CAPTAIN EELLS VISITS THE WRECK OF THE FIVE BROTHERS.

The Seth Low Claims Salvage-She is Now Lying in the Indian River-Booming the Atlantic and Western Road.

Captain Thomas S. Ellis, underwriters' agent, returned yesterday afternoon from insured for $1,600, was all on board and guished. had not been injured by the soaking it received. The cargo above deck, insured for $800, was missing. As for the vessel herself, a three-masted schooner, her foremast and mizzen-mast were standing, but with these exceptions her top works were gone, including all her running and standing rigging. Her chains and anchors were aboard her when she was towed into the Indian River. The hull is in good conditions and market was to be about the standard her when she was towed into the Indian River.

The schooner was lying at the fish wharf just inside the inlet when examined by Captain Eells. She had been in sight from the shore for a week before she was towed to her present quarters, the towing being done by Dr. J. C. L'Engle's tug Seth Low. When she crossed the bar off Mosquito Inlet she had a draught of fourteen feet and there was a depth of only fifteen feet of water on the bar. The place where she was found was nearly ten miles from land. It is thought the schooner's chains fouled the wreck of bar. The place where she was found was nearly ten miles from land. It is thought the schooner's chains fouled the wreck of some vessel which kept her in the position where she remained during the week. Captain Eel's states that the wreck might be the steamer Vera Cruz, which was lost in a cyclone some years ago in that locality, sevency-six out of the eighty six souls aboard her going to the bottom. The Five Brothers and her cargo will either be libelled in admiralty, or sold by auction where they now are, by Captain Eels, as the representative of the underwriters. Dr. L'Engle will put in a claim for salvage, and now holds the vessel and her cargo as subject to salvage.

Railroads that had defaulted on their securities for years past have been reorganized this year, and placed once more upon a sound and satisfactory basis, with every prospect of a material appreciation in the value of their securities in time to come. The most recent achievement in this direction is in connection with the property heretolore operated under the style of the Blue Spring, Orange City and Atlantic Railway. This property has just been sold under foreclosure proceedings, and purchased by a number of influential gentlemen in question include the following:

The capital stock of the new company is $300,000, and its aggregate assets foot up some $500,000. The road extends from Blue Spring to New Smyrna, a distance of thirty miles, with a branch now build ing to DeLand. The road is well built and well equipped with first-class rolling stock, including Pullman palace cars, etc. It runs to the famous Indian River country and has a large and constantly growing freight and tourist traffic. Now that its affairs have been so judiciously reorganized, and with such able and experienced gentlemen identified with its management, there is no doubt but great success will be arrived at. The security holders are to be congratulated upon the improving prospects that lie before them.

The tug J. E. Stevens, now being thoroughly overhauled on the ways at the ship yard, starts to-morrow for Savannah, where she has a large contract for towing barges. Her guards have been repaired, and a new rudder post putin. New planking has been put 'n a portion of the starboard bow.

John Zahm, of the firm of Zahm & Rebston, proprietors of the Atlantic Garden on Newnan street, appeared before the Mayor yesterday morning in response to a charge of violating the city ordinance prohibiting the sale of spirituous liquors on Sunday. Three witnesses for the prosecution were produced. It was proved that Zahm had given away last Sunday a glass of sarasparilla beer to a man who had entered the garden when it was being cleaned up. Zahm was ably defended by J. C. Marzy Jr., and was discharged. Anderson Woodward, charged with vagrancy, explained that he "was new to der rules of der town," and the court discharged him.

It was discovered that a leak in a gas pipe had caused the conflagration. An employee at Mason's in looking for a leak in the pipe near the meter yesterday morning, struck a match which set fire to the escaping gas. The flames spread along the pipe into the walls and finally reached the timbers underneath the floor of the second story. The carpets and furniture in the second story were partially injured. While driving out from the central station the hook and ladder truck turned completely over throwing Captain Will, the tillerman several feet away from the truck. His hip and right side were injured very much, while second ladderman Coleman was also bruised badly. Every one on the truck including the driver were thrown to the ground, but luckily none

The hose cart of the western division also fared badly. While coming at full speed down Pine street the truck broke down and piled up the hosemen in a motley mass. They were not injured and continued on a run to the fire where, they quickly went to work.

The accident at the central station was caused by attempting to bring the ladder truck out with speed, and the building is too narrow.
