Kwajalein Atoll Memorial Day

A day when Kwajalein Atoll Local Government, leaders and residents of Kwajalein Atoll commemorate the liberation of Kwajalein Atoll by Americans from Japan during World War II. This year will mark the 69th year of that liberation.

The Kwajalein Atoll Memorial Day Coordinating Committee cordially invites the U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll community to attend the commemoration of Kwajalein Atoll Memorial Day.

4:30 p.m.

Today

Loioen weto Basketball Court
(near Ebeye Community Center)

Kwajalein Memorial Day is a time to remember and reflect on the events that took place during World War II on Kwajalein Atoll.

Food Court News:

- Subway has been out of flat bread due to expiration dates.

There is more on the way.

- There is a new hot dog cart where Baskin Robbins used to be. The first wave of customers loved the hot dogs so much that they went through 25 cases, or 1,250 hot dogs, in the first four weeks. We are currently serving brats until our shipment of the quarter-pound hot dogs arrive. We are also working on a consistent supplier for cheese sauce and chili without beans. Please be patient as we work out the kinks.

Vending News:

- Please leave your name, telephone number, building number and machine number when calling concerning an issue with a vending machine. This will help us to service your needs in a more timely manner.

Retail News:

- We received a shipment of Huffy bikes that are available for purchase in the PXtra.

From Ri'katak student to RMI Ambassador: Charles Paul returns to his stomping grounds

Article and photos by Sheila Gideon
Managing Editor

Former Kwajalein Jr./Sr. High School graduate and Ri'katak student Charles Paul visited Kwajalein Schools Jan. 31 and demonstrated to the student body what a "regular kid" can grow up to accomplish with hard work and accountability. Paul graduated from KHS in 1999 as part of the first Ri'katak class. He graduated from Washington College in 2003. He worked for the Marshallese government in various capacities after college. In 2011, Paul was appointed the Republic of the Marshall Islands Ambassador to the United States.

Officially, Paul visited Kwajalein with the Flying Doctors of America. They are a non-profit organization based out of Georgia and offer medical missions around the world. They're in the RMI for two weeks to provide medical clinics on Majuro, Ebeye and six outer atolls.

While at Kwajalein, Paul was invited to speak to Kwajalein Schools students at the Davye Davis Multi-Purpose Room. He was welcomed by U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll Commander Col. Shannon Boehm.

"I am very happy and honored on behalf of USAKA and KPS (Kwajalein Public Schools) to have him come in and talk with you all today," Boehm said. "He has a good message to provide you."

Ric Fullerton, senior government and economics teacher, introduced Paul and reminisced about his student years at KHS. "Like the current members of the Ri'katak community, he rode the ferry back and forth every day, and dealt with the struggles of having to bounce back and forth between two cultures with the respective demands and issues," Fullerton said. "He also, however, made the best of the benefits that his unique situation presented."

"The coolest thing about his story, though, is that Charles is one of you," Fullerton continued. "If you look through some of the yearbooks from Charles' time with us, you'll see pictures of a regular kid." He played the saxophone in band concerts and sang in the choir. He played basketball, volleyball and softball. He was voted "the guy with the 100-watt smile" in his senior yearbook. He was a part of National Honor Society. Now, 13 years later, he is the RMI Ambassador.

CHARLES PAUL EDUCATION AND WORK HISTORY

- Enrolled at Kwajalein Schools in the first Ri'katak Class in 1987.
- Graduated from Kwajalein High School with honors in 1999.
- Earned a BA degree in economics, and a minor in business management, from Washington College, in Chestertown, Md., in 2003; graduated magna cum laude. Became a member of several prestigious international and professional honors societies.
- After graduation, worked as an intern at the International Programs Center, U.S. Census Bureau, at the Department of Commerce in Washington D.C.; and then as an Economic Research Specialist, Marshall Islands Office of Compact Negotiations, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, as negotiations were concluding.
- In 2004, worked as Chief of Performance Monitoring, Evaluation, and Aid Coordination at the Economic Policy, Planning and Statistics Office in Majuro, during the early days of implementation of the amended Compact.
- In 2007, worked as First Secretary for Health and Education Affairs at the Marshall Islands Embassy to the U.S.
- In February 2008, was appointed Charge d'Affaires ad Interim, and Deputy Chief of Mission to the Embassy.
- Appointed to the position of RMI Ambassador to the U.S. on July 7, 2011; the Nitijela confirmed his appointment by way of resolution on Aug. 26, 2011.

