiring

By ANDREW DAMPF
AP SPORTS WRITER

Lindsey Vonn has only two races remaining on her aching knees.

The women's all-time leader in World Cup wins announced on Friday she will retire from ski racing after this month's world championships in Sweden.

The 34-year-old Vonn had been planning to retire in December but changed her plans because of persistent pain in both of her knees, which she fully realized after failing to finish a race in Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, last month.

"It's been an emotional 2 weeks making the hardest decision of my life, but I have accepted that I cannot continue ski racing," Vonn wrote on Instagram.

Vonn's right knee is permanently damaged from previous crashes. The American has also torn ACLs, suffered fractures near her left knee, broken her ankle, had a concussion and more.

"My body is broken beyond repair and it isn't letting me have the final season I dreamed of," Vonn said. "My body is screaming at me to STOP and it's time for me to listen."

With 82 World Cup wins, Vonn will not be able to match the overall record of 86 by Swedish great Ingemar Stenmark.

And she won't be able to compete against male skiers, which had been her stated goal for years.

"Honestly, retiring isn't what upsets me. Retiring without reaching my goal is what will stay with me forever," Vonn said. "However, I can look back ... and say that I have accomplished something that no other woman in history has ever done, and that is something that I will be proud of forever."

Kvitova loses to Vekic in St Petersburg quarters

ST. PETERSBURG, Russia (AP) — Australian Open finalist Petra Kvitova struggled with her serve and was eliminated from the St. Petersburg Ladies Trophy after losing to eighth-seeded Donna Vekic 6-4, 6-1 in the quarterfinals on Friday.

The second-ranked Kvitova landed only 48 percent of her first serves, double-faulted six times, and was broken five times.

Kvitova, the defending St. Petersburg champion who lost to Naomi Osaka in the Australian Open final, was playing in her 14th match in 24 days. It was Vekic's fifth match in that time.

Vekic will next face veteran Vera Zvonareva in the semifinals after she beat fellow Russian Daria Kasatkina 6-3, 7-6 (3).

The 12th-ranked Kasatkina has yet to win a match this year after four losses and a single walkover over the injured Maria Sharapova.

Fourth-seeded Aryna Sabalenka reached the semifinals by beating Russian qualifier Ekaterina Alexandrova 6-2, 6-4. She will next play Kiki Bertens, who beat Anastasia Pavlyuchenkova 6-2, 3-6, 6-0. That was a rematch after Pavlyuchenkova knocked Bertens out of the Australian Open second round.

Missouri fights penalties

By DAVE SKRETTA
AP SPORTS WRITER

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Barry Odom had every reason to believe Missouri's football program was finally on the right track.

The Tigers were coming off their second consecutive bowl appearance. He had just signed a contract extension.

Then came Thursday's report from the NCAA's infractions committee.

As punishment for academic misconduct involving a tutor, the Tigers were hit with a postseason ban for the upcoming season. They were told to vacate wins, docked scholarships and hit with recruiting restrictions.

The softball and baseball programs, which also had athletes involved in the misconduct, were saddled with the same penalties.

David Roberts, the chief hearing officer for the infractions panel, said the former tutor, along with the school and NCAA all agreed that infractions took place.

Missouri's appeal, which athletic director Jim Sterk said was already underway, hinges on the fact that the school self-reported the infractions and was forthcoming throughout the investigation.

Sterk suggested the appeal may take up to six months.

The ruling wouldn't be reversed entirely because Missouri acknowledged the academic fraud.

Anthony Davis says it's his time now, ready to move on

By BRETT MARTEL
AP SPORTS WRITER

METAIRIE, La. — Anthony Davis feels like he's given the New Orleans Pelicans all he can and that his time to move on has come.

"I don't know how long I'm going to play this game," said Davis, who turns 26 on March 11. "People's careers are short and I feel like it's my time to move on."

The All-Star forward and center, who recently informed New Orleans he would like to be traded, said Friday that his intention remains to play for New Orleans as long as he is healthy and under contract with the Pelicans.

"Obviously, it's a tough situation, but my intention is to still play and when I'm able to play I'm going to suit up," said Davis, who has missed six games with a sprained left index finger since his injury occurred at Portland on Jan. 18.

