Gene Leedy passed to a better life Nov. 24 at the age of 90.

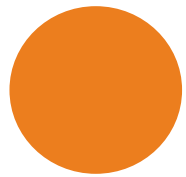

Next to the sign-in book were a few bottles of scotch and boxes of expensive cigars, two of his favorites.

WINTER HAVEN – Dozens of family and friends of esteemed architect Gene Leedy attended a celebration of life party Thursday, Nov. 29 at the Winter Haven Garden Center, one of the many buildings Leedy designed around Win-“Dad loved a good funeral because he said they always had deviled eggs and he loved deviled eggs and he loved telling stories and reminiscing,” his daughter Saffie Farris said Thursday.

All four of his children attended, Saffie Farris, Ingram Leedy, Robert Leedy and Helen Patterson along with many of his grandchildren. Liquor and laughs flowed.

Safe Travels

WRITTEN BY
GRADY JUDD
Sheriff

If you haven't noticed yet, we are enjoying some fuel prices that we haven't seen in a while. And though that is good news, it does have at least one downside...people are going to take advantage of the lower fuel prices and drive more.

At Thanksgiving, we saw an increase in people traveling to see family and friends, and we'll most definitely see the same for Christmas.

If and when you leave home for an extended period of time, do what you can to protect your home in your absence. Try to have a trusted friend or family member watch over the residence, and maybe park an extra car in the driveway. Make it look like someone is there.

Lights being left on are an old trick used to make the house look occupied. Timers can easily be set up to turn your lights on and off.

Don't advertise your vacation on social media. We would like to think that all of the people on our "Friends List" on Facebook are trustworthy, but that's not always the case. Be very careful with whom you let know about your planned time away.

Don't forget to request a hold on your mail while you're gone. USPS has made it very easy to go online to do this.

If you do hit the road this holiday season, please remember that it may be crowded and crazy, but everybody else out there probably has the same plans as you. Take it slow, be courteous, and make it to your destination safely.

Commission votes to raise pay

WRITTEN BY
CHARLES A BAKER III
cbaker@scmginc.com

POLK COUNTY - Fresh off the Nov. 6 election, brand new commissioners Rick Wilson and Martha Santiago, along with the rest of the county commission, may be voting to give themselves raises Dec. 18.

County commissioners currently earn $43,905.26 per year. They have discussed giving themselves a $922.01 annual raise to $44,827.27 per year.

According to the Polk County Charter, commissioners can give themselves raises if the vote is unanimous and if the raise percentage is less than that given county employees. County employees will be receiving three percent raises this year. The county commissioners will be voting to give themselves a 2.1 percent raise.

On Dec. 4, the county commissioners voted to approve raises for Polk County Manager Jim Freeman and Polk County Attorney Michael Craig. Each will earn $212,146.74 and $193,197.72 respectively in 2019.

GENE LEEDY

"Robert was really good at imitating him," Ingram said. "Robert would grab a sip of scotch and a cigar, pat his chest, look at the building he just designed and built and would say, 'Masterpiece.'"

Leedy designed hundreds of buildings across the state of Florida and beyond but the largest concentration of his work is where he decided to raise his family.

After graduating from the University of Florida in 1950, Leedy began working in Sarasota. Searching for a niche of his own, in 1954 Leedy moved to the quiet citrus town of Winter Haven where he was commissioned to design a home for former theater manager Frank Sparrow on Lake Otis just northeast of what is now Winter Haven High School. The "Sparrow House" won accolades in House and Home Magazine that helped to launch his career.

One of his next Winter Haven projects was designing several on Drexel Avenue near what is now Lake Elbert Elementary in 1956, collectively called "Leedy Land." They are all relatively small homes with flat roofs and concrete blocked in courtyards with ivy walls around the property lines. In some glass walls look out at a garden courtyard instead of seeing the street. Gene Leedy purchased one of these to raise his own family.

"These houses changed people, brought them together," Ingram said. "It made life for living."

Driving by the houses now, it is easy to tell which are Leedy homes. Audio tours are available at www.geneleedy.com.

"It seems like everybody who has lived in one of my dad's houses always had a strong identity," said Gene's son Ingram Leedy. "They are always somebody who does something. They have a successful business or somebody who is famous."

Ingram said many of his father's clients turned into lifelong friends. Gene Leedy designed Winter Haven City Hall and several other downtown buildings before building an office for himself in 1961, showcasing a style that he is probably most known for. Gene Leedy used load bearing, pre-stressed concrete "double Ts" with eight-foot overhangs for added shade, glass walls and black iron gates which were affordable to build and naturally kept the inside space cool at a time when air conditioning did not exist. Other architects liked his designs and started copying his work.

"Imitation is the highest form of flattery," Leedy said in a recorded interview on his website. "I wish I had patented it. I would have made a fortune."

Looking at his old office and some of the other buildings he designed over the years, many have seen better days and others have been partially redesigned.

"Architecture is a great profession but one that has real pitfalls," Gene Leedy posted online. "You do a building and somebody comes along and does something to it. It's heartbreaking. It makes you feel like you'd be happier on the moon."

Leedy was once given an award based on the psychological aspects of his designs.

"Architecture is important in everyday life," Leedy once said. "It makes you feel good. A good house or good office makes you feel good in it."

Leedy paid attention to detail and always dressed well according to his friends. Bill Nowling lived next door to Leedy since 1984 and remembered when bus tours were scheduled to drive by, Leedy would ask Nowling and others to straighten up their properties, his pride and ego strong even toward the end.

"He was very proud of his work," his daughter Saffie said. "He had a big ego, knew his work was good. It has stood the test of time."

Max Strang grew up in a Leedy-designed home and was inspired to become an architect himself.

"When a building becomes more than a building and a work of architecture that is when you know the architect got it right," Strang said. "Nine times out of ten, probably more than that, Gene's buildings are much more than a building. They have a certain inherent quality that elevates into a work of architecture and that is worth preserving."

PHOTOS BY CHARLES A BAKER III

Friends and family of the late Gene Leedy gathered to share stories about the late architect Nov. 29 at the Winter Haven Garden Center.

Gene's step grandson Jake Farris now works with Strang as a design apprentice.

Gene Leedy was not just creative with his designs but also creative in convincing others. Back in 1990 when the Winter Haven Chamber of Commerce building was built, city leaders were not keen on building it in the middle of a park. Leedy creatively came up with the concept of building a park path through the middle of the building. City leaders quickly got on board.

"Gene Leedy had a strong identity, with confidence," Ingram said. "His clients were the same and were the top of their own professions and were also unique. They wanted something that stood out and was different."

It may have been Gene Leedy's friendly spirit more than his architectural accomplishments that were celebrated Thursday night however.

"The party was probably exactly what he would have wanted," Saffie said. "Daddy was very social. I'm sure he was smiling down on us."

Gene Leedy built an office for himself in the style he is likely most famous for, concrete "double Ts" support structures, 8-inch overhangs, glass walls and black iron gates.

Inmates benefit from new program

WRITTEN BY
CHARLES A BAKER III
cbaker@scmginc.com

POLK COUNTY – Back in September, Citrus Connection Route 35 started at Eagle Ridge Mall, made a couple of stops in Lake Wales, then Babson Park, then Frostproof and then back north. When Frostproof City Council voted not to subsidize their share of the line, the Citrus Connection board voted to transfer services to South County Jail.

Citrus Connection Executive Director said Route 35 costs $159,319 per year. The route takes 110 minutes to complete with 40 of those going to and from the jail. Phillips could not provide statistics on how many people are taking the bus to the jail. Federal and state grants pay half of the cost. The City of Lake Wales was asked to pay $63,820 annually for 2017-18 and climb to $93,103 by 2019-20. The Polk County Board of County Commissioners pays the remaining amount.

Polk County Commissioner George Lindsey is on the Citrus Connection board with County Commissioner John Hall. Commissioner Lindsey was asked why he helped authorize tax money for bus service to the jail.

“Not everyone in jail has been adjudicated guilty,” Commissioner Lindsey said. “Whether they have or have not been adjudicated, having contact with family members is a positive influence.”

Free rent and utilities

State Dept. of Children and Families grants and local matching funds from the Polk County indigent health care fund are being used to initiate a program designed to try and prevent recently released inmates from getting locked up again soon after.