Possible partnership between RMI and the Flying Doctors of America

Could lead to year-round medical coverage on volunteer basis

By Sheila Gideon
Managing Editor

“Our mission statement is that we bring hope and healing to a needy world,” said Allan Gathercoal, president and founder of the Flying Doctors of America. For more than 20 years, Flying Doctors of America has been bringing together physicians, dentists, nurses, chiropractors, other health professionals and non-medical support volunteers to care for people who otherwise would never receive professional medical care. They were in the Republic of the Marshall Islands for two weeks to provide medical clinics on Majuro, Ebeye and six outer atolls: Ujae, Lae, Wotho, Arno, Jaluit and Wotje.

The Flying Doctors were brought in through RMI Ambassador to the U.S., Charles Paul. One of Paul’s objectives when he became ambassador was to look for doctors and bring them into the RMI. “I got the opportunity to meet and develop a working relationship with ... [the] Flying Doctors of America,” he said. “We’re working to develop a long-term relationship to bring in U.S. board certified doctors to work in the RMI on a volunteer basis.”

“The state of health in the Marshall Islands is something that needs to be worked on heavily,” Paul said. “We have a lot of sick people in the Marshall Islands, and we just don’t have the necessary resources that are needed to bring in top-quality doctors. Working with this organization and developing this program, the Marshall Islands will be the first country in the world to employ such a strategy. I’m so excited for the opportunity and the windfall that this will bring on to the RMI.”

The doctors would be on a 2-3 month rotation. The RMI government would pay for their lodging and meals while they work.

The Flying Doctors of America offered medical clinics last week on Ebeye, Majuro and six outer atolls: Ujae, Lae, Wotho, Arno, Jaluit and Wotje.

“In the U.S. there are 1 million MDs. Of that 1 million, about 7 percent are retiring every year,” said Gathercoal. They are doctors with 30-40 years of medical experience. “If it works, I can use my retiring doctors [in the RMI], who would love to help, as long it’s not a long-term commitment. On the RMI side, they have a huge need for U.S. board certified doctors. There’s a perfect match.” Now all that needs to be done is the logistics of it all. The partnership would provide year-round medical coverage to the people of the Marshall Islands.

“It’s a great idea because we always talk about how we really want to educate local people or have some sort of ongoing educational program for local doctors, learning from us,” said Dr. Irina Melnik, who specializes in spine and sports medicine. “This is a perfect opportunity.” The doctors on Majuro have expressed a huge interest in continuing education.

Two teams from Flying Doctors of America came out last week to offer medical clinics and see if a long-term commitment to the RMI could become a possibility in the future. A medical and dental team of 10 stayed on Majuro while a team of 13 came to Ebeye.

The teams operate under the ‘Mother Teresa Principle.’ “We try to go to the regions of the world that are underserved or not served at all,” said Gathercoal. While they did offer some assistance on Ebeye, they were impressed overall with their facilities and capabilities there.

“What I saw there (Ebeye) was what I thought a very well-equipped facility – good staff, very knowledgeable, very capable. I was really impressed with what they’ve got there,” said Dr. Jerry Batten, a dentist with Flying Doctors.

Compared to what they normally see, the Ebeye Hospital was very well organized and equipped with highly trained doctors. “When I reviewed some charts, I saw that

YOKWE YUK WOMEN'S CLUB

Club needs volunteers, Bargain Bazaar needs donations

By Sheila Gideon
Managing Editor

The primary mission of the Yokwe Yuk Women's Club is to enrich education in U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll's host country, the Marshall Islands. Each year, schools on Ebeye, Majuro and the outer islands submit grants to the club's Education Assistance Committee. These grant proposals are for specific items each school believes will directly aid the education of its students. Grants have been awarded for things such as copy machines, textbooks and even a classroom addition.