While Davis and Los Angeles Lakers star LeBron James share an agent, Davis said he has never provided New Orleans a list of preferred destinations and added that where he winds up is "on the Pelicans."

"I never gave them a timetable, never gave them a destination," Davis said, emphasizing that the Pelicans have shown him "nothing but respect ... and I feel like I need to do the same thing for them.

"I wanted to do it now just for the simple fact that they have enough time to make the best decision for the organization," Davis said.

The Pelicans are mulling over what to do with the six-time All-Star and several other prominent players as the NBA's trade deadline approaches on Feb. 7.

Davis, forward Julius Randle, forward Nikola Mirotic, guard E'Twaun Moore and guard Elfrid Payton have not played since Davis's agent made public on Monday his client's desire to be traded.

Some of the sitting players are listed with minor injuries that they've played through previously while the Pelicans have put an undermanned team on the court for their past two games.

Davis did not make any immediate public statements in the days after agent Rich Paul made the trade request, for which Davis was fined $50,000.

However, Davis has remained with the club and broke his silence after Friday's practice.

Davis is under contract with New Orleans through the end of the 2019-20 season.

The implication is that a trade may not come before the Feb. 7 deadline to make a deal this season, and more likely could come after the season, when 2019 draft slots are known and when the Boston Celtics are eligible to enter the fray.

Boston, which has a stockpile of draft picks and promising young players as trade bait, is not eligible to trade for Davis under NBA rules until July 1, unless the Celtics also trade away Kyrie Irving. Irving is a factor because of what's known as the Rose Rule, which says NBA teams cannot trade for more than one player who has signed an extension.

Irving currently is playing under an extension signed with Cleveland that has an option year after this season, meaning it could be renegotiated in a way that also allows Boston to bid for Davis.

Wade, Nowitzki added to All-Star player pool

MIAMI — Dallas' Dirk Nowitzki and Miami's Dwyane Wade are both NBA champions, NBA Finals MVPs and long-time ambassadors for the game of basketball.

And now, one more time, they're All-Stars.

By special order of NBA Commissioner Adam Silver, Wade and Nowitzki were added Friday to the pool of players for the All-Star Game that will be played in Charlotte on Feb. 17. Each team will now have 13 players instead of the customary 12, and LeBron James — one of the captains — will be the one who decides which side Wade and Nowitzki will be joining.

"Dirk Nowitzki and Dwyane Wade embody the best of the NBA: remarkable skill, drive and professionalism as well as a deep devotion to strengthening their communities and growing the game around the world," Silver said. "As a global celebration of basketball, our All-Star Game is an ideal setting to salute these first-class NBA champions and Finals MVPs."

Wade, who is retiring after 16 seasons, will be an All-Star for the 13th time. Nowitzki is heading to the All-Star Game for the 14th time, and has yet to officially say if his 21st season with the Mavericks will be the final one of his career.

Nowitzki was already going to have a big role in All-Star weekend, after agreeing to be an honorary coach in the Rising Stars game on Friday night and the skills competition as part of All-Star Saturday Night. Wade is a three-time NBA champion. Nowitzki led Dallas to the 2011 NBA title.

James and fellow captain Giannis Antetokounmpo will choose their teams on Feb. 7. James will have the first pick in the first round, when the starters will be chosen. Antetokounmpo gets the No. 1 pick in the second round, when he and James will split up the 14 reserves. And James has

Brexit shadow across EU

With less than two months until Britain's scheduled departure from the European Union, it's fair to say no one knows what Brexit will entail.

With the British Parliament seriously divided over Brexit, there is a big concern the country will crash out of the EU on March 29 without a deal, a development that would see tariffs and other burdens imposed on trade.

The British economy would no doubt be affected as nearly half the country's exports go to the EU. According to the Bank of England, the British economy could shrink 8 percent in the months after Brexit in a worst-case "no-deal" scenario.

The EU economy will suffer too, albeit more modestly. The scale of that shock will differ from country to country.