The grants are used to fund case management to help recently released inmates with mental health problems to apply for benefits, addiction counseling from paramedics, prescription medications and rent and utility assistance for a few months. According to a Dec. 2016 University of South Florida report, those receiving these services were less likely to be re-incarcerated within a year. The study concluded that it costs less to help recently released inmates than to keep them incarcerated. The study had no long-term conclusions.

County commissioners previously approved money for case management services. They were scheduled to approve state grants of around $400K per year helping inmates pay rent and utilities temporarily while they look for work or seek other means to pay their bills once released.

As many as 240 inmates could benefit from these grants annually, according to county documentation. Central Florida Behavioral Health Network staff will be administrating the grants. Email info@cfbhn.org for more information.

Haines City Chamber leader hired

WRITTEN BY
CHARLES A BAKER III
cbaker@scmginc.com

HAINES CITY – Haines City Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors Chair Karen Tiner recently announced that Lana Stripling has been hired as executive director of the chamber.

Stripling has been interim executive director ever since Miki Weaver resigned in August. Weaver served just a few months having taken over the chamber from longtime director Betsy Cleveland, who took a job with the Polk Supervisor of Elections in late 2017.

“For the past 90 days (Lana) has displayed exceptional enthusiasm and impeccable work ethic in continuing the day-to-day operations of the Chamber along with facilitating the Chamber’s two new successful events: Wine and Cheese in the Park and the East Polk Business Expo.”

Stripling said she is looking forward to the future.

“I am very excited for this opportunity,” Stripling said. “I grew up here and graduated high school from Haines City Senior High so this is hometown for me. I have been involved with the community and look forward to helping Haines City and the area communities and businesses grow and thrive. Our communities have so much to offer.”

WINTER HAVEN NEWS

Ritz Theatre may open by January

WRITTEN BY
CHARLES A BAKER III
cbaker@scmginc.com

WINTER HAVEN – According to a recent Ritz Theatre grant application to the City of Winter Haven, supporters are trying to re-open the historic downtown theater with daily events as early as January.

The theater closed several months ago after running out of money to put on shows and pay staff. A local judge removed the board and appointed retired Judge Charles Davis to take over operations and decide whether to keep running the theater as a non-profit or sell it to the highest bidder.

The largest obstacle to making that decision is a lien between the former Ritz board and former manager Stella Heath. According to the lien and court documents, Heath was not paid regularly for years before she resigned and that she is owed hundreds of thousands of dollars. If the lien is determined to be a legal debt, Judge Davis said that could mean the theater would have to be foreclosed and sold to the highest bidder. The judge said it could be spring or summer of 2019 before that answer is known.

Judge Davis said the mortgage interest on the theater is scheduled to “balloon” in March. He wants to refinance the mortgage to avoid an interest boost. In early November the judge filed court documents alleging the lien be thrown out because it is not a valid debt.

Benjamin Webster of the law firm Morgan and Morgan represents Stella Heath and is asking for a trial to settle the lien debt question but there are no hearings currently scheduled.

Supporters of the Ritz have already donated around $5K cash and the development firm of Six/Ten has pledged a matching grant of $10K to try and help to re-open the theater.

“I am in contact with Charles Davis to discuss immediate needs to see if we need to create a second campaign,” Six/Ten Partner Joe Bogdahn said.

On Nov. 26, the Winter Haven City Commission approved $10K of taxpayer funds to help get the theater ready to re-open. According to the grant application, the theater owed around $10K for their annual insurance and around $9K to get the fire suppression system up to code. Every day the theater remains closed, mortgage and utility costs are adding up.

According to the grant application, Theatre Winter Haven staff have agreed to help organize events. Theatre Winter Haven Producing Director Dan Chesnicka said the theater would focus 80 percent on cultural events and 20 percent on renting the space out for weddings and other events. Chesnicka said there would be bingo nights, dueling pianos, tribute shows, family movie nights, karaoke, Gospel brunches and other daily events.

If the theater is foreclosed, the $10K in taxpayer dollars would end up not serving its purpose. The mayor seemed willing to take that risk.

“I’m so excited,” Mayor Brad Dantzler said. “When Theatre Winter Haven is involved we know it’s going to be a good cause.”

Sweet and Hedrick start a Building Supply

WRITTEN BY BOB GERNERT

The year was 1925 (May 18 to be exact) when Harry S. Hedrick and Evanda Hugh Sweet incorporated Home Builders Supply. The two men had joined a year earlier to open the business at the height of the Florida land boom when new residents descended on the state demanding lumber and building supplies.

Hedrick had been involved with lumber and building. Sweet, originally from Georgia, had been working as an accountant at Winter Haven Planning Mills.

The store was located near Downtown Winter Haven. For many years the business was located on Fourth Street, SW at Avenue A. (The location would later be home to Berry Builders Supply. Home Builders Supply did $10,000 in business the first year. Hundreds of land speculators and new residents were constructing houses, hotels, and businesses taking advantage of the boom-time economy.

The company prospered throughout the 20s even as the land boom went bust. During the Depression years of the 30s the company survived with a reputation for reasonably priced building supplies.

Following World War II, Sweet and his family purchased Hedrick's interest in the company. Home Builders Supply expanded to serve a countywide trading area. In 1948, a branch store opened in Auburndale as an experiment in the "cash-and-carry" method of operation.

The company learned many valuable lessons from the experimental Auburndale store. Eventually both the downtown Winter Haven and Auburndale locations were sold. The company slowly expanded its "cash-and-carry" chain building supply stores throughout Central Florida.

In 1968, the business (with 17 stores and sales of $12 million +) issued a public stock offering to raise about $2 million for expansion. The money helped build new stores, pay off the company's short-term bank notes and replace the old Home Builders Supply signs with new "Scotty's" signs.

When the Winter Haven corporate offices opened in the late 1960s, the company operated out of a new 9,000 square foot building on seven acres of land. By 1988 the complex had grown to 58 acres of land with 55,000 square feet of office space and a million square feet of warehousing.

In the 1980s, Scotty's introduced several changes including a broader product selection and air-conditioned sales areas. At the same time they launched a number of smaller "hardware" stores. These stores were targeted for smaller markets where larger stores were not practical. The company grew to serve residents in Florida, Alabama and Georgia. At one point Scotty's was Florida's largest home building supply.

The Sweet family eventually sold the business to GIB Group of Belgium. Later, a group of management personnel repurchased the company. Changes in home building supply retailing and the introduction of "super stores" led to the demise of Scotty's.

The closing of the Winter Haven store was the end of an era for the Home Builders Supply legacy of Harry Hedrick and Evanda Hugh Sweet that began right here in Winter Haven in 1924.

Today's installment was compiled from a 1988 Scotty's news release and information from The History of Winter Haven by Josephine Burr.

The Museum of Winter Haven History will reopen January 5, from 9 a.m. to Noon. Group tours are available for four or more people by appointment. The museum, located at 660 Pope Avenue and Lake Howard Drive, is free and open to the public. Come explore. For further information contact Bob Gernert, 863-206-6855 or bobgernert@gmail.com

City approves $340K for senior housing

WRITTEN BY
CHARLES A BAKER III
cbaker@scmginc.com

WINTER HAVEN – Without any prior public debate on Nov. 26 the Winter Haven City Commission voted 3-2 to approve $340K in support of a Winter Haven Housing Authority state financing application.

It is the first time in city history that money from the general fund has ever gone toward supporting affordable housing according to city staff. The city has previously loaned money or used federal money allocated through the city to fund similar projects.

Five area developers are applying for the same state financing program to build affordable housing around Winter Haven. Mayor Brad Dantzler said he was worried that if the commission approved money to support the housing authority application, it would not be fair to other developers building affordable housing. Housing authority staff said they were the only developers to ask the city for support.

The $340K city matching grant put the housing authority state financing application on higher standing than the other four applications from area developers, giving the $16M project a higher chance of being financed.

Six/Ten partner Bud Strang said he represented one of the other four developers. Strang said unlike the housing authority, which is not required to pay property taxes, his development would.

Winter Haven City Commissioner William Twyford said he opposed the expenditure saying it made no sense to spend that much money to support an organization that does not pay taxes. Both Twyford and Commissioner Pete Chichetto voted in opposition.

“Right now we don’t have $354k to give away,” Chichetto said. “We just raised taxes.”

