Christmas special for Polish orphanage children

By Polish Support Unit
Photo courtesy

The Polish NSU would like to invite all Component members to participate in a charity event organized in cooperation with the International community making up the multinational base of Geilenkirchen Air Base, and the Foundation of Squadron 303. The Foundation is a non-government organization founded in order to preserve the memory of 303rd Squadron. The squadron is the most famous individual unit in the history of Polish aviation and was one of the 16 Polish squadrons in the British Royal Air Force during the Second World War.

The main purpose of this charity event is to collect funds and to prepare gifts to support two orphanages in Poland. The Polish National Support Unit, Senior National Representative, Foundation of Squadron 303, NATEX and Chapel hope to be able to give 108 children a very special Christmas.

There are two ways in which you can support our charity action. Individuals can surprise a child by preparing a gift parcel. Details can be found on the Polish Support Unit Portal page. Secondly, anyone can donate a small amount of money. Individuals will find designated money boxes in their squadron, at the NATEX and at the Rotodome.

Funds and gifts for the children will be delivered on 14-15 December by members of the E-3A Component. This charity action is a continuation of the charity project that we started in June 2015. Thanks to our E-3A Component colleagues, we were already able to collect 1,400 euros for the orphanage Pogodny Dom (cheerful home).

COMMANDER'S CORNER

With the Commander's Corner, our NAEW&CF Commander and E-3A Commander give the opportunity to wing and squadron commanders, and branch and division heads to share their thoughts about current topics taking place at NATO Air Base Geilenkirchen. Every month a different writer will highlight a specific topic concerning their discipline.

CHALLENGES AFTER T-DAY: Where are we and where are we going

By Lt Col Raimond Schulz

Currently, the NATO Airborne Early Warning & Control Force HQ and the E-3A Component are undergoing changes as a part of the force-restructuring announced in 2012. The evolution has progressed through multiple milestones and on Nov. 1 2015 we have passed what is being referred to as "T-Day" or Transition Day.

As of this day, the new organizational structure is in effect and offices and people are transferring to the new establishments.

Offices, divisions, wings and squadrons are preparing for the new challenges. Some have been deactivated on Oct. 27 in a ceremony and have been handed over in a deliberate and gradual manner.

Several military persons have received a 180-day temporary alignment to their new posts until their nations have received the official paperwork. Civilians are transferring to new posts, as well. All will begin their new assignment based on the requirements of the gaining and losing organizations. Since we have a new PE; all persons will change to their new positions. Only in exceptional cases the old commander will keep the moving person to guarantee a functional status and minimal impact on the operational capability of the E-3A Component or the NAEW&CF HQ.

It will take some time to fully implement the new Peace Time Establishment as envisaged by the nations. A first milestone to be reached by the Force is IOC. Within this period – T-Day plus 12 months - milestones to be reached are:

- The reorganized NAEW&C HQ will exercise the majority of its control and administrative functions and responsibilities from MOB Geilenkirchen.

- The reorganized NAEW&C HQ and the E-3A Component will implement the restructuring process and begin reducing the number of personnel in accordance with the End State.

End State Peacetime Establishment (ESPE).

- The PE for the reorganized NAEW&C

HQ, MSEC and E-3A Component must be filled with the correct skill sets and competencies.

- COM AIRCOM in Ramstein has taken over Operational Control (OPCON) responsibility from FC.

Challenges for the next few months here in Geilenkirchen, are:

Building reallocations, office move renovations and assignments. IT structure with new telephones and PC's will take some time; but it will be done. The supporting units are very busy right now. Please allow them to do their jobs.

Change can be described as the process of becoming different. Now, even though change is never fun, it's through change that we can do better. George C. Lichtenberg once said: "However, I cannot say whether things will get better if we change; what I can say is they must change if they are to get better." This famous quote describes pretty precisely how we should approach the changes ahead.

Right now we're all moving into our new positions and we're bringing a lot of knowledge and expertise with us. The best we can do for the NAEW&C Force is to utilize that knowledge. We now have the chance to optimize existing procedures or create new ones. We have the opportunity to be innovative and create a leaner and more efficient NAEW&C Force.

