A new international airport in Clewiston could become Florida's next big air freight hub

HENDRY COUNTY, THE POOREST OF FLORIDA'S 67 counties by some standards, could find its fortunes transformed before the end of this decade — but only if county officials and private investors working in tandem can convince the Federal Aviation Administration to go along with the deal they're pushing.

Is it too good to be true?

Here, Florida Weekly describes the proposed deal, one that could turn a sleepy county-owned airport surrounded by sugar cane northwest of Clewiston into a privately owned international cargo hub, with a brand new 12,000-foot runway costing as much as $400 million, new water and sewer infrastructure, an

Naples Winter Wine Festival raises $13.5 million for Collier children

Total for 14 years tops $123.5 million

SPECIAL TO FLORIDA WEEKLY

Collier County's at-risk and underprivileged children always are the biggest winners at the Naples Winter Wine Festival, but this year's charity fundraiser outdid itself.

Not only did 550 attendees pony up $13.5

million bidding on 66 auction lots ranging from wine packages to getaways and a special-edition Lamborghini (Justin Bieber not included), the biggest prize won — $1.4 million — went directly back to the children themselves, for the Naples Children & Education Foundation's newest strategic initiative. Called "Beautiful Minds," the program will enhance mental-health diagnosis and treatment for Collier's neediest children.

And then someday you realize: Pete Seeger was a Communist, Philip Seymour Hoffman was a drug addict, Chris Christie is a fat manipulator with charm, and Barack Obama's view of these wars we're still in is not just open-minded, it's off-the-wall.

I'll get to the Super Bowl in a minute.

But why else would the president put war mongers — Gen. Ray Odierno, chief of staff of the Army — and war protestors in the guest gallery at the same time?

Carlos Arredondo, the guy in a cowboy hat photographed carrying a man with his legs blown off away from the Boston Marathon bombing, lost his oldest son Alexander, a Marine, in Iraq. He was there with the general and the president, all right, but none of them were on the same side.

Mr. Arredondo has been driving around the country with a flag-draped casket, grief-stricken in ways few of us can understand and protesting the stupidity of the Iraq War, and our continuing presence there and in Afghanistan.

I learned from reading a post by Mike Prysner, a former U.S. Army corporal who fought with the Fourth Infantry Division (they captured Saddam Hussein) under Gen. Odierno, that the general was "the happiest and highest ranking person I encountered in country, always jovial and excited."

While his men were shot or destroyed by IEDs as they drove poorly-armored Humvees in 2003 that later in the war would become more secure — Pentagon staffers had long maintained contracts with Humvee manufacturers even after learning the vehicles were highly vulnerable — the general lived in safe and even high style, including in Hussein's palace in Tikrit.

Mr. Prysner founded March Forward, and his remembrance can be read at www.MarchForward.org.

Pete Seeger, meanwhile, was one of the most compassionate and energetic American patriots ever to come down the road. A Communist? Sure, an American Communist, who is a much different thing than, say, a Stalinist.

He knew and carried on in the tradition of Woody Guthrie, another lean, spare, tough-as-nails rabble-rouser whose rabble — working people without big money or rich parents or high-caliber ambition and brains and educations — always seem to end up in places like Iraq and Afghanistan. Or Vietnam. Or Korea.

And Philip Seymour Hoffman?

Well, what he put in his body finally killed him. But before it killed him, he created some of the greatest art the silver screen has ever seen. Which does not rhyme with clean.

So what?

It's all part of the American parade, and it's all troubling, and we have enough of that, don't we?

Which is why I rushed so eagerly to the nearest TV to watch the Super Bowl — for free.

Some didn't. For example, the cost of a ticket to Super Bowl I was $12. In January, the average ticket price online was $4,000, according to The New York Times. The stadium was packed.

A corporate suite of several seats went for $962,000. And the average price of a 30-second spot for advertisers? About $4 million.

Oh, those ads. Those delicious little vignettes told with wit and pathos — with cute animals and sexually promising encounters, and cars, cars, cars. Cars whose makers want to hug you, for example (Honda, via Bruce Willis). Or Austrian and German cars.

In the Audi ad, a weird-looking mix between a Doberman and a Chihuahua chases a baby, and the car makers conclude with this lovely message, about purebred machines, and possibly people: "Compromise scares us, too."

Right. We learned that between 1941 and 1945.

Or take the Volkswagen ad: When a car hits 100,000 miles, big white angel wings sprout from the backs of German engineers in a German factory somewhere. The ad shows a bunch of men — I think there's one woman — all getting their wings. This is for the very efficient machine that Hitler sponsored beginning in the 1930s.

But that's cool. Bank of America and U2 introduced a new song by the Irish rockers with a charity ad — and for every free download of that song by one of us, BOA said it would give $1 to an organization that fights AIDS (RED). Up to $2 million.

I'm telling you, that's heart. Maybe it's actually OK; after all, that BOA has paid almost no federal income tax for years — instead opening subsidiaries in the Cayman Islands so they wouldn't have to. Oh yeah, and they got a rebate from the IRS for $1.9 billion, in 2010, along with other rebates since.

Well, you know, $2 million in donations is just over one-one thousandth of the nearly $2 billion rebate, so who cares?

Nice song, too. ■

Wendy Davis unplugged

richLOWRY

Special to Florida Weekly

Perhaps the slogan of the Wendy Davis campaign should be that behind every successful woman is a good man.

The Texas gubernatorial candidate needs no introduction. Her filibuster of a bill to ban abortion in Texas after 20 weeks made her an instant star for progressives and much of the media — because few things are as stirring as a principled stand in favor of near-infanticide.

Her personal Horatio Alger story also was catnip for the press, thrilled by the trajectory of the former teen mom who lived in a mobile home and eventually earned a law degree at Harvard.

Given her enormous wave of positive coverage, it's remarkable that Wendy Davis felt the need to gild the lily, but so she did.

"By 19," her website said, "Wendy was a single mother." Actually, as Wayne

Slater of The Dallas Morning News reported, she didn't get divorced from her first husband until age 21. She lived in a mobile home alone for a few months after the two separated, before moving in with her mom and then into her own apartment.

According to her website, she got through school "with the help of academic scholarships and student loans." This is true, but elides the fact that after she married Jeff Davis, a successful lawyer 13 years her senior, he paid for her last two years at Texas Christian University, and cashed in his 401(k) and took out a loan to put her through Harvard.

The marriage eventually hit the rocks. He tells Slater: "It was ironic. I made the last payment, and it was the next day she left." When they divorced, Jeff Davis was awarded parental custody of the kids, rare in Texas.

None of this need necessarily be damning — in any case, it's not unusual for ambitious politicians to take advantage of supportive spouses — but it wasn't the story Davis told about herself.

In a profile last month, the "Today" show accompanied her back to the mobile home as if it were taking Abraham Lincoln back to his log cabin. Of course, there was no visit to, let alone mention of, the "historic home in the Mistletoe Heights neighborhood of Fort Worth" (in Slater's words), where she was living with Jeff Davis by age 24.

When the Abbott campaign naturally seized on the Dallas Morning News story, Davis fumed on Twitter, "These attacks show that Greg Abbott's completely out of touch with the struggles that I faced and so many Texans face."

To suggest that Abbott is unfamiliar with struggle is offensively stupid. When he was a law student in his 20s, he was out jogging when a tree fell on him, shattering his spine. He spent months recovering in the hospital and has been confined to a wheelchair ever since.

Supporters of Wendy Davis have risen to her defense on the novel theory that it is sexist to demand that a newly minted feminist icon avoid misleading people. For them, all that really matters is her abortion extremism. Everything else is a detail, including her life story. ■

Pete Seeger: Troubadour of truth and justice

amyGOODMAN

Special to Florida Weekly

Pete Seeger's life, like the arc of the moral universe famously invoked by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., bent toward justice. He died this week at 94. Pete sang truth to power through the epic struggles of most of the last century, for social justice, for civil rights, for workers, for the environment and for peace. His songs, his wise words, his legacy will resonate for generations.

Pete's parents were musicians. They traveled the U.S., exposing their children to the music of rural America. By 19, Pete was working for the acclaimed folklorist Alan Lomax, recording and cataloging folk songs for the Library of Congress. There he met Woody Guthrie, the legendary Depression-era troubadour of the working class, who was just a few years older. Seeger traveled with Guthrie, learned to hop freight trains and became inspired to unite his passion for the pursuit of justice with his musical talent. He, Woody and others formed the Almanac Singers in 1940. They lived communally in New York's Greenwich Village, and eked out a living by performing. Then came World War II.

Pete was drafted into the Army. When I asked him in 2004 about his military service, he recalled: "I first wanted to be a mechanic in the Air Force. ... But then military intelligence got interested in my politics. My outfit went on to glory and death, and I stayed there in Keesler Field, Mississippi, picking up cigarette butts for six months." He was later transferred to Saipan, in the Pacific, organizing entertainment for troops recuperating in the military hospital there. While on furlough in New York City, Pete proposed marriage to his sweetheart, Toshi Ohta. Toshi died last year at 91, just months shy of their 70th wedding anniversary.

After the war, Pete and three others formed a folk group called The Weavers. They became a national sensation. Then, Sen. Joseph McCarthy's witch hunt against suspected communists blacklisted The Weavers off the radio. Seeger testified before the House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC) on Aug. 18, 1955. He took a principled stand, politely admonishing his interrogators:

"I am not going to answer any questions as to my association, my philosophical or religious beliefs or my political beliefs, or how I voted in any election, or any of these private affairs. I think these are very improper questions for any American to be asked, especially under such compulsion as this."

He was charged with contempt of Congress, found guilty at trial and sentenced to a year in prison. Though his conviction would later be overturned, his biographer, David King Dunaway, in the PBS documentary "Pete Seeger: The Power of Song," described the FBI's ongoing harassment of Seeger:

"The FBI basically pursued Pete Seeger to the point where he couldn't get a job. The only people that he could sing for were kids, because they never thought there'd be a problem with Pete Seeger singing for 6-year-olds. Little did they know. Out of that came, not a subversive movement, but instead, an American folk-music revival that I think we have to give the FBI credit for helping to establish."

Pete met another target of FBI surveillance and intimidation, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., at the Highlander Folk School in Tennessee in 1957. Seeger helped King and other civil-rights activists incorporate song into their organizing tactics. It was at Highlander that

Seeger first sang for King what would become the anthem of the civil-rights movement, "We Shall Overcome."

Like King, Seeger became an increasingly vocal critic of the U.S. war in Vietnam. He finally overcame the McCarthy-era blacklist with an appearance on the hit TV show "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" in 1967. Nevertheless, one of his songs, "Waist Deep in the Big Muddy," was censored by CBS. The song allegorically described Vietnam as a quagmire, depicting President Lyndon B. Johnson as "the big fool" who "says to push on." His performance of that song eventually aired on the show, months later, after a storm of protest against the network.

Pete Seeger continued singing, for peace, nuclear disarmament and, most notably, the environment. He founded the nonprofit Hudson River Sloop Clearwater. He and others built a sailing vessel, the Clearwater, and used it to educate and champion the cleanup of the Hudson River, which his home overlooked. "Now the Hudson is clean enough to swim in," Pete told me when I interviewed him in August of last year. When I asked him to sing "We Shall Overcome," he did, saying: "Yes, that is something the human race needs to be reminded of. Don't give up."

Back in 1955, at the HUAC hearing, he was asked what he did upon returning from the war. He replied, "I continued singing, and I expect I always will." And so he did, changing us all. ■

Time to re-fi?

cheryITURNER

Cheryl@cherylturner.com

Along with renewed activity in the real estate market in the past six months, we've seen an uptick in mortgage activity as well.

If you are applying for a new mortgage or refinancing, there are a few things I've learned over the years that can speed up the process, increase your chances of getting approved, lessen the headaches and maybe even eliminate a few of the hoops you have to jump through.

Paperwork!

The process begins, continues and finishes with paperwork. Lots of it. More than we've seen for many years.

First, gather together your last three years of tax returns.

Next, compile statements of your assets: bank accounts, brokerage and retirement accounts, life insurance cash value — anything and everything to verify the cash you have on hand.

Now make five copies of the package. That way, you'll have plenty in reserve if you need them.

Putting this package together as a first step will not only save you time, but will convey to the lender that you are organized and responsible, something that is sure to make a good first impression.

Credit worthiness

Order up a copy of your credit report from each of the three credit agencies (TransUnion, Equifax, Experian) and carefully comb through them. If you find anything that is confusing or incorrect, call the agency and get an explanation. In some cases (e.g., an account that was closed by the creditor, rather than you), you will want that explanation in writing. Then note that in a letter accompanying your application and indicate that a letter is forthcoming.

The best mortgage for you

Before shopping for a mortgage, familiarize yourself with the various types and how they work. Conventional, adjustable and reverse all have their selling points and detractions, so know what you are looking for before you go looking.

Pay particular attention to closing costs and ask the all-important question: Does this mortgage have a pre-payment penalty? If it does, look elsewhere.

Finally, ask the lender what will happen over the course of the process from application through underwriting through closing and what your responsibility may be in each. You might, for example, be asked to provide verification in the form of receipts for improvements you've made. Anticipating those requests and being ready will not only speed the process, it will indicate to the lender that you are an organized and responsible borrower.

About amortization

Although you'll pay more in interest, consider a 30-year instead of a 15-year amortization. Provided there's no pre-payment penalty, you can make your payments on a 15-year schedule and drastically reduce the interest you'll pay over the course of the loan while leaving yourself the flexibility to return to the 30-year minimum payment at any time.

The appraisal

Once you've applied for your mortgage and have met the basic criteria, the lender will schedule an appraisal. If you are purchasing a property, the seller is in the best position to demonstrate the value of the property. If you are refinancing, however, there are several things you can do to show off your home.

Make a written list of the improvements you've made while living there. Include receipts and a section about added-value attributes of the property (e.g., an advanced security system, new appliances, equipment, etc.) and give a copy of these to the appraiser.

By all means, thoroughly clean the house, the garage and the grounds. The appraiser is not interested in anything non-structural, per se, but showing that the property has been well maintained is always a positive.

You're approved!

Congratulations. You've just entered into a contract that (for most of us) will be the largest financial obligation of your life. Therefore, manage it. Whenever possible, pay ahead on the principal. Even if it's only an extra $100 a month, you'll realize thousands of dollars of savings over the course of the loan. After all, nothing beats the power of compound pre-payment. ■ efficient nearby highway transportation system, extensive warehousing and more.

The hub, to be known as Airglades International Airport, would take the huge import trade in cut flowers, fish and other perishables now flown into Miami International Airport from South and Central America, inspect and secure the goods, warehouse and refrigerate them only as long as necessary, and deliver them by truck and even train to states north and west of Florida.

In the official-ese of Hendry County Attorney Mark Lapp, who pitched the deal to FAA officials first in late 2010, “the county sees Airglades Airport as a logical place to establish a supplemental air cargo trans-shipment center as a reliever to Miami.”

MIA handled 71.2 percent of all U.S. perishable air imports in 2012, 90.2 percent of imports to the nation in flowers, 72.7 percent of fruit and vegetable air imports, and 57.5 percent of all fish imports by air, according to U.S. Department of Commerce trade data provided by officials at MIA.

The dealmakers and county officials say that business imported to Hendry County would provide hundreds if not thousands of jobs for those living in Hendry, Palm Beach and Lee counties, not to mention such job-needy towns as Immokalee, in northeastern Collier County.

It would also open MIA to increased and more lucrative passenger traffic, and help clean up the environment and congestion in Miami-Dade County by taking thousands of trucks off the road that now have to fight their way out of MIA some 80 miles to the southeast, before heading north or west on I-95 or I-75.

And that could change the economic and cultural face of the southern peninsula forever.

“It has the potential to be a generation changer, and at build-out it could be an international player with direct ties to Central and South America, and with many subsidiaries — the offshoot fingers that will allow smaller distribution centers and hundreds of thousands of square feet of warehousing,” says Hendry County Commissioner Karson Turner.

Mr. Turner was born and raised in this sprawling, 1,200-square-mile county of about 40,000 residents, like his boyhood friend, Andrew Couse.

“My entire life there was always something coming,” says Mr. Couse, vice president of First Bank in Clewiston. “Some deal, somebody was going to build something or do something and we weren’t just going to be a little agricultural town growing sugar cane and cows and oranges, anymore — it was always going to transform us. And we would always laugh and say, ‘Here we go, this is the next big thing.’”

But Mr. Couse isn’t laughing now, he admits, because this might really be the next big thing.

“I’m optimistic about this. I love the idea. The impact of this is incalculable — what it would mean in terms of jobs, an infusion of the housing market — we’d have our own housing market spike.”

But those sugar-plum visions are still years away, with predictions about breaking ground ranging from two to three to five years.

Meanwhile, Hendry County sports the highest unemployment rate of 67 counties in Florida — the only county in double digits. And the county shows one of the highest rates of medically uninsured residents in the United States.

Miami International Airport imports more international freight than any other U.S. airport. The Airglades plans would divert perishables such as cut flowers, produce and fish to Clewiston — about 50 of the 1,000 daily flights that MIA now hosts.

The dealmakers

That’s a dubious and ironic status, since two of the wealthiest agricultural concerns in the state headquarter in Clewiston — U.S. Sugar Corp., and Hilliard Brothers, a diversified agricultural operation.

Both companies, along with a third — Florida Fresh Produce, formed and led by a long-time air transportation official and consultant named Fred Ford — have joined forces as AIA, the private investor in the plan. Mr. Ford’s outfit holds 49 percent of the investment company, he says, and U.S. Sugar with the Hilliard Brothers together hold 51 percent.

The plan is already three years in the making, one of only two airport plans listed as active in the FAA’s Airport Privatization Pilot Plan. Although the FAA established that program to open the door to deep-pocket private enterprise in air transportation in 1997, it has never approved or seen through such a deal.

And so far, no sign of the work in the flat fields just west of Lake Okeechobee — scores of meetings between the investors and public officials, basic engineering, permit seeking and the like — exists on the ground here.

Instead, things look pretty much the same as they have for a few decades.

Distant columns of dark smoke rise languorously into the creamy blue skies of late January, towering above the sugar cane fields owned by U.S. Sugar and the Hilliards.

Those fields surround both the town and the Airglades Airport.

A hope diamond in the rough, as officials and investors see it, Airglades lies roughly a mile west of U.S. 27 down a slender lane flanked by a single sizeable satellite dish. Visitors now will find a tiny terminal office, a few hangars, a handful of parked private airplanes and perhaps the chatting members of a skydive club, sitting around under an open parachute in a hangar with a view of the little 5,600-foot paved runway stretching northwest to southeast, and known as 13/31.

The deal

All of it is situated on roughly four sections of county-owned land — a total of 2,560 acres.

On paper, that property carries an assessed value of $28.2 million.

But county officials have agreed to sell it to AIA, the investment group, for $13 million, says Charles Chapman, the county administrator — because of the potential upside.

“Some people were thinking we should force AIA to pay a premium price. That there should be a cash exchange.

“But our mode of thought is, ‘Let’s cut this deal in a way that’s advantageous to private industry, so we can get through and get this thing built. It’ll mean jobs, high-paying jobs. It’ll put Hendry on the map as the new hub for importing perishable cargo in the United States.

“So, our payout was an investment in future growth.”

AIA, which has already spent several million in planning, the investors say, would depend on FAA approval and money — at least $150 million in federal funds, if not more, as part of a $400 million effort — to build a 12,000-foot runway.

That would accommodate the largest cargo planes in existence.

One of the obstacles that hasn’t been worked out yet, says Greg Gillman, the head of the Economic Development Council in Hendry County, is basic infrastructure.

“The FAA really holds the cards — they could come in tomorrow and tell us they won’t support it. But I don’t think that will happen. I don’t consider the FAA the biggest challenge, I consider them the lynchpin.

“Our challenge may be infrastructure issues. We have limited infrastructure, water and sewer and electricity. Before we go and do all this, there has to be millions of dollars of infrastructure. Who pays? The county or the investors or a federal government grant? That's the challenge."

One federal grant application to help pay for infrastructure was turned down last year, he admits.

The laborious process

The process of proposals, counter proposals, investigations and inspections by the FAA and the Florida Department of Transportation, which must also sign off on the deal, is years long.

Until that is complete, FAA officials in both Washington and Orlando said they would not comment.

By Mr. Ford's account, "The first thing the FAA asked us when we started this is, 'What will the neighbors think?' And I said, 'They must like it, they bought into it,'" he recalls.

Neither senior managers at U.S. Sugar Corp. or Joe Marlin Hilliard of the Hilliard Brothers responded to telephone and email requests for comments about ways the deal could change a community where they have lived and prospered for decades.

A U.S. Sugar spokeswoman, Judy Sanchez, said Mr. Ford would act as spokesman for the group, AIA.

"Florida Cargo Fresh took the original trip-to-Vegas risk — and together we have somewhere a little south of $10 million in the deal so far, with another $4 to $6 million to go," Mr. Ford says.

"We probably have another year to go before we get a final blessing from the FAA and FDOT and the users. The users (freight carriers) have to agree that they will put some of their operations up here (in Clewiston), and that use must support the cost of operation and any debt. Then the FAA will bless us, the FDOT will bless us again, and that will allow us to construct."

Incentives and high hopes

By the terms of the deal between the county and AIA, for every 100 jobs actually created, AIA will get a million-dollar discount — up to $8 million, which would be 800 jobs.