Back in September the Winter Haven Housing Authority applied and was approved for permission to build an 81-unit senior subsidized housing unit called Lakeside Terrace Phase II on Avenue O NE. At that time there was no mention that the housing authority would need city taxpayer dollars to build.

Normally this level of funding would be discussed by the commission in a public work session but due to Thanksgiving, the most recent work session was cancelled and so the commission had to discuss this request on the same night they voted on it.

According to housing authority staff, they needed an answer right away because their state grant application was due Dec. 4.

Mayor Brad Dantzler said the vote was not an ideal situation but that the city has been making promises about more affordable housing for years and in the grand scheme, this project would help a lot of people.

“It’s unfortunate that we could not have a workshop on this because I have a lot of questions that are swirling in my mind,” Mayor Dantzler said. “I’m all for the Winter Haven Housing Authority but it just seems like we are picking winners and losers because there are five groups in Winter Haven applying for this money. If we pick this one, we are not picking the other four.”

LAKE WALES NEWS

More of LW area primed to grow

WRITTEN BY
BRIAN ACKLEY
News Correspondent

LAKE WALES – With several new businesses on the verge of opening in north Lake Wales, city leaders think there is another area that is ready to grow.

Pre-construction meetings were held last week near Hunt Brothers Road and U.S. 27 where ground will be broken soon on a new Love's Travel Plaza, a precursor of more potential growth in the southern part of Lake Wales in the coming years.

There are several reasons that area is considered prime for development. Much of it has to do with infrastructure as the Florida Department of Transportation is planning for a total reconstruction of the U.S. 27 and State Road 60 interchange as well as making U.S. 27 a six-lane highway down to the Polk and Highlands county line in the coming years.

"Once the 60, 27 interchange is done, that whole area south of us is going to be very, very intensely developed I think," City Manager Ken Fields said. "The 27 corridor between here and Chalet Suzanne is already starting to fill in. And, quite honestly, we've already been approached by some of the major landowners along that portion. We're looking for quality development in those areas as best we can."

Design work on the interchange upgrade – which will cost nearly $50 million and make both roadways three lanes in each direction in that area– is scheduled to end this year, with land and right-of-way acquisitions coming after that. Construction is slated to start in the second half of 2020, according to FDOT.

In the coming weeks, Wawa and Aldi's are expected to open their new locations near Eagle Ridge Mall, which follows the opening of a new IHOP restaurant just north of Chalet Suzanne Road a few months ago. In addition, Dyer auto group has broken ground on its new facility near Hampton Inn as well.

Northwest area getting a plan in Lake Wales

WRITTEN BY
BRIAN ACKLEY
News Correspondent

LAKE WALES – City leaders are hoping a new master plan will lead to the revitalization of the northwest area of Lake Wales.

Approval has been given for the city's Community Redevelopment Agency, a group made up of the same five members that comprise the city commission, to spend $95,000 for a master plan that will focus on several key issues faced in that area, according to Karen Thompson, who serves both as the Director of Lake Wales Main Street and assistant CRA director.

"I've been meeting with community leaders from the northwest section. We've really, really been having a meeting of the minds," Thompson noted.

She said a road map on how to reach some of the priorities identified was a critical component to getting there.

"I asked everyone to come up with priorities and the number one priority was a master plan," she added. "We've got to know who we want to be, what we want to look like."

Among the specific issues: Address affordable housing, identify potential assisted living locations, develop a neighborhood connection to downtown, streetscape refreshment to Lincoln Avenue and support and enhance cultural or entertainment uses.

The next step will be to issue a request for qualifications from urban planning firms. The cost of the study will come from CRA funds, officials noted.

Roosevelt Academy Christmas Sale

WRITTEN BY
CHARLES A BAKER III
cbaker@scmginc.com

LAKE WALES – Roosevelt Academy in Lake Wales is a public school that specializes in teaching middle and high school age ESE students vocational training skills. Twice a year for more than a decade, the students and teachers host annual Christmas and Spring Garden sales.

Students who “work” for the Outdoor Furniture Company sell things like student-made picnic tables. Other students make baked goods and “Roosevelt Farms” teaches agricultural skills.

On Thursday, Dec. 13 between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m., the Annual Christmas Sale takes place.

Barbeque lunches, a variety of cakes and cookies, vegetables, outdoor furniture, plants and herbs will all be for sale. Proceeds benefit the school.

Make it Magical this weekend

LAKE WALES – The Ninth Annual Make It Magical event in downtown Lake Wales is Friday night.

Lake Wales Main Street, the City of Lake Wales, the Lake Wales Art Center, the Lake Wales Chamber of Commerce and downtown business owners are sponsoring Make It Magical with holiday activities, crafts, food, music, vendors, entertainment and snow for the kids to play in.

“Our goal is to make it bigger and better every year,” said Lake Wales Main Street Executive Director Karen Thompson. “There is an army of volunteers, sponsors and organizations all working together to coordinate this free community event. We can’t thank them enough.”

LW to offer grants to attract restaurants

WRITTEN BY
BRIAN ACKLEY
News Correspondent

LAKE WALES – The City of Lake Wales is hoping to attract more restaurants, and is willing to put money on the table to do that.

Entrepreneurs considering eateries in the downtown historic area, or in the northwest area of the city, are now eligible for up to $50,000 in funds to help facilitate their opening.

The money is in the form of a matching grant, with the funds coming from the Lake Wales Community Re-development Agency. A maximum of $200,000 has been allocated for the program.

“A restaurant requires a lot more capital investment than a retail store,” City Manager Ken Fields said. “Putting in a restaurant or any kind of food operation, it can require special venting or special plumbing. The idea here was to attract those kinds of businesses, let the city put some skin in the game.”

Projects like markets, micro-breweries and specialty food stores would be eligible, according to city officials.

One city official said she recently met with someone interested in opening a deli on Lincoln Avenue, which would qualify for the grant money.

Things like furniture and normal restaurant equipment would not be eligible

Improvements paid for by grant money must stay in place for at least five years. Applicants would be reviewed by a committee including Fields, Lake Wales Main Street Director Karen Thompson and two additional city staffers before coming before the CRA board for a final vote.

BARTOW NEWS

Bartow cheerleaders win tournament, two more this month

WRITTEN BY JEFF ROSLOW
News Correspondent

Two down and two first places. So far that's how its gone for the defending state and national champions Bartow High School cheerleading squad.

Saturday they finished in first place at the UCA Regional Competition in Tampa in the Large Varsity Co-Ed division. On Nov. 15 the varsity squad won first place in Lake Mary at the Kalliegh Ottis Cheer Competition. Also, on Saturday they earned a bid for the national competition and defended their title which will be held at Disney World in February.

"We had some bobbles and drops," Head Coach Lori Jolliff said pointing out the team earned six points in that part of the competition, which is not acceptable, she said. This week she plans to focus on that.

"We will take it and run with it," she said. "The kids walked off the mat and knew they could do better. We know we can do better and we will be."

"It's a testament to the alumni and the kids and the work they do outside of practice," Jolliff said. When they have time off and maybe want to hang around with friends or go to a movie, they plan for an evening of open gym. It is not required for them to attend, but many want to.

"They have a willingness. We have the open gym. We don't require it but hope they'll go. They want to be the best," she said, adding that four of her former Bartow cheerleaders were at a UCF game Saturday and two cheered at the Alabama football game.

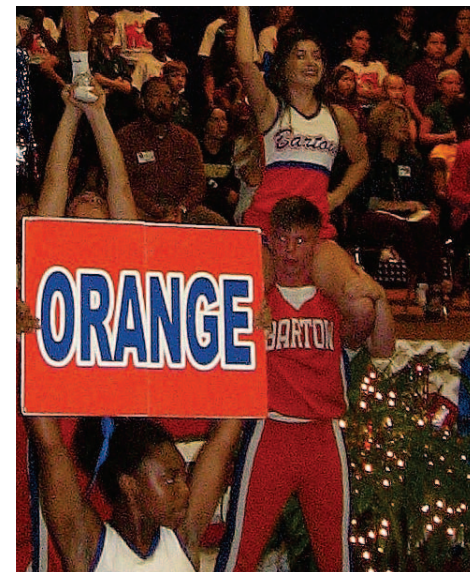

This weekend will be a busy one for the cheerleading squad. At 10:30 a.m. they will be competing in Orlando then go to a county competition at Bishop Moore.