It might be easy to change an organisation; however, the organisation is nothing without you! It is a truism to say that every major reorganisation has to go along with changing people's mind-sets and attitudes. It is on us to fill the new organisation with live, to support each other and to speak up, if something is going wrong.

Look around you – how can you optimize the way things are done? Please let us know.

All "transformers" will be constantly updated on important changes for the command here via our Transformation Force portal page.

If you have any suggestions, please email TTF at ofcggk-ttf@naew.nato.int or call ext. 2481.

NATO E-3A AWACS visits Ramstein Air Base

From Nov. 18-20, a NATO E-3A AWACS was deployed to Ramstein Air Base. Purpose of this visit was the familiarization of NATO Allied Air Command (AIRCOM) Staff personnel with this unique NATO asset.

In the near future the Operational Control of the E-3A platform will shift from the NATO Airborne Early Warning and Control Force Command to AIRCOM.

After landing, the crew was welcomed by Deputy Chiefs of Staffs AIRCOM

Brig. Gen. Kevin A. Huyck. After several briefings in AIRCOM HQ, the staff personnel of AIRCOM had the opportunity to visit the jet and talk to the crew. The next day, General Huyck joined the crew for an Assurance Measures missions to experience firsthand on how the crew operates.

The last day, Brig. Gen. Karsten Stoye, NATO E-3A Component commander addressed the AIRCOM staff doing an All Call both from AIRCOM and E-3A Component perspective. The visit was successful.

MSEC: Support the brain of the E-3A

By Lynn Kühn

The Mission Systems Engineering Centre (MSEC) has been subject to several organizational changes since its activation at the Component in 1981. Since Transition-Day, MSEC reorganized once again: Next to the NATO Airborne Early Warning & Control Force Headquarters and the E-3A Component, it now constitutes a separate element.

To support the "brain" of the E-3A aircraft, MSEC's tasks and responsibilities have, however, remained the same. MSEC ensures mission accomplishment by providing engineering services for the software of E-3A aircraft on-board mission system, the mission sensor systems and E-3A ground support systems.

Moreover, MSEC maintains one of a kind engineering and laboratories facilities on base. The organization is thus fully dedicated to the development of software for the E-3A mission systems.

During the early years of the Component, the E-3A's mission systems were supported by the Software Support Centre (SSC). In 1994, the SSC transferred to the Mission Support Wing. Another re-arrangement followed by the establishment of the Mission Systems Engineering Group (MSEG) in 2010, operating under the IT-Wing. With the current restructuring of the NAEW & C Force, MSEG was renamed to MSEC and is a separate entity now.

The Laboratories Branch MSEC, formerly a branch of the Logistics Wing, is now an integral part of MSEC. "This makes MSEC more complete", said MSEC Quality Manager Michael Strauss.

MSEC is divided into the Engineering and Project Management and four additional branches, consisting of 50 civilian and two military posts. "This new internal structure requires improved communication and the reorganization of certain projects.

We have to get smarter", said Lt. Col. Gennaro Cosentino, Head of MSEC.

Currently, MSEC's main objective is to support the realization of the "Mode 5" programme, the most recent update to the "Identification Friend or Foe" (IFF) system. To implement Mode 5, the respective hardware needs to be adjusted. Additionally, the software, which is provided by third parties, needs to be integrated and prepared.

In 2011, the TÜV Rheinland certified MSEC the compliance with the International Standard Quality Management Systems Certificate (ISO 9001) and re-certified the organization in 2014.

MSEC has been audited annually since then and aims at being re-certified according to the new ISO 9001:2015 version in 2017.

Celebration of the 92nd Anniversary of Turkey's Republic

By Lt Col Engin Ertugrul

Turkish community on NATO Air Base in Geilenkirchen celebrates the 92nd anniversary of the declaration of the independence of the country, Thursday, Oct. 29. It is called Cumhuriyet Bayramı, the Republic Day.

Ninety two years back in 1923, the Republic of Turkey was proclaimed by the Grand Assembly. Mustafa Kemal Atatürk was unanimously named the first president of the country. Atatürk led the War of Independence that had started on May 19, 1919 and ended three years later.