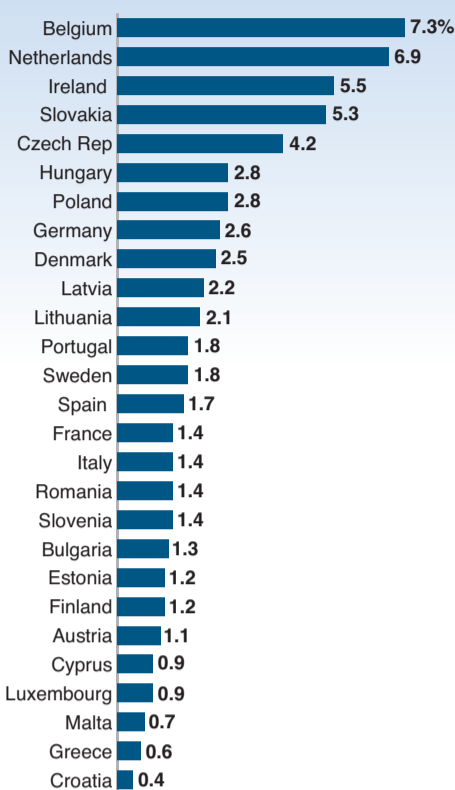

Ireland, which shares the only land border with Britain, will be one of the most affected, especially if customs checks return. Others, like Belgium and the Netherlands, will also face a hit. Countries like Croatia and Greece, which have little direct trade with Britain, may not see much of an economic impact.

But as with all things Brexit, it's unclear what will actually happen.

Shutdown IPO blues

The 35-day partial government shutdown, which closed most of the Securities and Exchange Commission, slowed some companies' plans to issue stock to the public.

SEC staffers who must approve paperwork for initial public offerings were furloughed. Yet even before the shutdown, IPOs have been declining in recent years. That trend has sparked concern on Wall Street and among some regulators, who blame burdensome rules for public companies.

More companies are turning to the private markets to raise capital or staying private. At the peak in 1996, about 7,400 companies were listed on U.S. stock exchanges. Now, there are only around 3,600.

But Jay Ritter, a University of Florida finance professor and leading expert on IPOs, says there's no evidence that companies with strong prospects are starved of capital by the IPO decline or that consumers have been harmed.

The main reason for the IPO decline, Ritter says: Companies have been merging. Both public and private companies are bigger, mainly because technology has reduced costs. The bigger companies are often more efficient, and consumers can benefit from that, in Ritter's view.

IPOs stalling?
The shutdown had an impact on IPO paperwork, but Prof. Jay Ritter says it's also because of increased mergers.

SUNDAY

2 p.m. on HALL Kitten Bowl VI

From Hallmark Stadium, TV personality and animal advocate Beth Stern returns as host for this year's event, in which the off-the-charts quota of adorable feline entertainment is actually secondary to the primary goal: finding permanent homes for these kittens rescued from across the country. Roughly 25,000 such adoptions have resulted from the past five events, and this year, more than 500 neighborhood shelter partners are participating. Dean Cain and former NFL player Rodney Peete contribute play-by-play action, along with commentary from Boomer Esiason and Rashad Jennings.

3 p.m. on APL Puppy Bowl XV

Aimed at any viewers who prefer puppies to pigskins, one of the most popular counterprogramming events in TV returns for its 15th year. In addition to providing awwsome entertainment in the form of frolicking puppies, all from animal shelters and rescue operations, the two-hour event also seeks to find permanent homes for these little dogs (and some kittens, too). Calling the plays again this year is America's favorite "rufferee," Dan Schachner, while animal advocate and TV correspondent Jill Rappaport introduces some Pup Close and Personal segments on the players.

Longtime pals Nantz and Romo look forward to their first Super Bowl as a tandem

It seems hard to believe that in his 14 seasons as a Dallas Cowboy, Tony Romo has never been to a Super Bowl.

As a matter of fact, he owns the highest rating, 97.1, of any quarterback never to have played in the NFL's title game.

But that drought ends for him in one manner on Sunday, Feb. 3, when he teams with CBS boothmate Jim Nantz to call the action when between the Los Angeles Rams meet the New England Patriots in Super Bowl LIII from Mercedes-Benz Stadium in Atlanta. And it's a moment he's looking forward to as if he's still playing.

"I think there's always a little bit of nerves before every game, whether you're a player or an announcer," the 38-year-old San Diego native reasons. "I think that's good, I think it's healthy. In some ways, it makes you feel important. But I don't know ... what exactly I'm going to feel before the game."