The following weekend, Saturday, Dec. 15, is the fourth annual Chase the State competition at Bartow High School. About 50 teams have signed up for the competition and should bring about 4,000 people (1,000 athletes counted in there) to Bartow.

"This is huge for us. It features some of the best teams in the state of Florida," she said. "They have a chance to check out our town and meet the great people here and visit our restaurants and shops."

The competition starts at 9 a.m. and Jolliff said her team will be on the mat at about 1 p.m. Tickets cost $10 apiece. Not only is this tournament quickly becoming a showcase of the top cheerleading programs in the state, but it is also a major fundraiser for the students to attend in the national competition, a competition in which Bartow won first place three times in the last six years.

The team frequently does fundraisers to help pay for the competition, the national one being about $350 per person, and anyone who is looking to help the team financially can do so by contacting the team through bartow-varsitycheer@gmail.com

This backside for hire

News Columnist

Well, not mine, actually.

But it is a new wrinkle in free enterprise.

As those who know me well are aware, I have a poor reputation for punctuality.

How poor?

I have seriously considered directing that when my time comes, my casket be rolled down the aisle of the church five or 10 minutes after the designated starting time for my funeral. Why should my attendance at my final worship service be any different from all the services that preceded it?

There are those who will get up long before dawn to stand in line to buy a ticket for the performance of a popular artist, or to save a few (or a lot of) bucks at a Black Friday sale.

This can be quite effective.

I saw a TV interview of a woman on Black Friday this year who said that by standing in line all night long, she was able to buy an $8,000 TV set for $1,500.

The interviewer didn't ask just how big a TV set eight grand buys, or even $1,500. I can remember when a small screen color TV that got mediocre reception went for $500, but I am older than dirt.

Today, you can hide a week's worth of dirty laundry for a family of six behind a $500 TV set.

But returning to my opening premise, week before last, as TV broadcasters looked for news on the day after Thanksgiving, they discovered that there is a new, relatively painless way to be first in line on Black Friday morning: You can hire somebody else to be there for you. That's right: you can down a couple of Alka Seltzers after Thanksgiving dinner and settle back for a long night's sleep, while your designated surrogate spends all day and all night in line at the big box store of your choice.

The going rate for this service is reported to be $25 per hour, though some line-sitters have been known to command up to $48.

There have been no reports of mayhem (or in the finest American tradition, litigation) over this practice.

But I've got to wonder how somebody who passed up Thanksgiving dinner for the privilege of standing second in line for 24 hours feels when a bright-eyed, bushy-tailed shopper shows up 10 minutes before opening time to replace a bleary-eyed college student who has been holding the first place in line while struggling to stay awake for the last 18 hours since the battery on his iPad went dead.

Back in my day, it was considered acceptable practice to allow a friend to get in the lunch line ahead of you. Then somebody came up with the concept of allowing a friend to buck the line by getting behind you.

Does anyone find a sense of injustice in this practice?

I suspect these are the same people who today pay line-sitters 25 bucks an hour to reserve their place in line.

(S. L. Frisbie is retired. He has long subscribed to the belief that if God had truly intended for mankind to enjoy the beauty of a sunrise, He would have scheduled it for sometime around 9:30 in the morning.)

COMMUNITY MEANS THE WORLD TO US.

BayCare's community benefit programs are serving the needs of people who need us the most.

Many people in the Tampa Bay community are uninsured and underinsured. In 2017, BayCare spent millions of dollars to make sure that the communities we serve had access to exceptional health care, financial help when they needed it, and health programs available right in their neighborhoods. Above all, we're caring for thousands of individuals who tend to fall into health care's neediest and most underserved populations. You see, not only does community mean the world to us, every person in our community means the world to us. Because if we turn our back on anyone at risk, our humanity would be at risk.

A SALUTE FROM AN OLD ADVERSARY AND FRIEND

Crowds honor Bush for long service, from war to White House

Bush is celebrated for rights for the disabled and military service but mainly as a 'sincere' guy

WASHINGTON — Soldiers, citizens in wheelchairs and long lines of others on foot wound through the hushed Capitol Rotunda on Tuesday to view George H.W. Bush's casket and remember a president whose legacy included World War military service and a landmark law affirming the rights of the disabled. Bob Dole, a compatriot in war, peace and political struggle, steadied himself out of his wheelchair and saluted his old friend and one-time rival.

As at notable moments in his life, Bush brought together Republicans and Democrats in his death, and not only the VIPs.

Members of the public who never voted for the man waited in the same long lines as the rest, attesting that Bush possessed the dignity and grace that deserved to be remembered by their presence on a cold overcast day in the capital.

"I'm just here to pay my respects," said Jane Hernandez, a retired physician in the heavily Democratic city and suburbs. "I wasn't the biggest fan of his presidency, but all in all he was a good sincere guy doing a really hard job as best he could."

Bush's service dog, Sully, was brought to the viewing, too — his main service these last months since Barbara Bush's death in April being to rest his head on her husband's lap. Service dogs are trained to do that.

Sully, former President George H.W. Bush's service dog, pays his respect to President Bush as he lie in state at the U.S. Capitol in Washington, Tuesday.

The CIA also honored Bush, the only spy chief to become president, as three agency directors past and present joined the public in the viewing.

In the midst of the period of mourning, first lady Melania Trump gave Laura Bush, one of her predecessors, a tour of holiday decorations at the White House, a "sweet visit during this somber week," as Mrs. Bush's Instagram account put it. And the Trumps visited members of the Bush family at the Blair House presidential guesthouse, where they are staying. Former President George W. Bush and his wife greeted the Trumps outside before everyone went in for the private, 20-minute visit.

The Bushes later made a surprise visit to the Capitol Rotunda, shaking hands with visitors and tourists lined up to honor the family patriarch.

George W. and Laura Bush entered first, and the former president put his hand on the

House GOP campaign arm targeted by 'unknown entity' in 2018

FBI is investigating breach

By MICHAEL BALSAMO
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Thousands of emails were stolen from aides to the National Republican Congressional Committee during the 2018 midterm campaign, a major breach exposing vulnerabilities that have kept cybersecurity experts on edge since the 2016 presidential race.

The email accounts were compromised during a series of intrusions that had been spread over several months and discovered in April, a person familiar with the matter told The Associated Press. At least four different party aides had their emails surveilled by hackers, said the person, who was not authorized to discuss the details publicly and spoke on condition of anonymity.

The committee said an "unknown entity" was behind the hack but provided few other details. A cybersecurity firm and the FBI have been investigating the matter, the committee said. The FBI declined to comment.

Politically motivated cyberespionage is commonplace across the world, but Americans have become particularly alert to the possibility of digital interference since Russia's meddling in the 2016 election. The theft

5.M more pounds of beef recalled

Salmonella diagnosed in 246 people in 25 states

By KATE FELDMAN
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

The USDA is recalling another 5.1 million pounds of raw beef products, expanding a previous recall to more than 12 million pounds.

The recalled beef, produced and packaged by JBS Tolleson Inc. between July 26 and Sept. 7, has been linked to an outbreak of salmonella that has been diagnosed in 246 people in 25 states as of Nov. 15.

Fifty-nine people have been hospitalized as a result but no deaths have been reported.

The Food Safety and Inspection Service "is continuing to investigate illnesses associated with this widespread outbreak, and additional product from other companies may also be recalled," the USDA said.

According to the Center for Disease Control, children younger than 5, adults older than 65 and people with weakened immune systems are more likely to suffer severe consequences.

Symptoms include diarrhea, fever and stomach cramps between 12 and 72 hours after consuming the contaminated beef.

The USDA warned any consumers to throw out the recalled beef or return it to the store.

1st baby born using uterus transplanted from deceased donor

By MARIA CHENG
AP MEDICAL WRITER

LONDON — Brazilian doctors are reporting the world's first baby born to a woman with a uterus transplanted from a deceased donor.

Eleven previous births have used a transplanted womb but from a living donor, usually a relative or friend.

Experts said using uteruses from women who have died could make more transplants possible. Ten previous attempts using deceased donors in the Czech Republic, Turkey and the U.S. have failed.