It will work like this, explains Mr. Lapp, the county attorney:

"AIA is to estimate at closing how many jobs they will create and thus the discount they think they'll be entitled to, and place this amount in a letter of credit that will be available to pay the county for all or whatever portion of the job discount they're not entitled to if they fail to create the estimated number of jobs.

"The maximum discount available for job creation is $8 million, meaning that at least $5 million will be paid to the county."

So, Hendry would take in $5 million at a minimum, and its tax base would increase significantly. To date, the county has only been able to sell fuel and charge for other services at the airport, and any monies accrued were required by old federal rules to be poured back into the airport.

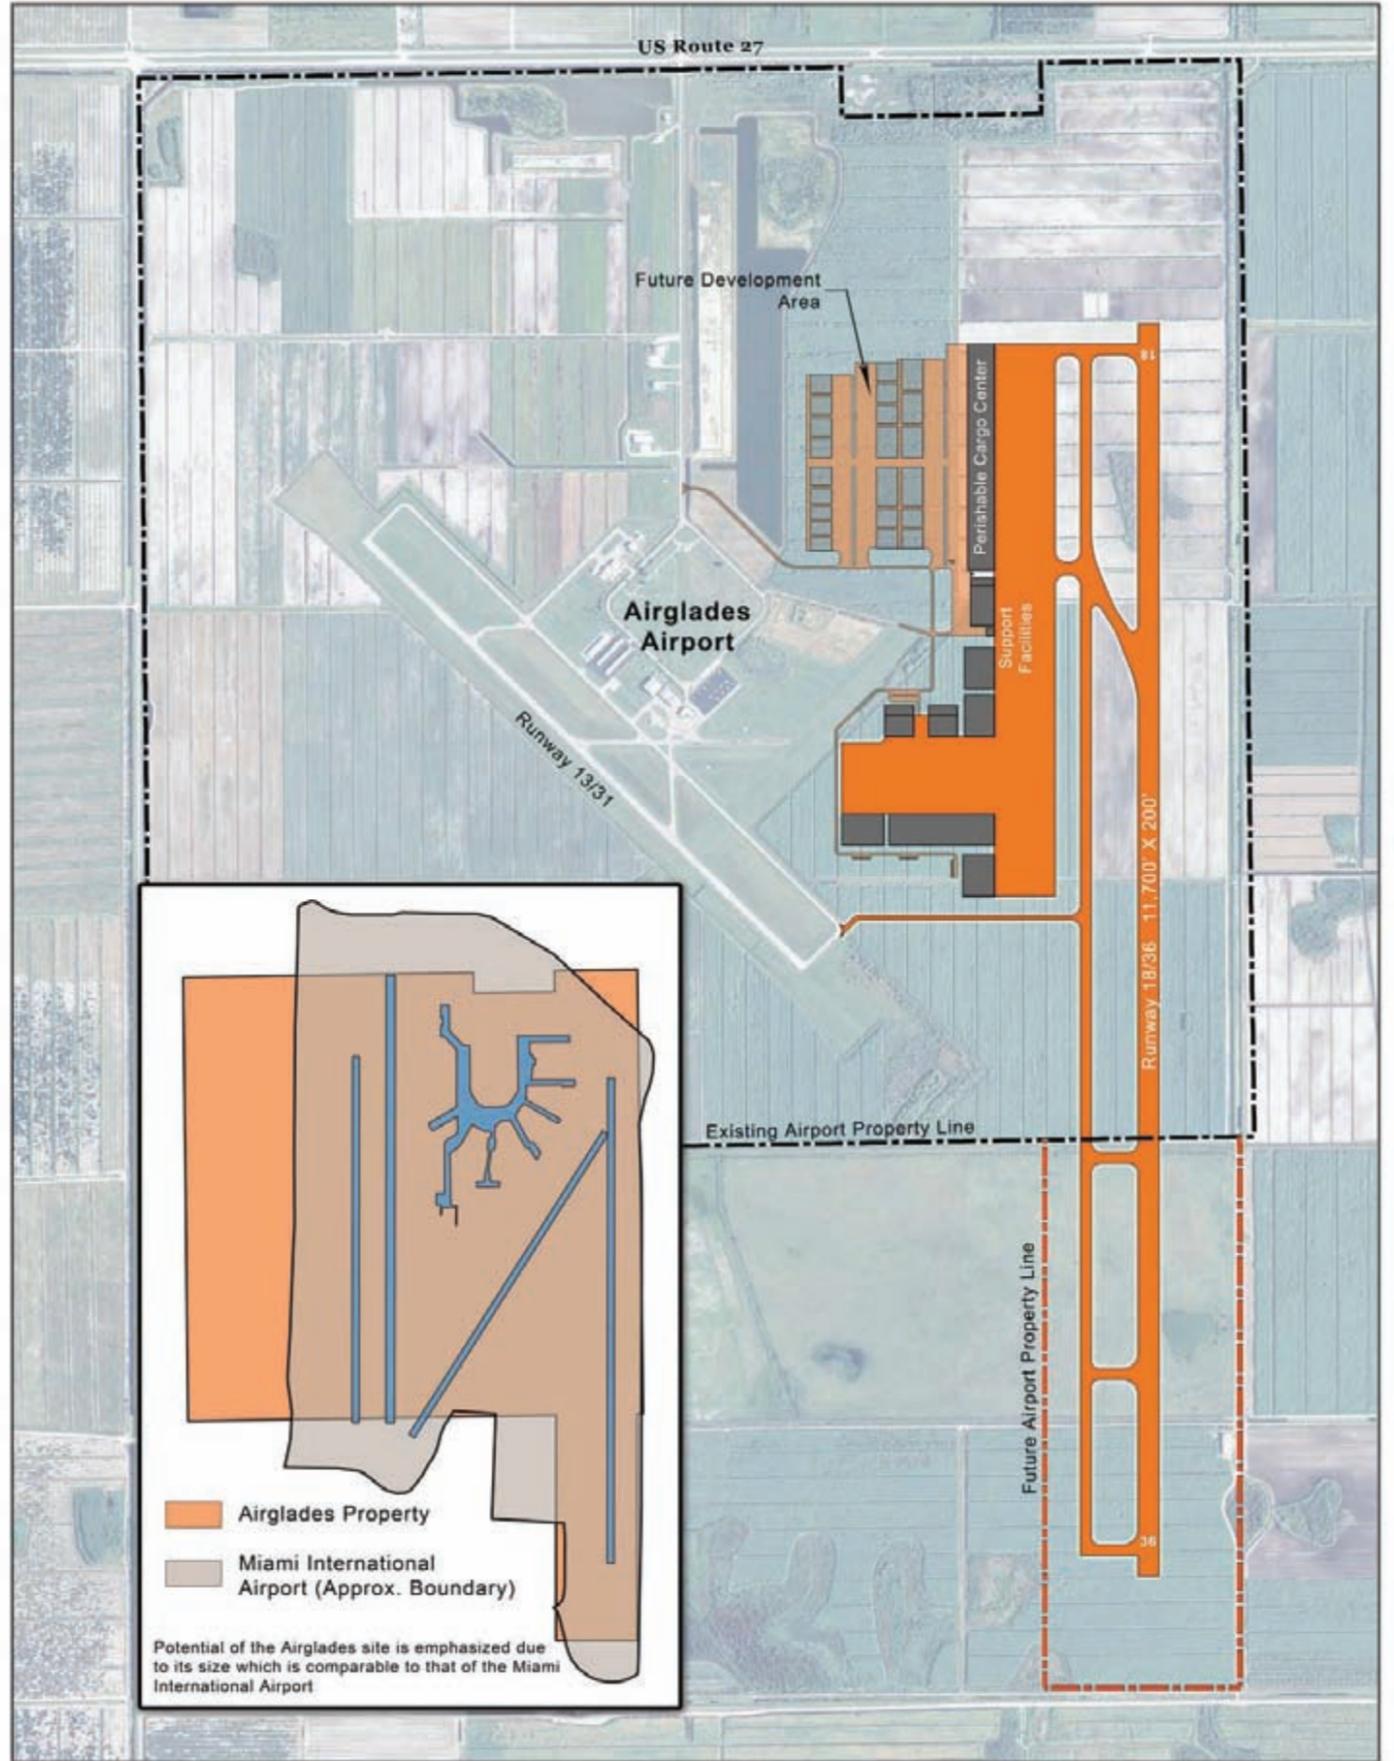

Others might begin to use the airport, as well.

Asked about a rumor that United Parcel Service, the number one freight carrier at MIA, might be on the verge of making a deal to move its hub to Clewiston, Mr. Ford responded this way:

"We are purposely not approaching UPS or Fed Ex — they're known as integrated carriers.

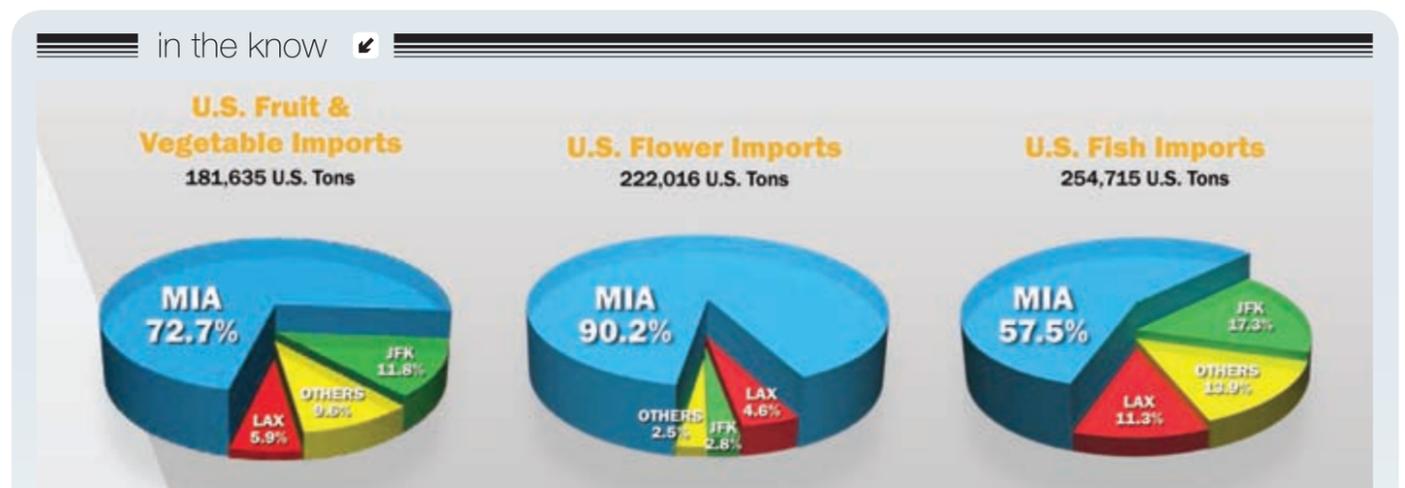

"Neither of the two integrated carriers are a target. We anticipate, however, that we will accept federal funds, and we may be so efficient that they will come to us and say, 'This makes sense.' But there is no dialogue between us now.

"I have purposely stayed away from them because I don't want Miami and Fort Lauderdale and Fort Myers (Southwest Florida International Airport) to think we're trying to steal something from them. So, fish and cut flowers — that's its own little community. Miami's not going to suffer financially by the relocation (of freight companies that import them). We think it's 30 to 50 flights a day, out of a thousand flights a day that go into MIA every day. That's what makes it unique — it's a niche."

Skeptics

At MIA, however, the view of moving cargo to any inland hubs is a lot more sober.

"Those airports that would try this don't know what they're asking," says Ernie Rodriguez, MIA's marketing director.

"One day they get up in the morning and say, 'We want to bring cargo to our airport.' They need to understand business and industry. Once they understand, they will realize it will take years to develop. Why is MIA number one in the United States? Because we've been working 35 to 40 years on our infrastructure.

“For any airport to consider cargo, you need to have your infrastructure in place before you go out there and sell.

“If you don’t have it, you won’t be able to convince a freighter or an exporter or importer to come to your airport.”

Cargo itself, he adds, can be defined either as freight — carried on freight aircraft — or as belly cargo, coming in on passenger aircraft. Being able to ship it either way, if necessary, appeals to users. But that won’t be an option at Airglades.

“Let’s say you have two tons of fresh tilapia coming in from (South America), but the freighter breaks down,” explains Mr. Rodriguez. “If you have American Airlines flights coming in, you’ll move your two tons with American.”

Every day, he says, passenger aircraft transport produce, animals such as monkeys or snakes, gold bullion, and countless other items in the bellies of passenger aircraft, unbeknownst to the passengers.

Don Browne, a public affairs blogger and resident of LaBelle in western Hendry County, remains skeptical for entirely different reasons.

“This whole thing was a way to get investors going, and it didn’t make sense that Mr. Ford was organizing the whole thing,” he says.

Part of the problem, in his eyes, was Mr. Ford’s record in Lakeland, where he was hired on as a consultant to boost business at the city’s airport in 2006 and left with some disappointed city leaders three years later.

By 2009, Mr. Ford had been paid $216,000, but no new tenants existed, according to reports in The Lakeland Ledger.

“I don’t think Ford has a good track record,” Don Browne concludes.

But that failure may not reflect reality. Both recession and bad airport management caused the no-business results in Lakeland, Mr. Ford has suggested previously. And Lakeland City Manager Doug Thomas did not return telephone calls asking about the disappointment.

Experience, and excitement

Meanwhile, Mr. Ford’s resume shows more than four decades of experience in air transportation, dating back to the 1960s.

Born and raised only a few hundred yards from the end of a runway at Boston’s Logan Airport, he says, he is a veteran of the Marine Corps.

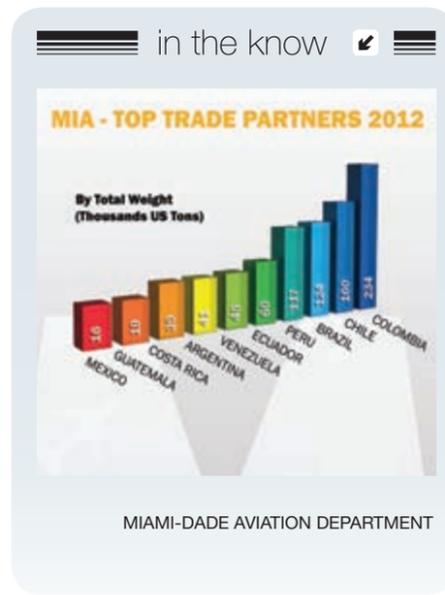

He served in past decades as director of Chicago-Rockford International Airport and general manager and COO of Dallas/Fort Worth International Airport. And he was a member of the team that planned and operated that airport when it was the world’s largest, in the late 1970s.

In private business, he spent 20 years as a consultant and vice president of Raytheon/Washington Group International, before forming Florida Cargo Fresh in 2009.

He has created cargo services before, he says, and that’s what he aimed to do with his company, starting in 2009 and 2010.

“We looked at all these sites near U.S. 27 — it already has a lot of cargo trailer trucks that want to avoid I-95. And there are 2,000 to 4,000 trucks a day going through Clewiston on 27, with cargo going to and from Miami.

“So I thought, at some point, the federal and maybe the state government will want to divert some of the commercial vehicles that clog the roads. We need to find an airport site along that road.”

Among the advantages at Airglades, he says, are the newly improved or under-construction highways (both State Road 80 and U.S. 27 are going to four lanes throughout); the fact that U.S. Sugar owns two rail lines, one running within a mile of the airport, on which aviation fuel could be more safely transported than in trucks; the fact that only two owners — U.S. Sugar and Hilliard Brothers — own the land almost all the way around the airport; and the additional fact that airspace is almost completely uncluttered at the Airglades airport.

“That’s why we oriented the runway north-south and we have to build an entirely new one,” Mr. Ford explains — “so airplanes can fly high over and drop down without flying the circuitous routes which could put them in the airspace of surrounding airports such as Palm Beach or Southwest Florida International.

“That will keep emissions down, too. We went through all these analyses — you couldn’t find a better site.”

But none of it except dreaming and planning — and in the case of the deal-makers, laying out the up-front money — has happened yet.

“Ultimately,” concludes Commissioner Turner, “this will come down to good old-fashioned capitalism. The free market will look at Airglades from a logistical analysis, and they will see it makes sense.

“If Airglades can show (potential users) on paper where the FAA will guarantee that they have a home for perpetuity in Hendry County by building them the 12,000-foot runway — that will drive the market,” he argues.

Asked what he wants readers to understand in the end, he offers this:

“People should know, we’re not talking about an environmentally sensitive project — this is a project that will take four sections of land that has been in cane fields and hayfields, and land that has sat idle because it’s an old dump, and has already had a general aviation airport on it, forever. We want to take that and develop it. It’s a completely logical place for this to occur.

“And it has the capacity to be a reliever on so many levels — of the megalopolis of southeast Florida. And as an emergency reliever — any plane could land there.”

If the government will help a few private investors and a handful of very hopeful officials get it done.

“We’re not recreating a model,” Commissioner Turner says.

“We’re saying, we have rail, air and truck capacity, so allow us to use it fully.” ■

UNDERCOVER HISTORIAN

Celebrating a reverence for the River of Grass

UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA PRESS
Marjory Stoneman Douglas

Marjory Stoneman Douglas portrait by Naples artist Phil Fisher

What began a decade ago as an Everglades City literary program honoring a legendary environmental champion has blossomed into an impressive five-day festival of education, exploration and entertainment.

This year's Marjory Stoneman Douglas Festival takes place Tuesday through Saturday, Feb. 18-22, in and around the former Collier County seat. The annual luncheon kicks off the festivities at the Everglades Isle RV park, 803 Collier Ave., along the Barron River, and continues at the Museum of the Everglades, 105 West Broadway. The complete festival lineup is available at www.msdfestival.com.

The festival, initially sponsored by the Museum of the Everglades Friends and the Friends of the Collier County Library, was first conceived as a way to lure visitors to Everglades City during the winter season. Today, the goal is to make each festival better than the previous year's, and the 2014 programs orchestrated by Martha Hutcheson, the museum assistant manager, keep the event fresh and different.

"The focus has moved slightly from (Ms.) Douglas herself to her ideals of saving and protecting the endangered Everglades through continued educational programs," said Tim England, museum manager.

Marjory Stoneman Douglas, who died in 1998 at the incredible age of 108, is a name synonymous with the Everglades. She was a celebrated author and newspaper reporter who became the River of Grass' greatest advocate. Ms. Douglas was a major factor in the creation of Everglades National Park, which opened in 1947, and her bestselling book, "Everglades: The River of Grass," was published that same year to much fanfare and is still in print.

Through her research, Ms. Douglas realized the importance of the water and its flow to the health and welfare of the Everglades, and quickly became a vocal supporter of it. In 1969, she created the support group Friends of the Everglades, which continues the fight to preserve our natural treasure.

All of this year's festival programs are free and open to the public except the opening luncheon, which begins at 10:45 a.m. Feb. 18 and costs $25 to attend ($20 for Friends' members). Reservations are required for the luncheon and can be made by calling 695-0008.

Most of the educational presentations take place in the museum just off the town circle.

Bronze and beautiful

At the initial festival in February 2005, the audience was treated to a portrayal of Ms. Douglas by actress Joan Wolfberg, followed by high tea at the historic Seafood Depot Restaurant. Guests also enjoyed a reading from Douglas' work as well as a video titled "Lady of the Glades."

But the big attraction — the inspiration for the festival — was Plantation artist Dick Jay's life-size bronze sculpture of Ms. Douglas.

After viewing Mr. Jay's sculpture, former museum manager Virginia Saalman "saw an opportunity to not only honor (Ms.) Douglas' memory, but to also perpetuate her cause." Thus, Mr. Jay was invited to showcase his work at the festival.

Mr. Jay said he sculpted Ms. Douglas because of his fondness for her. She was a woman tiny in stature but huge on issues, and Mr. Jay's artwork captures her very essence, down to the pearls around her neck, her thick, round-rimmed eyeglasses and her trademark floppy hat.

"If only one person can see the importance of this precious environment like I do, through my art, then I'd say my work was successful," Mr. Jay said.

Festival regulars have included Capt. Franklin Adams, another local environmentalist, who in the past regaled audiences with personal recollections of Ms. Douglas from their 30-plus-year friendship. Biologist Mike Owen of Fakahatchee Strand Preserve State Park presented a program on orchids in the Everglades that first year, and his talk was so well received that it has become a festival fixture. Some years have provided opportunities for guests to walk into the Everglades with Mr. Owen as he points out various types of orchids. This year, he'll speak at 1 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 19.

HISTORY

Through the years, specific programs for younger audiences have been included, ranging from several authors to Otter John and his animal entourage, who take center stage this year at 11 a.m. Thursday, Feb. 20. And it wouldn't be a festival in Everglades City without some type of music, often provided by bluegrass artists Tom, Tina and US Express.

Other popular attractions are boardwalk tours and canoe trips through the nearby Big Cypress National Preserve and swamp walks and tram tours at Fakahatchee Strand Preserve, which give visitors a chance to experience the Everglades first-hand. Guided tours through the Ten Thousand Islands have been provided by Everglades National Park. Movie days, campfires and storytelling by members of the Seminole Tribe also are special treats. ■

The Arts and Alzheimer's series continues

Documentary screening, panel discussion set for Feb. 17

SPECIAL TO FLORIDA WEEKLY

People challenged with Alzheimer's and their caretakers and loved ones are invited to a screening and panel discussion of the documentary film "I Remember Better When I Paint," part of the Arts and Alzheimer's series presented by the Naples Art Association, on Monday evening, Feb. 17, at The von Liebig Art Center.