As one would expect, the plan for CBS on Sunday is an all-day affair, totaling nearly 11 hours of coverage, starting before noon (ET) with "That Other Pregame Show," airing from Game Day Fan Plaza in the Georgia capital, before going into the NFL Films' documentary "Road to the Super Bowl," which captures the sights and sounds of the 2018 season. Then comes "Tony Goes to the Super Bowl," which follows Romo as he covers his first championship game, and "The Super Bowl Today," with analysis, features and interviews with key players and coaches.

The action then switches to the field for "Super Bowl on CBS Kick-Off Show," featuring the singing of the National Anthem and player introductions. That's followed by the game itself.

For Nantz, Sunday's contest marks his seventh Super Bowl, his fifth doing play-by-play plus two as studio host. He enjoys an easy chemistry with Romo thanks to a friendship that dates back to Romo's playing days, their multiple dinners and Romo's guest appearances on Nantz's golf and college basketball telecasts. So when Romo retired from the Cowboys two years ago, Nantz knew his friend would have the makings of a great analyst. For him, working with Romo has been a seamless transition.

"Oftentimes in television where two individuals get together, they say, 'Go create some chemistry.' That was not something we had to do," Nantz says. "... We had a friendship, we had a chemistry, we had a bond going into this thing that certainly was helpful. We didn't have to try to get to know each other and have any awkward early steps of trying to have a way of communicating with one another."

"I got to spend the early part of my career being the young guy in the dynamic of an on-air booth relationship," he continues, "and I was blessed to have guys like Billy Packer a generation above me, Ken Venturi in golf — legends in their sports — and I was the junior guy. This is the first time in my career where it's flipped and now I'm a generation older than Tony. And I think back to how good those (partners) of mine in the past were to me and I try to be everything and more in that regard to Tony."

"He loves this industry. I'm so happy that he has taken to it. ... He is going to be the best for a long, long time."

ARE YOU STRUGGLING WITH KNEE ARTHRITIS PAIN?

Knee arthritis pain is a problem that affects millions of Americans. Simple aches and pains can eventually lead to a total knee replacement with months of difficult rehab.

THERE IS HOPE: FDA APPROVED KNEE TREATMENT

At Physicians Rehabilitation, we are happy to offer another non-surgical option to those suffering with knee pain. The Viscosupplementation treatment is Easy, Safe, Highly Effective and FDA Approved.

ABOUT THE TREATMENT

All treatments are performed at one of our locations. We use advanced diagnostic equipment to localize the exact point of your knee pain. Then we inject Viscosupplementation into that area of the joint.

Throw a Super Bowl party with the help of your laptop Throwing a Super Bowl party can be stressful. There's the setting of the menu and food prep, the selecting of the drinks, the figuring out the guest list and on the back end, the clean-up.

But the good news is your Super Bowl party is a blank canvas upon which you can do just about anything, and in terms of food you're limited only by your imagination. So if you're at a loss as to what to serve, here are a few suggestions.

Hot dogs and hamburgers: A favorite at just about any sporting event and they're even better on the grill. And no one grills like Bobby Flay, and in his section of the Food Network website, he shares his tips for doing dogs (www.foodnetwork.com/videos/bobby-flays-hot-dog-tips-0138758) and burgers (www.foodnetwork.com/videos/burgers-with-bobby-0154323) right. Thus allowing you to chill while you grill.

Chicken wings: A no-brainer for any Super Bowl party, provided there isn't a manufactured shortage (and accompanying price hike) leading up to the big game. If these juicy delights are on your radar, check out All Recipes for info on how to make wings of the Buffalo (www.allrecipes.com/recipe/24087/restaurant-style-buffalo-chicken-wings/), baked (www.allrecipes.com/recipe/187822/baked-chicken-wings/) and garlic and parmesan (www.allrecipes.com/video/3061/garlic-and-parmesan-chicken-wings/) varieties. Yum.

Pizza: Another obvious choice. Shot food-porn style, "The Best Homemade Pizza You'll Ever Eat" (www.youtube.com/watch?vsv3TXMSv6Lw) on YouTube's Tasty channel walks you through what really is a simple process and makes you want to try it yourself – once your mouth stops watering. Because there's nothing better than homemade.

