A: Because they're afraid of Wales.

For one thing, more than 7 billion people will wake up tomorrow morning, and every single one of them will have to go to the bathroom.

That's so depressing.

As if that weren't bad enough, medical research suggests that Americans are now universally infected with an incurable viral condition known as "politics." The famous linguist Robin Williams defined this disease as, "Poli, a Latin word meaning many; and tics, meaning bloodsucking creatures."

This is, after all, a presidential election year,

School gardens filled with lessons about healthy living

BY EVAN WILLIAMS
ewilliams@floridaweekly.com

Small hands pressed seeds into garden boxes set up on the lawn just outside the cafeteria at Mike Davis Elementary School one morning earlier this week. The school's nearly 800 students will help the garden grow this semester. In December, they hope to harvest spinach, beets, radish, peas, cabbage, Swiss chard and collard greens.

It's part of Teaching Gardens, a new program launched by the American Heart Association that aims to change attitudes about eating and nutrition in response to a glut of overweight Americans. The program is designed to steer children away from fast food and teach them better eating habits by enlisting them directly in the production of good food.

Youngsters at Village Oaks Elementary School in Immokalee are also planting a teaching garden this month.

The two AHA gardens in Collier County are the first in South Florida. Others have been started in Jacksonville, Fla., Houston, Texas, Atlanta and Los Angeles.

Ultimately, the goal is to lower the risk

COMMENTARY

The case for dispassionate resolve

rwilliams@floridaweekly.com

For many Americans, it could come down to this: Did the California-based makers of an offensive film about Muslims and Muhammad shout "Fire!" in a theater?

For more than two centuries, we've tried to put the fine line on what freedom of expression means. The great Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes used that faultless but still imprecise metaphor to suggest a limitation of the James Madison prescription for a free society. Our free society.

In effect, none of us is guaranteed the right to falsely shout fire in a theater by the First Amendment, because to do so could cause both panic and death.

But we do have the right to shout just about anything else. And not only with words, but with art, good or bad. In painting, music or film, in politics or religion, we can say what we want. (The second part of the First Amendment requires a separation of church from state in order that government can neither help nor hinder when people say what they want about any God they want.)

In our society, we get to speak even if it offends those who hold power or absolute belief. The comedic result on the ground, of course, is frequently either the cause of great derision or the subject of bawdy entertainment for many Americans. Or both.

We're always offending each other, and we're always having to live with it, and with each other. The idea was never just to protect idiots or bullies or mean-spirited cynics or, say, pornographers of this stripe or that, although they often are protected.

The idea was to protect rational citizens seeking justice, those who might have to say things dangerously unpopular with the powers that be.

Here's the argument put in different terms. Every time a criminal defense attorney argues passionately before a judge and jury to acquit a client who might have committed a crime, that attorney is defending not just the alleged criminal, but us — us and our right to a defense no matter how damning the circumstances appear.

It's hard for victims to accept the principle, but most Americans have agreed with it.

In speech similarly, defend an inept, tasteless or offensive example of free speech and you're defending the potential for the very best in speech, however unpopular it might be.

When somebody makes a film suggesting that the Virgin Mary was not a virgin, we might feel outrage. We might write a letter to the editor, but then we go on about our business. Such speech doesn't amount to fire in a theater; it amounts to just a fart in a theater, if you will excuse my vulgarity.

And this is where the complication arises, the one that took us so much by surprise in recent days when Muslims in North Africa discovered the film made in California and erupted with a fury that led some of them to kill Americans who had never heard of the film.

Here I can explain my gaseous vulgarity. What if there are two theaters? And what if somebody shouts fart in one, but somebody in the next theater hears fire?

And what if the people in the next theater react according to their own beliefs, which have nothing to do with James Madison and the First Amendment? What do we do then?

Among the bedrock principles of our society — even more bedrock than the First Amendment, if that's possible — is the notion that bloodshed is universally wrong unless it comes in the defense of life and liberty. Thus an attack that kills an ambassador and his American protectors is an act of war on all Americans.

If absolutists can kill Americans because somebody in California makes an offensive movie, then why can't they kill Americans because somebody in New York makes an offensive painting, or somebody in Florida wears an offensive dress, or somebody in Chicago writes an offensive book?

It amounts to this: The people who did it, and the people who support or hide them, need to be found, identified and then punished. Backing away from tyrants or bullies has never proved a good idea.

But before we saddle up, gun up and ride out, however, let's try for a little perspective — a little understanding.

From the beginning of our experiment in independent living and government, we've struggled mightily with the principle of free speech.

The Puritans, for example, did not often define free speech the way we do now. Critics of religion or the status quo in the 17th or 18th centuries could be killed or run out of town, work and church by members of their own communities if they exercised free speech.

In the 19th and 20th centuries in many places in America, free speech was merely a hypothetical. Express the wrong opinions about the rights of blacks in some Southern towns between about 1865 and 1965 and somebody might well turn up to beat you or kill you.

And what would happen now if somebody in California decided to make a film mocking blacks in America by the liberal use of the word "nigger" — a film that promoted the worst of the racial stereotypes too many white Americans accepted for decades or longer?

Bloodshed in the form of "riots" might well be the result. And the perpetrators, no matter how deeply offended, would be brought to justice, I hope.

Conversely, those who defend the right of such filmmakers to create bad art without being beaten or killed should be celebrated and applauded.

That self-awareness on our part will increase our strength, because it will help Americans react to unjust brutality with dispassionate resolve.

And that is our best recourse. ■

GUEST OPINION

No room for 'Dirty Water Rules'

We are lucky to live in one of the most beautiful places in the country, but how will our economy fare if our waters keep getting covered in stinking slime and algae?

When nitrogen and phosphorus pollution builds up in rivers and estuaries, we experience dead fish on our beaches, algae piled three feet high along the shore, closed water treatment plants and dead zones in our sounds and bays. Without quantifiable limits on the amount of so-called "nutrient" pollution, which comes from sewage, manure and fertilizer, our waters will never recover.

Excess nitrogen and phosphorous pollution in our waters has reached dangerously high levels, triggering toxic outbreaks of algae and bacteria. Florida's waters are being poisoned. We need to keep the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency guidelines and the Clean Water Act rules intact.

However, the Florida Department of Environmental Protection has drafted a substitute for EPA's rules that would only require pollution controls after waters have been severely degraded, requiring expensive cleanup at taxpayer expense. These industry-friendly standards will allow unsafe pollution levels rather than following the common-sense limits set by the U.S. EPA under the Clean Water Act.

The basis of the Clean Water Act was enacted in 1948 as the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, and was significantly reorganized and expanded in 1972. Let's not throw away decades of water protection.

The quality of Florida's water puts our tourism, fishing and real estate values at risk. These industries are the backbone of our economy, and without them, we may never see a sustainable economic recovery. The EPA's Clean Water Act standards will not only protect our health and our environment, they will also help us restore the reason people want to live, visit and invest here.

Florida is an important state in the upcoming elections. Floridians must let President Obama know now that Florida deserves better and that he should enforce the Clean Water Act to clean up Florida's waters. Obama should say no to the Scott Administration's dirty water rules. For more information, visit www.conservancy.org/take-action. ■

Mayor Rahm-ney's attack on the Chicago teachers union

Unions are under attack in the United States — not only from people like Gov. Scott Walker of Wisconsin, but now, with the teachers strike in Chicago, from the very core of President Barack Obama's inner circle, his former chief of staff and current mayor of that city, Rahm Emanuel. Twenty-five thousand teachers and support staff are on strike there, shutting down the public school system in the nation's third-largest school district. This fight now raging in Chicago, Obama's hometown, has its roots in this historic stronghold of organized labor, and in the movement started one year ago this week, Occupy Wall Street. The conflict presents a difficult moment for Obama, who will need union support to prevail in his race with Mitt Romney, but who is inextricably linked, politically, to his brash, expletive-spewing former aide, Mayor Rahm-ney Emanuel.

At the heart of the conflict is how schools will be run in Chicago: locally, from the grass roots, with teacher and parent control, or top-down, by a school board appointed by Emanuel. Karen Lewis, president of the Chicago Teachers Union, worked as a board-certified chemistry teacher at King College Prep High School in Chicago. She understands how the system works. Months before the strike, I asked her about the situation in Chicago. The newly elected Emanuel had an appointed board comprised mostly of corporate executives, the Academy for Urban School Leadership. Lewis told me, "One of the biggest problems is that when you have a CEO in charge of a school system, as opposed to a superintendent, a real educator, what ends up happening is that they literally have no clue as to how to run the schools." The AUSL not only relies on business executives with no education experience to run schools, but also brings in recent college graduates to teach. These recruits cost very little to pay, but arrive with little or no teaching experience.

Pauline Lipman is a professor of education and policy studies at the University of Illinois-Chicago. She explained, "Chicago was the birthplace of this neoliberal corporate reform agenda of high-stakes testing, paying teachers based on test scores, disinvesting in neighborhood schools and then closing them and turning them over to charter schools."

Lipman credits Arne Duncan with driving this corporatization of Chicago's public schools. Duncan, President Obama's secretary of education, was the chief executive officer of the Chicago Public Schools, where he led the institution of charter schools, 90 percent of which are nonunion. "Arne Duncan pushed through this agenda of closing neighborhood schools, turning them over to private operators or expanding charter schools and having charter schools come in ... and increasingly putting more pressure on teachers to respond to high-stakes tests. That agenda has been really devastating in Chicago."

Chicago is also the epicenter of the community pushback against the Duncan/Obama/Emanuel attack on public schools and the teachers union. Lewis comes out of the Caucus of Rank-and-File Educators, CORE, which took over leadership of the union with a commitment to transparent school administration. Opposition to Emanuel's dictates has provoked the union into this historic strike. Phil Cantor, a strike captain for Teachers for Social Justice, explained: "We're not allowed legally to strike over anything but compensation. But teachers are not most interested in compensation; we're most interested in being able to do our jobs for the students we serve."

Thanks to the grass-roots organizing that preceded the strike (in the same Chicago streets where Obama was once a community organizer), the striking teachers enjoy extensive parent and student support. One parent, Rhoda Rae Gutierrez, has two children in elementary school in Chicago. She is a member of the group Parents 4 Teachers and is marching with the teachers. She told me, "When we fight for the rights of teachers for a fair contract, fair compensation, lower class size, well-resourced schools, having psychologists, enough social workers, enough support staff, enough aides in the classroom, nurses ... when teachers have these resources in their schools, we know that our children can do incredible things."

This struggle reflects the essence of Occupy Wall Street — community members across class, race and other traditional divides uniting in disciplined opposition to corporate power. Author and journalist Chris Hedges, who has observed the Occupy movement closely, put the strike into context:

"The teachers' strike in Chicago is arguably one of the most important labor actions in probably decades. If it does not prevail, you can be certain that the template for the attack on the union will be carried out across the country against other teachers unions and against the last redoubt of union activity, which is in the public sector, of course — firemen and police."

For people who are wondering where Occupy is today, just look at the streets of Chicago. ■

PROFILES IN PARADISE

A commitment to community service, from Macedonia to Naples

Lou Vlasho has been a business leader along the Paradise Coast since he moved here in 1989. He's the current president of the Fifth Avenue Business Improvement District and the former vice president of Vergina Italian Restaurant on the avenue.

Vergina is the radiating star of Macedonia, he says, adding his parents and brother immigrated to the United States from there, and he has always been proud of that part of his heritage.

Lou was born and raised in Canton, Ohio, the first in his family to be born in the U.S.A. He graduated from Ohio University with a bachelor's degree in commerce, majoring in accounting. As a certified management accountant, he invested 25 years at Troy, Ohio-based Hobart Corp., where he held various accounting and finance positions, culminating in his service as vice president and controller from 1980 to 1984. In 1984, he joined Gold Bond Ice Cream in Green Bay, Wis., as senior vice president and CFO. And in 1989, he came to Naples to operate several restaurants for the Rimaco Corp.

In 1987, after his first wife died, he spent a month doing volunteer work in his family's homeland. "I became totally hooked," he says, calling himself a "self-appointed ambassador" for the country.

In 2007, Macedonia nominated him as an honorary consul to The United States of America from The Republic of Macedonia. When he inquired about his official duties, he says, he was told to "just keep doing what you have been doing in helping your country of heritage."

In February 2008, the Macedonian ambassador to the United States and the Greater Naples Chamber of Commerce celebrated the Republic of Macedonia's opening of an honorary consulate office in Naples. At a luncheon in his honor, Lou was greeted by a standing ovation from more than 200 friends and local dignitaries.

Lou has served on numerous volunteer organizations in the local community and also co-founded the Greater Balkans Luncheon, now in its 11th year as part of the National Prayer Breakfast in Washington, D.C. He also has been honored by his alma mater, Ohio University, with the Distinguished Service Award, has been named a Distinguished Alumnus by his high school in Canton, Ohio.

He had the professional distinction of being elected chair of the Institute of Management Accountants, the largest management accounting organization in the world. He holds the two-fold honor of being the youngest and the first CMA to serve as chair of the institute, a post he held in 1982-83.

He and his wife, Patricia, have lived in Pelican Bay for more than 22 years.

DOJ approves Florida's new flexible early voting schedule

SPECIAL TO FLORIDA WEEKLY

The U.S. Department of Justice has approved Florida's new early voting statute without condition, allowing Collier and four other counties in the state to offer early voting hours under the new law.

Starting Sunday, Oct. 27, and ending Sunday, Nov. 3, polls in Collier County as well as in Hendry, Hardee, Hillsborough and Monroe counties will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., giving early voters 96 hours to cast votes in advance.

DOJ also approved the five preclearance counties' early voting schedule for the upcoming General Election.

The federal approval of the early voting changes completes the federal approval process for all 80 sections of the 2011 elections bill. Every section can now be implemented statewide in future elections.

"The approval of these changes is a tremendous victory for Florida voters," said Secretary of State Ken Detzner. "In the areas of the state already able to implement the changes, we have seen how the changes offer more flexibility to vote, more accountability and faster reporting times on Election Day." ■

JOKES

a political fact that will ravage you no matter where you hide, from the deepest recesses of the Big Cypress Swamp to the most obscure cul de sacs of the Big Gated Community.

Meanwhile, embassies are being blown up. Wars are being waged. Children are starving. Cell phones are ringing.

Only one course of action remains to the extraordinary men and women at Florida Weekly, therefore: to abandon pretension. To quit the ranks of those who provide serious, substantive journalism to astute readers and careful thinkers concerned with thorny issues, enlightened cultural events and the liveliest values of our contemporary society.

Instead, we're just going to joke about it. More precisely, we're going to let our friends and acquaintances joke about it. What the heck (from "Risky Business," "Sometimes you just gotta say, 'What the heck!'"") We might even let strangers tell a joke or two.

So, for the fourth year in a row, Florida Weekly offers our long-suffering readers a break from the norm (not to mention from the sane and the rational). This week, we proudly present the most poignant, the most powerful and sometimes the most painful truths that comedy can carry. After all, there is nothing more serious than a good joke.

Sure, we're a touch crazy. It's been a long year. This has been a tough quarter. We had a rough morning. But at least we admit it.

"Insane people are always sure that they are fine," Nora Ephron said. "It's only the sane people who are willing to admit that they're crazy."

Didn't we just lose her this year? Yes. And that sucks. But remember, it's a presidential election year.

"I went to the White House, met the president," Richard Pryor once reported during the run-up to another such year. "We in trouble."

Exactly. Which is why we're doing what we're doing, instead of what we should be doing, this week.

At this point in September we feel like Elwood in the 1980 comedy, "The Blues Brothers": "It's 106 miles to Chicago, we got a full tank of gas, half a pack of cigarettes, it's dark and we're wearing sunglasses."

And we hope you feel like Jake: "Hit it!" he said.

Enjoy the annual jokes issue — we'll see you on the other side.

Once there was a golfer whose drive landed on an anthill. Rather than move the ball, he decided to hit it where it lay. He gave a mighty swing. Clouds of dirt and sand and ants exploded from the spot. Everything but the golf ball. It sat in the same spot.

So he lined up and tried another shot. Clouds of dirt and sand and ants went flying again. The golf ball didn't even wiggle.

Two ants survived. One dazed ant said to the other, "Whoa! What are we going to do?"

Said the other ant: "I don't know about you, but I'm going to get on the ball."

A pirate's sitting in a pub after his ship has come to shore, telling tales from the high seas. One of the men in the bar asks, "Why do ye have that wooden leg?"

The pirate looks down at the stump on his leg and says, "Aye, that's from the time me crew made me walk the plank. A shark swam by and gobbled up me leg."

"And ye hook?" a wench asks. "How'd you come to have a hook for a hand?"

The pirate raises the metal hook for everyone to see. "Aye, that was from a sword fight with old Black Beard. The bastard took my hand clean off."

From down the table, a drunkard raises his head. "And ye eye patch?"

"Aye, that was from the time a bird pooped in me eye." The pirate taps the black patch with his hook. "It was me first day with the hook."

A newlywed couple just moved into their new house.

One day the husband comes home from work and his wife says, "Honey, you know, in the upstairs bathroom, one of the pipes is leaking. Could you fix it?"

The husband just looked at his wife and said, "What do I look like, Mr. Plumber?"

A few days went by, and he comes home from work and again his wife asks for a favor, "Honey, the car won't start. I think that it needs a new battery. Could you change it for me?"

"What do I look like, Mr. Goodwrench?" was his response.

Another couple of weeks go by, and it's raining pretty hard. His wife then finds a leak in the roof. She pleads with him as he's walking through the door. "Honey, there's a leak on the roof! Can you please fix it?"

He just looked at her and said, "What do I look like, Bob Vila?" and sat down with a beer and watched a game on tv.

One weekend the husband woke up and it was pouring pretty hard, but the leak on the roof was gone!