Narrated by Olivia de Havilland, "I Remember Better When I Paint" is inspired by the personal experience of Berna Huebner and her mother Hilda Gorentstein, also known as Hilgos. An accomplished artist, Hilgos was diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease in the early 1990s. After reaching a state of near hopelessness, Ms. Huebner asked her mother if she would like to paint. The response: "Yes! I remember better when I paint."

Ms. Huebner is the founder of the Chicago-based Hilgos Foundation that supports and encourages the ongoing process of artistic creation with people who have different forms of dementia, including Alzheimer's. She also serves on the Boston University School of Medicine Alzheimer's Board and is Director of the Center for the Study of International Communications in Paris. She is the former research director for Nelson Rockefeller when he was governor of New York and then vice president.

Ms. Huebner co-directed "I Remember Better When I Paint," which is presented by French Connection Films and the Hilgos Foundation, with Eric Ellena.

Angel Duncan, left, and Bernadette La Paglia, co-directors of the Arts and Alzheimer's series presented by the Naples Art Association.

COURTESY PHOTO

It features noted doctors as well as Yasmin Aga Khan, president of Alzheimer's Disease International and the daughter of Rita Hayworth, who suffered from the disease.

Wine and hors d'oeuvres will precede the film from 6-6:30 p.m., and the hour-long panel discussion with time for questions and answers will begin at 7:30 p.m.

In addition to Ms. Huebner, the evening's panelists are: geriatric psychiatrist Marc Agronin, director of mental health and clinical research at Miami Jewish Health Systems, a nationally recognized expert in psychiatric illnesses in the elderly and the author of "How We Age: A Doctor's Journey into the Heart of Growing Old"; and Dr. Fred Schaerf, a specialist in clinical trials for Alzheimer's disease and mild cognitive impairment and a former member of the neuropsychiatry staff at Johns Hopkins. Moderators will be Angel Duncan and Bernadette La Paglia, co-directors of the Arts and Alzheimer's program for the Naples Art Association.

All are welcome to attend. Admission is free thanks to gifts from Peter and Stella Thomas and Jim Gburek. For reservations or more information, call Shea Lindner at The von Liebig Art Center, 262-6517, ext. 109. ■

Vintage Ford Tri-Motor cleared for landing at Naples airport

Members of the public can take an airborne jaunt back in time in the world's first mass-produced commercial airliner when the Experimental Aircraft Association's 1929 Ford Tri-Motor comes in for a landing at the Naples Municipal Airport on Feb. 10-12. The venerable aircraft has dusted crops and battled forest fires and also helped the commercial airline industry get off the ground in the day of visionaries such as Henry Ford.

The EAA takes its restored aircraft on tours across the United States. Bearing serial number NC8407, it is the 144th of the 199 Tri-Motors Ford that were built between 1926 and 1933. When it stopped at the Naples airport two years ago, almost 600 people climbed aboard for a short flight.

Known as the "Tin Goose," the Ford Tri-Motors came into being after WWI, when the inventor Mr. Ford recognized the potential for commercial airline travel. NC8407 was first used by Eastern Air Transport, before being leased to Cubana Airlines in 1930 for service between Havana and Santiago de Cuba. It was next utilized by the government of the Dominican Republic before returning stateside in 1949. It was used for barnstorming, then for aerial fire-fighting and later to transport "smoke jumpers" before becoming a crop duster.

The plane was also featured in the 1960 Jerry Lewis comedy "The Family Jewels," before returning to use for barnstorming rides. In 1973, after being severely damaged in a storm, it was purchased by the EAA, which now takes it on tour from EAA headquarters in Oshkosh, Wis. The aircraft can carry a maximum of 10 passengers, with every seat having a window.

Flights aboard the NC8407 are $75 ($70 for online reservations; $50 for ages 17 and younger). The plane's stop here will benefit EAA Chapter 1067's

Young Eagles program, with $5 of every admission fee going to help fund its operations. The Young Eagles program gives people between the ages 8 and 17 the opportunity to fly with EAA members, free of charge, in hopes of encouraging their interest in aviation as a hobby or career.

The chapter holds a monthly pancake breakfast in the pilot lounge at the Naples airport and can accommodate walk-ins who'd like to take to the air for a Young Eagles flight. ■

Modest meat

The International New York Times edition published in Kuala Lumpur on Jan. 22 carried a page-one story noting increased worldwide demand by meat processors for pigs raised in the fresh air rather than enclosed in pens — illustrated by a photograph of a cluster of pigs feeding in an outdoor stall. However, the Malaysian printer (who had downloaded the digital pages and set them to paper) had added black boxes to cover just the faces of each pig in the photo. “If there is picture of nudes or (the) like, this we will cover (up),” a publisher’s spokesman told the Malay Mail. “This is a Muslim country.” (The story, headline and photo were otherwise identical to the versions that appeared elsewhere in New York Times editions.)

The Entrepreneurial Spirit!

■ The convenience beverage market got jumbled recently when, first, Oregon-based Union Wine Co. announced in November that it would soon sell its Underwood pinot gris and pinot noir in 12-ounce cans and, second, the London department store Selfridges unveiled a champagne vending machine for New Year’s celebrations. (The French bottler Moët & Chandon offered bottles of bubbly behind glass doors for the equivalent of $29.)

■ “Does Germany really need a gourmet restaurant for dogs?” asked Berlin’s Bild newspaper. Regardless, the Pets Deli in the Grunewald neighborhood of Berlin offers servings for the equivalent of about $4 to $6, either take-out or arranged in metal bowls on Pets Deli’s floor. Said owner David Spanier, lauding his upscale, healthful treats, “Junk food is bad for animals.”

■ Around Tokyo, “idle boredom is an impossible option,” wrote Vice.com in December, as a reporter described a resort just out of town where one could swim in a pool of green tea, coffee, sake or (the most popular treat) wine. “A giant bottle of merlot” spilled into a pond the size of a minivan, he wrote (while braving the Yunessun resort’s warnings not to drink from the pool). Though both-sex nudity is tolerated in Japan’s hot springs spas, Yunessun discourages it.

Weird science

■ A team of Czech Republic researchers led by Vlastimil Hart, writing in Frontiers in Zoology in December, reported that dogs (among a few mammals), dealing with a nature’s call, spontaneously align their body axis with the Earth’s magnetic field. To reach that conclusion, the researchers said they observed 70 dogs of 37 breeds during defecation (1,893 observations) and urination (5,582) over a two-year period.

■ ThinkGeek.com has introduced the Tactical Laser-Guided Pizza Cutter, at a suggested $29.95, for helping to achieve straight-line precision in those difficult four-cut (eight-slice) pizza formulations.

■ From the Japanese lingerie manufacturer Ravijour comes a bra whose front clasp can be locked unless its built-in heart-rate monitor signifies that the heartbeat is characteristic of “true love.” (Ravijour said it is still testing the bra.)

The kingdom

■ The Battersea Dogs and Cats Home in Fulham, England, admitted in December that a rescued Staffordshire bull terrier, Barney, had a ladies’ underwear-eating habit and that potential adopters should keep him away from laundry baskets. (In his first days at Battersea, officials say, he “passed” knickers three times.)

■ The Cairns (Australia) Veterinary Clinic warned in December of several reports of dogs becoming addicted to licking cane toads (which notoriously protect themselves by a venomous secretion that can be hallucinogenic).

One vet told Brisbane’s Courier-Mail of individual “serial lickers” treated for cane toad poisoning several times a year.

■ Who Knew That Racoons Were Easily Offended? The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals condemned a Pet Expo in Greenhithe, England, in October after reports emerged that a trainer had showcased “Melanie,” a racoon who rides a bicycle-like device, apparently to great acclaim. An RSPCA statement denounced the expo for “degrading” a “wild animal” in such a “demeaning light.”

Leading economic indicators

■ In November, the Army of Islam (Syrian rebels) announced, via a dazzling, fully functional website, that it had job “vacancies” in the fields of graphic design, photography, printing, journalism, reporting and media promotion and programming. The anti-Assad force already has a Facebook page featuring videos of alleged military victories.

■ Somalia’s coastal pirates, having peaked in 2009 in boat captures, may now be laying low only because of the familiar business problem of “inventory management.” A November analysis by Quartz (qz.com) showed the pirates with such a surplus of hijacked vessels (still with earnings potential) that they would likely wind those down before taking to the seas again.

■ A group of (legal) prostitutes in the Netherlands began a campaign in December to have their occupation officially termed so dangerous and physically challenging that they should be allowed (as soccer players are) to save in tax-free pension funds. They carry out “difficult physical work,” their lawyer said, and their careers are likewise short-lived — much better-suited for the young. Furthermore, he pointed out, prostitutes are not able, post-career, to earn money coaching or by endorsements.

■ American health-care reformers routinely decry the inability of consumer-patients to compare prices of services to help drive down the costs. Two doctors, writing for the Journal of the American Medical Association in December, illuminated the problem by surveying 20 hospitals in the Philadelphia area. Nineteen fully disclosed the prices for parking in the hospital garage (and potential discounts were shown), but only three of the 20 would disclose their prices for routine electrocardiograms ($137, $600, $1,200). ■

Empty Bowls soup lunch sets a new record

The eighth annual Empty Bowls soup lunch at Cambier Park set a new record by raising $60,000 for the Harry Chapin Food Bank. Almost 3,000 people gathered in the park on Jan. 25 to sample soups served by 46 area restaurants and to bid on pottery bowls made by area artists. Proceeds will help the food bank provide $360,000 worth of food to children, seniors, the working poor families and others who go hungry.

Naples Empty Bowls 2014 committee members — Betsy Dawson, Courtney Madden, Tracy Pospeck, Maria Schiller, Katie Schweikhardt, Jayne Sventek, Mike Huffman and Jody Van Cooney — worked year-round to make the event a success and thank the following sponsors for their support: Allegra Printing, Beyond the Gates Magazine, Bond Schoeneck & King, the City of Naples, D. Garret Construction, Design Naples, Harrell & Company, Kitchens by Clay, Master Piece Mixers, the Naples Daily News, Pelican Bay Rotary, Spears Construction Services, Sunshine Ace Hardware, Taylor Rental Party Plus, Vitas and Whole Foods.

Among the “celebrity soup servers” were Collier County Superintendent of Schools Kamela Patton, Naples Mayor John Sorey and Barron Collier High School Principal Tammy Caraker. The drum line from Barron Collier High School performed, and the Chorus of the Everglades sang barbershop music. Alexa and Taressa Boyd sang “The Star-Spangled Banner.”

Restaurant participants were: Bayside

About the food bank

The Harry Chapin Food Bank solicits, collects and stores food for distribution to families and others in need through a network of 150 nonprofit agencies in Collier, Lee, Hendry, Charlotte and Glades counties that provide food to more than 30,000 people monthly. FESTIVAL

The NWWF has been cited by Wine Spectator as the nation's most successful charity wine auction for nine years. This year's event, themed "Celebrate the Journey," brings the total donated to $123.5 million since the first event in 2001, all of it distributed by the NCEF, the festival's founding organization.

"Through the dedication of NCEF's trustees, as well as our staff and volunteers, the Naples Winter Wine Festival has once again provided the venue for an astonishing demonstration of philanthropy," said Anne Welsh McNulty, festival co-chair along with Linda Richards Malone and Adria Starkey. "It is, year after year, a journey worth celebrating."

Besides the live auction at The Ritz-Carlton Golf Resort, the three-day festival included a "Meet the Kids Day," vintner dinners in private homes and a Sunday brunch.

The honored vintner for 2014 was Olivier Krug, head of the famed Champagne house, while New York restaurateur Bill Telepan served as chef de cuisine. Events took place Jan. 24-26.

The top wine lot, "Stunning Staglin-Always in Fashion," fetched $400,000. Included were two Double Magnums,

Documentary traces wild orchids in Manitoba polar bear country

When “Wild Orchid Man” Stig Dalström isn’t traveling the world in search of orchids or in Bhutan advising its government on the creation of the Bhutanese Botanical Gardens, he’s at home in Southwest Florida, inspiring others about orchid conservation. The Sarasota resident will be the guest speaker when the Gulf Coast Orchid Alliance meets from 6:30-8:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 20, at Vanderbilt Presbyterian Church.

Stig Dalström in Manitoba during filming of his third documentary, “The Wild Orchid Man in the Land of the White Bear.”

Mr. Dalström will present a screening of his new documentary film, “The Wild Orchid Man in the Land of the White Bear.” This is his third film working with award-winning filmmaker Darryl Saffer. The first, “Ghost Orchid Swamp,” was filmed in the Everglades and has been screened at botanical and educational venues worldwide. The second, “The Mountains of Amazonas,” examines the impact of deforestation on the land and water of Northern Peru through the search for rare and unknown orchids.

bird photographer William Burt.

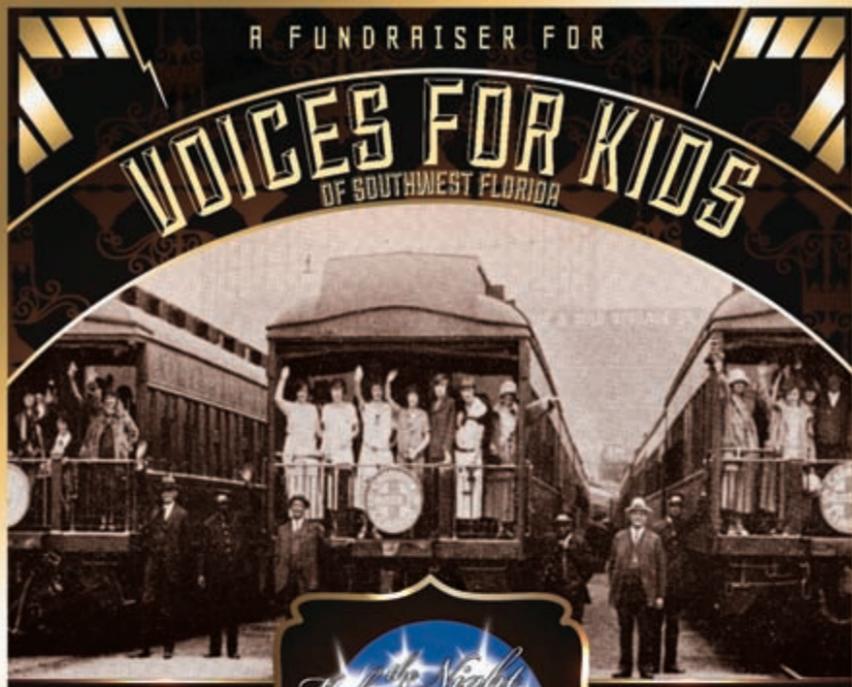

The newest film takes viewers into Manitoba, Canada, where wild orchids are found as far north as Churchill, famous for its polar bear population. It traces not only wild orchids, but also the story of the Sayisi Dene people, who were forcibly relocated to Churchill in the 1950s by a Canadian government insensitive to the relationship between the tribe and the caribou. Today, the remnants of the tribe, many of whom simply died in Churchill, live in Tadoule Lake, Manitoba. Their story was told by Ila Bussidor in “Night Spirits” (University of Manitoba Press, 1997), and her voice is heard in the documentary. The area is also famous for its birds, attracting more than 250 species during the nesting season. In the film, Mr. Dalström meets and interviews renowned the former curator of the orchid identification center at Sarasota’s Selby Botanical Gardens, Mr. Dalström is a self-taught watercolor artist and botanical illustrator, as well as an experienced orchid taxonomist. He has published 47 new species of orchids for science and has had 23 plant species named in his honor. He continues to assist with the identification of orchid specimens, as well as to provide popular and scientific articles and lectures, conduct fieldwork to inventory and classify orchids and contribute to creating awareness about fragile ecological sites.

Mr. Dalström’s three documentaries have been funded through DVD sales, donations from environmentally concerned world citizens, and through donations directly to the Sarasota Orchid Society, which is the fiscal sponsor for the Wild Orchid Man documentaries. Attendees at the Feb. 20 program will be able to purchase Wild Orchid Man DVDs.

Attendance is free, but seating is limited and reservations are required. Call 498-9741 or email info@gulfcoastorchidalliance.com. ■

Workshops deliver the dirt on growing in Southwest Florida

The Collier County Master Gardeners winter/spring series of workshops continues from 10-11:30 a.m. Thursdays at Unity of Naples, 2000 Unity Way off Davis Boulevard. All are welcome. Admission is $7 to each class or $25 for the series.

Here's the lineup:

■ Feb. 13: "Orchids" - One of the most popular classes year after year, this class is led by Judy White of Jade Orchids. Ms. White and her husband and daughter have operated their nursery business for more than 20 years, and it is the only remaining orchid grower in Collier County.

■ Feb. 20: "Shades and Textures of Green" - Ray Pelletier of Ray's Lawn & Garden Center will discuss how to create a lush landscape in sun or shade. In addition to ground maintenance, pest control, fertilization, irrigation and landscape design services, the garden center offers a wide variety of shrubs, annuals, perennials, soils and organic vegetables.

■ Feb. 27: "Gardens for Wildlife and Butterflies" - Self-described "butterfly lunatic" Mike Malloy, a landscape professional and Collier County Master Gardener, will discuss how to attract wildlife and butterflies to the garden. Mr. Malloy is the author of "Butterfly Gardening Made Easy" and "Tropical Color: A Guide to Colorful Plants." He writes about gardening in the Naples Daily News and conducts the free plant clinic on Thursday mornings at Naples Botanical Garden.

■ March 6: "What's Old Is New and What's New Is Old" - Horticulturist Craig Morell of Pinecrest Gardens in Miami will present the program. A lifelong plant accumulator with a yen for epiphytes, Mr. Morell has worked as a nursery inspector for the Florida Department of Agriculture, as a horticulturist at the Boca Raton Resort and as a managing grower for an orchid company in West Palm Beach. He travels widely and spends his free time orchid gardening at home in South Miami.

■ March 13: Garden tour - For series subscribers only, the final event of 2014 will consist of a tour of a private waterfront garden in Naples.

Reservations for individual sessions are not required. For information about subscribing to the series, visit the Collier County Extension Service website at www.collier.ifas.ufl.edu. ■

After witnessing the unthinkable at 12 years old - her mother shot at the hands of her stepfather - Velma quit school and started picking in the fields of Immokalee to support her brothers and sisters.

Velma remained upbeat and had a family of her own, but then experienced multiple, devastating losses and trauma and was diagnosed with a debilitating health issue. She felt suicide was the only way to escape her sadness, fear and pain. For her children's sake, she finally asked for help from the David Lawrence Center.

Here she found hope, healing and tools to cope with her mental and physical health problems by working with a case manager, therapist, and utilizing the Center's new, innovative telemedicine technology to meet routinely with her psychiatrist in Naples remotely from the Immokalee office.

Her Mind is Our Concern.

Mental health is a community issue.
Fortunately, there's a community solution.

Velma is among one in four in Collier County who suffer from a mental illness. One in nine of us will experience some form of substance abuse. When a family member, friend or coworker battles a mental health or substance abuse problem, we suffer with them. Thankfully, David Lawrence Center is here for our community.

A not-for-profit organization founded and still governed by community leaders, the David Lawrence Center is the behavioral health component of our community's healthcare network. A true local resource, it relies on donations, fees and grants to invest in the health, safety and wellbeing of our community.

When you or someone you love needs help, call on the highly compassionate, committed and competent professionals of the David Lawrence Center to inspire you to move beyond the crisis towards life-changing wellness.

Here come the gnomes

The annual gnome migration visits the Smith Children's Garden starting Saturday, Feb. 8. Young visitors just never "gnome" where the secretive little creatures will pop up along the Garden trails.

"Gnomes in the Garden is a whimsical event that inspires children and parents to actively look at what really makes up a garden and the various habitats we live among," says Brian Holley, Garden executive director. "The Smith Children's Garden is simply magical when the gnomes return."

Garden volunteers recently painted a new crop of gnomes that will be tucked among the Garden flora for visitors to spot. Visitors who see one they like to call their own are invited back to the Garden for a gnome silent auction on Saturday, March 29, as part of the 61st annual Naples Flower Show.

To celebrate the gnomes' return, families can take part in a number of activities in the Smith Children's Garden from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Feb. 8, including:

■ Build a gnome shelter - Learn about habitats and then help create gnome-size shelters out of natural materials.

■ Make a gnome hat - Show your gnome solidarity with gnomes and their mission to help nature by making and wearing your own pointy gnome hat.

■ Search for gnomes - Look high and low for the colorful elfin figures.

■ Harp sounds - Kim Adamson will entertain on the harp from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. ■

— Regular admission applies for Dog Day in the Garden and for Gnomes in the Garden. Cost is $12.95 for adults and $7.95 for dogs and for children ages 4-14. As always, Garden members (and their kids and canines) and children ages 3 and younger are admitted free. For more information, call 643-7275 or visit www.naplesgarden.org.

New substance abuse treatment resources focus on teens

Resources to help parents, health care providers, and substance abuse treatment specialists treat teens struggling with drug abuse, as well as identify and interact with those who might be at risk, were recently released by the National Institute on Drug Abuse. NIDA is part of the National Institutes of Health.