The club looks at their earnings for the year in June and then hands out the grants. The club focuses on giving money to schools that they've seen positive results from in the past. How much money they give out in grants differs each year, but most of the money comes from Mic Shop sales. They also offer scholarships to graduating Kwajalein seniors. In the past, Chugach has donated money to YYWC for this cause. Last year they awarded $6,000 in scholarships.

These grants and scholarships are made possible through the profits earned at the Micronesian Handicraft Shop downtown and the Bargain Bazaar near Dock Security Checkpoint. Each store plays a specific role in the functioning of YYWC and its ability to raise money for Marshallese education.

Bargain Bazaar is a thrift store that accepts donations from the Kwajalein community. Right now, they are in dire need of donations. You can donate anything: clothing, toys, furniture, household goods and sporting goods. There is a pickup service available; all you need to do is call Karen Brady, the chief volunteer at the store, and she will arrange to have your items picked up and brought to the store. Bargain Bazaar has begun to collect excess items after island Swap Meets. While this helps fill the shelves at the store, those items actually sell out quickly, said Brady.

While Kwajalein residents are encouraged to shop at Bargain Bazaar, the principal customers are Ebeye residents. To access Bargain Bazaar at Kwajalein, you must go through DSC with your K-badge. Go take a look, you never know what kind of "treasures" you may find.

The Mic Shop purchases handmade goods from artisans throughout the Marshall Islands and Micronesia and sells them to the Kwajalein community and its visitors. The benefit from this is two-fold. By purchasing goods from small craftsmen and women, the Mic Shop is able to provide a source of income and hopefully enable these traditional crafts to continue.

The other ways YYWC raises money for grants is with fundraiser events. The most notable is the upcoming Basket Auction on Sunday. In the past, YYWC has also hosted the Kaleidoscope of Music. They planned on doing Kaleidoscope of Music this year; however, they had to push the date for the Basket Auction into February, and now there is no time to squeeze the event in this year. They do plan to do both the Basket Auction and Kaleidoscope next year.

While island fundraiser events are a great way to earn money for grants, it is becoming difficult to plan such big events with such few volunteers in the club. With the shrinking population on Kwajalein, the club membership has also shrunk. "Some of the really key people left, and it all happened at once," said YYWC President DeDe Hall. Because of this, the club itself has had to adapt.

"We've really restricted our focus," Hall said. "Our focus now is really on schools and supplies and education." In previous years they also concentrated on cultural outreach, but unfortunately they do not have enough volunteers to keep that going. Depending on future membership, that may be a focus again in upcoming years.

"We've kind of changed the nature of the club," Hall said. Members used to have to pay dues and were required to volunteer a certain number of hours each month. Now, membership is more relaxed and there are no dues. Basically, if you are a woman and you want to participate in any capacity, you can join the YYWC. Members can expect to volunteer a few hours at the Mic Shop, Bargain Bazaar or helping to plan fundraisers. The amount of hours you put into the club is completely up to you.

The club is not just about volunteering. They sponsor a beginning of the year party in September to welcome everyone back from summer break, and an end of the year party where checks are presented for money earned that year. So, what starts as a connection as volunteers eventually blossoms into lasting friendships.

AFRICAN AMERICANS IN THE U.S. ARMY

Throughout America's history, from the Battle of Lexington to the Battle for Fallujah, black Soldiers have honorably answered the call to duty, serving with great valor and distinction in America's armed forces. During February, the Army celebrates and pays tribute to black Soldiers and recognizes the important contributions they have made in past wars and are continuing to make today in overseas operations.

1775-1783: American Revolution

Thousands of black Soldiers, both slave as well as free, from all 13 colonies fought in the Continental Army during America's war for independence from Great Britain.