Speaking of leaks, he also went to take a shower, and he found that the one pipe behind the sink wasn't leaking anymore either.

His wife was coming home just then, and as she walked through the door, the husband asked, "Honey, how come there aren't any more leaks, and the car's running?"

She replied nonchalantly, "Oh, the other day I was picking up the mail, and I ran into one of our new neighbors, Jon. What a nice man. He came over and fixed everything."

"Wow, did he charge us anything?" asked the husband.

"No, he just said that he'd do it for free if I either baked him a cake or had sex with him," she said.

"Cool. What kind of cake did you make?" asked the husband.

"Cake? What do you think I look like, Betty Crocker?"

Did you hear about the new corduroy pillows? They're making headlines!

The gentleman was taken aback. "Well, excuse me," he offered. "Can one of you whales pass the crackers?"

An elderly lady walks into a lawyer's office and asks if he will prepare her will. He says he will happily do so. But the fee is $100 and he only takes cash.

A few favorites from Naples Mayor John Sorey:

A fisherman's classified ad: Wife wanted. Must be able to dig, clean, cook, grub for worms and clean fish. Must have own boat with motor. Please send photograph of boat.

A couple was on a driving vacation when a state trooper pulled the husband over and said: "Sir, do you realize your wife fell out of the car several miles back?" To which the man replied: "Thank goodness! I thought I had gone deaf."

A woman calls Naples Community Hospital: "Hello. I want to know if a patient is getting better."

The volunteer at NCH says: "What is the patient's name and room number?"

Caller: "She's Nancy Smith, in Room 302."

Volunteer: "Oh, yes, Mrs. Smith is doing very well. In fact, her blood pressure is fine, she's going to be taken off the heart monitor in a couple of hours and if she continues to improve, Dr. Jones is going to send her home tomorrow."

Caller: "Thank God! That's wonderful! That's fantastic!"

Volunteer: "From your enthusiasm, I take it you must be a family member or a very close friend."

Caller: "No, I'm Nancy Smith in Room 302. My doctor doesn't tell me anything!"

(The mayor calls that one "my favorite NCH joke." Ha Ha!)

A man about to have a heart transplant was offered the choice of either a 26-year-old marathon runner's heart or that of a 62-year-old IRS agent. He picked the agent's heart because he said it had never been used.

A lady was picking through the frozen turkeys at the grocery store but couldn't find one big enough for her family.

"Do these turkeys gett any bigger?" she inquired of the stock boy. "No, ma'am," he answered. "They're dead."

Delores looked out the window and saw our German shepherd shaking the life out of a neighbor's prize rabbit.

These were not our favorite neighbors, so she knew this was going to be a disaster. She grabbed a broom and pummeled the dog until it dropped the now extremely dead rabbit out of its month. She panicked. She called me and asked what was she going to do?

I told her to take the rabbit inside, give it a bath, blow dry it to its original fluffiness, comb it so it looked good and then slip over and put it back in its cage.

About an hour later, she heard screams coming from the neighbor's wife. She rushed over and asked, "What's going on?"

"Our prize rabbit! Our prize rabbit!" the neighbor cried. "He died a week ago, we buried him and now he's back!"

Wife's diary entry: "I met my husband for a drink after shopping. I was running late and he seemed distracted, disinterested and unengaged. I felt bad, but suggested we find a more intimate setting. We left for dinner, but he seemed distracted. He didn't pay attention or have any interest in conversation with me. We went home and he turned on the television for a while. He demonstrated no life, no interest. He went to bed saying almost nothing. I don't think he loves me any more. He must be seeing someone else. My life is ruined."

A seamstress is sewing while sitting alongside river, and her thimble falls into the water. When she cries out, the Lord appears and asks: "My dear child, why are you crying?"

The seamstress replies that her thimble has fallen into the water and she needs it to help her husband in making a living for their family.

The Lord dips His hand into the water and pulls up a golden thimble set with pearls. "Is this your thimble?" He asks.

The seamstress replies, "No."

The Lord again dips into the river. He holds out a silver thimble ringed with sapphires. "Is this your thimble?" He asks.

Again, the seamstress replies, "No."

The Lord reaches down again and came up with a simple leather thimble. "Is this your thimble?" He asks.

"Yes," the seamstress tells him.

The Lord is pleased with the woman's honesty and gives her all three thimbles to keep. The seamstress goes home happy.

Some years later, the seamstress is walking with her husband along the riverbank when her husband falls into the river and disappears under the water. When the seamstress cries out, the Lord again appears and asks, "Why are you crying?"

"Oh, Lord, my husband has fallen into the river!"

The Lord goes down into the water and comes up with George Clooney. "Is this your husband?" He asks.

"Yes!" the seamstress exclaims.

The Lord is furious. "You lied! That is an untruth!"

The seamstress replies, "Forgive me, my Lord. It is a misunderstanding. You see, if I had said no to George Clooney, you would have come up with Brad Pitt. Then if I said no to him, you would have come up with my husband. Had I then said yes, you would have given me all three. Lord, I'm not in the best of health and would not be able to take care of all three husbands. THAT'S why I said yes to George Clooney."

And so the Lord let her keep him.

The moral of this story is: Whenever a woman lies, it's for a good and honorable reason and always in the best interest of others. That's our story, and we're sticking to it.

UNDERCOVER HISTORIAN

A brief history of the Museum of the Everglades

As we year-rounders prepare for the return of the snowbirds, I think it's a wonderful time for us to explore our own interesting backyard before the roads, restaurants and attractions get crowded with seasonal folk again.

If you haven't been there lately, I highly recommend a day trip to Everglades City, the original county seat of Collier County. Although there are many colorful and historical treasures in Everglades City, all perfect for sightseeing, I want to spotlight the Museum of the Everglades.

Formerly known as the Collier Town Laundry building, this tiny, single-story structure on West Broadway was built in 1927. It was here, in the Town of Everglades (it didn't become Everglades City until 1953), that workmen from the Collier Corp. sent their uniforms to be cleaned, and where all the linens from the nearby Rod & Gun Club were laundered. It's rumored that Barron Collier sent his laundry here, too, via the mail boat from Useppa Island.

Two of the more prominent families who leased the laundry from the Collier family and operated it in the early years were the Ayers and the Echols (longtime Naples resident Ann Wynn, wife of the late Don Wynn of Wynn's Market, was an Echols before marrying).

Without sufficient labor to keep the operation running, the laundry closed its doors during World War II. Over the subsequent years, it housed a barbershop, an insurance company, a restaurant and even a church.

In 1965 the Everglades Women's Club took ownership of the building and for some time operated a thrift shop there.

When the club disbanded in 1988, its remaining members gave the building to Collier County with the stipulation that it be used as a museum for memorabilia that would provide a peek at the early days and events that shaped Everglades City and Collier County.

The restoration process took 10 long years, numerous fundraisers and a steady stream of volunteers, according to a 1999 interview with the club's founding president, Pauline Reeves. Orlando-based architect Chalmers Yielding worked on the project and helped ensure that 70 percent of the lumber from the original structure was restored.

The Museum of the Everglades opened to much fanfare on April 26, 1998, to coincide with the 70th anniversary of the opening of the Tamiami Trail. It was the first satellite museum in the County museum system. In 2001, it was added to the National Register of Historic Places.

Today's museum visitors see numerous artifacts, models, miniature dioramas and historical photographs that capture the essence of life in this region commonly referred to as "The Last Frontier."

Reflecting the original function of the building, there are several antique laundry and dry-cleaning machines on display.

MAUREEN SULLIVAN-HARTUNG / FLORIDA WEEKLY
The state of Florida designated the former laundry building an historical landmark in 1976. Now painted Old Florida pink, it houses the Museum of the Everglades. The former Everglades Women's Club under construction/remodeling before it reopened as the Museum of the Everglades in April 1998.

(today the Everglades Historical Bed & Breakfast); the former Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Depot (the Seafood Depot restaurant today); the former Collier County Courthouse (known as City Hall today); as well as the nearby famous Everglades City Rod & Gun Club. ■

There's also an area for public educational programs.

The Museum of the Everglades is three miles south of the junction of County Road 29 and the Tamiami Trail (U.S. 41). Take County Road 29 south into Everglades City to 105 West Broadway, just off the town circle, across the street from McLeod Park. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday. Admission is free, although donations are welcome. For more information, call 695-0008 or visit www.evergladesmuseum.com.

Within the same few blocks, day-trippers can view and tour the Bank of Everglades

Make Friday farmer's market night

The new Bayfront Farmer's Market launches on Sept. 21 and is scheduled to run from 4-8 p.m. every Friday through Dec. 28 at the shopping and dining complex at 465 Bayfront Place near the corner of Goodlette-Frank Road and U.S. 41. More than three dozen vendors will sell everything from organic produce to handmade soap. Participants include Megan Rose Boutique clothing, Green Ivory Jewelry, Florida Crackerz and Dancing Dragonfly Soap Company. Musical entertainment will be provided beginning in October.

"I wanted to develop a nighttime market for businesspeople who can't shop during the day and for residents and visitors going out for dinner who want this type of additional entertainment," says market organizer Rebecca Sawyer. The Bayfront location, she adds, is "perfect for workers going home and for people heading out all around the downtown area."

For more information or to become a vendor, call Ms. Sawyer at 293-9703. ■

Corkscrew adopts new hours, fees

Corkscrew Swamp Sanctuary in the heart of the western Everglades announces new year-round hours and admissions prices.

Effective Monday, Oct. 1, the sanctuary's Blair Audubon Center and 2.25-mile boardwalk will be open from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily, year-round, with after-hours special events offered monthly.

Entrance fees, which will cover two consecutive days of admission, will be $12 for adults; $6 for college students with ID; $4 for ages 6-18; and free for children younger than 6. National Audubon Society members who present their ID card will enjoy a 50 percent discount.

Corkscrew Swamp Sanctuary is northeast of Naples, 15 miles from I-75 on Immokalee Road (Exit 111). The 13,000-acre sanctuary comprises sensitive wetlands, abundant wildlife and the famed 600-year-old bald cypress forest.

For more information, call 348-9151 or visit www.corkscrew.audubon.org. ■

CLUB NOTES

■ The Southwest Florida chapter of the American Airlines Kiwi Club holds its first luncheon and meeting of the new season at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 22, at a private residence in Bonita Springs.

The club is a social and charitable organization of present and former flight attendants of American Airlines, Trans World Airlines and other airlines acquired by or merged with American Airlines. Club activities benefit PACE Center for Girls-Collier at Immokalee, the Collier County Hungry & Homeless Coalition and the food pantry at St. Matthew's House. New members are always welcome.

For reservations and directions to the upcoming luncheon, e-mail Eileen Martino Pearson at elmmartino@gmail.com.

■ The next meeting of the Women's Travel Club is set for Tuesday, Oct. 2. For information about membership and to sign up for the meeting, call Tracy Ball at 961-3248 or e-mail womenstravelclub@madtravel.com.

■ The Naples chapter of the Florida Native Plant Society begins the new season with a potluck dinner from 5-8 p.m. Monday, Sept. 24, at the home of member Bob Mitchell. Guests will tour Mr. Mitchell's native plant garden.

Members and their guests are welcome to bring a dish to share and their own beverages.

RSVP and obtain directions by calling Jean Roche at 597-7222 no later than Sept. 21.

For more information about the society and its complete 2012-13 schedule of meetings and programs, visit www.naplesfnps.org.

■ The Naples Ski Club kicks off the new season and invites prospective members to learn about club trips and events from 6-9 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 25, at Bellasera Hotel. Guests will also hear from Bob Touchette about exercises that can help ensure better, safer time on the slopes. Admission is $10. For reservations or more information, call 592-0478 or e-mail naplesskiclub@Comcast.net.

■ Members and guests of the Ohio State Alumni Club of Naples will gather for the fall kick-off social from 6-8:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 25, at the Imperial Golf & Country Club, 1808 Imperial Golf Course Blvd. Cost is $45 per person for hors d'oeuvres (cash bar).

For reservations, visit www.naplesbuckeyes.com. For more information about the club, call Sara Ann Mousa at 593-9196.

■ The Inbetweeners, a social group for singles ages 40-65, welcomes newcomers and regulars at gatherings every Wednesday. The Sept. 19 and 26 meetings are from 5-7 p.m. at the Silver Spoon in Waterside Shops. On Oct. 3 and 10, the group will meet from 4-7 p.m. at Big Al's, 8004 Trail Blvd., and on Oct. 17, 24 and 31 the gathering will be from 5-7 p.m. at the ■ Ikebana Naples Chapter #160 invites the public to the first meeting of the new season from 9-11 a.m. Wednesday, Oct. 3, at Moorings Presbyterian Church.

Guest speaker Karou Sweet will discuss the basic principles of the Ohara method of flower arranging, which employs a flat bowl rather than a tall vase. Ms. Karou earned the third term master's degree from the Ohara School in Japan and has taught the method for more than 20 years in the United States along with maintaining a career as a tennis professional. She will demonstrate a more advanced modern Ohara style and a beginner style and will give the audience an opportunity to try an Ohara design.

Chapter members and guests should visit www.IkebanaNaples.com for details of what supplies to bring. Non-members are asked to make a reservation by e-mailing ikebananaples@me.com.

■ The Naples Newcomers Club welcomes women who have been permanent residents of Naples for no more than five years and who want to meet others who are new to the area.

The club meets for lunch at 11:30 a.m. on the second Thursday of every month at country clubs throughout the area. In addition, groups within the club plan outings and dates to share varied interests, such as mah-jongg and duplicate bridge, gourmet cooking and discussions about philosophy.

Prospective members are invited to coffee at 10 a.m. on the first Thursday of each month. For meeting locations and more information, call 298-4083 or visit www.naplesnewcomers.com. ■

WALK THE WALKS

■ United Way of Collier County holds the seventh annual Walk for the Way on Saturday, Sept. 29, at North Collier Regional Park. The 2.5-mile trek starts at 9 a.m. and ends with contests and entertainment in the gymnasium.

United Way of Collier County's flagship event, the walk marks the beginning of the agency's annual giving campaign.

Groups that want to participate in walk team contests must register and submit their fundraising donations by Thursday, Sept. 27. Registration and payment can be made online, or call 261-7112 to orchestrate check delivery. For more information, visit www.uwcollier.org/events.

■ The annual Walk for Life benefiting Pregnancy Resource Center sets out at 9 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 13, along a two-mile route at North Collier Regional Park. For registration or more information, call Jessica Wilder at 513-9775 or visit www.prcwalkforlife.org.

■ The youth group at Naples Church of Christ hosts the Scare-Up-A-Cure walkathon to raise fund for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital starting at 8 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 13, at the church at 12760 Livingston Road. For registration or more information, contact Fiorella Carr at 424-3894 or e-mail fiorellabcarr@hotmail.com.

■ The Walk to End Alzheimer's steps out at 9 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 13, at St. Ann School on Ninth Avenue South. Registration begins at 8 a.m. In 2011, the Naples event raised nearly $30,000 toward the more than $47.2 million raised nationwide for care, support and research efforts for those impacted by Alzheimer's.

To start or join a team, call 405-7008 or visit www.alz.org/walk.

■ The American Cancer Society's 2012 Making Strides Against Breast Cancer 5K walk takes place Saturday morning, Oct. 20, at Cambier Park. To learn more about joining a committee, starting a team or becoming a sponsor, contact Kathy Cleeland at the ACS by calling 261-0337, ext. 3859, or e-mailing Kathy.Cleeland@can-cer.org.

■ The Stiletto Sprint to benefit the Garden of Hope & Courage and Susan G. Komen for the Cure-SWF takes place Saturday, Oct. 20, along Fifth Avenue South. The fun begins at 4:30 p.m., and although the race is only 500 feet long, but it delivers miles of amusement as men and women, young and old, make a dash dressed in pink from head to toe and wearing heels of all heights. For details and registration, visit www.komenswfl.org.

■ The Epilepsy Foundation of Florida holds its third annual Walk the Talk for Epilepsy and Seizure Disorders on Saturday morning, Nov. 3, at North Collier Regional Park. Registration opens at 8 a.m. and walkers set out at 9 a.m.

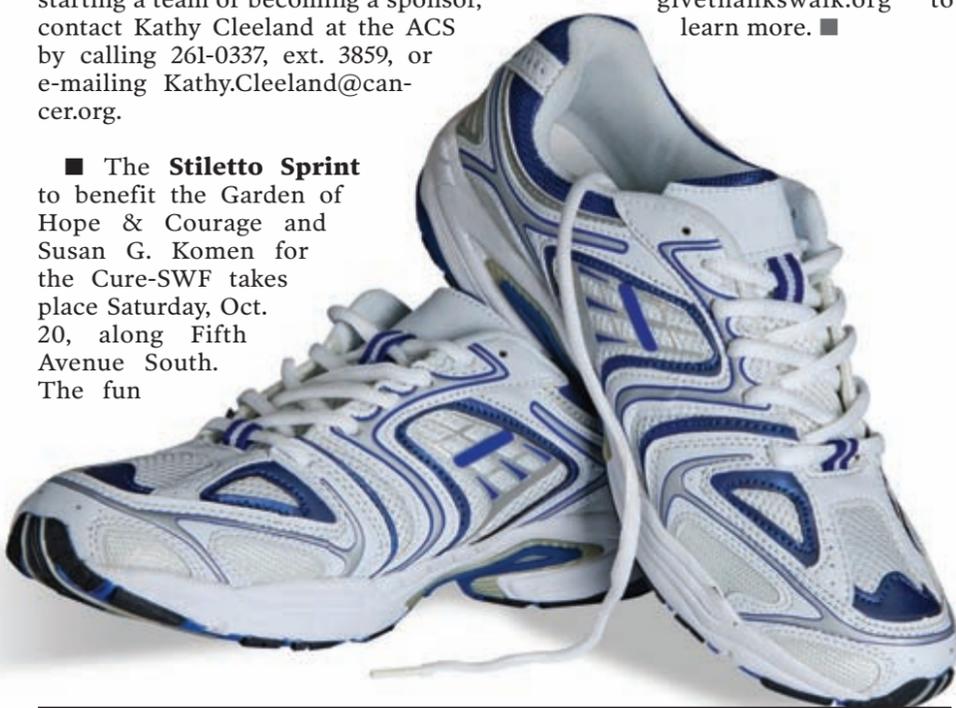

Participants are encouraged to raise at least $100 for the cause. Neighborhood and office teams are signing up now and soliciting pledges. For more information or to sign up as a walker or a volunteer to help on walk day, call 254-7710 or visit www.epilepsyFLA.org. See related story on page A20.