The baby girl was delivered last December by a woman born without a uterus because of a rare syndrome. The woman — a 32-year-old psychologist — was initially apprehensive about the transplant, said Dr. Dani Ejzenberg, the transplant team's lead doctor at the University of Sao Paulo School of Medicine.

"This was the most important thing in her life," he said. "Now she comes in to show us the baby and she is so happy."

The woman became pregnant through in vitro fertilization seven months after the transplant. The donor was a 45-year-old woman who had three children and died of a stroke.

The recipient, who was not identified, gave birth by cesarean section. Doctors also removed the womb, partly so the woman would no longer have to take anti-rejection medicines. Nearly a year later, mother and baby are both healthy.

Two more transplants are planned as part of the Brazilian study. Details of the first case were published Tuesday in the medical journal Lancet.

Uterus transplantation was pioneered by Swedish doctor Mats Brannstrom, who has delivered eight children from women who got wombs from family members or friends. Two babies have been born at Baylor University Medical Center in Texas and one in Serbia, also from transplants from living donors.

In 2016, doctors at the Cleveland Clinic transplanted a uterus from a deceased donor, but it failed after an infection developed.

"The Brazilian group has proven that using deceased donors is a viable option," said the clinic's Dr. Tommaso Falcone, who was involved in the Ohio case. "It may give us a bigger supply of organs than we thought were possible."

The Cleveland program is continuing to use deceased donors. Falcone said the fact that the transplant was successful after the uterus was preserved in ice for nearly eight hours demonstrated how resilient the uterus is. Doctors try to keep the time an organ is without blood flow to a minimum.

Other experts said the knowledge gained from such procedures might also solve some lingering mysteries about pregnancies.

"There are still lots of things we don't understand about pregnancies, like how embryos implant," said Dr. Cesar Diaz, who co-authored an accompanying commentary in the journal. "These transplants will help us understand implantation and every stage of pregnancy."

US sets deadline for Russia, warns it may quit nuclear pact

By LORNE COOK and MATTHEW LEE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRUSSELS — The United States warned Russia Tuesday it has 60 days to start complying with a landmark missile treaty or Washington could abandon the pact, creating doubts about nuclear security in Europe.

At NATO talks in Brussels, Secretary of State Mike Pompeo accused Russia of "cheating at its arms control obligations" under the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces Treaty. Pompeo warned that if Russia did not comply with the treaty's terms within 60 days, Washington could activate a six-month notice period for leaving the 1987 pact.

"Russia must return to full and verifiable compliance; Russia's failure to do so will result in the demise of the INF Treaty," Pompeo told reporters.

The U.S. has shared intelligence evidence with its NATO allies that Russia's new SSC-8 ground-fired cruise missile could give Moscow the ability to launch a nuclear strike in Europe with little or no notice.

The bilateral treaty between Washington and Moscow banned all land-based cruise and ballistic missiles with a range between 310-3,410 miles. Russia says the range of the new system does not exceed 500 kilometers.

Pompeo said Washington "would welcome a Russian change of heart" but that he has seen no indication that Moscow is likely to comply.

U.S. allies in NATO said Tuesday they "strongly support the finding of the United States that Russia is in material breach of its obligations." They called on Russia "to return urgently to full and verifiable compliance."

HEADLINES AROUND THE WORLD

US re-establishes 'permanent diplomatic presence' in Somalia

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — The United States says it has re-established a "permanent diplomatic presence" in Somalia for the first time in 27 years.

The State Department on Tuesday says "this historic event reflects Somalia's progress in recent years and is another step forward in formalizing U.S. diplomatic engagement in Mogadishu."

The U.S. closed its Somalia embassy in January 1991 as the country collapsed into civil war, with the military airlifting out the ambassador and others.

The U.S. formally recognized Somalia's new federal government in 2013 but has based its diplomatic mission in the capital of neighboring Kenya.

Former Secretary of State John Kerry during a surprise 2015 visit to Somalia said the U.S. would begin the process of re-establishing a diplomatic presence.

New Ambassador Donald Yamamoto arrived at the U.S. mission last month.

Anthrax responsible for 22 hippo deaths in Malawi, officials say

BLANTYRE, Malawi — Twenty-two hippopotamuses have died from anthrax disease at Liwonde National Park in Malawi over the past two months, a wildlife official said on Tuesday.

Laboratory tests conducted by the Health Ministry showed that the animals had been infected with the highly infectious, spore-forming bacterial disease, Brighton Kumchedwa, director of the Department of National Parks and Wildlife, told dpa.

A few weeks ago, wildlife officials had assumed that the deaths were caused by climate change after they found the hippos floating in the Shire River in September and October.

The river had unusually low water levels.

Liwonde National Park is one of the impoverished Southern African country's top tourism destinations. There are an estimated 3,000 hippos in Malawi.

Rich sex offender Epstein settles 1 suit, but more to come

By CURT ANDERSON

AP LEGAL AFFAIRS WRITER

WEST PALM BEACH — A decade ago, Florida financier Jeffrey Epstein pleaded guilty to sex crimes involving underage girls and got 13 months behind bars. What the public and his accusers didn't know at the time was that he had secretly struck a deal with federal prosecutors that spared him from charges that could have put him away for the rest of his life.

When the deal finally came to light years later, it immediately raised suspicions that Epstein — a man who counted Bill Clinton and Donald Trump among his friends and had some of the finest legal talent in America as his lawyers — had used his wealth and political connections to win special treatment.

Those allegations flared anew in recent weeks as news organizations, led by The Miami Herald, published interviews with the alleged victims and took a closer look at Alexander Acosta, who as the U.S. attorney in Miami in 2008 approved the secret deal. Acosta is now Trump's secretary of labor.

On Tuesday, a lawsuit that many had hoped would expose some of the lurid allegations against Epstein by putting some of his accusers on the stand ended abruptly in a settlement just as jury selection was about to begin.

But the attempt to get to the bottom of the Epstein case and how he managed to get such a light sentence is not over: Some of his accusers are pursuing a separate legal effort to nullify the plea agreement and, they hope, expose him to federal prosecution again.

"That injustice needs to be addressed and will be addressed," said Jack Scarola, one of the attorneys lined up against Epstein. "There is no justification for the broad scope of immunity that was granted."

Epstein, 65, reached the non-prosecution deal with Acosta's office while under investigation on suspicion of sexually abusing at least 40 teenage girls. Under the deal, he pleaded guilty to two state charges, did his time in jail, paid settlements to many of the alleged victims and registered as a sex offender.

He could have faced a far more severe penalty if federal prosecutors had pursued a draft 53-page indictment that was never filed and included sex trafficking charges.

Some of Epstein's accusers are now arguing that their rights were trampled under a federal law that says crime victims must be informed about plea bargains.

One of Epstein's lawyers, Roy Black, has said there was no conspiracy to violate victims' rights, and the plea agreement was "no sweetheart deal by any stretch of the imagination."

Even if the plea bargain is nullified, the final decision on bringing charges would rest solely with the Justice Department.

On Tuesday, Epstein settled a defamation lawsuit brought against him by a lawyer for some of the accusers, Bradley Edwards, who said Epstein tried to derail his representation of the women and ruin his career. In settling, Epstein apologized and agreed to pay an undisclosed amount.

Edwards said some of the accusers — some of whom say they were 13 or 14 when they were molested — were prepared to testify in the lawsuit and may yet get their day in federal court.

"They're willing to talk. They want to share their stories," Edwards said.

Congressional Democrats are calling for an internal Justice Department investigation.

Rep. Lois Frankel, who represents the Palm Beach area, said Tuesday that Epstein "allegedly had dozens and dozens of young, vulnerable women, young women taken to his house where they were sexually exploited."

"I think what has been equally shocking is what I call an extreme minimal punishment for this man without really any public explanation as to why this happened," Frankel added.

Acosta has not commented about the case during the recent media coverage. He was asked briefly about the non-prosecution agreement at his Senate confirmation hearing.

"At the end of the day, based on the evidence, professionals within a prosecutor's office decided that a plea that guarantees someone goes to jail, that guarantees he register generally and guarantees other outcomes, is a good thing," he said.

According to court papers, Epstein had a Palm Beach mansion where girls were brought for what they were sometimes told were massage sessions. He allegedly had female fixers who would look for suitable girls, some of them recruited from Eastern Europe and other parts of the world.