Adolescents' drug use, as well as their treatment needs, differ from those of adults. Teens abuse different substances, experience different consequences, and are less likely to seek treatment on their own because they may not want or think they need help. Parents can work with health-care professionals to find appropriate treatment, but they may be unaware that the teen is using drugs and needs help. According to the 2012 National Survey on Drug Use and Health, only 10 percent of 12- to 17-year-olds needing substance abuse treatments receive any services.

"Because critical brain circuits are still developing during the teen years, this age group is particularly susceptible to drug abuse and addiction," said NIDA Director Dr. Nora D. Volkow. "These new resources are based on recent research that has greatly advanced our understanding of the unique treatment needs of the adolescent."

A new online publication, Principles of Adolescent Substance Use Disorder Treatment: A Research Based Guide, describes the treatment approaches. Highlights include:

- Thirteen principles to consider in treating adolescent substance use disorders

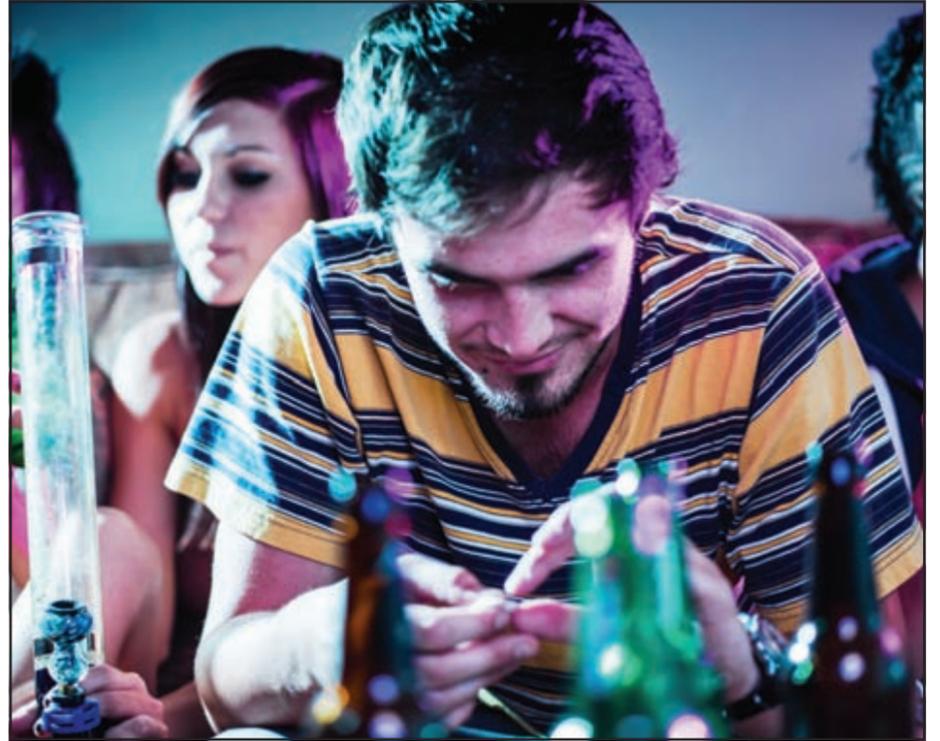

- Frequently asked questions about adolescent drug use

- Settings in which adolescent drug abuse treatment most often occurs

- Evidence-based approaches to treating adolescent substance use disorders

- The role of the family and medical professionals in identifying teen substance use and supporting treatment and recovery.

To increase early screening of adolescent substance abuse, The Substance Use Disorder in Adolescents: Screening and Engagement in Primary Care Settings educational module was created. The online curriculum resource for medical students and resident physicians provides videos demonstrating skills to use in screening adolescents at risk for or already struggling with substance use disorders. Both the patient and physician perspectives are highlighted. Although created as a training tool, the resource is also free to anyone in the public seeking information on how to interact with teens at risk for addiction.

The way of the future is customer-centric

allenWEISS

allen.weiss@nchmd.org

The practice of health care involves constant learning. And the same holds true for community leaders who volunteer their time to serve on the boards of health-care organizations.

Each winter, the nationally recognized Governance Institute brings top speakers to Naples to update board and leadership team members from around the nation on current and future trends in our profession. Mariann MacDonald and Tom Gazdic, chair and vice chair of the NCH board of trustees; Terry Flynn, chair of our foundation; Dr. Hermes Koop, chair of our quality committee; Dr. John Lewis, strategy chair; and Greg Russo, human resources and audit chair, attended the 2014 workshop last week, along with our senior leadership team. We all were brought up to speed on the raft of formidable challenges confronting our industry. Among them:

- Referencing a chart from Alan Blinder of the Federal Reserve, health system consultant Ken Kaufman demonstrated the sad reality that health-care costs will exceed the government's annual revenue (i.e., taxes) in the coming decades. The situation can become a crushing, vicious cycle, as interest expense is added for borrowed money to cover the shortfall caused by health care.

- The benefit/cost curve, which reveals where most people get the most benefit from limited resources, is neither at the end of life nor in the repair mode. Rather, it is early in life with prevention and encouraging good health habits. This is why our Blue Zone campaign for improved population health is so critical.

- The national trend clearly is moving from inpatient-centric care to outpatient-centric care. Inpatient usage is down nearly 10 percent across the country. Some experts believe that soon, Medicare one-day stays in the hospital will be a thing of the past and that hospitals will care for only very sick patients and become ICUs, operating rooms and ERs. We are noting this trend at NCH: objectively sicker patients, fewer hospital admissions, shorter stays and increased outpatient care.

- Workshop attendees learned about a wave of new, well-funded and highly capable competitors, destined to disrupt the health-care industry and move us from a wholesale to a retail business. For example, Walgreens, with stores within two miles of 90 percent of Americans, has added diagnosing and treatment of chronic conditions to its services as well as nurse practitioners in its "Take Care Clinics." Walgreens' partner is Theranos, an innovative lab company that requires only a drop of blood to do a battery of tests. With patients price-shopping in light of higher insurance deductibles and networks narrowing as the payers also shop for the best value, we can learn much from these health-care upstarts.

One clear message from this workshop is that health-care institutions such as NCH simply must become more customer-centric. Today's patients want to be included in making decisions; they desire transparency with quality and cost; and they expect full access to information about their conditions.

Cognizant of this new reality, we will always be proactive as we take actions that remain responsive to the best interests of our community and that help ensure our residents live longer, happier and healthier lives. ■

Doggone busy

Westminster entrants lead varied and active lives

BY KIM CAMPBELL THORNTON
Universal Uclick

Have you ever wondered what show dogs do in their down time? Well, they're not lolling around on the sofa and eating doggie bonbons. They're out there making therapy visits, helping kids learn to read, keeping an eye on their owners' health, and doing brain research. For real. Take a look at how some of this year's Westminster competitors spend their off days.

Trooper, whose registered name is Grand Champion Loral's Trooper, is a therapy dog who lives in Bolivia, N.C., with owners Loretta and Allen Pyeatt. He makes regular visits to area nursing homes, where he spreads his own special brand of Rottweiler cheer. He's also involved in the Bark for Reading program at a local elementary school. Reading to dogs such as Trooper helps children improve their vocabularies, comprehension and confidence.

Scientists at Emory University in Atlanta are using functional magnetic resonance imaging (fMRI) to explore what dogs are thinking. The new and harmless methodology scans the brains of alert dogs to see how they respond to hand signals given by their people. One of their test subjects is Eli (Grand Champion Aislinn's RR Elite Edition), a vizsla owned by dog trainer Lindsay Fetters of Decatur, Ga. Eli's job is to lie perfectly still in the MRI machine while researchers measure his neural activity. When he's not contributing to science, Eli trains for agility and field work and auditions for acting roles with Atlanta Dogworks.

When children are victims of or witnesses to crimes, having a dog to snuggle with can help them deal with the trauma. That's where border terrier Ticket (Champion Otley's No Parking) comes in. The victim/crime witness dog, owned by attorney D'Arcy Downs-Vollbracht of Golden Valley, Ariz., logs many hours at crime scenes and in court, serving as a steadying influence for children who have been caught up in crimes or must testify. Ticket's work carries over to local junior high schools, where she participates in an annual domestic-violence education program. She also makes therapy visits to hospitals, hospice wards and schools.

Kenzie doesn't have an M.D., but her keen senses allow her to sense when owner Alicia Moore of Chesapeake Beach, Md., has low blood sugar. The rough collie, formally known as Moore's Alaiinn Aoife, will be competing in Westminster's first agility trial, but her most important job is serving as Moore's diabetic-alert dog. "I have to be certain that my blood sugar is not low or going low, or she won't run with me," Moore says.

"Crime" does pay — at least for Debra Lazaro of Jackson, N.J., who owns and handles Westminster agility competitor OnTargets Prison Break. The striking mixed breed with the humorous personality has landed many show-biz roles, including appearances with Jennifer Aniston and Tim Robbins in the 2013 flick "Life of Crime" and with Willem Dafoe and Keanu Reeves in 2014's "John Wick." Crime also participates in herding events — fleecing the competition, no doubt. Grant (Grand Champion Starfield's Army Strong V Bulkley, a German shorthaired pointer owned by Steve Herman of Baltimore, Md., likes to take a long jump off a short bridge. His dock-diving record is 21 feet, 11 inches. Not content with making a splash in canine aquatics, Grant also holds Junior Hunter and Novice Retrieving Dog titles. You can't say that dog don't hunt.

The Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show is televised live Monday, Feb. 10, on CNBC, from 8 to 11 p.m. Eastern time. On Tuesday, Feb. 11, the telecast will be on USA Network from 8 to 11 p.m. ET. For the first time, Tuesday's telecast will also be seen live in the Pacific time zone from 5 to 8 p.m. ■

I was nothing less than devastated recently to learn that keyhole sleeves are no longer stylish and, in fact, have not been stylish since 2011. I'm talking about the blouses and dresses with the split up the center of each sleeve that allow those of us who do not have Michelle Obama's amazingly toned arms to wear something that, at least, shows a hint of skin.

Now, mind you, this revelation came from a Facebook comment via another friend's discussion thread about clothes. And the lady who proclaimed keyhole sleeves as over lives in California — Los Angeles, to be specific — and I tend to believe that no matter how much we Florida fashionistas think we're keeping up with the trends, well, we're probably not. And that's OK because we're not L.A. or NYC.

I mean, it's sort of pathetic that a comment on Facebook would have me totally reconsidering every keyhole-sleeve top or dress in my wardrobe, but it did.

After a few minutes of fretting, however, I decided that nothing you own that's flattering on you and makes you feel good to wear should ever be considered out of style. Unless it's a mullet dress (high in the front and low in the back). I do have issues with those because they just don't look good on anyone over the age of 15. I'm sorry, but it's the truth. I think everything else is fair game. I'm going to include drawstring pants as in style because as we continue to recover from the holidays, drawstring pants are like wearing a cozy, forgiving friend (just make sure whatever you wear up top covers the unfortunate drawstring, for obvious reasons).

A search on the World Wide Web turned up a few articles indicating that tiered dresses are also passé, but I know that strategically placed tiers can prevent real tears from flowing. I love a good tier dress, especially if it involves chiffon or taffeta.

Apparently, peplum, the ingenious flare that expertly hides all sins from the waist to the top of the thigh, is also yesterday's news, which is just not fair.

And about muumuus, all I can say is: Do not mess with the muu! Fashion bloggers might try to tell me that the muumuu is "oh-so-summer-of-2010", but I don't believe it. As long as I can still buy them in bulk from Target, muumuus shall remain fashionable in Southwest Florida.

And as far as my '90s-style long hippie skirts go, well you'll just have to pry them from my cold dead hands. These cheap, colorful, skirts with the little jingle bells at the end of the drawstrings will come back. I just know it. Besides, they look good with my keyhole sleeve tops.

Make a dash

You can forget about comfort on Friday, Feb. 7, if you decide to don your best red frock and make a run for it at the Go Red For Women Red Dress Dash along Fifth Avenue South. The sprint steps out at 5 p.m. and is all in fun to benefit the American Heart Association. It's over pretty quickly, and you can reward yourself with a happy hour cocktail after the dash. Go to www.swflgored.heart.org for more info.

I'm a diva who's all about glitter, so I was excited to hear about fabulous jewelry designer Amanda Jaron's Glitter Foundation launch party, happening in the Presidential Suite at the Inn on Fifth on Tuesday evening, Feb. 11. More than just pixie dust, Amanda's philanthropic efforts aim to give area children the opportunity to achieve their dreams. The coming-out party from 6-9 p.m. will feature wine, champagne, food from local celeb Chef Brian Roland, a silent auction and more. Tickets are $125, and space is limited. Call 293-2932. ■

A GUIDE TO THE LOCAL BUSINESS & REAL ESTATE INDUSTRIES

Employee wellness

Companies spend on health programs to keep costs down

BY NANCI THEORET
Florida Weekly Correspondent

With an increasing emphasis on longer work days, shorter lunch hours and 24/7 accessibility, the modern-day workplace is a picture of poor health. Today's workforce, like the American population as a whole, is overweight, stressed out and facing medical issues that ultimately impact their company's bottom line.

Rising health insurance costs, reduced productivity and increased sick days — all symptoms of a sedentary lifestyle and bad food choices — have forced business to take their employees' health to heart, even if it means footing the bill for wellness programs, gym memberships and smoking cessation.

The annual financial toll of unhealthy employees on business is staggering: $225.8 billion in lost productivity due to health issues and $93 billion in insurance claims for obesity and related chronic diseases. When businesses invest in their employees' health, studies show they stand to gain a $3.50-to-$1 savings-to-cost ratio while reducing health costs, workers compensation claims and sick leave by at least 25 percent according to the Lee County Horizon Council.

No industry is immune, not even hospitals.

"We're great at taking care of everyone else except ourselves," says Dr. Sal Lacagnina, vice president for health and wellness at Lee Memorial Health System, Lee County's largest employer. "Several years ago we looked at the health of our employees and realized a lot of them were not very healthy."

MONEY & INVESTING

Plan your estate, no matter what the size of your assets dictates of a lawyer, children or your spouse. These are your individual assets (and or your assets held jointly with a spouse) and their distribution needs to reflect your unique reasoning and intent.

With the five Ws answered, you can work on the next steps; to affect your plan through legal counsel or self-education. As most estate planning attorneys offer a free initial consultation, you are wise to visit with a few as you will garner many ideas and determine if this is a path you plan to go alone.

The core documents of estate planning are: the will; an assignment of (business/financial) power of attorney; an assignment of a medical power of attorney and a living will.

When choosing persons to act as executor of your will or the person to act on your various powers of attorney, make sure the person is extremely trustworthy and will execute your intent. So you need to have some meaningful discussions with these persons so that they know exactly what you want. However, in the end, if you give them all-encompassing, final authority they might still act in ways other than your interests.

For example, the appointed person under a health care power of attorney might choose medical treatment other than what you would want; he might choose life-extending surgeries that you, if competent, would not choose. It might be that your financial power of attorney (having all-encompassing powers) elects to gift assets during your

Whether you are wealthy or not, you need a basic estate plan. You need a plan that gives directions for distributions of your assets upon death and gives authority to make financial and medical decision making should you become incapacitated.

Some might wonder how estate planning for the less wealthy has anything in common with plans for the very wealthy. In fact, there are core issues and instruments that are used in all estate planning.

The core issues might be best explained as the five Ws of who, what, when, where and why.

■ Who are the people, (family and other loved ones) and institutions (e.g., hospitals, colleges, churches, etc.) for whom/which you want to provide?

■ What is your list of assets that are available for gifting (and liabilities that must be repaid at time of death)?

■ When do you want the recipients to receive these assets? This is especially applicable to minors and children of all ages who are to receive a large estate.

■ Where are you domiciled and is it most advantageous for your estate?

And finally, make sure the “Whys” behind this giving reflects neither a cookie-cutter approach nor follows the time of incompetency and that the gifting is contrary and harmful to what was planned by your will.

A will specifies the distribution of your assets except for those assets covered under a trust or otherwise having a specifically identified beneficiary, e.g., brokerage accounts, insurance policies, bank accounts, etc. A will can be contested as a person can legally claim that he was entitled to more, different, or sooner distributions. A will must proceed through probate court and it can be costly and time consuming. A will's terms are public. A trust obviates most of those issues.

Even if you are “all suited up” — having wills, and trust and powers of attorney — you should still visit with your estate planning attorney at least once a year as your family relationships change (widow, divorce, estranged children, loved ones with health issues, etc.), our assets and liabilities change, and tax laws change.

In fact, many Floridians who have created bypass trusts in order to lower or eliminate estate taxation might no longer need such bypass trusts. The Dodd Frank Act made permanent the right for the unused portion of the per person $5.25 million estate exemption (with escalation clauses) to be rolled forward to a surviving spouse, allowing the unused portion to be added to the surviving spouse's $5.25 million exemption. This column can't provide all the details, but it is meant to illustrate that there have been some tax law changes and you need to consult an attorney.

Consult your estate planning attorney at least on an annual basis. If you have no plan, then make a plan and possibly use interim instruments until such time as the better, all-encompassing, possibly more complicate plan is formulated. If your estate is very small, then at least create a will and a health care power of attorney and living will; the latter documents really help hospitals caring for persons who are critically ill. The fact that you have few financial assets does not mean that you are without personal effects that you want to designate to love ones.

Finally, consider writing a letter to your loved ones letting them know how much they mean to you and some admonitions for their prospective years. The will might be read several times but your last letter of love might be read hundreds of times and passed on to future generations — a lasting legacy. ■

Six-week class can assist emerging entrepreneurs

The Goodwill Southwest Florida MicroEnterprise Institute welcomes emerging entrepreneurs to sign up for its Naples class that will be held over six weeks beginning Tuesday, Feb. 11, at Barron Collier High School. Participants complete a 12-module course in business and management and work with mentors who are successful businesspersons.

"In addition, we have a micro-

Registration is $65. Classes will meet from 6-9 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. Topics will cover everything from accounting to marketing, insurance and funding. Upon completion of the course, eligible participants can apply for a microloan collateral guarantee from Goodwill.

Naples-based Coastal Concrete Products has acquired acreage on Alico Road in South Fort Myers for the relocation of its production facility and administrative offices from the current Prospect Avenue location.

President David Torres says the new 6-acre property, purchased from Synovus Bank, aligns with the company's plans to expand its product line and its operations into the forming and installation of cast-in-place concrete structures, as well as continued growth in site development.

Coastal Concrete Products holds the exclusive manufacturing license on Florida's west coast for StoneTree Concrete Fence Wall Systems. In addition to Collier and Lee counties, the territory includes Manatee, Hardy, Sarasota, DeSoto, Highlands, Charlotte, Glades and Hendry counties. The company has been producing stackable concrete systems since 1988 and has grown to include 44 fulltime employees since its acquisition by a private investor group in 2011. ■

The system beefed up its employee wellness programs in 2010 by creating Dr. Lacagnina's position and including preventive services in its health plan. "If employees don't have access to paid preventive services like breast and colon cancer screenings, they're going to do without," he says. "If we find a small colon polyp early, it's easier to treat before it becomes cancer, and requires more costly chemotherapy and missed work."

The system has invested $2 million to improve the health of its workforce, which numbers 10,000 employees and 17,000 people covered under its insurance plan. When it instituted mandatory blood work and biometrics, there were rumblings of Big Brother thinning out the herd.

"'Forced' was a word they used but it was actually a good thing and many employees thanked us later," Dr. Lacagnina says. "We found many people with undiagnosed diabetes, uncontrolled high blood pressure, cancers and other health issues. Our goal was never to play Big Brother but to find out where people really needed help."

Tracking employee data — weight, body mass index, height and health-care utilization — has demonstrated the wellness focus is working. "Employees are using less health care dollars and health-care costs are decreasing quarter after quarter," says Dr. Lacagnina. "We're seeing a two-to-one savings."

Last April, Lee Memorial introduced its most comprehensive program to date, the Complete Health Improvement Program, offered through Lifestyle Medical Institute. Employees identified with higher risk factors attend twice weekly sessions focusing on plant-based nutrition and regular exercise. To ensure employees are vested, they pay $300 of the $1,300 fee. Participants also receive a complimentary wellness membership for a year and quarterly lifestyle coaching.

Although CHIP results won't be official until its first-year anniversary, the program has had tremendous success: Employees who no longer have to take diabetes or blood pressure medication and an average weight loss of 11 pounds in nine weeks.

Currently 80 employees are enrolled in CHIP, with 50 new participants being added to March and June sessions.

"We've really tried to give them no excuse not to be involved," says Dr. Lacagnina. "We want our employees to see themselves as role models of healthy living, that incorporating healthy daily habits makes a difference in everyone around them. They cook better at home, their kids eat healthier and they pass along this knowledge to family and friends."

The Horizon Council, a public-private economic development advisory board, has also recognized the importance of employee wellness to businesses. Members of its health-care taskforce served as test subjects for an inaugural fitness challenge two years ago. Lessons learned from the contest and other businesses with a strong wellness culture will be presented during a March 12 workplace wellness summit at Florida South Western State College.

"A lot of companies want to offer wellness and promote it in the workplace. They just don't know how to get started," says taskforce chairman Gary Griffin, president of B&I Contractors, a commercial air, plumbing and electric contractor with more than 300 employees from Tampa to its Fort Myers headquarters. "We hope folks will leave with the knowledge of what they can do to implement wellness programs in their companies."