■ The Jolley Be Good 5K Run-Walk to benefit the Marco Island Parks & Recreation Department takes place Saturday morning, Nov. 17, along Collier Boulevard, across the Jolley Bridge and back to the starting point at Veterans Community Park on Marco Island. Registration begins at 6:30 a.m. and the race sets out at 7:30 a.m.

The event is organized by the Gulf Coast Runners. Registration ranges from $10 to $25 and can be completed at www.gcrunner.org. For more information, call 642-0575.

■ The Southwest Florida St. Jude Give Thanks Walk takes place Saturday morning, Nov. 17, at Sugden Regional Park. The non-competitive 5K kicks off the annual St. Jude Thanks and Giving Campaign.

Registration is free, but all participants are encouraged to raise money for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. The hospital has helped push overall survival rates for pediatric cancer in the U.S. from 20 percent to 80 percent, pediatric cancer remains the leading cause of death due to disease among U.S. children older than 1. ## Park Royal Hospital approved as a Baker Act receiving facility Park Royal Hospital has been approved as an involuntary commitment facility for persons believed to have acute or chronic mental disorders that make them a danger to themselves or others. The private 76-bed mental health facility opened earlier this year on the HealthPark Medical Center campus in south Fort Myers to serve the seven-county Southwest Florida region.

Commonly referred to as the Baker Act, the Florida Mental Health Act of 1971 provides for involuntary examination, which must be based on behavioral evidence and can be initiated by judges, law enforcement officials, physicians or mental health professionals. Examinations can last up to 72 hours after a person is deemed medically stable. The goal is to protect the patient and the patient's rights, and to establish the most appropriate treatment in the least restrictive environment.

"Using the Baker Act is stressful for both patients and their families, but it is an important tool in getting treatment," says Mike Metcalf, president and CEO of Park Royal Hospital. Park Royal is well equipped to deal with this type of emergency, he says, with highly trained staff and facilities that include an on-site courtroom for legal hearings.

"We encourage calls from people who are facing behavioral health issues, as well as from concerned family members or friends, whether there is an emergency or if the problem is ongoing," says Ed Handy, director of clinical operations. "Our staff members are available around the clock to answer questions, provide information and determine if Park Royal Hospital can help."

Park Royal Hospital provides treatment services on an inpatient and outpatient basis, treating adult and geriatric patients for depression, anxiety, mood disorders, memory issues, post-traumatic stress disorders and co-occurring mental health and substance abuse issues.

Any concerned person, including family members, friends or companions, physicians or social workers, can make a referral. Admissions are made 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Therapeutic environments provide physically separate facilities for patients, programs and treatments.

For more information, call 985-2760 or visit www.ParkRoyalHospital.com. ■

Open your home to an older or special-needs feline

In recognition of Adopt-A-Less-Adoptable-Pet Week, feline-friendly businesses are hosting volunteers with adoptable adult and special-needs cats from Brigid's Crossing this week.

Shown here is Jessie, an 8-year-old female who is spayed and front declawed. Jessie had diabetes (which was reversed on a raw food diet) and suffered some rear leg neuropathy as a result. She walks a little bit awkwardly, but she gets around just fine. She needs a high-quality, high-protein diet to keep her free of diabetes.

Jessie is just one of the special-needs cats available from Brigid's Crossing. See more between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 20, at Florida Motorsports, 6329 Naples Blvd., and during the same hours Friday, Sept. 21, at For Footed Friends, 13040 Livingston Road (in Marquesa Plaza next to Sports Clips).

Everyone who takes home a cat will also take home a bag of dry cat food from For Footed Friends, a certificate for a free veterinary exam from Dr. Kim Schemmer at Gulfshore Animal Hospital, a $10 gift certificate toward of heart disease — the leading cause of death — and stroke associated with being overweight. One in three children or adolescents are overweight or obese, according to the AHA, and that makes them likely to grow up to be overweight as well. This has wide-ranging impacts on health, from hearts to psychological well being, as well as on pocketbooks.

Physicians Regional Healthcare System is sponsoring the Teaching Gardens effort in Collier County, helping provide materials such as garden beds, seeds and soil.

“Some of these kids don’t have access to health-care educational opportunities,” says PRHS CEO Todd Lupton. “The most important thing is their health, but they get so little exposure to the proper way to eat and exercise... This is our small part to play — and to keep them out of our hospitals long term.”

Adam Winkle, a science and technology resource teacher at Mike Davis, is managing the program there.

“Every kid will have a hand in this new garden,” he says. “They’ll plant the seeds, they’ll grow them, they’ll water them, they’ll watch them. Then they’ll make the connection. They’ll learn, ‘Oh, OK, I can actually use this to strengthen my body in a healthy way rather than taking some pesticide-induced fruit.’”

The students will potentially monitor freezing temperatures, thieving rabbit and anything else that affects their garden. Mr. Winkle will keep a close eye on the progress and supplement it with lessons about health and nutrition. He plans on steering his charges toward success, while otherwise taking a hands-off approach. It will be the students’ garden.

“If they need help, I’ll be there,” he says. “I give them the materials, but the more they put into it the more they’ll get out of it.” ■

Adopt-A-Soldier by donating to care packages for the troops

U.S. troops in Afghanistan are the focus of the Adopt-A-Soldier project started last year by the Women’s Council of Realtors, Naples-On-The-Gulf Chapter. That first effort resulted in more than 155 care packages being sent overseas to various platoons.

This year members hope to raise $10,000 by Oct. 15 and extend their campaign to even more troops.

The group is also collecting names from local residents of family and friends who are soldiers and will ensure that those soldiers receive packages.

Monetary donations and/or supplies for care packages are welcome. Acceptable items include: Beef jerky, granola bars, packages of nuts, Rice Krispies Treats, powdered drink mixes (individual sizes), alcohol-free hand wipes, socks (black and boot-cut only), AA and AAA batteries, gum and hard candies, small tubes of toothpaste and individually wrapped toothbrushes.

Drop-off locations for donations are: Kensington Country Club; Coldwell Banker (north office); John R. Wood Realty (Immokalee office); the Law Firm of Quarles and Brady; Woods, Weidenmiller & Michetti, Attorneys at Law; and Third Federal Savings and Loan.

The chapter is also planning a poker run fundraiser in October, with details TBA.

For more information, including a way to donate money online, visit www.Adopt-A-Soldier.org.

To provide the name of a soldier you would like to receive a care package, call Sally Masters at 253-1579 or Debbie Zvibleman at 272-8878. ■

TOWN HALL TALK

A conversation with U.S. Sen. Rick Santorum

For three decades, Naples Town Hall Distinguished Speaker Series has presented a rich palette of American and international icons. They include U.S. presidents, foreign prime ministers, historians, astronomers, satirists, art curators, social commentators and illusionists. Through the years, they have candidly shared their dreams, their accomplishments and their disappointments.

Over the coming months, we will visit with a select group of these world-renowned figures. Some will hail from our 30-year history, and some will be introduced to the Town Hall stage in our 2013 season. Some are acquaintances and some are good friends. We're certain that all will entertain and/or provoke thought among Florida Weekly readers with their unique perspectives and candid commentary.

We start with Rick Santorum, the former U.S. senator from Pennsylvania, who will appear at Town Hall on March 22.

Sen. Santorum is perhaps best known for his recent bid seeking the Republican nomination for the highest office in the land. Many are aware of his strong conservative positions, which include among them shunning big government.

Few, however, realize that Sen. Santorum served eight years on the Senate Armed Services Committee and as such became and remains a well-briefed expert on Middle Eastern affairs, including Iran, Islamic Fundamentalism and the Muslim Brotherhood.

I had the chance to talk with Sen. Santorum recently while we were both in Dallas.

Q: What does the recent success of the Muslim Brotherhood in Egypt mean to regional stability?

A: It means it's a whole new ball game. It's hard to overstate the long-term potential impact on the stability in the region and its impact on American and Israeli security. The Obama administration's willingness to abandon a longtime U.S. ally for Islamists is disappointing, to say the least. Leading from behind is not a strategy. The current administration's willingness — and to some extent, that of the previous administration of George W. Bush — to equate elections with democracy have contributed to this instability. Meaningful democracy guarantees the rights of minorities, including freedom of conscience and religion. Egyptian Copts are the largest minority faith in the Middle East, and their future is even more precarious as Islamists work to consolidate their power.

Q: Civil war rages on in Syria. If the Assad regime falls, what are the probabilities of a legitimate government of the people? How are Fundamentalism and Sharia law likely to factor?

A: The administration's willingness to embrace our foes has sent the wrong message in Syria as well. President Obama chose to reverse existing policy and send an American ambassador to Syria just as the oppression was heating up. Much like his refusal to support those who rose up in Iran to protest the regime, it was the wrong message at the wrong time.

Standing on our principles will promote our interests and those of our allies. A key factor will be the influence that Al Qaeda, other radical Islamists and the Iranian regime have going forward in Syria. Appeasing radical Islamists is not a long-term strategy for promoting peace.

Q: The Muslim Brotherhood is deeply hostile toward Israel. Is there still hope for a lasting peace and cooperation based on Camp David Accords?

A: Islamists in Egypt, including the Muslim Brotherhood, hold positions that conflict with basic human rights and preclude meaningful pluralistic governance. The brotherhood's credo is:

"God is our objective; the Quran is our constitution; the Prophet is our leader; Jihad is our way; and death for the sake of God is the highest of our aspirations."

While new Egyptian President Mohamed Morsi says his country will honor the treaty with Israel, time will tell. Other sectors of Egyptian society that do not embrace political Islam will need to strengthen in order to be a restraining force against this direction. It is also up to the U.S. to make clear to Egypt that it is in its interest to honor its commitment to peace with Israel and to support freedoms for minorities. Any foreign assistance should be conditioned on this.

Q: What role should America play in maintaining peace and promoting true democracy in the region?

A: At the heart of the challenge in promoting true democracy is the philosophy and religious beliefs of radical Islam. In contrast to radical Islam, we stand for equal treatment of women, freedom of conscience and religion and the security of Israel. We stand against violent Jihadism. Our allies and our enemies need to know where we stand. The alternative is less security and greater danger. ■ heart and can take comfort and receive guidance from each other.

Two such families that I have let into my heart are the Kirks and the Wolfes. Both families needed a way to express their worries about issues that they were facing. The Kirks had been attending a support group for kids with autism, and though it was helpful, it just wasn't the same as connecting with families struggling with epilepsy. Through the SWFL Epilepsy Educational Series and Support Group, they have not only received encouragement and support but have had the opportunity to learn from leading neurologists, psychologists and even life and job coaches about how to help their daughter, Molly, prepare for the rest of her life.

The Wolfes had been searching for answers to questions about their son's epilepsy. The support group has helped them help 14-year-old Jacob learn how to cope with his epilepsy.

As someone who attended elementary, middle and high school while having epilepsy and faced the same difficulties, I decided to be a mentor to Jacob and Molly.

Yes, epilepsy has taken a lot from me, but it has also given me the opportunity to do what I love and bring hope to others who struggle to live with epilepsy. I've realized that there is a lot more that I can do, so my plan is to continue along this path, one step at a time. ■

Oh, rats

Bad PR aside, rats can be wonderful pets for kids – or adults

BY GINA SPADAFORI

Universal Uclick

People are always asking me to recommend a good pet for a child — an affectionate animal that can be cared for with a minimum of adult assistance.

“A rabbit?” they ask. I shake my head. Rabbits, especially the bigger varieties, are hard for a child to hold. When they don’t feel secure, rabbits will kick — and by doing so will sometimes break their backs. The result? A dead rabbit and a heartbroken child. So no rabbits, at least not for young children.

Mice? “Too small, too fragile,” I reply. Hamster? “Better, but too interested in sleeping during the day, plus they’re natural escape artists and somewhat nippy,” I say.

“Well, what then?” the parent will finally demand.

To them I say, “Rats.”

And after the air clears of expressions of revulsion and disgust, I explain why a healthy rat from a reputable source is a great pet for a child — and indeed for almost any animal lover.

Forget horror movies and the bubonic plague. We’re not talking about wild rats, but domesticated ones. Let go of everything you’ve ever thought about rats and consider the benefits with an open mind.

■ Rats are social animals. Many small pets don’t like being handled, but rats get used to careful socialization easily, and come to enjoy riding in pockets and on shoulders. They like people!

Smart, friendly and able to learn tricks easily, rats can be a good first pet for a school-aged child.

■ Rats are smart. Rats respond quickly to food-based training and seem to love performing. A friend of mine trained a rat for her college-level psychology course, and came to like the little guy so much that he’s now a doted-on pet in her home.

■ Rats are agile and sturdy. Try to get a guinea pig to run a maze or climb a ladder and you’ll appreciate the fleet-footedness of a rat. Unlike mice, rats can stand up to the handling and, occasionally, to the unintentional mishandling of well-meaning children.

■ Rats are cute. Think sleek, shiny fur with dark, glossy eyes and cute little ears. You say it’s the tail that gets to you? Give a rat a break. If he just had a fluffy tail, he’d be a squirrel, and people would give him nuts in the park. Really, is that fair?

■ Rats are diverse. Did you know that rats come in many more colors and patterns than the gray-brown of a street rat and the white of a lab rat? Think colors such as silver mink, platinum, blue and chocolate, and markings including hooded (the head a different color than the body) or masked. Gorgeous!

■ Rats are easy to keep. Get a cage sized for a slightly larger animal, such as a chinchilla or guinea pig, and your rat will be content. Add bedding, a place for the animal to hide and sleep, a food dish and a water bottle, some toys, and you’re set. Your rat will happily eat the food manufactured for him, and he will love you if you add fruit, nuts, vegetables and other “people food.”

It is essential to get your pet from a reputable source. And as with all pets, teaching children safe handling skills — especially with regard to hand-washing after playing with pets — is a must. You should also prepare to teach your child lessons in life’s losses, since rats typically live about three years.

Even with those caveats, the only thing rats need to become more popular as pets is a good public relations campaign, and maybe a new name. Skinny-tailed squirrels, perhaps? ■

Cerise

“Based as it is on identity of sound, parison is usually classified with figures of similitude and sometimes associated with methods of amplification, techniques for expanding and comparing... Parison is, of course, an instrument of delight, ‘causing,’ in Henry Peacham’s words, ‘delectation by the virtue of proportion and number.’ At the same time, however, it serves a heuristic function, enlarging and dividing a topic for purposes of analysis, comparison, and discrimination. By arranging ideas into parallel forms, whether phrases or clauses, the prose writer calls the reader’s attention to an especially significant idea; at the same time, however, such an arrangement focuses the reader’s mind on the semantic similarities, differences, or oppositions exposed in parallel structures... Parison — along with its rhetorical cognates — is one of the cornerstones of early-modern English writing.”

— Russ McDonald, “Compare or Parison: Measure for Measure.” Renaissance Figures of Speech, edited by Sylvia Adamson, Gavin Alexander and Katrin Ettenhuber. Cambridge University Press, 2007

“Promise her anything, but give her Arpege.”

— 1940s ad for Arpege perfume

“I use to be Snow White, but I drifted.”

— Mae West, “I’m No Angel,” 1933

“You say “Yes,” I say “No.” You say “Stop” and I say “Go, go, go.” Oh no. You say “Goodbye” and I say “Hello, hello, hello.” I don’t know why you say “Goodbye,” I say “Hello, hello, hello.” I say “High,” you say “Low.” You say “Why?” And I say “I don’t know.” Oh no. (Hello, goodbye, hello, goodbye. Hello, goodbye.) Hela, heba, helloa. Hela, heba, helloa. Hela, heba, helloa.”

— “Hello, Goodbye,” Paul McCartney

“Jump jump up down turn around, pick a bale a day... Hey, Lordie, pick a bale a day. Me and my pappy gonna pick a bale a day.”

— Traditional folk song

It was a big day, so I figured there would be a big dream. I was not disappointed.

I was standing in a totally non-descript place-moment. And you: “What is the most important thing you have learned so far?” “To be my self.” “And whoooo are YOU?” You were far away. I could see your whole face, but only your face, through the mouth hole of the costume you wore. It was a huge fluffy furry blackness of dogness, like a cartoon dog, of floppy earedness and rollicking skin. But you moved like a train, fast, fast. No, fast is not the word. Thunderous. Unstoppable. Undiminishable. Fast: Like just stay there and you will be yesterday. Flotsamed and jettisoned into particulate splendor. Uncaptureable.

Your winsome smile did not match your advance.

I was captivated. And my mind was as clear as clarity itself, with the calm of a storm’s center. Still.

Still, there were thoughts. I played in my mind field, looking for a memory. I was given instruction about this event. Could I remember in the face of your smile and your thunder?

Ah, yes. Don’t move. That simple. Hold the ground embodied. Even though there was no ground in the usual sense in this place of no up or down or turn around.

I would not have had to remember. At last, a moment of volition meeting necessity: Perfect.