Sushi: It's a little more involved than just rice, nori, fish and vegetables, but YouTube's Fortunecooking channel takes the mystery out of making sushi rolls with its two-part "How to Make Simple and Delicious Sushi" (www.youtube.com/watch?vELRL18LvVyo). Now get rollin'.

Clambake: Yes, this is a slightly outside-the-box option but what's wrong with a pot of boiling mollusks on your patio on a frigid February Sunday? If you're game, YouTube's Hallmark channel shows how a backyard clambake is done (www.youtube.com/watch?vmGDC3tCC1Bg). And if you don't have that luxury, a number of experts show you how to pull it off on a stovetop, among them Michael Symon (www.youtube.com/watch?vZP899lpfPVo), Emeril Lagasse (www.marthastewart.com/934366/stovetop-clam-bake-recipe-part-1) and Everyday Food Editor Sarah Carey (www.marthastewart.com/925915/one-pot-clambake).

Steaks: Food Network's Sunny Anderson is partial to bone-in ribeye and in this video she walks you through the steps of "How to Grill the Perfect Steak" (www.foodnetwork.com/videos/how-to-grill-the-perfect-steak-0237208) featuring her cut of choice and a dry-rub marinade of olive oil, salt, pepper and rosemary.

Craft beer: Do you find yourself overwhelmed by the myriad choices in craft beer? Award-winning brewmaster Walter Trifari endeavors to take the guesswork out of the process with his YouTube video "3 Rules for Choosing a Beer" (www.youtube.com/watch?v4vUR4Wz1x7o).

BEST SUPER BOWLS

Super Bowl XLII - New York Giants 17, New England Patriots 14 (2008)

The 18-0 Pats were favored by 14 points over the wild-card Giants, and for three quarters of low-scoring football, it looked as though win No. 19 was in the bag. But a flurry of clutch Eli Manning passes, one a critical 32-yarder that David Tyree pinned against his helmet as he was hit, brought them two fourth quarter scores that gave the G-Men the victory.

Super Bowl XXIII - San Francisco 49ers 20, Cincinnati Bengals 16 (1989)

Two words: "The Drive." Joe Montana's game-winning 92-yard drive in the game's final three minutes culminated with a TD strike to John Taylor with :34 remaining to give the Niners the win.

Super Bowl XXXVIII - Patriots 32, Carolina Panthers 29 (2004) Two years after going 1-15, the Panthers would make their first Super Bowl appearance, and they would acquit themselves quite nicely. A defensive struggle for three quarters gave way to a record 37 points of scoring by both teams in the fourth quarter, capped by Adam Vinatieri's 41-yard field goal with four seconds remaining that gave New England its second title. Many fans and sportswriters still refer to this as the greatest Super Bowl ever played.

Super Bowl XXXIV - St. Louis Rams 23, Tennessee Titans 16 (2000)

After falling behind 16-0 after three quarters, the Titans came to life, running off 16 unanswered points to tie the score with 2:12 left, before Rams quarterback Kurt Warner pushed his team back ahead with a 73-yard scoring drive. But the Titans weren't done, as quarterback Steve McNair drove them deep into Ram territory before wide receiver Kevin Dyson was stopped at the 1-yard line on the game's final play, one that has become known as simply "The Tackle."

Super Bowl XXV - Giants 20, Buffalo Bills 19 (1991) Game MVP O.J. Anderson's 102 yards rushing led the New York attack in an exciting game. But unfortunately, what everyone remembers is Buffalo place-kicker Scott Norwood's missed 47-yard field goal attempt with :08 remaining that stained him with the nickname "Wide Right."

Super Bowl XXXVI - Patriots 20, Rams 17 (2002)

After QB Warner rallied the Rams from 14 points down to tie it late in the fourth quarter, New England kicker Adam Vinatieri booted a game-winning 48-yard field goal as time expired in one of the biggest upsets in Super Bowl history.

Super Bowl LI - Patriots 34, Atlanta Falcons 28 (2017) This game had the biggest comeback (25 points), the top performance by a quarterback (Tom Brady's 466 yards through the air) and the cementing of a dynasty (the Pats' fifth title in seven tries).