Many also served in state militias.

1778-1781: 1st Rhode Island Regiment

In July of 1778, the 1st Rhode Island Regiment, the first all-black military unit in America, was assembled into service under the command of white officers.

1812-1815: War of 1812

During the War of 1812, black Soldiers served in both integrated regiments as well as in all-black regiments.

1861-1865: Civil War

When Union troops invaded Confederate states, thousands of black slaves flocked to Union camps for a chance to fight and a chance for freedom. After President Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation on Jan. 1, 1863, black Soldiers were officially allowed to participate in the war.

1863: 54th Massachusetts Infantry

In early 1863, the 54th Massachusetts Infantry, an all-black regiment of the Union Army, was activated. More than 1,000 blacks, about 25 percent of whom were former slaves, from 24 states and several countries enlisted in the regiment.

1898: Spanish-American War

Black Soldiers of the 9th and 10th Cavalry Regiments and the 24th and 25th Infantry Regiments fought in the Spanish-American War. The four regiments comprised 12 percent of the total force during the invasion of Cuba.

1917-1918: World War I

In 1917, the U.S. entered WWI. Despite knowing that freedom to serve their country did not in itself guarantee full participation in American society, thousands of black Americans answered the call to duty through service in the Army.

1941-1945: World War II

In WWII, the U.S. war effort was determined to defeat fascism and to defend freedom. For black Americans, freedom in its fullest form was an ideal that was desired not only abroad, but on the homefront as well. Black Soldiers served unyieldingly for their country.

1945: 6888th Central Postal Directory Battalion

The 6888th Central Postal Directory Battalion was the only all-black Women's Army Corps unit to serve overseas in World War II.

1950-1953: Korean War

New opportunities began to emerge for black Soldiers. In October 1951, the all-black 24th Infantry Regiment, which had served during the Spanish-American War, WWI, WWII and the Korean War, was disbanded. This eliminated the last lingering formal practice of segregation in the Army.

1959-1973: Vietnam War

The 1960s marked a transformation of the realities of discrimination and political equality for blacks with the passing of the Civil Rights and Voting Rights Act). In support of this campaign to uphold democracy, black Soldiers continued serving the Army with distinction.

2009-Present: Present Day

As of 2008, black Soldiers made up 19.8 percent of the Active Duty Army, 13.3 percent of the National Guard and 22.1 percent of the Army Reserve. Blacks serve in the Army at a higher proportion than their representation in the general U.S. population. On Jan. 29, 2009, Barack Obama was sworn in as the 44th president of the United States. As President, Obama is also Commander in Chief of the Army and all U.S. Forces.

Paul met with and had lunch with the current Ri'katak students. "I had the same circumstances," he told them. "I grew up on Ebeye. I took the ferry every morning. I was never late to class. I did all my homework. When it got rough, I didn't make any excuses; I always did my work. If I can do it, ... [you] also can do it."

Paul thanked the command for coordinating his visit to Kwajalein. He was delighted to be able to see his old teachers and friends he went to high school with here. There are still four teachers at KHS that taught Paul when he was in school: Barbara Bicanich, Fullerton, Bonita Oyamoto and Dick Shields.

"It's a treat for me personally," Paul said to the students. "I wanted the opportunity to give back any way I could to the place that started it all for me - Kwajalein School system. I learned a lot and I owe everything that I am and everything that I have to the school, to my teachers and to my fellow students. I can't say enough about the wonderful opportunity that I had as a student, and the education I got as a student. I am so thrilled and I am so honored to stand before you this afternoon to just talk."

Paul talked about his job with the students and allowed them to ask him questions. While some students asked thought-provoking and serious questions, some of the elementary students were eager to know how many Dinseylands there are and what the White House looks like.