For I was captivated, I could not advance into the coming moment. And I had no desire to be anywhere else. Moved and unmoving.

As you came closer, I stared into your face. It was red and wet, beaming with an ecstatic happiness and movement. Blissful.

I remembered the Nice ‘n’ Easy Shampoo ad: “The closer you get, the better you look.” And I remembered Mae West: “Is that a pistol in your pocket, or are you just happy to see me?”

Silly what comes to mind. Just being there, still.

And then the impact. First I felt the costume’s voluptuous fuzziness, and like a blanket it wrapped me. And then inside it I was, with you.

And then: Yoo hoo... Beyond hello and good bye. Cerise a l’eau de vie. (Disambiguate VSOP.) ■

Research examines potential consequences of low or rising bond rates

There is a common misperception among investors that bond investments, particularly U.S. Treasury bonds, are a safe haven.

Actually, bond investing entails many significant risks. In a major bond bull market, many of those risks are mitigated or hidden.

True, U.S. Treasury bonds have typically insulated bond investors from default or credit risk, inflation risk, currency risk, event risk, political risk, etc.

However, as recent columns have revealed, the true extent of national, state and local government indebtedness creates numerous uncertainties in the market. There are huge, unreported liabilities, largely associated with unfunded future entitlement programs and pensions. There is an incredible shortfall between future years' receipts and the yearly requirements/outlays under contractual entitlements and pension obligations, i.e. credit risk.

But even if the U.S. Treasury's credit remains as is (and is not further downgraded) and even if the upcoming fiscal crisis is somehow averted, U.S. government bond investors still face the greatest risk of all: That the 30-year bull market in bonds will end and interest rates will begin rising.

One adviser said that, "Rates as measured by the 10-Year Treasury have hit all-time lows, from 15.84 percent in 1981 to a recent low of 1.49 percent on July 31, and have limited room for further decline." ("Fixed Income Investing — The Danger of Complacency," Aug. 2012, Bandon Capital Management, www.bandon.com).

With news reports of a weak U.S. economy and a Federal Reserve trying its best to prime the pump by bringing rates even lower, it is very hard to imagine rising rates. But not only could it happen, it clearly will happen... sometime in the future. This column is not sounding the alarm that this is about to happen but it is intended to make clear, to U.S. government and all long-term bond investors, that though interest rate risk is currently silent, it will one day emit a deafening roar.

Fixed income return has two components: payment of coupon or interest and price return (gain or loss). In a rising interest rate environment, in order for outstanding bonds to adjust to market coupons or rates of interest, bond prices must adjust.

Here are some general truisms when interest rates rise: first, bond prices decrease; second, longer maturity bonds will experience a greater change in price than shorter maturity; third, lower coupon bonds are harder hit than higher coupon bonds; and fourth, long term, zero coupon bonds will be hardest hit.

Bandon Capital's report offers examples of the price declines associated with interest rate increases. "Should we see a two percentage point increase in 10 year yields to 3.49 percent (from the Aug.31 yield of 1.49 percent), an investor would experience a cumulative loss of 9.53 percent over a three-year period." Note that the interest rate peak in 2011 was at 3.72 percent. "If the 10-year Treasury yield increases from 1.49 percent to 5.49 percent in three years, investors will experience losses of 23.53 percent." Also note that the U.S. 10-year was as high as 5 percent in 2007.

Some of you might be thinking, "Well, that is why I hire a manager... to actively manage my bond portfolio." Your adviser might offer those words as a placation. But, as Bandon further points out, the index of bond managers who actively manage bond portfolios produced losses in their portfolios during the several recent periods when rates rose. In the periods of October to December 2010; September to October 2011; and January through March 2012, Pimco's total return and Barclay's aggregate both lost money in each of those periods. Active management did not work like a charm; it worked a price loss even after coupon payment.

Finally, in the nine years from 2000 to 2008, there was net cash flow into bond mutual funds of $47 billion; in the three years 2009-2011, net cash inflow was a gargantuan, eye-popping $740 billion. (Bandon's source was the Investment Company Institute.) When interest rates finally do rise, there will be a mad rush for the exit door and not all of the $740 billion will get out.

What is an investor to do? You absolutely need a conversation with your investment adviser. Reading the Bandon report first assures a more engaging conversation. Also, consider algo/computerized trading programs, which are void of fear and greed and that trade the U.S. 10-year based on price trends as a very realistic alternative and as a way to hedge long bond exposure... and following in the footsteps of what is termed "the smart money." ■ around tree roots with a solution. Besides his quiet extermination efforts there was very little else happening on Waters Edge Lane, which runs along the Gulf of Mexico. The breezy, overcast noon hour could have lulled a baby to sleep.

WHITEFLY

Uniformed in a light blue Larue Pest Management Inc. button-down shirt, Mr. Tapia wore a breathing mask, thick rubber gloves, and a backpack-operated, gas-powered blower to mist a solution up into trees or shrubs. Alternately, he sprayed the trees with a pistol connected by a long rubber hose to a tank of solution in his truck. Locating an infested patch of foliage marked by the white and black substances associated with spiraling whiteflies, he aimed and sprayed.

Some pest control companies in Southwest Florida say they've been flooded with complaints about the fly, which first appeared here around the end of last year. Mr. Tapia planned to visit three other properties to fight the flies on Thursday, Sept. 13, a now-routine part of his daily rounds.

"I guess it's good for business, but it's a challenge," said Keith Ruebeling, president of Larue Pest Management Inc. a Lehigh Acres-based company that makes house calls throughout the region. "Once it hit, this thing just took off like crazy. I've never seen anything explode like this."

Insects' unsightly trail

Doug Caldwell is helping keep track of the flies. He holds a doctorate in landscape entomology and is the commercial landscape extension agent for the University of Florida Collier County Extension Service. The flies likely came from Central America via the Port of Miami, he explained. They first appeared in the United States in Miami-Dade County in 2009 and made their way to the west coast of Florida by late 2011, nesting in the southernmost areas and along the coast first before spreading north. The Florida Keys and Marco Island were two of the heaviest-hit spots before the flies spread north, reportedly to as far as Sarasota County, although there are fewer instances of complaint there.

New bugs pop up in Southwest Florida with some regularity, said Ric Trader, owner of Ants, a pest control company in Port Charlotte. Spiraling whiteflies are following a pattern he's seen from other insects. Ficus whiteflies are another type that showed up earlier and have since been controlled. Unlike spiraling whiteflies, they can kill a ficus tree.

Rick Tapia prepares to spray more trees against whiteflies.

EVAN WILLIAMS / FLORIDA WEEKLY

(There are more than 75 types of whitefly found in Florida.)

"It's been my experience that they come from the Miami-Homestead area and they slowly come across the state, first to Collier County then up to Lee, Charlotte, Sarasota, etc.," he said.

Roughly 90 local plants and trees play host to spiraling whiteflies. The small white insects don't sting or pose a health risk and the rugose spiraling version of the whitefly isn't especially deadly to trees, at least not quickly or directly. The fuss is about the mess they leave behind. When they lay eggs, they discharge a cottony protective covering in spiral paths (hence "spiraling"). They also leave behind their waste, a sticky white substance called honeydew. Those collect on the undersides of leaves or fronds.

"It almost looks hairy when it gets really full on there," said John Dyches, owner of Premier Pest Management in Naples.

The whitefly droppings end up falling off the bottoms of leaves and onto other leaves, patios, mailboxes, decks and pool enclosures. Dirt and dust cling to the droppings and other bugs feed on it, leaving behind their own waste. All that creates a black, crumbly, organic layer of gunk called sooty mold. To fully clean it off requires powerwashing or scrubbing. You can scrape your fingernail through the sooty mold on a leaf. On some heavily effected trees, one side of a leaf is coated black and the other dusted white.

"It's more of a nuisance pest, especially in a resort town where they don't like all the stuff that comes out of the insect," Dr. Caldwell said.

Because spiraling whiteflies are new to the area, natural predators have yet to develop a taste for them, he explained. That may mean that this initial outbreak will be one of the worst Southwest Floridians can expect.

"You get the new pest and there's no bad bug to suppress it and it goes wild," Dr. Caldwell said. "It takes two or three years until the predators and parasites catch up."

Meanwhile, some people are paying big bucks to have their patios, boats and other surfaces power cleaned after white fly infestations, Mr. Tapia of Larue has observed. Treatment can run from $25-50 per tree for homeowners. The city of Marco Island set aside $25,000 to pay for treatment to get rid of the pests. That included injecting trees directly in the trunk with a solution that spreads into the leaves and kills the flies or their hatchlings when they use their proboscis to feed on it. The city has spent about $17,000 so far.

"I would say (the presence of rugose spiraling whiteflies on Marco Island) was noted a good 18 months ago, and really, it's everywhere," said biologist Nancy Ritche, an environmental specialist for the city. "First it was just on a few species of trees like gumbo limbos, now it has really just jumped to vegetation nearby."

In fact, it was first called the gumbo limbo spiraling whitefly since it often nested in that tree. Homeowners, however, have probably called it a lot worse. ■

Worldwide Invest Better Day

Many folks associate us with April Fools' Day, due to the pranks we've played on it. But there's another date we'd like you to note, and it's one we're taking very seriously: Worldwide Invest Better Day, on Sept. 25. On the days leading up to and following it, we'll be campaigning to educate, inspire and motivate individual investors to return to the time-tested, long-term, business-focused investing principles that lead to financial security.

Keeping your head in the sand won't lead you to a successful retirement. Neither will reckless speculation and trading. Fortunately, a more secure future is well within your grasp. As we've said for nearly 20 years, you are the best person to manage your finances.

Stock investing is still the greatest wealth-creator available to ordinary citizens, and more tools than ever are available to help you with it. Starting now puts the power of compounding to work for you. Successful and confident investing happens when you buy parts of businesses (not tickers), and truly understand a business with a focus on the value it will generate over years, not months.

It's not rocket science, either. Great companies in which you can invest are all around us and familiar to you. You don't need to find risky, obscure little outfits and trade in and out of them frantically. Buy with the aim to hold for the long term and be patient.

Learn from great investors. Take advantage of tax-advantaged retirement accounts. Save aggressively. Invest effectively. Minimize fees. Have a plan. And best of all, know that you are not alone. You are part of a community at fool.com.

On Sept. 25, Motley Fool co-founders David and Tom Gardner will host an all-day interactive online summit, and they'll launch our (free!) Motley Fool Invest Better program — offering a step-by-step approach to investing.

Visit InvestBetterDay.com to sign up for access to wealth-building insights via articles, videos, podcasts and more. When it comes to your financial future, don't just hope for the best. Take responsibility for it, and take action. ■

Name That Company

I trace my roots back to a breakfast nook in California in 1958. My name used to look like a rabbit describing how it moves, but my new name, as of 2008, resembles FoodStock. With about 3,500 restaurants in 18 countries, I call myself the world's largest full-service dining company. I bought Applebee's in 2007 and am working to make it 99 percent franchised. My ticker symbol is a loud noise. Over the past 20 years, my stock has averaged annual growth of more than 11 percent — rather fresh and fruity results, wouldn't you say? Who am I? ■

The Motley Fool Take

Clean Up With Clorox

If you're looking for a blue-chip dividend-paying stock, consider Clorox (NYSE: CLX), recently yielding 3.5 percent. With brands such as Pine-Sol, S.O.S., Tilex, Green Works, Fresh Step, Scoop Away, Glad, Brita, Hidden Valley, Burt's Bees, Kingsford and Liquid-Plumr, it's readying to celebrate its 100th year, and its prospects for growth are looking as fresh as ever.

The company, which has four operating segments — cleaning, household, lifestyle and international — fits the bill as a Peter Lynch "buy what you know" candidate because it has easily recognizable products and an easy-to-understand business model. It can provide downside protection for your portfolio because of the inelastic prices on many of its products. These products are necessary, too. No matter what the economy is doing, you'll probably still apply lip balm, clean your kitchen, change your cat's litter, unclog drains and occasionally grill some food.

Its mixture of well-known brands, an easily understood business model and strong pricing power continues to drive Clorox's innovation and growth. The company's sales volume has been growing, too, as has its dividend, which has been raised for 35 straight years. Clorox is likely to be a successful company for another 100 years. Its stock is not quite a bargain now, so perhaps keep an eye on it, waiting for a temporary pullback. (The Motley Fool owns shares of Clorox.) ■

My Dumbest Investment

Competition Matters

One of my earliest losers was LeapFrog Enterprises, with its electronic learning tablet. I figured that parents love their kids and will shower them with the best educational toys. Lesson learned: As with kiddie clothes, most parents are not that fussy about brands of toys. And with technology-based toys such as the LeapPad, there wasn't much sustainable competitive advantage. Fisher-Price soon came out with a rival product and LeapFrog had to discount heavily. The results were predictable: Profit margins fell and earnings shrank. Lesson No. 2: Rave reviews are not enough.

— F.E., Singapore

The Fool Responds: LeapFrog was first to market with its electronic learning device, but that rarely guarantees success. Deep-pocketed competitors could — and did — come up with similar products.

Bigger companies also tend to enjoy advantages such as economies of scale and large, established distribution channels. It's great to find a company with a new and compelling product, but you need to be confident in its ability to compete well. LeapFrog has survived and is growing, but its stock, recently around $11 per share, is well below its 2003 high near $40. ■

Do you have an embarrassing lesson learned the hard way? Boil it down to 100 words (or less) and send it to The Motley Fool c/o My Dumbest Investment. Got one that worked? Submit to My Smartest Investment. If we print yours, you'll win a Fool's cap!

Last week's trivia answer

I trace my roots back to a dry-goods store in Wyoming in 1902, where I sold blue jeans, fabric, sewing goods and more. I was first named The Golden Rule and have long aimed to treat others "Fair and Square." I boast about 1,100 stores today, though I once had more than 2,000. In 1914 I moved my headquarters to New York City, and in 1992, to Plano, Texas. I launched my catalog in 1963 and started taking online orders in 1994. I owned the Eckerd drugstore chain from 1997 to 2004. Ellen DeGeneres speaks for me. Who am I? (Answer: JCPenney) ■

Shrink That Loss

Q On my next tax return, can I deduct from my income a big loss I incurred this year from a stock sale?

— S.W., Dothan, Ala.

A If you have any capital gains from stock sales, you'll first offset them with your loss. Any loss beyond that, or all of your loss if you have no capital gains, can be deducted from your income — up to $3,000 per year. Sums above $3,000 can be carried over to the following year.

If you're in the 25 percent tax bracket and you deduct $3,000 from your income, you're excluding that amount from taxation. So you save 25 percent of $3,000, or $750. Of course, you've still lost money. You just decreased your loss.

Learn much more about tax rules and strategies that can save you money. Do so at irs.gov or fool.com/taxes.

***

Q How much personal liability insurance do I need?

— F.E., Keene, N.H.

A It depends. Figure out how much you have to lose if you're sued. Add up the value of your home, your belongings and your financial assets. Tack on some more for the cost of legal defense. (Insurance companies will sometimes provide a lawyer.) You want to be sure that a lawsuit won't wipe you out or cause severe financial strain.

If your total assets are substantial, ask your insurance company about an "umbrella" personal liability policy. Critical for more and more of us these days, umbrella policies generally offer much more liability coverage ($1 million or more) at much lower premiums than individual policies, such as homeowner's, renter's and automobile insurance.

If you have a lot to lose, you might want an umbrella policy. Learn much more at fool.com/insurancecenter and iii.org.

What $525,000 will buy in SWFL

12095 VIA CERCINA DRIVE, BONITA SPRINGS

This beautifully appointed home is in the Cercina subdivision of the gated Vasari Country Club. Built in 2005, the pool home has 2,000 square feet of living space with three bedrooms, a den and three bathrooms.

The residence has more than $100,000 in upgrades, such as an island, granite countertops, cherry cabinetry and stainless steel appliances in the kitchen. Other features include 18-inch diagonal porcelain tile floors, 10-inch tray ceilings with crown molding and Hunter Douglas shades and custom window treatments. The bathrooms have marble surface vanity tops.

With a lake view, the home has a granite outdoor kitchen and two-car garage with hobby shop and storage cabinets. The residence is being offered furnished.

The home is listed at $525,000. Contact listing agent Bob Brewer of Downing-Frye Realty at (239) 404-1932. ■

6672 ESTERO BLVD., UNIT A506, FORT MYERS BEACH

This gulf-front condo in the Sandarac subdivision offers life in paradise with its panoramic water views, including gorgeous sunsets because of the western exposure. The building is situated on the southern part of Estero Boulevard, the widest part of the beach.

Located on the fifth floor, the bright corner unit has 1,197 square feet of living space with two bedrooms and two bathrooms. The unit is recently remodeled, with newer appliances in the kitchen, which has a breakfast bar. Other interior features are French doors leading to the master bedroom, crown molding, window coverings and ceiling fans.

Glass windows enclose the tiled lanai, and the unit comes with electric shutters and a detached carport. Community amenities include a pool and picnic area.

The condo is listed at $524,900. Contact listing agent Urban Boutin of Prudential Florida Realty in Fort Myers at (239) 229-6536. ■

3639 KASSANDRA DRIVE, PUNTA GORDA

This renovated home on a corner tip lot in Burnt Store Isles offers 3,158 square feet of living space. The home is on an oversized lot with a canal view providing sailboat access. The residence features four bedrooms and 3½ bathrooms. The home has spacious master suites on separate ends.

The second master features a built-in desk and bookcase. A third bedroom has a private bath.

The beautiful eat-in kitchen has granite countertops and breakfast bar, five-burner gas range top, built-in wine rack, under-counter lighting and stainless steel appliances. Sliders from the kitchen, living and family rooms, den and master suite open to the lanai. The screened lanai includes an irregular shaped pool, pool bath and outside kitchen with gas grill.