Before the scandal broke, Epstein was friends with Trump and had visited the real estate developer's Mar-a-Lago resort. Trump told interviewers that Epstein was "a great guy." Records also show Clinton flew on Epstein's jet more than two dozen times.

One young woman alleged in court documents that Epstein shared her with his friends, including Britain's Prince Andrew, a charge denied by Buckingham Palace.

Epstein's legal team at various times included such big names as Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr and Harvard professor Alan Dershowitz.

Neither Trump nor Clinton has been accused of any wrongdoing related to Epstein.

HEADLINES AROUND THE STATE

Gov. Scott meets with Cabinet for final time

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Florida Gov. Rick Scott and two of the state's three independently elected Cabinet members met for the last time before leaving office.

Tuesday's meeting was filled with tributes to veterans, entrepreneurs, teachers, police officers and those who helped the Panhandle recover from Hurricane Michael.

Scott, Agriculture Commissioner Adam Putnam and Attorney General Pam Bondi also paid tribute to each other as the Republicans ended eight years of working together. Resolutions were approved to recognize their service.

Each is leaving office due to term limits. Scott was elected to the U.S. Senate last month and Putnam lost a bid to replace him.

Chief Financial Officer Jimmy Patronis is the other Cabinet member. He was appointed by Scott to fill an unexpired term and elected last month to continue in his job.

Major layoffs at hospital damaged by Hurricane Michael

PANAMA CITY (AP) — A large number of layoffs are in the works at a Florida Panhandle hospital that was badly damaged by Hurricane Michael.

In a letter sent to employees Monday, CEO Scott Campbell said Panama City's Bay Medical Sacred Heart will re-open at about one quarter of its previous size and adjust staffing "accordingly."

The News Herald reports the hospital plans to open early next year with eight operating rooms, five cardiac catheterization labs and 75 in-patient beds. It had 323 beds before the Oct. 10 storm.

Ardent Health Services, which operates Bay Medical, said in a statement that laid-off employees will be paid through Feb. 4. Ardent and Ascension Sacred Heart say they're committed to hiring as many affected employees as possible at other hospitals. They're planning a hiring event soon.

Court files: Dad told doctors voices urged him to kill girl

ST. PETERSBURG (AP) — A man accused of dropping his 5-year-old daughter off a Tampa Bay bridge told doctors that voices urged him to kill the child.

Twenty-nine-year-old John Jonchuck is being treated at a state mental hospital as he awaits a March trial on first-degree murder charges in the death of Phoebe Jonchuck. Prosecutors say Jonchuck dropped the little girl into the water in January 2015.

The Tampa Bay Times reports new court files reveal Jonchuck told doctors the voices told him "everybody was going to go to hell" if he and Phoebe didn't die.

Jonchuck told psychiatrist Emily Lazarou these details during evaluations to determine his mental state. Another doctor, hired to assess Lazarou's methods, quoted them in a deposition that became public when it was filed in court.

Police officer fired for using excessive force

DELAND (AP) — A police officer in Florida has been fired for using excessive force and unlawfully arresting a man.

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement said Deland Police Officer Joey Mulero's conduct was inappropriate when he threw a DeLand resident to the ground and handcuffed him during an encounter last year. The encounter was captured on video.

The Daytona Beach News-Journal reports that DeLand Police Chief Jason Umberger and his command staff determined the officer did not have probable cause to arrest the man.

Mulero was fired Monday. The FDLE investigation concluded Mulero didn't commit a crime and the State Attorney's Office declined to file criminal charges.

Nevada suing US in bid to block plan for plutonium shipments

By KEN RITTER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAS VEGAS — Nevada is suing the federal government in a bid to stop plans to ship plutonium cross-country next year from South Carolina to the nation's former nuclear proving ground north of Las Vegas.

In a statement Tuesday, outgoing Gov. Brian Sandoval and Attorney General Adam Laxalt repeated a vow that the state will fight "at every level" the U.S. Department of Energy plan to store radioactive bomb-making material at the Nevada Nuclear Security Site.

Sandoval, a Republican, said Nevada won't stand for the threat that shipping and storing highly toxic and cancer-causing material could pose to public health and safety.

State officials worry that an accident could permanently harm a Las Vegas area home to 2.2 million permanent residents and host to more than 40 million tourists a year.

The lawsuit, filed Friday in U.S. District Court in Reno, accuses the Energy Department of failing to properly study environmental threats posed by moving about 2,200 pounds (1 metric ton) of weapons-grade plutonium from the federal Savannah River nuclear weapons refining complex in South Carolina to Nevada by New Year's Day 2020.

The plutonium has been designated for national security use and is not waste, National Nuclear Security Administration and Energy Department spokesman Gregory Wolf said in a statement that noted the government is responding to a deadline set by a federal judge in South Carolina.

The material will be "temporarily staged" at the Nevada National Security Site and the government's Pantex Plant in Texas, two facilities that already handle and process plutonium, before eventually being sent to the Los Alamos National Laboratory in New Mexico "or another facility," the statement said.

"Because this is now a matter in litigation, NNSA will be unable to respond to questions or provide further information," it said.

In a final letter to Sandoval on Nov. 20, the Energy Department said it expects to move the material from Nevada to New Mexico "by the 2026-2027 timeframe," according to the lawsuit. The court filing accused federal officials of providing "none of the assurances Nevada requested."

Robert Halstead, head of the Nevada Agency for Nuclear Projects and the top state official fighting the proposal, expressed concern the material would end up permanently stored less than 100 miles from Las Vegas, and said he wasn't sure shipment hadn't already begun.

The Energy Department is on the hook to move 34 metric tons (nearly 75,000 pounds) of material, Halstead said. He expressed concern that after the first truckloads make the nearly 3,200-mile (5,150-kilometers) trip to Nevada, hundreds more would follow.

4 charged in Panama Papers investigation

By JIM MUSTIAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Federal authorities announced a raft of conspiracy and tax fraud charges Tuesday against four men in the first U.S. prosecution related to the so-called Panama Papers.

The 11-count indictment unsealed in Manhattan stems from what prosecutors described as an "intercontinental money laundering scheme" involving a global law firm based in Panama.

Two Germans, one American and a Panamanian attorney were charged with conspiracy and other counts.

The Panama Papers include a collection of 11 million secret financial documents that illustrated how some of the world's richest people hide their money. The records were first leaked to the Suddeutsche Zeitung, a major German newspaper, and were shared with the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists, which began publishing collaborative reports with news organizations in 2016.

The repercussions of the leaks were far-ranging, prompting the resignation of the prime minister of Iceland and bringing scrutiny to the leaders of Argentina and Ukraine, Chinese politicians and Russian President Vladimir Putin, among others.

Federal prosecutors say the law firm Mossack Fonseca conspired to circumvent U.S. laws to maintain the wealth of its clients and conceal tax dollars owed to the IRS. They say the scheme dates to 2000 and involved sham foundations and shell companies in Panama, Hong Kong and the British Virgin Islands.

U.S. Attorney Geoffrey Berman said the defendants "shuffled millions of dollars through offshore accounts" and had "a playbook to repatriate un-taxed money into the U.S. banking system."

Teen who killed parents sentenced to 40 years

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — A teenager who told authorities she "snapped" and killed her parents while struggling with gender identity and acceptance was sentenced Tuesday to 40 years in prison.

Andrea Balcer, who was 17 at the time of the fatal stabbings, asked for forgiveness from her remaining family members, many of whom had called for the maximum penalty. Her attorney argued that the teenager was dealing with her transition from male to female in isolation and without family support at the time of the killings. She had no criminal record before the violence early on Oct. 31, 2016, in the family's Winthrop home.

Family and friends disputed the notion that the parents, Alice and Antonio Balcer, were anything less than loving and supportive to Andrea and Christopher. Balcer, now 20, looked down, wiped away tears and took notes while friends and family testified about the pain caused by the deaths. They said the couple, who were both 47 when they died, was widely regarded as caring people.

Carl Pierce, Alice's brother, said the suggestion that gender identity, abuse or lack of family support played a role was an "insult to our family, an insult to our society and an insult to the LGBTQ community."

Minnesota grain elevator manager charged with mail fraud, stealing nearly $5 million

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The former manager of a western Minnesota grain elevator who disappeared after allegedly stealing nearly $5 million is charged in federal court with mail fraud.