Mr. Griffin, the male winner of the council's fitness challenge, says the employee-owned B&I has focused on employee wellness since the mid-2000s, first offering help to quit smoking and adding health club reimbursement. The company, which pays 75 percent of employee insurance coverage, also offers a comprehensive online health assessment through its insurance provider. He's considering offering an insurance rebate to get more employees to complete the survey.

Betsy Opyt, a registered dietitian and guru of healthy living, has worked with several local companies since launching Healthy Concepts Consulting, a nutrition and wellness firm in Naples. She emphasizes healthy eating, exercise and stress management.

Faced with constantly rising health insurance premiums and, in some cases, possible federal penalties associated with the Affordable Care Act, more companies are seeking out Ms. Opyt's expertise

"There's so much pressure to keep health-care costs down," she says. "More employers are taking value in their employees' health because they realize healthy employees are more productive at work and have a positive attitude."

Ms. Opyt developed a 12-week "Survivor of the Fittest" challenge last summer for London Bay Homes. The program included monthly "Lunch and Learn" educational talks with a healthy meal, morning and evening exercise classes and weekly challenges. Participants also earned points for accomplishing daily goals: eating five servings of fruits and vegetables; logging 10,000 steps; and climbing the equivalent of 12 flights of stairs.

The Naples builder also picked up the tab for gym memberships and outfitted each employee with Fitbit monitors to record daily activity and calories burned.

One executive shed 20 pounds by logging 20,000 steps a day. "He'd walk an hour in the morning and hour after work," she says. "It's funny because he was a guy I didn't think would be involved or motivated. We recognized him by buying him new shoes. He wore out his other pair."

Assistant controller Christine Limotta was up for the challenge. Her team placed first and she won the overall woman's challenge and six personal training sessions.

"The challenge really created camaraderie around the office," she says. "Everyone encouraged each other."

Ms. Opyt also noticed the encouragement and support throughout the London Bay office. "There was a lot of sharing and teambuilding. After lunch, employees would encourage their colleagues to go outside and walk for 10 to 15 minutes. The ongoing feedback I kept hearing was how employees were more aware and more focused on making better food choices and trying harder to exercise," she says.

Ms. Opyt is getting ready to launch London Bay's second challenge, "Move it and Lose it," which this time around will include body composition with pre- and post-challenge body fat analysis and inch measurements.

"Everyone is looking forward to another challenge," says Ms. Limotta.

Adding to the challenge is the timing: During the builder's busiest time of the year.

Sometimes the most stressful times are the best of times to keep employees on track. Markham Norton Mosteller Wright & Co's accountants and business consultants gave the thumbs up for a second office-wide wellness challenge despite the crunch of tax season.

"It was something they wanted to start Jan. 2 during the hardest time of the year," says Christi Pritchett Sarlo, the Fort Myers firm's marketing and client relations manager who created and coordinates the voluntary program. "It helps balance everything out."

MNMW was honored by the American Heart Association as a 2013 gold Fit Friendly Worksite and partner Gail Markham got the idea of an employee program after experiencing the Horizon Council challenge.

"We had a tremendous amount of success last year," says Ms. Sarlo. "Some employees lost 30 to 40 pounds and others became super-involved with a gym," she says. "We had a couple of smokers who we never encouraged to quit but they quit on their own, which was miraculous."

Lee Memorial works with the company, providing benchmark biometrics from blood tests and personal interviews. Additional testing is performed after 90 days with the consulting physician determining the overall winner based on documented health improvements.

Incentives help fuel the competition. The winner of the inaugural challenge earned a weekend on Useppa Island.

"It was really great to see people get up and walk down the hall to ask someone a question instead of picking up their phone," Ms. Sarlo says. "I really try to promote stretching and getting out of the office for a five- to 10-minute walk and being social, which is one of the best ways to reduce stress. You'd also see people do some crazy exercises in their chairs and at their desks."

MNMW's program costs about $100 per employee, including fees for blood work. "It's not a big capital expense and the benefits are substantial in terms of changed attitudes and morale," says Ms. Sarlo. "Everyone's not as tired and we've seen a decrease in personal time off and sick time. Our employees are happier, healthier and working harder." ■

Profits Over Promises

Many of us are seeking great investments for our portfolios. When we run across a mailing or online post hyping a little-known stock as the next great investment, it can be hard to resist. But that's very often the right thing to do. Most of the stocks that are breathlessly promoted are risky penny stocks (that is, priced below about $5 per share).

Here are some red flags to watch out for:

- Lots of capital letters and exclamation marks, along with appeals to your emotions. If you're being told about "an Oil-Stock Gusher" or that a company has a deal in the works that "points to HUGE Profits for early shareholders," be wary.

- Strangely specific claims, such as that an expected deal "will soon drive the stock above $20!" or that you can expect a newsletter's future recommendations to rise more than 30 percent in fewer than 30 days. At such a rate of return, a single $1,000 investment would grow to more than $6.8 billion in just five years.

- An unprofessional company website. If you look up the company's website, and it features poor grammar and misspellings and pages "under construction" or absent, that's a bad sign. You should find clear, honest communication from the company and be able to find audited financial statements for it, too.

If you're tempted to buy, ask yourself this: If these tiny companies really are such compelling bargains, why would they need to advertise? Wouldn't knowledgeable folks already have discovered them? And if there were demand for the shares, wouldn't their prices have risen, rather than fallen to "bargain" levels?

A seemingly inexpensive share price doesn't mean a stock is a good value. A 50-cent stock can soon become a 5-cent one (and often does), while a $100 stock can double to $200 and keep growing. When researching companies, look for growing sales and earnings, little debt, ample cash and sustainable competitive advantages. Don't just fall for an exciting story. Favor proven profits over possibilities. ■

My Dumbest Investment

Didn't Sell Apple

My worst investment decision was not selling Apple at $700 per share. I believed the hype that it would hit $1,000. I did manage to escape by $550. I realized a very good return on my initial investment, but greed got in the way of a great return.

— S.M.T., Cranford, N.J.

The Fool Responds: You submitted this regret some months ago, when Apple shares were trading in the low $400s. They've recently been in the low $500s, reminding us of the value of patience.

Try not to evaluate your investments by looking backward, at how much they've grown or shrunk. Instead, try to assess whether they're overvalued or undervalued considering how well you expect the company to perform going forward.

If you thought, for example, that Apple would keep introducing innovative products and charging premium prices for them, you might have opted to ride out downturns, expecting shares to recover and keep growing — to $1,000 and beyond. If you thought Apple's growth phase was over or even if you were just very uncertain, maybe selling was smart, no matter the stock price. ■

Last week's trivia answer

Based in Tennessee, I trace my history back to the 1878 founding of The Penny Press in Cleveland. I became one of the most successful newspaper publishers and later an operator of many local television stations. In order to become less dependent on advertising dollars, I grew into one of America's biggest cable television operators. I sold my cable business later, to Comcast. A few years ago I spun off my local television and newspaper businesses and kept my collection of national TV brands, such as HGTV, Travel Channel, DIY Network, Cooking Channel and Great American Country. Who am I? (Answer: Scripps Networks Interactive) ■

Risky Borrowing

Q How does buying stocks "on margin" work?

— J.M., Kalamazoo, Mich.

A It's when you invest with money borrowed from your brokerage, paying interest for the privilege. Using margin will amplify your gains — but also your losses.

Here's an extreme example: Imagine that you hold $100,000 of stocks and you borrow $100,000 on margin to invest in additional stock. If your $200,000 portfolio doubles in value to $400,000, you'll have earned an extra $100,000 (less interest expense) thanks to margin.

But if your holdings drop by 50 percent, they'll be worth $100,000 and you'll still owe $100,000 (plus interest). That will leave you with ... nothing. Your holdings dropped by 50 percent, but margin amplified that to a total, 100 percent loss. Margin cuts both ways.

Consider the interest expense, too. If you're borrowing on margin and paying 9 percent interest, you should be pretty confident your borrowed stocks will appreciate more than 9 percent. If they fall below a certain level, you'll receive a "margin call." If you can't add the required additional dollars, the brokerage will sell some of your holdings to generate the cash, possibly resulting in short-term capital gains taxed at high rates.

Only experienced investors should use margin, and many have done well without ever using it.

Q When someone says he's "taking profits," what does that mean?

— V., Strasburg, Va.

A It involves selling all or part of your position in a holding that has appreciated. For example, if your stock in Home Surgery Kits (ticker: OUCH) has tripled, you're sitting on a nice gain. But it's just a "paper" gain until you actually sell. When you sell, you take some or all of your profit. ■

Name That Company

Two brothers founded me in 1871 in Ohio. Today I'm the largest domestic pottery company, specializing in high-fired, lead-free glazes. Based in West Virginia now, I employ more than 1,100 people. For a time, I made toilet ware, such as china basins. In the early 1900s, I had the world's largest pottery plant and boasted about 10 percent of U.S. pottery production capacity. In the 1950s, facing competition from inexpensive imported din-nerware, I expanded into hotel and restaurant offerings. You might expect food at Spanish religious festivals to be served on my flagship dishes. Who am I?

The Motley Fool Take

The ABCs of EMC

You probably haven't heard of EMC (NYSE: EMC), but the stock market recently valued the company at more than $50 billion, ahead of General Motors, Target and FedEx.

EMC is the world's largest provider of data-storage systems, serving large and small companies and government agencies around the world. It employs more than 60,000 people and has more than 400 sales offices in 86 countries.

EMC continues to benefit from the rising demand for video bandwidth and electronic data storage capacity. The company has also been scaling up its involvement in cloud-computing and data analytics services. (It owns most of the cloud-computing specialist VMware, too.)

EMC's balance sheet is solid, with more than $6 billion in cash and short-term investments, giving it the ability to pounce on opportunities and little debt to constrain it. It has averaged double-digit annual growth rates for revenue and earnings over the past three years, too.

The technology arena is not for the risk-averse. But with a forward-looking price-to-earnings (P/E) ratio near 11, well below its five-year average near 24, EMC's stock is looking rather attractive. It offers a 1.5 percent dividend yield, too, and has been buying back many of its shares, boosting the value of remaining ones. (The Motley Fool owns shares of EMC and VMware, and its newsletters have recommended VMware, FedEx and General Motors.) ■

Redevelopment plans proceeding at Vi at Bentley Village

SPECIAL TO FLORIDA WEEKLY

A three-year redevelopment project at Vi at Bentley Village, a continuing care retirement community in North Naples, continues on target, and according to Executive Director Ann Walsh, there is a strong early demand for the new independent living residences.

Vi retained the Naples-based architecture firm of Stofft Cooney for the $65 million project. Renderings were recently unveiled and are now available at the community and can be seen online at www.viliving.com.

Ms. Walsh says ground will be broken this month for a new sales center overlooking Lake Tranquility. Site development plans for the sales center have been submitted to Collier County for approval and the permitting process is under way. A fall opening is planned, she adds.

Seventy-two new independent living apartments will be connected to one of the community's two new clubhouses. Residents living in these new apartments will have indoor access to Bentley Village's new theater, auditorium, two dining venues, library, arts and crafts room and lounge. The clubhouses and new apartments are scheduled for completion in late 2016.

More than 500 people attended two recent private events for prospective residents.

Bentley Village's 156-acre campus has an 18-hole executive golf course, 12 miles of walking trails and cart paths and an array of outdoor amenities including swimming pools, driving range and tennis and bocce courts. ■

— Vi recently celebrated its 25th anniversary as a developer, owner and operator of 10 older adult living communities in six states. The company is dedicated to enriching the lives of older adults by providing quality environments, services and care. For more information, visit www.viliving.com.

A GUIDE TO THE LOCAL REAL ESTATE INDUSTRY

WEEK OF FEBRUARY 6-12, 2014

Developer introduces Mangrove Bay

Mangrove Bay, a waterfront community of 52 homes on 15-plus acres along the Gordon River, is the latest project by longtime Southwest Florida developer Jon Rubinton.

"We've saved the exceptional for last," says Mr. Rubinton, who is also the managing broker of Paradise Realty of Naples. "We have listened to buyers and the local real estate community and designed homes that fill a real niche, with expansive and well-appointed outdoor living areas, first-floor master suites in each floor plan and the ability for buyers to customize their residences."

The one- and two-story Old Naples cottage-style homes come complete with private pools and individual boat slips. The nearby area boasts world-class dining and shopping as well as a wide range of fitness activities such as public and private golf, tennis and the state-of-the-art NCH Wellness Center. Mangrove Bay residents will also enjoy easy access to the proposed new city park and bridge accessing the 300-acre Greenway Preserve.

An on-site concierge will provide services ranging from airport limousine transportation and grocery shopping to car and boat detailing and restaurant reservations. The concierge center will have three guest suites that can be reserved by residents for their visitors.

Homes in Mangrove Bay range from 2,600 square feet to 3,800 square feet under air. Guesthouses are standard with each courtyard home and are optional with waterfront home. Five floor plans are available, each with three optional exterior elevations. Homes are priced from the low $2 millions.

On the waterfront

The waterfront collection at Mangrove Bay consists of three designs, each with three elevation options:

- The Captiva I offers single-story living with approximately 2,586 square feet under air and a three-bedroom, 3½-bath floor plan with side

The 'new-fashioned' way

Talis Park homebuyers have an array of luxury lifestyle options

SPECIAL TO FLORIDA WEEKLY

Developer Kitson & Partners is bringing an energized spirit to Talis Park by introducing a lifestyle that is more focused on personal health and well-being, more attuned to family and friends and more conscious of long-term value and legacy. The "new-fashioned" concept is inspiring the evolution of Talis Park and is the foundation for the community.

The neighborhoods in Talis Park offer the possibility of living in a park-like setting or in a maintenance-free environment within walking distance of the village center. This "in-the-park" or "in-the-village" approach reflects the developer's commitment to creating a community where every aspect is relevant to its residents' daily lives. A diverse offering of estate homes, villa residences and condominiums is priced from the mid-$600,000s into the millions.

The Resident Ready program includes more than 20 homes ranging from fully furnished models to completed, unfurnished homes to residences in varying stages of construction. Buyers can choose the stage at which they engage in the buying process and the degree to which they prefer to be involved with feature and finish selections. Homes are available at every stage of the construction continuum.

Park living

The 2,600-square-foot to 3,400-square-foot Park Homes in the Brightling neighborhood offer golf course, water and preserve views. Caribbean Colonial and Spanish Eclectic designs with three or four bedrooms, a study, formal dining rooms, island kitchens, spacious master suites and outdoor living areas with swimming pools are base-priced from $1 million. In addition to numerous residences under construction, designer-decorated models by Sunwest Homes and Fox Custom Builders are available for viewing in Brightling.

As in Brightling, homes in the neighborhood of Fairgrove enjoy the views that are a hallmark of Talis Park. Both neighborhoods are "single loaded" with south-facing homes on one side of the street. Views to the north include a preserve and an adjacent golf course. Fairgrove's Italian Renaissance designs honor traditional Neapolitan architecture and are joined by a Spanish Eclectic style. Furnished models by Harbourside Custom Homes and Iron Star Luxury Homes range from 3,400 square feet to 4,000 square feet and include great rooms, formal dining rooms, island kitchens, three or four bedrooms, a study and outdoor living areas with pools. Base price of homes in Fairgrove is from $1.2 million.

Ranging from 3,400 square feet to 4,000 square feet, luxury villas in Pistoia face a nature preserve and enjoy golf and water views to the rear. An unfurnished, 3,685-square-foot residence by Divco Construction Corp. is available and has three bedrooms, a study, formal living and dining rooms, island kitchen, family room and an outdoor living area with a pool, spa and outdoor kitchen. Base price of homes in Pistoia is from $1.45 million.

Those envisioning a custom estate residence will appreciate the Prato neighborhood, an enclave with some of the most spectacular views in Talis Park. Prato offers Park Estate Homes, the community's flagship residences, built by participating custom builders. Homebuyers can work with Talis Park architects or can select their own. On homesites that are 125-by-175 feet, homes in Prato range from 4,500 square feet to more than 7,000 square feet and begin at $2.5 million.

Village living

In-the-village residences in the Watercourse neighborhood combine the comfort of a single-family home with a vibrant village ambience. Homes open to indoor/outdoor spaces and have water views. Spanish Eclectic great room designs by

Iron Star Luxury Homes' 3,506-square-foot La Villa Sul Verde model in Fairgrove at Talis Park is a European-style residence with interior design by Charlie Hansen and Rebekah Errett-Pikosky of Clive Daniel Home.

Distinctive Communities are priced from the $900,000s and range from 2,500 square feet to 3,600 square feet with three or four bedrooms, island kitchens and outdoor living areas with pools. Two furnished models are open and available for purchase in Watercourse.

Another in-the-village option is the midrise condominium community of Carrara. By WCI Communities, Carrara will have 84 residences in 14 buildings, each with three floors over secured parking. Each floor will have just two residences, each with a private elevator lobby, a spacious great room, an island kitchen, an "on-the-view" master suite, two en suite guestrooms, a library/media room and a powder bath. The penthouse-style residences have more than 2,900 square feet of air-conditioned living space and wraparound loggias for maximum views. Priced from the mid-$600,000s, the Carrara residences will overlook the fairways and greens of Talis Park's Greg Norman-Pete Dye designed golf course.

Watercourse and Carrara are a short walk from the Grand Piazza, which includes Vyne House, and from the Casa Cortese Golf Studio.

Vyne House consists of a series of lifestyle-oriented spaces designed for every-day use, with buildings interconnected by covered walkways and wrapped around multiple courtyards. Vyne House includes Fiona's Market Café that features fresh, local fare, wine selections and bar service, as well as the Core Fitness Center and Esprit Spa. The newly expanded Casa Cortese Grille offers a covered outdoor dining venue and bar pavilion. ■

Bottom left: The Watercourse and Carrara neighborhoods at Talis Park offer an "in-the-village" lifestyle that is within easy walking distance of the community's Grand Piazza and Vyne House.

A GUIDE TO THE LOCAL ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT SCENE

It's show time for fledgling theater troupe

BY DON MANLEY

Florida Weekly Correspondent

What worked for Mickey Rooney's character "Andy Hardy" in the same-name film series is also working for the founders of the Let's Put On A Show Productions community theater group in Golden Gate.

The "Andy Hardy" catchphrase "let's put on a show" describes the journey that culminated in the founding of the troupe by Scott Lilly and Kevin Moriarty. Productions are staged in the Joan Jenks Auditorium at the Gate Community Center.

The newest show, "Seminar: A New Comedy," opens Friday, Feb. 7, and runs through Feb. 22. Mr. Lilly directs, and Mr. Moriarty serves as artistic director.

The two men, residents of Golden Gate and Marco Island, respectively, say they spent two years batting around the idea of forming a theater group before making the thought a reality in 2012.

"We really didn't know how to go about doing it," says Mr. Moriarty, who like Mr. Lilly, has acted in plays on Marco. "We wanted to do things that maybe were a little bit different, a little bit out of the box, along with original pieces, too. We weren't going to limit ourselves to one genre of theater."

Mr. Lilly enjoyed acting in high school plays but says theater took a backseat to real life pursuits after graduation. The interest never disappeared, however. "It was always there," he says. "Then I got to the age where I said, 'I'm not going to be around forever, so let's just do something. If we sink, we sink. If we succeed, we succeed.'"