The residence features a circular drive, plantation shutters and a multi-car garage with cabinets and workbench. The property, with 70 feet of seawall and two docks, is listed at $525,000. For more information, contact listing agent Jim Quinn of Keller Williams Realty in Punta Gorda at (941) 457-1380.

4751 GULF SHORE BLVD. N., UNIT 1403, NAPLES

This condo is in the Terraces at Park Shore, which is within walking distance to the beach and cultural activities of the Venetian on Village Bay. The 14th-floor unit of 1,252 square feet of living space has spectacular views of the bay and city life from split bedrooms, living area and screened balcony. Wonderfully redecorated, the home has stunning marble floors throughout and a beautiful kitchen with granite kitchen counters, stainless steel appliances and an island.

Community amenities include a pool, spa/hot tub, sun deck, library, social room, fitness center, 24-hour security and underground parking.

The condo is listed at $525,000. Contact listing agent Roxanne Jeske of Premier Sotheby's International Realty at (239) 450-5210. ■

SOMEWHERE IN THE WORLD

they're talking about your home in Bonita Springs.

You are part of a global marketplace. The Gulf Coast of Florida is a destination with international appeal. So, it's possible that your buyer could be right down the street—or halfway around the world. Happily, with over 11,000 sales associates in over 570 offices in 76 countries and territories, Sotheby's International Realty is ideally-positioned to take your property global and speak the language of buyers anywhere. The real advantage to you? The quality and integrity of the Sotheby's International Realty network. Some of our competitors claim international networks that are really just loose affiliations of independent brokers. Quality varies. Sotheby's International Realty consists of members, not affiliates. We're committed to upholding the Sotheby's brand and the family name. Which means you can always depend on the same high standard of service. From associate to associate. Office to office. Market to market.

A GUIDE TO THE LOCAL ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT SCENE

Not-so ordinary outfits

BY GLENN MILLER

Florida Weekly Correspondent

EACH STEP, EACH SWIVEL OF THE HEAD, EACH CORNER turned at the Jay & Patty Baker Naples Museum of Art for the next three months will bring flashes of recognition and waves of nostalgia.

Not for a Monet or a Van Gogh or a Picasso.

No, a different art form will be displayed Sept. 22-Dec. 30 in a second-floor gallery at the museum, in an exhibit titled "Out of this World: Extraordinary Costumes from Film and Television."

These are not copies. They're the actual, sweat-stained costumes of iconic characters from legendary films of the past 75 years, among them:

Indiana Jones.

Batman.

The Terminator.

The Wicked Witch of the West.

Yep, the very same pointy black hat worn by Margaret Hamilton as the Wicked Witch of the West in "The Wizard of Oz" is in a glass case in the museum, a long way from Kansas or Oz.

The exhibit is on loan from the EMP Museum in Seattle, where it debuted in 2007. At the time, according to EMP senior curator Jacob McMurray, it wasn't intended to be a traveling exhibit. But the costumes, which he describes as "cultural touchstones for so

You be the judge in Manhattan Short Film Festival

BY CINDY PIERCE

cpierce@floridaweekly.com

Independent film aficionados around the world will be the judges for the 2102 Manhattan Short Film Festival when the competition's 10 finalists are screened at movie theaters, galleries and museums in 300 cities around the world between Sept. 28 and Oct. 7.

In Naples, Manhattan Short screenings are set for 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 29, and 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 30, at Silverspot Cinema in Mercato.

All moviegoers will receive a ballot when they arrive; after viewing the 10 finalists (total screening time approximately 130 minutes), they will vote for their favorite. Staff at Mercato will tally the votes and notify festival headquarters in New York City. The winning film will be announced at 10 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 7, on the festival website, www.manhattanshort.com.

Neither a touring nor traveling film festival, Manhattan Short (subtitled "One World One Week One Festival") is "the world's first global film festival," taking place over the course of one week in partner cinemas in Asia, Australia, Europe, South America and North America, according to the website. Founding director Nicholas Mason says it is the first film festival to ever

SANDY DAYS, SALTY NIGHTS

Stop looking for love in the freezer

Last Saturday afternoon I had brunch with my friend Mitch. Mitch wears glasses, owns a cat named Bella and writes poetry in his spare time. He speaks French, is deferential and polite, and — it goes without saying — is not at all my type. Which is why we can have brunch on the weekends and never worry about the fraught tension that comes with attraction.

“You know everyone in here thinks we spent last night together,” I whispered as the hostess led us to a table.

Mitch rolled his eyes. “Like that would ever happen.”

While we’ve sharply drawn the lines of our friendship, that’s not to say Mitch isn’t looking for love. Sometimes I think he’s looking a little too hard. He’s out on the scene practically every weekend night, chatting up women with a boldness you wouldn’t expect from his meek exterior.

“I’m really ready,” he said to me once, by way of explanation. “I’m just ready.”

The problem with this readiness, as Mitch calls it, is that it sometimes looks like desperation.

As we were finishing brunch, the hostess seated two young women at the table next to us. They were lovely in their pastel dresses, and I knew immediately that Mitch was lost. He barely spoke as I forked the last bites of eggs Benedict into my mouth.

“Hey,” I said as I caught him looking at one of the women for the tenth time in the space of two minutes. “Cut it out.”

We paid the check and headed for the door, but I stopped at the bakery counter.

“Do you mind if I buy something?” I asked Mitch.

“Sure, sure,” he said, not looking at me. Then, as I was choosing a pastry, “I’m going to go back and ask that girl for her number.”

I turned from the counter, stunned. “Why would you do that?”

“Because she was cute and, I don’t know — ”

“Mitch,” I said. “You two didn’t even say hello. In what world would that be appropriate?”

He danced nervously from one foot to the other. “But what if she’s The One?”

I shook my head and counted out money. “Save your energy,” I said.

In fact, I’d like to say that to a lot of my friends, the ones over 30 who feel time crushing in on them. I’ve watched these friends grow more frenzied and turn to increasingly strange measures to track down their soul mates.

“It’s like when you’re looking for your keys,” a wise friend said recently when I told him this story. “You always look in the weirdest places. You get frantic to find them, and the next thing you know you’re looking in the freezer. Are your keys ever going to be in the freezer? No. They’re going to be exactly where they should be — probably on the table by the door, covered with a magazine.”

If only Mitch and those like him would take this advice. Despite how we convince ourselves otherwise, the truth is that love is never where we least expect it. It’s often right where it should have been all along. ■

FGCU celebrates Rachel Carson and 'Silent Spring' with films, lectures

To commemorate the 50th anniversary of Rachel Carson's "Silent Spring," the book credited with inspiring modern environmental advocacy, Florida Gulf Coast University presents a series of films, readings and lectures Sept. 24-29.

CARSON

"Exploring the Legacy of Rachel Carson" celebrates the writer who fundamentally changed the way we steward the natural environment, according to Laura Frost, chemistry professor and director of FGCU's Whitaker Center for STEM Education, which promotes academic programs in science, technology, engineering and mathematics.

"Rachel Carson effectively and elegantly communicated a complex subject to the general public," Dr. Frost says. "Promoting environmental sustainability and encouraging civic responsibility are parts of FGCU's mission, so it seems fitting that we should be exploring the legacy of 'Silent Spring' on such an occasion."

A marine biologist and ecologist, Ms. Carson (1907-64) wrote about natural history, resources and conservation for years before publishing "Silent Spring" in September 1962. A New York Times bestseller, it documented how synthetic chemical pesticides harm the environment and wildlife and ignited widespread public concern over pollution. The book's revelations helped spur legislation such as the Clean Air and Clean Water Acts and led to formation of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Admission to "Exploring the Legacy of Rachel Carson" is free and open to the public. Events are:

■ 5-8 p.m. Monday, Sept. 24, in Room 129 of Whitaker Hall - Nuclear testing is explored through the films "Radio Bikini" (1988) and "Radioactive Paradise" (2010). Moderated by John Reilly, FGCU associate professor of chemistry.

■ 6-8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 25, in Room 213 of the Cohen Center - A screening of "The Silent Spring of Rachel Carson" (1963) followed by a lecture about chemical threats presented by Darren Rumbold, FGCU professor of marine science.

■ 5-8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 26, in Room 215 of Griffin Hall - A screening of "Fooling with Nature" (1998) and lecture about hormone mimics by Talal El-Hefnawy, FGCU assistant biology professor.

■ 5-8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 27, in Room 172 of Griffin Hall - Ray Judah reflects on environmental issues prevalent during his 24 years as a Lee County Commissioner, followed by the screening of "Bag-it" (2010), a documentary on the effect that plastics have on our bodies and our environment.

■ 1-6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 29, in Room 101 of Whitaker Hall - Additional lectures on chemical threats and hormone mimics and an informal Q&A session with local experts on resources, planning, landscaping, pollution, water and waste management. The day ends with a screening of "The Silent Spring of Rachel Carson."

There's always more than one show to see

In addition to "Out of This World: Extraordinary Costumes from Film and Television," two other exhibits open Saturday, Sept. 22, at the Patty & Jay Baker Naples Museum of Art:

■ "Martin Scholler: Close Up" - German-born photographer Martin Scholler's larger-than-life photographs strip the facades from some of the most recognizable faces of our time, inviting viewers to consider the depths of the human face and to discover his subjects' vulnerabilities. The artist's hyper-close portraits push this form of intimacy to unprecedented levels, encouraging us to see the familiar in an unfamiliar way. The exhibition features photographs of actors, singers, athletes and politicians, along with ordinary people living private lives.

On display through Sunday, Dec. 9, "Martin Scholler: Close Up" is organized and circulated by Curatorial Assistance Traveling Exhibitions of Pasadena, Calif.

■ "Fletcher Benton: The Artist's Studio" - This experiential and interactive exhibition explores the attitudes and methods that kinetic and constructivist sculptor Fletcher Benton applies to his work. Conceived by the artist, the exhibition recreates his studio with the images, textures and inspirations that constitute his working environment.

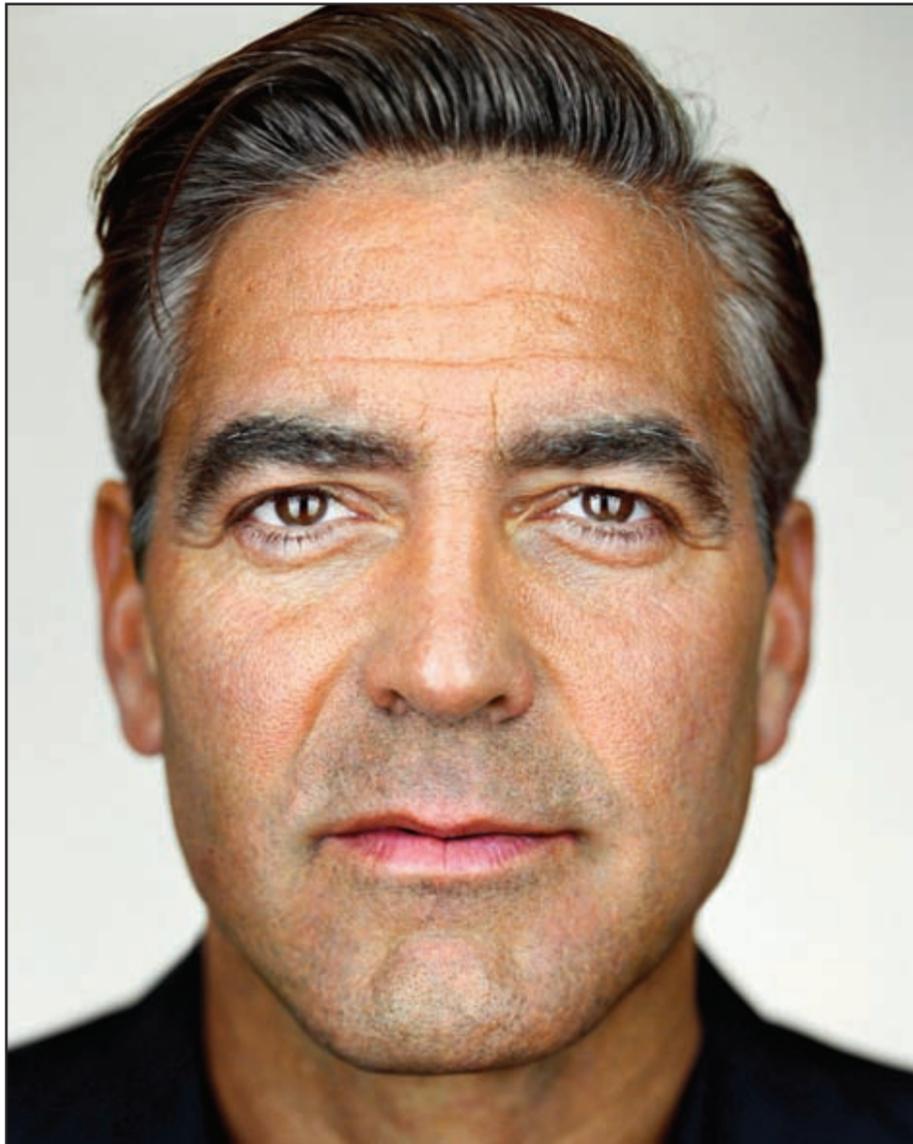

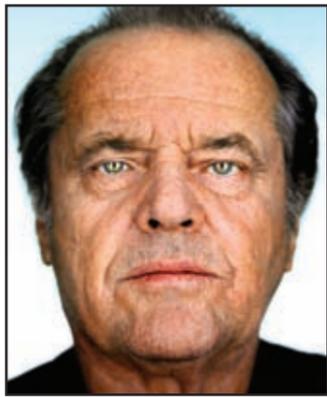

This is a rare opportunity to see inside the artist's studio — a typically private space — through the artist's eyes. The exhibition also includes several outdoor sculptures from this artist who received the International Sculpture Center Lifetime Achievement in Contemporary Sculpture Award in 2008.

On display through Sunday, Jan. 20, "Fletcher Benton: The Artist's Studio" is organized by the Sonoma Valley Museum of Art.

The museum season continues with: ■ "Sight Unseen: International Photography by Blind Artists" (Dec. 22-March 24) - Curated by Douglas McCulloh, originated by UCR/California Museum of Photography and toured by Curatorial Assistance of Pasadena, Calif.

■ "Painting Women" (Jan. 12-April 21) - More than 80 works from the permanent collection of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, exploring the role of women in art.

■ "Revelation: Major Paintings by Jules Olitski" (Feb. 2-July 7) - From

From the "Martin Scholler: Close Up" exhibit of portraits, clockwise from left: George Clooney (2007), Jack Nicholson (2002), Cindy Sherman (2000), Marina Abramovic (2010) and Henry Kissinger (2007). many people" — resonated so strongly with museum patrons that the EMP decided to offer the show to other museums.

Since 2008, "Out of this World" has bounced around North America, from Bozeman, Mont., and Oshkosh, Wis., to Halifax, Nova Scotia, and numerous points in between.

There's just something ineffably nifty about seeing the leather jacket worn by Harrison Ford as Indiana Jones and the whip he used to battle bad guys.

Mr. Ford's is not the only jacket that's "Out of this World." There's the one Arnold Schwarzenegger donned in "The Terminator," and Dan Aykroyd's from "Ghostbusters."

The gold tunic worn by William

Shatner in the original "Star Trek" TV episodes from 1966 bears evidence that playing Capt. James T. Kirk was hard work.

"You can see sweat stains," Mr. McMurray says of the tunic.

The oldest item in the collection is the Wicked Witch's hat, from a movie made nearly three-quarters of a century ago. Seeing it, one can almost hear Ms. Hamilton's menacing cackle as she flies off on her broom or peers into her crystal ball in the 1939 film.

"It has so much mojo about it," Mr. McMurray says about the hat.

Mr. McMurray wants NMA visitors do more than gape at the 30-plus pieces of clothing and accessories that make up the exhibit. He hopes they learn about the artistry and craftsmanship required in making costumes and how the attire helps define a character's persona.

"The costume is the character," he says, using Darth Vader from "Star Wars" as an example.

Making costumes that help make or define characters, visitors will learn, is also an art form.

Mr. McMurray realizes, though, that the primary response from visitors is mostly likely to be more visceral or emotional, not intellectual. It's about each viewer's particular connection to each movie and character, and the emotions brought forth when they watched the film.

Each costume tells its own story — "Sort of like an archaeological piece," says the curator, who will travel to Naples to deliver a lecture about the costumes at the NMA on Wednesday, Oct. 31.

The exhibit will also supply the theme for a concert by the Naples Philharmonic Orchestra on Saturday, Sept. 29. In "Out of This World: Music from the Movies" the NPO will perform excerpts of the sound tracks from "Star Wars," "Star Trek," "Mission Impossible" and more.

The Naples stop is the final one on the five-year tour of "Out of this World: Extraordinary Costumes from Film and Television." When the show closes Dec. 30, the items will be packed up and returned to Seattle.

"We kind of determined it's time for it to rest," Mr. McMurray says. "We figure five years is a great run." ■ take place in all 50 states of the USA. On the website, he outlines the history of the festival:

In September 1998, he projected 16 short films on a screen affixed to the side of a truck on Mulberry Street in New York City. Before an audience of about 300 New Yorkers, the Manhattan Short Film Festival was born.

In 1999, the festival moved to Union Square Park. Aside from celebrity judges including Susan Sarandon, Eric Stoltz, Laura Linney, Roger Corman and Tim Robbins, it remained "a pretty low-key event," Mr. Mason says.

The 2001 festival was scheduled for Sept. 23, just 12 days after the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center. In the aftermath of the attacks, Union Square Park had become a shrine, a place where people gathered to grieve the loss of loved ones. Satellite trucks surrounded the park, broadcasting news from Ground Zero.