Jerry Hennessey, 56, of Dalton surrendered and made his initial court appearance Tuesday, according to the U.S. Attorney's office.

The criminal complaint and a law enforcement affidavit said

Hennessey defrauded the Ashby Farmers' Co-Operative Elevator Co. in Ashby, Minnesota, for 15 years, from 2003 through at least September 2018. He allegedly spent the money on exotic hunting safaris, taxidermy, outdoor gear and credit card debt, the Star Tribune reported.

Hennessey managed the elevator for nearly 30 years. He already faces a lawsuit in state court accusing him of stealing more than $4.9 million from the business.

In September, the co-op contacted authorities about payments Hennessey made to himself or for his personal expenses. When the co-op asked to meet with Hennessey, he didn't show up and instead met a friend who drove him to Des Moines, Iowa.

Hennessey's friends told investigators he told them he had taken money from his employer and was in trouble.

According to the affidavit, the co-op discovered multiple checks written by Hennessey to himself for over $40,000, including a check for $135,000. Hennessey coded his allegedly fraudulent checks as purchases of corn, soybeans and wheat for the co-op, according to court documents.

Among the payments in question included over $1 million to Hennessey's personal credit card and hundreds of thousands of dollars for hunting trips, including international big game hunting safaris, and taxidermy services, the affidavit said.

In January 2017, Hennessey mailed a check for more than $34,000 from the co-op's account for a partial payment toward the purchase of hunting property in Minnesota's Kanabec County, according to the court filing.

Investors hear 3 words they fear: inverted yield curve growth will fall off sharply, perhaps as a result of the Federal Reserve pushing short-term rates higher, they're willing to accept less in interest for a Treasury maturing far in the future. When yields for short-term Treasuries rise above yields for long-term ones, market watchers call it an "inverted yield curve," and Wall Street starts getting more nervous.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most reliable warning signals for a recession just got a bit brighter. The signal is called the "yield curve," and it shows how the bond market is feeling about the U.S. economy's long-term prospects.

Helicobacter pylori contributes to ulcers, inflammation

DEAR DR. ROACH: My 82-year-old husband was diagnosed with H. pylori and was treated with two antibiotics and omeprazole. Would you please expand on what exactly H. pylori is? — T.R.

ANSWER: Helicobacter pylori is a bacteria species that is able to live in the stomach. It was identified in a paper from 1984 and is now recognized as a major contributor to gastrointestinal ulcers and inflammation.

In addition, it plays a role in the development of certain types of stomach cancers.

H. pylori is the underlying cause of most stomach and duodenal ulcers, and people who have these ulcers are tested for H. pylori and treated if the bacteria is present. Treatment helps speed recovery and prevent recurrence of disease.

H. pylori is hard to kill. A common regimen is clarithromycin, amoxicillin and omeprazole. Diagnosis can be made with biopsy specimens taken at the time of upper endoscopy, or by a breath test or stool test. Blood testing is not reliable.

In people with stomach symptoms but who do not require endoscopy, many clinicians choose to look for H. pylori by stool or breath testing, and treat if present. Unfortunately, treating the infection is effective at curing symptoms only a minority of the time.

H. pylori increases the risk of stomach cancer and is the cause of most cases of a cancer called a MALToma. People with this unusual cancer often are cured (or at least have no evidence of disease after multiple years) with successful treatment of H. pylori, making it the first known cancer to be cured with antibiotics.

The risk for stomach cancer in North America is relatively low, so experts do not advise screening for H. pylori solely for the purpose of treating people to reduce their risk of stomach cancer. However, some people at high risk due to family history or other risk factors may elect screening.

DEAR DR. ROACH: My doctor heard a heart murmur and sent me for an echocardiogram.

This showed that I have some heart thickening due to high blood pressure, but that my valves are OK. The doctor said the murmur came from "aggressive heart muscle contractions."

I'm 68, and my blood pressure is around 140/76. What can I expect my heart health to be as I age? Is this progressive? I exercise 150 minutes per week. Should I still push myself? — B.G.

ANSWER: I looked at your echocardiogram report, and it showed your ejection fraction (the percent of blood the heart squeezes out every beat) was 75 percent (just on the border of too high), and the report noted abnormal relaxation of the thickened wall of the left ventricle. These findings are indeed consistent with hypertensive heart disease.

Fortunately, this condition is usually treatable. At the time of the echo, your blood pressure was 158/76.

Perhaps you were nervous, or perhaps your blood pressure isn't under as good control as it could be. Meticulous blood pressure control, ideally with an ACE inhibitor and often a beta blocker, is the best treatment for your condition. With good control, the heart can start to return to normal. Sometimes a 24-hour blood pressure monitor can help decide whether the medication is enough.

Regular exercise is absolutely still indicated, but I don't recommend overexerting yourself until you speak with your cardiologist about it.

Normal life eludes victim of repeated sexual abuse

DEAR ABBY: I am a 53-year-old woman who is a sexual abuse survivor. This has consumed every aspect of my life. It started when I was around 2, I believe, and was a daily occurrence until I was 14. My abuser was my paternal grandfather, now deceased.

Dear Abby

I've sought counseling and therapy groups — whatever I could — over the years, to no avail. I just can't shake it. I have dealt with flashbacks, nightmares, failed marriages, etc. I just want to be and feel normal, and I don't know how.

Am I searching for something that does not exist? I don't know if you can help me, but PLEASE, if you have any advice at all, I would be beyond grateful. — Lost In The South

DEAR LOST: My heart goes out to you. You have experienced an atrocity. The groups you have been attending may not have been the right ones for you. One-on-one sessions with a licensed mental health professional, someone who specializes in working with victims of sexual abuse and/or PTSD, might be more appropriate. A good place to start finding the help you're looking for would be the Rape, Abuse and Incest National Network (RAINN). It's the nation's largest anti-sexual violence network. You can find it online at rainn.org or by calling 800-656-4673. I wish you healing and success. Please let me hear from you again and tell me how you are doing.

DEAR ABBY: I have asked my husband to please not spit in the kitchen sink or to floss his teeth at the kitchen table. He responds by getting mad and huffing off like I am being a nag. Am I in the wrong? — Disturbed In Minnesota

DEAR DISGUSTED: Considerate spouses refrain from doing things they know will annoy their partner. I'm sure if your gem of a husband told you not to do something that bothers him, you would respect his wishes. Well, it's supposed to work both ways.

Give a cap this simple twist

Dear Heloise: One of my favorite hints is very simple: When trying to open a bottle that's hard to open, I use a NUTCRACKER to grip the cap and twist it off. Most grocery stores sell metal nutcrackers. — Shirley L., Locust Grove, Va.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: My new husband came from a household where they didn't like anything cold, so they did not refrigerate ketchup. Should we refrigerate ketchup or not? — Stella V., Napa, Calif.

Stella, all ketchup and mustard should be refrigerated after opening to retain flavor and freshness. — Heloise

Dear Heloise: When I buy a new bag of brown sugar, I need to place the sugar in a glass jar. After that, I put half a slice of bread in with the sugar and put the lid on the jar.

Even when the bread dries out, it keeps the brown sugar soft and easy to use. — Colette W., Sedalia, Mo.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Self-worth and net worth are not interchangeable values. For you, this fact is a no-brainer. For some others you know, it will take time and life experience to learn — bear with them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Maybe it's not, as they say, "all good," but there is little time to waste rejecting the parts that aren't. It is "much good," and it will take a while to count all this goodness. Take your time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You've an even temper much of the time, but this shouldn't be taken for a steadfast rule. When your passion is stirred, it will surprise and impress all.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Status is important, but it's never been your priority. Right now there are a hundred things you care much more about than looking good to the neighbors. Because you're not worried about status, your status rises.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Does the world seem to be in disarray? Sometimes it's our way of mentally ordering information that makes it confusing. A teacher can help us find another point of view — one that will bring context and clarity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Cheerfulness is charming. As you continue to make optimism your default, you definitely cultivate even greater powers of enchantment and become a charismatic influencer.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Wisdom comes out of adversity. Hardship is the greatest teacher. But you don't have hardship now. The second greatest teachers are people you don't agree with. Learn where they're coming from and become wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). There will be conflicts, mostly one of your responsibilities clashing with another of more or less importance. Put it all on paper. That's how you'll sort it out.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). What are you doing on a daily basis to support your emotional and spiritual health? What are you doing every day to prove that you love yourself? "Excellence is not an act, but a habit." — Aristotle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You're making plans. Ideally, you'd include everyone, but this might not be possible. Don't worry, the right people will show up, which is to say the people who most need to be a part of this.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You've been on a learning curve, but now you're getting the swing of things and it's all starting to flatten out a bit. Enjoy the successful feeling that comes with hitting your stride.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You're in the mood to share, and you have much to give. Presentation will be key. It's not the face value, but the spirit in which a thing is given that really counts.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Dec. 5). You're considered a tastemaker, and your recommendations will enhance lives. Highlights of this solar return will include: a dance of love that spans seasons, an event that involves several moving parts and brings together different groups, and something done in the spirit of justice. Capricorn and Virgo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 7, 14, 30 and 20.