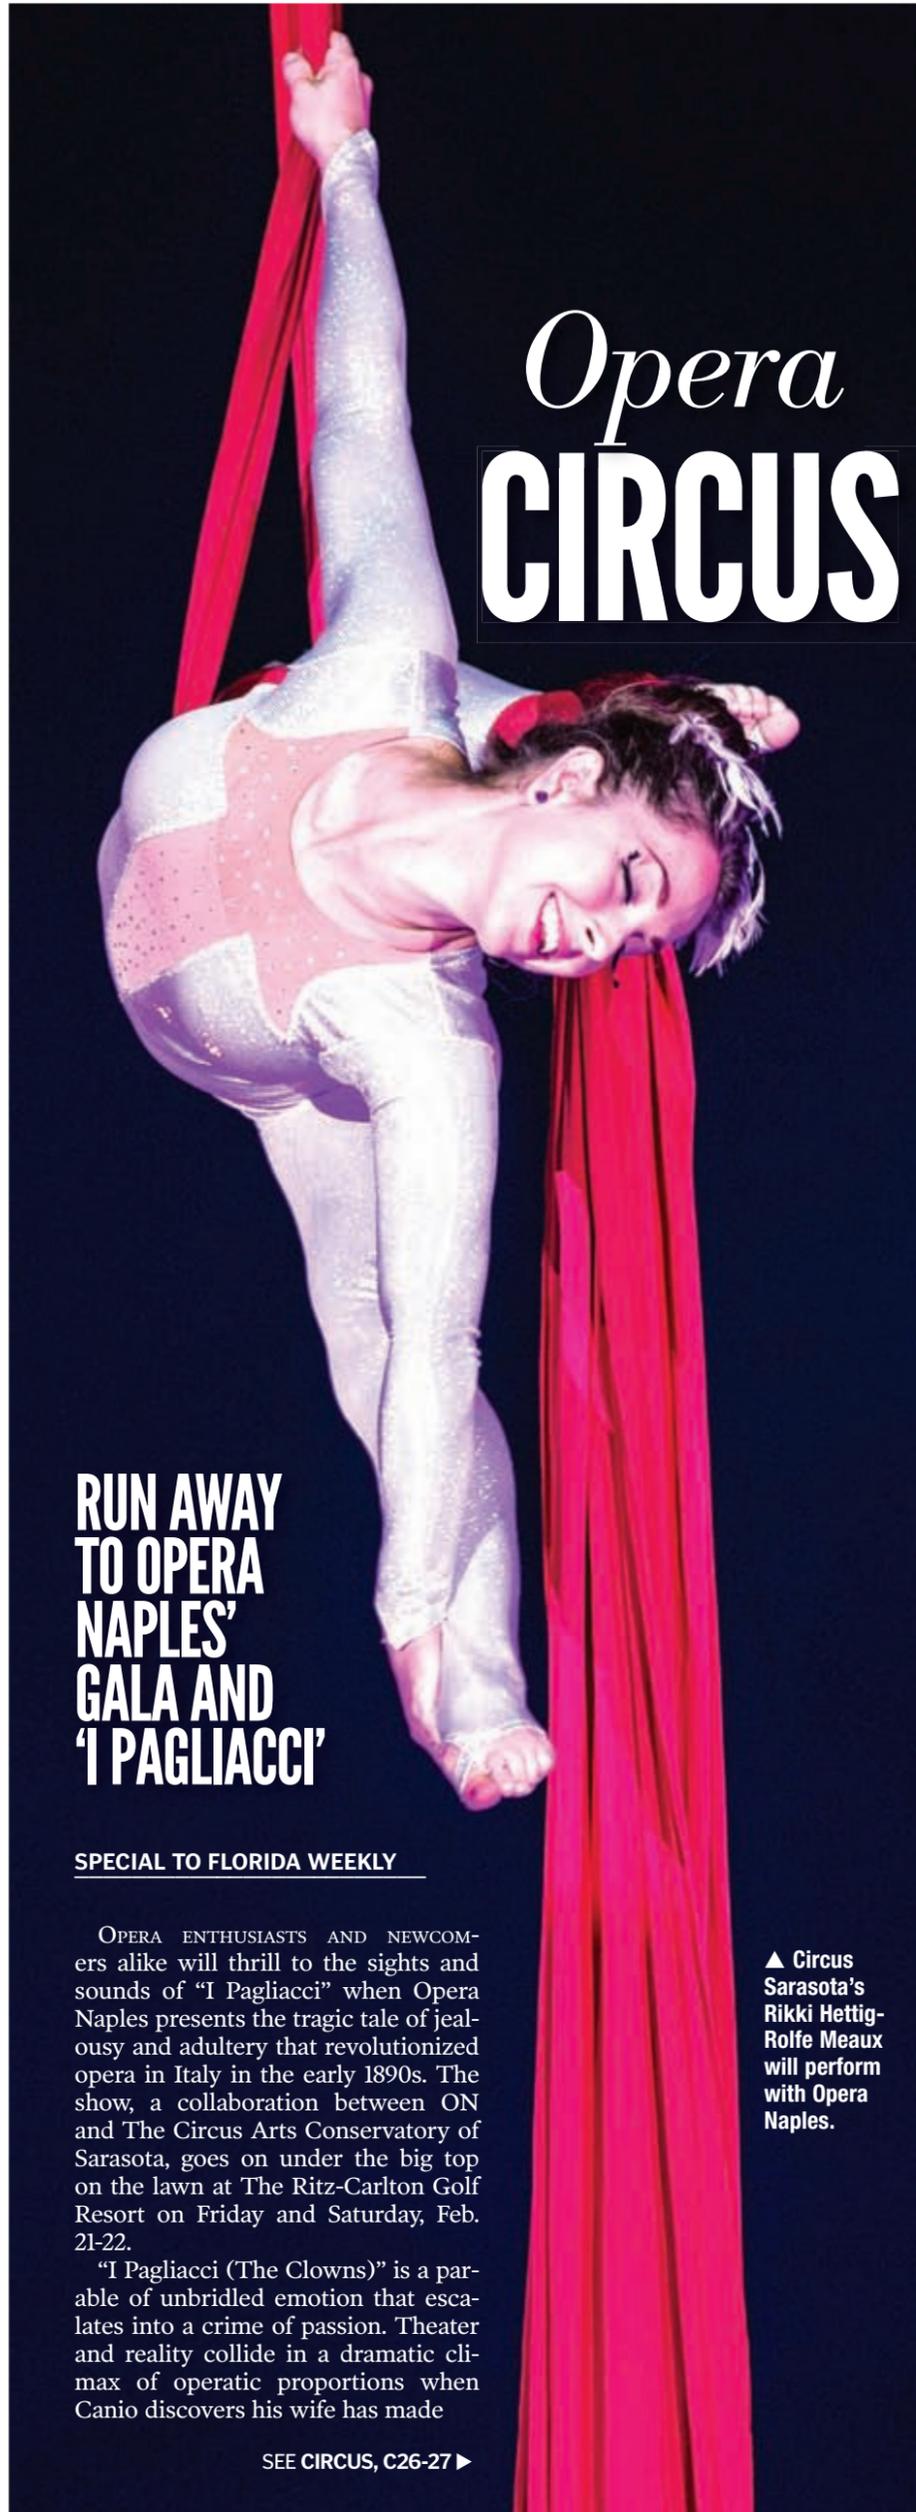

So the duo of self-professed theater geeks decided to dive in by taking the initial step of ordering scripts, with an eye toward possible venues for the group and what type of audiences they could attract.

They also called upon the experience of three friends and community theater veterans — Beverly Dahlstrom, The Marco Players' president and artistic director, and Pat Berry and Patty Ziesig of the Island Theater Company.

"Their support was amazing," says Mr. Lilly.

Let's Put On A Show's first production, the comedy "Pageant Play," hit the stage a year ago at the Golden Gate

RUN AWAY TO OPERA NAPLES' GALA AND 'I PAGLIACCI'

SPECIAL TO FLORIDA WEEKLY

OPERA ENTHUSIASTS AND NEWCOMERS alike will thrill to the sights and sounds of "I Pagliacci" when Opera Naples presents the tragic tale of jealousy and adultery that revolutionized opera in Italy in the early 1890s. The show, a collaboration between ON and The Circus Arts Conservatory of Sarasota, goes on under the big top on the lawn at The Ritz-Carlton Golf Resort on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 21-22.

"I Pagliacci (The Clowns)" is a parable of unbridled emotion that escalates into a crime of passion. Theater and reality collide in a dramatic climax of operatic proportions when Canio discovers his wife has made

SANDY DAYS, SALTY NIGHTS

No sex in the twilight years? Yeah, right

I see the same message everywhere: Women's sexuality plummets as we age. Pick up any beauty magazine, even the good ones, and you can't avoid the message that a woman over 30 is as desirable as a bowl of cornflakes. And that's to say nothing of the fear-mongering I've been reading lately, passed off as ardent truth-telling: articles about post-menopausal genital collapse, not to mention the dearth and death of female desire late in life. It's all I can do not to start stockpiling sexual experiences in preparation for the coming drought.

So it was with delight and much relief that I read Margo Landry's "Loving You Enlightens Me: A Tantric Journey." Part autobiography and part user's guide, the book gives readers an unflinching look at Ms. Landry's sexual past and — most importantly — her very active sexual present.

At 74, Ms. Landry is a poster woman for positive sensuality in older adults.

"Like practicing the piano daily to become a virtuoso," she writes in her book, "practicing making love . . . can bring you places you haven't imagined. You can create more love in yourself and more love in the world."

True to her word, she and her partner, Tom Blakeslee, 76, set aside time every day to be intimate. After exercising and before dinner, they meet in their California bedroom — naked. Often they have a glass of wine to relax and put on their favorite music. Some evenings they dance together or start with a sensual head massage. At times, Ms. Landry admits, they're not in the mood when they first launch the daily ritual. But when I spoke to her on the phone, she assured me that you just have to trust the process.

"One step leads to another," she said. "It always works."

Both in the book and during our conversation, Ms. Landry referred to her intimacy practice as a form of meditation — "an active meditation." Like a daily deep-breathing practice, she said, intimacy needs to be performed regularly to be the most effective.

"If you want your love to grow, you need to connect every day," she said. "It takes commitment. Otherwise, you just let it go and go."

In our rushed, over-scheduled world, this can be difficult.

"Most couples resist this practice of giving and receiving love and pleasure every day," Ms. Landry writes in the book. "Why? It's not easy to give up control, to find time, to let go of the ego's righteousness, melt your resistances and stop the constant train of thought."

She's right, and I'm relieved to know that daily intimacy is possible — and practiced — even later in life. Rather than losing her sensuality, Ms. Landry seems to have discovered it with age.

"Each time, I am more open to myself," she said, "to a more holy me."

So how does one begin this daily meditative practice?

"Stay present," Ms. Landry writes, "breathe, release, open, forgive, give, receive and surrender — and never hurry."

That's good advice for every relationship, in the bedroom and out, no matter what our age. ■

A new look for the UAC

United Arts Council unveils several changes

The United Arts Council of Collier County has unveiled a new brand and updates to its marketing materials. The new logo features vivid colors and includes the acronym, UAC. The tagline — “Your Connection to the Arts” — defines the nonprofit organization’s role in the community.

The council recently celebrated its 33rd anniversary, and the current logo had been in use for more than 25 years.

“We felt it was time for a new look,” says Sandi Moran, board president. “This update is just one of many steps we have taken over the past year to better reflect our role in the community.”

Recent changes have included a move to a new office with expanded space for display of works by local artists.

“The response from our member artists has been tremendous,” Ms. Moran says. “There are very few places to showcase local works, so we are pleased to be able to provide this service.” Called “Arts-Mart,” the facility is in Mission Square West, 1495 Pine Ridge Road, Suite 5. Hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday-Friday.

Another addition to UAC services is selling tickets to the public for local nonprofit performing arts groups that don’t have permanent locations. They also have half-price, day-of tickets to selected events.

A new hotline number — 777-3145 — has been established with a recorded message with information about tickets for sale each day.

The new logo and design for marketing materials was developed by IMA Creative Inc. Additional upgrades are planned for the UAC website, www.CollierArts.com, and other communications.

The United Arts Council is designated by the state of Florida as the official local arts agency for Collier County. The organization’s work is focused in two areas:

- Promoting the entire arts community, and
- Providing arts education to at-risk students.

To promote the arts, the UAC works with the county’s 61 nonprofit arts agencies, 75-plus galleries and artist studios and more than 500 local artists to gather information. The website contains information about the entire arts and cultural community and includes a comprehensive calendar of cultural events available in the area. The council also prints and distributes several public information brochures, including a monthly calendar of events.

For more information about the United Arts Council of Collier County, call 254-8242 or visit www.CollierArts.com. ■

ART COMMENTARY

Occasional glimpses of grandeur

"A Grand Night for Singing" doesn't need this review.

It's one of those shows that sells itself, simply by virtue of what it is: a night of the music of Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein III, the duo who wrote the songs for such classic musicals as "South Pacific," "The Sound of Music," "Carousel," "The King and I," "Oklahoma!" and more.

Those who love musical theater would gladly grab any opportunity to hear songs from these shows performed, especially in such an intimate venue as Florida Repertory Theatre's ArtStage Studio Theatre. People will flock to "A Grand Night for Singing" because they know and love the music.

But oddly, this revue isn't quite as grand or glorious as I had expected it would be.

It starts with an opening that's even cornier than Kansas in August, to borrow one of Mr. Hammerstein's lyrics. The performers wander about the stage, talking on cell phones or listening to an iPod. This scenario occurs at various times throughout the show, and I found it very annoying. I know director Michael Marotta is trying to make a statement about how we need to put down our devices and truly connect with each other, but it was off-putting.

After a bumpy start, the magic finally kicks in about midway into the fourth number, when Jacob January and Antionette Henry sing "The Surrey With the Fringe On Top." Joe Paparella soon follows that up with a moving rendition of "We Kiss in a Shadow."

But the show keeps getting in the way of the music. The staging is very strange; the director has the performers wandering about or, at one point, walking in circles. He constantly keeps moving them around, like an indecisive interior designer who can't figure out where to put the furniture: Here? No. How about here? And it's all the more obvious because the stage is so small.

It's as if Mr. Marotta doesn't trust the songs themselves. Some of the best moments of the night come when the performers are concentrating on delivering the song, not on where they must step, move, twirl.

And the little jokes written into the songs only cheapened them.

(For example, when Mr. January is singing "Maria," a song the nuns sing in "The Sound of Music," he stops and asks the pianist Gary Stroh, "How do you keep a wave upon the sand?" The accompanist shrugs and says, "Google it.")

The quintet gets it right with the novelty number "Honey Bun" from "South Pacific." Mr. January, chosen by the others to be Honey Bun, swivels his hips and acts girly for the number. The audience loved it, and the song received the loudest applause of the evening, up to then.

The women — Alexandra Hale, Erin Mosher and Ms. Henry — also give a rousing performance with "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Outta My Hair."

But then, it's back to the corny jokes. When Mr. January and Ms. Mosher perform "Shall We Dance?," they do so not for the romance of the number but for humor, stepping on each other's feet.

Ms. Mosher has a lovely moment with "It Might As Well Be Spring," and Ms. Hale, an opera singer, delivers a cute rendition of "I Cain't Say No."

But it's Ms. Henry and Mr. Paparella's performances that I found myself looking forward to. The stage comes alive when either of them sing.

Ms. Henry belted out "A Wonderful Guy" and a few songs later was bemoaning the fact that "The Gentleman is a Dope." And with solos on "We Kiss in a Shadow" and "This Nearly Was Mine," which brings the house down, Mr. Paparella's high notes entwine themselves around our hearts.

The cast of Rodgers & Hammerstein's "A Grand Night for Singing," Alexandra Hale, Joe Paparella, Antionette Henry, Erin Mosher and Jacob January.

The performers, unfortunately, were not served well by the poor lighting (by Matthew McCarthy). They were all too often in shadow.

Though accompanied by only piano (Mr. Stroh) and flute (Madison Brochin), the songs themselves should be larger than life. Mr. Rodgers and Mr. Hammerstein wrote timeless songs that were elegant, majestic, romantic.

Our hearts should swell upon hearing them.

This happens from time to time, but not often enough.

But still, who can resist an evening of Rodgers and Hammerstein tunes? ■

HOROSCOPES

■ AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Someone who gave you a lot of grief might ask for a chance for the two of you to make a fresh start. You need to weigh the sincerity of the request carefully before giving your answer.

■ PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Too much fantasizing about an upcoming decision could affect your judgment. Better to make your choices based on what you know now rather than on what you might learn later.

■ ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Some unsettling facts about a past situation could come to light. And while you'd love to deal with it immediately, it's best to get more information to support your case.

■ TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A straightforward approach to a baffling situation is best. Don't allow yourself to be drawn into an already messy mass of tangles and lies. Deal with it and move on.

■ GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Don't be discouraged or deterred by a colleague's negative opinion about your ideas. It could actually prove to be helpful when you get around to finalizing your plan.

■ CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Ignore that sudden attack of "modesty," and step up to claim the credit you've so rightly earned. Remember: A lot of people are proud of you and want to share in your achievement.

■ LEO (July 23 to August 22) A financial "deal" that seems to be just right for you Leos and Leonas could be grounded more in gossamer than substance. Get an expert's advice to help you check it out.

■ VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Don't ignore that suddenly cool or even rude attitude from someone close to you. Asking for an explanation could reveal a misunderstanding you were completely unaware of.

■ LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Unless you have sound knowledge, and not just an opinion, it's best not to step into a family dispute involving a legal matter, regardless of whom you support. Leave that to the lawyers.

■ SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An awkward situation presents the usually socially savvy Scorpion with a problem. But a courteous and considerate approach soon helps clear the air and ease communication.

■ SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A calmer, less-tense atmosphere prevails through much of the week, allowing you to restore your energy levels before tackling a new challenge coming up by week's end.

■ CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your approach to helping with a friend or family member's problem could boomerang unless you take time to explain your method and how and why it (usually!) works.

■ BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of seeing the best in people and helping them live up to their potential. ■

Is it worth $10? No

It's easy to see the appeal of author Joyce Maynard's 2009 novel "Labor Day": It has the potential to take the lazy, hot, steamy monotony of late summer suburban life and ignite it with true passion and eroticism. It's 1987, there's not much to do, the days are hot and the nights are cool. It's the perfect setting for a forbidden affair to offer respite from daily routines.

And yet, though all these pieces are in place, writer/director Jason Reitman's ("Juno") adaptation misses the mark. By a wide margin.

Part of the problem is casting, but the larger issue is plausibility.

Narrated by Henry (Tobey Maguire) in present day, the bulk of the film looks back on one life-changing Labor Day weekend Henry experienced as a child (he's played as a 13-year-old by Gattlin Griffith). With his mother Adele (Kate Winslet) depressed since his father (Clark Gregg) moved out to live with his secretary (Alexie Gilmore), Henry tries to be the man of the house. Sweet as that is, Adele needs more.

During their once-a-month outing to the grocery store, Henry encounters Frank (Josh Brolin). It's here that the endless occurrences of bad parenting and absurdities begin. Let us count: 1) Henry talks to the limping, bloody and sweaty Frank (Kids, don't talk to strangers!); 2) Henry sees Frank steal a hat and says nothing; 3) Adele allows Frank to invite himself into their car (!) and then 4) takes Frank to their home (!); 5) Frank reveals that he escaped from prison that morning, and 6) Adele lets him stay even after learning he's a convicted murderer; 7) Frank doesn't just stay: He convinces Adele to let him tie her up in case cops come so they'll believe it's a kidnapping; 8) to show gratitude, nice guy murderer Frank fixes things around the house and spends an inordinate amount of time outside for someone supposed to be in hiding; 9) by the second night he's there, Adele is smitten with him and both she and Henry are asking Frank to stay. See the problem(s) here? Mr. Reitman is asking us to believe too much, and he doesn't take the time to properly develop the characters and story so it'll all seem plausible. As is, it's so irresponsible on Adele's part that it's appalling, and to throw in a love story after she and Frank have only known one another for a few days is insulting. Ms. Winslet, so good at looking forlorn, is fine as the lonely woman so pathetically desperate for male companionship that she risks both her life and her son's for an intrusive ex-con. Adele is loving, yes, but don't lose sight of what a terrible mother she is for allowing these events to occur.

Conversely, Mr. Brolin struggles to find the right note: He should be a bit more charming in the beginning to convince Adele to let him stay, and we're never quite sure if we can trust him, even after he shows he's not a threat.

A story this grounded in reality should never be this outrageous. "Labor Day" has a premise that could work in different circumstances, so let's hope whoever tackles the project for its inevitable remake in 15 years does the exact opposite of what we see here. ■

CAPSULES

Gimme Shelter ★★

(Vanessa Hudgens, Rosario Dawson, Brendan Fraser) A homeless teen (Ms. Hudgens) finds her estranged father (Mr. Fraser) and learns she's pregnant. Ms. Hudgens is a bit out of her element in this type of drama, and the story is full of illogical decisions that strain credibility. Rated PG-13.

Her ★★★★★

(Joaquin Phoenix, Amy Adams, voice of Scarlett Johansson) In the near future, a loner (Mr. Phoenix) purchases and falls in love with a computer operating system (Ms. Johansson) designed with human emotions. With a great original screenplay from writer/director Spike Jonze ("Where the Wild Things Are"), this is a smart movie that offers a plausible look at the future and what it means to be in a relationship. Rated R.

August: Osage County ★★★★★

(Meryl Streep, Julia Roberts, Abigail Breslin) The dysfunctional Weston family convenes in its rural Oklahoma home after the patriarch goes missing. The performances are top notch and the story has a few surprises up its sleeve. Based on a Pulitzer Prize-winning play by Tracy Letts, who wrote the screenplay. Rated R. ■

Chemistry is king in an explosive forensic thriller

pkjason@comcast.net

■ "The Price of Innocence" by Lisa Black. Severn House. 240 pages. $28.95.

The sixth entry in Lisa Black's Teresa MacLean Mystery series, "The Price of Innocence" is one of the best.

The author sets the excitement bar high with a risky beginning. Just as Teresa, a forensic specialist in Cleveland, finishes her note taking at the site of an apparent suicide, the building explodes. That's starting a novel off with a bang. Can the thrill thermometer be kept in the high (danger) range? Somehow, Ms. Black manages to do just that.

The Bingham is an older building recently repurposed for lavish downtown apartments. However, the economic downturn has left it with many vacancies. There are also some unusual tenants on the ground and basement levels. One of these is the Medical Examiner's Office, for which Teresa works. Now, with the explosion, "the relevant items from every homicide ...

had been buried, at best, or disintegrated at worst." Was this a purposeful act aimed at destroying evidence and records?

A peculiar chemical odor, also experienced during Teresa's investigation of other crimes, suggests the nature of the explosive, eventually linking it to chemicals also used in meth labs.

The next day, Teresa is sent to investigate a likely suicide in a mansion on the edge of Lake Erie. A uniformed policeman is also assigned to the case. They discuss the Bingham building investigation and the proximity of the explosion to the office/laboratory of a wealthy entrepreneur-inventor named Lambert. As Teresa pursues her inspection and evidence collection, Officer Davis goes outside. Then she hears loud noises and finds a lifeless Davis on the ground, shot twice.