Mr. Mason recalls that officials from the New York City Parks Department urged him, no matter what, to proceed with Manhattan Short as scheduled.

"We did," he says, "and the festival received a lot of attention in the global media. A direct result from this was, the following year we received double the amount of film entries than we had in previous years."

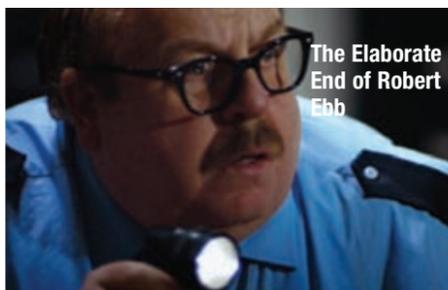

By 2004, the festival had morphed into DVDs of the finalists being screened at seven cities in seven U.S. cities over the course of one week in September. It was the first year that voting was handed over to the audience.

The "you be the judge" concept was a huge success, Mr. Mason says.

For 2005, 72 art house cinemas in 32 states screened the finalists. The next year, about two dozen cinemas in Europe joined the effort.

"We've just continued to add venues... in 2010 we added Africa and became the world's first global film festival," Mr. Mason says. The main reasons for the festival's success, he says, "are the cinemas/venues we partner with and the moviegoers that support them.

"I have become a firm believer that it's the public that creates stars. Be it a film, a tune, a book, a new game, whatever... Get it out to the public, get it in the right place, the right forum, and the public will transform it and take it to a place one would never have imagined."

The 2012 finalists

Here are the 10 finalists for the 2012 festival, culled from 520 entries received from filmmakers in 49 countries:

■ "The Devil's Ballroom" (Norway) - On a perilous journey to the North Pole, an Arctic explorer makes a critical decision with lifelong consequences. Running time: 15 min. 30 sec.

■ "A Curious Conjunction of Coincidences" (The Netherlands) - Bad luck connects three men together even though they live in different centuries. 8 min. 54 sec.

■ "Where the Sea Flows" (Russia) - A mother comes to grips with a precocious young daughter and the violent circumstances of her birth. 14 min.

■ "Two & Two" (UK) - In a school run by an authoritarian regime, a seemingly ridiculous decree becomes a syllabus for terror. 8 min. 25 sec.

■ "Cluck" (Ireland) - Feathers are ruffled at the orphanage when a new arrival threatens to upset the pecking order. 18 min. 57 sec.

■ "Behind the Mirrors" (Peru) - When one of the night's customers at a disreputable motel leaves an unexpected mess, the young manager sees an opportunity that may change his family's fortunes forever. 12 min. 10 sec.

■ "The Elaborate End of Robert Ebb" (France) - A monster terrorizes a town and induces collective hysteria with hilarious results. 12 min. 50 sec.

■ "Superman, Spiderman or Batman" (Romania) - Inspired by his favorite comic book heroes, a young boy tries to save the day. 11 min.

■ "92 Skybox Alonzo Mourning Rookie Card" (USA) - Brothers Jim and Dave sort out their differences in extreme fashion when their father dies. 12 min.

■ "Voice Over" (Spain) - A series of life-threatening experiences pale in comparison to a situation that requires real courage. 9 min. 50 sec. ■

Stevie Nicks set to cast her spell at Germain Arena

BY LYNNE MARGOLIS

Special to Florida Weekly

When Stevie Nicks decided to record her first solo album in 10 years, she called her old pal, Eurythmics veteran Dave Stewart.

Not only did he prove to be a particularly well-suited writing partner and producer, he shared a unique historical circumstance that bonded them in a special sort of kinship; like Ms. Nicks, Ms. Stewart had been part of a duo that was both musical and romantic. And also like Ms. Nicks, the romance ended before the musical connection did.

Mr. Stewart, of course, was with Annie Lennox when the pair gained fame.

Ms. Nicks had joined forces with Lindsey Buckingham when they were still high-school students, and when he was invited to join Fleetwood Mac, he said the Buckingham-Nicks duo, which had released one dead-in-the-water album, was a package deal.

By the time they split, they had put their indelible stamp on what would become one of the best-selling albums of all time: 1977's "Rumours," a chronicle of two band couples coming apart (John and Christine McVie were the other) and Ms. Nicks' affair with the band's co-founder, drummer Mick Fleetwood.

The members of Fleetwood Mac have since splintered and come together again more than once, but in the meantime, each made solo forays. Ms. Nicks has notched the most successful solo career of any Fleetwood Mac veteran.

Her string of hits, with and without Fleetwood Mac, represents one of pop music's most beloved canons: the list includes "Rhiannon," "Landslide," "Dreams" (a favorite topic), "Edge of Seventeen," "Leather and Lace" (a duet with one-time lover Don Henley), "Stand Back" and, with Tom Petty, "Stop Draggin' My Heart Around."

Her gypsy/witchy-woman look — Victorian-inspired gowns, high-heeled boots, leather and lace, silk and satin, romantic hats over long, blonde tresses, all shown off with frequent stage twirls — set a tone in the '70s from which she hasn't wavered.

She hasn't changed her songwriting style much, either — or at least she hadn't until she began working with Mr. Stewart on "In Your Dreams," which was released in May 2011. She says that until he sat across from her in her L.A. living room, expecting her to sing along as he played, she'd never written a song with another person while sharing the same breathing space, face to face.

"I sent him 40 pages of poetry, never really expecting him to read all of it, but he did," she recalls, speaking over the phone in her deep alto. "He puts his guitar on and he takes one of the poems out of the binder that I had sent him, and he says, 'I like this poem. Let's do this one.'"

Startled ("like a deer in headlights," she says with a laugh), she wanted to tell him she doesn't write with other people.

But she kept her mouth shut — likely a rare moment for a woman who hardly breaks for another question once she gets going during an interview.

"Something in me said, 'Don't say that. Just sit there and see what he is gonna do,'" she confesses. And he played. Then he told her to sing. And she did.

"That's actually the third to the last song on the record; it's called 'You May Be The One,'" she says. "That's how it started, and 20 minutes later, we had a really good song."

The only song on which they actually shared lyric-writing duties was "Everybody Loves You"; he gave her the chorus and asked her to write verses. The words he provided were: "Everybody loves you but you're so alone, no one really knows you, but I'm the only one."

"I immediately took it like he was writing that about Annie Lennox, because that sounded like a person from a duo writing a song about the other person in the duo," Ms. Nicks says. "And what Dave and I had that was great was that we'd both been in really famous duos, so the whole time we were making this record, I felt like Lindsey and Annie were floating around in the room... because a lot of the stuff that we both wrote seemed to be directed to our years as famous people in duos."

She's hoping her solo tour will draw audiences to her poignant mix of love songs, reminiscences, dreamscapes and odes to soldiers, vampires, New Orleans home, starting in January 2010 and finishing in December that year.

"It was the best year of my life," Ms. Nicks enthuses. "I am probably more proud of this record than anything I've ever done." ■ and even Edgar Allen Poe (whose poem "Annabel Lee" she has set to music).

"In Your Dreams" also contains contributions by frequent collaborator Mike Campbell, along with Mr. Buckingham, Waddy Wachtel, Mr. Fleetwood and other players she's worked with in the past. Except for drum overdubs, they recorded the entire album in her

'Shout!' celebrates fun, freedom of the wild and crazy 1960s

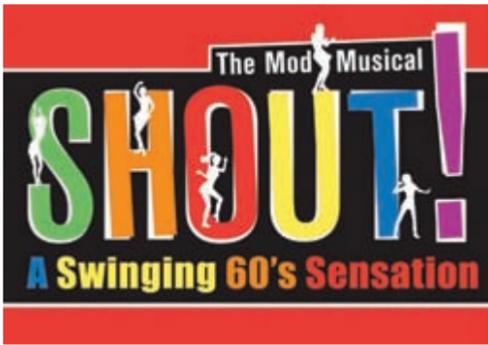

Travel back to the beginnings of women's lib and changing social norms when The Naples Players present "Shout! The Mod Musical" Oct. 3-27 at the Sugden Community Theater.

Created by Phillip George and David Lowenstein, the show celebrates the fun and the freedom of the '60s as women redefined themselves in the face of changing attitudes about gender. In numbers including "To Sir With Love," "Downtown," "Goldfinger," "Son of a Preacher Man" and "Georgy Girl," the musical revue recreates the sounds, fashions, dances — and the hair — of the era, all slightly heightened.

The story revolves around the lives and problems of five women who face tough situations, usually involving relationships. They send letters to an advice columnist at the magazine Shout, who doles out advice on how to deal with their issues.

"Shout!" contains adult language. Show times are at 8 p.m. Wednesday-Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $35 for adults and $10 for children 18 and under. Call the box office at 263-7990 or visit www.naplesplayers.org. ■

Singers invited to audition for Voice of Naples chorus

Voices of Naples will hold auditions for new singers to join the community chorus from 5-6:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 15, at Naples United Church of Christ. Appointments are required.

In addition to performing a selection of their choice, auditioners will be asked to do vocal exercises for voice placement. Positions are open for soprano, alto, tenor and bass voices. Sight reading ability is helpful but not required.

Under the direction of Douglas Renfroe, the 75-member group of men and women performs during season in Collier and Lee counties and is celebrating its 10th anniversary in the 2012-13 season. The first rehearsal will begin at 7 p.m. immediately following auditions on Oct. 15. The season's concert schedule is as follows:

■ 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 18: The 10th annual "Sing-Along Messiah," with professional soloists and chamber orchestra, performed at Naples United Church of Christ.

■ 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 10: "Home for the Holidays," at Emmanuel Lutheran Church.

■ Thursday, Dec. 13 (time TBA): "Home for the Holidays," by "The Voices" small ensemble at Fort Myers Beach United Methodist Church.

■ 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 17: "A Celebration of Song," at Naples United Church of Christ.

■ 3 p.m. Sunday, March 17: "Ten Years of Reflection," at East Naples United Methodist Church.

■ Thursday, April 18 (time TBA): At the Promenade at Bonita Bay.

To schedule an audition, e-mail Dr. Renfroe at srodolor@aol.com

For more information about the chorus, visit www.voicesofnaples.org. ■

HOROSCOPES

■ ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Someone has some suggestions to offer regarding your new project. You might find them helpful. Remember to avoid speculation and to stick with just the facts, Lamb.

■ TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An old friend suddenly reappears. Whether this proves to be a boon or a bane in the Bovine's life depends on the reason for this surprising reappearance. Be cautious.

■ GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Vital information finally emerges, allowing you to make that important personal decision. You can now move your focus to an upcoming professional development.

■ VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A close friend could offer advice on how to handle a difficult family matter. But in the end, the decision has to be made based on what is best for you and those you love.

■ LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Family problems are best worked out with all those concerned contributing suggestions that will ease tensions. Stay with it until a workable solution is found.

■ SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Expect to hear more about an offer that has piqued your interest. You earn respect for insisting on solid facts, not just a fancy talk about potential opportunities.

■ SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) What seemed to be a reasonable workplace request might need to be defended. Don't fret. You have both the facts and a surprise ally on your side.

■ CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A bit of capriciousness might be just what you need. Plan to kick up your heels in a round of fun and games with family and friends this weekend.

■ AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Although some of your plans might have to be put on hold, things do begin to take a turn for the better by midweek. Your financial crunch also eases.

■ PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your financial picture begins to brighten by week's end. There are also favorable changes in your personal life. Someone you care for has good news to report.

■ CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might not like seeing so many on-the-job changes. But some of them could open new opportunities for the Moon Child's talents to shine to your best advantage.

■ LEO (July 23 to August 22) An apparently solid-gold opportunity beckons the Lion. But check to see if all that dazzle isn't just a sprinkling of surface glitter. Check it out before making a commitment.

■ BORN THIS WEEK: You seek balance, but not at the expense of justice. You would make a fine judge. ■

'The Master'

danHUDAK

www.hudakonhollywood.com

Is it worth $10? Yes

Slow-developing and oddly restrained, yet sprinkled with moments of brilliant acting and intense drama, "The Master" is a good movie with interesting ideas. But it's not the Oscar contender many are expecting from writer/director Paul Thomas Anderson ("There Will Be Blood").

Lancaster Dodd (Philip Seymour Hoffman) is the leader of The Cause, a cult-like group that promises to free one's soul from the burdens of its past lives so it can attain perfection in the present. Given that it's 1950 and WWII veteran Freddie Quell (Joaquin Phoenix) is an alcoholic lost soul in need of salvation, he happily joins The Cause.

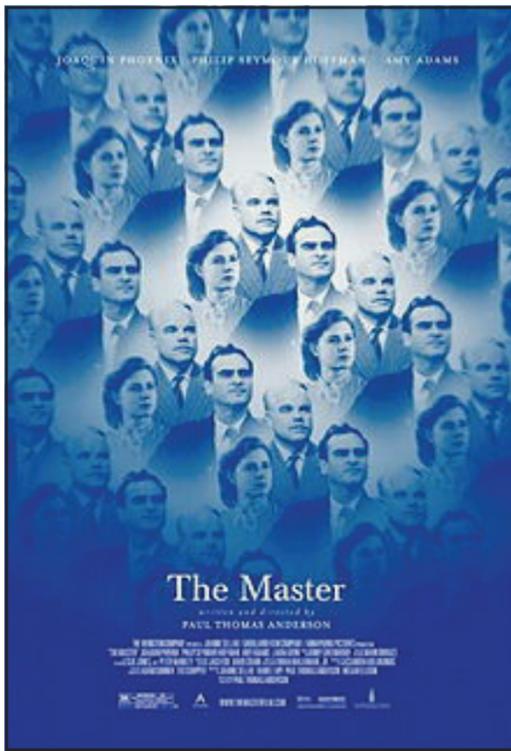

In order to take part in something Dodd asserts can cure leukemia, there are rules: No negativity allowed. Act superior to animals. Do not be ruled by emotion. Most importantly, one must fully invest in "processing," in which Dodd puts someone in a hypnotic trance and prompts the person to contact his/her former selves, which in turn should shed light on present dilemmas.

Question Dodd's teaching and you are met with a temperamental "how dare you?" reaction, a typical holier-than-thou approach taken by leaders who actually believe the trash that comes out of their mouths. But Anderson isn't interested in judging Dodd's mendacity or Quell's loyal servitude, which later turns to abrasive doubt. Instead, Anderson observes them as men in a struggle, eager to either be followed or to find solace and meaning in something, anything. By the end, each man has closure, but it's not the type of tidy conclusion audiences are used to.

There are moments in "The Master" that rival Anderson's best work ("There Will Be Blood," "Boogie Nights"). Oddly, though, many other moments leave you desiring far more, and with the sense that Anderson is holding back his considerable filmmaking skill when it's needed to enhance the story. For example, he ordinarily uses lighting and elaborate camera movements to immerse us in the world of his characters, but here he lacks technique. Instead, he seems content to observe his characters and force us to focus on the central message, which is that we are all people and what we believe, at least to an extent, defines us.

One thing we are used to from Anderson and do receive here is top-notch performances, particularly from Hoffman, from Amy Adams as Dodd's wife, and from Phoenix. Hoffman is charismatic and likeable without going over the top as the master (note how he gets very defensive when Dodd's beliefs are questioned — a man who knows he's a fraud will naturally cross his arms and lose his temper without notice, and Hoffman captures this subtle change perfectly).

Lest she be just the innocent bystander, Adams delivers strong material as Dodd's wife, highlighted by one scene in a bathroom in which she takes control of an emotional situation. As for Phoenix, his slumping posture, uneven facial expressions and quiet desperation have you rooting for Quell to find something that will make him happy, even if happiness isn't possible for him. If anything about the film is Oscar worthy, it's Phoenix's performance.

Anderson denied rumors that "The Master" is based on the origins of Scientology in the 1950s, but the parallels are obvious. Doesn't matter, though, because nothing is condemned and nothing is championed by film's end. You'll leave marveling at the performances and shoulder-shrugging the rest, making this an endorsement out of respect rather than heartfelt enthusiasm. ■

Classes to get your act together

SPECIAL TO FLORIDA WEEKLY

The Naples Players offer a wide variety of technique and behind-the-scenes classes through its adult education program at the Sugden Community Theater. From breathing and projecting your voice to painting sets, designing lighting and perfecting your jazz steps, the curriculum covers just about every aspect of community theater.

Among the classes coming up:

- Beginning acting classes with Diane Davis take place from 9:30 a.m. to noon on Tuesdays, Oct. 2-Nov. 13. Beginning students work on a selected scene with a partner or select a monologue and learn to build their comfort level and confidence.

- Ms. Davis also teaches continuing acting for students who are ready to move beyond the basics. Classes will meet from 9:30 a.m. to noon on Mondays, Oct. 1-Nov. 12.

- Ron Doiron will lead a voice class in breathing, projection and diction from 5-6:30 p.m. Thursdays, Oct. 4-Nov. 29 (no class on Thanksgiving). All skill levels are welcome.

- Advanced beginner and intermediate/advanced jazz classes with Dawn Lebrecht Fornara begin Friday, Oct. 5, and will be held at 4:30 p.m. for advanced beginners and 5:30 p.m. for intermediate/advanced dancers. Classes will meet weekly on Fridays through October. In the advanced beginners class, dancers review basic elements and work on perfecting their skills to take them to the next level. The intermediate/advanced class is decidedly more complex and for people who have studied jazz or have a good amount of dance experience.

- Artistic Director Dallas Dunnagan will offer an audition workshop from 6:30-8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 9. Audition sides will be assigned.

- From 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, Oct. 13, Theresa Bill will discuss the role of the producer in community theater. Those interested in trying their hand at producing, and experienced producers who would like a refresher, are welcome.

These are just a few of the classes on the schedule for the near future. More are set to begin in November.