This is a national holiday in Turkey which is celebrated every year on Oct. 29. Schools in the country celebrate the Republic Day with readings, displays, songs and other presentations. Government schools and offices are closed on this day as the entire country celebrates the occasion in grand style. Ankara, the capital city, hosts many of the official events of celebration which include ceremonies at the Anıtkabir, Atatürks Mausoleum.

Our Turkish folks on the base gathered at the main briefing facility with their families. The ceremony started with the singing of the national anthem; continued with Senior National representative LTC Engin Ertugrul's speech and presentation. After, guests walked to the Rotodome for the Turkish style lunch. This time lunch was different since our folks arranged the cook from FOB Konya to fix the main foods served on this day. People tested delicious Wedding Soup, Dana Sarma (rolled veal), Adana Kebap, Icli Pilav (rice with pine nuts and currants) and Baklava which are just a couple of sample from rich Turkish cuisine.

Overall it was a very different experience not only for the Turkish community on base but also for those who visited the Rotodome on this special day.

In the evening, our friends along with their spouses, E-3A Component Commander Brig. Gen. Karsten Stoye, Turkish SNR LTC Engin Ertugrul, Danish SNR LTC Søren Jessen, Polish

SNR LTC Zygmunt Anioł and French Liaison Officer Capt. Richard Lerat participated in the reception held by the Consulate General of Turkey in Cologne. On behalf of the Turkish community in Geilenkirchen, I would like to thank General Stoye not only for his participation in this event but also for his continuous support.

Exercise-exercise-exercise: "Th

Story by Maureen Geraets-Head

Photos by André Joosten Maureen Geraets-Head

"Smoke is coming from my console!" With this first scenario line the Egress training starts while an NATO E-3A aircraft sits on the ramp of Forward Operating Base Aktion, Greece.

According to the scenario, there are four crew members on board. Luckily, three of them are able to quickly glide down the escape slide, but one person is still inside, possibly injured.

Lt. Colonel Ekkehard Heinichen, Safety Officer Force Headquarters, Geilenkirchen, designed this Egress training, based on a standard, ground engine run.

He explains, "This is a mandatory exercise as laid down in the Force's Safety program. It is an integral part of the safety directive and safety programme and provides excellent training and feedback to all participants."