OF 'ROSWELL, NEW MEXICO' ON THE CW

One of the "Roswell, New Mexico" episodes was directed by Shiri Appleby, who had the role of Liz in the original "Roswell" series. How was that experience for you, now that you're playing Liz?

We were both surprised by how special it felt, and sort of fated. She wore her T-shirt that she wore in the original pilot of "Roswell" for her first day of filming, and it was just such a full-circle moment. I felt so lucky to be a part of it and to be an instrument for her, and I just wanted to make her proud.

She really encouraged me to take ownership of this new level in my career, and to not let any opportunity pass me by, and to assert myself and my worth. We've maintained contact, and she's just a wonderful mentor now. I could never have imagined that this job would give me that gift.

With a background in dancing, including your run on "So You Think You Can Dance" - which you won in Season 5 - how do you view your crossover into acting?

I didn't have posters on my wall, but if I did, they would have been of Sutton Foster ... who's been on "Younger," but is a Broadway legend. Or of Rita Moreno, because watching her as Anita in "West Side Story" made me think, "I want to do that!" It's always been my aspiration to be such a well-rounded performer, and it's their steps that I hope to follow.

Last year, I got to do a play with the Center Theatre Group in Los Angeles at the Mark Taper Forum, a show called "Zoot Suit." It was at a time when you're auditioning for things but there isn't anything pressing, and that play came up, and I was just so excited to do it. That's the kind of stuff I would love to fill my career with, things that just let me stretch myself.

OF 'TRUE DETECTIVE' ON HBO

How was filming Season 3 of "True Detective" in the summer heat of Arkansas?

It gets really sweaty (laughs). But it's great to film in the environment that you're actually portraying, that the actual project is meant to be situated. It informs many things. It helps to inform the dialect, for me to work on that was a lot easier being in the environment. It informs a sense of just energetically what the place feels like. I think the history of a place lingers with it for a very, very long time and Arkansas has a very complicated history and I could feel that in the place so it was nice to let that inform the work as well. It was good to be there.

There was a bleakness that came through the screen that was very consistent with the bleakness of the storyline.

Absolutely. You know, Arkansas, the parts that I was in were these very interesting sort of contradictory spaces, both contemporary and modern and progressive, even liberal in a town like Fayetteville, and then quite depressed and almost stuck in time in other parts. You know, it's quite economically deprived in areas and inevitably those are the areas where you often see Confederate flags in the windows. So it was a good reflection of what we were bringing to the screen, I think, in this season.

Coming Soon

February 3 "Agatha Christie's The ABC Murders"

When he receives letters signed "A.B.C." that threaten murder, an aging Hercule Poirot (John Malkovich) takes them to the police only to find all his friends have moved on. Soon after, a murder occurs and the great detective must set out on his own to solve the case in this 1930s-set whodunit. (ORIGINAL)

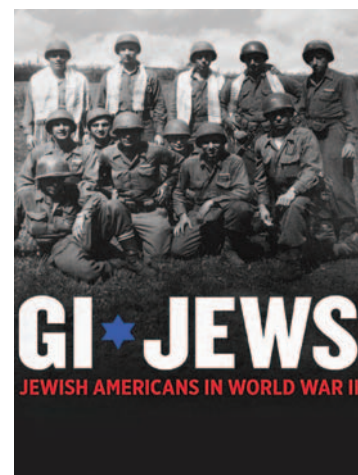

"Going to War"

This special finds two people who have done much documenting of wartime experiences — journalist Sebastian Junger and author Karl Marlantes — joined by military veterans who offer firsthand accounts of being at the front lines. Their thoughts also reflect how those who serve perceive their lives when they return home, and what the world means to them when their time spent on duty has been folded in.

"Rwanda: The Royal Tour"

This special follows Rwandan President Paul Kagame as he takes journalist Peter Greenberg on a tour of his country that includes a trek through Volcanoes National Park, jet-skiing on Lake Kivu, an exploration of Nyungwe Forest National Park and a safari through Akagera National Park.