Students can register for classes at any time, but early reservations are suggested. A complete list, description of classes, instructor bios and class fees can be found at www.naplesplayers.org.

Registration can be completed online or in person at the Sugden Community Theater. For more information, visit the website or call 434-7340, ext. 10. ■

Debut murder mystery is a hurricane of wise-cracking pleasure

■ “Fly on the Wall” by Mike Hirsh.
Antenna Books. 298 pages. $14.99.
Kindle eBook, $5.99.

In the aftermath of Hurricane Charley, human nature rears its ugly head. The vulnerable citizens of Punta Gorda work their way through the chaos and destruction of the storm, only to be preyed upon by their fellow man. There is a murder to solve, insurance fraud to uncover and a sense of community to restore.

HIRSH

As they look back on it, wise-cracking Paul “Fly” Moscone, retired North Jersey computer salesman and now volunteer deputy in the county sheriff’s office, and his friend Bill “Jinx” Shiffman, a former journalist from L.A., banter and bicker through a beautiful day on Fly’s yacht with new friends who form a captive audience.

The telling of the tale is colored by wit and humor as Mike Hirsh, through his keen sense of place, suspenseful dual narration and riotous characterizations, gets it done.

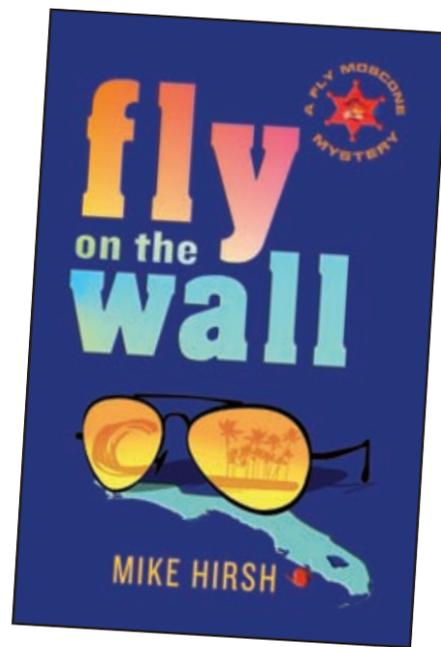

Though Fly and Jinx are good friends and almost inseparable, their relationship depends on trading insults nonstop. Much of the verbal humor in this novel depends on this “ball-busting” competition. As they take turns driving Fly’s boat and telling their story of the hurricane, they delight in challenging one another’s manhood. Readers will discover the deep respect that lies under the spirited digs and jibes.

Fly is the central figure. He is the one who comes across two potential crimes in the aftermath of Charley. Responding to a complaint that blood is leaking through a condo-dweller’s ceiling, he climbs up to the penthouse above and finds that the owner had bled out after being wounded by a shard of glass. Was this fatal injury from the storm? Fly sees signs of foul play and thinks murder is a possibility.

A bit later on, he discovers something else that’s fishy in that luxury condo: A very valuable Picasso drawing that should be there is missing. He knows where it is and rather easily discovers the culprit, but the outcome of his investigation is still quite surprising and reveals unexpected aspects of Fly’s character.

Meanwhile, insurance fraud is rampant. Representing the sheriff’s office, Fly accompanies a shrewd investigator on a few cases. He learns a lot from this man, Vin, and the reader learns a lot about the way the insurance industry handles suspect disaster claims. Fly is enraged at how people who are otherwise law-abiding citizens can have no qualms about attempting to rip off an insurance company. It’s amazing how they will lie and lie, even as all the evidence exposes their deceit.

And of course, many people are disappointed with the slow processing of claims and the unexpectedly low payoffs. Claim investigators might as well have targets painted on their backs. In fact, another of Fly’s cases involves the murder of an insurance claims adjuster. Fly and Vin go out together in the hopes of catching the killer just before he commits a repeat murder.

“Fly on the Wall” is as much a portrait of a community in crisis as it is a comic study in personalities. Beginning with descriptions of people reacting to the threat of the storm, continuing with vivid imagery of its approach and destructive action, and moving on to the victims’ attempts to put their lives back together again, Mr. Hirsh allows us to share the whole range of emotions that natural disasters can trigger.

And yet he somehow keeps it light.

Mr. Hirsh’s genius involves reminding us that humor is a survival skill. When Fly and Jinx urgently insist that they must live by “Man Rules” (always siding with other husbands and never with their wives), we understand that this version of the battle of the sexes involves, paradoxically, men who care very much for their wives’ happiness and peace of mind.

Men and women will smile with familiarity at the way the author paints the relationship between Fly, who needs at this time in his life to do some good in the world, and Sophia, who can’t bear the thought of him putting himself at risk. The author is unerring in deciding what each will say, and what each won’t say.

Be in the know. Pick up (or download) your copy and tell your friends how much you like it. Then there might be a second “Fly Moscone Mystery.” ■

WRITING CHALLENGE

Fallen tree image inspires poems of loss

Round three of Florida Weekly's Writing Challenge is under way. This week, you'll find a handful of poems inspired by the photo of the fallen tree shown here. We want to read your riff on the photograph as well. Using the picture as a starting point for your creative process, we hope you'll come up with a fictional work of no more than 1,000 words.

We'll accept your original stories or poems in Word format or pasted into the body of an e-mail until Saturday, Sept. 22. E-mail them to writing@floridaweekly.com. No snail mail, please. Be sure to include your name, address and contact information, along with a headshot if you have one.

We'll print our favorites from week to week as space allows. The earlier we receive your submission, the better your shot at seeing it in print. We'll continue with new photo prompts and showcase a few ultimate winners in November. ■

In a Playground I Once Knew

BY TIFFANY FUSSELL, FORT MYERS

There was a boy with yellow hair who caught my eye
And as I stared
The ball with the tether went Round and round and the Trees grew quiet and Without a sound, the wind blew in
And took my breath away

Fallen Tree

BY SANDY ANDERSON,
FORT MYERS BEACH

She was sitting there
wet curls in her hair
Playing in the sun
when she looked up her eyes met mine
and we smiled
She was wild and bewildering beyond her age of 3
she told me little tales that reminded me of me

SAMUEL ACOSTA / SHUTTERSTOCK.COM

She painted like an angel in a plume of many colors and everything she painted
I could see
Now I'm painting a tree in my mind
the one we used to climb
The one that fell and left me behind
There once upon that table in the sun

we used to sit
she sometimes on my knee and paint her imagination
beneath that tree
Then she sliding down nearby spinning on a child's ferris wheel or swinging towards that tree into the sky
Now a fallen tree
she is no more and I am sitting here

I can't go home
There to the paintings on the wall made by one now gone, so small
I lie that fallen tree and cry
Remembering when
She was sitting there
wet curls in her hair
Paying in the sun
with a smile

A Playground I Fought For

BY FINNIAN CARR, AGE 9, FORT MYERS

I fought for a playground
Not for a merry-go-round
I fought for the trees
The Trees that would fall
And they do still fall
It made me cry
When I saw them die
But there's still one tree
That seems happy to me
He gave me apples
They came from his heart
But the men in the truck tried to tear him apart

'Audrey Hepburn: A Charmed Life'

By Robyn Karney
(Arcade Publishing, $24.95)

REVIEWED BY LARRY COX

Audrey Hepburn was born Eda van Heemstra in Brussels, Belgium, in 1929. Despite a rather complicated childhood in Nazi-occupied Holland, she trained as a ballet dancer in Amsterdam and later at the Marie Rambert school in London, where she made both her film and stage debuts in 1948. But it wasn't until three years later in the Broadway production of "Gigi" that she truly hit her stride.

After winning acclaim on Broadway, she won an Oscar for her film performance in "Roman Holiday." She quickly became an international celebrity, and throughout the 1950s and '60s was box-office gold. Three of her most popular film roles were in "Sabrina," "The Nun's Story" and "Breakfast at Tiffany's" — all Oscar nominations.

Although Hepburn died of cancer at her home in Switzerland in 1993, during her lifetime she left an indelible mark on our modern culture.

In a new biography, Robyn Karney, editor of "Who's Who in Hollywood," captures all of the delicate, intangible facets of this remarkable woman. The 177 photographs chosen by Ms. Karney are stunning. Photographer Richard Avedon summed up the elegance of Hepburn when he said, "I am, and forever will be, devastated by the gift of Audrey Hepburn before my camera. I cannot lift her to greater heights. She is already there. I can only record; I cannot interpret her. There is no going further than who she is. She has achieved the ultimate portrait." Indeed.

Hepburn was more than an actress and international beauty. She worked tirelessly as a good-will ambassador for UNICEF and was directly involved in numerous charities, especially those that aided children. It was this devotion to helping the poorest children of the Third World that set her apart from many others in the entertainment industry.

"Audrey Hepburn: A Charmed Life" shows why her style, poise, talent and inner warmth continue to fascinate, even two decades after her death. ■

'Hello Goodbye Hello: A Circle of 101 Remarkable Meetings'

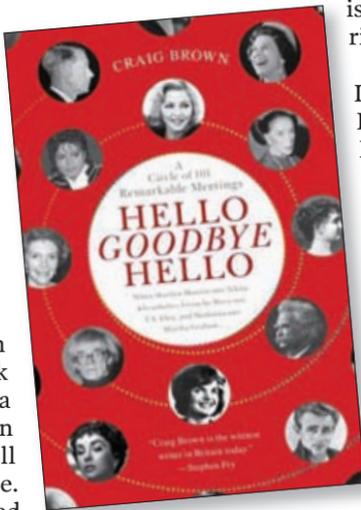

By Craig Brown
(Simon & Schuster, $26.95)

REVIEWED BY LARRY COX

Craig Brown has written one of the most entertaining and intriguing books to pop up in recent months. The witty British writer and a frequent contributor to such publications as the Daily Telegraph, Vanity Fair and The Times, has documented 101 meetings in exactly 1,001 words each. One meeting seamlessly blends into the next.

For example, Marilyn Monroe meets with Frank Lloyd Wright at the Plaza Hotel during the autumn of 1957 hoping he will design her dream house. That encounter is followed two years later when the screen star dazzles Nikita Khrushchev in her tightest, sexiest dress at the Cafe de Paris in Hollywood. Khrushchev lambasts George Brown in London in 1956. You get the idea.

These strange-but-true meetings involve many heavy hitters of the past century from almost every aspect of modern culture. The book begins with Adolf Hitler. During the summer of 1931, Hitler is struck by an automobile driven by John Scott-Ellis in Munich. The book comes full circle 329 pages later when the Duchess of Windsor sips tea with Hitler in 1937 at Berchtesgaden. In between are some astonishing moments of celebrity frisson.

Consider what Peggy Lee did to President Richard Nixon in the East Room of the White House, the reaction of George Bernard Shaw seeing Harpo Marx in the nude, President Theodore Roosevelt trying to get a word in edgeways with H.G. Wells, and try — if you will — to imagine HRH Princess Margaret watching a porn film with Kenneth Tynan.

Mr. Brown's book was published to rave reviews in the United Kingdom last year. Sebastian Shakespeare observed in Literary Review that reading it was much like attending a vast, glorious cocktail party and added "If history is gossip well told, then this book is a triumph of the genre."

I couldn't agree more. My copy is still on my bedside table. ■

KOVELS: ANTIQUES

Medical chairs coveted for historical, rather than aesthetic, value

terryKOVEL
 news@floridaweekly.com

Sometimes an unusual piece of furniture is offered for sale, and many collectors fight over it. A “Dr. Byrne’s Medical Examination Chair” was offered by Skinner Auctioneers of Boston. The odd chair was clearly labeled with its name and the maker, S. Betz & Co. of Chicago. The red-painted steel chair also was marked on the footrests with the maker’s name and the words “Model 1901 Prof. A.H. Ferguson.” The chair has levers to adjust the back, footrest and height, and it can be flattened to use as a table with stirrups. It is about 56 inches high. Nineteenth-century medical chairs are not often sold. This one brought $475. Would you buy a 1930 permanent-wave machine with a chair hood and dangling cords? Would you put a 1940s washing machine in your living room near a wall of polished steel school lockers? Few pieces of furniture representing technology (rather than decorative arts) have survived, but all of the ones we mentioned have sold at recent auctions.

Q: My child-size green lusterware tea set is decorated with white and pink flower blossoms. The set includes four cups and 3/4-inch-diameter saucers, a 3/2-inch teapot, and a sugar and creamer.

Some of the pieces are marked “Made in Japan.” There’s not a chip anywhere. Age and value?

A: Many lusterware children’s tea sets were made in Japan during the 1930s. Your set was probably made then, or perhaps as early as the late 1920s. Your set is a small one, without plates. It would sell for about $35 to $50.

COURTESY PHOTO

This medical-examining chair was made in the 1880s. It sold for $475 at a Skinner auction in Boston in 2011. Medical antiques are hard to find.

Q: I have an original Woodstock poster in mint condition. What is it worth?

A: The famous Woodstock Music and Art Fair was held near White Lake, N.Y., in 1969. The festival is considered one of the most important moments in American music history. The best-known Woodstock poster was designed by Arnold Skolnick and came in two sizes, 18 by 24 inches and 32 by 24 inches. It was printed on either heavy cardstock or very thin paper, and features a white dove perched on the neck of a guitar on a red background. The true "original" poster was designed by David Edward Byrd and shows a nude woman surrounded by cupids and flowers. When the location of the festival was changed, Byrd was on vacation and unreachable, so Skolnick was commissioned to create the new poster. Woodstock memorabilia are popular collectibles. An original Byrd poster in excellent condition recently auctioned for $468. The Skolnick version in near-mint condition sold for $1,156. But beware. Many reproductions exist.

Q: We bought an elaborately decorated silk robe while on a trip to Japan years ago. What is the best way to display this? Is it better to hang it up or to frame it?

A: If the robe is in good condition and not too heavy, it can be hung on a hanger. The Textile Museum recommends wrapping a wooden hanger in polyester quilt batting to support the shoulders. Cover the padding with washed muslin. If you are hanging it in a closet, you should cover it with washed muslin to protect it from dust. Archival storage items can be purchased at closet shops. Don't display the robe where it will be exposed to sunlight or fluorescent light. Even incandescent lighting can cause fading over time. Extreme heat or cold also can damage textiles. If the robe is framed, special UV-filtering glass and acid-free materials should be used.

Q: I own a canceled check from Mae West's personal account at California Bank in Hollywood. The check, in the amount of $25, is signed by West and dated Dec. 24, 1945. How much would it sell for?

A: Mae West, originally named Mary Jane West, was an American actress, screenwriter and playwright. She was born in 1893 in Brooklyn, N.Y. West started her career as a playwright and actress on Broadway. Her plays proved controversial and received mixed critical reception, but they were well-attended. In 1932 she was offered a contract with Paramount Pictures and made her debut in the film "Night After Night" with George Raft. West went on to star in many films, including "I'm No Angel" with Cary Grant. She stayed in show business for decades and has been named by the American Film Institute as the 15th-greatest female star in American cinema history. One of her signed checks drawn on the same bank recently auctioned for $96.

Tip: Store your card albums flat, not upright. This prevents your baseball cards or old valentines from getting bent or damaged. Check the album periodically to make sure the pages are not sticking together. If you notice any problems, replace the pages. ■

CONTRACT BRIDGE

BY STEVE BECKER

Big swing on a small deal

Consider this deal from a team-of-four match. Only a partscore was involved, but even so, the hand is highly instructive.

At the first table, West led the diamond king, East signaling with the nine to indicate a doubleton. West continued with the ace and another diamond, which East ruffed. East could now have saved a trick by cashing the ace of hearts, but instead he returned a trump.

Declarer then collected the rest of the tricks. He cashed the A-K of trumps and K-J of clubs, then crossed to dummy with a trump and discarded both his hearts on the A-Q of clubs to finish with 10 tricks and a score of 170 points.

At the second table, the defense functioned far more efficiently. Here East played the deuce of diamonds on the king to discourage West from continuing the suit, so West shifted to the jack of hearts at trick two.

East cashed the A-Q of hearts and reverted to diamonds by returning the nine. West won with the jack, cashed the ace and continued with the seven. When dummy ruffed with the nine, East overruffed with the queen.

Then — as if declarer had not already suffered enough — East heartlessly returned a heart, promoting West's jack of spades into another trump trick.

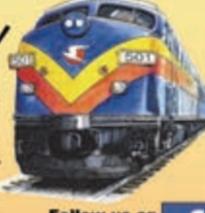

South dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠	10 9 7 3	♥	K 6
♦	10 5 3	♣	A Q 4 3
WEST		EAST
♠	J 6	♠	Q 2

♦	A K J 7	♦	9 2
♣	10 8 7 5 2	♣	9 6
SOUTH
♠	A K 8 5 4	♥	9 3
♦	Q 8 6 4	♣	K J

The bidding:
 South West North East
 1♠ Pass 2♠ All Pass
 Opening lead — king of diamonds.

So the declarer at this table went down two — 200 points — which was four tricks and 370 points worse than his counterpart had done at the first table. It was not that South had done anything wrong — he didn't. It was simply that his opponents did everything right. ■

SAVE THE DATE

It's never too early to mark your calendar for galas and fundraisers not to miss in the coming social season. Nor is it too soon to list your non-profit organization's event in Florida Weekly. Send Save the Date details to editor Cindy Pierce at cpierce@floridaweekly.com.

■ The 29th annual Emerald Ball for Catholic Charities of Collier County takes place Saturday, March 16, at The Ritz-Carlton, Naples. The signature event is the charity's largest fundraiser to support the mission of Catholic Charities benefiting individuals and families in need of social and human services in Collier County. This year's chairs are Dr. Francisco and Ruth Smith.

Guests will enjoy dinner and dancing as well as live and silent auctions. Tickets are $300 per person. Sponsorship opportunities are available. For more information, call 455-2655.