Events, violent and otherwise, continue to pile up, and unexpected connections among those involved lead back 25 years to a fire — possibly a crime — in student housing at Cleveland State University.

At Officer Davis' funeral, Teresa meets the handsome accountant David Madison, a man recently disgraced by his wife's sexual liaison with a teenaged student. David is at first a sympathetic character. His romantic overtures toward Teresa are successful, even though she remains on guard, wondering about his connection with the murdered policeman.

More and more threats and murders seem connected to a Cleveland State group of friends a generation back. But where is the hard evidence? Teresa doggedly pursues it, though there are many distractions and false trails. Some of these are the inevitable stuff of crime solving; some result from the intentional misdirection of Teresa's efforts by others.

Woven into Teresa's professional activities are her relationships with Leo, her unfriendly supervisor, and police detective Frank, her cousin, lifelong friend and frequent co-investigator. Verisimilitude in Ms. Black's work comes in large part from the careful delineation of these (and other) characters and their complex relationships.

Also convincing is her sure-handed portrait of Cleveland: its economy, its politics, its neighborhoods, its history and all the ingredients that give that city its particular midwestern American flavor.

Then there's the science.

Is nitrogen triiodide, traced in the explosion residue at the Bingham building, similar to the volatile compounds used in making the drug methamphetamine, known in its crystal form as crystal meth? Yes. Under normal circumstances, would you care? Probably not. Nor would you voluntarily study the characteristics of these chemical compounds. Because the nature of the chemistry involved is important to the case and thus important to Teresa and several other characters, the author makes us care.

Technical conversations that we would ordinarily be quite happy to avoid over-hearing become filled with portentous weight and suspense as the investigators' intellects and emotions play over the connections.

Understanding something of the chemistry, however, does not lead to an understanding of the motives. Rumors and speculation abound, including the possibility of terrorism, the significance of an individual death masked by a mass killing, and the purposeful destruction of criminal case records and evidence. There is also a notion that the real target was Lambert's adjacent facility. Ms. Black manages the shifting tides of information and interpretation like the skilled navigator-narrator that she has proven herself to be.

"The Price of Innocence" is a riveting story that benefits from a great cast of minor characters and well-planned twists and turns. The pacing of revelations, whether useful stepping stones or false trails, is orchestrated with skill. The deepening and shading of Teresa MacLean's character makes me look forward to meeting her again ... and again. ■

'The Encyclopedia of Early Earth'

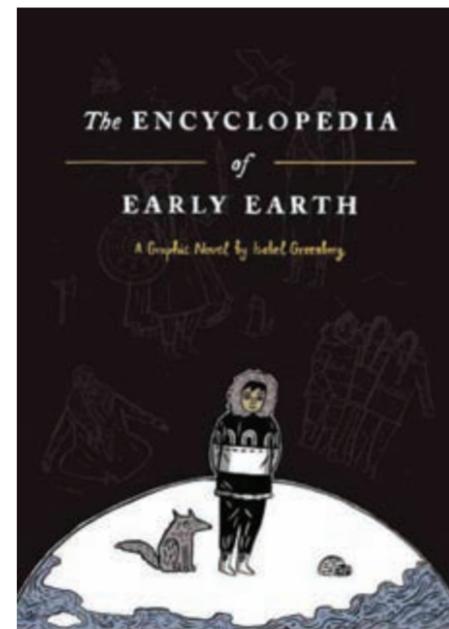

By Isabel Greenberg
(Little, Brown and Company, $23)

REVIEWED BY EALISH WADDELL

Once upon a time there were two lovers, one from the north pole and one from the south. Across the entire length of the globe they are drawn to each other, two parts of the same soul... and yet, they can never touch. How did this oddity come to be? That is the central question of "The Encyclopedia of Early Earth," an entrancing new graphic novel that presents an alternate version of the time before time.

Surrounding the story of the lovers is an ever-expanding circle of other tales, rippling out into a web of stories within stories. It tells of a family of bird gods, inventors and architects of the world, separate from and yet intimately entwined with their creations. It presents new versions of ancient myths and archetypes from religious and historical traditions, retold with just enough distance to makes the familiar narratives seem new and strange. It visits civilizations recognizable and yet alien, which love and fight and interact with each other just as humans have always done and always will do.

Dreamy and thoughtful, yet also sharp and smart, this "Encyclopedia" conjures visions of an ancient world merely a hairsbreadth from our own, perhaps just as real and possible as any other human-origin story.

The art has a beguiling simplicity, drawn with strong lines and bold patterns that evoke both primitive etchings and the panels of modern comic books. A subtle wit pervades the dialogue and composition (the background antics of the Genius Monkeys of Migdal Bavel alone are worth the cover price). A quirky but quietly lovely work, "Encyclopedia" is a reminder and a celebration of the universality of human nature, even when separated by years, miles or realities. ■

KOVEL: ANTIQUES

Valentine's Day cards evolve throughout the centuries

BY KIM AND TERRY KOVEL
Special to Florida Weekly

The history of valentines can be traced back to St. Valentine, who died a martyr. A feast was named for him by the Catholic Church in the year 496. Other historical or legendary sources to the holiday mention two other men named Valentine, a suggestion that the holiday descended from a Roman fertility fest, and references to the Duke of Orleans' letter in the 15th century that is considered the first valentine. Then in the 14th century, Geoffrey Chaucer wrote the first mention of love and Valentine's Day. The oldest surviving valentine dates from 1477.

Now skip forward to the modern holiday and verifiable facts. By 1797, valentine cards were being homemade of paper, ribbons and lace. In 1874, Esther Howland (1824-1904) of Worcester, Mass., was the first American to make valentines to sell commercially. Soon valentines — some of them comic — were being mass-produced by companies in the style of the day, although handmade folk art cards remained popular. Very lacy, fancy valentines were favored by the 1880s. "Vinegar Valentines" with insulting verses, also known as "Penny Dreadfuls," were popular by 1900. And from 1900 to 1930,

This inexpensive valentine was made in the 1920s. The words and the clothing are clues to its date. It is printed on a thin piece of paper 6½ by 5 inches, not a size that would fit in today's standard envelope.

postcards, pop-ups and mechanical valentines were fashionable. The 1930s to 1980s saw sets of printed cards to be cut out and given to each child in a classroom. And by 1975, there were cards that could play music. Save any clever cards you get this year and start a collection of old ones. Good examples still can be found.

Q: I inherited my grandmother's doll-size rocking chair, which has been in our family for years. It's made of a dark wood and is just 16 inches high. The back and seat are made of one continuous piece of thin wood attached to the frame with brass tacks. The back has a punched-hole design that includes the word "Pet" in capital letters and the letter "Y." The seat has a punched square with a star in a circle inside it. Can you tell me who made this chair and how old it is?

A: Your chair was made by Gardner & Co., which was founded in Clarksville, N.J., in 1863. Gardner was granted several patents for improvements to chair seats and frames. Chairs with perforated plywood seats were made in full size, child size and doll size. The "Pet" chair also was made in a non-rocking version. The company was in business until about 1888, when the factory burned down. Your chair was made between 1871 and 1888. The value of your doll-size chair is $100 to $125.

Q: Back in the early 1940s, my in-laws received two prints of hummingbirds as a wedding gift. They left the prints to us and I would like to learn more about them. The words on the back of each print are in French, but I can translate some of the words. They include the names of the pictured birds (one is a bearded hummingbird and the other has a forked tail) and the name of the publisher, Arthus-Bertrand. What can you tell us about the prints?

A: Arthus-Bertrand, which still is in business in Paris, was founded by Claude Arthus-Bertrand in 1803. Today it sells all sorts of jewelry, medals and decorations. Back in the early 1830s, however, Arthus-Bertrand published a book titled "The Natural History of Hummingbirds," by Rene Primevere Lesson, a French ornithologist and naturalist. The book included engraved prints of hummingbirds. The book's prints are identified on the bottom of each page, not on the back like your prints. So it is likely your prints are later copies of the prints in the book.

Q: I recently found my grandfather's old autograph book. He was good friends with the comedians Lou Costello and Bud Abbott. The book includes their autographs as well as those of several sports figures, including Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, Jimmy Braddock, Joe DiMaggio and several others. I think some of them go back to the early 1920s. What do you think these are worth?

A: The value of an autograph depends on how famous the person is and how rare the autograph is. If the celebrity or sports star rarely signed autographs, they will be harder to find today and worth more. Autographs can sell for only a few dollars or for hundreds of dollars or more. A Babe Ruth autograph sold at auction recently for more than $1,000. Autographs of famous sports stars appeal to collectors of sports memorabilia as well as to autograph collectors. If you are thinking of selling your grandfather's autograph book, you should contact auction houses that specialize in autographs or sports memorabilia to learn more about pricing.

Tip: The edges of a cut glass piece should be of even thickness, and smooth rims should be polished if the piece has not been repaired by grinding off any damaged section. ■

Skating in Germain Arena, it's the newest 'Disney on Ice'

"Disney On Ice Presents Rockin' Ever After" brings an all-star lineup of Disney characters to the ice Friday through Sunday, March 14-16, at Germain Arena.

The brand-new production includes characters from Disney•Pixar's "BRAVE," "Tangled," "The Little Mermaid" and "Beauty and the Beast."

The audience will jam to a Scottish jig as a group of royal contenders from "BRAVE" competes to win the heart of adventurous, sharp-shooting Merida, making her on-ice debut.

"The Little Mermaid"'s Sebastian breaks out of his shell for one night only to make waves with Ariel. A chorus of harmless hooligans from "Tangled" unleashes musical mayhem when they get a visit from the sassy and spirited Rapunzel and her charming ally Flynn. And the Beast and his castle's enchanted entourage put on a spectacular show for Belle.

Tickets are available at the Germain Arena box office or by calling (800) 745-3000 or going to www.ticketmaster.com. ■

AUDITION CALLS

■ The Naples Players hold auditions for "Moon Over Buffalo" starting at 2 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 8, at the Sugden Community Theatre. The comedic show biz farce by Ken Ludwig calls for two men ages 20-35, two men ages 40-65, two women ages 20-35, one woman age 40-60 and one woman age 60-85. Rehearsals begin March 10, and performances are April 23-May 17 on the main stage in Blackburn Hall.

The story revolves around theater has-beens George and Charlotte Hay, whose dwindling dreams are reignited when a Hollywood film director decides to drop in on their matinee performance in hopes of casting them as the new leads in "The Scarlet Pimpernel." But with two shows running in rep, confusion mounts as the actors clamor to figure out which show they are performing.

Audition appointments are not required. For more information, call 434-7340, ext. 10.

■ Naples Performing Arts Center holds an open casting call for "Beauty and the Beast Jr." from 4:30-6:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 10, at NPAC headquarters, 6646 Willow Park Drive. Young thespians ages 5-11 are encouraged to tryout. Rehearsals will begin Monday, Feb. 24.

Lori Oliver, owner of Naples Performing Arts Center, is excited to begin the process of searching for NPAC's newest cast. "We're thrilled to be able to perform a genuine Disney children's musical for Southwest Florida," she says, adding, "I especially can't wait to meet our future Beast!"

Also coming up at the center is "The 'Wicked!' Workshop," a nine-week musical theater class for ages 11-18 with Broadway actor Christopher Dean. Sessions will meet from 4:30-6:30 p.m. Fridays starting Feb. 28. Students will learn about Broadway choreography and staging, vocal techniques, acting skills, music theory, character development and more. The workshop will conclude with a performance showcasing musical numbers, vocal solos and choreographed pieces from "Wicked!"

'Presidents' Wives' gather for tea on Marco

The Marco Island Historical Society presents "Tea with the Presidents' Wives," an afternoon with Martha Washington, Rose Cleveland, Jacqueline Kennedy, Lady Bird Johnson, Pat Nixon and Betty Ford. Performances are at 2 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 16, and 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 17 (Presidents Day, coincidentally), in the Rose History Auditorium at the Marco Island Historical Museum.

Doreen Hertel will portray Mrs. Washington, the only first lady to be depicted on a $1 bill. Judy Daye (knew Mrs. Nixon and was once invited to tea with her at the White House) is Ms. Cleveland, who served as first lady for her brother Grover for two years until he married while in office.

Mrs. Kennedy will be played by Bonnie Bozzo, who has made a name for herself doing a one-hour show of the woman who became known as "Jackie O" after her second marriage, to Greek billionaire Aristotle Onassis.

Faye Moore appears as Lady Bird Johnson, followed by Marion Nicolay as Mrs. Nixon and Kay Folsom, the originator of this series, as Betty Ford. Betsy Perdichizzi will introduce each of the first ladies.

Tickets for $20 are available at the museum gift shop or at any branch of Kay's on the Beach. Light refreshments will be served at both performances. All proceeds will benefit the Marco Island Historical Society. ■

Marco reading group to discuss Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings' stories

Those interested in studying and discussing the work of Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, one of Florida's true literary treasures, are invited to be part of a reading group sponsored by the Marco Island Historical Society.

Facilitated by Ted Eismeier, professor emeritus at Hamilton College in Clinton, N.Y., the group will meet from 1-2:30 p.m. Fridays for six weeks, Feb. 14-March 21, focusing each week on a few stories (typically 30 to 40 pages apiece) from Rodger Tarr's "Short Stories by Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings." The discussion will include what has changed in Florida — and what hasn't changed — since Ms. Rawlings died 60 years ago.

Last year marked the 75th anniversary of the publication of "The Yearling," which earned Ms. Rawlings a Pulitzer Prize and is still in print and translated in 30 languages. A transplant to the Sunshine State, Ms. Rawlings also is regarded as one of the best writers of short stories of her generation, many of which reflect her experiences in the Cross Creek area of Florida.

To sign up for the reading group or for more information, email Mr. Eismeier at tjeismeier@gmail.com. To enhance discussion, the size of the group will be limited, with preference given to those who will be able to attend most meetings. ■

Etc ... Readers Theatre presents an evening of 'Mixed Nuts'

The Naples Players' ETC ... Readers Theatre has named directors and casts for "Mixed Nuts," an evening of three one-act comedies set for 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 16, in Tobye Studio at the Sugden Community Theatre. Producers are Patti Caroli and Dee Betcher. Kathy Rogers coordinates lights.

"The Whole Shebang" asks the question: "What if the entire universe were just some nerd's science project?" The play, one of several in playwright Rich Orloff's collection "HA!", has been produced some 200 times globally and was "America's Best Short Plays 1994-95."

Vic Caroli directs for ETC ... Readers Theatre, and the cast consists of E.D. Dosso, Kevin Kenneally, Paul LoPresti, Debera Marra, Rosie Spinosa and Ronald Wietecha.

"How To Speak Man" shows how two guys help their colleague — who has just spent a weekend with his girlfriend and forgotten how to talk like a man — remember how to do it before their macho boss returns to the office. The play was written by Sharyn Rothstein. Claire McKinney directs the cast of Phil

Cole, Douglas Degelsmith, Fred Harms and Ira Mogul.

In Bettine Manktelow's "Charity Begins ... " Teresa oversees a women's charity, smugly imagining that the advice she dispenses is invaluable. So when friends drop in — one of them with a deep, dark secret — the plot begins to boil. Director is Allayne Barnum and cast members are Diana Brewer, Paula Conley, Gigi Felicetta and Jeannette Fenton McCreight.

Tickets for $10 are available at the box office or by calling 263-7990.

Rounding out the ETC ... season are "Love Hurts," another trio of one-acts, on Sunday, April 6, and a reading of Anton Chekhov's full-length classic "The Seagull" on Sunday, May 4.

Now in its 12th season, ETC ... presents readings and non-fully staged plays that give opportunities for those with limited experience as well as more experienced players. Its new plays program is designed to encourage, promote and present original one-act plays by Southwest Florida playwrights. The Theatre Lab at FGCU presents 'The Laramie Project'

The Theatre Lab at Florida Gulf Coast University presents "The Laramie Project" Feb. 14-16 and 21-23 in the arts complex at FGCU. Show times are 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

Written by Moises Kaufman and members of the Tectonic Theatre Project, "The Laramie Project" was inspired by the October 1998 beating death of Matthew Shepard in the outskirts of Laramie, Wyo. He had been tortured and was left to die tied to a fence, in what became a watershed moment in America that highlighted many of the fault lines in our culture.

A month after the murder, members of Tectonic Theatre Project traveled to Laramie and conducted interviews with people from that town. From these interviews they wrote the play "The Laramie Project."

The FGCU production is directed by Michelle Hayford, Ph.D., associate professor and leader of the theater program at the university.

"The Laramie Project is a play I've long wished to direct because of the way it uses interview narratives to convey the sentiments of a small town caught up in a national debate," Ms. Hayford says. Although it's about the circumstances of Mr. Shepard's tragic death, she adds, "the need for dialogue around LGBT rights is still relevant."

Tickets are $7. Seating is limited and advance purchase is strongly recommended. Purchase tickets at www.theatrelab.fgcu.edu. For more information, email mhayford@fgcu.edu or call 590-7541. ■

Tenor Jonathan Burton stars as Canio, baritone Guido LeBron as Tonio, lyric baritone Gabriel Preisser as Silvio, soprano Katie Dixon as Nedda, and tenor Justin Berkowitz as Beppe. Garnett Bruce, who directed ON’s production of “Tosca” last season, returns to direct “I Pagliacci.”

About the conservatory

The Circus Arts Conservatory was born from decades of circus history and today serves as a legacy to those who set the standards for international circus performance. In the late 1920s, John Ringling moved his circus winter quarters to Sarasota and the circus became an integral part of the community's social and economic life.

The conservatory is dedicated preserving the heritage of the circus arts through performance, training, education and outreach. Founded in 1997, the nonprofit performing arts educational organization produces its Circus Sarasota performances in a one-ring, five-star, European-style big top. Approximately 80 percent of ticket revenue helps support its community outreach programs that serve children, the elderly and those in care facilities.

The following Circus Sarasota acts are coming to Naples for "Cirque de Fete" and "I Pagliacci": clowns Karen Bell (the only female clown with a solo ring gag in the Ringling Bros. Circus) and Robin Eurich (a former teacher at the Ringling Bros. & Barnum and Bailey Clown College); Rikki Hettig-Rolfe Meaux, aerial silks; juggler Vladimir Tsarkov and his wife, contortionist Elena Tsarkov, formerly of the Moscow State Circus; and their sons, Vladislav Tsarkov (hoops) and Stanislav Tsarkov (cube).

"Wonderstruck," Circus Sarasota's winter 2014 program featuring circus artists from around the world, has performances Feb. 7-23. For more information, call (941) 355-9805 or visit www.circusarts.org.

CELEBRITY EXTRA

Sharon Stone stars as VP in new series

BY CINDY ELAVSKY

Q: Can you tell me what Sharon Stone has been up to lately?

— Kellie T., via email

A: Oscar nominee and Emmy and Golden Globe winner Sharon Stone has signed on to star in a new TNT action-drama, tentatively titled "Agent X." Written by William Blake Herron ("The Bourne Identity"), "Agent X" stars Sharon as America's first female vice president, Natalie Macabee, a woman with brains, beauty and a cool composure that belies a restless mind. Initially apprehensive that her job would be only ceremonial in nature, she soon learns that it comes with a top-secret duty: protecting the Constitution in times of great crisis with the aid of her chief steward and a secret operative designated as Agent X. There is no word yet on when the pilot will air, but I'm thinking it would be a perfect summer series.

Sharon Stone

ite show, "The Mindy Project," will be back? I was so happy that Mindy and Danny finally kissed, and I can't wait to see what's next.

— Janie F. in Colorado

A: "The Mindy Project" will return to Fox with all-new episodes on April 1 (no joke). In the meantime, the Golden Globe-winning comedy "Brooklyn Nine-Nine" will take its place, with "Mindy" returning when "Brooklyn" ends its freshman season. The folks over at "The Mindy Project" are regrouping and retooling as the series tries to get out of its sophomore ratings' slump.

Q: A while back I heard about a new reality series called "Nashville Confidential," which was to be about the wives of prominent Nashville husbands (singers, songwriters, businessmen, etc.). However, I haven't seen anything about it since.

— Doreen D., via email

A: TNT is on track with its Nashville-based reality series; however, the name has changed to "Private Lives of Nashville Wives." The series is set in and around the capital of the high-stakes country-music business, and will follow a group of accomplished, opinionated and driven women as they deal with professional challenges, family issues and social relationships. ■

PAST REPASTS

Here are some capsule summaries of previous restaurant reviews:

■ Big Hickory Seafood Grille, 26107 Hickory Blvd., Bonita Springs; 992-0991

For years, this restaurant has been known for pairing seafood with unlikely ingredients — grouper and bananas, for example — and thus showcasing the flavors of Florida and the Caribbean in innovative ways. Its location exploits the rustic charm of a marina that dates to 1969 and affords an impressive view of bay waters, mangrove islands and the finned and feathered inhabitants of each. The apple mango grouper is the restaurant's latest fruit-and-fish combination and it upholds the tasty tradition. The fish was nicely bronzed and its thick flakes perfectly moist, and the sweetness of the apple-mango salsa served on top was nicely contrasted by a tart passion fruit sauce. Some dishes seem overpriced, such as the better-than-average conch fritters at $14 for a half-dozen, but the generously portioned shrimp and lobster scampi is worth every penny at $29. Beer and wine served.

■ The Counter Custom Built Burgers, 9110 Strada Place, Mercato, Naples; 566-0644

If it's burgers, fries and sodas the kids want, here's a place at which everyone will feel happy about their meal.