"Movie: GI Jews: Jewish Americans in World War II"

Through the accounts of the famous and the unknown, this documentary from filmmaker Lisa Ades ("Chasing the Crown") tells the story of the more than 550,000 Jewish American men and women who served during World War II. Among those appearing are filmmaker Mel Brooks, actor/filmmaker Carl Reiner and former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

"Lorena" (Feb. 15)
This four-part documentary revisits the 1990s domestic violence cast of Lorena and John Wayne Bobbitt and explores how it laid the groundwork for the 24-hour news cycle and increasingly sensationalistic media coverage. (ORIGINAL)

"Hanna" (date TBA)
A young woman (Esme Creed-Miles, "Dark River") raised in the forest seeks the truth about who she is while being pursued by a CIA agent in this action series that's based on the 2011 movie of the same title. (ORIGINAL)

"People Just Do Nothing" (date TBA)

Based on a U.K. show of the same title, this half-hour mockumentary series follows the exploits of a group of working class DJs in North Las Vegas, just outside of the land of glitz and glamour. (ORIGINAL)

"Daisy Jones & the Six" (date TBA)

Reese Witherspoon's Hello Sunshine is the production company behind this series about a fictional 1970s rock band and their rise through the ranks of the Los Angeles music scene to become one of the world's most legendary bands. (ORIGINAL)

OF 'FRIENDS FROM COLLEGE' ON NETFLIX

Are Ethan and Lisa definitely history?

Ethan and Lisa continue to be in each other's orbit. I guess I can say that. I think also it's not too much of a spoiler to admit that Lisa has also embarked on a new relationship with a new guy.

What is the funnest part of playing this character?

The funnest part of playing him is when we discover something about him in the moment while we're shooting ... and Ethan will evolve, like in the moment. And a lot of that is because of the notes that the directors ... especially working with Nick (Stoller, series co-creator) because when he throws something out, you go, "Oh God, I didn't even think of that. I didn't even think of making that choice and making that approach." So that's always fun.

The other fun thing about playing Ethan is this sense of, I have to not put too much sauce on it. Because he's about the (most) non-mustache-twirling villain you've ever met. Because he's conflicted, he's so conflicted. And so the funnest part is just playing moment to moment to moment, just living in the reality of this particular moment.

I always feel that the most fun an actor can have is when they get to react. To me, reacting is the most fun part of acting, not being the one that generates a moment. Generating a moment is almost part of the writer's medium, and sometimes if you're an actor you're just a delivery system to start the ball rolling. The fun part is when you get to react to the rolling ball. There was an old Buster Keaton movie where he's running up a hill and there are boulders coming at him down the hill — that's the fun part. How do you react to the boulders?

IN FOCUS

"Presidents at War" (History — new special, Feb. 17)

This two-night event tells the experiences of eight men during World War II who would later go on to further serve as Commander-in-Chief — Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson, Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush. The life-changing lessons they learned during that time are recounted, as well as how those events later shaped decisions made during their time in the White House.

"Biography: The Trump Dynasty" (A&E Network — series premiere, Feb. 25)

This six-part docuseries takes never-before-seen footage and first-hand accounts to examine the people and events that have shaped the life of the 45th President of the United States. From his childhood in Queens, to the world of Manhattan real estate, and currently the Oval Office, this profile spans three generations of family that shaped Trump's personality, celebrity status and pursuits in politics and business.

"Mental Samurai" (Fox — series premiere, Feb. 26) movie review

BY JAY BOBBIN

Nicole Kidman a major change-up

Despite anything and everything she's done before, Nicole Kidman puts forth a completely new image in "Destroyer."

It's acting that calls attention to itself, but that's because the actress displays a toughness quite unexpected of her, particularly at this point in a career that has gone along in a linear and comfortable way. Working with a unique director in Karyn Kusama ("Girlfight"), who has a penchant for rough-around-the-edges characters, Kidman digs deep for her portrait of a police detective whose troubled personal history impacts her latest investigation.

Indeed, "Destroyer" is a murder mystery, but it's also a profile of a person who has plenty to come to terms with ... and whether she'll be able to is a mystery in and of itself. Kidman's Erin Bell is a Los Angeles police detective with sketchy personal and professional pasts, and part of the conceit of "Destroyer" is that it moves back and forth in time to explain who Bell was ... and how that affects who she is in such a major way.