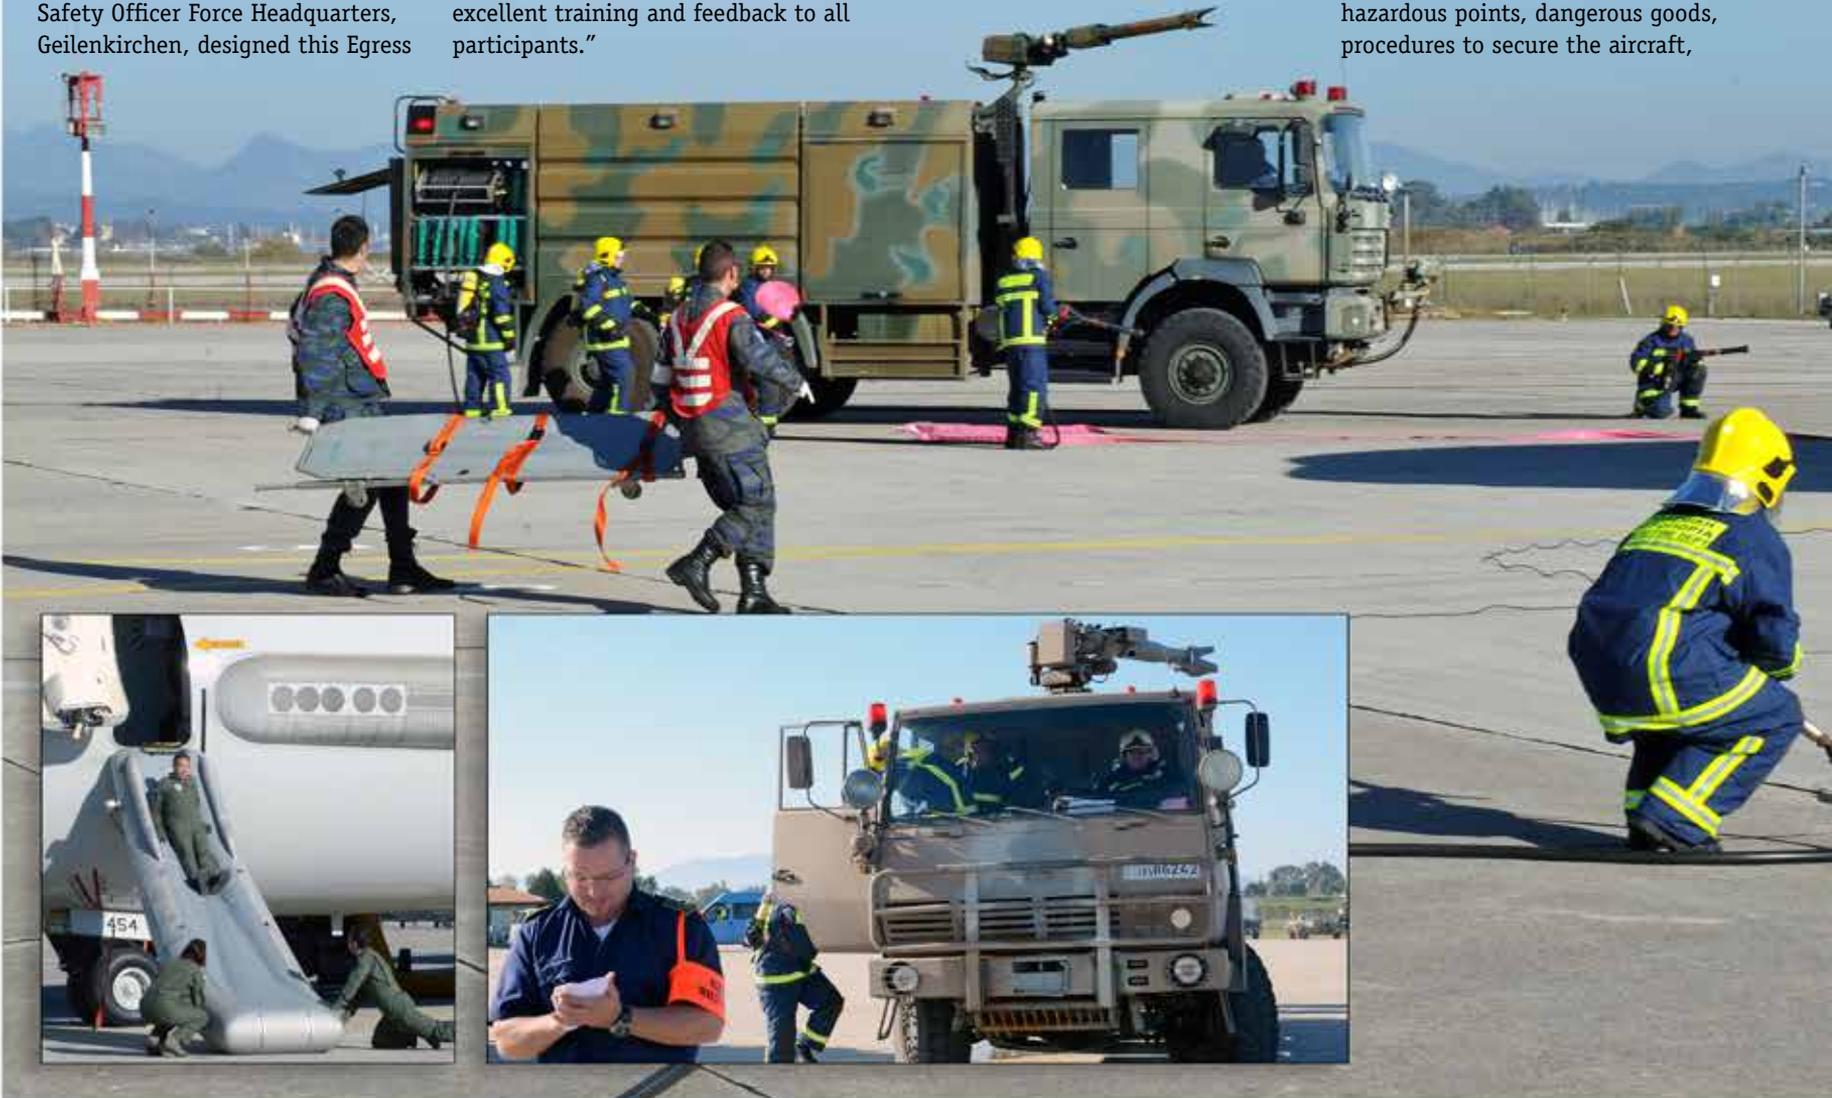

Observers provide inputs on procedures and performances of personnel in close coordination with the Host Nation (HN) emergency response forces. It is of Component and HQ Force interest to maintain the highest possible quality and availability of such services.

"Since the FOBs and FOL do not have their own Rescue and Fire Fighting personnel, it is in our highest interest to maintain such training with the Host Nation forces. The focus is on action and inter-action, where local fire fighters use their own equipment and perform in their own environment", Heinichen continues.

Some 35 HN fire brigade personnel participate in the theoretical training and hands-on exercise.

Deputy Fire Chief from Main Operating Base (MOB) Geilenkirchen, Mr. John Ratzler tells, "The Greek fire fighters received a thorough familiarisation training tailored to an E-3A aircraft. They learned about specifics, such as hazardous points, dangerous goods, procedures to secure the aircraft, entry points and how to use rescue equipment on board."

There is an emergency situation!"

The fire fighters put their training into practise during the scenario play. The sirens of fire fighter trucks tell they are rushing to the scene. Firefighters jumping out of their trucks, running towards the jet, pulling hoses, and extinguishing the simulated fire. They enter through the lower lobe and search for the missing crew member. Even though this is all a play, they perform seriously, following the procedures. Within seconds, the ambulances also arrive on scene.

While this exercise is running, a team of Safety, Medical and Fire fighting personnel from the MOB closely observe the handling of this scenario situation.

"They were very eager and interested to learn; they performed well and put the training into good results," said Ratzer.

After the Egress training was completed, the GK team demonstrated rescue techniques on how to use the spine board and the escape slide to safely recover remaining , may be injured, personnel aboard the E-3. This training also will benefit the local fire fighters when involved with commercial aircraft.

