SPECIAL FLORIDA WEEKLY SECTION INSIDE

STAYCATION: 10 great vacations to have (in our own backyard)

It's summer! School's out, the snowbirds are long gone, and you finally have time to take a much-anticipated vacation. Time off? Heck, business is so slow you might not even be missed at work. And therein lies the problem: Due to the unforeseen economic circumstances of the entire country imploding, your vacation budget has shrunk from grande to poquito. You want to get away, you need to get away — from the stress of work, the depression of little or no business, the shrinking value of your 401K and the harrowing stories your friends keep sharing. But New Zealand is out of the question. That Alaskan cruise you've been dreaming about? No way, Jose. Europe, with the additional whammy of a bad exchange rate? Not this year. Even Canada is expensive. And you're not sure Mexico is safe these days. So what's a person to do? No worries, mon. Florida Weekly has compiled a handy guide to having a terrific STAY-cation: getaways not too far from home, that offer all the requisite components of a relaxing respite without the expense of jet travel, airport parking lots, roaming charges or rental cars. Enjoy! You deserve it.

Chamber, Tory's salon seeking prospects for 'Makeovers in Paradise'

Looking for work? If you aren't, count your blessings. If you are, start counting the reasons why a makeover could be the confidence booster that gives you that all-important edge over your competition in the job market. Craft your story into a brief essay and submit it in could have a positive affect on your search for work.

"Let's face it, first impressions are hugely important in an interview, and perhaps now more than ever as more and more people compete for fewer jobs," says Erick Carter, co-owner of Tory's Total Hair Care in Naples. After having a number of clients come to him seeking an updated look for their re-entry to the job market, Mr. Carter pitched the plan