Suffice it to say that an undercover operation she was involved in, while in the FBI, went spectacularly wrong and left Bell as clearly damaged goods. Her current pursuit of a master bank robber (Toby Kebbell) isn't just a case in and of itself, it's also seen by Bell as a way to redeem herself for the wrongs in her career to date.

She's also trying to put her teen daughter (Jade Pettyjohn) on a better path, particularly where romance is concerned, despite the dicey relations Bell has with her own ex (Scoot McNairy).

The time-bending element of "Destroyer" certainly isn't new to movies, and it's used very intentionally to keep viewers on their figurative toes here. In fact, it takes virtually the entire film to get the timeline straight – which ultimately turns out to be more a flaw than something creatively praiseworthy, since the audience can't be blamed for simply giving up on that eventually.

The problem there is how it affects the full picture of Erin Bell, meaning Kidman has to work all the harder in keeping the character engrossing. It's to her immense credit that she succeeds, repeatedly coming up with elements in the performance that make you marvel that it's Nicole Kidman you're watching. She knew what she was getting into here, and she was ready.

Whether others are ready for her in "Destroyer" is a big question, but the odds are that they aren't. And when it comes to being surprised in a theater, that's a good thing.

IN FOCUS

"Million Dollar Mile" (CBS — series premiere, March 27)

In this new 10-episode reality competition series, runners can win a cool one million dollars if they can navigate the show's Million Dollar Mile through the closed-off streets of a major city. Among the challenging obstacles standing in their way are elite athletes who are tasked with a single objective: stopping each contestant no matter what. LeBron James is among the producers.

NICOLE KIDMAN'S TOP 10 MOVIES

BY JAY BOBBIN

"Lion" (2016): In this fact-inspired drama, Kidman gives a heartfelt, Oscar-nominated performance as half of an Australian couple who adopt youngsters from India.

"The Interpreter" (2005): Much rests beneath the surface of Kidman's performance as a United Nations translator whose knowledge of an assassination plot lures a government agent (Sean Penn).

"Cold Mountain" (2003): Kidman is solid as a woman waiting for her true love (Jude Law) to return from Civil War duty.

"The Hours" (2002): Oscar came calling for Kidman, prosthetic nose and all, for her work as writer Virginia Woolf.

"The Others" (2001): The conviction Kidman puts into the role of a woman trying to protect her children, in a seemingly haunted house, goes a long way toward making this scary show work.

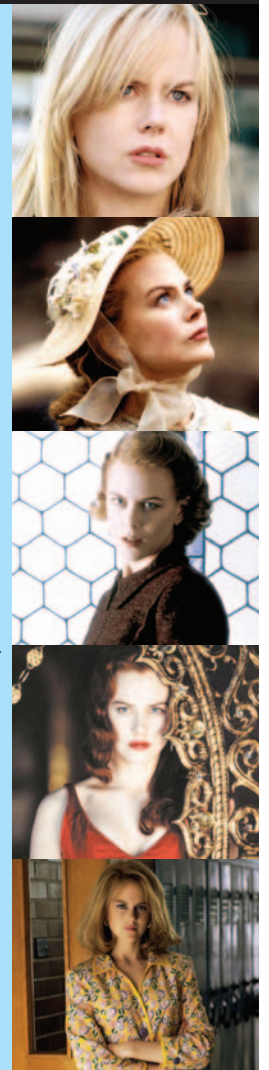

"Moulin Rouge!" (2001): Kidman sings! As does virtually everyone else in director Baz Luhrmann's Parisian romance.

"Eyes Wide Shut" (1999): Of all of Kidman's screen teamings with ex-husband Tom Cruise, this one gets the edge, thanks to director Stanley Kubrick's typically challenging creative structure.

"Practical Magic" (1998): More fun and flirty than usual, Kidman is enjoyable as one of two sibling witches – Sandra Bullock being the other – who spell doom for any man who falls for them.

"To Die For" (1995): Kidman is a killer, literally and figuratively, as a television weathercaster who uses a young admirer (Joaquin Phoenix) to get rid of her husband (Matt Dillon).

"Dead Calm" (1989): Before she came to Hollywood, Kidman made her biggest mark in this thriller about a couple terrorized on their yacht.