Observations and recommendations were briefed to the FOB Commander on how to continuously improve performances.

FOB Commander, Lt. Colonel Athanasios Tzortas says, "We do not do this every year; we do not have the opportunity to have MOB GK here to perform such a drill. I speak on behalf of HN-side when I say these guys are extremely thrilled getting this opportunity and they are already looking forward to their next training."

Heinichen concluded, "FOB Personnel performed in an excellent way: Within an eight-day timeframe, they opened the FOB to the public on the weekend for Hellenic Air Force (HAF)Days, they took part in the Egress training and supported MOB's Aircrew Training Squadron tasks".

The next Egress training is scheduled for fall 2017, again in combination with HAF Days.

Experience local history at the former Sentry Club building

For the next few weeks, the former Sentry Club building will be a place to discover and experience local history. The exhibition "70 Years after End of WWII: Between War and Peace in the Geilenkirchen region", runs until Dec. 18, 2015, and is the result of a student working group of the St. Ursula Grammar School in Geilenkirchen.

Information boards, press clippings and pictures of that time, as well as interview segments of eye witnesses enable visitors to get an impression of how citizens of the Geilenkirchen region experienced the end of WWII.

"It is an honor for us that we can show our exhibition here", said Jürgen Pallaske, Principal of the St. Ursula Grammar School, during the opening ceremony in front of the Component Commander Brig. Gen. Karsten Stoye, Mayor of Geilenkirchen Georg Schmitz, the Municipal Administrator of Teveren Hans Josef Paulus, students, teachers, eye witnesses and NAEW Force personnel.

The exhibition was already displayed in Geilenkirchen earlier this year.

After a small delegation of Component members had visited it, Lt. Col. Volker von dem Bach, German NSU Commander, invited the working group to display their exhibition at NATO Air Base Geilenkirchen.