■ The "Great Gatsby Gala," a night of 1920s flappers, bootleggers, jazz and the Charleston to benefit Opera Naples, is set for Tuesday, March 19, at a private club in Port Royal. Tickets are $300 and $500 per person. For more information, call Opera Naples at 963-9050.

■ Dates with some of the best men in town go up on the block for "Some Enchanted Evening," a bachelor auction to benefit Cancer of Alliance of Naples, at 6 p.m. Friday, Oct. 5, at the Hilton Naples. Jason Resmiti from TV's "The Bachelorette" is the evening's special guest.

Tickets are $125 per person or $800 for a table of eight. For reservations or more information, call 643-4673 or visit www.cancerallianceofnaples.org.

■ "Circle of Love," a dinner dance to benefit The Sunshine Kids organization for pediatric cancer patients, is set for 6 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 10, at Quail Creek Country Club.

Organizers in The Ritz-Carlton and Parkshore officers of Prudential Florida Realty promise an evening of surprises, along with entertainment by The Bachelors and the Ex-Bachelors.

Tickets are $60 per person. For reservations or more information, call Sharon Cohan at 370-2323 or Lee Blackston at 537-1606.

■ The Council of Hispanic Business Professionals holds its fourth annual gala the evening of Saturday, Oct. 6, at the Naples Beach Hotel & Golf Club. This year's beneficiary is the Boys & Girls Club of Collier County. Guests of honor will include five young CHBP scholarship recipients who are taking part in the Leadership Collier Foundation's youth program.

For tickets or more information, e-mail events@CHBPnaples.org or visit www.CHBPnaples.org.

■ The Hunger and Homeless Coalition of Collier County hosts its annual Welcome Home dinner beginning at 6 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 18, at the Hilton Naples. The evening serves as the coalition's major fundraiser of the year. Proceeds help advance the mission to facilitate solutions to prevent and end hunger and homelessness by coordinating services throughout the county. For more information, call 263-9363 or visit www.collierhomelesscoalition.org.

■ The NCH Healthcare Foundation hosts the 54th annual NCH Hospital Ball on Saturday evening, Oct. 27, at The Ritz-Carlton, Naples. This year's theme is "Saving Our Tiniest Treasures." Proceeds will help fund expansion of the NCH Neonatal Intensive Care Unit and provide care for more of the community's youngest patients.

For reservations or sponsorship information, contact Cindy Nelson at 436-4511 or visit nchmd.org/hospitalball.

■ The Collier County NAACP's 30th annual Freedom Fund Banquet is set for 5:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 27, at the Hilton Naples. This year's theme is "A Night at the Prom." Tickets are $100 per person.

For reservations or for information about sponsorships or advertising in the banquet program, call 455-2886, e-mail naacp@naacpcolliercounty.com or visit www.naacpcolliercounty.com.

■ The fourth annual Naples International Film Festival is set for Thursday-Sunday, Nov. 1-4. The red carpet opening night gala and screening take place at the Philharmonic Center for the Arts, while features, documentaries and film shorts of all genres will be screened at Silverspot Cinema at Mercato Nov. 2-4.

Merrill Lynch is the opening night film and party sponsor. The evening begins with the red carpet arrival at 5:30 p.m., followed by the opening film screening at 7 p.m. and a late-night party afterward. VIP admission is $159 per person. General admission tickets are $29.

Opening night tickets are available at the Phil box office, 597-1900 or www.thephil.org.

For more information about the festival, call 775-3456 or visit www.naplesfilmfest.com.

■ Gulfshore Playhouse hosts a night of fun and games to celebrate the new season on Sunday, Nov. 4, at The Norris Center. Guests will be able to try their hand at beating pool shark Leo Hertzog and ping-pong champion Don Gunther in the game room and can kick up their heels with a professional dancer from the Naples Performing Arts Center and Founding Artistic Director Kristen Coury in the dance room. An auction and raffle drawing will also be part of the fun, and some of the new season's actors will perform scenes from the upcoming "Reza in Rep" productions of "Art" and "God of Carnage."

For more information, call 261-7529 or visit www.gulfshoreplayhouse.org.

■ Literacy Volunteers of Collier County stages its annual "Dancing with the Stars for Literacy" at 6:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 9, at the Naples Beach Hotel and Golf Club. Notable Neapolitans are paired with professional dancers from the Naples Academy of Performing Arts to dance two-minute routines. As well as being judged on their dancing ability, performers also compete for a prize awarded to the dancer who raises the most money for LVCC.

Tickets are $175 per person. For tickets or for information about becoming an LVCC volunteer tutor, call 262-4448 or visit www.collierliteracy.org.

■ The E.T. Brisson Detachment, Marine Corps League, Naples, celebrates the 237th Marine Corps Birthday Ball on Friday evening, Nov. 9, at the Country Club of Naples. Guest of honor will be Maj. Gen. Mike Coyne, USMC (Ret.).

Tickets for $75 per person must be purchased in advance. For reservations or more information, call 352-7611. For more information about the local league, visit www.marinecorosleague-naples.com.

■ Baby Basics of Collier County hosts its annual fall fashion show and brunch at 9 a.m. Monday, Nov. 12, at Dillard's in Coastland Center. Guests will enjoy a discount on all purchases throughout the store that day, and Dillard's will donate a portion of sales back to Baby Basics.

Tickets are $70 per person, which will allow Baby Basics to provide diapers to two babies for a month. For reservations or more information, e-mail Camille@thesupplies.com or jogger2308@aol.com.

■ Planned Parenthood of Collier County has engaged two distinguished women's right advocates for its major fundraisers this season.

The "Voices of Choice" luncheon on Wednesday, Nov. 14, at the Naples Sailing & Yacht Club will feature lawyer and professor Sarah Weddington, who successfully argued the 1973 landmark Roe v. Wade case, in which the court held that there is a constitutional right of privacy for individuals to decide whether to continue or terminate an unwanted pregnancy.

Luncheon tickets are $75 a person. Gloria Steinem will be the guest speaker at "The Choice Affair" on Saturday evening, Feb. 2, at The Naples Beach Hotel & Golf Club. A writer, activist and champion of the feminist and social justice movement, Ms. Steinem co-founded Ms. and New York magazines as well as the National Women's Political Caucus.

Tickets to "The Choice Affair" are $350 at the Friends Membership level; sponsorships range from $1,500 to $10,000.

For reservations or more information about either of the above events, call 262-8923, ext. 309.

■ Naples Botanical Garden and Marissa Collections welcome Michael Kors as the featured designer for the ninth annual "Hats in the Garden" luncheon Thursday, Nov. 15, at the Garden. The event is sold out. To place your name on a waiting list, call 643-7275.

■ Humane Society Naples' 14th annual Tea & Fashion Show moves to The Ritz-Carlton, Naples, on Thursday, Dec. 6. "South of SOHO" is the afternoon's theme. People fashions will be from Nordstrom, while pups will stroll the runway in outfits from Pucci & Catana.

Tickets are $175 per person. For reservations or more information, visit www.humanesocietynaples.com.

■ The 10th annual "Neighborhood Health Clinic Block Party" is set for the evening of Saturday, Feb. 16, at the Naples Beach Hotel & Golf Club. The goal is for the party, which includes cocktails, dinner and dancing to the duo of Cahlua and Cream, to raise 25 percent of the center's annual operating budget. The clinic's volunteer staff delivers medical care to low-income, working but uninsured Collier County adults.

Chair of the 2013 Block Party is Susan Jones, who has overseen the event six times in the past and has been a nurse volunteer at the clinic since 1999.

Tickets are $250 per person. Invitations will be mailed in January, and sponsorships are being solicited now. For more information, call Nikki Strong at 260-2080 or e-mail nstrong@neighborhoodhealthclinic.org.

■ The David Lawrence Center and Foundation host their 2013 signature fundraiser, "An Evening in Venice, Masquerade Ball," on Friday, Jan. 18, at The Ritz-Carlton, Naples.

Event chair Gwyn Sanford and her committee will transport guests to an elegant, 16th century-inspired masquerade ball set against the backdrop of Venice, Italy. The evening of revelry and fantasy will include dinner, entertainment by PowerHouse and the chance to bid on silent and live auction lots fit for the noblemen and women of the ducal court.

Tickets to "An Evening in Venice, Masquerade Ball" are $500 per person, $1,200 per VIP patron and $10,000 per premier sponsor table of 10; a variety of additional sponsorship opportunities also are available.

All proceeds will benefit the mission, operations and expansion of the David Lawrence Center, which provides prevention, intervention and treatment services for the one in four local children and adults who experience behavioral, emotional, psychological and substance abuse challenges.

For more information or to reserve a ticket, call Monica Biondo at 304-3505.

■ The ladies-only "Little Black Dress Garden Party" to benefit the Garden of Hope & Courage is set for Tuesday, Feb. 26. The evening begins with cocktails, hors d'oeuvres and a silent auction in the garden on the downtown campus of NCH and continues with "dinner in motion" at numerous Naples restaurants.

For reservations or more information, contact Amy Lane at 437-6697 or amy@gardenofhopeandcourage.org. ■

PAST REPASTS

Here are some capsule summaries of previous restaurant reviews:

► Coconut Jack's Waterfront Grille, 5370 Bonita Beach Road, Bonita Springs; 676-7777

A lovely water view paired with good food is a rarity around here, but one that Coconut Jack's manages to deliver. The vastly remodeled Vincenzo's on the Bay has a Caribbean atmosphere and menu to match. Chef Jon Venuto gives calamari a fresh taste by pairing it with a light and refreshing lemon-garlic-banana pepper sauce. Hot voodoo wings were perfectly cooked and crisp with a tongue-tingling sauce. Either dish would be enough to share. Both the (grilled) scallop basket with fries, cole slaw and citrus remoulade, and the mambo mahi tacos with cilantro salsa and Key lime aioli were terrific. The meal ended with a fittingly tropical dessert of coconut sorbet with strawberry-mango salsa, served in a coconut shell. Service was friendly and attentive throughout the meal. Full bar.

► Fleming's Prime Steakhouse & Wine Bar, 8985 Tamiami Trail N., Naples; 598-2424

There's plenty of beef to be had at Fleming's, but this is a steakhouse that devotes the same attention to seafood, wine and service as it does to meat. From the 100-plus by-the-glass wine selections (which included flights of 2-ounce pours of three types) to the wicked Cajun barbecue shrimp, roasted mushroom ravioli to the aged New York strip, barbecued Scottish salmon and chocolate lava cake, every course was well-timed, each item was the proper temperature, well seasoned and served with a smile. Side dishes were a la carte, as is the custom at most steakhouses, but these were interesting — mashed potatoes with blue cheese, mac and cheese with chipotle cheddar and leeks — and well executed. When the craving for a really good steak strikes, Fleming's can deliver it and a whole lot more. Full bar.

► Komoon Thai Sushi and Ceviche, 1575 Pine Ridge Road, Naples; 596-9991

If I lived closer to Komoon, I might never cook again. The unlikely menu offers a wealth of options, all done well. The sushi is artfully created from a list of possibilities from straight-up sashimi and sushi to a flashy green dragon roll, starring shrimp and avocado. A mixed seafood ceviche filled with white fish, shrimp, calamari, clams and red onion had a palate-pleasing balance of hot spice and cool seafood. From the cooked Japanese menu, the beef yaki soba was dead on and the Kiss Me with tofu revealed its Thai roots with its gingery garlic sauce. Servers were efficient and hospitable, the room is cozy and stylish. Beer and wine served.

► Margarita's Mexican Restaurant, 8971 U.S. 41, Naples; 431-6206

Margarita's is an offshoot of a Mexican restaurant by the same name that's been on Marco Island since 2005. Succulent hand-pulled meats and fresh seafood are tucked into tender tortillas, served with brightly flavored house-made salsas and sauces. Bracing margaritas in fruit flavors such as watermelon and pomegranate are served on the rocks or frozen, headlining a tequila-heavy cocktail list that goes on for days. The rustic charro beans, whole pintos laced with oregano and chunks of pork, are a revelation — and they're just a side dish. The taco trio — miniature corn tortillas overflowing with shredded beef, chicken and pork — is a good way to start, as is the ridiculously sumptuous queso fundido, a fondue of warm, silky white cheese garnished with diced scallions, jalapenos and chorizo that just might send your eyes rolling back in your head. Available with three stuffings, the tamales are exemplary. A seafood-packed Cancun burrito was big enough for two, and its ingredients all perfectly cooked. Full bar.

► Sam-Bucco Bistro, 14700 Tamiami Trail N., Naples; 592-6050

Most restaurants keep customers coming back because the food is exceptional or the service is noteworthy or the ambience is beautiful. I've rarely encountered one in which all three approach perfection the way they do at Sam-Bucco Bistro, a mecca of Mediterranean splendor. The room glows a warm gold, creating an elegant ambience in which knowledgeable servers present course after course of superb food. Every dish, whether a timeless classic or something the eponymous chef has dreamed up, is composed of fresh ingredients presented artfully. I could make a meal on the Turkish grilled calamari served with arugula, balsamic vinaigrette and fresh lemon juice. A sampler platter — creamy babaganouj, avocado salad, marinated mushrooms, cheeses and focaccia — was also first rate. A nightly special featured a fettuccine pancake with Parmesan and cream topped with a coldwater lobster tail, shrimp, peas and pink sauce. Also noteworthy was an entrée of shrimp and scallops chorizo with braised pears, mandarin oranges and tart pomegranate sauce. The wine list is extensive and impressive, too. Full bar.

Blue Pointe falling behind its seafood rivals

drewSTERWALD
pgnews@floridaweekly.com

Competition for seafood lovers' dollars is stiff in Southwest Florida. Besides locally grown independents Lazy Flamingoes and Pinchers Crab Shacks, we have a number of chains of high quality that transcend generic corporate identity — Roy's, Bonefish Grill and Tru-luck's, for instance.

Blue Pointe Oyster Bar and Seafood Grill, a Mainstreet Ventures brand, dipped its hook in the same competitive waters when it opened in November 2003 at the Bell Tower Shops in south Fort Myers. Specializing in seafood from New England, the Pacific Coast, the Great Lakes and the Gulf of Mexico, the restaurant casts a wide net yet somehow fails to come up with a memorable catch.

It's hard to diagnose whether our lackluster meal was the side effect of the September slump in Southwest Florida or a chronic malaise that has set in after nearly 10 years in business. But Blue Pointe will need to shake off the ennui if it is to rise above merely middling and compete in these waters.

We had no trouble getting a table on a Thursday night. For some reason, the Blue Pointe in memory always seems more spacious than it is in reality. Perhaps it's because the patio adds so much seating to the long, narrow inside dining room. Indoors, the booths and high-top tables seem uncomfortably close. Our booth itself felt quite cramped, even after we nudged the table back and forth a bit. The dark interior could benefit from a little refurbishing. The modern art is good, but the clubby trappings of trophy fish and such seem a bit dated.

Bread in the form of irregularly shaped herb rolls arrived swiftly, along with the water we requested. After bringing drinks — a perfectly blended Grey Goose martini ($9.99) and a well-chilled Italian pinot grigio ($8.95 for 8 ounces) — our waiter asked if we wanted to enjoy our beverages a bit before ordering. We did. But then we waited and waited for him to return for our appetizer order. Be careful what you ask for.

Being in an oyster bar, it seemed appropriate to begin with some raw shellfish. Surprisingly, there were only two oyster varieties on the menu, which changes weekly. The oyster sampler ($12.95) offered "3 each of any of the above," implying there are usually more choices. Regardless, the Malpeques from Prince Edward Island and the Cockenoes from Connecticut were fresh and briny. We particularly liked that Blue Pointe serves mignonette sauce along with cocktail sauce, as not many restaurants offer the vinegary shallot concoction anymore.

Less impressive were the fried stuffed artichokes — a mere three morsels for $10.95. The panko-breaded hearts were filled with a scant amount of blue cheese and lobster meat that just didn't have much impact on the palate. Going with one or the other filling instead of both might have given this item more punch. We did like the garlic-cream dip, but overall this dish was disappointing. Not much effort was made on the plating other than a scattering of minced scallion and parsley, and such lack of effort continued with the sad-looking entrees.

But first came salads. My companion's blue cheese-laced cole slaw was refreshingly crisp and pungent, with a hint of heat. A house salad, though, was overdressed and oily. On the positive side, portions were generous at a time when a lot of restaurants are cutting back on such amenities.

In contrast, the main course was spartan. The Block Island swordfish ($22.95) was perfectly grilled and moist within, but it looked as if someone forgot to finish the plate. A drizzle of sauce or a spoonful of a bright salsa would have elevated the flavor as well as the presentation. As it was, a scoop of bland mashed potatoes and a lemon wedge were all that shared the white plate.

humdrum garlic-mashed potatoes accompanied the stuffed lemon sole ($26.95). The fish itself was very good — beautifully bronzed and wrapped around a mound of delicious lump blue crab stuffing. The delicate sole really stole the show in what was the highlight of the meal, but the supporting players could have been stronger.

There were no complaints whatsoever about dessert, for which we decided to share a slice of coconut cheesecake (a very reasonable $4.95). The rich filling was enhanced by toasted coconut, a stream of mango coulis and a few berries — two strawberries and one blackberry, to be exact. (Other dessert options include crème brulee, Key lime pie and berry crisp.)

Clearly, there are some mixed messages in Blue Pointe's approach. I would be willing to forego ancillary items such as bread and salad if more consideration were given to sending out a dazzling entrée plate or appetizers that didn't seem chintzy. Then again, many diners skip starters and prefer to have a salad course.

One can only hope that Blue Pointe is merely holding back now to get through the economically challenging period before snowbirds return and season begins. If not, it could find itself out-classed by its seafood rivals. ■