To a certain degree, Paul knew he wanted to work for the Marshallese government when he graduated. "I felt that the most meaningful way for me to give back was to serve the government." Paul told the students what it means to be an ambassador. "You are the personal representative of your country," he said. "Everything I say and everything I do reflects on my government." His job involves a lot of traveling; he has already visited nine different countries. He gets to meet a lot of people - people you see on the news. He even got to meet the President of the United States, Barack Obama. Paul was invited to the White House to present his credentials to the President on Sept. 9, 2011. The ceremony took place in the Oval Office. Paul was one of the 12 ambassadors presenting credentials that day. The First Lady was also present. As Paul was announced and shook the President's hand, Michelle said, "Oh, two island boys." President Obama grew up in Hawaii. Paul said he was stunned and didn't know what to say.

Students were interested in Paul's transition to college in the States, since many of them will be making that same transition soon. He said the scariest part was leaving his parents. The best thing was meeting new people and experiencing a different culture. "I had a head start going to Kwaj. I interacted with a lot of kids from the States," he said. "But it's different when you're living with a different culture. For me, it was exciting in the fact that I was immersing myself into a new culture and learning new things."

Paul gave the students advice for their future. When Paul was young, he said he wanted to be the President of the United States. "Now I know I can't because I'm not a U.S. citizen," he said. "But, you have to dream and you have to think you can do big things. But before you do anything, you have to put in the work; you have to do your best in school. That will lead to bigger and better things. School is very important. It builds your foundation. ... With hard work you can do anything."

Paul lives and works in Washington, D.C. He is currently working toward his Master's degree in finance from John Hopkins University.

they've been doing the same procedures, the same kind of steps that I would do if I were involved in their particular patient's care," said Melnik.

The team decided Ebeye was not where the biggest need for their help is; they needed to reach out to the outer atolls, where they would be able to do more.

"What we're about is the atolls that never get medical care. Or if they get medical care, it's sporadic," said Gathercoal.

"The whole idea that our organization has created is that we are very mobile. We can bring out our own equipment and medications to very rural, remote areas where most people have never even seen a doctor their whole life," said Melnik. "That's our strength."

In just one day, they did more than 150 extractions and treated 100 patients in different specialty areas.

The patients were elated, said Gathercoal. "The thing we were most excited about is the day we saw those people who have never gotten dental care. ... We were so happy to see those smiles." One woman brought back a gift to the dentist who treated her; she had pain for years and finally felt relief for the first time. "It was a beautiful experience."

The Flying Doctors team expressed great appreciation to the U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll command for their assistance during the mission. "We are so happy that the colonel (Col. Shannon Boehm) let us stay here," said Gathercoal. "It's been a great experience." The team departed Feb. 1.

Sewer outfall repair project underway

Hourglass Reports

San Juan Construction began work last week to replace Roi's sewer outfall system. The project calls for replacing some 1,100 feet of decaying pipe. Because the old pipe was trenched in over the reef bed, it has been subjected to years of wear and tear from currents and the tide. In order to help reduce exposure to the elements, the new pipe will instead run through a tunnel being drilled under the reef. Once work on the tunnel is complete, the new pipe is fused together onshore before being brought out to sea and pulled back through the tunnel.

Did you get nice dive gear over the holidays and now you have an extra BCD, DPV, knife or weights laying around that you would like to trade for cash? Are you interested in obtaining good prices on new and used gear? Members can sign up for one free table to display your goods, so come on down. Contact John Pennington at 53290 or penningtonscuba@gmail.com with questions or to reserve a table. Vendor tables will be $15.

EMON BEACH will be under construction for dredging and sandfill Tuesday through Thursday. Workers and residents on Kwajalein are advised to avoid eating fish caught in the lagoon area next to Emon Beach. The sand relocation activity could increase the potential for Ciguatera poisoning. Questions? Call 51134.

NEXT KAG MEETING will be held 6 p.m., Tuesday. Bring ideas for the Spring Art show and a March event. Will also discuss FY2013 annual membership dues.

THE BARBER/BEAUTY STYLIST will be on Roi on the following dates: Tuesday, Feb. 12, Feb. 26, March 12 and March 26.