The initiative to realize the exhibition on base was spearheaded by von dem Bach and Lt. Stefan Kühnel and supported by Chief Master Sgt. Frank Bursian and Technical Sgt. Christopher Lehnen.

Interviews with eye witnesses clearly build the focal point of the exhibition.

Eight citizens of the Geilenkirchen region, each with different experiences and biographies, were interviewed by the students during the research process.

"The statements and memories of the eye witnesses reconstruct the history from a personal point of view; every interview adds to the picture", said Laura Schmidt, one of the teachers that led the student working group. The exhibition is open Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1300 to 1500 in the Video Room section of the former Sentry Club building 70. Other times or group sessions can be booked through the German NSU at ext. 2142/ 2143.

Joker 17

By Isabelle Engels

On 13 April 1944, the 8th Air Force bombed the ball bearing manufactories at Schweinfurt. On board of the B17 Flying Fortress "The Joker" were 10 crew members, one of which was killed by anti-aircraft guns. The aircraft was so damaged that the remaining crew bailed out above Belgium. The aircraft slammed into a hill near Bérismenil (La Roche-en-Ardenne) setting fire to the entire hill. The villagers found the burned body of James Young in the wreckage while helping to put out the fire.

In 1946, James Young's name has been engraved on the World War II memorial with all the civilian victims of that village.

Since 1992, an American contingent of the base and the authorities of La Roche-en-Ardenne organize together a yearly Memorial Day. This 71th anniversary took place few days ago.

After 21 years of searching, James Young's family was finally located and been informed that a monument has been erected to honour the memory of The Joker's crew. During this event, we had the pleasure to read a message written by Diane Young, James' cousin.

Dear Friends,

Thank you for your continued work and caring for the memorial that honours my cousin Jimmy Young.

Although I was quite young when World War II began and I had only seen my cousin a few times, I was aware of his death while on a bombing mission. Many very young men gave up their lives to help end a war that needed to be fought so we could live and not be enslaved to a tyrant.

It is good to honour those who sacrificed their lives as it is a reminder to those of us who suffered that we owe a debt to the men who bravely did their duty. Your Memorial Day celebration is a fine tradition to give us pause to think about the ones no longer with us. I greatly appreciate what your village has done and continues to do in commemoration of the airplane that crashed nearby.

Even though I will not be there, I will think of you all and send many good thoughts your way.

Diane Young

Forward Operating Base (FOB) Aktion opened its doors from 6 to 8 November during the 2015 Hellenic Air Force Days. ## Veteran's Day: A United States Perspective

In recognition of the United States' Veteran's Day, the following speech was delivered by Colonel Matthew T. Smith, NAEW & C Force HQ Requirements Division & Senior National Representative, to all United States Air Force Airmen stationed at Geilenkirchen Air Base, Germany. A message, in which the deeper meaning also applies to all NATO members working on NATO Air Base Geilenkirchen.

To help put today into perspective, here is a reminder of why we are here. Veteran's Day, also known as Armistice Day and Remembrance Day by other nations, marks the anniversary of the end of World War I where major hostilities were formally ended at the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month of 1918, when the Armistice between the Allies and Germany formally went into effect. The United States originally observed Armistice Day, but in 1954 it evolved into what we currently know it to be—Veteran's Day—a day in which we continue to honor those who served within our nation's military.

All told there have been roughly 57 million US veterans with approximately 22 million of those still alive today. To put that into perspective, a little less than one percent of the total American population are considered veterans. This is truly an elite group of Americans, and to put it into terms we would use in today's Air Force, that's the top 1% and no doubt a heck of a stratification. However, with that level of recognition brings great responsibility and an obligation to those we serve and to those who have so honorably served before us. So, back to the things I would like for you to take into consideration today as a future veteran of our Air Force. The three topics are fairly straightforward and should resonate with all: that is to lead, listen, and leave a legacy of excellence.