The Counter serves Angus beef from humanely raised cows free of hormones and antibiotics. (Or select vegan, bison, turkey or chicken burgers). Then choose from a dozen cheeses, 32 toppings, 23 sauces, six buns (one is gluten free) or a salad. Milkshakes come in regular or adult versions (with a shot of your favorite alcoholic beverage). I enjoyed a turkey burger with Gruyere, cole slaw, grilled pineapple, roasted corn and black bean salsa, sautéed onions and ginger soy glaze on a wheat bun. To my surprise, the whole thing even held together. My companion liked the Old School burger — beef with Tillamook cheddar, lettuce, red onion, pickle, tomato and red relish. Sweet potato fries and crispy onion strings were just right, as were cocktails and a brownie with ice cream, caramel and chocolate sauce. The servers could not have been nicer. Full bar.

I loved this place when it was just a little hole in the wall. Now that it's blossomed into a big, sleek establishment with a full bar and expanded menu, it's better than ever. Chef/owner Raphael Rottiers continues to bring Peruvian flavors to American palates in a way that has brought a loyal following to his Golden Gate restaurant. On this visit, I loved the Paracas mussel shooters (shot glasses containing lime juice, rocoto peppers, cilantro, onions and mussels); a spectacular mixed ceviche rocoto apiscado (octopus, calamari, shrimp and fish in a vibrant sauce tinged with Peruvian rocoto pepper and Peruvian brandy); tiradito (escolar in a soy-citrus sauce); fluffy green tamales with cilantro beef sauce; aji tarwi fish (corvina grilled atop eggplant aji amarillo soffrito and purple mashed potatoes) and corvina con tacu tacu (topped with red onions, tomatoes and aji amarillo on a fat cake of rice and lima beans). Lucama cheesecake was a heavenly ending. Full bar.

■ Rosedale Brick Oven, 1427 Pine Ridge Road, Naples; 325-9653

Step into Rosedale and feel as if you've been transported to a friendly neighborhood pizza joint in Queens, N.Y., which is where owners Joe Arato and Joe Gonnely met at age 10. Pizza is, of course, a specialty, and we enjoyed the Seashell, which featured tender sautéed clams, spinach, mozzarella and garlic on a crisp, thin crust. Those seeking a more substantive meal, such as shrimp scampi or chicken Parmigiano, will find hearty renditions at Rosedale. For dessert, the lovely and beautifully presented tiramisu is a winner. Beer and wine served.

■ Tierney's Tavern, 799 Walkerbilt Road, Naples; 591-3837

Owners of The Bay House also offer a more casual concept in what used to be an expansive bar next to the restaurant. At Tierney's Tavern, you can savor similarly Southern-inspired and equally well-executed food for much less money. Entrees top out at $24, and it's possible to dine well for much less. The menu's coastal cuisine spans a broad range, from the North Atlantic to Carolina Low Country, around the Florida peninsula and up the gulf to New Orleans. The Southern Collection is a good way to sample a range of appetizers, including Charleston crab dip, pimento cheese and house-made pickles. The shrimp and grits lacked spunk — even with horseradish cream and diced andouille sausage; but the Sea BLT — layers of arugula, fried green tomatoes and fresh seafood salad sprinkled with roasted corn and crumbled bacon — would delight any discerning diner. Perched on the banks of the Coghatchee River, the restaurant and bar are nestled among old oaks and mangroves and have plenty of windows for enjoying the unique vista.

Aptly named HobNob brings bonhomie, stylish American fare to Fifth

cuisine@floridaweekly.com

To hobnob is to drink socially or, as a new restaurant called HobNob defines it, “associate on very friendly terms.” And that is precisely what takes place at the hip establishment on Fifth Avenue run by well-known restaurateur Michael Hernandez and partner Mitch Fogelman of Design Electric.

Montana’s loss is Naples’ gain now that Mr. Hernandez has returned from a decade out west to resume doing what he does so well: creating Southwest Florida restaurants that are fresh and elegant without being fussy. If you’ve been around for a while, you’ll know some of his previous establishments, such as Aqua Grill, Bistro 821, Bistro 41, Michael’s Cafe, Mia’s, Trios and Zoe’s.

Opened in mid-December, HobNob Kitchen & Bar fills the space on Fifth Avenue South that once held Zoe’s. Not that you’d know it. All traces of virtually every other incarnation — including the most recent two, Trilogy and the Jolly Cricket — are gone, replaced by a dazzling decor awash in earth tones, gorgeous woods and stone accented with whimsical splashes of color. Long and lean, the space stretches back a ways, and the designers have made full use of that length, with a banquette running along one wall beneath a mural that harkens back to the ’70s with big flowers and spirals but minus the florescent hues.

There are conventional tables, seats at a well-populated bar, a high-top in the front of the bar for those who want to see and be seen, a round table in the back for those who don’t and a few out front on the sidewalk. Although the place was packed with people engaged in hearty hobnobbing, there were enough soft materials to absorb sound so it wasn’t necessary to shout at your dining companions.

What HobNob doesn’t have are any miniscule tables for two, which I found delightful. Even a mere couple rates a four-top, which means there’s no scrambling to find room for both a cocktail and a water glass, a sure sign the management considers customer comfort a top priority.

(Another nicety — among many — was that I received a text message on my cell phone at the precise time of our reservation, signaling that our table was ready. We’d already been seated, but it was nonetheless a nice touch and one that precludes handing out bulky pagers or shouting out names.)

Heading up the kitchen is Executive Chef Tony Biagetti, who trained at the Culinary Institute of America and spent several years at Handsome Harry’s (also owned by Mr. Hernandez). He has crafted a menu of New American fare that takes classics and freshens them up with simple, flavorful twists.

Start with a cocktail such as the Watermelon Fresca ($12), a refreshing blend of organic cucumber vodka, watermelon juice, cucumber and mint. For wine lovers, consider a glass of Meiomi pinot noir, which comes at a properly chilled wine cellar temperature, not warmish Florida room temperature.

Nibble on bite-sized corn muffins and honey butter while perusing the menu. (Don’t kid yourself by thinking you’ll only eat one.)

The octopus and white bean ($12) appetizer was a prime example of Mr. Biagetti’s skill. In this dish, creamy white beans paired with small slices of chewy (but not rubbery) octopus bathed in a bit of garlic and lemon served with crisp crostini. It was a superb blend of flavors and textures.

Another popular bar bite is the grilled artichokes ($10) plate, containing three tender hearts, lightly brushed with garlic butter and served with lemon aioli. This one is good for sharing, especially if you only want a couple of bites before dinner.

Snapper in Crazy Water ($32) turned out to be a lovely fillet with tomatoes, polenta and a sauce the server said contained coconut water and fennel. The coconut was more of a backdrop to the tomatoes and there appeared to be basil rather than fennel on this night, but it was nonetheless perfectly cooked, delicious and lovely.

A talented chef can make magic with poultry and that happens at HobNob, where rotisserie chicken ($24) is a much-ordered entrée. A half chicken is rendered juicy and tender, then served atop a mélange of mushrooms, honey roasted fingerling potatoes and onions. This is comfort food with a modern twist — and there was enough to take some home for another meal.

From the dessert offerings, I’d recommend the Bonaffee pudding ($8), a rich toffee pudding with bananas served in a Mason jar. Less successful was the red velvet cake ($8). Although it was a lovely study in white and red, there was far too much cream cheese icing in proportion to the cake, and the frosting was way too sweet for my taste. Another option: HobNob salted caramel tootsie rolls ($6 for a half dozen, $12 for a dozen).

Service was relatively brisk — we managed drinks and three courses in 90 minutes — but our server never rushed us or made us feel as if he was anxious for us to leave. And, despite the fact that he had several tables to attend to, he always seemed to be around at just the right moment to check on how we liked our dishes or to refresh our drinks. He was friendly, knew the menu and the wine list well and we found ourselves hobnobbing a bit with him as well.

Even Mr. Hernandez could be seen zipping around the room working tables and getting in a bit of socializing. You can’t blame him: HobNob is a place where you just can’t help but do precisely what the name suggests. ■

Critic's picks: What you can't miss

nancySTETSON
nstetson@floridaweekly.com

Every year friends call or email me, inquiring about the upcoming season. "What's good?" they ask. "What are you looking forward to? What would you recommend?"

Here's what I'd tell them this year. It has been an interesting season for classics. The Naples Players performed "Our Town," while the Florida Repertory Theatre was so successful with "Arsenic and Old Lace" that in addition to being praised in the Wall Street Journal, it had to extend the run.

There are a few more classics — or classics-influenced shows — worth seeing this season.

Gulfshore Playhouse in Naples has been having a great year. I'm curious to see what they'll do with Arthur Miller's "All My Sons" (March 28-April 19) the 1947 classic about war profiteering and family dynamics. This famous play, which is an American version of a Greek tragedy, won the New York Critics' Circle Award. Gulfshore Playhouse has a way of making classics seem fresh, so it'll be interesting to see its take on this.

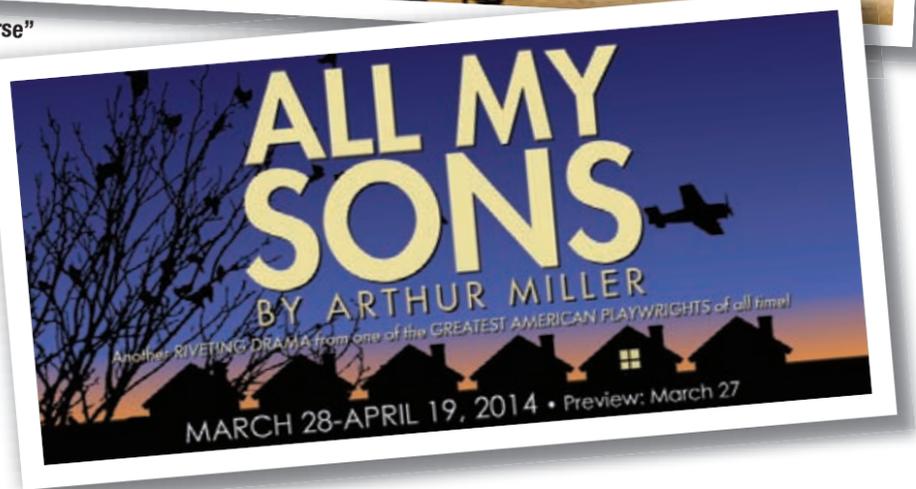

And Florida Rep is offering "Clybourne Park," winner of the 2011 Pulitzer Prize for Drama and the 2012 Tony Award for Best Play. Written by Bruce Norris, it's inspired by Lorraine Hansberry's play, "A Raisin in the Sun," imagining events taking place before and after that play.

I'm also looking forward to The Naples Players's production of "The Drowsy Chaperone" (March 5-April 5), one of the sweetest and loopy musicals recently written. This show opens with the Man in the Chair talking about his favorite musical, a 1920s piece of fluff called "The Drowsy Chaperone." He puts the soundtrack on a turntable to play it for you, and the entire musical comes to life in his living room. It's simultaneously a send-up of musicals as well as a love letter to them. The Naples Players' musicals are typically top-notch and not to be missed.

As far as visiting Broadway shows, "Once," based on the 2006 movie of the same name, plays at the Barbara B. Mann Performing Arts Hall in Fort Myers Feb. 19-23. The stage adaptation won eight Tony Awards, including the 2012 Tony for Best Musical. The musical, whose minimalist set consists of a bar and chairs, worked in the smaller Broadway theater. It'll be interesting to see whether it retains its charm in the larger Mann Hall. This is probably the only show where you can go onstage (before the show begins, and at intermission) and buy a drink.

"The War Horse"

The Tony Award-winning "War Horse," also at the Mann Hall (March 11-16), is not to be missed. This play, which uses life-sized puppets of horses, had a limited run on Broadway at Lincoln Center, but was so popular it was extended to an open run. (It finally closed in January 2013.) Based on a children's book, "War Horse" tells the tale of Joey, a horse who works in the cavalry in World War I. While the story's a tear-jerker, the puppetry promises to be something spectacular.

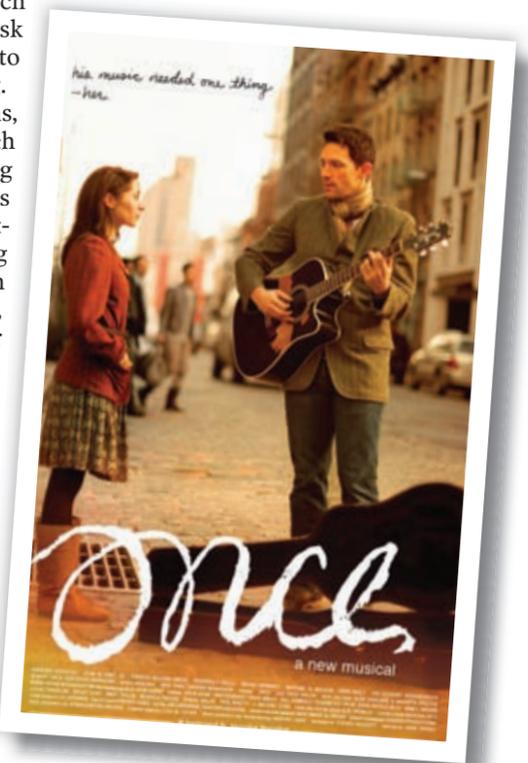

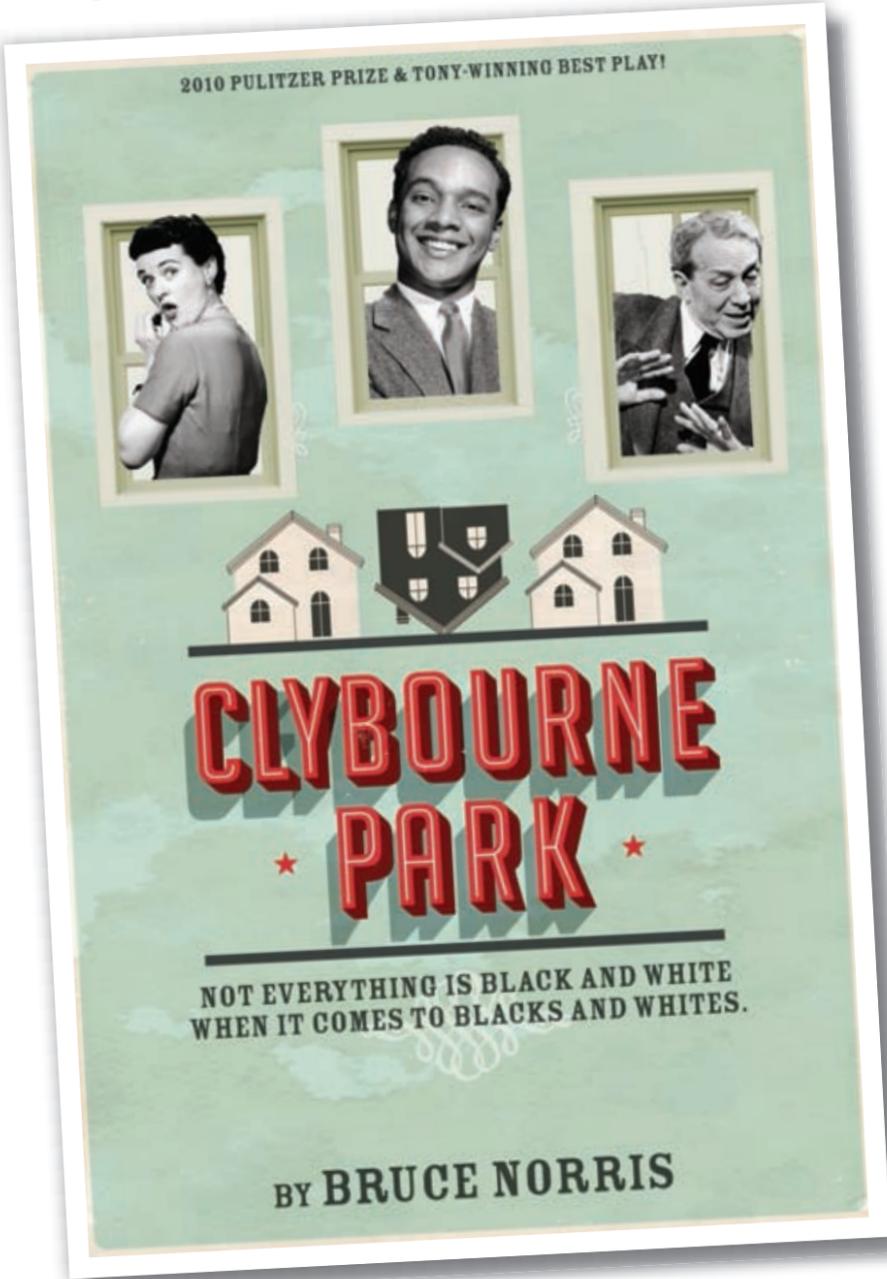

"The Whale," an off-Broadway show about a morbidly obese 600-pound man eating himself into oblivion, plays at Fort Myers' Theatre Conspiracy March 14-29. Winner of the 2013 Drama Desk Award for Significant Contribution to Theater, this play appears promising.

Country artist Vince Gill returns, playing at the Mann Hall on March 20 and the Van Wezel Performing Arts Hall in Sarasota March 21. His wife, award-winning singer/songwriter Amy Grant, will be performing with him. Typically, the two perform together for their Christmas show, but this is an opportunity to hear them perform their original music together.

And for those who can't wait until October for the Ringling International Arts Festival, The Ringling Museum in Sarasota's offering a series of shows called NowHere: Finding Our Way in the 21st Century. The series includes performances by the pioneering string quartet ETHEL, with Native American musician/storyteller Robert Mirabel (Feb. 20-22); choreography of The Foundry, performing "No Hero" (March 6-8) and Inuksit: In the Capacity of the Human" by John Luther Adams (March 22), performing an "ecological composition for nine to 99 percussionists." These avant-garde performers, who play at venues such as the Brooklyn Academy of Music and the Museum of Modern Art, are rarely seen in Southwest Florida. If you're more adventurous in your taste and are tired of the same old thing, these shows are definitely in the Don't Miss category.

As always, more shows may be announced as the season progresses, but these are the ones I'd urge my friends — and readers — not to miss. ■

"High Society" Feb. 6-16

It's a great night of vintage Hollywood when this Cole Porter classic skips into town. Socialite Tracy Lord is in the midst of planning a lavish wedding when her ex-husband Dexter Haven turns up to disrupt the proceedings in an attempt to try to win her back. "Chess – The Musical" March 6-16

"Each game of chess means there's one less variation left to be played," we learn in the opening song of Tim Rice's musical written to the music of ABBA. The story plays off a love triangle between a boorish American chess star, a displaced Russian champion and the American's female manager. Loosely based on the lives of grandmasters Bobby Fischer and Anatoly Karpov, the musical drama plays out against the Cold War, with the competitors wanting to win the international World Chess Championship tournament for purposes of propaganda and personal gain.

BROADWAY SERIES

“Once” Tuesday-Sunday, Feb. 18-23

Winner of eight 2012 Tony Awards including Best Musical, “Once” is a truly original Broadway experience. Featuring an impressive ensemble of actor/musicians who play their own instruments onstage, “Once” tells the enchanting tale of a Dublin street musician who’s about to give up on his dream when a beautiful young woman takes a sudden interest in his haunting love songs. As the chemistry between them grows, his music soars to powerful new heights, but their unlikely connection turns out to be deeper and more complex than your everyday romance. It’s an unforgettable story about going for your dreams, not living in fear and the power of music to connect all of us.

“War Horse” Tuesday-Sunday, March 11-16

A heartwarming tale of loyalty and friendship and winner of five 2011 Tony Awards, “War Horse” tells the story of young Albert and his beloved horse Joey. When Joey is sold to the cavalry and shipped from England to France, he is soon caught up in enemy fire, and fate takes him on an extraordinary journey, serving on both sides before finding himself alone in no man’s land. But Albert cannot forget Joey and, still not old enough to enlist, he embarks on a treacherous mission to find him and bring him home. Based on the beloved novel by Michael Morpurgo, this powerfully moving and imaginative drama, filled with stirring music and songs, is a show of phenomenal inventiveness that is currently playing to packed houses in London and around the world. At its heart are astonishing life-sized puppets created by South Africa’s Handspring Puppet Company that bring to life breathing, galloping, charging horses strong enough for men to ride.

“Million Dollar Quartet” Tuesday-Sunday, April 1-6

A Tony Award-winning Broadway musical, inspired by the electrifying true story of the famed recording session that brought together rock ‘n’ roll icons Elvis Presley, Johnny Cash, Jerry Lee Lewis and Carl Perkins for the first and only time. On Dec. 4, 1956, these four young musicians were gathered together by Sam Phillips, the “Father of Rock ‘n’ Roll,” at Sun Records in Memphis for what would be one of the greatest jam sessions of all time. “Million Dollar Quartet” brings that legendary night to life with an irresistible tale of broken promises, secrets, betrayal and celebrations featuring timeless hits including “Blue Suede Shoes,” “Fever,” “That’s All Right,” “Sixteen Tons,” “Great Balls of Fire,” “I Walk the Line,” “Whole Lotta Shakin’ Goin’ On,” “Who Do You Love?,” “Matchbox,” “Folsom Prison Blues,” “Hound Dog” and more.