In a time when artificial gadgetry seems to dominate most expert auctions, it's a pleasure to see an auction based purely on bridge logic. North in today's deal was the late Sydney Lazard, a Hall of Famer, playing with his regular partner, Bart Bramley.

Many non-expert players would open the North hand with a bid of two clubs. It's a way to "start the party" and inform partner that good times are about to roll. Experts will not open distributional hands with a two-club bid unless the high-card strength is overwhelming. Describing a distributional hand is even more difficult when you start with an artificial bid at the two level.

Lazard might have bid four hearts at his second turn, but he thought he was too strong for that bid after Bramley's two-level response. Slam chances were significant. The delicate four-diamond bid brought a somewhat timid preference from Bramley, but Bramley couldn't know that his side had an eight-card fit, much less nine. The four-heart bid gave Lazard confidence that his heart suit was solid, and he tried a four-spade cue bid. Bramley wanted to accept the slam try, but he didn't know which suit to play in. He jumped to six clubs to emphasize his club strength. Lazard recognized that his king of clubs was golden, so he jumped to the grand slam in hearts. Bramley was certain that his partner held long, solid hearts, plus a minor suit king, so he converted to seven no trump and the top spot was reached. A well-bid hand!

flag-draped casket holding the remains of his father. Their twin daughters, Jenna and Barbara, followed. Jeb Bush and his wife joined along with about a dozen other members of the Bush family. They mingled for about 10 minutes, at one point George W. Bush held up a baby.

Although President Donald Trump will attend Bush's national funeral service Wednesday, he is not among the eulogists announced by the Bush family, a list that includes George W. Bush. The others are Alan Simpson, the former senator and acerbic wit from Wyoming; Brian Mulrone, the former Canadian prime minister who also gave a eulogy for Ronald Reagan; and presidential historian Jon Meacham.

People lined up before dawn to pay respects to the 41st president, a son and father of privilege now celebrated by everyday citizens for his common courtesies and depth of experience.

President Donald Trump and first lady Melania Trump are greeted by former President George Bush and former first lady Laura Bush outside the Blair House across the street from the White House in Washington, Tuesday.

Inside the Capitol, Sully, the 2-year-old Labrador retriever assigned to Bush, sat by the casket in the company of people who came to commemorate Bush's signing of the Americans with Disabilities Act, the 1990 law that, among its many provisions, required businesses that prohibit pets to give access to service dogs.

"After Mrs. Bush's death, general companionship was a big part of Sully's job," John Miller, president and CEO of America's VetDogs, said in a phone interview. "One of the things that I think was important to the president was the rest command, where Sully would rest his head on the president's lap."

The law was just one point of intersection for Bush and Dole, now 95, who was one of its leading advocates in the Senate.

They were fellow World War II veterans, Republican Party leaders, fierce rivals for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination won by Bush ("Stop lying about my record," Dole snapped at Bush) and skilled negotiators. Dole, an Army veteran hit by German machine gunfire in Italy, has gone through life with a disabled right arm. Bush, a Navy pilot, survived a bail-out from his stricken aircraft over the Pacific and an earlier crash landing.

On Tuesday Dole was helped out of his wheelchair by an aide, slowly steadied himself and saluted Bush with his left hand, his chin quivering.

Dignitaries had come forward on Monday, too, to honor the Texan whose service to his country extended three quarters of a century, from World War II through his final years as an advocate for volunteerism and relief for people displaced by natural disaster. Bush, 94, died Friday.

In an invocation opening Monday evening's ceremony, the U.S. House chaplain, the Rev. Patrick J. Conroy, praised Bush's commitment to public service, from Navy pilot to congressman, U.N.

ambassador, envoy to China and then CIA director before being elected vice president and then president.

"Here lies a great man," said Rep. Paul Ryan, the House speaker, and "a gentle soul. ... His legacy is grace perfected."

After services in Washington, Bush's remains will be returned to Houston to lie in repose at St. Martin's Episcopal Church before burial Thursday at his family plot on the presidential library grounds at Texas A&M University in College Station. His final resting place will be alongside Barbara Bush, his wife of 73 years who died in April, and Robin Bush, the daughter they lost to leukemia in 1953 at age 3.

Trump has ordered the federal government closed Wednesday for a national day of mourning. Flags on public buildings are flying at half-staff for 30 days.

Bush's death reduces membership in the ex-presidents' club to four: Jimmy Carter, Bill Clinton, George W. Bush and Barack Obama.

of Democrats' emails is still fresh in the minds of many political operatives and lawmakers, who have stepped up defensive measures but still struggle to protect themselves.

Foreign spies routinely try to hack into politicians' emails to gain insight, ferret out weaknesses and win a diplomatic edge. But hackers often launch sweeping spear-phishing campaigns to gain access to a variety of accounts — with no political motivation. With no immediate suspects and few technical details, it's unclear what the significance of this latest incursion is.

In August, the Democratic National Committee thought it had thwarted an attempt to break into its massive voter database — but the effort turned out to be unauthorized test that mimicked what an attack would look like.

CrowdStrike, a California-based cybersecurity company, said Tuesday the NRCC asked the company in April to "perform an investigation related to unauthorized access" to the committee's emails. Before that, the company had been helping the committee protect its internal corporate network, which wasn't compromised.

"The cybersecurity of the committee's data is paramount, and upon learning of the intrusion, the NRCC immediately launched an internal investigation and notified the FBI, which is now investigating the matter," the committee said in a statement. The hack was first reported by Politico.

had access only to state-run email accounts on their phones.

The Cuban government has been building a 3G network in cities across the island and some tourists, Cuban government officials and foreign businesspeople have had access to it for several years.

The communist-governed island has one of the world's lowest rates of internet use but that has been expanding rapidly since Presidents Barack Obama and Raul Castro declared detente in 2014. Expansion has not slowed with President Donald Trump's partial rollback of relations.

Cuba authorized home internet in 2017 and hundreds of public Wi-Fi connection points have opened in parks and plazas around the country.

The new service will cost about 10 cents per megabyte, with packages ranging from 600 megabytes for about $7 to four gigabytes for about $30.

How to read the stock tables

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Name	Ticker Symbol	Div	Yield	PE	52-week High Low	Vol	100s	Last	YTD %Chg
XYZcorp	XYZ	1.20	3.6	17	34.09 27.27	2780	33.72	+20.7

- 1 — Name of stock.
  - 2 — Ticker Symbol company trades under.
  - 3 — Dividend: A distribution of the company's earnings to shareholders, usually consisting of stock dividends, interest on bonds, or short-term capital gains on the sale of securities usually paid quarterly in the form of cash or stock.
  - 4 — Div. Yield: The dividend divided by the stock price. It helps gauge how well the stock is paying, compared to other investments such as CDs, bonds or savings accounts.
  - 5 — Price to earnings ratio: The price of a stock divided by its earnings per share. PEs are used to gauge the relative worth of a company's stock. When compared to other companies in the same industry, the companies with the lowest PEs are generally earning higher profits.
  - 6 — Range of closing prices in last year.
  - 7 — Sales in thousands (10 = 10,000 shares), and closing price.
  - 8 — Last trading price of the day.
  - 9 — Percent change for the year.
- ▲▼ Arrows, indicate new highs or lows.
Underline: indicates top 100 stocks by volume rank.
Bold stocks, designates which stocks have gone up or down 5%.