As a key member of NATO, the United States is a major contributor of both people and resources. In fact, the United States makes up about 30 percent of the NATO AWACS program. With that, comes a responsibility to lead and to be that "go-to" leader. Some of you may not think of yourselves as the leader I am describing here today, but as a matter of fact—each of you are that leader. It does not matter if you are a first-term Airmen supporting people and the mission, a highly-skilled 7-level technician, a young AWACS Aviator, or even an experienced SNCO or field grade officer. The actions we must take as leaders are not those of just "going through the motions", but rather those of professional Airmen; professional Airmen capable of making the most informed decisions to benefit our mission. Yet, those actions and decisions we make must be informed and to be well informed, we must listen, listen to understand, a definite challenge but also a great opportunity in our international environment.

We are fortunate to be here at Geilenkirchen and within NATO because we have a multitude of nations and thereby varying perspectives, sometimes very different than our own. That is okay. Embrace it! But to do this we must truly listen to what others are saying and work hard to approach it from their perspective, taking into consideration their experiences and their ideas. Once we listen to understand what others around us are saying, I think we will find the decisions we make as Airmen leaders are much more informed, more complete, and mission enhancing. This, in and of itself, can help create a reputation as an inclusive leader who leaves a legacy of excellence.

This legacy of excellence is something we should work towards as both individual Airmen and as the greater United States Air Force team.

Whether American Airmen were fighting in Europe in the world wars, employing as part of the Alliance during Operation ALLIED FORCE, supporting Operation UNIFIED PROTECTOR or fighting as a member of ISAF in Afghanistan, Airmen were building and establishing their legacy. Action by action. Sortie by sortie. Day by day. What I would like all of us to do is think about today, right now, and this very assignment is: How do you want to be remembered not just when you PCS but when you hang up the uniform and become a veteran? I want you to think about how you would like Geilenkirchen or NATO AWACS to be thought of by those we work with and also those who will come after. Did you, in fact do your best to leave a legacy of excellence, one that will be remembered for years to come? It's a tall order but certainly achievable and perhaps something we should all think about, especially on a day such as today.

Lead, listen, and leave a legacy of excellence. Thank you all for being a part of today's ceremony, and lastly and perhaps most importantly, thank you very much for serving our nation.

Aim High....Fly, Fight, Win!

Germany Night

By Mary Leard
International Spouse's Club

We had a superb night last month celebrating all things Oktoberfest hosted by our German representatives! Patrons were served Bavarian food, traditional Oktoberfest games were played, best dressed dirndl contest, and fantastic raffle prizes were won! Everyone also got to take home a beer stein.

The E-3A club's main hall was decorated in true Bavarian style with the blue and white lozenge style themed pennant flags, tablecloths, placemats, and napkins. There were banners streamed throughout the room depicting beer mugs and gingerbread cookie hearts.

The night started off with the German national anthem, Das Deutschlandlied, being played. After that, it was all about the food. The table had small licorice pretzel shaped gummies and there was a starter basket of soft Brezel and Brötchen served with mustard.

After the breads were consumed, members were served leberkäse with sauerkraut. Dessert was a cream custard called Grießflammerie served with Raspberry sauce.

In between meals, games were played such as the Stein hoisting competition, best dressed dirndl, and tin can toss. Of course, the ever popular raffle prizes were given to some lucky individuals.

ISC also introduced Small Groups for the first time this year in an effort to bring members closer together on a more intimate level with opportunities to co-mingle with other nationalities. Currently the groups are cooking, English conversation, lunch bunch and walking. There may be other groups added in the future such as crafts or sports.

Mark your calendar for our next December event hosted by Canada on December 9th. If you'd like to become a member of ISC, want more info on Small Groups, or to learn more please contact us at iscofgk@gmail.com or find us on Facebook at International Spouses Club of Geilenkirchen: ISC.

International library book signing event

By Mr. Heiner Hoben

Last July, Mr. Dr. Gary L. Morris, author of the book "The Legend of Crazy Woman Canyon", personally signed his book for interested Component personnel during a book-signing event at the International Library.

There will be another opportunity to receive his personally signed book at the next book signing event on 9 December, 1100–1300. It is also possible to sign out the library book. In addition, another E-3A Component author,

Mrs Isabelle Engels, will also introduce and personally sign her book "Odyssey of the Joker", which has just been released, hot off the press. It is a story about the crash of a B-17 Flying Fortress in 1944, in Belgium, its crew and the men and women of the Belgian and French Resistance.
